FIGURES DO LIE.

Prices are only Relative
REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.
They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build.
They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.
They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."
If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.
You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large.
REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.
We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.
We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.
REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.

CHAPTER XXI
"You appreciate my difficulty, your worship?" he said. "I am defending a man who is not only innocent, but completely fails to understand his position! It is obvious that if I am to fulfil my duty efficiently, I must have an interview with him. I do not ask for—I still oppose—a remand, at present; but I will ask for an adjournment of the court that I may confer with my client."

Lord Hatherley and the other magistrates looked relieved; the strain of so unusually grave a case was telling upon them.

"Certainly, Mr. Bulpit," he said; "the court will adjourn for an hour."

Rath was taken from the dock, some of the people in the court rushed out into the open air to breathe and chatter excitedly, some remained, fearful that they should be unable to re-enter. The bench rose and filed into the magistrates' room; and Lord Hatherley sank into a chair and wiped his face with his handkerchief, while the rest discussed the case in eager undertones.

"Did you ever hear anything like it?" exclaimed Lord Parodel. "Several times I was wondering whether we were in Raton Court-House or a theatre! Wrecked on an unknown island; saved by a modern Robinson Crusoe; alone with him—for how long?—swept away in a boat; saved by a yacht—and then meets him face to face as a witness against him in a charge of murder!"

"A romance of life!" said the young duke.
"Romance—yes; that's just what I should call it!" said a husky voice; and all turned to where Ralph was leaning against the mantel-shelf.

There was a sneer on his lips, his eyes were thrust deep in his pockets, his head was bent forward in a half-sullen, half-contemptuous fashion.

"You don't believe her, Lord Raton?" said Lord Parodel.
Ralph shrugged his shoulders.
"That's strange!" commented Parodel. "To me, every word she uttered had the impress of truth."
"And to me!" exclaimed the duke, "I'd swear to the truth of every word."
Ralph laughed shortly.
"Nothing so convincing as a young and prettily witness," he said, sneeringly. "If she'd been old and ugly—"
"You're right, she's pretty enough—by George, lovely!" broke in Parodel.

"And innocent," said the duke, warmly.
Ralph shrugged his shoulders.
"Who knows?" he said. They looked at him with surprise, and he went on more guardedly: "I mean, is there anyone who knows her, can speak as to her—credibility—respectability? She was found in this—this woman's lodgings—a strolling player—"

"I don't understand you, Raton," said Parodel. "If that girl—that young lady, for she is a lady, as any fool could see—no offense, Raton!—isn't innocent and trustworthy, then my experience of the world—pretty extensive, more's the pity!—goes for nothing!"

"Well—well!" said Ralph, impatiently. "Admit that it's true—which I don't, if it's all the same to you—how does it help the prisoner? Her evidence isn't in his favour—"
"This proves that the prisoner is not the poor woman's husband, anyhow!" retorted Lord Parodel.
"Gentlemen—gentlemen!" interposed Lord Hatherley, with obvious distress. "Surely we ought not to discuss the evidence—the witnesses—at this point. We should wait until we have to decide on the whole case."

"Certainly. I beg your pardon, Hatherley!" said Lord Parodel, promptly. "It was my fault."
"And mine," said Ralph. "How beastly hot it is in here. I'll step outside and get a breath of fresh air, I think."

Though it was not usual for a magistrate to leave the court in the middle of so serious a case, no one stayed him, and Ralph went out by the magistrate's door. There was a momentary silence after he had gone, then Parodel said:
"What ails Raton, I wonder? Looks bad, too, doesn't he?"
"He is very much distressed by this awful crime; it was perpetrated in his own wood—quite near the house," said Lord Hatherley, apologetically.
"Quite so!" Parodel said, quickly, as if the explanation accounted for Ralph's appearance and manner, and his animus against the accused. Then he added in a low voice, to the duke: "Did you notice the singular resemblance, duke?"
The duke nodded.
"Yes. It was striking! They are strangely alike; not only in face, but in voice; but I am constrained to admit that the prisoner has the best of it. Now, that's what I call a handsome face, if you like; and he's a model of what a man ought to be in chews and muscle. He must be six feet one or two. I should have liked to see the fight between him and the keeper! Will I have a sandwich and a glass of sherry? Won't I! Feel as if I had had nothing to eat for a month. Thank God we fellows don't get a murder case often!"

As Lisle led Stella from the court to one of the small rooms in the corridor, she turned to him with outstretched hands.
"Lord Lisle, I would ask you to forgive me—"
"I have forgiven you long since, though the only thing I had to forgive was your leaving us," he said. "That pained and hurt us! But we won't say another word about it, now or in the future. Indeed, we have all too much on our minds, more grave and serious matters. Sit down! Ah, yes; but you must! You must let me take care of you, until—"
He stopped, but Stella could finish the sentence for him, and her face flushed for a moment. But it was no time for blushing. She was all of a shake with agitation, with the mingling of surprise and joy, dread and pity.
"Is—Is there any danger, Lord Lisle?" she asked in a breathless whisper. "You will tell me the truth. I know you will not keep anything from me. See, I am quite calm and strong. I can bear anything, everything, if you will only let me see him. You will help me, Lord Lisle. Will help us?"

"I will for—yes, I will say it—your sake and his," said Lisle, very gently and gravely. "This is not the first time I've seen and met your—your friend, Mr. Rayne."

Stella stared at him with surprise. "You! Why, where?"
He met the sweet, innocent eyes with a regard from which was crushed out, by a good man's strong will, all traces of his hopeless passion, and even touched her hand with a calm, confiding contact.

"In London. It is one of the strangest incidents of this strange history," he said; and he proceeded to tell her of his meeting with Rath and Edward at the hotel, and the way in which Rath had saved his life on the Embankment.

She listened with tears of pride, with her bosom heaving.
"Yes! It is like Rath!" she murmured, almost using Edward's words. "And they think him capable of murdering poor Nita! Lord Lisle, who did kill her? Was it her—her husband? Did she really see him that afternoon at the window?"
Lord Lisle shook his head slowly.

"I can't say. It is that which we have to discover. And now, you will go home to the Abbey—you will let us make it your home until—"
"I have sent for Cecilia," and the carriage should be here by this time."
"No, no!" she said. "I cannot leave him; I must stay."

"But think of the pain you will endure. Ah! here is Cecilia. She will be able to persuade you—"
Cecilia uttered a cry of surprise and joy at sight of Stella, and caught her in her arms.

