STEAMER RUSTLER SPLIT BY ICE.

Goes Down With Heavy Cargo
At Bridgetown Friday Morning.

John Russell & Co.'s side wheel steamer "Rustler," 63 tons, was wrecked on Friday morning, in the North-west Miramichi. She had left Newcastle the preceding day with a cargo of flour and five or six tons general cargo, most of which was for Mr. Daniel Sullivan, and a small amount for Mr. Daniel Eaton.

Opposite Caswell's she ran on the bar. When she floated again, the quickly forming ice necessitated a return. The resistance of the ice increased, until all at once the vessel was reported filling. She had been cut open on the bow. Capt. Amos ran her ashore, the crew barely escaping with their lives. She was beached just above the North-west bridge. The vessel, valued at $5,500, is badly damaged. The cargo has been nearly all recovered, but considerably damaged. Mr. Sullivan estimates his loss at $400 or $500. The loss to the vessel will be at least a thousand dollars.

BOTHERED THE OPERATOR.

Too Many Men Hanging Round Confused Lady Tele-grapher.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Saturday.

The confusion and embarrassment experienced by a young woman operator because of the custom of railroad employees and others to frequent the telegraph office of the Central Vermont railroad here are held by the State Board of Railroad Commissioners to constitute the contributing cause of a collision between two passenger trains near Vermont Sept. 28. The report of the commissioners on their investigation states that the collision was due to the failure of the operator to deliver a copy of an order to the engineer and conductor of one of the trains although she supposed she had done so. The report continues:

"For some time previous to this accident it had been the custom of the railroad employees to frequent the telegraph operator's office at Brattleboro. This of necessity has resulted in confusion and has tended to embarrass the operator in her work.

Holds Operator at Fault.

"From the foregoing facts it appears that the cause of this collision, which endangered so many lives, was the negligence of the operator at Brattleboro in not delivering order No. 51 to the conductor and engineer of train No. 42, combined with the negligence of the train dispatcher at New London, Conn., in not detecting the omission when the operator at Brattleboro communicated to him that orders No. 53 and 55, addressed to train No. 42, had been signed by the conductor as above indicated.

"Notwithstanding the negligence of the operator at Brattleboro, the train dispatcher is especially responsible for this accident. It was his duty to have detected said omission of the operator. His was the special responsibility."

Condemn Lax Custom.

The commissioners say that a contributing cause of the accident was "the very lax custom prevailing before the accident of allowing railroad employees and others to frequent the office of the telegraph operator at Brattleboro, with the resulting embarrassment to the operator in her work. We are pleased to learn that this custom has been strictly prohibited since the accident and that hereafter all business with the operator is to be transacted through the window provided for that purpose, and all intruders are excluded from her office.

St. John appears to have more regard for its chamberlain than it has for his accounts.

Two Deaths in the West.

George Crocker of Millerton and his Mother Suddenly Called Away.

Telegrams received yesterday, announced the death of Mr. Geo. Crocker by drowning in a lake on George Brown's ranch near Denver, Col. Mr. Crocker left Millerton nearly two years ago, and had since been in charge of Mr. Brown's ranching interests. No particulars are at hand concerning his death. His wife, who was Miss Mildred McKay of Harcourt survives.

When the sad news was conveyed to Mr. Crocker's widowed mother, Mrs. David Crocker, who had gone out to Denver recently to spend the winter there with him, the shock proved too much for her and caused her death. One child, Mr. Randolph Crocker of Millerton, for whom much sympathy is felt in this his double bereavement, survives. Mrs. Crocker was about sixty years of age, and was a Miss Fleming of Chatham Head.

LEMIEUX IN JAPANESE CAPITAL

Hopeful of a Successful Ending of His Mission.

TOKIO, Sunday.—Rodolphe Lemieux, Canadian minister of labor who is here to consult with the Japanese authorities regarding emigration from this country expects a favorable outcome of his mission. He said today "I am not proposing any change in the existing treaty, but desire to reach an agreement with a friendly nation looking to the adoption of a program for the future which will be beneficial to the countries concerned." The government is preparing an elaborate program for his entertainment during his stay in Japan. It is understood that the government intends to exercise a close supervision over Japanese going as students to San Francisco. There is reason to believe that considerable fraud has been practiced by registering laborers as students and this has escaped the scrutiny of the immigration inspectors. The Japanese government is said to be considering the advisability of shutting off all emigration to the United States and Canada for the present on the ground that the economic conditions render it inadvisable for citizens of Japan to visit foreign countries unless they are able to show they are amply self supporting.

DEPARTURE OF MAURETANIA.

LIVERPOOL, Sunday.—The departure today of the Cunard steamship Mauretania on her first transatlantic voyage inspired the mighty crowd that had assembled to a degree of enthusiasm equal to that shown when her sister ship the Lusitania sailed away on her first voyage a few months ago. The giant Cunarder made a remarkable spectacle with her many tiers of electric lights glittering when she was towed into the stream at 7.30 P. M.

NEGOTIATIONS NOT BROKEN OFF.

LONDON, Ont., Sunday.—In regard to a sensational report sent out from Chicago to the effect that all negotiations for the settlement of difficulties between Canada and the United States carried on during the past two or three years by means of the international waterways commission were at an end, Geo. C. Gibbons, K. C., chairman of the Canadian branch of the commission this afternoon denied it emphatically "That is a mistake. Negotiations are going ahead. There has been no foundation for any such rumors. The writer does not know what he is talking about," he said.

ROUGH SEASON FOR FISHEMEN.

ST. PIERRE, Mig., Saturday.—One hundred and twenty-three persons perished in the fishing fleet from this port during the season just ended. Seven vessels were lost. Five of the craft were lost with all on board. One of them, the Madeline, with 20 men, has never been heard from since she left St. Pierre, early in the season. A majority of the men left large families.

Nearly all the disasters occurred in the heavy storms of September and October.

The catch of the St. Pierre fishing vessels for this season, which averaged 1780 quintals for each of the 71 schooners, shows a marked increase over previous years, and has restored activity in every section of the island.

TO DEEPEN WELLAND CANAL.

ST. CATHARINES, Tuesday.—It was learned today from an authentic source that at the next session of the Dominion parliament the merits of several plans which have been submitted for making the Welland Canal a deep waterway capable of accommodating the largest vessels will be discussed. The question of either the improvement of the St. Lawrence route or proceeding with the Georgian bay canal will also be discussed and probably decided.

DID HE MURDER HIS NEICEP

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Thursday.—Investigation of the murder of Mary Donley, 9 years old, at Renovo, Tuesday night, took a sensational turn this afternoon, when her uncle, William S. Donley, was formally charged with the crime. The prisoner was brought to this city on an early morning train and placed in the county jail. After he was behind the bars Sheriff Messina read the warrant. Donley appeared much affected, and amid sobs, stoutly protested his innocence. Tonight Donley is in a state of collapse.

MINER ENTOMBED OVER 88 HOURS.

Three Eight Hour Shifts of Thirty Men Successfully Dig For Victim.

MAHONEY CITY, Saturday.—After four days in a living grave 450 feet directly beneath the little home in which his wife and children were mourning for him as dead, Michael McCabe walked into the free air of the gray dawn early this morning.

He had been shut in the Draper colliery at Gilberton shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. It was about 6 when he stepped out of the black mouth of the mine today. Eighty-eight hours and 37 minutes was the exact time that he was behind the mass of rock and slush which made him a prisoner right under the spot where his wife was weeping out her heart because she could not give his body decent Christian burial.

For Mrs. McCabe bowed under the weight of her seeming widowhood, found her grief intensified by the thought that she would never be permitted even to gaze upon his dead face.

When they told her today that he had been found she stared, stunned and dumb for a moment, at the great crack in the earth that had marked the spot where he had been caught. Then she gave a low moan and sank in a grateful faint. The climax of her anguish had been reached.

When she opened her eyes she looked about and asked, "Where have they taken the body?"

Although the messenger with the tidings of the rescue had announced that her husband had been found alive, the four days' wait for his body had made such an impression on her grief-racked mind that the only suggestion that the message conveyed to her was that of her dead coming to her.

Miners' wives know that news is always "broken," and they ever discount the worst with their fears.

Friends who had watched with her in the four days of the sleepless vigil carried her to bed and sent for a doctor. But another "physician" arrived, one whose presence was more potent than all the drugs of the man of medicine.

"Michael! Michael!" cried the woman "And I've waited for four days and nights!"

And then the man who had just come out of that grave deep under his little home took the faithful wife in his arms. Even the friends who had attended her incessantly in her mourning withdrew and the pair were alone with their joy.

