Baron Spitzel Has Supper Bills to Pay Dawsonites Wonder at Lack of Gold.

Dawson is filled with Nome news today which is being disseminated by the passengers who came up on the Sarah yesterday as well as by many letters and papers received by the same steamer.

Phillip Ernst, who for a long time was connected with the job printing department of the Nugget, writes that he is now at the head of the Alaska Printing Co., at Nome. He owns his plant and building and is doing well.

Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Arctic Weekly Sun, Swinehart's paper, was received by the Nugget. Geo. A. Carpenter, formerly with the News, is business manager, while David B. Tewksbury, formerly with the Nugget, is editor of the Sun.

Here are a few "Nomelets" from the Sun in which the names of a great many well-known Dawsonites appear: Shovel creek is the mecca for lays among the new comers. A $27 pan was taken off of bedrock lately.

A suspicious tale of a fabulously rich find has started people to stampeding to the Kougarak. The story goes that three men rocked out $6000 in three weeks time.

The beach between Nome and the Penny river is practically worked out for the man with the rocker. Pumps and sluice boxes are now the new order of things for beach diggings.

Paul Bordman remained here only a few days, and then concluded to return to Dawson. He entertains a poor opinion regarding theatrical ventures in Nome.

Cole and Cole display cleverness and confidence in their trapeze act. Their work is exceedingly good, and it is thoroughly appreciated by the spectators.

Eddie Dolan is a capable comedian when he exerts his talents; and since his arrival in Nome he has attended strictly to business.

Bessie Pierce, the contortionist, has got several of her former professional associates here. Bessie used to perform under Ringling Brothers' big spread of canvas.

John Mulligan, Carrie Linton, Nellie Lamore and Nellie Holgate took advantage of every opportunity to present the risqué situations of the comedy "Still water Willie."

Caprice was a passenger on one of the outbound steamships. She was too impatient to wait for the erection of theater buildings.

Cid was a frequent visitor at the variety shows last week, and she contemplates securing an engagement.

BOARD OF TRADE

Meeting the Most Interesting Held in the Board's History.

COMMITTEES ALL DOING GOOD WORK.

A Parade to Be Organized Representative of the Yukon

IN HONOR OF COMING VISITOR

The Yukon Territory to Have Direct Representation in the Dominion Parliament.

The Board of Trade meeting Wednesday evening was one of the most interesting and successful, from a business standpoint, remembered in the board's history.

The committee on assessment and taxation reported verbally, through Mr. Wade, that considerable progress had been made but the mass of business to be handled was too great to be disposed of in so short a time. Therefore more time was asked and granted.

The committee on entertainment reported that a letter had been sent to both Mr. Ogilvie and Major Wood, informing them of the committee's appointment and purpose, and that answers had been received from both stating a hearty willingness to co-operate with the committee in any way possible for the entertainment of the governor general. The committee also reported that the C. D. Co. had placed its steamer Columbian at the disposal of the governor general and party while here. The program, although well under way, is not sufficiently outlined yet for publication.

The Yukon council has been asked to erect four arches and a grand stand for the reception; and in the opinion of the board all the expenses of the reception should be defrayed by the revenues of the territory.

On motion of Mr. Condon a vote of thanks was returned to the committee for its faithful and valuable services.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Joslin that the mining interests and commercial trades be requested to organize a monster parade, representative of the wealth and resources of the Yukon territory. Mr. Condon seconded the resolution which passed. A resolution by Mr. Bruce to the effect that all secret, patriotic and benevolent societies be requested to take part in the parade was carried, and also one by Mr. Wishaar that the members of the Board of Trade attend in a body and that they wear appropriate badges.

The committee on incorporation reported that it seemed advisable to wait till after the visit of the governor general before carrying into effect the project.

Mr. Wade made a motion that the committee on education and schools be requested to press upon the council the necessity of the construction of two public schools, the same to be completed, furnished and ready for occupation by September 1. The motion was carried.

The committee having in hand the matter of selecting sites for school buildings reported verbally through its chairman, Mr. Crawford, that it would report more fully at the meeting of the board of trustees Friday evening.

Mr. Wade gave notice that he would move later that a committee be appointed to confer with the commissioner and council with a view to obtaining legislation providing for amendments to the mechanics' lien act which will give free miners' liens the same as mechanics' liens, and that will give protection to labor and to miners at work. On the 19th of last month a telegram was sent to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which read: "Press reports state that the Yukon territory is to be attached to Alberta district for representation. The people of the Yukon urgently desire direct representation in the Dominion parliament but not through extension of Alberta or any other district."

Wednesday evening the following reply was received:

"F. C. Clayton. Your telegram received. Press reports without foundation."

In this way the bogie, that was discussed at such length a couple or three weeks since was finally disposed of.

Territorial Court.

The case of De Lion against Kearney was on again in the territorial court yesterday.

Mr. Burke of the Yukon sawmill testified that at the time Lion's Marjory went to the rescue of the raft in question, he had also sent a canoe on the same errand, and in consequence of the work done by the canoe the steamer had only been the partial means of saving the raft. He had been paid $25 for his share of the work.

