Happiness At Last;

Loyalty Recompensed

CHAPTER V.
He pushed open a baize door, went down a narrow passage—just here Decima heard the parlor-maid explaining to the cook how she had dropped the plate. "It slipped out o'my 'and, as if it was a piece of 'ot butter; it did, I do assure you, cook"—and knocked at a thick oak door, through which, though it was tightly closed, came sundry and various odors, all of them wondrously strange and extraordinarily powerful.

A voice, which seemed to come from a distance, said, impatiently: "Come in!" And Decima and Bobby entered. It was a large, much-lined room, with shelves on which stood, in a gorgeous glitter, books, retorts, instruments, plaster casts, models of every description. A small furnace was blazing away in one corner; a forge and lathe were conspicuous in the center of the room. There was also a carpenter's bench and a modelling-table, an electro-plating battery, and, in short, a collection of tools, models, instruments, and general lumber, which would have fitted out a country museum or a workshop of Bedlam.

Working at the bench stood a man in his shirt-sleeves, his hair, long and gray, falling over his huge forehead. He was dressed in a shabby old suit of a fashion of ten years back, wore no collar, and stood in a pair of thick carpet slippers at least two sizes too large for him.

Decima stared at him, pale and a little tremulous. She scarcely remembered him.

"Here's Decima's, father," said Bobby.

Mr. Deane looked up, pushed the hair from his forehead, and blinked at the beautiful vision.

"Decima!" he said. "Decima? Where is she? Has this lady brought her?"

"This lady—" began Bobby; but Decima, with a little cry and a gush of tears to her eyes which made her way rather uncertain, ran to the strange object and put her arms round his neck.

"Father, I am Decima! Don't you know me?"

"God bless my soul! Is it, really?"

he said, with a dreamy amazement. "How—how you've grown!" He looked at her abstractedly for a moment, then he sighed. "You're like your mother," he said. "It might be her."

Decima leaned against the bench and held his hand. "I am glad I am like my mother," she said. "I am glad to come home, father."

"Oh, take care, take care!" he said, with sudden anxiety. "You're leaning against my model—the model! I'm afraid it will break—er—er—thank you!" He took the model from behind her and drew a breath of relief. "Not broken, thank God!" he murmured. "And so you're Decima?"

"But his eyes were fixed on the model as he carried it to a place of safety, and not on her.

And this was Decima's home-coming. And these two, the half-crazy man and the boy, were all she had to protect her from the "dragons by the way."

CHAPTER VI.
Decima watched her father, bending over his model, with something very near tears in her eyes. It was quite evident that he had forgotten her presence.

Bobby touched her on the arm. "Come away," he said. "It's almost time to dress for dinner, and you must be dying for a wash."

"Is—is he always like that?" asked Decima, as she followed Bobby along the passage.

"Nearly always; always when he is in his workshop. He'll wake up after dinner—when most men want to go to sleep—and talk—oh! talk like a machine. But there, you'll see. He can't help it, you know, and there's no need for you to feel hurt. He'll get quite fond of you—when he's got time to think of such an insignificant and unimportant a thing as a daughter. Here, I'll show you your room. Where's the portmanteau? I'd better carry it up, or Sarah Jane will fall down-stairs with it and break her neck, or worse still, some limb; if I thought it would be certain to be the former, I'd let her carry it up by all means."

As he shouldered the portmanteau, Decima cried out warningly: "Take care, Bobby! Keep that small box right side up, because there's a guinea-pig and some white mice in it. I've only brought this portmanteau with me, the imperials are coming on by the luggage-train."

"The what?" said Bobby. "The what, did you say, your royal highness?"

Decima laughed. "You silly boy, you didn't think that small thing held all my clothes? Oh, what a pretty room!" she broke off, as Bobby kicked open the door of a dainty little bed-chamber.

"Glad you like it," he said in an affectedly off-hand way. "I had it fresh papered and painted directly the governor talked of sending for you. Like the paper? And I bought the furniture. You will perceive that it is pure white to watch your original innocence—in other words, greenness."

"Oh, it is beautiful! It's a duck of a room! Bobby, I must kiss you!"

He threw himself into fighting attitude. "Beware, bold maid! I am young and unprotected, but I will defend myself to the last gasp. Keep off! Now I'll give you three quarters of an hour, while I execute my nightly task of luring the governor out of his den, and persuading him to change for what he calls his dress-clothes."

He unfastened her portmanteau for her, liberated the guinea-pig and white mice from their travelling-box, and set their cages on a table. "Where I can see them while I dress, please," said Decima, then left her.

As Decima changed her travelling costume for her soft, dove-colored evening-trook, she found it hard to realize that she was not asleep and dreaming. The change in her life was so sharp and sudden, and she wondered if she should really be of any use to her father and brother.

Presently she heard a gong, and she went down-stairs to the drawing-room, a pretty room enough, but with old-fashioned furniture and shabby curtains and carpet. Bobby was standing by the window in a well-fitting evening-suit, and looking rather handsomer even than before.

"Poor girl!" he remarked, as his eyes wandered over her with the keen and calmly critical eye of a brother. "Always keep time at meals. Punctuality in the sole, not to say the turbot, of business. No, we do not wait for the governor, for the simple reason that he never comes down until he hears us go in. He considers time spent between dinner in the drawing-room time wasted. As you are a nice girl, and rather prettily dressed than otherwise, you may take my arm, this occasion being your first visit." He offered his arm with mock condescension, and so, laughing softly, Decima went in.

She had made up her mind to a bad dinner and indifferent waiting, but she was not prepared for the actual badness and shortcomings of that meal.

Bobby led her to the head of the table, and seated himself on her left. "The tureen before you," he said in an under-tone, "contains what cook, with a mistaken optimism, calls soup. I call it warm size; but may difference of opinion never alter friendship. Take care when Sarah Jane raises the soup-plate, that she does not empty it in your lap. I should be jealous if she did, because I generally get it in mine. Here is the governor; you are requested not to smile."

Philial respect, notwithstanding, Decima really found it hard to obey Bobby's injunction, for Mr. Deane, in a dress-coat of a fashion of twenty years ago, with a corkcrack trousers shining at the knees, with a shirt-front minus a stud, and a necktie under one ear, was a spectacle at which the most dutiful of daughters might pardonably have laughed.

"Ah—afraid I am late!" he said; his severe-voiced formula. "Soup! Did you say soup? Yes, please, Decima, you will be glad to hear that the model was uninjured. It is the model of my last invention, for which I have just taken a patent. A portable electric force. Its principle is—"

"Have some sherry, sir," cut in Bobby adroitly.

"Eh? Sherry? Did you say sherry? Yes, yes; certainly. And so you left Lady Pauline well, Decima? Wonderful woman! Charming, but singularly deficient in intelligence. I remember the last time we met; I endeavored to explain to her my invention for opening bridges by candle power—quite a simple thing. It was done in this way—"

"Fish, sir?" cut in Sarah Jane.

"Fish? Did you say fish? What is it?"

