"GLAD TO BE HOME," Says Commander of 1st Battalion To the People of London Through The Advertiser

Radio Camperdown, S. S. Olympic, April 21

To The Advertiser, London Ont.---On behalf of myself and all ranks of the 1st Battalion desire to thank the people of No. 1 Military District for their kindness and to say all will be glad to be home again. SPARLING

The above wireless message from Col. Sparling, D.S.O., commander of the 1st Battalion, was received this morning in response to a message of greeting sent by The Advertiser to the commanding officer several days ago. The message was sent to the 1st Battalion while on the ocean, and no doubt contained the first words of "welcome home" sentiment received by the homecoming Londoners and Western Ontario men of the famous front-line unit.

THURSDAY MORNING PROBABLE TIME OF FIRSTS' ARRIVAL HERE

Full Holiday Will Be Proclaimed by Mayor—If, As Unlikely, Unit Gets Here Before 3 p.m. Wednesday, Half-Holiday Will Be Observed.

Mayor C. R. Somerville reported just before press time today that he had no official word as to the probable time of the arrival here of the 1st Battalion. The latest information he had, he said, was that the Olympic was to dock at noon today.

His worship stated that if the unit arrived late on Wednesday afternoon, as seems likely, it would probably be held outside the city until the following morning, and that a full day's holiday would be proclaimed for Thursday. If, however, the battalion reached here at any time before 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, a half-holiday would be proclaimed and the reception would be tendered the same afternoon.

Mayor Somerville announced that addresses of welcome would be given by himself and probably by Sir Adam Beck.

In military circles it is considered most improbable that the Firsts will be able to get here on Wednesday, and if they are due to arrive very late that night or in the early morning hours their detraining almost certainly will be postponed until Thursday morning.

HARBOR STRIKERS GO BACK TO WORK AFTER EIGHT WEEKS

Between 4,000 and 5,000 Men Affected by Agreement.

New York, April 21.—The harbor strike, which was in its eighth week, was settled Saturday under an agreement reached at a meeting called by Conciliator James L. Hughes of the department of labor. Under the agreement the men return to work on a permanent ten-hour and twelve-hour day basis, and leave the increase in wages to be settled by a committee of four boat owners and four strikers.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 men will go back to work today. The agreement reached Saturday does not oblige the boat owners to discharge non-union men, some of whom have been imported from other cities

GERMANY NOT TO SIGN IF WILSON'S 14 POINTS EXCEEDED

This Declaration Is Made by Leading German Newspapers.

Berlin, April 21.—Insinuations that Germany will refuse to sign the peace treaty unless the terms are acceptable to her, continue to be made in the German newspapers. The Vorwaerts, the Socialist organ, says it is unthinkable that an international conflict can be satisfactorily concluded without negotiations and simply by dictation from one side.

Germania also talks of the possibility of the Germans refusing to sign, while the Deutsche Tages Zeitung and the Kreuz Zeitung declares it will be impossible to sign a treaty which goes beyond President Wilson's fourteen points.

Vienna Will Be Chosen As Second German Capital

Plan Is Proposed To Recognize Austrian City.

Berlin, Thursday, April 17.—The Government has a plan for recognizing Vienna as a second capital of Germany by having President Ebert reside there part of the year, to transfer certain imperial bureaux to that city and even hold some meetings of the National Assembly there, according to Germania.

It is desired to convince the Austrians that they shall not suffer too much by the joining of Austria and Germany.

LIQUOR HELD FOR GERMAN SOLDIERS MAY BE RELEASED

Large Quantities of Wine Now in Unsuitable Storage Places.

Berlin, Thursday, April 17.—Wine wholesalers are trying to release into the channels of trade enormous quantities of wine and spirits which were stored for the army when fighting ceased, and which are either being consumed by the soldiers' councils or are in danger of being ruined by the warm weather owing to unsuitable storage conditions. It is asserted by the dealers that the high prices of wines can be materially reduced if the liquors are released before it is too late.

Sixty Chinese were taken to the police station in motor trucks.

EXPECTS SPARTACANS WILL SOON ABANDON TERRORISM METHODS

Hugo Haase, German Independent Socialist Leader, Looks for Change.

SPEAKS OF SOVIET RULE

Does Not Consider a Reactionary Coup Impossible in Berlin.

Copenhagen, April 21.—"When we secure power and are able to realize our ideals the Sparatacans will abandon their methods o fterrorism, recognizing that those methods may suit Russia, but that they do not suit Germany," Hugo Haase, German Independent Socialist leader, is quoted by the Berlin correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company.

The correspondent, who has just returned here from Berlin, says Haase told him that the Independent Socialist party asked for the socialization of all the great services of the country, such as the coal mines, the iron and steel works, etc., "and so," he continued, "with all the farms on great estates, these to be worked and managed by workmen and peasants' councils.

Hold Different Opinions.

"With regard to the soviet system," Herr Haase went on, "there is some difference in opinion, but the most of us want it realized in the following manner: Every factory or similar institution to select a special, small council to control it, but to have great councils of workers formed throughout Germany, these to have a certain power of control over public institutions, courts of justice and so no, together with the right to place bills before the parliament. If reforms proposed were rejected the council would arrange to take a popular vote."

Haase informed the correspondent that he did not consider a reactionary coup impossible in Berlin, but that he was convinced that such control, if it were acquired, could not last more than a couple of months, if indeed, it endured as long as that.

REVIVAL OF HORSE RACING IN CANADA TO BE CONSIDERED

Unionists Will Discuss Question At Next General Caucus.

REPRESENTATIONS MADE

Suggestion Is Made That Government Take Part of Receipts.

Ottawa, April 21.—It is altogether likely that one of the matters to be discussed at the next general unionist caucus which will probably be held on Wednesday or Thursday of this week, is the question of the revival of track racing in Canada suspended during the war. Many representations have been made to government in regard to the matter and before action is taken by the cabinet in respect to the order in council prohibiting betting now in force, the ministers will ascertain the views of the government supporters in the Commons.

Would Take Portion.

It is suggested that when racing is revived an arrangement should be made whereby a portion of the receipts should be taken by the government and devoted to the encouragement of horse-breeding. It has always been urged on behalf of the racing interests that the discouraging of racing would be detrimental to horse breeding in Canada, but the anti-racing elements in the Dominion assert that more consideration is given to the betting and racing end of the business than to breeding. This argument, it is argued, would be in a measure met if the government undertakes to see that portion of the profits made out of racing in the future is set apart for the encouragement of breeding.

SOME VETERANS COMING WEDNESDAY

On Wednesday morning, 70 veterans are expected to arrive in this city. They arrived on the steamship Adriatic at Halifax and left there at 9:06 o'clock last night. In the party there are three officers and 67 other ranks for this district.

SENDING MESSENGERS INSTEAD OF REAL DELEGATES IS MERELY ANOTHER CASE OF HUN "STALLING"

Paris Newspaper Declares That Latest Impertinent Move On the Part of the Germans Is Evidence of Bad Faith and Is Intended To Gain Time.

REPLY ANXIOUSLY AWAITED.

Paris, April 21.—The German reply to the ultimatum of the council of four, that it will not receive any German delegation not fully empowered to conduct and negotiate peace is awaited anxiously in peace conference circles. The next steps toward peace depend on the German reply.

Paris, April 21.—This morning's newspapers see in Germany's sending "couriers" instead of delegates of proper standing to Versailles nothing but evidence of bad faith and a transparent manoeuvre to gain time.

The Echo de Paris says: "The allied and associated governments are determined not to accept subordinate personages, and Germany has been immediately notified that she must send delegates equipped with full powers to conclude peace. Upon their arrival at Versailles the first step will be to demand from them evidence that they hold those powers."

The Gaulois, indignant at what it describes as "the impertinence of Germany's coup de theatre," which it regards as a refusal to sign the treaty, says: "The next move will be with Marshal Foch."

GERMANY'S LATEST MOVE STRENGTHENS TRIPLE ALLIANCE

Paris, April 21.—The report that Count Brockdoerff-Rantzau, the German foreign minister, that his Government would send delegates without full powers to receive the peace terms and transmit them to the German Government has contributed greatly, the newspapers say, toward an alliance between Great Britain, France and America. The French press insists that negotiations looking toward such an alliance are still in progress.

Budapest, April 19.—The commissary of education has instructed the clergy to declare from pulpits during the next three Sundays that the soviet government guarantees full religious freedom to all; that there will be no interference with the clergy or churches or other religious buildings, and that the soviet will not change the present order of marriage and family life, nor communize women.

TREATY SUMMARIES WILL BE CABLED TO PRESS IN FEW DAYS

Text of Document Consisting of 100,000 Words To Be Made Public.

TO GO IN INSTALMENTS

Plan Prepared To Prevent Loading Up of Enemy Propaganda.

Paris, April 21.—The council of four of the peace conference in the interval before the peace treaty is handed to the German delegates, will take up the question of making the document public. The American delegation, in agreement with the press advisers to the delegations of other countries, has recommended to the council the publication of the treaty immediately after its delivery to the Germans. Otherwise, it is pointed out, the first version of the treaty would be issued by the Germans and might be loaded up with German propaganda.

The plan proposed is for the delegates to cable for simultaneous distribution on the American continent, first: a 250-word official summary of the treaty; second, a 5,000-word official summary, and, third, the text of the treaty (about 100,000 words).

The two summaries would be given to the press at about the same time and the treaty a day or two later, the text possibly to be distributed by instalments as it was received.

THREE THOUSAND CARTERS STRIKE IN MONTREAL

More Men Affected Than by Any Labor Trouble in Years.

Montreal, April 21.—Montreal awakened this morning in the throes of a new strike, and one which will affect more men than have been affected by any labor trouble in Montreal in years. Yesterday afternoon in the large hall of L'Assistance Publique, over 3,000 carters employed by various cartage and express companies in the city unanimously decided to strike work this morning.

Several minor disturbances were reported on Saturday for which the police were called out in force. The leaders of the men advocate a peaceful strike, but admit that the men are difficult to control.

FRANK M'CULLOUGH IS STILL AT LARGE

Toronto Police As Far As Known Have No Trace of Escaped Murderer.

Toronto, April 21.—Nearly a week has elapsed since Frank McCullough, condemned murderer, made his sensational escape from Toronto jail. So far as known the police have no definite information as to McCullough's route of travel, or his present whereabouts.

Miss Doris Mytton, aged 16, at whose father's home McCullough once boarded, has given an interview to the effect that she merely regarded him "as an older brother," and that she had nothing to do with his escape, although she visited him at the jail once, when he was awaiting the execution of the death sentence. She has been summoned by the police, however, to attend the investigation next Wednesday.

SENTENCE OF DEATH IS COMMUTED TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Aurel Veuillette Will Spend Balance of His Days in Penitentiary.

Montreal, April 21.—Aurel Veuillette, the young murderer of Paul Morin and his son, Paul, at Snake River, in the fall of 1917, will not be hanged. The extreme penalty of the law was to have been carried out on Friday next, but Dr. L. J. Lemieux, sheriff of Montreal, last night received a telegram from Thomas Mulvey, undersecretary of state, to the effect that the sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary.

GARRISONS IN ALL GERMAN TOWNS TO DISBAND AT ONCE

National Assembly Sends Out Notices to That Effect.

Berlin, April 17.—Every German town and city, which had its own garrison, of which it has been proud for decades, has been officially notified by the National Assembly that it has been decided to disband the German army. The official notification, while referring to the creation of a new army in the future, says its strength is entirely unknown at present, and declares that it recognizes towns will be injured economically by the withdrawal of garrisons. They will, however, have to accustom themselves thereto, the message says, and the authorities will try to consider economic problems while re-grouping army units.

GAS WORKERS AT BREMEN JOIN IN GENERAL STRIKE

Copenhagen, April 21.—Gas workers at Bremen have joined the general strike there, and the middle classes have commenced a counter-strike, according to advices received here from that city. An intensified state of siege has, therefore, been decided.

Giant Liner Arrives at Atlantic Port This Forenoon With 5,500 Troops From Overseas—Large Number of London Men With Party—Halifax Gives Returned Heroes an Enthusiastic Welcome.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Halifax, N. S., April 21.—The Olympic, with 5,500 troops, including the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th Battalions of the 1st Brigade, 1st Division, Canadian expeditionary force, entered the harbor at 11 o'clock, docking an hour later.

6th Field Battery, Halifax; 3rd Battalion, Toronto; [illegible] talion, Toronto; 3rd Tunneling Company, Toronto; 1st Battalion, London, 2nd Battalion, Kingston; 3rd and 4th Field Batteries and 1st Field Ambulance, Kingston; 5th and 6th Batteries, Montreal.

Seldom has Halifax witnessed a more thrilling sight than the arrival of the huge transport. As she drew into her berth, the garrison band and the hundreds of people who occupied the vantage points on the dock vied with each other in a noisy greeting to the heroes who crowded the decks and made the masts and rope ladders look like huge monuments of living khaki; other hundreds, unable to gain admittance to the pier, lined neighboring docks and roared out their welcome from there.

LONDON BOYS POPULAR.

The London units were easily the most popular, though still far away from home. "Good Old 1st Battalion" and "Three Cheers for the Boys of the 1st" rang high above all other shouts. It was just such a welcome as such officers and men deserved. And the boys on the ship, well, never have there been six thousand more keenly delighted men. Their very appearance pictured their innermost happiness at being once more on the soil of Canada. No words were necessary, but nevertheless there were many spontaneous outbursts of joy over the homecoming. For instance, take Lieut.-Col. L. H. Nelles, D.S.O., and Bar M.C., the officer commanding the 4th Battalion. "I don't know," he told the reporter, "how to adequately express the joy and relief the men and I feel at being back in Canada. And it is nothing compared to the anticipation of our arrival in Toronto and London. All ranks are eagerly counting the hours till we pull into the old town, the officers and men are in the best of spirits and have come home with the feeling of perfect satisfaction that is borne of long and creditable service. The only cloud that mars the completeness of other happiness is the thought of our gallant comrades who so gloriously yielded up their lives on the battlefields of France and who are not with us to share the welcome and honors they so much deserve."

MEN ON WAY HOME.

First Battalion, whose habitat is in London. When the Leviathan Olympic steamed slowly up Halifax harbor shortly before noon today and docked at Pier 2 she carried the mainstays of the First Division, the first and the greatest Canadian corps. The 3rd Battalion came 31 officers and 642 other ranks strong; the 4th, 37 officers and 718 non-commissioned and men, and the 1st comprised 26 officers and 512 rank. The members of the 3rd Tunneling Company, a detachment of Engineers, and miscellaneous details, brought the strength of the entire Toronto contingent up to 85 officers and 1,908 other ranks. These troops were dispatched on the first four special trains sent away from the ship's side, and should be in the Queen City Wednesday evening. The first train carried more than half the officers and men of the 3rd Battalion. The second carried the remainder of the 3rd Battalion, and part of the 4th. The third special was filled with 4th Battalion men, and the fourth carried the remainder of the 4th and the other details for Toronto.

LONDONERS ABOARD.

Following officers and other ranks for London city arrived on Olympic today: Lieut.-Col. L. H. Nelles, 24 Prospect avenue; Lieut. L. M. Firth, 225 Queen's avenue; Lieut. N. W. McGregor, 40 Becher street; Lieut. R. P. Collyer, Box 275; Lieut. C. B. Rawling, 196 Duchess avenue; Bdr. F. E. Brill, 737 Princess avenue; Lance-Corp. S. A. Trueman, general delivery; Gunner R. M. Woollatt, 228 Colborne street; Pte. H. J. Devlin, Y. M. C. A.; Pte. N. J. Stammers, 353 Oakland avenue; Corp. J. A. McNeil, 37 Becher street; Corp. B. McLeod, Queen's Park; Lance-Corp. H. Loader, 29 Alexander street.

The Luella left St. Nazaire on April 17 with a full cargo but the only troops on board were two members of the 28th casualty detachment of Ordnance convoy. She was due to call at Barry on her way to New York, where she is expected to arrive on May 5. The Rosedale was a steamer of 1507 tons. Her home port is Hamilton, Ontario.

MEN OF "MAD FOURTH" TO GO TO TORONTO FOR DEMOBILIZATION

Brantford, April 21.—The latest word from Toronto and Ottawa is that the "Mad Fourth," now at Halifax, having crossed on the Olympic, will demobilize in Toronto, and that the headquarters' staff and Brantford men in the battalion will come to Brantford by special train to receive from Brantford city and Brant County the colors of the battalion. The local veterans of the "Mad Fourth," some 450 all told, have completed preparations to turn out in uniform to welcome their comrades.

CAR SMASHED

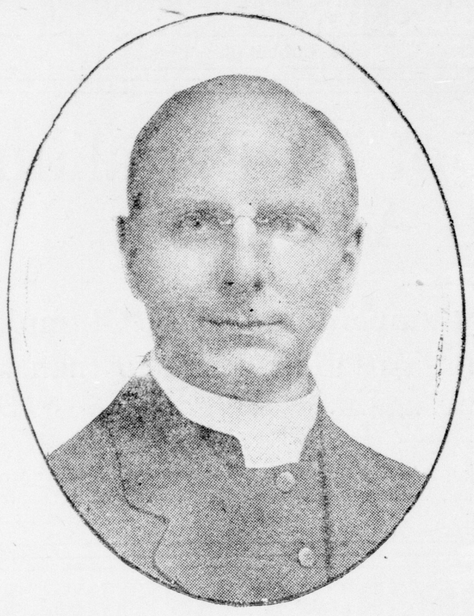

A motor car accident occurred at the corner of Ridout street and Elmwood avenue at an early hour Sunday morning. The car belonged to C. Bateman, who is a traveler for Silverwoods, Limited, but he was not driving it at the time of the accident. The car, which was occupied by only the driver, as far as can be learned, was traveling at a fast rate, and when the driver tried to turn the corner, the car skidded and turned turtle. The damage to the car will amount to well over $500.