D. A. Matheson said that he had told Kearney that he must move the raft from where it was moored owing to the fact that it was catching and holding the garbage floating down stream. He had done this because Sergeant Wilson had told him that it would have to be done, and he considered that he was merely transmitting an order. The case was again postponed.

For a Free Bridge.

Petitions are being circulated today and generally signed asking for the erection of a government bridge across the Klondike river to Klondike City. The petitions will be presented to the Yukon council as soon as that body can spare up sufficient members to hold a meeting.

Dust From Tanana.

J. R. McGovern, who arrived on the steamer Sarah from Circle City, has made an extensive journey through the Tanana country. He brings with him three pokes containing several ounces of dust from the different creeks of that district. The samples are all flake gold, with a dark copper color and can be easily distinguished from that of any other district in the country.

Mr. McGovern reports the Tanana country as a very promising one, but decries the way claims have been staked by prospectors with a pocket-full of grub, a hatchet and a lead pencil. The people have run over the ground, put up their stakes and left the district without making an attempt to develop the property, consequently the value of the ground cannot be ascertained until some one gets in and goes to work in earnest.

Have the Mines Inspected.

Ralph Edgar L. Abbe, who was killed by a cave-in while working on claim No. 15 Eldorado, on the 22d of last month, is held to have met his death through lack of mine inspection. That is the view the coroner's jury took of the matter, and recommended in the verdict that mines be hereafter inspected once a month.

The matter will doubtless be brought before the council at an early date through the Board of Trade, which will be moved in the near future by Mr. Wade, to take some action looking to the protection of the miner at work.

Police Court.

The arrival of the steamer Clifford Sifton from up river was welcomed this morning with joy by saloon-keepers, as it was said she had a large quantity of liquor aboard. Perhaps after this has had time to get into circulation the police may find some more sidewalk sleepers. Whether the drinkers of hooch were indulging lightly last evening, or whether the slumber brand has been diluted till it will no longer produce sleep, are matters of conjecture, but certain it is that this morning no fines were imposed or collected in the police court.

Same old price, 25 cents, for drink, at the Regina.

SPECIAL COURT

Will Try South African Rebels Captured and in Jail.

DR. JAMESON MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT

Wyoming Coal Miners Brutally Assault Chinese.

WILL ASK AID OF LORD MINTO.

Another Link of Luetgert Sausage—July Snow—Judge Trippe Dead.

Capetown, July 24.—The speech from the throne read today at the opening of the Cape parliament by Sir Alfred Milner, governor of the colony, referred to the noble manner in which all the self-governing colonies had responded to Great Britain's call for aid, saying that indications were not wanting that the end of the war was approaching.

Those concerned in the rebellion would have to answer for their misconduct. Parliament would be asked to approve a bill providing for a special court with special powers to try the rebels who have already been put in jail and others who appear to have taken a leading part in the rebellion. A commission would be created to deal with the rank and file of the rebels, with the power of sentencing for a period of five years and to disfranchisement and deprivation of other civil rights.

Sir Alfred Milner said that he trusted the deliberations of the parliament would be characterized by wisdom and moderation, so that when the troubles should be passed all would be prepared for the great developments that were assuredly awaiting united South Africa under the sway of the Queen's sceptre.

Mr. W. P. Schreiner, former premier of Cape Colony, and Mr. Solomon, formerly attorney general, occupied seats in the opposition benches. Mr. Merri-man, treasurer, Mr. Sauer, commissioner of public works, and Dr. Water, minister without portfolio in the recent cabinet, occupied seats on the front opposition benches.

Dr. Jameson was sworn in as a member of parliament amid profound silence.

Mr. Merriman gave notice that he would move that the actions of the military in the districts where resistance had terminated were contrary to the inherent rights of British subjects, and that martial law should be repealed.

To Protect Chinese.

Chicago, July 23.—A special to the Times-Herald from Cheyenne, Wyo., says: "A number of outrages have been committed by foreigners upon the Chinese residents of Rock Springs, a coal mining town 200 miles west of here, during the last few days. The state authorities, fearing a general movement against Chinatown, where more than 500 Chinamen reside, have ordered several companies of troops to be in readiness to move to the scene. Probably two companies of infantry

FRIDAY, AUGUST 3, 1900

SHOULD PUT UP BONDS.

We believe the judiciary of the Yukon is one branch of the governmental tree in which, if an error is made, it is of the head and not of the heart. The laws as they exist are certainly administered with an eye single to the one main purpose, that of meteing out justice in every and all cases. The administration of the law is not questioned, but the law itself is not beyond remedy.

We refer to a recent happening in police court, the history of which dates back to last fall. The circumstances of the case are, as nearly as can be learned, these: A young woman, no matter who she is or what she is, left Dawson for the outside. At Tagish she was overhauled and arrested, a telegram for her apprehension having been forwarded at the instigation of a resident of Dawson, a man named Hoffman. As it was impossible for the woman to be heard in trial then and there, she was forced to either put up a cash deposit of $500 or return to Dawson in the custody of an officer. She chose the former alternative, deposited the cash and continued her journey. Confident of her own innocence, the woman came back to Dawson a week ago, believing that she could establish her claim and receive the money she had been required to deposit. A day is set for the hearing of the case and the woman appears with evidence in her own defence. What happens?