"You wicked, wicked girl! Where have you been? And why are you here? What is the matter?"
She looked from one to the other, and Lisle whispered:
"Take her home, Cis."
But Stella heard him, and clung to Lady Cecilia imploringly.

"No, no; don't ask me! He is in there, being tried—and I could not leave him. Let me stay, pray let me stay! I will be quite quiet. I will not let him speak to me. I will only look at him, and sit quite, quite still."

"It's the queerest, maddest business I ever heard of," he growled to Edward. "It sounds like a melodrama without the clues, and the very recital of it will mystify and prejudice a jury against him."

The magistrates resumed their places on the bench, Ralph again taking his seat behind Lord Hatherley. He had had a drink of brandy at the Raton Arms, and the spirit had given a hectic flush to the cheeks and an unnatural brightness to his eyes.

He scowled round the court and at Rath, then leant his elbow on Lord Hatherley's chair, and leant forward with bent head. The usher called for silence, the buzz and hum of the densely packed people subsided, and the superintendent rose.

Lady Cecilia looked half frightened. "I don't in the least know what you are talking about, or what you have to do with this dreadful business."
Lisle made a sign to her, for Stella was on the point of breaking down.
"Well, well, you shall stay; and Cecilia will go with you, and I will come too. You shall do what you please, if you will only promise not to run away again. Oh, what a great deal you have to tell me, when you do get home!"
Stella looked at her gravely and gratefully.
"Yes! More than you can guess," she said, brokenly. Then she turned, all feverish eagerness, to Lisle. "Is the time up? I do not want to miss anything—anything!"
Lisle signing to his sister to look after her closely, hurried out and got a glass of wine, which Stella took and drank at once.

"I want all my strength," she said, simply. "It is so hard to keep from crying out: 'You are all mad, mad; he is innocent, innocent!'" Lisle stood over her with tender and fraternal care and anxiety.
"In a few minutes the time will be up. You shall rest in that dark corner—shut your eyes and try really to rest—while I tell Cecilia all that has happened."

She obeyed like a child, and remained almost motionless until she heard the tramping of the crowd as it fought its way back to the court.
Rath had been brought in before she entered on Lisle's arm, but the police had made a cordon round the lock, and she could not reach him excepting with her eyes. She saw—she saw—that his expression was changed. It had lost something of its gravity, and his eyes shone with a quiet joy as they sought the lovely ace seated between Lord Lisle and Lady Cecilia at the solicitors' table.

But Mr. Bulpit looked grave enough. He had had his interview with Rath, and had had advantage—nothing, indeed, to his legal mind, Rath's story sounded incredible. He did not know anything of his own or his father's history, knew nothing of Stella's or her mother's; in fact, Mr. Bulpit could make very little of the whole story.

"It's the queerest, maddest business I ever heard of," he growled to Edward. "It sounds like a melodrama without the clues, and the very recital of it will mystify and prejudice a jury against him."

The magistrates resumed their places on the bench, Ralph again taking his seat behind Lord Hatherley. He had had a drink of brandy at the Raton Arms, and the spirit had given a hectic flush to the cheeks and an unnatural brightness to his eyes.

 The Governor, Newfoundland:

 The Italian Government, report a night attack on the Isonzo front, completely repulsed.
 The Leyland liner Armenian was sunk by a German submarine on Monday off the Scilly Islands. Twenty are reported drowned.

PARIS, June 30.
 On the banks of the Yser and north of Arons artillery contests between the Oise and Argonne a calm day. After an uninterrupted bombardment lasting three days, the Germans attacked our positions between Binerville and Four de Paris Road. Repulsed twice, they succeeded in a third attack in taking a footing in a few places of our lines near Bagatelle, but were repulsed everywhere else after violent fighting. On the Verdun front, bombardment, also on the Ailly front and Metzeral.
 Dardanelles.—Since our successes of 21st June, the French troops have been only engaged in local actions. In view of the consolidation and extension of captured ground they occupied several new trenches and dug-outs connecting the captured works with lines previously held. Several counter-attacks were repulsed. On the 27th the British left supported by our artillery, obtained great success. After an intense bombardment, the British took by assault on certain points four Turkish lines, also progressing about 1,500 metres. On the extreme left wing they occupied a mountain top at Krithia height, making 150 prisoners. A counter-attack by the enemy last night was annihilated, the enemy's losses being very heavy.

LOSS OF THE ARMENIAN.
AVONMOUTH, July 1.
 There were eleven Americans among the nineteen members of the crew who lost their lives by the sinking of the Leyland line freight steamer Armenian by a German submarine, off Treade Head, Cornwall, on Monday. Some members of the crew were killed outright when the German torpedo struck the ship. When sunk by the German submarine the Armenian was carrying a cargo of 1,422 mules from Newport News to Avonmouth. The

STATEMENT DENIED.
PARIS, July 1.
 With reference to an interview published in America, in which Prince Rupprecht, of Bavaria, is quoted as saying that fifty per cent. of the shells used by the French were manufactured in the States, the Minister of War made to the Associated Press the following official statement: "Neither now nor at any time since the beginning of the war, has French artillery made use of any shells manufactured in the States."

ONLY A FORMALITY.
LONDON, July 1.
 Bulgarian reservists in London were served with notice to-day, as to their respective regiments so as to know where to report immediately in event of being called to the colors. The Bulgarian Consulate said that the notification was only a formality necessitated by a change in regimental depots.

ITALIANS CAPTURE FORTRESS.
GENEVA, July 1.
 A despatch from Austria to the Geneva Tribune, report the capture by Italians of the mountain fortress of Conisugna, 2,500 metres north of Ala in Trenton, which cost the Austrians £300,000 to construct. The correspondent characterizes the affair as audacious. He states that an Italian captain with 100 men, climbed the slope and demanded that the garrison surrender, saying that the fortress was surrounded, which was a simple bluff. The garrison capitulated.

GERMAN AMMUNITION TRAINS BLOWN UP.
BERLIN, July 1.
 Several German ammunition trains carrying munitions to General Von Mackenzen's army in Galicia, were blown up at Przeworsky by Russian aviators, on Sunday.

BOMBARDMENT FAILED.
PETROGRAD, July 1.
 An attempt by German warships to bombard the port of Windau, Courland, and land troops, was repulsed by the Russians, according to an official statement.

QUIET ON EAST FRONTS.
PETROGRAD, July 1.
 There has been a lull in the Silesian region, on the eastern and Maro fronts, and on the Nare front, also on the left bank of the Vistula. Noticing the enemy crossing the Danaster, near Halicz, we took the offensive and drove him back, making hundreds of prisoners.

