EARLY IN THE SEASON WE PREDICTED that the real estate market in city realty would be extremely active, and the many transactions on the local mark t prove that our prognostication was well efounded. Even through our office alone over $100,000 worth of real estate has been sold. The tendency among buyers is still towards further investments. The extremely low rates now being paid on savings bank deposits will have a tendency also of increasing investments in real estate. To meet this looked-for demand we have secured a number of very eligible properties. We can only mention a few in this list, but if you will call at our office we will be pleased to give you full particulars of any property you think might be suitable for your requirements. Dreyfus Found Guilty.

Tonight's cablegrams bring the conclusion of the Dreyfus trial. He has been found guilty, and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment! That Dreyfus is an innocent man, no unprejudiced outsider for a moment doubts. The sort of evidence on which he has been found guilty and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, would not in any part of the British Empire imprison a dog. Poor Dreyfus is to be pitied, but not so much as France, whch stands before the world as a country where an innocent man may, through racial prejudice, and for suppressed reasons of state policy, be deliberately declared guilty. Dreyfus is not a free man, but he has the satisfaction of having had his honor vindicated in the presence of hundreds of representatives of the press, who will proclaim the facts to the ends of the earth. We cannot believe that Dreyfus will be long imprisoned. Probably, after a short interval, his sentence will be commuted. But nothing can wipe out the disgrace of his unjust conviction.

CONVENTION

To Be Held in London Next Week-Interesting Topics of Discussion. The provincial convention of health officers will meet in London on Wednesday and Thursday next, Sept. 13 and 14. The attendance is expected to be large, as in additional to delegates from all the Ontario municipalities, the members of the provincial board of health will be here, and a number of American sanitarians are also expected. The sessions will open in the city hall Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, when the convention will be received by the chairman of the local board of health, ex-Ald. Charles Taylor. The Wednesday afternoon session will be devoted to the subject of tuberculosis. While all the sessions are open to the public, they are especially invited to the Wednesday evening meeting, when the mayor will give an address of welcome to the delegates, and the president's annual address will be delivered. The subject of ventilation and heating will also be discussed. The Thursday morning session will be of special interest to our citizens, as it will be given over to the consideration of the proper disposal of sewage. Thursday afternoon will be occupied with a discussion on typhoid fever. The officers will also be elected. At all these meetings papers will be read on the various subjects by eminent sanitarians; and the discussions thereon will no doubt be both profitable and interesting. EXECUTOR'S SALE OF BRICK COT-TAGE, No. 155 Oxford street, London, The executors of the late Bridget Kennedy have instructed J. W. THE EVIDENCE

In the Gowanlock Case-Missing Witness Found.

Confirms the Story of a Quarrel and Says Gowanlock Struck at Harding.

Further Adjournment Till Monday When a Verdict Will Be Given.

The Gowanlock inquest was resumed at the police station at 8:30 last night, and the evidence of six witnesses taken. It was 11:30 before all the evidence was in, and after the jury and Coroner Piper had talked the matter over it was decided to adjourn until Monday night to consider the evidence and render a verdict. Alex. McInnes, the man who was found stooping over Gowaniock immediately after he fell, and Dr. Hadley Williams, a medical expert, were the two most important

Mrs. S. Rushton, a boarder at the O'Neil House, saw Gowanlock about noon and thought him very much intoxicated. She heard loud voices in the yard about 8 o'clock in the even-ing, and looked out of her window into the yard. All she saw was a number of persons in a group, near the stable. She did not notice anyone in particular, and could not distinguish any of the conversation. Gowanlock was lying on the ground, with a man near him. She could not say who the man

Alex. McInnes arrived at the O'Neil House at about 7 o'clock, on the night in question. He saw Gowanlock, whom he had never seen before, about fifteen minutes after entering the yard. Gowanlock was standing near the kitchen window at the time, but shortly after came over and started arguing with Harding. Witness could not say as Harding went over and sat down, and Gowanlock again went over to him and started wrangling with him. The two men then went into the stable, and started to scuffle. They were separated, and Harding walked over to the water-trough and sat down, and Gowanlock went into the hotel, through the anything to Gowanlock or not. rear door. In about a minute (Gowanlock) came out again, with his coat off, and walked over to about twelve feet of Harding. He stood there for a few minutes, when Mr. Blue took him by the arm and said, "Come on in the house." Gowanlock jerked away, and when witness turned around he saw Gowanlock and Harding engaged in a "scrap." He could not say what started the fight. He had heard no heated conversation between the two men. The fight occurred a short distance from the stable door. Witness could not say as to who struck the first blow. It seemed to him that both men were striking together. He saw Gowanieck strike at Harding, but could not say as to whether it landed or not. Volunteering to Act as Witness in Favor of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Suffered With Pain in the Back and Lameness-Sure Symptoms of Diseased Kidneys-One Box of Dodd's Kidney Pills Sufficed to Cure.

Cumberland Bay, N. B., Sept. 8 .- The ladies of the Maritime Provinces are every day becoming more and more convinced of the truth of the saying "Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friend." The reason of this is that women are from their very nature, physical make-up and manner of living, especially liable to Kidney Disease and that Dodd's Kidney Pills are infallible in all sorts and conditions of this many-sided complaint. Women's weakness is nothing more nor less than a disorder of the feminine organs, caused by an improper state of the blood. If the blood was in a pure, healthy condition it would mend any break in the system, and all irregulartties, obstructions, aches and pains would be alike impossible.

Many women suffer daily with aching back. They need not. This is but a sign that the kidneys are out of order, in fact, the ache is in the kidneys themselves, not in the muscles or bones of the back.

M. A. B., of Cumberland Bay, N. B., says: "It is with pleasure I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills. Last winter I was taken with lameness and pain in my back with soreness about the region of the kidneys. I lost my ap-petite and became weak and unable to work. After suffering in this way for some weeks I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and after using one box the pain and soreness had left my back, and I am pleased to say I have had no return of it since."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are for sale at all druggists at 50 cents a box, six boxes for $2 50, or will be sent, on re-ceipt of price, by The Dodd's Medicine Company, Limited, Toronto.

PUMPS AT WORK. Mr. R. P. Thompson, who visited the wreck of the steamer Houghton in St. Mary's River last night, reported that the temporary patch over the hole in the steamer's side had been finished.

The Houghton's own pumps were immediately put to work, and in a short time the water in the hold was lowered six inches. A big crew of men was then sent to the wreck to begin shoveling out the cargo of ore, as soon as the water lowered sufficiently. It was calculated that at least 2,000 tons of ore would have to be removed before the boat could be released, and that this could be accomplished in three or days.

Marine men comment on the fact that this is the first serious accident at the narrow passage since the channel was opened up.

The Houghton's accident started with a broken wheel chain. There will be a big jam at the orereceiving ports once the Houghton is released, and to avoid this many owners are sending their ships for grain. Consequently the market at Duluth is not as strong as it was yesterday. Two dollars is the best figure that has been paid on ore from the head of the steamer Hurd, towing the schooner Parana, arrived at Detroit, having taken the Canadian channel to avoid the wreck of the Houghton. The Parana struck on a rock abreast of Sister Rock light and is leaking badly.

An extra crew was shipped to work the pumps and the tow left for Chicago. The steamer Petoskey was released from the Encampment by the Favorite and passed down in the afternoon, under her own steam. The keel was pounded some on the rocks, but the steamer is leaking but little.

Miss Byman Daintily Describes Her First Impressions in Norway.

Christiana, Norway, Aug. 22, 1899. The excessively warm weather in England caused our plans to be changed, and here we are in the quaint little capital of Norway, the land of the Vikings. The perfectly carm and clear blue water was crowded with jelly-fish and strange sea-anemone. There are several interesting specimens of Nor-wegian carving, and a few portraits and busts of the royal ancestors of the reigning house, but it is plainly fur-nished, and our chief interest was centered in an old-fashioned peasant woman, who was evidently being shown the sights by a well-to-do son. She wore an embroidered apron of many colors, and a handkerchief about her head, and her wonder and admiration were un-(somewhat dilapidated it appeared to our eyes). She stood with her hands pressed together and her eyes shining and the love they give them is better than the halo of romance with which we are wont to encircle the princes who rule over us.

The most interesting sight in Christiana, to my mind, is the old Viking (pronounced ve-king) ship, found a few years ago embedded in potters' clay in Christiana fjord, to which it no doubt owes its preservation, as it dates from the ninth century! It is of oak, riveted with iron nails, with rows of sixteen holes on each side for the oars. The keel is very deep, and the long, graceful lines could not be improved today. In such boats, with no suspicion of cabin, the "hardy Norsemen" crossed to England, Ireland, Iceland, and, even, brave old sea-captains! to Greenland. In fact, years before Columbus arrived, they had also visited Canada. After the death of a great Viking, his body and his treasures were laid in his beloved ship, and all set adrift. Truly a noble funeral car! It was after being used for this purpose that the ship we saw sank in the fjord, for the worn square sail which covered the body remains to tell the story. But of its treasures it was long since rifled, as its broken sides bear witness. EDYTHE HYMAN.

BAD HORSE DEAD

Lost the Animal and Thirty-Five Dollars Besides.

St. Thomas, Sept. 9.—Wesley Horton, of the Hutchinson House, at the division court sued Messrs. Pim and Widdows, of the L. E. and D. R. R., to re-cover the price of a horse. Plaintiff contended that when he purchased the horse the agreement was that if the animal did not suit, it was to be returned and he get his money back. This the defendants denied. Verdict for plaintiff. A. Grant for plaintiff, W. L. Wickett for defendants.

Mr. Horton left the horse at Mr.

Widdows', who turned it out of his premises, and the animal was impounded and sold, so that the defendants have to pay the $35 and are also out the horse.

The musical farce-comedy, "Who Is Who," will be seen at the Grand four nights, and Wednesday matinee, commencing Monday. The present com-pany numbers 25 talented players, and vaudeville stars, headed by the wellknown comic opera comedians, Charles E. Pusey and Tom Ricketts. Hanging on a distinct comedy plot are almost enough catchy and up-to-date musical numbers for a comic opera, and clean and novel specialties by recognized vaudeville artists. This is the third successful season for "Who Is Who," and the management has spared no ex-pense in making this, as the bills say, "the third and best edition."

600 MILES IN 72 HOURS. New York, Sept. 9.—Mrs. Jane Lind-sey, of Brooklyn, finished a ride of 600 miles on a bicycle within 72 hours, under rules prescribed by the Century Road Club, yesterday morning, and thereby wrested the woman's long-dis-tance world's championship from Miss Jane C. Yatman, whose record she beat by an even 100 miles. What makes the feat the more remarkable is that the new champion rode the greater part of the distance under disheartening conditions. She started lacking confidence in herself and fearing that she would not be able even to equal Miss Yatman's perform-Unlike the ride of the former champion, Mrs. Lindsey rode the tedious sextuple century alone, with the exception of about 200 miles, when her husband and two or three members of the Century Road Club made pace for During the last hundred miles her husband begged her to desist, but she was gaining remarkable confidence and wanted to make a record.

