At Guelph yesterday the Alerts Were defeated by the Maple Leafs.

They were unfortunate, not only in their hitting, but Pitcher Wood, who St. Louis, 2; Louis Calahan, Buffalo, was putting up splendid ball, had his knee-cap so badly sprained while was spiked by Hanley at second base, who jumped in feet first. The spike entered Sippi's foot but he finished the game, covering first base. Cockman's batting was the feature of the game, and practically won it. The HAMILTON'S CHANCES. Hamilton Times: The Hamilton boys are in fine fettle, and expect to win at least seven out of the nine games they have yet to play. These nine games are made up as follows: Four with Guelph, three of which are to be played in Hamilton; two with London, both Saturday games and both at Hamilton; three with Brantford, all at Brantford. The team has won twelve out of the last seventeen games, most of them played away from home. The chances for Hamilton pulling out at the top of the league are very good.

FLYS. Here are two threats from the Ham-Iton Spectator: If London is not careful it will find that the Hamiltons and Guelph will arrange a series of games and leave the Alerts in the cold. Ever since the league was formed the London club has been a kicker, even going so far as to hog all the holiday games. Mike Morrison is still at oggerheads with the management. If Mike is not careful a new man will be signed to take his place.

WORLD'S MILE RECORD BROKEN Louisville, Aug. 15 .- The races of the National L. A. W. meet ended yesterday, and the time made bordered on the sensational. One of the most important world's records, the one mile competition, was broken. The one mile national championship was decided so far as the present progress of the circuit is concerned. It was won by Tom Butler. Arthur Gardiner did the record-breaking in the mile open, with thirteen starters in the race. Gardiner rode the mile in 2:01, beating the record of 2:01 4-5, established by Bald just a week ago at Buffalo. In the stretch he was ten lengths behind Sanger, who led the field. Cooper was not entered in this race. In the one third mile national championship, Cooper, who won, had the closest call of the year. BOTHWELL,

The Boom Continues — A 200 Barrel | Gusher Struck.

Bothwell, Aug. 15 .- The oil boom here is increasing every day. On Thursday Mr. Alex. Elliott struck antest has shown it to be at least a 200-barrel well per day. This makes the third well of this description in this territory inside of a week and has been the means of stirring up great activity among the many speculators who have gathered here. At present there are twelve drilling rigs at work, and all being pushed with the greatest possible haste. Today a new company, headed by Mr. John Puddicomb, jun., are placing a new rig on the Brewer farm, and have engaged experienced men to make a thorough test without delay. It may be safely said that within the next fortnight many more new rigs and operators will be at work. At present all the available men are picked up and times here are the best seen in Bothwell for many years.

Walker has already over 40 men working for him and paid out on Friday of last week over $1,500 wages. He is putting more new rigs on the ground each day, and next week will have upwards of 100 men at work. The wells that have been struck,

AN IDEA OF THE PAST.

The office of Lord Warden is more an idea of the past than a matter of the present. In the old days the Cinque Ports were of the greatest importance as shipbuilding centers, contributing great numbers of ships to the English navy. They grew so powerful that in time they undertook piratical expeditions, made war and concluded treaties on their own account, while the warden united in his own person the privileges and functions of sheriff, customs rotulorum, lord-lieutenant and admiral. criminal jurisdiction of the warden was abolished in 1835. The ceremonies today were flavored by the quaintness of the middle ages. Today, however, the new warden dis-pensed with one of the ancient customs, the holding of the installation at the site of the "Brodenstone," an uninteresting looking stone which, carefully fenced in, lies in the Drop Redoubt of Dover Castle. For many centuries the ceremony has always taken place at this stone. This morning it was held in Dover College

LI HAVING A GOOD TIME. Li Hung Chang, or Li Chung Tong, "First Secretary Li," as he now requests he should be called, has been going about in London in a style that has suited him-in the four magnificent equipages of Lord Lonsdale, painted canary, yellow and black. Two of them are horsed by four splendid chestnuts, each ridden by postilions in yellow jackets faced with Salisbury Formally Installed in the black and worn in combination with white waistcoats and white beaver post-boy hats. The two others are horsed by pairs of chestnuts. With Li's yellow jacket and his gailyequipped suite of mandarins, the pos-tilions and the outriders accompanying, the procession is more gaudy than usual to London streets and easily evokes British cheering. He con-nives at it with his best staile, although he cannot understand the enthusiasm.

WIPED OUT.

London, Aug. 15 .- A dispatch from Athens says that a body of Christian insurgents attacked a number of marauding Mussulmans at Katovathia, near Candia. It is stated that the Mussulmans were nearly annihilated. A body of troops was sent to attack the Christians, but they were defeated.

Mr. Marshall Stevens, manager of the canal, sails on the Lucania tomorrow to interview Montreal, Toronto and other houses. A large number of shipments are now reaching the canal from Canada.

