Truth Is Sometimes Stranger than Fiction.

There has come to light a wonderful case of restoration to health, at Lakeview, Ontario, N. B. The particulars were first given out Feb. 3, 1894, and are as follows: Mrs. B. Upton, of that place, had fits, five or six a month and sometimes fifteen a day, for five or six years. Five physicians treated her for her chief trouble--severe and chronic indigestion and inability to retain food on her stomach. In the spring of '93 she commenced to take "Grosler's Syrup." Since then she has had no symptoms of fits, her general health has wonderfully improved and she "eats anything."
She took five bottles "Grosler's"--and will make oath to the above statements if necessary. The lady who sold her this sterling medicine, Miss F. L. Topley, says: "I have known Mrs. Upton for over fifteen years, and I know the above statements to be true in every particular."
Your health may demand the use of Grosler's Syrup.

Miss Frances E. Willard authoritatively brands as untrue the report that she used wine at a recent dinner at Chautauque. She says it was only grape juice that a "teetotaler's" doctor of divinity gave her.

The Prince of Wales says that "Robinson Crusoe" was the favorite book of his childhood. Mr. Ruskin's chief delight in his youth was the "Arabian Nights."

Ex-Senator Ingalls dropped this epigram in a recent Kansas speech: "It would be better for the country if women entered politics, but not so good for the women."

Alva H. Root, a young man, who ten years ago lost his left leg above the knee and his right just below the knee, proposes to cross the continent on a bicycle. Root has been riding a wheel for two seasons, but has never done any long distance riding. John Porcher, of Batavia, another footless man, will accompany him.

"I'll take a little of everything," said Taddles to the waiter, after glancing over the bill-of-fare at the restaurant. "Yes, sir," said the waiter who straightway brought a plate of hash.

on his own resources, and lived by his wits. When he was hungry he stole food, and so he was put into the reformatory. And he told her of those dreadful hot-beds of crime the reformatories sometimes were when not in the hands of good people. "Oh! Mrs. Atkinson," he said, "I hear they are going to have a reformatory in St. John. See to it that the good women visit the reformatory and that the work is not left to a committee, and if there are any boys in Moncton, motherless boys, who have no home to go to when they are hungry, look after them. Oh! Mrs. Atkinson have the boys!"
Mrs. Atkinson had sent word for her friends to come for her five minutes before the execution so that she would have time to get away from the horrible scene, and as she was walking away Buck came into the corridor and called after her "Mrs. Atkinson, remember the boys." And she added, "Although he was an ignorant man, and through neglect had led a life of crime, I believe that Buck was saved. I believe it as firmly as I believe in my own salvation."

The officers elected were: President, Mrs. Archibald, Halifax; vice-president at large, Mrs. T. B. Smith, Windsor; vice-president for New Brunswick, Mrs. Turnbull, St. John; Nova Scotia, Mrs. Roe, Yarmouth; Prince Edward Island, Mrs. Strong, Summerside; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Atkinson, Moncton; recording secretary, Mrs. Trites, Sussex; treasurer, Mrs. Lockhart, St. John; auditor, Mrs. McFarland, St. John.

An American who was present at the late at Hawarden in honor of Mr. Gladstone's golden wedding was impressed most strongly by the prime minister's numerous commissions from the queen, which looked formidable with their great seals attached, and also with an exhibit of axes in the house. Of these there were fully half a hundred, the gifts of English and American admirers of the grand old man's fondness for chopping down trees.

rate charged. If a fire is needed to make you comfortable it is only your due. I have had at least ten law-suits on this matter and never been beaten. A hotel is bound to furnish you heat just as much as gas, water, food or a bed. It has no more right to charge you extra than a passenger coach or a street car has. A merchant must heat his store in winter, but does he add to the price on that account? Does he take anything off in summer, when he has no expense for fuel?

"Well, about the railroad?" I asked.
"It has been hard work but I hope I have also accomplished something in that direction," he replied. "I am the man who introduced your screams into the windows of the railroad cars. The idea had seemingly never occurred to Wagner or Pullman or anyone else until I broached it. There is a sleeping-car regulation to the effect that the upper berth shall be left open only when the lower is occupied. The idea is to force the occupant of the lower berth to pay double when he can use only one berth. If he won't pay then he must be made as uncomfortable as possible. I have beaten that little game a score of times, and in less than another year I'll have the help of two-thirds of the men who travel. I simply demand that the berth be left up. If the porter insists there is a row. I have been arrested eight or ten times, but was always promptly discharged when the matter was understood. The sleeping car company dare not bring such a case before a jury. You take sleeping car that you may sleep, don't you?"

