MONTREAL, Nov. 24.—Frank admissions that he did not know even the rudiments of navigation, that whistle signals from a steamer were a dense mystery to him, that he did not know what range or leading lights were and that he could not neither read nor write, were made by John Bennett, mate and only survivor of the Schooner Annie Roberts before the wreck Commission court today during the inquiry into the sinking of the schooner on October 22, off North Sydney as a result of a collision with the Dominion Coal Steamer Wabami. IN CHURCHES SUNDAY

Many Inspiring Services Held Throughout the City Yesterday—Helpful Sermons, Good Singing

WELLINGTON STREET.

Yesterday was Missionary Anniversary at Wellington Street Methodist church. The preacher was Rev. J. B. Fitzpatrick of Norfolk Street church, Guelph. His morning sermon was entitled "The Open Door," and it proved to be a very forceful missionary address. The evening sermon on "Agrippa" was excellent. Good audiences were present. Mr. Fitzpatrick will surely be a welcome visitor to our city at any time. The Brotherhood, Class, Junior League and Sunday School had very successful meetings. The choir music at the services was fine. Misses Mabel Limburg and Alice Bloxham did good solo work in the evening anthem, "Hear My Cry, O Lord," by Rodney, Mr. Elmer Haines of St. Mary's, was the morning soloist. His rendition of "Allison's" "The Lord is My Light" was all that could be desired. Misses Olive Graham and Rae Kerr gave a splendid duet. Mr. Charles Darwin sang, "I Come to Thee" ("Caro Roma"), in his usual pleasing manner at the evening service.

ALEXANDRA PRESBYTERIAN.

In view of the approaching evangelistic services to be held in the Alexandra Presbyterian church, the 1st of December, the Rev. D. T. McClintock preached on evangelism at both services yesterday, the morning theme being "The agencies used for evangelism." The evening subject was "The Congregation as an instrument for evangelism." The music during the day was especially pleasing which included a duet and chorus, "Go Home and Tell," by the Misses Waldron and Heath and choir solo "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling," by Mr. W. T. Cullen. In the splendid anthem by the choir, "Hark, Hark My Soul," the solo was sung by Miss Josephine Waldron, and the obligato solo by Mrs. Barton. The congregation singing was very hearty.

SYDENHAM STREET.

Yesterday was Connexional Day in Sydenham Street church and to say that they were successful is putting it rather mildly. The church board asked for $150 to be devoted to all the connexional funds of the church except missionary purposes, and the congregation responded with over $180. Mr. George Wedlake was the speaker in the morning and in his impressive and enthusiastic way told of how the Methodist church was perhaps the greatest connexional

Y. W. C. A. Literary

One of the most interesting meetings of the Literary Club yet held took place Saturday at the Y. W. C. A., when the afternoon was spent with the "Dwellers of the Forest Primeval." After the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. G. D. Watt, the roll call was answered with quotations from Canadian authors. Mrs. Henry Yeigh gave a very bright paper dealing with the current events of the day. "Indian Legends" was dealt with in a very clever manner by Miss Anna Harold on "Indian Oratory" displayed a fine grasp of the subject and was listened to with much interest. A very enjoyable feature of the programme was the solo by Miss E. Senn which was rendered in good voice. At the close of the meeting tea was served by Mesdames Sutherland, Harris and Cockshutt. The Club members are looking forward to their next meeting on Dec. 6, when Mrs. Scott-Rail of Toronto will again meet with the club and will give her second of a series of interpretations on Browning's, "The Ring and the Book," dealing with the character of Guido. The public are welcomed at these meetings. Course tickets can be secured from the secretary for the remaining lectures.

Because they contain mercury and mineral salts, many pills are harsh. The easiest and safest laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. They clean the stomach, intestines and bowels—drive out waste matter, tone the kidneys and forever cure constipation. As a general tonic and system cleanser nothing is so mild and efficient as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Sold everywhere in 25 cent boxes.

SIBERIA SCENE OF MANY SUICIDES

Europe is Becoming Stirred Up Over Atrocities in Russia.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—The sufferings from hunger, disease and ill-treatment of Russian political prisoners and exiles are set forth in an appeal in their behalf published in many European newspapers to-day over the signatures of several hundred prominent men and women of England, France, Germany and other countries. An epidemic of suicide is said to prevail among the banished political offenders, who, it is stated in the appeal, regard this as their only means of salvation.

The signatories of the appeal propose forming a committee to collect and publish the facts.

REFUSES TO PAY TAXES

Sir E. Carson at Mass Meeting of Ulster Business Men.

At a meeting of 5,000 business men at Ulster Hall, Belfast, on Tuesday, Sir E. Carson asked for a Government order towards a settlement in black and white. It was officially stated that the capital represented at the meeting amounted to £144,000,000.

Two resolutions were brought forward. The first moved by Mr. J.H. Sterling, a flax manufacturer, was that all business men should hold back payment of such taxes as they could control so long as any attempt was made to put Home Rule into operation. They would not supply the funds to be used in coercing them into submission.

The resolution was supported by Mr. C. E. Allan, of Workman and Clark, the shipbuilders, and adopted. The second resolution, moved by Mr. J. Milne Barbour, a linen thread manufacturer, expressed "cordial sympathy with the measures taken for the defense of our interests, including the formation of the volunteer force," and was adopted.

When Mr. Sterling declared, whatever the settlement of this question might be, one thing it must never be, and that was establishing a Parliament in College Green over

Ulster, the entire audience stood up and cheered this statement for five minutes. Sir Edward Carson said the demonstration gave the lie to those who declared that Carism was waning. In America and the Colonies their opponents had been saying:—

"It is all very well for these working classes and artisans to be going on with their drilling and their volunteers, and all the rest of the buffoonery; but when the business men find that their interests are likely to be effected they will soon step in and put an end to it all."

"Well, to-day," he exclaimed, "they get their answer—that the business men of Ulster believe that there are interests greater than the interests of their pockets, and are prepared, just as the democracy are, to make any sacrifice to make sure that these interests are to the end protected."

