Common Sense

says you cannot get "something for nothing", neither can you buy a superior article for the same price as an inferior one. A dollar watch is not as good as a twenty dollar one—you know that. For the same reason a cheap engine is not as good as a more expensive one. Any reliable Engine Dealer or Travelling Salesman will tell you this; as a matter of fact, if you stop to think you won't need to be told.

The Lathrop Oil Engine

is not the cheapest Engine first cost, but you will find it infinitely cheaper and more satisfactory in the "long run."
IT WILL PAY YOU to spend the few extra dollars for first cost.
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED—And we stand behind our guarantee.

True as Steel!

CHAPTER XXX.

REUBEN put his hand to his flask; he knew it was full, for oftentimes it is the traveler's only friend.

"I have brandy here," he said quietly. "Do you live far away?"

"No, sir," said the child; "only in the next street."

"Well, I'll come back with you, if you like, that will save time in getting another bottle, won't it?" And plunging his hand into his pocket, he took out some coins and gave them to the girl; one of them was a half crown and she held it up with an incredulous look of delight that pierced Reuben's heart.

"May I keep it?" she said. "All this?"

"Yes, of course, child," was the answer. "Come, let us hurry. What is your lodger's name?" he asked, as they hurried down a grimy street.

"Polly, sir; at least, that's what mother calls her—Polly Hanson."

He started at the sound of the familiar name, as he thought of Polly Styles.

The child stopped at one of the tenement houses, and beckoned Reuben to follow her.

"You'll come up sir, won't you?" she said. Mother's gone back to work again."

Reuben was about to refuse, and had already pulled out the flask to give the child, when a mysterious impulse seemed to bid him ascend the stairs. He turned and followed his little guide.

"You go in," she whispered. "I'll go and get some more water."

He entered slowly, and moved as softly as he could to the side of the bed. In the fast-growing twilight he could only dimly see a woman's figure, tossing restlessly.

"Can I do anything?" he asked, bending over her.

At the sound of his voice, the sick woman opened her eyes; as if in fear. "Who is that; who are you?" she cried.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy. You can save about 50¢ and have a better remedy than the "ready-made kind." Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "expectorant" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 55 cents and gives you 16 ounces of very better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.00. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets a right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so readily and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, it is splendid.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

"I am a stranger, but I may be able to help you," said Reuben.

But the woman, with a cry, shrank back away from him; and at that moment the girl returned with a light.

"Go away," moaned the sick woman, and at her voice a thrill passed through him. He brought the light nearer, and, as he raised it, she tried to put her wasted hands before her face, but it was too late.

"Polly!" cried Reuben.

"Oh, why don't you go?" she sobbed piteously.

"Hush, hush!" he whispered soothingly, as if she were a child.

"Don't cry, Polly. Thank Heaven I have found you! You are quite safe now."

She turned her eyes on him with despair.

"Too late!" she moaned. "I am dying, Reuben."

"No, no," he said. "You shall come away from here; I will take you back to Bingleigh."

"Ah, no, no! not there—never there again! Oh, Reuben, I am not fit to go back. It is only right that I should die, only don't leave me to die alone—stay by me."

"Yes, yes," he said; "but I must send for help."

Disregarding her weak protests, he took out a gold coin and gave it to the child, who stood watching.

"Take this to the nearest doctor," he said, "and bring him back."

The child disappeared, and Reuben turned once more to the poor girl, whom he knew he had come too late to save.

"It's too late," she moaned again. "Oh, Reuben, I have sinned, but I have suffered, too. My poor father is mad through my wickedness—I have killed him. But I never meant to do him wrong. I thought it would be all right afterward, and he would forgive me. Do you remember that night at Bingleigh—"

She stopped and gasped for breath, and Reuben poured a few drops of brandy through her thin lips. It seemed to give her strength.

"It was that night I left home. He said he would marry me directly we could get the marriage lines printed, and afterward he pretended to, I thought it was quite all right, and I trusted him. Oh, he was kind and good to me, but it didn't last; and then—when I found it out, I used to worry him to keep his promise. He got angry, called me a simple fool—once he struck me—"

Reuben's face was dark with anger as the pitiful words fell on his ears.

"Tell me his name," he muttered, as she stopped for breath.

"His name—why, it was him, Morgan Verner," she gasped.

Reuben uttered an oath, and Polly, guessing his feelings, clung to him, with a cry of terror.

"Reuben—you shan't hurt him—you shan't! It's me he's hurt, not you—and I won't have him hurt! Swear you won't hurt him, or let Miss Olive marry him—I always meant to save her from that! But he mustn't be hurt, for I loved him. Reuben, I am dying—swear!"

Her head fell back; her eyes were turned up to his awful appeal.

"I swear," he said. "I will not touch him—I leave him to Heaven."

With a long-drawn sigh, the troubled spirit took its last flight, and poor, simple Polly lay dead.

Reuben laid her down gently, just as the doctor entered. His keen eyes took in the whole scene, and he stepped forward quickly.

"Gone?" he asked, as he bent over the still form.

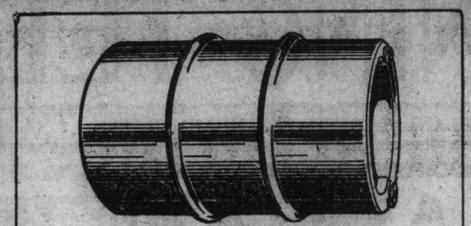

"Yes," said Reuben; "poor girl, I knew her, too. Will you do all that is necessary, doctor? I will come back to-morrow."

Pressing a bank note into the doctor's hands, he felt his way blindly from the room into the street again.

While poor, erring Polly lay there dead, where was her murderer?—for Morgan Verner was as surely responsible for the girl's death as though he had stabbed her. Where, but in his club, not so very far away, engrossed at the card table, wrapped in a gambler's ecstasy.

The night when Polly died was an unlucky one for her destroyer. Game after game was lost, till the pile of IO U's grew higher and higher. Wine stood at his elbow, and he drank deeply and often. Surrounded by men as vicious but crasser than himself, he plunged more and more recklessly as the hours wore on.

"By Jove, what rotten luck!" drawled one, as he watched Morgan's cards. "Do you play again?"

STEEL CASKS SAVE YOU MONEY. No loss from leakage. You use every drop you pay for. The modern, clean, economical method of handling oils and kerosene. The full purchase price of the steel barrel is refunded on its return which, on kerosene, means a saving of over 2c. on the net cost per gallon. We recommend the steel container but will supply the wood cask if you prefer it.

THE IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY Limited ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND

"Play! Of course," shouted Morgan. "You don't think I'm going to be tied up like a lame monkey, do you? Not I! Give me the wine—and deal again. What confounded luck!"

"You can't complain," said one of the men. "With such a prospect, you ought to be happy. The handsomest girl, and one of the finest estates in England."

"Here's to their health," hiccupped another. "May one help you forget past loves, and the other pay your debts."

"Hear! hear!" cried the group. "I say, Morgan," said another, with a drunken leer. "What have you done with that pretty little girl, pretty Polly?" With drunken gavity he sang:

"Polly was my heart's delight, I've left her all forlorn."

With an oath, Morgan Verner started to his feet.

"Shut up!" he yelled. "What's it to you where Polly's gone?"