The doctor, who arrived soon after, ordered perfect quiet for Mrs. McCabe, and she has been denied to all visitors.

Today Michael McCabe, who spent 88 hours in a narrow cell 450 feet under ground; who lived for nearly four days on a little oil from his miner's lamp; who chewed bits of wood from the mine props, to stave out his food, and who drank nothing but the bitter sulphur water that dripped from the rocks, is romping joyously with his four children.

Hopeful From the First.

He feels a little muscular soreness this morning from sleeping on the hard dynamite boxes in the damp air of the mine, he says, but otherwise he seems none the worse for his trying experience.

"I knew from the first that I would get out," said McCabe to a North American reporter. "I didn't give up for a minute."

"Didn't it seem a long time until Continued on page 5

MOVEMENTS OF AIR VESSELS.

Six Hours Trip in Air Ship Pom morn From New York to to Philadelphia.

OWNER'S WIFE ABOARD.

Military Air Craft Will be Feature of Next Great War.

ARRIVED.
At New York—The Pommern Capt. Oscar Erbsloeh, with five first class passengers from Philadelphia. PHILADELPHIA Monday—At last it has come to pass that the movements of air craft must be published as well as the news of ocean vessels. This was demonstrated yesterday by Dr. Julian P. Thomas, who made an ascension from Point Breeze grounds at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in his recently purchased balloon, the champion Pommern, landing in New York six hours later.

Before making the start Dr. Thomas announced that he was bound home, and, true enough, shortly after 5 o'clock the Pommern was landed at 175th street and Westchester avenue within rifle shot of the Thomas home. The craft was commanded by Oscar Erbsloeh the German who won the J. Gordon Bennett cup in the recent international race from St. Louis. Capt. T. T. Lovelace, of New York, engineer of the Aero Club of America, was first mate.

One Woman Passenger.

The owner's wife Mrs. Thomas, was the only woman passenger aboard, and within an hour after the Pommern sighted port she was safely back in her apartments at 110th street and Riverside drive. The other passengers aboard were Lieutenant Robert Henderson, U. S. N., chief engineer of the battleship Missouri, who was making observations on the use of balloons as accessories to war vessels, and Rudolph Erbsloeh, uncle of the champion balloonist.

The Pommern left the Point Breeze grounds at 11 o'clock, with the six ballonists and carrying nearly half a ton of sand ballast. Before it was let go, Dr. Thomas assured some of his friends that he was making for New York and home.

As the balloon left the ground it sailed west of north, and it looked as though it was destined to miss reaching port until it had reached the central part of the city. As far as Chestnut street the balloon kept on a course which would have taken it in the direction of Buffalo traveling at an altitude of about 1000 feet.

Ballast was thrown overboard under orders of Captain Erbsloeh and the air craft sought a more favorable wind.

Heads for New York.

At an altitude of nearly 2000 feet new observations were taken, and the Pommern was headed for New York, travelling before a 15-knot wind. Mount Holly, N. J., was sighted at 12.55 off the starboard bow, and 15 minutes later had almost disappeared astern.

At 4.55 o'clock the skyscraper was sighted from the Battery, New York, as it hove in sight over Governor's Island.

After passing over the fort at Governor's Island, the balloon held to a course up the East river, passing directly over the Brooklyn bridge.

One of the bridge cops, who is stationed at the middle span, picked up a newspaper which blew against his legs shortly after 5 o'clock and read about the start of the Pommern. A moment after he had read the item he was besieged with questions about the balloon, then overhead, and was able to tell people all about it.

Land Near Home.

After crossing over the bridge the Pommern held to a course along the Long Island shore, and about 6 o'clock Dr. Thomas' party effected a landing at 175th street and Westchester ave. in the Bronx.

Dr. Thomas said: "I had studied the methods of the French, having been the first man from this country to make an ascension with Count de la Vaux, and the American methods, as shown by Roy Knabenshue, whom I consider to be the best in this country, and I wanted to see what the Germans could do."

"I closed with the Germans for the purchase of the Pommern today, and it is interesting to note, as giving the viewpoint of men who go up in the air while they doubt my ability to pay, they wished to receive all of the money before I made the ascension, thinking it easier perhaps to settle with me than with my heirs."

"We started at 11 o'clock in the gas works at Point Breeze. The balloon was equipped with 23 bags of ballast, weighing 60 pounds each. The six passengers weighed about 1000 pounds. I announced before I started that I would go to New York but the balloon was managed by Herr Erbsloeh, and the credit of the remarkable trip should be given to German methods."

"When we ascended at Point Breeze the current took us directly over Philadelphia. We passed directly above William Penn's monument and in fact almost touched it. It was about 1000 feet up to clear air above the smoke and dust and we took the altitude at first. The highest point we reached was about 4000 feet. Above 1000 feet the air current set toward the north-east. Below that the wind blew toward the north."

"In our flight we paralleled the Pennsylvania railroad nearly all of the way. We could have landed in New Jersey as we found ourselves approaching the sea, but I had said New York, and I was willing to chance something to reach it, and Mrs. Thomas backed me up."

"For a short time I was in doubt as to our exact position, but I recognized the town of Matteawan, in New Jersey, and knew that we were keeping pretty close to our course."

Nerve is Required.
"When we sighted the ocean it took nerve to decide to go on. 99 out of 100 aeronauts would have landed at once. However we had plenty of ballast left, and after some searching found a wind that should drift us toward New York. When we passed over the forts we were able to count ten batteries where I understand but one is visible from the water."

"We were able to take pictures of the batteries at both Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth, but those pictures will never be made public, as I understand it is contrary to law. We could easily have dropped missiles on Fort Hamilton. At that time we were about 3000 feet in the air. The soldiers saw us, and we were saluted by a bugle call."

"At first I planned to land at the Battery, but Broadway was just lighting up and we could not resist the temptation, hungry as we were, to fly over the city and see the lights. Coming across the bay we raced with a steamship, I think one of the Old Dominion liners and as the wind was fresh at that time we beat her easily."

Passes Over Astoria.
"As we went on we passed over Astoria and I thought I would land there at the gas works, tie up for the night and start on another trip tomorrow, but Erbsloeh did not understand my orders, and when he did understand, the space between land and water was too short to permit of a landing. After that we blew on into Westchester, and when we came to a good landing place we asked some boys to catch our rope. This landing was without incident."

Probably long before The Hague conference has patched up the dove of peace we shall see a squadron of armor-plated airships alighting on the Sugar Loaf mountain. The interest the U. S. government has taken in the Thomas dirigible balloon, which sailed up to New York from Philadelphia Tuesday and the prominent part played by army officers a few weeks ago in the thrilling race from St. Louis to the sea, foreshadows the formation of a flying squadron carrying the Stars and Stripes. France, Italy, Austria, England and Germany have all gone in enthusiastically for military aeronautics, and the war sharpens already discussing the probable tactics that the fighters among the clouds will employ in the event of another European conflict. The war balloon made its appearance during the Franco-Prussian struggle in 1870-71 and it did good service while the famous siege of Paris was on. During the war between Japan and Russia it did more or less effectively much of the work once done by cavalry scouts. But now the question is whether it cannot do much more. La Patrie, the dirigible airship that sailed around the Eiffel Tower a few months ago, is built to fight as well as fly. The under side of the balloon is sheathed with armor plate tough enough to resist rifle bullets. Besides a crew of four men, the ship can lift a ton of dead weight to a height of 1000 feet—where it would be safe from artillery fire—and stay up for two hours; and may not the dead weight consist of explosives to be dropped upon a city or within the enemy's lines? But it takes two to make a fight, and hence we have the prospect of battles in the air. The submarine—the fearful mite that can rise unseen from its element and wreck the biggest battleship afloat—this and the aerial cruiser may play a big part in the wars to come.

A HAPPY ENDING.
Visitor—So your poor husband has passed away, Mrs. Murphy. He died happy, I hope?
Mrs. Murphy—Oh think so, mum. The last thing he did was to crack me over the head with a medicine bottle!

There is some satisfaction in knowing that Mr. Aylesworth's successor is as eminent as a French Canadian barrister as Mr. Aylesworth is as an English Canadian barrister.

NOVA SCOTIANS WERE ASLEEP.

Till Mrs. Clara May Coleman of New York woke them up.

SO SAYS BOSTON JOURNAL

The Advises the Young Man
(With Money) to go West.

BOSTON, Monday—Of the thousands who viewed with interest and surprise the exhibit showing the resources and wealth of Nova Scotia at the Jamestown Exposition, valued at millions of dollars and guarded strangely enough by two sentinels in Confederate uniforms, there were few, indeed, who saw in it a monument to what a woman can do and the power she can exert over a government, almost against its will, toward the advancement of its own interests.