EDWARD BLAKE'S POSITION. London, Aug. 15 .- The suggestion that Hon. Mr. Edward Blake Mr. Laurier for the Canadian seat on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council arouses much interest in the Irish parliamentary party. Mr. John Dillon said today that he did not believe that Mr. Blake had been approached on the subject, and been approached on the subject, and It is a mistake to suppose that Mr. Blake is under the pledge to the party not to accept any position of emolument from any British Government. London, Aug. 15 .- A dispatch from Budapesth says: Little is talked of here today but the romantic suicide and funeral of Count Anthur Pallavicini, a lieutenant of hussars, who was buried vesterday. The lieutenant, a handsome young fellow, only 21 years of age, became greatly attached to Miss Ethel Barrison, one of the five Barrison sisters, the well known American variety artists, whose doings in New York and Berlin have attracted so much atten-tion, and whose scandalous conduct in Berlin brought upon them an order of expulsion from Germany. Count Pallavicini sought in every way pos-sible to induce Miss Ethel to return his love, but she only laughed at his protests of affection and apparently paid no heed to his threats to end his life. Tuesday, Count Pallavicini was found dead, having committed suicide by shooting himself with a re-volver. In his left hand was a photograph of Ethel, and a slip of paper, upon which the unfortunate young man had written: "I beg of Miss Ethel Barrison to come to my coffin and press a kiss upon it." The strange features of the case naturally aroused much comment, which was not in any way favorable to the American music hall artists, and nobody believed that the girl would grant her lover's last request. But, contrary to expectation, she appeared at the funeral dressed in the deepest ourning.
HONOR FOR MILLAIS.

London, Aug. 15 .- A meeting of the members of the Royal Academy was held yesterday for the purpose of making suitable arrangements for the burial of the body of Sir John Millais. It was decided, in the event of the family of the late president of the Royal Academy giving their consent to inter the body in St. Paul's Cathedral.

SITUATION AT BULUWAYO. New York, Aug. 15.-A cablegram from Cape Town says: The majority of the Matabeles are said to be anxious to surrender, but are held back by their chiefs. The contemplated British attack has been postponed for three days. The chief of natives in the Fort Charter district is still hostile. Cecil Rhodes will go to England after peace has been restored in Matabele-land.

A special correspondent at Cape Town writes under date of July 8th:
The feeling here is very strong in favor of reinstating Cecil Rhodes as Premier of Cape Colony. Indeed, the whole English and United States community right through South Africa, with exceptions—the only men who are anxious for office themselves and wire pullers—would vote for this. It has been said in the House of Assembly that if Mr. Rhodes were to stand for Cape Town itself he would be "returned with a bumper majority."

A Banquet of Calf's Head Mistaken for Alligator.

Meaning of the Porte

The Porte is the short name of the Sublime Porte, which is the official way of speaking of the Turkish Government. In the East, judicial business is transacted at the city or palace gates. One story says that the Sultan of Bagdad put in the portal of his palace a piece of sacred black stone of Mecca, thus making his gate the Porte. Another says that Sultan Orkhan built a gorgeous gate to his palace in Broussa.

Both of these stories are probably the advance on Dongola, and then untrue, so far as they purport to exsays: The conditions in some portions of the Turkish Empire continues to show the court of St. James, for much anxiety At and the late French court that of the Tuileries, because their headquarters were in the palaces of St. James and the Tuileries respectively, so the Turkish court got the name Sublime Porte because its headquarters were in the palace of Bab-i-Humayun, or the Lofty Gate, in Constantinople. name has been attached to the building in that city which shelters the four principal departments of the Government.

Mr. Glennie points to the fact that Hon. Alexander Mackenzie was because in departmental work he trusted in men who were appointed by the previous Conservative Administration. The lesson from that experience certainly is that Premier Laurier and his Ministers ought to avoid a repetition. The manner in which they protect themselves in the performance of their duty can safely be left to the good sense of the Ministers. If in any legitimate way they can help their friends when changes are made, it certainly is their duty to do so. They may be criticised by their opponents, for the men who have held power and office for eighteen years seem to think that they have a divine right to all positions in the gift of the crown. But opposition to the rule of "turn about is fair play" ought to have little effect on those charged with securing efficient service for the country.

Our correspondent instances the wholesale dismissal by the Macdonald Government of inspectors of weights and measures, appointed by the Mackenzie Administration. That wa unwarrantable procedand a very bad cedent to set. A Liberal Administration will not stoop to follow it. But a Liberal Administration is perfectly warranted in adopting Premier Lau-Mer's view of the case—that no man whether working for Liberals or Conservatives, who has acted the mart of an offensive partisan, can expect to be retained in the public service. That view was indorsed by Sir Chas. Tupper, who, when accused of becoming a political partisan, while holding a Government office, conceded that in the event of a change of Administration his resignation or dismissal would follow as a matter of course. To fill such vacancies, the Government of the day may certainly be trusted to choose its own duly qualified friends

Rev. Sam Small, the evangelist, has cast in his lot with Bryan, the Democratic candidate for the Presidency. He says that at present there is a western tidal wave in favor of silver.

Is This Feasible?

Judging by the way in which the Mail-Empire correspondent at Winnipeg is traducing Hon. Mr. Watson. there is some prospect of his going into the Dominion Government.

The London Petition.

