GERMAN CITY OF METZ BEING BOMBARDED HEAVY AMERICAN GUNS

Teuton Newspaper, in Publishing the Statement, Says That Artillery Attack On City Was Expected After the Evacuation of St. Mihiel Salient.

Amsterdam, Sept. 20 .- Metz is under fire of American eannon. An official communication relative to the bombardment is published in the newspapers of that city, according to a Berlin dispatch. It follows:

The enemy for several days has been bombarding Metz with a long-range gun. Such bombardment has been always possible throughout the war, and has been long expected. Modern guns have a longer range than, for example, from south of Pont-a-Mousson to Metz. The present battle, therefore, is in nowise conneeted with the fact that the enemy, after our evacuation of the St. Mihiel salient, drew nearer to that town. It is only a concomitant phenomenon of the present battles west and southwest of Metz, and will cease when these battles come to a standstill. Regulations regarding entry and exparture from the fortress zone, therefore, are unaltered.

Amsterdam, Sept. 20.—In speaking at a banquet given by the town council of Leipsie in honor of Swiss guests, Count von Vitzhum d'Eckstadt, the Saxon foreign minister, spoke of the German peace aspirations as follows:

"The reason for our readiness for peace is not a consciousness of weakness, but a sober recognition of the fact that endless prolongation of the war must lead to a collapse of European culture.

"No pan-German politician, let alone any German statesman, has ever revealed in any speech such wild aims of destruction as the official leaders of our enemies have done since the outbreak of the war, and are doing today.

"German order should be able to stand in comparison with American lynch kultur. We are not a nation of wild conquerors. The Government has no sympathy with pan-Germanic demands, but we are also not a nation of slaves.'

MOVE TO EDUCATE FOLK TO DUTIES OF CITIZENSHIP BEGINS

Several Addresses Given at First Public Discussion.

MUST LOOK AFTER CHILD

Every Country Depends On Its Children for Future of State.

Far reaching in its results and of unlimited benefit not only to London, but to all Ontarlo, and eventually to all of Canada was a general verdict in reference to the meeting that was held last ence to the meeting that was held last evening in the council chamber of the city hall for the discussion of the broad subject, "Education in Citizenship." To accomplish anything, the central theme of the meeting as outlined by the various speakers must be central theme of the meeting as outlined by the various speakers must be taken up and carried to its logical conclusion by the residents of London.

This is the first of a series of meetings having for their object the education of the general public to the recognition of its duties and responsibilities as well as its rights in relation to municipal government.

That there should be some provision made for those entering public life to be educated along the lines of their work was argued. This could be done in London by extending the political science course at Western University. Inter-city conferences would also prove of great benefit to the province. The true citizenship must wage relentless war on all forms of graft and dishonestly.

Taught in the Schools.

His Worship Mayor C. R. Somerville occupied the chair; E. E. Braithwaite, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., president of Westwestern University; S. Baker, city clerk; W.
W. Gammage and J. H. Laughton, secretary of the social service council of London, addressed the gathering.
One of the outstanding features of the One of the outstanding features of the audience was the number of women present, thus evidencing their determination to do all in their power towards elevating the citizenship of the city to a plane on a level with the highest ideals. The council chamber was well filled and perhaps half of the number present were of the gentler sex. One of the predominant notes of the speeches was the necessity of a citizenship which recognized more fully the brotherhood of man and the individual responsibility of each member of the community in this connection.

Boys Defending Citizenship.

Mayor Somerville, in opening the Mayor Somerville, in opening the neeting, outlined the objects of the eries which were to be conducted un-Nation."

"There are two main lines along which all things develop," declared the speaker. "They are called heredity and environment. Over the one we have no control positively, and over the other we have a great deal of control. In environment lies the hope of uplifting life. Men of vision of every nation and age have seen that the history, quality and destiny of a nation are bound up in the life of the child. Therefore, if we are to conserve and improve the life of a nation, we must attend to the child.

"History begins with the child. And to canada is to be great her children."

Life a Gift to All Men. "God gave to all men life, and he gave all the same kind of life. He did not give one man life that he might rule, nor did he intend one to be a slave. just such deteriorating forces.

"Pre-natal environment determines a great deal the character oof the child in regard to its emotional life, and therefore the young life should be subjected to the most healthful influences through the life of its mother and the atmosphere of the home into which it is to be born. The home is the first environment into which 'he youth of our land is ushered, and if a nation fails to achieve greatness. I believe that its failure can be traced to the home. Then, after the home, follow school, society, industrial life, and last of all the state, all of which should in turn be sateguarded in order to make the nation great. The principle is also true that no nation can attain to greatness unless along the lines of sacrifice, and Canada is having its baptism in this war."

Describes W. C. T. U. Work.

Mrs. May R. Thornley also gave a short talk on the patriotic side of the W. C. T. U. work, mentioning the splendid results of the Silver Thimble and Trinket Campaign, proceeds from which are still coming in. "Let all of the same kind of life. He did not dive one man life that he might rule, nor did he intend one to be a slave. These peculiar conditions man brought on himself. It is not God's fault that man does not enjoy the liberty that it was intended he should."

The requisites for a proper discharge of the franchise are knowledge and morality, the chalrman intimated. Citizenship cannot be learned in a day, but must be developed in the character of the people. As there are bad, good, and indifferent types of citizenship. The character of citizenship must be developed along the line that will be for the best interests of all. The citizen dies but his influence lives on. "If our eltizenship is founded on graft or corrupt lines, we will come to disaster, but if it is built on the golden rule of loving our neighbor as ourself our city will prosper and its influence will see beneficial to the country at large."

city. Citizens are not satisfied with the results obtained from the present form of municipal government.

