Nujol

For Constipation

GOOD health cannot be maintained if constipation is allowed to poison the system.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Nujol Booklet—"Thirty Feet of Danger." (Constipation-auto-intoxication in adults)—will be mailed gratis on application to sole agent for Newfoundland.

THE Lady of the Night

Amelia Makes a Success

CHAPTER III.

Strangely enough, the fact that the people on the terrace had shared his mistake did not fret her; for them, and their kind, she had nothing but contempt; but the handsome, good-looking, bashful boy, who had so good-naturally come to her aid, was a different matter. He was a man, and she would have liked him to have seen her at her best. After all though, it did not matter, she decided, with a shrug of her shoulders; she had to run the farm, and in doing it, was obliged to wear suitable clothing.

Incidents were rare in her life, and her simple annals contained none more interesting, more dramatic, than this little scene with the cow and the lad. Naturally enough, she was interested in his story; it seemed to her a mean thing that Sir Joseph should employ him as a servant, and conceal the fact that they were related; and she wondered what "the trouble" had been which had ruined Elliot Graham's father and cast the son on the charity of Sir Joseph, whom Nora had seen for the first time that night, and whom she thought a fat and horrid-looking man.

She went to sleep at last, but she dreamed of steers and Minerva hens instead of Elliot Graham, and though she thought of him the next morning, he was soon driven from her mind by the pressure of her work; for, in addition to the daily routine, she had to make preparation for her father's visit to London; he announced at breakfast that he must go the following day. One would have thought that a stage portmanteau could have been packed without much fuss, but not so Mr. Reginald Ryall; he left in haste, Nora could have accomplished the task in half an hour; but her father insisted on hovering and fidgeting round her, changing his mind about every article of clothing, and covering the room with things that he could neither decide to take nor leave behind.

The weather had cleared, and, cantering down the valley and over the hill, with Bob at her heels to round up the sheep, was pleasure enough. The temperature of Devonshire is almost as variable as that of Ireland; yesterday was winter, to-day there was almost a touch of spring in the air, and Nora scampered over the hills, singing to herself with all a young girl's delight in the warmth and sunshine. Towards evening she was riding homewards along the level of the valley,

When Choosing the Material for a washable Frock for the growing child—

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delicate fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rise in a clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

when she saw Elliot Graham coming towards her. He was mounted on a big, raking chestnut, a young horse which he rode as if he and the animal were one. He pulled up—blushing, of course—as he came to her, and raised his cap, and there was a pleasant look in his face, as if he were glad to see her.

"Good-evening, Miss Ryall," he said, with the faintest emphasis on the "Miss Ryall." "I am afraid I am trespassing; but this is the only long bit of straight near home, and I thought you wouldn't mind my stretching this young 'un on it."

"Not in the very least," she said. She had not blushed—at any rate while he was near enough to see her—and she met his gaze as frankly as she had met it the night before. "Come here whenever you like. That's a good horse."

"Yes, he is," he said; "young and a little hot at present, but I'm getting him into shape. That's a fine pony of yours; thoroughbred Exmoor, isn't it?"

Nora nodded; with her it was "praise me, praise my pony." "Yes, he's a very good one; I don't think there's a better. He is very fast. I believe he could race that horse of yours, taking the rough and smooth together."

"I have no doubt of it," he said. "I have seen those little buggers come down the hills. Shall we try them?"

She opened her lips to accept his proposal eagerly; then she checked herself, for it suddenly struck her that he might think she had provoked the challenge.

"Some other time," she said, a trifle coldly. "I am late, and must go home. Good-evening."

He looked rather disappointed, but he refrained from pressing the point, raised his hat, and made way for her to pass. Nora looked down at her stained skirt and shabby jacket, and frowned and bit her lip.

The next morning she drove her father to the station. His departure was attended by all the fuss which had accompanied the packing of the portmanteau. He mislaid his ticket as soon as she had bought it for him; he could not decide upon a compartment until the train nearly started, and when it had he remembered that he had left a certain necktie behind, and, in a fever of excitement, called to Nora to get it up to him. Find it she was of her father, Nora drew a breath of relief as she watched the tail of the train disappear round a corner.

She was rather thoughtful during that day, replied at random to some of Ned's questions, and in the afternoon went up to her room, opened the wardrobe, and looked at the few contents with a reflective air. Once she shut the wardrobe door and turned away, with a little gesture of impatience and self-contempt; but presently she went back again, and, turning over the clothes, took out a coat and skirt, got a white blouse from a drawer, and put them on. She brushed her hair carefully, drawing it down at her brows and making it into a knot behind; and, surveying herself in the wardrobe glass, was surprised by the change which had been made in her appearance. She laughed, she blushed a little also, as she thought that if Elliot Graham had seen her in her present get-up he would not have mistaken her for a farm hand.

"Why, where be you a-goin', Miss Nora?" exclaimed Martha, as she surveyed her mistress with surprise and fondly admiring eyes. "One would think 'twas Sunday, seein' you in your best things. Be you a-goin' a-visitin', or be there any one a-comin'?"

Nora laughed a little shamefacedly. "I don't know that I am, Martha," she said. "I may go down to the Rectory—I don't know."

"Well, you do look sweet and prettied enough to go anywhere," remarked Martha proudly. "Them's the kind of clothes you ought always to be wearin'; and so you should if I had my way."

"All sorts of funny things would happen if you had your way, Martha," said Nora. "These things may be very pretty, but they are not nearly so comfortable as my old skirt and jacket, and I don't suppose I shall have them on long."

"No," agreed Martha, with a sigh. "You'll like a boy for the love of old clothes; fact, I'm sometimes almost forritin' as you are a girl—a young lady."

"So am I!" said Nora, with a laugh, as she went out.

YOUNG WOMEN AVOID PAIN

This One Tells How She Was Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Regina, Sask.—"For two years I suffered from periodic pains and nausea so I was unable to get around. My mother had no take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am much better and able to go about all the time, which I could not do before. I recommend Vegetable Compound to my friends if I know they suffer the same way, and you may publish my letter if it will help any one, as I hope it will."—Miss E. G. BLACKWELL, 2078 Cedar Place, Regina, Sask.

Every girl who suffers as Miss Blackwell did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, headache, dragging down pains, inflammation or diarrhoea would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering. It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

not been altogether a success, for they had unwisely given her a class of boys, and the laughter which had arisen from the scholars and the teacher plainly demonstrated that Nora, as a Sunday-school teacher, was worse than a failure.

This evening she felt that she could not face the ordeal of the Rectory, so she turned off the road, and, following a narrow sheep track, went down the valley and by a strange coincidence, in the direction of the stretch of level grass upon which she had given Elliot Graham permission to ride. She had no reason to expect that he would be there, and she would have been ashamed to admit, even to herself, that she would have liked to have seen him, or rather, that she would have liked him to have seen her in her lady-like clothes. But she was turning back, half-conscious of a feeling of disappointment, when she saw a man fishing a little way up the river.

Now, though the Ryall lands were supposed to be carefully preserved, no one was refused permission to fish in the river that ran through the estate, but it was always expected that permission should be asked. The man was a stranger; he was young, and dressed like a gentleman, with too much of London about the new Norfolk suit and shining shoes. Nora wondered who he was, and went on slowly to inspect him more closely. She watched him make two or three throws, and smiled to herself. His fishing was an unportsmanlike as his get-up. She distinctly saw him miss two fish, and lose a third. She was a keen angler, and could not stand it. Going up to him she said—

"They are rising short; you must strike more quickly."

Her step on the short turf had been noiseless; he turned to her with a start—the start of the nervous cigarette smoker—and, almost dropping his rod, stared at her. At first it was a stare of surprise, then it slowly grew into one of half-insolent admiration.

"Beg pardon," he said, twisting an incipient moustache, and smiling with a complacent, would-be gallant air. "Did you speak?"