The London Free Press volunteers the opinion that the chief motive bebind the petition against the election of Mr. Beattie, in this city, is vindict-No. no: there is no vindictiveness about it. The question at issue is a straight matter of right or wrong. When a man has in his possession abundance of sworn evidence that another has that which rightly belongs to him. it surely is not vindictive that he should ask to have all his rights restored. The citizens of London, who voted for Mr. Hyman. and who know of the means by which Mr. Beattie's election was secured, are surely not vindictive if they ask for a thorough inquiry and a speedy restitution of their rights as freemen.

the way in which the successful Republican candidate for Congress in the Three Rivers district of Michigan got his nomination the other day. The convention balloted 346 times before he got the requisite majority. They take their politics hot and determinedly over the border.

A Marked Contrast.

A good deal of the late oats in Western Ontario has been badly damaged by recent rains. The early harvester is the lucky man this year. as he generally is. But this is a great Rarely has there been so much good grass at this season of the year, or so bright prospects for a favorable fall supply of cattle feed. How marked the contrast with last year, when, a month before now, the grass in many feed had to be drawn on!

legal snarl over the failure of councilors to provide the necessary sinking fund to pay off the village debt. The council should get out of the difficulty as speedily as possible. There is a comparatively easy way, if the sapient village legislators could be made to see it in that light. They should arrange to have the debt of the municipality consolidated, at the low rate of interest now offering, spread the payments over a long series of years, as is provided for by the Municipal Act, and pay it off yearly, principal and ADVERTISER PRINTING CO interest, on the terminable annuity plan. Then they will get rid of the necessity for providing a sinking fund. and the taxpayers can see at a glance what they will have to pay from year to year, until the whole indebtedness is paid off.

A sinking fund is a nuisance, and is only of benefit to the bankers, who profit by handling it.

More Fish.

The very interesting anticle on the black bass, printed in another colmn, should aid in promoting a public sentiment in favor of taking all needed precautions to give this fine food fish a fair chance in our inland waters, particularly in the Thames River. For years past, through the dilatoriquestion of the control of the inland waters of the Dominion has been in the provincial authorities certain rights, and the Dominion firmly repudiating the claims. The dispute should now be settled at an early date, as the Governments now in power are likely to apply themselves earnestly to reconcile the conflicting claims. Meanwhile, by providing for changes which our correspondmay soon have in the Thames and other kindred streams the best of bass fishing. But there are other reforms to be carried out. The effect of dams, with non-effective fish-ways must be Was Acquainted With cense, must not be permitted to deplete the streams of under-sized fish; and sawmill owners and others must be prevented from placing their refuse in running waters to the destruction of fish life. Both Governments should now see that wherever waters suitable for fish culture exist the necessary fry to stock them is distributed from the Dominion hatcheries, together with all needed advice as to the future care of the fish till they reach a catchable age. The admirable statement of the habits and habitations of the black bass given by our correspondent should have a stimulating effect upon the desire of readers of The Advertiser to secure a great increase in that fish in near-by streams. People do not half appreciate the value of a properly stocked fish pond or stream. It is asserted by those who ought to know acre of cultivated land.

Failures? As the holiday season nears its close. pening day in the public schools and it seems to be natural to have the between-times discussion in certain quarters as to whether or properly looked after by the tem. There are people, well-intentioned, doubtless, who never tire asserting that the public schools of Ontario are do not devote enough time to teaching morals and religion. But they argue largely without stopping to discover firm foundation for their assertions. We might put the test to their deductions by adducing the changes which have been effected in the criminal population of the land The Provincial inspector, dealing with 1877-the population having meanwhile increased by several hundred thousands-makes the following significant contrasts

Crimes against the person, including the more serious offenses-990 in 1877. 673 in 1895. Highest, 1,043 in 1885; lowst, 651 in 1893. Decrease from 1835. about 35 per cent. Crimes against property, from arson to trespass-2. 773 in 1877, 2.746 in 1895, Highest, 2.812 in 1888; lowest, 1.989 in 1883. Decrease from 1877 about 1 per cent. This is one of the classifications of offenses in which we have greatly multiplied the laws 'and bylaws offended against. Crimes against public morals and decency-415 in 1877, 393 in 1895. Highest, 519 in 1878; lowest, 336 in 1883. Decrease localities was burned up, and winter from 1877, about 5.3 per cent; decrease from 1878, about 24.3 per cent. Offenses against public order and peace: 8,554 GOLD in 1877; 5.016 in 1895. Highest point,1877; lowest, 4,836 in 1893. Decrease from 1877. about 41.3 per cent. This in spite of the growing stringency of city and town bylaws, figuor laws, etc. Other causes for which persons were committed-749 in 1877, 552 in 1895. Highest, 750 in 1878; lowest, 552 in 1895. Decrease from 1877, about 25 per cent. Total commitments-13.481 in 1877; 9,380 in 1895. Decrease, 30.4 per cent.

But we are prepared to defend the public schools and their management. which, of course, are always open to improvement, on even more comprehensive grounds. Will some of those who are so ready to denounce our school system as a moral failure, and to allege that our teachers as a body do not teach their pupils their full duty to the Creator and to their fellow-men, tell us of a country wherein the public schools produce more satisfactory results in this regard? Will they tell us of a school system that. taking the number of population into account, produces a larger proportion of men and women who make good citizens and do their duty faithfully through all their after-life than are to be found in Ontario? We challenge a comparison, believing that the result will be found to be that, morally and intellectually, the men and women educated in our public schools will compare very favorably with the graduates of any school system the world

That we are not alone in this view. let us show from the unprejudiced testimony of so independent a newspaper as the Scottish American Journal. of New York city. In its issue of this week, it discusses the public schools of Canada, asserting that the greatest perfection in all the systems is to be found in Ontario, and in conclusion, it says: "Education in Canada may be summed up as being cheap. thoroughgoing and practical. People who desire that their children shall command the best scholastic training cannot do better than take up their abode in the great Dominion."

