Spicy Correspondence Before the Langvin-Tarte-McGregory Committee.

OTTAWA, July 2.—Hon. J. A. Chapleau cannot yet dispense with his crutches.

Sir John Thompson in the Commons declined to say whether or not Lord Stanley had been advised to ask Sir Charles Tupper to form a Government.

Mr. Laforce Langevin, a son of Sir Hector Langevin, was employed for several years as assistant engineer on the Quebec harbor works, although Mr. Tarte stated in the House that young Langevin had never been an engineer in his life. Mr. Delisle proposes to inquire of the Government if Mr. Langevin ever obtained a diploma as an engineer, and if so, from what institution?

[Special to the Advertiser.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 2.—Most of the time of the Tarte committee this morning was spent in hearing spicy letters written by Michael Connolly to O. E. Murphy when they were working their mutual friends.

Speaking of Bennett, Michael Connolly said: "Bennett, the resident engineer, is a real jolly good fellow, and I know you would get on well with him."

This same Bennett told Connolly of drinking a bottle of good Scotch whisky with Hon. Thomas McGreevy at the Banquet race. The firm wanted to buy an American tug, and asked Murphy to get "their friends" to permit it to be used in Canadian waters.

In another letter Michael says: "This fellow Bennett is just like all English engineers. He will take all you give him and never do anything for you."

References to Hon. T. McGreevy, under the familiar form of "Uncle Thomas," were made in these letters, and many homely phrases created a deal of amusement.

Michael Connolly wrote an interview with Sir Hector, in which a Union Bank check was accepted as a deposit.

"Sir H." would not say anything about the lengthening of the B. C. dock until Engineer Tarte arrived in Ottawa. They wanted to get a rebate on a deposit and asked that "Uncle Thomas" work it up.

Considerable fun was caused by the reading of the famous letter in which Messrs. Homer and Shakespeare, M.P.s, are spoken of as "a brace of plumes." The editor of the Colonist was described as "the dearest man" they had met, because he boomed the extension of the dock without charging a cent.

patches from Naples of a terrible accident.

At the meeting of the Public School Board last night the question of the appointment of an additional public school inspector was laid over till after vacation.

The corner-stone of the new building of the Young Woman's Christian Guild, McGill street, was laid to-night by Mrs. Dr. W. T. Atkins.

A committee on the subject of the subject recommended a lifeboat crew for service on Toronto Bay.

The propeller Ocean, coming up from Montreal yesterday afternoon, ran ashore in a fog near Port Union. There were 30 passengers, including Rev. Jas. Henderson, late pastor of St. James Square Methodist Church, Montreal, who was coming up to commence duty here at Carleton Street Church, and Rev. M. Elliott, of McGill, a Presbyterian minister, bound for Hamilton. They were safely taken off and brought to Toronto on the evening train. The captain and officers acted promptly and prevented a panic. The water was calm or the accident would probably have entailed loss of life.

Mr. Daniel McLean, the well-known wholesale leather merchant, whose recent failure caused so much surprise and sympathy, has secured a settlement of 40 cents on the dollar, the payments being spread over twelve months.

BIG SUIT FOR LIBEL.

THE NEW YORK LIFE SUES THE NEW YORK TIMES FOR $1,000,000 DAMAGES.

MONTREAL, July 2.—The officers of the New York Life Insurance Company have instructed their counsel, Wm. B. Hornblower, to commence suit at once against the editors, publishers and proprietors of the New York Times for $1,000,000 damages for libel, and have retained as associate counsel Messrs. Joseph H. Choate, Frederick R. Conder and Henry Beckman.

Another "Tony Transgressor."

LONDON, July 3.—The Pall Mall Gazette urges some member of Parliament to question the Government in the House of Commons in regard to the action of the Duke of Cambridge in disregarding the park regulations by smoking in Kew Gardens, and also by driving therein in spite of the remonstrances of the keepers.

Of Interest to Builders.

A correspondent of the Indian Engineering recently witnessed a very interesting and curious scene at a foundation for a new building. A hole was bored in the ground, which was previously damp, and a string of cartridges was lowered into it. The subsequent explosion not only produced a cavity a yard in diameter but drove the water out of the surrounding earth by means of the expansive action of the gases. The water did not return to its former place for fully an hour, so that a dry place was afforded to fill up the hole with quickly setting concrete, and the rate of working was thus attained.