Yet Governor Duncan Howard Fraser of the Province of Nova Scotia before a record-breaking audience on Nova Scotia day at Jamestown so declared it to be. But for a woman who at the sacrifice of considerable comfort traveled 1500 miles to place before the premier of the provincial government in a new light what the government was losing in refusing the invitation of the management of the exposition to send an exhibit, it would never have been sent.

Second Richest Woman.

That woman was Mrs. Clara May Coleman. That she is the second richest woman in the world is noteworthy. That she, taking the wealth that she inherited from Hugh Irwin, banker, partner of Peter Cooper, and contemporary and bosom friend of Washington Irving, and increased it along conservative lines in a manner that has won her the admiration and respect of capitalist which is still more noteworthy. That she, going to Nova Scotia for her health, has done more for that country than any other human being in romance and history combined.

With charming courtesy Mrs. Coleman, who is stopping at the Parker House en route to Nova Scotia, last night received a Journal reporter, her hobby is Nova Scotia and it was to that country that the talk gradually drifted.

Country Was Asleep.

Nova Scotia, as Mrs. Coleman found it, was a country of great natural resources, mineral, water and timber. She has always been of the type of financier that builds rather than destroys, and upon her recovery she, accompanied by experts, went to the territory, until there is hardly an inch left that she has not personally studied. The people, she found, were secretive and disbelievers. It was a country asleep, and to herself she set the task of awakening it. American capital was needed and American capital she provided.

English capital she has no faith in. They work along on conservative lines, and if a man is worth $10,000 they won't believe it, she declares, and to this and the native secretiveness and distrust of outside influences she attributes Nova Scotia's long period of non-development. With the invasion of American capital she declares the situation is now changed so much so that for the timeworn axiom of Horace Greeley she substitutes: "Go East, young man."

Mrs. Coleman makes her home in New York, where she has apartments at the Waldorf. She is, however, an extensive traveler, making in addition to several trips to Nova Scotia every year journeys to various fields which are being or about to be exploited. She was one of the first to pass judgment on the Cobalt properties, and her judgment has been sustained by subsequent developments. Personally she differs widely from other women who are figures in the world of finance, being retiring and extremely modest.

KINGSTON, Wednesday—The Irish Catholic organ the Canadian Freeman is calling for the selection of Charles Murphy of Ottawa as cabinet minister in the federal cabinet as the representative of the Irish Catholics. The paper says the Irish Catholics have been loyal to liberalism ever while they have received too little attention at the hands of the party. The selection of Mr. Murphy would be worthy of the great leader and a fitting recognition of the Irish Catholics loyalty.

JAIL RATHER THAN RELATIVES.

CHICAGO, Wednesday—Miss Rose Haines, who spent a fortune on the open Board of Trade, expressed a desire yesterday to remain in the woman's quarters of the city jail rather than be released on parole to a relative living in Wisconsin. "Can't I go back to jail?" she asked after she had pleaded guilty to two charges of grand larceny and Judge Gibbons had ordered her paroled. "I have made a good many friends there and can have a pretty good time. It is really a pleasant, homelike place. My people wouldn't even bring me a clean shirtwaist while I was in jail."

It was explained that she could go back by withdrawing her plea of guilty. She did not return to the jail during the afternoon.

Miss Haines is 35 years old. She inherited $40,000, which she lost in speculation. She was arrested for stealing diamonds. She has been in jail two months, her relatives refusing to obtain bonds for her.

MEN BEING LAID OFF.

TORONTO, Wednesday—The Toronto Star today says correspondents in different parts of Canada have sent despatches indicating the state of industry in their districts. The report indicates general prosperity but also a feeling that caution should be shown lest the remarkable activity of the last year be followed by a period of comparative darkness. A number of places report a policy of retrenchment affecting employees some of whom have been paid off and others put on shorter hours. Brief summary is as follows, Ottawa, several thousand laborers on railway construction in Canada will be laid off for the winter, but hundreds will find work in lumber camps. A quieter period everywhere is possible but hard times not expected. Montreal, 700 men discharged. London, probably 100 laid off and working hours reduced. Stratford 200 men dropped, Sydney, everybody kept working. Halifax full staff retained. Walkerville, some firms running light. Windsor all men working. St. John, factories busy. Guelph, some curtailment. Hamilton, most plants working full. Winnipeg, northwest is bustling. Phoenix, B. C., 200 men laid off. Omen Sound, factories working overtime.

GERMANY FOR PEACE.

LONDON, Wednesday—In the course of his reply to the address of welcome presented him at the guild hall this morning, Emperor William spoke of his previous reception at the guild hall in 1891 and emphasized his unalterable desire to foster the peace of the world. "I said then on this spot that my aim is above all the maintenance of peace. History, I venture to hope, will do me justice in that I have pursued this aim unwaveringly ever since. The main prop and base for the peace of the world is the maintenance of the good relations between our two countries and I am further strengthened them so far as lies in my power. If the German nation wishes to coincide with mine. The future will show a bright prospect."

Inspector Duncan Noble is determined to stamp out rowdism on the I. C. R. trains. On Saturday accompanied by Constable Garon of Rimouski he arrested Alfred Levesque, sixteen miles back of Amqui on a charge of creating a disturbance on the trains. Levesque was taken before a magistrate at Rimouski and fined $21. Inspector Noble and Constable Garon arrested on the same day at Kempt, Phillip Medeau on a similar charge. Medeau was fined $17.

Mr. Noble who returned to Campbellton Saturday night told a reporter for the Graphic that the farmers of the Matapedia valley were still digging potatoes. He added that there was an abundance of grain yet to be taken in.

Speaking of rowdism on local trains. Inspector Noble said that it had to stop. Every case of the kind would be severely dealt with.

A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55, Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate Nurse from the Blockley Training School at Philadelphia, and for six years Chief Clinic Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon. Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes: "I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use."

"Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. I became weak and pale, with severe bearing-down pains, fearful backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would blot after eating and frequently become nauseated."

"I had pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered unprofessional to recommend a patent medicine, I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for I have found that it cures female ills where all other medicine fails."

"Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results, and the ablest specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine."

"When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the female organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, and all such troubles."

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant for many years before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely given to sick women. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is strictly confidential.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are imperative, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood elements.

"The Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, breaks local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, taken morning and evening, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—tablets or liquid—use a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well.

INSPECTION TOUR AT AN END

Hon. George P. Graham Back at Ottawa—The Bye Elections on Nov. 28th.

OTTAWA, Wednesday.—Hon. George P. Graham, minister of railways and canals and M. J. Butler, the deputy minister returned this afternoon from the tour of inspection on the Intercolonial they first made since Mr. Graham assumed the portfolio. The party had a very busy fortnight visiting all the important points along the line and securing many valuable pointers from leading citizens of places visited. Mr. Graham was educated by his experiences. He had never before gone over the whole system of the Intercolonial and confessed that he had not before had a full appreciation of the resources of the country which the Intercolonial served. He was surprised at the marvellous resources of some sections.

To hamper the Government now would be to retard the progress of development which is proceeding satisfactorily upon every hand. The good sense of the people may be trusted now as it was in 1896, when the Conservatives were turned out of power, and the great majority given in 1904 will not be lessened when the votes are counted on November 28th, and the Premier will proceed with the task he has set himself to make of Canada a great nation.

SURPLUS NOT THE SOLE OBJECT.

(Morning Graphic.)

The appointment of the Hon. George P. Graham to the portfolio of minister of railways was eminently satisfactory to the people of Ontario and the west. It was not objectionable to the people of Quebec and the Lower Provinces, would have been better pleased had the appointment gone to one of our own men. That a man who has scarcely if ever travelled over the Intercolonial can administer the affairs of that road in a manner suited to its requirements and to its patrons is somewhat doubtful. Mr. Graham while an able young man, represents a constituency in parliament which has little if anything to do with the I. C. R. As a consequence of this he may endeavor to pursue a policy in his conduct of the I. C. R. which, while it may be successful from the standpoint of revenue, may not serve the best interests of the people along the I. C. R. We would like to impress upon the new minister of railways the fact that the people of the Lower Provinces do not care so much about the revenue of the I. C. R. as they do about a first class train service. An I. C. R. surplus is not to be brought about at the expense of shippers and travellers, who patronize that road. While we should all rejoice at a surplus we should have to see it brought about by a policy which would make our own interest suffer. Mr. Graham should not overlook the fact that Ontario and the west have something to contribute toward the maintenance of the I. C. R. and that the road is not altogether a commercial proposition.