INDEPENDENT YET ORTHODOX; FRANK TO A DEGREE AND INTERESTED IN PRACTICAL RELIGION, IS RECTOR OF ST. JAMES' CHURCH

OUTSPOKEN PASTOR OF ST. JAMES' ANGLICAN CHURCH, SOUTH LONDON

Rev. W. L. Armitage Is Modernist in Viewing Scope of His Work, But He Clings Tenaciously to the Bible as Revelation of God's Wishes.

Preachers are apt to become known to the populace by the sermons they preach and by the work they accomplish in the church to which they are attached. In London there are, however, many clergymen whose personalities are such that a glimpse at them tells more of the men than do their sermons. It is with the object of bringing these personalities before the public that The Advertiser prints today the fifth of a series of sketches which it is hoped, will include all those presiding over the destinies of the various churches.

REV. W. L. ARMITAGE.

Easter Sunday, but a morning of pouring rain. In the church with its crimson carpets, rich-toned stained glass windows, immense flags hovering over the chancel, and Union Jack draping the pulpit, the glow of the great chandelier has created the illusion of sunlight.

Snow-white Easter lilies silhouetted against the altar railing and banking the communion table breathe the story of resurrection and of life. The voice of the clergyman, Rev. W. L. Armitage, has a note of exaltation as he reads the majestic pronouncement from Revelations: "I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end"; the confession of Paul: "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept"; or the story of the visit to the empty tomb very early on the first day in the week, the world's first Easter morn.

Christ Is Risen.

The world's Easter morning hallelujah song is the motif which runs insistently like a golden thread through every phase of the service, the theme of joy after despair, light after darkness and hope of victory over death itself woven into a sermon.

The text?

"Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept."

Now and again as the discourse progresses, the rector emphasizes a point by a gesture which is apparently characteristic. He catches up from the pulpit before him in his left hand his Bible bound in limp leather, perhaps turning rapidly the pages with his right hand. It is thus, evidently, that he draws attention to what to him is the court of last resort in judging between right and wrong and good and evil.

Knew the Bitterness.

Christ has triumphed over death and the grave, but to win such victory, it was necessary first for the Saviour of the world to know the bitterness of death. In his resurrection, Christ has become the glorious forerunner of the harvest, the token that others shall rise to newness of life.

Proof of it?

There is firm conviction in the voice of the rector of St. James' Church, South London, when he declares that it is easier to prove the resurrection as an historic fact than to prove that Caesar was killed by the hand of an assassin on the floor of the senate in Rome; easier to prove that Christ arose after three days in the tomb than that Socrates lived and taught philosophy.

There were more witnesses of the resurrection than of the death of Caesar.

Considering the thrift of life in the universe, does it seem logical that the life of superlative nobility, infinite purity and holiness should cease at the conclusion of a short span of thirty-three years?

Yet people in all the ages of the Christian era have fought their way through doubt to the light and faith, fought their way through throes like unto those of the valley of the shadow of death and the darkness of the grave.

Paul, Sincere Doubter.

No greater doubter ever lived than Paul, the man essentially religious and sincere, jealous for the honor of Judaism and of the Jehovah of the Israelites. "Sincere," said Mr. Armitage; "he had not grasped the fundamental prophecy of God in regard to the Messiah to come. His aversion to Jesus was sincere because he had not thoroughly examined him. Then came the revelation on the road to Damascus, which made possible the triumphant declaration, 'Now is Christ risen from the dead.'

"The friends of Paul would dissuade him from his new belief, his new allegiance. Are there not times in our lives when the things about us, perhaps our friends have tried to keep us from good things? Even the disciples of Jesus would have had him take the easier way, the path of least resistance, when the Master knew that for him the only way was the way of the cross.

Chose Hard Way.

"Paul chose the way of difficulty and of danger for his faith, and the faith of a man must be strong in a cause when he clings to it regardless of danger. It was because of faith in the righteousness of a cause that our men and women in the past years of the war have known and endured even death itself, endured unfalteringly to the end, believing that right would triumph over wrong, and victory be enthroned.

"The victory of Christ over death speaks to us of things which seem even greater to us in our little lives today. The Easter message gives us the meaning of the tremendous sacrifices of the last few years. It brings the consolation that death is swallowed up in victory, the radiant promise that as the first fruits were always brought and laid on the altar as the earnest of the harvest; so Christ, the first and fairest fruits, is the symbol of richer, more glorious life after death."

Old, Old Story.

It is the old Easter story, the story that has been told throughout the Christian world each recurring Easter since Mary Magdalene and the other Mary found the tomb empty very early in the morning. It is told with simplicity, earnestness and reverence, told in the natural, speaking voice. The story in itself is sufficiently impressive and gripping without theatrical manner or inflection of voice on the part of the narrator. Rev. W. Leslie Armitage is simple and direct in his method of preaching, as in the exercise of all the offices of priest throughout the service. He evidently has respect for the natural voice, which he uses to excellent advantage in making what he has to say heard. He may cherish the conviction that priests are heard for their intoning, but there was no indication of this on Easter Sunday morning, or any other time on which the church tramp has been privileged to listen to him.

Rather a Radical.

In the Anglican Church, Rev. W. Leslie Armitage is a distinctly modern type of ecclesiastic. His views are pronounced concerning the relation of the church and its leaders to the social problems of the age. The leaders in the church, he has been heard to declare, should be leaders of moral reform and welfare movements, not wait to see which way the cat is going to jump before taking a stand. Radical, rather, certainly not conservative.

Thoroughly alive to what is going on in the world around him, he holds the words of Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount that genuinely Christian people are the salt of the earth and that it is their business to see that they perform the functions of salt in purifying and keeping society more wholesome and sweet, than it is inclined to be.

Who is his parishioner? Anybody that needs his help. He asks from the pulpit for the names of the sick in his parish or those otherwise confined to their homes that he may visit them during the week.

Deeply Interested.

His interest is unbounded in the work of his Sunday school, in the activities of each of his church organizations. Thoroughly up-to-the-minute in his ideas of efficient equipment for carrying on parish work and the value of this, he is looking forward with officials of his church to the day when St. James' will have a new Sunday school, or perhaps more appropriately, church school building, erected to the memory of the late first rector of the parish, Very Rev. Dean Evans Davis. Associated with this "castle in Spain" is another which promises some day, not too far away, to materialize. This is going to be a parish hall, a centre of parish social activities, with its gymnasium, reading-room, and so on, in which old and young can gather. The tablet over its door will be a dedication to the memory of the gallant sons of the church whose lives were laid down in the war.

Next Thursday, commencing at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, is to be a kind of missionary field day in the church, when missionary activities of the church throughout the world will be reviewed, a survey made of mission fields and their needs. How can people be interested in things about which they do not know? How can they be expected to support causes they do not understand? If there is to be missionary giving, there must first be missionary knowledge. Any other system lacks intelligence.

Home First.

While the rallying call to the Christian army demands that those who enlist under the banner of Christ must do their part in sending the gospel message to the ends of the earth, Mr. Armitage is much too practical to overlook what is going on in the city, province and country in which he lives. Why send the message of salvation to the heathen, unless you keep Canada clean? He firmly believes that the enthronement of religion, the dedication of one day in seven to the worship of God to be of supreme and first importance to national well being. One day in seven as a rest day, he insists is necessary for the human machine. He covets for other men the opportunities that are his own, and would preserve for them the rights that are his own. He perhaps has advantage over others by virtue of his office. He would hold or wrest for others the same rights that are his of one day in seven. That is why he has closely identified himself with the Lord's Day Alliance movement, notwithstanding the many calls upon his time, consenting recently to become the secretary of the local branch.

Not a Follower.

Following a leader in sheeplike fashion isn't a role that is easily associated in the mind with Mr. Armitage. He thinks things out for himself and speaks and acts accordingly. The ring of decision in his voice tells this. His sturdy independence manifested itself when he was called upon last spring to address the graduating class of Huron College. He dared to dispense with platitudes and talk to his younger brothers about points of etiquette, personal habits and even choosing wives in a manner saved from bluntness only by the courteousness of tone, and the manifestly sincere desire to be helpful which prompted such admonition.

"What has London done about mothers' pensions?" was a question asked a few days ago by the rector of St. James' of a citizen very much interested in the subject. Then he mentioned case after case that had come under his observation of widows left with young children on such financial circumstances that to bereavement over loss of husband must be added the cruelty of separation from little ones. "Is it fair or right that the mother and children should thus be made to suffer in a civilized country?"

Economy?

He wanted to know indignantly what possible economy is it to take the children and put them in an institution at the cost of the community, augmented perhaps by the Provincial Government, while the mother gives up the nest and turns to work which is distinctly not hers, while she is capable of rearing her sons and daughters for good citizenship.

And what of the blunting effect upon the children? There was that young mother whose husband was taken off suddenly by the influenza epidemic, an ideal mother and home-maker. But, with the death of the head of the home, the source of income is gone, and there is no one to whom to turn for assistance. Only one of many such tragic cases of the past six or seven months! What is going to be done about it?

Rev. W. Leslie Armitage is willing to do anything that lies in his power and for which time permits to insure the rights of children and of widowed mothers, the rights of fathers, too, left with a motherless brood to care for.

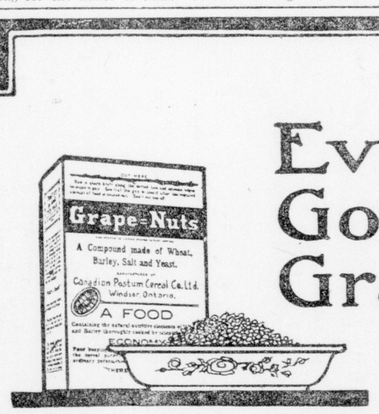

So many things to be done! But the parish work, and the office of priest must have first call.

When Mr. Armitage came to St. James' Church from Toronto a year ago, there preceded him the glowing story of his success in building up the congregation he was leaving and making it a recognized force for good.

Is a Mason.

Apart from his zealous and breadth of vision, the fact that he is thoroughly human is undoubtedly an important factor in establishing for him cordial relations with the people with whom he comes in contact. Early in life, he identified himself with the Masonic order, and in process of time, became grand chaplain, A., F. and A. M., for all of Canada. A graduate of Huron College, and curate in the Cronyn Memorial Church at the time Ven. Archdeacon Richardson was rector, coming to London was like coming back home. Shortly after getting settled in St. James' rectory, he surprised the members of Kilwinning Lodge, A., F. and A. M., by dropping in upon them on lodge night. He surprised the majority of them still more when he announced it was his mother lodge, and that he had been initiated in Kilwinning Lodge as soon as he was old enough.

Orthodox in the sense of holding up the Bible as the revealed will of God for man, loyal in allegiance to the church in which he has been ordained, he is "churchman," without being "churchy," and sufficiently wide in his sympathies and broad in his outlook to stand on the platform of brotherhood of man through the fatherhood of God, the sacrifice of the Son of God for all men, and the Easter hope of resurrection and of life.

Music of Nation Is Result of Personal Life of Its People

So Declares Percy Grainger, Modern Genius of Piano.

Percy Grainger, the young Australian pianist, declares that creative art depends directly on racial characteristics. "Art is the life of the people in whose country it is produced," says Percy Grainger, who has been so sensationally successful in this country during his two-years' stay here.

"And," he goes on to say, "it is equally true that the life of a people determines to a great extent what their art will be like. This is particularly true of the art of music. Music is, in its original form, the spontaneous reaction of the artist's mind to the physical condition of his being, rather than the outcome of more mental promptings.

"The folksongs of one nation are very much the same as those of another. Nevertheless, the personal life of the people who have created that music is directly responsible for the slight difference which do exist between one folksong and another. This distinction can even be made in the field of modern music. To take a concrete example, the complex emotional subiety of the French is clearly reflected in such composers as Debussy and Ravel, while, on the other hand, an Italian composer, such as Puccini, seems unthinkable without the thoroughly democratic and comparatively primitive Italian national life as a background."

COUNCIL TO DECIDE DEBENTURE QUESTION

City Fathers Will Discuss It Tonight.

PROBABLY TAKE A VOTE

Street Railway Company Will Have Sunday Franchise Extended For Month.

It is likely that the meeting of the city council tonight will not be a long one.

One question that will come up is that of the board of education debentures. The members of the board will ask the council to pass a bylaw authorizing these debentures, which amount to $195,000. It has been recommended however, that the question be submitted to a vote of the ratepayers.

As the annual bylaw authorizing the operation of Sunday cars in this city is about to expire, the council will grant the company the right to run cars on the Sabbath during the month of May. Before the end of that time the city and the company will get together to arrange another bylaw for the ensuing year. At this meeting the question of Sunday cars to Springbank also will be dealt with thoroughly.

The appointment of a housing commission and arrangements for the inauguration of the two-platoon system on the fire department will be made.

In order to open Gordon street the city will have to secure land at one end of it, in order to extend it to full width, as there is only a 26-foot lane there. This question will come up tonight.

At the request of the chamber of commerce the council will appoint a deputation to go to Ottawa regarding harbor improvements at Port Stanley.

Bronze Tablet Dedicated To Memory of Lt.-Col. Leonard

Special Service at Cronyn Memorial Church—Other Gifts Received.

At special service held in the Cronyn Memorial Church on Easter Sunday a beautiful bronze tablet was dedicated to the late Col. Wood Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leonard, Queen's avenue, who died for his country on April 9, 1915. The colonel's last words are inscribed on the tablet, "I am finished; take over, and carry on."

Another beautiful gift dedicated at this service was a five-piece sterling silver communion service, in memory of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Tilley, wife of the first rector of the Cronyn Memorial Church.

Two electric lamps, with handsome carved oak stands, each side of the altar, were a gift to the church from Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Whetter, in memory of their son, Lance-Corp. Richard Whetter, who made the supreme sacrifice at the second battle of Ypres in 1915. These are inscribed with the following words, "To the glory of God and in loving memory of Richard Whetter, son of Frank H. and Mabel Whetter, who made the supreme sacrifice at the second battle of Ypres in 1915."

A profusion of flowers decorated the chancel and altar yesterday, tokens from the choir to the memory of late members.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

If cross, bilious, sick, feverish or full of cold, take no chances.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

MAYOR REFUSES TO GIVE PROCLAMATION ON DAYLIGHT SAVING

City Clerk Favors Letting Majority Decide.

No further action in connection with the daylight saving bylaw, of which two clauses were quashed at the weekly high court at the courthouse before Hon. Mr. Justice Logie on Saturday, will be taken by the city until the council meets tonight. Mayor C. R. Somerville declared that he would not issue a proclamation informing the citizens that the city offices are running on daylight saving time and asking them to do business on the same time as the civic authorities. This means of obtaining the same desired effect that a bylaw would have was suggested by some local legal authorities.

As the bylaw now stands, it only applies to the civic offices and employees, they alone being forced to operate on the new time. City Clerk S. Baker declared that if the majority of the people of the city follow the old standard time, he will ask the council to repeal the present bylaw, but if the majority of the people favor new time, he is satisfied to let the city offices run on that time.

It is likely that there will be a large number of labor men at the council meeting tonight, and it is expected that there will be strong opposition to any enforcement of the measure.

Ministers Urge Better Wages For Women and Request Help of C. of C.

Speakers Point Out Need and Assert Co-operation Will Aid All.

The questions of the living wage and the relation of the church and the teachings of Jesus Christ to the industrial problems of the present day occupied the centre of the stage in the deliberations of the Ministerial Alliance at the monthly meeting held this forenoon in the Y. M. C. A. building.

After much discussion, pro and con, with a vote that represented a substantial majority, the alliance put itself on record as accepting the recommendations of the industrial committee as embodied in the report submitted at the March meeting to the following effect:

Women Underpaid.

"Believing that human interests should be the primary consideration in all our social and industrial and commercial operations, and that each individual should have sufficient income to provide properly not only for the necessities of life, but for the full development of life physically, morally and socially, and to make provision for the future, and whereas the wage of the average woman worker in our city is found on investigation to be below a fair living wage, considering the high cost of things she must pay for, and in view of the fact that fair development of those who are to be the future citizens, mothers and molders of the men, is of incalcuable importance, the Ministerial Alliance respectfully urges the chamber of commerce organized to promote the general well being of the community, to consider what further steps can be made by employers in the direction of carrying out the objects of the organization with respect to fair wages for all.

Mass Meetings.

Further, the alliance urges upon the women's organizations to consider the advisability of holding mass meetings of women workers with a view to considering what the trades and labor council has already urged, the passing of a minimum wage law for women workers, such as exists in Western provinces.