STEAMERS TORPEDOED.
LONDON, July 1.
 The Norwegian steamer Marna, bound for Leith with a cargo of pit props, has been sunk by a German submarine off Heloland. The British barque Thielshank, which sailed from Bahia Blanca, Argentina, on April 26th, with a cargo of wheat for Queenstown, was torpedoed by a German submarine yesterday at a point off Fastnet, Ireland. Some of the crew landed at Baltimore, a small seaport 47 miles southwest of Cork.

animals were to be used by the French armies in Belgium and France. The vessel had a crew of 72 men, and carried 96 mule tenders. The submarine was first sighted by a German man at the wheel, and though the ship was pushed to the limit, the under-water craft overhauled her and commenced shelling. The Armentis efforts to keep her stern to the submarine proved futile.

FRENCH AEROPLANES ATTACK GERMAN TOWNS.
PARIS, July 1.
 Eleven French aeroplanes flying across the Black Forest in three squadrons, attacked seven German towns in Alsace on Wednesday, and also bombed three railway lines. Their bombs caused great damage, according to a despatch from Belgium.

WAS ENGAGED IN ADMIRALTY SERVICE.
WASHINGTON, July 1.
 The Leyland steamer Armenian, was engaged on Admiralty business when she was sunk by a German submarine off Cornwall coast two days ago, with the loss of a score of American lives. Ambassador Page, at London, reported to the State Department that he had been so informed by the British Admiralty officials.

STROYER LIGHTNING HAD BEEN LOST.
 Fourteen members of her crew are missing. "Although no mention is made as to the manner in which the Lightning was sunk, it is presumed she struck a mine or was torpedoed."

WONDERING WHAT'S HAPPENING.
GENEVA, July 1.
 The Swiss people are wondering what is happening on the other side of the Rhine. No German trains are arriving at Constance, and the Swiss railway, as a consequence, has been obliged to suspend international service on Lake Constance. Swiss neutrals, as well as others, including Americans, have been unable to enter Switzerland, all being stopped on the frontier. It is believed here that the Germans are sending large reinforcements through Southern Germany from Russia, to the French front, and for this reason they have put the usual restrictions on travel.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.
LONDON, July 1.
 The British steamer Lomas, from Argentia for Belfast, with a cargo of corn, was sunk by a German submarine on Wednesday afternoon, sixty miles west of Scilly Islands. The submarine first fired two shots, presumably as a summons to haul to, but the second shell struck the steamer, killing the second officer. The crew took to the boats, were picked up by a British trawler, and landed at Milford Haven.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY.

"The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for the bath" should be an adage of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that any trouble saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered, contented household. Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the Instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water "upstairs, downstairs, and in my lady's chamber,"—without any labour at all—Independently of the state of the kitchen fire.
 The cost is reasonable.

FOR THE BATHROOM.

An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance.
 Hot water can only be secured, usually by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost!
 Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the stoker labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather!

A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no flues to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.
 The master of the house has hot shaving water and a hot bath whenever he wishes without delay or trouble.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.
 But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.

Latter-day domestics are difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary drudgery—and in the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toil of carrying hot water or coal upstairs, the cleaning of grates and the removal of dirt and ashes.
 The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may12/14

The Munitions Bill.

The Munitions Bill which passed the final stage in the House of Commons last midnight is to confer on the new department of Munitions adequate powers to supply the services with what is needed to counter-act the Germans in the devilish ingenuity they have brought to bear in the prosecution of the war. In his speech at Cardiff, Mr. Lloyd George, the head of this new department, put the case quite plainly. He said:—

"Have you studied the problem at the front? It does not require military knowledge—it requires no military experience to know what it is. There you have got deep trenches, with barbed wire in front, which you cannot see till you are on top of it; behind that you have all sorts of concrete and steel emplacements, with machine guns—twelve, I believe, for every battalion. That is what the Germans have got concealed and protected.

"What is the problem? The problem is to beat down the entrenchments, to knock these emplacements to pieces, and throw the machine guns out of position, so that they cannot use them; tear up the barbed wire that our men shall have free passage right through to their enemies. That is the problem of high explosives, and you can supply them; and, if you do, not merely will our men win, but there will be fewer lives lost.

An illustration of this is to be found in the recent fighting around the heights of Krithia, in the Gallipoli Peninsula, where the British met with much success, taking several lines of Turkish trenches, and occupying a mountain top. Preparation had been made for this attack by General Ian Hamilton by the bombardment of the trenches with high explosives. Shrapnel, while destructive of life, is found ineffective so far as wire entanglements and emplacements are concerned. Wells has hit the nail straight on the head when he asks for the mobilization and organization of the inventive talent of the Empire to counter-act it and effect counter-strokes to the ingenuity of the Germans, who have not hesitated to use diabolical engines of warfare, never used before in warfare between civilized nations. Soldiers have lost their lives and been disgraced for life by the use of some concentrated preparation containing formaline. The use of dense poisonous fumes has now become familiar in the West and East. But it is a game both sides can play. But to play it effectively, to supply chemicals for the high explosives, a large number of machine guns for each battalion requires ingenuity and skill, and the organization of this new department and the equipment and manning of steel works and chemical factories require time. But it will be done, and the fight will be fought until the German, Austrian and Turkish powers are crushed and rendered unfit to fight effectively for some generations to come.

Wedding Bells.

WHITE-BUTLER.

On Thursday, July 1st, at 4 p.m., a very pretty wedding took place at the residence of William White, Esq., South Side, when his youngest daughter Jennie was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. Donald Butler of the Reid Mfd. Co's. employ. The bride, looking charming in a dress of embroidered net over white silk, trimmed with orange blossoms and well, entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her brother, preceded by her matron of honor, Miss Jelliffe, in dress of yellow and white, yellow satin. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Norman M. Guy, pastor of George St. Church. At the close of the ceremony refreshments were served, after which the bridal party and immediate friends proceeded to Waterford Bridge, where the happy couple had their outdoor express for a tour of three weeks, the bride's travelling costume was a suit of alic blue, with cream tussan hat. The large number of beautiful and useful presents of which the bride was the recipient bespeak the high esteem in which she was held. We join in wishing them a long life and a happy one.—Com.

MADE A RUN FOR IT.