For Beauty and Utility.

In addition to the problems of taxation and other matters, there are larger problems looming on the municipal horizons that will have to be settled. First in importance, according to the speaker, is that of town or city planning. A city should be beautiful, but it should also be planned for utility as well. London is fortunate inasmuch as it is pleasantly situated and has natural scenic attractions which should be made the most of. The river had been sadly neglected along these lines. When he first came to the city he thought of suggesting the damming of the north branch, but he soon learned that this was almost a tabooed subject. The mutilation of many of the beautiful shade trees in order to string a few wires was also much deplored by the speaker. He suggested that as London would in the near future need several municipal buildings these should be planned at one time, so that architectural harmony could be obtained. This need not entail a greater expense than planning the buildings one at a time with no thought of what would be needed in the future, he thought.

Housing Conditions.

Housing Conditions.

The need of proper housing conditions for all classes was emphasized. "We

Taught in the Schools.

The six leading principles of citizenship was the subject assigned to S. Baker. He related the results he had noticed in Dayton, Ohio, where the principles were taught to all school children. There everybody could relate the charter on which the municipal government was founded. The first principle is that all men have an equal right to the franchise. Men by nature are all free and equal, and this must be maintained in the exercise of the franchise. Next in order, according to the speaker, is the fact that all Canadians are equal in political matters, but not as far as is the fact that all Canadians are equal in political matters, but not as far as social questions are concerned. Some by their natural ability rise to higher social levels. Canadians are unalterably opposed to the establishment of hard and fast social barriers, however. The privilege of every man to rise to whatever position he can by reason of his whill it is precented.

privilege of every man to rise to whatever position he can by reason of his ability is recognized.

The Right to a Living.

That every citizen should have full opportunity to gain fair and equitable living wages sufficient to enable him to live in a manner consistent with a human being, was the third principle laid down by the speaker. Anything short of this is a great moral wrong, he thinks. The necessity of carefully guarding their rights and the retention of power in the hands of the people was the fourth great principle enunciated.

"The big corporations and combinations that represent dishonesty (they do not all come under this head, but there are some that may be so classed) will naturally exploit the resources of the country for their own selfish ends. Vigilance must be exercised to protect the country from the political highwaymen,"

A Community Conscience.

The fifth necessary principle is the possession of a community conscience. The form of government is not nearly so important as the morality of the voters. If the voters are immoral the government cannot be right no matter what ment cannot be right, no matter what form is established. Iniversal education he placed as the sixth great principle of citizenship. Only as a man is educated can he fulfill his duties as he should to the community duties as he should to the community and the state.

W. W. Gammage gave a paper dealing with the different forms of municipal government. The people are getting restless under existing conditions, he thinks, and if one of the various changes represed will research.

thinks that it should be speedily insti-tuted.

J. H. Laughton, representing the So-cial Service Council, thought that there are only two great principles of citizen-ship necessary, which are the father-hood of God and the brotherhood of man. If these two were practiced he thinks municipal government would be all that it could be. "There is no use of growling at the grafters in power, for our government is but a reflex of what As the meeting had lasted longer than As the meeting had lasted longer than anticipated, there was no discussion at the close. #### 1918 MUSICAL SEASON IS USHERED IN BY RARE RECITAL OF TWO ARTISTS

The 1918 musical season in London waters, the whispering of wind amon The 1918 musical season in London made its debut last evening in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, when the occasion was marked by entertainment of rare charm and merit for the public. The "coming out party" took the form of a recital, given by Mrs. Corda Ward Buchner, talented young American-Canadian violinste, assisted by no less that the listeners heard last night as the harp strings were swept by the master hands of Angelo Cortese.

But it wasn't slone full these mechanics are recitally assisted by no less. Buchner, talented young American-Canadian violinste, assisted by no less a personage than America's greatest harpist, and at the same time a son whom London is broud to claim. Angelo on no previous occasion on which she has played here has Mrs. Buchner afforded such opportunity to an audience to obtain an idea of the scope of her musicianship, her versatility, and the extent of her artistic endowment.

Her first number constituted her big test the Mendelssohn Concerto for violin, of which she played both the Allegro Motto Appassionato and the An-lante movements.

Excelled in Later Numbers. Excelled in Later Numbers.

In the long first movement, bristling with technical hazards, her memory was entirely reliable, her pitch remarkably well sustained even in the lengthy passages played without accompaniment and her technique assured. But while she played with good style and evident appreciation of the content of the movement it was not until she entered upont. appreciation of the content of the movement, it was not until she entered upon the second tuneful movement with its haunting initial theme, that she quite found herself and became warmed up to her task. A happy memory for many a day will be her request group, the "Souvenir," by Franz Drádias; the exquisitely dainty, "To a Wild Rose" (MacDowell), and the captivating, "Orientale" (Cul), played to the inspired harp accompaniment of Mr. Cortese. In response to insistent encores, they gave a "Serenade" by Victor Herbert.

