From Arthur's Ladies Magazine. THE SEWING SOCIETY. BY MISS HARRIET KING.

There's a ring at the bell, I do believe!— exclaimed Priscilla Longley to her sister, as they sat at work, one November morning.
So it is. How provoking. Who in the world can it be so early? How very disagreeable it is, to be only to afford one fire, we are sure to be disturbed here.
By this time the unwelcome visitor was admitted, and before another minute, a neat dark bonnet appeared at the parlor door.
Good morning, Sally, said Priscilla, jumping up and letting her work fall on the floor.
Good morning! Come in, do. You must take us as you find us all in confusion.
How are you, Priscilla? how are you Emeline? and giving each proffered hand a vigorous shake. Miss Sally Thompson took a seat near the fire.
I hope I don't disturb you.
Oh no! We are only at our sewing.
What are you making?
I am turning my old cloak. Ma will not let me have a new one, this winter, and I am trying to fix this one up. I think, with a little fur round it, it will be quite smart. As to Emeline there, she is covering a bonnet see! is it not pretty?
Yes, very. Oh, they wear such gay things now.
Too gay, entirely. Did you see Sarah Lewis in church, last Sunday? Really!— such a hat as she had on, orange and blue, and red, and green. I saw Mr. Allen's eyes fixed on her several times, whilst he recited prayers. I actually felt ashamed of her.
By the way, do you know Mr. Allen?
No, we don't. I wish we did, he is very handsome.
Yes, indeed; we are very fortunate in being able to get him for our church. He had called to the East, West and South, he told Pa, Pa called on him when he first came here, it was but civil, you know. He returned the visit last Thursday week, and I can assure you he is a great deal handsomer in a room, than in the pulpit. His eyes are not blue at all, but a lovely hazel.
Oh, I wish we knew him. We live so very retired, and see so little company.
But I am forgetting what I came for; it is to ask you to come and join our sewing society in the vestry room. We meet there every Friday and sew for the poor. Really, it is very pleasant. There are fourteen of us now, and the elder members say that is not half enough. Do join, would you?
I should like to, very much, would not you Emeline?
No, replied Emeline, I cannot say that I would.
Oh, you foolish thing! why not?
She does not know how pleasant it is—Why child, you will hear more news there, than at any place in the town.
That is the very reason why I should decline going. I once heard a sensible and truly pious old lady remark, that every young woman had an obligation to sew for the poor, but that the experience of many years had taught her that this duty could be as well performed, and even better, at her own home, than in a vestry room. I myself, have never attended any of these meetings, but from all that I gather, I think there is more news stirring than industry. Is it not so?
I wonder you can talk so, Emeline! Why it is really delightful, and they say Mr. Allen intends to visit the Society, once a month of their sitting.
Does he? How pleasant! I really want to see him close. Does he always wear that ring on his finger?
I think he does; but you will join us, will you not, even if Emeline is so silly?
Yes, I will, indeed, returned Priscilla, with animation.
Put on your bonnet, then, and come with me. I am going round to two or three houses, to get the girls to join.
Priscilla got ready, and the two friends set off in haste.
Let us stop here at Seldon's, said Sarah Thompson. I think Ellen will join. She'll make a pleasant member; she's so talka-tive.
Ellen Seldon soon promised to be in the vestry room, at half past ten, the next Friday, and Sarah Thompson enlarged upon the pleasures she was to expect.
Mrs. Elton will be there, next week; she is very entertaining. She was a maids maker before she was married you know and used to go out to work by the day; and, of course she saw a good deal. She knows all the particulars of Mrs. John Smith's case, the one who was separated from her husband three years ago.
I remember, yes.
She says she was there one day sewing, and Mrs. Smith did nothing but cry.
I should like to see somebody who knew all about them. One hears such different stories. I want very much to know whether it was her family that disapproved of the match, in the first instance, or his.