There is a great deal being said at the present moment about compromise and settlement. So far as you are concerned, I say to you, go straight on. We know what civil commotion and resistance to the law means and we don't look at it as child's play. "But so far as compromise or settlement is concerned I will be no party to allowing Ulster to be made a pawn in a political game. I know nothing about tactics; we want straight dealing. There is no game in it. There are no politics in it. We are not children, and we are not fools, and they must deal with us as men, and honest men, not as knaves."

SPLENDID WORK

All concerned deserve to be heartily congratulated upon the splendid result of a two weeks canvas to add new members to the Borden Club.

They had to have 'em and they got 'em, and there you have the whole story in a nutshell.

And not alone is there the credit due to the individual hustlers, but in addition the claims and the advantages of the institution, naturally made a very strong appeal to those approached.

The quarters are well situated and commodious, with many diversions for the passing of a pleasant evening and the opportunity of good and concerted comradeship on behalf of the great Conservative cause.

The Club bears the name of a great, fearless and broad-minded statesman, and it can ask for no bigger future than to emulate his tenets and uprightness of purpose.

OTTAWA'S EXPERIENCE

The story in connection with Hydro Electric, is one of continuing pride and pleasure.

As a matter of course, it is not to be expected that the standard of management, or of opportunities, can be the same in every municipality, but it is most clear that the basic principle of the whole undertaking is on a sound foundation, and that Hon. Adam Beck and his associates have builded even better than they knew.

Here is the latest from Ottawa, as given by the Free Press, the Liberal paper at the Capital:—

"The further reduction of electric rates in Ottawa predicted by the Free Press and officially announced to-day by the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, will be of far-reaching effect. Electricity at the new rate, 2.1-4 cents net per kilowatt competes with gas for cooking purposes.

Both the Ottawa Gas Company and the Ottawa Electric Company

sion of my last visit four years ago, the wheat production of Canada was only about one-half of what it is to-day. And we are now looking forward to Canada producing wheat possibly for the people of the United States, but certainly the greater part of the wheat we ourselves need in the Mother Country.

"I think the amount of capital we have provided for railway construction in the agricultural countries of the world is £2,000,000,000, a very great sum, but it is upon the supply of food that the prosperity of the Mother Country depends, and it is of the greatest importance that we should supply capital for the development of Canada, Argentina, Brazil—indeed, of all countries, I would say, even of the United States, for the purpose of insuring ourselves the food and raw material we need. The fact that the United States sells to Canada so great a quantity of goods is in part due to the fact that the British capital flows so freely into Canada. Briefly expressed, the position in the United Kingdom is as follows: We supply the capital, America in large measure supplies the goods, and Canada obtains the advantage.

"During the last two years, Canada has made unexampled progress, but I think the progress is small in comparison with the progress Canada is going to make in the future. Perhaps for a few years it may be necessary for Canada to go rather slow, but that will prove to be only a period of recuperation and of preparation for a much greater advance in the future."

BULLETINS FOR THE FARM.

Of late years conditions on the average farm have been greatly improved.

The telephone has done very much to remove a certain amount of isolation in many districts, Hydro-Electric, Beck's new "hired man," is in this province a rapidly approaching convenience, and now it is announced that Mr. Stupart, Director of the Dominion Meteorological Service, has devised a plan for a system of weather bulletins for agriculture.

It was this project which largely engaged his energies on his recent mission to Europe, and he conferred with many of the Old World's best meteorologists in the working out of all the details.

He gets his legs inside the trough and sips the sparkling slop, and t'other hogs must root him off if they would get a drop. And when he's riding in a car, two seats he'll occupy and smoke a black and rank cigar, while women gasp and cry. In mud-holes he's inclined to doze, when there's no grub about; a ring is fastened through his nose, so he can't funnel out. And when he drives abroad by day, in auto car or siah, all folks to give him right of way must drive into the ditch. Oh, whether he is in a pen, with garbage heaps to chew, or in the busy haunts of men, the hog's a hog all through. You see him fighting for the slop amid the barnyard gloom; you see him in the barber shop, in public reading room; you find him in the synagogue and in the tavern fine; the hog is evermore a hog, when he is not a swine.

"The further reduction of electric rates in Ottawa predicted by the Free Press and official announced to-day by the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission will be of far-reaching effect. Electricity at the new rate, 2.4 cents per kilowatt compares with gas for cooking purposes.

Both the Ottawa Gas Company and the Ottawa Electric Company will have no choice but to reduce their rates for gas and electric current. The success of the Ottawa municipal electric plant fits both.

The reduction of the electric rates in Ottawa by the commission a year ago which was promptly followed by the company apply only to domestic consumers. The additional 15 per cent, discount which goes into effect next January 1 to apply to both domestic and commercial lighting. The Free Press has several times urged that the commercial users of electric light were entitled to some consideration. They now get it.

The reduction of 18 per cent in the price of power authorized by the Hydro Electric is a big cut. As has been said, these reductions are important because they will automatically go into effect not only in the municipal plant but in the still greater business of the company. It is announced that despite last year's cut in rates the Ottawa municipal plant has this year a surplus of 26 per cent, after allowing for interest and sinking funds. From this one gets an idea of the profits that public service corporations in growing cities are able to make."

And pretty soon now, Brantford citizens will realize how much they can bless the day upon which they threw off the burden of a private monopoly.

BRITISH INVESTMENTS IN CANADA

Canada for a long time to come will have to depend upon foreign capital, almost entirely upon British capital, for the major portion of the capital supplied to Canada comes from the United Kingdom. So said Sir Geo. Paish in an address to the Canadian Club in New York, "I was delighted to hear Mr. Foster (the acting Premier of Canada), say that the United States had provided £20,000,000 for the development of Canada," he continued. "You will, I am sure, be interested to know that the Mother Country, of which you are all so proud, has provided Canada with a sum of considerably over £400,000,000."

"You all know that the Mother Country has supplied almost the entire capital needed for construction of the railways of Canada, and that the prosperity of Canada has resulted mainly from the construction of these railways. The opening up of those vast lands in the West, and the cultivation of that vast wheat area, are bringing to Canada an amount of wealth difficult to calculate. I remember when I was here on the occasion of my last visit four years ago, the wheat production of Canada was only about one-half of what it is today. And we are now looking forward to Canada producing wheat possibly for the people of the United States, but certainly the greater part of the wheat we ourselves need in the Mother Country."

