Passing of One of the County's Landmarks, in the Death of Dr. Samuel C. Primrose

One of the oldest, and probably the most widely known practitioner in Annapolis County, Dr. Samuel C. Primrose, died at the Victoria General Hospital, Halifax, on Wednesday last, after a lingering illness of Bright's disease. "Dr. Sam," as he was familiarly known, was the eldest son of Dr. John Primrose, of Lawrenceport, and inherited much of his professional ability.

The deceased, when a young man, went to the States and entered Borden to study medicine. When the American war broke out he enlisted, and went to the front. After the close of the war Dr. Primrose returned to Nova Scotia and settled at the village of Chamcook, where he practiced his profession for some years. On the death of Dr. John Primrose in 1857, the deceased removed to Lawrenceport, taking up his father's practice, and since then he has resided there. He was a most successful and skilful physician, and enjoying a very large practice, not only in Lawrenceport, but throughout the whole of Annapolis County.

He entered the Hospital about the last of April, and his condition became so critical that he could not be removed to his home.

He is survived by his widow, who was a daughter of the late D. C. Landers, of Margareville. Edward Primrose, a merchant of Boston, and Dr. Fred Primrose, of Baltimore, are brothers and the widow of the late J. G. H. Parker, barrister of Bridgetown, is a sister of the deceased. His mother predeceased him by only a few weeks, and a brother, Dr. James Primrose, dentist, practicing in Bridgetown and Annapolis, died a little over a year ago.

Mind Versus Muscle

"The reign of the long, dull, strain-and-stress course of so-called physical culture, a course to be persevered in daily, week after week, year after year, is passing, and a more developing, tough, fibrous muscle, is coming to an end."

So writes, in a current magazine, Eustace Miles, who has several times won the world's championship at "requests" and tennis. "It has done harm to the muscles as well as to the mind, he says.

It will do us good to reflect in this connection, that whereas muscle has accomplished little in the world, either in actual performance or in improved health.

"The little David slew the great Goliath," Samson depended on his strength to help his own undoing, and the labor of the world is being, and ever has been, done, not by the big-bodied and heavy-muscled, but by the small and wiry.

It is through mind, not muscle, that results are brought about.

We need not accept miracles, nor the wonderful workings of Christian Science, to realize the absolute dominion that the mind exercises over the body.

Whence comes the power that enables a frail, delicate woman, who has been an invalid for years, unable to wait upon herself, to rush upstairs and carry out sleeping children from a burning home?

Ferretly no new fire had been added to her muscles, no new vitality to her blood; but still she does what, ordinary circumstances, would have been impossible for her.

In the excitement she forgets her physical condition and gives mind full play.

It is historic that Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil, lying in a dying condition in Europe, received a cablegram from his daughter, acting as his regent, stating that she had signed a decree abolishing slavery in his country, fulfilling his lifelong plan; and he immediately got out of bed, well.

Men have died because they thought they were terribly wounded when no wound at all existed.

Newspaper readers will recall the man who died under a simple operation on his throat for the removal of his false teeth, which he thought he had swallowed, but which were afterwards found under his bed.

Since mind thus dominates the body to such grave extent as serious illness and death, how much more completely must it dominate it in the thousand-and-one little things of every day! Habit, prejudice, fear—things of the mind—palay the strongest body in many a good endeavor.

Truth, love, hope—also of the mind—lead to the weakest body powers akin to the divine. If we rightly train the mind it will take care of the body. It is the only way the body can be properly taken care of, and our lives lifted above mere animal existence.

Five Weeks Without Food

Found starving in the midst of plenty, Captain Thomas Meikle, a native of Pictou County, who disappeared from his boarding house in Halifax about five weeks ago, was discovered in the old unoccupied distillery building on Pleasant Street, on Saturday evening. So weak was he from the lack of nourishment, that he was unable to stand, and a team had to be procured to remove him to the Police Station.

When Captain Meikle left his boarding house five weeks ago, he was a man of fine physique, weighing upwards of two hundred pounds. Today he is a mere skeleton, having wasted away so much that his clothes hang loosely on his massive frame, and he has so emaciated that his few acquaintances in this city scarcely recognized him. The timely discovery of Captain Meikle no doubt saved his life. For three days not a morsel of food or a drop of water had touched his lips, and his condition having become such that he was unable to move from his bed of hard boards.

On Saturday evening a gentleman residing at the South end of the city reported to Police-man Ryan, who was on duty on Pleasant Street, that there was a man lying in the old distillery building, and he thought that he had been there for some time. The officer at once investigated the matter, and found the man, who proved to be Captain Meikle. Captain Meikle was conveyed to the Station, as the man's condition was quite serious. Dr. Trenaman, the City Medical Officer, was called, and he ordered him to be removed to the Victoria General Hospital.