But it wasn't alone faultless mechan-lcal skill, the ability to pedal perfectly and manipulate the strings to give whom London is proud to claim, Angelo Cortese. The trio of artists who appeared was completed by Mr. Charles E. Wheeler, in the role of acceptable gripped the imagination and quickened the audience to demonstrative appre-ciation. Combined with this was the unerring judgment of artistic values unerring judgment of artistic values which made each number in itself a flawless bit of tone painting, enriched by the warmth of the Latin temperament and idealized by the vision of the poet, musician and colorist combined to make on artist, Angelo Cortese.

He played (as if it mattered what he played), a sketch called "Aubade" or "Dawn" written by his great teacher, Hasselmans. Next was given a Tarantella, of hypnotic rhythmn and grace, then another sketch, "In the Garden" then another sketch, "In the Garden a scene of alternate sunshine and shadows, a garden on a drowsy sum-mer day. A Fantasia by Saint-Saens came next, and as a recall number, the Six Story Numbers.

After that came six realistic story numbers, a tinkling, rippling, babbling brook, which Wagsani has reproduced for the harp; an "Eolian Herp," by Liege; amusing "Marionettes" (Muzio); an Arabesque by Debussy, as delicate and exquisite as a bit of rare old lace; a wonderfully realistic "Music Box" by Poenitz, and a brave bit, "La Spagmiola" (Tedeschi). Of course, the audlence refused to be satisfied with what the program said and insisted upon hearing still more, to which Mr. Cortese graciously acquiesced by playing a tese graciously acquiesced by playing a number of magic charm by Hasselman's they gave a "Serenade" by Victor Herbert.

For her third and last appearance she chose to play a quaint "Madrigale," and a crisp, spirited gavotte by Gossec, in which she excelled herself. Handel's Largo was an unexpected encore number. Her audience had reason to applaud her choice after hearing the breadth and depth of tone she evoked from her violin in order to give an adequate interpretation.

A COURSE IN ADVERTISING

Organization Considers Offering Instruction to Technical School Staff.

The London Advertising Club is planning for a busy, fruitful season, and when the executive committee and officers met Wednesday evening in the club rooms of The Huron & Erie Mortage Corporation wears suggestions were age Corporation many suggestions were brought up for the welfare of the club and the benefit of the community. A letter written by one prominent usinessman, a member of the executive businessman, a member of the executive of the club, regretting that absence from the city prevented his being present, stated that, in his opinion, one of the best things the club could do was to inculcate the proper spirit of pride in London citizens, so that they would boost for the city, not only at home, but when traveling. The club has been strongly imbued with this spirit from its inception, and at the annual convention of advertising clubs at San Francisco

The suggestion adopted by the meeting was that the club should offer to conduct an advertising course at the Technical School this fall and winter, giving evening lessons, at which students of advertising, clerks, store proprietors and others could attend. A letter was written to the principal embodying this offer of the club's services

BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE SEVERELY GASSED BY REV. W. J. KNOX TO CAPT. HINDSON

Quotes Browning's Words in Touching On Character.

MANY FLORAL TOKENS

Headquarters Staff Is Present When Full Honors Paid Officer's Memory.

"I have mentioned some of the features of his character, but to esteem him rightly, one must think of the whole man, the blend of strength and tenderness, of fear of the whole man, the blend of strength and tenderness, of fearless independence and understanding sympathy, of the spirit of liberty and of reverence which madehim a man whose loss will be deeply felt. The world at this time of unrest and change stands greatly in need of such men, who remain true to the great principles of the past, yet fearlessly pushed forward into the new age, guided by a living faith in God's living spirit. He would be the last to claim 'that he had already attained and was already perfect,' but his defects were the shadows of his virtues. As we think of the man who has gone from us, the words of Browning suggest themselves to us:

'He was one who never turned his back, but marched breast for-ward, Never doubted clouds would break, Never deemed that though right were worsted, wrong would triumph;

Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better, Sleep to wake." In the foregoing words, Rev. W. J. Knox, minister of the First Presbyter-ian Church, brought to a close a beautiful and touching tribute paid today to the late Capt. (Rev.) William Ernest

CONSIDERABLE RECOVERY

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I was pleased to notice that The Advertiser promptly repudiated as colorless and insipid that verbal monstrosity, the name adopted by our city council for the new military hospital soon to be under way. As The Advertiser and the council have invited suggestions from the public for a more fitting cognomen, I am going to suggest a name that is at once euphonious and characteristically Canadian. There has been an agitation recently for a change in our Canadian flag that I think would be admirable, and that appeals to many. They would replace the almost meaningless symbols in the present design with a simple maple leaf —the Canadian national emblem. I am going to suggest a name that will help to crystallize the idea. It is the Maple Leaf Military Hospital.

The name will suggest (1) the sweet fragrance of our fields and forests; (2) it will suggest our splendid political position, free as the mountain air, and yet under the sheltering aegis of the world's freedom. Some 50,000 of our bravest and best have made the supreme sacrifice, while hundreds of thousands have been made the supreme sacrifice, while hundreds of thousands have been maimed and crippled and blinded as tribute to Canadian independence and sterling worth, and the strength and solidarity of the empire.

The poetess has well said, "Leaves have their time to fall," and the maple leaves in crimson and gold now beginning to fall suggest to us full blown maturity and eventual decay. But oh! think of the myriads of human leaves prematurely struck down by the cutting blast of bloody and relentless battle! Well may we lament with the "Wizard of the North," the immortal Scott:

"Yes, prattlers, yes; the daisy's flower Again shall paint your summer bower. Again the hawthorn shall supply The garlands you delight to tie. To mute and to material things New life revolving summer brings: The genial call dead nature hears, And in her glory reappears.