"I think the amount of capital we have provided for railway construction in the agricultural countries of the world is £2,000,000,000, a very great sum, but it is upon the supply of food that the prosperity of the Mother Country depends, and it is of the greatest importance that we should supply capital for the development of Canada, Argentina, Brazil—indeed, of all countries, I would say, even of the United States, for the purpose of insuring ourselves the food and raw material we need. It was this project which largely engaged his energies on his recent mission to Europe, and he conferred with many of the Old World's best meteorologists in the working out of all the details.

In an agricultural country like Canada, it is believed, that it will be of inestimable value to have a branch of the meteorological service devoted solely to the assistance of the agriculturist on lines which have not heretofore been attempted upon this continent; and the officials are confident that it will work out well.

It is understood that the entire project has been approved at Ottawa and that the complete details will shortly be enumerated.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Always a live one, the Borden club has now entered upon a still greater era of prosperity.

The plain duty of the Christmas shopper is to do the same as early as possible.

Among the sad words of tongue and of pen.

Is the price of fruit dropped by the industrious hen.

Sylvia Pankhurst has been reviewing her army which contains several unmarried women like herself. Thought Mars constituted the symbol of war?

Sugar is the only article which has not risen in price during the last twenty-three years. But this fact won't be enough to sweeten the cost of the other high priced commodities.

The two Booths are to have a meeting in New York. As for the residents of Middlesex, with three bye-elections in a few months, they have been having booth meetings almost continually.

Letters at the rate of two hundred a day have been received at the White House with requests for a piece of Miss Wilson's wedding cake. Certain people apparently think that the confection will be about the size of the Capitol buildings.

Hetty Green, the richest woman in the world, recently celebrated her seventy-eighth anniversary by working hard at her desk all day. Asked for a recipe in order to live long, she replied: "Eat onions regularly, fear God, do right with everybody and get one hundred cents out of every dollar you handle." Probably the onions are used to strengthen her remarks.

AN APPEAL TO ALL THE FATHERS

Rev. Holling Delivered Plain Spoken and Timely Sermon.

Rev. T. E. Holling, pastor of Colborne Street Methodist Church, during an able sermon preached last night at the church on "The Prodigal Fathers," declared that clubs were in a class with the bar-room, and that clubs and bars should go.

Although sermons dealing with "The Prodigal Father" were not common, it was nevertheless a timely subject. Every minister had a sermon on "The Prodigal Son." In this connection he stated that he believed the idea of the prodigal son in leaving home was to enter upon a larger field, but like many other men, he had been led astray.

The pastor took occasion to state that what was worse than a prodigal father—if there was anything worse—was a prodigal mother. When the prodigal father looks into the face of his first-born, it was a veritable message to him to turn over a new leaf.

The home in which the father reigns in priest-like power was endorsed by the speaker, not in the sense of tyranny, but as referred to the proper bringing up of the family. Family worship was going out of fashion, but the pastor enthusiastically endorsed this form of worship.

Probably the father could not leave behind him earthly endowments, but he could lead the family in the Christian faith, and thus leave behind something of infinite more value. Napoleon had said what was wanted was not mothers, but fathers.

The pastor heartily endorsed the observance of Fathers' Day. When a young man was being ordained to the ministry, he most frequently attributed the step to the influence of a mother, but the pastor was of the opinion that fathers had something to do with it.

Rev. Mr. Holling stated that many boys do not know their father. If the father can be a chum to his boy he does much to command respect and admiration. There were two plans when a man should be absolutely true. They were at the ballot-box and in marriage. Should the man not be true at these places disaster followed.

The toll financially from the social evil and drink traffic was as nothing compared with the toll visited upon the children. The sins of the fathers are visited upon the children. In his closing remarks he urged for the redemption of the wayward father.

Prayers Offered. At the morning service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church prayer was offered in connection with the sad loss of Nurse Tait, a former member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Railway Work. A Galt despatch says: "Work on the Lake Erie & Northern Railway is steadily going on and about three hundred men are engaged at this end of the line working on the roadbed. During the winter the rock excavating in town will be done. At Irving's farm, two miles below Glenora, the contractors have large gravel pits to supply the ballasting and three or four steam shovels are at work. The weather this fall has been unequalled in years, and it has been common for berry bushes to bear a second crop, but now it is noticeable that some of the trees are coming out in spring again and yesterday a farmer near Brantford found on his farm an elderberry bush in bloom."

DYNAMITE STICKS ON PITTSBURG STREETS

Many Motorists Have Been Daily Flirting With Death.

[Canadian Press Despatch] PITTSBURG, Nov. 23.—The police let it be known to-day that for three weeks automobilists have been flirting with death as they drove along Grant boulevard, the favorite motor track between the fashionable east end district and down town Pittsburgh.

During that time they have collected 120 sticks of dynamite apparently scattered systematically along the road. Late yesterday they located another lot in the boulevard and arrested Herman Leidman, alleging he knew something of the robbery of a contractor's magazine from which they declare the dynamite was stolen.

PHILOSOPHICAL PHELIX AND THE WEATHER

This was a just sentence pronounced by a just judge and could not be annulled. God in his wisdom however, has provided a way by which mankind could be liberated from that sentence or curse, namely by Jesus' sacrificial death, paying Adam's penalty for him. The prophet Isaiah, speaking of this said: "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed." This being true, Adam and his race should be liberated from the penalty imposed upon them; and so the Scriptures declare that all that are in the great prison house of death, the tomb, shall hear the voice of the Son of Man, and shall come forth during the judgment-day for a new trial.

Pastor Whelpton emphasized the fact that some are on trial now to test their faith under condemnation. Jesus declared: "If any man hear my words and believe not, I judge him not; for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. The words that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." The judgment day.

The lecturer concluded by reminding his hearers of the Palmists poetic description of the judgment day where he calls upon everything in heaven and earth to rejoice because the Lord was to judge the world of mankind with equity and truth.

At the close of the lecture it was announced that while Pastor Ross had declined on Thursday evening to accept the challenge to debate a Hamiltonian paper on Friday said that he had accepted. The Bible Students have appointed a committee to deal with the matter. They will find what stand Mr. Ross takes. If he declines to debate, they will take up the challenge issued by those who arranged last Thursday's meeting.