His I believe; but I will ask Mrs. Elton, and I know she will tell you all about it, for she was Mrs. Smith's intimate friend at the time.
And will she speak of it to any one?
Oh, yes, replied Sarah, to any one at all.
But you have agreed to join us; have you not?
Yes, I think so, I think from your account it must be a pleasant place.
I know nothing about it except what Sarah has been telling me.
Oh! said Sarah, you will soon both know as much as you please about our proceedings we do a great amount of work. By the way did you know that Emily King's step-mother treats her very badly?
No; I did not.
Nor I.
Oh, yes. Jane Foster was telling us about them last Friday. They live next door you know, and some of Mrs. King's goings on, she says, are really awful!
Come Sarah, said Priscilla, we are staying here too long, if we are to go any where else.
So we are! I forgot. Who is there Ellen, in this neighborhood, that would be likely to join?
Let me see; there is Miss Simpson on the other side of the way, a very active person in Bible Societies and Sunday Schools; suppose you go over there.
So over to Miss Simpson's Priscilla Longley and Sarah Thompson went. Being ushered into the parlor they found Mrs. Simpson a very old lady, sitting entirely alone. She was so infirm as to be unable to rise to meet them.
My daughter is out, young ladies, but rit down, if you please. She may be soon, or she may not. I cannot tell. She went out before I was up, to attend a Sunday School meeting, I believe, and I have been very lonely; but so it is now, young people are always at their societies, and the old and helpless are left alone. They say it is religion; well, may be it is—in that case I ought not to complain; but my dear young people, it does seem hard to me; after having brought up my daughter, that her duties should every day call her away from me.
But do you disapprove of these societies, madam? asked Priscilla.
Not entirely so; but, moderation in all things is a good rule. God has said that the poor shall never pass from the face of the earth. But our duties to the poor are not our only duties. Now, as to these sewing societies, let me tell you that if every one of you instead of going with your thimble and scissors, to a meeting for the purpose of sewing for the poor, would do the same amount of work at home, it would be much better.
My daughter is scarcely ever at home with me, and if I say anything the answer is, 'The business of the Society must be attended to.'
At this moment Miss Simpson entered.
I am only come for a minute, mother!—
How are you young ladies! and sitting uneasily down, she panted as if it were July.
After a few minutes general conversation, our young ladies entered upon the object of their visit.
Oh yes to be sure, replied Miss Simpson, I shall be delighted to attend, although I have my hands full already. Friday at ten o'clock
I am glad it is not Saturday, for the Sabbath School teachers meet then. You may expect me, though I shall be there. Does Mr.
Allen intend visiting the society at their work?
It is said he does, and Sarah and Priscilla rose to go. Miss Simpson accompanied them a part of their way, and then left them, to attend a meeting having for its objects a mission to the South Sea Islands.
Punctually at half past ten, on the next Friday, the ladies met in the vestry room of — Church. The following is a summary of all that was done:— Fifteen coarse muslin garments cut out, and five ladies at the other end of the town discovered to be very extravagant and careless housekeepers—one of them actually dirty These facts were proved beyond a doubt by the repetition of conversations held with servants, who had lived in their families.
Eight night caps finished, all but the strings, and a gentleman set down as positively meaning nothing at all by his attentions to Miss Patton poor thing! who was so delighted with him, she could not keep it to herself.
The question of woolen or cotton stockings was then entered upon with great vehemence, together with the probability of Mr.
Allen's choosing a wife out of his own congregation.
An account was given by the visiting department, of the state of destitution existing among a number of families, in the suburbs, and a recital made of the great anxiety occasioned to old Mrs. Lee, by the conduct of her sons, one lady hinting, that, to her certain knowledge, the married one was no better than the rest, as his unfortunate wife was a perfect slave to him.
Eleven yards of hemming done, during which numerous anecdotes were repeated, tending to demonstrate the meanness of Mrs.

H.'s dress, the stupidity of Mrs. B.'s husband, the wretched complexion of the whole R. family, and Miss S.'s miserable voice; Miss V.'s cloak was judged not to be in good taste, and Mrs. A.'s coat to have now seen seven winters, which was deemed extraordinary, considering the high rent she paid, and the expense she was at in educating her children, actually putting them to one of the best schools in the place.
Oh! Emeline, said Priscilla Longley to her sister, upon her return home, how mistaken you were in not joining us this morning. We really had a very pleasant time.
I am glad to hear you were pleased.
It is very well for you to look so grave, and to profess to disapprove; it is an excellent excuse for lazy people, who prefer staying at home and doing nothing.
I am not lazy, Priscilla. Because I do not sew at the society, it does not follow that I must do nothing at all for the poor, does it?
But will you?
To be sure I will. You know mother is in the habit of making up a great deal of clothing every fall, for several families, with whom she has long been acquainted. I am going to assist her, in this, and have already put by a portion of my allowance for the purpose.
During the day, Priscilla could not resist the temptation of repeating some of the amusing anecdotes, related in the morning, until checked by Emeline, asking—Did you hear all that, at the society?
Shortly after, Mr. Allen called upon every family in his congregation. But contrary to the expectations of the sewing society, he never visited them at their weekly meeting—this somewhat decreased the ardor of the members.
A few weeks after the events we have described, Miss Simpson called upon the Long-leys to state that a meeting had been held in the Sunday school room for the consideration of a proposition made by her, namely, that the members of the sewing societies should assemble, not at the house of the cler-gyman, because he was a bachelor, but at that of one of the members, for the purpose of making him a new gown, an attentive observer in the front pew having detected several thread-bare places in the one now worn by him.
I would like, says Miss Simpson, to have at our house, but mother would not hear of it—old people are so strange. She said she had no objection if the gown were really wanted, to pay for the making of it, but that she would not have the meeting held at her house.
I think your mother is perfectly right, said Emeline. Would it not be much better to give this piece of work to some poor woman, and pay her for it?
Oh, no, we cannot afford that: there are so many calls upon the society, already.
Come, Priscilla say, shall we hold our meeting here.
I should be very glad, but I do not know what mother will say; I will go up and ask her.
Mrs. Longley yielded to her daughter's entreaties, and the meeting was held at her house, the next day. Thirteen young ladies with thimbles and scissors, made their appearance, and the work went on fast; so did the conversation, the subject of which was Mr. Allen.
Some wondered why in the world he was never seen to pay attentions to any body; others were afraid he never would, and all agreed the coveted post was a very desirable one.
When the labour was nearly completed, a messenger came in haste to notify Miss Simpson that her aged mother had been seized when alone, with a sudden and violent illness, and her death was hourly expected.
The gown was presented to Mr. Allen, with becoming grace, and received with thanks, deemed by some of the donors inadequately to the occasion; and fears were entertained that he thought the ladies' activity not sufficiently active. Preparations for a fair were immediately set on foot for the benefit of western missions. It was thought, from the amount of work to be done, that it could not be held before six weeks. Great was the search for ribbons, silk and velvet, gold thread, etc.
Will not you help us, Emeline? asked Priscilla. See how much there is for us to do. I, myself, have ten workbaskets to trim this week. Look! this is the way I do them.
I really do not think I shall have time. I have a great deal to do, just now, for poor Mrs. Reeves, and her seven little children; they cannot wait much longer for their winter clothing.
You are always so disobliging, it is too bad. I wonder what in the world, Mr. Allen would say, if he knew that when all the congregation are so industrious, you alone refuse to take the smallest part in the proceedings.

