

CHIGNECTO POST AND BORDERER.

SACKVILLE, N. B., OCT. 11, 1883.

Iron Ship-Building in Canada.

The continual encroachments iron ships are making on the domain held by wooden ones and the consequent decline of the once prosperous ship-building trade in Canada, suggests the enquiry whether iron ships cannot be constructed as cheaply in this land of coal and iron as on the Clyde, and thus re-establish on a new and flourishing basis, a waning industry? The order by Messrs. Troop, of St. John, for an iron ship at the Clyde, reminds us that less than twenty years ago we sent ships there for sale, and now we are forced to purchase there. An iron ship-building company was organized last March by Ex-Commander Corring to build ships on the Delaware, U. S. The first ship, a large and superb one, the "T. F. Oakes," was launched a few days ago. The company is making a specialty of iron centre board schooners for coastwise trade, and are now building another ship, a steamer and a steam collier of 1,200 tons.

It may be urged that the building trade on the Clyde has arrived at such perfection that we cannot compete with them. This view of the case is by no means certain. The making of plates, rivets, beams, &c., is done by machinery and works as cheaply in one place as another. The raw material used in the iron—can be furnished at Picton, or at some Bay of Fundy port near Spring Hill, at prices not very disadvantageous. Highly skilled labor is to be had about as well paid in England as in this country, so that no natural impediment exists in the way of the creation of this new industry. The impression prevails that the shipping business in England is entirely free from any restrictions in the way of taxes. This is a mistake. Profits from ships are taxed six pence on the pound (income tax) which does not exist in this country. The Government of Canada could very materially promote the matter by a substantial subsidy, say a bonus of $25 per ton for the construction of the first iron vessel of 1,000 tons in Canada. This outlay on the part of the Government would be insignificant compared with the far-reaching results of the planting of this business here. Such a bonus would go towards purchasing the plant and machinery, and thereby give an impetus to the movement and create some great industry in the Maritime Provinces. Not only are iron ships required in the foreign trade, but a more economical and prompt method of handling the coal business of the country is required. This cannot be accomplished except by following the example taught by the experience of older countries and using iron colliers. Recently, Messrs. Dunsmuir & Duguid, owners of extensive mines in British Columbia, imported from England two large colliers for the transportation of coal from their mines in British Columbia to San Francisco, in which a very large business is done.

Chignecto Marine Railway.

This great undertaking seems at last to be in a fair way of being commenced. It is in the hands of a number of English capitalists, contractors and engineers, whose names alone are a guarantee of public faith in the work. Mr. Ketchum has been in Amherst endeavoring to arrange for the right of way. A line has been adopted and staked out, and as soon as the right of way is granted and the provisional contract, signed by Sir Charles Tupper, has been ratified by the Government and Parliament, the contractors will be prepared for actual work.

John Fowler, past President of Institute of Civil Engineers, Engineer of the Underground Railway, London; of the Egyptian Government Railway, and of the new bridge now being erected across the River Forth, and Mr. Benjamin Baker, member of the Council of Civil Engineers, are the acting engineers in England, and Mr. Ketchum, Mr. J. C. E., will be executive engineer in Canada. Messrs. James Perry & Co., of London, the eminent contractors, will take the contract for the railway and docks. These contractors are carrying out large railway contracts for the colony of Natal, South Africa; the Grand Southern Railway in Brazil; a Government railway in Venezuela, and are contractors for the North Sea Canal between Amsterdam and the Zuyder Zee. It is understood that Mr. Darnton Hutton, the engineer, who, it will be remembered, came out last year to examine the location, will be interested in the contract and probably have charge of the works here. Mr. Hutton, with a gang of men, has tested the strength of the line throughout the length of the line and instituted a series of borings to determine the quality of material of the proposed excavations. There will be heavy work; two rock cuttings each more than a mile in length, and between 30 and 40 ft. in depth, and 60 ft. wide, give an idea of the character of the work. The discovery of the rock formation by means of the borings, has caused the delay in the commencement of the work, which otherwise would have been entered upon this year. The line being virtually straight and practically level, the presence of this rock in such large quantities forms a serious obstacle, because of the greater cost and longer time required to complete the line. It is understood that the maximum vessel to be transported will be a steamer of about 150 tons register weight, cargo, and the hydraulic lifts and the docks are being designed to receive vessels of this tonnage. The ship lifts will have a stroke of 40 feet and the engine power will be sufficient to raise 1,250 tons in ten minutes, and the time required for transportation will not exceed two hours. Paddle-wheel steamers, such as the "Princess Royal," "St. Lawrence," &c., may ply between Charlottetown and St. John in fifteen hours, opening a new channel of trade where none at present exists, and obviating a dangerous Atlantic voyage around the whole coast of Nova Scotia.

