HOTEL DIEU NURSES GRADUATE

Interesting and Striking Function Monday Evening—Ten Nurses Receive Diplomas

Unprecedented success attended the exercise of the graduating class of the Hotel-Dieu Hospital. Approximately 500 people were in attendance at the former R. C. Church building, Arms St., Monday evening where the exercises took place.

The 1924 function was pronounced a successful event in the history of the institution.

Following a selection by the orchestra composed of the Misses Gertrude Cormier, L. Barthe, Misses Kane and A. Louden, the chairman L.
G. Pinault, M. D. delivered a short address of welcome.

The next number was a vocal selection "Welcome" sung by the student and graduate nurses, followed by a very able French address by Rev. M.
Lantagne. The Reverend Father
after extending congratulations to the graduates upon the attainment of their goal after three years of strenuous work and study, brought forth most eloquently the high ideals of the nursing profession.

Dr. L. G. Pinault, President of the Hotel-Dieu Hospital, medical staff was the next speaker, and he dealt principally with the "duty of the nurse towards the patient." This address proved to be highly interesting and practical. Dr. Pinault then voiced the staff's congratulations and well wishes to the graduates of 1924.

Then came the presentation of diplomas and class pins. The graduates
are as follows:

Rev. Sister Albert, Tricadie, Rev.
Sister Dugas, Tricadie, Miss Leonie
Roy, Miss Elzoina Audet, Miss Helen Legacy, Miss Margaret, Legacy,
Miss Marie Dugas, Miss. France
Dugas, Miss Josephine, Albert
Miss Winnifred Hasey, McKay honored the audience with a few appropriate remarks on the "Community's duty to a hospital."

The reading of the Valedictory by Miss W. Hasey was followed by the taking of the Nightingale Pledge by the class of 1924. "I solemnly pledge myself before God and in the presence of my fellow nurses to pass my life in purity and to practice my profession faithfully. I will abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous, and I will not take or knowingly administer any harmful drug. I will do all in my power to maintain and elevate the standard of my profession and will hold in confidence all personal matters committed to my keeping and all family affairs coming to my knowledge in the practice of my calling. With loyalty
I will endeavor to aid the physician in his work, and devote myself to the welfare of those committed to my care."

Farewell to the Graduates. by the Jurors and the class song were well received and greatly applauded.

Junior Farewell to the Graduates
There is no bond of friendship true
Which parting does not cleave asunder.
There is no cloud however dark,
That sunshine does not soon relieve.
Not here shall all our hopes mature.
Nor yet our fears be half so grave.
A heavenly glow o'er promise peace
Shedeth its light.

Prayer by Rev. M. Lantagne.
Faint not, faint not, duty obey
Every dark night is followed by day.
There are heavens safe from every storm.

That issues out of human life;
May your best anchor safely lie Amid the threatening storm of strife.

May you to "service" o'd be true
For love must show itself indeed
And only they who work for love
And perseverance at last succeed.

The musical programme was a very enjoyable one:

WHEAT CUTTING IN WEST NEARLY DONE

The Yields and Grades Generally Exceeding the Earlier Expectations

Winnipeg, Sept. 23.—Excellent harvest weather during the first portion of the week enabled rapid advancement of all farm work, according to the weekly crop report of the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Heavy rains towards the latter end, however, resulted in almost entire suspension of operations throughout the west.

The weather at present is more settled and wheat cutting is practically completed, and coarser grains are just approaching that stage. Comparatively little threshing has been accomplished so far, but returns available reveling yields and grades generally exceeding earlier expectations. In some districts where crops were late,
farmers fearing frost, cut the wheat
too green, which will of course hurt
the sample.

Except for some local shortages
harvest help situation is satisfactory and available supply adequate for demands.

IMPROVEMENTS AT
CROSS POINT

Matter of Evening Ferry Service is Now Under Consideration

That the completion of the new cross-province highway from Campbellton to Madawaska, now under construction may help to bring the Campbellton-Cross Point inter-provincial bridge project to successful conclusion was the hope expressed by Mr. Pius Michael, member for Res-tigonche and Madawaska, Council
in an interview with the Graphic yesterday. That the new road when completed will mean much to the province and more particularly to the north where it is apparent and there can be little doubt that this new highway and the possibilities it brings to mind will have a most favorable effect in connection with the merger which is now of so many years standing.

Mr. Michael said that efforts were now being made to arrive at some mutual agreement between the different governments, federal and provincial, and the municipalities directly interested in the project.

In Northumberland
Mr. Michael was on his way home from Newcastle where he had accompanied Premier Mackenzie King together with a few friends of the government from Campbellton. In speaking of the outlook in Northumberland, Mr. Michael said that prospects looked good for the Liberal candidate. The meetings held in Bircloch and other settlements and also those at Chatham and Newcastle were very enthusiastic and on each occasion the hall was crowded to the doors. While in that district the Premier visited the Liberal candidates and also called on the widow of the late John Morrissey. Premier King passed through here on yesterday morning's Maritime. He will leave Monday for his western tour which will take up at least six weeks.

HUNTING MOOSE
SEASON STARTS OCT 1

Many Enquiries from United States Seeking Big Game

The season for hunting moose will open on Oct. 1 and judging from the number of enquiries received, many from the United States are considering spending a vacation in the New Brunswick forests, seeking big game. Some have already arrived and are putting in the interim seeking deer and ducks. So far as can be learned very few deer have been brought out since the opening of the season on Sept. 15.
They are said to be numerous but the density of the undergrowth is handicapping the hunters.

REORGANIZATION OF
RIFLE CLUB

An effort is being made to reorganize the Restigonche Rifle Club.
With this object in view a meeting will be held in the Town Hall Tuesday evening and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance. In the years which are gone Campbellton hosted of a very fine club, with fine arms and equipment, and it is now being endeavored to reorganize
on a large and better scale.

ing institutional subscriptions, but it is believed that applicants for large known to have met their death in an which a large touring car passed over the railings of the Congress

car was submerged in fifteen feet of water.

The bodies of a woman, a two-year-old infant, a seven-year-old child

ham where she was visiting relatives.
Miss Lingley of Montreal was in charge of the Record Office during her absence.

Mr. John A. Adams, two buildings were destroyed in the blaze of the Adams store and a storehouse and garage owned by Mr. Robert Ferguson, situated directly across the street from the Adams building. This includes a carload of hay which was lost.

readers to hear that the Northwestern University of Evanston, Illinois,

CLERGYMAN COULD NOT REST IN U. S. A.

Britisher Came to America for Rest But Did Not Stay Long

London, Sept. 20.—Dr. J. D. Jones
of the Bournemouth Congregational Church went over to prohibition
America to take a rest from his life work of fighting the devil. He soon came back having found that the devil did not spend all his time in Bournemouth. He was unable even to get a rest on the voyages over and back. "My daughter and I hardly spoke to anyone on the ship"
he said. "The passengers belonged as it seemed to me to the rich and loud set. The ladies turned the ship into a fashion parade almost all of them smoked cigarettes and drank cocktails."

INJUNCTION WAS ISSUED TUESDAY

New County Court House Will not be Proceeded With
At Once

Notwithstanding the fact that Warden Arsenau assured the Graphic a week ago that nothing further would be done in the new County House matter until it was duly considered at the January session of the Municipal Council, the tenders were opened on Friday and on Saturday
the contract was awarded to a Moncton contractor.

Notwithstanding the fact that Councillor Cool who was to represent the Town of Campbellton on the Finance committee wrote asking to be notified when this matter was to be considered, he was not notified and the Campbellton citizens who will pay nearly forty per cent of the cost of erecting and equipping this building were not permitted to be represented when this important matter was dealt with.

Mr. Montgomery tried in every way to have this matter pushed through despite protests from numerous Councillors, some of whom say that they did not hear the last part of the resolution giving authority to the committees to award the tender read, and would not have voted in favor of it had they so understood it.

However Mr. Montgomery has been forced to desist as Mr. Justice White on Tuesday issued an injunction restraining the municipal authorities from proceeding further in this matter so that in the meantime no work is being done.