I cannot help it, Priscilla; if the missions need money, I shall, of course consider it a duty to devote a part of my allowance to them, but I cannot find time to make kettle holders, and knit bags for the fair.
As you please, but you do not know how much pleasure you miss. One gets so interested in every separate article, and so anxious for every thing to sell well.
For the next six weeks, more than twenty young ladies spent every moment of their time in working for the fair. We do not mean to say, that, during the space of more than a month, they never slept, ate, or drank, but that this was the business of their lives, to which every other duty was sacrificed.
On Sundays hands and eyes rested, but not tongues—coming home from church what was talked of but the fair? Miss Simpson's mother died in a few days after her attack, so that this indefatigable young lady was precluded from a share in the preparations, precluded even from being a buyer.
At last, the important day, came. The Sunday school room was hung with evergreens, and tables covered with varieties of pretty things, useful and ornamental, were arranged in two lines. A confectioner sent a large cake, and everything was in a state of readiness. By eleven o'clock the ladies took their stands behind their respective tables, and awaited the approach of customers.
Customers came in crowds—bought a great many things they did not want, for which they paid enormous prices, having neither the satisfaction of getting their money's worth, nor the pleasure of giving.
Mr. Allen had promised to come to the fair, and more than one lady shopwoman for the day watched the door with anxiety, hoping to fix him permanently on this occasion.
But twelve, one, two, and three o'clock passed, and Mr. Allen did not make his appearance.
Where can he be? asked Miss Mason of Priscilla Longley.
Where in the world? I wonder.
He certainly said he would be here.
So he did, what can have happened to keep him away? said another.
It is really very surprising! Can he be paying a visit of condolence to Miss Simpson?
Perhaps he is. Is not Miss Simpson older than he?
Five years at least.
He could not have such bad taste.
He may—who knows!
At this moment Mr. Allen came in, and passing up one line of tables and down another, spoke a few words to every lady, and then went away in a very short time. It was remarked by the ladies as they left the scene of their labours, just before night, that Mr.
Allen appeared suddenly, and joining Priscilla Longley, walked home with her.
Have you heard the new engagement, asked Miss Simpson of two or three female friends, who paid her a visit in a darkened chamber, a few days after the fair.
No, said they.
Mr. Allen, to be sure!
Mr. Allen! screamed the visitors.
Yes, Mr. Allen. I wonder you have not heard it.
To whom?
To Emeline Longley.
It is impossible. I don't believe he knows her to speak to.
Perhaps you mean Priscilla. He walked home with her from the fair.
I mean Emeline. I had it from her own mother who was here this morning.
Emeline Longley! it is very extraordinary.
She that never came to the Societies, nor stirred a step in any charitable matter!
That would not sew a stitch for the fair, nor even come there to buy any thing.
No other.
Come, said one visitor, rising to go, come,
I have several visits to make this morning.
Emeline Longley!—Well, I do declare!