"Cod, sir," said Sarah Jane.

"Is it indeed?" remarked Bobby, staring with simulated surprise at the overbilled mass. "How strange! I thought it was white worsted antimacassar. None for me, thank you, Decima. I am too young to die."

"I—I'm afraid it is done a little too much," said Decima, timidly.

"Surely not! Not a little," said Bobby, with admirable gravity; "but don't be alarmed, my dear Decima. You will find that cook will strike the balance by sending up the joint raw. Ah, I thought so!" he said, when the leg of mutton ran red at the first touch of the knife. "Cook has joined the new Temperance in Feeding Society. She takes care that we are not tempted to overeat ourselves. Yes, as a man can not live by bread alone, I will trouble you for a piece not actually blue. Decima, my dear, I should advise you to wait for the pudding. Sometimes—mind, I do not make an actual promise, so do not buoy yourself up with hope too much—but sometimes cook makes a decent pudding. Let us hope she has done so tonight."

The pudding happened to be rice, and eatable, so that Decima, who, only eat to live, was perfectly satisfied so far as she herself was concerned.

But that meal was a significant one. She could understand why she was sent for; and the contrast between the daintily cooked, well-served meals at Aunt Pauline's filled her with pity for the two men seated beside her. She felt guilty of selfishness all the ten years she had been "lapped in luxury and cradled in ease."

"You have now seen a specimen of our culinary skill, Decima," said Bobby, when Sarah Jane had left the room. "I will not ask you what you think of it, because, being only a mere girl, to whom the privilege of expressing yourself in swear words is very properly denied, you could not do yourself justice."

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Ready and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract. Known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Soviet Russia in Throes of Revolt.

Bolsheviki Disturbed Over Wrangel's Successes--Public Sceptical of Asquith's Proposal -- Military Censoring Irish Mails -- Shortage in Canadian Fisheries.

REVOLT IN RUSSIA.

LONDON, Oct. 5. Further reports of disorganization and revolt in Soviet Russia have been received by Reuters. Limited from "a reliable person who has just crossed the frontier into Finland." Reuters' information says the Red army is in a state of disorganization, that the harvest is exceptionally bad and that revolts have broken out in Siberia, Amoy and near Samara. There is great unrest among workmen. The Bolsheviki are very anxious about General Wrangel's successes in the South and the latest call of Leon Trotsky, Bolsheviki Minister of war, is for liquidation of the Southern front before the winter. The Bolsheviki, say the advices, realize that this winter will be the hardest they have experienced and that it is doubtful whether they will pass calmly. Their leaders are very anxious about the whole situation.

the destruction during a tropical hurricane last week of the British steamer Western bound from Frontera, Mexico, to New Orleans. The crew was saved.

EXAMINING THE MAILS.

DUBLIN, Oct. 5. On arrival in Dublin to-day of mails from provinces and from England the military party entered the central sorting station and carried away all letters. Business men inquiring for their mails were informed that the military authorities had all of it, but delivery would take place after the letters had been examined. A similar method of obtaining information already has been employed by the government in other Irish centres.

ANOTHER CLASH.

CORK, Ireland, Oct. 5. Residents of Cork had another terrifying experience early to-day. The cause of the trouble was a brush between the military and unidentified persons who fired on curfew patrols. The patrols with heavy fusillades of machine guns sweeping all suspected areas with searchlights.

POLICE BARRACKS ATTACKED.

SKIBBEREEN, Ireland, Oct. 5. Armed bands attacked the police barracks last evening making prisoners of 15 policemen and seizing arms and ammunition. The barracks was burned. There were no casualties.

GETS FOUR YEARS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 5. Four years' imprisonment was the sentence passed to-day on Sam Gale.

LOYD GEORGE WILL DISCUSS IRELAND.

LONDON, Oct. 5. Premier Lloyd George will speak at length on Friday and is expected to deal with the Irish question. He will probably analyse Lord Grey's proposals for settlement and also ex-amine Asquith's which appear in a letter to the Times this morning. The Premier's suggestion of granting Ireland the status of an "autonomous Dominion" in the fullest and widest sense received with general scepticism.

DESTROYED IN HURRICANE.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5. Word was received here to-day of one time captain in a forestry corps of the Canadian expeditionary force, for the theft of baggage from Mrs. D. H. Slater, of St. John's, Nfld., and Mrs. E. Brotherton, of Seattle. These ladies left their suit cases in the Windsor Hotel when they were taken by Gale who cashed at the C.P.R. offices the tickets for Seattle found in the baggage.

CANADIAN FISHERY SHORT.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5. The catch of sea fish of all kinds for the month of August on both Atlantic and Pacific coasts decreased in value nearly one million dollars. The smaller catch this year is due to a large drop in aggregate landing of Cod, Haddock, Hake and Pollock on the Atlantic coast. A shortage of bait and less active demand with lower prices contributed and resulted in curtailment of fishing operations.

ABOUT MONEY AND THINGS.

Can you think of money when the sun is shining high.
An' the little fleecy sail boats race the ocean of the sky?
Does money really matter when you're out among the trees
An' listen to the song birds an' the drone of the bees?
An' long about October when the world is lookin' fine
Are you blinded to its beauty by the sordid dollar sign?
There's a heap more here than money! though a little gold is good.
An' I'd like a bigger fortune an' would get it if I could;
There are times that I forget it--times I even cease to care
That my pocketbook is empty an' I've nothing fine to wear.
An' I let the race go by me while I loaf along the way
To glory in the splendor an' the beauty of the day.
It may be, as some have told me, that I waste a lot of time.
But the fields are full o' gladness an' the air is full of rhyme.
An' the trees are all so lovely that I've got to stand an' look.
An' I like to rest an' listen to the babbling of a brook;
Though I know it costs me money an' the thing men call success,
I just take my compensation in a day of happiness.

There are some who live for money, and by gold they rise or fall.
But there's so much more to live for when you think 'bout it all.
That the most of us, I fancy, often wander far astray
Seekin' gladness an' contentment in a different sort o' way.
We go rompin' with the youngsters, trampin' any trail we choose,
An' we never stop to reckon up the money we may lose.

Short-Sighted Advertisers.

By using their editorial and news columns for printing material which is framed to please the advertiser rather than to interest and benefit the reader, a certain type of parasite publications eke out a precarious existence. We have recently heard of a manufacturer who in the past year has spent about $5,000 with certain so-called labor papers and who is now wondering what he got out of it. In the financial and other journalistic fields there are a number of these propositions, papers which endeavor to market their editorial influence instead of building up that influence by serving the interests of the reader--going after business with the big stick instead of selling advertising service in a legitimate way.

In Canada there are several labor papers but none of them stand very high with the workers. They have endeavored to gain a standing with the manufacturers by using their influence with labor, but as a matter of fact they appeal to the radicals rather than to the members of the international unions. Nearly all of these unions have their own official organs and the members depend upon them for news of their craft. Such workers do not take any interest in the radical sheets and these have practically no influence with them. So in other journalistic fields intelligent advertising must appeal to the reader's best ideals and interests; the advertiser who endeavors to secure an advantage over the reader by some form of subterfuge or trickery will in the long run find that he is wasting his money.