Result of the Silver Craze.

The Ottawa Free Press has the folowing in reference to a matter that is at present interesting very many people: "The rush of Americans to Canada to deposit money is an indication that the present silver craze is producing a panic. Never since the civil war has there been so great a desire exhibited on the part of American citizens to place their money outside the borders of their country. It is a good thing, perhaps, for Canada, and complimentary to our institutions. But the unsettlement of things in general by the present contest in the States will produce results from which it will take some time to recover."

From Childhood.

And Married Him in 1850 - A Brilliant Woman's Secluded Life.

London, Aug. 15.-Emily Selwood Tennyson, Baroness Tennyson d'Eyncourt, widow of the poet laureate. who died the other day at Farringford, the beautiful residence of the Tennyson family in the Isle of Wight. lived a secluded life. She might have been distinguished and even brilliant in the most fashionable society had she desired. She preferred, however, the pretty island off Portsmouth, the care of her roses, the pleasure she extracted from her piano, and the affairs of her household.

The poet and his wife were lovers

even in their old age. Lord Tennyson was 41 when they were married, and they had been companions from her girlhood. Her mother was a sister of Sir John Franklin, the great arctic explorer, and her youngest sis ter was the wife of Charles Tennyson Turner. Her son, Hallam Tennyson, is the present Baron Tennyson. As a young woman she had a beau tiful, delicate and remed face, and with age she lost but little if any of these qualities. Her eyes were large and expressive, and her great quantity of wavy brown hair was dressed in the loose ringlets that were fash-ionable about the time when the poet wooed and won her. The marriage took place on June 13, 1850. Lady Tennyson was a fine musician, and spent much of her time in arranging or composing pretty bits of mel-ody, sometimes setting the lines of her husband's sentimental sonnets. She was a clever performer on the piano-forte, and at times gave infinite pleasure to the poet by drawing from this rather unexpressive instrument music that was of real inspiration. Only one of her compositions has been published. So shrinking was her character that it was only after Lord Tennyson had sought her consent pleadingly that she premitted its publication. In love of retirement and quietude the poet and his wife were very congenial. They were never on exhibi-tion, and fortunate indeed, were those genial could gain admission to the pretty house in the Isle of Wight. was not always she mingled with the poet's friends who had the entree to Farringford or Halsmere. She was not in robust health for many years. When a few years before his death the poet paid occasional visits to London and shone as a bright star in the the crime records of Ontario since social firmament, Lady Tennyson seldom accompanied him, and of the many people in England who will be concerned about her death few have seen her face

THE FUTURE. Now that Brantford has dropped through the same hole as Galt, it is not likely that a three-team league will be favored. It would only permit of one game a week, and this would not pay expenses. Guelph has practically been the only drawing team here, while the people in Guelph will turn out en masse to see the Alerts. It is understood—though it will not be known for a certainty until after the game on Monday—that Guelph and London will drop out of the league, and play a series of twelve games. Guelph and Hamilton will meet today, and Guelph will play here on Monday morning. After this they will determine what shall be done. It is not likely that any other club will go into the league, as the season is drawing to a close. London ball enthusiasts only want games on certain days, and the Alerts know them too well to advocate a three-club league. There would doubtless be no opposition to Guelph taking the pennant if she deserves it, should the league disband, as it means very little in any case. If Guelph gets the pennant the Alerts will have the consolation that they can beat Guelph,

The occupants of the house seldom or never walk upstairs. An electric elevator carries them from floor to floor and even up to the private roof garden fitted out with electrical devices. No attendant is required to work this elevator. It is the perfection of automatic action. A single push button on each landing controls it. No matter if the car is above or below your floor, a pressure of the button will call it to you. This is, of course, possible because of the automatic action of the pole-changers and switches which are placed at every floor and are worked by the car itself. Once a certain push button has been press-She had been subject for years to fits of hysteria, ad when in her normal state complained of fiere pains ed, the car passes under the control of the person who pressed the button, and no matter how much the other buttons are pressed they will not act until the first one is released. This is done by means of a commutator which throws all of the other buttons out of circuit; for if two persons on different floors should attempt to work the car at one and the same time it might prove fatal to human life. The car door is automatic, and the car cannot be moved until the door is shut This elevator is lighted by tiny but brilliant electric lights, and there is a flexible tube telephone in the car which enables one to speak to any part of the house. Such a thing as the ordinary opening and shutting of a door never occurs in this house. Near every door is a push button. Press this and the door slides into the wall or vice versa. The pressure of another button vice ocks or unlocks the door. Dark closets are unknown in the house. The very act of opening a closet door automatically turns on current, and the interior is lighted up. All of the table lamps are electric and in several cases they are marble statues holding incandescent small patterns, as it were, of Edison's famous statue of the Triumph of Electric Light. One of them, which stands in the front hallway, was on exhibition at the World's Fair.