Brigadier-General Shannon personally attended the funeral accompanied by the grant of the door without his coat or shoes on. From his appearance Tomlin thought that he had just gotten out of bed. Gootson admitted that he was at 11 Maitland on Wednesday evening, but said that he had only gone there on his way home to Philip street, after he had spent the evening at a neighbor's house. When questioned about the two safes and other office furniture that was seen in the Philip street house, Gootson said that as there was a chattel mortgage on it he could not remove it. The place, which was normally a dwelling, had been used for business purposes, but not for some months.

Clash of Counsel.

Clash of Counsel. During the evidence there occurred several exchanges of repartee between Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop and quarters staff, who rode with him after the vehicles containing the chief mourners.

At the church the casket was placed at the altar, just beneath the flag-draped pulpit. A place in the central pews was reserved for the military representatives, of whom there were a large number in addition to those who attended officially.

Six Officers Are Bearers.
Six brother officers performed the duties of pallbeares, Capts. G. T. Bartlett, J. C. Carling and G. A. Gerald of the C. G. R., and Capts. M. J. Alken, J. K. Pope and H. D. Dunnett of the W. O. R.

Rev. H. H. Bingham, pastor of the Talbot Street Baptist Church, and Rev. W. J. Knox conducted the service, the first making the announcements. Mr. Norton offering the prayers, and Mr. Knox delivering the address.

Referring to the passing of Capt. Hindson, to pay the last respects to whom such a large assemblage had gathered in the church, Mr. Knox decirated he esteemed it a high privilege to be allowed to pay a tribute to the exceptional worth of one whom he had not known long, but deeply, to one in whom "the Christian graces which were the fruits of his natural character were never more apparent than in the days of long and painful illness."

Mr. Knox continued: "Throughout the period of suffering, and facing what seemed to him the inevitable issue. Capt. Hindson's mind was concerned little with himself. His thoughts were gathered around the members of his own household, his devoted wife and four young lads, who are to grow up with the best in which he had labored hard to be absolutely just, both to the groat need of the country and empire, and also to the homes which might be wrecked by harsh treatment. Students of the Normal School enrolled up to date for the year 1918 number 187. Of this number only seven are males. This exceeds the number of last year by two. A Drink After a Fast.

The junk that had been found in the yard at Philip street belonged to another dealer to whom Gootson said he rented the storage space at the rear of the house. That the house was not included he was quite emphatic.

Questioned as to where he got the whiskey, Gootson said that he had taken it from his Maitland street house on Monday last. That day was a Jewish holiday, and all good Jews fast all day, and he said that he could not eat after a fast unless he had a drink of something to steady his stomach after its period of rest. ## You Can Buy Quality Shoes

at Fair Prices

VEN today—when the cost of every item in the make-up of a shoe is far above the normal—you can get satisfactory shoes at fair prices if you will buy prudently. The service you get for your money will largely depend upon your own wisdom and foresight when buying.

As Canada's largest manufacturers of shoes, we ask you to buy prudently, to practise true economy, to avoid extravagance. There are three things you should do:

First: Buy for service rather than merely for appearance. Second: Go to a reputable dealer and benefit by his knowledge and experience.

Third: Look for the manufacturer's trade-mark on the shoes

If you will do these things, we can assure you of the best possible value for your money.

A. H. M. War-Time Selections offer special value for men, women and children. Ask your dealer for them.

LONDONER'S BOOK ON WAR HYSTERIA MAKES IMPRESSION

New Practice in London, England.

COMMENDED BY CRITICS

Two Leading British Medical Papers Speak in Terms of Highest Praise.

British medical publications are most flattering in their reviews of a work of which a London boy, and graduate of the Western University, is the author. Dr Lewis R. Yealland, a native of this city, left here about three years ago to accept a position of resident medical officer at the National Hospital, Queen Square, London, England. Since then hundreds of soldiers from military hospitals suffering from the results of shell shock and wounds, have come under his treatment, and an outline of his experience is given in the book in question, "Hysterical Disorders of War-question, "Hysterical Disorders of Warfare." Here is what the London Lancet has to say of the work: "Hysterical Disorders of Warfare," by Dr. Lewis R. Yealland, M.D., resident medical officer, National Hospital, Queen Square, London. With preface by E. Farquhar Buzzard, M.D., F.R.C.P., lieutenant-colonel R. A. M. C., London: Macmillan & Co., 1918. Pp. 252. Price, 7s 6d net.

Mind Over Mind.

Dr. Yealland's readable volume on the hysterical disorders of warfare appears at a time when it is likely to prove of immediate and practical usefulness to the medical profession. Considerable numbers of cases of hysteria are being dealt with in special and in general military hospitals, large and small, and by boards, pension committees and individual medical men. Such cases cannot be satisfactorily handled for therapeutic purposes except by active, intelligent immediate presuesive teetics. not be satisfactorily handled for therapeutic purposes except by active, intelligent, immediate, persuasive tactics on the part of the individual who will devote himself to each particular case.
Treatment cannot be allowed to devolve on deputies if successful results are to accrue; the problem is that of one mind versus another, and its solution demands unremitting application on the part of the therapeutist. The reward is worth the mental labor, however, for in this field, above all others, nothing succeeds like success, and each cure is not ceeds like success, and each cure is not merely an incentiive for further tri-umphs, but is a potent factor in the establishment of that easy and reliable self-confidence the possession of which is half the battle.