In buying publicity an honest appeal through a dependable publication which holds the confidence of its readers will always be found to be most effective. The Audit Bureau of Circulation places a hall mark upon its member publications which can be used as a safe and reliable guide by advertisers.--Financial Post.

Popular Teacher Honoured.

On Thursday night, September 30th, the teacher at Lower Island Cove, Mr. Charles Garland, was given a surprise party at his home by his scholars and presented with the following address:

DEAR MR. GARLAND:
We wish to take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation of your work among us; and to prove our gratitude to you for urging us always to do our best, we ask you to please accept this small token of our esteem, and we sincerely wish that we, as teacher and scholar will be banded together in unity to face the coming year, which we hope will be more successful even than last year.

Yours faithfully,
CANDIDATES OF C.H.E. EXAMS.

Miss Alma Vail then presented him with a beautiful signet ring with initials engraved, and on the inside "From his candidates, L.I.C. 1920." Mr. Garland not having heard anything whatever concerning our intentions was completely taken by surprise. He then replied to the address and thanked us for the very nice gift and good wishes. Refreshments were then partaken of and games indulged in till the wee sma' hours. The success of our school is increasing year by year since Mr. Garland has taken charge. In the recent C.H.E. exams 12 passed out of 14 who sat. Intermediate 2, preliminary 1, primary 3. A greater interest in education has been awakened here and we are hoping to see our school equal to any of the outport schools in the near future.

Cutting the Garment.

Persons who visit St. John's are delighted (?) with the splendid houses which members of the Government are building or have purchased for themselves. Our own representative is no longer contented with "be it ever so humble" as at Morton's Hr. in days of yore. Big salaries demand houses in proportion, and a seven thousand dollar salary is worth quite a pretentious dwelling.

And in the face of this the Minister of Public Works in writing regarding the discussion on the Breakwater site declares the Government must "cut the garment according to the cloth"--the garment of Public Works being made up of the remnants when big salaries have been paid.

Does the Public realize what havoc was played with the Country's finances this spring, in the face of hard times staring the country in the face.

Does it realize that nearly thirty thousand dollars in increase in salary alone to members of the House of Assembly--was voted this year--nearly enough in itself to build a breakwater in Twillingate, and more than enough to make Shoal Tickle ten feet deep from end to end.

And that was only one "item." Other salaries were increased in proportion. --Twillingate Sun.

The Wonderful Railway Commission.

The Railway Commission--and no one is quite sure whether Reids own the Government or not, though it begins to look a good deal like it--was in session recently and its deliberations resulted in something like this as we can get it.
The cross-country service is to be discontinued this winter, trains not running past Millertown Junction because the poor Reids might lose money, you know, keeping the line open across the Topsails. When we shall get Canadian and American mails next winter the dear only knows.
The Commission also was very busy over the matter of Excursion trains from St. John's to Holyrood, for next summer. Just imagine frittering away time on excursion trains and sending the people of this District around in the Sniff!

Moreover the Commission--it should not be forgotten either that the chairman of this Commission is none other than the Acting Premier, Hon. W. F. Cosker--has announced an increase in passenger rates of a cent a mile, with probable increases in freight rates to follow.
And this is the Government that was to bring Reid to his knees!
Furthermore, not content with that everything is now being played into Reids hand.
The Prospero must call at Lewisporte going and returning passengers and freight for Reid, and expenditure of Government coal--for the Prospero is a Government ship--to take her there. The Earl of Devon sails from Lewisporte to Cook's Hr. and return. Result loss of considerable business which was done by firms here with ports on the Treaty Shore, and Twillingate wants all the business it can get these times.

What do the people really think of it all.--Twillingate Sun.

HIS TROUBLES SOON OVER, SAYS FARMER.

Chas. Hamm Began Improving Almost As Soon As He Started Taking Tanlac And Now Feels Like Doing Two Men's Work, He Declares.

"I never miss an opportunity to tell anybody what a great medicine Tanlac is, for it has really proved a godsend in my case," said Charles Hamm, while at the Ross drug store in Saint John, N.B., the other day. Mr. Hamm is a prominent farmer, of Grand Bay, N.B., having lived in that vicinity all his life.

"I'll tell you, I was in a mighty bad fix before I got Tanlac, for I was in such a run-down condition I was almost helpless. My stomach went back on me, and my appetite became so awfully poor I could scarcely eat a thing. I would blot all up with gas, and had terrible cramps in my stomach that lasted for hours at a time, and hurt me so bad that they nearly drew me double. I had awful spells of dizziness, and at night I was so restless I could hardly sleep a wink. My health became so bad and I got so weak I couldn't do a bit of work, and just had to give up and let everything go to rack.

"Well, it's mighty lucky for me that I got Tanlac, for it didn't take the medicine but a little while to put an end to all my troubles. Why, since taking three bottles, my appetite is so good that I just eat like a bear, and my stomach is in such splendid order that I'm never troubled with cramps or bloating. I'm entirely free from dizziness, and never slept better in my life than I do now. I've already gained ten pounds in weight, and have so much strength and energy that I just feel like doing two men's work. I'm certainly thankful to be in such good health again, and I don't hesitate to give Tanlac credit for fixing me up like it has."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, at St. Joseph's, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Gushue, in Millertown by Exploits Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Island by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Uriah Freake-adt.

ARMISTICE AGREEMENT REACHED.

RIGA, Oct. 5.

An agreement for signing an armistice, preliminary to peace not later than October 8th, was reached to-night by M. Joffe and M. Dombki, heads of the Russian and Polish delegations respectively. M. Dombki told the Associated Press that details of the agreement would be made public to-morrow. He said that the agreement was on the Polish eleven points declaration made at the beginning of the Riga conference, after M. Joffe's Moscow declaration.

NEGROES LYNCHED.

MCCLENNY, Florida, Oct. 5.

Three negroes, Ray Field, Ben Givens and Milton Smith, arrested in connection with the murder of John White, farmer, were taken from the county jail here last night and lynched. A fourth negro, Jim Givens, brother of Ben Givens, who is said to have done the shooting, is being pursued by a posse.

WATERWAY ROUTE TO GREAT LAKES.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.

A proposal to provide a route for ocean-going ships from Montreal to the Great Lakes, by way of the Ottawa River to a short distance below Ottawa, and then through a deep water canal across to the St. Lawrence at Cardinal, was laid before the International Joint Waterways Commission, when it opened its session here to-day.

IS IT MALICE AFORETHOUGHT.

BERLIN, Oct. 5.

The steamship Bismarck, which would have been the world's largest vessel, has been burned at Hamburg, says a despatch to the Zwaifurblatt. The gross tonnage of the Bismarck was said to have been 56,000 as against 54,000 of the Vaterland. Now the Leviathan is the next largest steamer. No explanation is given in the despatch as to the cause of the fire. The Bismarck was building at the yards of Blohmklohm and Vesskess at Hamburg, and would have been delivered to the Allies under terms of the peace treaty.