Will the electors of Colchester, N. S., send to Ottawa a supporter of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his able finance minister, Hon. W. S. Fielding, or do they prefer to be represented by an opponent of these gentlemen who will assist in bringing into power G. E. Foster, the man who juggled with insurance trust funds and was also conspicuous in what his then leader described as "the nest of traitors"?

WOMAN RESCUED.

Ottawa, Ont.—Slavery is not dead. Daily, the traffic in human souls goes on. Only a short time ago, a number of Chinese were arrested as they attempted to smuggle young girls from Canada into the United States. In Eastern countries, the slave trader finds his vocation in the market place. Some go into another kind of slavery—unknown to yet make a valiant effort to escape. Ottawa is all agog over the wonderful escape of one of her charming matrons from that physical slavery, Rheumatism. Mrs. R. C. Small says, "I was a constant sufferer from rheumatism for over seven years. I used many treatments—consulted doctors—tried hot baths—used almost every known mineral water—but nothing did me any real good. The pains were in my joints and back, and I had frequent headaches and bad indigestion. About a year ago, I saw 'Fruit-a-lives' advertised and decided to try them. After I had taken two boxes, I was much better. Altogether I took seven boxes. I have had no rheumatism for over six months now and feel that I am quite cured. I have gained over ten pounds in weight."

MARRIED ON DEATH BED.

TORONTO, Wednesday.—Miss Lydia McLean, a St. Catharines, Ont., young lady who for some few years has been employed here by the Keen Manufacturing Company, died in Grace Hospital last night. Upon being told that she had only a few hours to live she expressed a wish to be united to the man she loved before she died. Her father who was present made the wish known to the young man W. McArthur who at once agreed. A clergyman was hastily brought to the hospital and the marriage ceremony performed. The dying girl was conscious throughout of the full meaning. Shortly after the bride of an hour passed away but her last moments were made happy by the knowledge that she was united forever with the man she loved.

BIG DIFFERENCE.

(Morning Graphic)

It has been estimated by Hon. Mr. Fielding, Finance Minister, that the revenue of the Dominion for the current fiscal year will be very close to $100,000,000. Compare this with the miserable sum of $30,000,000 which the Conservatives raised as a result of high taxation for which the people paid the piper. Even with the increased expenditures which come as a necessary accompaniment of increased development the Liberals have been able to produce a substantial surplus each year and decrease the public debt.

MONCTON, Tuesday.—"I believe The historic hall of St. George at that, New Brunswick is just one of a great industrial awakening and development" said Premier Robinson tonight in speaking of the sale of the Gloucester iron mines to the Drummond Mining Company. "Surveyor General Sweeney and myself in company with Mr. Burns recently visited the mines and met there J. J. Drummond manager of the London-derry Iron Works and his engineer Parsons. At that time the question of transportation and other matters were discussed and assurances were given that the local government would use every effort to bring about the construction of a branch railway or spur from the I. C. R. to the mines. The Surveyor General and myself waited upon the minister of railways and deputy minister of railways while they were in Moncton and we were assured that the I. C. R. would not hesitate to assist in the development of this important industry and would construct the necessary branch line as soon as sufficient evidence was before them of traffic which would be required. A great advantage to the I. C. R. of the establishment of the works at Bathurst will be more than compensate them for the outlay necessary for the construction of the branch road. While a great deal of magnetic iron ore is already discovered as yet very little is known of the resources of the province in this regard. A careful analysis or samples from one borehole, taking specimens at every ten feet for a total of three hundred feet showed an average 51.35 per cent iron running as high as 53.2 per cent. The mine is situated about 25 miles from Bathurst and about 11 miles from the I. C. R. Mr. Drummond examined the facilities at Bathurst Point and was favorably impressed with the chances for iron smelting works at that place.

WILL KISSING BE PROHIBITED

The Osculatory Process Denounced by Scientists as Extremely Dangerous—How the Danger Can be Removed.

A keen discussion is being carried on by some of the best scientists as to the danger and "crime" of kissing, led by Dr. Somers, Health Officer of Atlantic City, and Dr. Nalpass, of the Medical Faculty of Paris. They charge the kiss with spreading grippe, scarlet fever, measles, mumps, whooping cough, typhoid, diphtheria, erysipelas, meningitis, tuberculosis, and many infectious skin diseases. They suggest legislation on the subject, and the posting of notices in railway stations, street cars and other public places, but they say it would be useless to post them on verandahs, in cosy corners, porches, shady nooks, or moonlit lawns. They also propose compulsory legislation for methods of disinfection of the mouth and purifying the breath, especially with a view to the protection of the innocent babies who are particularly subject to infection. The greatest and most effective purifier and germ destroyer known to medical science for the mouth, throat and breath, as well as for the blood, stomach and lungs, is Psycline, that triumph of the medical world that is attracting almost universal attention because of the wonderful results attending its use. One of its recent triumphs is told as a matter of experience in the following brief statement:

Dr. Slocum Co.
I send you photo and testimonial here with for your great remedy PSYCHINE. Your remedies did wonders for me. I was about 25 or 30 years of age when I took PSYCHINE. The doctors had given me up as an incurable consumptive. My lungs have never bothered me since, and Psycline is a permanent cure.

MRS. LIZZIE GARDNER.
89 Bathurst St., London, Ont., is admitted to be the most wonderful of all disease and germ-destroying agencies. ## BIG BLAZE IN TORONTO.

PARIS, Wednesday.—There is every reason to believe that the report to the effect that Mme. Anna Gould, who recently was divorced from Count Boni de Castellane, has been married to Prince Helle de Sagan is untrue. A representative of The Associated Press went today to St. Cheron, where the Chateau Du Marais, Mme. Gould's country house, is situated. He was told that she was ill and could see no one.

Mme. Gould has been entertaining at the chateau for some weeks past, and on last Friday she gave a hunt to a large party. The Prince de Sagan has been a constant visitor at the chateau, usually calling there about every ten days.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been to-day had I not tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. These tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive function, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Porter, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are for sale by all druggists.

Under the fostering care of the Minister of the Interior the very best class of immigrants are coming into the country and settlement of the West goes on apace. The total this year will exceed 250,000, and they will become wealthy producers for the Dominion in due course. The revenue of this department is nearly twelve times what it was the last year of Conservative rule; so much for intelligent management.

Wireless troubles have only begun. Now comes along an inventor who claims that he can tangle up all messages sent within a radius of 700 miles of his station. It is surprising to find that the strenuous west finds time to take an interest in ghost stories. The Winnipeg Free Press has just been compelled to pay damages for having published the report that a certain dwelling was haunted.

FOURTH TRIAL SAME OFFENCE.

Caleb Powers, Republican, Being Tried For Shooting Democratic Governor.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Wednesday.—After having spent seven and a half of the best years of his life in jail awaiting trials, accused of complicity in the assassination of William Goebel, Democratic Governor of this state, in 1906, Caleb Powers, Republican, was once more placed on trial today.

Thrice prosecuted by bitter political enemies, Powers has been thrice convicted twice to be sentenced to imprisonment for life and once actually placed under the death penalty with the day of his execution fixed. Thrice has the Court of Appeals upset the findings of the lower court.

Within the shadow of a Republican administration, Powers reiterated last night that he was eager for the new trial today. Special Judge James S. Norris, appointed by the retiring Governor, J. C. W. Beckham, will preside, and Powers' friends said they were satisfied of his fairness.

In some respects the Caleb Powers case is the most remarkable that ever has been before the American courts—most remarkable in the fact that it is steeped in political animosities, that a commonwealth has failed to make out a case against the defendant, that unquenchable political revenge of the Kentucky kind has been the mainspring in a prosecution which has become a national scandal.

In all his years in jail his faith has not failed; in the shadow of the death penalty, this man has said, "Justice is the law." In the years as they have drifted by, Caleb Powers has spent his time in furthering the fulfilment of that law which has given to him a confidence and a faith that is amazing.

Today, in his cell in the Georgetown jail, Powers smiled pleasantly in the prospect of another trial—this time, however, not believing that he is to be condemned, as he "knew" before.

William S. Taylor, Republican, had been ousted from the office of Governor of Kentucky to be succeeded by Goebel. Goebel was crossing the Capitol grounds in Frankfort on January 20, 1900, when he was shot from an ambush in the office of the secretary of state, who was Caleb Powers. That circumstance is one of the strongest bits of evidence upon which the Powers prosecution has been built.