The man Hoffman, at whose instigation the woman had been apprehended, arrested, required to deposit cash bond in the sum of $500 and to make a trip from the outside to this city with the object in view of clearing her name from the stigma of "thief," appears before the court and moves that the charge be dismissed on the ground that "Mine witnesses haf gone to Nome."

The case was dismissed as there was nothing else that could be done under the circumstances. But if justice was outraged to such an extent as to require the issuance of a warrant, the apprehension by telegram, arrest and detention of the woman and the requirement of a case bond of $500, which necessitated an expensive trip back from California to recover, how has this outraged justice been appeased, and where does the woman go for redress. She has been greatly inconvenienced, but, notwithstanding the expense, she appeared for trial only to be dismissed because her prosecutor's "witnesses haf gone to Nome."

What restitution does the woman get for her inconvenience and humiliation on the trip out, the loss of the use of her money for a period of nine months, expense of returning to Dawson to prove her innocence and remove the stigma of "thief" which has all this time been attached to her name? The man Hoffman, after having said "Mine witnesses haf gone to Nome," assumes the Good Samaritan air and walks back to his place of business and the case is over.

In all justice and humanity, is it right that the above should occur in any civilized, Christianized country? Who is safe so long as there is no immunity from such outrages? This man Hoffman is still here and at large, and, according to precedent established, any man or woman who starts for the outside is liable to be overhauled and arrested and put to no end of inconvenience, only to be brought back for trial and dismissal for the reason that "Mine witnesses haf gone to Nome."

Is human liberty safe and is the individual pursuit of happiness untrammelled in any country where such outrages are possible?

The preliminary steps to the doing away with one of the long-standing monuments to the system of modern holdups is being taken in Dawson today by the circulation of petitions to the Yukon council asking for the construction of a free government bridge across the Klondike river to connect Dawson with Klondike City. It is a deplorable state of affairs when a petition is needed for such an apparent improvement. The government did not hesitate to sell land across the river at a good price, and to purchasers who have ever since been required to pay 50 cents every time they come to the postoffice. Among the many of Dawson's needed public improvements, none are more urgent than a free bridge spanning the Klondike. Needless to say the petition is being largely signed and its fate when it reaches the Yukon council will be anxiously awaited. If the people traveling to and from the suburban addition are to be held up ad infinitum, property there is not desirable even as a gift.

The broad business manner in which the Dawson Board of Trade is taking up needed reforms and the matter of needed institutions—public schools, for instance—speaks well for that organization and for the future of the city. The weight which will be carried by any decisive action the board may take is not such as will probably be lightly treated at the hands of those whose province it is to act on all matters pertaining to the upbuilding of needed public institutions.

To a very great extent the Seattle papers are to blame for the alarming conditions of Nome at the present time. With little or no regard for actual facts the papers of the Sound metropolis boomed and boosted Nome as a mining field of inexhaustible revenues until thousands were led to believe that fortunes were there for the going after. The delusion will cost not only much money but many lives. Nome is turning out to be the greatest canard known in mining history.

Many of the people who started for Nome this spring expressed an opinion that they would be unlucky if they found less than $10,000. From present indications many of them will be in great luck if they can work their way back and arrive safely at the front gate of some sympathetic relative.—Skagway News.

The Dispatch says that the owners of the steamship Dolphin, which was recently brought around from New York, may change her name to the "City of Juneau." Oh, no, that's too slow a name. Why not call her "City of Dyea" or "Wrangel," or some other symbolically up-to-date name.—Skagway News.

Who Lost the Still?

Yesterday while the workmen were digging the ditch which is to open the slough into the Klondike, they came upon a curious looking object which for some time puzzled all who saw it. The object thus unearthed is a hemisphere of copper, about eight inches in diameter, having a short tube running through one side, and on the center of the outside surface is a small square space which has the appearance of having had at one time something soldered over it. The edge is turned in all around as if it had been clinched on the other side of the sphere originally, and when complete had been a ball.

The general opinion among those who have seen the thing is that it is a part of an old liquor still. If so where did it come from, and how long have such things been in the country, are the natural questions which arise, when it is stated that the object, whatever may have been its original use, was found ten feet below the surface. That would indicate that it was buried many years ago, so many in fact that it could hardly have been lost or abandoned by any save the very earliest whites known to have been in the country, and it seems rather a stretch of the imagination to suppose that they went around carrying a still with them.

The liquors are the best to be had, at the Regina.

THE VERDICT.

The concert of the powers which played a European engagement a few years ago is now making an Asiatic tour.

Kansas is so prosperous that she has to pay a salary to the only inmate of her state poor farm in order to induce him to remain.

If anything, the Chinese names are worse than those of South Africa. In place of "fontein" we have "ching" and "chang" and "chow."