RHEUMATISM FOR THIRTY-FOUR YEARS

Cured by Two Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Quebec Man Tells How He Found Quick Relief and Permanent Cure When He Got to the Root of the Disease.

ST. FAUSTIN STATION, Que., Nov. 24—(Special)—I suffered from rheumatism for thirty-four years. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me. This is the statement of Joseph Boileau, Charrier of this place, and his neighbors are satisfied that the statement is a true one.

Pressed for further details of his cure Mr. Charrier said: "I had rheumatism, sciatica, and pains in my back. My memory was failing, and I was always tired and nervous. I perspired freely with the least exertion, and my perspiration had an unpleasant odor."

"I was also troubled with heart palpitations, my limbs were heavy, and I had a dragging sensation across the loins."

"These symptoms tell just why Dodd's Kidney Pills cured my Charrier so quickly and completely. They are, every one of them symptoms of kidney disease failing to remove the uric acid from the blood and the rheumatism disappeared."

THE WORLD IS NOW ON TRIAL

"Judgment Day" Subject of Lecture in Victoria Hall Sunday Afternoon.

The world's great judgment day was the subject of a stirring lecture by Pastor Whelpton in Victoria Hall yesterday afternoon. The audience gave close attention and all were impressed with the speaker's kindly manner and fairness, and with the logical manner in which he presented his subject.

The speaker said that many had experienced difficulty with this topic by confining it to a twenty-four hour day. He reminded his hearers of such expressions as "Luther's day," "Washington's Day," also such scriptural expressions as "the day of temptation in the wilderness." All Bible students knew this to be a period of forty years. St. Peter, in describing the judgment day declares that it will be one thousand years long.

A judgment implies a trial followed by a verdict. Adam had a judgment day. He failed and a verdict or penalty of death was passed upon him which has been shared by all his posterity. "By the offence of one, judgment came upon all men to condemnation."

This was a just sentence pronounced by a just judge and could not be annulled. God in his wisdom however, has provided a way by which mankind could be liberated from that sentence or curse, namely by Jesus' sacrificial death, paying Adam's penalty for him. The prophet Isaiah, speaking of this said: "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed." This being true, Adam and his race should be liberated from the penalty imposed upon them; and so the Scriptures declare that all that are in the great prison house of death, the tomb, shall hear the voice of the Son of Man, and shall come forth during the judgment-day for a new trial.

"The Exhibitions" At Dublin Castle

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press Despatch) Five or six enthusiastic spectators at Cardiff Sunday afternoon, addressing a large meeting, he denounced the low wages of many shop assistants. Speaking of Dublin as the richest town in Britain, he said that they had at Head Castle a clique, Earl Aberdeen and his good lady, who got $25,000 a year. Their only function, he felt, as he could gather was in calling meetings and having exhibitions. At the exhibitions they had lecturers who were paid five and ten guineas to show how to feed a family of seven on eight shillings and sixpence a week.

Our Dream Busted. The "Dream Maiden" Company, playing at the Grand Opera House here on Saturday, broke up yesterday when the 45 members of the troupe returned to New York. The opera house management insisted upon the proceeds of the performance here being divided among the stranded company, and when their fares to New York had been deducted there was $250 each for them. It is said the management of the troupe have lost $1,000 on their venture this season, business everywhere having been poor. No salaries had been paid the players for two weeks.—London Free Press.

It Was a Rescue. Two large dry horses becoming suddenly startled this morning, might have done some damage but for the prompt action of two citizens. At 11 o'clock a large empty wagon with two horses attached was standing behind the new post office, when becoming alarmed at some moving object they rushed through a small lane and looked likely to charge into the telephone office at a terrific speed. However they veered round into Queen street, and in the mean time the reins had been pulled taut by a youth and a man managed to secure a grip on the bridle, and the powerful snorting animals were brought to a standstill, with little or no damage done, and the driver still buried deep in his business transactions in the building under construction.

It Was a Rescue. Two large dry horses becoming suddenly startled this morning, might have done some damage but for the prompt action of two citizens. At 11 o'clock a large empty wagon with two horses attached was standing behind the new post office, when becoming alarmed at some moving object they rushed through a small lane and looked likely to charge into the telephone office at a terrific speed. However they veered round into Queen street, and in the mean time the reins had been pulled taut by a youth and a man managed to secure a grip on the bridle, and the powerful snorting animals were brought to a standstill, with little or no damage done, and the driver still buried deep in his business transactions in the building under construction.

LARKIN A BIG FORCE IN BRITISH POLITICS

Dublin Transport Worker's Leaders is Discribed as the Man of the Day in Great Britain.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Jim Larkin, the man of the day, tens of thousands listened to his fiery and rude eloquence in Albert Hall and other large buildings incapable of accommodating the would-be audiences last week and hundreds of thousands more read the newspaper reports of his speeches. A labor paper which has long been found its circulation going up with such leaps and bounds that its affairs have been mentioned in one week from the verge of bankruptcy to comparative affluence. Orators which generally make an appeal to the conservative class have been found speaking of Larkin in terms of high praise. "He is the man of the day and the man of the future," said the London Times, and the dock laborer has been hailed as the idealist and the hero of the high ideal and the high idealist.

Speaks a Strange Dialect "Whether we like it or not," says the London paper, "James Larkin is the man with whom we have to reckon. He drops his 'his' and uses 'his' language. He talks a strange dialect, half Lankashire, half Irish, and all his own, a crude, unlettered dock laborer in fact, but you cannot deny to him without being conscious of unusual force. CANADA TIED DOWN ON NAVAL QUESTION

Being in Arrears Would Not Feel at Home in Naval Conference.

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—The sessional programme so far as it has been considered to date does not include the announcement of a permanent naval policy by the Government.

This does not necessarily preclude the introduction of legislation embodying the temporary policy of the Borden Government.

The situation with regard to this may be governed by the continued existence of the partisan Laurier anti-British majority in the Senate, by reason of which the hands of the Canadian people and their representatives in Parliament have been tied. The same situation is likely to govern the course of the Dominion with regard to the project for holding an Imperial defence conference in England during the coming year. Certain public men in the United Kingdom have been advocating the holding of such a conference, and the proposal has met with much approval in Australia and New Zealand. The position is that Australia and New Zealand have done something in the matter of Imperial navy defence and that Canada is in arrears, and will continue to remain in arrears so long as the bitterly exasperated Sir Wilfrid Laurier retains his control of the non-representative branch of the Legislature.