"Nothing," retorted the man. "Don't take on so—I don't want to go poaching on your preserves; besides, she's faded too much—I saw her sitting in the park last week—half starved, she looked, and she tore off like the wind. Sit down, dear boy, and have another drink."

Morgan pushed them all aside, with a half-dazed stare.

"Sit down—finish the game!" cried the others.

"Saw her—saw her—saw Polly—Polly—" he gasped; then he hurried out of the clubroom, his hand to his head, as one distraught. "Polly—half starved," he murmured, as he staggered up the stairs, "and half starved by my fault."

Yet he might have spared himself his agonies of grief, for Polly was half starved no longer. The period of expiation ended, her soul had passed away in peace.

CHAPTER XXXI. PRIDE BEFORE A FALL.

REUBEN left the tenement house, his heart aching with grief at the sad fate of the pretty country girl. He was filled with a passionate desire to wreak vengeance on Morgan Verner, but was tied by his promise to Polly.

His thoughts went to Olive. He had not dared to ask any questions concerning her while the Seymours were in Australia; he knew that she was not married, and that was all, but from the few words Sir Edwin had said, he had gathered that she was engaged to Morgan Verner. The knowledge of this had nearly caused him to remain in Australia; and possibly he might have done so, had it not been for the thought of his grandfather, Wynter, and the old man's pride in him. Now, as he paced the busy London streets, he pondered as to his best course of action.

SEMI-PORCELAIN FIBREWARE CONTAINERS.

United States Patents Granted July, 1915.

This Company has been working in a quiet way for about two years, but the present war conditions furnish an excellent reason for big expansion in order to meet the great demand due to the curtailment of tin and glass factories. The demand is really limitless, covering an enormous supply of hygienic food containers. We enumerate below a few of the many articles for which our Fibreware Containers are positively ideal.

FRESH MILK, CREAM, BUTTER, LARD, COOKING COMPOUNDS AND OILS, TINNED FRUITS, VEGETABLES, JELLIES, PRESERVES, SYRUPS, VINEGAR, OYSTERS, FISH and other Foods that positively require Sanitary, Single-service Containers; also LYE, SOAPS, POLISHES, TOBACCOS, POWDERS, DRUGS AND TOILET ARTICLES.

We could fill this page with other such goods, but the above will suffice to show the pressing need of some such germ-proof, efficient, modern Container to be used once only and not refillable.

Take one item alone--20,000,000 milk bottles used every day in the United States. Think over the great possibilities.

An automatic machine has also been perfected for making, filling and sealing these Containers in a sanitary way in ANY SHAPE, COLOR OR SIZE, WITH MONOGRAMS, TRADE MARKS OR ANY PRINTING DESIRED.

We Do not Use Glue, Paraffin or Paper in the Manufacture, but the finished Container is a fibrous porcelain with a hard, cream-white, glossy surface, tough enough for severe handling, and impervious to air, heat, cold, time, oils, fats or vegetable acids, and can be used for any purpose for which tin, wood or glass is now used, excepting mineral acids.

Notes From Heart's Delight.

Times around Heart's Delight are looking fairly bright, considering the high price of things. All the people appear to have plenty of flour and other things for the winter and early spring. The only shadow cast over the people, is so many of our dear boys who have paid the supreme sacrifice. Out of 43 boys from here 12 have already paid the price with their lives; 11 on the fields of France and one in the year of 1915.

Great Natural Bridge.

Justice Marshall called it "God's Greatest Miracle in Stone."

The greatest natural bridge, which is one of the natural wonders of the United States, overlooks the James River Valley, in Virginia, being on the western slope of the Blue mountains. It is just about the center of the state. It approaches Niagara in grandeur and exceeds it in height and awful mystery. It is a single block of limestone, with many shades of color. The walls are smooth, as if cut with chisels, and there is no sign of displacement.

Much Peat in Ireland.

Ireland possesses 25,000,000 acres of peat bog—one-seventh the total area of the island. Much of this peat is concentrated in the centre of the country, in the Bog of Allen, but there are also large tracts in other localities. To utilize this peat, not merely for domestic use, but also for power purposes, is a problem which has exercised the minds of prominent Irishmen for many years, and the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research has now appointed a committee with Sir John Griffiths of Dublin as chairman, to investigate the whole question. Some successful attempts have already been made in Ireland to deal with the substance on a commercial basis, but any efforts to utilize the deposits must always have regard to three circumstances—that peat contains and retains a large amount of water; that, compared with other fuels, it has a low calorific value; and that it is extremely bulky, involving a high cost of carriage.—San Francisco Argonaut.

He should not be sung to or taken up for any reason except sickness. As he grows older one nap is sufficient and that is best taken after lunch. Up until school age all children should be trained to take this afternoon nap. From four until nine years of age children should go to bed from seven to seven thirty in winter and from eight to eight thirty in summer.

If you want something very quaint in the way of a suit for the little lad, why not make him a Dickens suit, at least for the playtime? The trousers are decidedly knickerbocker fashion, having no fullness at the knees to make them in any way resemble bloomers so much worn by boys until lately.

The knickerbockers come up very high in the waist line almost to the armpits and button on the outside of the dearest little scallop embroidered shirtwaist. This waist is tucked smooth and straight without any fullness whatever, into the knickerbockers. A rounded turnback collar is embroidered in buttonhole stitch and turnback cuffs are made to match.

The War.

Austria is in extremis: can she outlast the winter? What prospect of alleviation of her growing misery she can see beyond it we can only conjecture, and it is for the German militarists to say who still hold her bound in iron shackles; but the great question in all minds is as we have put it. For the danger the militarists have to face is now at last a double one in all seriousness, from within as well as without. Indeed, the temporary cessation of the latter must itself help the former, for without the absorption of all their energies and all their attention in the great task of sending armies to the front and keeping them supplied and equipped through the bitter fighting that has only just been suspended, the peoples of the Central Empires, and particularly of heterogeneous Austria-Hungary, have the more leisure to survey their wretchedness at home and the suffering and privation that stalks everywhere within their boundaries. They are beginning to crack, and it is plain that Austria will crack first. The whole war situation has entered upon a most extraordinary phase, yet it is one which, Russia alone excepted, might have been anticipated sooner or later once the issue was placed beyond doubt. To put it in a word, the greater resources of the Allies, their overwhelming economic superiority, have begun at last to tell in earnest. The question is, will they be sufficient of themselves, or will the great military decision, the final victory of the last battle on a blood-soaked field, be necessary?

The military situation itself, having regard only to armies and their disposition, alone would today confound the prophets. No one expected Germany to be as strong as she is at this late hour and on the one front that matters. It is a strength gathered from the weakness and defection of Russia, yet we doubt if it is not much exaggerated, while it has accrued at a time when it cannot be applied and when every day of inaction adds, through the building up of the American armies, to the restoration of the Allies' balance of power, which must eventually become a crushing preponderance. Even today Germany must recoil from the prospect of the price that must be paid if she seeks a decision in France. She cannot break the wall that hems her in and she knows it. Yet the decision must be sought, the attempt must be made, since there is no other choice. No other, save a last try for peace, which is surely coming soon and will as surely fail. Doubtless it is as much the knowledge of the desperate dilemma in which they stand as confidence in their transitory recrudescence of strength that accounts for the uncompromising attitude of the pan-Germans, contrasting so strongly with the semi-rebellious attitude of Austria.

