REV. DR. MILLIGAN SPEAKS.
Orangeville, May 20.—In connection with the Manitoba school question, before the Presbyterian Synod, Rev. Dr. Milligan, of Toronto, brought in the following minority report: Whereas the Manitoba school question is now under the consideration of the authorities appointed to deal with the question lies within the sphere of our duty, as citizens, rather than as members of a synod, and whereas there are questions of constitutional law involved in its solution rendering it difficult for the synod to pronounce a competent judgment upon it, especially at its present stages, resolved that no expression of opinion be given by the synod regarding the difficulties on educational matters at present existing between the Manitoba and Dominion Governments. It is not deemed inconsistent with this resolution to express regret that too frequently when electors are called upon to select men for Parliament appeals are made to their sectional and religious prejudices, instead of being put forth to occupy their minds with the needs of the country, and the character for honesty and capability of the men required to meet these needs. They should be very careful about giving opinions on such matters in church courts. Dr. Milligan said, in supporting this. Church courts had in the past delivered opinions which the light of subsequent events had shown not to be the wisest. They would be reminded that the Roman Catholics banded themselves together, but they were not Roman Catholics, and he thought that they should express themselves as citizens and not as ministers. Dr. Milligan then referred to the way in which electors allowed themselves to be attracted by race and religious cries from the real political issues before the country. There is corruption at Ottawa, he exclaimed, which should be exposed. No matter which party is concerned, he said, they should deal with it so as to have honest and capable men occupying positions of honor. In Ontario when the elections came on, there was no effort to confront the Government. And he had no objection to seeing Sir Oliver Mowat criticized, but there were efforts to draw a red herring across the trail by raising cries about the separate schools and the P. P. A. and so on. I abominate the whole thing, he cried. At Dominion elections they are very glad to find a traitor. They tried to get some kind of cry to arouse the sectional and religious prejudices of the people, and to take their minds off the real subjects of importance to the country. He was not speaking for Reformers or Conservatives, he said, but these methods had unfortunately hurt the country, which with its heterogeneous population was difficult to govern. He hoped that the country would put other questions aside and look at what should be the true policy of the country, and strive to subordinate other matters to the getting of honest government.

PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY.

A Powerful Plea Put Forth by Rev. Dr. Talmage,
In His Sunday Afternoon Sermon in the New York Academy of Music.

New York, May 20.—Dr. Talmage's Sunday afternoon sermon was a powerful and eloquent plea for practical Christianity. The subject as announced was "Wings and Hand," the text being Ezekiel, x. 21—"The likeness of the hands of a man was under their wings." Who are the cherubim? In order of angels, radiant, mighty, all-knowing, adoring, worshipful, whose majesty and speed, and splendor we will never know until lifted into their presence, we behold them for ourselves, as I pray by the pardoning grace of God we may. But all the accounts Biblical, and all the suppositions human, represent the cherubim with wings, each about seven feet long, vaster, more imposing than any plumage that ever floated in earthly atmosphere.

My attention is not more attracted by those wings than by what they reveal when lifted. In two places in Ezekiel we are told there were hands under the wings; human hands; hands that could "The likeness of the hands of a man was under the wings." There are whole sermons, whole anthems, whole doxologies, whole hymns, if this world is ever brought to God, it will be by appreciation of the fact that supernatural and human agencies are to go together; that which soars, and that which practically works; that which ascends the heavens, and that which reaches forth to earth; the joining of the terrestrial and the celestial; the hand and the wing. We see this union in the construction of the Bible. The wing of inspiration is in every chapter. What inspiration is the ransomed earth did Isaiah fly over? Over what battle-fields for righteousness; what coronations; what triumphs of gladness; what rainbows around the throne did St. John hover? But in every book of the Bible you just as certainly see the human hand that wrote it. Moses, the lawyer, showing the foundation of all good legislation; Amos, the herdsman, showing his hand in similes drawn from fields and flocks; the fishermen apostles showing their hand when writing about Gospel nets; Luke, the physician showing his hand by giving special attention to diseases cured; Paul, showing his scholarly hand by quoting from heathen poets and making arguments about the resurrection that stand as firmly as on the day he planted them; and St. John shows his hand by taking his imagery from the appearance of the bright waters spread around the Island of Patmos at hour of sunset, when he speaks of the sea of glass mingled with fire; scores of hands writing the parables, the miracles, the promises, the woes of the raptures, the consolations, the words of heart-beats; so sympathetic; so wet with tears; so triumphant with human race as nothing else ever can take hold of it—each writer in his own style; Job, the scientist; Solomon, the royal-blooded; Jeremiah, the despondent; Daniel, the abstergeous and heroic; why, we know their style so well that we need not look to the top of the page to see who is the author. No more conscious the uplifting wing of inspiration than the hand, the warm hand, the flexible hand, the skillful hand of human instrumentality. "The likeness of the hands of a man was under the wings, behold this combination of my text in all successful Christian work. We stand and kneel in our pulpits, and social meetings, and reformatory associations, offering prayer. Now, if anything that prayer stands from an infant's tongue, or the trembling lips of a tenarian, rising from the heart of a farmer's wife standing at the dashing churn, or before the hot breath of a soldier, they soar away, and pick out of all the shipping of the earth, on all the seas, the craft on which her sailor boy is voyaging. Yea, prayer can fly clear down into the future. Prayer can take hold of the future. Prayer across centuries. But, oh, my friends, the prayer must have the hand under the wing, or it may amount to nothing. The mother's hand, or the father's hand, must write to the wayward boy as soon as he can hear how to address him. Christian souls must contribute to the evangelism of that far-off land. Stop! They have been praying. Stop! "Fly abroad, thou mighty God, something of your prayer. Give something of your prayer to make it fly. Have you been praying to make it fly, but also extend the hand of invitation to come to a religious meeting. It always excites our sympathy to see a man with his hand in a sling. We ask him, "What is the matter? Hope it is not a felon," or "Have your fingers been crushed?" But nine out of ten of them Christians are going their life long with their hand in a sling. They have been hurt by indifference, or wrong ideas of what is best; or it is injured by conventionalities, and they never cure any one. They pray, and their prayer has wings, but there is no hand under the wings. From the very structure of the hand, we might make up our mind as to some of the things it was for; to hold fast, to push, to pull, to help, and to rescue. And endowed with two hands, we might take the broad hint that for others as well as for ourselves we were to hold fast, to push, to pull, to help, to rescue. Wonderful hand! Its machinery, beginning at the shoulder, and working through shafts of bone, upper arm and forearm, down to the eight bones of the hand, and the five bones of the palm, and the fourteen bones of the fingers and thumb, and composed of a labyrinth of muscle, and nerve, and artery, and flesh, which no one but Almighty God could have planned or created, and which was suggestive when it reached down from under the wings of the cherubim! "The likeness of the hands of a man was under the wings." This idea is combined in Christ. When he rose from Mount Olivet, he took wing, all up and down his life you see the uplifting divinity. It glowed in his cadences were heard in his voice. But he was also very human. It was under the wing that touched the woes of the world, and took hold of the hand before it was splintered. Watch his dead girl in a governor's house, and her pale cold hand in his warm grasp, and she opens her eyes on the weeping you crying about? Mother, what are you crying about?" The Book says, "He took her by the hand, and the maid offered Christ, drew the sword from the sheath, and struck at a man with the sharp edge, and took off the right ear. Christ with his hand reconstructed that wonderful organ of sound. The Book says, "He touched his ear and healed him." Meeting a full-grown man who had never seen a sunrise, or a sunset, or a flower, or the face of his father or mother, Christ moistens the dust from his own tongue, and stirs the dust into an eye-salve, and with his own hands applies the strange medicament, and suddenly all the colors of the earth and sky rush in upon the newly-created optic nerve, and the instantaneous noon drove out the long night. When he sees the grief of Mary and Martha, he sits down and cries with them. Some say it is the shortest verse in the Bible; but to me it seems, because of its far-reaching sympathy, about the largest—"Jesus wept." So very human. He could not stand the sight of dropsy, or epilepsy, or paralysis, or hunger, or dementia; but he stretches out his sympathetic hand towards it. So very, very human. Omnipotent, and majestic, and glorious, this Angel of the New Covenant, with wings capable of encircling a universe, and yet hands of gentleness, hands of helpfulness. "The hands of a man under the wings."

