Y. M. C. A.—The regular weekly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. will be held this evening in the hall, at which the annual election of officers will take place. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance.

A FILTHY SCAM.—Some rowdy has been wilfully defacing monumental headstones in the yard attached to the Marble Works of Mr. Feast, by squirting tobacco juice upon them. We hope the reward offered in the advertisement we publish elsewhere will result in the conviction of the perpetrator of such a dirty and waston mischief.

LEAVING TOWN.—Mr. Geo. B. Fraser informs us that he contemplates closing up his business in Guelph, preparatory to leaving for another part of Her Majesty's Dominion, and consequently will dispose of his entire stock of goods at prices that will defy competition. His great clearing sale will be duly announced in our columns this week, so look out for bargains.

EVERLASTINGS.—The store of Mr. Maroon, on the Market Place, is resplendent just now with a large assortment of dried, coloured everlasting flowers and dried grass, which he has received from Germany, and has for sale. They are made up in a variety of ways, including hanging baskets, fans, bouquets, children's wreaths, &c. They look exceedingly pretty, and are just the thing for winter.

THE SALE.—The estate of the late Mr. Mackenzie Stewart was sold on Wednesday by auction, as follows:—Store lately occupied by Hepburn, by Mr. John McCrae, $6,125; Jeffrey's store, by Mr. T. J. Day, $6,300; Fraser's, by Mr. O'Donnell, $6,350; O'Donnell's, by John A. Wood, $4,150; Heffernan's store, by Heffernan Bros., $7,110. The pore at the rear was bought by Mr. John McCrae for $1,150.

PRESENTATIONS took place at the Royal Hotel on Wednesday, in recognition of the efficient services of Staff-Sergeant Clarke, drill instructor. Capt. Macdonald presented a handsome riding and a purse of $15 on behalf of himself and other officers of the Wellington Field Battery, in a suitable speech. Mr. Clarke having responded, Sergt-major Knowles, on behalf of the Right Division (Guelph) of the Battery, presented Mr. Clarke with a purse of $27.25. A suitable response was made, and toasts and speeches followed.

We understand that a number of men from the Guelph Battery accompanied Staff Sergt. Clarke to Kingston, to take a course in the school of gunnery.

The first sod of the Ontario and Quebec Railway, in the county of Peterboro', was turned on Tuesday, on Boyd's farm, in lot No. 4, in the first concession of Belmont, by Mr. P. M. Grover, M.P.

The funeral of Bishop Farrell on Tuesday was a solemn and imposing ceremony. The Archbishop of Toronto and many other Roman Catholic dignitaries, the Mayor and Corporation of Hamilton, the St. Patrick's Society, and others took part in the obsequies, which were witnessed by thousands of people.

A sad and fatal accident occurred on Monday last has cast a gloom over the village of Warton. A resident of the place, Mr. John Arbuckle, while chopping in the bush on that day, was struck by a falling limb over the left temple and killed instantly, the limb opening the skull and scattering the brains around.

The funeral took place on Wednesday, under the direction of the Orange Association, of which he was a member. The deceased was a quiet and respected man, and leaves a wife and four small children to mourn his loss.

A CONSERVATIVE PIC-NIC was held at Besmsville on Monday. About 1,500 were present. The speakers were Messrs Merritt, M.P., M. G. Cameron, M.P.E., J. C. Rykert, M.P.E., J. J. Hawkins, of Brantford, T. P. Thompson (Jimmie Briggs), and D. W. Beadle.

The Diamond Yeast Cakes stand prominent in their line. They are held as par excellence by every housewife in the land, and recommended by the most eminent persons as being strictly pure and healthful. They are prepared under the immediate supervision of an expert, and deserve a trial, if you like good bread.

The Ottawa City Council has ordered the removal of all projecting sign boards along the principal streets.

The Carlists Deserting.
Republican Cause Successful.
Conservatives Support the Ministry.

Crisis Apprehended at Berlin.
Modes and their Gallows.
John Bright—Mr. Hughes.

Madrid, Oct. 1.—Hundreds of deserters are coming into the lines. They represent that demoralization and insubordination within the city is increasing. The majority of the insurgents wish to surrender, but they are overawed by the liberated convicts and the more desperate portion of the volunteers. The news of the failure of the fleet at Alicante caused a panic in the city.

London, Oct. 2.—The Daily Telegraph's special despatch from Berlin says trade and speculation is almost at a stand still, and a crisis is apprehended on the bourse. New York Oct. 2.—A Fort Klamath despatch says that the erection of the gallows, for the purpose of hanging Modes on Friday morning, began today. They will all be suspended from one beam, and at a given signal swing into eternity together. The execution will be public that the Klamaths, and other neighbouring Indians, may perceive and feel the moral effect of the punishment.