A Pennsylvania woman has bequeathed $10,000 to her horse and dog. We may expect to hear later on that the house cat has contested the will.—Kansas City Journal.

Congress has wisely wiped out navy prize bounty, and it would have been well for both Dewey and Sampson if it had been abolished before the Spanish war.

Half a hundred motor vehicles have completed a 1000 mile test in England, proving conclusively that they are not toys, but a serious and trustworthy means of locomotion.

Nebraska farmers are organizing unions and are to brand all their marketable products with the union label. By and by we shall be asked not to eat eggs unless laid by union hens.—Kansas City Journal.

It seems to be impossible to teach the people of the United States that it requires a 5-cent stamp or its equivalent to carry a letter to Cuba. Many thousands of letters are being received there every day with only 2 cents postage paid.

Souvenir of a Tragedy.

The daughter of a United States senator has a locket which was presented to her mother by J. Wilkes Booth the night before he killed Lincoln. The story, which is now printed for the first time, is as follows:

Booth rented a room the night before the assassination in the Washington hotel, where Henry Clay died. The house was crowded with guests, and the corridors after dinner were filled with women of note and beauty. Booth, who was fond of admiration, commingled with the assemblage and was presented to many. He carried a handsomely mounted locket, which a senator's wife complimented. She knew the Booth family, Edwin Booth having been a guest in her home. This fact was sufficient warrant for J. Wilkes Booth to be unusually gracious, and when the senator's wife admired the locket he begged the favor of presenting it to her. The following night occurred the tragedy. In the preliminary investigation which followed the senator's wife and another woman who was with her the evening she met Booth were subjected to a most rigid inquiry as to Booth's manner.

The daughter of a senator's wife, now a prominent society woman of her home, tells this story in connection with the investigation:
"My poor mother was questioned and cross questioned by a lawyer and a detective touching her meeting with Booth. But she was unable to give them any information concerning Booth's manner except that he was gallant. Hard as they tried to learn anything from her, she could remember nothing showing that Booth contemplated crime; nothing indicating that he ever thought of such a thing. He was in a jovial mood and spoke of some future events with confidence. I do not think my mother ever quite recovered from the effects of the incident. She kept the locket for some years, never using it, however, and finally she presented it to me. I am not superstitious, but I have never yet tried to use this locket that something unusual did not occur. The first night I carried it my horse had an accident which made us late in arriving at the theater, and when we got there we found the play postponed. Once it was misplaced and suddenly turned up. On another occasion it was loaned to a friend who was taken ill in her box and nearly died before she got home. I still have it, but I never use it, although I mean to some day."—Chicago Tribune.

The Time I've Lost in Wooing.

The time I've lost in wooing,
In watching and pursuing,
The light that lies
In woman's eyes
Has been my heart's undoing.
Though wisdom oft has sought me,
I scorned the lore she taught me;
My only books
Were women's looks,
And folly's all they've taught me.

Her smile when beauty granted
I hung with gaze enchanted,
Like him, the sprite,
Whom maids by night
Oft meet in glen that's haunted,
Like him, too, beauty won me,
But while her eyes were on me,
If once their ray
Was turned away,
Oh, winds could not outrun me!

And are these follies going?
And is my proud heart growing
Too cold or wise
For brilliant eyes,
Again to set it glowing?
No, vain, alas, the endeavor
From bonds so sweet to sever;
Poor wisdom's chance
Against a glance
Is now as weak as ever.

—Thomas Moore.

Quarantine at St. Michael.

If true that St. Michael has quarantined against all steamers from below, and that such craft will be forced to lay to 14 days before being permitted to discharge either passengers or freight, it will greatly retard the shipment of the freight of the big companies up the river to this place and may possibly result in a shortage of winter provisions. Few of the large companies have as yet received more than a very small part of their annual importations.

LINES ON THE HUMAN FACE.

Wrinkles Are the Telltales of Life's Encounters.

Simple Methods by Which They May Be Softened or Entirely Removed—How to Guard Against Them.

Wrinkles are the handwriting of time on the human countenance. How much they give expression and character, as well as individuality, to it is shown when the photographer retouches the negative of a picture and wipes them out of existence. The resemblance to the individual is about the same as the dried specimen of a flower in the botanist's herbarium is to the one which grows bright and vigorous, full of life, in the meadow or forest. Wrinkles are telltales of life's encounters. They accumulate in grief and in sorrow; they increase and grow ugly when the will loses its grip on the thoughts and the nerves run riot. Each can ascertain the cause of the wrinkles and interpret the emotions which have made lines and cross lines upon his or her own face by assuming the muscular contractions that have produced them.

The principal wrinkles that mark the face are those that appear on the forehead, stretching across from one temple to another, from two to five parallel lines or from one to three upright ones. These lines are reprehensible and unnecessary, the result of a pernicious habit of overuse of nerve force, an exaggeration of energy in thought and speech and accompanied by self-consciousness. They are usually formed early in life, and parents should by persistence prevent a child from acquiring the habit. The lines of latitude are less noble than those of longitude.