We have no exact details of the economic situation, but we scarcely need them. We have indications in plenty of a dire extremity in the Central Empires, and the late reports of the huge strike in Austria tell, we may be sure, but a small part of the whole story. There is one great fact, however, which should encourage and comfort us beyond all others. As long as the Allies had plenty of food, to look at the most important item, we knew that Germany was getting a larger or smaller supply from neutral sources, and even the regularly increasing stringency of the blockade did not remove the uneasy feeling that she was getting more than we knew of or suspected. Now, however, when the Allies are plainly running short themselves, when one article after another either gives out or must be strictly "rationed," when, in short, there is a world-wide scarcity, threatening to grow into a world famine, we know for a fact, a certain fact, that Germany can be getting nothing from the old storehouse or conduit-pipe, the neighbouring neutrals. They have not got it to give her, and would not give it if they had—their own needs are too great. We know, therefore, the worse things become for us, the worse, and many times worse, they become for the enemy. Bad news becomes good news. By so much the more this or that place goes short, by that much the more the world goes short, and Germany can less afford to go short than we can. It is from that point of view that we can regard the state of Austria to-day. Her people are rebellious for the best of reasons, because they are starving. Nothing will satisfy them except the two things they demand, bread and peace. The sop from the politicians, and the assurance that the Emperor and the rest favour the no-annexation programme, will not keep them quiet long. It is like applying a poultice to a cancer. Moreover, it will soon be falsified by the event. Germany will less renounce her annexations. It is in this respect that the most important negotiations acquire so much importance. As we have said from the beginning, they are of little account so far as they affect German-Russian relations, since Russia need scarcely be considered in the matter, but they are of the highest importance so far as they affect Germany and Austria themselves. They will end with peace as far off as ever. Then we shall watch with interest the effect upon the war-worn peoples to whom peace was so glibly promised. We may have to be grateful yet to the Bolsheviks. Half-hearted fighting and battling at great odds could have won them little. By their overtures for peace and the negotiations about to end in failure they have at least forced Germany to show her real hand to her own people. We are beginning to see the consequences. Let us watch Austria to see where they will end.

The Menace to the Country.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Sir,—It is a truism, that no Government can be free that does not allow all its citizens to participate in the formation and execution of her laws. I am contending for a free Government as against a despotism. A Government free from the absolute control of corporate bodies, such as the Reid-Newsfoundland Company, and the various Companies dominated by Mr. Coaker as President and Manager. The history of the world furnishes abundant proof that it is powerful corporations that bribe legislators and buy public officials and corrupt public journals and carry the stream of pollution into all channels of politics. In the document alleged to have been published by Sir William Reid it is declared, that for the past nine years the Government of Sir Edward Morris owed its very existence to him, the President of the Railway Company; that he "financed three general Elections, established the Chronicle newspaper to advocate the overthrow of the Bond Government, and provided the funds to purchase from Liberal controllers the Evening Herald." That he "worked in conjunction" with a Canadian millionaire during the past four years to change the very constitution of this Colony; that he actually removed one of the peoples representatives—Mr. Morine, member for Bonavista, from politics to smooth the way for the Coalition of the Morris Government and the Coakerites for the same purpose.

Now the fact of public Contractors exercising such powers in this small community was sufficient peril in itself, but the peril is very greatly increased when a corporate business concern, alleged to be in political agreement with those Contractors, has its servants administering Public Departments, and its Manager in absolute control of the Executive Government. Yesterday, I quoted at some length, the published statement of Dr. Lloyd that Sir Robert Bond retired from public life in 1914 because, amongst other reasons, Mr. Coaker had "laid down unequivocally" and had "declared emphatically" that the control of the Government of this Colony "is the objective of the F. P. U. at the next Election." I will direct your attention to the Evening Telegram of the 10th January, 1914, which contains Sir Robert Bond's letter of resignation. In that letter Sir Robert said—"In the light of the Union President's self-pronounced disloyalty and policy, an intolerable position has arisen so far as I am concerned. I have been rendered powerless to direct and guide the policy of the Liberal Party, and I am not prepared to aid the policy of the President of the F. P. U. which he has declared to be the seizure of the Government of this Colony by the Union over which he presides. It has to be remembered that the F. P. U. is closely associated with its trading and manufacturing concerns incorporated for the carrying on of business, and is only incidentally a political entity. Now in the year 1900 a corporate body having large and varied business interests, the Reid-Newsfoundland Company, endeavoured at the polls to obtain control of the Government of this Colony. I led a party in opposition to them, defeated their designs and kept them in their proper place during my term of office of nine years. In my opinion it would be no less objectionable for the corporate business concern known as the 'F. P. U.' to secure the reins of power, and while I am prepared, as I clearly evidenced in my correspondence with the President of the F. P. U., in my Manifesto of October last, and in my platform utterances during the Election campaign, to uphold the right of the F. P. U. to a fair and proper representation in party Government, I shall strenuously oppose any attempt on their part, or on the part of any corporate business concern to seize the Government of the Colony or to control it. For I feel that the most efficient instrument for bettering the actual conditions of life among all classes who make up the country, and should not be converted into a mere machine for advancing the interests of any particular body of individuals."

Here, then, was the clear, succinct statement of a gentleman who in order to give force and weight to his opinion sacrificed his seat in the House of Assembly, resigned the leadership of the Liberal Party, and terminated a political career that had extended over an uninterrupted period of nearly thirty five years. By bargaining with Sir Edward Morris, with the aid of Sir William Reid, President of the Reid Newsfoundland Company, as alleged to have been admitted by himself, Mr. Coaker has managed to "secure the reins of power" before a General Election, and without the consent of the people at the polls. Will the people at the polls confirm him in possession? I throw not. Nothing will ruin the country if the people themselves will undertake its safety; and nothing can save it if they leave that safety in any hands but their own. So said that great Statesman Daniel Webster at a period of crisis in American history. It is a truth that the people of this country may do well to consider at this time.
Yours truly,
January 23rd, 1918. VIGILANCE.

STATEMENT ASKED FOR

LONDON, TO-DAY (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).
In the House of Commons, Com. Bellaire asked when the Government would be in a position to issue a statement regarding the responsibility for the Halifax Disaster, having regard to the dangerous and insecure cargo carried with high explosives in the munition ship; the admission of such a ship for a number of years as a crowded portion of the port; the precautionary rules regarding movement of other ships when with dangerous explosives as a precautionary rule regarding instructions given such ships regarding arrangements in the event of a fire; and finally as to the manner in which the British merchant ships and crews are treated and whose crews are permitted to direct contact with the British through work of relief in the event of a disaster. He also asked A. S. Lowin's reply to the statement to make any statement in connection with the receipt of the report by the British Government.

STATEMENT ASKED FOR.

LONDON, To-day. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—In the House of Commons, Commander Bellair asked when the Government would be in a position to issue a statement regarding the responsibility for the Halifax disaster, having special regard to the dangerous and inflammable cargo carried with high explosives in the munition ship; the admission of such a ship for a number of days to a crowded portion of the port; the precautionary rules regarding the movement of other ships when a ship with dangerous explosives as a cargo is under way in the Channel; the instructions given such ships regarding flooding arrangements in the event of fire; and finally as to the manning of neutral ships which have access to the port and whose crews are brought in to direct contact with the enemy through work of relief in territories conquered by the Germans. Hon. W. A. S. Lewis replied: "It is not possible to make any statement pending the receipt of the report by the Canadian Government."