The decision of General Goural

French Commander-in-Chief in Eastern fighting between French and Turks, by withdrawing troops beyond the river Diechuan is arousing fears for the safety of eight thousand Armenian refugees here, who have been notified that they will have an opportunity to leave. Many decided to remain, although unarmed.

WILL LOOK AFTER REFUGEES.

With reference to the reported withdrawal of French troops in the Adna region it was said at the Foreign Office yesterday, the mission of the troops in Asia Minor is to protect Armenians, and there is no indication that France intended to leave refugees in the hands of the Turks.

RACE FIGHT BETWEEN SOLDIERS

HALF AND HALF METHODS.

Reliable reports from Bonavista and Trinity Bays, state that nearly all the young men are vowing never to go to the fishery again, and is it any wonder, when after putting in their summer at the work they now find themselves without a cent of cash. Both at Bonavista and Catalina the cry is "let us get out." Fish is being taken in trade—that is goods—and may be taken up in shop or store and no cash will be paid till the end of the year, and then, so it is said, the account must be straightened up, the balance, if any, being payable in half cash and half goods.

Played Piano 106 Hours

A world's record for continuous piano playing has been established at London by Alfred Kemp, a former University of Chicago student, who played without stopping for 106 hours. The former record was 105 hours. It was held in New Zealand. Milk and fish comprised his diet during the stunt. He used some smelling salts frequently, when not eating or drinking he chewed tobacco. He did not take any drugs. His hands were swollen to twice their natural size when he finished. They had lost the sense of feeling. The keyboard of the piano was frequently sprayed with metholated spirits to prevent his fingers from cracking.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES COLDS, Etc.

Cure for Wife-Beaters Discovered.

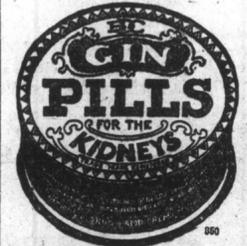

Elmwood City has discovered the cure for wife-beaters. Recently John Kincade was hauled before a court charged with striking his wife. He was released on bail. Shortly thereafter Kincade received a "wife" that he was to be tried by a jury of women. He retired to the woods. Without food or water, he remained in hiding for three days. He was found by two of his children, who persuaded him to return home after they had arranged a truce under which he was guaranteed immunity. Kincade pleaded with his wife to withdraw the charge of assault and battery which she had filed. If she agreed, he would promise to be good in the future, Kincade said. Mrs. Kincade arrived at Justice Swick's office while six jurors were being drawn from the 18 women summoned. She told her story of the plea and promise made by her husband, and asked that the charge be withdrawn. This was done after she paid the costs.

Polish Hero Aged 12.

Chicago is honored by the presence of John Dolacinski, 12 years old and three feet seven inches tall. He weighs 100 pounds, ringlike, and it is said that even the name of the youngster carries terror to the heart of the Bolshevik. For John is a regular in the Polish army. Last month he was toting a musket in the rear guard when the army fell back to make its historic defence of Warsaw. This small fragment of the Polish army has a record that fades Diamond Dick, David Goliath, and Nick Carter into insignificance. "Sure, I've been in the Polish army," he said. "I've been fighting ever since my father was killed in an attack upon the Bolshevik two years ago. I'm not too young to fight. There are lots of boys of my age in the army over there. Sometimes I fight with my company, and sometimes I act as a sort of spy at night. See this?" and he displayed a large beribboned cross under his coat. "General Joseph Haller, who raised the Polish Legion in America, gave it to me after a fight at Lemberg."

Offer to Sell Ears.

Numerous letters and personal applications from men willing to part with their left ears have been received by Frank F. Quesada, the wealthy young Cuban who came to New York to buy a left ear to replace the one he lost when his horse kicked it off after throwing him. The letters demand all the way from $2,000 to $100,000 for left ears. "I told those who called to have blood tests taken and meet me to-morrow at my physician's office," said Quesada. One of the letters read in part: "I'm a pretty fair looking fellow, with perfect ears. I'd be glad to part with one of my ears for $2,000 to help you out. I don't care if people don't like my looks."

Hard to Trace Up a Knock.

Perhaps the most delicate problem that the amateur automobile driver has to contend with is that of distinguishing between and locating the various engine knocks.

While there are numerous "listening" contrivances on the accessory market, experience is, as always, the best teacher. It will enable you to locate and repair the faulty part before it develops into serious trouble.

The more experience you have in listening to "engine talk" the more expert you will become in discovering and telling exactly what is loose. Each part not functioning properly has a peculiar sound, which usually comes in regular periods relative to the speed of the engine.

Connection Rod.

A loose connection rod produces a sharp bump of a heavy, hollow sound. To locate this, run the engine slowly and cut out the cylinders in turn. If a rod happens to be very loose the knock can be detected by revolving the engine with the hand crank. This trouble is caused by a loose, scored or burnt out bearing.

The main bearing knocks are really located by running the engine on two cylinders at a time, one on each side of the crank bearing. A hard bump will be noticeable throughout the engine, produced regularly with the firing of the two cylinders. Such knocks are caused by end play in the shaft, loose-fitted bearings or scored or burned out bearings. In the latter two instances the engine will usually groan when it is started cold.

Piston Rod.

A loose piston rod is distinguished by a sharp metallic knock. It can be located by using the "listening rod" upon each cylinder and speeding up the engine suddenly, and then closing the throttle quickly. By so doing, a double knock is heard which is very sharp and which might be better termed a rap. These knocks are caused by a crooked or broken pin, or perhaps a tight or badly worn member.

A loose crank shaft is seldom encountered. It gives a rattling slap, combined with a thud. In some cases only the thud is audible, in other cases the looseness of the bearings will let the gears slap and rattle. Generally this trouble is very hard to discover due to the pressure of the valve springs.

The trouble can be located, however, by sounding the gear case and cam shaft bearings, with the listening apparatus. The knocks are caused by loose bearings.

A loose fly wheel will produce a very heavy knock at low engine speed and appear regularly. The knock will change its nature entirely when the engine is speeded up and the vibration of the shaft will produce a dull chattering knock. It is located by disengaging the clutch and rocking the fly wheel back and forth. The trouble is caused by improper fittings, loose broken bolts or bad keys.

FOLLOWING RED PAINT.

One day this Spring I followed red paint up a mountain.

Do you know what that means?

It means that the trail we took up the mountain side had been blazed by splash-as-of red paint on trees or rocks.

Following red paint may not seem like a very poetic adventure, but it is. Here red paint called on us to follow the course of a wonderful mountain brook crossing and crossing it at intervals; there it was out on a rock whence we could catch glimpses of tree-tops seemingly far below; and again it led us into the depths of a pine forest.

Not Easy to Follow Red Paint.