Nora had come up to him frankly enough, thinking only of his blustering attempts to hook the trout; but as she saw the face, with its insouciant, conceited, and half-insolent expression, her face grew cold, and her voice became hard, as she said—

"Yes, I said that the fish were rising short, and that if you wanted to catch them you must strike more quickly."

"Oh, thanks, thanks!" he drawled. "I am not very keen about it, I'm only just amusing myself. You fish yourself, I suppose?"

"Yes," said Nora laconically. "Ah, live about here, I imagine?"

"I live here; yes," replied Nora. (To be continued)

The President's Remark.

The impromptu speech by President Harding, to the officers and men on the flagship Pennsylvania, at Hampton Roads, recently, in which he stated "America wants only that which is righteously her own, and by the eternal, we mean to have it," is causing considerable comment in many American papers, which do not think his remark was real good judgment on his part. "Is it tactful to make such a declaration at the present time?" asks the Boston Post. "What the American people, at the present time, want," says the Boston Post, "is Peace with Honor. We do not need to display a chip on our shoulders. The first duty of the new administration is to maintain peace with all nations. No more vacant chairs, by reason or war, are wanted at the tables of American homes. The American people, who always have to pay the bills of warfare in blood and treasure, depend upon you, Mr. President, to maintain Peace; and to make Peace the cardinal policy of the State Department."

This Republic is too big and too powerful to need any touch of bragadocio. We hope that President Harding and Secretary Hughes will not be led astray by the enthusiasm of the moment or any impulse of patriotism or National pride, to add a single brand to the fire of the loose-thinking war talkers. "Let us have Peace," and do nothing and say nothing at conflict with that aspiration.

All the hopes of mankind for better conditions depend upon the maintenance of peace. The honor of this great Republic is entirely safe. We can well afford to be the good-natured "big brother" among the nations of the world, without detriment to our dignity, loss to our self-respect or injury to our substantial interests.

Let us have enough real courage to declare that there shall be no more war; if we can prevent it. That is the truest and the highest ideal of national policy for the United States and we should strive for it."

Calls Upon the Federal Govt. to Resign.

Winnipeg, May 5.—(By Canadian Press)—Passing of a "no confidence" vote in the Federal Government and calling upon it to resign as having no mandate from the people of Canada to carry on and endorsement of the organization's federal political platform with a few additions, feature the morning session of the Grand Army of United Veterans convention to-day.

In view of the expected amalgamation of all veterans organizations next September it was decided that the present federal political platform should be endorsed en bloc with two classes added. One class provided that in regard to gratuity claims that the next should include widows and dependents next of kin of all men who paid the supreme sacrifice and the other clause was that no discrimination should be shown ex-service men not now domiciled in Canada.

A resolution was passed calling upon the federal, provincial and municipal governments to refuse to award contracts to firms, on tender who do not employ at least five per cent. disabled men included among returned men.

The convention went on record as favoring a series of resolutions introduced by the Kitchener branch as follows:—

That a tax be placed on the monies of alien nationalities leaving Canada permanently for their own or other countries.

That the income tax act be altered so as to increase the minimum taxable amounts of veterans from one to two thousand in the case of single men and from two thousand to three thousand in the case of married veterans, or widows of veterans. The dependents allowance to remain as at present.

Table Appointments

of Gleaming Beauty and Fascinating Design

WHEN you choose "Holmes & Edwards" silverplate you are choosing beauty that will fascinate for years.

More silver is used in "Holmes & Edwards." As a result it is tableware of the most enduring sort. And coupled with the old-time hand-burnishing methods, this exceptional quality of plate gives a rich, gleaming lustre that adds welcome brilliance.

It is the highest quality silver-plate made. Those pieces most often used are protected against wear—in SILVER-PLATED by solid blocks of pure silver fused into the back of the handle and bowl; in SUPER-PLATE by a heavy extra deposit of silver at the points where friction causes wear.

The better stores will be glad to show you the charming designs—patterns whose exclusiveness alone would command your interest.

And of the same quality—gleamingly lustrous and the finest of craftsmanship—can be had "Holmes & Edwards" table appointments in silverware such as tea services, compots, bread trays and casseroles.

PIE PROFITEERING. The cost of living has been shrinking—and well it might; it was too high; and still the profiteers, I'm thinking, are charging us too much for pie.

We chase ourselves to eating places when hunger is due season calls, and there we sit and feed our faces with soup and greens and codfish balls. The staple things bear modest prices, the cornbeef hash and garlic stew; the prunes and shredded beans and rice the poorest man may eat and chew. But when we come to pie the charges induce a pious man to swear, by Cleopatra and her barges, that someone's rake-off is unfair.

They cut a pie in fourteen pieces, and charge us fifteen cents a slice, and we would summon the police in our disgust at such a price. A pie brings in about two dollars, and that is going pretty swift; what wonder that the pie hollers, inquiring, "Whither do we drift?" Pie is tired nature's sweet restorer, our staff and solace if we die, and oh, it makes us sore and sorer, when profiteers get rich in pie! Pie banishes the widow's sorrow, and it the orphan's tears will dry, and we should outspice to-morrow the men who overcharge for pie. Far better overcharge for chicken, for sardines packed in olive oil; pie is the comfort of the stricken, the stay of those who weep and toil.

Poland claims the oldest woman in Central Europe. She is Miss Anna Dohok, living in Chochobow, who recently celebrated her 122nd birthday. Miss Dohok is still quite active, physically and mentally, and does some housework each day. She also has a sense of humor and to her acquaintances attributes longevity to the fact that she has never been bothered by having a man about the house. She doesn't like cats, either.

You Will Enjoy This new teeth-cleaning method

Brush teeth for ten days in this new way. We supply the test. See and feel the good effects. Compare them with the old ways. It will be a pleasant test. And it may bring to you, as it has to millions, a new conception of clean teeth.

Whiter teeth
One great object is to fight the film--that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Old brushing methods do not effectively combat it. Much is left intact, forming a dingy coat. And most tooth troubles are now traced to it. Film is what discolors, not the teeth. It forms the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Fight it daily
Dental science has found two methods to effectively fight film. Many careful tests have proved them. Leading dentists everywhere now advise their daily use.

Both are combined in a tooth paste called Pepsodent--a scientific product. And to millions of people it is bringing whiter, cleaner, safer teeth.

Acts like fruit acids
Pepsodent also brings three other effects, such as fruit acids would bring. It brings them regularly and at proper times. It multiplies the salivary flow--Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digester in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids which cause tooth decay. Essential diet, rich in starch, makes these things essential.

Quickly seen
The effects are quick and apparent. No one can doubt the benefits when they are explained. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Feel and see these good effects, then judge if you always want them. They are vastly important. Mr. Coaker's Threat.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has at length exposed his hand and shown the ambition possessing him. Goaded to desperation by the stinging irony of Mr. Fox in the House of Assembly during the debate on the "Repeal of the Codfish Export Act," Mr. Coaker overleaped the bounds of discretion and even of common sense, and assuming a gladiatorial attitude defied all and sundry. Almost in the language of Spartacus—"Ye call me Chief"—he began an impassioned and lurid address in which threats and challenges were hurled at everybody who dared to disagree with the doughty President of the Fishermen's Protective Union, Minister of the Crown, Chairman of the Railway Commission, and Pooh Bah of the Government generally. It has been charged of Mr. Coaker that his aim and object was the setting of the North against the Centre, South and West of Newfoundland. Such charge has never been denied. It has on the contrary, been confirmed by no less a personage than the honorable member for Bonavista, and from no less a place than his seat in the House. On Monday, angered by the rapier-like thrusts of the junior member for St. John's East, Mr. Coaker declared with more vehemence than diplomacy that he was prepared to fight the North against anyone, and in another year he would do likewise in the West. The Minister has a most exalted opinion of himself and his abilities, but at the same time we must give him thanks for the sincerity of his utterance in confirmation of what has been said of him all along. But let us examine more closely that threat to fight the North against anyone, and the arrogance of such a declaration of war, after figures have played their little part.