The Graphic understands that an effort is being made to call a special session of the County Council, when this matter will be fully considered.

HAD GOOD TIME AT OTHER'S EXPENSE

Ford Tourist Had Big Ideas but
no Funds to Carry Them Through

There arrived in Dalhousie in July in a Ford touring car a man giving his name as Henry Alward of Harford, Conn. He was accompanied by a young woman, who was introduced as his wife. They boarded at Andrew Allain's, Dalhousie, and evidently enjoyed their summer here
about two weeks ago the gentleman in the case commenced negotiations for the purchase of a property at Upper Charlo, upon which he and his brother intended to erect a summer hotel at an estimated cost of $50,000. He also contracted a few small accounts, besides his board
bill.

One night last week he folded his tent, and silently a Ford could be left for parts unknown, forgetting to pay his bills before leaving.

Now it is said that he is "wanted"
for bank robbery, and that his picture is on file in the various police departments throughout the provinces.

UNIVERSAL PEACE

the International Federation of Trade Unions are called upon to join in mass anti-war demonstrations to-morrow, in a manifesto sent out from the headquarters of the Federation in Amsterdam. The demonstrations are to be held in the nature of a solemn observance of the tenth anniversary of the breaking out of the World War, although timed considerably later than the actual date of the outbreak of the conflict.

rules regarding amateur athletes
will be the principal subjects to come before the convention.

IMMENSE PUMPKINS

Mrs. P. Vautour of Andersonville has some record-breaking pumpkins on her garden this year. Nine of the largest weighed from thirty to forty-five pounds each. There were also a large number of smaller ones.

mittee much valuable information.

It was decided to install a telephone
in the clinic, and the District nurse,
Miss Campbell was authorized to pro-

SUCCESSFUL FAIR AT AMQUI

Fine Display of Farm Produce, Animals and Household
Work

On the 9th and 10th of September
last took place at Amqui the third annual exhibition of the Agricultural Society of the County of Matapedia,
P. Q. Paved with ideal weather the exhibition was a success.
The exhibits were admired by the large number of visitors, who attended from all parts.

There was a great display of farm products and articles made by the ladies of the county which was commented upon favorably by the visitors.

In the swine competition a hog
of Mr. Oscar Couture of Val Brilliant appears at the head of the list of prize winners. The Ayrshires represented by a herd owned by Mr.
McNicholl of Amqui and the Holstein of Mr. G. Savoie of Val Brilliant were a credit to their owners.

After the judging of cattle and products of all kinds in the afternoon of the 10th the Band of Amqui played choice music, followed by addresses by Mr. Dufour, M. P. P. and several others, the prize list
was announced and the people dispersed delighted with the exhibition.

THIS BOY WORTH
85 MILLIONS

Only 15 Years of Age but He is Probably Richest Youngster in England

The richest boy in Great Britain is the little fifteen-year-old Duke of Norfolk. He is soon to learn exactly how wealthy he is. Although his father the late Duke died seven years ago, the task of proving the will and valuing the estate is just being completed. His fortune is expected to total about $85,000,000.

The estate comprises about 50-
000 acres of land and includes Arundel Castle in Sussex and Derwent Hall in Derbyshire, with Beech Hall in Sheffield and Norfolk House St. John's Square London. The London house was rented during the last season
here by Mrs. Harry Brown of Pittsburgh. Some of the land has been sold since the Duke died.

The Duke's family stands next to blood royal and is at the head of the English peerage. The Duke is the hereditary Earl Marshal of England in that capacity the late Duke officiated at the coronation of Edward VII, and of the present King. The little Duke can look forward to acting in a similar capacity when the Prince of Wales is crowned King.

The Duke's mother is Baroness Herries in her own right and is therefore one of the peeresses eligible to sit in the House of Lords if the light initiated by Viscountess Rhonda for the admission of peeresses to that assembly is won.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—Public offering of the new Dominion Government do-

Monday. The issue consists of thirty-five million dollars twenty year four and a half per cent bonds. It is understood that the bonds will be offered to the public at a slight discount.
A strong Canadian syndicate purchas-

be seen at the Post Office, Miguasha West, P. Q. This Post Office is opposite Dalhousie and just a few yards from the proposed new wharf.
Blue prints can be obtained at the Department by depositing an accepted cheque for the sum of $10.00, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, which will be returned if the intending bidder submit a regular bid.

The sum of $9000.00 was voted at the last session at the request of Hon. Charles Marcell, M. P., for the Upper Miguasha wharf. The idea for the call for tenders now is to give a favorable opportunity to any contractor to secure the required
lumber during the winter months,
and to do the hauling of stone on the first snow. This improvement will complete the chain of wharves needed for a practical steam ferry service between Carleton Place and Campbel-ton, there being splendid wharfing accommodation at Carleton, St. Omer, Dalhousie and Campbellton. The Dalhousie ferry wharf has a slip for the convenience of a ferry boat, and with the proposed slip to be added to the long wharf at Upper Miguasha, the travelling public using automobiles, will find the service most convenient.

It is the intention to have the Upper Miguasha wharf completed
early in the spring of 1925.

Headaches and backaches frequently indicate kidney trouble, and may be the forerunners of dangerous illness. Read how one sufferer was relieved.

"My trouble has been very bad headaches, backaches and dizzy spells. I started taking Gin Pills and only used a little more than half a box when my headaches and backaches stopped and now I feel like a new girl. I am well and have had no return of those distressing headaches and backaches."

New Richmond Live Stock Fair

held by the Agricultural Society Division "B" of the County of Bonaventure at New Richmond on Sept. 10, 1924.

Large number of exhibits both in live stock and home industry. The live stock section at the local fair held by the Agricultural Society showed an increase in the number of entries this year and a decided improvement in all classes. Horses in single and double draft, single and double coach made a good showing and competition keen, the number of 1924 colts on exhibit did not trend to strengthen the current opinion that the ever increasing popularity of the automobile was doing away with horse raising in this district. Six judges were hard at work from 10 a.m. until late in the afternoon and close to one thousand people visited the fair grounds.

The following prizes were awarded:

THE COST OF CARELESSNESS

Maritime Safety League Plans for Public Safety Should be Upheld

The Maritime Safety League has compiled an estimate of the accidents which resulted in death or serious injury in the Province of New Brunswick during the past seven months. Some startling facts have been brought forth that should demonstrate to the public the vital necessity of organized public safety work throughout our province.

Of the eighty-seven deaths due to various preventable causes, as listed below, drowning leads other causes by a margin. Thirty-seven lives have been saved by proper instruction and preventative measures at various beaches and rivers of New Brunswick. A particularly sad feature in connection with this frightful loss of life due to this cause is the fact that the victims were rarely more than twenty-five years of age. In fact the average age of the victims range from fourteen to twenty-four years.

Automobile accidents while accounting for seven fatalities resulted in no fewer than seventy-five cases of serious but non-fatal injuries. The property loss from this cause was of course enormous.

Burns also caused seven fatalities and led to the vast majority of deaths throughout Canada due to this cause affected children of ten years and under.

The necessity for the continuance of the splendid work already accomplished by the Maritime Safety League in our province, must be apparent to all public spirited citizens who have the welfare of the people of this province at heart.

It has been said that if the value of human life could be estimated in dollars and cents that each life is worth $50,000 to the country. Past experience has definitely proved that approximately 80% of all public accidents such as are listed below could be prevented.

This being the case, it must be apparent, that aside from the humanitarian aspect of the situation which involves shattered lives and broken hearts, the actual monetary loss to the province and to the country is as enormous as it is needless.

Notes: These times more serious accidents occur on the streets and in the homes as compared to those which occur in industries.

About one-third of all public accidents involves the loss of life or serious injury of school children. Accidents which resulted in death or serious injuries in the Province of New Brunswick during the last seven months.

RESENT IMPUDENCE OF U. S. OFFICIALS

Discourteous Treatment of Travellers by Immigration Officers Arouses Indignation.