LONDON, To-day.
Capt. Trickey, steamship Armenian, in an interview to-day, said he only surrendered to the German submarine when the freighter was afire in three places and after the ship's engines had been put out of action. A dozen members of the crew had been killed by shrapnel fire. Most of the members of the crew who perished, Trickey said, were Americans. The submarine, as signal for us to stop, said the Capt. first put a couple of shots over our bow, when we were four miles off. I put my stern to him and ran for it. The submarine then began to shell us in earnest, shrapnell bursting all around us, killing several of the crew and knocking others overboard. I soon realized the enemy was gaining on us, but I did not propose to surrender without a struggle, but my steering gear was soon hit and placed out of commission. One shell fell into the engine room and another carried the Marconi house away and still another cut down the funnel and disabled the stokers, preventing them from keeping steam up. By this time the ship was on fire in three places and I decided to surrender. We had resisted the enemy for an hour and 12 or 13 men lay dead on the deck. The submarine commander then forced me to clear ship. The Armenian went down shattered by two torpedoes. I must say that the submarine commander showed every fairness after we had given up, picking up many of the crew who because of a damaged boat had fallen into the water.

FIGHT FOR MEXICO CITY.

MEXICO CITY, To-day.
The repeated attempts made by Carranza's Army, directed by General Gonzales, to capture Mexico City failed. So far the forces under Generals Zapata and Carza claim to have had the advantage in the fighting. Members of the Diplomatic Corps are meeting daily in an endeavour to protect the lives of foreigners. The shortage of food is becoming serious.

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day.
The Northward drive of the Austro-German armies from Galicia into Poland is daily becoming more formidable. England is puzzled as to whether they propose to make the main effort in this direction, instead of maintaining a concentrated offensive to Eastward, to force the Russians out Southeast of the Tip of Galicia. Over the ultimate object of the fighting along Gnilla Lipka has not abated. This afternoon, the Berlin official communication only records progress in this section but further North on the Arc around Lemberg as well as along what has now become the Northern front between the Austro-German and Bug Rivers. Only a hundred miles North is the great Russian base of Brest Litovsk, linked to Warsaw by important railways, lying almost due east of the Polish capital. The development of the Galician campaign has created a situation entirely unexpected by the Allies a few months ago. The Russians were in the Carpathian Passes during the Spring months, and there were confident predictions both in England and France that Hungary would soon be over run. The British press has been optimistic for weeks that the Russians would turn and make a stand, but it now frankly concedes the new invasion Russia is serious. The papers, however, place faith in Russia's munitions campaign, much the same as the British public to relying upon Lloyd George's plan so to equip the British army in France as ultimately to match the Germans in explosives and munitions, and especially in machine guns. The Arras section is maintaining its reputation as the storm centre of the Western front, but despite the fact of the losses piling up daily, neither side has been able to deliver a decisive blow. A despatch to-night from Athens says the Allies has taken the Turkish stronghold, Krithia, on the Gallipoli Peninsula, to the Western edge of which Gen. Ian Hamilton reported yesterday he had carried his forces but there is no confirmation. The gratification over British progress in Gallipoli is hardly more pronounced than the realization of the tremendous task which faces England and France in their attempt to clear the Turks from their natural defenses, barring the way to Constantinople. The first stroke against a British naval craft in home waters for some time was announced briefly by the Admiralty to-night which says fifteen men

ITALIAN SHIP TORPEDOED.

MUNITIONS BILL PASS COMMONS.

LONDON, To-day.
The Commons after suspending the eleven o'clock rising rule sat until after midnight this morning in order to put the Munitions Measure through the last stages. The amendment, limiting the Government's power to enforce by arbitration all labor disputes, together with other changes, was adopted. Proposing the new clause, transferring all powers possessed by the Ordnance Department to the War Office to the New Minister of Munitions, Sir Henry Dalziel declared the management of the department had been recognized as a national scandal and other members criticized the department and urged the Government to enlighten the House on the truth of the accusations. Lloyd George, replying said it was more important to guarantee that the mistakes made in the past should not be perpetuated. He admitted there had been serious mistakes made in judgment and added the questions raised would have to be investigated and the responsibility placed on the right shoulders. He assured the House, the powers already given him were adequate to prevent a repetition of mistakes. After the Minister's assurances, Sir Henry withdrew the proposed clause and the Munitions Bill passed through the remaining stages of the third reading.

ROD AND GUN

RELAXED.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
Tension over the destruction of the British steamer Armenian with the loss of a number of American lives was considerably relaxed to-day following receipt of unofficial advices telling of the apparent refusal of the ship's commander to heed the warnings of the German submarine to stop. This phase of the matter overshadowed in official view of all other questions involved in the destruction of the vessel. It is official reports should bear out the news despatches concerning the attempt of the Armenian to escape, it was said to-day that no new cause of complaint likely would be added to the issues pending between the United States and Germany. Officials here believe the Armenian sought to evade capture the sinking of the ship was justified under international law even though non-combatants were on board. Precedents are cited in support of this contention. Detailed information of the destruction of the Armenian still is awaited to-day. Until such is available the position taken by United States not be announced.

ANTI-GERMAN RIOTS

According to the Lambeth Magistrate, Mr. Chester Jones, the anti-German riots have cost England nearly £250,000.
In dealing with several persons charged with stealing and receiving property taken from a German baker's shop in Camberwell, the magistrate said: "You people should think of the enormous amount you have cost this country. I am afraid it is going on for a quarter of a million. We want all the money we have to fight the Germans. Instead of remembering that you go and ruin property, all of which has to be paid for."

PLLOT TO BLOW UP GRAMM WORKS IS FOILED BY POLICE.

Windsor, Ont., June 25.—A plot to blow up two more buildings, one of them a factory in Walkerville, was uncovered this morning by Provincial Police Constables Nash and Smith. Twenty sticks of dynamite were found planted at the corner of Gramm Motor Truck Company, which has been filling orders for the British Government. The explosive was found near the main entrance tracks at the rear of the building, and from it were leading wires.
In a house on Drouillard street, Ford city, the police discovered a boarding house occupied by foreigners of many nationalities. These men are now under surveillance. A move on the part of any of them will meet immediate arrest.
About forty sticks were discovered in the second plant. The police say they expect to uncover more, and possibly arrest a couple of suspects within a few hours.
Since Monday morning, when told to devote their whole time to the explosion at the Percival plant, and the attempt to blow up the armories, the police have been working night and day, but as yet have no positive clue to the perpetrators.
The utmost secrecy is maintained and officers decline to discuss the latest attempts. It is known, however, that the authorities are on the track of the dynamiters, and obtained important clues in Wyandotte, Michigan, where, it was learned, quantities of dynamite have been purchased. It was stated the explosives were to be used in the Northern Peninsula, but the officers believe there is some connection with the plots here.