Mr. Coaker as Supreme Head of the Fishermen's Protective Union, controls the representatives of five districts, viz., St. Barbe, Twillingate, Fogo, Bonavista and Trinity. The ten members from these, with the addition of Mr. Coaker himself, are all more or less employees in some form or other of the Union, or if not actual employees at least hold Government positions by virtue of Mr. Coaker's authority. Consequently this decemvirate of the F.P.U. is at the beck and call of the President and will stand solidly behind him on matters political in the House of Assembly. He is their Supreme Chief, and his will must be obeyed. There are penalties if not. The five districts named, has a population, according to the 1911 census of 36,125 of all ages and sexes. They have probably increased a few thousand in the last ten years, but it is a moot question to-day whether the actual voters in these electoral sections are as loyal to Mr. Coaker and the F.P.U. as they were in 1919 and previously. Assuming that they are, they are still in a hopeless minority when it comes to fighting, politically or commercially, the other thirteen districts. Bay-de-Verde, Carbonar and Harbor Grace cannot be reckoned upon as Union districts in the same sense that the five northern districts are categorized. St. Barbe is included with the latter, because it has a Union sitting member, but it is certain that a large portion of it is by no means inclined to swallow a further dose of F.P.U. medicine, or show affiance to F.P.U. doctrines.

The districts on the west side of Conception Bay, numbered above, have a population of 27,252 (1911 census) and are represented by six members, who are not—strictly speaking—Unionists, but who have aligned themselves with Mr. Coaker for political preferment. The electors are not Union men, nor has the Union any control over them, and there can be no doubt that at the moment the sentiment of Bay-de-Verde, Carbonar and Harbor Grace is strongly and determinedly hostile to Coakerism as it is defined. Therefore it may be assumed that the 27,000 odd of population would join with the Centre, South and West districts in a fight against Coaker domination. Ten other districts are left to be considered. Their population is 125,293, based on the returns of the enumeration of 1911, and are represented by 19 members in the House of Assembly. That Port-de-Grave, Harbor Main, St. John's East and West, Ferryland, Placentia, Burin, Fortune Bay, Burgeo and St. George's are absolutely and unalterably opposed to the imposition of Coakerism on them cannot be gainsaid. They have experienced the fruits of the evil policy of that name, and they are not inclined to accept it under any other title of political or union camouflage. Out of the 242,619 people in Newfoundland, which includes the unrepresented Labrador, Mr. Coaker in his coming fight is hopelessly outnumbered, for there are 152,545 men, women and children steadfastly opposed to his claimed following of 86,125, and if the population of Labrador is added to the greater number then the ratio is increased two to one. Mr. Coaker declares he will go West next month and do the same thing there as he did in the North. Let him go and try it on. The West is just in good humor to give the President of the F.P.U. the time of his young life, and he should not put off his proposed visit there indefinitely, for he will need all his magnetic personality if he expects to get farther West than Burin.

Burglar Makes Escape.

Although Surrounded by Police. A Head Constable, a detective, and four policemen failed to stop a bold and intrepid burglar from making good his escape from the residence of a well-known citizen. It appears that for some time past the house had been unoccupied and a servant was making preparations for its re-opening, when the presence of the intruder was discovered. With commendable promptitude, Mr. Karl Trapnell called the police (including Officer 666), but the crook unfortunately made his getaway, and everything points to the fact that he must have received assistance from the owner of the house, Mr. Fred J. King. When approached, Mr. King would neither deny nor confirm this statement. The police are clearly chagrined, but refused to discuss the matter with our reporter, when he called on them last night during a rehearsal of next week's play.

Needs Attention.

The attention of the Minister of Public Works is called to a portion of Reaney's Mill Road, near the Old Bakery, which is badly in need of repairs. Also those responsible should see that the high power wires, which were connected with the Trade Bakery, are removed, as at present the ends are lying on the road, and though not dangerous they may be made so by the small boys who are constantly playing with them.

PROFIT AND LOSS—You PROFIT when you buy NEWFOUNDLAND made goods; you stand to LOSE when you buy foreign goods.—may 9, 21

"What Happened to Jones?"

This question which has been intriguing the people of St. John's for some time past was fairly and satisfactorily answered by the Llewellyn Dramatic Company at the Casino Theatre last night, and a delighted audience can testify to the ability of the performers to give an equally satisfactory answer to-night when the comedy will be repeated. For that reason we do not feel disposed to tell here just "What Happened to Jones." There is one lot of people in the city who know. That is those who were present last night. To tell it again to them would be equivalent to giving words of gold. And it would be manifestly unfair to the capable cast of those who have not yet seen the performance, but who, are going to to-night; for that would spoil the climax, as it would give everybody inside knowledge, and nothing is more calculated to make a play drag than to have each auditor telling the other "what is going to happen next. The unknown appeals.

But in order to arouse curiosity a wee bit, let it be said that when the control of our great gate is over a highly respectable family, the head of which is a Professor of Anatomy and brother to a Bishop, and when the guidings of that fate takes the shape of a lost ticket to a "glove contest" which falls into the hands of the professor, who in a reluctant attempt to return it to its rightful owner, falls a victim to the blandishments of the said owner, who is engaged to the professor's daughter and is supposed by all the family to be "a model young man" who neither drinks, smokes, nor swears, and goes off to see the outcome of the "glove contest," the fun begins. After the fall of the curtain on the first act, the question is, what happened to the Bishop? At the close of act two this question is more intense, but at the close of the final you will all know what happened to Jones.

You will also have the extreme pleasure of witnessing how the difficulties of a peculiar situation vanished and fate became as kind as in the beginning of the world. You will further be delighted with the playing, acting and delineation of the various characters by such well known artists as Misses Angela McGrath, Ida Howlett, whose histrionic ability is of the highest quality, and who kindly came off with the troupe and rendered invaluable service; Misses L. Miller, L. Lillie, Olive Major, L. Oke, and Messrs. W. E. Stirling, R. W. Jeans, S. R. Steele, M. Colton, L. Stuck, G. J. Oke, T. J. Seymour, old favorites and new favorites. Then there is the famous Wallace-Hickory-Jardine trio, who were called upon last night no less than three times to respond to well merited encores. And the C.L.B. Band is there. And then there are Navajo blankets, which add greatly to the interest of the comedy.

So there you are, and all we can suggest is that every husband takes his wife, and every young man his "best girl," and if he hasn't one let him take the other fellow's and hop along to the Casino next evening. In any case as Helma, the Swedish servant girl says, "Yump anyhow."

The production is under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor and His Lordship the Bishop of Newfoundland, and is given in aid of the Church of England Orphanages. Home-made candy and chocolates will be on sale by the young ladies who volunteered for this service.

Salt and Salter.

(Daily News.) To the salt scandal the Salter scandal is now added. That a well paid employee of a business firm should be subsidised out of the public funds is an indecency. The Board of Works is the purchasing Board for public supplies. Its members are "Hon. W. P. Coaker, Hon. Alex. Campbell, M.D., Hon. Michael Power, Lieut. H. Small, M.H.A., and Albert Salter, Esq." to quote from the Newfoundland Almanac for 1921. Each of these gentlemen is paid $250 for his services. Albert Salter, Esq. receives $1080 additional.

This tribute to Mr. Salter's superiority may be as merited, as his services to the Hon. R. A. Squires were notorious during the 1919 campaign. But paying personal debts from the public purse is grossly scandalous. Thousands of Newfoundland citizens who have been seeking work and finding none because the country's business has been recklessly ruined by interference with the fish markets, will not find comfort in the knowledge that out of their meagre earnings, they are called on to pay an additional $1,080 to Albert Salter, Esq. Nor will it be overlooked that the aforesaid Albert Salter, Esq., is an employee of the Royal Stores, Limited, which has been liberally patronized by the Board.