St. John, Sept. 12.—One of the most prevalent topics of conversation at the present time in St. John, at least, is the discourteous manner in which persons planning to go to the United States are treated by the U. S. immigration officials. These gentlemen, it would seem, are inclined to confine their rudeness to ladies in particular.

One evening this week a number of ladies happened during their conversation to discuss this subject and a number of experiences were brought to light which were thought worthy of publication. It is certainly too bad that the public generally should be kept in ignorance of the manner in which business is carried on by these officials, although judging by the stories told, little hope can be held out for any improvement.

One lady, who had been in rather poor health and was going to visit friends in Boston for a few weeks, was so bulldozed when she went to make her arrangements that she was obliged to postpone her trip for a day or two. On being informed that it was necessary for her to pay head tax, she asked where she would go to do so.

"The King Street office," she snapped the official.

"Yes, the King Street office," he answered. "Do you mean to say you live in St. John and don't know the American consul's office in King Street?"

She admitted that she did not, but could get no further particulars, as she was leaving the office in Union street after making inquiries and found that the consul's office was located at Germain street.

Not Confined to St. John
Another lady, who was using her influence to assist a young American who had become stranded here to get back to his home and friends, was ordered to produce the birth certificate of the young man in question, and on being unable to do so, was accused of trying to get a Canadian admitted to the United States under false pretences.

She explained the circumstances, giving full details of how he had come to Canada, and added, "You might at least have some mercy on one of your own citizens," and received the reply, "You can't prove him an American citizen and we are not here to show mercy to Canadians."

This shameful treatment is not by any means confined to St. John. To conduct themselves in as nasty and officious a manner, as possible towards Canadians going to the U. S. seems to be a particular characteristic of many of the American immigration officials whose duties lie within the limits of the province of New Brunswick.

One Example
One case in particular excited much anger on the part of the passengers of the Boston train from St. John. A lady—a Canadian by birth, but married and living in the United States for several years—and her little girl of two had been spending the summer with her parents in New Brunswick and was returning home when she was taken from the train at Vancabro and told that she could not enter the United States. Greatly astonished, she asked the reason, but was given little satisfaction, being simply told that she would have to return to St. John and go through the usual formalities.

She was not allowed to go to a hotel, but placed in a room with several other persons and kept there until the incoming Boston train arrived the next morning, and she was given a ticket, marked "Canadian immigrant" and sent back to St. John. The most wretched feature of the occurrence was that the little girl had absolutely nothing to eat on the train until she reached McAdam the next morning, her mother being given no opportunity of procuring food for her.

Convinced at Last
Another case was related by a lady who with a friend was going to Houlton for the day. They simply bought their tickets and boarded the train. They expected to be questioned by the customs officials before entering American territory, as this is the usual custom crossing the line anywhere, but on nearing the border they were rudely accosted by a couple of men in uniform and asked where they were going, why and for how long. They said they were going to spend the day with relatives and it had never occurred to them that they would be questioned.

They were then taken into the

DICTIONARY COST 26 YEARS WORK

Author Also Spent $30,000 in It's Preparation According to Letter Written in 1823

New York, Sept. 16.—A letter written in 1823 by Noah Webster, author of the dictionary which is said to have prevented the United States from becoming a nation speaking many dialects, in which the writer refers to his plans to secure a reception for his work in England, has been given out by John Stuart Thomson, of Jersey City.

The communication, which is described as hitherto unpublished, was addressed to Charles R. Webster, a cousin of Noah, and was found by Mr. Thomson among the papers of the cousin. It reads as follows:

"Dear Sir:
"I expected you would call upon me the morning you left New Haven, but you disappointed me, and I must write what I want to say to you. You must have heard that I have been many years in compiling a complete dictionary in our language. My researches have been laborious and extensive, and I think fruitful in discoveries. As I am drawing toward the conclusion of the work, I think of going to England next summer to revise and complete the work and to try to obtain a reception of it in that country. But my resources are too scanty for such an undertaking and I want to avail myself of all my extra means."

I have on hand a new book of my own publishing, entitled "Letters to a young gentleman concerning his education," some of which I think may be sold in Albany. The retail price is $1.75, the work being a thin octavo. The sheet price is 90 cents and for a hundred or more I would say 75 cents. If you will, it will very much oblige me.

"My dictionary has cost me twenty-six years of labor, and about $30,000. If I succeed I shall reimburse myself for the cost of the work, and my friends for their advances. If I should not, I shall be left in my old age with small means for subsistence. Please to present my kind respects to Mr. W. and other friends. Yours with affection and respect, N. WEBSTER."

FROG OR THRUSH
The bullfrog never croaks except when the shadows begin to fall. The thrush never warbles except when sitting in the top of the tree in full light of the bright sun.

Each has to have its peculiar environment in order to express itself. One needs a gloomy atmosphere in the swamp ground where he can make that dismal noise expressive of its surroundings.

The other needs the invigorating sunshine to produce the sweet music that fills its being.

Do you belong to the frog or the thrush class?
If you associate with grumblers and kickers and never hear the bright and optimistic side of public questions, you will never see the silver lining, you will be influenced by their pessimism and become like them.

Always be sure to stay away from the frog-minded people, and get in the crowd where some good is seen in everything.

You can't radiate good cheer and be a hater for all things that will improve the community, unless you have those kind of thoughts. Therefore, imitate the thrush and warble, but never croak.

HUNTING MOOSE SEASON STARTS OCT. 1
The season for hunting moose will open on Oct. 1, and, judging from the number of deer received, many from the United States are considering spending the vacation in the New Brunswick forests, seeking big game. Some have already arrived, and are putting in the interim seeking deer and ducks.

Immigration Office and peremptorily asked for their names, addresses, their husbands' names and professions and finally the name of the people they intended to visit. On finding the latter name in the telephone directory, inquiries were made, and they were allowed to depart.

Many Cases Like Them
The instance of a young lady employed in one of the local offices who was going to Boston for a two weeks' vacation was also cited. Having heard of the difficulty she might experience, she took the precaution of securing a letter from her employer, a very well known business man, testifying that she was only on her vacation, and was putting in the interim seeking deer and ducks.

FIND REMAINS OF ROMAN DAYS

Evidences of Splendid Villa at Folkestone 2,000 Years Old.

London, Sept. 16.—Eighteen centuries ago a Roman admiral sat in his splendid villa at Folkestone looking down on the sea and watching his galleys going about their business along the Kentish seaboard.

A few years passed by and he was forgotten, and his villa passed out of memory until last year an old drain gave a clue that has resulted in discoveries being made which show how splendid and now more than modern the great house on the East Cliff in Roman days.

Pick and spade have revealed that it had central heating, a cold plunge bath, and fine halls floored with exquisite tessellated pavements.

Remains, too, of a more personal sort have been found. There are a silver stylus with which an admiral may have written orders to his captains on tables of wax; candlesticks that may have lighted him to bed; broaches and hairpins his wife may have used for her adornment, and a bronze mirror that may have reflected her pretty face—nearly 2,000 years ago.

Rose-pink Samian ware and vessels bearing the marks of Gaulish potters have been found, and there were unearthed coins that bore the image of Roman emperors who lived and died eight centuries before Harold fell at Senlac.

Other and more tragic relics there are, too, in the shape of burial urns. E. S. Winbolt, classical master at Christ's Hospital, Hove, is the man to whose credit must be placed this discovery of old-time Britain. He has found willing helpers in the Folkestone Corporation, which owns the land.

Folkestone has become the scene of an archaeological boom such as no fashionable watering-place has ever before experienced. Gaily attired girls, escorted by youths in flannels, staid, elderly professional men, and enthusiastic schoolboys jostle in the queue awaiting admission.

The fees more than provide for the cost of excavation. Charabancs, taxicabs, and motor-cars line the approaches, and refreshment vendors do a roaring trade.