There is a kind of religion in our day that my text rebukes. There are men and women spending their time in delectation over their saved state, going about from prayer-meeting to prayer-meeting, and from church to church, telling how happy they are. But show them a subscription paper, or ask them to go and visit the sick, or tell them to reclaim a wanderer, or speak out for some unpopular Christian enterprise, and they have bronchitis, or stitch in the side, or sudden attack of grip. Their religion is all wing and no hand. They can fly heavenward, but they cannot reach out earthward. The highest type of religion says little about itself, but is busy for God and helping to the heavenly shore the crew and passengers of this shipwrecked planet. Such people are busy now up the dark lanes of this city, and all through the mountain glens, and down in the quarries where the sunlight has never visited, and amid the rigging, helping to take in another reef before the Caribbean whirlwind. There was much sense in that which the robust boatman said when three were in a boat off the coast in a sudden storm, that threatened to sink the boat, and one suggested that they all kneel down in the boat to pray, and the other man took hold of the mast and began to pull, saying, "Let you the strong, stout fellow, lay hold of the other oar, and the weak one who cannot pull give himself up to prayer." Pray by all means; but the same time pull with all your might for the world's rescue.

There is also in my subject the suggestion of rewarded work for God and righteousness. When the wing went the hand went. When the wing ascended the hand ascended; and for every useful and Christian hand there will be an elevation, celestial and eternal. Expect human gratitude, for it will not come. But, my hearers, the day comes when your work, which perhaps you have noticed, or rewarded, or honored, will rise to heavenly recognition. While I have been telling you that the hand was under the wing of the cherubim, I want you to realize that the wing is over the hand. Perhaps reward may not come to you right away. Washington lost more battles than he won, but he triumphed at last. Walter Scott, in boyhood, was called "The Greek Blockhead," but what heights of renown he did not afterward tread? And I promise you victory further on and higher up; if not in this world, then in the next. Oh, the heavenly day when your lifted hand shall be gilded with what honors his fingers enlivened with what jewels! His wrist clasped with what splendors! Come up and take it, you Christian worker, man, who served at the wash-tub. Come up and take it, you Christian woman, who pounded the shoe-last. Come up and take it, you professional nurse, whose compensation never fully paid for broken nights and the whilms and struggles of death, and the weeping of ocean steamers, and yet conductors and engineers on railroads, that knew no loud whistle never and no whistles and no anxieties. Come up and take it, you mothers, who rocked and lulled the family brood until they took wing for what you had done and again you have lost it. Poor hand! Weary hand! Work, out hand! But God will reconstruct it, reanimate it, readorn it, and all heaven will know the story of that hand which fallen once it lifted up! What tears it wiped away! What wounds it bandaged! What lighthouses it kindled! What storm-tossed ships it brought into the Pearl-beached Harbor! Oh, I am so glad that in the vision of my text Ezekiel saw the wing above the hand. Roll on that everlasting rest for all the toiling, and misunderstood, and suffering and weary children of God, and know that to join your hand, and the right hand of the Father, and the triumphant hand of him who wears away all tears from all faces. That will be the Palace of the King, of which the poet sang in somewhat Scotch dialect:

It's a bonnie, bonnie war! that we're livin' in the noo,
An' sunny is the lan' we aften travel thro'.
But in vain we look for something to which our hearts can cling,
For its beauty is as naething to the Palace o' the King.
We see our friend's await us ower yon-
Then let us be ready, for ye ken it's gettin' late!
Let our lamps be brightly burnin'; let's raise our voice an' sing:
Soon we'll meet, to part nae mair, 't the Palace o' the King.

Calgary, May 15.—The fame of Dodd's Kidney Pills has spread all over the Northwest, and they have come into universal use, being found in almost every farmhouse and village throughout the territories. The cures of Kent, Ross, and McCormick, Rymal, Fisher, and dozens of others have been produced a large demand. Dodd's Pills are becoming convinced that a very large percentage of disease may be traced, as it was in these cases, to the action of the kidneys in inducing rheumatism, paralysis, Bright's disease, diabetes and blood poisoning.

London, Tuesday, May 21.

A representative of the "Advertiser" the other day asked the opinion of Mr. Goldwin Smith as to whether what is called "The Royal Society of Canada," which met last week at Ottawa, was calculated to encourage or stimulate Canadian literature. Mr. Goldwin Smith replied:

"I was consulted by Lord Lorne when he first conceived the idea of founding the Royal Society of Canada. I ventured to give my opinion that an artificial stimulation of that kind would be of little use to Canadian literature; and that any attempt to found a literary order like that of the French Academy would be out of place in a community like ours, and might possibly give rise to some jealousies. We have not yet and could not be expected to have materials for an institute. Altogether the idea belongs rather to the French monarchy, under which the Institut was founded, than to the free system of an Anglo-Saxon people.

"I must confess that I have not yet seen reason to alter my opinion. The reading of papers at Societies and their publication in Transactions altogether is somewhat out of date. It has been superseded by the periodicals in which every paper of real value finds a place. However, as I have not myself attended the meetings, I speak upon the subject with deference to those who are better informed."

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS AND SUPERANNUATION.

Mr. McMullen, the member for North Wellington, has before the Dominion Parliament a measure to radically improve the system of civil service superannuation.

