WEEKLY MONITOR

The Weekly Monitor, BRIDGE TOWN, ANNOPIA CO., N. S. Published weekly, except on Wednesdays, at $1.00 per annum in advance.

For the benefit of our farmer readers we publish herewith a communication which is of much interest to them and through them to the general public, concerning a pest which has been ravaging the orchards of New England, and threatens to gain a foothold here, unless the utmost precautions are used to prevent it. Our correspondent says—

The farmers in the Annapolis Valley should use every precaution against the introduction of the grape moth into the fruit belt of the Annapolis Valley. Its destructive ravages in New England beyond description. The importation of trees from the United States should be permitted only if the various agricultural and horticultural societies should study the habits of this moth and the best methods to be used in keeping it out of their zone. The apple crop in this valley is already too valuable to take any risk in the introduction of any new pest.

The following paragraph is from a New England paper: "The recent mistake of the Massachusetts legislature in failing to continue the effort for the extermination of the grape moth is becoming more and more apparent as the time goes on. A tract of two thousand acres of oak timber in the town of Malden is now stripped clean of foliage. The large grove at Oak Grove station is practically dead. It is appalling to contemplate the prospect of a change of this moth is allowed to multiply and cover the land."

The Maritime Boys Camp. The Maritime Y. M. C. A. Boys' camps are noted throughout the continent as being among the best conducted boys' camps, as well as being one of the first to be organized. This year's camp at West Quaco, N. B., was one of the most successful ever held. Nine of our Annapolis County boys with L. W. Archibald, County Secretary, and Claude King of Annapolis, as leaders, attended the camp. The campers were: Willie Brown and Ingram Marshall of Middleton; Wilfred Baker of Lawrenceton; Louis Young and Fred Kinsley of Bridgetown; Reginald Boucher and Lloyd Potter of Annapolis. There were seven regular campers in attendance. The situation at West Quaco is a beautiful one for camp. The prevalence of foggy weather, however, somewhat interfered with the athletic sports. Base ball was the most popular game, and scarcely a day passed when the weather was favorable, but that three games were played. There were nine tennis, and each tent had its base ball team. A league was also formed of tennis representing different places—Bridgetown, St. John, Nova Scotia, Petrolia and Sussex. The Nova Scotia team tied with Moncton for first place, but when the tie was played at Moncton they gave them the championship.

In the athletic contests that were held, the campers were divided into three sections, according to size. In the first section Reginald Boucher of Annapolis won the all round championship. In the second section Willie Brown of Middleton won first place, and in the third section this McDonald of Bridgetown won first.

One of the special features of this year's camp was the giving of a camp concert at St. John's. The program was made up of songs, readings, recitations, gymnastic drills and pyramids. The hall was filled with an appreciative audience, and a good time was had by all. The campers were very much enjoyed. A table class was taught by Mr. McNally of Moncton, every morning for ten minutes. The attendance was satisfactory, but nearly every boy in camp made a point to be in attendance.

The Nova Scotia Provincial Educational Association will meet at the Normal School, Truro, on the 15th, 17th and 18th August, 1904. By commencing the usual number of papers much time has been allowed to discuss the time when the report of the committee on resolutions about teachers' salaries should stand approved in rural schools reformatories, etc.

When purchasing your railway or steamboat ticket ask ticket agent for standard certificate which may be advanced after endorsement by Secretary of Association for a free return ticket. By continuing with Reginald, 126, beneficiaries of the meetings of the Association will be credited to teachers of rural schools on teaching days or the first week of the school year, that is, such teachers attending the Association will have an additional week of holidays.

A. McKay, Secretary, Provincial Educational Assn. P. O. Box 181, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia. Accidental Death of Mr. George Sands. Word was received here yesterday of the death by accident of Mr. George Sands, a native of this town, of recent years a resident of the town of St. Stephen, N. B. Mr. Sands was a passenger on an excursion steamer from Calmar to Eastport. At the latter place when returning to the steamer he stepped upon the gang plank and the plank was being hauled in and was precipitated into the water 25 feet below, his head striking on the steamer's gunwale as he fell. He was rescued from the water and placed in the cabin of the steamer where a physician attended him, but he lived only a short time. Mr. Sands was seventy-two years of age, and leaves a wife and children. His death was a great loss to his family, and a cousin of the late P. D. Rogers, Esq., and visited his relatives in Bridgetown last summer.