YOUNGEST RECRUIT WOUNDED.

Private James Marchbank, 8th Royal Scots, Dalketh, who enlisted last June in the Dalketh Territorials as drummer, aged thirteen, and is believed to be the youngest recruit, has been wounded in the hand and his body grazed by a shell bursting seven yards away.

VICTIMS OF THE SEA WOLVES.

LONDON, To-day.
Three British steamers, the Inglemoor, Caucasian and Wellbury, were torpedoed and sunk to-day by German submarines. The crews of the Inglemoor and Caucasian were landed at Falmouth. The crew of the Wellbury is safe.

GERMANS NOT JUSTIFIED IN SINKING ARMENIAN.

LONDON, To-day.
Except in despatches from the United States, in which the steamer Armenian is described as a transport, there is nothing in the British press to indicate the status of the vessel. Stress is laid upon the fact that she is the largest steamer, with the exception of the Lusitania, thus far attacked by a German submarine. The contention of a few of the morning papers, which discuss the question editorially, is that whatever the nature of her cargo the Germans were not justified in sinking her.

SINKING OF ARMENIAN CAUSED STIR IN PARIS.

PARIS, To-day.
The sinking of the steamer Armenian has caused a stir in Paris, stress being laid upon the deaths of Americans on board the vessel, coming so soon after the Lusitania case which is not yet settled. The press wonders what will be the outcome of the latest incident connected with German submarine warfare.

THE THERMOPYLAE OF FRANCE.

PARIS, To-day.
The furious German attacks in the Argonne by an entire army corps, with the object of breaking through the French line, in the hope of reaching Verdun will be repeated, according to Lieut.-Col. Rousset, Military critic of Petit Parisien. He asserts the successive checks have not discouraged the Germans and that they will continue the efforts to gain control of this hilly forest region, called the Thermopylae of France. Lieut.-Col. Rousset and other military writers agree, however, that the French forces have made such preparations as to insure the failure of all efforts on the part of the Crown Prince's army.

ITALIAN ADVANCE HINDERED.

UDINE, Italy, To-day.
The Italian advance in Tyrol is seriously hindered by a decisive weather, which is exceptional in mid-summer. The mountaineers do not remember the season when there has been so much snow on the heights on July 1st.

ROD AND GUN

July Rod and Gun covers a considerable range in its outdoor stories for this month. Salt Water Fishing near Victoria; The Hunt of L'Angeais, which purports to be the narrative of a French-Canadian habitant; The Home of Jasper the Yellowhead; The Trail Makers of the Quebec; The Greatest of Big Game Fishing, being an account of the catching of a record tuna off Port Medway, N.S.; and One Day's Fishing in Timagami, are some of the articles appearing in this issue, and in addition there is a full account of the Dominion of Canada Trap Shooting Tournament and other Trap Notes as well as the special departments devoted to guns and ammunition and fishing matters. This is of interest to all Canadian sportsmen as well as to those Americans who come to Canada for their fishing or camping experiences. W. J. ## FIRE.

Translation from "Lille War Gazette," 3rd March, 1915.

(This is a weekly newspaper, issued by the Germans in Lille, in German.)

(By Lieut.-Colonel Kaden.)
As children many of us have played with it; some of us have seen an outbreak of fire. First a small tongue like flame appears, it grows into a devastating fury of heat. We out here in the field have seen more than enough of it.

But there is also the fire of joy, of sacred enthusiasm! It arose from sacrificial altars, from mountain heights of Germany, and lit up the heavens at the time of solstice and whenever the home countries were in danger. This year fires of joy shall flare from the Bismarck Columns throughout the length and breadth of Germany, for on April 1st, just one hundred years ago, our country's greatest son was born. Let us celebrate this event in a manner deep, far-reaching and mighty! BLOOD AND IRON.

Let every German, man or woman, young or old, find in his heart a Bismarck Column, a pillar of fire now in these days of storm and stress. Let this fire, enkindled in every German breast, be a fire of joy, of holiest enthusiasm! But let it be terrible, unfettered, let it carry horror and destruction! Call it HATE. Let no one come to you with "Love thine enemy!" We all have but one enemy, England! How long have we wood her almost to the point of our own self-abasement. She would none of us, so leave to her the apostles of peace, the "No War" disciples. The time has passed when we would do homage to everything English—our cousins that were!

"God punish England!" "May He punish her!" This is the greeting that now passes when Germans meet. The fire of this righteous hate is all aglow!

You men of Germany, from East and West, forced to shed your blood in the defence of your home-land through England's infamous envy and hatred of Germany's progress, feed the flame that burns in your souls. We have but one war-cry, GOD PUNISH ENGLAND! Hiss this to one another in the trenches, in the charge, hiss as it were the sound of licking flames.

Behold in every dead comrade a sacrifice forced from you by this accursed people. Take ten-fold vengeance for each hero's death!

You German people at home, feed this fire of hate!
You mothers, engrave this in the heart of the babe at your breast!
You thousands of teachers, to whom millions of German children look up with eyes and hearts, teach HATE! unquenchable HATE!

You homes of German learning pile up the fuel on this fire! Tell the nation that this hate is not un-German, that it is not poison for our people. Write in letters of fire the name of our bitterest enemy. You guardians of the truth, feed this sacred HATE!

You German fathers, lead your children up to the high hills of our home-land, at their feet our dear country bathed in sun-shine. Your women and children shall starve; bestial, devilish conception, England wills it! Surely, all that is in you rises against such infamy!

Listen to the ceaseless song of the German forest, behold the fruitful fields like rolling seas, then will your love for this wondrous land find the right words, HATE, unquenchable HATE. Germany, Germany above all!

Let it be incanted in your ear, dream and it will grow like a land slide, irresistible, from generation to generation.

You fathers, proclaim it aloud over the billowing fields, that the tolling peasant below may hear you, that the birds of the forest may fly away with the message; into all the land, the echoes from German cliffs send it reverberating like the clanging of bell from tower to tower throughout the country-side: "HATE, HATE, the accursed English, HATE!"

You masters, carry the flame to your workshops; axe and hammer will fall the heavier when arms are nerved by this HATE.

You peasants guard this flame, for it snows in the hearts of your tollers that the hand may rest heavy on the plough that throws up the soil of our home-land.

What CARTHAGE was to Rome, ENGLAND is to GERMANY. FROM ROME for us it is a question: "to be or not to be." May our people find a faithful mentor like Cato. He "ceterum censeo, Carthaginiem esse delendam" for us Germans means: "GOD PUNISH ENGLAND!"