PREPARED FOR GERMAN ATTACK.

LONDON, To-day. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Reuter's correspondent discussing the threatened German offensive says: "It is taken for granted that the utmost the most violent onslaught against any part of our front can hope to attain would be to push us back a little. Any prospect of breaking through is negligible and scarcely worth discussing. In the meantime we are preparing ghastly hospitality for the enemy if he attempts an attack."

SINKINGS FOR WEEK.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY SOLID.

NOTTINGHAM, To-day. There has been small encouragement for the German Emperor and the Central Powers in the proceedings of the British Labor Party. Thus far the leaders of the party show determination to take a strong line in support of democratic peace and in this they appear to have loyal support of the majority of the delegates. Each delegate as he arrived at the convention yesterday or to-day was handed a circular entitled "British Labor War Aims," which was a copy of a message sent to Russia in the name of British Labor a few days ago. This message is the keynote of the whole present policy of the Labor Party; its War Aims show very great divergence from the statements made by President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George and other Allied statesmen. The Socialist minority will make strenuous efforts to win over the conference during the discussion of eleven resolutions dealing with the question of peace. There is no reason to believe that the conference will go any distance with them. President Wilson figures as one of the labor party's prophets at this year's convention. In opening his session to-day his name was mentioned in connection with his recent War aims speech which was described as British Labor Party's. The general delegates from the Government and the expression of continued confidence in Field Marshal Haig. James MacPherson, Parliamentary Secretary to the War Office, replying to criticisms after protesting against what he termed cruel charges against the most distinguished general of a time when he had no opportunity of defending himself, declared unhesitatingly that the Government had full confidence in the Field Marshal.

FULL CONFIDENCE IN HAIG.

LONDON, To-day. On motion of adjournment in the Commons to-day, the matter of attack on the general staff, in connection with the recent German success at Cambrai, was brought up with a view of eliciting some reassuring statement from the Government and an expression of continued confidence in Field Marshal Haig. James MacPherson, Parliamentary Secretary to the War Office, replying to criticisms after protesting against what he termed cruel charges against the most distinguished general of a time when he had no opportunity of defending himself, declared unhesitatingly that the Government had full confidence in the Field Marshal.

LORD RHONDA ON FOOD SITUATION.

LONDON, To-day. Great Britain calls upon the United States for 75,000,000 bushels more of wheat. This was one of the important statements which Lord Rhonda, the British Food Controller, made in an interview with the Associated Press to-day. The Controller described the food shortage in Great Britain as most serious but not such as would be detrimental to the health of the people with proper management of supplies and willingness on the part of the people to accept equally nourishing substitutes for some foods they have been accustomed to. He referred to the difficulty of discussing the subject frankly without giving encouragement to the exaggerated hopes in Germany that this country was suffering very severely from lack of food. With the help of the United States we shall pull through. He declared I would feel very dependent over the position. If the United States had not come into the war, but I have unbounded faith in your ability and good will to help us work out the problem. Our situation would have been a happy one but for the shortages of crops in Italy and France. The war will be won by England. It is a test endurance between England and Germany; we are to-day where Germany was two years ago. I have no fear of failure on the fighting line.

MORE ARRESTS.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Twenty or more social revolutionaries members of the Constituent Assembly were arrested here Monday.

AUSTRIAN GENERAL DEAD.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. The sudden death of Field Marshal Franz von Eusef, former Chief of the Austrian General Staff, is announced in a despatch from Vienna.

CENTRAL POWERS CANNOT REMOVE ARMIES.

LONDON, To-day. The Russian Government, according to a wireless message, has issued two communications addressed "to all," the object of which intimate to the world by the declaration of the German Foreign Secretary, that the Central Powers cannot remove their armies from occupied regions until the conclusion of a general peace. The peoples of Germany and Austria-Hungary are being deceived. One communication asserts that the annexationists have been sufficiently powerful to impose their will upon the evasive diplomats of the Von Hertling, Von Kuehlmann school but the Government of the Central Powers do not dare to divulge this to their own people, and, it continues, their object is the annexation of Poland, Lithuania, Courland, Riga, parts of Livonia, Moon Sound and the islands with the purpose of the complete economic and political autocracy of Russia while the role of the Austrian representative at Brest-Litovsk, has been limited to humble approval. Austrian statements are appearing their restless workmen by affirming that the Central Powers are striving for a democratic peace, but to have such a program to talk at the same time of democratic peace, surpasses even the limits permitted to diplomacy.

CITY OF HARBIN CAPTURED.

A PACIFIC PORT, To-day. Passengers aboard a trans-Pacific liner which arrived here to-day from the Orient, brought details of the capture by Chinese troops of the Manchurian city of Harbin.

RIOTS IN MOSCOW.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Forty persons were killed and two hundred wounded in riots in Moscow Tuesday, during a demonstration at an anniversary celebration of Bloody Sunday.

BRILLIANT RAID BY THE FRENCH.

With the French Armies in France, To-day.—The French on Monday executed a brilliant raid of the German lines eastward from Vienna to the town, near Four de Paris, along a front of 3,000 yards and reaching to a depth of 500 yards. An intense artillery preparation made progress of the troops easy and they were able to destroy all enemy works, shelters and mine galleries before returning to their own lines. Fifteen prisoners were captured by the French, as well as three machine guns. The French suffered a few casualties. The raid killed all of the participants in the raid. All of the participants in the raid declared that the gunners' work was magnificent, not only as regards destruction but the manner in which they completely silenced the enemy artillery.

ADJOURNED UNTIL JANUARY 29TH.

PETROGRAD, To-day. At the last session before the adjournment of the Brest-Litovsk Conference General Hoffman insisted upon Germany's annexation terms to which the Russians did not agree, that the Germans occupy Ravel within a week. The Germans reluctantly consented to an adjournment until Jan. 29, but declared that this was the last postponement to which they would consent. General Hoffman insisted that the future frontier of Russia be the shores of the Gulf of Finland to the east of Moom Sound Islands, thence to the west of Minsk and thence to Brest-Litovsk. General Hoffman declared that the Germans would only discuss the territory south of Brest-Litovsk with Ukraine.

NEW STEEL STRUCTURE.

The D.S. Co. Bell Island, are now engaged erecting a steel structure leading from the head of the pier to replace the wooden frame work now in use. At the top of this structure is the endless bucket chain that conveys the iron ore to the ships which load at the head of the pier. It is hoped to have the new structure completed by the first of May when shipping operations will be resumed. There is at present a great scarcity of men and employment for 200 or more can be easily obtained.

Discovery of New Lands.

In the illustrious year of 1498, which witnessed Sebastian Cabot's westward discoveries along North America, and Columbus' sighting of South America, Vasco da Gama, pursuing his eastward navigations, crossed the Indian Ocean, dropped anchor off the city of Calicut, on the Madagascarian coast, and set up on shore a marble pillar as proof of his discovery of India by an ocean highway. Thus Portugal offset Spain's claim to the West Indies by priority of discovery, with a claim through first discovery to the East Indies, and stood ready to assert it, while England allowed her right, by the same token, in the North American continent to lapse.