The Minister of Public Works who claims to have saved considerably (possibly a quarter of Albert Salter, Esq.'s $1,080) in the purchase of splits, stated yesterday in the House, in reply to a question asked by Sir John Crosbie that between November 15th 1919 and January 31st 1921, orders had been given to the Royal Stores, Ltd., and the Martin-Royal Stores, Ltd., aggregating $24,712.36. Albert Salter, Esq., is the purchasing agent of the Board and also the employee of the firm from which he made the purchases.

Which is the worse scandal, the Salt or the Salter one, our readers will decide. Meanwhile before decision is arrived at it will be well to await replies to certain questions by Sir John Crosbie which will appear on to-day's order paper. Minister Jennings' reply yesterday was as follows:—
1. Mr. A. H. Salter is employed by the Department.
2. Payment $1,080.00 per annum or at the rate of $15.00 per month for each Institution.
3. He acts as supervisor of accounts in connections with the supplying of the public institutions through the Public Works Department, that is, checks prices of goods supplied and furnishes information respecting wholesales and retail prices current in St. John's; prepares standard price list corrected in accordance with market prices week by week.

4. There are no specified hours of employment. He is always in touch with the Department by telephone and comes here when required.

Happy Albert Salter—no specified hours—always in touch—comes when required—happy employee—happy employers! And thrice happy public which pays the price!

Bigger Work by Grenfell.

Dr. Curtis, a member of the medical staff of the Grenfell Mission for the past five years, is in town en route to the headquarters at St. Anthony, Newfoundland. In conversation with The Record, he stated that already $700,000 out of the $1,000,000 required for the endowment fund have been raised. Dr. Grenfell has been all over the U. S., and had also spent some time in Canada in this connection. The interest on this fund will furnish an income for work, and will serve to obviate appeals from year to year. A new orphanage is projected at St. Anthony's to replace the present wooden structure. The new building will be built of concrete and will be four stories in height, and will cost about $120,000. It will have accommodation for 50 as against 30 in the old building. Six trained nutrition workers will go down this season, and there is much need for work along this line on the Labrador coast. Twenty-five college boys will go down to assist in the building of the new orphanage.—Sydney Record.

Obituary.

PATRICK J. ALLAN. There passed peacefully away, last evening, after a long and tedious illness, a widely known and highly respected citizen of the West End, in the person of Patrick J. Allan. Deceased was engaged up to a few years ago at the grocery business, but owing to failing health he was obliged to give it up, so that he would be able, with care and attention to try and fight against a telling malady. But even with the best of medical aid and kindness of a devoted family it was all to no avail, and as stated the end came yesterday. Left to mourn are a widow, three daughters and one son; also one brother, Thos. J. Allan, as well as a large circle of friends, to whom the Telegram tenders its sincere sympathy.

House of Assembly.

TUESDAY, May 10th.

The House met at 3.15 p.m. Petitions were presented by Messrs. Targett, Winsor and Abbott. The following motion was introduced by Sir Michael Cashin to move for the appointment of a Select Committee for the House, consisting of five members, "to enquire and report upon the appropriation and expenditure of public money in 1920 for the purchase of Fish and Salt, and into all matters concerning the charter of vessels, the hiring of stores, the purchase and sale of Fish and Salt, and the whereabouts of the said Fish and Salt, and the control and management thereof; with power to employ Counsel to take evidence on oath, and to send for all persons, papers and things necessary to the said enquiry; with an instruction to the said committee to hold an enquiry in public, and to have the evidence taken stenographically, and to publish the same from day to day in the newspapers of this city."

In introducing the Motion Sir Michael said it was not necessary to go into details concerning it. An enormous amount of money had been taken from the Treasury and an explanation should be given. If the Government's hands were clean in the matter there was no reason why an enquiry should not be conducted. It was seconded by Mr. Bennett.

The Prime Minister did not think the Motion was necessary as the matters it referred to could be received by a searching enquiry when the House goes into Committee on Supply, Ways and Means, etc. The motion would mean a vote of want of confidence in the Government.

Mr. Higgins expressed his great surprise at the Premier's action. He did not think it was mature, then why should there be any hesitation towards having a full enquiry into the matter. How could it be possible to get together if a thing like this were put up offensively and without any change being made, and yet it turned out to be rotten in it and the Government were afraid of it to be touched. The thing was so unusual and the amounts involved so great that the whole matter should be cleaned up. If it were attempted to thrash the matter out in debate, it was quite likely that a Minister about to be pilloried would absent himself from the House. Was it decent for the Government to lock up this information. He could only conclude that it was the spontaneous thought of the Prime Minister that it should be thrown out. Not one sentence of the Motion imputed wrong doing. If this thing were all the Government appeared to suggest it was, why did they funk this committee. He had never thought that such an important matter could be left without an enquiry. The House should set a pattern to the country on a point of law. The Prime Minister could not be serious when he hesitated to have an enquiry into the matter. There was not a country under the British flag that would boast of having a thing like this done and hesitate for the slightest moment to have it enquired into. If the Minister of Marine and Fisheries were the man he thought he was, he would be the first to court an enquiry. Were the facts such as should be hidden. He appealed to the Government not to turn down the motion for their own good. If the Minister failed to support the Motion the impression would be created that he had done something wrong. So sure as he failed to support the Motion, the people would be satisfied that there was "something rotten in the state of Denmark."

Mr. MacDonnell was not satisfied with the Prime Minister's attitude. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries had on Monday welcomed an enquiry. Was there to be a barefaced backdown now. He could only place one construction on it and every right thinking person could not but do likewise. Somebody either in or out of the House was afraid of the truth. The killing of the Motion would not kill the cause, and some day the searchlight of public opinion would be cast on the Government. The matter would never be dropped by the Opposition until it had been entirely investigated.

Sir John Crosbie said that if the Government was decent and everybody else were pariahs. They had taken the power to themselves and used it to forward their own private, selfish, political aims. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries was surrounded with suspicion. He didn't want an investigation because he was frightened. He did not think the personnel of the Committee, if appointed, should be all Government members. It was impossible to find five good men in the Government. The country was to be destroyed and they with it. He ridiculed the idea of associating with such a crowd as the Government who had used public offices for private ends. The Government were the only ones to have any confidence in themselves.

Mr. Vinnicombe thought the country should know all that was going on. If, however, a committee of enquiry were appointed, Mr. Coaker would wriggle out of it as the Prime Minister had done with the Woodford Affidavit. He thought it the duty of the Opposition to keep the House open till next October to prevent the Government from further blundering.

Mr. Moore briefly supported the Motion.

A division was then taken, the vote being a strictly party one and the Motion was lost by 16-13 as follows:—

For—Sir M. P. Cashin, Sir J. C. Crosbie, Mr. J. R. Bennett, Mr. W. J. Higgins, Mr. C. J. Fox, Mr. N. J. Vinnicombe, Mr. W. J. Walsh, Mr. M. S. Sullivan, Mr. E. J. Smeeth, Mr. J. MacDonnell, Mr. P. F. Moore, Dr. Jones, Capt. Lewis.—13.

Hon. Mr. Foot, Mr. Chesseman, Mr. Cave, Mr. Archibald and Hon. Mr. Brownrigg were not present in the House when the vote was taken.

Hon. W. F. Coaker remained in his seat during the division, which was however tantamount to voting against the resolution.

Answers to questions were then tabled.

The Prime Minister gave a most unsatisfactory reply to a question of Sir Michael Cashin's referring to supplies sent to men cutting pit props for the Government.

Sir Michael Cashin said the men up North were allowed to cut pit props?

The Prime Minister—"Good for them."