Canada Delinquent. Canada would have to go into such a conference not only with empty hands, but with a clear and definite preliminary programme, unfulfilled through the action of the Laurier Senate.

At the Naval Defence Conference of 1909 the Admiralty made the proposition that Canada, Australia and New Zealand each should build or help to build a fleet unit headed by a battle cruiser, which should be stationed on the Pacific. Australia and New Zealand each agreed, and Canada, as represented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, refused. As is well known, the Canadian Liberal Government, instead of accepting the scheme, which was good enough for the other dominions, devised a hopelessly ineffective plan, and then did not carry that plan out.

If the Laurier Government had the sincerity to go ahead with its own proposals, the incoming Government would have had enough for the other dominions. Instead, it had the Niobe gingerly emerging from drydock and the Rainbow earning scornful nicknames on the Pacific coast coast.

In other words, thanks to the attitude of the Liberal party's cowardice when in power and disloyalty when out of power, Canada could not go into a naval defence conference with even a tin pot navy to show. In the circumstances it is felt that Canada's straight duty must be to catch up with arrears. That can be done by building three battleships, for which the Admiralty asked and which the Government has undertaken to furnish. When that has been accomplished, the way will be clear for the enunciation of a permanent policy and for the holding of a conference would be advantageous.

Indignant Wife. One question called forth the remark from Mrs. Barrett: "It is not I who am raking up all this; I am ashamed of you."

In answer to Mrs. Rawlinson, Mrs. Barrett said that shortly after the marriage she surprised her husband and a girl named Vernon, from one of the theatres, in a flat where they were then living. Afterwards the girl confessed to misconduct with Mr. Barrett.

"At the time," Mrs. Barrette said, "the girl was wearing a brooch which was a wedding present to me, and had been taken from me by my husband and given to the girl." Mr. Barrett denied having at any time been guilty of impropriety since the Colchester affair in 1903, which was condoned. The Chelsea story was unfounded.

The judge asked if Mr. Barrett was prepared to give his wife anything to live on, and he replied that he was. He found that she was leading a moral life. He was prepared to give her £1 a week, and increase it later if he could.

Sir S. Evans said that the Colchester incident was condoned by the wife, and the Chelsea episode was not sufficiently corroborated for him to act upon it. The result was that, though the intervention of the King's Proctor was in his opinion quite justified, the court would exercise its discretion in favor of the husband on the condition that he agreed to pay to his former wife £4 per month while she remained chaste and unmarried.

TRAPPER'S FAMILY IN HORRIBLE DEATH

Woman Starts Out in Search for Food and Died in Storm on Trail.

PEMBROKE, Ont., Nov. 24.—Conflicting stories of what at best must be a horrible tragedy have reached here regarding the death of Mrs. D. Pilon, on the Upper Ottawa near Des Joachines, and the disappearance of her two children.

It seems that Pilon, who is a trapper, left his home a couple of weeks ago, informing his wife that he was going to Des Joachines. Not returning when expected, the woman is believed to have started out in search of him, or to procure food for her family. When he reached home he found the family had left, and then set out in a search for them.

Mrs. Pilon's body was found on a trail leading from Wolvener Creek, about ten miles from her home. She had evidently died from exhaustion following the great storm of the previous night. It is also reported that the body of one of the children has been found.

Mrs. Pilon was in a poor state of health for such an experience, and it is believed that the horror of the situation during Sunday night's storm deranged her mind.

Priest Condemns Attitude Of Separate School Board

Teaching of French in the English Primary Schools He Regards as a Quixotic Idea.

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—Rev. Father O'Gorman, who recently took the Ottawa Separate School board to task for their attitude toward the Ontario Department again opposed the idea of teaching French in the English Separate Primary schools in the course of a sermon to his parishioners in the Roman Catholic Church of the Blessed Sacrament yesterday morning. Referring to his stand on the school question, he said that the teaching of French in the primary schools was a pedagogical and national not a religious question. He opposed the Quixotic idea of teaching French in the English Separate schools. There were many useful things that could not be taught in the primary school. He was fully aware of the advantage of knowing French, as he had studied it for years, and had the honor of being a graduate of the Catholic University of "Militant Catholicism" of Paris.

GOLD BY THE TON RECEIVED BY BANK

Two Million Dollars' Worth From London and New York.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24.—Approximately four and one-half tons of gold—two million dollars' worth in all—arrived at the Royal Bank here on Saturday from London and New York.

The London shipment was the second consignment of bullion to come direct from London to Canada via Canadian line. The first was made in 1906 in the maiden trip of the Empress of Britain, the same steamer which brought over yesterday's shipment.

On the morning train from New York arrived one million dollars in American coin. Meanwhile the Empress arrived in Quebec, and the second million from London was rushed to the boat special, and in special car, guarded by "gunmen," reached Montreal at 4:30 p.m.

Outside the bank, as the bullion was being unloaded and taken to the vaults, men with Winchester's stood ready as silent guardians over the coveted gold.

James Larkin, leader of the Dublin transport workers, has issued a manifesto to the workers of Britain.

"NO RENT" CAMPAIGN OF THE MILITANTS

Further Details of the Socialistic Campaign and the Organization of the "People's Party."

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Sylvia Pankhurst branched out in a new direction during the past week when she initiated in the east end of London a frankly Socialist campaign, whereof the chief feature is to pay no rent.

"Get ready for a rent strike," declared Sylvia at a crowded meeting at Cannoning Town. Everything else, she said, had been tried; petitions, tremendous meetings, window smashing, and burning houses, but more must be done. They must train the people as an army, and must devise a way in which everyone could fight, including people not strong enough to take part in the army's work. They would wait till quite ready and then all at once all over the east end of London there would be a rent strike, and no rent would be paid until the vote was given to women. They would pay no arrears of rent after the strike was over, so it would be to the interest of the landlords to hurry it to an end. They need not fear the brokers' men. What could brokers' men do against 5,000 or even 1,000 strikers. And if the poor law was refused to the strikers they must just throw themselves into the workhouses, which could never hold all.