Before the Contest.

A chaos of cross purposes and cross interests has developed itself in the present contest in Westmorland. Mr. Killam comes on the field, armed and panopied as the champion of the Local Government, and if the issue were raised as to confidence or no confidence in Mr. Blair's administration, the electors could readily divide on that, but Mr. Wells declines to take up the game of battle on behalf of the Local Opposition. On the other hand, Mr. Wells rides into the arena, waving the Liberal Conservative banner, and if Mr. Killam would accept the challenge, the electors would be invited to state their sentiments as to the policy of Sir John's Government. But Mr. Killam strenuously refuses to do duty for Mr. Blair. Hence no issue is joined either in Local or Dominion politics, and the coming election will touch no principle and no matter of public policy. This is truly unfortunate, because when the electors go to the polls it ought to go for some purpose and to decide something. If Mr. Wells is elected, it will decide nothing against the Local Government; if Mr. Killam is elected, nothing against the Dominion.

The public sentiment of this country having been, as we apprehend, overwhelmingly conservative and also favorable to giving a fair trial to Mr. Blair, we have been urging a moderate course, which would give Mr. Blair a supporter while giving no vote to the Conservative party. While the leaders on all sides seem to recognize this would be a most fair and equitable method of disposing of the contest, and only too happy to give it effect, yet by more unhappy conjunctions of cross purposes, they were not willing to give up at the same time. Mr. Killam was happy to compromise at the close and Mr. Wells at the start. The very fact that both were ready to give way to a third man, shows the absence of any political issue between them.

Our remarks refer to the logical position of Messrs. Wells and Killam, but the electorate will beyond question give the contest a very distinct Dominion coloring. Mr. Killam's leading friends and supporters are leading Liberals, and Mr. Wells are Conservatives. The rank and file of both parties will follow their leaders.

The Telegraph, of 6th inst., says the Post cannot quote a line from it to show "reckless partisanship" growing out of the late St. John election. On 23rd of August the Telegraph was perfectly satisfied as to the course of the Conservatives for it said: "The issue of to-day's election is simple; shall St. John sustain the Government? Nothing else is involved in it." On 3rd Sept., after the election the Telegraph suddenly turns on the Conservatives, asks "Was it a Liberal victory?" and then states "some of our Tory contemporaries are much afraid that some one may think their party suffered a crushing defeat and they have grown very earnest in their demands that Dominion and Local politics should be kept severely apart. Well, if they are so anxious it is a pity that they cannot persuade their friends in the constituency to think as they do," and much more to the same effect. It is this style of writing that developed the Sheldine Convention and rendered the efforts of the Post and other friends of the Local Government nugatory.

In a recent issue of the Post we contrasted our carelessness in regard to our forests with the great pains bestowed upon them on the continent of Europe. Since then the London Times, stimulated probably by our remarks, has published a full statement of the schools of forestry in Europe. From it we find that in addition to agricultural schools and colleges in which forestry is taught as part of the course, there are in Europe no less than thirty-one distinct schools of forestry, having from fourteen to twenty professors. "Great Britain alone," says the Times, "which needs more attention than any country in the preservation of what she has left, possesses no school whatever." On this side of the Atlantic the only place where forestry is taught is at the state Agricultural College, Lansing, Michigan.