Rev. G. M. Young of Kensal Green thought that possibly endeavoring to raise wages would have a tendency to bring girls to the city to work who should be going to school, and to constitute a temptation to draw away from the country for the city. Rev. G. B. Cox was opposed to taking up the question in what he termed a "frantic way," advising judicial treatment of the situation.

That "If."

Rev. W. R. McIntosh of the industrial committee replied that if fathers were paid sufficient wages to provide for their families adequately, the children would not be forced to work at an unnecessarily early age. Further, owing to inadequate wages, children are being denied the education for which they are mentally adapted. What is going to become of the country if inadequate wages to cope with expenses of living make it impossible for the bright boys and girls to get their chance in life?

The recommendations had covered, he stated, the case of the women workers. The question of inadequate wages, further, is associated with that of advancing the compulsory education age.

The discussion was followed up by a paper by Rev. A. E. Dean of Hensall on "The Elements of the Teaching of Jesus Applied to the Modern Situation re Capital and Labor."

Get Back to Christ.

"In the last analysis," he declared, "the need of the world is to get back to Christ. Given better men and better masters any industrial system will work out satisfactorily, equal distribution, and adaptation of the present industrial order, profit sharing, or co-partnership."

The "living wage," he insisted, is supremely important in order to place the workman or work-woman in a position of independence. Industrial welfare work cannot substitute for the living wage, but only be auxiliary to it in an ideal order.

The industrial unrest of the present, he held, is not due to "the rumblings of an empty stomach," but to the stirring of the soul. The final test of civilization is the freedom of man to rise to his highest height.

Wrong Premises.

Concerning the view of capital that it will be robbed by giving more to labor, and of labor that capital must be dethroned and brought low in order that labor can have just rewards, the speaker declared these to be false premises. The world is full of limitless riches awaiting development and the better the co-operation, the greater will be the development, and the rewards to all.

Debauchery, in most cases, he blamed on too long working hours, too great fatigue.

Prostitution, he asserted, is in the majority of cases the result of poverty.

In the course of his address he came out strongly as an advocate of co-operative ownership of utilities, municipal, national etc., as the means of binding society together in bonds of common interest.

Had Courteous Hearing.

A committee specially appointed a month ago to interview the Western Fair board re the nature of attractions at the fair, reported a courteous reception, and that the matter had been referred to the executive of the fair board. The committee had asked for the appointment of a committee to censor attractions.

The Ministerial Alliance put itself on record as indorsing the "Red Triangle" campaign of the immediate future, pledging support.

"FRANK M'CULLOUGH" SAYS HE PAID VISIT TO LONDON, HAD GOOD TIME, AND NOW OFF TO WINNIPEG

Letter Addressed To The Advertiser May or May Not Be From the Murderer Who Escaped From Toronto Jail —Has Weak Points.

A letter purporting to come from Frank McCullough, slayer of Detective Williams of Toronto, who escaped from the Don jail at Toronto last week, reached The Advertiser office this morning. The writer of the letter posted the document sometime on April 20 (Sunday), and dated it on the same day, although stating that he would leave London Friday, and that the letter would not reach this office until two days after he was gone.

The signature of the letter is the least convincing part of it, as it in no way resembles the signature of a letter sent to the Toronto Star the day after McCullough escaped from jail. In the letter to the Star he spells his name "McCollough." The local letter is signed "McCullough." Perhaps he learned to spell his name since coming out.

In the letter to the Toronto paper he does not use the small "i" when referring to himself, although there are some points of resemblance in the chirography as a whole.

It is quite possible and altogether probable that some practical joker interested in the McCullough escape has taken this means of providing the newspapers with a "sensation" and at the same time endeavoring to take some sly digs at various local conditions.

Bound for Winnipeg.

"McCullough" tells that he is armed and bound for Winnipeg. He also asserts that money played a big part in his escape from the Toronto jail. He will not be taken alive, and has plans made to release a chum now in jail at Winnipeg.

The weak point of the letter is that it tells the name of a street where the convicted murderer alleges he stayed while in London. In fairness to the people of that street—it is a short one in South London—The Advertiser does not print the name, nor some of the other statements, which would scarcely pass the libel laws.

While it is quite possible that McCullough came to London, it may be conjectured that if the letter is genuine, he is adopting this means of confusing the authorities, having letters sent from various places perhaps simply by asking people to post them at such and such a city while he is making strides in another direction.

The letter is as follows, with the deletions noted above:

The Letter.

London, April 20, 1919.

To The Adv. Man

Hullo, Mr. Adv. Man, after looping the loop from Toronto jail I have spent a good time in your little town. I visited the theatre, had a good auto ride all over, saw the arches that are being put up by the city out of the taxpayer's pocket. By the time you get this letter I will be in Winnipeg. I'm going up there to get a chum of mine out of jail who is doing time. believe me I will do it, i am well armed, bought a good revolver, 40 rounds of shot. i visited my friend in London on—— stayed one night, had some good whiskey, he's got lots of it, to, shipped it over some few weeks ago.

this letter will be posted too days after I am leaving London so as to give me some time to get a move on me. i motor to st Thomas Friday morning before daylight. they soked (me) 45 dollars for a new suit in London. I was talking to one of your policemen on the street. i found out he did not like the temperance act. I asked him if he got a touch any time. he said now and again i get a little touch from the soldiers. they get it from Montreal. Well Mr. Adv. Man i'll see they don't hang me or git me alive. there's money in this game, thats what got me out of jail.

good bie Mr Adv Man give my regards to the warden and the boys in Toronto.

I had a fine trip from Sudbury to London

Proposal To Incorporate All Units in the Militia

Local Officers Will Offer Suggestions To Keep Identity and Traditions.

A committee has been appointed by militia headquarters at Ottawa to consider and report upon the advisability of the proposal to incorporate in the Canadian militia the identity and traditions of the Canadian units, especially the ifnantry battalions, which have fought in the great war. It is suggested that this should be done without unavoidably increasing the authorized establishment and without interfering with the system of divisional control.

Suggestion Asked.

The committee will visit in turn each military district, and the G. O. C. of this district, Brig.-Gen. L. W. Shannon, has been asked to have ready when the committee arrives a suggestion which will form the basis for discussion. He has also been directed to appoint associate members to act on the committee, consisting of himself and officers commanding militia and C. E. F. units, as well as prominent citizens in military affairs.

Some Handed In.

Already all the officers commanding militia units, officers of the C. E. F., and the heads of departments at militia headquarters here have been asked to make suggestions, but up to the present very few replies have been received. All suggestions received will be used in the formulation of a comprehensive plan which will be submitted to the committee, which, it is announced, will give previous notice of its visit to the city.

SAYS JUDGMENT SHOWS CITY COUNCIL HAS NO POWER TO CHANGE TIME

"The judgment of the court on Saturday proves that the city council has nothing whatever to do with daylight saving, and has no right to tamper with it," said P. H. Bartlett, counsel for Dennis Flannigan in his action against daylight saving.

"The council would have to apply to the legislature for the right to change the official time," he added. "The courts have made clear that the city council must not take up this matter at all."

WELL-BABY CLINICS TO BE RESUMED NEXT WEEK

Owing to the fact that the schools are closed for the holidays and unheated this week, the usual well-baby clinics this afternoon, Wednesday and Friday, have been withdrawn. They will be resumed next week.

A meeting of the Child Welfare Association with representatives of other organizations interested in conserving child life are to be asked to attend, is being called towards the end of this week. The object in calling the meeting is to plan for "Baby Week," the first week in June, when the provincial child welfare exhibit will be brought from Toronto and evening meetings will be addressed by authorities on child welfare.

Demonstration well-baby clinics will be among the big daily features.

The special committee appointed to bring in recommendations will report to the meeting.

HE GATHERS THEM IN—Bailiff J. J. Ryan, of Toronto, came alone to the city this morning but went away at noon with ten temporary guests of the local Bastile, who will help to cut down the 57,000 acres of bush at Burwash Prison Farm.

BISHOP IS RESTING.—The bishop of Huron was unable to take any of the Easter services yesterday owing to the fact that he is under doctor's orders to take a complete rest for a few weeks after the strenuous days for him of the Lenten season, and the many engagements involved throughout the diocese.

NEW WAGES SCALE GIVES ST. RAILWAY COMPANY ANXIETIES

Sunday Service Will Cost More Than Ever.

The London Street Railway Company foresees fresh difficulties in its financial paths, as a result of its agreement with its employees to grant substantial wage increases to take effect on May 1.

"We are well pleased to reach an amicable adjustment with our employees," Manager King told The Advertiser today. "We felt that inasmuch as the Labor Gazette showed that the cost of maintaining a family in London had increased 8 per cent during the year the men should have protection, at least to that extent. An advance of 2½ cents an hour would have covered the increase officially reported, but we gave the men a 3-cent increase in the hope that the conditions of our employees shall be appreciably bettered."

Financial Situation.

But Mr. King, looking at the problem from the standpoint of company finances, states that the new scale will mean an increase of $23,915 in the annual cost of operating the system. This additional amount will go into the employees' pay envelopes, distributed in the following manner: Motormen and conductors, $16,255; shopmen and linemen, $4,690, and trackmen, $3,000.

Thus the company's monthly wage bill advaices approximately $2,000, to a monthly total of $25,000.

New Rates.

The new rates will be :

	Monday to Saturday.	Sunday.
First year men	33	45
Second year men	36	48
Third year men	38	50

The cost of Sunday operation is increased by the fact that the overtime pay of 12 cents an hour is made applicable to all Sunday service. Mr. King calls attention to the fact that wages alone take $1 an hour for cars handled by senior men on Sunday.

Single Way Trips.

When the Sunday Springbank service comes into effect the company will be confronted with what Mr. King anticipates will be a difficult situation. A car on the Springbank line is able to make a round trip in one hour. Almost invariably, so Mr. King says, Springbank cars only carry passengers one way. That is, traffic at different times of the day is either uptown or downbound. Therefore, says Mr. King, the nickles of twenty Springbank passengers will be needed to pay for the time of the two men in charge of the car. When less than twenty ride the run will be made at less than the cost of wages. Beyond wages there is the power, maintenance and materials, and in addition the cost of meeting the company's financial obligations.

Since 1916 the company has granted four wage increases to its employees as a result of which the annual wage bill has advanced by $110,000.

Tablet Unveiled To Those Who Fell During the War

King Street Presbyterians Honor Members Who Gave Their Lives.

"We ought to bestow honor on them. It would be our greatest poverty to forget the heroic dead in lieu of pleasures and lust for gain. It is the duty of the people to carry on the liberties of the world for which our soldiers fought and died," said Rev. W. R. McIntosh, speaking in the King Street Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, when a memorial tablet was unveiled, dedicated by the young people of the church, to the memory of the members of that church who made the supreme sacrifice during the four years of war. The tablet bears twelve names each name on a maple leaf.

During the service Mr. McIntosh suggested to the congregation that it would be fitting if something more than just a tablet were erected. He suggested a stained window or a large brass tablet.

The names of those inscribed on the tablet are:

Pte. Arthur Legge, aged 37 years, Trench Mortar Battery, killed at Vimy Ridge, April 7, 1917.

Pte. James Anderson, Machine Gun Battery, killed at Vimy Ridge, April 9, 1917, aged 25 years.

Pte. William McLennan, C. F. Infantry, killed at Vimy Ridge, April 22, 1917, 40 years of age.

Gunner Gordon C. McIntosh (son of Rev. W. R. McIntosh), Field Artillery, killed at Lens, October 26, 1917, 20 years of age.

Pte. William Morrison, C. F. Infantry, killed at Lens, August 21, 1917, aged 30 years.

Sergt. G. Gordon Laing, C. E. Infantry, killed at Passchendaele, October 26, 1917, 20 years of age.

Pte. James Stephens, C. E. Infantry, killed at Passchendaele, November 6, 1917, 18 years of age.

Gunner C. C. Player, Field Artillery, killed at Passchendaele, November 23, 1917, aged 19 years.

Cadet Fred K. Ross, Royal Flying Corps, killed in accident in England, October 24, 1918, aged 21 years.

Flight Lieut. Roy O. Campbell, Royal Flying Corps, died behind the enemy lines, October —, 1918, aged 29 years.

Pte. Fred Kenny, C. F. Infantry, killed during German retreat, October 18, 1918, aged 25 years.

Str.-Br. Gordon Golby, Army Medical Corps, killed during German retreat, November 6, 1918, aged 20 years.

Following the unveiling ceremony, George Matthews sang "In Flanders' Fields."

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

But Alexander Mann Gets Off in Police Court.

Charged with assault Alexander Mann an Arabian, was today dismissed by Police Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon, after a lengthy hearing during the Carling street court session.

Mann was involved in a case concerning a note for $54 which he said he thought was a receipt for the price of a box of cigars. It was in reality a note for a life insurance policy, which made Mann think he had been flimflammed, and arguments which followed resulted in his appearance in court.

FOCH'S PUNCHES, BEFORE HIS BIG KICK, OUT-GENERALLED LUDENDORFF AND BEAT HUNS

Gen. F. B. Maurice Tells Londoner's of the Strategic Moves Which Brought About Fall of German Military Machine and Rout of Enemy's Armies.

The audience which thronged the Masonic Temple on Saturday night to hear Major-Gen. Sir F. B. Maurice, K. C. M. C., C. B., was composed, naturally, of people who had heard stories, reports and descriptions of the fighting on the western front during the great war from almost every angle; but, until Gen. Maurice gave them the opportunity to view the events during the critical days of the struggle, from March 28 until October 11, 1918, through the eyes of a master strategist, it is fairly safe to say that they had never realized quite so fully what the world owes to Marshal Foch, who set at nought the plans of the German high command at the very moment when the latter confidently believed that they were about to reach triumphant consummation.

Sir Frederick commenced his address with a mention of the two dates referred to, March 28, of last year, and October 11, rather less than seven months later. On the former date, he said, was held a meeting in a small Picardy village, which had a more momentous outcome than any previous meeting in the world's history. At the meeting were present President Poincare of France, Premier Clemenceau, Lord Milner, Sir Douglas Haig, the four British army commanders and Gens. Petain and Foch.

The meeting was called to consider a vital emergency. The Germans were pressing the Allied line hard. The British command had realized that the time had almost come when a choice must be made between maintaining contact with the French army or falling back to guard Calais and Boulogne, the channel ports, which were such vital necessities if the British were to remain in France. At the same time the French had realized that they must soon choose between keeping in touch with the British or falling back to save Paris.

Common Sense Prevails.

In this emergency there was no time to refer matters to the respective governments; there was not time even to consult with the American command in the south. And, for once, common sense prevailed. The military leaders got together and at last a united command was established and Marshal Foch became generalissimo of all the Allied armies.

October 11 was another date which would stand out in history. On that date Armageddon had been fought and won. The decisive battle of the war had finally shattered the German hope of world domination and the triumph of right was beyond doubt.

Gen. Maurice said he proposed to give the broad outline of what transpired between those two dates; to describe, not in detail, but in its essential features, the series of battles by which the war was won; in other words, the strategy by which Foch beat Ludendorff.

"My narrative," said the general, "will not deal with deeds of heroism or details of the fighting. Those details you can get from your sons and brothers who took part in the struggle. They can tell you about that part better than I. My intention is to give you in broad outline an idea of how Foch turned the flow of defeat into the flood of victory for the Allied cause."

To illustrate his remarks, Gen. Maurice had a number of pictures thrown on to a screen. There were maps of the western front at different periods of the final struggle for supremacy and a number of intensely interesting photographs, most of them taken from the air, of parts of the actual battlefields.

West Front in July.

The first picture was that of a map of the western front as it existed on July 14, 1918. The part of the terrain then occupied by the Germans was shown in black, and it covered by far the greater part of the map. The battle line was shown to be a curve running southward from Flanders to just below Amiens, where it turned to the east. Its symmetry was broken by three separate bulges, representing salients made by enemy advances during the spring of the year. One of these was in Flanders, the apex projecting toward the channel ports; another was bulging toward Amiens, which was only 40 miles away from the point of the extreme German advance in that sector; and the third was between Soissons and Rheims, extending in a comparatively narrow peninsula toward Paris, which, at that time, was also only 40 miles beyond the fighting front.

The Hindenburg Line, back to which the Germans had been forced the previous year, was shown by a deep, black line a considerable distance inside the line of the farthest enemy advance, showing that the gains made by the Huns during their several successive drives of the spring had carried them far beyond the limits of any previous forward movements which they had made during the war.

Ludendorff Was Ready.

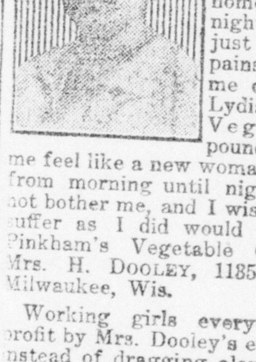

Ludendorff, said Gen. Maurice, had now reached the point where he was fairly confident that he could launch the decisive blow which would bring about a German peace. His plan undoubtedly was to advance from the Amiens-Soissons salient, where the crown prince's armies were already resting on the Marne, toward Paris. In order to do this he attempted to straighten out the line on the western side of the salient, and was partially successful. But, before he had got very far, the French were able to hold, and the advance in this particular sector ceased.