SECRET OF LONG LIFE
One of the grandest of Canada's grand old men is the veteran lumber king and railroad builder of Ottawa, John R. Booth, now in his 99th year—whose example and career may well prove an inspiration to the younger generation of Canadians. Canada's lumber king, serene and active at 98, loves work, and is a practical lover. That is his secret of longevity and success, he says. While scientists and bio-chemists delve the nature of the matter to evolve a treatment which will prolong the life of man beyond the ordinary, Mr. Booth, sound as a nut, tough as a pine knot, and vigorous in body and mind, scoffs at the artificial elixirs. From his home in Ottawa he directs the work of his lumber empire of timber, pulp and paper, and he is no arm-chair observer. Up with the lark, he makes his daily visits to his properties nearest him. Often he goes into the woods, where nobody in the camps steps livelier or evinces greater zest for work.

The music of the axes and saws is sweet to his ears—and he still can do his trick with either. Master of many millions, he doesn't have to work. But he does want to live out his day as he puts it. Thus his recipe: "Stick to the job; don't retire; work, rest and play in turn, and never lose your grip on yourself or your work; and above all, be natural in all things, and never go back on a friend, or forget him. Sound advice that many of us may profit by!"

The little fellow had only been sick a few days, all was done that human efforts could accomplish but medical aid proved unavailing. The funeral was held on Wednesday Sept. 25 at 10 o'clock. The pallbearers were James Dobson, Ralph Dobson, Jack Duncan and Roy Kelly.

The Late Christina Victoria Gallant
The death of Christina Victoria Gallant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Gallant occurred at her home in Victoria St., West at the age of thirteen months and eleven days. She was taken suddenly ill on the twenty-seventh of August and with all that loving hands and skillful nursing could do she passed away on Monday evening September 8th. The funeral service was held on Tuesday following Wednesday Rev. W. Camp officiating. The pallbearers were Randolph Gallant, James Gallant, Murray Gallant and Okey Harvey. Interment was made in the rural cemetery. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

WEDDINGS

Kane-Taylor
A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. John City on the evening of Sept. 19th at St. Mary's Rectory, when Miss Mary Edith Power, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Power, formerly of Bellefleur, N. B. and Thomas Kane of Upper Loch Lomond. The ceremony was witnessed only by immediate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Kane will reside in St. John. Their many friends join in best wishes for their future happiness.

McIntyre-Power
A marriage of local interest was solemnized at the Sacred Heart Church, Bathurst, on Sept. 17th, when Miss Mary Edith Power, daughter of Mr. Michael Power and the late Michael Power, became the bride of Mr. Arthur J. McIntyre, of Campbellton. Rev. Father Whelan performed the ceremony and officiated at nuptial mass. The witnesses were Messrs. James J. Power, uncle of the bride, and Harold White. The church had been beautifully decorated. As the bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Mr. James J. Power, Mendelsohn's wedding march was played by an orchestra comprising Miss Lucy Doucet, cello and Mrs. J. Brian MacIsaac and Miss Emma Power, sisters of the bride, on the violin and organ. The bride was very attractively attired in a navy blue pointed tulle traveling suit with ornate fur and stylish blue hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and maidenhair fern. Special music was rendered by the choir, the numbers including a very pretty Ave Marie in which the solo was delightfully rendered by Miss Mary Walsh, and a beautiful setting of O Salutaris, sung most acceptably by Mrs. Jacob White. The ceremony was attended by a large number of friends of the bride who has been one of the most popular of Bathurst's young ladies. The groom, who occupies the position of postmaster of Campbellton, is a very well known throughout this county as well as his own, having been commander of the Bathurst contingent of the 190th regiment during the war, in which he served with distinction. They left on a honeymoon trip to Boston, Montreal and other cities. They will reside in Campbellton.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT
Mr. Desire J. Bourque, Baritone, vocalist, an "Impressario" was in Campbellton last night making arrangements for a return engagement of Arthur LeBlanc, Canada's marvelous violinist. Since Mr. LeBlanc's appearance here in the past he has been a most successful tour of the United States under the management of Mr. Bourque and made a great hit at every appearance. He has also improved in his art and is now a more accomplished musician. In a concert recently in Moncton he was obliged at every number to respond to double and triple applause and it was evident that he had improved since his last appearance. Desire J. Bourque, Baritone will again be on the program with Mr. LeBlanc, he made the U. S. A. tour with the LeBlanc Trio and his rich Baritone voice, perfect and pleasing stage presence won much praise, the experience of the U. S. A. tour was a great help to him. He is now in the U. S. A. and will be in Campbellton on Monday night.

LOSES HAND
A most unfortunate accident occurred at Miller's Mill on Tuesday afternoon when Mr. Cameron Andrew had his left hand so severely crushed that it was later found necessary to amputate the injured member just above the wrist. Mr. Andrew was working about one of the machines in the mill at the time and his hand somehow became caught in the cog. The unfortunate man who has been in the employ of the W. H. Miller Mill for a number of years is suffering considerable pain, but is reported this morning as recovering favorably.

CANADIAN PACIFIC
HAS UNIQUE CAR
Combined Passenger and Baggage Gasoline Propelled Car in Use
Montreal, Sept. 12.—The Canadian Pacific Railway announces an innovation in their western service in the shape of a combined passenger and baggage gasoline propelled car, which is destined for service between Vancouver and New Westminster. The car, which has been built for the company by the Ottawa Car Manufacturing Company, will shortly leave for the west. It is slightly over fifty feet long in all, and contains a baggage compartment 32 feet 7 inches long and entered from pneumatically controlled doors, one on each side, and having a seating capacity of 44 persons. Its weight is 43,000 pounds, and it is equipped with an 84 horse power Hinkley motor. A noted feature is the carrying of the engine on the leading truck instead of in the body of the car, by which means vibration is not transmitted to the car body, resulting in very smooth riding. Other features are automatic air brakes, equipment couplers and bell ringers, S. K. F. ground roller bearings, Peter Smith heater and electric headlights. It also has air operated whistle and electric lighting.

EDITOR'S MAIL

The writer wishes to take this opportunity to thank a few of the complainants of this town for the serious way in which they express their sentiments in regard to my colleague "Kelly."

The complaint is significant of the town it was sent in behind time (but that was not the fault of the complainants) it would not be very hard for me to point out these people.

The complaint I understand was brought up to the "Board of Health" and therefore lodged. Well if the complainants and the people of the town in general would listen to the complaints sent in of the vile filthy places of this town as well as they do to the complaints of my dog——and if all the places were looked after as my dog why the town would be a cleaner place, and some of my worthy friends would be busy minding their own business.

The complaint was in regard to a "sore side" my dog had. But my dog was operated on by, I understand, one of the best Veterinary surgeons in the country, Dr. J. F. Donnelly of Campbellton. The operation was a complete success and my dog is perfectly free to run at large, his taxes are paid, and when I feel fit to let my dog go down town I am going to do so. I am quite positive it will not be detrimental to anyone's health to pass him on his street.

I think it is time to complain about something else and leave "Kelly" alone.

Why not try and organize an S. P. C. A. It would be much more beneficial to the animals as well as to the town. But the motto of some of the citizens of Dalhousie seems to be "Treat the brute as unkind as possible" in other towns it is the reverse.

In concluding I wish to state that my dog has more intelligence than some people I know who live in this town.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space you have given me.

Dalhousie N. B.

When thoroughly improved, Mr. Rinzler will have a nice home. He is conveniently located near his large store, and the large buildings that are on the lot, formerly used when the Phillips family kept hotel, will enable Mr. Rinzler to store a large quantity of goods.

in Carleton. He took the trip to Gaspe to see the new Bishop of Gaspe, whom he knew when he was parish priest of St. Flavie, His Lordship Bishop Ross, being then parish priest at Mont Joli. Father Cullen stopped at New Richmond, where he had had charge for three years of the R. C. Congregation previous to going to the U. S. He preached in the R. C. Church during this trip in New Richmond. He received a warm welcome from the people of all denominations in that progressive section of Gaspe. From Dalhousie he motored to Carleton and Woodstock, on his return to Taunton, where he has had charge of the R. C. Parish for many years. Father Cullen made several trips to Europe during recent years, and visited sections in Ireland, where his ancestors came from in Morbihan, France, where his late Grandfather, Doctor Charles M. LaBillette, came from. In the former case he was married and located several houses of Cullen, and he was given a very hearty welcome by them. At Bathurst Father Cullen was to pay a visit to Hon. Premier Veniot. Rev. Wm. Cullen is a nephew of the late Wm. Cullen of Dalhousie N. B.