DOG SHOW OFF. Petrolia Advertiser: Entries for the Petrolia kennel club's bench show closed on Saturday last, and notwithstanding numerous promises from exhibitors there were not enough dogs entered to warrant the club in carrying out their calculations. The disappointment to the public will no doubt be great, and the committee in charge feel the failure most keenly. Something is evidently wrong somewhere, but wherein lies the difficulty we are at a loss to determine. It may be that the bulk of the dog fanciers are not out for the "dust," and do not feel inclined to pay $1 50 entrance fee for a $3 prize. However, there is no use crying over defeat, so better

CANADIAN PLAYERS IN DETROIT. The Detroit Free Press says: "Detroit patrons of the national game have been given quite a gratifying taste of Canadian league ball playing through the efforts of Frisk, Schrall, Crawford and Congalton, and yesterday the few who ventured out to Bennett Park were treated to an exhibition of Canadian league umpiring that proved equally satisfactory. Umpire Brennan failed to report for duty, and Fred Popkay, of this city, who umpired in the Canadian league, was pressed into service. His work was clean cut, the only fault being that he does not call out his decisions loud enough for those in the stand to hear, and when he re-peatedly returned an old ball to the Detroit bench and Manager Stallings trotted in from left field to argue the point, the substitute asserted his authority and had the courage to toss the leader of the Tigers out of the game. The change did not affect the chances of the Tigers, however, as Cronin practically won the game with a three-bagger in the fifth inning, cleverly sacrificed in the seventh inning, assisting Barrett around, while in the field he made three catches, one being a foul fly for which he was obliged to make quite a long run." There was no danger of an umpire being assaulted, as a husky individual like Popkay could whip all the belligerant ones a crowd like that produced. So few and scattering were the fans that it reminded one of the old theatrical gag, 'the audience he applauded." What a training ground that Canadian league is for cool, calculating nerve. Every player that has been tried out in faster company displayed the utmost confidence in his ability, and the umpires

FOR THE FANS. Detroit News: Popkay umpired very well, and all he needs is more steam behind his voice. Nobody thought he would have the nerve to bench Dr. Stallings, but he sent him to cover with all the alacrity of Jack Sheridan.

At the close of the Eastern League season the farmed players will return to the league owners. Philadelphia will have four pitchers, Becker, Murphy, Diggleby and Conn, and is said to be dickering with Al Maul. Frank Shiebeck, who has been playing with Montreal in the Eastern League, has accepted an offer to finish the season with Washington. Beaumont, the Pittsburg's center fielder, is one of the fastest men in the baseball business. The other day he made three hits simply by outracing the ball to first.

Looie Hartmann, the third baseman of the Glants, who was accused by Scrappy Joyce of wearing a 14 shoe and a 4 hat, will be released by Freedman or figure in a deal.

Abe Lezotte has refused to join the Buffalo team on account of ill-health, and the Buffalo management finally secured the services of Danny Stearns to fill out the season for the Bisons on the initial corner. Stearns played first base for Buffalo when it was a member of the Eastern League in 1895.

Pete Tibald, well known in Detroit, and a player who trained at the D. A. C. grounds before joining a Canadian

The architect was also instructed to notify Pritchett & Murray Bros. that they must proceed more rapidly with the work, and if they failed to do so, the architect was ordered to put more men on the work. Joseph W. Chambers' offer to rebate $25 on the price of his contract if he were allowed to dispense with the boxing under the veranda leading to the contagious ward was accepted. space under the veranda will be bricked in, which makes the conduit un-necessary. The contract for the brickwork for this, and completing the foundations under the sun room, and for building a chimney for the kitchen. was let to Martyn & Hammett for $163.

Mr. Chambers said the heating apparatus would be ready for testing next week. John Purdom's tender for repairing the old operating room, which it was the original intention to tear down, was accepted at $445. The seating arrangements were left to the chairman and the architect.

Ald. Jolly reported that $34,000 additional insurance had been placed on the building, bringing the total amount to about three-fourths of the value of the building.

George Rose's application for the position of second engineer was referred to the trust. It was recommended that Moore & Henry be offered $50 in full of all claims for their services.

Managing Director John Cameron and Editor,

London, Saturday, Sept. 9.

Cecil Rhode's Territory. Rhodesia, the great teritory in South Africa, named after Cecil Phodes, is an example of a country living almost entirely on faith. It is one of Rhodes' daring and gigantic projects, which only success can justify. Rhodesia is now illustrating the process by which the British Empire has been bufft. In some remote part of the world a British trading company begins commercial dealings with the natives. Its activities expand and Its interests accumulate. Presently the bempany finds it expedient to exercise administrative powers in order to facilitate and protect its operations. If the matives rebel the British Government must, of course, step in to defend British subjects and British property. By and by when the conditions are ripe, the Government takes formal posion of the company's "sphere of inspence," and another slice is added

This is the way with Rhodesia. Ten years ago the British South African Company, of which Rhodes is the movine spirit, obtained permission, by royal charter, to invest capital amounting to £1,000,000 in bringing certain berritories since named Rhodesiaunder its administration. The scope of the enterprise enlarging, the comeny has since found it necessary to rease fts capital to £7.000.000. So far it has been a losing venture. The menditure consists of the cost of covernment, civil service, justice, bolice, etc., but it is not nearly balanced by the revenue, which is chiefby derived from direct and indirect taxation, and the sale of the lands and mining claims. The balance sheet shows the following revenue and expenditure of the company for the past power to effect these changes, should ten years (the figures for 1900 being the ratepayers desire them. The rebottamated):

the Emptre.

1891 - Exper		Revenue

.....£4,152,655 £1.601.564 In addition the company paid out £2,689,328 in putting down Matabele wars. This leaves a net deficit in the ten years of £5,698,825, which has come out of shareholders' pockets. Of course this cannot go on forever, and the shareholders must have faith that some day they will be indemnified for these tremendous losses. This faith is based on the mineral wealth of Rhodesia. Cecil Rhodes has never failed to maintain that Rhodesia is another Transvaal. From 1890 to 1898 the gold output was so small that the shareholders must have trembled for the future. The total production for that whole period was only 7,169 ounces. In 1898 The Buluwayo rallway, another of Phodes' great enterprises, reached Rhodesia, and an improvement became manifest at once. In 1898 the gold output was 18,085 ounces-more than Couble the output of the previous eight years. For the present year up to the end of June, the yield has been 36,204 ounces. The net profits of the Buluavayo railway have also increased from £11,877 in 1895 to £99,290 in 1898. The profits for the eight months of this year have been £81,000, or at the rate of a little more than £120,000 a year. If the present rate of progress in mining development is maintained, it will not be many years before the country is self-sustaining, and the British South Africa Company will reap the reward of its enterprise. In due time the company will resign its territorial and administrative rights, and will hand Rhodesia ever to the British Government, to be added to the selfgoverning colonies of the Empire. That will be a great day for Rhodes. the Colossus of South Africa.

Stone-Throwing.

All will agree that stone-throwing at otreet cars, whether by 15-year-old boys, or children of a larger growth. should be resolutely checked. There is no sense in stone-throwing at all. But the question of the best method of dealing with the first offense of a 15-year-old boy who is foolish enough to throw a stone at a street car, is not exactly easy. One way might be to send for the parents, have them birch the boy soundly, and put him to bed without supper; and the magistrate might let it be distinctly understood that if the boy repeated the offense he would have to suffer more sharply next time. What seems to be meeded is some punishment that will meet the case of the 15-year-old boy, yet which will not start him in life with the brand of imprisonment.

Municipal Reform.

The Ontario Municipal Association, recently formed, will ask the Legislature to amend the municipal act by giving municipalities power to elect aldermen by general vote, to extend the mayoralty term to two years, and the aldermanio term to three years, and to reduce the number of aldermen. Under these amendments, a municipal council would, of course, have to conchange. At the convention in Hamilton, which adopted this resolution, a good deal of testimony was given, favorable to municipal reform. Mayor claimed that the abolition of the wards and the reduction of the number of city. The quality of the aldermen is improved and the public business is more fficiently managed There can be no reasonable objection

h the Legislature to the request of the Municipal Association. The amandments would not intrust any dangenous powers to the municipalities. On the contrary, the experiment of reducing the number of aldermen, abolishing the ward system, or lengthening the aldermanic and mayoralty terms could be tried with perfect safety, because it is impossible that results could be worse than under the present system. We infer this from London's experience, which has not been exceptional by any means. We have had efficient municipal government only when brainy man chanced to get into the mayor's chair and ran the city council to suit himself. The ratepayers, we repeat, risk nothing by adopting any of the proposed reforms. If the result proved disappointing, they could quickly revert to the old plan, but we venture to say that a reduced representation and the abolition of the wards would yield an immediate improvement. From motives of self-preservation the majority of the aldermen last year refused to petition the Legislature for solution passed at the Hamilton convention, which, we believe, the Legislature will grant, provides that the question shall be submitted to the people if 300 ratepayers petition the munfcipal council for that purpose. This is an opportunity which we hope the city will seize in due time,

Some Advice on Tree Culture. At the Dominion Experimental Farm. Ottawa, visitors are now much interested in the growth of the several varieties of shade trees. Some of these trees are now 20 feet high, though only planted twelve years since. The varieties embraced are the hard and soft maple, black walnut, Scotch pine, latch. birch and elm. It has been found that the trees planted five feet apart thrive better than those planted ten feet apart. The soft maple is superior to the hard maple for shade purposes. These experiments, as well as those conducted elsewhere, all go to prove the value of reforestation to every land-owner in the country. It is true so far we in Canada have had. as it were, trees to burn, but year by year the forest belt goes farther back, and the girth of the average tree becomes less. Therefore it will pay the land-owner in this country to look to the future, and keep planting trees to replace those which he cuts down for firewood or for commercial purposes. It may be that he can serve his purpose best by planting trees well adapted for shade. If so, well and good; but, in any case, he should as carefully provide for a continuous growth of trees on his property, as he provides for recurring crops of cereals or roots. It will pay, he need never fear. The trees will need a little care at the start, but the older they get the less care they will require, and the greater will be their value. This view is well maintained by the result of a recent experiment by the directors of the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis Railway. Twenty years ago, the directors had some misgivings as to the future timber supply of the road, and they called in the aid of an expert, and, at his suggestion, about 100 acres were planted with white ash, black walnut, wild cherry, and other trees adapted to the latitude. The growth of the different trees was carefully watched for several years. Finally, the tree known as the catalapa speciosa was selected as the best adapted for growth in Kansas, and as promising to reach maturity long before any other of the trees would be available for railway purposes. Two complete sections were planted with this tree and it is now estimated that. after a little more than fifteen years, with judicious cutting, 1,000 trees from ten to fifteen inches in diameter, and from thirty to forty feet high, can be taken off each acre during the next ten years. The whole cost of the land trees, planting, cultivation, interest on the capital, and general attention for fifteen years has been less than $100 per acre, while telegraph poles of this wood are worth from $2 to $3.50 each.

that there is not money in tree plantsult the ratepayers before making any ing? It will be observed that the Kansas Railway Company devoted whole sections of lands for the purpose. In some parts of Ontario, this may be the best course, where the land is ill ad-Johnston and Ald. Bogart, of Belleville, apted for general agriculture. But country nooks and corners where no aldermen had been beneficial to that thing but weeds now grow, and where trees for shade as well as for preserving the rainfall ought to be growing. Thus we might in a few years have added to the tree wealth of this country many millions of dollars, and at a very small expenditure.

The subject is one worthy the attention of every owner of land. In future the country fills up, the farmer who makes the most of such opportun-Ities, now too often neglected, will be the man who makes money.

Misrepresenting Mr. Morrison. Our contemporary, the Free Press, has twice misrepresented the speech of Mr. Frank Morrison, general secretary of the American Federation of Labor, at the Victoria Park mass meeting, on the 22nd of August. Mr. Morrison is represented by our contemporary as saying "the time might again come when they would be permitted to ride in the cars." Our contemporary then goes into mock heroics over the word "permitted." The Advertiser's accurate report of Mr. Morrison's closing words was as follows:

"Concluding, he expressed the hope that within two weeks he would hear that the citizens of London were able

The two or three thousand people who heard Mr. Morrison understood him simply to express his hope that such just settlement would be arrived at as would permit the citizens of London to feel free once more to conscientiously ride on the street cars The speech of Mr. Morrison-as an old Canadian boy-was moderate, and wholly unobjectionable, and our contemporary will not aid its cause by endeavoring to misrepresent what Mr. Morrison said.