Moreover, following red paint is a difficult adventure than one might at first fancy—in this case, at least. For whoever originated the paint trail was none too generous with his paint, and oftentimes the path made most unexpected turns. It became necessary where the path was not well defined, for one member of the party to stand near one red spot while the rest looked about for the next one.

Unless One Has An Open Mind.

For if one made up one's mind that the path was about to twist in a certain direction and looked in that direction for red paint, one was pretty sure not to find it. Only when one had one's mind from all preconceptions and looked about one with an open mind, did one find red paint—usually in some totally unexpected location.

For instance, the first time we crossed the brook, the path appeared to disappear completely. "There is no red paint anywhere," insisted two members of the party at a scouting expedition. The third member led them at the base and at scouting. "There it is," he said. And there it was—on a flat rock in the middle of the brook. We had felt sure we were to keep beside the brook, and there we had not had our eyes and minds open for that unexpected change of location.

I suppose, having an open mind yourself, you have already seen what this trail is leading you. I might surprise you by going in an opposite and unexpected direction, but I won't (chiefly because I can't think of one offhand).

Following Red Paint to Good Points.

You are right about the moral. I was about to suggest that the trail that leads to truths of all sorts, as well as to mountain-tops, must be followed in this same spirit. If you know in advance where it is going, you lose the trail; it is only by keeping your eyes and mind both wide open that you can keep to it.

For instance, if you are sure that your mother-in-law (or daughter-in-law) is going to be a disagreeable person, you won't be able to see the trail that leads to her good points.

Again, if you are sure that you are being treated very unjustly by your husband or wife, and dwell constantly on that, you will never find the trail that leads to this point of view and a happier basis of companionship and understanding.

On the Toboggan.

The Federal and Arbutus Sugar Refining Companies, of New York, announced on Thursday that they would accept business at 14.25 cents a pound for fine granulated. This is 1-4 cent below their previous quotation and about 11 cents a pound below the high record of the early summer, and about 5 cents above the fixed price during the war. This brings the net price for cash in the United States within 7 days to 13.965 cents a pound to wholesalers. This is about 5 cents a pound above the regulated price during the war before the Louisiana cane sugar episode, and before the artificial "shortage." The Canadian refiners will have to do something far more "substantial" than the drop of one cent a pound promised for to-day before they catch up with the procession.—Morning Chronicle, Sept. 27.

A GLAD WORLD.

This world's so fine and dandy that life should be a grin; there's always sunshine handy for those who'd wade through hell.

As cheerful as a colt is, I do my daily toll, there always is a pontic for every human boll. I brood not lest disaster of life should ruin make; there is a mustard plaster for every human ache. If life, at any juncture, seems desolate and grim, and hope receives a puncture, then run her on the rim; and laugh at Old Man Sorrow, and bet your Sunday lid that things will turn tomorrow well as they ever did. I have the giddy habit of giving grief a slap; if there's a smile I nab it, and paste it on my map. The little thorn troubles that drive some men insane, to me are vagrant bubbles, they're empty things and vain. And when full grown afflictions come down in cataraacts, I look on them as fictions that masquerade as facts. I fire them in a hurry, I bid them loop the loops; I say to them, "For worry I do not care three whoops." For joy's the line I trade in, the goods in which I deal; it is the stuff I wade in, to back my daily spiel.

The Romance of a Royal Marriage.

Can King Alexander Make His Bride a Queen?

Wife or throne? That is the problem which faces the first monarch in our time to marry a commoner—King Alexander of Greece, who took his beautiful peasant-bride, Helen Manos, to Paris rather than run the risk of a revolution by staying with her after their romantic marriage in their own country.

For the bitter hostility to the union which was displayed in Court circles has not died away. Besides, there is still some doubt whether Greece will accept the girl-wife as Queen.

Royalty, led by ex-Queen Sophie, wife of the deposed King Constantine, despises the young bride. Not long ago King Alexander conveyed the wife of his choice from Paris to Switzerland for the purpose of introducing her to his haughty mother, who, being the sister of another monarch, out of business, the deposed Kaiser, is a great stickler for Royal pomp and circumstance.

"She loves you," said the Greek King, in presenting his wife to the fallen Sophie, "and is anxious to assure you of her respect and affection."

Instantly the ex-Queen was aflame. She called her daughter-in-law a "shameless hussy," and accused her of having married her son for selfish ends and to help the scoundrels in league with her.

"Leave my presence at once!" she cried, striking a Lady Macbeth attitude. "Go, and never let me see either of you again!"

"Don't be blinded by prejudice, mother," urged the young King. "Times have changed."

"Yes," cried the maddened Sophie, "but not in the way you suggest. I tell you—go!"

The young wife stood her ground, whereupon the ex-Queen lost control of herself, and, according to a member of the household, attempted to strike the "low-born creature." Mortified and disillusioned, the young couple returned to Paris.

The Royal caste declares that the marriage is morganatic, and that King Alexander can take another wife—one of his own exalted station. This, however, is nonsense. The marriage is, according to the laws of the Greek Orthodox Church—to which both parties belong—strictly legal, and cannot be nullified.

More important, perhaps, than the attitude of Royalty towards the marriage is that of the Greek Government. Venizelos was opposed to the match, and advised the King to marry a certain young princess of another kingdom.

"No," responded Alexander, with decision. "I am not in love with the princess, so why should I marry her?"

What, then, will the Government do now? Will it recognize Alexander's wife? Venizelos himself is in favor of this course; but the pro-German party in Greece is working up an agitation against the peasant-bride, and the issue is doubtful.

King Alexander is thus in a very embarrassing position. If Greece accepts the woman of his choice, he will have a queen who will be scorned by his father and mother and ignored by practically all the other Royalties in Europe. If his country does not recognize his peasant-bride, he will have a wife but not a queen.

Picture the lot of a King of Greece with a legal wife who is not a queen. She would have no right to live in the Royal palace at Athens, or to use the carriages, jewels, etc.; and she could not take any part in public ceremonies or those State functions in which a queen is usually so conspicuous. Her presence even at a banquet given by the King would be highly irregular, unless she peered down on the guests from a gallery, or sat at a table in an obscure corner.

But if King Alexander's position is awkward, that of the Greek Government is still more so. He knows it, too, and has practically told them that they must recognize his queen. He has pointed out, too, that marrying commoners runs in the family.

The reference, of course, is to the matrimonial rebellion started by Prince Age, son of Prince Valdemar of Denmark, who shocked Royalty by taking as his wife the daughter of the Italian Minister to Denmark. Probably the best-known revolutionary is Prince Christopher, youngest son of ex-King Constantine. He chose Mrs. William B. Leeds, of Ohio, for his bride, and she is now the Princess Anastasia.—Tit-Bits.

Jack's Answer.

The schoolmistress was giving a practical lesson on fractions. "Children," she said, "here is a piece of meat. If I cut it in two what should I have?"

"Halves," said the class in chorus. "And if I cut it again?" "Quarters," came the reply at once. "And if I cut it again?" "Eighths," said half the class, the other half maintaining a dignified silence. "Good! And if I cut the pieces again?"