The next set of wrinkles in importance are those about the eyes. Those that are at the angles, the "crow's feet," are pleasant lines and come from wrinkling the skin in smiling or in laughter. In the olden time the teachers of deportment and good looks warned the pupils against wrinkling the face in the display of hilarious emotions because of these effects. The long lines and the wrinkling of the delicate tissues under the eyes are greater telltales than any other of exhaustion of vital forces and the ravages of time. But hardest of all to deal with are the wrinkles about the mouth.

Few are conscious of the part played in the battle of life by the muscles of the mouth. They, and not those about the eyes, are called into action by every passing thought and emotion of being. If thoughts are pleasant, they relax; if mournful, there is a downward droop; if energetic, they harden; if determined, they compress the lips; if angry, they contract still more; if humorous, they relax and the mouth widens—the greater the merriment the wider the mouth—and the cheeks participate in the pleasurable emotions, and the parentheses, the two long, semi-circular wrinkles inclosing the lips, appear and deepen with age.

The skin, responding to the muscular action underneath, becomes creased and wrinkled in fine or coarser lines, according to the display of muscular activity. The wrinkles which more surely than any others tell of the action of time are those which run from the ears around the base of the chin at its junction with the neck. They are not expressive of emotion; they are made by the bending of the head upon the neck. The wrinkles of the cheeks are not numerous, and they require strong agencies, such as sickness, grief and age, to bring them out. Some of these wrinkles are made by taking bad positions during sleep or crushing the cheek upon the pillow. The soft, yielding flesh is pushed upward, making deep creases under the eyes, at the corners and on the temples.

To remove wrinkles, therefore, one must know their mechanism and their philosophy. In the first place guard against a flabby and relaxed skin. This can be done by dashing upon the face either very hot water or very cold or alternating them and while doing this rubbing the skin with the balls of the fingers. Alcohol or cologne toughens the skin and keeps it smooth. It can be used with water, equal parts. It is seldom that the skin of the face is too dry, for the oily glands are especially active; but, in case it is, use instead of alcohol a cold cream or an unguent made of equal parts of white vaseline, almond oil and lanolin, to which may be added a few drops of violet extract. Steaming the face, massaging it and the use of electricity are all good to remove wrinkles. The end aimed at by the employment of all these means is to give elasticity and firmness to the skin, which enables it to resist the action of the underlying muscles.

If deep wrinkles have come, such as the horizontal wrinkles of the forehead, they can be removed by mechanical means. After painting them with an astringent, such as tannate of glycerin, put them on a stretch by means of plaster, which will also be a means of reminding one to wrinkle the forehead. Some persons have a facial skin which reminds one of a russet apple which has been kept a long time. These fine universal wrinkles are generally the result of a querulous and dissatisfied disposition. After all, the best cosmetic and the most efficient preventive of these graven lines of time is a buoyant and happy disposition, a determination to make the best of life.—Harper's Bazar.

His Style of Advertising.

The professional writer of advertisements, remarked a man in the advertising business, "knows more about his trade than any one else does. But occasionally some rank outsider, from whom it is least to be expected, comes out with a stray idea that is worthy of attention.

"I remember the case of an old man named Ovid Chapman, who kept a general store in a sleepy little Massachusetts village. He was not an educated man, but he was clever, as is proved by the fact that he could read his own handwriting. One day he wandered into the office of the village weekly and asked to see the business manager. "Hey, you!" he said by way of greeting to that worthy, "I want two inches of space for two months. Things has been droppin' off consid'able in my line lately, an I'm goin' to try advertisin' for a spell."

"Ahem!" coughed the business manager. "Now, just what is your line of business, Mr. —er—Chapman?"

"Waal, I jest keep hardware, candy, shoes, toothbrushes, baccy, shirts an all—sech things. But you needn't bother about that. I've got my ad. all writ up." And he took from his pocket a slip of paper upon which was scrawled the following: "We don't keep anything. We sell everything! O Chapman, Main street."

"Some days later, when passing his store, I was surprised to see this placard hanging above the boots and shoes in his window: 'We are trying to sell our shoes—not our customers. New shoes sold. Old shoes resoled.'"

"Yas," he said, coming to the door with a satisfied chuckle, "I believe in advertisin'. But it's like baked beans—it's got to be well done to be any good."

Portlander's Views of Dawson.

Judge C. H. Carey has returned to Portland from a trip to Dawson, which took up about a month of his time. He had business in the Klondike metropolis, in connection with an estate, and took advantage of the opportunity to look around while up there, in order to judge of the present conditions and future prospects of what a few years ago startled the world by the stories of painful gold.