"Same here, but on a hundred different occasions I have been prevented by the gable of a couple of women, or the talk of two or three fellows who insisted on sitting up and passing the bottle around. On such occasions I appeal to the porter. If he can't stop it I appeal to the conductor. If he refuse to stop the row and give me what I paid for--a fair amount of sleep--I take their names and report 'em at head-quarters and use every means to get 'em bounced. It astoundes some folks to learn that a sleeping car is devoted to Morpheus. Next week, when I get down in Ohio, I shall consult a lawyer in regard to instituting a peculiar suit. Railroads must have rules and regulations, but they are supposed to be run in the interests of the public. A train which I was on was delayed twenty minutes to allow a special to pass. I want to settle the point as to whether a hundred passengers by a regular train, each one paying regular fare and having a contract to reach their destination at a certain hour, barring accident, can be delayed that the railroad may make some extra money by hiring out a special train. Later on I'm going for the buffet-cars and their extortionate prices, and unless death overtakes me I'll make the dining cars come down to twenty-five cents for dinner within a year or two. Incidentally I shall kick against the porter's fee for delivering my trunk at my room; refuse to pay fare for a ride in a hotel omnibus; see the waiters in Halifax before I tip them, and do my best to bust the baggage-man who does his best to bust my trunk. I started out alone in this business fifteen years ago, but to-day have thousands of travelers with me and lots of encouragement to go ahead. Hello! I'll have to make a kick here."

"What about?"
"On that sign of 'Elevator' out of order? That means I shall have to walk up four flights of stairs. It is the business of a hotel to keep its elevators running. A running elevator is in the contract. If I walk up for my pay, and something must come off the bill or there'll be a row. God-night to you, and if you have to stand on the rear platform of a street car and go home refuse to pay your fare and help along the glorious cause."

--Here is the way the last eight seconds have been clipped off the trotting record since 1880, when Rarus made a mile in 2.11. In the same year Rarus reduced his record to 1.11, while Maud S cut it down to 1.03 and to 1.01 in 1881. It was not until 1884 that Jay-Rye-Sec reduced the record to 1.0, which was lowered to .91 the same season by Maud S, and to .84 the following year by her. In 1891 Sunol cut it down to .83, and in 1892 Nancy Hanks scored .74. Last year she reduced the record to .74, and now Alia makes it .73. It has taken fourteen years to lower the record 8 seconds, and it is pretty safe to say that the present century is going to make it two minutes flat.

--There is little encouragement for a man to be a burglar nowadays. When he has an earnest aspiration to rise to eminence in the profession, inventive genius always does all it can to bother him. For instance, the vaults of the subterranean in San Francisco are fitted with wire laid between every two rows of brick, so that any attempt to interfere with the cement or the bricks will disturb an electric circuit and sound a warning bell.--Boston Courier.

--Most Americans who travel in Europe become indignant when they see women working as farm hands. But Rabbi Joseph Kruskopf, of Philadelphia now in Germany, says: "Such farm work for women is neither degrading nor too taxing. They have pledged to bed come helpmates to their husbands and they regard it their duty to lessen the labors of their fathers, and, being physically able to do their share, they regret it wrong to permit the stronger sex to slave themselves to death while they are doing their time away at home. Judging from their happy and healthy looks, they seem to be none the worse for taking their places alongside the men folk for the purpose of honestly earning their bread. Had we a little more practical good sense and less sentimentality among our women at home, many a woman's life might be happier to-day, happier for being more useful, and man's life would be spared the necessity of slaving itself to death to indulge a wife or daughter's idleness and luxuries."