OLD IRON FIRM CLOSES DOORS

Was Century Old—Leaving Present Situation Because There is No Room for Expansion

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 23.—One year less than a century ago an iron mill was built on the outskirts of Pittsburgh. It was a small affair, constructed on the banks of the Allegheny River by the firm of Milnerberger & Brown. For 99 years it grew and played an important part in the city's industrial life but now, instead of being on the outskirts of Pittsburgh it stands within a few blocks of the very heart of the city's shopping and office centre.

And this is the chief reason the oldest independent iron and steel mill in Pittsburgh is being torn down. The firm of Brown & Co., Inc., the present owners, is going out of business because there is too much business. The site of the mill occupies about three acres and if it continued operation it would be necessary to expand. And there is no room for expansion. On three sides are tall buildings and on the other is the river. J. Stuart Brown, grandson of the founder, said he did not wish to assume the responsibility of erecting a new plant elsewhere, and he felt he deserved a rest. Consequently the business will be discontinued.

The Great Impersonation

CHAPTER XVI

Even in the great dining-room of Dominey Hall, the mahogany table which was its great glory was stretched out that evening to its extreme capacity. Besides the house party, which included the Right Honourable Gerald Watson, a recently appointed Cabinet Minister, there were several guests from the neighbourhood—the Lord Lieutenant of the County and other notabilities. Caroline, with the Lord Lieutenant on one side of her and Terrioff on the other, played the part of the hostess adequately but without enthusiasm. Her eyes seldom left for long the other end of the table, where Stephanie, at Dominey's left, and with her crown of exquisitely cultured red-gold hair, her marvellous jewelry, her languorous grace of manner seemed more like one of the hostesses of an ancient Venetian Court than a modern Hungarian Princess gowned in the Rue de la Paix. Conversation remained chiefly local and concerned the day's sport and kindred topics. It was not until towards the close of the meal that the Duke succeeded in launching his favourite bubble. "I trust, Everard," he said, raising his voice a little as he turned towards his host, "that you make a point of inculcating the principles of National Service into your tenants here."

Dominey's reply was a little doubtful. "I am afraid they do not take to the idea very kindly in the world," he confessed. "Purely agricultural districts are always a little difficult."

"It is your duty as a landowner," the Duke insisted, "to alter their point of view. There is not the slightest doubt," he added, looking challengingly over the top of his pince nez at Seaman, who was seated at the opposite side of the table, "that before long we shall find ourselves—and in a shocking state of unpreparedness, mind you—at war with Germany."

Lady Maddeley, the wife of the Lord Lieutenant, who sat at his side, seemed a little startled. She was probably one of the only people present who was not aware of the Duke's foible.

"Do you really think so?" she asked. "The Germans seem such civilised people, so peaceful and domestic in their home life, and that sort of thing."

The Duke groaned. He glanced down the table to be sure that Prince Terrioff was out of hearing.

"My dear Lady Maddeley," he declared, "Germany is not governed like England. When the war comes, the people will have had nothing to do with it. A great many of them will be just as surprised as you will be, but they will fight all the same."

Seaman, who had kept silent during the last few moments with great difficulty, now took up the Duke's challenge.

"Permit me to assure you, madam," he said, bowing across the table, "that the war with Germany of which the Duke is so afraid will never come. I speak with some amount of knowledge because I am a German by birth, although naturalized in this country. I have my many and my dear friends in Berlin as in London, and with the exception of my recent absence in Africa where I had the pleasure to meet our host, I spend a great part of my time going back and forth between the two capitals. I have also the honour of a better understanding between the citizens of Germany and England."

"Rubbish!" the Duke exclaimed. "The Germans don't want a better understanding. They only want to fool us into believing that they do."

Seaman looked a little pained. He stuck to his guns however.

"His Grace and I," he observed, "are old opponents on this subject."

"We are indeed," the Duke agreed. "You may be an honest man, Mr. Seaman, but you are a very ignorant one upon this particular topic."

"You are probably both right in your way," Dominey intervened, very much in the manner of a well-bred host making his usual effort to smooth over two widely divergent points of view. "There is no doubt war party in Germany and a peace party, statesmen who place economic progress first, and others who are tainted with a purely military lust for conquest. In this country it is very hard for us to strike a balance between the two."

Seaman beamed his thanks upon his host.

"I have friends," he said impressively, "in the very highest circles of Germany, who are continually encouraging my work here, and I have received the encouraging encouragement of the Kaiser himself upon my efforts to promote a better feeling in this country. And if you will forgive my saying so, Duke, it is such ill-advised and ill-founded statements as you are constantly making about my country which is the only bar to a better understanding between us."

"I have my views," the Duke snapped, "and they have become convictions. I shall continue to express them at all times and with all the eloquence at my command."

The Ambassador, to whom portions of this conversation had now become audible, leaned a little forward in his place.

"Let me speak first as a private individual," he begged, "and express my well-studied opinion that war between two countries would be simply race suicide, an indescribable and an abominable crime. Then I will remember what I represent over here, and I will venture to add in my ambassadorial capacity that I come with an absolute and heartfelt mandate of peace. My task over here is to secure and ensure it."

Caroline flashed a warning glance at her husband.

"How nice of you to be so frank, Prince!" she said. "The Duke sometimes forgets, in the pursuit of his not a platform. I insist upon it that we discuss something of more genuine interest."

"There isn't a more vital subject in the world," the Duke declared, resigning himself, however, to silence.

"We will speak," the Ambassador suggested, "of the way in which our host brought down those tall pheasants."

"You will tell me, perhaps," Seaman suggested to the lady on his right, "how you English women have much more liberty than our German wives enjoy?"

"Later on," Stephanie whispered to her host, with a little tremble in her voice, "I have a surprise for you."

After dinner, Dominey's guests

LIFE BURDENED BY DYSPEPSIA

Health and Happiness Come With "Fruit-a-tives"

Made From Fruit Juices and Tonics

"Fruit-a-tives," the wonderful medicine made from the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, is one of the greatest means of doing good that this country of ours has ever known.

"Fruit-a-tives" is bringing health to hundreds and hundreds of people who suffer with chronic Constipation, Bilelessness and Dyspepsia.

Mr. Frank Hall of Wyre, Ont., says, "I purchased a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' and began the treatment. My condition improved immediately. The dyspepsia ceased to be the burden of my life as it had been, and I was freed of Constipation."

passed naturally enough to the relaxations which each preferred. There were two bridge tables, Terrioff and the Cabinet Minister played billiards, and Seaman, with a touch which amazed every one, drew strange music from the yellow keys of the old-fashioned grand piano in the drawing room. Stephanie and her host made a slow progress through the hall and picture gallery. For some time their conversation was engaged solely with the objects to which Dominey drew his companion's attention. When they had passed out of possible hearing, however, of any of the other guests, Stephanie's fingers tightened upon her companion's arm.

"I wish to speak to you alone," she said calmly, "to one who is no longer Leopold. My name is no longer Leopold."

She laughed at him with a curious mixture of tenderness and bitterness. "My friend," she continued, "I am terrified to think, besides your name how much of humanity you have lost in your new identity. To proceed, it suited my convenience to remain for a few days in Berlin, and I was therefore compelled to present myself at Potsdam. There I received a great surprise. Wilhelm spoke to me of you, and thought, alas! my heart is still bruised, he helped me to understand."

"Is this wise?" he asked a little desperately.

She ignored his words.