N.B.—A copy of this newspaper was found on a German prisoner captured during the recent fighting at Neu-Chapelle. It is of interest as showing the hatred for Great Britain which is being sedulously cultivated in Germany. This hatred is being encouraged and fostered officially every possible means.

He Doesn't Believe in Children.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There is a man in our town who thinks that children should be forbidden by law. No, he doesn't say so in so many words, only in so many acts. He is thinking of leaving a very pleasant little house, because it has the terrible disadvantage of being in a neighborhood where there are children.

That Terrible Croquet Court.

In the rear of his house is the garden belonging to a family with four children. Every year this family has considerably gone away for the summer. Last summer, however, a terrible thing happened to the man who doesn't believe in children. The father of the house in back lost his position. Consequently the family could not go away. Of course this did not matter so much for the children, but think of that poor man's sufferings! And to make them more endurable the thoughtless parents of the four actually procured a croquet set for the children, hoping to make up a bit for their disappointment. That was the last straw. You can't expect even a patient man to stand every-thing.

The man who doesn't believe in children promptly protested to their mother. He always took his afternoon nap on that side of the house, he said, and it was manifestly impossible for him to sleep with those children playing croquet right under his window. He wanted the croquet grounds given up at once. For certain reasons it was thought necessary to acquiesce. The children (one of whom was a boy of fourteen) were driven from their croquet court to seek amusement elsewhere. And the man who doesn't believe in children didn't have to move to the other side of the house to take his nap.

Some Children Are Unpleasant.

Underbred children who are permitted to run loose without respect for anyone's property may make a nuisance of themselves, but the children against whom this man is so impatient are not at all that sort. The man who doesn't believe in children is an exaggerated example of a type. There are few people as selfish as he, but there are many people whose utter lack of sympathy with a state through which they once passed is incomprehensible.

I'm just hoping that this little portrait sketched from life may help any such to hate the selves into which they are in danger of growing and take a right about face.

Question.—Do you think a woman who prefers to attend to her charities in a quiet way instead of joining any charitable society should be called stingy and selfish?

Answer.—No, of course not. Organized effort to help stimulates those of us who might not do our duty in this line if left to ourselves, but if you can get along better without that stimulus all right. Live up to your own standards, keep them high and don't worry about what "they" say of you.

"NONE SO BLIND."

New York Post:—That the German public mind "approves" the Von Tirpitz savagery, and that it believes this savagery efficient as a weapon against England, are evidently one and the same thing; and it does not seem to occur to the German mind that in the American mind the objection to the savagery and lawlessness of the Von Tirpitz policy is not diminished by any consideration of its efficiency, real or imaginary. On the question of that efficiency, there is room for much difference of opinion; on the question of its outrageousness from the standpoint of humanity and of international law, there is none.

THE BANTAM.

Boston Herald:—The short soldier, the bantam, is judged more enduring, more alert. He finds cover more easily; he is better sheltered in the trenches; he demands less khaki and boot leather, less food, a smaller blanket. As a medical journal pointed out some time ago the nervous connections between the sense organs and muscles of the limbs are shorter. No soldier has a higher reputation for endurance, courage and the capacity to fight than the Japanese, and his average height is between 5 feet and 5 feet 3 inches.

THE BALKAN NEUTRALIS.

The key to the difficulty is the peculiar position of Bulgaria. The other Balkan peoples—the Serbs, the Rumanians and the Greeks—have their "unredeemed" brethren living under the Austro-Hungarian or the Turkish flags, and look to realizing their national destiny at the expense of these enemy Empires. But the "unredeemed" Bulgars are living (as a result of the Treaty of Bucharest) almost entirely under the Serb, Ruman or Greek flags; and Bulgaria can only attain her natural extension by concessions from her sister Balkan States. In comparison with the large gains which each of these States might obtain from an Allied victory in which it effectively co-operated, the concessions asked by Bulgaria are relatively small, and may seem easy to make.—London Chronicle.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. Robert Morrison and his bride arrived by train on Tuesday, and are residing at their very pretty home on Harvey Street. We wish the young couple a long and happy married life.

Rev. Mr. Higgett, who had been assisting Canon Noel at St. Paul's Church here for several months, left yesterday for Barr'd Island, Fogo District, where he is to be stationed. Mr. Higgett has made many friends since coming here, and all join in wishing him and Mrs. Higgett pleasant and successful labor in their sacred calling.

Rev. Mr. Mercer, of Bay Roberts, and Miss Gertrude Trapnell, daughter of John Trapnell, Esq., J.P., were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at the Methodist Church this afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Matthews in the presence of a very large number of well-wishers. Miss Jean Trapnell, of St. John's, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Howard Trapnell, brother of the bride, was best man. Miss Muriel Mann was flower girl. The best wishes of their hosts of friends accompany this popular young couple along life's way.

POST-PRANDIAL.

WALT MASON

When I've consumed a goodly dinner, I've charity for every sin. I'm upon this mundane stage; I'm full of love for all creation, for folk of every tribe and station, of every sex and age. This life seems finer, nobler, sweeter, to every earnest, zealous eater, just following a meal; the music of the birds seem grander, when he is full of roasted gander, or porterhouse or tael. The skies seem lovelier and tael. The skies seem lovelier and all things are fair to see; there is no sign of grief or sorrow, and any man can come and borrow two bits or more from me. If there's an earthy, sour curmudgeon, who spews his fellow men with dungdon, at such he cannot eat; he does not know the joy of gnawing a slice of switzerkase or chewing the pickled porker's feet. The sour man is, without a question, knocked out by active indigestion, his works won't come across; the pulses of his heart would quicken if he could eat a goose or chicken, or roasted abatross. I dread no ill, I fear no foe-man, when I have in my large abdomen eight pounds of sirloin steak; and all the pessimistic bleating must come from fellow to whom eating imparts a stomach ache.

The Illuminations at R.C. Cathedral.

The Cathedral presented an imposing sight. Its beautiful towers were surmounted by illuminated crosses, whose brilliancy could be seen from all the principal points in the city. On the facade of the building was the Archbishop's coat of arms, shown in a beautiful transparency and illuminated with vari-colored electric lights. The beautiful statuary in the grounds were also brilliantly illuminated, and the massive arch of St. Joan the Baptist was outlined in white electric lights.

THE PALACE GROUNDS.

The Palace grounds were ablaze with incandescent lights and Chinese lanterns, while at intervals a flood of beautiful light was sent out for many yards from the stage fire which was burnt within the grounds. From there also powerful rockets were sent up, which increased the beauty of the scene.