Serene, Though Sought by Mobs

Powers is a mere boy in appearance, despite his 28 years and his long imprisonment. He has the face of a student of the arts, a great forehead, a nose slightly convex, small lips, a sudden regression between the lower lip and the chin. His eyes are blue and soft as a baby's with a baby's innocence in them. He smiles frequently, and, altogether, it would seem that his greatest display of ferocity would be a warning to children to be good or the big brown bears would eat 'em.

Today in the Georgetown jail Caleb Powers was as serene of manner as he was in each of the three attempts of mobs to take him from jail to lynch him. Asked to tell of his emotions upon those occasions, Powers said: "Well, I could hear the mob only once—the first time. I had only an intimation that a mob was forming the second time, and I was ignorant of it until the mob had dispersed the third time. I don't know that I experienced any particular emotion. I knew each time that there was no such thing as reasoning with a mob."

MILITARY TRAINING

IN THE SCHOOLS.
Beginning with the new year, military training will be a part of the curriculum of Nova Scotia public schools. The department of militia will provide for the training of the teachers and also increase the salaries of those teachers who actually impart the required instructions provided they become active members of the militia. This is a new departure for Nova Scotia. It is Sir Frederick Borden's favorite scheme which he expects to soon see adopted in other provinces.

A HEAVY LOSS.
Not only the proprietors but all the people along the Chatham-Redbank route have met with a distinct loss in the wreck of the Steamer Rustler. The little vessel did her duty nobly as a trade medium, and her absence, if she is not replaced in time for the opening of navigation in the spring, will be severely felt all along the line of her old haunts. Messrs. Russell have sustained a heavy blow, but we trust that they will be able to replace the vessel in time for next season's business. The business men of Newcastle will be sufficiently interested to render any assistance that may be required.

WILL TAKE TIME.
A Winnipeg dispatch says that the milling companies acting in concert have dropped the price of all grades of flour ten cents a sack. It will need a vast number of such little drops as that before our bakers will think it is time to reduce the price of the two pound loaf which weighs about twenty-three ounces.—Halifax Herald.

He was engaged to work at the Renous bridge quarry. He started to work on the 20th of Sept. There has been some little criticism of the town's electric light plant or account of the lights having become dim, for forty minutes or so on a Saturday night.

In answer to a question by our correspondent manager McKay said that the lights had gone dim, on account of the steam dropping down in one of the boilers, this he said was the only time the lights had gone down, during the recent transfer from a direct to an alternative current, and he thought that this was a pretty good record.

The lights had only been out four times in five years, which was equal to the record of any plant in the Maritime provinces. There has been a long delay in making the improvements, started a year ago last October, but this has been due to none delivery of machinery the turbine has been delayed sixteen months. It arrived from the old country, a few days ago, it is now in Halifax it will be started within a month after its arrival here and should be going by Christmas. BATHURST, Thursday. — Coroner McLaughlin held an inquest here today over the remains of the man found dead early yesterday morning, alongside of the I. C. R. track near Red Pine. The train hands of No. 34 were examined, but furnished little additional to what has already appeared in the Graphic. Evidence was brought out, however, which went to show that deceased was one Melanson of Moncton. He was five feet and a half in height and would weigh about 130 or 135 pounds. He was dressed in a dark grey suit of good cloth and had a high peaked cap. His underclothing was of fine texture indicating that he was a young man in good circumstances.

A fire this afternoon at Fred Landry's jewelry store on Front st. was put out without the aid of the BATHURST, Saturday. — Judging from appearances winter is fast approaching. The basin has been covered with ice above the station bridge and this morning the lower harbor was frozen over.

Repairs are being made on the fire engine house and an endeavor made to make it frost proof. This was much needed and we feel sure that the amount of fuel saved will pay the expense of repairing.

WHITE MAN'S LAST CHANCE

Is Canada. So Says Ernest Thomson Seton.

NEW YORK, Friday. — Ernest Thomson Seton the author who has returned to the United States from his exploration trip of seven months through Northwest Canada into the great plains of the Arctic region is enthusiastic over that part of Canada below the arctic zone, calling it the "White man's last opportunity." Settlers by the thousands he says, are pouring into the enormous area of high class agricultural land which has been lying there for so many centuries and the rapidity with which it is now being developed is marvellous. Mr. Seton canoed in this and the arctic region two thousand miles during his seven months' trip having one narrow escape from losing, not only his diary and all his drawings and maps but his had pressed the muzzle of the revolver the Athabaska river. He also discovered a number of lakes and rivers in the arctic region which he is now naming in conjunction with the geographical survey of Canada. Among the animals which he studies especially during his trip and obtained pictures of were the barren ground caribou, the lynx, the musk-ox, wolverine, white wolf, arctic fox and wild buffalo.

GEAN LINERS NEEDED

To Carry Salvation Army Emigrants to Canada Next Season.

TORONTO, Thursday. — The Salvation Army is inaugurating a gigantic immigration campaign for which ten ocean liners have already been chartered; the first arrivals numbering one thousand are to leave Liverpool on the specially chartered steamship Kensington of the Dominion line and are to be taken on their arrival at Halifax direct to British Columbia in two special trains in charge of Army officers. The consignment is being sent to British Columbia on account of the winter weather making it inadvisable to place them in either Ontario or the Northwest. Later shipments will be distributed on the farm lands of Ontario and sister provinces as well as on the farms of the Northwest and timberlands of the coast. The motto of the Army in undertaking this work is brief but sufficient "put them on the land." An effort is being made to secure a class of people fit for farming operations. The first consignment will consist largely of Scotch people and will include a large sprinkling of domestic servants.

LAST ACT IN COLLINS TRAGEDY.

Unfortunate Young Man Executed at Hopewell Cape Friday.

HOPEWELL CAPE via HILLSBORO, N. B. — The last act in the New Ireland tragedy took place here this morning when Thomas J. Collins, the convicted murderer of Mary Anne McAulley met death on the gallows for the commission of the terrible crime. The execution took place at 7.25 A. M. and was carried through without a hitch of any kind. Collins although broken down during the early hours of the morning as he made his last good byes in his cell met death bravely walking up the fifteen steps of the gallows with firm tread and unflinchingly taking his stand on the trap and standing composedly while the executioner adjusted the black cap and affixed the noose about his neck.

Collins slept soundly for three hours last night waking shortly after six o'clock. Chaplain Thomas his spiritual adviser spent practically all night with him and remained to the end, the scene in the cell during the intervals as Collins bade good bye to the officials and others when Rev. Mr. Thomas was asked in regard to any confession being made he said the condemned man had left no confession or statement of any kind. At 20 minutes after seven executioner Radcliffe went to the cell for the prisoner and adjusted the handcuffs and with the prisoner and Rev. Mr. Thomas led the way to the gallows with his hand in that of the clergyman the condemned man walked bravely through the jail corridors down the stone steps and along the passage to the gallows.

Mounting the stairs in company with Rev. Mr. Thomas it was a supremely solemn moment and one of those present will never forget when the doomed man with the noose about his neck stood on the drop as the chaplain slowly repeated the Lord's prayer as the words "Thy Kingdom come" fell from the preacher's lips the executioner threw back the lever and the condemned man dropped to the end of the rope the fall being about eight feet and a half, coroner Marver and jail surgeon Lewis pronounced death instantaneous from dislocation of the spinal column. The heart beat 7 minutes and then the body was taken down. After the inquest the body will be buried in a neat casket in a grave in a corner of the jail lot. Those present at the execution were Sheriff Lynds, Deputy Sheriff Balkinick, Jailor Porter, Constables Coon and Smith, Rev. Mr. Thomas and Rev. Mr. Lawton, Deputy Sheriff Simpson of Cumberland county, Representatives of the St. John and Moncton papers and a few others. Chaplain Thomas expressed himself to the effect that the condemned man died in the possession of a Christian hope. The execution of Collins was the first in the history of Albert county and had been looked forward to with a great amount of dread by the residents of the community.

The Silverthorne Company of North Tonawanda New York are about to commence to do business here.

The Silverthorne Company are purchasers of manufactured lumber. Their annual business amounts to about 60,000,000 feet. Hitherto they have purchased principally in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont and the south and west. Their business has chiefly been in pine, but now they intend to go in for the purchase of spruce. They believe that Campbellton is centrally situated for their business and purpose buying all along the line between Rimouski and Chatham. It is possible that in the near future they will erect mills in this territory. Mr. McDuffee is much impressed with the business opportunities offering here. He is now on his way to Tracadie and Chatham.

MAKE NEW BLOOD.

That is What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Do--That is Why They Cure So Many Diseases.