Combination of the Two.

Various methods of psychotherapy are in vogue at present for the treatment of hysteria. The exponent of hypnotism regression of hysteria. The exponent of hypnotism or psycho-analysis, or of suggestion without apparatus, may obtain results satisfying to himself and pleasing to his own views of the nature of hysteria; others, less concerned with psychological theories, may give the patient a whift of ether and obtain just as good and as lasting effects. Dr. Yealland is an accomplished exponent of treatment by means of a combination of electricity and mental persuasiveness, which in his hands, judging by his records, has proved literally irresistible. Apparently he has not had one single failure out of hundreds of cases, for which he deserves cordial congratulations. Every variety of hysterical phenomenon has been met and successfully combated; not merely the simple case of flaccid palsy of short duration, already half cured by autosuggestion ere the seance begins, but has required many hours of continuous treatment for its exorcism. Dr. Yeal-land enters into the minutest details of his particular technique, and a perusal of his selected cases will provide adequate information for all who desire to learn and practice this particular method. Incidentally the author unconsciously reveals the secrets of his unfailing success—ingenuity of application of the method, nimbleness of mind in the presence of unforeseen hitches, imperturbability of temper, patience and persistence which have gone to almost incredible lengths, enthusiasm, above all, an insight into the mind of the sufferer in insight into the mind of the sufferer without which no amount of electricity

Relapses Seldom Occur. Relapses Seldom Occur.

If there is no special analytical investigation of the phenomena from a psychological standpoint, the value of the method is not thereby lessened. Dr. Yealland shows how potent is the fact Yealland shows how potent is the fact of relief of symptoms in itself reinforcing and consolidating the therapeutic gain, so that instances of relapse are few and far between. The book is written in an easy, colloquial style, and apart from the details of the method in a large variety of cases, also contains useful diagnostic criteria between organic and functional nervous disease.

The British Medical Journal's review of the book is as follows: he book is as follows:

The British Medical Journal's review of the book is as follows:

Hysterical Disorders of Warfare.

The subject of the treatment of the hysterical disorders of warfare has been graphically described by Dr. Yealland in a clearly-written contribution introduced by a preface from the pen of Lieut. Col. E. Farquhar Buzzard. The essence of the intensive treatment by powerful suggestion and the faradic battery is that the cure should be effected at one sitting however long that sitting may take. The author has successfully treated six cases of mutism in less than half an hour, and, on the other hand, an intractable case of the same disorder of nine months' standing required four hours' continuous treatment. The first eight chapters deal with various hysterical manifestations, and the ninth and last is devoted to malingering. and last is devoted to malingering, which, like most observers, the author finds is rare. In the diagnosis of mal-ingering from hysterical disorders the late Dr. Charles Beevor's criterion, that in the latter the antagonistic groups of in the latter the antagonistic groups of muscles contract before the principal movers begin, is accepted. The cases were patients in the National Hospital, Queen Square, and most of them were of considerable duration, and had had experience of various forms of treatment. The records of the cases are dramatic and the success achieved very noteworthy. The personality of the author must obviously play a most important part in the results obtained. author must obviously play a most important part in the results obtained, which command the respect of the reader, especially if he be sympathetic enough to imagine himself as the author's patient. As Dr. Buzzard remarks, the time-honored employment of the faradic battery in skillful and determined hands has been shown to be at least as efficacious as hypnosis or ether anaesthesia, and resort to these altermined that is the statement of the second of the faradic hands and resort to these altermines disadvent. anaesthesia, and resort to these after-natives with their obvious disadvant-ages was rarely, if ever, necessary. But as personality must count for so much, it would appear probable that the au-thor will have more admirers than rivals in his methods.

Mr. Vining told the commission that a desire to place the water utilities on a purely business basis, just the same as if it were conducted by a private corporation, actuated him in presenting the motions which he did.

His first motion called for the addition of $12,500 to the cost of producing the water supply for the city. This money represented what the city would collect in taxes had it the power to levy on the water department for taxes. His second motion was for the addition of a charge of 6 per cent interest on the considering the question of paying. City Responsible.

The commission asks the city to assume all responsibility for the footbridge and indemnify and hold the commission harmless for loss or damage arising because of the erection of the footbridge, "whether resulting from the negligence of the commission or its officials or employees or otherwise."

The commission would also bind the city to pay for the maintenance of the bridge. Whenever the commission thinks it should be painted it will be done, and the city dunned for the cost with a demand to "pay immediately on the presentation of the bill."

This latter clause led Controller Little to remark that the commission would have the city paying for the painting of all its bridges from London to Port Stanley before the matter ended. He remarked that the city would have been a great deal better off to have erected its own footbridge.

It is now about a year since the commission was first asked to go ahead with the bridge. Nevertheless, one of the first clauses of the agreement states that on completion of the work the commission will render the city a bill for the work. P. RESIDENT WILSON'S sharp and highly satisfying repulse of the first attack of the enemy's new peace offensive should not allowed to put us off our guard. There can be no question but that Germany either directly or introduce the barter. To attain this the Allied nations, probably individually, will be offered some tempting bait. There isn't the slightest doubt but that the kaiser would make sacrificest to get himself out of the hole, and the realization of this may bring a demand from a certain element amongst those who will be willing to toget many bring a demand from a certain element amongst the Allied peoples for a compromise. Prominent amongst those who will be willing to take service mounties. His motto is forgive and forget. He is usually lazy and indolent. His view is that it is easier to make a bargain than to go through and wine completely. While generally above reproach morally, he will frequently be found ready to meet level and national evils half way. But the sweet tempered, kind hearted, super-amiable would forget the past and shake hands with a give-and-take peace. To be rid of the present struggle and secure a world-quietness once more he would trade the future happiness of civilization. He doesn't regard the future any more than he does the past. Nobody believes for an instant that the offer from Vienna has been made without the consent of Berlin, which would guide any peace conference with the same entirely selfish, cruel and unprincipled manner she followed at Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest.