--"Give me some more," I said as I paused.
--"Well, take the matter of fire-escape. Almost every state has a law in regard to the matter, and almost every hotel seeks to evade the law. When I put up at a hotel where the law has not been complied with I do not leave the town until I have consulted the proper authorities and raised a row. In some states a rope in each room is all that the law demands, but I have a certain first-class hotel in mind where only fifty rooms out of over 300 was thus provided. I happened to get one of those rooms and discovered that the rope was too short by nineteen feet. I made that landlord my moral enemy by going to the city authorities and compelling him to put in the necessary number of ropes. He had not only refused to obey the law calculated to protect life, but for the sake of $100 was leaving the majority of his guests helpless against a roasting I have made twenty different hotels comply with the fire escape law, and have three or four others on the books for this fall."

--"Does that exhaust your list of subjects for hotel kicking?"
--"Not quite. I am educating the traveling public to kick against extra charges for fire in rooms. The rates of a hotel are so much per day the year 'round. From April to November no fire are needed, but you get no rebate on this account. Why, then, should the guests from December to March be charged extra? The contract is that you shall be made comfortable at the regular

SACKVILLE, N. B., OCT. 4, 1894

INCENDIARISM IN SACKVILLE.

On Sunday night the newly built Superior School House at Upper Sackville School District No. 11 was destroyed by fire. The indications of incendiaryism are such as to leave no doubt it was purposely fired. The news of the fire was received on Monday throughout the community with a thrill of indignation. There had been trouble between the Upper and the Lower end of the District over this school building. Originally it was proposed to enlarge the building at the town Hall at the lower end, as the increase of population at that section had largely outgrown the school quarters and more room was needed for the overflow. This proposition was resisted by many of the residents at the Upper end of the district who succeeded in voting it down. This seems to have been the origin of the difficulty. The people of the lower end insisting on their undoubted right to have proper school accommodation and moreover possessing the larger voting power, appeared in force at a school meeting and carried resolutions to construct a superior school at a central point of the district, which accordingly was actually erected during the present season.

This move seems to have been resented from above and covert efforts have been made. No one imagined that so desperate and malicious a deed would have been executed as destroying the building. Its perpetration was a decided shock. That so lawless a deed could be executed in this place opens the eyes of our people to the fact that we have one or more residents in our midst, occupying respectable positions in the place who are undeterred by either the law of man or the law of God, from the commission of criminal acts. This is not a wild, lawless or savage community such as is seen on the outskirts of civilization, but our people enjoy all the harmonizing and elevating influences of a settled and ripe civilization—law, order, government, the church, the school, the society, and that despite such influences, there should lurk in our place even one resident, to whom neither the personal sense of safety, the feeling of honor, a sentiment of family pride, or the warnings of conscience are sufficient to deter him or them from the commission of this crime, affords our people cause for painful concern and for practical consideration as how to deal with crime occurring in a totally unexpected quarter and protect themselves from the consequence of it.

It is a disgrace to this community that so shameful an act should have been committed within its borders and we trust steps will be taken to hold an investigation and that the perpetrators as well as instigators, be discovered so that good government as well as the good name of this place may be vindicated.

Those opponents of the new school house who carried their opposition to the borders of lawful and orderly agitation only, owe it in justice to the community to initiate a rigid investigation, so that needless suspicion may not attach itself to any innocent person.

PRINCETON College students have decided to abolish the custom of hazing. The time is coming when college students will no longer consider foolish, cruel, and destructive acts necessary to their happiness and worthy of applause. College students should have all the privileges, restrictions, and protection of other citizens, no more, no less.

JAPAN NOT satisfied with civilizing herself and giving freedom to Corea proposes to improve the condition of her adversary, China, as well. If Japan is victorious in the war, which is not improbable, she will concert with the other powers to divide China into three parts, under the rule of native princes, one of whom will be Mr. Li Hung Chang, resident in a brand new yellow jacket.

AN outcome of the late railroad strikes U. S. troops are being removed from the frontiers and Indian reserves and massed in the neighborhood of great cities and industrial centres. The government fear the Indians less than the people whom they have been elected to protect. Such precautions in a monarchical republic before revolution, is a repulsive before dissolution.