Dead silence in the class, but one hand was raised in solitary state at the back of the room. "Well, Jack, what is the answer?" "Please, ma'am, mince-meat."

France as a Rival.

The entrance of France into the fish markets of Europe, in competition with Newfoundland is an event which can be regarded neither with equanimity nor composure. Hitherto it was the business of French fishermen at home and from St. Pierre to supply fish for domestic consumption only, and all efforts were turned in that direction, encouraged by a Government bounty, thus making it impossible for any cis-atlantic country to send fish to France on a competitive basis. True there were certain years, when with an over-supply the French buyers placed their surplus in Portuguese hands, in every case at lower prices than those for which Newfoundland merchants could sell, but as the French shipments were not made in abnormal quantities, very little—if any—financial injury was done local exporters. To-day we are facing a different situation. France is devoting all the energies of her fishing population, both shore and bank, along her coasts and in her North American possessions, to increasing her sea products, and with such success that already cargoes have been disposed of in Greece at a lesser price than is being asked for Newfoundland fish. The contiguity of Portuguese and Spanish ports will doubtless attract the attention of French fishing firms ere long and we may expect to see the tricolor flying over many a cargo of dry cod, caught in Atlantic waters, cured in St. Pierre and Miquelon and shipped from these islands direct to market. The demand for fish is as great as ever it was, but the countries impoverished by the war are not able to afford long prices, and consequently are compelled to buy in the cheapest market. The crippled condition of these countries must not be overlooked in our dealings with them. The old saying that you cannot take a shirt from a naked man, applies quite aptly here.

In going through her period of reconstruction following the war, France is determined to conserve her credit by doing all in the power of the Government to foster and increase local production whether by land or sea. In order to do this it has become necessary for the government to enact that in the fish line, only such as French craft catch will be consumed at home, and that no more money than can be spared will be sent overseas for the purchase of frozen meat. To further encourage the consumption of fish food, large cold storage plants are being erected at St. Pierre, subsidized by the Government, also other smaller plants on the French coast. Shortly all these will be in a position to receive a continuous supply of frozen fish from the Grand Banks—the steam trawlers operating in connection with these plants being fitted with refrigerating chambers—caught and handled throughout by French fishermen, thus creating a greater demand and a bigger consumption and keeping in circulation at home the money which would otherwise go to the rancheros of the Argentine and the sheepherders of Australia for their beef and mutton products. Necessity has solved a problem facing the French Government, and in future it will stick to its text and import no more excessive quantities of meat, but will consume more fish. Fresh cod will thus be introduced into French homes and the demand will be correspondingly great. But that does not mean that the dry fish industry will be abandoned. On the contrary greater efforts will be made to increase this output and extra vessels will be sent to the banks, making St. Pierre their headquarters. Their fish will be cured in the old fashioned way and such as are not required at home will be shipped to the ports of the peninsula and up the Mediterranean, going into direct competition with Newfoundland cargoes. The war ended our practical monopoly of the markets across. To-day we are facing conditions such as never existed before, for the whole world is engaged in the catch and sale of fish, and our numerous rivals are both keen and eager.

Mexico and Newfoundland.

"Mexican Socialists propose setting up a guillotine to execute all journalists. They know what class is protecting the people."—Montreal Daily Star.

The senior Government newspaper of Newfoundland suggests the appointment of censors for the Opposition Press, the purpose of these being to prevent the people from hearing the truth. There is not a great deal of difference in autocrats after all.

An Esperantist lecture was recently given at Montreal by W. Frost, editor of the American Esperantist, who was present at the International Congress of 400 delegates from 25 countries, where ways and means of encouraging Esperanto were discussed. Mr. Frost claims that Esperanto is not the language of any political or other movement, but its simplicity recommends it to those who wish to facilitate international communication for business and other purposes. Big Cement Claim Allowed to Lapse Through Inadvertence—Lucky Watcher Renews Rental on Property.

That there is many a slip twixt the cup and the lip has been amply demonstrated within the past few days, when certain promoters of a big cement claim in Trinity Bay, allowed their interest to lapse with the result that a smarter man than any of them put in his application at the Crown Lands' Office and succeeded to the title, which is now unassailable. To tell the whole story of this transaction would amuse the public, yet would not reflect any credit upon the prime mover and general financier of the original affair, consequently we refrain from making a prominent railway man look more ridiculous than he really appears, and especially when he has to bear the execrations of those who were associated with him in a deal involving close upon a million dollars.

The whole trouble appears to have been caused by the too-cock-sureness of the man who was responsible for renewing the rentals, but doubtless his mind was too much filled with railway commissions and other things apparently of more importance, particularly the general management of the whole line. Be that as it may, other interests were allowed to go into the discard, and a splendid cement proposition in Trinity Bay, into which hundreds of thousands had been put by city speculators, went to another by default, and subscribers to-day are wondering just how it happened. But there it is, and the latest documents in the Crown Lands' Department tell the tale, one which a proper business man will read with disgust, because it shows a state of mind that appears superior to anything ever developed by the proletariat, but unfortunately for the wise-ones, one in which the proletariat showed its superiority over the trained minds of experts, or at least a member of the class did. There is many a heart shakings over the collapse of get-rich-quick notions in the city to-day, and it will be interesting news to the people that one of themselves put the kibosh on a scheme calculated to make a few rich at the expense of the majority.

To epitomise the whole story, it appears that a large mineral claim, a cement property, situated at Trinity Bay, and judged by American experts to be one of the best of the kind in the world, lapsed to the Crown on Saturday last, and has since been taken over by Mr. M. L. Parrell. Some of the most prominent local business men were shareholders in the company that formerly held the property and are indignant that the license was allowed to lapse. The original company was capitalised at a large sum.

When men "advertise" a Sale by talking about it whenever they meet, it's a mighty sure sign that there is something unusual about it.

BIDEL—GRACE.

The Cathedral of St. John the Baptist was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday afternoon when Miss Noelle Desree, daughter of M. and Mme. Edouard Bidel, formerly of St. Pierre, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Mr. Patrick Grace, eldest son of the late John P. and Mrs. Caroline Grace. The bride, who was given away by her father, was very prettily attired in a handsome dress of white satin with veil trimmed with orange blossoms and carried a magnificent bouquet. She was attended by her sister, Miss Marie Bidel, who wore a dress of Japanese blue velvet with black velvet hat. The flower girls, little Misses Margaret and Mary Grace—cousins of the groom, looked very dainty in lavender and pink georgette. Little Miss Isabelle Bidel, sister of the bride, and Miss Jeanne Susor, niece of the bride, wore pink georgette and acted as train-bearers.