These exposures will heavily offset any advantage the enemy hopes to gain against neutrals "I shall walt for you-always," she by President Wilson's rejection of the Austrian said, a smile as gay and brilliant as if

He is not in sufficient strength to thwart the determination of the Allied peoples to see this affair through to complete and maquestioned triumph over wrong, but he is likely to hamper the going by encouraging the enemy to keep up the struggle longer than is necessary. And right here you must learn that Mme. D. is a most understanding person who never is surprised by sudden events in this K. of C. building. For instance, there was the day when fifty-three engineers missed connections somehow and were completely detached from their fellows. They, too, walked the streets, and, alas! with empty pockets.

They found Secretary O'Neill, and dined on K. of C. ham and eggs, without money and without price!

Another interesting little incident of Another interesting little incident of my stay was this: A sailor lad at a writing table gave every indication of mental distress. Time and again he started a letter, only to tear the sheet into ribbons. The color came and went in his face. Perspiration beaded his forehead. Finally, choking back a profane exclamation, he brushed aside the writing materials and started to his

Dear Miss Grey,—I wish to make an appeal on behalf of our Canadian prisoners in Germany. Some time ago I felt it my duty to adopt a prisoner. I sent $1.50 a month to help in his support. About a month ago I received a card from him, thanking me for the parcel he had received through the Red Cross. Last week I got another card, and this is what he said: "I received a very fine parcel from you yesterday through the Red Cross, and you have no idea how pleased I was to get it."

Well, Miss Grey, you may know how thankful I was to receive this information, as so many people give this excuse when asked to help with this work: "The Germans will never give the priscners the parcels." One thing is certain, if the money is not sent to the Red Cross, they cannot forward the parcels to our poor boys. What a terrible sentence it would be to hear our Master say: "I was hungry, and ye gave me no meat; naked, and ye clothed me not.

All London-ers would like to see outside rinks furnish at least one competitor in the finals for the first, the Labatt Trophy, and if our highly-esteemed ex-president, the veteran bowler, James Smiley of Paris, had not had his usual bad luck of loosing in the semi shels, but had been a competitor in the finals for that trophy, all London would have rooted for him. Never mind! Gasless garden parties and sugarless suppers may be the horrors of war, but it's a cinch we will never have lightless days. WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Aviators flying over the region of Epernay on the night of September 16 dropped leaflets reproducing the Austro-Hungarian peace conference proposal in French.

There are no Austrian aviators on the western front, so far as is known. It is supposed, therefore, that the leaflets were dropped by German airmen with the object of starting a movement in favor of the proposal.

The only result of this propaganda has been to raise the presumption that while the proposal is referred to in Germany as an "isolated action" on the part of Austria, the German army at least approves it.

Economy Should Be Your Watchword

during these days of stress. But remember there is FALSE as well as TRUE economy. Feeding inferior food or not enough food to your stock or poultry is FALSE economy, because you do not get results that satisfy you. Feeding foods of quality in sufficient quantity-not wasting-is TRUE economy, because you get back more than you pay out. We KNOW this to be true, and scores of our customers are ready to verify the statement, because they have tried it out. Our grains and feeds are fast becoming noted for their superior quality. Try them for yourself. Be your own judge. On Monday we will give free 2 pounds Oatmeal to everyone who buys 100 pounds of poultry food. If not down town phone your order, and it will be attended to

Putting the "Serve" in Conserve

"How do you busy women manage to accomplish so much?" asked the editor of this department the other day at the Mapleton Red Cross and Women's Institute community canning centre after hearing the story of 2,531 quarts, or something like 7,000 pounds of fruit, peas, corn, beets, tomato soup and jelly, put up in cans for the Red Cross overseas, between August 2 and September 14.

"We let go undone many things we used to think necessary at home. We have cut out the non-essentials," was the reply which explained the reason why a dozen or so women of the neighborhood scarcely miss a day at the community centre, so deep is the interest that has been awakened in the community in thus serving the boys overseas.

Last year, the now famous Parkhill canning centre was organized with a view first to conserving food, through making easier obedience to the slogan, "Eat all you can and can all you can't." It was intended that the women thus grouping to simplify the process of canning at the centre, should each day donate a certain percentage of the output to the Red Cross.

Scarcely had the equipment been installed, and a start been made, before a change of policy manifested itself. Nobody realized just how it came about, but the supreme idea with everyone was to fill the cans, and yet more cans, with goodies for the fighting lads. Canning for home pantries was a secondary consideration. And so, the women of Parkhill, aided by the men and children of the town not only helped along food conservation in Canada, but thereby rendered Red Cross service. In other words, the Parkhill canning centre, which is also the Middlesex community centre, "put the serve in conserve."