Judge Carey said yesterday that he thought Dawson was on the wane. The district has lost a large proportion of its population through the exodus to Nome, and most of the rich placers in the vicinity of Dawson have been worked out. "It costs too much up there to dig for gold," he said, "and gravel should contain at least $1 a yard in order to enable a miner to make anything worth while. The gravel and mud must be thawed, out in the winter with the aid of fuel, that costs $20 to $30 a cord, according to location, and living costs a great deal more than in any other mining region. Miners' wages are about $8 a day, without board, which costs $3, but this fall the pay will probably be reduced to $5, which would equal $2 a day and board. "A large number of 'laymen' lost money on their last season's work, and were unable to pay their men when the thaws of summer enabled them to find out how much gold there was in the gravel they had been digging out. Many of the men were glad to accept 25 per cent of the wages agreed on, as there was no legal recourse for them. The 'laymen' had nothing to pay with, and the real owners of the claims could not be held responsible.

"Laymen" are those who take claims to work on shares, agreeing to pay the owner 50 per cent of the gold found. Thus, after paying the season's expenses and deducting the government's 10 per cent royalty on the gross receipts, it took a rich claim to enable either party to net any profit. "No new discoveries have been made of late, and the gold bearing area is very definitely circumscribed. Unless some rich discoveries are made ere long, the district will lose the bulk of its population and drift into the hands of large corporations, which will buy up the claims and introduce expensive hydraulic systems. Things are drifting that way very rapidly now.

"Of Dawson's population, probably three-fourths are Americans, and they have held their own with the Canadians and Englishmen in the accumulation of wealth. Quite a large number of former Portlanders are in business in the town, and they are all doing well, as a rule. A good many women and children are now being brought in from the States and elsewhere, to join the heads of families who have established themselves in business, and the Dawson of the future, be it large or small, will lose considerable of its wild and woolly appearance through the presence of family influences."

He thinks the criminal laws of the Yukon territory are well administered, and that crime is exceedingly rare in consequence. The murderer or robber has only one way to get out of the country—the Yukon river—and a telegraph line now in operation heads off all those who try to escape, as mounted police have stations at convenient intervals. As to civil laws, it is different, and there is little or no recourse in civil procedure, as the officials are openly and notoriously corrupt. In fact, they can give the officials of the most corrupt American city "cards and spades," and discount them in bribe taking and favoritism. The postal department is run on the same corrupt plan, and those who handle the mail make no secret of their willful and continued indifference to the needs of the community. To illustrate, Judge Carey had made arrangements to have the Daily Oregonian sent him while in Dawson, but he never obtained a copy. "No paper here for you," was the continued reply, day after day, for three weeks, and at the end of that time the postmaster said: "We never bother with paper mail, anyway," thus abruptly dismissing a subject of much importance to Judge Carey, who was very desirous of reading the news from home. "Occasionally I could buy an Oregonian for 25 cents," he said, "when some enterprising traveler would bring a bundle in with him on speculation. What became of my papers I shall never know."

The White Pass railroad, he said, was doing a big business, and evidently making money, as there seemed to be a large passenger traffic both ways, while the freight cars were crowded with goods of all descriptions going in. The road is now completed from Skagway to Bennett, and from the lower end of the lake to Whitehorse rapids, after which the northbound traveler takes a steamer down the Yukon to Dawson. The trip, he said, is a delightful one in summer, and there is no hardship whatever connected with it.

At Whitehorse quite an important town is springing up, on account of large bodies of copper being found near by. The developments and the Klondike traffic are evidently making the railroad pay, though how long it will continue, Judge Carey does not venture to guess. He looks for rich strikes on the Tanana, which is down the Yukon, on the American side, and if this district should prove as good as reports indicate, there may be considerable trade on the Upper Yukon in the future.

Skagway, he said, was quiet, and although it is the western terminus of the railroad, the only excitement there was on the arrival of a steamer, when the populace would turn out to meet it at the dock.

As to the Klondike gold output, he thought it would be heavy this year, but it will reach its high-water mark and gradually grow less, until the Klondike district will no longer be considered an important factor in the world's annual gold production.—Oregonian.

What's the Matter With Rogers?

W. A. Rogers, who has made a fortune in the Klondike, arrived in this city last week. He has come south for a rest after four years in the mines. While here he will purchase machinery. Mr. Rogers says that $20,000,000 will be sent out of the Klondike country this season. The rush to Cape Nome has taken away a large part of the undesirable floating population from Dawson City, where they had been living from hand to mouth. The greatest present need of the Klondike is said to be an American consul who is competent to fill the office. Mr. Rogers is going to Washington to file a complaint against the present official.—Los Angeles (Cal.) Express.

STEAMER SIFTON ARRIVES

With a Large Cargo of That Which Inebriates.

Boats in and Out of Dawson—Race Up the River—Telegraph Wire Down.

The steamer Clifford Sifton arrived this morning from Lake Bennett. She is an independent boat and is operated by the Dominion Navigation Company, of London. Owing to the completion of the White Pass railroad the boats which formerly plied on the waters of the upper lake are now forced out of business at that end as they cannot compete with the railroad in transportation, consequently one after the other are coming down to the lower river. The Sifton is the largest boat by 25 feet in length, which has passed through the Canyon and she made the trip without mishap, save that of tearing a length of her guard and having two of her crew swept overboard. They were rescued without injury. An account of her adventure was published in a recent issue of this paper. She will probably sail tomorrow. Her cargo consisted of 120 tons, a large portion of which is liquor.

