"A FARMER'S MISTAKE"

A Short Story, but True

He lived within ten miles of Florenceville and he bought his Vitriol, Paris Green, Arsenoid and Haying Tools without first getting S. W. Smith's prices—and he had a telephone in his house, too. Later, his neighbor, who did not make the same "mistake," told him what he got these goods for at Mr. Smith's. Then the farmer who forgot to use his phone felt very bad, for he found he had lost money by his mistake, and he promised himself never to make that mistake again whenever he wanted to buy anything in general merchandise.

EAST FLORENCEVILLE AND PATRIOTISM

The call of the Lieutenant governor to the people of New Brunswick to signalize the second anniversary of the war by fitting popular action was loyally responded to at East Florenceville on Friday. A strong committee of citizens, with B. Frank Smith, M. L. A., as chairman, organized and carried into effect a large and impressive open air demonstration. The gathering was one of the largest which this section has seen in many years. The local member for the county opened his spacious grounds for the occasion, being ably seconded by Mrs. Smith who was unsparing in her efforts to make her numerous guests feel fully at home. It is estimated that nearly fifteen hundred people accepted the invitation to be present. The country was represented for a distance of twenty-five miles around Florenceville. Over a section from Hartland to Johnville, including the villages of Stickney, Bath, Bristol and Centreville with the intervening country, citizens came to join in the big patriotic demonstration on August fourth. About sixty automobiles and chains of carriages filled the grounds adjoining the property. The rostrum was located in the upper balcony of the house. Mr. Smith, himself, as master of ceremonies conducted the demonstration with dignity and effectiveness. A fine program held the interest of the crowd for over two hours. With the chairman on the balcony were clergymen from the various sections, including Rev. Father Coughlan of Johnville; Revs. E. C. Jenkins, M. H. Manual and G. A. Ross. County Councillor F. M. Tompkins and other prominent citizens also occupied seats on the platform. The Hartland brass band interspersed the program with stirring martial selections from their stand in the centre of the lawn. The grounds impressed all beholders as a most appropriate setting for an occasion such as they were called to celebrate. They had been lighted and decorated with considerable labor. The front of the house was a flare of flags and bunting, the numerous trees around the property also being festooned with the imperial red, white and blue. A maze of Japanese lanterns and gas lights supplemented by the lamps of the numerous autos arranged for the purpose poured light upon the scene—the whole a tribute to the taste and energy of F. T. Atkinson of the grounds committee.

Lieut. Harvey T. Reid of Hartland, present by special invitation, was given a rousing welcome by his fellow citizens of his native county. Lieut. Reid launched the celebration in a stirring speech. The resolution issued by the lieutenant governor in which the public were asked to express their sentiments with respect to the continuance of the war was presented by the Rev. G. A. Ross being seconded by the Rev. E. C. Jenkins in a brief but telling speech. Whatever was lacking in the atmosphere favorable to the enthusiastic adoption of this resolution was supplied by Lieut. Reid's address. The geographical distance between the roaring battle front and this peaceful province was bridged by the wounded officer's graphic description of our soldiers' work in France and his inspiring exhortation to the audience to stand behind the army which was so sure to be victorious. The putting of the resolution to the audience was greeted by demonstrations of enthusiasm which, reinforced by the tooting sirens of the massed autos, made the welkin ring.

The celebration was directed to a more practical issue by the presentation of a second resolution by Mr. Smith having to do with aid for the Patriotic Fund.

The resolution was as follows: "Resolved, That we, the citizens of East Florenceville and vicinity assembled here, request that the municipal council of this municipality call a special session for the purpose of voting a sum of money to be devoted to the Patriotic Fund, and we would request that the amount be ten thousand dollars for which short term bonds shall be issued payable at the rate of one thousand per annum."

This also was unanimously adopted. Rev. Father Coughlan, Councillor Tompkins and others spoke in support of this resolution. The hat was passed on the spot for contributions to the fund and a goodly sum was realized. —Contributed.

George Little

George Little, senior member of the firm of Burpee & Little, died at the Fisher Hospital Sunday after an operation for appendicitis. His family lived in Waweig, Charlotte county, and his mother, brother and sister were with him at the time of his death.