And that is exactly what is being done out at Mapleton this year, and in the half-dozen or so community canning centres in Ontario, which are following in the footsteps of Parkhill. The Government, through the Women's Institute branch of the department of agriculture, and the Canadian Red Cross, offer every possible support to such efforts. A large amount of the equipment is furnished by the department of agriculture, and sugar, containers, spices and vinegar for pickles, by the Red Cross.

"FOUR CORNERS" DOUBTFUL.

This year when Mapieton Women's Institute was offered equipment to establish a community centre for the district, there were members who had their doubts about the feasibility of the plan. It might be one thing to succeed in even a small town such as Parkhill, with facilities for advertising throughout the county. Four corners where every woman was already working, as she believed, to her capacity, was quite another story. But, there were other members of the institute who believed firmly that if there is a will, a way can always be found. One of these was Mrs. John Brodie, wife of the owner of the cheese factory. Another was Mrs. John Bray, convener of the executive committee, and these two, with others, pledged their support to the officers, Mrs. Mahlon

Bray, president, and Miss Mabel Bray, secretary. In the big cheese factory owned and operated by Mr. Brodie, there was a big wing with cement floor. Once upon a time cheese was only made at the Mapleton factory in the summer time, and this wing was used for butter-making in the winter. But, with cheese-making in progress all the year round, there was no further need for a butter-making room, so it became a storeroom. This, it was found, was available for a canning kitchen for a small rental. The department of agriculture supplied the steam jacket kettles, cappers for sealing cans, the pulper, tables, graniteware, wire preserving baskets, and some of the jelly bags.

Even with the Red Cross supplies of sugar, containers, etc., there were still necessaries to be found locally, such as window screens and blinds, rental, fuel and the fruits, vegetables, etc. A garden party was held, a mammoth affair, in which all the people of the country around joined forces, with the result that more than $450 was cleared as capital on which to start. Mr. Brodie, who has been an invaluable ally, installed all the plumbing himself, a most generous contribution, as the involved system of steam pipes and water pipes testify. An abundant supply of water is assured from a bored well, 175 feet deep. A gasoline engine turns the capping machine, pumps the water, and otherwise conducts itself in a most patriotic manner.

NINETY-FIVE CANS FIRST DAY.

Talking of patriotism the canning centre was ready to do business the beginning of August. The very first day about a dozen women turned out and by nightfall, under the supervision of Mrs. Bluett of this city, who was director at the Parkhill centre last year, they had the satisfaction of seeing 95 3-pound. enamel-lined tin cans filled with peas as a result of their first day's efforts. This didn't just mean canning the peas. They were obliged first to go out to the fields and pick the peas, then shell

So enthusiastic have the Mapleton women become over Red Cross canning, they have almost lost sight of the community canning end, though there has been a community canning day this week. It is one of the rules of the centre that no one can can there for home use who does not assist with the Red Cross canning.

The burden of doing up all the hundreds of quarts of preserves, soups, pickles and jellies, has been especially heavy on a dozen or fifteen women, some of whom never miss a day. They have been too busy even to advertise to get more help.

But while they have been engaged in their labor of love, the fame of what they have been achieving has gone abroad. Volunteers have joined them to give assistance from time to time, from points outside the three or four mile radius around the Mapleton factory. A group of girls arrived one day eager to assist, an organized class of girls of the New Sarum Baptist Church known as the "Happy Harvesters." They helped with jelly making, and announced they would buy tomatoes to be canned. Then the Yarmouth Centre Ladies' Aid offered assistance as an organization, and individual workers have come from time to time from a distance.

MILK SEVENTEEN COWS AFTER CANNING.

Talking of sacrifice for the sake of service, some of the women who help in the canning centre go home at the close of the afternoon to milk seventeen or eighteen cows. During the week of the Western Fair, when help was scarce at the Centre, a woman of 80 years old insisted upon walking from her home half a mile away to cut up the apples for the jelly. And she was quite the life of the party, refusing to admit she was tired.

Some of those who never miss a day are employing help this year to look after their homes, rejoicing that they are able to do so and thus be released to give war service. Getting back to that statement, "We have cut out non-essentials," one sweet-faced woman said:

"Many of the little things about our homes which we used to regard as so in ortant can wait. But the war is going on, and the boys must get food and comforts. There will be time when they come back for the dusting, which we are now often obliged to leave undone to come down to help at the canning centre. The needs of our men overseas can't wait. The realization of this has come home to us so since starting to work in the community centre that this is why we have almost lost sight of the community end in filling the Red Cross jars."

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed Peggy as mamma turned out the light and left the room, "I just can't go to sleep."

"I'd like to know why!" cried a silvery voice and Peggy sat up in bed and rubbed her eyes.

Through the window on a silver moonbeam floated a beautiful silver boat and over the side of it a queer little Moonimp was smiling at Peggy. "What's the trouble?" he asked as the silver boat with its pink sail glided on to Peggy's coverlet.

"Well," laughed the Moon-Imp, "I guess you're right, only you're wrong."

Peggy laughed and asked him what he meant.

Peggy never stopped running until she came to the mountain, and, sure enough, found it a regular mountain of lovely ice cream. Right at her side there grew a queer-looking tree with cones all over it. Moon-Imp flew into the tree and cut off several cones, and filled them with ice cream, and they sat down and ate all that they could. Down the other side of the mountain babbled a lovely cool brooklet, and when Peggy stooped over to get a drink she found it was flowing sweet ice cold lemonade instead of water.