tub or barrel with rock salt, and on it place a layer of meat, and so on till the tub is filled. Use the salt liberally, and fill the barrel with strong brine, boiled and skimmed, and then cooled.
AMUSEMENTS FOR FARMER'S BOYS.—Being lately at the residence of one of our most intelligent farmers, our attention was attracted to the door of a small room in an out-building, which was labelled, "— office." On enquiry, we learned that this was a room given up to the boys. Entering, we found it fitted up with miniature implements of husbandry, seeds of different kinds, a few plants, and branches of evergreen; the walls decorated with portraits of celebrated horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry; while on some shelves, were some geological specimens, and several juvenile books, of character calculated to inspire a taste for rural life, and at the same time, to teach correct modes of husbandry, horticulture, &c., the whole arrangement in agreeable order. It struck us as an excellent plan, and we would suggest its general adoption.
It furnishes the means of both amusement and instruction. How infinitely better it is to allow boys an opportunity of spending a part of their time, in thus cultivating a taste for the investigation of those subjects, by which their knowledge of nature and the world around them is increased, than in mixing with rude company, and becoming contaminated with their vices.
POETRY.
The Editor of the British Critic says that the following Prayer was written by one of the most distinguished authors now living, for the use of his own little daughter. Its beautiful simplicity will recommend it at once to every parent:—
Ere on my bed my limbs I lay,
God grant me grace my Prayers to say;
O God preserve my Mother dear,
In health and strength for many a year.
And oh, preserve my father too,
That I may best my thoughts employ.
To be my parents hope and joy.
O likewise keep my brother's both
From evil doings and from sloth;
And may we always love each other,
Our friends, our father and our mother,
And still, O Lord, to me impart
An innocent and grateful heart.
Till after my sleep, I may Awake to thy eternal day.
None Dust on Pasture Lands.—There is, perhaps no county in England where the pasture lands (particularly the poorer soils) have been so much improved during the last ten or twelve years, as in Cheshire; and this principally by the application of what is termed bone dust. This extraordinary manure has a peculiar effect upon the poor clay land pastures, for, on the application of boiled bones, a sudden change takes place in the appearance of the fields, and instead of the coriander leaved or pink grass, which so much abounds on this kind of land, a luxuriant herb presents itself, consisting of red and white clover, trefoil and other grasses, of which the cattle are so fond, that they eat up almost every thing before them; even thistles and rushes are very much eaten off by the stock after the pastures have been bone dusted.—Correspondent English Agricultural Society.
Effectual Method of Preserving Furs from the Ravages of Moths.—Wash the fur on both sides with a mixture of twelve grains of corrosive sublimate dissolved in half-a-pint of spirits of wine. To make it dissolve more readily corrosive sublimate should be reduced to powder in a marble mortar. If moths have harbored in the lining wool of muffs, it must be replaced by new wool that has been well saturated with the above preparation.
The mixture is colorless, and will not injure the most delicate furs, feathers or woollen articles of any kind.—Mark Lane Express.
French Savoury Sauce.—To 4 lbs. of veal fat, from the kidneys, cut small, add 1 1/2 lbs. of ham 1/2 lb. rasped bacon, 5 or 6 chopped carrots, 8 small onions, a large bunch of parsley, 3 cloves, 2 bay leaves, some thyme basil, made, 3 lemons, (sliced without peel or seed) and 1 lb butter; boil them in a weak broth, skin, simmer for five or six hours, strain and keep the liquor for use.
For Tetters and Itchworms.—Procure the roots of the yellow or narrow leaf dock, bruise them and soak them in good apple vinegar, and rub the tetters or itchworm three times, till the cure is effected. This is a certain remedy, except where the nails of the fingers are also ited.
Another.—Bruised mullein leaves and vinegar constitute an excellent remedy. It is said to be a sure restorative of the hair, particularly if the patient does not become weary in well doing.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

Search for lost treasure.—A vessel belonging to a Company of gentlemen in Baltimore, fully equipped with a diving bell, sub-marine train and efficient hands to work them under the superintendence of a practical engineer, recently left that port for the Island of Margarita, near Cumana, for the purpose of recovering the military chest and other treasures and stores lost by the sinking of the Spanish eighty gun ship "San Pedro de Alcantara."

The San Pedro was one of a large fleet of ships of war and transports, which sailed from Cadix early in 1815, with an army of 13,900 men to reconquer the devoted Provinces of the Spanish Main. Being the Admiral's ship and largest in the squadron, to her was entrusted all the treasure and military stores necessary for an expedition of such magnitude.

The loss of this ship occurred in April, 1814, at noon-day, within a league of the Island, and in 19 fathoms of water. To this severe calamity is to be attributed the failure of the Spanish arms under Morillo, and the subsequent independence of the South American Republics.

Since 1815 the wreck has quietly slumbered at the bottom of the sea, 130 fathoms below only to the fishermen of the coast. The hull lies in two and a half fathoms of water, on a hard and sandy bottom between the Island of Margarita and the main land. The neighbouring sea is ordinarily smooth, and seldom violently agitated. Authentic accounts state that the remains in the same position in which she went down. Her decks are partially fallen in, owing to it is supposed, to the weight of her armament, and action of the worms on her wood work.

The present expedition has a permit from the Venezuelan Government to recover the lost treasure and stores, with the sole condition of paying into the Treasury of the Republic five per cent on all recovered.