Next Ludendorff decided to try for Rheims, which was a railway centre. He needed this very badly, because in the whole salient the only other rail-

TWENTY-FOUR BABES BAPTIZED AT EASTER SUNDAY SERVICES

Interesting Event Took Place at New St. James'.

Twenty-four little babes were baptized by Rev. James MacKay at the Easter Sunday session of New St. James' Sunday School, the baptismal service constituting an impressive feature of the program.

The school met in the church auditorium, filling the building to its capacity. After the baptismal service the superintendent of the school, W. D. Reamer, gave an address appropriate to the occasion. The first part dealt with the story of the dark days of the apostles when Christ was crucified. To one side of the platform stood a large black cross. While the superintendent led in prayer after the first part of his address, two young girls standing beside the cross turned it around to show the other side, glistening white, garlanded with lilies. The second half of the address dealt with "The Glorious Day of Hope."

Among the suitable numbers was one in which eleven young girls took part. Each recited a verse on "immortality" and at the conclusion each held up a card on which a letter was printed, the eleven letters spelling out "immortality."

Musical numbers by the orchestra, choruses, etc., added brightness to the service.

GIRLS! MAKE A BEAUTY LOTION WITH LEMONS

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as sallowness, freckles and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful to smoothen rough, red hands.

No Humbug! Lift Off Corns
Doesn't hurt a bit to lift a corn or callus off with fingers

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn and instantly, yes, immediately, all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, just seem to shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on your dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

INFLAMED GUMS— A CAUSE OF LOOSE TEETH

Pyorrhea is undoubtedly a vital danger to both gums and teeth. Tender gums indicate it, and with it come loosening teeth. Imperceptibly, at first, the gums recede from the normal gum line. They inflame. They present many tiny openings for millions of bacteria to attack the unenameled tooth base. Tooth-base decay quickly follows. Even if the cavity be filled and the tooth saved, the gums continue to recede. Remember, too, that inflamed and bleeding gums act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Against this Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) ordinary tooth-pastes are powerless. Yet Pyorrhea attacks four out of five people who are over forty, and many under this age. But Forhan's—if used in time and used consistently—positively prevents Pyorrhea. It is a scientific tooth cleanser as well. Brush your teeth with it. See how promptly bleeding or gum tenderness ceases and how your teeth are kept white and clean.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

STREET CAR MEN ACCEPT OFFER OF 3-CENT INCREASE

Union Voted Saturday Night to Compromise.

12 CENTS FOR OVERTIME

Pay of Car Crews Is Now 33, 36 and 38 Cents Per Hour.

At a mass meeting held on Saturday night the employees of the London Street Railway Company decided to accept an increase of three cents an hour all round and twelve cents an hour extra for overtime and Sunday work. The barnmen and linemen in addition are to be paid time and a half for all emergency work. There is a provisionary clause in the agreement whereby the men may re-open negotiations any time in the event of the company receiving authority to charge higher fares. The agreement is to run one year, dating from the 1st of May, when the old agreement expires.

Under the new schedule, the motormen and conductors receive the following rates: First-year men, 33 cents; second-year men, 36 cents, and third year men and all over this receive 38 cents an hour. This is 2 cents an hour in each case less than the men were asking, but it was thought, under the circumstances, that it would be better to accept the compromise the company offered.

Motormen and conductors last year received 30, 33 and 35 cents an hour. The barnmen last year were not paid overtime for Sunday work and they were paid time and a quarter for emergency work.

It is generally considered among the men that the new schedule is fairly satisfactory.

POPE'S HONORS ARE CONFERRED ON TWO LOCAL CATHOLICS

Monsignor O'Connor and Philip Pocock Are Invested.

BISHOP SINGS MASS

Interesting Event Marks Service at St. Peter's Cathedral Yesterday.

High papal honors were conferred on Rt. Rev. Monsignor D. O'Connor, V. G. D. P., and Philip J. Pocock, chairman of the public utilities commission, at the close of the solemn pontifical high mass in St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday morning, the former being made a domestic prelate of His Holiness, Pope Benedict XV., and the latter a Knight of St. Gregory the Great.

In connection with the latter honor is an insignia which Mr. Pocock can wear. It is a gold octagonal cross, in the centre of a red background, being a representation of St. Gregory the Great. It hangs by a red, silk ribbon, with gold borders, and is worn on the left side.

Monsignor O'Connor can wear purple attire in accordance with his rank and is given a number of special privileges that the honor carries with it.

Mr. Pocock received his honors in recognition of his unceasing efforts to further the work of the Catholic Church. Bishop Fallon spoke of the co-operation of Mr. Pocock in all Catholic activities and of his generosity, mentioning in particular his donation of the land for St. Peter's Seminary, known as Sunshine Park. His donations of money for the ecclesiastic education of Catholic youths and for the erection of two churches were also mentioned.

After the briefs from Rome relative to Monsignor O'Connor's honors had been read in Latin and English by Rev. Father F. Brennan, the blessing of the insignia took place. Bishop Fallon then conferred the honors on Father O'Connor, speaking a few words of appreciation of his work in connection with the seminary and of the fulfillment of his duties as vicar-general. It was on account of all this that he had been honored. "May God bless you and give you many years of service in this church," concluded the bishop.

After the reading of the briefs from Rome regarding Mr. Pocock's diploma of knighthood, Bishop Fallon declared that the recipient of this high honor was a man who never let his left hand know what his right hand was doing. He spoke highly of the work of Mr. Pocock, and declared that what he had been invested with, was only due him.

Pontifical high mass was sung by his lordship the bishop. Special Easter music was rendered. The cathedral was crowded.

DOUBLE REJOICING MARKED BEAUTIFUL EASTER CEREMONIES

Special Music in London Churches Had an Added Sentiment.

The special music which characterized the Easter services in the local churches yesterday, both morning and evening, was perhaps even better than usual. The Easter season is markedly a time for rejoicing, and this Easter, coming as it did close upon the time when a permanent world peace will be signed, seemed to justify an exceptional outburst of song and praise. In many of the churches, a large portion of the service was taken up with the rendering in full of some sacred cantata, in which the resurrection and victory over death theme predominated. And the great "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah" appeared on many an order of service.

The fine choral work displayed by the various choirs throughout the city was the outcome of long hours of choir practice, under able leaders, that the people of London might be privileged to hear specially fine music on the anniversary of Christ's Resurrection, a fact which is seldom appreciated to the full.

The solo work, too, was of a very excellent order, the best voices in the city having been chosen to deliver the Easter musical message. In one church where the choir was composed entirely of children, a Chinaman had been chosen to sing the simple Resurrection story, which was rendered in a most appealing manner.

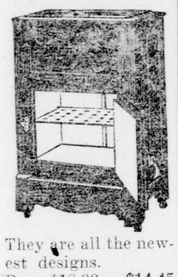

The beautiful musical service of the Anglican Easter service seemed to have a special new message this year, in view of the fact that the world is at last at peace.

In addition to vocal and organ music, in some of the churches there was introduced violin and cello selections.

In St. Peter's Cathedral, special Easter music was sung by Father Finn's boy choir, while the high pontifical mass was sung by Bishop M. F. Fallon with all the pomp and beauty of a Catholic service, resolved itself into a ceremony which for splendor is seldom seen on this continent.

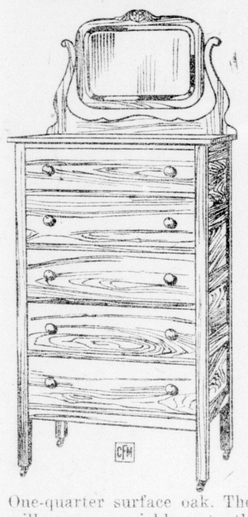

At St. Andrew's, a children's service, most unique, was put on under the direction of C. E. Wheeler. The chorus of children numbered 100 with the following taking solo parts, Bert Thomas, Edie Mitchell, Kathleen Esterbrook, Margaret McGregor, Jean Rowat and Jean Montgomery.

BELL TELEPHONE PENSION AND SICK BENEFIT PLAN

The influenza epidemic of October and November last served to emphasize in very striking fashion the benefit to employees of big concerns of an enlightened scheme of sick benefits and pensions.

The committee in charge of the pension and sick benefit plan inaugurated in 1917 by the Bell Telephone Company has just issued its report for 1918.

"The influenza epidemic," says the report, "greatly increased the number of sickness cases, particularly between October 1 and November 30. The total number of cases during these two months was 1,023, seventy-nine per cent of which was influenza, while during the first nine months of the year the total number of cases was only 917."

The following figures from the report show the extent to which the fund is serving Bell employees:

Pensions	$ 5,925 82
Accident disability benefits..	8,428 65
Disability expenses (accident only)	3,639 33
Sickness disability benefits...	102,962 67
Death Benefits (including expenses)	26,308 79
Gross payments from fund..	$147,265 26

The report concludes:

"Your committee has recommended to the company the inauguration of medical examination of all employees entering the service of the company after a certain date. This should appeal to all, as it is not only a benefit to the staff and company, but to the applicant, as in some cases it will doubtless be the means of drawing attention to ailments which, if treated in time, can be cured, and will also insure that no one is given work for which they are physically unfit."

VETERANS OF ARMY AND NAVY TO HAVE BRANCH IN LONDON

Organization Completed at Meeting of 50 Charter Members.

The Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, a Dominion-wide organization, now has a London branch. It was officially opened at a meeting of the 50 charter members held on Saturday night in the Y. M. C. A. The association is incorporated by act of the Dominion Parliament. The charter of the local branch has been applied for and it is expected to arrive here shortly. When it does, the presentation will take place at the Tecumseh House at a banquet. The aims and objects of the association are to assist comrades in sickness or distress and to help comrades to obtain employment when required, and comradeship and protection, uplifting, comfort and welfare of every man who has taken up arms in defence of his country.

For Distinguished Service.

To be eligible for active membership an applicant must be one who has received a medal for service in some British or colonial force, air service or navy, or shall have served an aggregate of at least six years in one or more of such forces, air service or navy, or nine years' aggregate service in active militia or other auxiliary forces of the empire, or has been a member of the overseas forces from Canada in the present European War, and has been within some theatre of the war, unless otherwise prevented from causes beyond his control. Associate members must have seen service in his majesty's forces. They are, however, not eligible for active membership.

Honorary Members.

The honorary membership shall consist of such persons as the association or any unit thereof may elect to become honorary members of their respective bodies.

Provided, however, that only the association shall have power to elect such honorary members to the association at large.

The honorary membership shall be restricted in its numbers to a very limited few to the end that it may be more highly appreciated as a mark of distinguished honor by the parties upon whom it is conferred.

An honorary associate member shall be the nearest male next of kin of those who have fallen in the wars of the empire, and he shall be eligible for such membership in the various units of the association.

Ladies, Too.

A ladies' auxiliary will also be formed in conjunction with the association. But ladies to be members must prove that they have had a husband, brother or son who has been on the actual firing line.

Application forms can be obtained at Sergt. Davis' tobacco store. The 50 charter members now are not members of any other soldiers' association. The following are the names of the members who were elected as officers of the association. Sergt. Fred Young, president; Percy Aldridge, vice-president; W. E. Capwell, secretary; Joe Fritch, treasurer.

SIBERIAN DRIVE SHAPING

Admiral Kolchak Expects To Have All Volga Territory Soon.

LONDON, April 20.—The first Bolshevik army, operating in the region of Homel, along the Pripet River, has surrendered to the Ukrainians, according to a statement issued by the Ukrainian press bureau and forwarded from Vienna to the Central News.

KOLCHAK TO MAKE DRIVE.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Development of the Siberian offensive against the Bolsheviki on a large scale is described in official dispatches from Omsk, received today by the Russian embassy here, and the definite prediction is made that all the Volga territory will be occupied this spring. Transportation of merchandise for export by way of Vladivostok has been resumed.

The dispatches cite various incidents to show general demoralization among the Bolsheviki forces and to record the forward movement of the drive on Viatka in the European Russia campaign.

Three Bolsheviki divisions are declared to have mutinied and withdrawn in a battle with the red army when Admiral Kolchak's forces captured the important town of Sterlitamack.

PEACE TERMS OPEN AVENUES FOR DISPUTES

Will Germany Try To Dodge Conditions?

LEAGUE MAY DO TRICK

Society of Nations May Become All-Powerful and Rule in Every Land.

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.

[Copyright, 1919, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

PARIS, April 20.—The announcement that the Germans are coming to Versailles on April 25 serves to indicate that the conferences in Paris are drawing to a close, that a solution has been at least sketched for the largest problems that affect Germany. Five months and a half after the armistice the Germans will be asked to sign a treaty of peace. They will be allowed fifteen days of grace, to expire on May 10, the anniversary of the Treaty of Frankfort.

Two great questions arise, unanswered, with the arrival of the Germans in sight. The first is: What exactly are the terms of peace? The second: Will the Germans sign? Neither question can yet be answered by any evidence at hand, although in every case, so far as the peace terms are concerned, a sketch has been put out officially or unofficially. We know Germany must recognize the loss of Alsace-Lorraine, the separation, at least temporarily, of the Saar coal region, of the surrender of the northern half of Schleswig and nearly, if not all, of the Polish districts of West Prussia, Posen and Silesia. The fate of Danzig remains problematical. The only real change in territorial conditions from those which I sketched some weeks ago lies in the suppression of the Rhenish Republic.

As to Reparations.

As to reparations, it has been announced in all the French papers that the French solution, which would place the costs of the war— that is, the costs of rebuilding the devastated areas in France and Belgium, replacing the ships of the Allies sunk by submarines and of bearing pension charges—are to be borne by Germany. Many figures have been cited as an estimate, none seem to be exact. The sum of five billion dollars is to be paid immediately; that is, within two years. Thereafter, according to a very intricate and complicated system of computing, the Germans are to pay large sums of money anywhere between 25 and 50 billion of dollars, to meet the costs of restorations and the burden of pensions.

Finally, German payments and performances are to be guaranteed by the occupation of the western bank of the Rhine for a long period of time, dependent upon the performance by Germany of her agreement, exactly as German troops occupied the eastern departments of France after the Treaty of Frankfort.

As a supplementary guarantee, Germany is to be disarmed, forbidden to maintain more than 100,000 troops, the Rhine is to be the military frontier. For all time, Germany is forbidden fortifications for troops west of the Rhine, while France, in due course of time, will retire within her own frontiers, thus leaving a zone politically German, but militarily neutral on either bank of the Rhine, and thus insuring France against a new invasion of her territory while she is still unprepared.

What of Occupation?

There remains one single great problem, probably settled, but concerning which no details have been published: Who is to mount guard on the Rhine during the years in which Germany will have to make reparation? France and Belgium certainly, but what of Great Britain and what of the United States? How long will such troops stay there? What guarantee will the English give of co-operation with the French if the Rhine is passed by German troops? What guarantees, if any, has the United States given.

Some guarantees have certainly been given by the British, guarantees which are satisfactory to the French. Some kind of promise has been made by the President of the United States. How far-reaching or merely formal this promise is, remains a great mystery, but it is true that both the British and American undertakings have pleased the French and brought better feeling and a sense of greater security than have existed in many weeks.

So far as affects Germany, the forthcoming preliminary treaty of peace will deprive here of between twenty and thirty thousand square miles of European territory, inhabited by six to ten millions of people, as well as of her colonies in Asia and Africa, amounting to more than a million square miles of territory and from twelve to fifteen millions of people. It will disarm her. It will deprive her of her fleet. It will deprive her of her commercial marine. It will temporarily, at least, deprive her of the Saar coal region, and it will place upon her a burden of between 25 and 50 billions of dollars to be paid as a reparation for her crimes in her war of aggression. Germany will lose her subject populations in Europe, that is, the people of Alsace-Lorraine, the Danes of Schleswig, the Poles of the eastern provinces. She may ultimately be permitted to annex the German provinces of Austria, but this remains problematical, and there are many Germans who oppose such annexations, since it would raise for Germany many difficult questions.

Greatest Price in History.

In sum, as a consequence of her attack upon the world Germany will find herself disarmed, her economic machinery practically destroyed so far as world markets are concerned, the iron districts of Lorraine, the coal districts of the Saar, and the industrial regions of Upper Silesia gone. She will have paid the greatest price any country has ever paid in history for what must be reckoned the greatest offence against civilization of all time.

Now, brought face to face with these terms, will the Germans sign, or, following the example of the Russians of Brest-Litovsk, will they refuse to sign and offer passive resistance? Again, if they sign, will they sign in the spirit they signed the armistice and then, as in that case, oppose every conceivable obstacle to its performance, compelling new efforts, raising new disputes, seeking to postpone payment until Great Britain and America are eliminated from the continent, and France and Belgium stand alone in the presence of a superior enemy? Equally interesting is the question whether modern Germany will follow the example of Prussia after Jena, and evading the provisions of this treaty as Prussia evaded the provisions of the treaty of Tilsit, arm herself for a new struggle and seek to revive the traditions of Leipzig and Waterloo. These are great concerns for the future.

Many Causes for Dispute.

The weaknesses of the terms which stand out at the present time are to be found in the innumerable list of questions out of which disputes can and must arise. The Saar Valley solution is one of the most intricate of modern documents, recalling that Algeciras convention, which was a prelude to Agadir, and half a dozen Balkan settlements, which led without delay to new unsettlements.