ANOTHER ELECTION DODGE

Cleverly Exposed on Dominion Day at Ottawa by Mr. Allen, of South Essex.

Mr. Ingram Compromises and Entangles the Minister of Customs in His Usual Blundering Manner.

In our Parliamentary report will be found a reference to the frauds perpetrated by the Dominion Government during the last election campaign in South Essex. Mr. Allen, of South Essex, to the case, which on the face of it looks trifling, but the facts as stated revealed another Tory electioneer dodge of the most flagrant character. P. B. McCormick, it appeared, has been appointed sub-collector not only against the wishes but in the face of a very strong reprobation on the part of the inhabitants of the island. This feeling manifested itself very strongly in the last Provincial election, when Mr. Ballou, M.P., secured the seat of the House, and Mr. Allen, who was elected in the island. This was said to be owing to the sub-collector's unpopularity. There was every reason to fear that the midnight attack which the late Government made upon the constituencies would be followed so far as Pelote Island was concerned by disaster to the Government. Then came the act of which Mr. Allen complained. The people were led to believe that Mr. McCormick would be removed. Mr. Atkinson, a staunch believer in unrestrained monopolies, received through the customs collector at Windsor a telegram announcing that he had been appointed to the position of sub-collector at Pelote Island. But as a matter of fact, Mr. McCormick was not removed. Mr. Allen did not come within the purview of the collector at Windsor, but of the collector at Amherstburg. Mr. Atkinson took charge of the office and began his duties, but after the elections were over, on the 29th April, Mr. Galt, the collector at Amherstburg, wrote a letter to him, containing these words: "I have to request you to cease to act as an officer of customs until you are legally authorized to do so."

The same letter also told him that he must deliver up to Mr. McCormick what he had taken possession of. Mr. Allen went on to remark that when he brought this matter up in the House some time ago he received most discouraging replies from the Minister of Customs, who, amongst other things, stated that the sub-collector (Mr. McCormick) had been ordered to report for duty at his office at Pelote Island. Mr. Allen read the telegram appointing Mr. Atkinson and declared that it was a forgery. The Minister of Customs, Mr. Galt, declared that it was not a forgery. The Minister of Customs, Mr. Galt, declared that it was not a forgery.

had been any alteration in the plans and specifications with regard to size.

Sir Hector replied that nothing had been done since last year.

Mr. Gibson asked whether the width of the entrance had not been extended from 48 feet to 55 feet.

Sir Hector replied confusedly that changes were made in response to representations made by the owners of vessels plying on the lakes.

Mr. Gibson explained how the changes came to be made and asked how it was apparent from correspondence he had received from the department, that the widening to 55 feet was to cost $35,000, while the widening to 60 feet would have cost nothing.

Sir Hector thought there must be a mistake, but Mr. Gibson repeated that there was none. His figures were taken from departmental papers.

Mr. Mulock urged the importance of having all tenders laid upon the table of the House, in view of such a system as provided in the Public Works Department. Mr. Mulock asked whether George E. Parley, who was named as the engineer at Kingston, occupied any other office than that of assistant engineer in connection with these various works.

Sir Hector replied that Mr. Parley was one of the assistant engineers in connection with his (Langevin's) department; and while Mr. Mulock questioned whether Mr. Parley was related to the chief engineer, Mr. Langevin rose to reply, "I believe he is a son."

Col. Anzies told the House how he had failed to get any information from the Postmaster-General respecting Mr. Bancroft, his successful tender for the graving dock. There was a box in Mr. Bancroft's name in 1880, but he had been told by the Postmaster-General that this box in the Kingston postoffice belonged to the Government.

Discussion was continued at length in reference to the attempt of the postoffice officials at Kingston, and in the department to screen the identity of the mythical Bancroft. This discussion was renewed after recess, and the Government was pressed so strongly to allow the item named in the estimate for Kingston to stand, that Mr. Foster was at length compelled to say in a brief stubborn way, "I will allow the item to stand." The result of the discussion, then, is that the contract and other papers in connection with this tender will be laid before the House to-morrow.

Mr. Mulock was influenced to promise more over that all the information for similar cases in the postoffice box at Kingston should also be placed before the House.

The committee rose at 1:15 a.m., and the House adjourned.