MURDER ON SHIPBOARD—Effects of Run.—We learn from the Philadelphia Gazette that on Wednesday afternoon, the 25th inst. the crew of the ship Farwell, on her way to Boston, in view of the city Cape Cod, decided to do duty at the time the ship was to be cast off from the steamer, nearly off Mass. Hook. They were ordered off by the first mate, Mr. Egles, at the request of Captain Farwell. While the captain was taking their names, they were highly mischievous in their language. Upon the mate's interdicting to preserve discipline, one of the seamen, named Thomas Forbes, a Scotchman, drew a sheath knife on him and stabbed him in the left side by the heart. The mate staggered off, declaring that he was murdered, and soon after expired. Forbes then approached Captain Farwell, declaring himself to be the murderer, at the same time drawing his knife from his pocket in a menacing manner. The Captain levelled a pistol at him and shot him—but he was not dead at the last accounts. The occurrence took place off Marcus Hook, where the Farwell came to anchor, and the Captain and other officers went to take the proper cognizance of the facts. The tragedy of the affair is attributable to going on board, and had been in a state of mutiny all the way down.—Halifax Herald.

A PRESENT.—The British Columbia, at Philadelphia, from the Mediterranean, brings a Maltese sheep as a present from the American consul at Malta, to the Secretary of the Treasury. The animal is a curiosity, having a tail nearly as broad as a small wooden plank.

DEATH OF MR. HARRISON.—Wm. F. Harrison, the father of the Express business, died in Boston, on Tuesday last, of consumption. He was a man of great enterprise.

(From the Halifax Times.)
OFFICIAL APPOINTMENT IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

The press of New Brunswick, Conservative and Radical, is busy in denouncing the appointment of Mr. Rade, Private Secretary of Sir Wm. Colebrook, to the office of Private Secretary, vacant by the death of Hon. W. F. O'Leary. Mr. Rade is a stranger, an Englishman, has been in the Province but a short time, and though he possesses personal qualifications for the office, has no other claim beyond that of his connection with the Lieutenant Governor. Sir Wm. Colebrook was a great stickler for the introduction of Responsible Government into New Brunswick, he has apparently been the first to set an example of his readiness by this appointment, and such a step taken by a Governor will have a bad effect on the public mind, causing it to doubt the sincerity of the application of the new principle. It would seem as if the appointment had been made in the exercise of the prerogative, without consultation with or taking the advice of any member of the Executive. Sir Wm. Colebrook's conduct admits of two constructions. If he intended this appointment to be provisional and had determined to submit it for ratification by the Colonial Secretary, there can be no excuse for him, and we are prepared to see his Executive Council, tender their resignations in consequence, and he will well deserve to lose his government. But if it is only a temporary occupation of the office, until he can have an opportunity of consulting his Council, and of filling it to the public satisfaction, they are not becoming responsible for the justice of the appointment. We think there is no great harm done. If this is the case the clamour which has been raised, will have been, to say the least, premature.

THE CAMBRIA.—The Halifax Times of the 21st inst. says:—The new Royal Mail Steamship Cambria, which was advertised to leave England on the 4th of January, has not arrived up to this hour, Monday 9 p.m., and is overdue five or six days. Some anxiety is beginning to be felt on her account.

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL'S HEALTH.—Several of our contemporaries, in the Lower Provinces, have recently published a paragraph, in which it is alleged that Sir Charles Metcalfe has lost the use of one of his eyes by the cancer, and that in consequence of the progress of that malady he was about to return home. Similar stories to this have been repeatedly circulated, and as often contradicted, and we were much pleased to meet with the following paragraph, which appeared in a late number of the Quebec Gazette:—

"We have great satisfaction in saying that we yesterday saw in a private letter dated two days before, from a medical gentleman of the highest standing, who is in attendance upon His Excellency, which says:—'The general state of His Excellency's health is never better—he dines at two public dinners a week and enjoys them excessively—his spirits are remarkably good, and there is not the slightest reason for believing that the affection of his eye will be prejudicial to his general health—and much less to shorten his life—he has not, he adds, the slightest reason to fear that he may enjoy life and health for many years to come.'"

Dr. Leman, of Great Sands, Pa. on Monday week, returning from visiting a patient while attempting to get into his wagon, in which his wife was already seated, slipped and his foot caught in the spring. The horse became frightened and ran at one mile, dragging the unfortunate man the whole distance, with his foot still fast in the spring. His face and head were horribly cut and disfigured and when the horse stopped, he was nearly dead. Mrs. L. supposed a being very dark, but when he fell he cleared himself from the wagon. Her feelings when the whole truth was disclosed, may more easily be imagined than described.

STRANGE ACCIDENT.—Rather a strange accident occurred yesterday, in Portland, which nearly proved fatal to a young man named Charles Norris. He and another lad had taken a holiday, and were amusing themselves, when the person in question agreed to ascend to the top of Fort Howe, near the road leading to the new Catholic Chapel, immediately behind a blacksmith shop, climbing up the side, which is a nearly perpendicular, and thickly covered with snow. He had just reached the summit, when the whole as a whole gave way, burying him in the foot of the hill, beneath about 60 feet of snow. A number of men were immediately on the spot, and fortunately began at the right place, and succeeded in digging him out, which being done, he was found to be just alive, in consequence of the extreme pressure and suffocation.—Saint John's Herald.