K. OF C. HALL.

The Knights of Columbus of Terra Nova Council in a fitting manner showed their appreciation of the honor conferred upon their Chaplain the Most Rev. E. P. Roche, D.D., by the illumination of their splendid hall on Duckworth Street. This imposing building was beautifully outlined with vari-colored electric bulbs which shed their effulgence over the surrounding buildings, and the residences several blocks away. Across the front of the building was the motto: "K. of C." and in the space below the emblem of the Order was displayed in full regulation colors.

ST. PATRICK'S HALL.

The B. I. S. Hall and O'Donel Wing were beautifully illuminated with transparencies in the native colors, pink, white and green, and the front of the building bore an illuminated harp in green and gold lights, while underneath the same was a picture of St. Patrick, bordered with an electric halo.

T. A. AND B. SOCIETY.

On the front of the T. A. Hall was the motto: "Long Live the Archbishop," brought out in lights of various colors. The windows were illuminated with transparencies, and occupying a prominent position was the Society's silken banner of Father Matthew.

STAR HALL.

The Star of the Sea Hall, on Henry Street, was also brilliantly illuminated. On the edge of the roof two beautifully coloured stars were traced in electric lights of pink, white and green, and a large electric cross occupied a prominent position above the front of the building.

THE OTHER BUILDINGS.

The other buildings illuminated were St. Bonaventure's College, Mt. St. Francis, Mount Cashel Industrial School, and the various Convent buildings of the city. Many private residences were also illuminated, and in many of the windows were mottoes and transparent blinds of white and gold.

THE JOY BELLS.

When the procession started from the Cathedral the joy bells sounded their peals of gladness and at intervals during the evening the Cathedral chimes rendered appropriate airs including many favorite hymns.

HIS GRACE'S APPRECIATION.

After the return of the parade to the Cathedral grounds, many thousands of people assembled and the band played a selection of patriotic airs, after which His Grace the Archbishop and his distinguished visitors took their places on the Cathedral steps. His Grace then briefly addressed the gathering thanking them sincerely for the splendid demonstration that had been given him. From the depths of his heart he thanked his people for their filial devotion to the representative of the Apostolic See, and also those of the other denominations who had in many kind ways afforded the visiting prelates so much pleasure during the ceremonies and festivities. At the conclusion cheers were given for His Grace, Monsignor Stagni and the visiting prelates, the King, His Excellency the Governor. The rendition of the National Anthem by the C.C.C. band brought the demonstration to a close.

The R. C. Cathedral Male Choir will render the same music on Sunday next as on last Sunday. They will please bring the music with them. Every member is requested to be present.

Joint Parade and Demonstration

In Honor of New Archbishop—Grand Pyrotechnic Display.

Under ideal conditions the joint parade of R. C. Societies and the demonstration in honor of the consecration and elevation to the episcopacy of His Grace Archbishop Roche, was celebrated last night with great eclat. It was a memorable event which will be historic hereafter. The city was ablaze with illuminations and fireworks and from start to finish there was one continuous round of festivity and joy. The streets were thronged with people, as practically the entire populace, young and old, turned out to witness the demonstration, and from the humblest home to the biggest mansion a spirit of jubilation was manifest. As arranged, the different organizations and bands assembled within the Cathedral grounds and at 7:30 they took up their positions and the start was made. The order was:

- C.C.C. Buglers and Drummers.
- C.C.C. Battalion.
- C.C.C. Band.
- Benevolent Irish Society.
- Mechanics Society.
- T.A. & B.S. File and Drum Band.
- T.A. & B.S. Juvenile Society.
- T.A. & B.S. Brass Band.
- T.A. & B.S. Adult Body.
- Star of the Sea Association.
- Mt. Cashel Pipe and Drum Band.
- Holy Name Societies.
- Christian Doctrine Society.
- St. Joseph's Society.
- C.L.B. Band.
- Knights of Columbus.

After leaving the Cathedral grounds the parade, followed by a multitude of people, wended its way down Military Road to Rawlins' Cross, thence via Queen's Road, Theatre Hill and New Gower Street, Hamilton Street to Patrick Street. As the parade moved west, the immense crowd increased. Leaving Patrick Street the next route taken was down Water Street up Queen's St. and then by way of New Gower, Duckworth, Ordinance, Gower and Cochrane Streets to Military Road and then back to the starting point. The Pulpit Delegation, Archbishop Roche and visiting clergy went through the city in motor cars and were given a right royal reception all along the route, especially passing the triumphal arches, R. C. Halls and buildings, which showed an elaborate display of bunting and electric lights, and also at some private residences which were profusely dressed with bunting and brilliantly lit. Cheer succeeded cheer and fireworks of all descriptions ascended to the heavens as the esteemed dignitaries passed by.

TRIUMPHAL ARCHES.
Five triumphal arches were erected and added in no small degree to make the entire scene a spectacular one. The first arch visited was that on Rawlins' Cross. It was of beautiful design, handsomely embellished and of artistic finish. Prominently displayed was the Archbishop's mitre and coat of arms and the words "Long Live Archbishop Roche." Another pretty arch next approached was that on New Gower and Adelaide Streets. It was neatly erected, surmounted by a cross picked in various colored electric lights and contained appropriate mottoes. A most striking and original arch was that erected at the junction of Casey and New Gower Streets. It represented the Cathedral with its twin towers, beautifully illuminated with electric mottoes and its rendition of the chimes of bells last night was of more than ordinary interest. The Patrick St. arch was really a beauty with its electrical festoons and attractive inscriptions, but there was nothing to compare with the last arch visited. We now refer to St. Joseph's arch situated off Port William. At the approach the societies opened out to allow the dignitaries to pass down to the arch while the bands discoursed the British marching tune, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." At the entrance to the structure stood a guard of honor from the C.C.C. with fixed bayonets. The dignitaries on arrival were accorded a hearty reception. Sky rockets ascended from Fort William and the old railway yard nearby while salvos of musketry belched forth in all directions. The arch was an imitation of St. John the Baptist arch fronting the Cathedral grounds and a good one at that. It stands second to none for beauty of design and excellent finish. Of striking attraction are the four marble pillars flanked with the Papal colors, yellow and white. Across the main arch was "Newfoundland is proud of her illustrious son." Over that was "Welcome" over that is a handsome cross. Other mottoes which caught the eye quickly on either side over the sub-arches were "E.P.R." (His Grace) and "P.E.S." (Monsignor Stagni). The two principal pillars contained Latin quotations meaning "many blessings, many gifts" to the new Archbishop. On the bases of the pillars were appropriate and pleasing legends. The cornices showed a good finish. The whole presented a magnificent appearance, illuminated with vari-colored electric bulbs and a lavish display of bunting. While the entire grounds lined with trees, evergreen and flags added much to the excellence of the scene.