Another big crowd visited Springbank yesterday afternoon and last night. The Berry family did funny ricks, limelight views were shown, and "the band played on." The fact that some entertainment other than the ordinary has been provided proves a loadstone to thousands. The Berry family's performance on the wire and trapeze are more than worth the price of transportation to the place. The death slide along the descending wire for 150 feet, performed by Miss Berry,

The horizontal bar feats of the two young men, one of whom is dressed in bloomers bedecked with diamonds, together with the slack-wire walking, is a programme worth going further to see. On Monday the street railway have put on special features, to provide pleasure for those who take the trip, and this is free of charge. There will be balloon ascensions and the limelight views in the evening, besides the performances. Instead of only giving the Berry family performance once in the after-noon, it will be almost a constant entertainment, which will be extremely mirth-provoking.

Go to Springbank on Monday and enjoy yourself, instead of going away from home. Encourage home enter-prises. The Berry family, with special features, will be found a laughable amusement.

No letter came from the Person, and in exactly a week Bella put on her neatest hat, the one that had been seldom caught in the rain, and trudged off to Harbeck street.

It was a dull October afternoon, and there was a grayness in the air which might turn to a fog before night. The Walworth road shops gleamed brightly through that gray atmosphere, and though to a young lady reared in Mayfair or Belgravia, such shop windows would have been unworthy of a glance, they were a snare and temptation for Bella. There were so many things that she longed for and never would be Harbeck street is apt to be empty at this dead season of the year, a long, long street, an endless perspective of eminently respectable houses. The Per-son's office was at the further end, and Bella looked down that long gray vista almost despairingly, more tired than usual with the trudge from Walworth. As she looked a carriage passed her, an old-fashioned, yellow chariot, on cee springs, drawn by a pair of high gray horses, and the stateliest of coachmen driving them, and a tall footman sitting by his side.

"It looks like the fairy godmother's coach," thought Bella. "I shouldn't wonder if it began by being a pump-

Never had she seen anyone as old as the old lady sitting by the Person's fire; a little old figure wrapped from thin to feet in an ermine mantle, a withered old face, under a plumed bonnet-a face so wasted by age that it seemed only a pair of eyes and a peaked chin. The nose was peaked, too, but between the sharply pointed chin, and the great, shining eyes, the small aquiline nose was hardly visi-

THE REASONS WHY SHARES IN THIS COMPANY WILL ADVANCE IN PRICE ARE:

ING men have on examination ex-pressed themselves to the above effect. They have said that more GOLD would come from this district than all the mining sections on the continent.

The facilities for transportation are of the very best. The miners are now dumping the ore from the tunnel directly to the CARS.

3. Cost of mining this ore will be very small, with the installment of the compressor plant (air drills).

The tunnel is "all in ore." No waste or shale rock to be carted away. In fact the May Flower mine can be worked very CHEAPLY. It enjoys the name of the LUCKY MINE of Trail Creek, its main pay chute having been discovered by the railroad men when grading the railroad right of way. It also is the only mine in the camp that had paying ore from the beginning, the first carload paying all the expense of development to date

Rev. Mr. Johnston Has an Enthusiastic Reception at St. Andrew's.

His Flock Glad to See Him Back and Highly Appreciative of Mr. Meikle.

Between four and five hundred members and adherents of St. Andrew's Church last night tendered a reception to their pastor, and a farewell to Mr. Meikle, who has been officiating in his absence. Mr. Johnston returned on Wednesday, and was last night welcomed back with much enthusiasm. The basement of the church, after the speaking, was crowded to opportunity of an excursion to Sarnia this year at the rate of $1. Mr. James Mills occupied the chair, and with him on the platform were Rev. Robert Johnston, Rev. M. P. Talling, Mr. Meikle, Rev. A. Stewart, Rev. George Gilmour, Rev. Thomas Wilson (King Street), and Rev. E. H. Sawers

The chairman briefly spoke of the object of the gathering. He called upon Mr. Frank Love, who read the following address of welcome to Mr. Johnston: Dear Pastor .-

Your congregation deem this a fitting opportunity to express their gratitude to Divine Providence for the safe return of yourself and Mrs. Johnston from a pleasant and prosperous voyage to the old land.

It is pleasing to us to know that you have seturned to the scene of your pastoral labors with renewed health and strength, and so well fitted to devote your characteristic energy and zeal to the cause of the Master.

While welcoming you back with that warmth of devotion and affection which we all entertain towards you, we desire also to give expression to our deep appreciation of your services on behalf of this church and congregation.

During the period you have occupied the positon of our spiritual guide, the church has progressed to a most gratifying extent; our membership has materially increased; our obligations have been met, and, best of all, there has been that spiritual awakening, that daily improvement in the life and conversation of our members and adherents generally, which testify to the great interest we take in the preaching and teaching of you as our pastor, and which must prove a source of comfort and encouragement to you in your unwearying and devoted labors. We feel that God continuing to afford you your present health and strength, the prosperity which we at present enjoy will be maintained and ncreased, and we trust that the cherished relation of pastor and people, now so happily existing between us, will be continued for many, many years, and that the bonds of affection now uniting us in our mutual relations will be ever strengthened, if possible. reputation as a pantomimist as the years progress. We consider this also an opportune occasion to testify our gratefulness at the selection of Mr. Meikle to minister to us during your absence. He has labored faithfully and well, and his exertions have met with the reward of our approval, esteem and good-will, which will folhim through life.