When persons have not enough blood, or when their blood is weak and watery, the doctors name the trouble anaemia. Bloodlessness is the direct cause of many common diseases, such as indigestion, palpitation of the heart, debility, decline, neuralgia, nervousness, rheumatism and consumption. The surest signs of poor blood are paleness, bluish lips, cold hands and feet, general weakness, low spirits and backache. If anaemia is not checked in time it will probably develop into consumption. There is one certain cure for anaemia—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new rich, red blood, which fills the veins and brings new life, new energy and good health to bloodless people. In proof of this Miss Isabel Clendenning, Niagara Falls, Ont., says: "For two years I suffered from anaemia. I was weak, thin, had no appetite. I sometimes had distressing headaches and felt low spirited. My heart would palpitate violently. I could do no work around the house. I became very pale and my nerves got unstrung. The efforts of two good doctors failed to help me. I was in such a pitiful state. One day a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I did so. Soon I saw the pills were helping me and by the time I had taken nine boxes I was completely cured. I had a good appetite, gained in weight, I hadn't an ache or pain, could sleep well and I am in far better health now than I ever was. I cannot speak too highly of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for Miss Clendenning they have done for thousands—they will do for you. But you must get the genuine with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around every box. If your dealer has not got the genuine pills you can get them at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The young women of Worcester, Mass., have organized a beauty club. This doesn't mean that all the members of it are beautiful, but it does signify that they will strive to be beautiful. We rejoice that one woman's club has been formed at last to which we can give our unqualified approval and support. We have never been interested much in the efforts of our sisters to solve abstruse problems, and to be frank we haven't the greatest faith in their ability to run the government or even to understand what Browning was driving at. But woman does understand angles and curves, especially as they affect the female form divine, and she is a competent critic of them—the most competent critic we may say. And a few women also understand that the greatest mission of young women is to be beautiful. If they accomplish this all other joys will be added. No wonder a frightened single man has already said: "If the club obtains a large membership it will not have a bachelor in Worcester. No mental test is required as we understand it, the organizers taking it for granted that any girl knows enough to know whether she is good looking and whether there is room for improvement. It requires no profundity to discuss the ways and means of improving the figure and ironing out the creases in one's face. Club meetings, we have no doubt will be marked by a charming informality with every member entitled to the floor at once."

MONCTON, Wednesday. — The police started on a more active Scott Act campaign last night when all city bars were visited and as a result a great many were practically closed up today and much care is being exercised in admitting those who desire the forbidden liquid.

Nova Scotia may or may not be another Klondike, but there is no disputing the fact that it is one of the greatest natural sanatoriums in the world.

Lady Cantourne was standing impatiently on the hearth rug, and scarcely responded to his bow.

"Has Jack been here?" she asked.

"No."

She stamped a foot, still neat despite its long journey over a road that had never been very smooth. Her manner was that of a commander in chief, competent but unfortunate in the midst of a great reverse.

"He has not been here this afternoon?"

"No," answered Sir John, closing the door behind him.

"And you have not heard anything from him?"

"Not a word. As you know, I am not fortunate enough to be fully in his confidence."

Lady Cantourne glanced round the room as if looking for some object upon which to fix her attention. It was a characteristic movement which she knew, although he had only seen it once or twice before. It indicated that if there was an end to Lady Cantourne's wit she had almost reached that undesirable bourn.

"He has broken off his engagement," she said, looking her companion very straight in the face, "now—at the eleventh hour. Do you know anything about it?"

"She came closer to him, looking up from her compact little five-foot-two with discerning eyes."

"John!" she exclaimed.

She came still nearer and laid her gloved hands upon his sleeve.

"John, you know something about this?"

"I should like to know more," he said suavely. "I am afraid—Millcent will be inconvenient."

Lady Cantourne looked keenly at him for a moment. Physically she almost stood on tiptoe, mentally she did it without disguise. Then she turned away and sat on a chair which had always been set apart for her.

"It is a question," she said gravely, "whether any one has a right to punish a woman so severely."

The corner of Sir John's mouth twitched.

"I would rather punish her than have Jack punished for the rest of his life."

"But mol?" she snapped impatiently.

"Ah!"—with a gesture learned in some foreign court—"I can only ask your forgiveness. I can only remind you that she is not your daughter—if she were she would be a different woman—while he is my son."

Lady Cantourne nodded as if to indicate that he need explain no more.

"How did you do it?" she asked quietly.

"I did not do it. I merely suggested to Guy Oscar that he should call on you. Millcent and her fiancé—the other—were alone in the drawing room when we arrived. Thinking that I might be de trop, I withdrew and left the young people to settle it among themselves, which they have apparently done! I am, like yourself, a great advocate for allowing young people to settle things among themselves. They are also welcome to their enjoyment of the consequences so far as I am concerned."

"But Millcent was never engaged to Guy Oscar?"

"Did she tell you so?" asked Sir John, with a queer smile.

"Yes."

"And you believed her?"

"Of course—and you?"

Sir John smiled his courtliest smile. "I always believe a lady," he answered, "before her face. Guy Oscar gave it out in Africa that he was engaged to be married, and he even declared that he was returning home to be married. Jack did the same in every respect. Unfortunately there was only one fond heart waiting for the couple of them at home. That is why I thought it expedient to give the young people an opportunity of settling it between themselves."

The smile left his worn old face.

He moved uneasily and walked to the fireplace, where he stood with his unsteady hands moving idly, almost nervously, among the ornaments on the mantelpiece. He committed the rare discourtesy of almost turning his back upon a lady.

"I must ask you to believe," he said, looking anywhere but at her, "that I did not forget you in the matter. I may seem to have acted with an utter disregard for your feelings."

He broke off suddenly, and, turning, he stood on the hearth rug with his feet apart, his hands clasped behind his back, his head slightly bowed.

"If I drew on the reserve of an old friendship," he said, "you were kind enough to say the other day that you were indebted to me to some extent. You are indebted to me to a larger extent than you perhaps realize. You owe me fifty years of happiness; fifty years of a life that might have been happy had you decided differently when—when we were younger. I do not blame you now. I never blamed you. But the debt is there. You know my life; you know almost every day of it. You cannot deny the debt. I drew upon that."

And the white haired woman raised her hand.

"Don't," she said gently, "please don't say any more. I know all that your life has been, and why. You did quite right. What is a little trouble to me, a little passing inconvenience, the tattle of a few idle tongues, compared with what Jack's life is to you? I see now that I ought to have opposed it strongly instead of letting it take its course. You are right; you always have been right. John. There is a sort of consolation in the thought. I like it. I like to think that you were always right and that it was I who was wrong. It confirms my respect for you. We shall get over this somehow."

"The young lady," suggested Sir John, "will get over it after the manner of her kind. She will marry some one else, let us hope, before her wedding dress goes out of fashion."

"Millcent will have to get over it as she may. Her feelings need scarcely be taken into consideration."

Lady Cantourne made a little movement toward the door. There was much to see to; much of that women's work which makes weddings the wild, confused ceremonies that they are.

"I am afraid," said Sir John, "that I never thought of taking them into consideration. As you know, I hardly considered yours. I hope I have not overdrawn that reserve."

He had crossed the room as he spoke to open the door for her. His fingers were on the handle, but he did not turn it, awaiting her answer. She did not look at him, but passed him toward the shaded lamp with that desire to fix her attention upon some inanimate object which he knew of old.

"The reserve," she answered, "will stand more than that. It has accumulated, with compound interest. But I deny the debt of which you spoke just now. There is no debt. I have paid it, year by year, day by day. For each one of those fifty years of unhappiness I have paid a year of regret."

He opened the door and passed out into the brilliantly lighted passage and down the stairs, where the servants were waiting to open the door and help her to her carriage.

Sir John did not go downstairs with her.

Later on he dined in his usual solitary grandeur. He was as carefully dressed as ever. The discipline of his household, like the discipline under which he held himself, was unrelaxed.

"What wine is this," he asked, when he had tasted the port.

"Yellow seal, sir," replied the butler confidently.

Sir John nodded with an air of self-satisfaction. He was pleased to have proved to himself and to the "damned butler," who had caught him napping in the library, that he was still a young man in himself, with senses and taste unimpaired. But his hand was at the small of his back as he returned to the library.

He was not at all sure about Jack; did not know whether to expect him or not. Jack did not always do what one might have expected him to do under given circumstances. And Sir John rather liked him for it. Perhaps it was that small taint of heredity which was in blood, and makes it thicker than water.

"Nothing like blood, sir," he was in the habit of saying, "in horses, dogs and men." And thereafter he usually threw back his shoulders.

The good blood that ran in his veins was astral tonight. The incidents of the day had aroused him from the peacefulness that lies under a weight of years (we have to lift the years one by one and lay them aside before we find it), and Sir John Meredith would have sat very upright in his chair were it not for that carping pain in his back.