The police, as stated in previous despatches, in recording the new movement, have not sought to arrest Sylvia, who is still at liberty, though her "cat and mouse" license expired four weeks ago. The mystery of Scotland Yard's apparent inefficiency is cleared up in a statement that the detectives were cautioned by headquarters not to run the risk of getting into a fight with the armed bodyguard nicknamed "Sylvia's east end army." That the so-called army is no myth was admitted by a Scotland Yard official who, however, said there was no ground for taking much stock in done. They must train the people as an army, and must devise a way in which everyone could fight, including people not strong enough to take part in the army's work. They would wait till quite ready and then all at once all over the east end of London there would be a rent strike, and no rent would be paid until the vote was given to women. in the English press, has published an article in which it said: "The forces of Larkin are released and the ideas he represents are independent of him. He is only the match that fires the train. By the light of his conflagration we may see the realities behind the falsities of home rule. The political platform echoes with the sectarian issues of Orange lodges drilling in the north and the Ancient Order of Hibernians organizing in the south, and all the rusty weapons of the seventeenth century are being resurrected to keep alive this hateful feud. Then comes this uncount figure from the ranks with his plague on both your houses and reveals that behind these threadbare controversies of the past there is a latent force in Ireland that will dominate the politics of the Home Rule Parliament and submerge the sectarian issue."

WILL NOT SELL KENDALL.
Wanderers' Management Decline to Let Ottawa Have Player.
OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—Manager Lescuyer, of the Ottawa Hockey Club, announced that President Litchhein of the Wanderers, had refused to sanction a deal for Carl Kendall, whom he recently acquired from the British Columbia League.

The Ottawa was anxious to purchase Kendall for their forward line, and offered a big cash consideration to which Litchhein replied that he was seeking players, not money, which he will make if he lands a winning team. He says that Kendall, who wishes to remain in Ottawa, will play with Wanderers or not at all. The Ottawa was reported to be after Frank Hefferman, the former Ottawa College player, who figured last season on the defence of the Toronto Rowing and Athletic Club. The other clubs are also known to have sent their scouts to look up Hefferman.

Suspensions may follow Frank Ahearn's statement that he was forced out of amateur hockey because he could not remain and continue an honest sport.

The Ottawa section of the Inter-provincial meets on Thursday, and the matter will be thoroughly sifted. Some of the best known footballers and hockeyists may be affected.

MR. SMITH AT STRATFORD.
Mr. F. E. Smith, M.P., in a speech at Stratford, said that the people of England were asked to sanction the employment of their army to shoot down the men under the Union Jack at the bidding of the men who pulled down the Union Jack.

Was there one single man who was convinced that the Liberal party really believed in Home Rule? The Liberal Party had never touched Home Rule with a barge pole—(laughter)—except when they could not keep in office without the assistance of the Irish vote.

HARVARD TEAM BEAT OLD RIVALS

Yale Was Outplayed at All Points by a Better Eleven.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 24.—The Harvard football team of 1913, with fullback Charles E. Brickley playing the stellar role, established a new epoch in Crimson gridiron history Saturday by defeating Yale, for the first time in the Stadium, by the score of 15 to 5.

Although twenty points were scored by the two elevens neither succeeded in carrying the ball across the others' goal line and all the points are the direct or indirect result of kicking. Seven times during the sixty minutes of play Brickley drove the ball spinning and turning over the heads of the Yale players and so deadly was his accuracy with eye and toe that five times the ball crossed the goal bar for Crimson points.

Four times the way for Yale's field goal kicker, essayed the same feat, but once did the leather cross Harvard's goal. To the Eli's earned three points there were added an unearned two, due to an unintentional safety by left-end, O'Brien, of Harvard.

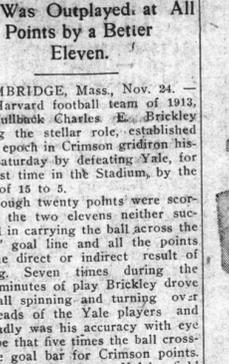

Thus, thanks to Brickley's splendid kicking ability, did Harvard defeat Yale for the second time in two years and win the undisputed right to the Eastern Collegiate football championship of the year. Excellent and spectacular as was Brickley's play both in running and kicking, however, the fact remains that the splendid machine that Coach Haughton developed this Autumn earned equal glory with the famous drop kicker, for it was the concerted play and efforts of the eleven men as a whole that meant the victory.

Harvard's superiority of the system of attack and defence. Stated broadly, Harvard played a well-balanced game in both offence, and defence, in which the best and most conservative parts of the new and old football were successfully combined. Opposed to this was a Yale game that would undoubtedly have won under the "five yards in three downs" days; but it was absolutely unsuited to win against the Harvard eleven of 1913. The victory of the Crimson, therefore, was as much a victory for the Harvard coaching system as it was for the Crimson players.

BENEFICENTLY vigilant at the gateway of his Ellis Island stockade stands your Uncle Sam, culling the immigrants. Right across the street—the narrow street of harbor water—on her little star shaped hummock, rises Miss Liberty, tireless armed despite her years of constant torch up-lifting.

"Let them all come in, Samuel," adjures Miss Liberty in beautiful petulance. "What's the use of being such an old particular every time you have a big rush of visitors? What's the need of so much red tape? Let them all in!"

"All of the right calibre, Libbie; all of the right calibre get in, but not one that isn't; no, sirree," opines Uncle Sam.

So goes the incessant discussion at the nation's greatest portal, where eddies a madstrom of hopes, fears, loves, hates, ambitions and cunning schemes. The place is the clearing house of every human motive and passion, and tens of thousands every year deceive, lie, steal and almost commit murder in their mad effort to pass the Republic's boundaries. It is the crossroads where journeyers are either right about faced or hidden welcome with an immediate introduction to Mr. Opportunity for which there is no charge.

Adventures of an Earl.

There being no other meeting pot point equal to it, no wonder the ladie pours out all sorts of tales of men and women and conditions, with the metal varying from the sizzling hot of romance and adventure to the cooling or dead cold state of the sordid humdrum. All kinds and descriptions are embraced within the official records of deportations kept at Ellis Island, but at best these records deal with the perceptible superficial. The hidden manifestations of action are not required to be analyzed and filed in the regular department annals. Were the cases related in their complete fullness and depth they would catcheye, ear and interest in a way that would separate them at once from the story of the trial and the colorless. Listen to one picked at random.