"I was taken back into favour at Court," she went on. "For that I owe to you my thanks. Wilhelm was much impressed by your recent visit to him, and by the way in which you have established yourself here. He spoke also with warm commendation of your labours in Africa, which he seemed to appreciate all the more as you were sent there in exile. He asked me, Leopold," she added, dropping her voice a little, "if my feelings towards you remained unchanged."

Dominey's face remained unrelaxed. Persistently he refused the challenge of her eyes.

"I told him the truth," she proceeded. "I told him how it all began and how it must last with me to the end. We spoke over of the duel. I told him what both your seconds had explained to me—that turn of the wrist, Conrad's wild lunge, how he literally threw himself upon the point of your sword. Wilhelm understands and forgives, and he has set you this letter."

She drew a small grey envelope from her pocket. On the seal were the Imperial Hohenzollern arms. She passed it to him.

"Leopold," she whispered, "please read that."

He shook his head, although he accepted the letter with reluctant fingers.

"Leopold again," he muttered. "It is not for me."

"Read the superscription," she directed.

He obeyed her. It was addressed in a strange, straggling handwriting to Sir Everard Dominey, Baronet.

He broke the seal unwillingly and drew out the letter. It was dated barely a fortnight back. There was neither beginning nor end; just a couple of sentences scrawled across the thick notepaper:

"It is my will that you offer your hand in marriage to the Princess Stephanie of Eiderstrom. Your union shall be blessed by the Church and approved by my Court."

"Wilhelm," Dominey sat as a man enthralled with silence. She watched him.

"Not on your knees yet?" she asked, with faint but somewhat resentful irony. "Can it be, Leopold, that you have lost your love for me? You have changed so much and in so many ways. Has the love gone?"

Even to himself his voice sounded harsh and unnatural, his words instinct with the graceless cruelty of a clown.

"This is not practical," he declared. "Think! I am as I have been addressed here, and as I must remain for months to come—Everard Dominey, an Englishman and the owner of this house—the husband of Lady Dominey."

"Where is your reputed wife?" Stephanie demanded, frowning.

"In the nursing home where she has been for the last few months," he replied. "She has already practically recovered. She cannot remain a clown."

"You must insist upon it that she does."

"I ask you to consider the suspicions which would be excited by such a course," Dominey pleaded earnestly, "and further, can you explain to

she continued a little impatiently, "and in any case I am one of them. I claim your attention."

Dominey threw open the door of the library and turned on a couple of the electric lights. She made her way to the great open fireplace, on which a log was burning, looked down into the shadows of the room and back into her host's face.

"For one moment," she begged, "turn on all the lights. I wish to be sure that we are alone."

Dominey did as he was bidden. The furthest corners of the room, with its many wings of book-filled shelves, were illuminated. She nodded.

"Now turn them all out again except this one," she directed, "and wheel me up an easy-chair—No, I choose this settee. Please seat yourself by my side."

"Is this going to be serious?" he asked, with some slight disquietude. "Serious but wonderful," she murmured, lifting her eyes to his. "Will please listen to me Leopold?"

She was half curled up in the corner of the settee, her head resting slightly upon her long fingers, her brown eyes steadily fixed upon her companion. There was an atmosphere about her of serious yet tender things. Dominey's face seemed to fall into more rigid lines as he realized the appeal of her eyes.

"Leopold," she began, "I left this country a few weeks ago, feeling that you were a brute, determined never to see you again half inclined to expose you before I went as an impostor and a charlatan. Germany means little to me, and a patriotism which took no account of human obligations left me absolutely unresponsive. I meant to go home and never to return to London. My heart was bruised and I was very unhappy."

"You are speaking, Princess," he said calmly, "to one who is no longer Leopold. My name is no longer Leopold."

She laughed at him with a curious mixture of tenderness and bitterness. "My friend," she continued, "I am terrified to think, besides your name how much of humanity you have lost in your new identity. She looked at him wonderingly.

"You make difficulties? You sit there like the cold Englishman whose place you are taking, you whose tears have fallen before now upon my hand, whose lips—"

"You speak of one who is dead," Dominey interrupted, "dead until the coming of great events may bring him to life again. Until that time your lover must be dumb."

Then her anger blazed out. She spoke incoherently, passionately, dragged his face down to hers and clenched her fist the next moment as though she would have struck it. She broke down with a storm of tears.

"Not so hard—not so hard, Leopold," she implored. "Oh! yours is a great task, and you must carry it through to the end, but we have his permission—there can be found a way—we could be married secretly. At least your lips—your arms! My heart is starved, Leopold."

He rose to his feet. Her arms were still twined about his neck, her lips hungry for his kisses, her eyes shining up to his.

"Have pity on me, Stephanie," he begged. "Until our time has come there is dishonour even in a kiss. Wait for the day, the day you know of."

She unwound her arms and shivered slightly. Her hurt eyes regarded him wonderingly.

"Leopold," she faltered, "what has changed you like this? What has dried up all the passion in you? You are a different man. Let me look at you."

She caught him by the shoulders, dragged him underneath the electric globe and stood there, gazing into his face. The great log upon the hearth was spluttering and fizzing. Through the closed door came the faint wave of conversation and laughter from outside. Her breathing was uneven, her eyes were seeking to read the mask from his face.

"Can you have learned to care for any one else?" she muttered.

"There were no women in Africa. This Rosamond Dominey, your reputed wife—they tell me that she is beautiful, that you have been kindness itself to her, that her health has improved since your coming, that she adores you. You wouldn't dare—"

"No," he interrupted, "I should not dare."

"Then what are you looking at?" she demanded. "Tell me that!"

His eyes were following the shadowed picture which had passed out of the room. He saw once more the slight, girlish form, the love-seeking light in those pleading dark eyes, the tremulous lips, the whole sweet appeal for safety from a frightened child to him, the strong man. He felt the clinging touch of those soft fingers laid upon his, the sweetness of those marvellously awakened emotions, so cruelly and discreetly stifled through a cycle of years. The woman's passion by his side seemed suddenly tawdry and unreal, the seeking of her lips for his something horrible. His back was towards the door, and it was her cry of angry dismay which first apprised him of a welcome intruder. He swung around to find Seaman standing upon the threshold—Seaman to him a very angel of deliverance.

"I am indeed sorry to intrude, Sir, with a shade of genuine concern on Everard," the newcomer declared, his round, good-humoured face. "Something has happened which I thought you ought to know at once. Can you spare me a moment?"

The Princess swept past them with out a word of farewell or a backward glance. She had the carriage and the air of an insulted queen. A shade of deep trouble came into Seaman's face as he stepped respectfully on one side.

"What is it that has happened?" Dominey demanded.

"Lady Dominey has returned," was the quiet reply.

MONT JOLI IS DIVIDED HOUSE

Threat of Rural Wing to Break
Away From Township
Creates Panic

Quebec, Sept. 18.—A municipal imbroglio affecting the village of Mont Joli was taken under advisement for final settlement by the provincial Cabinet yesterday afternoon as a result of a conference held between the Mayor of that parish, Lt.-Col. Pinault, other officials of the same municipality and Mr. Oscar Morin, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Eighteen years ago the rural section in the vicinity of the then village of Mont Joli was annexed to that municipality. Two years ago permission was given by the Legislature to the village of Mont Joli to become a town but only after a referendum. The referendum was never held but since that time the residents of the rural section, which is inhabited by farmers and is known as the third range have insisted on separating their destinies from those of Mont Joli fearing that if the village became a town taxes would go up to meet new requirements. On the other hand the representatives of the village this afternoon claimed that it was in the interest of the municipality to retain its present limits and pointed out that if the third range was detached as sought by a group, the principal source of water power developed in that section of the province, which is exploited by the Lower St. Lawrence Power Company would be out of the limits of Mont Joli.

Of Interest to Women

Pointers on Keeping
The Male Wardrobe
In Order

Keeping the wardrobe of your menfolk in order is a woman's job and an economic point in the family budget. Many women won't agree with this statement, but the writer, who has cared for the wardrobes of father, husband and son, knows whereof she speaks.