The groom was attended by his brother Lieut. W. A. Grace. The ceremony was performed by His Grace Archbishop Roche, assisted by Rev. Fr. Maher and Rev. Dr. Greene. Prof. C. H. Hutton presided at the organ and played the bridal march as the bride entered the church.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Smithville which was attended by upwards of 100 people. After the sumptuous repast provided had been disposed of, the health of the young couple was proposed by Mr. W. J. Higgins, M.H.A., in his usual pleasant and efficient manner, and was responded to by the groom in very happy terms. Mr. John Fenelon, in very felicitous terms, then proposed the health of the bride-maid, which was responded to by Mr. W. A. Grace. The health of the bride's parents was duly honored in a speech by Mr. C. J. Fox, M.H.A., given in the style for which this gentleman is noted. Dancing was then indulged in until 9 p.m., when the young couple left by motor for Holywood, where the honeymoon will be spent. A large number of very beautiful wedding presents were received, testifying to the popularity and esteem of the young couple.

The Telegram desires to add its felicitations, along with the hundreds of others received by Mr. and Mrs. Grace, and to express the hope that the voyage of life will be sailed over pleasant seas and brightened by perpetual sunshine.

The Children's Hospital.

Dear Sir,—The ladies of the W.P.A. have called a public meeting to discuss the advisability of starting another (Children's Hospital, and I cannot any longer refrain from asserting myself, and drawing attention to the fact, that there is a Children's Hospital in St. John's, notwithstanding the repeated statements to the contrary.

The Children's Hospital on King's Bridge Road has been ignored at the previous meetings, but it is still there, and has been fully equipped for this special purpose, at considerable expense, and cannot be allowed to be crowded out without a decided protest, and some opposition, from the medical superintendent.

Yours truly,
N. S. FRASER,
St. John's, Oct. 5th.

Prince of Wales at Bermuda.

U.S. Battleship Joins in Welcome.

Hamilton, Bermuda, October 1.—The Prince of Wales, homeward bound from Australia on the British battle cruiser Renown, arrived here to-day from Antigua, for a three days visit. He was given an enthusiastic welcome.

During his stay the Prince will take part in the concluding ceremonies of Bermuda's tercentenary, which is linked with the Jamestown, Va., tercentenary and those of the sailing of the Pilgrims for America.

The celebration in honor of the Prince, who is concluding his long tour of the British Empire and the United States, took on an international aspect with the presence here for the occasion of Rear Admiral Charles F. Hughes, on board the United States battleship Kansas, and that of a representative of the colony of the Bahamas, Harcourt Malcolm, speaker of the Bahamian House of Assembly.

Virtually every one of Bermuda's 20,000 inhabitants was astir early to-day for the festivities of the Prince's visit. Early this morning the Renown, bearing the Prince and his party, arrived off the northern end of the island, accompanied by the cruiser Calcutta.

Lying at anchor nearby were the Kansas, dressed in holiday attire; the British cruiser Calliope and the survey ship Mutine, both likewise decked for the occasion. As the Renown dropped anchor the Kansas boomed forth a salute of twenty-one guns, and her crew lined the rails.

Immediately the Renown was boarded by Bermuda's Governor, Sir James Willocks, and Rear Admiral Allan F. Everett, commanding the North American and West Indies station, who formally welcomed the Prince to the island.

The party then boarded the Calcutta, which is of suitable draft to permit her navigating the shallow channels, and proceeded to Hamilton, the colony's capital, fifteen miles away. On the trip in, the Royal Salute was fired from the Calcutta as she passed the ancient capital of St. George's, and the Prince was likewise honored with a royal salute from the batteries ashore.

Father's Advice.

"Well," cried Mrs. Henpeck, "our son is engaged to be married. We will write to the dear lad and congratulate him."

Mr. Henpeck agreed (he dare not do otherwise), and his wife picked up her pen.

"My darling boy," read the son, "what glorious news! Your father and I rejoice in your happiness. It has long been our greatest wish that you should marry some good woman. A good woman is heaven's most precious gift to man. She brings out all the best in him and helps him to suppress all that is evil."

Then there was a postscript in a different handwriting: "Your mother has gone for a stamp. Keep single, you young noodle."

His Wit Rewarded.

An honest rustic went into the shop of a Quaker to buy a hat, for which fifteen shillings were demanded. He offered twelve.

"As I live," said the Quaker, "I cannot afford to sell it thee at that price." "As you live!" exclaimed the countryman. "Then live more moderately and be hanged to you!"

"Friend," said the Quaker, "I have sold hats for twenty years and my 'As I live' trick has never been found out till now; thou shalt have the hat for nothing."

Mr. P. C. Mars Returns From Business Trip.
Mr. Peter C. Mars of P. C. Mars & Co., who was on a business trip to Europe returned by Digby after an absence of ten weeks, during which time he visited France, Italy, Austria and Hungary and passed through Germany on his way to Austria. In the latter place business depression is very noticeable, labor being cheap and first class tradesmen are getting about 2 shillings per day. A suit of clothes can be made in Austria for ten shillings. Mr. Mars was in Milan when the workmen who were refused increases took over the factories and ran them themselves. Passing through Germany all the orchards and farms were in full cultivation but for every man employed there were three women. In occupied Germany the Huns keep up propaganda work and talk starvation and oppression and especially to visitors.

The Irish Situation.

PRESENTED BY MISS HUGHES.
Large Audience Hears Interesting Lecture.