Mr. Walker is planting several hundred clayey silt subsoil, ditched into regular fields and has a complete covering of gravel on the whole. The ditches are so arranged that at the proper season they can be stopped so as to overflow the whole with water, which seems necessary for the successful growing of the cranberry. Many farmers on these low, one-time swampy marshes, grow onions in immense quantities, some sales amounting to $2,000 yearly.

Near Kingsville they have natural gas wells. Houses are supplied cheaply. Hotels pay 10 cents per month per light, use very little or use it much. The butners are larger than the jets spread and much bigger than a large kerosene lamp.

LAMBTON.
A bylaw authorizing the Sarnia Town Council to let a contract to the Bell Telephone Company for the erection of poles for the electric fire alarm system was defeated on Monday night by a majority of one. The council will let some time ago by resolution of the council and the work commenced, but afterwards stopped under an injunction, which was sustained by a decision of Justice Galt. To simplify matters it was sought to pass the bylaw and make the contract legal beyond a doubt, but the action of the council Monday night necessitates a lawsuit, which will take place next October at the earliest, to test the legality of the original contract.

H. N. Case, who retired on Dominion

The Fall Among Thieves

The young man so suddenly grown doubtful to her ladyship's eyes was actually in the house with her, and could not be got out of a moment's notice. And, apart from that, her ladyship knew well enough that the first hint of persecution would strengthen the young people, and make her own task more difficult. It does not matter in the least what the church may be—the blood of the martyrs is its seed. To make life difficult to these young people was to make her own cause impossible. So the inevitable interview between her ladyship and Harry came about that afternoon, and the two young creatures clung together for safety in the midst of the first storm which had ever shaken their souls. They cried together, and the stalwart boy held the little girl to his breast, and swore inwardly that he would face a thousand deaths rather than dream in their ignorance of thinking Humphrey Frost for setting this exquisite intoxicating cup of happy sorrow to their lips. He had opened their eyes and they were innocently ungrateful. They had never known until then how much they had loved each other, but as each clung to the other in a superb abandonment to loyalty they forgot to bless their benefactor.

The honest Humphrey could have chosen no better way of bringing happiness to the heart of the girl he loved. There was a poignancy of delight in sailing through these tempestuous seas which is never known to love in fair weather.

To everybody but the two lovers the Christmas season was a grim and arctic time in the house of Lady McCordale, and the beauty of the thing was that whilst Harry and Lathia conceived themselves to be profoundly unhappy and ill used, they were tasting such sweetness as is only once in a lifetime presented to mortal lips. The Misses Arabella and Julia looked on the girl with a wonder the purity of which was occasionally alloyed with a faint tinge of contempt. Their excellent mother pointed the moral and traced the tale for the edification of their hearts and minds. Thus, the good lady would say, were the bright prospects clouded. Such a case-work could be a romantic folly lay in the case of a young lady. The young ladies listened to the maternal valedictions in an ecstasy of faith. Would that such a chance had fallen to either of them! The unsophisticated Arabella would have yielded to Julia if only for the sake of the invitations. Lathia was surely mad, or at the most a little indiscreet, in going as a companion to a young man who was known to be a scoundrel. The main change, however, was the change of human nature which the smaller kind of philosophy finds a chaotic joy in studying. The best lover of these exiles to blind himself, and he certainly knew the one happier. A true study of the manner and qualities of women would deluge the galaxy of nations.

These joy-holidays came to an end, and Harry Wynne went back to the world's business. He might have carried the brand of Cal upon his brow, and have been secretly reviled by her ladyship. After the one unseemable shindy the majestic woman displayed for him a contemptuous pity and amazement which was hard to hear. She and Mrs. Broderick used to ask each other if ever such assurance were seen before such as the young man displayed in staying his appointed time. The turn of young villain! Why would he not lie down before the face of Juggermatt and have life and light and hope and love crushed out of him respectably and in decent quiet? If ever to the eyes of two elderly ladies a young man's plain duty stared him in the face it did so in the case of Harry Wynne. He had nothing to do in the world but to go away and be quiet. If he did so it was a little as anything could be that in a little time Lathia would yield to Humphrey Frost's advances. They meant the girl no harm. They believed themselves utterly wise and unselfish.