Spain and Portugal continued in sharp rivalry during the half decade immediately following. In 1499, the Cabots, and was in terms similar to the Cabot patents. Whether they sent out an expedition that year is not known. The next year, however, the personnel of the company had changed, with the dropping of Ward and Thomas and the substitution of Hugh Elliot in their place; and under this organization, probably in 1503, a discovery was made which resulted in the Labrador coast. The only record of this voyage is given by Hakluyt, in MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA.

coast of Labrador, he explored it for 600 miles. He discovered Nova Scotia, the St. Lawrence, and also Hudson's Strait. Then he returned to Lisbon, with his two caravans freighted with natives—men, women and children—whom he had captured and brought home for slavery. Upon the strength of Gaspar de Cortesal's voyages, Portugal attempted to establish a claim to the discovery of Newfoundland and the adjacent coast of North America. But in this she was not successful. Spain, however, held firmly to all of her American possessions, indefinitely deferred.

England remained passive till 1501, when a new movement was started in the Cabots' home city of Bristol. Three Bristol merchants—Richard Ward, Thomas Ashburnham, and John Thoms—two and three Portuguese mariners—John Fernandez, Francis Fernandes, and John Guntur—came together for a venture in the track of the Cabots. A patent was obtained from King Henry, under date of March 19, 1501, which conferred upon them the same powers that had originally been given to the Cabot patents. Whether they sent out an expedition that year is not known. "Stuffed Roast Heart."

(A Little Story from Pump Lane.)

P.J.K.
Ma looked a kinder troubled
With her specs upon her nose;
I know she feels indignant
Does my ma, when in that pose,
A kinder Holy-solly like
An' wishin' she could tell
Her mind, to who would listen—
An' 'tis she can speak it well.

I see, a winkin' 'cross at Pa—
"Well, Ma—what's up to-day?"
She sees, a kinder bluff-like
"Not much, oh, there—go 'way,
Can't you see I'm busy readin'?"
See I, "what, somethin' new?"
Then Ma, she answers dignant like—
"Tis the Daily Press Mo-n-u."

Then Ma, she larfs sarkas-tic,
An' gives her head a toss—
An' looks across at Pa an' me,
While WE look at a loss.
"I understand 'bout things she sees—
From the Daylight Bill right down,
The Bill to cut out liquor
An' the Bill to vaccinate the town."

But tell me, if you can," says Ma
"An' I'll give you apple tart—"
"What those men peep do just mean
When they advise 'Stuffed Roast Heart'?"

I cooked long ago for Daddy,
See my Ma, to Pa and me,
"I am fifty years a-cookin' now,
An' I've used some economy
I cooked for your Uncle William
When he was but so high,
An' my fame went 'mongst the neighbors
For makin' Rabbit Pie.

Poor old Dad—(rest to his soul),
Alas Death made us part,
But I hope he's high in Heaven,
For not likin' 'Stuffed Roast Heart'."

Just then I saw a great big tear
Come sailin' down Ma's eye—
As she thought about those good old days
Of her Dad and that Rabbit Pie;
Before "New-fangled" stuff came in
To give us all a start.
When there wasn't any munn
An' there wasn't "Stuffed Baked Heart."

Case for Hospital.

Private A. T. George, No. 1758, who is suffering from gunshot wound in his left hand, was yesterday unable to secure admission to the Hospital. Mr. E. J. Whiteway, who accompanied Pte. George to the Hospital, was informed there was not a vacant cot in the Institution. Pte. George has been on the waiting list for admission since December 4th, and there seems to be no brighter prospects for him being admitted now than when first recommended. This case, we understand, is an urgent one, and while we appreciate the difficulties the authorities must experience in their efforts to alleviate the sufferings of those who have been recommended for admission, yet it does seem that something definite should be done in order that such a case as Private George should be able to secure immediate attention.

How to Escape.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Once upon a time a little fool of a married woman who had gotten herself tangled up with another woman's man came to me for advice. We threshed the whole matter over from beginning to end and the very worst feature about it seemed to me this:

She hadn't really cared for him, hadn't really fallen in love with him, it was simply that he had seemed attracted to her and, as she put it, "I just wanted to see if I could make him like me, and I didn't really think of it going so far. Truly I hadn't any idea of its going so far."

She Just Wanted To See.

"I just wanted to see if I could make him like me."
Think of the millions of miserable, unhappy illicit love affairs that have their foundation on nothing more justifiable than that.

If there is any excuse for an unhappy passion it is a great love. Once in a hundred life times I think such a love does come and sweep all before it. Though I am inclined to think even such a love is very like the little break in the dam which if looked after at once can be patched up quite easily, but if left a little while becomes a roaring restless torrent beyond human power to control.

But to permit oneself to get tangled up in the terrible attraction of such an affair by nothing except the foolish, restless desire to try one's power, to find if one still has the ability to attract, if romance is still in the world for one, is surely a sad and sordid thing.

Is There One Person In A Thousand Who Isn't Sometimes Tempted?
I don't suppose there is one person in a thousand, however happily married, but sometimes feels this temptation. One knows someone is attracted to one and one wonders if one could attract him or her a little more. One means no harm at all, one loves one's husband or wife as much

STROLLING WITH SARSA.

"Your eyes in the gathering dusk," he whispered. "There's a certain indescribable something about them."

At that moment Captain Bron Ixes stepped from behind a brindle tree from the shadow of which he had been devouring Sarsa Farilla with his eyes.

"Teeny," he commanded peremptorily, "go and see that the cannons are stacked for the night."

Mart Teeny saluted smartly, heeled, and strode off. Captain Bron Ixes's arm slipped around Miss Farilla's waist.

"Don't let me interrupt your stroll," he said gallantly. "Oh, what eyes! They got that inexpressible what-you-may-call-it about 'em."

Before they had been strolling five minutes General Rickey loomed in their path.

"Ixes," he commanded peremptorily, "go back and assist at bugle inspection. Captain Ixes saluted wheeling, smarted, and strode off.

"Strolling?" General Rickey said pleasantly as his arm found the warm place made by the arms of Lieutenant Teeny and Captain Ixes.

"Did anyone ever tell you there was something about your eyes?"

"At that moment a messenger dashed up, handed General Rickey a telegram, and dashed down.

"Curses," explained General Rickey. "It's from the secretary of war—orders to move on to Camp Sproot at 7.15, and it's 7.01 now."

"Who's the secretary of war?" inquired Sarsa with a patient sigh.

"Mr. Baker," replied General Rickey as he hurried away.

"I wonder if I'll like him!" mused Sarsa Farilla. And she continued her stroll, but no one else showed up. Straw knitting bags are made to match hats.

Stafford's Prescription "A"—Lure for diseases of the Stomach: Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Gastritis and Nervous Dyspepsia.—nov6,17

Hands Across the Creeds.

"A German prisoner lay dying of his wounds in a British base hospital," says the Chicago Evening Post. "He was a Lutheran by faith, and a Protestant army chaplain sought to speak the words of religious consolation. But the chaplain did not know the tongue of Germany, and the wounded foe could not understand English. Near by a French chaplain, a Catholic priest, was ministering to one of his own creed. He came from the lost provinces and spoke the language of the enemy so well as his own. Softly he turned to the bedside of the dying prisoner, and kneeling beside it, translated into his tongue the words of comfort spoken by his Protestant colleague. Such is the spirit at the front. Creedal barriers no longer separate men to whom service has become the supreme ideal."