Behind and underneath all material progress is that supplied by the league of nations. It is practically the guarantor of many material facts, while by rejection of all French amendments it has deprived itself of all but moral force. Whatever may be the point of view at the present time, it is at least useful to present the European view of the league of nations in its present form. In both Great Britain and France it has been in all discussions of recent days subordinated to practical questions, and there is a universal tendency to regard the understanding between Great Britain, France and Italy, which more and more takes on the character of an alliance, an alliance which has at least the benevolent assent of the United States, as the real practical force. In other words, in Europe the prevailing impression is that after much preliminary negotiation we have had recourse once more to the old system of alliance and balance of power.

League May Rule World.

It may be—as President Wilson and his friends, who have a certain number of supporters in Great Britain, although few in France, believe—that the league of nations when it is organized and begins to function will take on a character and have an influence which will steadily increase until it becomes all powerful, and the moral writs which it issues will rule in every land. It is essential to bear in mind that this point of view exists, and is strongly held, particularly in certain American quarters, and it is equally important to recognize that it has been on the whole rejected so far by Europe, possibly quite incorrectly.

When peace with Germany is signed, on or about May 10, assuming the Germans do sign, there will remain all the great questions of the east and of the south, ranging from Russia to the Persian Gulf, few of which have been more than opened so far. Only the Italian boundaries and claims are sure to be settled by the time German difficulties are out of the way, but at least and at last there seems a real possibility that we shall be at peace with Germany again within a month, and that the main business of the peace conference will thus be liquidated, although the map of Eastern Europe and Western Asia will be still unmarked.

TOBACCO WORKERS TO STRIKE.

Havana, Cuba, April 21.—A strike of tobacco workers of Havana and Pinar Del Rio provinces began Saturday afternoon to enforce demands for a general 20 per cent increase in wages and various betterments in working conditions. It is estimated that between 8,000 and 10,000 are affected.

Cigar box makers have been on strike for some time.

BIG FOUR SERVES NOTICE UPON GERMANY NOT TO SEND "MERE MESSENGERS"

PARIS, April 20.—(Associated Press).—The council of four has notified Germany that the associated powers cannot receive representatives at Versailles who are merely messengers. The German Government must appoint representatives with plenipotentiary powers.

PLEBISCITE ON REJECTION OF TERMS?

COPENHAGEN, April 19.—Preparations are being made in Germany for a plebiscite on the question of rejecting the peace terms offered to Germany if such rejection is considered necessary, according to the Cologne Gazette.

Foreign Minister Count von Brockendorff-Rantzau of Germany has announced that their envoys will be sent to Versailles, April 25, authorized to receive the text of the peace preliminaries, according to a dispatch from Berlin received here early today.

The delegation will be headed by Minister von Haniel, whose associates will be Herrs von Keller and Ernst Schmitt, legation councillors.

They will be attended by two officials and two chancery servants.

AWARD MADE IN DISPUTE OF THE EXPRESS HANDS

Railway Adjustment Board Hands Down Finding in Recent Trouble.

HALIFAX, April 20.—An eight-hour day, effective May 1; a wage increase of $25 per month, effective as of February 1, 1919, on the rates paid January 1, 1918; overtime from eight to ten hours pro rata, upwards of ten hours, time and a half, and a mileage of 1¼ cents for messengers traveling upwards of 6,000 miles per month, were the features of the award given out today by the railway board adjustment No. 1, which had been charged with the task of mediating between the Canadian Express Company and its employees, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees, following a seven-days' strike precipitated by the company failing to abide by the decision of the board of conciliation appointed under the industrial disputes act for the purpose of investigating the dispute.

The award, which was received at the headquarters of the brotherhood here today, follows in the main the majority judgment of the conciliation board. Grand officers of the brotherhood here express themselves as being very much pleased with the fight put up by the men and the manner in which they conducted themselves during the strike, not a single defection from their ranks being reported.

WANT EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

Chiclets meant a lot to Us

"Good old Chiclets! They steadied our nerves and eased our thirst in some pretty hot corners overseas. And they go just as good back here."

More than one hundred and fifty million—155,945,000 to be exact—pieces of Adams chewing gum were sent overseas to Allied soldiers. Governments, Y.M.C.A.'s, Knights of Columbus—all realized the wonderful value of good chewing gum in keeping up morale. You'll find, when things become a little strenuous, that an Adams Chiclet relieves the tension.

Make It a Heart Welcome When 1st Boys Come Home

"A hundred thousand welcomes; I could weep.
And I could laugh; I am light and heavy:
Welcome!" —Shakespeare

Many of our wayfarers are home already; it is paid two thousand men who served in the 1st attalion during the war have been invalided fore or since the armistice, but the coming me of the unit itself with whatever of organ- tion it maintains is to be made the occasion a public reception to all those whose fortunes re cast with the armed force that from the st of the war has been recognized as a No. 1 strict contribution.

Many of us can recall the going away of the mpany of London and Western Ontario men, aded by the late Col. Becher, as they swung ound the main corner. They were bound for e mobilization camp, almost five years ago, but w of the throngs that crowded the streets be- yed they would reach the front. Confidence in e speedy termination of the fighting was reflect- in the attitude of the nation, but it required ly a few weeks of the stern reality of invasion d slaughter to replace the hope of a return to ace, with the possibility of a war of years, and e certainty that Canadian troops would be re- ired. It was then the people of London realized hat the departure of the "originals" meant. To- ay we realize, as they are about to board trains r the last journey together, what their home- oming means.

They went into war, most of these men whose ames appear in pages early or late of the bat- lion records, with the decision made to fight to e death. No one of them left Canada without a ll knowledge of what the charnel pits of Europe eant for them. Their training in England was nightmare that only could have been withstood ecause they were supported with a spirit of con- eration to a cause. They will deny that lofty otives inspired them, but they cannot keep up e pretence when the record of the unit, through oody Ypres, through Givenchy, where the gal- nt Becher fell and caused the hearts of thou- nds in the Forest City to throb with grief, on o the final struggles of Amiens, Arras, Cambrai nd Valenciennes is spread over four years of war, one of them without sanguinary, if glorious, eriods, and many of them crucial tests in the spearhead" work of the Canadian corps.

The 1st Battalion is certain to be given the elcome it deserves. As a battalion it is the em- odiment of victory, and "how beautiful upon he mountains are the feet of him that bringeth ood tidings." Yet the granting of a holiday, or he ceremony of the city's official greeting will not ount as much as the welcome of the heart that hould go from every citizen. The return of the nen should quieken the thoughts of what these Canadian soldiers have done. Let the whole city eem full of welcome, for such another day shall ot come in which to do them honor.

Allies Honor Switzerland

The decision to make the Swiss city of Geneva he permanent home of the league of nations is ertain to meet with general approval. The little Alpine republic carried out its neutrality obliga- ions to the entire satisfaction of all the belliger- nts with the exception of Germany, and they foiled the attempts of the Hun to drag them into he struggle at the cost of much suffering.

As conductors of the clearing house for mail and food for prisoners of all nations the Swiss were able to convey comfort to mind and body of tens of thousands of unfortunates in the various prison camps and relief to anxious relatives the world over. Through Switzerland, too, were made the transferences of many soldiers crippled or diseased beyond restoration to fighting condi- tion, thus reducing to some extent the agony and distress of the war. Without Swizerland as a go- between there isn't a doubt but that the war's death total would be considerably greater than it is. In selecting Geneva as the meeting place of the peace association the Allies have decorated this brave, generous people with well-earned honor.

Wilhelm's Trial a Warning

The Chicago Tribune protests against the decision of the Allies to bring Count Hohenzol- lern to trial. As the Tribune sees it the prosecu- tion of the ex-kaiser would be illogical and un- just. It bases this contention on the fact that in declaring war Wilhelm was exercising a right that was recognized in Europe. The Chicago paper goes on to say that behind the proposed trial is a British desire to "kill the kaiser" in order to secure vengeance.

This, of course, is not the attitude of Great Britain and her allies in the matter. The prose- cution and probable punishment of the Hohenzol- lerns is intended as a spectacular object lesson, a red signal for any who might be inclined to attempt a criminal adventure such as was started by the Potsdam conspiracy. Nothing so petty and cheap as taking it out of the ex-imperial hide is behind the intention to fetch the big criminal to the bar of justice.

The Tribune protests that Germany's crime in plunging the world into war cannot be con- centrated on the ex-ruler's person because he held the prerogatives of an autocratic rulership, and these were recognized by other nations. In that argument lies one of the main purposes of the Allied action in bringing the ex-kaiser to retribution. It was because kaiserism and czar- ism had been tolerated so long and so widely in the old world that every race is now suffering. Now that autocracy has taken the count, one way in which it can be kept prostrate is for democracy to make it clear that any imperial adventure such as that of the Hohenzollerns will be made answer- able in person. The trial and punishment of Count Hohenzollern will be a serving notice that despotism is through.

A Magnificent Exhibition

The first exhibition in Canada of British naval photographs in color is now proceeding at the Grange, the former residence in Toronto of Professor Goldwin Smith. It is now Toronto's Art Gallery. We clip the following from the of- ficial catalogue:

"It has been the aim of the photographic section of the ministry of information to lift the veil as far as the exigencies of war will permit and to show the public how deep is their debt of gratitude to the senior service.

"Every phase of the war at sea is illustrated. Every craft employed by the navy, from the mighty super-dreadnought to the unassuming little trawler, can be seen upon their lawful oc- casions. The submarine is the vessel which has been most in the public eye, and the war against the U-boat is very fully illustrated. When Tirpitz, the arch Hun, invented and organized his cam- paign of 'frightfulness' against our merchantmen, he thought he had found the 'Achilles heel' of the British Empire, and the day when we should go humbly down on our knees and beg for peace was frequently advertised in the German papers. But the German, who always underrates his ene- mies, forgot the British ingenuity and pluck, and the photographs show what wonderful resource the British navy displayed in overcoming what, at one time, was a very serious menace.

"The pictures show depth charges, which deal death beneath the waters, the airships which spot and strafe the lurking pirates with their bombs, the nets in which they become entangled, and the destroyers, the enemy which the U-boat crews hold in the most deadly fear of all. The pictures which will appeal to the public imagina- tion are those of the glorious exploit of Zee- brugge. We see the Vindictive covered with hon- orable scars, on her return from that memorable fight, and the block ships lying in Zeebrugge har- bor, preventing ingress and egress for the Huns' mosquito craft. The picture of the Vindictive is so large that it had to be made in four separate parts in order to get it through the doorway and up the stairs to the galleries.

"In addition, there is shown the work of the Red Cross service, the skillful and kindly nurses, and the various schemes which are in being for the welfare of the naval men. Last, but not least, there are photographs of the Wrens, the sailor lasses, who are doing many useful jobs ashore."

It is both an education and a pleasure to see these wonderful pictures. "No. 28," "The Sound of the Guns He Did Not Hear," is very pathetic, while No. 171, "The Strap-Hanger," has a touch of Bairnsfather in it. All the pictures are mag- nificent. They should be seen by everyone. Mayor C. R. Somerville is arranging to have them ex- hibited at the Armories about the middle of May for a week.

TOO FRIVOLOUS.
By R. Ray Baker.

You don't find Castlegrove on the map. If you approach a railroad ticket window and inquire as to the fare the man behind the wicket can't shoot an answer at you in terse tones. He has to get out a little pamphlet and search through it, and after perhaps fifteen minutes have passed he can give you the requested information.

Just where Castlegrove derived its name certainly is not known to any of its denizens. Surely there is no edifice in the town that could by the most am- bitious of imaginations be called a cas- tle. The nearest thing to it is a church, which is just a plain little white build- ing—the kind you find at crossroads in the country. True, there can be and generally is as much religion in one of these little frame structures as in many of the more pretentious houses of wor- ship to be found in the cities. However, the time of which I write there was no minister occupying the Castlegrove church pulpit. The parishioners were limited in number, because the popula- tion of Castlegrove and its environs had dwindled very noticeably since the church was built, and the ones that were left could not afford to pay a pastor's salary, and a minister must eat.

In the backwoods Ohio town came Genevieve Walters. City life didn't agree with her mother, so Mr. Walters bought some land that for politeness' sake was called a farm, and which came cheap, in spite of the flattery, and the family moved from the fairly large city sixty miles away in which they had re- sided ever since Genevieve could re- member. Mr. Walters bought out one of the two general stores, succeeded in getting the appointment as postmaster, which had been held by the former pro- prietor, and managed to wrest a fair liv- ing from the combination.

The moving of the Walters family to Castlegrove brought another person to the village once a week. This person was Bert Holbrook, who was in love with Genevieve. He lived in her old home town, where he held a fairly lucrative position as pharmacist, and he managed to get down at regular intervals to see his heart's desire, usually on Saturday, which was his day off on account of having to work Sundays.

The two young people had kept com- pany for two years, but there had been no direct talk of an engagement. It wasn't that Bert was timid about such matters, but that he found one marked flaw in Genevieve that he wished to see corrected before they became betrothed. She was "too frivolous," according to his ideas. He loved her none the less, but he feared she would experience dif- ficulty in "settling down."

"I do like to see a girl smile," he told himself repeatedly; "but I believe it would be a genuine relief to see Gene- vieve scowl or cry just once. It would relieve the monotony. She's smiling all the time, and it's an attractive smile, too; but it shows she never has a seri- ous thought. Then, she's always tell- ing something funny she's seen or some joke she's heard."

With the removal of the Walters fam- ily to Castlegrove Bert felt convinced that at last Genevieve was going to "be- come settled." One couldn't very well be frivolous in that town.

But Genevieve failed to improve, so far as her sweetheart could notice. She smiled just as much and saw just as many funny things in life. He couldn't wait forever, however, so at last he de- cided he would ask her to take a chance as Mrs. Holbrook, although he felt sure it was he that was taking the chance.

It would not be quite right to intrude on the scene of his attempted proposal, so we'll wait and listen to his thoughts as he expressed them aloud under the rumble of the wheels of the train on which he journeyed home that Saturday night. He had a habit of talking aloud when something troubled him and this was one of those times.

"A fine mess!" he said, as he half-re- clined on one seat with his feet on an- other and glared dejectedly out the win- dow into the darkness flashing past. "Talk about frivolousness! Genevieve certainly has them all beaten. Can't even listen to a proposal of marriage without laughing in your face. One would not irrally think that when a fellow starts talking love a girl would stop playing the piano; but not Genevieve Walters! She keeps right on and looks up at you and grins. I'm through, that's all. I can't keep this up forever. Me for a sensible girl."

And Bert meant it. His was a rather grave demeanor at all times. He took life seriously and could not understand the kind of people who strive to see the funny side at every opportunity.

He was sincerely in love with Gene- vieve, but he was afraid to try matri- mony with her. So he decided the best thing would be to leave her alone, for a while, at least; perhaps forever. As a result he stopped writing and quit mak- ing his Saturday calls.

One month was all he could stand. He had not heard from her, which was not at all unnatural considering his cessa- tion of correspondence, but somehow he felt grieved over it.

"She might at least invite me down there once more," he thought. "Well, anyhow, I've just got to see her again, frivolous or no frivolous, although I sup- pose nothing will come of it. I'll sur- prise her, to make sure she won't refuse to see me just for spite."

About this time Bert's weekly holi- day was shifted to Sunday, so for the first time he journeyed to Castlegrove on the Sabbath. Arriving at the village he made his way at once to the Walters home, but was surprised and disappoint- ed to find no one there.

Thinking perhaps the family had gone out for a walk, and that he would meet them, he walked up the main street, which seemed to be even more deserted than usual. He saw only one or two pedestrians and an old man driving a scrawny horse, which was dragging a creaky buggy.

Bert's walk led him past the little church, and it seemed that he could hear a choir singing. Yes, a choir was sing- ing one of the old-time hymns.

Curiosity and lack of anything else to do prompted Bert to mount the steps and enter the building. As he did so the singing ceased and someone began talk- ing. It was a woman, and there was something strangely familiar about the pleasant, well-modulated voice. He en- tered the vestibule and peered through the inner door.

There were perhaps fifty persons in the church listening intently to a young woman who stood in the pulpit. She was quoting from the Bible, saying: "Woe unto the foolish prophets that follow their own spirit and have seen nothing."

Bert slipped into a seat at the back of the church and immediately fell un- der the spell of the sermon or of the young woman, or both. That the rest of the congregation was under the same spell was evident from the way every- one leaned forward in his seat, hanging closely to every word that was uttered, with eyes fixed intently on the girl in the gave voice to them. No one was sleep- ing or even drowsing.

When the services were over concluded Bert sat in a daze while the others trailed out of the church.

"Too frivolous!" he said repeatedly to himself. "Here I've been criticizing her for smiling and looking on the bright side of things, because I thought she had no serious thoughts; and all this time she's been preaching. Talk about foolish prophets. I'm the prize one of the lot."

The girl who had delivered the ser- mon came along the aisle and stopped by his side. He leaped to his feet, groped for words, stammered and twist- ed his hat out of shape behind his back, like he was a peasant standing before a princess.

"Genevieve," he managed to say, "Genevieve, can you—can you—can you forgive me for the way I have acted and—and for the things I have thought? And—and will you let me go home with you and will you—do you think you can listen to me while I—while I try that proposal over again?"

She smiled—that same old smile—and he was glad, because he had suddenly discovered that he liked it.