Now, in caring for the clothing the suit should be well brushed, cuffs of trousers turned up and brushed, pockets brushed out, inside the collar sponged and the suit is ready for pressing. Trousers and vests are easily pressed at home. The coat, unless one is an expert, had better be sent to a nearby tailor shop. If a suit is to be laid away for a few weeks, have it well pressed before doing it up in moth paper or newspaper, as that kills the moth eggs that have been laid in the material when it hung exposed in the closet. Buttons should be tightened occasionally and repairing done very promptly. If the trousers seat wears thin it may be preserved by having the tailor put in a cambric "stay" that lengthens its life very perceptibly. Should an accident happen beyond home aids there are places where an expert weaver in a piece of cloth and it is almost impossible to tell where the work was done and the price is not excessive.

Shirts-to-day are so reasonable in price that it only pays to make the smallest repairs on them. The various shirt hospitals put in new back bands and cuffs very cheaply. The laundry is hard on shirts, so a large stock, used carefully in rotation, is the best remedy. A supply of socks kept carefully mended and piled so that they are to be used in rotation saves a lot of labor. Handkerchiefs should be in ample supply and kept carefully watched, for they are apt to be used carelessly and stained. Boiling and bleaching will keep them white.

Neckties are always a problem to keep neat. Careful pressing is a great help, but when the inner lining begins to twist it is best to open the tie and take it out, cut fresh one from the patterns and lay it right back in and this will give the tie a new lease on life.

Clothes hangers and shoe trees are a necessity for the well dressed man. Shoes should be slipped on trees when they are removed, then they cool and dry out naturally without losing their shape. Take care of the men's wardrobe and it will be a boost for the family budget.

Create Your Own Reference Library At Little Cost

Everyone has or should have a hobby. We are naturally anxious to own all the books possible on this subject in which we are so interested. Unfortunately, books cost money and many of us do not feel justified in spending money on what we or others may call a whim. Of course, the libraries are always stocked with books bearing on any subject, but we may be busy persons and night mail be the only time we have in which to consult the books. At night we are likely to meet with obstacles such as lack of time, great distances, bad weather, and social obligations to prevent trips to the library. So it is obvious that if we are to run our hobby to earth we must have our own reference library.

Did you ever realize the cost of news-gathering? Do you know what your Sunday and daily papers cost their makers? Without compunction the papers are thrown away with never a thought of making clippings and a scrap book of information. The paper is a thing of a day, the magazine is at hand the better part of a month. How few of us realize what valuable things we pass by with but a casual glance.

A long pair of shears and a discerning mind are all that are needed with which to clip understandingly. A jar of paste and a scrap book of convenient clip take care of the product. Once the habit is formed, it is astonishing what can be done. An hour now and then spent in looking over newspaper files in the library will show us which papers carry articles along the line of our own hobby. The same is true of magazines. We then have a series of publications to watch. Soon the material we want will begin to come to our attention. Large manila envelopes will do for a short time to house the clippings before they begin to assume scrap book proportions. Though we are quite convinced that the hobby is peculiarly our own, it is wonderful from how many different angles it may be seen by different writers. These views give us a better and stronger grip on our subject and give clippings great value for us.

The woman who is interested in interior decoration may not realize the hints on material, color, and design that can be obtained from the suggestions and put them in an envelope or scrap book now, else they will elude you and when you need them they will be gone. How to make a window, various information on china, glass and kitchenware, utensils and bric-a-brac—all these subjects you will find are covered in your clippings. Cleaning hints for everything in the home get away from us if we don't clip. No book in the world will ever

Harvesting and Canserving in the Home Gardens

Early fall days are busy days in the home garden. Many vegetables and fruits mature late, and sometimes the last things are the best of the whole season.

Choice apples are picked by hand and carefully placed in barrels, with some especially fine specimens placed on a soft quilt to mature for Thanksgiving festivities. Winter pears gathered just ahead of frost must be wrapped in paper and placed in a drawer or other dark place to ripen.

Green and ripe grape jelly should be made, then the choice grapes are picked or cut from the vines. The end of the stems of the grapes are dipped in hot sealing wax before they are packed in sawdust, no two bunches touching the others for fear of spoilage.

Later watermelons are often the sweetest of the season and the rinds are fine for sweet pickling. Large cucumbers—too large for any other use—are excellent in a curdy pickle or a sweet pickle. Of course, they are seeded for this use, as the seeds are apt to be large and rather hard. The modern housewife, looks ahead and cooks her pumpkin and squash and cans it for the first holiday pies, an excellent scheme and a time-saver when busy days come.

Many women who have quantities of parsley dry a certain amount, which is then powdered with dried sage, celery leaves, sweet marjoram, sweet celery leaves.

sweet basil and brook mint. Perhaps a little Summer savory is added and the powder tightly corked, is an invaluable addition to sauces, salads and stuffings for Winter use.

The fascination of red peppers is hard to resist. They usually color up beautifully just before frost, but not one need be lost. They may be put up in oil, may be stuffed and pickled in chow-chow form with the last cabbage or dried. Pepper sauce has been made early in the season in most places.

Late coxcomb flowers cut in the height of their beauty may be dried by hanging them upside down for a week or so, then placing them in vases or jars. These blossoms make most colorful Winter bouquets.

If you happened to plant some small, melon-shaped green squashes, this is the time to cut off the ends, remove the seeds and put them into a brine. When you need them you can freshen them up and stuff them as the Syrians do and they will prove very delicious. The late, large vegetables marrows sweet-pickle very successfully. A large box of transplanted parsley—and one of chives as well—in a sunny cellar window will last for cutting quite awhile if the cellar is not too warm.

Nasturtium seeds pickled are very tasty, and there is generally a good sized crop at the end of the season. The caraway is usually pickled and bunched for flavoring uses during the Winter, as it retains its flavoring qualities when dried.

The late garden gleaming is like preparing a house for a new tenant because immediately afterward leaves and rubbish are raked up and burned. Then spading and fertilizing of special beds is begun and bulbs for spring blooming are carefully tucked away.

contain such valuable things we have seen and lost. We must clip with discretion, though most of the stuff worth while is collected by writers, who know or go to reliable sources for their information.

TIRED OUT ALL THE TIME

Nerves Gave Little Rest
Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Harroworth, Ontario.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and could not get anything done. My nerves would bother me and I could not get to sleep. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and I felt wonderfully better. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to publish this good medicine. I read that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will serve to help others."

—Mrs. HAWORTH MILLER, R. R. No. 2, Harroworth, Ontario.

In a recent canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over 100,000 replies were received and 90 out of every 100 said they had been helped by its use. This medicine is for sale by all druggists.

Our European Trip

A Brief Account of our Pleasant Experiences with The Canadian Weekly Newspaper Party on our Trip Abroad
By H. B. ANSLOW

During our trip to Belgium we were shown many courtesies by the Belgian government, from its gracious monarch, down to its humblest railway guard. In return for such courtesies we as newspaper men feel that there is something we can print which can perhaps benefit both Canada and Belgium, with this in mind we are this week devoting our space to the following articles:

CANADIAN TRADE DEVELOPMENT

MENT IN BELGIUM

Canadian business men and others visiting Belgium will find the offices of the Canadian Government Trade Commissioners most centrally located in Brussels three minutes from the "Gare du Nord", with four windows overlooking the principal thoroughfare of Brussels, the offices are roomy, well furnished and present a business-like appearance. The building is one of the few modern office buildings in Brussels. The C. P. B. window has kindly been placed at the disposal of the Trade Commissioner from time to time and displays of Canadian goods are shown periodically and attract much attention. During the dark winter months a series of lighted transparencies showing Canadian scenic and industrial views are shown. Through a distributing agency here, the Department's films are given a wide circulation and have given rise to much favorable comment. Arrangements have now been completed to supply the Belgian press with a Canadian weekly news letter in French, and similar arrangements have been made in regard to mining news. So much for general propaganda, which forms the background for the more particular and intensive trade effort directed towards obtaining actual business for Canadian manufacturers and exporters.