Mr. Little was one of the proprietors of the Sanitary Dairy, and the business only established a few months ago had already become one of the town's important industrial concerns. He was of an energetic nature, and a factor in the success of his business venture. He is about 34 years of age. Interment was at his old home.

John J. Harrison

Word has been received of the death, at Tay Settlement, last Friday of John J. Harrison, aged 64 years. Deceased who resided with his daughter, Mrs. Henry Thomas, had been ill for four years with stomach trouble. He is survived by a widow, three sons, Andrew and John of Plaster Rock, and William of St. John, and three daughters, Mrs. Thomas of Tay Settlement; Mrs. Harry Cook and Mrs. David Stickles of St. Marys. Six brothers also survive, Andrew, Edward and Thomas of St. Marys, William in the west, Alexander, of Stanley, and Winthrop of Plaster Rock.

WEDDED FIFTY YEARS

Fifty years of wedded life is ample time to test the ancient question, "is marriage a failure." The case of Mr. and Mrs. S. Haydon Shaw who celebrated their golden wedding last Wednesday proves that at least from the great standpoint of conjugal felicity marriage is a decided success.

The happy event was celebrated at the home of their adopted daughter, Mrs. G. Berton Nixon of Somerville, and in the same room of the house where 50 years ago they were made man and wife. About 60 guests were assembled, those from a distance being Rev. and Mrs. S. A. Baker (Fredericton), Rev. and Mrs. G. S. Wiggins, Rev. and Mrs. B. Colpitt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sanborn (Woodstock), Mr. and Mrs. Otis Shaw (Chester), Mrs. Joseph Shaw, Mrs. James Jones (Bath).

The pastor, Rev. P. J. Trafton, officiated as chairman and a program consisted of short speeches from the ministers and from those who were present at the wedding of long ago. These were B. N. Shaw of Victoria and Walter Shaw, who was then a very small boy.

An interesting feature was the appearance of Miss Nellie Nixon wearing the dress in which the mother of the fifty-years bride was married 77 years ago. The dress was in the style of the period, low neck, short puffed sleeves, high bodice, and was of brown brocaded silk. Miss Nixon also sang sweetly the old ballad, "When you and I were young, Maggie."

As is usual on such occasions the gifts were mostly in gold coins, although among the remembrances was a beautiful sunburst of pearls from Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bowser and H. C. Cochrane.

Dainty refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening was spent by old friends who had not met for years and who in no human probability will meet together again in this world.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw have lived in Hartland practically the whole of their wedded life, and have been identified with all good enterprises. Both have spent their lives actively in church and Sunday school work.

The Observer wishes the aging couple many more years of life together; and the wish is shared by a host of friends.

Got Substantial Verdict

In the case of Pankhurst vs Smith, a case recently tried under the Workman's Compensation Act, wherein Thomas Pankhurst of Hartland and Fred Smith of Coldstream for the disablement of his left hand, the plaintiff was awarded $1,500 to be paid in weekly instalments of $7.50. Pankhurst injured his hand while at work in the defendant's saw mill at Coldstream last winter. Mr. Smith offered a sum of money intended to be sufficient to cover surgical attendance and loss of time, and a permanent job at the wages the plaintiff had been receiving. Pankhurst refused the compromise and going to law secured the verdict as stated. W. P. Jones, K. C., for the plaintiff; J. C. Hartley, K. C., and M. L. Hayward, LL.B., for the defendant.

Prints, gingham and all lines of cotton goods, including hose and underwear, have advanced in price from 15 p.c. to 50 p.c. We are still selling at the old price at Baird's.