"Perhaps I ought not to forgive you," she responded. "but"—and she tapped the black, leather-covered book under her arm—"this teaches us that forgive- ness is right. Yes, you may come with me, Bert, and I'll listen to what you have to say. I was perfectly serious that other time; but you see sometimes a girl smiles to hide her emotion, and sometimes one gets so nervous that one has to keep the hands busy. That's why I couldn't stop playing the piano. I'll try this time, though."

"Please play it—and smile," pleaded Bert. "I'd dearly love to propose to music, and smiles beat tears all to pieces."

RUPTURE KILLS 7,000 ANNUALLY

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificates being marked "Rupture." Why? Be- cause the unfortunate ones had neg- lected themselves or had been mere- lected themselves of the sign (swelling) of taking care of the rupture and paying no attention the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be ex- pected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pres- sure retards blood circulation, thus rob- bing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self- treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

WINIFRED BLACK

Writes About "A Wonderful Family."

Copyright, 1918, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dear Winifred Black:

You answer so many "girl questions" I wonder if you can answer some "boy questions"?

One year ago there were five of us, three boys and two girls. I am the oldest and am 28. My oldest brother, who was 24, and the next one, 22, enlisted in the army a year ago last January and sailed for France in May. One was killed in action August 23, and the other on October 4. It was up to me to support myself and baby sister, who is 15, and youngest brother, 17, so I came to the city and took a position. I cannot be at home and at work, too, and my "babies" are dissatisfied. We were raised on the farm, and, of course, are a little farmerish to be living in the city. Brother goes to high school, but he says that the boys and girls all call him "Hayseed" and "Onion Top," and make so much fun of him because he says "Yes, ma'am" to his teacher, that he refuses to go any longer.

His teacher says he is very bright and attentive, but that he fights so much with the other boys. I know he does it because they call him names, but his teacher thinks he shouldn't fight over such trifles.

If I could only give more of my time to them I might be able to solve the problem myself, but as it is now I can only ask you for advice. Any suggestion you can offer will be greatly appreciated. Respectfully,

WINIFRED H.

Deserves a Crown.

There, now, if that isn't a human document. From start to finish, in every curve of every letter, and in every word of every sentence, I'd like to know what it was.

No, it isn't her right name, signed at the end of this letter—not so that you need worry about it, though there's nothing I'd like better than to tell the world just exactly who she is, and where she lives, and all about her.

She's the kind of girl who ought to wear a crown of pearls upon her forehead—the kind of a girl who means more to this country and everything that is good and noble, and fine and brave, and modest and true and faithful, than any round dozen of any other kind of woman on earth.

Not a word about herself, you'll notice, except just the simple explanation she almost has to give, and how modestly she gives that.

Two brothers killed fighting for liberty—the little brother and the sister at home, and she working to take care of them—and worrying about what's happening to them while she's gone to work.

Isn't it too bad about brother? I don't blame him a bit for wanting to run away from school, and I love him for fighting when the city boys call him "Onion Top" and "Hayseed."

He's got the right stuff in him. The same spirit that sent his brothers over the top in France is going to send him over the top here at home. If he were my brother I'd be so proud of him I wouldn't know what to do—"Hayseed," "Onion Top" and all.

He Will Win.

Yes, I'd try to persuade him to stay in school. I'd tell him that in six months all the little, empty-headed nobodies who are making fun of him because he wasn't brought up in a tenement house will have something else to laugh at and somebody else to tease. They'll forget all about him, and he can go on and learn what there is to learn without paying the least attention to them.

As for that teacher I don't see where her eyes are, or her heart, or her brain. If she's the right kind of a woman, it wouldn't take her long to make that boy see that he ought not to let these poor, little, narrow-minded creatures step in between him and his chance.

He's a man, and a good, old-fashioned Canadian, and some day he'll be giving jobs to half of these boys who are trying to terrorize him now.

But if the situation is really getting on his nerves, then, Sister, why don't you send him down into the country back to the old place, where he can work on somebody's farm, and go to school, and be among his own kind for a while, till his sore heart is healed, and he is ready to come back to the cruel, sneering, blind, dear, ignorant, stupid city again, and show just exactly how his country upbringing has taught him how to conquer?

Why about little sister? I hope she isn't unhappy, too.

Why don't you make a joke of it, you two, and have a nice, hot supper waiting for big sister when she comes home. Have something pleasant to tell her—she's just a girl, too, and she must be tired of nothing but work and worry.

I do hope the people where she works appreciate her. Bless her heart, I'd like to give her a good, old-fashioned hug this very minute—but she'll find friends and plenty of them before long.

In the meantime, here's looking at you, Big Sister, and Little Sister, and Onion Top—you'll be proud of that nae some day, mark my words.

Women Freed From Harems Are Now a Problem to Turkey

Many Sheltered by Relief Workers, But Large Number Wandering About.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Dispatches from Constantinople received today by the American committee for Armenian and Syrian relief, reported that the problem presented by the release of thousands of Christian women and children from Turkish harems in Asia Minor is constantly growing. Many have been given shelter by the relief workers, but there remain a large number wandering about the country destitute, some of them crazed from hunger and exposure.

Telegrams have been received in Constantinople from Gregorian bishops, pastors and leading business men in various sections of Asia Minor appealing for help for these women and children. The Turks, the message said, were casting adrift the Armenian girls they had taken into their homes and orphanages for the purpose of bringing them up as Moslems, believing that by thus setting them free they themselves might be able to escape punishment.

COUNCIL OF WOMEN SUPPORTS DECORATION OF LONDON MOTHERS

Will Probably Take Place on May 11, Official Mothers' Day.

The following quotation is from a letter addressed to the different clergymen of the city by the Local Council of Women. At the request of Mrs. H. A. Boomer, president of that association, it is being printed here. On Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, at Kinsman Hall, a meeting will be held for the purpose of arranging details re the decoration of mothers. The letter follows:

"Realizing the full significance of the already openly pronounced approval and promised personal sympathy of so large a number of the clergy of our city in our women's effort, inspired primarily by the Society of the Associated Kin, and, at their request, accepted as a sacred trust by our London local branch of the National Council of Women, 'that the most eminently fitting tribute to the valor and splendid bravery of our fallen heroes would be an honor bestowed upon the mothers who bore them,' we would ask your definite and immediate co-operation in bringing this effort locally to a successful issue.

"It is our earnest hope that, as the National Council of Women, with its very large, widely spread and growing membership, perhaps more fully represents Canadian motherhood than any other organization, it will decide at its coming annual meeting at Regina, in June next, to make this a universal plea through its several branches, so that not one woman of the international order of the Allied Mothers in Sacrifice shall be forgotten when the list is complete of those who should claim the right to wear, and to pass on to the generations to come, the simple but artistically emblematic little bronze shield, which marks her as the mother of a Canadian son who has laid down his life for his country.

"But meanwhile, as an inspiration to those far-away branches which may not as yet have had the proposition laid before them, it is most important that the final clause of our London resolution, which has already been adopted by our own and other Local Councils with enthusiasm, should be acted upon and results reported by our representative at the annual meeting at Regina in June. This clause asks that as far as practicable this work be systematically arranged for by each local council becoming responsible for the decoration in its locality of all the mothers who have lost sons in the late war. To this end we are inclosing for your use nomination forms, whereby you can obtain for us correct information as to the names of such mothers of your congregation as are amongst those whom the whole nation would desire to honor, these forms, when filled, being forwarded to Mr. Spence, secretary Associated Kin.

"We would further ask that through your pulpit announcements, or by any other opportunity, you might invite for our effort such financial support as may be voluntarily offered or freely given by those who desire to share with us in the high privilege of marking their sense of honor every patriotic Canadian would desire to bestow upon those who through much sacrifice have earned the right to our high respect and profound gratitude.

"We are requested to add the suggestion that it surely might be possible, as giving an extra emphasis to our memorial gifts, to have these decorations ready for presentation on or as near as possible to Mothers' Day, May 11th next.

"A widow writes: 'As one who deeply sympathizes, but had no son to offer his life for the glorious cause, please accord to me the honor and privilege of providing five of the decorations on Mothers' Day.'

"Others may wish to make a similar definite offering, and thus help us to add to Mothers' Day of this eventful year a still more sacred meaning than ever before.

With this hope in view, we desire to state that any contributions, whether large or small, collective or individual, which may result from your sympathetic appeal, will be glady received and gratefully acknowledged by Mrs. Boomer, 393 William street, or Mrs. Emma Yarker, Wortley road."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. G. W. Echlin spent Easter in Woodstock.

Mr. Verne Ford of Montreal was an Easter visitor in the city.

Miss Lorna MacGillivray, Bellevue Heights, left this morning to visit relatives in Port Huron.

Miss Mattie Upshall of Toronto is spending Easter vacation with her parents on William street.

Mr. and Mrs. John McLeish of Keyser, Ont., announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Ann, to James M. Greenlees of Aberarder, Ont., the marriage to take place Easter week.

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sandford, Grosvenor street, when their eldest daughter, Mary, was united in marriage to William McCausland of Watford. The bride was attended by Miss Lena Henry, and the groom was supported by Mr. Wm. Bruce. After a dainty wedding breakfast the young couple left for Detroit, and on their return will reside at 236 Rectory street. Rev. Charles Evans of St. Mary's performed the ceremony.

The marriage of Miss Blanch MacBane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. MacBane, 35 St. George street, to Mr. Charles MacTaggart Carmichael of Ilderton, was quietly solemnized by the Rev. N. H. McGillivray at the manse on Thursday evening, April 17.

They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ferguson. The bride looked very attractive in a navy blue tailored suit and a large pearl grey picture hat. After a wedding breakfast at the bride's home the happy couple motored to Ilderton, where they will be at home to their friends after May 1.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place in St. Andrew's Church at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, when Miss Marine Margaret Mitchell, daughter of Commissioner F. G. Mitchell, was united in marriage to Percy E. Johns of Buffalo. Rev. D. C. McGregor officiated. The bride, who was becoming in a tailored suit of taupe and a navy blue hat and waist to match, was given away by her father. The groom was supported by J. C. Mitchell. Miss Eric Mitchell, who was the flower girl, was dressed in white, and carried a basket of sweet peas and ferns. Mrs. Chadwick of Toronto, who was the matron of honor, wore a navy blue tailored suit. The mother of the bride wore blue satin foulard and a grey plush coat.

After the wedding a reception was given at the bride's residence, 618 Wellington street, where a buffet luncheon was served. The house was prettily decorated with daffodils and sweet peas. The happy couple left at 5:20 o'clock in the evening for Buffalo.

A quaint and delightful entertainment is assured in the "Early Victorian" Concert, which will wind up the season for the Woman's Music Club on Tuesday evening. Owing to the stage accommodation, it has been decided to hold this recital in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium instead of the usual meeting place.

The curtain will rise at 8.15 o'clock upon an early Victorian drawing-room scene, with the three musicians who will play the instrumental trio, Miss Eggleston, violinist; Clarence Gilmore, pianist, and Rev. G. Q. Warner, cellist, in the costumes in vogue shortly after Queen Victoria came to the throne. The crinoline will be prominently featured in the charming costumes of the women artists, who play or sing early Victorian numbers. A minuet, danced by clever pupils of Mrs. Alice Henderson, and a final tableau, a la crinoline, are among the novelties promised. Non-members of the club will be admitted on visitors' tickets, obtainable at the door.

St. Mary's Parish Church, Folkestone, was the scene of another Canadian wedding on the afternoon of March 20, when the vicar, Rev. Canon P. F. Tindall, united in marriage Miss Anna Lois Small, daughter of Mrs. S. Small of MacLeod, Alta., and Major Lorne Fauntleroy Jones, C.A.M.C., son of Mrs. P. W. Jones of Chesley, Ont.

Both young people saw service in the Canadian Army Medical Corps during the war. Major Jones being adjutant and registrar of No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital, in addition to his duties as pathologist, while the bride was formerly a nursing sister in the Canadian nursing service.

The ceremony was witnessed by a number of friends, including several of the bridegroom's brother-officers and many of the N.C.O.'s and men of the hospital in which he served in France.

The bride, who wore a becoming traveling suit of dark grey, with sable stole, and carried a bridal bouquet of sweet peas, entered the church on the arm of her cousin, Lieut. V. A. Delaporte, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March. She was attended by two bridesmaids, Nursing Sisters Dewar and Bayer, in the red and blue uniforms of the Canadian nursing service.

The groom was attended by Lieut. Col. C. H. Reason, D.S.O., of London, Ont., commanding officer of No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital. Major A. E. Macaulay, C.A.M.C., and Mr. G. E. Williams, Church Army, of Manchester, acted as ushers.

Among the guests present were Capt. and Mrs. H. A. Harden, Mrs. J. A. Spender and Matron Cameron-Smith of the Canadian Hospital at Hastings, where the bride was formerly a member of the nursing staff.

During the signing of the register the N.C.O.'s and men of the unit availed themselves of the opportunity of lining the walk leading from the church to the roadway, and when the happy couple emerged from the church they were liberally showered with rice and confetti.

Following a dainty luncheon at the Grand Hotel, during which the bride observed the time-honored custom of cutting the wedding cake with her husband's sword, Major and Mrs. Jones left on a honeymoon trip to Torquay. They expect to return to Canada at an early date.

Who'll Supply Them?

Dear Miss Grey,—I would very much like to correspond with "Flower Bug" if she will write first. My sister is sending the words of "When I Dream of Old Erin I'm Dreaming of You" for "Jeff's Wife," and she would like in return "The Dying Nun" and "Twas the Navy Took 'em Over and the Navy Will Bring Them Back." I would like the stocking foot pattern and also the song of "The Wild Cow Boy" and "The Irish Jubilee." I wonder if my wants will ever be supplied. I hope so. I am,

BILLIE'S AUNTY.

Boy of Twelve.

Dear Miss Grey,—Could any of the readers please send me some recitations for a boy of twelve, and could any one tell me where I could purchase a good book of recitations? He likes comic or patriotic, anything that's good.

POOR WRITER.

Feel Like Friends.

Dear Miss Cynthia Grey,—I received the letter from Lancashire Lass, and I am sure I appreciate your kindness. Lancashire Lass said that she came from within twenty miles of Manchester, England, and, dear Miss Grey, I come from Manchester, so feel acquainted already. I saw in the Mail-Box lately where Babe 28 would like a flannelette flag, and as I had just one I thought that I would send it along; hope it is the kind she wishes, and that I am not too late. I thought also that this piece of silk would come in handy for Beanpole, as it is rather an uncommon color around here. Will close now. Thanking you once more, I remand, as before,

A REAL LANCASHIRE LASS.

A Fruit Custard Pie.

Dear Miss Grey,—May I have the stocking foot pattern, please? I am inclosing a stamped addressed envelope for same. I will inclose a recipe for fruit custard pie in exchange, thanking you. Into a baked crust put one pint of fresh berries or other fresh fruit and cover with half cup of sugar. Make a custard of one cup sugar, two tablespoonfuls cornstarch, 1½ cups of milk and yolks of two eggs. Pour this hot custard over the fruit, cover with the beaten whites of the eggs, and set in the oven until the meringue has puffed up with the heat and turned a delicate brown. Serve when cold.

UNIFORM LESSON FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 27, 1919.

ONE GOLDEN TEXT SUGGESTION.

By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D. D.

The Holy Spirit Our Helper. John 16:7-15; Acts 2:1-13.

1. Verse 7. What connection did the going away of Jesus have with the coming of the Holy Spirit?

2. What reason, if any, is there to believe that the Holy Spirit is the same Divine Spirit that dwelt in Jesus?

3. Verses 8-11. What is the meaning of "reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness and of judgment?"

4. Why would it not be a fair interpretation of these words to say that the Holy Spirit will "convince" us when we are wrong, tell us when we are right, and give us clear judgment to distinguish right from wrong?

Golden Text.—If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children; how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him? Luke 11:13.

THERE IS A HOLY SPIRIT.

The doctrine of the Trinity is confusing to most Christian thinkers, and attempts at its explanation often make the darkness more visible. Personally, I have reached a conclusion which is free from perplexity to myself at least. One thing is sure, that God exists as a Holy Spirit, and it was God, the Holy Spirit, that dwelt in the body of Jesus and this made Him Divine. Jesus said, while yet in the flesh, that after His departure He would send the Holy Spirit to dwell in the hearts of His followers, and, on the day of Pentecost, the Holy Spirit came and took possession of the bodies and souls of all believers in Jesus. We may say, therefore, that the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of Jesus and He is always with us.

FOURTEEN MAJOR TEAMS TO OPEN SEASON WEDNESDAY

NEW YORK, April 18.—The coming week will usher in another baseball season under conditions which the major league magnates, players and fans hope and expect will be more fruitful than those of the past few years. With the blight of war lifted from the national sport, it is the belief in all sections that the game will rebound to the heights of popularity which it enjoyed previous to the devastating sweep of world-wide hostilities.

League officials and club owners, with this idea in mind, have devoted the past few months to preparing for a new period in baseball and their handiwork is evident in many directions. Radical changes have been made in methods and system of conducting big leagues at the annual meetings of the magnates. Individual club owners have labored to improve the strength of their forces and through the team managers have purchased or traded players in order to round out formidable combinations.