Sir Michael Cashin said it was because they were the Prime Minister's only hope and recently he had got up and fawned all over them for that reason. He read a letter from Salvage charging that 370 barrels of flour and 70 barrels of meat were sent to a place where only three families were in need. Wasn't it his business, said Sir Michael, to ask questions.

The Prime Minister—"Yes, if they are intelligent ones."

Sir Michael Cashin—"I asked so intelligently that I got under your skin. Even though we are 'wooden heads' we've held you up to ridicule this afternoon. What a lovely position the great Pooh Bah of Newfoundland is now in!"

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Bill to Repeal the Codfish Exportation Act.

Sir John Crosbie rose to speak again to the Bill. He first referred to the fact that Mr. A. H. Salter was getting over $1300 from the Board of Works Department and he had given orders to the Royal Stores amounting to nearly $35,000. He wanted a stronger word than hypocrisy to describe the Government's actions. The excuse of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries about Penney and Sons of Ramea, that their lack of business ability put them down, was ridiculous. The Minister had informed Penney last year that if he sold his first he would seize the cargo. It was a case of persecution of the worst kind. He named men in Spaniard's Bay who still had fish in their stores. The Minister of Education allowed Government extravagance to go on, whilst his district starved. If the Minister of Marine and Fisheries went to the West Coast as he had threatened to do, he would be swamped. Referring to the cargo of the "President Coaker," Sir John said it fetched $86,000. He had lost faith in Hon. Mr. Coaker. The "President Coaker" affair could not bear investigation by a Select Committee. An investigation would take place over the heads of the Government. Over 20000 copies of a fancy circular had been printed to advertise a bankrupt railway. Fish, sugar and salt, had cost the country over $2,000,000. The Minister had not told the story of the cargo down at Brazil with a claim of 30s. a qt. against it. He didn't believe the F.P.U. could sell a cod's tail in Brazil. He ridiculed the experts of the Advisory Board and finally appealed to Hon. Mr. Coaker to have a Select Committee appointed.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries defied anyone to find anything wrong in connection with the "President Coaker."

Sir John Crosbie—"Then the only thing to do is bring in that Select Committee."

The Committee rose and reported progress.

The House was then adjourned until 3 p.m. to-day.

The Bell Island Ore Tax Agreement.

A Bad Bargain For Newfoundland.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—My criticisms of the Ore Contract are finished for the time being. I now turn to certain constructive suggestions. If I were negotiating the contract, I would start with certain fundamental principles; for instance, I would consider the works at Sydney part and parcel as it were of the mines at Bell Island; at the latter the raw material is produced; at the former it undergoes the process of turning it into a more finished class of raw material. The great value of the mines to this country is found in the labour they give. The labour given at Sydney is scarcely less valuable to this Colony. As my first principle, I would lay this down, that we are vitally interested in the success of the works at Sydney, and that we should aid in their operation, extension and profitable continuance. I would, therefore, put a lower rate of export duty on ore going to Sydney than on ore going anywhere else.

TAXATION AS A LEVER.

As my second principle, I would lay down the proposition that the Colony is more interested in the amount of labour which can be obtained at Bell Island and at Sydney for the people of this Colony than it is in the amount of revenue which can be received for the treasury; and, therefore, I would use the power to impose taxation as a lever to increase the amount of labour given to our people. I would say to the Companies—"the more Newfoundlanders you employ the lower shall be the rate of taxation we impose; if you employ 50 many thousands, your duty shall be 25 cents per ton, for instance, but if you employ more thousands, the taxation shall be 20 cents per ton, for instance, and so on, reducing the rate per ton according to the increased number of men given employment."

SMELTING DONE IN COLONY.

As my third principle, I would lay down the desire of this Colony to have the smelting of the ore done, if possible, within the Colony rather than without. That is to say, I should try to bring the smelting as a labour giving operation into the Colony instead of maintaining it at Sydney. I do not know to what extent this can be done, but I should try to find out, and I should provide certain limited electric power, for instance, and use my power of taxation, for the purpose of inducing the establishment of smelting works in the Colony. I would, for instance, enter into a contract with the Companies for a five year period only, at fixed rates of taxation, but I would promise and provide that the five years should be extended to ten. If at the end of five years certain smelting works had been provided; and I would further provide in this connection, that at the end of five years the export duty should be doubled. It seems to me that to allow ore to be taken to any part of the world in which Newfoundlanders are not directly employed is an absolutely prodigious waste of the resources of the Colony; and I would lay down that within a measurable number of years there should practically be a prohibitive duty upon all export of ore except to Sydney, with preference to home smelting, even as against Sydney.

A QUID PRO QUO.

As a fourth principle, I would seek to establish this doctrine, that to the extent to which this Colony actually needs it, the coal of Cape Breton is as much essentially a part of this Colony as the ore of Bell Island. Coal and iron ore are equally needed for the operation of the Steel works at Sydney. Cape Breton needs our ore; we need her coal; neither of us can very well do without the raw material which the other has to give. There should be reciprocity in exchange, and the rights of this Colony to obtain coal should be stipulated for in the most binding way. I would provide that the quantities of coal needed here should be at all times purchasable in Cape Breton at the shipping ports of the ore Companies at the cheapest prices charged from day to day at those shipping ports, and stipulate of the Companies for the purpose of establishing what those prices were, and further stipulate for the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of this Colony over suits concerning this matter, and give any damned individuals the right to claim their damages in suits against the Companies for breaches of the contract, or to the Government of the Colony the right to sue for damages by breach of contract to persons resident in the Colony. In other words, I would provide adequate machinery for enforcing the obligations undertaken by the Companies.

CHANGED CONDITIONS.

I think that if negotiating a contract now I would be inclined to take into consideration the peculiar commercial conditions of the present day. Considering the depression in Canada, the changes through which the Companies are going at the present time, and all the other elements which should be borne in mind in fixing a rate of taxation for the Companies, and profitable to the Colony under existing conditions, I would be inclined to impose a lower rate of export duty upon ore sent to Nova Scotia in the present year than has been stipulated for in the existing contract, but I would make up for that by imposing an export duty upon ore shipped elsewhere. By the 1910 contract the royalty provided was 7 1/2 cents per ton. Why not make the rate upon ore sent to Sydney this year say 15 cents per ton, instead of 25 cents, as provided for by the pending contract, but impose the same rate upon ore shipped elsewhere, which is to be free under the existing contract. Why not provide that in case certain additional thousands of Newfoundlanders are this year employed at Bell Island or Sydney, 10% of the total export duty shall be refunded at the end of the year. Why not provide that next year or the year after the export duty shall be increased 5 cents per ton, so that at the end of five years the maximum export duty shall be 25 cents all round. After that this five year contract could be renewed for another five years if smelting works were established, but the export duty should be increased. I am not trying to make a contract, but only suggesting certain principles which I think a contract should embody. It seems to me that along these lines a bargain ought to be made to the advantage of all concerned. I would treat the Companies most generously, recognizing their interest as joint with ours, but not with the prodigality and criminal carelessness which is shown in the existing contract.

Yours truly,
ALFRED B. MORINE.

The Bell Island Tax Agreement.

ANOTHER VIEW.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Please permit me to use your columns to make some comment regarding the Ore Tax Legislation now before the House. Recent issues of your paper and other local papers have contained several letters from Mr. A. B. Morine, and also some editorial and other comment regarding this very important matter. I claim no knowledge of the legal merits of this legislation. That is a matter for legal men to pass judgment on. Mr. Morine's letters, however, and other comments published to date, appear to disclose a "lack of knowledge" of the fundamental elements regarding the nature of Iron Ore and the marketing of same, and the industrial merits of this case.

LOW GRADE ORE.

Bell Island ore is not high grade, and easily marketable as is generally understood. On the contrary it is low grade, and generally hard to market. It does not follow, because we have iron ore, the steel producers of the world are clamouring for it, any more than because we have fish, it is marketable everywhere. The term Iron Ore is very indefinite and covers many grades in the metallurgical sense, and the steel industry of the various countries, have adapted themselves to certain grades of reasonably consistent analysis. Bell Island Ore is classed as low or medium grade Non-Bessemer.