In order to avoid doing any injury to men already in the civil service, Mr. McMullen's measure exempts all such from its provisions, unless they choose voluntarily to come under the provisions of the new act, and it also exempts those now superannuated.

Instead of the present superannuation allowance which has been much abused by politicians, to the help of favorite beneficiaries and the injury of the taxpayers, Mr. McMullen provides that any person now in the permanent civil service of Canada, or any person appointed after the passing of the new law, shall, upon his retiring from the public service, be entitled to the repayment of the whole amount of the deductions from his salary, together with interest at 5 per cent annually. The deductions thus accumulated are to be made as a guarantee of good faith and efficient service, and if the civil servant dies in harness his heirs are to have the whole amount with interest.

This will prove a pre-eminently fair solution of the superannuation question. What may be regarded as vested interests are not disturbed. The act only applies to new appointees, except by choice. The civil servant will have the full amount paid into the insurance fund by him, and more interest thereon than he could obtain in an ordinary investment. If he dies before he reaches the age of retirement, his heirs will get the entire sum paid in, whereas at present when a civil servant dies his heirs are not entitled to any portion of the money contributed. There are numerous instances of positive hardship arising from this regulation. It does seem hard that a man should pay into the superannuation fund for from 20 to 40 years, and because he died before superannuation, it should be impossible for his widow and children to benefit to the extent of one cent by his compulsory provision.

Mr. McMullen's bill will promote sturdy independence among the civil servants, will keep politicians in power free from the temptation to use public money for the benefit of favorite individuals, and will therefore conserve the interests of the taxpayer, while doing full justice to the servants of the country.

Why not have it made law at once?

MINISTER VS. MEMBER.

The row in the caucus of Conservative M. P.s at Ottawa, the other day, exemplifies how little cohesion there is in the ranks of the Parliamentary high tax party now that a controlling mind, such as that possessed by Sir John Macdonald or Sir John Thompson, no longer directs.

It seems that the Ministers have been seizing the patronage and distributing the offices for the special benefit of their relations and retainers, leaving the ordinary M. P. out in the cold.

Thus it is that Mr. Clarke Wallace, Comptroller of Customs, has brought down on his head the ire of the Conservative M. P.s in his district, because the eight offices in his department were filled by applicants from his own riding, all appeals for a share for other constituents falling on deaf ears.

But what could be expected from a Ministry founded on the promotion of purely selfish interests, and kept in power by men who put up their money to promote, not the public welfare, but their individual interests?

EDITORIAL POINTS.

If Senator Sanford is not Sir William after the 24th of May his friends say there will be wigs on the green. Why not?

The receipts of the Manchester Ship Canal have hardly realized expectations, but so far the Tay Canal holds the record for minus results.

The Week is properly down on the sending of anonymous letters through the post. But wherein are anonymous letters in newspapers any better?

Railing at Sir Richard Cartwright will not now avail. Sir Richard is not only a very able man, but incorruptible, with a public record that hostility has never been able to smirch. Like the old Duke of Wellington, he does not know the word defeat, and comes up smiling after every encounter. When Sir Richard objects to a Hudson Bay Railway bribery fund, analyzes the unfair incidence of public taxation, or shows the alarming increase of the country's obligations, no stigmatizing of such proper criticism as "blue rule talk" will be accepted by an awakened people as a sufficient reply.

The proposed arrangement by which a portion of the old Upper Canada College grounds on King street, Toronto, will be given for the site of the proposed new million dollar hotel with the view of adding additional value to the land retained, seems to be in accordance with good business management, and therefore unobjectionable from any reasonable provincial standpoint.

E. A. Judges, for many years London (England) correspondent of the Toronto Globe, and well known to hundreds of Canadians through courtesies extended by him, has been united in marriage to Miss Lucy Knapp. Mr. Judges is now proprietor and editor of the Surrey Times. Congratulations!

Following up Mr. Balfour's eulogism of the newspaper's advertising facilities as among the most significant of modern marvels, Mr. Gunnison, of the Brooklyn Eagle, speaking recently to a ministerial association, said:

"If the churches would utilize the religious advertising columns throughout the week, it would be, in my judgment, the most effective method they could adopt. For advertising their prayer-meetings, Christian Endeavor and Epworth League meetings, entertainments, special meetings, etc., the Saturday announcements are not sufficient. It should be a daily reminder. The theaters are not satisfied with one-day or week advertising. I do not advocate the use of the personal column of a newspaper, as one clergyman in New York has been doing recently; but a dignified statement of the activities of a church, placed under the proper classification, would, I believe, be of great benefit. People of today look to the newspapers for the announcement of the things in which they are most interested. It is no longer the custom to hear of deaths and marriages from the pulpit, as was formerly the custom. All these things, together with the announcement of amusements, social gatherings, meetings of all kinds, are gathered in the papers. A more liberal practice of this policy on the part of the church would, I think, prove a great advantage."

MIDDLESEX.

The Ladies' Aid Society (Methodist) of Thornedale circuit held a most successful social on May 15 at the beautiful and commodious residence of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Vandenberg, of Thornedale. The programme consisted of vocal and instrumental music, speeches and recitations, given by professionals. Rev. B. Uren made a graceful chairman. The opening address was given by Rev. Mr. Kershaw, the highly respected superintendent of the circuit. Instrumental solos were given by Miss M. Dedgegood and Miss Fram, of Evelyn, and Mrs. Chard, of London. Vocal solos were rendered by Dr. Elliott Holmes, of London, and Miss Syne, of London, both of whom are trained vocalists, possessing excellent voices. Recitations were given by Miss McEvoy, of London; Miss Ethel McDonald, of St. Marys, and Miss Bertha Mossop, of Metropolitan. All these young ladies are elocutionists who have delighted large audiences. The programme was varied from grave to gay, and the large company gave the closest attention throughout. The genial host and hostess made the guests feel perfectly at home, and of the best quality, and were served immediately after the programme. The esteemed superintendent's family were the recipients of several useful presents, showing the high esteem in which they are held. One was a very fine ham-mock for Master Osseo Kershaw, from the boys, he being an invalid. Some of the guests who were not Methodists declared that the social was the best ever given in Thornedale.

May 20.—A pleasant event took place Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mr. McBain, it being the marriage of Maria Joyce to Mr. J. Piggett, of the signal tower, Komoka. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Morrison, in the presence of many relatives and friends. After the ceremony the happy company sat down to a bounteous repast, after which Mr. and Mrs. Piggett departed to their new home. The bride was charmingly attired in black satin. The bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth Hair, was dressed in blue silk. Mr. S. Gibson supported the groom.

House and Lobby

Wild-Oat Scheme for Which $170,000 Has Been Voted—Remarkable Statement as to Carling Creek Pollution—Mr. Foster and the Family Nest—$7,000,000 Wasted, Boodied or Stolen—Important Street Railway Decision—Mr. Clancy After a Collectorship.

(Specially telegraphed by our own Representative.)