Nomination Day at Dorchester.

The Sheriff opened the court at eleven o'clock, a. m., and read the writ for election, but very few were present, and the speeches of the nominees did not commence until two o'clock p. m. Meanwhile three nominations had been handed in. A. E. Killam was nominated by Amos Wilson, Moses O'Brien, P. J. Smith, and others.

W. W. Wells, nominated by S. C. Charters, Hon. P. A. Landry, Wm. Dobson, John Gunn, Denis Cormier and others.

The first speaker.

DR. R. T. GAUDET, thanked the electors in a few words for the honor which they had conferred upon him, but stated that he had no idea of contesting the election, and unless the other gentlemen nominated handed in their resignations, that evening, he would prepare and hand in his own.

After these speeches, HON. P. A. LANDRY, who was present, being repeatedly called on, rose and in a few well chosen remarks, thanked the electors for the way in which they had supported him during his connection with this county, and assured them that he would accept of the resignation of the electors, and would retire in favor of a French Canadian Candidate, if Mr. Killam would also do so. Nothing definite was agreed on.

The Telegraph states that early in the day the friends of Mr. Killam received a copy of the resignation of Mr. Killam, dated at Wilbur's Hotel, Dorchester, on Saturday evening last, at which Mr. Killam placed his resignation in the hands of the committee in favor of Dr. Gaudet, providing Mr. Wells did the same.

County Council Election.

County Council election takes place on 30th inst. The public will learn with regret that Warden Campbell, who has faithfully served the people for four terms will decline a re-nomination. It is to be regretted that the Warden did not see his way clear to have remained in another year, to assist in closing up the county grounds, a lease which were so well commenced last winter—over $1,700 worth of lands have been sold, yielding upwards of $100 per acre, and the rate on this portion being about $18 per year only! From this sale it appears the county has been a loser to an extent of $80 per annum. Sackville representatives have always taken a leading and foremost part in the County Council affairs and it is highly desirable that it should not less the position it has hitherto occupied since the inauguration of the Council, by the election of any, but a first class man.

We understand that the amount of the award in the Exchequer Court, McLean, Roger & Co., against the Queen, is $63,781—Ottawa Citizen.

The facts being that the Tory government at Ottawa failed to do its duty in some cases at double rates, certain printing which was by law required to be sent to the above firm, a representative of the paper that such sums paid to Mr. Anglin. This "farming out" business, at which our Moncton contemporary is so indignant, was done its own friends.

Personal and Political.

The rumor regarding the Pope's sickness is a farewell ball will be given to Lord Lorne and the Princess Louise at Quebec, on Thursday, 18th inst. —Mr. George E. McLaughlin, C. E., of the Department of Public Works, of St. John, died in that city on Sunday.

It is said that Mr. A. J. Clarke, of St. Stephen, is likely to succeed the late Mr. Main in the proprietorship of the Courser.

H. M. S. "Griffin" is in Charlottetown. Her captain, Commander Davies, is a brother of Mr. Davies, M. P., Charlottetown.

Hon. Messrs. Pipes and Fielding, and C. A. Scott, manager of the Nova Scotia railways, are in Ottawa on railway business.

Mr. Langtry, called for New York Saturday in the new Gun steam "Oregon." Mrs. Langtry will be accompanied on her tour by her mother, Mrs. Le Breton.

Rev. Dr. Sprague, of the Fredericton Methodist Church, has so far recovered in health that he is expected to sail from England for home on October 20th.

The many friends of Mr. W. M. Tweedie, Gilchrist scholar for 1882, will be glad to hear that at the London University honor examination in English Literature, he was one of three in the first division.

Lord Meljord, Private Secretary to the new Governor-General, arrived at Ottawa on Monday. Lord Lansdowne is expected to arrive at Quebec on the 20th inst., the same day that the Marquis of Lorne sails for England.