Down in the stockade of the steamship Baltic as she swept into New York Bay on Saturday, July 5, 1913, was an English earl shovelling coal. It's hard on the palms of soft hands and fretful to the even tenor of proud spirits to have a dirty mass of fuel to heave several hours a day for five days. Naked to the waist and gray like his associates in the stifling space allotted to the coal passers, Lord Weddiford found it a tougher task than he had expected when he decided in London a few days before that his love for the wife of Captain William Hallock, of the Royal Artillery, was deep enough to warrant the hardships he was enduring. At this particular moment of his shovelling in the sooty depths Mrs. Hallock was on the promenade deck, a first cabin passenger. Lord Weddiford could have been there, too, easily enough, but he feared restraining cablegrams, interloping detectives and, worst of all, the close scrutiny of morals, purse and purposes under the official searchlight of Ellis Island. Alone he could pass muster. Alone Mrs. Hallock could pass muster. But together—no, the scandal of their simultaneous disappearance was still the one topic of the gossip circles. They could not be discovered together or they would never be permitted to enter Uncle Sam's land.

Lord Weddiford had pursued Mrs. Hallock for half a year, fully convinced that he loved her as no woman had ever loved before, and that unless he could gain her regard he might as well toss away his life as he would a wicker chair. He had received little nibbles of encouragement now and then, but every time he began to glimpse a surety of happiness a shifting mood of the lady dashed him from the foothold in her affections he supposed he had gained. Just at the moment he had arrived at the depths of despair, which is the forerunner of the beautiful coming out of a love tangle, he was almost choked from his horse in Hyde Park by receiving from Mrs. Hallock an out and out proposal to elope.

The Elopement.

He had been cantering along the Row wearily hoping to see his fair lady, even though the seeming husant nothing in accomplishment. Suddenly he espied a cab enter the park, and in another moment it had drawn up alongside his horse. Out of the window appeared the face of the beautiful Mrs. Hallock. She wasted no time.

"My Lord, I am about to run away to America. I may expect to talk calmly, but I never was more angry in my life. I have been coldly cut by my husband for a week past. He's a fozey and becoming more of a recluse in his habits every day. I want life, I want joy. Some of my women friends have told me you will die for me. Will you come to America and marry me after an American divorce?"

You've got to kind of give Lord Weddiford credit for a quick decision following a dumfounding proposition. He didn't even "bat an eye," as the Irish saying is, but having now stretched his hand out to Mrs. Hallock to emphasize pledged loyalty.

"I am yours until death, and at your own terms, madame," he said, in tense, measured tones.

"You speak fair and inspire faith. Listen, then. We are watched now by detectives. My husband has had me followed for a week, in the delusion that I could be trapped in something reprehensible. I discovered the espionage the first day and fired it at once. We quarrelled over it to-day. I warned him I would leave him and go to America. But although I talked bravely I felt I had not the courage to make the leap alone. Then I thought of you. I got this cab and came here purposely to seek you. And even now, with all your assurance of aid, there are difficulties that can hardly be overcome.

"There is no difficulty I cannot overcome if I have your love as reward," said Lord Weddiford simply.

"But I've talked about such cases as ours might be to our solicitor—made a supposititious case, you know. He says if two persons—a man and a woman—leave here under the suspicion that they intended to remain in each other's company unlawfully, why, why—a cablegram from here to the immigration authorities in the United States will be sufficient to have them detained at a place they call Ellis Island, and if they are not satisfied as to the situation they send the couple back—call it deporting them, I believe."

"Why, my dear girl, they cannot stop English subjects of rank and standing from entering America. Why, they can't do it."

"But my solicitor says they have done it. I can't bear to think of such a scandalous delay and investigation. And yet, I must do it. Will you? Isn't there some way we can arrange it and not face that horrid Ellis Island?"

"Madame, we shall go. I shall travel under an assumed name. Add further, if it be absolutely necessary, we shall hold no conversation during the voyage."

"But, don't you see, my lord, they will know you have gone if you go to the ship. It is bound to come out. The detectives, watching us now, are almost sure to follow."

"Then," said Lord Weddiford, as solemnly as though it were an act of life or death, "I shall ship as a British sailor. I shall become one of the crew. I know enough of the sea to pass muster. They cannot hold an English seaman and they will never suspect I would so travel. It will seem easy, no matter how hard it is, when I think of you in the same deck Mrs. Hallock often watched the crew for a sign of her lover and wondered why it was she never caught a glimpse of him somewhere. So it was until they entered New York harbor.

There was just eight hours to make Liverpool and conveniently take the Baltic. An unusually liberal job-getting part coin plays with the advent of the immigrant, and supposed the only inconvenience her shortage would cause her would be the necessity of making an advance draft upon her future husband when he joined her on ship."

And so when the immigration boarding officers assembled the first cabin passengers and began to question them Mrs. Hallock awaited her turn with little concern. She was the wife of Captain William Hallock and she was paying a bribe to the country. Money? Why, of course, she had plenty of money—she would have when she got on shore. But now? Well, why must she have it now? No, she did have only a few shillings now—whose business was it how much she had? She could get all the money she wanted. But the immigration officers shook their heads. In half an hour she fee left at a shipping office sufficed to have Lord Weddiford hurried to the ship to take the place of one of the crew who had not appeared. Within an hour the English earl was roundly cursed by a subordinate officer as a landlubber breed of sailor and ordered to the stockade. If he was no use to protect, he had revealed his ignorance of the ship's stations in trying to obey the very first order. So he was ordered to pass coal.

But Lord Weddiford came of a vain people. He gritted his teeth and passed coal hour after hour, while the blisters on his hands grew sores. On the promenade deck Mrs. Hallock often watched the crew for a sign of her lover and wondered why it was she never caught a glimpse of him somewhere. So it was until they entered New York harbor.