He waited for an hour with his eyes almost continually on the clock, but Jack never came. Then he rang the bell.

"Coffee," he said. "I like punctuality, if you please."

"Thought Mr. Meredith might be expected, sir," murmured the butler humbly.

Sir John was reading the evening paper, or appearing to read it, although he had not his glasses.

"Oblige me by refraining from thought," he said urbanely.

So the coffee was brought, and Sir John consumed it in silent majesty. While he was pouring out his second cup—a diminutive one—the bell rang. He set down the silver coffee pot with a piteous clatter, as if his nerves were not quite so good as they used to be.

It was not Jack, but a note from him.

My Dear Father—Circumstances have necessitated the breaking off of my engagement at the last moment. Tomorrow's ceremony will not take place. As the above named circumstances were partly under your control, I need hardly offer an explanation. I leave town and probably England tonight. I am, your affectionate son, JOHN MEREDITH.

There were no signs of haste or discomposure. The letter was neatly written in the somewhat large calligraphy, firm, bold, ornate, which Sir John had insisted on Jack's learning. The stationery bore a club crest. It was an eminently gentlemanly communication. Sir John read it and gravely tore it up, throwing it into the fire, where he watched it burn.

Nothing was further from his mind than sentiment. He was not much given to sentiment, this hard-headed old sire of an ancient stock. He never thought of the apocryphal day when he, being laid in his grave, should at last win the gratitude of his son.

"When I am dead and gone you may be sorry for it," were not the words that any man should hear from his lips.

More than once during their lives Lady Cantourne had said:

"You never change your mind, John," referring to one thing or another. And he had invariably answered:

"No, I am not the sort of man to change."

He had always known his own mind. When he had been in a position to rule he had done so with a rod of iron. His purpose had ever been inflexible. Jack had been the only person who had ever openly opposed his desire. In this, as in other matters, his indomitable will had carried the day, and in the moment of triumph it was only the weak who repine. Success should have no disappointments for the man who has striven for it if his will be strong.

Sir John rather liked the letter. It could only have been written by a son of his—admitting nothing, not even defeat. But he was disappointed. He had hoped that Jack would come—that some sort of a reconciliation would be patched up. And somehow the disappointment affected him physically. It attacked him in the back and intensified the pain there. It made him feel weak and unlike himself. He rang the bell.

"Go round," he said to the butler, "to Dr. Damer and ask him to call in during the evening if he has time."

The butler bustled himself with the coffee tray, hesitating, desirous of gaining time.

"Anything wrong, sir? I hope you are not feeling ill," he said nervously.

"Ill, sir?" cried Sir John. "Hang it, no; do I look ill? Just obey my orders, if you please."

My Dear Jack—At the risk of being considered an interfering old woman, I write to ask you whether you are not soon coming to England again. As you are aware, your father and I knew each other as children. We have known each other ever since—we are now almost the only survivors of our generation. My reason for troubling you with this communication is that during the last six months I have noticed a very painful change in your father. He is getting very old. He has no idea of servants about him. You know his manner; it is difficult for any one to approach him, even for me. If you could come home by accident—I think that you will never regret it in after life. I need not suggest discretion as to this letter. Your affectionate friend,

CAROLINE CANTOURNE.

Jack Meredith read this letter in the coffee room of the hotel of the Four Seasons in Wiesbaden. It was a lovely morning; the sun shone down through the trees of the Friedrichstrasse upon that spotless pavement, of which the stricken wot. The fresh breeze came bowling down from the Taunus mountains all balsamic and invigorating. It picked up the odors of the syringa and flowering currant in the Kurgarten and threw itself in at the open window of the coffee room of the hotel of the Four Seasons.

Jack Meredith was restless. Such odors as are borne on the morning breeze are apt to make those men restless who have not all that they want. And is not their name legion? The morning breeze is to the strong the moonlight of the sentimental. That which makes one vaguely yearn incites the other to get up and take.

By the train leaving Wiesbaden for Cologne, "over Mainz," as the guide book hath it, Jack Meredith left for England, in fifteen months. Guy Oscar was in Cashmere. The simlacine was almost forgotten as a nine days' wonder except by those who live by the pills of mankind. Millcent Chyne had degenerated into a restless society hack. With great skill she had posed as a martyr. She had allowed it to be understood that she, having remained faithful to Jack Meredith through his time of adversity, had been heartlessly thrown over when fortune smiled upon him and there was a chance of his making a more brilliant match. With a chivalry which was not without a keen shaft of irony father and son allowed this story to pass uncontradicted. Perhaps a few believed it. Perhaps they had foreseen the future. It may have been that they knew that Millcent Chyne, surrounded by the halo of whatever story she might invent, would be treated with a certain careless nonchalance by the older man, with a respectful avoidance by the younger. Truly women have the deepest punishment for their sin here on earth, for sooner or later the time will come, after the brilliancy of the first triumph, after the less pure satisfaction of the skilled siren, the time will come when all that they want is an enduring, honest love. And it is written that an enduring love cannot, with the best will in the world, be bestowed on an unworthy object. If a woman wishes to be loved purely, she must have a pure heart and no past ready for the recreation of that love.

"Shall I put some coals on?" asked Jack.

This is a sine qua non. The woman with a past has no future.

The short March day was closing in over London with that murky suggestion of hopelessness affected by metropolitan eventide when Jack Meredith presented himself at the door of his father's house.

In his reception by the servants there was a subtle suggestion of expectation which was not lost on his keen mind. There is no patience like that of expectation in an old heart. Jack Meredith felt vaguely that he had been expected thus, daily, for many months past.

He was shown into the library, and the tall form standing there on the hearth rug had not the outline for which he had looked. The battle between old age and stubborn will is long. But old age wins. It never raises the siege. It starves the garrison out. Sir John Meredith's head seemed to have shrunk. The wig did not fit at the back. His clothes, always bearing the suggestion of emptiness, seemed to hang on ancient given lines as if the carcases were well established. The clothes were old. The fateful doctrine of not worth while had set in.

Father and son shook hands, and Sir John walked feebly to the stiff backed chair, where he sat down in shamefaced silence. He was ashamed of his infirmities. His was the instinct of the dog that goes away into some hidden corner to die.

"I am glad to see you," he said, using his two hands to push himself farther back in his chair.

There was a little pause. The fire was getting low. It fell together with a feeble, crumbling sound.

"Shall I put some coals on?" asked Jack.

A simple question, if you will, but it was asked by the son in such a tone of quiet, filial submission that a whole volume could not contain all that it said to the old man's proud, unbending heart.

"Yes, my boy, do."

And the last six years were wiped away like evil writing from a slate.

There was no explanation. These two men were not of those who explain themselves and in the warmth of explanation say things which they do not fully mean. The opinions that each had held during the years they had left behind had perhaps been modified on both sides, but neither sought details of the modification. They knew each other now, and each respected the indomitable will of the other.

They inquired after each other's health. They spoke of events of a common interest. Trifles of everyday occurrence seemed to contain absorbing details. But it is the everyday occurrence that makes the life. It was the putting on of the coals that reconciled these two men.

"Let me see," said Sir John, "you gave up your rooms before you left England, did you not?"

"Yes."

Jack drew forward his chair and put his feet out toward the fire. It was marvelous how thoroughly at home he seemed to be.

"Then," continued Sir John, "where is your luggage?"

"Left it at the club."

"Send along for it. Your room is—quite ready for you. I shall be glad if you will make use of it as long as you like. You will be free to come and go as if you were in your own house."

Jack nodded with a strange twisted little smile, as if he were suffering from cramp in the legs. It was cramp—at the heart.

"Thanks," he said. "I should like nothing better. Shall I ring?"

"If you please."

Owing to the fine construction of most ranges it is a rather difficult feat to cook and bake successfully at the same time.

But the arrangement of the Pandora stoves differs considerably from others. They are so constructed that the draft for baking is also the best for cooking; the heat circulating around the oven twice and under every pot hole before passing up the chimney.

The Pandora bakes and cooks perfectly at the same time.

GREAT INDUSTRIAL FUTURE FOR N. B.

Premier Robinson Believes That This Province is About to Share in Prosperity.

Moncton, Nov. 13.—Premier Robinson is of the opinion that New Brunswick is about to enter upon a period of great industrial activity. The premier expressed this opinion while referring to the recent sales of the Gloucester iron mines to the Drummond Mining Company. He said also that he believed that the company has in view the development of the water power provided by the falls of the Mepisguit River. This water power is said to be equal to ten thousand horse power. The Drummond people may also erect large iron smelting works at the mines.