His Excellency and Her Royal Highness will probably take their final departure from Ottawa about the 14th of October. They will pay a farewell visit to Montreal and then leave Ottawa. They will proceed thence to Quebec, and sail for England after Lord Lansdowne arrives.

An Ottawa despatch says: "It is understood that Dr. Grant, who has been the personal medical adviser of Princess Louise during her sojourn in Canada, will be knighted before the departure of the Princess for England."

The New York World of Monday last contained a list of the millionaires of New York. They number over 300, included in the list are two Canadians. One of these is Sir Rodolph Cameron, well known as the head of the firm of Messrs. R. W. Cameron & Co., who was knighted for his success in building up a great trade between America and Australia. The other Canadian is Erasmus Wiman, a native of Toronto, who commenced life as a printer on the magnificent sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents per week!

Today he is at the head of a great agency business extending over a continent, the chief spirit in a vast web of telegraphic communication, and though among the millionaires of the metropolis, has not failed to do a good work for his native city in the free baths which he has presented to the citizens.

On Monday evening, Mr. Wells held a political meeting at Midgic. He held the well attended meeting at Wilbur's Hotel, Dorchester. His address was followed by one from Mr. H. A. Powell. "Squire D. Wheaton presided. On Tuesday evening he addressed the electors at McGibb's Corner, Memramouc.

Odds and Ends.

—The women who do fancy work don't fancy work.

—A Cincinnati woman testified that her husband got so full of liquor that he had to gasp for breath. A demoralizing case of tight pants.

—A wife is called a better half because a man had better half her than not half her. P. S. If you don't get on to this at first you may do so afterward.

—"No," said a Philadelphia bride, "I am not willing that our wedding tour should include the Yellowstone Park. Yellow don't agree with my complexion."

—A young woman in Erie has married her brother's wife's father. By this arrangement she becomes her brother's mother-in-law, and thus the young man has only one boss instead of two.

—"Well," remarked a young M. D., just from college, "I suppose the next thing will be to hunt for a good location, and wait for some thing to do, like 'Patience on a Monument.'" "Yes," said a bystander, "and it won't be long after you do begin before the monument will be on the patients."

—At a railway station lately an elderly Irish woman, who had arrived on a train after a long journey, started, set off to run after it. She, of course, soon came to a halt, when she began to abuse the uncommensurate engine, adding with a "nate" brogue: "Faugh! the great black ugly lump! When she gets as old as she won't run so quick!"

—"Deacon," said the widow, as she sat in a room, in a folio manner, the malice tabby that evidently lay in her for that purpose, "don't you long for spring, with its balmy breath, its warm sunshine and its gentle showers, which awakens nature, and puts life into everything that has laid cold and dead during the long winter, and brings everything up out of the cold, cold ground into light and life?" "Well hardly, widow," responded the old deacon, "you know I buried my second wife last fall."

Papa's Blessing.

"I have asked Wynn to come out this evening to talk over a little business, Dora. If he should arrive before I get here, you must see to him until I come. Be kind and polite to him, my dear. He is really a well-meaning and unassuming fellow, and the most useful book-keeper I have ever had. He has seemed a little out of sorts lately, and I am sure would be most grateful for any little attention from you."

This, Richard Blair, the rich tea merchant, had said to his daughter in the morning, on leaving his pretty villa for the city, with an amount of pompous condescension which clearly manifested his sentiments with regard to book-keepers and their kind.

Dora was an obedient daughter, as her reception of her father's guest that evening plainly showed; but certainly the worthy tea merchant had found abundant cause to retract his opinion as to the character of his modest unassuming guest's modest unassuming character if he had been a witness of his demeanor on that occasion; for no sooner had the door closed upon the servant who ushered him into the presence of the young mistress than—totally unobserved and unobserving—he took the young girl into his arms, only releasing her after leaving upon her ripe red lips at least half a dozen warm kisses.