Baby's Skin Red and Raw. Doctor's Medicine was Painful and Useless. A Stranger Advised CUTICURA. Cured in a Month. with Skin Smooth and Fair.

My little daughter, when six months old. oke out with Euzema. I took her to a doctor and he prenounced it "Moist Eczema," and prescribed for her. She screamed when I put the medicine on her, and I stopped using it. It was indeed very painful. Her skin was all red and raw, and moisture coming from it all the time. A perfect stranger to me advised me to use CUTIOURA remedies. I got CUTI-CURA SOAP and CUTICURA fointme they entirely cured her within a month. She is twenty-three months old to-day, and her skin is like a piece of silk, and fair as a lily. MRS. E. J. KANE, 815 Ohio Ave., Oct. 7, 1898. Hansas City, Kan.

PIMPLES CUTICURA SOAP I commenced to get pimples and blackheads when I was fifteen years old. My face was covered. I spent about ten dollars for dicine, etc., but they never did me any good. I used CUTIOURA SOAP for two weeks, the pimpies and blackheads began to disappear, and it only took three cakes of Cu-TIOURA SOAP to cure my face of those homely pimples. JOSEPH B. CLAMER, Sept. 21. '98. 327 Court St., Elizabeth, N. J. My face was covered with a pimply, rup tured, and itching skin. After using Curr-CURA SOAP for six weeks, all the pimples went away, my skin getting as soft as velvet. H. CROME, 223 Meirose St., Chicago, III. Sept. 21, 1898.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Receipts, about 40 loads, representing 700 cattle, 1,500 hogs and about 1,200 sheep and lambs. Noticeable feature was the absence of choice export cattle, not one first-class load being on the market. Butchers' cattle, best selections, were scarce also, and any there were sold readily. The market all round was good, but buyers were looking for better stock. Export cattle-There were a few sales of medium quality, but no eagerness was dis-played. Buyer seem prepared to pay top-notch prices for choice exporters, but the cattle must be fat and weigh up well. Butchers' cattle—This branch of the market was active and good stock found ready buyers at prices quoted. Sheep and lambs-Market active, with a good deman at prices quoted , excepting, perhaps, butchers' sheep, for which there is little or no demand. Hogs-A steady market; fair demand, with unchanged prices. A drop of 12½c per cwt is prophesied for next week. Essex, Kent and Lambton cornfed hogs sell at 50c per cwt less all round. Crisis.

WINCHESTER, Sept. 8.—At the The Army Ready—Plan of Campaigntheese board today there were 670 Help From the Sweets Expected. Help From the Swazis Expected-The Struggle if It Comes, Likely To Be Severe.

[Special Cable Letter to The Advertiser.] London, Sept. 9 .- This week Great Britain has resembled in every respect that tremulously exciting week in the United States which immediately preceded the outbreak of the war with Spain. Dreyfus and other topics sunk to reliable statments, THE ARMY IS READY. The papers teem with descriptions of the troops who are expected to do the fighting. They give accounts of their of the bullets which it is expected will is not the question. The franchise is soon be lodged under Boer skins. The particular pet is now a bullet known as "Mark 4." It is claimed that its lead core is harder and less fusible than any tried heretofore. Large quantities are being shipped to Cape Town. Though mobilization has never been a strong feature of the British army, it is now believed that a system AS NEAR PERFECTION AS POS-SIBLE

has been prepared. The commander-inchief, Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, Sir Evelyn Wood, Gen. Sir Redvers Buller and other generals have been working strenuously on it for months. Many new features have been introduced, several of them being based on the lessons learned by the American troops in the war with Spain. Among the latter is the extreme usefulness of mules in such a country as the Transvaal. The British officers who have been in the United States, Spain and EAST BUFFALO, Sept. 8.—Cattle—The market showed no material change, as there were only a few ordered head on sale. The calf trade continued in strong position, with light offenings and a good demand; choice their purchases and ship the mules as quickly as possible to the scene of the probable hostilities. All these things, to say nothing of the splendid morale and reputation of the regiments selected for the Cape, in-

IF WAR COMES it will be waged relentlessly and strongly, and that there will be no abatement until South Africa is flooded with British troops in such numbers that organized resistance by the Boers will be impossible. Before the main British body of troops arrives, it is thought possible the Boers may score some decided successes, and that even after being overcome by the force of superior numbers they may continue the war in guerilla fashion for many months. But conservative opinion places six months as the outside limit for the capture of Lebengesburg and will meet in November and Leynect and Leynect in November and Leyne in No for the capture of Johannesburg and Pretoria. If another Majuba Hill marks the annals of the possible war, it will not be due to lack of caution on the part of the British.

Spain. Dreyfus and other topics sunk into obscurity. Patriotic enthusiasm has been at fever heat, and the slightest sign of preparation for war has been seized upon by the press and public as an indication of the status of the crisis. The difference between the state of affairs here and the situation in the United States in April, 1898, is merely that the projected campaign is military instead of naval. According to reliable statements. there is no doubt that if the campaign occurs many British lives will be sacrificed to enteric fever.

Mr. Montague White, consul-general of the South Africa Republic in Lon-don, said: If the burghers will not yield to hysteria there is no cause for equipment and method of transport, alarm. We deny responsibility for and even the relative killing properties what others have muddled. Suzerainty

THE ROCK OF DIFFERENCE which Mr. Chamberlain recognizes. This war, if war must come, is not going to end with a flash in the pan. The struggle will be from Pretoria to Cape Town. Even supposing the existing Boer regiments are annihilated, no force can beat down the Afrikander and Dutch strength of South Africa. He who declares war on the Transvaal lights the torch of revolution. The Transvaal will not precipitate material. The burghers will go out to defend en by personal feeling or quibble. We believe the British sense of fair play will yet prevail."

CLAIMS OF AMERICAN MINERS. Former Congressman James H. Lewis arrived here this week, and on Friday presented his credentials at the United States embassy. Mr. Lewis is here to press the claims for compensation to the American miners who were evicted in the Atlin district of the Northwest Territories by the Canadian Government. The matter of the American miners' claims against Canada has already been taken up, but no action will be taken until the arrival of Sir Louis Henry Davies, the Canadian minister of marine and fisheries, who is coming here to present the orner side of the case. By that time the United States ambassador, Mr. Choate, will have had the briefs of Mr. Lewis under consideration. The lawyer urges that the claims be included in the general arbitration by the high com-officially, that the high commission will meet in November, and I expect that the miners' claims will have reached such a status by that time as will determine what authority is to decide their merits."

Peru's President Inaugurated-Jiminez of San Domingo May Not Have Smooth Sailing.

Lima, Peru, Sept.9 .- Senor Eduardo Romana, former senator for Arequipa, was today inaugurated as president of the Republic of Peru, for the term of four years, in succession to Senor Nicolas Pierola.

Berlin, Sept. 9 .- The Lokal Anzieger today says that Baron Von Der Rieke Von Der Horst, the former Prussian minister of the Interior, has been appointed governor of Westphalia. succeeds Dr. Studt, who has succeeded him in the ministry. Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 9.—Dominican advices just received say that the apparently enthusiastic and ostensibly national demonstration prepared in San Domingo for Juan Icsidro Jiminez, the leader of the successful revolution in that country, by Gen. Imbert and the leaders of Jiminez's immediate political faction, is not altogether representative of the real population the country. It is now beginning to appear that while the whole nation accepted the revolution, thus rendering a prompt and bloodless success possible, on the tacit understanding that the intolerable incubus of party politics would be permanently moved, securing an American pro-tectorate, Jiminez's party were really working for his personal interests, to the establishment of which they now propose utilizing the victory if they can compass his constitutional election

Rev. F. Eiliott, of Richmond Hill, Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Toronto, Sept. 4 .- Rev. Mr. Elliott, of Richmond Hill, was in this city recent-ly, on his way home from a trip, and was interviewed as to his experience in the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, published some time ago. Mr. Elliott said at that time: "I consider Dodd's Kidney Pills a good reliable medicine for the diseases for which they are rec-ommended. When I hear people com-plain of lame back or Rheumatic plain of lame back or Rheumatic Trouble I always say, 'why don't you take Dodd's Kidney Pills?' I wish to say this testimonial is entirely unsolicited and only 'good will to men' induces me to allow my name to be pubished in this connection." Terrible Death of Michael Powers on a Farm Near Lindsay. Lindsay, Sept. 9.-A terrible threshing machine accident happened on the farm of Edward Costello, a few miles east of the town, by which Michael Powers, a lad of 19 years, lost his life. The young man at the close of the day's work was cleaning up the machinery, when a part of the woodwork he was standing on gave way. He fell into the machine, and went through it, passing out to his fellow-laborers on the top of the stack in a horribly mangled and torn condition. He lived but a few hours.

NO CHANGE GIVEN

[From the London Answers.] A well-known dean of Norwich tells the following good story against him-

Some few weeks ago he came to a stile in a field which was occupied by a farm lad, who was eating his breadand-bacon lunch.

The boy made no attempt to allow his reverence to pass, so was duly lectured for his lack of manners.

"You seem, my lad, to be better fed than taught." "Very like," answered the lad, slic-ing off a piece of bacon, "for ye teaches Oi, but Oi feeds meself."

The trade is absolutely confined to the pit operators, and they chase after an each way as soon as it appears. Until wehave a more decided market one way or the other, it is very apparent that the public will not take hold, and until they do it seems folly to attempt any demonstration on the bull side, although there is everything at the moment to help the price upwards. At this moment the market is strong, but unable to extricate itself from the rut into which it has fallen.

NEW YORK SUMMARY. [Private Wire to Roath Bros. & Co.] New York, Sept. 9.—The London ex-changes closed today. There is considerable anxiety regarding the money market. The bank statement is expected to disclose a large loss of surplus reserve as a result of heavy losses of currency. The treasury may take measures later to prevent money stringency by leaving revenue collections in the banks. Nothing will be done at present, however, as the banks have made no appeal for relief to the treas-

New Manitoba Crop on the Way to Market.

No Exception Anywhere to the Cheering Account of the Magnificent Harvest.

Winnipeg, Sept. 9.-The weekly crop report issued by the Manitoba division the Northern Pacific repeats the hopeful tone of the preceding week. Returns from the various stations on the Brandon and Portage branches are very similar. The wheat crop is entirely cut, without having suffered from frost, although harvesting was delayed a day or so in some places by rain early in the week. The sample and yield is turning out splendidly, as expected. Threshing has commenced. The weather during the week has been unfavorable for harvesting, so that backward fields have not been cut as soon as expected. New wheat is now beginning to move on the C.P.R. Cars are being loaded at Gretna, Morris, Rosenfeldt, Altona and other stations between Winnipeg and Morden. Between fifty and sixty cars of wheat reached Winnipeg this evening. So far about 20 cars of new wheat have been forwarded east of Winnipeg to Fort William.

"Yes, it was a marriage," said George, "and they don't wish it otherwise, either of them; and it's well that it's so turned out." He spoke in a grave, gentle fashion, quite unlike his usual manner, and then said: "I'll go up to Corners and hear the news at once. Good-night Fanny, remember I'm the queen's servant al-ways, always was from the day you told me about her."

Fanny cried when he left her. How could such a tangle come right, and besides, it was difficult to believe that Nella could fail to see how much more Interesting George was than Gerard.

"Look here," said George, mustn't try to think. If you can't go out to Atalanta I'll go instead, and when I come back they'll believe me."