London, Sept. 30.—John Bright today was formally installed as a Cabinet officer. Mr. Thomas Hughes gave a lecture at Marlboro' College last night, on America. He advised all who intended to emigrate to go to Canada or the States, and spoke highly of the development of British North America.

Madrid, Sept. 30.—At a meeting of the Conservatives to-day at which Marshal Serrano and Admiral Topete were present, resolutions supporting the Government and rejecting an alliance with the Radicals were adopted.

Minister Mazonne has returned to Madrid. The people came out to meet him along the route from Alicante, and his trip was a continuous ovation.

POLICE COURT. (Before the Mayor.) Oct. 2.

ABUSIVE LANGUAGE.
Ellen Gaughan was charged by Emily Hanlow, using abusive language. Case dismissed with costs.

SUNDAY LIQUOR-SELLING.
Wm. Hood, jr., of the Moore Hotel, better known as the Bullfrog Hotel, was charged by the Chief Constable with selling whiskey on Sunday, 21st inst. Fined $20 and costs.

ASSAULT AND HEAVY FINE.
Michael Hart, of Pulsinch, was charged by George Shell, of Waterloo, with assault on the 30th ult. at Pulsinch. The parties are brothers-in-law, and the affair rose out of a family dispute. Defendant used a stick, cutting the complainant's head and blackening his eye. Fined $30 and costs; bound over to keep the peace, himself in $400, and two sureties in $200 each.

THE AGRICULTURAL FARM CASE.
Starks and Hall appeared again, to answer Mr. Stone's charge. Mr. Guthrie appeared for them. Mr. Lemon, the prosecuting attorney, announced that Mr. Stone withdrew his charge, and the case was dismissed.

A New Idgellows, Hall has been opened in Idgellows.

On Saturday last the Court of Queen's Bench was opened at Walkerton, and Mr. Justice Galt was presented with a pair of white kid gloves, there being no criminal cases on the calendar.

Everett W. Moor, senior partner in the commission firm of Moore & Co., Detroit, hanged himself on Saturday night in the loft of the barn on the premises where he boarded.

A gloom was cast over Port Elgin on Sunday morning, by the sad intelligence that the Rev. D. Mackay, who was but recently inducted to the pastoral charge of the C. P. congregation, had departed this life through the bursting of a blood vessel. The funeral took place last Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, and the Revs. J. Fraser, of Kincairdine, A. Tolton, of Southampton, and others took part in the obsequies. The deceased was a beloved pastor and a zealous Christian. His loss is deeply felt by the whole community.

THANKSGIVING DAY.—The Bishop of Toronto has issued a circular reminding the clergy that Thursday, the 16th of October next, has been appointed by the Synod as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessings of the harvest. This day has been accepted by the several religious bodies of the Province of Ontario and Quebec, and the Bishop trusts that the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario will issue his proclamation appointing it a day of general thanksgiving.

A rather extraordinary robbery has just developed in Toronto. Some days since, after the arrest of three female shoplifters, who had been making systematic raids, a search was made among their effects in trunks at their apartment, when silks to the value of about $800 were found there and placed in a room at the Police Court; but on Wednesday morning, when they were required, were found to be missing, they having, it is asserted, been stolen. Certain street rumors are afloat to the effect that a detective is blamed for it.

Mitchell has had a Baby Show, at which prizes were given for the finest babies of different ages.

Stray Leaves from the Old Land.

Huntly, Sept. 10, 1873.
My last letter closed with my arrival in Edinburgh—the Modern Athens, as it is not inaptly termed. Every body knows that the city is celebrated for its natural beauties—for the localities within and around it which are connected with so many historical associations, many of which have been invested with additional interest by the writings of Sir Walter Scott. The picturesque irregularity of the old part of the city, as well as the symmetrical proportions of the new part, strikes the stranger very much in the course of his inspection. The varied objects of interest are also so grouped together as to afford the greatest possible contrast. Standing near the Scott Monument the spectator has a series of scenes around him unequalled in the world. The Princes Street Gardens with their terraced walks, and elegant flower beds—their profusion of shrubbery and shade trees—stretch out on either side. Running through their entire length are the lines of railway. Beyond the castle rises its lofty head, perched as it is on the top of the gigantic rock which on three sides presents a rugged and almost perpendicular front as it abruptly rises from the surrounding plain. Farther to the east stretches the Old Town, the houses rising one above another according to the ascent of the ground, which gradually slopes away till it loses itself in the plain surrounding Holyrood Palace and Abbey. Behind we have Princes' and other streets forming part of the New Town, with their elegant houses and numerous statues—some in marble and some in bronze. Still further to the east the Calton Hill presents its green slopes, which are adorned with the Nelson, National and other monuments. A little farther to the south the towering peak of Arthur's Seat, and lower down the bold front of Salisbury Crags, are conspicuous. The whole forms a panorama of rare beauty, of marvellous variety and unequalled interest.