CANADIAN Bank Statement for August shows that the outlook for mercantile circles is slightly improved. In agricultural exports the settlement of the American tariff has had a stimulant effect. But a pall hangs over the wheat trade and there prices continue to fall. Fifteen cents per bushel at Port Arthur for No. 1 Manitoba is offered, while in England Argentine wheat has sold at 18 shillings the quarter. And so great is the stock and so abundant the harvests in all wheat-growing countries, that no prospect is discovered of higher values in the near future. The lumber business manifests a healthy tone and dealers have reason to expect a fair demand, though as yet it is too soon after the crisis for great activity in building across the line. The condition of the cattle trade on the other hand is neither satisfactory or hopeful.

Professional burglars visited Nelson on Thursday night. The outbreak on Thursday night and Friday night and they broke glass in the office window, but failed to disturb the cashier. Their next attempt was at Messrs. Seeger's store, and it was more successful. They forced the door and then drilled a hole in the safe and blew it open, making a complete wreck of it. But the booty was not in paying currency, as there was but from $10 to $15 in the safe. They took what was there and decamped. The burglars are supposed to be two men who came up the Intercolonial that day and had supper at Ivory's Crossing—Chatham World.

KILLED WITH AN AXE.

A HORRIBLE MURDER AT FAIRVILLE, ST. JOHN.

A shocking tragedy was enacted at Fairville, St. John early Monday morning. Guildford Crawford, a middle-aged man, in a fit of jealousy battered in the head of John Henry Branton, a young Englishman.

The dreadful affair took place in Crawford's house. The deceased, John Branton, boarded with Crawford. Not long ago Crawford got the idea into his head that Branton was paying attention to his wife. He did not accuse Branton, openly, but accused his wife, and although she denied the allegation and his son and daughter pointed out that it could not be true, he still harbored the unjust suspicion.

Sunday night the members of the Crawford family and Branton went to bed in excellent spirits. They had been all sitting in the kitchen conversing freely. Crawford was there too and said nothing that would show that he was disturbed in mind. The family retired to bed at about 10.30. Branton slept in the same bed in a room with Hartley Crawford, a son of Guildford Crawford's. About half past four o'clock Hartley heard his father come down stairs from his sleeping apartment with a lighted lamp in his hand. He called out and asked him what he was doing so early. He replied, "It's five o'clock. I then went out and lit the fire. Hartley fell asleep. The next thing he knew he was awakened suddenly and saw his father standing at the side of the bed with an axe raised in his hand. Before he could realize what was the matter or do anything to prevent his father from committing a crime, the blow fell, the corner of the blunt end of the axe striking Branton, who was sleeping on the inside of the bed, on the temple over the left eye. He was no more than one blow struck and his father must have struck one or two blows before he was awakened. Branton never stirred. Stunned by the blow and terribly injured, he lay in the bed, while the blood gushed from three small wounds around the left eye and from his mouth. Seeing what was being done, Hartley turned to his father and said: "You've done it now; you've killed him sure." The father made no reply, but going out left the axe with him. He recovered a little and saw the dreadful deed near the door of the kitchen and began walking up and down the floor of the kitchen. His daughter, aroused from her sleep by his cries of murder, came rushing out, and seeing poor Branton lying as if dead on the bed, said, "Oh, father! How could you do this to him? He was a good man. Seeing the axe, the girl became alarmed that her father might do further damage and she took it and concealed it from him. When the dreadful deed was being committed Mrs. Crawford was in the yard drawing water from the spring. She heard the cry of murder and rushing back to the house saw what had been done. Uttering a wild cry she sank into a swoon and for a while it was thought she, too, would die. After she recovered a little she was taken to the house of a neighbor. The poor woman was nearly distracted with grief and terror.

Meanwhile a doctor and a police officer were called and Crawford was arrested and taken to Fairville jail. Branton grew gradually weaker and showed that he remained with him until he died. He died shortly after five o'clock. The coroner jury met on Tuesday and after hearing evidence from a number of witnesses brought in a verdict: That John Henry Branton came to his death by a blow from an axe in the hands of one Guildford Crawford.

Branton was 23 years of age, was an Englishman by birth and had only been living in Fairville about 4 or 5 months. He was a good looking young man of quiet manners and respectable appearance. He was employed in Messrs. B. Mooney & Sons brickyard. So far as is known he has no relations in this country, but is said to have a brother in Pennsylvania.