'Yes: you're not to trouble yourself about how I'm going to manage. I'll come back tomorrow and tell you when it's all settled. You've got to go to

George said nothing about his idea when he came downstairs. It had come suddenly into his mind and on to his lips as he stood over Gerard's bed and saw the distress in his face. The line he had to take was suddenly marked out for him. On the next morning he sent off a telegram, with answer prepaid, and when he got the reply went, at the first interval in the morning's work, once more to the schoolhouse.

"Well, Gladwyn, I hope you feel bet-ter for your change?" said the headmaster a little stiffly. 'Yes, I do," said George, "much better. I've got to make you a confidence,

And then and there he told his strange story; "for," he thought, "he won't give me leave unless he knows all about it."

He looked straight at the head-master with his large gray eyes, which had an intense and more compelling power than he knew.

"I feel that I must go," he said.
The headmaster looked at him keeny. Was it all genuine, or was it only a sudden crank, another proof that Gladwyn was eccentric and queer. He looked and George looked back at

"Let me go; and you shan't repent it," he said.

And the headmaster gave way and consented, and George went back to tell Gerard Norman of what he had done. Poor Gerard was incapable of more than murmurs of gratitude. He was in much pain, had passed a restless, feverish night, and even if he had been in full possession of his senses could have given no directions. "since." as he have given no directions, "since," as he said, "I've got nothing to say."

"All right," said George, "you shall hear as soon as possible, but I shan't write till I've something to tell you. Good-bye; don't fret, you'll pull through.

Gerard put his hand into George's and looked at him wistfully.
"I can't think why you do it," he

"Because my finger was always in the pie from the first, and I love managing other people's affairs," said George as he left him.

He did not find that his project was accepted by others with so little com-ment. His mother was both distressed and angry. It was one thing to give up her house and her time to nursing Gerard Norman, and quite another to have her son risk his prospects on his account. She could not think why George wanted to go, and to her he could not confide his reasons. Why not write to Mark?

"Mark was always a duffer." "George, you have no right to say that. Look how Mark is valued by his bishop. He will be sure to be an archdeacon out there, and if he came home any one would give him a living. And you, who have taken so long a time to settle down, to throw up this excellent

Double Lines of Infantry Guard Rennes' Streets.

A Fateful Day for Persecuted Captain Dreyfus.

Last Session of the Court Martial-Mdme. Labori Among the Ladies Present

Rennes, Sept. 9.-The appearance of the streets when Rennes awoke this morning left no doubt in the minds of anyone that the final crisis of the great trial had been reached. Instead of scattered gendarmes guarding the vicinity of the prison and the Lycee, the whole town bristled with soldiers. All the streets near the court were guarded at intervals by double lines of infantry, two companies of infantry sat on the church steps adjoining the Lycee, with their arms stacked in front of them, while in the court yard of the prison and at various other points cavairy could be seen in readiness. Everyone entering the court was subjected to the closest scrutiny. Even the women who attended the session were deprived of their small sunshades before being permitted to pass. A larger crowd than usual witnessed the passage of Dreyfus from the prison to the Lycee. But the crowds were nowhere large, and aside from the presence of the military the town was quiet.

A FATEFUL DAY. The day which was to decide the fate of Dreyfus broke dull and cheerless, and the court room was filled with a cold, unsympathetic light, which lent sadness to the proceedings. This was enhanced by the grave aspect of the audience. The faces of the judges also reflected the solemnity of the oc-

THE SPECTATORS. Baron Russell of Killowen, the lord chief justice of England, was again present. GENDARMES EVERYWHERE. Gendarmes were plentifully seen among the audience, and were posted in the gangways. The silence was only broken by the occasional rustling of a reporter's notebook or the neigh of an artillery horse picketed in a street beside the Lycee. Now and then there was the sound of the rattling of a rifle or the clanking of a sword of some officer hastily crossing the courtyard where the troops were stationed. M. Demange continued his plea until the court suspended its session at 10 o'clock, at which time it was announced that counsel would need another hour to conclude his speech, after which the judges, it was added, would retire to consider their verdict,

The best of all ways of achieving longevity is to be a clergyman. The fact is noted by Dr. Ogle. GRAPE-NUTS.

The Famous Food Luits All Kines of Stomachs,

NEVER UP A NIGHT.

A man in Grand Rapids, Michigan, F. J. Hill, a druggist, discovered that one of the most perfect and safe ways to wean a baby was to begin feeding Grape-Nuts, the famous breakfast

His letter states: "If there is a baby food that is better than Grape-Nuts it must be a dandy. We began feeding our little Carola Grape-Nuts before weaning, and for a few months after it was her only food, and a fatter, more healthy child could not be found. We were never up a night, nor did she have a day's sickness. We didn't re-alize when she gave up the nurse. Consequently we feel grateful for the product called Grape-Nuts, and wish you success."

This coming from a druggist who has access to all the well-known baby foods is somewhat remarkable, but when one realizes that Grape-Nuts are composed of the most nourishing parts of the cereals, treated by heat, time and moisture, without any drugs whatsoever, and thereby with scientific processes, actually pre-digested, in same manner that the human body changes the starch of the cereals into a delicate grape sugar, it is easy to understand why the food can be handled by even a young baby.

It is not only the most powerful nutritive food for athletes and strong men, but, as seen, it is applicable to the most delicate stomachs. This fact has been proven over and over again by use with invalids and weak babies. Add to these nutritious features, the fact that Grape-Nuts is of a most delicious favor, the grape sugar to be seen glistening on the little granules. versal and enormous sale of the new

The children are in possession of the Western Fair today. They practically opened the fair. Although the gates were closed and the regular admission charged yesterday, there were few visitors besides the exhibitors and employes. In most of the departments, including the main building, exhibits were still being rushed into place. By tonight, however, nearly every department will be complete. The apiary, dairy, agricultural and horticultural departments, which are now in one magnificent cruciform building, or group of buildings, are al-ready complete. The interior effect, with the striking arrangement of the various displays, is exceedingly beau-

Mr. Wm. Gammage, the well-known florist, who is one of the judges in Agricultural Hall, says the drought has to some extent affected the number of the vegetable exhibits, but the quality is quite up to the standard. In the dairy department, Mr. A. F. McLaren, M.P., was busy yesterday afternoon judging cheese. The exhibit was rather smaller than usual, but the quality had never been so fine, he said. Mr. McLaren added that Toronto had nothing in the way of fair buildings to compare with the combined agricultural, horticultural and dairy buildings of the Western, nor with the magnificent machinery hall. The transportation building is simply crowded with exhibits, including an unusually large number of interesting novelties. Ball bearings and rubber tires are largely in evidence.

Much of the stock will not be in place until tonight, but the number of entries indicate the largest horse show in the history of the fair.

BIGGEST OX ON EARTH. The Mammoth White Ox, "Fergus," the property of Messrs. John Black and Andrew Shortreed, of Fergus, will be on exhibition at the Fair grounds, in London, on Monday and the following days, till the close of the Fair. This wonderful bovine was bred and fed at Ox Bow, N. W. T., until he was five years old, when he was brought to Fergus, county of Wellington, some two years ago. He stands 6 feet high, is 12 feet long, girths 12 feet 2 inches, and weighs no less than 3,870 pounds. At the Industrial Exhibition, where he has been on view for the past ten days, he was admired by thousands of all classes of citizens, from the laborer to the elite of society. Men and women, boys and girls, one and all, were loud in their praise and admiration for this gigantic animal. Many persons, after seeing him, brought their friends to in-spect this mountain of beef. Don't fail to see him. It is no fake or humbug.

OAK HALL. There is one exhibit at the Western Fair that every visitor will see. It would be quite as easy to miss seeing the main building itself. The display in question is that made by the Oak Hall. It is located near the center of the main building, and is enclosed in a handsome plate glass structure 10 feet square by 14 feet high. While the walls are of plate glass the roof is, appropriately enough, of quartered oak. So much for the shell. The most interesting part is the kernel. Oak Hall does not exactly set the fashions in men's and boy's clothing. The men who get up the fashion plates attend to that. But Oak Hall is never a day behind the New York and London fashions. The range of material and cut included in the Oak Hall display gives the visitor to the fair the best possible idea as to what is the cor-rect thing for fall and winter wear. A feature worth noting, too, is that styles, which will be delightful to the

All who love music will find their attention rapt and their feelings wrought upon as they listen to S. Mazurette's skillful manipulations of the piano, over which he has acquired complete mastery. Don't fail to visit Bert Williams' stand and hear S. Mazurette play his beautiful selections on the R. S. Williams celebrated and superior grand piano. This will give the visitors a rare opportunity to hear fine music on an instrument which deserves the highest honors, as the Williams piano does. Saturday evening, Sept. 9, at 8 o'clock, Mr. Mazurette will render some brilliant, sparkling and classic selections at Williams' Music Store, 171 Dundas street.

Shrewd Surmises BIG STRIKE

Regarding the Decision of the Transvaal has now resumed a practical tone, and the Afrikanders are ex-British Cabinet.

No Ultimatum for the Transvaal at Present,

But a "Strong Hint" and a Body of 10,000 Soldiers.

The Council Was Unanimous in Its Conclusions.

Resolution of the Raad to Appeal to the Queen-Aspect More Peaceful.

London, Sept. 9.-The Pall Mail Gazette says: No official account has been issued of the cabinet meeting, and it is highly probable that one will be permitted to appear. From authoritative sources, who are in a position to state in what we believe to be substantial accuracy the result of their momentous deliberations, there is every reason to believe Mr. Chamberlain's dispatches were found to contain a telling exposition of the British case, with a point blank refusal to entertain the Boer proposal that England should relinquish suzerainty over the Transvaal, and a pertinent reminder that the offer of a joint inquiry into the franchise proposals cannot remain open indefinitely. Though not an ultimatum in form, the dispatch will be one in effect, since it may be expected to contain a strong hint that no answer will be accepted which is evasive or unfavorable in any essential condi-

UNANIMOUS.

The cabinet council was marked by absolute unanimity, and, in spite of a lack of information and the presence of much corroborative evidence that the situation is scarcely less strained, there is no sign of any intention to convene parliament, and no immediate necessity exists to call out the reserves. It is General Impression That Dreyprobable, however, that the appeals from the government of Natal will result in the dispatch of a large body of troops from England and India to

Natal and Cape Colony. The Daily Chronicie avers that Lord Salisbury's moderating influence was felt throughout the council. This is exceedingly probable, but in any case the cabinet was unanimous in favor of Mr. Chamberlain's sending a strong dispatch demanding a categorical swer to the proposals of Sir Alfred Milner, submitted to the Bloemfontein

It is understood that the result of the cabinet meeting established these facts: Parliament will not be summoned. The reserves will not be called out. Ten thousand troops will be sent to South Africa. A representative of the Assoclated Press learns that a strongly worded dispatch has been sent to the Transvaal, which will be published here immediately on its delivery there. THE RAAD'S RESOLUTION.

Pretoria, Sept. 8.-In the First Raad yesterday morning debate was resumed on the interpellation of the government respecting the concentration of British troops on the border and the stoppage of ammunition consigned to the Transvaal. The house adjourned shortly before noon, after passing unanimously the following resolution: "The Volksraad, having considered that friendly correspondence is still passing between the two governments, that the concentration of troops in great numbers near the border has a detrimental and restless effect on the inhabitants of the state; and that the Transvaal has lived in friendship and peace with all nations and desires to live in such friendship and peace, now declares its regret at the fact of concentration and expresses the opinion that in the case of eventualities which might lead to enmity or war between the two governments, the cause would not lie with the rapublic.