The public institutions and places of historic interest in and about Edinburgh are well worth a careful examination. The Antiquarian Museum contains the most extensive collection of British and Foreign antiquities in Scotland. Among these are the Thumblkins and other well known Scotch instruments of torture, much used against the Covenanters, the Maiden or Scotch guillotine, Jenny Geddes' stool which she hurled at the Dean of St. Giles on his attempting to read the service book, the Solemn League and Covenant, the blue ribbon worn by Prince Charlie as a knight of the Garter when in Scotland in 1745, besides hundreds of other curiosities which I have not room even to mention. The National Gallery, which is close to the Museum contains a very fine collection of ancient and modern pictures. The Industrial Museum, contains a most complete and admirably arranged collection of specimens in natural history, geology, the arts, sciences, &c. It would occupy too much space even to enumerate all the public buildings worthy of note, many of them in beauty of design and excellence of execution are unsurpassed. Among the objects of interest in the Old Town the Castle of course claims the first attention. Considered at one time impregnable, its strength is now more apparent than real. It can accommodate 2,000 soldiers, and has an armory for 3,000 stand of arms. The Crown room in the Old Palace Yard contains the Regalia of Scotland, consisting of a crown, sceptre, sword of state, and the Lord-Treasurer's rod of office. The sceptre, the touch of which gave the royal assent, performed its last grand legislative office by ratifying the Treaty of Union with England on the 16th January, 1707. The Earl of Seafield, then Chancellor, on returning it to the Clerk, is reported to have scornfully applied the vulgar phrase, "There is an end of an auld sang." Adjoining the Crown room is the room where Queen Mary gave birth to James VI. On going down High Street, we pass the Free and Established Church Assembly Halls, old St. Giles Church, the Parliament House, John Knox's House, and farther on at the end of the Canongate come in sight of Holyrood Palace—one of the venerable seats of Scottish royalty. Near to it is the Abbey, yet beautiful in its ruins. Queen Mary's apartments in the Palace are shown to visitors. Chief of these is her bedroom, with all its antique furniture. The interest of this room hangs on its connection with the tragical murder of her favorite Rizzio, the story of which forms so romantic an episode in Scottish history. The Greyfriars churchyard is to Scotsmen especially a place of great interest, for surrounding the ancient church lie the remains of some who have earned for themselves no mean place in history. They include George Buchanan, the Latin Poet and preceptor of James VI, Allan Ramsay, Robertson, and Mr Tytler the historians, Dr. McCorrie the biographer of Knox, Dr. Black, the eminent chemist, and many others.

Here also in a quiet and secluded spot, lie the nameless graves of most of the martyrs who were executed for their religious opinions in the times of the Persecution. A fitting monument commemorates their steadfastness to principle and heroism in the hour of trial.