Ottawa, May 20.—When the House met today Commodore Walsh, the six-foot-three member from Prince Edward Island, characterized as a wildcat project the Chignecto Ship Railway, regarding which Mr. Provand, M. P. for Glasgow, is now here. Mr. Provand is managing director of the enterprise, and he asks the Dominion Government to extend the time for completing the railway two years. The Government here granted a bonus of $170,000 a year for twenty years to the enterprise, which Commodore Walsh, as a mariner of great experience, is hesitatingly endorsing, and Mr. Provand says $3,500,000 have been spent on the work, and $1,500,000 are yet required. Mr. Provand blames the contractor, who failed.

Mr. Foster replied that the Government is considering the question.

An astonishing answer was given by the Minister of Militia to Mr. Mills' question, "Do the Government propose to take immediate steps to prevent the discharge of sewage from the Military School, London, into a small creek, known as Carling's Creek?"

The Minister pleaded that though inquiry has been made, Parliament is yet not sufficient information to deal with the matter. It is several years since the city authorities first made full representations to the Government.

Mr. Foster brought in a bill of an unusual description today. He said it was a bill to provide for the discharge of a mortgage made by one Markland to the Government in 1858. Mr. Foster said the intention of the Government is to accept 50 per cent of the face value of the mortgage, as the property (in the city of Kingston) is deteriorating.

Dr. Landerkin suggested that the property should be realized on at once to save further loss under the management of the Dominion Government.

Another evidence that someone gave a tip to the sugar men before the tariff was increased on sugar on May 3 last was shown in the answer to Mr. Edgar's question by Comptroller Wallace. The statement was as follows:

Pounds of refined sugar imported between March 27 and May 2.....	17,776	515,181
Pounds of raw sugar.....	20,528,013	$5,519,717

Mr. Girouard was informed that 142 Indians have been transferred from Oka to Muskoka since 1872. They have 25,382 acres of land. $1,625 had been spent in taking them there. Only two Indian families have gone from Oka to Muskoka in the last two years.

To Mr. Campbell, Mr. Foster said the Dominion Government has so far paid out on the Chicago Exhibition $243,019. It was also stated that $250,250 has been paid by the Dominion for a drill shed in Toronto, and that claims of $17,942 for extras have been lodged.

Mr. McMullen elicited from the Government the statement that James Patton, aged 65, had been given a Government job in 1872. This at a time when men 40 years of age are being pensioned for life at the expense of taxpayers!

Clarke Wallace stated that collectors of customs are not allowed to act as brokers in customs houses except along the Northwest borders, and there they are not allowed to charge for that service.

Mr. Mills again protested that the census returns of industries of the city of London, ordered two and a half years ago, have not yet been brought down.

Dr. Montague gave the stereotyped answer that he was trying to get the returns. Much suspicion attaches to the persistent delay.

Mr. Haggart confirmed the report of the recent big loss by fire on the Intercolonial Railway, owned by the Dominion Government. There is, he said, no insurance, because the Government property on that line is uninsured.

Sir Hector Langevin, usually sitting like a stoic, paying no attention to anyone, made his first speech in the House this session today, introducing his bill to prevent postal carriers from carrying intoxicating liquors.

Mr. McMullen elicited the fact that Mr. Foster is making good use of his opportunities as Minister as a taxpayer. He confessed that two years ago he superannuated Mr. Crookshanks, Assistant Receiver-General at Halifax. I learn that he was a healthy citizen, 70 years of age, well able to perform his duties. Then he appointed H. D. McLeod, 56 years of age, who had been squeezed into the service 25 months before. Mr. McLeod was given $2,000 a year on appointment; his predecessor served 25 years before he received $2,000—the salary he drew when superannuated. The newcomer is a cousin to Mr. Foster, and to make an office for him, Mr. Crookshanks was put out of office and was given $1,540 a year pension for life. Another extraordinary family arrangement exposed, in answer to a question by Mr. Foster that he has a private secretary drawing $1,800 a year, and a woman secretary drawing $200. The Finance Minister protested against saying whether or not the woman secretary is a relation to his family, but rumor has it that she is a companion to his wife. Mr. Foster says he will duly expose his genealogical tree to Mr. McMullen in private.

When the budget debate was resumed Mr. Semple, the practical agriculturist member for Wellington, said that farmers had had enough of a march on the Dominion Grange and Patrons of Industry demand a tariff for revenue only, as the Liberal party demand. Mr. Semple gave statistics to show that both the British and the United States markets are needed by farmers, and the freer trade is, the more prosperous will be the farmer. When better times come we will have them, because we are selling more products to the United States.

Mr. Wood (Westmoreland, N.B.) gave one of the best speeches from the Conservative point of view. He defended the duty on refined sugar and the taxes on manufactured articles generally.

Hon. Mr. McIsaac, the eloquent Nova

Scotian who captured the seat held by the late Sir John Thompson, made a speech that captured the House. Taking up the demand by the Conservative side that the Liberals should give details of their policy, he pointed out that Sir John A. Macdonald, when in opposition, declared a party not in power could not possibly give details, and added: "I will confine myself to general principles." Mr. McIsaac proceeded to show how the policy of high taxation had injured rather than helped the country. The combines alone have benefited. He scored Canadian "protectionists" for their denunciation of the motherland because of her love of free trade. These professed loyalists denounce Britain, and say she is going to destruction, but the British people are united in their progressive trade policy, and will have nothing to do with class law tax. Mr. McIsaac scathingly exposed the bogus reciprocity appeal of the high tax leaders in 1891, and the equally bogus tariff revision of last year. Over $7,000,000 has been wasted, boodied or stolen under the present Dominion Government, and Mr. McIsaac gave full details. This accounts for the huge deficits and for our overtaxation. The issues on which he was elected a month ago were opposition to boodling and a tariff for revenue only. His opponent dodged, but people intelligently viewed the question and turned a Conservative majority of 250 given four years ago into a minority of 118. The Liberals cheered.

Mr. Coatsworth, dubbed "baby member for Toronto," followed, and adduced the original estimates for the Ontario Parliament buildings as a set-off against the list of boodling or stealing scandals for which the Dominion Government is responsible. He strongly objected to the Liberal policy of tariff for revenue only.

Mr. Perry, the veteran P. E. I. member, spoke strongly against the policy of the present Government, which he held to be a few of the rich at the expense of common people.

The debate was continued by Dr. Cameron and Mr. Dawson, and Mr. Sproule moved the adjournment of the debate at 12:30 a.m.

CAPITAL NOTES.

While Mr. Semple (Wellington) spoke this afternoon, Countess of Aberdeen occupied a seat to the right of Mr. Speaker. Her Excellency wore a handsome gown of purple velvet.

Attorney-General Sifton, of Manitoba, met and conversed with Mr. T. H. Purdom, a former London schoolmate in the Speaker's gallery this afternoon. Mr. G. Sifton was also in the gallery.