"As regards the stoppage of ammunition at Delagoa Bay, the Volksraad trusts that the government will act according to circumstances.

The raad further resolved to drop the matter of the concentration of troops on the border for the present, until the government shall supply ther reinforcements to the raad, although the information obtained unsatisfactory. Nevertheless, and with a view to the result of the negotiations which are pending, the raad declares itself determined in the meantime to maintain the rights and independence of the republic.

fus Will Be Condemned.

Complete Vindication of the Accused From German Official Sources.

Rennes, Sept. 8.—That Captain Dreyfus will be condemned is the almost universal opinion heard in Rennes tonight. Hitherto there had always been a divergence, but now both camps, the Dreyfusards and the anti-Dreyfusards, seem unanimous in the conviction that the verdict will go against him. Upon just what this is based and the precise reason for the conclusion are a mystery, but there is no disguising the fact that from I.I. Labori down to the numerous Dreyfusards who crowd the hotels and velopments, nothing further will be cafes, and who, last night, were still hopeful that Dreyfus would be saved, all seem now to agree chance is gone.

ONE SOURCE OF HOPE. The one source of hope is M. Labori himself, who said this evening .: "We fear that Capt. Dreyfus will be condemned, but we don't intend to throw up the sponge. We shall go on fighting for him."

M. Jaures, the Socialist leader, and other prominent Dreyfusards, expressed a similar opinion. Excitement is at fever heat, and nothing is discussed but the verdict of the morrow. The military precautions are of the most elaborate character, and no attempt at disorder is likely to have the slightest success. Orders have been issued to repress the first symptoms of trouble with an iron hand.

EFFECT OF VON BUELOW'S SPEECH.

The news of the publication of Count Von Buelow's speech in the Reichszanzeiger reached Rennes tonight. and is considered very important on the eve of a verdict, which, in some quarters, it is thought, will be regarded as a slight by Germany if it be a condemnation, as being tantamount to a public refusal to take the word of Emperor William, as his minister is merely his mouthpiece.

According to the latest dispatch the verdict may be delivered between 3 and 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the court adjourning after M. De-mange's speech until 3 o'clock.

A CHARGE REFUTED. Berlin, Sept. 8.-The Reichszanzeiger ly observing the reserve demanded in the French Captain Dreyfus. For the preservation of his own dignity and the fulfillment of a duty to humanity, Prince Von Munster, arter obtaining the orders of the emperor, repeatedly made in December, 1894, and in January, 1895, to M. Hanotaux, M. Dupuy, and M. Casimir-Perier, declarations to the effect that the imperial embassy France never maintained either or indirectly any relations with Drevfus." Secretary of State Von Buelow, in the reichstag, Jan. 24, 1898, made the following statement: clare in the most positive manner that no relations or connections of kind ever existed between the French ex-Capt. All dairy products, all kinds of building materials, except brick, most of the raw textiles, notably wool, silk, flax and cotton goods, except print cloths, also moved upward. Compared with September a year ago, nearly two-thirds of all staples are higher and less than one-third are lower. Comparing as they do with the 374 Dundas street. low water wheat stocks held one year ago at this date, present visible wheat supplies show an immense increase in the world's total, as reported by cable and telegraph, to Bradstreet's, on or about Sept. 1, being 125,061,000 bushels more than double the quantity held one year ago, and nearly double that held at the same date in 1897. All signs point to profitable conditions in railroad affairs. Reports to year ago. Bank clearings reflect one holiday in a reduced total as compared with last week, and the aggregate for the week is $1.371,052,000, a decrease of 5 per cent from last week, but a gain of 24 per cent over the same week of 1898 and 1897.

R. G. Dun's review says: In spite of more warlike news from South Africa, the Bank of England behaves as if the worst possible had been fully provided for, and this country has no reason to fear trouble from that source. The marketing of domestic produce, both farm and manufactured, continues surprisingly large for the season.

Preparations for other woollen combinations affect the market for goods somewhat, which is, nevertheless, strong, although some irregularities market is much less active than of late, and while prices are stiff, manufacturers are buying only for immedineeds.

Paid Well From the First-Triumph

Over Mature's Porces.

[Washington Star.] On the 26th day of May, 1898, the apcat Mountains presented their primeval trees and shut in by gray walls of chaos and silence. Over an icy trail great height. an endless line of dumb, determined argonauts plodded their weary way. On the 27th of that month the silence of ages awoke; the granite hills mite, pushed out from the head waters of Lynn Canal, leaving two shining lines of steel in their wake. Other railroads have conquered greater heights, others have spanned wider chasms, but for rapidity of construction in the dead of Arctic winter, over an almost in-purmountable mountain range, the White Pass and Yukon Railway must stand in conspicuous pre-emin-

As the grade neared the granite wall a mile high, and the snows filled ev-ery cut and canyon, even the hardy "packers" said that the contraction gang must surely tie up until spring; but the indomitable officers and en-gineers of this plucky road were not built on that plan. Overcoming every obstacle in the face of supposed impossibilities, from 10 to 40 feet of snow was removed, the roadbed hewn from the granite cliffs, and a train pulled galiantly to the summit, twenty and four-tenth miles from and 2,800 feet above the starting point, in less than nine months from the day when the first line peg was driven.

In the spring of last year President

S. H. Graves arrived in New York. In his vest pocket, so to speak, he carried the sole possessions of this arctic thoroughfare, viz.: charters from the English government granting right of way over British territory from a point near Lake Bennett to Dawson. Right of way had already been granted by the United States government over the boundary line. Armed with these docu-ments Mr. Graves started for Alaska, arriving in April. It seems incredible that in so short a space of time im-mense quantities of railroad material could be purchased and shipped three-fourths of the way from New York to the north pole, and that in the same weeks should witness the discovery and association of as splendid a corps of civil engineers as ever sighted a sextant or made war upon nature-yet such is the fact.

When one has traveled these stubbornly contested miles in the open cab shot around c curves, dashed through snow drifts into tunnels and out again upon slender bridges, hung upon narrow benchesmere miches in the perpendicular-bade defiance to glacfer, moraine and avalanche, and then stood upon the summit of White Pass in the teeth of a howling blizzard, one forgets the capitalist in his velvet-carpeted office, even the president in his private car, and turns with frank admiration to the little band of nervy, keen-witted fellows, the construction engineers, who, with their 2,000 men, have defied and conquered the allied forces of Olym-

INVESTMENT PAID FROM THE FIRST.

The general name covering the whole system is the "White Pass and Yukon Route," but this is merely a caption, and covers three distinct charters. From Skaguay to the international boundary line, 28 miles, the road will be officially known as the "Pacific and Arctic Railway and Navigation Company." The majority of the stock is held by Americans, or at least in the name of Americans. The next division, which is now under construction, crosses British Columbia, and is to be called the "British Columbia Yukon Railway Company." The last division will traverse the Northwest Territory, and is to be known as the "British Yukon Mining Trading and Transportation Company." The stock covering the British divisions is mostly held in London and Montreal.

The road has been carrying freight and passengers as far as Glacier Station, about five miles from the summit, for several months. During February the receipts from the freight depart-ment alone were $3,700 per day, and those of the passenger department $600. Indeed, since the 1st of January the receipts from the fifteen miles of completed road have equaled the pay roll expenditure, including a construction gang of between 1,000 and 2,000 men. Now that freight and passengers can be landed at the top of the dreaded pass, Mr. Gray anticipates that the receipts will be doubled.

Yet this fine showing is not obtained by reason of exorbitant rates. Before the railroad was projected the "packers" were charging 60 cents per hundred pounds to the summit, with no guarantee for safe delivery. The railway charges 2 cents per hundred pounds and insures against loss and damage. While this seems a ridiculously low rate, Mr. Gray laughingly teen miles was the transcontinental rate for a haul of 2,396 miles between New York and San Francisco.

"We have," said he, "hundreds of tons of freight awaiting transportation to the interior. With present facilides we cannot handle all that is presented, but just as soon as our new lo-comotives arrive, which have been specially constructed for mountain work, we shall land freight on the headquarters of the Yukon 12 hours after its arrival in Skaguay."

He pointed out of the window as he spoke, to a long line of freight cars, containing an indescribable jumble of timbers and machinery. "No," said this keen young traffic manager, "that is not the wreck of Barnum's circus, but four great river steamers in transis, but knocked down. They are the equals in every respect to the best on the Missispi. Long before navigation opens we shall have our road completed to Lake Bennett, where these steamers will be launched, to operate in close connection with our trains, upon the

Takec and Upper Yukon."
"When this is done, what will be the time between New York and Dawson?" And the astonishing reply was, "Four-toen days." That Mr. Gray's schedule graphs."

is correct is beyond dispute. A journey that one year ago could not be made in less than two months, and then only under circumstances of great fatigue and peril, can now be made with comfort in as many weeks. Here

New York to Seattle, 4½ days.
Seattle to Skaguay, 5 days.
Skaguay to Lake Bennett, via White
Pass and Yukon Railway, 3 hours.
Lake Bennett to White Horse Rapids by steamer, 2 days. Around rapids by horse cars, 3 hours. White Horse Rapids to Dawson, 2

Total, 13 days 18 hours. Like the Panama Railway, this steel nexus of 30 miles saves an ocean voy age of thousands, or a journey on foot both dangerous and exhausting.

TRAVELING THROUGH LIQUID AIR. For the first five miles the road fol-lows the Skaguay River, traversing a flat valley, possibly a mile wide, floored with water-washed boulders scattered proaches to the White Pass of the Chil- through a thin growth of cottonwood

For a fourth of this distance the log cabins and board shanties of the town of Skaguay spread out like a fan. Then comes the climb of Porcupine Hill, a sharp promontory jutting out into the valley from the north. Winding in and shook under the explosion of tons of and out of its irregular face on a three glant powder, and 1,000 laborers, armed and nine-tenths grade, an hour's climbwith bar and barrow, drill and dyna- ing brings the train to the top and outer edges of this ridge, 1,000 feet

Here, with the forked head of the Lynn Canal lying like a chain of Alpine takes in the offing, begins a series of landscapes, which must certainly attract tourisis by the thousands as soon as their loveliness and grandeur become known. California and Colorado must look well to their laurels, for with Mount McKinley, 1,000 feet higher than any other peak on the American continent, and now the glorious scen-ery of the White Pass unlocked to the luxury-loving traveler, Baedecked will do well to give Alaska a special and early edition of his guide book.

Five miles farther and we draw up to Glacier Station, attached like a Swiss chalet to the rugged side of a mountain. Here the first snow obstruction is encountered. The heavy coach is uncoupled, and the Klondikers, shouldering their packs, take to the trail. A large force of men had been strung along the line to keep the track clear, but, to do their best, the snow in some places drifted in faster than they could remove it. Nearing the summit we bucked into a great white bank, which had slid down from the heights above. Retreating, we tried it again. With sand box open and escape valve blowing the engineer threw her "wide open, and away went the locomotive like a mad bull with its head down. A dull thud, a deluge of snow, and the engine stopped midway through the drift with wheels awhirl. Another "run for strip of American territory lying be-it," and we are through with a rush, tween the sea and the international and out upon the creaking and trembling trestle. Here the science and skill of the constructing engineer is put to its severest test. One month ago this gorge was level full of snow. Shovels had first cleared the way and tossed the white blocks down the mountain side; then came the rock men to prepare the foundation with drill and dynamite, during the weather so bitter cold that the hospital tents were filled with frost-bitten men. Then the slender timbers were lifted to the level of the grade and the rails laid across.