A Great Stream for Black Bass Cultivation.

What Is Required to Provide the Best of Fishing.

nteresting Notes on the Make-Up and Habits of This Fine Food Fish.

Paniliar Nest-Building and Methods for Taking Care of the Young.

A well-informed member of the Black Bass Club writes to The Advertiser as follows: There are two species of black bass viz .: The small-mouthed and largemouthed. Possibly no genus of fishes has been the occasion of so much confusion as the black bass. This is owing, no doubt, to its extensive habitat and wide-spread distribution, the original habitat of the species being the great basin of the St. Lawrence, the whole of the Mississippi Valley and Southern States. It would naturally stream, or lake, at different seasons servatives. of the year. In some sections of the country one species may be more or less spotted or barred, while the other the men who for the past eighteen

Both species generally inhabit the same waters, and there is a slight di-versity in their habits when they coexist together. Naturally the smallmouthed bass prefers rocky streams or the gravelly shoals and bottom springs of lakes and ponds, while the large-mouthed bass lurks about the submerged roots of trees or sunken logs in rivers, and delights in the bed of rushes or aquatic plants; but they readily adapt themselves to waters of various conditions, when transplanted, easily accommodating themselves to their surroundings, and have a happy faculty of making themselves at home

Black bass are very prolific, the females yielding one-fourth of their weight in spawn, and the number of eggs may reach from 5,000 to 20,000, depending upon the age and size of The period of spawning in the fish. this locality is from the middle of May to the first of July, always earlier in very shallow waters, and later in those of great dipth. The bass leave their winter quarters in the deep rule, nor yet to always feed at the water about a month previous to the public crib. It is my firm belief that Soon afterwards They the male and female pair off. select suitable spots for their beds, usually upon a gravelly or sandy bottom, or on rocky ledges, in water from one and a half to three feet deep in rivers, and from three to six feet deep in lakes and ponds, and, if possible, adjacent to deep water, or patches of aquatic plants, to which the parent fish retire if disturbed. The nests are saucer-like depressions, varying from one to two feet in diameter, which are formed by the bass, by fanning the gravel by means of their tails and fins. The females deposit their eggs on the The eggs bottom of the nests. are hatched in about ten days; when hatched the young bass are almost perfectly formed, from to one-half inch in length. After hatching they remain on the nests something like four or five days, when they leave for deep water, or take refuge in the weeds or under stones. During the period of incubation the nests are guarded by the female fish, who remains over them, and by constant motion of the fins creates current which keeps the eggs free from sediment. After the eggs are hatched, and while the young remain in the nest, the vigilance of the female becomes increased and unceasing, the male having left for parts unknown. After the young bass leave the beds their food consists of larvae, insects and the eggs of other fish; as they grow older they devour worms, tadpoles and small fish; and later they var, their diet with crawfish, frogs and minnows. Where food is plentiful they grow rapidly, and at a year old will measure four inches, and at two years of age they will be found from eight to ten inches, and at three years of age will measure twelve and more inches. They will grow about a pound a year thereafter, until they attain their full weight. A smallmouthed black bass of twelve and a half inches in length will weigh one pound, of sixteen inches two pounds. of eighteen inches three pounds, of twenty inches, four pounds. Black bass of less than one pound in weight should be returned to the water, as fish of less weight do not spawn, and It seems hardly fair that they are caught and kept before they have arrived at that age, where nature intended them to propagate their spe-cies. Over-fishing and the practice of retaining under-sized fish, it seems,

are the two greatest causes of their hood and prolific nature, together with the practice of protecting their young, increased and multiplied to such an extent that good fishing has always been the result. The River Thames is an ideal black bass stream, and if rightly dealt by, it is fair to infer would afford much recreation and good sport to every angler throughout its whole length. To obtain the best results, the close season should extend from the 1st of January to the 30th of June; all bass taken under 12 inches in length should be returned to the water, and no fishing be allowed within 100 yards off the crowns of dams during the close season.

Balzac's curious speculations suggest the extent to which color influences our human life. He had noticed that a woman who had a taste for orange or green gowns was quarrelsome; one who wore a yellow or black apparel, without apparent cause, was one not to be trusted; preference for white showed a coquette spirit; gentle and thoughful women prefer pink; women who regard themselves as being unfortunate prefer pearl gray; lilac is the shade particularly affected by "over-ripe beauties"; wherefore, the great author held, lilac hats are mostly worn by mothers on their daughter's marriage day and by women more than 40 years old when they go visiting. These theories are founded upon the principles of color as already laid down-namely, that red and yellow excite; green, tempered by blue, is bilious; orange is fiery; gray Wherever black bass have been placed in suitable waters and fairly protected, they have from their harding color of the scale. is cold and melancholy; lilac is a

Only One Alderman Spoke Against the Proposed Change.