JANUARY GRIEFS.

The month of January is anything but merry, it's anything but gay; for now we're walking straightly, a n, d, chee, it bores us greatly to go the narrow w a y. We've cast old sins behind us, and a n d passing hours remind us how much we miss the same; but we have made our pledges—none but a piker hedges—and we must play the game. Oh, there are watchers near us, who do not strive to cheer us, or soothe us in our woe; our downfall they're awaiting, and then we'll hear them prating, "where, now! We told you so!" When one has vowed to glitter like some angelic critter, and hurtful habits kill, you'd think his folks would brace him, not pester him and chase him, and strode off. He sees in all their glances their feeling that his chances of being good are slim; they show by smiles sarcastic, and criticisms drastic, they have no faith in him. And so, grown tired of striving, of vows too long surviving, from pledges he breaks free, and while those vows are dying, he hears the women crying, "We knew how it would be!" The month of January is sad and solemn, very, it is the moon of woe; for all the world is saying, to gents from virtue straying, "Well, well! We told you so!"

Indian clubs are inexpensive, requires no special rope of fasteners, can be kept at hand for use at any time, can be easily carried when traveling and are one of the best means of exercising for beauty and health. Get a pair of clubs weighing not more than two pounds and commence by exercising thoroughly with one club at a time. Stand erect, with chest thrown out, feet flat on the floor and slightly separated and grasp the handles of the clubs close to the ball, giving full play to the wrists and endeavor to attain an easy and graceful style.

Standing as described, clubs held at sides, begin by elevating the left hand until it touches a little above the head, then drop the club and allow it to describe a circle at the back. When the club starts to circle, give it a twirl, and the momentum of its weight will carry it around. At the completion of the circle, give the wrist a twirl, and bring it over the shoulder, resuming the first position and bringing the clubs in front of the breast.

The next exercise is principally intended to overcome the stiff and awkward condition of the wrists which is so much in evidence. Standing with clubs held at the sides, the arms are raised and extended outwardly in front of the breast as far as possible, arms crossed, and palms turned outward. Raise the clubs slowly to arms length, letting them hang over the shoulders. This is a simple and light exercise and is of great benefit in strengthening and developing wrists, arms, neck and shoulders.

315 LIVES LOST.
LONDON, Jan. 23.
By the sinking of two steamers by the enemy in the Mediterranean about three weeks ago, 218 lives were lost, it was announced officially to-day.

ACTIVITY ON ITALIAN FRONT.
ROME, Jan. 23.
The Italian War Office report issued to-day says there have been active reconnaissance by small groups against the enemy line between the southeast slopes of Monte Spionola and the right bank of the Piave from Omic Valley. We brought back materials of various kinds, and in a successful surprise attack south of Quero a French party captured prisoners and a machine gun. From Veressa to Ponte Del la Trilla our patrols drove back hostile parties. Fire along the front at times grew more intense between Adiago and Brenta Valleys and along the banks of the Piave.

BRITISH LABOR TO FIGHT ON.
NOTTINGHAM, Jan. 23.
At the opening to-day of the annual Labor Conference, Frank Purdy, President, said that if Germany would not accept the terms Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson and the Labor party had laid down as the minimum, we must fight on. The amendment to refer the proposal to amend the constitution back to the executive for further consideration was carried by a small majority. In view of the adverse vote, consideration of the remainder of the executive report on the amendment of the constitution was postponed for a month, and the conference proceeded to discuss the annual report of the executive. Henderson moved that be described as a peace revolution, that welcomed the statement of the Premier and President Wilson in so far as they harmonized with the war aims of the British labor movement which called upon the Allies to formulate their war aims at the earliest possible moment, and approved of arrangements being made for an international conference to be held in London on February 20th. Henderson, in supporting his resolutions, said peace could never be brought about until all nations had stated their aims and proved that they accorded with the magnificent statement of the aims of President Wilson. James Ramsay MacDonald, Socialist Labor Member of Parliament, who seconded the resolution, said that they must have an international conference of working classes to obtain a settlement. After an attack by R. W. Williams, of the Transport Workers, on the Government for refusing passports for Stockholm, the resolution was unanimously adopted.

PEACE TALK INTERESTS GERMAN.
LONDON, Jan. 23.
The peace agitation in Austria-Germany is receiving a great deal of attention in Germany. The Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts of Berlin emphatically declares the solidarity of the German proletariat with Austrian labor in the peace struggle and maintains the events in the dual monarchy must have a deep reaction in Germany. We have been walking on the edge of a precipice in the last few days, it says, and goes on to demand that the German Government resolutely take its place by the side of its American ally. As the fruits of the German propaganda, it continues, we are menaced not only with the wrecking of the peace negotiations with Russia, but also with complete isolation.

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 10. —There is reported here three cures of chronic piles. In all three cases the patient had tried every remedy known, but it is the only real cure for this distressing ailment.
Mrs. A. Oates, 22 Gilkinson street, Brantford, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment as a household remedy for over so long, and am particularly indebted to it for a cure of my piles. I had suffered from this annoying trouble for ten years, and had nearly everything I heard of tried using Dr. Chase's Ointment as I felt while I was completely cured."
Mrs. Wm. Shantz, 156 Albert street, Brantford, Ont., writes: "For several years I was troubled with bleeding piles. I tried different remedies for years without success. I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac of the benefits other people were receiving from Dr. Chase's Ointment, so I sent for your cure for a sample box. I found it to be such relief that I found it necessary to purchase a full-sized box. I have used several boxes since, and have derived much benefit from it. More than any remedy I have ever used."
Mrs. F. Cussons, Victoria street, Inverness, Ont., writes: "About two years and a half ago I was suffering from piles. I had tried many different remedies for this distressing ailment, but nothing helped me. I got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and after using it found that I was completely cured and have not bothered in this way since. I cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to anyone suffering as I was."

The amendment to refer the proposal to amend the constitution back to the executive for further consideration was carried by a small majority. In view of the adverse vote, consideration of the remainder of the execution of the report on the amendment of the constitution was postponed for a month, and the conference proceeded to discuss the annual report of the executive. Henderson moved what he described as a peace resolution, that welcomed the statement of the Premier and President Wilson in so far as they harmonized with the war aims of the British labor movement which called upon the Allies to formulate their war aims at the earliest possible moment, and approved of arrangements being made for an inter-allied conference to be held in London on February 20th. Henderson, in supporting his resolutions, said peace could never be brought about until all nations had stated their aims and proved that they accorded with the magnificent statement of the aims of President Wilson. James Ramsay MacDonald, Socialist Labor Member of Parliament, who seconded the resolution, said that they must have an international conference of working classes to obtain a settlement. After an attack by R. W. Williams, of the Transport Workers, on the Government for refusing passports for Stockholm, the resolution was unanimously adopted.

PEACE TALK INTERESTS GERMAN.

LONDON, Jan. 23.
The peace agitation in Austria-Hungary is receiving a great deal of attention in Germany. The Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts of Berlin emphatically declares the solidarity of the German proletariat with Austrian labor in the peace struggle and maintains the events in the dual monarchy must have a deep reaction in Germany. We have been walking on the edge of a precipice in the last few days, it says, and goes on to demand that the German Government resolutely take its place by the side of its Austrian ally. As the fruits of the Pan-German propaganda it contemplates, we are menaced not only with the wrecking of the peace negotiations with Russia, but also with complete isolation.