This effort has two distinct fields, one in Canada and one in Belgium. The Belgian field work is aimed at interesting reliable Belgian firms in Canadian products and to this end a Register of Belgian firms interested in Canadian trade is maintained. Belgian prospects are urged to register with the office by the most effective means and the personal touch is not neglected. The Register even now has assumed important proportions. Firms on the Register are classified and kept informed regularly of offers of Canadian goods received at this office. Trade inquiries for definite goods are also solicited and last year a hundred and fifty trade enquiries were sent to Canada. In connection with such work seven hundred and seventy-eight interviews were also given by the Commissioner. The unstable condition of European exchanges and depreciated currency is offsetting the result of the spade work being done in this country, but given a European settlement and a stabilization of exchange, important trade result can be looked for.

At the present time, we may be said to be card indexing the country and when the time comes for a renewal of business, our offices in Belgium will be in a position to benefit by the careful study of the market now in progress. The field in Canada is also the object of a considerable effort. The idea of this effort is to stimulate the interest of our own exporters in export markets. This is done through trade reports on openings for Canadian goods here, sometimes published and sometimes sent direct to manufacturers. Eighty-seven of these reports were submitted by our Belgian office last year. To keep our importers in touch with the general situation, a monthly report is also published covering changes in the economic and import situation and giving advance information of the latest arrival of Canadian goods at Antwerp. Canadian exporters are also urged to register with the Department's Directory of Canadian exporters, and a unique directory in card index form giving details necessary for trade work, is maintained, up-to-date in the Belgian office as in all others. Canadian firms are also urged to keep their catalogues on file abroad and the Brussels office has a very excellent catalogue library representative of several hundred firms. The Trade Commissioner for Belgium was also brought home last winter and travelled across Canada.

where he delivered a dozen addresses and gave verbal reports on market conditions for special commodities to over one hundred firms. The comparison in the export interest in Canada visited six months ago and that visited five years ago is striking. Five years ago the interest was only awakening, on the other hand, after addressing a largely attended meeting of the Export Club in Toronto recently, the commissioner received a continuous file of manufacturers during the two remaining days of his stay in Toronto. Toronto was typical of other Canadian cities. In Vancouver, where the Board of Trade called a special request for the Commissioner to visit them, every moment was taken up with addresses and interviews.

It is in this fertile field that the efforts of our Department of Trade and Commerce are taking effect. Letters written from Ottawa to exporters urging them to supply the Trade Commissioners on the Firing Line with Ammunition, in the form of catalogues and C. I. F. prices, are at least having a cumulative effect and the Brussels office is kept hustling to reply to the increasing correspondence. When catalogues and prices prove interesting, the exporter is asked to submit samples which are placed in the Sample Room of the office and the trade invited to inspect them, with a view to securing a suitable firm to take up the line.

Experience in this field proves that the greatest prospects for a successful trade development work are present when the initiative comes from Canada, and when the manufacturer urges the commissioner to assist him, rather than when the reverse is necessary. We have now reached the happy stage where the Canadian manufacturer is seriously taking the initiative in pushing his own products abroad.

In spite of the great difficulties experienced in shipping manufactured goods to this market, certain results are even now being attained in Belgium. There is an important sale of Canadian made automobiles here: 194 came forward in nine months of 1923 $97,404 worth of agricultural implements also found a market here. Canadian typewriters are still on sale in Belgium. Canadian machine tools have not yet found a place here, but saws, axes, forks, hoes, etc., have done so. Canadian made rubber soled shoes find a market here worth about $30,000 annually. Canadian tires also have obtained an honourable place on the market and this is also true of our spiral packing. Another firm sells Canadian rubber gloves. Our wall paper sold here in 1921 but not since at higher exchange rates. Canadian made fibre board has established itself, but after disappearing from the market is again in evidence. A Canadian made toilet soap has also been successfully sold on this market.

To sum up, the market for Canadian manufactured goods is extremely limited and difficult for several reasons: The dollar at 22 francs instead of 5.18 makes our prices over four times higher. With our wholesale index at 1.53 multiplied by an exchange of 4.5, we have an increase in our pre-war prices of 6.9 or nearly seven times, whereas the Belgian wholesale index is 5.5. We are therefore in a more disadvantageous position than before the war when our exports of manufactured goods to Belgium were negligible. Then too fluctuations in exchange rendered business, to quote Lloyd George "Like playing billiards on an ocean liner". The cost of labour in Belgium is lower than in Canada by about 400%. Steel is also cheaper. Finally distance renders the conduct of business difficult. However, we can sell goods produced in large quantities where we get the economies in costs of large scale production, being specialties such as labour saving devices and household articles. In a general way, at present, we cannot do much with the franc worth less than seven cents. In the realm of raw materials, we can do better. We do a half-million dollar business in unmanufactured asbestos. We have done a good business in wood pulp, sometimes in lead and a new business has started in zinc concentrates. In lumber, there is a considerable purchase of Canadian Fir.

Food products, principally wheat, constitute the bulk of Canadian trade to Belgium. Nine months of 1923 show an import of $9,594,996 worth of wheat, $313,371 worth of oats, $167,769 worth of barley and $104,768 worth of rye. Our normal post-war sales of flour to this country average about $35,000, whereas cheese averages about $80,000. We have made periodic sales of butter depending on exchange and market conditions. Last year, an especially big shipment of unsalted butter was sold at a loss. We have also sold Canadian lamp exports here in the year worth $70,000, but this is also a spasmodic business. The canned Salmon market is however a steady one and ran last year to over one quarter of a million dollars. In canned lobsters, we did better than this in 1922, but the sale fell off to $60,000 in 1923. Being much dearer, exchange made lobster a very great luxury. Canned fruits have just been introduced and have scored an initial success.

The market for cattle is now dead: With the dollar over 18 francs, this business becomes impossible. There is said to be a market however for better quality horses. There is a steady but restricted market here for Canadian cured hams and Wiltshire sides. Some hay was shipped last winter, but the results were not very satisfactory. On the other hand, there is a steady demand for oilcake and tobacco. Other goods which we can sell here in small quantities are fresh and dried apples, honey, condensed milk and whiskey. The total exports of Canada to Belgium are dependent largely on the exports of grain.

The following figures give movement of our trade for the last three calendar years: Exports 1921, $13,756,372; 1922 $12,211,554; 1923 $13,328,248. Imports 1921, $4,047,740; 1922 $4,705,516; 1923, $5,446,064 while in 1920 our total exports to Belgium amount to $47,717,448. In that year Belgium's supplies of foods were almost completely exhausted as a result of the occupation by Germany, and the demand was quite abnormal. During 1923, Belgium was Canada's eighth best customer but bought mostly food products and raw materials.

Carnation Milk

"From Contented Cows"

From Canada's Fine Dairy Farms

Comes the rich, creamy milk you get in the Carnation red and white labeled can. It is tested rigidly for purity and richness, evaporated to double richness and kept safe by sterilization.

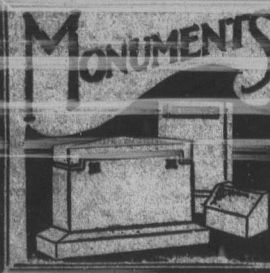

Open a can when you need it—you will always find it fresh and sweet. You will enjoy it in place of cream on cereal or fruit, and in coffee. For tea, use it diluted, one part Carnation, three parts water.

Add to Carnation a little more than an equal part of water and you have milk of natural consistency, for all milk uses. Carnation Milk is convenient and economical. Order from your grocer several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans.

The Carnation Recipe Book contains many a good recipe such as below. Write for a copy.

CREAM WHITE SAUCE (For Creaming Vegetables):
2 tablespoons flour, 1/4 cup Carnation Milk, 2 tablespoons butter or substitute, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup water.
Melt butter or butter substitute, add flour and stir until thoroughly mixed. Add the milk, diluted with water, and cook about five minutes, or until the mixture thickens, then add seasonings. This recipe makes one cup of White Sauce. All vegetables may be creamed. The vegetables should be cooked by either boiling or steaming. After cooking with salt, drain and add Cream Sauce.