We must, however, leave Edinburgh and take a sail up the Forth as far as Stirling. The trip in summer is one of the most delightful that could be imagined. The scenery of either side of Frith presents many objects of interest to the stranger. Here and there along the banks we pass busy manufacturing towns, while farther back are seen, peeping out from among the trees, gentlemen's seats, and beyond these again rise the hills which stretch away as far as the eye can see. After passing Alloa, the frith narrows into the river, which in its course all the way up to Stirling presents a most extraordinary series of windings. Stirling is well worth a visit. This ancient town has been the scene of many historic events. Its castle, renowned in the history of the country, stands on the brow of the ridge overlooking the Forth. It is not so large nor so strongly fortified as Edinburgh Castle. The view from the battlements is beautiful and extensive. Spread out before us we have the Vale of Menzies on the west, bounded by the towering Highland mountains. To the north and east stretches the Ochil Hills, and the windings of the Forth can be distinctly seen for miles below the city. The Campsie Hills close the southern prospect, and from where we stand the eye takes in at a glance the ruins of the Castle, the Wallace monument, the Wallace monument and Bridge of Allan. This abbey gives its name to the cluster of rocks called the Abbey Craig, which rises to a height of 560 feet. The beauty of the situation and its vicinity to the scene of Wallace's first victory over the English suggested it as a fitting site for the monument to the Scottish hero, which now crowns the cliff in the form of a lofty baronial tower, 220 feet in height. It is surmounted by an open crown, from which a splendid view of all surrounding objects may be had. The monument is a fitting tribute to the patriotism and heroism of the great soldier who wrested his country from the power of its foes. Some distance off, on the level ground, and bounded on two sides by the Forth, stands the Abbey, already mentioned. This ancient monastery is now but a mass of ruins—a tower built exactly like the original one being the only structure to mark where the first one stood. On a spot near the High Altar, pointed out by tradition as the burial place of James III. and his Queen, an elegant modern tomb has been erected by Her present Majesty over her ancestors. In the town the Grey Friars or Franciscan Church (now called the East and West Churches and still used as such) are of historic interest, for within its walls the Earl of Arran, while Regent, abjured Romanism, and the coronation of the youthful James VI. took place in the choir, on which latter occasion John Knox preached the coronation sermon. The pulpit used by him on this occasion is still preserved. Ebenezer Erskine, founder of the Secession Church of Scotland, was for some time minister of one of these churches. I saw three miles to the south-east of Stirling lies the famous field of Bannockburn, where was fought the decisive battle which secured for Scotland her liberty. Fields of grain now wave where the hostile armies met in the clash of arms and contended for victory, and all that is now left to mark the scene of the conflict is the famous "Borestone" and flagstaff.

I was fortunate to be in Stirling on one of the days of the Highland and Agricultural Society's annual show of stock, implements and machinery, and was much interested in comparing the exhibition with our own Provincial and Central Shows. The grounds were spacious, the buildings though temporary were comfortable and convenient, and all the arrangements seemed to be well carried out. The show of stock was very fine, and comprised more varieties than we are accustomed to see in Ontario. The animals were brought from all parts of the country, and considering there are so many first-class breeders in Scotland, one was not surprised to see stock which had been brought to the highest perfection as regards breed, size and all other essentials which go to make a first-class beast. The sheep were in every respect equal to the cattle, and comprised all the kinds from the heaviest Cotswold or Leicester down to the small and half-wild black-face, fresh from the heart of the Highlands. I do not say that Canada can match Scotland in its display of these two classes, but considering all things, the cattle and sheep of our popular breeds will compare favourably with the bulk of those shown at Stirling—leaving out, of course, a few picked animals. But we are far behind the Scotch breeders and farmers in horses. The show of Clydesdales was simply magnificent, and far exceeded any display of horse flesh that I ever witnessed before. In machinery and implements there was a very large and creditable exhibition. Labour-saving implements for the farm are rapidly gaining ground in Scotland, and the present high wages paid for farm labour, and prospective increase in the future, will tend to bring them still more extensively into use. The appearance of the Show in most respects was like one of our own Exhibitions. There was the vast crowds of people—more than half of them farmers with their wives and families—all well dressed, healthy looking, and happy for the day at least. There were the bands of music, the busy officials, the ever watchful police—all was the same as in Canada except the many stately Highland gentlemen, who were seen moving among the crowd, looking every inch like chieftains in the "Garb of Old Gaul," and the multitude of pipers who entertained the crowds on streets or show ground with slogan, strathspey or reel. I was very glad to meet in Stirling two well-known residents of Wellington—Mr. Alex. Meiklejohn, of Harrisston, and Mr. J. S. Armstrong, of Eramosa. The latter had just bought five or six head of very fine cattle for shipment to Ontario. This little incident made me feel proud of our farmers in Wellington, and especially of Mr. Armstrong, whose enterprise took him to Scotland on such an errand, with a view to improve our stock.