Great Britain uses principally high-grade Bessemer Ore, and her furnaces, coles, limestones, and fluxes have been adapted to them. Heretofore it has been almost impossible to market Bell Island Ore in Great Britain, unless at a very low price, which would warrant changes in smelting processes. United States uses Non-Bessemer, as well as Bessemer Ore, and offers a limited market for Bell Island Ore for mixing purposes, provided the price is low enough. In pre-war days the Bell Island Companies found a market for Ore in Germany, because the German steel industry was built up chiefly on Lorraine lower grade Non-Bessemer Ore, and therefore the Bell Island Ore suited German steel producers, and they could offer a "paying price" for it. If a man has a product to sell, he seeks a market where his product is saleable, just as we go to the Mediterranean and South America to sell our salt cod. We would be certainly courageous and enterprising, to throw over these markets, and endeavour to build up a demand for Salt Cod in Great Britain or United States, where the people's tastes look for something else.

SHOULD BE PATRIOTIC.

The question of resumption of trade with Germany is a much debated one these days, and it is a moot question whether real patriotism has any bearing on the matter or not, but as $25,000,000.00 of English capital is ready for investment in the Empire Steel Corporation, and as the sale of Ore in the world's markets is the objective of said Corporation, it appears somewhat out of place for us to criticize this objective, or do anything to hamper it on the grounds of patriotism. Bell Island will become important to Newfoundland, not as a supplier of Ore, for the Sydney furnaces, but as a supplier of Ore, for the British Empire and the world. Relatively, Sydney is a very small and almost negligible consumer, but the world's consumption is a question of our ability to produce. Hence, in as much as Bell Island Ore is low-grade and Non-Bessemer, and by itself unattractive to British and American producers, we must make the price off-set with we lose by analysis, if we prefer these customers to Germany. There is also the question of expensive water-carriage. Philadelphia, Rotterdam and Liverpool are from 1500 to 2500 miles distant, whilst Sydney is 400, and the per ton cost on time charter, figures out very high. We must remember that every $1.00 per ton on Bell Island Ore, means about $2.50 per ton on Pig Iron, as it takes over two tons of Ore to make a ton of Iron. It might be worth while to introduce provisions to encourage the carrying of ore and coal in Newfoundland bottoms. The Smelting Plant will consume 400,000 tons of coal per annum, and it looks as if the tonnage proposition in connection with this trade will be a huge one.

THE NEW AND THE OLD TAX.

The real question seems to be, whether the new tax (25c per ton) on one million tons to Canada, is preferable to the old tax (7 1/2c flat on all Ore). In one case there is a reasonable certainty of half a million tons per annum to Sydney, as the plant there is not likely to close up, and has been designed in respect of furnaces, coles, limestones, etc.—to handle Bell Island Ore. In the other case, there is the uncertainty of a five or ten million ton output to the world's markets, which is competitive and has to be developed. The establishment of a Smelting Plant on Bell Island, handling 100,000 tons of steel, 200,000 tons of ore per annum, will be immediately more beneficial to Newfoundland than anything else, although of doubtful value as an investment. Therefore, it will pay Newfoundland to make a bid for the establishment of this plant. Further the expenditure of $3,000,000.00 will not be a serious question for the Steel Co. if the next five years demonstrates a demand of five or ten million tons of Bell Island Ore, as they will readily pay $3,000,000.00 on Capital Account in five years to save six million dollars in profits in twenty years, with only an average output of 500,000 tons. The Companies are experts in their own business, and are prepared to take these chances, but does it warrant us, who are not experts, to deal with anything but reasonable certainties, so long as we don't give too much away. The tax of 25c per ton is reasonably high, as a tax on a low priced commodity, such as Iron Ore whose F.O.B. price has been down heretofore in the neighbourhood of a dollar.

ESSENCE OF AGREEMENT.

In essence, therefore, the Agreement, in part, seems to be: 25c per ton on 1,000,000 tons to Canada, and free, conditional, export to other countries. This means that the Canadian consumer will pay us 25c per ton, because the finished Sydney products will find their principal market in Canada, and we will bid for a good share of the world's Iron Ore consumption, by being able to offer same at a low figure. One point, however, does not seem clear. The Canadian consumption may become very small, and the outside consumption large, in which case the first million tons should be taxable at 25c. Permit me to suggest further, several very important points from the standpoint of the engineer, which require special and more specific attention:—

(1) Since our principal source of revenue is through indirect taxation mainly on foodstuffs and clothing, the free entry of all material for construction and operation of Smelting Plant, is too elastic, and much more than any corporation expects. The primary object sought, is free entry of all expensive and initial plant and machinery, but not the innumerable odds and ends which follow; also free entry of essential raw material for operation, but not the innumerable odds and ends and every day requirements of such a Plant.

He Wasn't Long in Being Convinced, Says Quebec Man

Arcand Changed His Mind About Tanlac After Taking It And Declares "I Feel Fine."

"I didn't believe Tanlac would do what people were saying it would, but I changed my mind before I finished my first bottle," said R. Arcand, St. Poye Road, Quebec, recently. "I had indigestion so bad that it was a common thing for me to miss whole meals for I would rather not eat than suffer. My stomach seemed to stay sour and upset all the time and I had pains and cramps that were something fierce. I felt nauseated all the time and was all run-down, weak and played out. My liver was sluggish and my nerves were all undone, and I was bothered a lot with headaches and dizzy spells. I couldn't sleep to do any good and I never felt equal to my work."
"Well, I saw a chance for the better before I finished my first bottle of Tanlac. My appetite got a new start and the indigestion began to leave and I commenced to pick up in every way. And now I'm in as fine health as I ever want to be. I feel fine—that's the best way I can put it, and Tanlac did it all."

(2) As the Government Engineer is the authorized technical and expert adviser of the Government on such matters, he alone is qualified to define many of the provisions of this agreement; and his statement, as that same are carried out. No provision is made for such supervision, except in the case of workman's houses, a most trivial affair.

RECIPROCAL TRADE.

Coming to the question of coal, reciprocal trade concessions are perhaps more beneficial than monetary taxes, and our position as producer of the first essential warrants a coal supply at the minimum price obtainable. As "quantity" talks, Newfoundland should be considered as one big consumer, and within reasonable limits be able to purchase coal for local industry, railroads, steamers, and domestic requirements, at the minimum figure. It remains to be seen who has the "best of the bargain." In the main the intention of the agreement appears reasonable. There are big possibilities on both sides, but also uncertainties. My primary object in writing this letter is to try and correct some illusions, evident from newspaper controversy, and endeavor to give this legislation fair play.

Yours truly,
F. W. ANGEL.

THE PEOPLE WHO DETEST ME.

There must be certain people among my readers who cordially detest me. And I don't blame them. That is, I don't blame them for detesting me. But I do blame them for being the cause of the act on my part that caused the delightful letters commending me for this or that, telling me some experience that fits in with remarks I have made, and then never receive an answer.

The reason why they don't get an answer is because they have failed to get in an address or, at least, a street name, city, and state are the only sufficient address. Moreover, they should be written on the letter and not merely on the envelope, as my mail bag is a very large one, and sometimes happens that letters and envelopes get separated.

Letters I can never send. I don't know where they are, and I don't know where they are, and I don't know where they are.

Letters I can never send. I don't know where they are, and I don't know where they are, and I don't know where they are.

Letters I can never send. I don't know where they are, and I don't know where they are, and I don't know where they are.

Letters I can never send. I don't know where they are, and I don't know where they are, and I don't know where they are.

