SERGT.-MAJOR CRESSWELL
LONDON, ONT.

Lest We Forget—

In Flanders' fields the poppies grow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks still singing bravely fly:—
We are the dead, short days ago
We loved and were loved
And now we lie in soldiers' graves

A decorative border of a vine with leaves and flowers surrounds the text. The border is thin and elegant, with small flowers at the top and bottom corners and larger leaves at the bottom center.

*The flag he loved was wrapped him round,
And where he lies is holy ground,
Baptized anew by sacrifice
That had its pattern in the skies.

And failed? Ah, no! our failures here
Are triumphs in some happier sphere.*

*We see the place where daddy stood,
We hear his step on the stair,
His face smiles back from the mirror deep,
None sits in his empty chair.
But we smile thro' a thickening mist of tears,
As we know he is safe above
By the spotless throne where the Master reigns,
For he knew that his God was Love.
His presence is with us in the day,
He guards our bed through the night,
When we sit in the gloaming he comes to us
With the mist of the shining light.
But his place is empty, 'twill ne'er be filled
By another, and safe above
The angel band has another soul
To worship the God of Love.*

CAPTAIN FREDERICK WILLIAM CAMPBELL, V.C., D.S.O., CROIX DE GUERRE, MOUNT FOREST

Captain Campbell, the first Canadian V.C. officer commanding the Machine Gun Section of the 1st Batt'n, 1st Brigade, went overseas with the 1st Contingent. His long military career had already won for him the complete confidence and love of his men. As both soldier and man he was admired and respected by all who knew him. The South African war proved him a hero. His "Campbell Wheel" in the Quebec Museum is evidence of his resources in action. Coming of a long line of soldiers, his great-grandfather was Captain Ames, who helped to repel the United States invaders from Canada in the war of 1812. On his forty-seventh birthday, he received a mortal wound in the hip during the battle of Givenchy, June 15th, 1915, after his immortal effort of that day. For maintaining his machine gun fire after nearly the whole of his detachment had been killed, for repulsing the German counter attack, almost single handed, for saving by his bravery a most critical situation, he was awarded the supreme honor of militarism, the Victoria Cross. Sir Max Aitken pays tribute in these words: "No man died that night with more glory; yet many died, and there was much glory."

*Greater love than this hath no man,
That he lay down his life for his friends.*

*Christ-like they died that we might live,
And our redeemed lives would we bring
With aught that gratitude may give
To serve you in your sorrowing.
And never a pathway shall ye tread,
No foot of seashore, hill or lea
But ye may think, "The dead, my dead,
Gave this, a sacred gift, to me."*