COST OF BUILDING. As I saw Mr. Flood lean from the cab and keenly watch every support as we passed over, I thought of Kipling's "Bridge Builders." Would it stand the test? Not of the roaring Ganges, but of the bucking, panting, sentient engines. Above, the almost perpendicular cliffs, down which men had dangled from ropes while cutting the first grade: below, the scarred, hungry ribs of granite, the interstices filled with glaciers in miniature. But-we passed in safety. The builder's calculations had been as true as his timbers. Another mile and we drove through a tunnel under the backbone of the last ridge; and, following the contcur of a natural amphitheater, stopped before a long line of tents half-buried in snow. From one floated the Stars and Stripes, and from its nearest neighbor the Union Jackbetween passed the international boundary line. We were at the summit of White Pass.

The cost of the road so far has been about $25,000 per mile. It is narrowgauge, 56-pound rais being used. There are more curves than straight lines. accidents are inevitable. But few have been the fatalities, considering the danger of the work and the severity of the weather. Two men lie beneath an immense block of granite too large to be moved. Others have died from pneumonia and from freezing.

Speaking of these things, one of the engineers told me that he believed no-thing short of divine interposition saved him and his men from an awful death last November. A charge of giant powder had been tamped home and the warning signal given. He and his assistants stepped behind an 18-inch tree, supposing that the blast would be of the usual force where 100 pounds of explosive is used. For some reason the spark machine failed to ignite the fuse-a most unusual occurrence. After waiting a sufficient period the engineer examined the batteries, and found that instead of 100 pounds the workmen had er distance, the spark machine was again operated, this time successfully. The impact was terrific. Twenty-five and thrown into the air. One piece, measuring 20 feet by 30, struck the tree behind which the party had first stood. shattering it like a pipe-stem.

> "It is estimated that during the last year 6,000,000,000 pieces of mail matter, Eddy informed the public that "persons including all classes, were posted in the United States," writes Patti Lyle Collins in The Ladies' Home Journal for September. "Of this number, 6,-312,731 were sent to the dead-letter office, making an average receipt of about 21,000 letters and parcels for working day. During this period more than 85,000 pieces were dispatched either with insufficient postage or none at all, 32,000 bore no address whatever, 34,000 were misdirected, 200,000 were unclaimed at hotels, and something more than the last number to fictitious addresses. And to these figures must be added 2.973,387 letters and circulars without inclosures of obvious value which could not be turned to the senders and were de-stroyed. More than 50,000 letters contained money amounting to $38,595, while 32,422 included drafts, money orders, etc., to the value of $945 000

Interesting Discussion of the Subject in N. Y. Outlook.

As there is a good deal of talk in the world just now about metaphysical healing, the following letter, and editorial reply, from the New York Outlook, may supply a few minutes' reading:

THE LETTER.

To the Editors of The Outlook: Referring to your late article on Metaphysical Healing, is it not per-fectly clear from the reading of the numerous medical bills presented, that suppression rather than regulation, so far as Christian Science is concerned, is the real and determined purpose of those who support them?

If, as you claim, Christian Science healing constitutes "medical practice," why should not its duly accredited representatives enjoy the same recognition accorded the representation of other schools?

On the other hand, if Christian Science healing does not constitute "medical practice," it must be recognized as a religious exercise which is privileged and protected by the most sacred declarations of the constitution.

Prayer for the healing of the sick

has always been a direct feature of religious faith, and it has never been thought of as "medical practice," or in any way objected to until it became so definite in its purpose and so mark-ed in its beneficent results, as to be brought into competition with other means of cure which for so long a time have monopolized the business; and this matter of competition mani-festly explains the anxiety and interest of the medical fraternity.

When sincere Christian people assert their privilege and duty to heal "all manner of diseases" in themselves and in others, so far as their aid is solicited, as Christ healed them, and as he repeatedly commanded his followers to heal, it would seem they are not overstepping the liberty which is guaranteed to every type of falth. In our statement that the community has the right and the duty to afford protection to little children against the neglect of their parents, it seems to be tacitly assumed that mental treatment is no treatment at all!—which is a palpable begging of the question. As conceded by the most eminent representatives of all schools of therapeutics, these schools are not scientific but empirical, and no one need leave home to find abundant evidence not only of blundering diagnosis and experiment, but of the pitiful inade-quacy of these systems at their best. On the other hand, Christian Scientists challenge investigation as to the efficacy of their method, and stand ready to give proofs that unnumbered cases of chronic disease pronounced incurable have been healed. It becomes, therefore, a very serious questions as to what constitutes Christian Scientists have reached the profoundest conviction that to ignore mental treatment and administer drugs is to be culpably ne-glectful of the body, as well as untrue to the best understanding of Biblical teaching. To interdict their privilege under these circumstances becomes a very serious infringment of that free-dom of faith and individual liberty in which our institutions are grounded. Further, this protest and persecution comes, not from the people, but from limited classes-physicians and ministers-whose worldly interests are affected, in greater or less degree, by the rapid growth of this "new-old faith." That the doctors are especially sensitive on this point is seen in the associated efforts of all the warring factions of materia medica to serepressive legislation in the interest of a common weal. Your financial statement regarding the matter is gratifying to all lovers of freedom and fair play. In view of the unnumbered instances of wonderful cure ef-fected, in view of the sanity and sincerity of the great body of its repre-sentatives, and in view of the emphasis it lays upon the teaching and practice of Jesus Christ and the ideal of personal purity and unselfishness which he presented to men, is it not more than manifest that Christian Science does not and cannot "endanger the health, and well-being of the com-munity," but will aid in that war munity. against the sensual and the material to which all Christian and all other high-minded efforts is committed?

correspondent in another column makes as strong a case as, in our judgment, can be made for the doctrine that Christian Scientists should be allowed by the state to practice their healing art on the hypothesis that disease is only a mortal thought and can be cured by thinking. The question thus raised is a large one, and involves the whole problem of the relation of law to liberty.

In most modern communities principle is recognized that the state has a right to regulate all employments which, for any reason, involve a hazard put in 1,800 pounds. Retiring to a great- to the community. On this principle, the state, at least in many cases, regulates the sale of dynamite, gunpowder, poisons, and alcoholic liquors; on this hundred yards of rock was dislodged principle it forbids men to practice law or medicine, to put up drugs for the sick, or to act as pilots or engineers, without previous special education and training, attested by an official examination. In our judgment, these prohibiting provisions might well be tended to plumbers and motormen, per-haps to other employments. We see no reason why Christian Scientists should claim exemption from this general Electric Bells. principle of law.

In New York State, to practice the healing art a course of special instruc-tion is required by law, which necessi-tates ordinarily three years at the least. The curriculum in the Christian Science College, when there was one, lasted three weeks, and involved twelve lessons of one-half day each. Mrs. contemplating a course at the Massachusetts Metaphysical College can prepare for it through no books except the Bible and 'Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures.' " Ought the state to allow anyone to set up as a healer on the basis of twelve lessons. occupying three months, and embracing only two books? We reply unhesitatingly in the negative. Suppose a Mormon were to set up as a pilot, claim divine guidance, and insist on his right to take steamships in and out of New York harbor on the strength of his proficiency in the Book of Mormon, would it be a violation of the liberty of the individual to prohibit him, and to put him in jail if he persisted? Yet the danger to the community from incompetent pilotage of an ocean steamer would not be so great as the peril from incompetent treatment of certain contagious diseases. Nor does this beg the question of assuming that Christian Science is incompetent treatment of first cabin, $47.50 and upwards. Second cabin, $250. Steerage, $22.50 and $26.50. New York to Glasgow. First cabin, $47.50 and upwards. Second cabin $250. Steerage, $22.50 and $26.50. New York to Glasgow. First cabin, $47.50 and upwards. Second cabin $250. Steerage, $23.50. Reduction on first and second cabin return tickets. Lomion agents—E. De is Hooke, T. R. Parker, F. B. Clarke. claim divine guidance, and inment. We do not assume that it is incompetent; we assume that the community has a right to determine whether it is competent or not.

Nor does this position deny the right of a Christian Scientist to go without a doctor, or even to avail himself of a mental healer. It denies the right of a mental healer. It denies the right of the mental healer to practice his mental healing as a profession for pay. And it is idle to assume, as is sometimes done, that the mental healers do not practice mental healing for pay. Mrs. Eddy tells us that pay is itself a help in the healing. "Christian Science," she says, "demonstrates that the natient who pays whatever he is the patient who pays whatever he is able to pay for being healed is more apt to recover than he who withholds a slight equivalent for health." The healer prescribes no drug for the pa-tient, but he prescribes a fee for him-

Nor does the fact that the mental healer prescribes no drugs take him out of the category of professional physicians. The practice of medicine does not consist in the prescription of drugs. In many cases no drugs are prescribed.
The practice of medicine consists in a knowledge of the body and the laws which regulate the functions, and of such counsel to the patient based on that knowledge as will enable him to comply with those laws. Sometimes it involves prescription of medicine to aid; sometimes its consists wholly of advice what food to eat and what bodily habits to maintain. Anyone who under-takes for pay to heal disease is a medical practitioner, whether he adminis-ters drugs or not, whether he calls himself allopath, homeopath, eclectic or mental healer, whether he calls the trouble which he is called in to remedy a disease or a mental thought. We hold, then, that the state has a right and a duty to determine, by such tests as it chooses to prescribe, who is competent to practice the healing art, and that mental healers ought not to be permitted to practice mental healing as a profession and for pay until they persuade the community that disease is a mortal thought, and that it is an adequate remedy to pay the healer's fee and think unmortal thoughts. Even then such mental practitioners should be required to pursue such courses of study and submit to such tests as the community chooses to pre-

The Trans-Siberian Road Will Revolutionize Asia.

Of immense Importance to Trade-Siberia a Rich Country.

' It is being realized gradually that the constructtion of the great Trans-Biberain railroad, from the Ural mountains across the continent of Asia to the Pacific coast, while it will be of very great strategic value to Russia, will be of still greater and more farreaching importance in the development and enrichment of Russia's vast leading part in the commercial expansion of interior China. In building the development of Russia's Asiatic possessions, and that England is best and but the commercial expansion of interior China. In building Russia's Asiatic possessions, and that England is best able to furnish it, brings it within the region of possessions, and that England and region of possessions, and that England is best able to furnish it, brings it within the this great continental railroad Rusthis great continental railroad Russia is following Canada's example and Russia may sink their old quarrels the Trans-Sterian line, when it is and prejudices and form a business the Trans-Sterian line, when it is completed, will become an opponent of the C. P. R. in the transportation of tea, silk, furs and other oriental commodities which now pass through Win-world's peace and welfare.

The Trans-Siberian railroad, according to the original plans, from Chelabeen 4,728 miles in length. But as arrangements have been made by which will traverse Chinese territory in part, the total length has been reduced to 4,387 miles. The line is being built in sections and considerably more than half of it has already been given over to traffic. The cost of the whole vast project is estimated at upwards of $225,000,000. of which sum three-fourths have already been provided by the Russian government. It is expected that by next year there will be direct communication between the Russian Saltic ports and the Pacific by rail and steamer, and that in five years' time the railroad will be completed throughout the whole distance. The difficulties encountered in constructing the line are described as being on an immense scale, bridges and tunnels being necessary in great num-

Hitherto the Russian peasantry have regarded Siberia as a land of death and desolation, a vast prison house.
All that is changed now, and the cry throughout Russia today is "On to Siberia!" Vast tracts of land in Sibera have been offered free to the peas-antry in the comparatively densely populated districts of the south of Rus-sia, where famine after famine has occurred, and there seemed no means of alleviating the annual suffering without permanent government aid. The newly-opened portion of the Trans-Siberian railroad has furnished the way out of the difficulty. Every facility has been offered by the government to the peasantry of the southern district to me to Siberia and those with trict to go to Siberia, and there, with the richer soil, a larger holding of land, and a better climate, embrace an opportunity of making himself, if not rich, at least above abject poverty. So eagerly have the new settlers crowded into Siberia that the difficulty which the administration of Siberia experi-ences at the present time is how to survey and lay out land proportionately to the requirements of the incoming rush of population.