Taking the train from Stirling for Inverness, via the Highland Railway, the traveller soon reaches Dunblane, with its fine old Abbey. After an hour's ride he arrives in Perth, one of the prettiest and most favourably situated towns in Scotland. The scenery surrounding it is very fine—lacking the grandeur of that surrounding Stirling, but still varied, picturesque and softer in its tints. Shortly after leaving Dunblane, we reach Pitlochrie, which is the key to several places of interest, including Lochs Tummel and Rannoch. A little beyond and the traveller gets a glimpse of Ben Vracky, one of the Grampians, about 3,000 feet in height. Soon we speed on and rush into the famous pass of Killiecrankie, near the most delightful that could be imagined. The scenery of either side of Frith presents many objects of interest to the stranger. Here and there along the banks we pass busy manufacturing towns, while farther back are seen, peeping out from among the trees, gentlemen's seats, and beyond these again rise the hills which stretch away as far as the eye can see. After passing Alloa, the frith narrows into the river, which in its course all the way up to Stirling presents a most extraordinary series of windings. Stirling is well worth a visit. This ancient town has been the scene of many historic events. Its castle, renowned in the history of the country, stands on the brow of the ridge overlooking the Forth. It is not so large nor so strongly fortified as Edinburgh Castle. The view from the battlements is beautiful and extensive. Spread out before us we have the Vale of Menzies on the west, bounded by the towering Highland mountains. To the north and east stretches the Ochil Hills, and the windings of the Forth can be distinctly seen for miles below the city. The Campsie Hills close the southern prospect, and from where we stand the eye takes in at a glance the ruins of the Castle, the Wallace monument, the Wallace monument and Bridge of Allan. This abbey gives its name to the cluster of rocks called the Abbey Craig, which rises to a height of 560 feet. The beauty of the situation and its vicinity to the scene of Wallace's first victory over the English suggested it as a fitting site for the monument to the Scottish hero, which now crowns the cliff in the form of a lofty baronial tower, 220 feet in height. It is surmounted by an open crown, from which a splendid view of all surrounding objects may be had. The monument is a fitting tribute to the patriotism and heroism of the great soldier who wrested his country from the power of its foes. Some distance off, on the level ground, and bounded on two sides by the Forth, stands the Abbey, already mentioned. This ancient monastery is now but a mass of ruins—a tower built exactly like the original one being the only structure to mark where the first one stood. On a spot near the High Altar, pointed out by tradition as the burial place of James III. and his Queen, an elegant modern tomb has been erected by Her present Majesty over her ancestors. In the town the Grey Friars or Franciscan Church (now called the East and West Churches and still used as such) are of historic interest, for within its walls the Earl of Arran, while Regent, abjured Romanism, and the coronation of the youthful James VI. took place in the choir, on which latter occasion John Knox preached the coronation sermon. The pulpit used by him on this occasion is still preserved. Ebenezer Erskine, founder of the Secession Church of Scotland, was for some time minister of one of these churches. I saw three miles to the south-east of Stirling lies the famous field of Bannockburn, where was fought the decisive battle which secured for Scotland her liberty. Fields of grain now wave where the hostile armies met in the clash of arms and contended for victory, and all that is now left to mark the scene of the conflict is the famous "Borestone" and flagstaff.

I was fortunate to be in Stirling on one of the days of the Highland and Agricultural Society's annual show of stock, implements and machinery, and was much interested in comparing the exhibition with our own Provincial and Central Shows. The grounds were spacious, the buildings though temporary were comfortable and convenient, and all the arrangements seemed to be well carried out. The show of stock was very fine, and comprised more varieties than we are accustomed to see in Ontario. The animals were brought from all parts of the country, and considering there are so many first-class breeders in Scotland, one was not surprised to see stock which had been brought to the highest perfection as regards breed, size and all other essentials which go to make a first-class beast. The sheep were in every respect equal to the cattle, and comprised all the kinds from the heaviest Cotswold or Leicester down to the small and half-wild black-face, fresh from the heart of the Highlands. I do not say that Canada can match Scotland in its display of these two classes, but considering all things, the cattle and sheep of our popular breeds will compare favourably with the bulk of those shown at Stirling—leaving out, of course, a few picked animals. But we are far behind the Scotch breeders and farmers in horses. The show of Clydesdales was simply magnificent, and far exceeded any display of horse flesh that I ever witnessed before. In machinery and implements there was a very large and creditable exhibition. Labour-saving implements for the farm are rapidly gaining ground in Scotland, and the present high wages paid for farm labour, and prospective increase in the future, will tend to bring them still more extensively into use. The appearance of the Show in most respects was like one of our own Exhibitions. There was the vast crowds of people—more than half of them farmers with their wives and families—all well dressed, healthy looking, and happy for the day at least. There were the bands of music, the busy officials, the ever watchful police—all was the same as in Canada except the many stately Highland gentlemen, who were seen moving among the crowd, looking every inch like chieftains in the "Garb of Old Gaul," and the multitude of pipers who entertained the crowds on streets or show ground with slogan, strathspey or reel. I was very glad to meet in Stirling two well-known residents of Wellington—Mr. Alex. Meiklejohn, of Harrisston, and Mr. J. S. Armstrong, of Eramosa. The latter had just bought five or six head of very fine cattle for shipment to Ontario. This little incident made me feel proud of our farmers in Wellington, and especially of Mr. Armstrong, whose enterprise took him to Scotland on such an errand, with a view to improve our stock.