How well they have builded only time can demonstrate, but, viewed from the standpoint of the present, it would appear as though both the National and American circuits were stronger and better balanced than has been the case in recent seasons. Before the pennant races are well under way it is expected that the last of the diamond stars now serving with the forces, either at home or abroad, will have doffed the khaki for baseball flannel. Many will reappear upon the field with a glamor heretofore lacking and the fans' welcome will be backed by a sentiment containing something more than the admiration due the player for his playing ability alone.

Mingled with faces of returning veterans who have won honors on the battlefields of Europe, as well as on the diamond, will be seen those of newcomers, bringing the speed, agility and zest of youth to the national game. From the training camps of the southland come reports of the sparkling play of several recruits who promise to quickly establish themselves in the hearts of the fans as a result of their unusual skill with bat and ball.

It is this constantly changing picture of personnel, playing ability and combat, tempered with the sentiment and traditions of baseball, that has established the sport so firmly throughout the nation. Old stars may fade; youthful phenomenons leap to the zenith in their places, and club owners come and go with little apparent effect upon the popularity of the game. For many years baseball has held its own through prosperous and depressing seasons because it is baseball and America's game. Tradition has welded the sport into an integral part of the nation's life.

Chicago leads in the number of championships won as the teams of that city have accounted for eleven pennants. Boston is second with nine and New York third, with eight. Of the 37 pennants won by cities now represented in the league, eastern clubs have captured 22 and western teams 15.

This year the clubs face a shorter season and a pennant race of 140 games, in place of the usual 154. When the teams take the field on Wednesday, with Chicago at St. Louis; Cleveland at Detroit; Philadelphia at Washington, and Boston at New York on the American League circuit, and Brooklyn at Boston; New York at Philadelphia; Pittsburg at Chicago, and St. Louis at Cincinnati, in the National League, the 1919 season will be about a week later in starting than has been the case in past years.

What effect, if any, this will have upon the pennant races is uncertain at this time. Managers and magnates hope for settled weather and expect that, if normal temperature conditions prevail, the teams will be able to play fast ball from the start. Close struggles, with the lead shifting frequently, should make the baseball season of 1919 one of the brightest periods in the annals of the game.

At the 39th annual meeting of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association held in Toronto Saturday it was decided to hold the Dominion bicycle championship race meet in London on the 1st of July. VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE DAYLIGHT SAVING CURSE.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I read with much pleasure in your columns about the victory that Mr. Dennis Flannigan scored against the City of London in his suit in the high court of justice. The pleasure it afforded me was not altogether unalloyed, as now I, as a taxpayer, will have to pay my share of the costs. However, it is this victory of justice against the worst form of Prussianism that satisfies.

The city will unfortunately be saddled with a big bill of costs which we will be compelled to pay. It seems, however, too bad that we should have this burden thrust upon us. If it were possible to compel these five aldermen who are responsible for the passing of this infamous bylaw to pay the total cost. I am sure our citizens would be more than thankful. If these five aldermen have any honor in them they would certainly pay all the legal costs they are responsible for causing the city to pay. If, however, there were any profit in the scheme they would all scramble in order to be first on the job to get their share. There is no doubt if these five individuals were allowed a free hand in the management of the city's affairs and not checked by the other seven members of the council it would be only a short time before our taxes, which are now enormous, would be more than doubled. Many people say that the railroads played a prominent part in influencing these five gentlemen.

A friend of my wife has been a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital for several weeks past, troubled with insomnia, and is nearing a collapse. During the early part of the evenings, as every physician will tell you, a great many patients of this class cannot get to sleep till coming along to the early hours in the morning. This is precisely the case with this poor woman. During the early hours of the morning while she is quietly resting when everything is quiet and still around the hospital, when the Sisters are most careful that everything should be still, on rush the street cars one hour earlier clanging their bells and clattering along on both sides of the hospital, rousing her from a short but needed sleep. Precisely the same conditions, unfortunately, exist at Victoria Hospital.

Surely the time that our Creator has given has since the creation of the world and served its purpose so well ever since should be good enough for us now. If these five gentlemen want anything different, no one would object if they would put their own clocks ahead one hour or more if they so desired, but why force the citizens of London to adopt their insane ideas?

I think all the clergymen and the heads of the Salvation Army in our fair city should sound a note of warning from their pulpits in condemnation of this outrageous state of affairs, caused by five selfish aldermen.

The mayor and council are to meet this evening to reconsider this kaiseristic bylaw, and I haven't the slightest doubt but right and justice will prevail this time if all the members of the council are present.

A SUFFERER.

Teachers Leave Collegiate Because of Bad Conditions

Secretary of Board Thinks Another School a Necessity.

When asked his opinion of the report of High School Inspector J. A. Houston, who visited the local high school and recommended the hiring of six more teachers because of the overcrowding of the classes, Secretary R. M. McElheran of the board of education, declared that conditions at the collegiate were indeed scandalous.

It was because of the conditions there that two teachers had left the school. One of these teachers only held his job for two weeks, but in that time he had found out that he could not teach under such conditions.

Mr. McElheran is of the opinion that if six more high school teachers are needed in the city, then another high school should be erected. As the result of a census of the pupils taken by the former principal, G. F. Rogers, in order to find out in what section of the city the majority lived, it was found that the greatest number lived in the eastern section of the city. If a new high school is built it is expected that this probably will be the location of it.

JOSEPH VAUGHAN SENDS NEWS OF DEATH OF HIS BROTHER, SERGT. DAVID

Petty Officer Joseph Vaughan, telegraphist on H.M.S. Marne, writing from Devonport, England, sends confirmation of the death of his brother, Sergt.-Major David Vaughan, formerly of the headquarters staff of No. 1 Military District, as follows: "Reg. Sergt.-Major David Vaughan, late of military headquarters, London, Ont., died of bronchial pneumonia at Kinmel Park Camp, Wales, on March 14, 1919, after serving with the forestry corps in France. Deeply regretted by his sorrowing mother and brothers."

GETS HIS CHANCE

James Brimblecombe Must Keep Out of City.

"Give me one more chance," pleaded James Brimblecombe, found by the police wandering about the streets homeless and friendless, with the result that Police Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon today allowed James his liberty with a warning that if he came back employment on the farm would be found for the said James.

"This is a bad time to hit the farm," remarked Brimblecombe, as he sauntered out of court.

MANAGER GEORGE KENNEDY RETURNS FROM THE COAST

Montreal, April 21.—George Kennedy, owner and manager of the Canadien Hockey Club, returned from Seattle, Wash., yesterday after an attack of influenza. George Kennedy stated last night that he had completely recovered and will get down to business this week. In speaking of the trip, Kennedy said that the gloom cast over it by the death of Joe Hall took all the interest out of the sport, and that from a financial standpoint the trip was not a success.

"BABE" DYE HAS NOT YET SIGNED WITH HAMILTON

Toronto, April 21.—The report that Babe Dye, the local champion all-round athlete, has signed a contract to play with the Hamilton Ontario-Michigan League club is not correct. Dye has received an offer from Manager Shaughnessy, but he will not sign unless he is assured that he will not be allowed to play amateur hockey next season. He is on the black books of the O. H. A. for an attack upon Referee Steve Vair in the final game of the season for the city championship. Dye is a left-hand pitcher and a star Rugby and hockey player. He is only 20 years of age. Last year he pitched for the Petawawa Camp champions, and also for the Hillcrests, O. B. A. A. title winners.

NEW ZEALANDERS' RUGBY TEAM WINS KING'S CUP

LONDON, April 20.—(By the Canadian Associated Press.)—The New Zealanders, who on Wednesday beat the mother country in the imperial services rugby tournament and won the King's cup, met and defeated the French army team at Twickenham on Saturday by 20 points to 3.

Glorious weather brought out an immense crowd. The King presented his trophy to the New Zealanders and was greeted with unbounded enthusiasm.

NEW SWIMMING RECORD SET BY CLARENCE LANE

ALAMEDA, Cal., April 19.—Clarence Lane, formerly of Honolulu, broke the national 50-yard college swimming record here today, when he made the distance in 24 seconds in the intercollegiate freshmen swimming meet. The previous record was 25 1-5 seconds, made in 1914 by F. E. Hadley of Yale.

FOCH'S PUNCHES

way centre was Soissons, and he wanted more extensive means of transportation in order to facilitate the movement of troops to points where they were most needed. Here again the Germans were partly successful, but they were finally held up by the French and American troops in that part of the line.

Ludendorff, said Sir Frederick, intended to menace Paris, expecting that this would compel the Allies to withdraw troops from farther north, thus leaving a way open for a drive on the channel ports.

Gestures Spoke Loudly.

"That was Ludendorff's plan," he went on to say, adding: "But there was another plan. Foch, in full command of all the Allied forces on the western front, also had a plan, and he knew that he could carry it out. In the critical days a conference of statesmen was held, at which Foch was present. One of the statesmen asked him: 'Suppose the Germans do make another attack; what will you do, marshal?' to which Foch, who is a man of few words, replied with a series of gestures only." Gen. Maurice imitated the gestures, which consisted of the raising of the right hand, clenched, and a forward movement of the fist, indicating a punch; then a similar movement with the left hand, and a repetition of that with the right. These were followed by a movement of the right foot, which was plainly intended to signify a kick with considerable force behind it.

"Up to that time," explained the general, "the commander on both sides had always tried the big kick first. Foch was the first general to introduce a new theory of attack. He had come to the conclusion that the delivery of the big kick left the aggressor winded, and gave the defender time to bring up his reserves and make a stand. As a matter of fact, this is exactly what had happened in all the great drives, either by the Germans or by the Allies. Foch conceived the idea that the better method was to deliver a series of short punches, which would have the effect of using up the enemy reserves first, and then, when all the reserves had been drawn in, to deliver his big kick."

Punches Came First.

The first punch, the punch with the right fist, took the form of three successive attacks in the Marne salient. The French delivered the first of these, and at one bound reached the outskirts of Soissons, where they dominated all the railroads of the salient. Directly the German resistance became fairly stiff the attack was halted. Then the Americans, pushing from the Amiens side of the salient, drove the enemy back very rapidly. Now a retreat became absolutely necessary for the crown prince if he would escape annihilation, and a third drive, this time again from the Soissons side, wiped out the salient altogether.

Meanwhile, so quietly that not even the Allied commanders, except those actually concerned, knew anything of it, the Canadians were moved down from the north to the Picardy front, and two divisions of them, with four British divisions, made a sudden assault on the Amiens salient, and in 48 hours had driven a great counter-wedge into that salient.

In both this and the Marne battles Foch had discarded the method, usual up to that time, of putting down a long bombardment in preparation for the infantry attack. He realized that the long bombardment gave the enemy notice of what was coming. Instead he bombarded the German lines only for about three minutes, long enough merely to cut the telegraph and telephone lines of communication. This rain of shell was followed by an advance of great masses of tanks, which in turn were followed by the infantry.

Foch Tactics Correct.

An indication of the correctness of Foch's reasoning that this method would give to the attack the advantage of greater surprise was borne out in the Amiens salient by the fact that the soldiers in a tank, coming upon a lone individual, who turned out to be a German general, behind the German lines, trained their machine guns upon him and called upon him to surrender. He was taken into the tank, and then explained that he had heard the bombardment from inside his deep dug-out, and then had noticed that it suddenly stopped. Believing that the attack had been called off, he came out of his retreat, and the next thing he knew he was a prisoner of the tank crew.

The Amiens drive represented the left-hand punch, and the second punch with the right was delivered by the Americans in the St. Mihiel salient in Lorraine, where they drove the Germans before them and wiped out yet another salient.

And now Ludendorff, realizing that he was in difficulties, decided to retire to the Hindenburg line. All hope of an offensive was now over so far as he was concerned, and he must henceforth confine himself to the defensive. He planned to retire his whole force behind the Hindenburg line, leaving the Allies out in the desert of ruined and destroyed villages and towns left behind by the Germans in the wake of their retirement.

Chased Them Closely.

But this did not meet with Foch's plans at all. The Allies' generalissimo, realizing that the enemy reserves had been very considerably used up and that he had now the advantage of the American divisions which had been gradually getting their battle training, kept up the harassing follow up. Haig's men, in the north, with the Canadians, who had been sent back from Picardy, drove at the retreating line, and were successful in smashing through the Drocourt switch, which was the northern extension of the Hindenburg line. Then another drive was made opposite Amiens, and here, also, the British and some of the Canadians galloped right through the Hindenburg line.

Ludendorff by this time was becoming very fearful, and he made his famous plea for an armistice to President Wilson. But, after a while, the Allied drive slowed down. It was difficult to move up provisions and material as fast as the armies went forward, and the advance became less rapid. Ludendorff then began to think that perhaps he had been premature in his appeal, and that there might yet be a chance to avert disaster. But soon the Allies began their hammer blows again. They were growing stronger as the Germans grew weaker, for the Americans were now coming over at the rate of 300,000 a month, a marvelous thing when it was remembered that the British sent altogether to South Africa during the whole Boer War about half a million men, and that this, at that time, was considered a remarkable transportation achievement.

Germans in a Rout.

All along the great battle line now the Allies were advancing, and at the time the armistice was signed on November 11 the Germans had been decisively and very badly beaten in the field. They were in what amounted to a rout at the time that the fighting ceased, although it was true that they afterwards reformed and marched back across the Rhine in good order. It was true also that the people of Germany received them with acclaim, as a victorious army, but it also was undoubtedly true that the demobilized German soldiers had since told the people the truth, and that they now knew that their wonderful military machine had been smashed in actual battle.

In 1917, said Gen. Maurice, the great Allied drive, which sent the Germans reeling back to the Hindenburg line, took three months, and it netted 20,000 prisoners and 220 guns captured. In the drive of 1918 the Germans were driven back from the line of their greatest advance to the Hindenburg line in one month, and the captures were 77,000 prisoners and 760 guns.

Credit to British.

Speaking of the almost unbelievable rapidity with which American troops were transported across the Atlantic, Gen. Maurice said that this was made possible by three things, and three things only. These were, first, the British navy; second, the British mercantile marine; and third, the self-sacrifice of the British people, who had gone short of food in order that ships might be available to carry troops from America. The extent of this self-sacrifice was indicated by the fact, testified to by Gen. Maurice from personal knowledge, that in March last, four months after the signing of the armistice, it was still almost impossible to get butter in London, and quite impossible to get cream, while the fuel shortage was so severe that it was impossible to heat the houses adequately.

"We made a great many mistakes during the war," said the general, "but Napoleon declared that the side which made the fewest mistakes would win, and we made fewer mistakes than the Germans. To tell you of all the mistakes in tactics and strategy made by their generals would take me another hour, but they made a greater mistake than these. They made it first when they tore up the 'scrap of paper,' and again when they sank the Lusitania, and again when they murdered Nurse Cavell; in short, they made the mistake of thinking that might could win against right. But right has triumphed, as it always must."

Showed Hindenburg Line.

Among the pictures shown on the screen were several very interesting ones taken from the air. One of these, taken from a great height, showed a section of the Hindenburg line. The photograph covered a depth of about two and a half miles, and showed a series of trenches, one behind the other, connected by communicating trenches, and each pair of them protected by wide swathes of barbed wire, concreted machine gun emplacements, etc. Gen. Maurice stated that the photograph did not take in all the depth of the line, which actually was seven miles deep. He thought, therefore, that the name "Hindenburg line" was a misnomer, because he always was taught as a boy that a line was that which had length without thickness.

Another pair of photos showed a section of the German front before and after an intense bombardment by the Allied guns. In the first picture the enemy's positions were seen to be an orderly series of trench systems, with the usual barbed wire, etc. In the second the wire and the trenches were simply a ragged mass of debris, just outlines against the general ground, which was so pitted with shell holes that almost no solid ground was left between at all.

Pictures of Canal Works

Still other pictures showed a section of the Canal du Nord, which ran for several miles underground, and which the Germans had dammed at one extremity of the tunnel so that the tunnel itself formed a fine and immense dug-out in which they could rest secure from shell fire; another section of the same canal, which was actually stormed by the British, wearing cork jackets taken from the channel steamers; and a third section, dry but with sheer banks rising many feet, which the Canadians had stormed in their advance.

Miss Blackburn, as president of the Women's Canadian Club, under whose auspices General Maurice came to the city, presided at the meeting, and the distinguished visitor was introduced to the audience by Brig.-Gen. L. W. Shannon, who spoke of him as one of the greatest military strategists and tacticians living. At the close of the general's address Mayor C. R. Somerville moved and John Gunn seconded a motion of thanks to the speaker, to which the audience responded with a salvo of applause which left no doubt as to the appreciation they felt.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Valuable Diet Lists That Every Mother Ought to Have

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG.

DR. HIRSHBERG

Beginning with the second year, the period of infancy ends and childhood makes its first appearance, with its active life and various changes. The digestive structures of the little one are now able to welcome and absorb a variety of solid and half solid food. Teeth have begun to appear in the tiny mouth, and baby is prepared to masticate food. As the child grows older, the articles of food suitable for its digestion multiply, and the simple, uniform, monotonous diet of infancy, which consists of milk only, is now changed to a mixed diet.

Printed or written dietary lists of the kind of food and the regular hours of feeding should be given to every mother to guide her in the care of her children, according to Dr. J. Epstein of New York, who has compiled the following tables:

The diet during childhood may be divided into three periods:
1. Diet during the second year.
2. Diet during the third, fourth and fifth years.
3. Diet during the school years.