Crawford is about forty-seven years of age. He resided for some years back of Sussex. Last May he went to St. John and resided in Portland for a short space of time. He then moved to Fairville. He worked in the brickyard for a while, but knocked off on account of illness. He has lately worked in a mill. He was not a drinking man, but is said to have a cranky disposition and since he became jealous of his wife he has acted in a very malevolent manner. He has acted violently on one or two occasions and only a little over a week ago he stood in his room with a club, and threatened to brain any one who came near him.

Most delightful autumn weather prevails. Harry Dubon has a strong force at work on his new house which is rapidly assuming the appearance of a dwelling.

The Methodist church at Bayfield has cheerfully acceded to a request to conduct the musical exercises at the dedication of Cadman's Corner Methodist church.

Travel and freight between the Capital and the coast are increasing. Last night the train brought down between twenty and thirty bags of mail and about a dozen passengers on route to P. E. I. This seems to be the natural line of travel across the straits; and, given the best facilities, it would at once become the popular route.

On Sunday next the Methodist church at Cadman's Corner will be formally opened for public worship. The President of the N. B. & P. E. Conference, Rev. J. A. Clark, A. M. of Pointe du Beue, will have charge of the exercises, and will preach at the morning service beginning at 10.30 o'clock. The afternoon service at 3 o'clock Rev. J. A. Clark, A. M. of the University will preach. It is expected that large congregations will attend these services. The collections will be for the building fund, and it is hoped they will be very liberal. A description of the building will be given later.

Port Elgin.

Jewelry shop of Mr. Harper Allen was entered by a burglar last night and watches and rings to the value of about $300 were taken. So far no trace of the offender has been obtained.

A tug boat, belonging to Hazen Copp, was found to be on fire on Thursday morning about 9 o'clock. The alarm was raised and the fire extinguished but $100,000. Several bottles containing kerosene were found on the deck.

Rufus Allen's barn was burned to the ground Monday night with all his hay and harvest. The fire bug has evidently begun operations.

The Methodist church at Cadman's Corner is to be opened for worship for the first time on the 7th inst.

A Westmorland Boy.

NOW DIVISIONAL SUPERINTENDENT OF THE ST. PAUL MINN. & OMAHA RY.

Mr. A. W. Trenholm who left Westmorland County for St. Paul, Minn. upwards of fifty years ago has been visiting the scenes of his youth and renewing old acquaintances. Mr. Trenholm is a native of Pt. du Beue, a son of Mr. Howard Trenholm. Before going west he was employed on the I. C. R. as station agent at Dorchester, Bathurst, and Campbellton, and in the audit office at Moncton. Leaving the I. C. R. employ, he went to St. Paul and from the office of travelling auditor which he secured of the St. Paul Minneapolis & Omaha Railway, he has since worked himself up to the responsible position of Divisional Superintendent of 389 miles of the same railway with headquarters at Spooner, Wis. During the prolonged strike in that locality this summer Mr. Trenholm took a prominent part and he relates very interesting incidents incidental to it. His division was held up for three weeks and he lost 322 of his employees. He says that it is estimated that there are 30,000 of the strikers out of employment and their positions are being filled with inexperienced men. Mr. Trenholm is a sample of what provincial push and energy can acquire and there are several other former I. C. R. boys who are holding responsible positions and enjoying upland in the west. Among others are Mr. D. Bleakney Superintendent of the Union Depot at Stillwater, Minn.; Mr. E. Russell, general agent at Minneapolis; and Mr. E. Russell, general superintendent of a portion of the New York Central. After having been settled Mr. Trenholm decided to visit New Brunswick and accompanied by his wife and family has during the past month or so visited different points in Westmorland Co. and Nova Scotia. He left for home Monday taking with him his mother and sister who will remain with him during the winter.

Crimes and Casualties.

—Belle White of Chicago, aged 24, died on Saturday morning of a heart ailment. The death was caused by the use of cocaine in connection with an electrical current.

—The Hetherington-Bostwick bigamy and adultery case has been twice adjourned on account of the illness of the girl Eva Bostwick.

—P. J. Lanagan, a lumberman, had his right leg severed at the ankle and the great toe of his left foot taken off by a car running over him at Campbellton Sunday morning.

—Thomas Carr of Yarmouth, a boiler maker, aged 38, burst a blood vessel on Friday while trying to lift a barrel of fish and instantly fell dead. He leaves a widow and six children.