The steamer Sarah of the A. C. Co., is billed to sail on her return trip to St. Michael some time today. The Louise is due to arrive within 24 hours.

The Bailey sailed this afternoon and will be followed by the Victorian.

The Ora was reported at 8:17 this morning passing Selkirk on her way down the river.

A wire was received stating that the steamer Anglian, Lightning and Yukoner were racing up the river, all in a bunch. They passed Selkirk in the order named at 1:30 this morning. Manager Davies is aboard the Lightning, consequently every pound of steam will be put on to make a record trip and show the course to the other boats.

No news was obtained from Whitehorse this morning as the wire is still down between Lebarge and that point.

DOINGS AT NOME.

Felix Blei withdrew from the management of Koster & Bial's theater, in New York city, in order to interest himself in the vaudeville business in Nome. Present aspects indicate that he will enjoy a profitable business here.

Dick Cse, the well-known pugilist, is one of the employes at the Columbia. He is endeavoring to arrange a boxing match, to occur some time during the present month.

George Vernon, late of Dawson, is confined to his bed with a severe cold.

Col. Sam Word, a late arrival from Dawson, has opened an office on Steadman avenue and has been circulating among his many friends for the past week.

William Cribbs, of the druggist firm of Cribbs & Rogers at Dawson, has opened one of the handsomest drug stores in town, on Front street, opposite the Hunter saloon.

William McPhee and M. L. Hamilton, formerly of Dawson, have one of the largest packing outfits in Nome. They are prepared to handle heavy mining machinery, having heavy wagons constructed to run over the tundra.

The wife of Mr. B. S. Woods gave birth to a baby on Monday last. This is the fourth white child born in Nome.

An Indian, living at the mouth of Nome river, committed suicide today. The deceased had brooded over the death of his wife, which occurred yesterday. Two orphan children are left destitute, and neither are old enough to earn a livelihood.

The Chamber of Commerce has not held a meeting during the past week, for the reason that matters of private business required the attention of the members.

A few days ago a fire swept the tundra from the eastern end of town to the foothills and below Cape Nome. Near the Cape several Indian habitations were burned.

Rapid progress is being made on the construction of the Wild Goose railroad from Nome to Charles D. Lane's properties on Anvil creek. W. N. Monroe is in charge of the work, and he expects to complete his labors in the near future.

Two fires have occurred recently in the neighborhood of the "cribs," situated immediately to the rear of the Grotto saloon. In each instance the flames were extinguished before they had an opportunity to spread to adjacent buildings.

Charles J. Cambell, a real estate broker, died at St. Bernard hospital on July 5 of pneumonia. The deceased first came to Alaska in 1898, and since last summer he has been a resident of Nome. He formerly lived in San Francisco, where he leaves a mother, brother and sister to mourn his death.

Last Wednesday evening, I. Strauss, who had been afflicted with pneumonia, died at St. Bernard hospital. He was a native of New York, and aged 34 years.

John E. Hanley, on July 5, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a .38-calibre revolver. Ill health and despondency are supposed to have caused the tragedy. Some time ago the deceased shot and killed Montana Smith in self-defence. Hanley was unmarried and was about 40 years of age.

There are now 15 patients at the smallpox hospital located at a point along the beach half way between the town and Nome river. Dr. Call stated yesterday that the spread of the disease was about checked, and he did not look for any serious outbreak during the present mild weather. The last two patients received during the past few days were E. B. Ryan and Senator Scofield, both of whom are suffering from the illness in a mild form.

As the price of Nome realty rises in value the number of disputes and the frequency of gun plays continue to increase from day to day. If the unsettled condition of land titles continues much longer, the coroner and undertaker will be in a position to quote the rise and fall of the tundra market, as several of the disputants have had recourse to forcible entry by the persuasive power of the leaden bullet. The gentlemen of sack cloth and ashes will eventually fall heir to valuable city property while the late lamented will possibly contest titles on other golden shores.

The numerous gambling resorts appear to be enjoying a good patronage. The principal portion of the play is confined to sports, who recently arrived from Dawson or the States, and limit bets are matters of frequent occurrence. During the past week George L'Abbe has made several attempts to beat the bank, but his efforts have been quite unsuccessful. The adventurous vaudeville manager seems to entertain the hope of winning a gambling house completely furnished; his losses aggregate thousands of dollars. Louis Golden, formerly a resident of Dawson, has vainly tried to twist the tiger's tail, with the resultant effect that a considerable quantity of Klondike gold dust has passed into the possession of Dick Dawson and his associates. Jeffries, well known as the "Oregon Jew," came to town a few days ago, since which time he has made a few fancy plays to advantage. Baron Spitzel has placed an occasional bet in order to liquidate Cad Wilson's supper tab—the price of "a small bird and a cold bot."

Up to date, the Baron has not booked a losing, and he manifests no concern regarding his future luck, for even a disastrous sitting at faro would not impair his standing with "such a nice girl, too."