The diet during the second year is almost a continuation of the diet of the first year, and should be given with the same care. While milk still forms the basis of the food, protein, sugar, starches and fats are added. Half solid and then solid food may be gradually added to the diet and the feeding should be at four-hour intervals.

Second-Year Menus.

For children during the second year the following is a suitable diet:
1. At 7 o'clock a cup of milk.
2. At 8 o'clock orange juice or the juice from other ripe fruit.

Breakfast at 10 o'clock.
1. A well-cooked cereal, barley, oatmeal, wheatena or farina with a pinch of salt and cream.
2. Buttered toast.
3. A soft-boiled egg.
4. A cup of milk.

Dinner at 2 o'clock.
1. Soup, chicken, mutton or beef broth with a little green vegetable and a boiled or mashed potato.

In the child's second year he is able to digest a larger quantity and a greater variety of food. The child is more active as he grows older, and there is a corresponding increase in metabolism. More food is needed to replace wornout tissues and to supply heat and energy.

It has been found that the active schoolboy needs more food nourishment than the strong street laborer. That is to say, the calorics—heat fuel units—should number between 3,000 and 3,500 per day. The school child's diet should receive special attention.

The diet of the school child must be sufficient, satisfying and not monotonous. Milk is easily digested, and should be furnished with every meal as a drink.

The following is a good general diet for school children:

Breakfast at 7:30.
1. Fruit.
2. A well-cooked cereal with cream.
3. An egg, poached, boiled or omelet.
4. Bread and butter or griddle cakes occasionally.
5. A cup of milk or cocoa.

Dinner at 12:30.
1. Soup with green and white vegetables.
2. Meat, steak, beef, lamb chops, mutton or chicken.
3. Bread and butter.

4. Cooked fruit or plain cake.
5. A cup of milk or buttermilk.

Protein, sugars, starches, fat, salts and water are the principal compounds of which food is composed, and their chemical elements are similar to those of which the body is composed. When food is properly digested and absorbed it replaces tissue waste and supplies heat and energy on which the processes of life depend.

Answers to Health Questions

H. O. E. C. Q.—Kindly advise me what to do for wrinkles.

A.—The substances formed by such glands as the sex organs, adrenal glands and others seem to prevent them. The emotions of worry, nagging, envy, jealousy, suspicion, anxiety and petty malices are associated with overaction of the thyroid, spleen and other glands seem to form wrinkles. Facial massage with a little cocoa butter, corn oil and a happy, cheerful, non-envious disposition, all help to smooth them away.

To-morrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, APRIL 22.

The astrological forecast for this day is of great importance. There promises to be some radical and decisive change bringing those whose nativities are indicated into some prominent public notice or position. Either social or political public prominence are assured, probably both. All the astral indications for the day promise signal success, as well as popularity, pleasure and gain socially. And these advantages will prove to be more than ordinary visitations of the kind, and will doubtless come as suddenly and unexpectedly as the proverbial "bolt from the blue." The presage is rather emphatic in its promise for these abrupt distinctions being thrust upon women—to their great pleasure and advantage. However, they must conduct themselves with circumspection.

Those whose birthday it is are promised a splendid year with some marked social and public prominence. A child born on this day will be adventurous, romantic, original, inventive and popular, and may attain public distinction.

Today's Fashion
By MME. FRANCES

Striking Evening Gown Trimmed with White Lace and Black Velvet.

White lace and black velvet trim this evening gown with striking effect. The bodice, which is simplicity itself, manages to attain great distinction in the sharp contrast of black velvet and ivory white lace. The deep, U-shaped blouse of lace is outlined with a shaped fold of black velvet. The modeste is made of soft folds of cream silk net. Black velvet is repeated on the softly crushed girdle.

MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND
ADELE GARRISON'S NEW PHASE OF REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

Why Lillian Was Laboring Under a Strain.

"Went into Germany in search of Harry!"

I repeated the words incredulously. Of all the queer situations which had resulted from Lillian's tangled life this seemed to me the most bizarre.

My friend's forehead furrowed into a frown, which, however, was evidently involuntarily, for she banished it the next instant.

"Of course, I do not know that finding Harry was his reason," she said, "but I am led to believe it from things he had said and written to me. And then the fact that only a few days after the disappearance of Dicky and Harry behind the lines he got himself transferred to the corps of entertainers with the army of occupation indicated very strongly that he had some idea of the sort in mind."

"Did he write you that he was going into Germany?" I asked.

"No," she returned. "The last letter I received from him was written weeks before that. But"—she hesitated oddly —"I was uneasy—and—from another source I learned that from the moment he heard the report of the disappearance of Dicky and Harry he moved heaven and earth to get a chance to go into Germany."

Troubled Eyes.

The word "uneasy" seemed to linger in my ears. I, too, had a feeling of uneasiness over this queer expedition of Robert Savarin's, for there came to me again—as it had come many times before—the vision of Robert Savarin as I once had seen him, tense, white-lipped, vowing never to forget the indignities which Harry Underwood had made Lillian endure.

I wondered if Lillian suspected the fanatical intensity of this feeling toward her erstwhile husband which the devoted artist possessed. And then, as I remembered the tortured eyes I had seen beneath her volatile mask of the afternoon I realized not only that she must suspect, but that she in all probability had far more knowledge of the artist's mental processes than I.

With troubled eyes I watched her as she paced up and down, her arms hanging loosely at her sides, but her fingers clenched in her palms. I knew that she was consumed with emotions that would have beaten to the ground a weaker woman, but I also knew that the rapid, sinuous pacing was my friend's invariable method of getting herself under control, and I waited silently, patiently until she should of her own volition turn to me.

At last, as her pacing brought her near the cleverly-concealed wall safe in which she kept her most valuable things she suddenly swerved, uncovered and unlocked it, and took from a box within a folded paper. With it in her hand she came back to me and threw it into my lap.

The Answer.

"Read that, Madge," she said tensely, "and you'll understand why I sometimes feel that I cannot bear this suspense which constantly hangs over me."

She seated herself in a chair near me and I saw her lay her hands upon the arms, press her finger-tips fiercely against the polished wood. With my own fingers trembling I opened the sheet of letter paper, a page from the cheap tablets furnished to the soldiers, and read the few words it contained.

"My Dear:

"There is, of course, no appeal from your decision. I bow my head to it, realizing that either you must have been mistaken in what you told me before I came over, or that I misunderstood your meaning. If you had ever really experienced the feeling you professed at that time you could not, even for the sake of your fetich duty, so deny yourself and me now. There is only one service I can render you. From what I have learned the world is not safe for you at present. It never will be safe as long as one condition prevails. To make the world safe for you, my dear, is my one purpose now, but in carrying out that purpose I shall lose my chance of ever seeing you again.
Faithfully,
"ROBERT."

I read the letter twice, laid it in my lap and stared at Lillian.

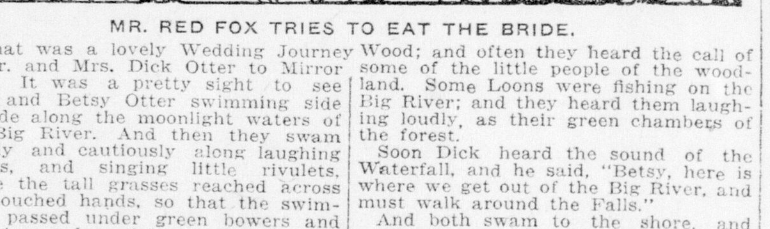

"What do you make of it?" she asked.

"I think his reason has given way again," I returned promptly. "This isn't the letter of a sane man."

"I know," she said wearily. "But he is sane enough to be responsible. Oh, Madge!" she put her hands to her forehead despairingly. "I don't know what to do—where to turn. It is months since I have heard. And with that obsession in Robert's brain—that he must rid me of Harry—how do I know what terrible thing may not have happened out there?"

Betty's knock sounded upon the door. Lillian motioned to me to open it. As I obeyed her I realized that the door bell had rung a minute or two before, but that we had paid no attention to it. The door opened at my touch, revealing Betty's smiling black face, and behind her, almost as white as if he were his own ghost summoned by our conversation, stood Robert Savarin.

MR. RED FOX TRIES TO EAT THE BRIDE.

That was a lovely Wedding Journey of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Otter to Mirror Pond. It was a pretty sight to see Dick and Betsy Otter swimming side by side along the moonlight waters of the Big River. And then they swam rapidly and cautiously along laughing brooks, and singing little rivulets, where the tall grasses reached across and touched hands, so that the swimmers passed under green bowers and flowering arches of fragrant wild flowers.

After swimming through many ponds and winding brooks, they came out to a big river. Now and then they heard a great Horned Owl hoot in the Great Wood; and often they heard the call of some of the little people of the woodland. Some Loons were fishing on the Big River; and they heard them laughing loudly, as their green chambers of the forest.

Soon Dick heard the sound of the Waterfall, and he said, "Betsy, here is where we get out of the Big River, and must walk around the Falls."

And both swam to the shore, and cautiously climbed the moss-carpeted bank to walk around the Falls. They both used their keep noses and ears and eyes, to watch out for cunning foes.

Now Mr. Red Fox is awfully cunning and swift. And Mr. Red Fox loves to eat Otter-meat. He had seen Dick Otter swimming up the Big River on his trip to see the Great World; and he said to himself, "How I would like to catch Dick Otter! I'll watch out for him when he comes back, and I'll hide near the Falls, and I'll grab him, when he is walking on land."

You know Mr. Fox doesn't like to swim, and he knew Dick Otter could whip him in the Big River. Dick Otter was ahead, and Betsy was close behind Dick. And just as Betsy got near a big tree, Mr. Red Fox darted out with a spring and grabbed Betsy to carry her off to his den, to eat her for his breakfast. Betsy gave a sudden scream, "Oh, Dick save me! It is the awful Mr. Red Fox!" And I wish you could have seen the hair rise up on the neck of Dick Otter! Why, he was never so angry before in his life. And he gave an awful growl, and he leaped upon Mr. Red Fox, like a flash of lightning, and when Mr. Red Fox felt the sharp teeth of Dick Otter biting his neck, he let go of Betsy, and pounced upon Dick Otter.

Both swam to the shore, and cautiously climbed the moss-carpeted bank to walk around the Falls.

Tomorrow—Dick Otter Saves Betsy from the Red Fox.

NEW YORK MUSIC TEACHER

Says "Vinol Cures Chronic Coughs."

New York City, 121 Nicholas Avenue. —"I teach piano and singing and when suffering from chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis, I use Vinol, as I find it cures when other remedies fail."—Henry Albers.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such conditions, is because it is a constitutional remedy containing beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates. It strengthens and revitalizes the entire system and assists nature to expel the disease.

MRS. CAIRNS WAS ALMOST IN DESPAIR

Nothing She Did for Her Troubles Helped Her Till She Took Tanlac.

"I had suffered so long without being able to get anything to help me that I was almost in despair," said Mrs. Bessie Cairns of 81 Sherbourne street, Toronto, Ont., recently.

"For five years," she continued, "my stomach was out of order, and I couldn't digest my food properly. I had such a tight feeling in my chest that I could scarcely breathe, and at times the gas would press on my heart so that I felt as if I were smothering. I had attacks of acute indigestion so often that I was afraid to leave the house for fear one of these awful spells might come on me and I felt miserable and wornout all the time.

"My first bottle of Tanlac helped me so much that I kept it up, and now I can eat anything I want without having those terrible smothering spells afterwards. Every sign of indigestion has gone; my nerves are calm and I sleep like a baby. Tanlac has done so much for me that I feel I am only doing right in telling others about it."

Tanlac is sold in London by Standard Drug, Limited, and by an established agency in every town.

COMEDY ABOUNDS ON VAUDEVILLE PROGRAM NOW AT THE GRAND

The headline attraction on the five-act vaudeville program at the Grand today, Tuesday and Wednesday will be Four Jacks and a Queen. A charming young lady, possessed of a sweet singing voice and unusual talents as a comedienne, and four male vocalists, comprise this talented group of entertainers, who will offer under the title of "A Gambol of Class and Harmony," a delightful repertoire of exclusive song selections. Their many solo and harmony numbers are certain to prove a rare treat to all music lovers.

Claire Hansen and the Village Four, a quintet of funmakers who present under the billing title of "Fifteen Minutes of Mirth and Melody," an offering consisting of harmony singing, interspersed with a great deal of hilarious comedy, with jokes and the kind of entertainment which makes one feel they have actually seen a group of real artists, will be another big feature attraction on this bill.

Frank Mason and "Doc" Austin will offer a "Frolic of Comedy and Song" that means nothing but absolute perfect entertainment which any audience will appreciate and enjoy to the limit.

An act that will amuse and entertain most happily is Roberts, Pearl and Straw in "Half a Ton of Fun." The good singing, splendid dancing and ludicrous comedy furnished by this trio is a joy to be remembered by all who witness the act.

Also on this bill will be "Just Polly Prim," a character singing comedienne, whose cleverly selected repertoire and her inimitable mannerisms will be certain to win her a high place in the favor of the audience.

Constance Talmadge in "Sauce for the Goose" at the Grand.

To what length is a woman justified in winning back the love of her husband, when an unscrupulous widow tries to take him from her? This question suggests the basis for "Sauce For the Goose," the latest select picture in which Constance Talmadge is starred and which will be shown at the Grand today, Tuesday and Wednesday. The Grand topical review will complete the bill.

William Faversham and Maxine Elliott At the Grand Next Monday Evening.

The appearance of William Faversham and Maxine Elliott in "Lord and Lady Algy," a comedy in three acts by R. C. Carton, at the Grand next Monday evening at 8:15 promises to break all records at the box office. William Faversham will be seen in his original role of Lord Algernon Chetland, which he acted during the early days of his career with Charles Frohman's Empire Theatre Company. Maxine Elliott appears as Lady Algy, in which her beauty and talents are seen to their best advantage. The supporting company includes Frederick Lloyd, Maud Hosford, Mary Compton, Harvey Hays, Robert Ayrton, Philip Leigh, Erville Alderson, Percy Waram, Emily Fitzroy, Herbert Belmore, Franklyn Fox, Frederick Raymond and other well-known players.

The play has been produced under the personal direction of William Faversham, who is one of the few actor-managers on the stage today. Algy is one of his most successful roles. Miss Elliott is said to be more beautiful than ever, and as Lady Algy to have established herself as the premiere drawing-room comedienne of the English-speaking stage.

"The Better 'Ole" Coming to the Grand Next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The rapidity with which the popularity of "The Better 'Ole," the comedy with music which will be seen at the Grand next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 8:15 and Wednesday matinee at 2:30, swept through New York city following its first performance last October at the Greenwich Village Theatre, was noticeable on all sides, where "Ullo," the familiar exclamation of "Old Bill," the leading character of the play, has become a catchword. Captain Bruce Bairnsfather and Captain Arthur Elliot wrote "The Better 'Ole," basing it upon three of the Bairnsfather characters found in his "Fragments From France." Mr. and Mrs. Coburn produced it at the little theatre down in the village, but so great was the demand for seats, they were compelled to move it up town on Broadway, where at the Cort Theatre crowds are being turned away nightly. Four other companies have been formed and are now playing in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and on tour in Canada. The special Boston company is to appear here.

"I guess that will do"
BILLIE BURKE in "Good Gracious, Annabelle"
A Paramount Picture

At the Majestic Theatre today and Tuesday. The story of "Good Gracious, Annabelle!" narrates the adventures of a young girl whose life is linked by fate with that of a hermit miner who steps from poverty to riches over night. It is one of great attractiveness and affords Miss Burke an unexampled opportunity for the display of her talent as a comedienne. The story was written by Clare Kummer, author of a play of the same name, which created a sensation in New York during the theatrical season of 1917-18. Herbert Rawlinson is her leading man.

EVELYN NESBIT DIRECTION WILLIAM FOX

At the Patricia Theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday; also Charlie Chaplin in "The Bank," and Carlisle and Romer, "Sweet Singers of Maine" in vaudeville.

A big attraction will be Grace Carlisle and Jules Romer in an artistic classic, "Just a Song at Twilight." The act has a pretty and effective setting, and Miss Carlisle and Mr. Romer have displayed splendid judgment in the numbers that make up their program, using those that are popular to all, high class, and not ragtime. Miss Carlisle is a charming and a beautiful young woman, and Mr. Romer a wonderful violinist, and their act has a quality and a mellow charm that differentiates it from any other seen here this season. At the Patricia today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

BILLIE BURKE AT MAJESTIC THEATRE TODAY AND TUESDAY

Popular Star Appearing on Big Double Program.

When a 16-year-old girl is kidnapped by a man she neither knows nor cares for and is forced to marry him and thereafter leaves her husband without even knowing his name, it is to be expected that interesting developments will occur. This is amply proved the story of "Good Gracious, Annabelle!" in which Billie Burke, the dainty Paramount tar, will appear at the Majestic Theatre today and Tuesday.

This picture story is one of the best in which Miss Burke has been seen since her entrance into the silent drama. It is a picturization of the eminently successful play written by Clare Kummer, a young playwright of New York, and it was produced at the Republic Theatre, New York City October 31, 1917, with gratifying results, to the author and theatre management.