Had Piles for Ten Years

And Tried Nearly Everything Except a Surgical Operation Without Obtaining Relief—Tells How Complete Cure Was Effected.
Branford, Ont., Jan. 10.—There is reported here three cures of chronic cases of piles. In all three cases many treatments were tried before it was discovered that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the only real cure for this distressing ailment.
Mrs. A. Oates, 22 Giltchinson street, Branford, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment as a household remedy for ever so long, and an par-ticularly indelible to it for a cure from Piles. I had suffered from this annoying trouble for ten years, and tried nearly everything I heard of. After using Dr. Chase's Ointment a short while I was completely cured."
Mrs. Wm. Shantz, 155 Albert street, Kitchener, Ont., writes: "For several years I was troubled with bleeding piles. I tried different remedies for Chase's Ointment of the benefits other people were receiving from Dr. Chase's Ointment, so I sent to your office for a sample box. I found it gave me such relief that I went to a drug store and purchased a full-sized box. I have derived more benefit from the use than any remedy I have ever used."
Mrs. F. Cassons, Victoria street, Ingersoll, Ont., writes: "About two years ago I had tried many different remedies for this distressing ailment, but nothing helped me. Finally I got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and after using it found that I was completely cured and have not been bothered in this way since. I cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to anyone suffering as I have."
Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanston, Chase & Co., Limited, Toronto. There are no rivals to Dr. Chase's Ointment as a treatment for Piles. Be sure to Kipling's Son.

At the end of January I went to France, eager to see with my own eyes the great things that were doing there and to taste with my own lips the cup of danger. That at least I was bound to do before I could come home and urge my countrymen to face the duty and brave the peril of a part in this war.

Paris was not so dark as London but more tragic. After Belgium and Serbia the heaviest brunt of this dreadful conflict has fallen upon France. She has suffered most. Yet on the faces of her women I saw no tears and in the eyes of her men no fear nor regret.

If Britain was magnificent, France was miraculous! Loving and desiring peace she accepted the cross of war without a murmur. Her women were no less brave than her men. She wears the hero-star of Roland and saintly halo of Joan of Arc.

After meeting many men in Paris—statesmen, men of letters, generals—and after visiting the splendid American Ambulance at Neuilly and other institutions in which our boys and girls were giving their help to France in the chivalric spirit of Lafayette, I went out toward the front.

The first visit was under the escort of Captain Francois Morod to a chateau beyond Compiègne, where Rudyard Kipling with his family and I with my family had passed the Christmas week of 1913 together, as joyous guests of the American chateau, the spacious, lovely house for a military hospital. And there, while the German guns thundered a few kilometres away from us and a German sausage balloon floated in the sky, I watched the skilful ministrations of French and American doctors and nurses to the wounded. One thought haunted me—the memory of Kipling's only son, nineteen years old, who was with us in that happy Christmastide. The lad was reported "missing" after one of the battles between Loos and Bulloch.

For six months I sought, through the German Legation at The Hague, to find a trace of the brave boy. But never a word—Henry van Dyke, in Scribner.

Hockey Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Hockey League was held last night at the office of the President, Mr. W. J. Higgins, who occupied the chair. As there are only three teams this season, it was decided to play three rounds, the first being:
Terra Nova vs. Victorias.
Feldians vs. Terra Nova.
Victorias vs. Feldians.

The games will begin as soon as each team has had four practices. If weather conditions prevent the playing of the three rounds then the championship will be decided by the standing of the teams at the end of the season. It was decided that the team of King's College be invited down on or about Feb. 16th to play three games with a city seven, which will be selected by a committee consisting of President Higgins and the captains of the local teams. No doubt we can look forward to a very interesting week of hockey, as it will be remembered that the visitors defeated the Windsor draft team, in two out of three games at Windsor last year winning the final game by a score of 11 to 2. The proceeds will be devoted to the funds of the W.P.A.

Regarding the decision arrived at last night to eliminate lifting, we were under the impression that that rule was enforced six years ago and has not, to our knowledge, been disregarded. Messrs. Higgins and Tobin, the League officials, will be the sole referees for the season.

HOCKEY NOTES.

The different College teams are now getting in shape for the coming hockey season and have already had practice at Burton's and other nearby ponds. The Prince's Rink has not yet been opened for skating and is not likely to till we experience a much lower temperature.

During the week which the King's College team will visit here will be a patriotic week. The curriers have also arranged for a series of contests in aid of the W.P.A.

Some of the hockeyists would have us believe that the long wrist shot should be classed as lifting.

Owing to the lateness of the season and the short time for practice, it is not likely any of the local games will be played till after the visit of the King's College team.

Successful Sociable.

The sociable held in the Congregational Lecture Room last night, under the auspices of the Girls' Guild, was well attended. The chairman for the evening was the Rev. W. H. Thomas. The programme was rendered in a most pleasing manner and was much appreciated by the audience, the performers having to respond to encores. Messrs. Christian and Steele acted as accompanists for the evening. Rev. Mr. Thomas expressed his thanks to those taking part and also those who attended. Immediately afterwards refreshments were served by the ladies of the Guild. The singing of the National Anthem brought a most enjoyable evening to a close. The programme was as follows: Solo, Mr. Arthur Williams; monologue, Mr. Fraser Bond; guitar solo, Mr. F. Devoreaux; solo, Mr. H. Gully; coon song, Doris Thomas and party; song, Mrs. Christian; reading, Miss Curtis; song, Mrs. King; mandolin solo, Mrs. Foster; duet, Rev. and Mrs. Thomas.

Card Tournaments.

T.A.B.S.
About 120 players took part in the T. A. Club card tournament last night. The prize was won by Mr. A. Jenkins, R. I. S.

The first of a series of card tournaments was run off at the B.I.S. Club rooms last night, and despite the inclemency of the weather the attendance was large. All the games were closely contested all through. In the play-off between Messrs. D. Coady, W. Kelly and J. Savage the former was victorious and was awarded the prize, a splendid case of pipes donated by Mr. F. Canning.

AMERICAN ENFIELD.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. The first American Enfield rifle turned out at the Winchester plant for American troops abroad, was presented to-day to President Wilson to be preserved as a personal souvenir. The President was told the rifles are being made at the rate of 2000 a day.

U. S. ARMY PROGRESS.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. While declining to comment directly upon the statement attributed to President Wilson that there will be twice as many American soldiers abroad next June as had been originally planned, Secretary of War Baker said to-day the programme of the Department has been a constantly developing one, and many difficulties and limitations have been removed or overcome. I can't discuss the numbers of men in France or anticipated to be at any particular time, but we have made substantial progress.

BELGIUM'S PEACE TERMS.
HAVRE, Jan. 23. The Belgian Government's terms of peace so far as they concern Belgium itself, set forth in her reply to Pope Benedict's peace note, made public to-day, are in substance absolute political, economic and territorial independence.

CHIEF SPY DEAD.
PARIS, Jan. 23. The death is announced in Geura of Jellinek Mercedes, former Austrian Consul at Nice, who was charged by the French press with having been the centre of the Austro-German spy system on the Riviera, where he entertained lavishly. He went to Switzerland at the outbreak of the war, sending his magnificent yacht to Monaco. Herr Mercedes was arrested in Switzerland last October on a charge of espionage for the Central Powers, but was released on bail owing to illness. He possessed a large fortune, much of it in the form of property at Nice, which was sequestered by the French Government.