THE CREDIT REPORT.—On Wednesday Patrick Mullin, Richard Dunn and William Lundrigan were arraigned on an indictment for the murder of Charles Yoxa, a generally respected man. Each of the three parties named, is indicted as having inflicted the fatal blow and the other two as accessories, which of the three is the most guilty party, although it is generally said to be Mullin. The trial was appointed for this morning (Friday), with the understanding, that if the Court, Messrs. H. Bell, Ritchie and Gray, were not then prepared, the case would go over till Monday.—Id.

There are certain parties in Fredericton making a pretty stir about applying to the Legislature to get the town incorporated. We should hope that with the example of St. John before their eyes, the inhabitants of this town will be too wise to create salaries for Mayor, Recorder, Chamberlain, Aldermen, &c., and give them the power to expend the revenue and to incur debts, when there can be no good derived to counterbalance these gigantic evils.—L. galist.

P. E. ISLAND.—The Central Agricultural Society of Prince Edward Island met on Wednesday the 8th day of January. An interesting Report was read by the Secretary Peter Macgown, Esq. The report contains the good quality of the potato crop, and very justly attributes the low price in the Halifax market, in comparison with Nova Scotia potatoes, to the mixture of small and large together.

REPORTING THE DEBATES.—In issuing our Prospectus, we announced our intention of Reporting the Debates during the ensuing Session of the Legislature. They will be published weekly in the Reporter, and we shall likewise bring under our Editorial, and a summary of all the interesting proceedings of the House down to the day of publication. By these means, and faithful attention to the most important Debates, we trust to be able to furnish our readers with as fair a record of Legislative proceedings as they may require; giving them to know at the same, how their Representatives discharge their duty.

No additional charge is made in our yearly subscription for this service, and the amount for the winter half year is 7-6 p. value either to ourselves or our Agents. Persons at a distance wishing to subscribe in this way, can forward the money through the Agents for the Post Office, or by the members of the Legislature when they come to the opening of the House.—*N. The Boston Post states that during the year 1844, there were 1366 through, and that the relations of the two states might have been affected by a mutual spirit of good will and equity has been maintained between Prince and England, this happy accord, which guarantees the peace of the world.

"During the visit which I paid the Queen of Great Britain to testify to her the proof that I attach to the amity which unites us, and to that reciprocal friendship of which she has given me so many marks, I have been surrounded by manifestations the most satisfactory for France and for myself. I have gathered, in the sentiments, that have been expressed to me, additional guarantees for the long duration of that generous peace which assures to our country abroad a dignified and strong position, and at home an eternally increasing prosperity, with the enjoyment of our constitutional liberties."

"My relations with all foreign powers, combined to be friendly and amicable."

"You see, Messieurs, yourselves witnesses of the prosperous state of France. You see manifested upon all parts of our territory our national activity, proceed by wise laws, and respecting in the position of order the fruits of its labours. The rise of public credit, and the equilibrium established between our annual receipts and expenditure, attest the happy influence of this situation upon the general affairs of the State for the well being of all."

"In the midst of the general prosperity of the country, Heaven has blessed my family. It has increased the number of my children, and the marriage of one of my well-beloved sons, the Duc d'Angoulême with a Princess who already was related to us by so many ties, has been for me and mine a lively satisfaction."

"Messieurs, Providence has imposed upon me many labours, and painful trials. I have accepted to hand on, I have devoted myself to my country, to the service of my family. To have a lasting foundation of union and happiness has for 14 years been the object of my constant efforts. I feel confident that, with your loyal aid, you will enable me to attain it, and the gratitude of France, free and happy, will be the reward of our mutual devotedness, and be to you, the honour of my reign."

"Griefs of 'Vive le Roi!' interrupted some of the passages of the foregoing speech, which were received at the close.

CALAMITIES AND EXTENSIVE FIRE IN DUBLIN.—Yesterday morning about two o'clock, a fire broke out in the large work house of Mr. Beck, coach-builder, immediately behind New Market Street, Dublin; the alarm was instantly given, and the police, with the fire-engine, hastened to the place, but the fire broke out so early, and so extensively, that it was impossible to contain it, and it spread with such fearful rapidity, that all efforts to arrest its progress on that part of the premises, were considered hopeless; and as soon as water could be procured, the engine was directed to play upon the houses fronting into New Market Street, as the wind, from being in an easterly direction, brought an immense quantity of sparks into that quarter, and several chimneys were on fire on both sides of the street. The wind, however, continuing moderate, the progress of the fire in that direction was arrested. In the meantime it continued to spread in the other direction, and the whole of the work-shops, store-rooms, show-rooms, and other back premises, belonging to Mr. Beck, were soon involved in a universal conflagration. Almost as soon as the work-shops adjoining the dwelling houses were on fire, and before the flames began to issue from the roof, it was observed, from the emission of smoke, that the dwelling house had also caught fire. Every exertion was now made to save Mr. Beck's household furniture, and other valuables in the dwelling-house—the greater part of which, we believe, were got out with little damage. None of the adjoining buildings, except those belonging to Mr. Beck, have been at all damaged by the fire, while the whole of his property is entirely burnt down. The property is, to some extent, insured. The cause of the fire is not known.—Dunferm Standard.

