Upon informing the City Marshal that the wife had taken over $400 from him, Mr. Cotter questioned her about it, but she stoutly denied having any more money about her; that all she had in her possession she had given to the sergeant for safe keeping. The Marshal was not satisfied with this explanation, and suspecting that she had it concealed somewhere, he persisted in his inquiries about the balance. No; she knew nothing about it. At last he suggested that probably she had it stowed away in her stocking. Giving him a look of disgust she indignantly denied the accusation, and immediateately proceeded to prove her innocence by submutting her stocking for examination. In her excitement, however, she put out the wrong foot and sold herself, as The Fall Stock of IANINGTON BROS NEW YORK, Oct. 18. this time, get wind that a woman, sup-APOTHECARIES, Silks, Velvets, Velveteens & Crapes.