M. P.s returning to the city say there were heavy frosts in Quebec Province last night.

Hamilton McCarthy, the sculptor, is here to execute the bust of Lord Aberdeen.

Mr. Clancy, ex-M. P. for Kent, arrived this afternoon. I hear that he is looking after the collectorship of customs at Wallaceburg.

The Supreme Court of Canada has decided in a Hamilton action against the Electric Railway Company of that city that except in very rare instances electric companies will be held responsible for railway accidents resulting from collisions with their cars. The court reversed an action for damages by collision which was thrown out in a lower court and gave a verdict for the man killed, holding that under such a decision it would not be possible to take into account contributory negligence. The result will be that electric railway companies will have to exercise exceedingly great care or be liable for every accident.

The Agricultural Committee will receive the delegation of cheese men appointed in reference to the branding of cheese on Friday, May 31.

It was agreed today that when the House adjourns on Wednesday it will stand adjourned till the following Tuesday. Thursday and Friday are both legal holidays.

Doubts were expressed as to the possibility of finishing the budget debate tomorrow night. Mr. Haggart has arranged a big dinner for tomorrow night, intending to work up the enthusiasm of the Conservative side prior to the division, but he will be disappointed.

Mr. Casey will ask if the Government intends to prosecute anybody else but St. Louis the contractor for the Curran bridge frauds which Mr. Dickey, Minister of Militia, some time ago, characterized as a clean steal of over $200,000.

Dr. Montague tonight announced he will give a $50 cup to the Dominion Rifle Association.

Over two years and six months have now elapsed since his body was interred, but notwithstanding this, an inquest will be ordered, the body exhumed, a post-mortem examination made and the whole matter sifted to the bottom. It is alleged that Mr. G. I. Walker, of Aylmer, brother-in-law of Mr. Disher, at times made advances to him, which were never returned, and it is further alleged that on Christmas Day, previous to his death, he told Mr. and Mrs. Walker that he had made a will and left them $10,000. The will which was probated was one made some years ago.

Messrs. Miller & Backhouse, solicitors for Mrs. G. I. Walker, of Aylmer, and Mrs. Catherine Simmons, of London, sisters of Mr. Disher, issued a writ today to set aside the probate of the will, and to have it declared that Mrs. Disher is only a trustee for the plaintiffs. Mr. Walker, who is in the city, stated that less than three weeks before Mr. Disher's death the latter stated to him that he had made a will by which the use of $15,000 for her life was left to Mrs. Disher, and the balance to his sisters, the plaintiffs in this action. If they survived Mrs. Disher, the balance was to go to them, and if not, the bulk of the estate ultimately to Mr. Walker's son, Percy. This will was not produced after Mr. Disher's death, and plaintiffs claim that it was destroyed.

Paine's Celery Compound Saves a Well-Known Norfolk County Farmer

Completely Cured After Four of the Best Doctors Had Failed.

Few men in Norfolk county, Ontario, are better or more favorably known than Mr. Joseph Rolston, of Nixon. This gentleman, some time ago, was in such an extremely alarming condition of health that relatives and friends were fearful of results. Four skilled physicians did all for the sick man that could be done, but a cure was beyond their best efforts. Providentially, Mr. Rolston was induced to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial, with the result that sickness and disease were banished and a valuable life saved to the community. Mr. Rolston, who writes for the benefit of suffering men and women, has his statements vouched for by two well known Methodist ministers—Rev. T. R. Clark, of Delhi, and Rev. D. Williams, of Nixon.

Mr. Rolston says: "It gives me great pleasure to add my testimony to the ever increasing popularity of your preparation known as Paine's Celery Compound. It is now a year since I had a severe attack of dyspepsia, and for a year I could not sleep at night. This condition of sleeplessness brought on delirium. I was attended by four of the best doctors of the country, and took a great quantity of medicine, but all failed to do me any good. Having been persuaded to read your books I thought I would try your Paine's Celery Compound; and after I had used four bottles the nervousness and dyspepsia left me, and I have done more work since than for years past. I now enjoy excellent health, and consider myself completely cured. I have highly recommended your Paine's Celery Compound to others, and I know of several persons who are now using it."

Doctors Give Evidence in the Hyams Murder Trial.

They Say the Elevator Weight Could Have Caused Death—The Elevator Not Working Well.

Toronto, May 21.—At the trial of the Hyams brothers yesterday the defense called Dr. Luke Teskey, Dr. I. H. Cameron and Dr. Spencer. The burden of the weight would run up part way safely, and, working the elevator gently, might have gone to the top.

Mr. Osler, in cross-examination, brought out the fact that witness had frequent visits to the office of Mr. Horne, one of the lawyers engaged for the defense. Witness' companions will be examined tomorrow.

DALLAS SEES HIS WIFE.
Toronto, May 21.—When the Hyams murder trial was resumed this morning, Dallas Hyams was present in court, and was permitted to have an interview with her husband in the jury room. The meeting was held in the morning. Dallas Hyams was present in court, and was permitted to have an interview with her husband in the jury room. The meeting was held in the morning.

Robert O. Preston, father of the young man who swore that on Sunday, Jan. 15, 1893, he had been in the warehouse on Colborne street with Wells, who had shown him how to manipulate the hoist, corroborated the main outline of his son's story about being at the warehouse on that Sunday. He was questioned by Mr. Osler, but stuck to his story.

Dalton P. McCarthy, who was employed at Nasmith's restaurant on King street in January, 1893, testified that Nasmith's cellar adjoined that of the Hyams, and that while he was working in Nasmith's cellar on the morning of the fatality he had heard a crash some time after 8:30 o'clock. It seemed to him as if something had gone wrong with the elevator in the Hyams' cellar. About fifteen minutes later he heard some steps on the first floor of Hyams' warehouse and a voice calling "Will," or "Wells," or "Bill," or something like that.

In reply to Mr. Osler, the witness said that in March last he had left a good position in Buffalo, where he had been making about $3 a day, to come here to see his family. He had been here for two months and had made about $10 in that time, not enough to keep his family. He had been subpoenaed for the defense.

TAYLOR FOUND GUILTY.

Oscar Wilde's Partner Convicted—Sentence Deferred.

London, May 21.—The trial of Alfred Taylor was resumed in the Old Bailey court this morning. Taylor was in the witness stand, and repeated statements made at the first trial. In reply to questions in regard to the visitors to his rooms, Taylor asked to be allowed to write their names. The judge said: "If the names are written I will read them aloud. I do not approve of mystery. Taylor did not write the names, but mentioned a few which have already been connected with the case. There were no notables among them. After the libel trial of Wilde against Lord Queensberry, the latter's solicitors, he said, had asked him to make a statement against Wilde, but this he had refused to do. The evidence was concluded with Taylor's testimony, and counsel began their addresses to the jury. The judge, in summing up, directed the jury to acquit Taylor as regarded his complicity with the young man Wood, leaving them to decide upon the charges in which Taylor is alleged to be directly guilty. The jury retired at 3:25 p.m. The Marquis of Queensberry occupied a seat in court in the forenoon. Taylor was found guilty on the several counts of the indictment. The court deferred his sentence.