Taking the train from Stirling for Inverness, via the Highland Railway, the

the north end of which is the scene of the battle, fought in 1689 between the Highland clans under Dundee and the troops of King William III. A stone in the park fronting Urard House, close by, marks the spot where Dundee received his death wound. The ride through the pass is grand. On either side the precipitous cliffs rise to a great height for the most part covered with trees, but here and there exhibiting huge masses of rock that seem to have been heaved up by some tremendous convulsion of nature. In the narrow gorge which separates these cliffs a mountain torrent roars and rushes with terrible force and velocity over its rocky bed—the water all a-foam and the spray rising like mist from some of its water-falls. The whole scene is so strikingly strange and grand that you scarcely realize it till it is hid from your sight by a turn in the road, which brings you to Blair Athole. After viewing with pleasure the diversified scenery which is to be found about this place, the railway for forty or fifty miles passes through a bare and inhospitable country. On either side are the bleak hills, covered with heather, and stretching back as far as the eye can see. Sometimes the monotony is relieved by a sight of the frowning peak of some mountain—a giant among his fellows—in the crevices of which snow may be seen even at this time of the year, and down whose sides you can trace the white streaks of foam which mark the courses of the mountain torrents in their headlong rush. Scarcely a house is to be seen in this desolate place. Here and there we pass the ruins of some shieling, the inmates of which years ago may have sought a more congenial home in a foreign country—perhaps in Canada. Not a sign of life is to be seen save the flocks of sheep scattered over the waste, and the solitary shepherd standing on some eminence, who scarcely relieves the utter loneliness which seems to surround him. But a long run brings us into the Strathpey region, then to Forres, then past the fatal field of Collieston, and lands us safe in the pretty and thriving capital of the Highlands, Inverness.

Guelph Evening Mercury

THURSDAY EVENING, OCT. 2, 1873

An exceedingly successful Reform picnic was held at Niagara on Tuesday. Messrs Mackenzie and Blake delivered stirring speeches. Mr. J. M. Currie, Mr. W. A. Thompson, Mr. P. Hon. J. S. Currie, Mr. Fraser, Mr. R. M. Ball, Mr. J. S. Brown, and others also spoke. Resolutions condemnatory of the Ministry were passed, and men who have supported a Tory Government steadily for the past seventeen years came forward and joined in the general condemnation of the Administration of Sir John A. Macdonald.

The organs have now set to work to prove that two blacks make a white, with no better basis for one-half of their argument than that somebody heard that some one else said that the Grits were spending a power of money on the elections. Rather a white blackbird that!

The Royal Commission. Wednesday was the twenty-third and last day of the proceedings of the Royal Commission.

The Chairman ordered the witnesses who had been summoned, but had failed to appear, to be called. The Crier then called Lucius Seth Huntington, Geo. W. McMullen, A. B. Foster, Chas. M. Smith, Geo. Norris, the younger, and John A. Perkins. None of these witnesses appearing, the Commission adjourned after a few words from the Chairman.

It is understood that Judge Polette will remain in the city to complete the report, and that Judges Day and Gowan will return to their homes for a short time, coming back as soon as the report is sufficiently advanced to permit of its being finally closed.

The Hamilton Fair.

The Fair opened on Tuesday, but Wednesday and Thursday are the principal days. The weather so far has been favorable, and the number of paying visitors on Wednesday is stated at 1,500. The number of entries is 4,257—much below those for the Guelph Fair, and about 2,000 less than the local papers were predicting they would amount to. The show of horses is very fine, especially in the road or carriage class, in which there are no fewer than 288 entries. Owing to the absence of some leading breeders at United States fairs, and to other causes, the show of cattle is not so large or so good as was expected. In short-horns, Mr. F. W. Stone, of Guelph, takes the lead. His seven animals are all prize-takers. G. & W. Watt, of Elora, distinguish themselves both in thorough-breds, and grades of this breed. William Hood, of Guelph, is "alone in his glory" with the Galloways, his chief rival. Thomas McCrae, also of Guelph, not showing. With fourteen animals Mr. Hood wins fifteen prizes, including the diploma. George Ludd, of Guelph, is in equal solitary grandeur with the Devons. His fine bull "Hartland," heads a herd of eleven, all, and deservedly, prize-winners. Well nigh the same tale must be told in regard to the Herefords. Mr. Stone, of Guelph, is only rivalled in one class by George Hood, of Guelph, who takes a prize for a three year old Hereford bull. Ayrshires hardly put in an appearance at all. Very few fat cattle are shown; George Hood, of Guelph, takes the lead with a fat cow of any age or breed, which is hardly needful to say, is short horn, or a high grade of that breed.