Another trial of which I have spoken before is the receipt of unsigned letters in which I am asked to discuss subjects in my column which are not of sufficient general interest, or about which I do not know anything worth saying. For instance, if there is a prize because she knows how to play and the other ladies get mad, is it up to her to try deliberately to lose to keep them happy? How many people would be interested in such a subject?

Or how to remove hair from an upper lip—in the first place, I wouldn't attempt to discuss a matter like that which is a specialist's job; in the second place, that too, is hardly of sufficient general interest. Yet I would be glad to acknowledge such letters if they were signed.

It Would Be Heavenly. Of course when a person writes a letter of commendation and says "I am not going to sign, this so you won't have to answer it," that's quite another thing. I fully appreciate the kindness of that. Who was it said that Heaven was a place where you got letters every day and never had to answer them. But that's quite a different thing from being left with the balked feeling that somewhere someone is waiting for a letter and thinking me very unkind because I do not send it.

Fads and Fashions. Though evening gowns are longer, they do not feature trains. Many frocks are a combination of plain and checked gingham. Skirts have the effect of being longer in the back than in front. Fanlike platings of the fabric are emphasized on to the gown. One suit-skirt is straight and narrow and has three wide tucks. Quaint tuckers and puffed sleeves of net are shown on frocks of moire. Black cellophane lace and thin silk laces are favored for trimming. Cream lace handkerchief drapery is effective on a gown of rose chiffon. Muslin, crepe de chine and linen blouses are usually loose and straight.

"Just Listen to This"

"I HAVE been after you to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and you always say it is intended more for women."

"Well, that is what I always understood, for I hear you women talking so much about using it."

"Don't you think men have blood and nerves as well as women? It says here that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and nourishes the exhausted nerves back to health and vigor."

"Yes."

"Well, the doctor says it is your nerves that are responsible for your indigestion and sleeplessness. Why not try some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food? You know what it did for me."

"I would like to know of some men in my condition who used it."

"Just listen to this: Mr. A. W. Foster, 178 Le Breton street, Ottawa, Ont., writes: 'For a year I was troubled with "nerves," was restless, especially on retiring, and unable to sleep for hours. I was easily fatigued and very irritable. 'A friend told me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before I had used the treatment a week I was enjoying a good night's rest every night. I gained rapidly in every way and my general health is very much improved.'"

"That sounds all right."

"Yes. This statement is vouched for by Mr. E. M. Ahearn, the druggist, and is no doubt correct."

"Well, I will give it a try-out."

Dempsey-Carpentier Bout.

WILL BE GREATEST IN RING ANNALS.

New York.—Now that the site for the Dempsey-Carpentier bout has been definitely decided upon and work on the arena started, the big match will take up more room on the sporting pages. The selection of Jersey City as a site affords a record attendance, for this is the first real big affair to be staged near New York since the Jeffries-Johnson match set a new fashion in purses and gate receipts. The Willard-Moran and Dempsey-Brennan bouts in New York drew large sums, but they were not matches of the first class. They were arranged merely as an excuse to show the champion in action.

Only one heavyweight match has received more publicity than the present one. That was the Jeffries-Johnson affair. For two years before the men entered the sun-baked ring at Reno the sporting world talked of little else but the big battle. From the very start there was no need of a press agent to put out stuff about Jeffries and Johnson.

The first act in the drama attracted worldwide attention and others followed naturally to keep interest alive. The opening move was to force Jeffries to champion the cause of the white race. The big fellow had retired and had drawn the colored line. He had to be urged and goaded for months before he could be lured back into the ring.

Jeff's consent to fight created a tremendous sensation and this was followed by another when Tex Rickard announced the sporting public and rival promoters by offering a purse of $100,000 for the mill. At that time a purse of $100,000 looked more out of place than one of $500,000 would today.

Watching the stout figure of big Jeff gradually assume athletic lines and speculation as to whether he could come back and fight as well as ever occupied the attention of the correspondents for months. The sudden fight about face of the Governor of California and consequent shift of the fight to Reno were other incidents that furnished excellent copy.

Tex Rickard says that if he could have held the fight in San Francisco, as he had originally planned to do, it would have drawn $50,000. If it could have been held in New York it would have drawn $100,000. As it was, it drew $270,775 in the little Nevada town, far away from any big city.

Bouts that are staged far away from the big centres of population seem to attract more attention than those that are staged close at hand. The Corbett-Fitzsimmons match, also held in Nevada, received a world of publicity. The battle did not attract a large crowd, owing to the difficulty of reaching the scene, but for months and months before the fight ring followers were intensely interested in the approaching struggle, and there was almost as much printed about it as of the late war.

The Corbett-Sullivan battle of New Orleans was another that received a tremendous amount of publicity. Not only fight fans but the whole English-speaking world was interested in that historic struggle. On the other hand, the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons, Jeffries-Sharkey and Jeffries-Corbett bouts, staged right here in New York, did not attract anything like the same amount of attention.

The last three mentioned were all good fights; much better than most of those that have caused so much excitement. It appears that it is not so much the prospect of seeing a good contest as what it is at stake that determines the amount of interest shown in any particular match.

FAILURES. There are several kinds of failure. There's the kind which notice most. And it haunts them in their business like an ever-present ghost; But to fall in some endeavor that is launched for selfish gain and may never leave a stain. While the hurt which cuts more deeply and forget we never can is to have our honor tested and then fail to play the man. Worse than any business failure is the failure to be true. To fail in kindly service when the chance is given you. There is no sadder lot than when the past you look upon. As to know you've kept your roses 'till the friend is dead and gone; And there isn't any failure quite so difficult to bear. However goes the battle, as the failure to be fair. The bitterest sort of failure isn't missing wealth or fame— For a man may err and blunder and still keep an honored name. And a man may fall in conquest and still be a loyal friend. And find his life successful when it's written to the end. But the failures that cut deepest when our book of deeds we scan, Are the mean and petty failures when we've failed to play the man.

June 24 Is the Day.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—When I saw something ago that the Importers' Association had decided not to keep June 3rd, the Kings Birthday but June 15th as a public holiday, I wrote the Association pointing out the importance of June 24th and the advisability of keeping holiday that day, which was the birthday of the country and the Empire, instead of the 15th, which stood for nothing. I was greatly disappointed when later I saw by the papers that the Importers' Association had met, and instead of keeping the 24th, as I suggested, had decided on keeping the 22nd, which happens to be the day on which the King was crowned, or Coronation Day. I received a letter dated May 7th from Mr. Templeton, Honorary Secretary of the Importers' Association, in which he stated that:

"When your letter was received it was brought before a meeting of the Importers' Association which had been called especially to decide the date of the June Whole Holiday. The Government had originally asked that the holiday be kept on June 3rd, which is the King's Birthday. The trade found this a very inconvenient day and decided to suggest to the Government the advisability of holding the 15th to celebrate the King's Birthday instead of the 3rd. When His Excellency the Governor was approached he objected to the day being changed, as he said—officially it would have to be observed on the 3rd of June, and consequently they could not recognize any other day as the King's Birthday. He realized the difficulty of holding a Commercial Holiday, on that date, and suggested that it was not absolutely necessary to hold any Commercial Holiday, but that if we wish to show our loyalty to the Crown it might be wise to have Coronation Day the Commercial Holiday. At a meeting of the Importers' Association, the suggestion of His Excellency and your suggestion to us, were before the Association and they decided in favour of June 22nd."