They were not disposed to rest without allies, since the most powerful were to be had for the mere asking. Lady McCordale made a purposeful visit to Bridgebourne Court, and there had an interview with the head of the family, before whom she laid the case. The old earl, who had never been guilty of more sentiment than mere youth, full heart or blood gave warrant for, accepted at once the common sense view of the case. The boy's position was ridiculous and indefensible, and he must be made to feel it. Humphrey Frost was a most excellent match for her. The venerable nobleman so fond and fretted at the notion of these young people that he gave himself a headache. The idea of their supposing that their crude and infantile sentimental emotions were to be allowed to govern their lives! His lordship would as soon have thought of arresting a special train because a butterfly had happened to alight on the rail, as of altering the economies of life for the sake of their romantic notions.

Lord Houses shared his father's opinions, and even went a little beyond them. He had that excellent reason for disliking his young relative which is already known to the reader. The young reprobate had tried to borrow money, and nothing but success in that rather hopeless enterprise could have made the offense more pardonable. His lordship had never been troubled by sentiment. He had married for money, and if his bride's wealthy father had failed in cotton and the principled million had never reached him, the marriage at least was traceable to no fault of his own. He had always been vitally conscious of the best intentions. He admitted that he had at one time been in favor of the match. "But," said his lordship, with that original sagacity which distinguished him, "circumstances alter cases."

His lordship's only son, Charles Southforth, who would one day in the course of nature become Earl of Bridgebourne, was also admitted to the family council, and also took the commonsense view of the case.

"The little girl's a little fool, and the boy ought to know better," was his verdict.

Thus fortified in her opinion, her ladyship went home to Norwood, and actually opened operations with some vigor, writing a long letter to Harry, in which she expounded the family conviction, and enveloped Lathia's life in so cold and comfortable an environment that the girl became profoundly unhappy this time in her sweet heart's absence.

A curious and an unexpected result arose from all this. Captain Peter Heaton, standing at the window of his chambers on the first floor of a house in St. James street one fine March afternoon, beheld the pinched and careworn face of Lady Houses, the tottering old figure at that nobleman's side the Earl of Bridgebourne. The venerable earl and his son were on their way from Arthur's to White's, and the least aged nobleman supported the more elderly with that marked air of deference and filial piety which he always bore towards him. No particular interest watched the pair past the smoke of his cigar Harry Wynne came standing swiftly round the Piccadilly corner, and catching sight of his relatives approached them, and holding out one hand in salutation, raised his hat with the other. To the captain's amazement, the two elders of the house turned chilly stare upon their relative and mounted the steps of the club, leaving him planted hat in hand, and looking after them for a moment with an expression of complete confusion and bewilderment. Captain Heaton whistled low and low, and kept an eye upon the young man until he moved away. The cut was public and open; a score of people had seen it, and all glanced followed the young man thus snubbed in vivid curiosity and conjecture.

Captain Heaton took his hat, gloves, and walking cane, and went out in search of information. He found several people who were prepared to tell him all about it, and a good deal more, but their stories differed, and he had to piece the probable facts of the case together as best he could. In effect, he concluded that Harry Wynne decided to make a disastrous marriage, and was so set upon this foolish course that the family had determined provisionally to abandon him.

His messenger dispatched in a cab to Humphrey Frost's chambers brought him a gentleman to Mr. Broderick's private room in Conduit street. Captain Heaton and Mr. Broderick were there already. Captain Heaton stated the case in the concise and terse way in which his nature inclined him to do so. It was necessary at once to exercise as much pressure as would enable them to disengage the special state of the family feeling. The family feeling was their only security for their joint and separate interests. In two thousand three hundred pounds. To this and the three gentlemen were discreetly indiscreet. They knew it was likely to reach the Bridgebourne ears that Harry Wynne was going the pace. He was probably, to the strict rules of the other sex—here rumor touched the name of a burlesque actress or two whose character was too well established to suffer by the scandal—and he was known to have run in debt to Butterfield of Conduit street to the tune of three or four thousand pounds. (To be continued.)

