"Our Daily Bread."

Mr. Editor: Probably the most effective answer that has been made to your article with the above heading, in your issue of April 28, would be to have the public financial position of the bakers of Toronto. How many of them are actually bankrupt?

Not in the Fight.

The World is not in the newspaper fight now raging in this city. The war is confined to the evening papers: Globe, Mail, Telegram, News.

Putting the Last First.

Once every four years the two great political parties over the border hold their respective conventions, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the presidency.

Our correspondent gets away from the question raised by the World, namely: Why is bread so high when wheat is so cheap, and why is the law fixing the weight of a loaf of bread so constantly evaded?

He has not answered either of these points, but tells us that bakers do not make money, are in fact notoriously hard up. We did not deny that the baker was poor, but we asked why bread is dear, why bread is light.

Our correspondent gets away from the question raised by the World, namely: Why is bread so high when wheat is so cheap, and why is the law fixing the weight of a loaf of bread so constantly evaded?

We shall in a measure try to answer the question through our correspondent with his thirty-six years' experience. It ought to be much better. Let us admit what appears to be the fact, that the bakers are poor men. But they are poor, we think, from their way of doing business, not from the low prices at which they sell bread.

A Long Time Between Drinks.

Tetotalitarians assure us that every season is a good one in which to quit imbibing alcoholic drinks. We shall not dispute the correctness of their opinion, deeming it more modest as well as more liberal to permit every man to decide that point for himself.

Now, Mr. Edmunds cannot by any means be called a "dark horse," or an undistinguished mediocrity, for he is one of the ablest men in the national senate, and the present leader there on the republican side.

Now, Mr. Edmunds cannot by any means be called a "dark horse," or an undistinguished mediocrity, for he is one of the ablest men in the national senate, and the present leader there on the republican side. But the tendency of American conventions to fall back on the candidate who has at first the least number of votes is strikingly exemplified.

Morals by Act of Parliament.

A city contemporary assumes that if seduction and adultery were made crimes at law such events as the Hackett-Alkins tragedy would not occur.

So far back as 1826 Spain offered to cede the colony to the United States in consideration of certain commercial concessions, but no bargain was struck, the cute Yankees, no doubt, regarding the island as a ripening apple which must inevitably fall into their country's open mouth.

The aggressors in the case mentioned know no law, human or divine, save the impulsive government of their own unbridled passions. It is always so. The "Thou shalt not commit adultery" of the Bible is not a moral principle, but a mere injunction to the christian that anything inspired by any Canadian legislator could possibly be; yet men like Hackett, who undoubtedly believe in the existence of God, and heaven, and hell, do not hesitate to disobey that divine command. Nor are any such men sensible of the danger of temporal punishment which they incur. They know that rule often follows in the track of such transgressions, ruinable to him, Hackett heartlessly, blighted lives, dispersed children, and behind all crowns the deadly weapon of the outraged husband. When none of these considerations restrain them, of what effect would be the possibility of a term in prison? Of none at all. Again, the woman, who has most to lose, is often the greater sinner of the two, yet the wrath of the legislative moralist is to be expended chiefly, if not solely, upon one of the parties to the crime. This will never do. If there had been a score of legal penalties available to him, Hackett would not have passed this thing, but rather than the provocation which he sustained. Purity of heart is not dependent upon acts of parliament, and without such purity temptation and opportunity cannot be resisted. There are as many souls ruined by impurity as by intemperance. The evil calls for plain speaking in the churches rather than for debates in the legislatures. And still better is purity to be inculcated in the education and rearing of youth.

The Shagman's Hope.

A great many wise and good men think that capital punishment is not a capital thing, and Philip, the Detroit wife-murderer, is a noble exception to the rule. It is a noble opinion. The beautiful stream that flows between Windsor and Detroit is in a very veritable river of death. Hanging him and better is purity to be inculcated in the education and rearing of youth.

William S. Lord in Chicago Unity. The flower that lifts its smiling face to heaven is not the least of the things that are to be accomplished peacefully, by purchase or mutual concession, neither England nor France could raise any serious objection, while an attempt at forcible acquisition would probably provoke their joint intervention. But American authorities may overreach themselves winking at filibustering expeditions in the hope of wearying Spain into a deal. A Spanish beggar is prouder than an American merchant, and Spanish pride can be sooner provoked to fight than that of the Spaniard. The Spanish navy to be despised by a country with a vast seaboard, whose tars are sent to sea after the fashion of the three wise men of Gotham.

Are Canadian Girls Inclined. The London World, in a leading article, is very severe on American girls. It says that they are showy, restless, and totally devoid of all repose and personal dignity; that they have no idea of the carriage of a lady; that their only idea is to be "smart" and piquant, but that they lack the real graces of womanhood. American civilization, the writer says, is destined to develop an inferior type of woman, whose influence on the future will tend toward the development of an inferiority in future generations, both mental and physical.

The Difference. From the Detroit Free Press. "Hello, United States!" "Hello, Ontario!" "Please return us one Luke Phipps, a fugitive from justice."