The City Council held a special meeting yesterday afternoon for the purpose of repealing the bylaw which increased the fee to be charged circuses and similar shows. Ald. City Clerk Kingston explained the object for which the meeting had been called, and read a communication from Mr. Wanace, proprietor of the circus, wino wished to exhibit within the city thought that reasonable Aid Pannell said that Mr. Osborne, the advance agent of the snow, had interviewed him in the morning, and that he had advised the course which Mr. Osborne was then pursuing. Ald. Wm. Heaman-I presume it will require a bylaw? Mr. Kingston said that, knowing this, he had prepared one, and read the following: "Be it enacted by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of London "1. That bylaw No. 926 (amending bylaw No. 755), pased on the 21st day of August, 1895, be, and the same is hereby, repealed."

The bylaw was read a first time on motion of Aid. Parnell.
Aid. Pritchard—I will move that the matter be given a six months' hoist. I think the council is making an exhibition of itself. The aldermen are making a lot of children of themselves. The idea of changing a bylaw for one show! If Mr. Wallace can't afford to pay $200, then let the council give him $100. Ald. Dear Willmott: I visited the "Hill Top" with one of the original owners today. Found the ledge uncovered in three places, the principal point of operation having a 35-foot tunnel, which shows rock well mineralized and in abundant uantity. This rock is very similar to that taken out of the "May Flower" when their tunnel was first put in. We went over the waste rock below the dump on the "May Flower," and compared it with our specimens from the "Hill Top." It was almost identi-

Rossland, B. C., Aug. 1st, 1896.

Gentlemen,-According to your directions, I have made a careful examination of your "Hill Top" property at Trail Creek, B. C. The claim is about a mile from Rossland. The Columbia and Western Railroad almost skirts its borders. It is a full claim, being 1,500 feet square. It adjoins the well-known "May Flower" (Olla Podrido) mine on the east and embraces the continuation of its well-known parallel ledges, which are traceable on the surface for the entire length of the "Hill Top." as when driving in the same distance, the entire district, and in which is the ore can be easily sent down by a the veins is easterly and westerly. Its ore rapidly increased in value, and now runs over $100 to the ton. The surface showings of both claims are almost identical. They are both well named "poor men's mines." The facilities for working the "Hill Top" property could not be surpassed. The surface is such as to permit of its being worked to a great depth (considerably over 1,000 feet) without having to in-The formation is Diorite, being the same as that encountered throughout hoisting, etc. There is ample water found all of the great mines of the above-named district. HE HILL TOP is situated about one mile south of Rossland Trail Mining District, British Columbia. This claim is situated upon a steep slope of a mountain. The claim is being developed almost entirely by tunneling, the steepness of the mountain rendering this method of development the best and cheapest. The principal tunnel is situated 400 feet above the grade of the Trail Creek R. R., and ore can be shipped from the mouth of the tunnel by this railway with the aid of a chute.

Upon this claim are two well defined veins of ore, which are known as the north and south veins, both of which are known to contain rich deposits, being the same veins upon which the "May Flower" has so far developed, and when development work has advanced a little further the management expect the showing and returns will justify increasing the continent has ever known, and that Trail Creek will rival, and most probably surpass, the wonderful gold fields of South Africa. English capitalists have already begun to find out the wealth of this favored region, and they have already begun to buy some of the mines in Trail Creek. When London has once fairly started to buy these mines there will be no chance for Canadian capital to get mining property at low figures. Therefore, if the people of this Province ed by old-fashioned methods and given desire to share in the enormous profits that are certain to be realized in British Columbia Mines, they must invest at once.

The gentlemen connected with the mine feel confident it will rank among the dividend payers, and, when the price is considered and compared with others where the development work consists of little more, the advantages will easily be appreciated.

Mr. Kingston said he would have to submit the matters to his colleagues The Government was strongly inclined to support raising the age of protection for girls from 16 to 18 years As to the extension of the period of prosecutions limit, he thought no artrary limit could be logically justified. Geo. A. Landon, MANUFACTURER AND GENERAL DEALER IN CARRIAGE HARDWARE,

A Cannibal.

By Annie E. Prey. Her name was Matida, but everybody called her Tilly. Tom said that "folks couldn't have picked out a better name, 'cause Tilly rhymes with mind.

Tom was Tilly's big brother; that ds, he thought he was big. He was 10, and Tilly was 6, but he could make rhymes and that made him feel big. The only rhymes he had ever thought of yet were "silly" and "Tilly" and "doll" and "squall." But he could read up and improve. Just now he was reading Robinson Crusoe.

He was stretched out in the hammock with his book. Tilly sat on the grass beside him and held her doll. It was lonesome sitting there holding Betsy Jane and thinking. Why wouldn't Tom talk? Tilly hugged Betsy Jane close to her. Betsy Jane was old and homely. She had been out in the rain sometimes, and her hair was and tangled up. The dirt had crept into the corners of her one blue eye. Yesterday she had been out in the sun till the wax on her face had melted so that now her lips were all mixed up with her cheeks and eyebrows

"I jist don't see what a girl like me's goin' t' play." Tilly said disconsolately as Tom turned a page in his book. Tom apparently was not listening. Tilly went on. "Yes'dy I played graveyard, but that ain't much dun. You do something, then you do to over again. You heap up a pile of dirt for a grave, 'thout anything in the grave 'tall, that makes it kind of dull, and you put a shingle for a gravestone. Then you've got to think up a name to print on it. That's fun, only the nice names is always too hard to spell an' the easy ones ain't ever nice ones. I'm tired of grave-yard an' I'm tired of Betsy Jane. om?" Tom looked up slowly.
"What are you reading, Tom?"