The French journals are chiefly occupied with the approaching meeting of the Chamber, for which preparations are now in progress. The deputies are daily arriving in great numbers, from their several departments, and all parties are marshalling their supporters for the political warfare that is drawing near. The Ministers were entertaining their friends among the deputies, and no doubt was entertained that they would be supported by a decided majority in the Chamber. It is mentioned, however, that questions will be stirred, which, though they may not be carried, will nevertheless excite discussion and popular clamour, and will render it necessary for Ministers to call for all the support which they can command.

The Legislature meets to-day—the Session will be an important one, as there are a number of interesting topics for discussion.

The greatest Snow Storm which has been experienced for the last few years, took place on Tuesday and Wednesday the 21st and 22d inst. accompanied by a strong wind, blocking up the roads to such an extent that the St. John Mail, due here on Tuesday, did not arrive until Sunday last, and the St. Stephen Mail was correspondingly delayed on Saturday. On Thursday last the night trains generally moved on with good and quickness, but the road from the Post office to the city, has been so much blocked up by the snow, that the mail has not yet arrived at the city, and leaving the streets in some places. The weather still continues moderate.

ARRIVAL OF THE CAMBRIA.
The new R. M. Steamship Cambria, Capt. Jackson, arrived at Boston on Friday morning last, in 19 1/2 days from Liverpool, bringing papers to the 4th inst. The Steamer had very beautiful weather. The officers and crew were much exhausted by their labours.—She had 80 passengers.

We have only space to-day to give a few news of news by this arrival.

ENGLAND.—Money was abundant. The stock of Cotton on hand, at the end of the year had a tendency to depress the market, but prices were firm.

Her Majesty and Prince Albert will visit the Duke of Wellington, during the present month at Strathfield.

Sir Henry Pottinger, K. C. B., has been invited to three public testimonies or dinners, at London, Liverpool and Manchester, at the latter place £3000 had been raised for the purpose.

The Calcutta arrived on 13 days from Boston.

IRELAND.—Repeal meetings are still held with great vigour.—Several murders had been committed.

SCOTLAND.—Notwithstanding the large amounts raised for the support of the Free Church, £19,000 had been subscribed by 19 persons to build a free Church College.

FRANCE.—The principal interest of foreign news, centres in France. The Kings Speech was well received by the French.

SPAIN.—There is nothing interesting or new from this unhappy country.

OPENING OF THE FRENCH CHAMBERS.
Paris, Half past Two o'clock, P. M.
This day the French Chambers were opened with the usual ceremonies. At one the Majesty left the Tuilleries, and upon arriving at the Chamber of Deputies ascended the throne accompanied by their Royal Highnesses Duc de Nemours, Prince de Joinville, Duc d'Aumale, and Duke de Montpensier. The Queen and Princesses occupied the usual places. His Majesty having taken his seat, delivered the following most gracious speech:—

THE KING'S SPEECH.
Messieurs the Peers and Deputies,
At the close of the last session, complications, which might have become grave, were the objects of my solicitude. The necessity of securing our possessions in Africa, against hostile and repeated incursions, obliged us to carry war into the empire of Morocco. Our brave armies of land and sea, worthily distinguished themselves with glory and in short time, the hopes in which you were vainly. They are promptly followed by others, and Algeria, where three of my sons had this year the honour to serve their country, has received a double pledge of security for we have proved at once our power and our moderation.

EDUCATION.

MR DALY, grateful for past favours would now beg to inform the Public that he has commenced a Night School, for adults, at his own house, where youth of both sexes will be carefully instructed, in the following branches, viz. Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, E. Grammar, Geography, Book-keeping, Geometry, Algebra, Mensuration, Gauging, Navigation—Theory and Practice of Surveying, Comic Sections, Dialing, Plain and Spherical Trigonometry, and the use of the Globes.

N. B. In order to give general satisfaction if possible, Mr. Dalry promises that pupils continue with him, the usual time generally required of an apt scholar, to have a competent knowledge of any of the above branches, that afterwards if they are not able to undergo the most critical examination, he will give up his claim on what he should otherwise obtain.

A CURE! FOR ALL!!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT!

26 Holes on one Leg, and 14 on the Other, On Crutches! 2 1/2 Years Afflicted! The Lord Mayor of London affixed his Signature as Witness to the following Solemn Declaration made before him at the Mansion House this 14th day of November 1842.