It was but natural that the Importers' Association should have been more strongly influenced by the Governor's suggestion than mine. At the same time I still think that the Importers' Association made a great mistake when they adopted his suggestion and did not take mine. Had the Governor had knowledge of my letter before he made the suggestion he would probably have looked at the matter in a different light. The probabilities are that before the Governor was informed of his appointment as Governor of Newfoundland, he hardly knew that there was such a place on the map, and like a student waiting for an exam, he would then start in to acquaint himself about the country over which he was to preside. It is quite probable therefore that he would not know that June 24th was the day on which the country was discovered, and would be unable to see the importance of observing such a day. The Governor, in suggesting the twenty second is actuated by one motive, and that is the demonstration of loyalty to the King. My suggestion is even more important, in that it suggests loyalty to the Empire, and as the King is an important part of the Constitution of the Empire, it kills two birds with one stone. Kings in the past have been removed from their thrones, and for sufficient reasons would be again, and that might not in the slightest affect the Empire. One of the great grievances of this country is that we do not hold our people. We are the founders who know nothing of its parents or the day on which it was born. As his or her birthday is important to the individual, so it is to a country, only more so. The Importers' Association has decided not to keep June 3rd, then why keep the 22nd? The overwhelming majority of this country care as little about when the King was crowned as when he put on his under-wear, then why make hypocrites of us and especially when such a day as the 24th is staring us in the face, when our loyalty to the Empire and the King and the Country could all be demonstrated at one and the same time. I am certain that if the matter was properly put before His Majesty the King he would be the first to suggest that the 24th and not the 22nd be held as a holiday.

Everything should be done to encourage love of country in our people, because it is a country worthy of their love, and here is a day of the greatest importance towards conducting to that effect. It is reasonable that our brain and brawn should leave this country and build up other countries. Let us try and keep our people in the country. Let them think that this country is worth living in, working in, dying in. How many leave it and wish they could get back but they have not the price. How many strangers come here, abuse it, leave it, but are glad to get back, and when back start in again to abuse it. I was born in this country. I have lived here practically all my life, and it is but natural that I should have more interest in its welfare than even the Governor, who is here to-day but is probably Governor of some place else to-morrow. He is transient, we are permanent. Had the Importers' Association these facts before it, it probably would have adopted my suggestion, even though they had that of His Excellency to consider as well. It is not yet too late. I propose writing the Premier, representing the Government, Sir M. P. Cashin, representing the Opposition, Mr. Coaker representing a large body of the fishermen, and the L.E.P.U. and N.I.W.A., representing the workmen of the city and country. I hope to have their endorsement of observing, this year and in the years to come, the Birthday of Britain's Oldest Colony, Youngest Dominion and the Beginning of the British Empire Overseas.

Yours sincerely,
 GEO. W. B. AYRE.

Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized early yesterday morning in Holy Redeemer, Whitney Pier, when two popular young people of this city, Miss May Grant and Mr. Stewart McChesney were united in marriage. The Rev. Fr. Kiely officiated. The bride was beautifully attired in a taupe velour costume with a hat of a henna shade and a mink fur cape. She was attended by Miss Etta Abbey. Mr. Walter Hodder supported the groom. Mrs. Oscar Libbey presided at the organ and rendered the wedding march. The music was sung by Mr. John Broadbent. A large number of friends of the interested parties attended the ceremony. The groom's present to the bridesmaid was a string of pearls, and to the groomsmen a tiepin. After the ceremony the happy couple and their friends adjourned to the home of the bride, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. Mr. and Mrs. McChesney left by the morning train for Halifax, where they will spend their honeymoon, before they returning to this city where they will reside. The bride is the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Grant of Riverhead, St. John's—Sydney Post.

Dempsey Ready to Step in Ring.

New York—Jack Dempsey appears to be drawn rather fine for a man about to begin a hard course of training. The champion looks as though he were ready to step into the ring right now, which is not a particularly good sign.

Most fighters take on a certain amount of fat between bouts and this enables them to work hard for a considerable period without danger of going stale. Jess Willard was in the best condition of his career when he faced Jack Johnson and for that battle he took off nearly 40 pounds.

Johnson took off about 25 pounds while training for Jeffries, and the black was at the top of his form for that bout.

Fitzsimmons believed in long and severe periods of training for important bouts. His spare frame did not run to fat, yet he generally had at least 15 pounds of excess flesh to shed during the course of his training. Jeffries scaled 240 pounds when he made his first unsuccessful appearance in New York, failing to go through with his contract to stop Bob Armstrong and Steve O'Donnell, but Jeffries weighed only 210 when he beat Fitzsimmons for the title a few months later.

Corbett was a highly nervous fellow who did not take on much weight between bouts and he generally had trouble with his condition. He was so high strung that his trainers could not prevent him from working too hard and he was always in danger of going stale before the contest. Corbett's admirers insist that he would have beaten Fitzsimmons if he had not left most of his strength and endurance in the gymnasium.

Dempsey is more like Corbett in temperament than any of the other title holders. He has changed a great deal since he won the title from Willard. He is nothing like as strident as he was in those care-free days. Judging by his appearance and his actions in the recent affair with Bill Brennan he is even more nervous than Corbett.

Ox Dies When Parted From Gander

A blind ox, famous as the protegee of a stately gander on the J. A. Holcroft plantation, near Greensboro, Alabama, is dead, and those on the farm believe his death is due directly to enforced separation from his guardian. Recently, it became necessary to transfer the ox to another pasture. The gander was unable to follow. The separation was too much for the ox, and he pined and drooped, refused food and laid down and died. The ox and gander recently attracted widespread attention by their strange friendship. Every day at regular intervals the gander would lead the ox to water by strutting ahead of him, honking loudly so that those on the ward could follow the sound. If either er cattle approached, the fowl would fly at them and drive the intruders off.

There are no vacancies among the ordinary knight companions, the recent appointment of Viscount Milner bringing this group up to its full strength of 25. Of the 18 royal wearers of the insignia, eight are members of the British reigning house. They are the king, who is sovereign of the order, the queen, Queen Alexandra, Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, Prince Henry, the Duke of Connaught and Prince Arthur.

A German Super-Rockefeller.

In all the boldest nations there were men who made vast fortunes out of the war, but according to articles recently appearing in English newspapers, the King of all the profiteers is the German, Hugo Stinnes. Of course he was a wealthy man before the war, but his wealth multiplied many times over during the four terrible years of the conflict. The foundation of the Stinnes' fortune was laid by the grandfather of the present incumbent, but the latter has increased it a hundred fold. At the age of 23, he set up for himself. Everything seemed to prosper with him. He engaged the seal trade, and in a very short time was the owner of several mines. He next took up the iron and steel industry and a little later started shipbuilding, and when the war broke out he was the owner of thirteen ships which carried the products of his industries to every part of the world. A man of tremendous energies, he became linked up with numberless industries and financial organizations in some capacity or other and everything he touched seemed to flourish marvellously. Before the war his fortune was estimated at $10,000,000. At present it is probably twenty times this amount. He was also among the largest shareholders of the great German steamship lines. While no definite statement of his wealth has ever been published, yet there is no doubt that he is one of the very richest men in the world.—Arcadian Recorder.

Appoint Delegates to Conference with Anglicans on Church Union.
 LONDON, May 6.—The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in England, in session to-day, appointed delegates to confer with a committee of the Anglican Church on the proposals of Church Union.

Doctor Carnegie Simpson, in moving the matter, said he greatly admired the Anglicans, and coveted many things they had, but he did not approve of the Episcopacy, which was the weakest and in his opinion the worst feature of the Anglican faith.

The general assembly decided to admit women to elderships and deaconesses, but resolved that where women are admitted to the ministry they should resign if they entered the state of matrimony.

Working a confidence game recently on the wife of George Radlin, Windsor, Nicholas Soroke and another man not yet under arrest, induced Mrs. Radlin to part with $1,000, her husband's life savings. Soroke, who was caught by Radlin after a long chase to-night, while admitting his part in the theft, declined to divulge the name of his accomplice. Mrs. Radlin told the police that the men, pretending they could double her husband's money "in half an hour" by raising the denominations of the bills, persuaded her to hand them the cash. When she went upstairs after witnessing Soroke's partner change a $10 bill to $20, they departed. Radlin arrived as the men were running away. He caught Soroke, who tossed the roll to his accomplice.