Hitherto travelers who have visited Siberia and written about their travels cars—the idea being to realize a hand-have devoted themselves to descrip- some dwelling on wheels—compact, entions of the convict system, which is closed from end to end, and affording now being done away with. A hundred and a hundred to be in the hands of the Hudson's and fifty is a present total which it Bay Company. These Siberian "merchants' adventurers" conserved and monopolized Siberian manufactures and industries. No one attempted to enter the field against them. The remoteness of the country, the absurd reports of the unsafe conditions, the untrue, highly-painted descriptions of the rigors of its winters and the general want of knowledge regarding the character of the inhabitants, all combined to prevent enterprise from entering Siberia. But now these great Siberian merchants, who have grown enormously wealthy by reason of their monopolies-in the tea trade, in gold mining, in furs in provisions, in the handling of acricultural implements, and so forth-are no longer in sole possession of the field. The mineral wealth of the country In gold, iron and coal, is described as enormous. Mr. R. L. Jefferson, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, in an article in "Commercial Intelliof London, says that he has personal knowledge of some of the richest gold-producing districts in Siberia, and that in every case the mines are worked by primitive methods, and machinery is practically unknown. The securing by Russia of the right to build be main line of the Trans-Siberian railroad across Manchuria to Port Arthur thus providing an icefree port on the Pacific, is a matter of the greatest economic importance in connection with the tea, silk and other trades. The Chinese look to the new railroad to benefit their national industry, the consumption of Chinese tea in eastern Europe having dwindled greatly in recent years mainly owing to its high price, caused primarily by monopolized freight rates.

Some years ago, when the Siberian merchants who held the great monopolies opposed the project of a Trans-Siberian railroad and petitioned Siberian railroad and petitioned against it, a deputation of lesser Siberian merchants, who were anxious for the railroad, gathered at the great

Col. Caldwell lives at Syracuse, N. Y., and tells of his remarkable experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the following letter:

"For the good of the community I volunteer this testimonial to the wonderful value of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I used them for nearly one year for urinary troubles, kidney air-ments, torpid liver and constipation. I never before met with such a mild and ficacious laxative. RAILWAY CARS

Both Great Canadian Systems Busy Turning Them Out.

[Montreal Witness.1 The "growing time" is well examplified by the activity in the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railway shops, both locally and all over the systems as well as in the increases to the rolling stock which the Intercolonial Railway is constantly ordering. The C. P. R. are rushing freight cars at the local and Perth shops at the rate of fifteen per day, and even this will scarcely meet the need, while the Grand Trunk has not been able, at any time during the past three years, to obtain all the freight cars needed. No doubt the C. P. R. has the monopoly of the northwest wheat crop, to handle which expeditiously is one of the greatest problems with which the management of the latter has had to deal, but the Grand Trunk is obtain-ing a great deal of business by way of Midland, while the extraordinary business activity all through Ontario the best portions of which the system has tapped, has resulted in most gratifying increases of earnings over previous periods. The Intercolonial feels the growing time more in pas-senger travel than in freight transportation. The industrial and commercial conditions are so favorable all over the continent that holiday travel has become almost universal; and as the government passes through probably the most attractive portion of the Dominion it has received a large ac-cession of business—Americans particularly patronizing the road. indeed, travel has not been so brisk in a general way for many years, and never bump against a mirror. large excursion parties reach the city almost every day from points in the United States. Garter King, the chief officer of the college, will make the proclamation in solemn form, with the earl marshal, the knights, the heralds and the pursuivants in full uniform and mounted hard by. At this proclamation the monarch is present, sitting at the window where all his predecessors have sat.

That is the chiefest of the proclama-

The old form was for the junior pursuivant to rap at the gate and show his warrant for proclamation. Then the lord mayor ordered the gates to be opened, and joined in the stately procession. The ceremony will doubtless remain, barring the knock at the gate, which does not exist. In the provinces the proclamations are made by the done. But the king no longer does his own fighting. He has a champion, the hereditary champion of England, whose duty it is to do battle with all comers for the crown. The champion is always a member of the Dymoke family. When the king is crowned is always a member of the Dymoke family. When the king is crowned this champion rides to Westminster Hall, mounted and in full armor, just as the champion was 600 years ago. He is accompanied by the earl marshal and the lord great chamberlain, also on horseback. The hall is crowded with ticketed sight-seers. A proclamation is read by one of the heralds, challenging anybody who disputes the right of the sovereign to combat in an open space. The champion throws down his gauntlet as a guarantee of an open space. The champion throws down his gauntlet as a guarantee of good faith, and then the hearts of all the ladies flutter in anticipation of a fight. But it is all a disappointing sham. If some enterprising person were to take up the challenge and the gauntlet he would probably be run in by the police for creating a disturbance. The herald takes up the glove and hands it back to the champion, and then the king is firmly seated on the throne,—London Mail.

THE CAT MARKET

Increasing Demand for Angoras-The Supply Running Low,

There were larger shipments of cats from Maine the past year than for any season previous, there being over 6,400 cats shipped out of the state, going to all parts of the United States and exported to foreign countries. One concern alone, the Walnut Ridge Farm Company, of Boston, sent 986 Angoras, Frederick D. Nudd, of Waterville, 486; Mr. Emory, of North Anson, 379; Mrs. Mary H. Rawlett, of Rockland, 114; James W. Dean, of Troy, 419, besides many others. Bésides this large shipment of Angoras there are now over 14,860 Angora cats remaining in various sections of Maine. It is estimated that there are only 32,-500 Angora cats in America, compared with several million common cats.

"It's a singular fact," said the man in the show business to a New Orleans Times-Democrat reporter, "that illusions, as we call 'em, don't fool animals. I've seen that proved over and over again. A few years ago I had what is known as a 'mystic maze' at the Nashville Exposition. It was simply a small room filled with mirrors so arranged that you seemed to be in a narrow corridor full of turns. It was very puzzling, and I used to get lost in the place myself, but it never bothered my dog a moment. He would run through it from end to end at full speed and

WEAR ARMOR

Light Chain Mail Made for Many a Millionaire.

An English Manufacturer Reveals & Peculiar Secret.

"Do any people wear armor nowadays?" said the London manager of great Sheffield manufacturing firm, repeating a question put to him by a writer for an English paper. Certainly they do I wonder the point has not been raised before. The reason, probably, is that very few persons have any idea how common it is among certain classes to protect the body by a fine coat of mail. The manufacturing of steel vests is almost entirely in our hands, and, therefore, I am in a position to give you reliable information, and can assure you that the wearing of armor among military men, states-men and others is not at all uncommon.

"Of course, the armor made nowa days is nothing like what it was when it was generally worn in the army. It is a light chain mail, allowing of perfectly free movements and perspiration, and weighs very little inleed. Probably, when a men has worn a mail coat for a week or two, he gets quite used to it, and would suffer no inconvenience whatever from it.

"I could tell you the names of between 20 and 30 officers now serving in the Soudan who have had coats of mail made by us. Of course, these coats would not turn a bullet, nor prevent the penetration of a dagger or sword, but they are as strong as it is possible to make them, and would probably turn a sword or dagger that was driven at long reach, and a spent bullet would not affect them in the slightest de-

"I can't give you a very definite idea of how many military men wear armor, for you see one coat of mail will last many years, especially in these peaceful days, and, therefore, what orders we have had are spread over many years. But I can tell you that in the last five years we have received upward of 900 orders for light armor.

'We recently received orders from four well-known American millionaires, for the Americans, like the rest of the world, know that in our steel productions we beat every nation. Millionaires in America have considerable reason for protecting themselves. What with anarchy and socialism, a corrupt police, and many other dangers, it is really quite a dangerous thing just now to be a well-known millionaire in America. I should say that all the largest Yankee millionaires wear armor.
"Then some of our statesmen protect themselves in the same manner. When Fenianism was at its zenith there was hardly a prominent man in politice who did not. Even in these pacific times no less than four members of the government have had coats of mail made for them by us, and we know for an absolute fact that one of these gentlemen never goes out in London without his mail, unless he is accompanied by detectives.

lionaires have suits of mail, but as there is no nation in the world so ble or so free from the taint revolutionary proclivities, I doubt much that they are ever worn. They are on hand merely for an emergency. I should think. The anarchy scare hardly affected us in England, although it was here that the anarchists had their headquarters. A few nervous persons and prominent men, who would be the first game of the anarchists, took the precaution of wearing armor for some time, but the cases were not many. It is quite different in America and on the continent. The wearing of mail is quite common in those parts, very much more so than one would suppose.'

Questions Answered.

D. C., Melbourne.-A mail carrier has been engaged to carry a certain resident's mail and deliver at residence daily while on regular route, and postmaster is notified of same. Could said postmaster hold back any letters (not registered) from being delivered as aforesaid, to said resident, saying he would be held responsible if such letters were lost? Ans.—Yes, unless he is given an order in writing to deliver the resident's letters to the mail carrier. The resident is not bound to ap-ply personally for his letters, but may send any agent for them. The post-master is only liable for loss of a letter when he is guilty of negligence. He may require an order in writing to deliver to an agent. There is no objection to a mail carrier acting as such agent unless the postoffice regulations forbid it. Write to postoffice inspector,

The Williams was all right, Wilson's Albany number was 1,750. the balance were Betterwood, and A accepted them as true to name; but in the spring of 1899, when they came in bloom, A found scarcely any Wilsons. Now, A will not get near as much returns as he expected, and has not got any Wilson in the end. A showed the plants and the fruit to B this season, and B sent the same to C and got no reply. A has also showed the plants and fruit to some grocer-keepers and gardeners around. What damages can A receive, and how can he get it? But B advertises he does not warrant anything in his catalogue. Does that sig-nify in this case? Ans.—Before the facts stated B is liable to A for damages, notwithstanding the notice of not warranting. You had better consult a lawyer, who will bring an ac-tion in the court having jurisdiction.

An Amusing Case Before a British Judge-Replies to a Matrimonial

Advertisment.

At the Tunbridge Wells county court recently, before his Honor Judge Em-den, an amusing case was heard, says a London exchange. George Coleman, a furniture salesman, of Tunbridge Wells, was sued by an agent, named Hamilton for £1 10s for secretarial work done in endeavoring 'to procure a wife for Coleman."

Plaintiff stated that he was instructed by the defendant to insert an advertisement in a Sunday paper for a "domesticated woman as housekeeper, with a view to ma'trimony." They received many replies, the whole bundle wolden by the sunday paper for a partial of the sunday paper for a "domesticated woman as housekeeper, with a view to ma'trimony." weighing two pounds. Plaintiff spent half the day in reading replies to defendant, and on Lord Mayor's Day they both went to London to interview some of the ladies. One of them wrote: "Do not write so business-like; open your heart to me." (Laughter.) They saw a hospital nurse under the marble arch, but when she got home she wrote that she was called away to an infectious case, and could not correspond any

Continuing, plaintiff said the ladies did not take to Mr. Coleman, as he was too old. The large bundle of applications were torn up on Tunbridge Wells commons and sprinkled about until a policeman came up, and they had to move off. (Laughter.)

> There are no expressive eyes. The expression of the eye is really in the lid. The eye itself, independent of its surroundings, has no more expression than has a glass marble. A prominent English oculist makes this daring statement, and he defends his position with emphasis. "The eyes have no expression whatever," he says. " 'How do you explain the fact that the eyes of one person are more expressive than those of another?' I am asked. They are not. The difference consists in certain nervous contractions of the lids peculiar to the individual.