Sheep are rather deficient, the South-downs, strange to say, being the best filled class, in proportion to the number of breeders and exhibitors. They are shown mainly by F. W. Stone, of Guelph, J. C. Douglas, of Dumfries, Thomas Wilkinson, of Glasgow, and H. E. Irving of the Royal Hotel, Hamilton. Cotswolds are not exhibited in large numbers, but there are some splendid representatives. F. W. Stone shows the most and best. Leicester are in about equal force with the Cotswolds, and are of good quality. W. Whitelaw of Guelph, and James Cowan of Galt, are amongst the chief exhibitors. A pretty fair display is made of Lincolns. George Hood of Guelph, shows a pen of fine fat Cotswolds.

The show of swine is small but select, there being hardly an inferior pig on the ground. In the mechanical departments inside the Palace there is a pretty good show, though in some of them, too, a considerable falling off from the displays at the other great exhibitions is noticeable. In the fine arts department there is a good display, as there is also in that of ladies' work. In fruit there is a splendid show, and in roots and vegetables there is a very good one for the season. In agricultural implements the display is a fair one.

PRESBYTERIAN UNION.—Those who are hostile to this movement in the Canada Presbyterian Church met on Tuesday in the Temperance Hall, Toronto, to consult over what course ought to be pursued in the circumstances. The meeting was not large, but very earnest, and in general the language employed was moderate though decided. Resolutions were passed, objecting to the 4th article of the Basis of Union and to the article referring to Christ's Headship. The following was also passed:—"That in view of application being made, as indicated in the 7th resolution, for legislation in regard to the property of the Church, this meeting consider that efforts should be made to resist such legislation, so long as the Basis remains in its present unsatisfactory condition, and with this view appoint a committee, consisting of Messrs. McTavish, Ross, Ferguson, Middlemiss, and A. D. McDonald."

The Reason Why.
 The reason why the magnificent Retail Grocery Establishments in the Alma Block and on Lower Wyndham Street, belonging to John A. Wood, are so very popular with the intelligent public:—
 Because the Goods are all of the best quality.
 Because the Prices are invariably the lowest.
 Because the Clerks are courteous and obliging.
 Because the Stock is the largest to select from.
 Because the goods are always clean.
 Because the Weights and Measures are always correct.
 Because, in fact, the proprietor understands his business, desires to please his customers, makes good use of his capital, and buys for cash in the best markets, and always deals liberally with those who honor his stores with their custom.—
 These and many other weighty reasons have contributed very largely to make the name of John A. Wood, as connected with the Grocery trade of Guelph, so well known, and his stores so very popular.

The Rival Clansmen:
 A Scottish Vendetta,
 CHAPTER I.