—The Gleason intimates that Frederick is to have two divorce cases. One plaintiff is a lady well known in social circles and the other a well known husband.

—Annie McKenzie has been taken to Amherst and lodged in jail to await trial on the serious charge of having at Springfield murdered her late husband. It is thought on some date between the 13 and 18th lat. The evidence taken was circumstantial.

—Last Thursday evening about 8 o'clock Mrs. Aylesford Ellis, of Salisbury who has been employed as a servant at the house of Hon. H. R. Emmerson Dorchester started to go to the house of a friend on Woodman road, a short distance away, to spend the evening. After passing the residence of Lady Smith, she was attacked by a man who was carrying a scuffle took place and Mrs. Ellis was quite badly scratched about the face and hands, and lost her hat, brooch, and some other articles. She then ran to her friend's house and called for help. She went back to the nearest house and gave the alarm. She described the man as being about five feet six inches tall, with heavy mustache, wearing a dark colored coat and cap. Parties immediately went to the scene of the affair and found her clothing, etc., thrown over a fence a short distance away but no trace of the man.

I. C. R. authorities offer a reward for the capture of a couple of tramps, who a few nights ago boarded a special train at West River and drew revolvers. They are a desperate pair. They have committed a number of burglaries along the short line railway. At West River they broke into the station and struck upon two men who made an effort to capture them. One evening last week tramps attacked a hotel. Leonard Hotel, Truro, but were driven off. The descriptions of the men for whom rewards are offered are as follows: One about five feet eleven, 27 years of age; clean shaven at present; may grow black mustache; sunken cheeks, dark clothes, soft felt hat; the other five feet four inches; dark red mustache; 45 years of age; puff face; bald headed; dark clothes and black cap; may grow a beard or shave off his mustache.

Industrial and Commercial.

—A special from Sheldine announces the prospects good for a brisk business in that town this autumn. R. C. C. the principal shipper, sends annually to Bernadine and the West Indies over 2,000 barrels potatoes, besides other products and live stock. The opening of the Cuban market will be a decided advantage to this trade. Prices are ruling fair, and potatoes command a high price here. That last year's crop is of good quality, though below that of 1893.

—Canadian imports of cigarettes last year were valued at $15,125; the duty amounted to $17,227.

—Of the tobacco we export Australia takes the highest cost, averaging about 10 cents per pound, the West Indies pay 10 cents, Canada about 9 cents, Germany and France slightly less than 3 cents.—Baton Commercial Bulletin.

—A syndicate of Englishmen are about to secure control of all the paper and pulp mills on Fox River, Wisconsin. The properties include 29 paper mills and 21 pulp mills, valued at $10,000,000.

—The Provincial exhibition held at Chateaufort was a success, though in some respects not equal to that of other years. The show of live stock was the largest and best ever exhibited, and the dairy exhibits were the most extensive ever seen on the Island, especially the cheese, the manufacture of which has grown to large proportions.

—The minister of finance leaves for England on Saturday to make arrangements for the ensuing year. These will probably involve the placing of a small loan on the English market, chiefly to retire the floating indebtedness, bearing a higher rate of interest.

—The safe of Alex Gibson the lumber king, was blown open Monday night and $3,300 in bills stolen. No clue.

General Booth.

General Booth is at present in Fredericton. He leaves this week for Montreal whence he will visit New York. Following is an extract from his speech on his arrival in St. John:

I am not surprised that my own people are glad to see me. I am glad to see them again. I came to see what you are doing and to see if you are following out the purpose for which you entered the army. I have also come to cheer you, and I hope my visit may prove a blessing in the past. They will do more in the army in St. John has been the means of bringing men and women out of darkness. It cheers me, it helps me out to know that all over the world are men and women working under the same banner, and that the system of the Salvation Army. Every scheme that tends to make better men and women, and that the system of the Salvation Army. Every scheme that tends to make better men and women, and that the system of the Salvation Army.

There is a system of worship which belongs to no other religious body, and that is the system of the Salvation Army. Every scheme that tends to make better men and women, and that the system of the Salvation Army. Every scheme that tends to make better men and women, and that the system of the Salvation Army.