"All right, but treat him tenderly. His only offence was murdering his wife, the proper punishment for which is a three weeks' trial for emotional insanity, you know."

"All right, United States; we will be merciful. The accused shall have an all-day trial, and, if guilty, provided with a sure cure for emotional insanity, composed of Kentucky hemp, you know."

The Landlady's Vulnerable. From the Philadelphia Call. Dumley wanted to stand his landlady off for a couple of weeks' board, and so at the breakfast table he said in a loud tone of voice:

"Ah, Mrs. Hendricks!" "Yes, Mr. Dumley."

"Ah, will you be kind enough to pour a little cold water in my coffee? It is too strong and hot."

After breakfast she said: "Certainly, Mr. Dumley, I will accommodate you willingly."

Little Laughs. A milkman who imagined that he was unobserved was seen recently patting a pump on the back in a most affectionate manner.

"It's best they're married," whispered Tom to Charley, in reference to a couple on the other side of the car. "They haven't spoken ten words, either of them, since they came in, and not so much as a single smile has lighted up his face or hers. Yes, sir, you can make up your mind they are married. You can't always judge by appearances, Tom," replied Charley. "They are not married. She is a thief and he is an officer carrying her off to jail."

A Very Funny Man. From the Philadelphia Call. "Can you point me a sign at once?" "Yes; what kind of a sign do you want?" "A sign of rain."

A cloud lowered on the painter's brow, and, fearing an immediate storm, the humorist left.

A Model Man. From the Hotel Mail. A young fellow claimed that her husband was a model man. And he was. His occupation was making dummies for clothing stores.

A few days after the fall of Sedan Bismarck received from his cousin a letter, from which he read: "I fear that you will not find any bibles in France, and therefore, shall send you the psalm book, so that you may read the prophecy against the French: 'I say to you the godless shall be exterminated.'"

Mme. Octave Feuillet has been the victim of an unpleasant adventure. The wife of the celebrated French author is known to have a passion for objects of virtue. Some days ago, entering a house in the Rue des Martyrs, she addressed the porter: "Have you not a curiosity or interesting thing here?" The porter replied: "No, in a very true sense. 'Yes, I was directed to this house. Are you quite sure?"

The porter looked sharply at his questioner, and, suddenly jumping up, he rushed on her and seized her by the throat. "Ah! it's you that come stealing the door mats! I've got hold of you at last! I know you again! Now you shall not escape!"

place at the head of my table. "Certainly," said the unshamed U. P. "Come! I'll give you a thousand of the handsomest women in London to choose from."

"They got in a cab and went to Nos. 31, 33, 35, 37, 39, 41, 43, 45, 47, 49, 51, 53 and 55, Westbourne Grove, fully ninety per cent."

"Just indicate your preference," said W. W., as the two walked arm in arm along the seemingly interminable corridors among the pretty lady clerks, for W. W. never had a girl behind his counters who was not handsome. All were dressed in dazzling costumes of black silk. The gentleman soon found one that suited him and Mr. Whately said to the girl: "Miss -- this is Mr. Edwards-Pond, he is rich and has no friends or acquaintances. He has an elegant house in Bayswater and he wants a wife. Will you marry him?"

She married him.

No Land in Sight. From the Arkansas Transfer. "I expected to find the Arkansas to be a much wider stream," remarked the newly arrived visitor.

"It's low now," replied a bystander, "but I have been out in a boat when I couldn't see land on either side."

"Below here in the bottom, I suppose."

"No, here."

"Why this town is on a bluff. You don't mean to say that you saw it over-looked?"

"Oh, no."

"Then, hang it, you could see land on one side at least."

"No, I couldn't, for it was night, you know."

"I've been looking for a fool. Come, let's take a drink."

Catarrah - A New Treatment. Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrah. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefited, while the patient, medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all.

Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the cause is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrah is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrah in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrah.

The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrah. - Montreal Star.

HEAD OFFICE TORONTO. The special features of this Company are its Tontine Investment and Semi-Tontine Investment Policy and its Commercial Endowment Policy.

The first two secure a large return for the money invested, while the latter yields maximum insurance for minimum outlay.

By its Tontine Investment the great protection of life insurance is furnished for payments called for only as deaths occur.

Pay as you go, and get what you pay for, as in life insurance. This plan places reliable life insurance within the reach of all, at an estimated cost of about 50 per cent of the lowest ordinary life rates.

OPINION OF AN EMINENT CONSULTING ACTUARY. Wm. McCABE, Esq., Consulting Actuary. Messrs. Rogers & Co., North American Life Assurance Company, Toronto, Ont.

DEAR SIR, - I have carefully examined your new Commercial Endowment Policy, and the special features of this Company are its Tontine Investment and Semi-Tontine Investment Policy, by which the assured pays as he goes, and gets what he pays for, with small charges to secure an endowment payable at the economical festival of insurance by natural means. Life Insurance more expensive, and yet make the Company secure by the Endowment feature. The plan ought to attract business, as it is both economical and safe.

Very truly yours, SHEPPARD HOBAN, Consulting Actuary.