"Observe for yourself and you will see that I am right. We will say that I am greatly interested in something, that my attention is suddenly called from it by an unexpected interruption. My upper eyelld raises itself just a little, but the eye proper does not change an iota in appearance. If the interruption is but momentary, the elevation of the lid will be but momentary. If the surprise caused by the interruption is continued, the lid may be raised even a little more, and, in fact, the whole of the forehead, including the eyebrows, is raised and wrinkled. But the eye remains the

That is the reason that there are many wrinkles about the eyes of merry persons.

The expression of deep thoughtfulness is produced by the drooping of the upper lid. The lids of some persons fall so low that the pupil of the eye itself is the same. If the meditation is over a subject that worries the thinker the expression is again quite different. The eyelids contract and the eye-This is true of a reflective mood. THE DECREASE OF MILK DRINK-

There is little question that the public has become somewhat suspicious of milk, and that many hesitate to drink it as freely as in earlier years. This suspicion is more pronounced in Europe than in the United States. Upon the continent of Europe the amount of milk which is used raw is very small, and apparently its use in this condition is destined to cease. The younger generation of physicians are now being taught that rew milk is a dangerous food, and in some countries even the children in the schools are being taught that it is not safe to drink raw milk. Such teaching can have only one result, and that is the reduction in the amount of milk consumed. Much less milk is used in Europe than in this country. It is used for tea or coffee or for cooking, and, of course, for infant feeding, but for any one to drink milk as we do in this country is certainly a rarity. The suspicion under which milk has been plated has decreased its use .- Prof. H. W. Conn, in Appleton's Popular Science Monthly for September.

The wedding procession, conspicuous for the trifling oversight in the matter of a bridegroom, was on the point of starting down the barn, where the event was taking place, when a young man drove into the yard, and, hitching his horse, rang the bell to inquire for the twins' grown-up sister.

For a minute the children gazed at each other as the door opened to receive him, then the brilliant idea struck them simultaneously. Off came Polly's veil and down went Polly's

"That's Charlie Bingham come take sister for a ride," gasped Polly, dancing up and down in delight. "I know it," said Pauline, exitedly "and we haven't a minute to lose. You run right up to the house and get all the rice you can, and I'll borrow som

"Oh, Mrs. Herrick," she panted breathlessly, a few minutes later, as she rushed into the lady's door, "won't you please let me have some rice?"

"But who is it for?"
"For sister Sue," shouted Pauline, who was in too much of a hurry to stop for elaborate explanations, and raced back to meet Polly, who had the good luck to find a bag of the stuff which the grocer had left on the kitchen table.

"Well, haven't they kept that pretty quiet?" inquired Mrs. Herrick of her caller, Mrs. Smith, as she picked up her knitting, and both ladies drew their chairs to the window on the side next to the Peters house to watch the course of events more closely.

"There goes Parson Hildreth!" exclaimed Mrs. Smith, and, sure enough, the reverend gentleman was seen coming down the steps next door, having made a call upon the twins' father.
"I thought that would be a match
some time, but what are those children doing now?" Pauline and Polly, in their stocking feet, were tying white hair ribbons to the horses' foretops, and two pairs of email shoes were seen dangling under the carriage. They had barely nn-ished tying the last knot and slipped into the barn after their bags of rice when Mr. Bingham came out to get his team. He was a desperately shy young man, and not especially observing. Being slightly agitated, too, it is doubtwhether he would have noticed his horse turned into a prancing zebra during his absence, and it is not strange that the ribbons and other decorations failed to attract his

Here is what she would have known anything about it says about women; if it hadn't been for the twins. They

"A woman is expected to give her love freely, to take care of a household, and to educate her children; moreover, she must be pretty, elegant, and lov-able. Yet, in spite of all this men say that women are weak. Among savages the women is a beast of burden; among the Turks she is regarded as a creature who is fitted only for luxury. Europeans claim that she is useful for both purposes. When a woman gives her-self away she fanoies that she has given a whole world; the man, how-ever, believes that he has simply quired possession of a new toy. woman would be stoned if she began to do those things which a man of honor may do with impunity. A woman who is misunderstood is a woman who does not understand others. An unhappy woman is like a flower exposed to the wind; for a long time she re-mains a closed bud, and as soon as she begins to flower she withers. Man of-ten gains his end through the brutal strength of an ox or a bear; woman under similar circumstances uses the tactics of the timorous mouse, or those of the murderous snake that coils around its victim. A woman's virtue must often be very great, since there are many cases where it has to suffice for two.

What she has to say of suffering worth considering:
"A beast when it suffers goes off alone to some lonesome place; it is only man who lets every one know when he is suffering." The queen forgets to mention, how-ever, that out of the spectacle of suf-

Neck-Dressing.

Neckwear is of the greatest importance in a woman's dress. The neat but unbecoming linen collar looks tidy but is ruinous to the throat, putting in lines which should only come with age and injuring the voice. There seems no relief from the present high dressing of the neck, but a stock is an alle-viation. The following hints will be

The satin stock is steadily crowding out the usefulness of the linen collar. Double faced satin ribbon can be washed and ironed at home, without cost, and that fact alone deals a death blow to the linen collar, with its necessary laundry bill.

Few women exercise any mental ability over the selection of their stocks. If they know in a vague way that pink is becoming to them they often buy at random any shade the salesman offers. Any shade of pink for an entire gown may have the desired effect, while a small strip of the same color directly under the chin would have a very different one. Blondes will find the morning glory pink, a pinkish lavender, cream white, a gold-en yellow and cardinal the most becoming colors for stocks. Brunettes can best wear dead white, deep rose pink, turquoise blue, bluish heliotrope and burnt orange.

Black stocks should never be worn except with black shirt waists or figured waists with a black ground. Black accentuates the lines in the face, which adds age, and tends to make most skins look sallow rather than Stocks should be drawn tight about the throat. The loose, untidy way in which many women wear their ribbons is anything but correct.

The Village Darning Needle. "Oh, what shall I do? I've lost the village darning-needle!" cried good Mrs. Dixon, wringing her hands. It was a bright July day in the year 1776, soon after the signing of the Declaration of Independence; but the peo-ple of Mystic had not heard of that great event. It took days, sometimes weeks, for news to be carried to towns that were far away from the large cities and seaports.

The news of the loss of the village darning-needle was a great blow to the good wives of Mystic. Out they ran, some to scold poor Mrs. Dixon, who had lost it while on her way home from the mill, and some to look for the needle-which was, of course, a great deal more sensible.

The village was a long way from any place where a darning-needle could be bought, and women did not go shopping very often in those days.

They stayed at home and spun what goods they needed for clothes and bedding, instead of going to buy it. So it happened that just at that time there was only one darning-needle, and all the housewives used it in turn. It was sent, carefully wrapped up, from one house to another.

And now Mrs. Dixon had in some way let it fall from her apron pocket while Three miles of forest road along which she might have dropped it! It was a deal of space in which to hunt, but hunt they must or stockings could not be mended!

Ail the children, and all the women, yes, and some of the men, turned out to look for the village darning-needle

All the boys in town were eager to go, but Paul Davenport was soon chosen, because he had the swiftest horse, and was known to be a brave and fearless lad. It was no uncommon thing in those days to meet with Indians in that part of the country, and one had to depend mainly on a brave heart and a fast horse then. Paul felt very important as he rode out of the village and started on his journey. It was such a lovely day that it seemed as if nature was really smiling for joy. Most of his way lay through the woods, and he could hear the songs of birds and the chatter of squirrels as he rode along. Fortunately Paul met no one. Few people traveled far from home in those days. At length he came out of the woods upon the highway that led to the village. He had made up his mind to ride straight to the green, dismount there, and tell his news with all the ceremony it ought to have.

He entered the village flying, but, strangely enough, he saw no one. The fields were empty, and no housewives were out on the doorsteps, or spreading their webs of linen to bleach in the yards. Doors and windows were wide open, but no faces looked forth.

Paul leaped from his horse and went to one of the houses to look in. Everything was in order, and a baby lay sleeping in its cradle. It could not be a raid by the Indians,' thought the boy as he went out. "They would not leave a child, and besides, there are no marks of battle around.'

Just then he heard a faint sound of shouting. For a minute he was frightened, thinking it was a band of Indians: but as he looked, he saw on the edge of the village a crowd of women, boys and girls, with a few men carrying on their shoulders a little

The children were capering about and shouting, "Hurrah! Hurrah! Ruth found it!" When Paul got up to the crowd he found what was going on. It was the party of searchers for the lost darningneedle. They had not had to go very far, for before a half mile had been searched, the bright eyes of little Ruth Endicott had spied the shining needle in the road. As soon as Paul got a chance he jumped up on a tree stump and told his news in a loud voice, and then, how the people shouted "Hurrah!" The whole village at once set to work to plan a big celebration that very day, but in all their fun they did not forget the little girl who found the darning-needle. She was placed at the head of one of the tables, and some one proposed a toast to "little Ruth Bright-Eyes." And "Bright-Eyes" she was always called after that. MAY W. CLYMER.

THE BLUES.

The Blues is the name given to a painfully common disease. The symptoms are a strong feeling of disgust at the world; a stronger feeling of disguest at one's self; utter loss of hope in the ultimate triumph of virtue in the present state of society, and total all-embracing dissatisfaction with things that are.

It is astonishing how easy it is at times to be seized by a fit of the blues.

A larged sight, an imaginary trouble, an exaggerated idea of one's own in significance brought home by some cause or other, will all separately or combined bring on an attack of this complaint. At times the mind is so open to attack that everything is tinged with morbidness. The sight of the happiness of others, or even the effort of one's friends to please one's self are but the excuse for bitter thoughts and unwholesome fancies. The Blues is apparently and on the surface a disease of the mind. But after all, the old-fashioned question, put to one's self when one feels an attack coming on—"Now what have I been eating?" will discover the cause every time. It was not wonderful performance with a number the power to do some single thing as of animals in the one cage. He would nobody else had ever done it that the Greek valued; but the power to do the whole series of things in the list recognized in the arena. Hence the impor-tance of the "panathla," or victorious contest in a series of achievements, to which they attached the highest honor.

The same idea underlies the reform of the American gymnasium, which was begun by Professor Sargent, of Harvard. Up to this time the American youth found his own way among the appliances of a gymnasium, doing the things he could achieve with most ease, and thus exaggerating all his one-sided peculiarities of bodily development. He is now submitted to an inspection by a medical expert, his weak places ascertained by sundry tests, and his exercise as carefully proscribed for him as if it were a dose of medicine He is required to do, not what is easiest to him, but generally what is hardest, which is also what he most needs

Athletics need to be reformed as much as did the gymnastic training They all tend to specialism in achievement, rather than to harmonious development. And not only does each athlete "move on the line of least resistance" for himself, but the whole country, so far as it takes to athletics. is doing the same. Hence the popularity of the most characteristic American game, that of baseball. As compared with cricket, baseball has the attraction of rapidity and excitement. It fils men for sudden and short spurts of en-It fosters, both in the players and in the spectators, a nervous tension which is peculiarly American. It does not teach grit, and it develops no staying power.

Wellington is said to have spoken of Waterloo as won on the English cricket fields. It was in facing the expert's bowling, not for five or ten minutes, but for hours at a time, that the Eng-lishman developed the qualities which enabled him to hold that hill of St. Jean, under the dreadful rain of artillery fire, and in the face of repeated charges by the first soldiers of Europe, from early morning until late afternoon. Baseball may tell in sudden battles, like those of the recent war with Spain; but it would help to the winning of no Waterloos or Gettysburgs.