As the premier pointed out the New Brunswick government is annually expending quite a large sum in testing the various mineral deposits of the province. This is money well spent, and the knowledge of the valuable deposits in Gloucester is largely due to the efforts of the Provincial Government.

GLAD IT DID SO MUCH GOOD.

Some remarkable stories are being told about towns and among the country people showing in of the simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargos, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture, writes one authority in a leading Philadelphia newspaper, has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleansing the clogged up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter, overcoming Rheumatism, Backache and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A New York druggist who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it "swear by it," especially those who have Urinary and kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.

The druggist, in this neighborhood says they can supply the ingredients which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood cleansing agent or system tonic known and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

HAY SCARCIE IN ONTARIO.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Farmers in the rear of Addington county are selling live stock at any price they can get as feed is so scarce. Beaver hay sells at fifteen dollars a ton, and cattle from five to eight dollars each.

Montreal, Nov. 15.—Farmers throughout all sections of eastern Ontario, are reported as selling off their young cattle at sacrifice prices on account of the scarcity of hay. Some have taken this action because they have no hay to spare, but others with a view to saving the hay and getting a high price for it in the spring.

WHITNEYVILLE.

Whitneyville, Nov. 18.—Mr. Ernest Mutch who for the past fifteen years has been in the Western States returned home last week where he intends remaining permanently. He brought with him his wife and two little daughters. Mr. Mutch is a son of the late Samuel Mutch.

We are soon to have a substantial wharf here at Whitneyville to take the place of the old one. Mr. Adam Hill who has the work in charge has the stone ready for filling the base.

BELL LAUNCHES AIR SNIP.

Claims He Has Solved The Problem Of Aerial Navigation

HALIFAX, Wednesday.—After many years of experiment work a contrivance with which Dr. A. Graham Bell hopes to solve the problems of aerial navigation was successfully launched at Baddeck, N. S., today in the presence of a number of intimate friends of the inventor and a few of the more prominent citizens of the place. The launching took place at the Bell Laboratory, the ceremony of christening being attended to by Mrs. Bell who in breaking a bottle of Champagne over the bow of the airship declared its name to be "The Signet." At 3 o'clock the great doors of the workshop were thrown open and the kite was conveyed to a float upon which it was towed out in the waters of the Bras D'Or Cape. Owing to adverse weather conditions, however, a flight was not attempted the formal launch of the vessel only taking place. The kite is itself a section of tetrahedron 13 metres long on the top, 10 metres long on bottom by three metres deep. It is composed of 3393 units or small tetrahedrons two faces which are covered with silk thus forming a two winged cell. These cells so arranged as to give as a result of many tests the maximum stability with the lightest weight. A hole is cut through with the centre of the contrivance to furnish accommodation for the motor and aviator. The ship is also provided with a bow for flying purposes. It has four cylinders, 20 horse power and weighs 120 pounds. It drives two coiled screw propellers on the same shaft but in opposite directions. These are employed to reduce the turning movement which results in the tendency to overturn the ships when but one propeller is used or two are driven in the same direction. Although the ship exposes 2200 square feet of silk the area of its horizontal projection being 84 square metres. With the motor in position it weighs 290 pounds. As was carefully explained at the laboratory today by Dr. Bell, it is claimed of the Signet that she has now solved the problem for which she was constructed. This is hoped she will do through nothing definite can be given out until after her trial spins. Indeed the threshold merely has been reached in the development of the machine and experiments now to be taken up will be mainly productive in the furnishing of data for future experiments. Theoretically the machine is prepared to fly through many modifications are certain to ensue by reason of practical conditions obviously unable to be taken into account in its construction.

CHINESE ANXIOUS TO COME.

Vancouver, B. C. Nov. 15.—W. L. McKenzie King yesterday made some inquiries of Yip Sing, Vancouver's wealthiest Chinaman, and was assured by Yip that if it were not for the prohibitive head tax half of China would emigrate to Canada. "If the tax were removed," said he, "I would import laborers myself, as Onderdonk did twenty-five years ago, when the tax was only $35. With the tax at $500 companies cannot afford to import."

Asked by the commissioner if the companies were bringing over Japs, on whom there was no tax, Yip Sing refused to answer. He, however, volunteered the information that he believed wages were too high in British Columbia. "Chinese laborers" he said "now want $2.50 per day. A few years ago we could get them for half that. All over China they know of the good wages here and would come if they could afford it."

On the whole, the investigation went to show that it is only the head tax that keeps the Chinese out. If this were removed it is evident there would be a tremendous influx which would far exceed the immigration of Japs and Hindoos.

TROUT BROOK.

Trout Brook, Nov. 13.—Most of the young men in this vicinity have gone to the woods causing some of the young ladies to wear a frown, and this place is very dull in consequence.

A gentleman who came from the Miramichi woods Wednesday reports that three Philadelphia sportsmen, who left about ten days ago to hunt big game, under the guidance of Mr. Henry Braithwaite, are having a great run of luck. Up to the last Saturday night they had secured two moose and a deer, one of the moose being taken on the road while they were enroute to camp. They expect to get their full complement of game before returning home.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST.

Homestead Regulations.

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situated. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1). At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2). A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3). If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of the homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4). The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line, exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5). A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY, Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

he had not yet made up his mind what to do.

NOW IS THE TIME.

We notice in the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal an earnest appeal from the publishers requesting subscribers to renew earlier than usual this season. It must be a great problem to handle the thousands upon thousands of subscriptions pouring into that great paper every day during December and January and old subscribers, and new subscribers too, should remit their subscriptions now in order to prevent any possible delay later on. The Family Herald and weekly star never was so popular as to-day and is beyond doubt the biggest dollar's worth to be had.

MINER ENTOMBED
OVER 88 HOURS.

the rescuers got to you?" he was ask-

"Well, I did get tired waiting," he replied. "But I was surprised to learn that I had been in the place so long. I thought it was Monday morning."

McCabe's story of his experience is very brief.

"It was about 1.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon that I fired the shot," he said. "Morgan Bevin, the foreman had warned us that it was getting too dangerous to work any more in that breast. But we thought we had better all one trip of cars."

"We got ready for the shot, and the other men went down the gangway.
I went up and touched off the fuse."

"When the shot went off it took down the whole roof for 120 feet they told me. The slush coming down put my light out. If I had been six inches further out I would have been caught."

Know He Was Trapped.

"Right away I knew I was cut off.
The first thing I did was to say my prayers, and I thought of the wife and the kids right above me. I was praying for them more than for myself."

There I was, down in the earth, and there they were, right above me. If I could dig my way up I would come out in my own cellar. And I kept thinking of her up there thinking she might never see me again.

"I felt that it might be some days before the boys got to me and so I put about to make things comfortable."

I was in a space about ten feet square but the highest part was only about four feet; so I couldn't stand up.

"I had only one match, and I saved that. I didn't know but maybe the water would rise, and I kept the match so as to be able to find higher ground if I had to. Besides, I didn't want to make a light unless it was necessary.
You never can tell about fire-damp
after a fall."

"So I spent the whole time in the dark. I found a couple of old dynamite boxes, and these I put together for a bed. After a while I got the wife and the kids out of my mind and went to sleep. Just as I dozed off I thought I could see right up through the rocks and right into the front room, and there they were, all crying. And I suppose that's just what they were doing."

He Chewed Tobacco.

"When I woke up I was hungry. I had some tobacco and I chewed some of that. The tobacco kept me from getting very hungry, but after a while that wouldn't do."

"When I got thirsty I caught handfuls of the sulphur water dripping from the rocks. It was pretty strong, but there wasn't anything else on tap."

Only yesterday, Minibus, Engineer-Tasker, of the Philadelphia and Reading, gave it as his opinion that Mc-Cabe would never be found alive. It would take a year, he said, to reach the spot where he was supposed to be.

In Narrow Passage.

The engineer said that the fall had included breasts six and seven on each side of breast six and a half, in which McCabe was caught. In that case the rescuers would never have been able to dig through the debris, as the passage in which they worked was so narrow that only three men could work at a time. The three men changed every fifteen minutes so that each gang could work to their utmost and hasten the rescue.

Three shifts of thirty men worked eight hours each incessantly from the time of the fall, and Mr. Tasker stayed out the most of the time to direct the work.

Several years ago one of McCabe's brothers was killed in the same mine.
The other four greeted him this morning when he arrived at his house. His old mother was also waiting for him.

"We 'waked' ye for four days, Michael," she said, "but ye'll eat Christmas dinner with us, boy."