The results of the recent competition in the Canadian Military League, which embraces the whole of Canada, were announced last week. The teams are divided into three classes—military corps, other military units, and civilian teams. THE USE AND VALUE OF MILL FEEDS.

Commissioner's Branch, Ottawa, July 28.

A leading Nova Scotia farmer points out that the average...

Knowing the grade he is buying, the value of each, or the kind of stock which it should be fed...

It may be said that numerous experiments have been made in Europe and America in order to ascertain...

money value of various feeds according to the nutrients they contain...

the results have been so conflicting that Prof. Henry concludes...

in his standard work "Feed and Fodder," that it is impossible to state the value of one feeding stuff in terms of another...

based upon the nutritive value of each. The value to the farmer of those purchased feeding stuffs depends largely upon the sort of roughage and grain with which they are to be fed...

Mill feeds are so subject to adulteration that several American experiment stations devote a great deal of attention to making and publishing analyses of the various brands...

Some feed notes on the more common feeds are all that a newspaper article will allow.

WHEAT.

Wheat is a suitable food for all kinds of live stock, if fed with judgment...

Shrunken and damaged wheat can be fed to advantage, so it may be nearly or quite equal to the best grain for this purpose...

For fattening stock, wheat is considered worth about ten per cent. less than corn...

The by-products of wheat in common use are bran, shorts, middlings and low grade flour...

Bran is recovered as the heavy part of the feed for dairy cows and sheep, and for horses not at hard work...

On account of its coarse and fibrous nature, it is admirably adapted for mixing with other feeds...

It is highly concentrated feed, but for the same reason it is not suited for feeding in large quantities to hard-worked horses or milking cows...

It is not always clearly marked, although the former is supposed to be the registered brand, and the latter is a mixture of two with some flour included...

The poorer grades of shorts often contain the sweepings and dirt of the mill and are not satisfactory for feeding...

Medium grades are especially useful for feeding pigs, along with skim milk or corn...

The lowest grade of flour, frequently known as "red dog," usually contains the germ of the wheat...

It is high protein and fat content is a valuable feed for cows, hard-worked horses and growing pigs...

The better sorts of low grade flour are not so objectionable to the best grades and cannot be fed to a profit.

CORN.

Corn is the best of all the cereals for fattening stock...

It is used very largely in the manufacture of starch, glucose, beer, spirits, etc., and consequently has a long list of by-products...

In the process of manufacture the hulls are removed and the remainder of the grain is sold under the name of gluten feed, which is well suited for dairy cows and fattening stock...

Gluten feed is a valuable feed for the hills and germs of the corn and is very rich in protein and fat...

It is a capital feed for dairy cows, but on account of its concentrated nature should be mixed with bran or oats...

Corn germ is very rich in protein and oil; after the oil is pressed out the residue is known as corn oil meal or corn oil cake...

Corn bran is relatively low in feeding value. There are numerous other "corn feeds" on the market, but they vary greatly in composition and value...

They should be bought only under a guaranteed analysis.

OATS.

The feeding value of oats is well known to all, but the oat hulls, or oat feed, or shorts are the chief by-products of this grain...

Oat hulls are of little value for feed, but are often mixed with corn meal and the oat hulls are sold as ground oats...

Oat dust consists chiefly of the minute hairs removed from the kernel in the preparation of oatmeal...

It has a fair feeding value, especially if broken kernels are present and there is not too much mill sweepings...

Oat shorts or oat feed varies greatly in composition, although the better grades show a feeding value similar to that of oatmeal.

BARLEY.

Barley is a first class feed for pigs and dairy cows...

The by-products, brewers' grains and malt sprouts, are largely fed in some sections. Brewers' grains are simply barley from which the dextrin and sugar have been extracted...

The wet grains are not desirable for general use, but the dried grains are easily kept and are rich in protein and fat...