Chatham.—The celebration of Dominion Day commenced at 9 a.m. by the formation of a trades procession, headed by the Chatham band and five brigades, which marched through the principal streets to Teumess Park. A football match, Chatham vs. Galt, was won by Galt, 4 goals to 1. In the cricket match, Chatham vs. Paris, Chatham won in one inning and 131 runs. About 12 o'clock Prof. Brady made a ball-club assemblage, with parachute drop and trapeze performance. A baseball match between the Chatham and St. Thomas baseball clubs was won by Chatham, 10 to 8. At the fair grounds the Driving Park Association held the following races: Farmington race—Black Kate 1, Dot Durelle 2, Harrier Martin 3. 2:27 class—Rosa B. 1, Major A. 2, Iron Chief 3. Consolation—Bill Mining Bowles 2, Fannia C. 3, Gold Dust 4.

Ingersoll.—Dominion Day was celebrated with great eclat. At 9 o'clock the raising of the national flag on the school grounds took place, the children marching in procession to the number of about 1,000. The opening address was delivered by H. Rowland, president of the I. A. A. A., followed by Dr. Williams and Mr. Stephen Naxon. The children sang patriotic songs between the speeches. At 10:30 magnificent trades and oriental procession was formed and marched through the principal streets. Music was furnished by the Infantry School Band of London and the I. O. O. F. and Foresters' bands of Ingersoll. At 2 p.m. the I. A. A. A. annual sports were held in Victoria Park, fully 7,000 people being in attendance. The following are the prize-winners in the several events: One hundred yards foot race, open to bona fide residents of Ingersoll—Geo. Bennis 1, E. E. Carter 2; time, 12:5 seconds. 100 yards, school boys' time, 12 seconds. Ten men from Naxon Bros. factory, the former winning in two straight pulls, 100 yards foot race—open—George Kerr, Buffalo, 1; George Bennis, Ingersoll, 2; 440 yards, farmer's race—Tew, 1; S. H. McFadden, North Oxford, 2; time, 2:3 seconds. 1-1 mile foot race—Dudley Blackwood, Fred Miller, 2; time, 9 minutes and 2 seconds. 220-yard foot race, open handicaps—J. C. Hamilton, Stratford (scooter), 1; C. C. Hamilton, Stratford (scooter), 2. 440 yards foot race, open handicaps—A. M. Carter, Ingersoll (20 yards), 1; H. S. Parsons, London (15 yards), 2; time, 50:2 seconds. 120 yards hurdle race, open—George Kerr, Buffalo, 1; A. M. Carter, Ingersoll, 2. Last course match between Ingersoll and Hamilton—Ingersoll won by 4 straight in 17, 1, 2, 3, 4.

Guelph.—The citizens of Guelph observed Dominion Day by a monster home celebration. The city was profusely decorated with flags, bunting, evergreen and other adornments, and never in its history presented a more attractive appearance. It took the morning procession 25 minutes to a given point. At 1 o'clock Mayor Goldie entertained the national committee and guests to lunch at the Wellington Hotel. Prizes for games and sports to the amount of $1,000 were competed for on the exhibition ground. There were about 5,000 present. An interesting feature was the tug-of-war between English, Irish, Scotch and German nationalities. Through some misunderstanding the Scotch team did not pull. The Irishmen came off victorious after a hard pull with the Germans.

Norwich.—The celebration here was a great success. Over 5,000 people visited the town. The great air parade was solidly and superbly executed. The football match between Woodstock and Tilsonburg was won by the latter, and in the baseball contest between Woodstock and Norwich, Woodstock was again defeated.

Woodstock.—The cricket match between Woodstock and Simcoe played on the W. A. A. grounds resulted in favor of the home team by eight wickets and three runs. The Royal Templars demonstration was a very successful affair.

Peterborough.—The day was celebrated here in good style with a very large attendance. The St. Marys tournament is described in the ADVERTISER'S column of sports. The day passed off very quietly in Montreal. There was no demonstration in the city.

A lacrosse match was played at Clinton between St. Marys and Clinton, and resulted in a 4 to 1 in favor of Clinton.

PERFUMES.

Crystallized History—That's what someone says words are. But a good perfume is the essence of sweet words. Perfumes by the thousands are used to make a single drop of Otto of Roses, but that's not all. Perfumes are in a second that could be read in the Advertiser in a week. Josephine loved much perfumes, and we remember it as well as we do that her husband became Emperor of France. One cannot smell the odor without being reminded of it. But also do not limit their choice to one odor. We hear of a lady who puts her letter paper between sheets of different essences, and it is the perfume that she employs that speaks for her. When she uses Santalwood or Chypre she says: "I am true."
If the letter smells of White Rose it is "Adieu."
It is "Eternal love." If the odor is too stupid to understand, so much the worse for him.
The Perfume should be always of the best quality; everything else depends upon your good or bad perfume, good or bad anything else. If you can't see that, there must be something wrong in your eyes—better have them examined for spectacles. We say you can always get the best at Barkwell's, and we think we know.

tained the brethren to refreshments, and a

Wheat from Middlesex.