Dora, not appearing in the least surprised or disconcerted at this greeting, bore unflinchingly the situation for fully two minutes before she blushing drew back and endeavored to bring into something like order her soft brown hair, which, with the dainty ruffles at her throat, had become somewhat disarranged by the welcome she had so obediently given her father's guest.

"It is a long time since I have seen you, Harry," she remarked, with a bewildering glance from beneath the thick lashes shading the large gray eyes.

"I should think so, indeed—quite an age!" responded the book-keeper, dimly. "I managed to get away half an hour before the time your father told me he should be at home, hoping to see you alone; but he'll be sure to turn up before he's expected—it's just my luck!"

"Harry, do you know why my father has sent for you to-night?" "I haven't an idea, excepting that it's something about the branch of the business in Hong-kong."

"Can enlighten you a little, then, though I hardly think you will be as pleased as my father seems to expect. One of the men in the house out there has just died; he had rather a responsible position, I believe, and papa wants to send you out to take his place."

"As if anything could induce me to leave you, Dora!" cried the young man. "Why, the separation would probably be for years!"

"I am afraid you must go, Harry," was the girl's rather sorrowful response. "You know my father; your refusal to obey his wishes would probably make something very like an enemy of him, and render matters between us even more hopeless than they are at present."

"Dora, I must speak to your father!" cried the young man, excitedly. "When he finds that his daughter's happiness is involved, he can't be heartless enough to refuse our united prayers. He seems to feel rather kindly toward me. Anything would be better than this uncertainty!"

"No, dear Harry. Believe me, it would only be exchanging uncertainty for positive resignation of all our hopes. I know my father well, and it is useless to make a LARGE REDUCTION in our stock during the present Season, and will therefore be OFFERING

Estate Notice.

M. S. EDGAR WILSON is authorized to settle accounts of the Estate of the late William Wilson, Esq., M. D., and receive moneys due the Estate.

ELLEN HICKMAN,
Administratrix.

Dorchester, Feb 17, 1883.

"But, sir," began Wynn, in desperation.

"Oh, no thanks! I know you appreciate it and all that, of course, but you shall be satisfied with you. Could you be ready to go next month?"

"I will think it over, sir. I suppose it is not necessary to give you my answer for a day or two?"

"No, certainly not," replied the merchant, little surprised at Wynn's way of receiving such a piece of good fortune.

Then followed an announcement which, for an instant, caused the book-keeper to turn hot and cold with lightning rapidity.

"Perhaps you will be interested in a piece of family news which has given me the greatest satisfaction, Wynn. My daughter is to be married."

"Impossible! I mean, sir, I had heard nothing of it," stammered poor Wynn.

"Eh?" exclaimed the merchant, staring at his companion in astonishment. "No, I suppose not. The fact of the matter is, Miss Blair doesn't know it herself yet; but she will, of course, as he is pleased to be."

The letter only came today from an old friend of mine who has made millions—millions, my boy—in sugar, and writes, proposing a marriage between his only son and my daughter. The young man has been in Hong-kong, and he is quite smitten with the little puss. He is coming to us on visit next week. Now, haven't I cause for rejoicing to-day, Wynn?"

"Pray accept my congratulations, sir," replied the book-keeper ingratiatingly.

"By the way, Wynn," the merchant on, after a moment's pause, devoted to golden anticipations, "it has struck me that you have been rather down in the mouth lately, and I am glad to hear that you are out of health."

"Oh, no, sir, thank you—not at all!" responded the young man, hurriedly, rather disconcerted by the unusual solicitude in his behalf.

The delight with which the merchant had that day heard of the success of his business scheme, likely to make an important addition to the banking account of the firm, and especially anticipations of the brilliant marriage to be made by his daughter, had filled his heart with a sense of comfortable condescension benevolence and good will to all the world, which descended even to affairs of so unimportant a personage as his book-keeper.