Ranking with bran and oil meal as a feed for dairy cows. Malt sprouts are a cheap and excellent feed for cows, but they are not greatly valued and only two or three pounds a day can be fed.

PEAS.

Peas are very rich in protein, and are among the best feeds for growing animals, dairy cows and pigs...

Peas are so concentrated to be fed alone. There are no by-products in general use.

OLL-CRACK.

Oll-crack or oil meal is a by-product of the manufacture of lard oil...

It is a very rich and healthful feed, particularly for fattening stock and sheep. Its high protein content makes it valuable for feeding in moderate quantities to dairy cows, along with corn meal...

COTTONSEED MEAL.

Cottonseed meal is a by-product in the making of cottonseed oil...

It is a very rich and healthful feed, particularly for fattening stock and sheep. Its high protein content makes it valuable for feeding in moderate quantities to dairy cows, along with corn meal...

The Household. HIS MOTHER MADE HIM.

A wealthy business man not long ago, made a visit to his native town, a thriving little place, and while there was asked to address a Sunday School on the general subject of success in life.

"I don't know that I have anything to say except that industry and honesty win the race," he answered. "Your very example would be inspiring, if you would tell the story of your life," said the superintendent.

"Why, I've heard all about your early struggles. You went into Mr. Wheeler's office when you were only ten."

"So I did! So I did! But my mother got me the place, and while I was there she did all my washing and mending, and she had something to eat, and when I got discouraged told me to cheer up and remember that tears were for babies."

"While there you studied by yourself—"

"Oh, bless you! Not by myself! Mother heard my lessons every night, and made me spell long words while she kept up her work for breakfast. I remember one night I got so discouraged I dashed my writing book, and with hot words and tears, and in the fire, and she burnt her hands in pulling it out."

"Well, it was certainly true, wasn't it, that as soon as you saved a little money you invested in fruit and began to peddle it on the evening train?"

"The rich man's eyes twinkled and then grew moist over the fun and pathos of his own old recollections."

"You'll be a cheat, and I will advance to call you my son," she said promptly. "Oh, to think you could dream of such a sneaking thing, and I've never been tempted to do since. No, sir, I haven't anything to say in public about my early struggles, but I wish you'd remind your boys and girls every Sunday that their mothers are doing far more for them than they are doing for themselves."

"Dear Editor—Yesterday I sent you a chicken in order to settle a dispute which has arisen here. Can you tell us what the chicken did?"

"The editor of an English paper recently received a fine chicken, which he, supposing it to be a token of appreciation from a distinguished reader, took home and enjoyed for dinner. The following day he received this letter: 'Dear Editor—Yesterday I sent you a chicken in order to settle a dispute which has arisen here. Can you tell us what the chicken did?'"

"—A housewren applied for help to a gentleman, who gave her a note to the manager of a certain club. It read as follows: 'Dear Mr. X—This woman wants washing. Very shortly afterward the answer came back: 'Dear Sir—I dare say she does, but I don't fancy the job.'"

"—Didactic Mamma—Now, Charlie, don't you admire my new silk dress? Charlie (with emphasis)—Yes, mamma. Didactic Mamma—And Charlie, all the silk is provided for you by a poor woman. Charlie—Do you mean dad?"

"—You may not believe it," said the Standard Oil magnate, "but I really do love the poor. I'm always glad to see them and to do what I can to aid them." "Their numbers," interrupted the man with the cold gray eyes. "Yes, we all give you credit for that."

"—Mrs. Housekeeper—Dinah, I don't want you to be so particular that policeman in the kitchen any more. Dinah—But Miss Edith is in the parlor mess over the toms, ma'am, an' I don't think Mr. O'Brien would enjoy her society, her 'bin' tramps, an' 'em."

"—Her Father (sternly): 'Young man, can you support a family?' Young Man (starched): 'Why—er—I only wanted your daughter.'"

"—How do you like my painting?" "Oh, the colors are exquisite! What a pity we can't have such tints in nature."

"—Teacher—Now, Johnny, what does the busy bee teach us?" Johnny—To keep away from the hive. Minard's Liniment cures Diptemper.