The case is one of the most remarkable that the police have had to deal with for some time, and the story briefly told by Captain Meikle was a strange and startling one. The police, however, from investigations made, believe that his story is true. It is another case of hard luck—no friends, and without money, and too sensitive to ask for public help. Captain Meikle had evidently resolved to await the coming of death in its slowest form. To the Police he stated that he was unable to leave his boarding house and proceed to find employment, and one evening he had conducted the school during the two years she has been with us. It was responded to by Miss Durling. He then spoke of a parody on the Old Oaken Bucket, and the loved spots. These spots were being made more attractive from time to time by such occasions as the present. Several other gentlemen and ladies made speeches, expressing their satisfaction and pleasure.

The National Anthem concluded the interesting ceremonies.

Flag-raising at Clarence

About seventy-five of our citizens met at the school-house on Dominion Day to celebrate the event of raising the new Flag of Canada, purchased by the untiring energy of our esteemed teacher, Miss Ida Durling. The stays of the flagstaff were tastefully festooned with wreaths of flowers and potted plants from the school-room at the base, while the front of the house, which has just been painted, was draped with festoons of red, white and blue.

At ten o'clock, the teacher and pupils marched out of the school-house, each girl wearing a wreath of daisies around the head. The boys carried flags, trumpets, etc.

The flag was hoisted by Eldon Marshall, secretary of trustees, and as its folds fluttered to the breeze, a profusion of flowers were scattered to the wind.

Three cheers for the flag were heartily given, while a spontaneous three cheers for the teacher showed the esteem in which she is held.

The following program was then well rendered by the school:—

Song—"The Flag"—Belle Marshall.

Recitation, "The Flag"—Belle Marshall.

Recitation, "The Flag of the Empire"—Mary Witham.

Recitation, "The Olden Flag"—Floyd Smith.

Exercise, "Red, White, Blue"—3 small girls.

Chorus—"Our Old Canadian Home."—Recitation, "The Union Jack"—Bath Ward.

Recitation, "The Coat of Arms of the Dominion"—Mrs. E. Whitman.

Exercise, "Soldiers of Our King"—3 boys.

Rev. H. H. Saunders was then called on for a speech. With pleasant, well-chosen remarks, very stirring for the occasion, he set forth the duty of love for God and our country. He was followed by Robert Marshall, with very pleasing and excellent advice to the young.

S. N. Jackson contrasted the schools of fifty years ago with those of today, and credited the present school system with the improvements.

T. E. Smith, chairman of the school meeting, extended the teacher a unanimous vote of thanks for the able and efficient manner in which she has conducted the school during the two years she has been with us. It was responded to by Miss Durling. He then spoke of a parody on the Old Oaken Bucket, and the loved spots. These spots were being made more attractive from time to time by such occasions as the present. Several other gentlemen and ladies made speeches, expressing their satisfaction and pleasure.

The National Anthem concluded the interesting ceremonies.

Plague of Moths Afflicts Boston

Boston, July 1.—A veritable Egyptian plague of brown-tail and gypsey moths descended on Boston and the surrounding cities and towns last night. The invading horde made its appearance in the city proper early in the evening, and seemingly established headquarters near the only available commissary on the trees and shrubs of the Common and the Public Garden.

The city reservations were not large enough to accommodate all of them, however, and a myriad of the insects continued their flight, settling in swarms wherever there was a light all along Tremont street, in Scollay square, on Boylston street, on Huntington avenue and throughout the Back Bay, and not to mention dozens of buildings, windows and arc lights in these sections were literally covered with the winged pests.

At Revere Beach for three hours last night they swarmed over the ocean wall, took in all the beach shows, patronized the fruit and taffy stands and festooned electric wires until the promenaders were driven to the verge of the ocean, not to mention despair. Until 10 o'clock they practically had the walk to themselves. Then the wind pulled up in another direction and they disappeared.

Chelsea and Winthrop were also touched by the bane. Showmen and shopkeepers were aghast. People who did patronize the picture theatres, etc., took little pleasure from the performances because of the clustering moths. Just when the fruit merchant was ready to cure the moths and die, and the spun candy king had concluded that he'd have to foist off his wares as a new sort of nougat or go bankrupt—just then the moths were wafted away.

Central square, Cambridge, was also the scene of an invasion. So numerous were the insects upon the awnings and eaves above the windows that the entire front of a Massachusetts avenue building presented a white appearance, with blotches of yellow where the paint upon the building showed through. It was estimated that in a small area along the tops of the windows and about the lights at least 10,000 moths hovered.

For the past three weeks Supt. Donnelly of the park department and a squad of men have been spraying the trees of the city in an effort to exterminate the insects, but with only partial success.