'What's a cannibal?" Tom looked "It's a feller that eats up other fellers. Now, don't ask me a nuther question till supper time." Tilly hadn't heard the last part of Tom's "Goodness," she gasped, "do they really eat up folks?"

Yes, they skin 'em and fry 'em and make gravy with 'em." Tom smacked his lips and glared Tilly shivered and subsided. "It's just dreadful," she whispered to Betsy Jane, "but my, wouldn't it be nice to play! I'd be the cannibal of course, though, and you'd be the other fel-

After a pause: "Betsy Jane, I believe I will. It's better'n graveyard, I can't really eat you, course, but I can make b'lieve."

So Tilly began. She took off her coll's dress. She found the wax on Betsy Jane's neck nice and clean. She touched her little white teeth to the clean wax and growled as Towser did when he had a bone. Then she raised ther head in surprise. The wax came off on her teeth and it was good— just like gum—she scraped off a little more and then a little more. She forgot the make-believe cannibal and worked in earnest. All along the neck, on the forehead, and then on the face, she scraped off the wax. For a long time she worked busily. When the wax was all off she raised her to chew her gum in peace. Then she thought of something-the canmibals! She felt her heart grow littler and littler.

"Tom," she said, in a weak, smothered voice. And there were tears in Why, Tilly," said Tom, kindly,

"whatever is the matter? Tilly gulped down a hard little sob. "I'm one of 'em," she answered, turning her pale little face away.

"One of what?" asked Tom.
"Cannibals," I've et Betsy Jane," and she held out the little ball of white wax.

Tom had the impudence to laugh. He rolled on the grass and waved what was left of Betsy Jane around his head. He fairly whooped. Tilly "I didn't mean to." explained. "I just started, and forgot and kept on. I don't know what to do with her. She looked awful before, and now she's skinned." Tom sobered down a little. "Bury her," he suggested promptly.

"'N I've got a graveyard now," Tilsaid, much relieved. 'An' Tom,' went on, "you're such a neligant writer. Do you suppose you could get time to write on the tombstone?"
"Get," said Tom, and Tilly did. Tom wrote:

"Betsy Jane, Beloved eleventeenth doll of Tilly North.

Et up by Cannibals and skinned." And Tilly chewed Betsy Jane's skin she dug the grave.-From the

I had the very best of care, and the best of medical treatment, and although the inflammation left me, I did not get better, but continually grew weaker and weaker. I could not sleep at night, and I became so nervous that the least noise would make me tremble and cry. I could not eat, and was reduced almost to a skeleton. My whole body seemed racked with pain, to such an extent that it is impossible for me to describe it. I got so low that the doctor who was attending me lost hope, but suggested calling in another doctor for consultation. I begged them to give me something to deaden the terrible pain I endured, but all things done for me seemed unavailing. After the consultation was ended, my doctor said to me. You are a great sufferer, but it will not be for long. We have tried everything. We can do no more.' The Exclamation of a Woman About to Be Buried.

How the Insistence of a Friend Saved the Lady From a Horrible Fate.

Portland (Ore.) Correspondence San Fancisco Chronicle.

The story of a very narrow escape from being buried alive came from Columbia Slough this morning. About six weeks ago Mrs. Mary S. Albertson, a young widow, was taken sick with a mild attack of typhoid fever. Two weeks ago last Sunday she was again taken sick. Mrs. Albertson continued growing more feeble from day to day, till 3 o'clock on the morning of July 27, when, to all intents and purposes, she died. Preparations were made to bury her on the 29th, but as she was being placed in a casket, the corpselike rigidity forsook her and her body became as limp as in life

Frank Thurman, one of Mrs. Albertson's friends, who had had many years' experience as a hospital nurse in Denmark, opposed the burial of the years' experience as a hospital nurse woman. An electric battery was applied and produced muscular twitchings and a hectic flush in her cheeks, but nothing more. Thurman, however, insisted that Mrs. Albertson was in a trance, and his positive refusal to allow the body to be buried till greater outward evidences of death made themselves apparent, almost created a

Dr. Vernon, who had been waiting on the woman, was summoned and induced to remain in the room a couple of hours, at the expiration of which the phenomeron repeated itself. The doctor had taken the precaution to bring his galvanic battery with him.

The effect produced was almost incredible. In half a minute Mrs. Albertson moved her right arm, and pressing her hand to her brow, she gave vent to a low moan. The galvanic battery was applied every hour or two on that and the following day without producing any more satisfactory results, but hope did not abandon the resurrectionists.

The last application of the battery was made at 3 o'clock yesterday morn-ing, when Mrs. Albertson opened her eyes and in a weak voice said, "Oh, I'm so hungry." The battery was kept in operation for another half an hour, when Mrs. Albertson, without assistance, sat upright in her bed. The occurrences of the preceding week were a perfect blank to her, excepting the placing of her body in the casket. She claims to have been conscious that she was to be buried alive, but was unable to give any sign to escape from that horrible fate. Within the past 24 hours she has been gaining strength remarkably fast, and her prospects for a long career on this earth are quite favorable.
