Prince Max of Saxony, who has just been appointed Bishop of Kulm, is well known in England from his labors and preachings (in fluent English) in the East End of London during the last two years. Prince Max, who is only in his twenty-eighth year, was after due novitiate appointed chaplain of Walburg at Eichstatt, the very place where he was garrisoned and where his conversion was effected. Shortly afterwards he preached his first sermon and his sisters and brothers, a most eloquent and stirring discourse.