Many recent arrivals, particularly people from Dawson, express disappointment because there is an evident lack of gold dust as a circulating medium of exchange. This condition is easily explained. The district in the vicinity of Nome is subject only to summer operations, and quite naturally the product of the mines is not brought to town until the season is well advanced, or until the season early in the fall. It is also true that the actual worth of gold dust exceeds $16 per ounce, the current market price. This disparity results in a loss to the miner, and consequently he retains his gold in order to dispose of it at the proper valuation to assay offices and banking institutions.

Claims Sold for a Dollar.
Yesterday 370 crown mining claims and fractions of claims were sold by the sheriff at public auction, and out of the lot 65 brought the munificent sum of $1 each.

The great bulk of these claims were situated on inconsequent creeks, and were looked upon with general indifference by the public, as is evident from the prices paid.

Port of Entry Changed.
Consul McCook has received a letter from Special Sub-Treasury Agent J. F. Evans, at St. Michael, notifying him that the sub-port of entry at Circle has been closed, and that all steamers clearing in Dawson for Alaskan ports will be required to enter hereafter at Eagle City, the new sub-port of entry.

R. R. Officials Coming.
E. C. Hawkins, general manager of the White Pass railroad, S. H. Graves, president of that corporation, and R. T. Elliot, general manager of the Canadian Development Company, are passengers on the Victorian, due to arrive in Dawson tonight.

The warmest and most comfortable hotel in Dawson is at the Regina.

BRIEF MENTION.

Geo. E. Ames, of Chechako Hill is in town this morning.

The water front in the vicinity of the barracks has been cleaned up in good shape.

The Dawson Athletic Club will hold a meeting in McDonald hall at 8:30 this evening.

The city appears to be filling up with strangers again, as there are now more arrivals than departures.

Miss Fannie Lilly left on the Bailey today for a hurried trip to Skagway and possibly Seattle in the interests of the firm of Lilly Bros.

Where the people are coming from no one seems to know, but First avenue presents a very lively scene every afternoon and evening.

Chute & Wills have completed the erection of a large two story warehouse and livery barn on the corner of Second avenue and Sixth street.

A. P. Lester is down from 21 Eldorado for a few days and is stopping at the Yukon hotel. Mr. Lester is in town to procure new machinery for the claim.

Frank Slavin's Waterloo.

This morning the Exchange saloon was the scene of a fistie encounter of more than usual interest to those interested in the manly art. Frank Slavin, of local prize ring repute, was looking for trouble and he got it in large quantities. The fight was started by Slavin, who was abusing and misusing a man very much smaller than himself, but who was fortunate in having a friend present who, although not as heavy as Slavin, proved himself much more than his match. His name is Frank Smith, and the way he handled the big fighter was a source of pleasure to many who witnessed the affair, which, fortunately for Slavin, though much to the disgust of the onlookers, was stopped before a knockout occurred. No one who saw the fight doubts that Slavin was up against a much better man than himself.

Bordman Denies It.

Paul Bordman who returned from Nome yesterday denies the report that was circulated here two weeks ago to the effect that he was "broke" at Nome. He says he took $1500 with him and was well fixed at all times. This statement is made in justice to him as he feels aggrieved that such a report should have been published.

Auction Sale of Dogs.

On Saturday, the 11th, at 2 p. m., one week from tomorrow, there will be a public auction sale of dogs at the pound yard. In this way, 23 deserted and homeless canines will be once more furnished with homes, and the supposition is that by that means they will once more become liable to the dog catcher's rope, and the new owners will have a chance to bail them out again.

Will Appeal to Minto.

Montreal, July 24.—Local Chinese have decided to petition Minister Wu, at Washington, to use his good offices with Lord Minto to have the tax of $50 placed on Chinese laundries by the city council of Montreal reduced. A large number of the Celestials have been confined in prison for non payment of this tax, which they regard as unfair and unjust.

Stock Yard Mystery.

Chicago, July 24.—The police officials are investigating a mystery at the stock yards which they think is another Luetgert case. A human skull and a pair of shoes have been found in a rendering tank owned by one of the packing house firms at the yards. Several men recently in the employ of the company have disappeared, and the police are searching for them to see if any light can be shed upon the mysterious find. It is the theory of the police that the victim was pushed into the tank.

July Snow.

Chicago, July 24.—A special to the Record from Marshall, Mich., says snow fell here last evening for a few minutes during the course of a hard wind storm. The wind did much damage, blowing down orchards, unroofing houses and breaking glass.

Judge Tripple Dead.

Atlanta, Ga., July 23.—Judge Robert Pleasant Tripple, believed to be the last surviving member of the Confederate congress and at one time a judge of the supreme court of Georgia, is dead.

Held for Embezzlement.

San Francisco, July 23.—Julian B. Arnold, son of Sir Edwin Arnold, was before United States Commissioner Heacock today on a new charge. The complaint, sworn to by British Vice Consul Moore, charged Arnold with embezzling a sum equivalent to $4775 in gold from William O. Swain and Edgar Swain, of England, heirs of an English estate.