KNOX COLLEGE VACANCY.
Toronto, May 21.—The board of management of Knox College met yesterday afternoon to consider the appointment of a successor to the late Rev. R. Y. Thompson, the professor of apologetics and Old Testament literature, and decided to recommend for appointment by the General Assembly Rev. Dr. McIntosh, of Philadelphia, the nominee of the Hamilton Presbytery. The work of the board was rather difficult, nearly every Presbytery having sent in a different nomination; but after a full discussion Dr. McIntosh's name was agreed upon by a substantial majority. Rev. Dr. McIntosh is about 54 or 55 years of age, and was born in the north of Ireland. He was educated at Queen's College, Belfast, studying under the late Dr. McCosh, afterwards principal of Princeton. He took his theology at Edinburgh University, and afterward went abroad, studying theology in Germany. In 1860 or 1861 he was called to May Street Church, Belfast, as successor to the famous Dr. Henry Cooke. After a number of years spent there he received a call to one of the most prominent churches in Philadelphia, where he remained until recently. He resigned a short time ago, and lectured last winter at Lane Presbytery Seminary, Cincinnati. Rev. Dr. McIntosh is well remembered by many persons in Toronto, as he preached both morning and evening on the occasion of the reopening of Cooke's Church after its rebuilding in 1892.

STABBED IN A BATH TUB.

The English Actor Kyrie Bellow—Too Much Realism.

New York, May 21.—During the performance of "Charlotte Corday" last night, the excitement so worked upon one of the actresses that she struck a knife into the side of Mr. Bellow. It was in the scene where Charlotte Corday enters the apartment of Marat and assassinates him in his bath-tub. Mr. Bellow groaned as the knife was thrust into his side, but the actress was not aware of the wound she had inflicted until she saw the blood slowly oozing through his fleshings. As soon as possible after the curtain dropped Mr. Bellow secured the services of a doctor, under whose care it is expected that his sufferings will be slight. It was only recently that Mr. Bellow expressed himself as tired of society roles and glad to play so virile a part as that of Marat.

HER CARGO SHIFTED.

Queenstown, May 21.—The German steamer, Hispania, Captain Kahn, from Antwerp, May 17, for Montreal, arrived here today with her cargo shifted. Yesterday, when 250 miles west of Queenstown, she encountered very heavy weather, and 300 tons of iron rails, comprising part of her cargo, broke the stanchions which confined them and shifted, threatening to pierce the sides of the vessel when she rolled. The Hispania, which is carrying 220 steerage passengers, will have to be shifted by the unloading and reloading of part of her cargo.

PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS.

Toronto, May 21.—Secretary Sherin returned on Saturday from Washington, D. C., and New York. He had a very satisfactory interview with several Central, South American and Mexican diplomatic representatives in Washington. Signor Matias Romero, Minister of the Republic of Mexico to the United States, is very much interested in the congress, and has already requested the Minister of Education of his Government to send accredited delegates in addition to securing the attendance of several distinguished gentlemen. The secretary found a large number of letters awaiting his arrival, among others from Captain Cornelius Gardener, U. S. A., commanding Fort Wayne, who has been so actively engaged working for the unemployed at Detroit. He says he will take pleasure in being present at the congress and participating in the programme. Also a letter from Hon. H. S. Pingree, mayor of Detroit, promising to be present with a large delegation. Hon. C. E. Bonney, president of the Woman's Congress of the World's Columbian Exposition, promises to be present if possible. Among other prominent acceptances are Rev. Dr. Edwin

A Lost Gem

Without waiting for further reflection, she hastily donned her hat and ran downstairs with the letter in her hand. There was a pillar-post not far from the hotel, and she felt as if the letter would be safer if she posted it with her own hands instead of giving it to a servant.

She had never walked in a London street before, and she had a sense of being very adventurous as she dropped her letter through the slit in the box. And when it was gone, a wild fear of consequences suddenly attacked her, and she would have given anything to recall the deed. She stood looking at the scarlet pillar, quite regardless of the fact that she was attracting the attention of the passers-by. At that moment a postman appeared upon the scene, and, depositing his bag on the ground, unlocked the box, and began to clear it of letters. Molly gave a sort of gasp of relief; her experiences of postmen were based only on the routine at Torremuñir and other country places, where postmen were personally known to all the country district, and were somewhat amenable to private considerations.

"Oh, postman," she said, "I've put a letter in by mistake; can you give it me out again?"

The postman was inclined to deem this a foolish joke, and was on the point of returning a surly answer, until he saw Molly's pretty troubled face and dainty clothes. Then he smiled, shook his head, and answered:

"Very sorry, miss; couldn't do that." "But I will show you the letter," said Molly, pitifully. "I'll give you half a crown for it, if you'll let me take it out." "No use, miss. Couldn't do it at any price," said the postman. And if you'll excuse me, miss, I'm in a hurry."

"But, postman—"

"Can I do anything for you, Mrs. Hannington?" said a voice behind her. And turning with a start, Molly found herself face to face with Captain Ruth-erford, whose kindly blue eyes and friendly smile gave her a sensation of unwelcome peace and confidence.

"Oh, I am so glad it is you!" she exclaimed, impulsively. "I thought it was—"

Could she have been going to say "her husband?" The quick, scared look over his shoulder, the sudden hot blush, filled Charlie Ruth-erford's heart with sorrow.

"I have put a letter in here, and I want it out again," she went on. "Can't I get it out?"

"I'm afraid not," said Captain Ruth-erford, smiling at the proposal. "Was it very important?"

By this time the postman had shouldered his bag and tramped away again, not without a smile at the futility of the young lady's request.

Molly, finding that he had gone, drew a long breath, and glanced timidly at her companion.

"I thought that he would have given me my own letter back," she said, plaintively.

"A post-box is the very mouth of fate," said Charlie Ruth-erford, shaking his head. "What is done cannot be undone, I am afraid."

"I'm afraid not," said Molly, in a low voice.

"Are you going anywhere else? are you shopping, may I ask?"

"No, I came out only to post my letter."

"May I walk back with you?"

"Oh," said Molly, impulsively, "I shall be so glad if you do."

She was hardly aware of the traces that tears and mental struggle had left upon her face. Her eyelids were reddened; her cheeks were woefully pale, and her drooping lips twitched from time to time as if she could hardly restrain herself from tears. Captain Ruth-erford, however, saw it all, and he noted her silence, her evident depression, as they walked the few yards' distance between the pillar and the hotel. When they reached the door, he paused, lifting his hat as if to take his leave. Whereupon Molly said, quite simply:

"Won't you accompany me?"