THE TALE OF A JUDGESHIP

Again in The Standard one day last week appeared the work of the special and peculiar correspondent, signed on this occasion by "A Woodstock Anti-Carvellite." There are Tories in Hartland who imagine they have journalistic ability, but granting their imagination is based on fact, they lack journalistic decency. Some of these have denied any connection whatever with the nom de plume "Anti-Carvellite," and their anxious desire that the public should know they were guiltless, was inspiration for an editorial in this paper last week which practically let them out of suspicion. The following day, however, The Standard appeared with the "tale of a hat," the telling of which bears the earmarks of that brilliant coterie whose combined intelligence created some years ago a little publication called "The Lampoon." The dictionary gives the meaning of the word as "a personal satire in writing, usually malicious or abusive." The typewritten Lampoon was true to name. Its makers were individuals old enough to be men but whose puerility is such that, in spite of good schooling, should they attain the years of Methuselah they will still possess the boyish minds and immature judgment of children. They furthermore attempt brilliant sallies of wit and in the school-boy phrase "they think they're smart." Lacking any natural sense of humor the result of their efforts is mere nastiness.

So it is with the "Woodstock Anti-Carvellite" whose style is so closely identified with the authors of The Lampoon.

The whole result of that herculean effort is that an entire lack of argument is manifest among the Tory scibblers. They relate how F. B. Carvell entered the political arena at the time when H. H. McCain and C. L. Smith represented the county at Fredericton, and how he forged rapidly to the fore-front, and they aver, had so surely the hope of being made Speaker of the Legislature that he ordered an official hat. All of this may be true. The Observer does not know if it is or is not; it is no more relevant to good statesmanship and good government than the ancient question, "How old is Ann." There is one certainty: Mr. Carvell's disappointment but tried his mettle. It did not sour him on his party.

We know another legal luminary who at a little later time thought the office of Judge of Probates was about due to fall to him—but it didn't land in the right place, and because it did not, and because the expectant one did not loom so large in the view of F. B. Carvell, or of any one else, as did the image reflected to him in his mirror, the aforesaid expectant one deserted his party and was taken into the bosom of the Tory grafters, where he remains, seemingly content.

More could be written in criticism of this tale of a hat—but paper and ink are too dear.

TWO NEAR-FATALITIES

While his car was turned out to permit another to pass him, Bliss Foster of Lansdowne was run into by a swiftly moving car coming in the opposite direction. The driver of the last car had his machine demolished and he was badly cut about the head. The accident occurred near Robinson, Me., on Sunday. It is stated by an eye-witness that Foster turned to the left, according to rule, to permit the car behind to run past. This took place near the crest of a hill. The third car was not seen in time for Foster to run to the right side of the road and the other driver, coming over the hill at a rapid rate, ran squarely into him.

So far as can be learned Foster was not responsible for the near-fatality, nevertheless he was arrested and the whole party was held by Maine officers for several days.

Yesterday, on the road between Andover and Fort Fairfield, about a mile this side of the boundary line, two big new cars came together in full head-on collision. The result of both drivers turning out on the same side of the road. The cars were badly wrecked but no one was injured. That all escaped seems miraculous.

August 4 in Hartland

The second anniversary of the entry of Great Britain into the war was observed in Hartland by a special prayer service and sermon by Rev. N. Franchette, Church of England. The order of service prescribed for the day was specially impressive.

In the evening there was a mass meeting in the Methodist church, at which Rev. G. S. Helps, the pastor, presided and Rev. N. Franchette took part. Prof. W. F. Watson addressed the audience on various phases of the war and was listened to with attention. Mrs. E. M. Gil-land sang a solo and a special choir rendered the hymns. The church was fittingly decorated. At the close a collection amounting to $9.75 was taken up for the Patriotic Fund.

The attendance at both services was lamentably small, but small audience in the evening is ascribed to the fact that a great number of village people went to the more imposing demonstration at East Florenceville.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

Mrs. Eliza Kimball Marsh

Died, at the home of Mrs. Fraser London of Armand on Aug. 4, Mrs. Eliza Kimball Marsh aged 90 years and seven months.

Left an orphan early in life, she spent a part of her girlhood days with her brother, the late Robert Nixon of Lower Brighton. Here she married George Kimball and with him moving to the district now known as Armand, which was then an unbroken wilderness she endured the hardships incident to the early settlers of those times cheerfully and with courage, and assisted her husband in making themselves a home in this new country.