THE VOW TAKEN—“COMING EVENTS CAST THEIR SHADOWS BEFORE.”
 “Stay,” said Ian, rising to his feet. “I will go with you. I feel very tired and wearied, and will try to snatch a few hours’ sleep. If you take a light with you I shall see where to lie.”
 “Yes,” replied Angus, turning and seizing a piece of fir stick, which he thrust into the fire, where it quickly ignited.
 “Good night,” said Ian, turning and extending his hand to the strangers. The young man shook it warmly. When Ian took the hand of the lady, it trembled slightly, and after a warm pressure he withdrew his own with seeming reluctance.
 Then turning, he followed Angus, who was leaving the apartment.
 The other end of the hut resembled the one we have already described in every particular, only it looked much more cheerless because no fire burned on the hearth, and because it was utterly destitute of a single article of furniture—nothing being in it save a bundle of grass which lay in the corner.
 When the two entered, Ian carefully shut the rough door which closed the passage, and stepping up to Angus, placed a hand upon his shoulder, and eluded it so violently that the Highlander almost yelled out with pain.
 With an imperious gesture, Ian imposed silence, and then, with his eyes gleaming fiercely, he bent down and whispered into the other’s ear—
 “Do you know that man?”
 As he spoke he pointed to the other room.
 An intelligent look shot across Angus’ face as he replied—
 “I believe him to be the only son of the M’Leod. Father and son never more resembled each other.”
 “It is he,” muttered Ian fiercely. “Tonight I have vowed to have his life, and before to-morrow’s sun sets I shall have it. It was my father’s dying request—the dying request of the chief whose cause you have espoused. If I require your assistance, may I rely on it?”
 “My mother was a M’Kenzie,” was the reply, “and the feuds of the clan are my feuds. I’ll assist you to the death.”
 “Enough, my good fellow,” replied the other, hurriedly. “I shall now mature my course of action. Go and join them, least they discover the dead body of my father. Good night.”
 Angus, having taken some stables from a hole in the wall of the hut, then turned and left the place, leaving Ian alone—the room being feebly lighted by a crucible, similar to the one in the other compartment, to which the Highlander had applied the fir torch when he entered.
 When his companion had gone, Ian flung himself down on the grass in the corner, muttering in an excited manner—
 “And this is how it starts! It is Hector M’Leod who is my rival in Flora Macgregor’s affections. Had I known this but an hour before I should have eagerly taken the vow my father earnestly pressed upon me. As it is the vow shall be no obstacle in my way; but the carrying of it out shall be the high road to success. The sooner I get him removed the better. In every way he is my natural enemy, and he must stand the consequences. By his side, I will not now stand back from doing the deed my heart shrank from but an hour ago, and if all is well, he shall not leave this hut alive. Then Flora is mine, mine, and helpless in my power.” For a few seconds he was silent, then he sprang to his feet and paced the floor.
 “And why should I delay?” he suddenly exclaimed, clenching his fist. “Why wait until perchance M’Leod may by some small sign discover where he is, and who I am, and thus be on his guard? He is at present in my power, and now, now will I act. Angus will assist me, and the work at once done I shall be at rest, and at an end with half my cares. Yes, the decisive moment has come, and Hector M’Leod, your last hour has arrived.”
 And with blazing eyes, distended nostrils, and a wild and determined aspect, Ian approached the entrance and strode through into the other room.
 Hector M’Leod, who was sitting where he had been when Ian had left, turned his head, and, startled by the fiercely gleaming eyes and by the contorted features which told so plainly of the terrible passion raging within his breast, sprang to his feet and stood gazing at Ian.
 The lady uttered a cry, and clasped her hands, and also sprang to her feet, for with a woman’s subtle instinct she knew that something terrible was about to ensue.

THE NOTED TEA HOUSE.

Mr. JOHN ANDERSON sends us the Sunday at Home for October. The front-piece this month is a handsome illuminated text, Col. III, 17. The usual selection of well illustrated and entertaining Sunday reading is contained in this monthly part.

GREAT SALE OF IMPLEMENTS.—We direct attention to the advertisement, in another column, of the large sale of Agricultural Implements, belonging to the late firm of Messrs Thain & Elliott, Guelph. The sale will take place on Saturday 11th October. This will be a rare opportunity for farmers to secure articles in their line at very low figures, as the stock must be sold.

THE SUNDAY AT HOME; THE LEISURE HOUR.—Mr. Day sends us the October monthly numbers of these old standard publications. In The Sunday at Home commences a new continued tale by Rev. Dr. Ederheim, entitled "Shorn to the Wind: Scenes from Life in a Scottish Manse." There is the usual number of good illustrations, and we notice some interesting sketches in the leisure of Spain by E. J. Whately. In The Leisure Hour "Laura Loft" is continued, and amongst the articles are "The Carlist Country," with two good woodcuts of Spanish scenes; and three illustrated papers on "Leisure Hours in Ireland."

THE "CANADIAN ILLUSTRATED NEWS."—It is with much pleasure we avail ourselves of the opportunity given by the proprietors of this thoroughly Canadian journal to place it on the list of our exchanges. The first number that reaches us contains the following paragraph, which is so apropos that we reproduce it here:—"One of the chief uses of an illustrated paper is the insight which its portraits give the physiognomist into the character of public and prominent men. Where a column of letterpress will fail to convey an adequate idea of a noted personage, a glance at his face reproduced in a pictorial will furnish his stamp and measure. The one who habitually reads an illustrated paper and keeps it on file will in a brief space of time familiarise himself with the faces of most of the men who occupy the attention of the public, and unconsciously he will be able to judge of and to speak of them with a precision he could not otherwise have obtained. This journal has made its portraits of leading Canadians a prominent feature, giving an historical value to its pages."

A Commercial Traveller's Total Abstinence Society has been formed in Montreal.

A blushing damsel called at the office of a paper a few days since and enquired for "papers for a week back," and that innocent young publisher's first thought was to get a sticking plaster, instead of a bundle of papers suitable for a bustle.

When a burglar gets hurt in climbing through the scuttle of a Louisville house the charitable inmates take him in, nurse him tenderly, make out the papers carefully, and when he gets well, tuck him away tidily in the penitentiary.

A LARGE VOLUME would not contain the mass of testimony which has accumulated in favor of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry as a safe, efficient and reliable remedy in curing coughs, colds and pulmonary disease. Many of the cures are wonderful.