Peggy drank all the lemonade she wanted, while Moon-Imp shook a peppermint tree, and lovely old-fashioned sticks of peppermint candy rattled down at Peggy's feet.

"I should love to live here always," laughed Peggy, when Moon-Imp told her it was time to go home.

"Well, you may come any old warm night you want to," he answered, "by just thinking cool thoughts." Then he helped Peggy into the silver boat and carried her back to her trundle bed.

"Always remember to be right in every way on a hot night. Think cool thoughts," laughed Moon-Imp as he waved good-by and sailed away through the window.

The Wonderful Realization That Came to Madge.

"Don't you think so?"

"Decidedly. But we can't say anything yet. I don't think she suspects. Hand me that bottle again, please. There! She is coming to, all right."

I seemed to be slowly rising from abysmal black depths, and the voices of my mother-in-law and Lillian sounded as if they were miles away. Later I was to wonder what they meant by their puzzling references. Just now I had not the vaguest curiosity concerning their conversation.

"She isn't now," my mother-in-law struck in. "Agatha is responsible for this accident, and is so remorseful and afraid something will happen to Katie that she's as meek as Moses. And she's waiting on her hand and foot. But now that you're all right I'm going back to Katie, anyway. But—Margaret, I think you ought to see a physician soon."

Her manner was hesitant, far different from her usual crisp command. I felt instinctively that at any other time she would have brought the physician to my room immediately after such a swoon, insisted upon my consulting him and following his directions minutely.

And then, all in a moment, the realization swept over me of the meaning of my mother-in-law's queer manner, and of Lillian's earlier in the day. I cast a quick, frightened glance at Lillian, then threw my shaking hands over my face in a futile effort to shut away from me for a moment the knowledge which once would have transported me to the seventh heaven of delight.

Lillian's firm hands took mine away from my face, her kind eyes looked represchilly at me Lillian's firm hands took mine away from my face, her kind eyes looked reproachfully at me.

"This is no good business, Madge," she said firmly—then she added—"And it isn't fair."

"I caught her thought, and it steadied me, enabled me to put a firm rein upon myself.

I opened my eyes to see their faces bending over me. Anxiety was written on each, I could plainly see that, and my mother-in-law wore also an expression familiar to me, the frown with which she greets any unexpected situation.

But on Lillian's countenance there was infinite pity and tenderness. I pulled on her hand feebly, and she bent her head to hear my whisper.

"Cousin Agatha and the physician are with Katie," she said. "Don't worry, dear. Everything is being done for her."

"But—she—is—afraid—of — Cousin—ous haggling cruelties to which the woman had subjected my little maid rising before me."

The little child I had longed for was coming to me. I, too, would feel the touch of baby hands upon my face, would bend my neck for the holy accoming to me. It isn't fair," Lillian had said. With a flush of shame my soul echoed her words. The little soul struggling to life should not be hampered by fears or doubts or sadness. Laymen May Administer Private Baptism in Cases of Emergency.

TORONTO, Sept. 19 .- Practically the TORONTO, Sept. 19.—Practically the whole of the sessions of the Anglican General Synod today were taken up with the revision of the prayer book. Among the more important of subjects dealt with were the holy communion and public and private baptism of infants. A number of minor changes were also ecected in the catechism and the order for the visitation of the sick. Collects, epistles and gospels contained in the liturgy of the Scottish Church, in the marriage and burial services were inserted at the end of the services of the Book of Common Prayer. With the exception of one prayer the form of service for use of days of national thanks-giving was adopted.

The appointment of a war service commission to deal with all matters affecting returned soldiers was made and a resolution of greeting sent to the Trades and Labor Congress now in session in Quebec.

Committee On Labor.

The Lower House early today adopted a motion to the effect that a committee be formed to look after the question of co-operation with labor for betterment of conditions between employers.

The following will form the committee: Principal W. H. Vance, Vancouver; Canon Plumptre, Toronto; Chief Justice Mathers, Winnipeg; Lansing Lewis, Montreal.

A call for the co-operation of all laymen in the work to be undertaken for the welfare of returned soldiers was made by Dean Starr, Kingston. Such a society as the Brotherhood of St. Andrew could play a valuable and inspiring part in the social service end of church life. He recommended greater use of parish halls as social centres for returned men.

Laymen May Baptize.

The necessity of further instruction, regarding the ministration of private baptism by laymen in cases of necessity where no clergyman can be found, was brought up by the bishop of Huron at the afternoon session, when the revision of the prayer book was continued.

A rubric recommended by the revision committee, directing laymen to baptize in such cases, was moved by Bishop Williams and adopted.

For the benefit of those who desire to communicate after marriage a motion was adopted to insert at the end of the form for the solemization of martimony the collect, epistle and gospel used for this purpose in the Scottish liturgy.

BOARD OF TRADE ORDERS SEPTEMBER CORN DEALS OFF

Chicago Sellers Instructed to Refund Purchase Price to Buyers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 .- All trading in corn for delivery in store, or by grade alone, in Chicago in September was ordered stopped today by the directors of the board of trade. At the same time all transactions in indemnities executed on September 18 in September corn were declared null and void, and the sellers were ordered to refund to the buyers the purchase price of the indemnities.

The reason given was the embargo placed yesterday, which restricted to a great extent shipments of grain to the Chicago market, and the fact that practically all of the storage space suitable for receiving grain on September contracts is now filled with grain largely held for the Government.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form, or distressing, rumbling, hissing sounds in their ears, should give this recipe a trial.—Advt.