Eight children were born to them and grew to man and womanhood. One by one she saw her children and husband sickened and die until but one, Wilmot, was left in the old home.

Twenty years ago she married G. L. Marsh. After his death she returned to the homestead and lived on the farm which she had helped to redeem from the wilderness. She was a friend to everyone and beloved by all. During the last seven months of her life she was tenderly cared for by her grand-daughter, Mrs. Fraser London. She and her family were untiring in their efforts to minister to her comfort and well-being. She is survived by one son, twenty-four grandchildren, sixty great-grand children and numerous other relatives. By her request Rev. G. A. Giberson attended her funeral and preached an impressive sermon from 2 Timothy 2-19 to a large and attentive congregation. She was carried to the cemetery by her four grandsons, Leighton, Miles, Willie and Guy Kimball, where they laid her away in her "earthly shape from earthly eyes forever" in the sure hope of a glorious resurrection.

The highways are left in deplorable condition. Hay that was cut three weeks ago is still blackening in the fields.

DR. LEE W. BURTT DIED FROM POISON

Sad news reached Centreville when S. W. Burtt received a telegram that his eldest son, Dr. Lee W. Burtt, of Lancaster, Cal., had died from illness attributed to ptomaine poisoning. Memorial service was held at his father's residence on Wednesday, July 19. Rev. W. J. Hurlow officiated, assisted by Rev. J. Johnston and Rev. H. F. Rigby.

The Los Angeles Times has the following regarding Dr. Burtt's death:

Died, at his home in Lancaster Monday morning, at 7 o'clock, July 17, following a brief illness attributed to ptomaine poisoning, Dr. Lee William Burtt, aged thirty years, one month. Funeral services were held in Los Angeles, from the undertaking parlors of Garrett & Company Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. John Bentzien, assistant pastor of the Temple Baptist church, of Los Angeles, officiating, after which the remains were interred in the Hollywood cemetery.

Dr. Lee W. Burtt was given a Masonic burial. The elaborate and impressive services were in charge of Lodge No. 437, of Lancaster, of which the deceased was a prominent member.

In the beautiful Hollywood cemetery, at a grave embanked with massive piles of floral offerings, the return of dust to dust was affectingly solemnized by the impressive Masonic burial ritual, and the fraternal right hand of Free and Accepted Masonry was extended in sympathy and consolation to the bereaved widow and relatives. The services at the grave were conducted by T. Purdy, past master of South Gate Lodge, assisted by R. E. Dill, lodge inspector of this district.

Dr. Burtt was the first member of the local Masonic lodge to be summoned to the celestial lodge on high.

In tribute to the memory of the deceased, no less than fifty residents of this community made the trip to Los Angeles to attend the burial of Dr. Burtt, and in further token of esteem the stores and business houses of Lancaster closed for an hour in the morning of the day of the funeral.

Dr. Lee W. Burtt was born in Centreville, June 17, 1883. In June, 1905, at the age of twenty-two years he graduated from the University of California as an M. D.; the following year he graduated in pharmacy at the same institution; and later supplemented his medical education by taking a post-graduate course in medicine at the West London hospital, London, England. Returning to Los Angeles he entered the general practice, building up a large clientele. In 1912 he was united in marriage with Miss Bessie Wiseman, who survives him.

Dr. Burtt moved to Lancaster from Los Angeles about three and a half years ago, hoping that the change of climate would benefit his health. Here he continued the practice of his profession and in addition opened a drug store soon after his arrival. Financial success attended his efforts.

At his death, Dr. Burtt was a director of the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce, a stockholder in the Antelope Valley Bank, and the owner of the Lancaster Pharmacy, and also of town property of considerable value.

Dr. Burtt belonged to the Masonic order, the Elks and the Foresters.

The deceased is survived by a widow, his father and mother, who live in Centreville, two bro-

Don't Be Dyspeptic

The dyspeptic has thought only of the stomach when the real source of trouble is in the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cleanse and purify the digestive and excretory system and in this way put the organs of digestion into splendid working condition. A little patient urging on of these organs when sluggish will restore the habit of healthful digestion.