When ladies elope they should always give a thought to the pocketbook. So hurriedly had her flight been arranged that when Mrs. Hallock had purchased her ticket she found she had but a few shillings left in her purse. But this did not alarm her. She forgot what an important was at Ellis Island—detained pending possible deportation. When the Baltic tied at her pier Lord Weddiford hurried ashore. There was no one to stop him. He was one of the crew, and so far as immigration regulations are concerned the captains of steamships are responsible for the "all rightness" of their crews. The English earl first went to a second class hotel and "cleaned up." Arraying himself more in keeping with his station in life, he went to the Waldorf—the meeting place that had been decided upon with Mrs. Hallock. She had not yet arrived, and while wondering at her delay his eye caught a headline in the evening paper—

"Wife of Prominent Londoner Faces Deportation."

"Mrs. William Hallock Arrives in United States Penniless."

Lord Weddiford caught the last boat of the day for Ellis Island. He hurried to the Commissioner's office and in a few moments was brought to Mrs. Hallock. The Earl had mapped out his scheme and lost no time in springing his subterfuge. With a warning look at the lady who was being detained he turned on the immigration officers with well assumed indignation.

A Ruse That Failed.

"Why this outrage in detaining my sister because she happens to be without funds? She may draw upon me for an unlimited amount. I am only too glad to have her with me. Release her without a moment's more delay or I'll appeal to the British Consul. Only fancy such a beastly state of affairs when an English lady, just because she has forgotten to fill her purse up, is detained here among a lot of low class immigrants! It's outrageous, I say! Why, I!"

And Lord Weddiford up to this point came pretty near, as the saying is, certain quarters is, "putting it across." Mrs. Hallock had taken her cue and had advanced to his side with one arm placed trustfully about his neck and a glance of defiance turned on the immigration officers. The scene had attracted a little group. The officers wavered a trifle, looking from the man to the woman in an uncertain way, as though half convinced they had made a mistake.

"What is your name, sir?" finally one of them asked the Earl.

"My name? Why, my name—why, it's John Fortesque, and this lady's maiden name!"

"John Fortesque his name? When did he change it?" A ruddy faced man in the uniform of the Baltic's officers pushed out of the group that had been listening to the dialogue. "Why, this man shipped across last trip as one of our crew. His name was William Ferguson with us. He was a beastly bad sailor for a man shipping as a sailor, so I fired him down to the stockade. He's been shovelling coal all the way over. Join Fortesque—pretty good!"

And while Lord Weddiford and Mrs. Hallock were busy changing the color of their countenances as many times and thus as there are shifts in the rainbow hues another blow fell. A cablegram was handed the chief inspector. He read it aloud to the chagrined couple—"If Earl of Weddiford is aboard Baltic with Mrs. William Hallock it is unlawful elopement. Act accordingly. H. P. Collins, Solicitor for Captain William Hallock."

They Are Deported.

"Are you Lord Weddiford?" asked the chief immigration official abruptly.

"I am," answered the Earl with great dignity, "and now that the face is played out the lady and I will go ashore and save you further bother."

"Did you know the Earl was aboard the Baltic, madame?" asked the same official of the lady very suddenly.

"I—I—well, yes, I did."

"What was your purpose after landing?" The inspector looked searchingly from one to the other.

"That is none of your damned business, sir!" thundered Lord Weddiford.

"It's our business to ask. Your business is to refuse to tell us what you do."

"But I'll not tell you. We'll go ashore now."

"No, Lord Weddiford; neither you nor the lady will go ashore. You will be made as comfortable as possible here in conformity with regulations governing such detentions until you are examined further. On the surface it would appear that you have grossly violated an immigration law by shipping as a sailor in order to escape examination on landing. In addition, the lady and you are apparently under a contract of elopement while she is still married. This hardly permits your entering the country. Normally you would not be considered desirable."

Lord Weddiford kept mails, telephone and telegraph busy for the best part of five days. The British Ambassador and the British Consul were invoked. Somehow they either refused aid or were dilatory in taking up the matter, for when the steamship Baltic steamed back to Liverpool on Thursday, July 21, the English earl and the wife of the captain in the Royal Artillery were aboard and marked on the Ellis Island records as deported.

"Never mind, dear," said Lord Weddiford consolingly to his companion as they passed out of the Narrows and Uncle Sam's land faded from their sight, "after this has blown over a bit we'll try again. Only this time you'll take one ship and I'll take the next one following. And we won't go to where there's an Ellis Island that pokes its nose in a man's affairs. We'll go."

"Well, I don't know. I'm not so sure about the wisdom of elopements as I was. When I come to think of those five miserable days among those immigrant surroundings I had to endure!"

"Endure—immigrant surroundings?" broke in Lord Weddiford disgustedly. "Have you ever by chance shovelled coal in the stockade of an ocean steamship for five days?"

SCIENTIFIC SLEEP FOR CHILDREN.

A Sleeping Lesson in Progress at an Infants' School in Buckinghamshire.

SCIENCE has invaded the realm of the child nowadays as well as that of the adult, and the little one must be taught the best scientific methods of breathing, playing and going to sleep, as well as the first steps in numbers, reading and writing. At many of the infant schools in Buckinghamshire the children are taught how to fall asleep quickly and surely. The afternoon session of the school is broken by a half hour's rest and the children so that as worried city workers or troubled politicians they will also be able to woo Morpheus to their beds. A mat is spread for each child and then the sleeping lesson begins. As each child also, as easily as they once fell asleep, the lessons take place only in the warm in the school garden the course of study and weather, when the children naturally receive an afternoon nap, the instruction how to wake up does not follow.

The Staff of Life.

PROFESSOR T. B. WOOD, of Cambridge, lecturing at the Royal Institution, London, exposed the pretensions of bread.

"The staff of life," he said, has been masquerading as a valuable food on the strength of the protein it contains, but it has now been discovered that half of that protein is composed of glutamic acid, of which the human system requires but a minute quantity, while the remainder is split up into a dozen or fifteen other products of considerable value to animal life, but which are necessarily found in bread only in almost infinitesimal proportions. "In order to obtain sufficient quantities of the latter on a bread dietary, the system would have to cope with a vast amount of waste glutamic acid. "What we want to encourage people to do," Professor Wood declared, "is not to worry about eating this kind of bread or that kind of bread, but to mix other things with their bread in order to get protein better suited to animal requirements than is this extraordinarily lopsided protein which is derived from bread."