Miss Katherine Hughes who has been touring Canada lecturing on Irish affairs and self determination of small nations spoke for upwards of two hours to more than 1000 auditors in the Methodist College Hall last night. Mr. I. C. Morris occupied the chair and introducing Miss Hughes prefaced his remarks by informing the audience that the lecture would be treated from a non-sectarian view point, and treated solely on its merits. Miss Hughes in opening said the realities and horrors of war had made a tremendous change of hearts from the material and selfish to other things. The soldiers in Canada in particular felt the need of accomplishing the aim of world brotherhood and liberty. The story "In Flanders Fields" exemplifies this feeling. It is for us who carry the torch. It is for us who live in brotherhood to set the example to the world and to free the world. We of the Dominion are by our own history eminently fitted to judge. In Canada the people, Miss Hughes said, are becoming more and more convinced of the right of Ireland to that self determination for which the Canadian soldiers fought to ensure to all small nations. Only recently she had met a mother in Calgary who had lost her son in the war, and though of Scottish extraction she wished that the aims for which her boy gave his life be exemplified in the case of Ireland. Miss Hughes then went on to deal with conditions in Ireland and announced to the meeting that with the exception of one Frenchman all the authorities on which she would reply to prove her case for Ireland would be English statesmen and publicists. The one Frenchman introduced into the lecture was Albert Thomas, Progressive, and a minister at the Peace Conference who advocated that the French people press for the recognition of the Irish Republic. Opinions of Arthur Henderson, Lord Leverhulme, Gilbert Chesterton, J. K. Jerome, Sir Phillip Gibbs, H. W. Dennison, H. H. Asquith, Sir H. Samuels, Capt. Wedgwood Benson as to the government of Ireland and the action of the British government (not the British people) in not acceding to the demands of Ireland were freely quoted by Miss Hughes. Expressions of opinion from the English press were given at length. Miss Hughes also gave a brief account of her visits to Ireland, before and during the world war. The alarming stories of religious war in Ireland she repudiated and showed that the troubles in Ireland were the outcome of politics and propaganda which appealed to the uneducated classes. Miss Hughes quoting from some of England's most eminent writers and Colonial correspondents to the big English papers showed how they all held the opinion that it was to England's immediate self interest to settle the Irish question in a manner satisfactory to the Irish people. Miss Hughes continuing drew a parallel between Ireland and some of the other smaller nations. Ireland though twice as large as some and with a revenue much larger was governed against her wishes, her development was neglected and her education grant per capita reduced to the minimum. Last current year Ireland's revenues according to British statistics amounted to $186,000,000. Out of this Ireland was given back $62,000,000 for civil purposes. The balance $124,000,000 there was no accounting for. In that year police protection cost Ireland $5.00 per capita and education $3.00. The American Indian who pays his taxes to the U.S.A., the same year was handed back $14.00 per head for education. Under these conditions it was easy to see why so much illiteracy prevailed in Ireland. Miss Hughes dealing with the land purchase act rendered some facts and figures to prove that while it conferred a benefit on the Irish people the British government were not only not losing on the transaction but making a profit. Irish emigration was also touched on, a period of 70 years being covered. There is no emigration from Ireland at present and according to Miss Hughes there is not going to be. Referring to the part Ireland played in the war, Miss Hughes produced facts to prove that previous to the 1916 Easter outbreak Ireland had given 6 per cent. of its population to the cause, while Canada had only given 5 per cent. and America during her period in the war 4 per cent. The conscription period was also dealt with. Ireland then was reaching the stage where none but old men of the country were being left at home, and to save the nation some of the wiser ones had protested. The protest came from all classes. The rise of the Sinn Fein and its growth was dealt with by Miss Hughes. It has swept everything before it and it is not possible to check its progress without resorting to the further spilling of blood. Stories in connection with present conditions in Ireland were also told. Miss Hughes exhibiting both sides of the shield. Alleged outrages, raids, assaults, court martials, arrests and deportations were detailed, a complete account of the famous Maurice Collins case being given. In concluding Miss Hughes who is a speaker of no mean ability, and with a full knowledge of her subject made a stirring appeal on behalf of the land of her forebears. At the close of the address, cards were signed by practically all those present praying that Ireland be granted self determination. The National Anthem brought the meeting to a close at 11 o'clock.

When the Court Laughs.

A musical clock from Germany, found by the Customs officers concealed on a ship, entertained the Tower Bridge Court the other day. It was supposed to play the National Anthem, and an exhibition of its powers was given by request. Unfortunately, it persisted in giving a medley of Irish airs in funeral time, in which stray notes of "Kathleen Mavourneen" were mixed with equally stray notes of "Killarney" and the "Minstrel Boy."

"That's the worst rendering of the National Anthem I have ever heard," said the Magistrate. When put back into its box the clock continued to play in jerks, and the witness had to wait until it ran down before he could proceed with his evidence.

Following the boat race, a game of "Sieve-O" enlivened an up-river police-court. A police officer saw some boys and young men trying vainly to throw marbles into two sieves, which stood at an angle of about thirty degrees. But the prisoner was an expert at it. He could show them how it was done. He charged the boys a penny for two throws, and was offering watches as prizes to those who succeeded.

The magistrate told the prisoner to set up his sleeves and show him if marbles could be thrown into them. The man did so well that the magistrate remarked presently:

"At that rate you would be giving watches away all day." But he added: "Pay five shillings."

Then Caruso "obliged." There was a gramophone case in the courts the other week, and the judge asked what airs the instrument would play, and whether such great artists as Melba, Caruso, Tetravzini, could be induced to perform.

The answer being in the affirmative the judge said: "Don't have a common song; play something nice." So Caruso was set to sing "Queen of the Earth," his honor listening with great attention.

A Jack-in-the-Box caused much laughter in the Probate Court one morning when Sir Edward Carson released the spring and Jack popped up. There were a lot of other toys on the table, and when the judge asked what should be done with them, Sir Edward suggested caustically that they should be sent to the Athenaeum Club.

Then he produced a bundle of toy-books, and read some verses from them to the judge and jury. In his best House of Commons voice he recited this charming-verse:

"Little Tommy Tomkins
 Ran down the lake;
 Never let his hoop fall,
 Then ran back again."

When the laughter evoked by this pretty wit had subsided, Sir Edward gave the court another tit-bit:

"Elsie Tomkins, grown so fine,
 She won't get up to feed the swine."
 The case was one of alleged senile decay, or second childhood, and a disputed will, and toys of all sorts, including dogs and dolls, a rabbit and a ball, were produced as evidence before the court.—Answers.

Fluid Fuel From Straw.

Before very long every farmer may make his own fluid fuel for lighting, heating, running farm machinery and other purposes.

This has no reference to alcohol, but to a substitute for gasoline derivable from straw and other farm wastes by destructive distillation. The United States department of agriculture is now making experiments looking to the development of a simple and inexpensive apparatus for the purpose, which will render the farmer independent of the oil monopoly for all time to come.

The apparatus in question, complete in itself—a "farm unit" as the experts call it—will consist of a retort, a "scrubber" and a condenser. It will cost only about $250, and will be so constructed as to be fool-proof. This implies that anybody can run it and keep it in order. All that need be supplied is heat and straw for other vegetable waste), and the machine will do the rest.

As yet the experiments have been restricted to straw, but they will presently be extended to include corn stalks and leaves, cotton stalks, sugar cane refuse and other material.

The most important application of the idea now in view is in the west, where fuel is scarce and where the straw discarded by threshing machines is customarily burned to get rid of it, there being no accessible market for this waste product, so enormous in total quantity. If by the aid of simple mechanical apparatus this straw can be made to yield a fluid equivalent to gasoline it will solve a great economic problem.

The process of destructive distillation yields a gas, which in the condenser is converted into a liquid. It may even be transformed into a solid; and the experts think that possibly it may be utilized to best advantage in this shape.

It has gone far enough, however, to convince the investigators of the practicability of the idea. They have even run a motor car with straw gas contained in a huge bag attached to the car.

Beyond the first cost of the outfit, the farmer will be at no expense for his field oil, inasmuch as the waste

KIRK'S FLAKE WHITE SOAP
Than in Cheaper Cakes of Larger Size

Don't make the mistake of buying Soap by the pound or by the cheapness of price. An honest soap cannot be made cheap. The fillers in cheap soaps deceive and the adulterants in them injure the clothes and hands.

A solid white cake of pure, honest soap is KIRK'S FLAKE WHITE.

And the cake form is the most economical form for a soap. Breaking a soap up into this or that form, to suit a passing fancy, doesn't make it any better, unless it is pure soap in the first place.

If you would be fair to your daintiest clothes, try such cheap or fancy soaps, for which so much is claimed, on the delicate skin of your face.

Flake White is so pure and neutral that it is used for bath, toilet and shampoo just as well as for the finest fabrics.

Even in cold or hot water it washes safely and with thoroughness and ease, and always leaves the clothes lily white, sweet smelling and clean.