She was so utterly, friendless that Captain Charlie's appearance put fresh heart into her, and made her reluctant to see him depart. And, after a moment's hesitation, but with a look of trouble dawning in his clear blue eyes, Charlie Ruth-erford followed her to her little sitting-room.

"I hope you were not tired after your dissipation of the other night," he ventured to say.

"Oh, no, not at all. I don't think I ever enjoyed anything so much in my life. I never shall enjoy anything so much again," cried Molly, with a burst of childish passion, which took her hearer by surprise.

"I should think that you would enjoy a great many things much more," said Ruth-erford, kindly.

"Oh, no, I shall not. . . . And I don't deserve to enjoy anything. . . . I know I vexed my father very much, but I never thought that he would not forgive me. . . . It is that which is troubling me today." Molly put her handkerchief to her eyes and hastily dashed away a gathering tear.

"You have heard from him again?"

"I have had a message." Molly's chin quivered as she spoke. "He does not want to see me or hear of me again."

"I am very sorry. But he will yield—in a little time he will change his mind," said Charlie, with eager reasonableness.

"He cannot always be so hard."

"Oh, I don't know," said Molly, looking away. "He was always rather stern to us. And I hardly thought that he had done wrong—until—you looked so grave and surprised about it the other night. Since then I have felt—differently, somehow."

If she had been the most accomplished coquette in the whole of Christendom she could not have chosen words more likely to inflame young Ruth-erford's ardor in her cause.

"Can I do anything for you? Should I ask my father to talk to Mr. Moncrieff? They are great friends, you know."

"I'm afraid it would be of no use." "I can't bear to see you in trouble," said Charlie, with a break in his manly voice.

Molly looked surprised. "It's very kind of you," she said. "Then with a sudden effort of sincerity, 'don't suit only that which makes me miserable. I had—other reasons.' She stopped short, and colored over cheek and brow."

"If I can help you in any way, I shall always be ready," said Captain Ruth-erford, in low, moved tones.

Molly had no time to reply, for at that very moment the door was opened and John Hannington walked in. He cast a very sharp glance at Molly's flushed face, and then at Ruth-erford, but he greeted the latter with his usual affection of semi-jocular frankness, and did not seem in any way astonished by his presence. Indeed, when Ruth-erford declared that he must go, Hannington invited him very cordially to dinner on the following evening, and would take no refusal. When the young man was gone, he turned back to his wife, who was sitting with her face averted from him, and touched her lightly on the cheek. "Come, Molly."

"I said more than I meant. There is no need for you to look so tragic."

"Oh, Jack," she said, the tears beginning to stream over her white cheeks again, "do you mean that you really—love me—after all?"

"Of course I do, as much as husbands generally love their wives, at any rate. I can't get up romantic sentiment, Molly, but I don't mean that. We are well jog along as well as we can."

He drew her towards him and kissed her. She neither looked up nor returned his kiss; a terrible feeling of guilt, anger, disgust, had taken possession of her. And she dared not tell him that she had purloined Stella's letters and sent them to Ralph King-scott, nor ask him whether it was Stella herself who was the "only woman that he had ever loved."

CHAPTER XXXI.

Meanwhile at Torremuñir life seemed to have resumed its usual course. By the time the east winds had ceased and the June flowers began to blow King-scott was nearly well, and could tend to his duties on the estate. Bertie was sent to a tutor; and Stella tried to take up the threads of life—although they had snapped of late in so many directions that she felt as if its web and woof were fatally strained asunder.

And in some respects she tried in vain. There was a certain day in spring that lived long in her remembrance. It was before Bertie's severe illness, before King-scott had returned to active life. It was shortly after a letter had been received from Molly, asking once more for her father's forgiveness; a letter which, as we already know, had been answered by Ralph King-scott, who took upon himself to lighten considerably the effect of Alan's Moncrieff's displeasure in the message that he gave. Alan's own words had not been harsh, but they were represented and he had never meant to refuse definitely to help his daughter in her need. But his words of inquiry as to the reason of her distress for money were capable of being twisted a good many ways; and it was Ralph's interest to divide the father and daughter as much as and as long as possible.

After the dispatch of Ralph's letter, Mr. Moncrieff was noticeably restless and uneasy. He did not say to anyone that he wanted to hear again from Molly, but Stella surmised that he was anxious on that account. He had been considerable anger when she had placed Molly's letter before him, but she knew that he had read it with hardly-suppressed eagerness, and he had made a half apology to her afterwards for his irritability. And then on a certain May morning, Molly's answer came.

Dr. Radway & Co., New York:

Dear Sirs—I have been sick nearly two years and have been doctoring with some of the most expert doctors of the United States. I have been bathing and drinking hot water at the Hot Springs, Ark., but it seemed every thing failed to do me good. After I saw your advertisement I thought I would try your pills, and have nearly used two boxes; been taking two at bedtime and one after breakfast, and they have done me more good than anything else I had used. My trouble has been with the liver. My appetite and eyes were all yellow; I had sleep, growly feelings; felt like a drunken man. Pain right above the navel, like as if it was bile on top of the stomach. My bowels were very costive. My mouth and tongue sore most of the time. Appetite fair, but food would not digest, but settle heavy on my stomach and some few mouthfuls of food come up again. I could only eat light food that digests easily. Please send "Book of Advice" Respectfully,
BEN ZAUGG.

James Stewart's Death Due to an Overdose

Of Cyanide of Potassium—No Evidence to Show That He Was Despondent—The Jury's Recommendation.

James Stewart, the aged and trusted servant of Mrs. John Cooper, near Springbank, who died on Friday from an overdose of cyanide of potassium,
was not tired of life and did not commit suicide. The coroner's inquest proved quite the reverse.

Dr. Ferguson held the adjourned inquest into the case at the Woodland Hotel last night before the following jury: Wm. Blinn (foreman), Fred Bouk, Byron Kilbourne, James Sherman, Benjamin Teeple, Ernest Teeple, Charles Baker, John Lawson, Edward Teple, Amos Askew, Hector Gibbs,
Fred Carroll, Stephen Whitney and John Mullard. The evidence clearly went to show that Stewart was not of a melancholy turn of mind prior to his death. He was very contented and bright, and, as one of the witnesses said, was a man who apparently enjoyed his lease of life. As to Stewart's procuring the drug, Mrs. Cooper said she had got it on the order of deceased.
She had warned him of its poisonous
character, but was assured by Stuart that he had frequently used it before.
He lived only one hour after he took the dose.

James Lutman, assistant city health inspector, produced a prescription for rheumatism which Stewart had given him five years ago. Iodide of potassium was the principal ingredient, and not cyanide.

The post mortem examination revealed
the fact that Stewart must have taken fifteen grains of the drug, or enough to kill three men.