Mr. Charles Watts, the central grain buyer, reported a large buttonhole bouquet of wheat on "Change Wednesday." It was of Manchester red variety and was gathered on Mr. Wm. Plews' farm, near London.
Quality was extra, the heads being large and well filled. The grain was much admired, and if other districts produce anything like as good a sample there is little doubt about the result of the harvest.—

The Brigade Camp on Sept. 8.

Lieut.-Col. Smith, of this city, D. A. G., for Military District No. 1, was in St.
Thomas on Tuesday, and, accompanied by the mayor and Adjutant Jones, of the Twenty-fifth Battalion, examined Lynd barracks and the grounds south of the M.C.R. shops as sites for the military camp. He will report to the Government as to their suitability. The volunteers, he intimated, will be called out on the second Tuesday in September, and the following corps will go into camp: Twenty-fourth, Kent; Twenty-fifth, British; Twenty-sixth, Middlesex; Twenty-seventh, Essex; Twenty-eighth, Perth; Thirtieth, Wellington, and the London Field Battery. There will be no cavalry. It is expected the camp will number 2,000 men.

A Young Londoner's Marriage.

A Chatham dispatch dated July 1, reads as follows: A fashionable wedding took place here this morning on the lawn at the residence of Mr. Hooper King, when Mr.
Arthur R. Kingsmill, drygoods merchant, of London, and Jennie, eldest daughter of Mr. King, were wedded beneath the spreading branches of an oak. Rev. Mr. Annis officiated. The groomsmen were Mr. Henry Kingsmill, brother of the groom, and the bride was assisted by Miss Maud King and five younger sisters. A large number of guests were present, among whom were:
Miss Fullerton, of Toronto; Miss Harris of Brantford; Mrs. T. F. Kingsmill, Mr. Henry Kingsmill, Miss Annie Kingsmill and Mr.
W. Fitzgerald, of London; Mr. and Mrs.
M. Houston, Mr. and Mrs. Seane, Mr.
Seane, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Barrie, Mr. and Mrs. F.
Gardner, and Miss Atwell, of Chatham.
Lunch on the lawn followed, and the proverbial shower of rice and old slippers rained upon the happy couple as they took the eastbound train on an extended honeymoon trip. The many and valuable presents testify to the high esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends here and elsewhere.

Loyalty and Lung Power.

If patriotism is to be measured by lung power, no one could doubt the loyalty of the enthusiastic multitude of youths who donned assembled in Princess Rink Wednesday night. One thousand children even in a grave and serious mood are capable of producing a surprising volume of sound, but at the climax of the biggest holiday of the year their spirits overflowed, and the little chat they indulged in among themselves before the programme was entered upon was scarcely a sign of dejection.
The first strains of the Seventh Fuller's Band in the march, "The Rolling Drums," caused a lull in the conversational storm, but the children got their inning in "Hearts of Oak" and "Hurrah for the Flag." They were accompanied by the band, which managed to make itself heard above the vociferous voices. Mrs. Caldwell's beautifully rendered song, "Carnival of Venice," was not received in that absolute silence which is the most flattering tribute an audience can offer. On the contrary, it was interrupted by subdued whoops and shouts, and the hubbub that ensued at its close bore too close a resemblance to the wails of lost souls in torment to be entirely gratifying. The exuberant spirit of the school boys were toned down by open rebuke, and then allowed full vent in "O Come, Hurrah for Fun," and "British Boys' Knappecks." Two thousand small hands were raised and clapped, forests of tiny flags were waved, and other innocent means displayed as a safety valve for pent-up loyalty. Mr. Wilson's pupils in their athletic pole drill made a very creditable exhibition, the movements being graceful and pleasing. Mrs. Caldwell's "Cuckoo Song" and the haunting strains of her "Will He No Come Back Again?" were rapturously applauded. The purchase of an undress uniform for the Seventh Band was one of the objects of the concert and the large audience was an assurance of success in the undertaking.