TRYING TO FINISH THE GOEBEN.
LONDON, Jan. 23. An official announcement says naval air service machines made several day and night attacks on the Goeben and secured two hits with heavy bombs. They have also bombed one of the tugs which is secured alongside the Goeben. In every case heavy anti-aircraft gunfire was encountered, but all our machines returned safely. The attacks are continuing.

AN ANTHRACITE FAMINE.
POTTSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 23. The overshadowing inability of the railways to move coal quickly from mine to market, and the water famine, has tied up several big collieries men were able to get to the surface by themselves. The Allan shaft was one of the most, if not the most productive mines in the Nova Scotia coal fields. The majority of the men who work in the Allan shaft are natives of the town of Stellarton. Nortabert and Marthieur, both prominent Belgian mining experts are officials at the mine.

USUAL REVIEW.
With reported amelioration in political unrest in Austria-Hungary and the continuation of silence as regards the internal situation in Germany, the notable feature of the world war is the apparent resumption and on a somewhat larger scale of military operations on the west front in France and Belgium. Although for the moment these operations, viewed from cold facts, as announced by the various War Offices, don't transcend in importance the usual small operations by raiding and reconnoitering parties which have been in progress since the severe winter weather began. Reading between the lines of communications it is not difficult to see that the manoeuvres now in progress on the various sectors are in the nature of trying out processes of a marked character, from the North Sea to the Swiss frontier. Lessening in the rigors of the winter has permitted the belligerents to send forth their men again in enterprises which seemingly forecast their intention shortly to resume fighting activity more extensively. For weeks big guns along the whole front have been roaring in intensive duels on the numerous sectors, but the infantry has lain idle owing to deep snow and later to morasses which formed as a result. On their extreme right of Northern Belgium the Germans have carried out an important raid and gained a footing in French advanced trenches east of Neuport, while along nearly all of the front in Flanders the artilleries have increased the volume of their fire. To the south around Lens, Arras and St. Quentin, fighting, although still by comparatively small forces, daily is growing in strength, while eastward along Chemin Dames, past Verdun, thence to the Swiss border, the French and Germans are continuously engaged on various sectors in artillery fighting and infantry activities, considerably above normal as compared with the early days of the war. On the front in Italy the change in the high command evidently hasn't resulted as yet in any betterment of the strategic position of the Austro-German armies. From Asiago Plateau east to the Piave River, and thence south to the Adriatic Sea, the Italians again have been victorious at many points, even though in minor raiding operations against enemy forces, raiding positions and bringing back prisoners, machine guns or materials, or holding in their tracks the Austro-German elements which were endeavoring to launch attacks. The greater portion of the striking workmen of Austria are said to have returned to work, but the situation both in Austria and Hungary is declared still to be acute owing to the desire of the people for peace. In Germany some trepidation is being evinced by papers of Pan-German leanings over the situation in Austria and the possibility of a tangent from the objects uppermost in the minds of the leaders of the German Militarist Party. The Socialist paper Vorwarts, Berlin, has announced the solidarity of the German proletariat with Austrian labor in the peace movement and for its pains has again been suppressed. British labor in conference again has upheld the war aims set forth by President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George of Britain, and re-asserted that if Germany will not accept them British labor must fight on.

Two British steamers were sunk recently in the Mediterranean with the loss of 718 lives, according to the announcement to the Commons.

FRANCE AWAITING GERMAN OFFENSIVE.
PARIS, Jan. 23. To-day France is awaiting the German offensive, awaiting it with calm and confidence, awaiting it almost with gladness. Rightly or wrongly it believes that a huge drive against the West Front is impending. Rightly or wrongly it believes that the coming battle will be the greatest, perhaps the decisive, even the final battle of the war. For weeks the leading newspapers have emphasized the subject. Each day their warnings have grown more definite and insistent. It is true that press insistence on the probabilities of an attack is meant to distract attention from the Calliaux and lesser scandals, but the very newspapers that have raised the note of warning most loudly are of nationalist or ultra-patriotic tendency and have throughout been most vehement against treason.

HUNGARIAN MINISTER RESIGNS.
AMSTERDAM, Jan. 23. The resignation of Count Hadik, Hungarian Food Minister has been accepted, according to a despatch from Budapest. A Zurich despatch early in the month reported that Count Hadik had resigned as Hungarian Food Minister owing to the difference between Austria and Hungary over supplies of Hungarian foodstuffs for the Austrian civil population.

ROMANIA STANDS FAST.
JASSY, Roumania, Jan. 17. (By the Associated Press.)—Take Jonecu, one of the leading statesmen and Roumanian Vice-President of the Council of Ministers whose resignation from the Cabinet King Ferdinand recently declined to accept, talked with the Associated Press to-day about the present position of Roumania and what that country would expect as a condition of peace. As to the future course of Roumania, Jonecu declared the Roumanians would remain faithful to the Entente until the end, whatever that end might be. The Vice-President of the Council said that Roumania had drawn its sword in defence of freedom and justice and that the nation never would rest until those principles have been achieved. You are asking me to speak about a country's situation when that situation is at its worst, said Jonecu to the correspondent. Remember if Russia makes peace, and we are forced to seek refuge from foes infinitely superior in strength and number, we have no Corfu like Serbia had when her soldiers were forced to leave their native soil. The problems and sufferings of Roumania are little known to America. We've been rather silent about them as there are many things about which we couldn't talk, for example the consequences to the Entente of the failure of Russia have been enormous, but to Roumania the results of that failure have been almost trivial. Yet we have borne the burden in silence in spite of all our misfortunes. However, I am convinced my country will continue to fight until the end. We

Joseph Marshall, of Carboneau, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Capt. Cecil Burke, son of Capt. Mark and Mrs. Burke, of Carboneau, by Adj. Harding, S.A. The bride was attended by Miss Sarah Miller and Misses May and Helen Marshall, and Miss Marion Burke, who acted as flower girl. The groom was ably supported by Mr. J. Marshall, brother of the bride. THE MENACE OF THE EMPTY CRADLE,

(By Father Bernard Vaughan.)

WHERE IT IS, WHY IT IS, AND WHAT IS ITS CURE.

The object of this book is to recall his fellow-citizens to a sense of the ruinous decay which is sapping the foundations of this 'plot', this earth, this realm, this England, together with its Overseas Dominions. As Newfoundland is one of its Overseas Dominions, every citizen should read this very interesting and only too true book. Price 35c.; postage, 2c.

AT HOME PORTRAITURE!

Portraits can be made in the home just as satisfactory as in the Studio. If you won't come to the Studio, we will bring the Studio to you, or its essentials.

W. Parsons has had a unique experience in this branch of Photography. When with Messrs. Elliott & Fry, the world-renowned Photographers, in London, England, his particular line was photographing people in their homes. Among the many distinguished people he has photographed were Signor Merry Del Val, Papal representative at the Coronation of the late King Edward the VII.; the Duke of Norfolk, the late Lord Roberts, the Duke of Grafton and many others. In this respect he gave Messrs. Elliott & Fry every satisfaction.

Terms for attendance will be given at the Studio.