"Have you had any bad news?" "No, sir."

"Then you are in debt. Don't be afraid to tell me the truth, Wynn. I feel quite a fatherly interest in you, I assure you, and I might do something to help you. I shouldn't at all mind advancing you a £100 or so."

"I thank you most gratefully, Mr. Blair; but I have no doubt, you are afraid to tell me the truth, Wynn. I feel quite a fatherly interest in you, I assure you, and I might do something to help you. I shouldn't at all mind advancing you a £100 or so."

"There I have it at last! Come, out with it, young man, what's the trouble? Won't she have you?"

"I am afraid it wouldn't do to mention her name," said poor Wynn, looking wildly about for some means of escape.

"Well, do I know the father?" "Yes, sir."

The merchant reflected for a moment, then brought his fist down upon the table with a vehemence which made the wine glasses rattle.

"I have it now," he cried, "you've been fairly cold. You needn't say 'yes' or 'no,' nor commit yourself in any way. I'm old Brook's daughter, I've seen you twice with the young woman lately. Old Brooks got the better of me in a business transaction the other day, and I'd like to be even with him. Any way, who the girl is, I'm disposed to help you."

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure. The symptoms are, itching, pain, swelling, and sometimes bleeding, particularly at night, when some sharp pain is sometimes felt. If allowed to continue, very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also, Swayne's Ointment, Sold by Swayne & Sons, 10, Pall Mall, London, W. Sold by all druggists.

—Mrs. Partington declared the Neuralgia to be worse than the old Rheumatism; but, however bad either may be, Burdock Blood Bitters will conquer it. It also makes pure blood, regulating the Liver, Kidneys, and bowels, and eradicating scrofulous humor from the system. 25,000 bottles sold in the last three months.

—True merit brings its own reward, in the case of Burdock Blood Bitters it is rapidly bringing its reward in its increased sales, as a prominent Druggist recently said: "It now sells on its merits." It is the grand specific for diseases of Blood, and 25,000 bottles have been sold, during the last three months.

—"The things we call women are," according to Mrs. Swayne, of Chicago, "simply small packages of aches and pains done up in velvet and lace and topped off with ostrich plumes."

—J. E. Kennedy, dispensing chemist, Coburg, says that no blood purifier that he has tried has had such a large sale as Burdock Blood Bitters, and adds, "in no case have I heard a customer say that he would of highest praise for its medicinal qualities."

—It is a fact that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has more well earned testimonials of praise for its virtues in curing Cholera, Colic, Cholera Infantum, Dysentery, &c., than all other remedies of that class combined. It will stand investigation.

Hating People.

Hate not. It is not worth while. Your life is not long enough to make it pay to cherish ill-will or thoughts against any one. What if that man has cheated you or that woman played you false? What if this friend has forsaken you in the time of need, or that one having won your utmost confidence, your warmest love, has concluded that she prefers to consider and treat you as a stranger? Let it all pass. What difference will it make to you in a few years, when you go hence to the undiscovered country? All who treat you wrong now will be more sorry for it then, even in your deepest disappointment and grief, can be. A few more smiles, a few more tears, some pleasure, much pain, a little longer hurrying and worrying in the world, some hasty greetings, and abrupt farewells, and life will be over, and the injured and injured will be laid away and are long forgotten. Is it worth while to hate each other?

—Mr. W. J. Guppy, of Newbury, informs us that he has used Burdock Blood Bitters in his family with good effect, and adds that the Rev. J. R. Smith has used it and speaks of it in high terms of praise. It is the great system-cleansing tonic that cures all diseases of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys, acting harmoniously with Nature's laws. 25,000 bottles sold during the last three months.

—There is no remedy known to medical science that is more positive in its effect, than Cholema Morbus, Colic, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Cholera Infantum, and all Bowel Complaints than Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

—If you are a frequenter or a resident of a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all new countries—ague, biliousness, intermittent fevers—by the use of Hop Bitters.