The jury, after a brief deliberation,
returned the following verdict: "That James Stewart came to his death accidentally from an overdose of cyanide of potassium, mistakenly ordered by him for iodide of potassium, and taken by him for an attack of rheumatism."
"The jurors consider the untimely death of the said James Stewart a warning against the too common and dangerous practice of the public of buying and using powerful and poisonous drugs without the authority and direction of a physician. The jurors are of opinion that in order to prevent as far as possible deaths from accidental or intentional poisoning the Pharmacy Act should be so amended as to forbid
the sale of all poisonous and medicinal drugs except upon the authority of a regularly qualified physician."

WAYS AND MEANS.

A good many people in both political parties have been stirred up on the one hand by the farcical proceedings of the Royal Whisky Commission at Ottawa, and on the other by the recent action of the local commissioners in extending the hours of sale. It is proposed by some to circulate lists for the signatures of a certain number who will place themselves to refrain from voting for Mr. Hyman because of the action of the License Commissioners, on condition that an equal number will pledge themselves to refrain from voting for
Mr. Beattie, because of the action of the Dominion Government in regard to the so-called Royal Commission. The feeling is not without justification in each case, but the proceeding suggested has the disadvantage of being impractable. The young Empress of China recently made things even, as she thought, with the Emperor, who had given her a slap, by committing suicide,
but it is not generally thought her example is one to be copied, or even imitated, in self-disfranchisement.

—Mr. and Mrs. George O'Dell, left today for Ottawa, where they intend to reside.

—Mr. C. W. Graves, traveling passenger on the Grand Trunk, city,
has gone to the Soo on business.

—The London Amateur Opera Company held a full dress rehearsal at the Grand last night, and it went smoothly
over the boards.

The many friends of Mr. C. P. Le Sueur will be very sorry to hear that he is confined to his home, South London, through illness.

—The men who are left at the stores department at the Grand Trunk shops
have been organized into a fire brigade for the protection of the workshops, which are now idle.

—The scenic effects of "Garry Owen," the new Irish comedy-drama to be offered by the sweet-singing comedian, Tony Farrell, embrace no less than a dozen scenes, many of them strikingly original picturesqueness. The new piece will be seen at the Grand on Friday, May 24.

—Mr. Samuel Angles desires to express his heartfelt thanks to the Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Canadian Order of Chosen Friends and Canadian Order of Foresters for the many kindnesses he received on the occasion of the death and funeral of his son, George Angles.

—The London and Western Prohibition Union held a meeting yesterday afternoon and thoroughly discussed the action of the license commissioners in prolonging the time for the sale of liquor. A resolution denouncing the same was passed and ordered to be sent for publication in the city press.

—The final rehearsal of "Cinderella"
last night went off with a smoothness that assures a fine performance this evening, the principals and chorus going through their respective parts without the crudeness that might be expected of amateurs. The opera is brimful of comedy, and cannot fail to please the large and fashionable audience which is already assured, judging from the sale of seats.

—The Western British-American of May 4 notices the admission into the piano company of Hallett & Davis of Chicago, of Messrs. Harry T. Strong,
R. K. Maynard and H. D. French.
In speaking of Mr. Strong, the British-American has this to say: "Mr. Harry T. Strong is a British-American. He is from London, Ontario, and we venture the assurance that no one in the piano business has a better reputation for straightforward, honorable dealing than this esteemed fellow-citizen. We bespeak for the new house a fair share of public patronage." Mr. Strong is a brother of Mrs. C. J. Cater, of William Street, and is well known in this city.

—John Burke, a married man, who has lately conducted the eating house over Fitzallen's grocery, corner of the Market Square and Talbot street, was arrested yesterday morning on a charge of robbery. For a considerable length of time Mr. Fitzallen has missed goods from his store, and was greatly puzzled, as no sign of a forced entrance were found. Suspicion rested on Burke, and when the detectives visited his rooms yesterday morning they found about 100 pounds of coffee, tea, sugar, tobacco and spoons. An electric bell indicator and some electric apparatus and a bicycle saddle bag were also found. Burke is supposed to have gained entrance to the store by means of a hatchway, which was once used for elevator purposes, the hinges of which had been removed, making access easy.

WANTS A SUMMARY TRIAL.

proprietor who was arrested yesterday

terial Association yesterday a resolution was passed condemning the action of the license commissioners in extending the hotel hours was passed. The question of the earlier closing of stores on Saturday nights was also considered, and the discussion resulted in the clerical men deciding to request the members of their congregations to purchase early and avoid unnecessarily long hours for the clerks. The superintendents of nineteen Sunday schools sent in a petition asking the association to concur with them in the discouragement of church parades between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoons. It was decided to recommend the superintendents to confer with the various societies and bring about a remedy. Rev. Robert Johnston and Rev. James G. Stuart were received as members.

AT THE PRINCESS RINK.
Large crowds continue to assemble
to hear Rev. Mr. Yatman in the Princess Rink. Last night fully 1,000 people were present and listened to some pointed and forcible remarks by that reverend gentleman. "I want to see 1,000 souls converted to God by next Sunday evening," said Mr. Yatman,
"and that means a lot of hard work."
He remarked before he gave his address: "No doubt we will all know each other in heaven, but we might as well be acquainted here, so all please stand up and shake hands."
The vast assemblage did so, and for half a minute hundreds of hands were vigorously shaken. The only meeting to be held on the 24th is an evening one, which will be conducted in St. Andrew's Church. One man whose age was 100 years was present at the meeting on Sunday evening, while several of 70 and 80 professed awakening and conversion.

THE SEVENTH'S MARCH OUT.

The Seventh Battalion made a good showing in their route march last night,
but they did not come near the heart of the city, where a great many were waiting for an hour in the cold to see them. Headed by the pioneer corps and both bands, the battalion marched from the drill shed at 8 o'clock, and by way of Central Avenue, Richmond, Albert, Ridout and Blackfriars streets and the Wharfcliffe road, proceeded to Peter's field in London West. A number of movements were executed under this command: Lieut.-Col. Lindsay,
Major Beattie, Major Hayes, Surgeon
Mitchell, Capt. Kingsmill (acting adjutant), Graham, Fitzgerald, Thomas, Moore (quartermaster), Dawson, and Lieuts. Graves, Magee and Denison.

On the return to the drill shed the following orders were read by Capt.
Kingsmill:

Orderly officer for the week, Lieut.
Denison. Next for duty, Lieut. Taylor.
The battalion will parade on Wednesday evening, 22nd inst., at 8 p.m., in review order.

The battalion will parade on Thursday evening next, 23rd inst., at 8 p.m., in drill order.

The battalion will parade on Friday morning next, 24th inst. (Queen's Birthday), at 9 a.m., sharp, in review order.

Officers commanding companies will issue requisition upon the quartermaster for helmets at once.