DECLARATION!

I, JAMES STANLEY, Gentleman's Servant, residing at Long Ditton, Kingston-upon-Thames, do hereby solemnly declare that for the last Two Years and a half I was (in consequence of being terribly afflicted with Ulcers in both Legs) quite incapable of getting my Living. I further declare that I sought relief of several Eminent Medical Men, both in Town and Country, both my case only got worse instead of better, under their Treatment. I further declare that I was at the beginning of June last I was admitted as a Patient at the North London Hospital, and there I remained for about Six Weeks. In that Hospital cold lotions and cloths dipped in cold water were applied to the Ulcers, by means of which means and the use of tight bandages, the Ulcers were made to skin tightly over, and I left the Hospital although I was in a more dangerous state than before so that on my left Leg I had twenty-six holes, and on my right I had fourteen indeed my Legs appeared a frightful mass of corruption.

I lastly declare, that I was in this state in the middle of September last, at which time I first commenced the use of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, which in a very short time restored to Health and Soundness every one of the Wounds, and in consequence my Legs are as well and as sound as ever they were in my Life, so much so that I was able to walk, on the 11th instant, from Long Ditton to London and back, a distance of twenty-eight miles, without feeling in my Legs the least ill effect from the fatigue of the journey. I believe if I had not been cured by those Extraordinary Medicines my Legs must have been amputated, as the only means of saving my Life. JAS. STANLEY.
Declared at the Mansion House, in the city of London, this 14th day of November, 1842 Before me JOHN HUMPHRY, Mayor.

IN ALL DISEASES OF THE SKIN.

Bad Legs, Old Wounds, and Ulcers, Bad Breasts, Sore Nipples, Stoney and Ulcerated Cancers, Tumours, Swellings, Gout Rheumatism and Lumbago, likewise in case of Piles, the Pills in all the above cases, ought to be used with the Ointment; as by this means cures will be effected with the Ointment, as by this means cures will be effected with a much greater certainty and in less time, than it would require by using the Ointment alone. The Ointment is proved to be a certain remedy for the bite of Mosquitoes, Sand-flies, Chigoeys, Itches, and Coco-bay.

Burns, Scalds, Chirbials, Chapped Hands, and Lips, also Bunions and soft Corns, will be immediately cured by the use of the Ointment.

N. B.—Directions for the Guidance of Patients are affixed to each Pot.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS,

Copy of a Letter from His Grace the Duke of Portland to Mr. Mellish, one of his tenants, whom His Grace was pleased to send as a Patient to the Proprietor of this Extraordinary Medicine.

Medicine.—If Mr. Holloway will undertake to cure me perfectly, when the Cure is complete, I will undertake to pay him £2 10s. You may show him this letter. (Wellbeck Abbey, May 31) Scott Portland.

Copy of a letter from the Marquis of Westminster. Lord Westminster has just received Mr. Holloway's Medicine, for which he returns him his thanks.

Easton Hall, Cheshire, February 12 1842.

This Inestimable Medicine being composed entirely of Medicinal herbs, does not contain any mercurial mineral or deleterious substance. Be- ginn to the tender infant to the weakest con- stitution, prompt and successful in eradicating disease from the most robust frame, it is perfectly harm- less in its operations and effects, while it search- es out and removes Complaints of every character, and at every stage, long ever long standing or deeply rooted.

Of the Thousands cured by its agency, many who were on the verge of the grave for a con- siderable period, (by preserving its use) have been restored to health and strength after every other means failed.

All diseases (and whatever may be their symp- toms, however they may declare themselves, yet one cause is common to them all, viz. a want of purity in the blood and fluids) are cured by this Wonderful Medicine which cleanses the stomach and bowels, while its Balsamic qualities clear the blood give tone and energy to the nerves and muscles and invigorate the system, and strength- en the frame.

The Afflicted need not give himself up to de- pair, altogether, and as one without any hope but let him make a proper trial of the Mighty powers of this astonishing Medicine, and he will soon be restored to the enjoyment of Health.

TIME should not be lost in taking this remedy for any of the following diseases—

Ague, Dropsy, Rheumatism, Bilious complaints, Female irregularities, Retention of Urine, Stomachic Fever, of all kinds, of the prime Bowels, on the Face, Sore throats, Skin, Gout, Scrofula or King's evil, Bores, Indigestion, Stone & Gravel, Colic, Constipation, Lumbago, Tumor, Jaundice, Liver complaints, Ulcers, Debility, Piles, Worms of all kinds, Dysentery, Weakness from winter's cause.

These truly invaluable PILLS can be obtained at the establishment of Prof. Holloway, (near Temple Bar,) London, and of Peters and Tilly, Agents No 2, King-st. St. John, N. B. James F. Gale, Fredericton and J. M. Campbell, Saint Stephen.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of Patients in every Disorder are affixed to each Box.