A grand pyrotechnic display was given from the Palace grounds and also from the Central Fire Hall after all the arches had been reviewed and the societies and bands had dispersed.

AT THE CRESCENT.

Francis X. Bushman appears at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day in "An Unpleasant Elopement," an interesting society drama produced by the Essanay Company. Helen Holmes features in "The Demon of the Rails," a thrilling railroad drama. "The Green Eyed Monster" is a strong dramatic production of the Lubin Company. "The Tattered Duke" is a Kalem Comedy Drama with Marshall Neilan as the Duke of Tattenham Corners, and the "Job Lot Recruits" is one of the most mirth provoking pictures made. Go to the Crescent to-day and see this classy programme, combined with good music and singing, send the children to the big matinee to-morrow, the usual extra pictures will be shown and the Crescent staff will take good care of the little one.

HER DOGGIE

Is a beautiful story which should be a great object lesson to children (and some "grown-ups") in regard to kindness to animals. This splendid subject is portrayed in a most admirable manner by both the little girl and "her doggie." A Vitagraph feature of exceptional strength is that entitled "The Mystery of Brayton Court" in which Maurice Costello and Robert Galliard are naturally very prominent. The Lubin Co. offer a strong military play "The Doom of Duty" and a song by Arthur Priestman Cameron, a comedy-drama of the Western type, and the very funny farce "Sophie Finds a Hero" will conclude the entertainment.

HAZARDS OF HELEN AT NICKEL TO-DAY.

Admiring of Forbes Law Duguid will be charmed to learn that he will sing two of the most popular songs known, to-day and to-morrow. One is "A Son of the Desert," and the other "Drink to me only with thine eyes." These songs are in themselves sufficient to draw large audiences. These songs are popular everywhere. "The Hazards of Helen" will be continued. Helen is seen jumping from a flying freight. Then there is another great drama entitled "Ye Vengeful Vagabonds" which is a spectacular tragedy of Pilgrim days. "One Wonderful Night" is coming to the Nickel shortly. Francis X. Bushman appears in the leading role. Be sure and send the children to the matinee to-morrow.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

There is a first rate programme at the popular little house in the West End to-night, all new pictures from the latest new shipment, and every one a feature. Mr. Hossley buys his pictures direct from the Old Country and therefore can command the best on the market. The little singers have a new patriotic song, that has been for the last few weeks quite the rage in England. The song is entitled: "Farewell Isabelle" and was sent out to the Hossley by the Arm of Francis Day and Hunter. It is a great war song. On Monday there will be a splendid programme, and on Saturday afternoon a special matinee of select films for the youngsters.

Barrier Fortress at Achl Baba.

A NETWORK OF TRENCHES.

Reuter's special correspondent at the Dardanelles sends the following despatch, dated June 3, the day before the last general assault was begun on the Turkish positions in Gallipoli:

"I spent some time this afternoon watching the enemy's position from a point in our reserve trenches. Our front trench line was visible less than a mile away. Four hundred yards beyond it was the enemy's first trench, stretching across our front and loop-holed every yard. Behind this again were rows upon rows of Turkish trenches. The view was bounded to left and right by ridges hiding the sea and was closed in front by the Achl Baba barrier, with its central peak, 600 feet high, dominating everything in sight.

"The peak is about a mile and a half from our front at the nearest point as the crow flies. We know that it is entrenched and galled all the way up. Some of the enemy's works can be seen from our lines, but we know from our airmen's reports that it is honeycombed with trenches. The whole ridge and its flanking hills have been prepared in the same way. On the crest of Achl Baba is a strong redoubt, which, however, is less formidable than it looks, since, with an aeroplane 'spotting,' either our artillery or a ship's guns drop shell right into it. It has already received a vigorous dusting from the ships' guns.

"Stretching as it does practically clear across the peninsula, the Achl Baba barrier constitutes one of the strongest defensive positions any army has held or captured during the present war.

"Between us and Achl Baba the ground is intersected by several nullahs, the largest and deepest of which runs from one of our landing beaches on the Aegean side diagonally across country, passing in front of Krithia. These nullahs afford excellent cover for troops and hiding places for maxims. Despite these advantages, the Turk is not yet satisfied with his defences, but is always feverishly digging in fresh places. The airmen say they have sometimes a difficulty in recognising a position which they sailed over a day or two previously.

"It is generally estimated that the enemy can bring up four or five corps for the defense of Gallipoli.

"The Anglo-French and Australasian Armies, under Sir Ian Hamilton, are in the best of spirits and confident in their power to expel the enemy from these or any other positions, although they believe they have no illusions about the difficulty of the task before them."

War Loan Absorbs Investment Fund.

London, June 25.—On the Stock Exchange to-day the new war loan continued to attract practically all the attention. The entire investment demand was diverted to the issue.

Rumors that the treasury might decide that there would be no detachable rights to the latest flotation increased the rush of holders of Consols and the old war loan to subscribe. Consols were quoted at the minimum price of 65 and the old war loan lacked stability at 93 1/2. Trading throughout the various departments was on a small scale and changes in prices were irregular.

The announcement of the national register of workers did not hurt sentiment. The decline at New York yesterday caused a weaker feeling in Americans. Canadian Pacific was particularly affected.

Argentine rails averaged 10 per cent under recent quotations.

Other sections were dull.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

There are certain fundamental facts that must be known in feeding infants. The first and by far the most important, is that there is no substitute for mothers' milk. The next best food to mothers' milk is clean, fresh, pure, raw cow's milk. Let me emphasize the essentials of wholesome cow's milk: cleanliness, freshness, not over twenty four hours old, purity, cold, from cow to customer.

All milk not above suspicion must be sterilized or pasteurized. This should be done just before feeding, at home, not one or two days before. Whole milk diluted with barley water, oatmeal gruel, or plain water boiled meets a majority of the average feeding requirements. It is simple, requires little manipulation, and there is nothing to be added but sugar. But as every baby has its individual requirements, each must be studied and its food modified accordingly.

Shetland shawls can be washed in warm soapy lather, just as hannels are washed.

In the summer try by all means to have a polished floor with a few rugs on it. It is much cooler.
