Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I beg the hon. gentleman's pardon. When my hon. friend for Maskinongé referred to this matter, I drew his attention to the fact, and he appeared to be entirely satisfied with it, that the Resolution itself provided that this short line should be located by the Governor in Council, not only after the shortest line had been obtained, but the shortest and best line, and this throws the entire responsibility of selecting, not only the shortest, but the best line. If, therefore, the line suggested by my hon. friend who has just taken his seat, should prove to be a little longer, but be found to be a line with better grades, it would come within the purview of this Resolution, because it would be the shortest and best. It is intended, before any line is adopted, that the shortcet and best route shall be ascertained by competent ongineers, and the Government shall locate the line upon the report of competent engineers, upon what they find, after careful examination, to be both the shortest and best line. There is a fatal objection to the proposition of my hop. friend to have that submitted to Parliament. The hon. gentleman knows that Parliament has made an arrangement, during the present Session, for the completion of the Cana dian Pacific Railway by the summer of 1886, and every hon. gentleman knows how important it is we should have this line of communication to the ports of the Maritime Provinces open and ready to receive the traffic and direct it into the proper channel. The hon, gentleman knows that if we lose a single year, and compel the Canadian Pacific Railway to make a rangements for an outlet of that great inter-oceanic line of railway at an American port, it is much easier to get traffic diverted into a channel of that kind than to take it out of that groove and place it in another groove after the lapse of a year. I hope hon. gentlemen on both sides of the House, who take a deep interest in this construction of a short line of railway to give a terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway in our own country, will no Mr. LAURIER.

gentleman has moved, because, so far as the location and determination of the shortest and best route is concerned, it is provided for in the Resolution, it will be provided for in the law, and the law will oblige the Government to adopt that course ; and I am quite certain that our hon. friends on this side, at all events, will feel that they can place confidence in the declaration of the Government that this matter will be fairly aud candidly examined in the light of the best information that can be obtained, and the principle embodied in the Resolution carried out, of having the shortest and best practicable route.

Mr. CAMERON (Inverness). I desire to say a few words relative to a quotation made by the hon. leader of the Opposition, from a letter addressed by the hon. members from Cape Breton to the hon. the Minister of Railways, on the 10th instant. When referring to this short line, the hon. leader of the Opposition said :

There is also important information as to the views of others in this matter, to be found in the papers to be found on the Table. Several gettlemen, Dr. Cameron, Mr. Campbell, Mr. Dodd, Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Paint, have signed a memorandum in which they say :-

He then quoted several extracts from that letter, in one of which he says :

"A larger subsidy would be required to induce the same company to undertake the Cape Breton section, concurrently with other sections of the short line from Montreal to Louisburg."

I admit it was not his intention to misrepresent the letter referred to, but there is no such sentence in the letter and there is no sentence in that letter which intended to convey the idea expressed in the sentence quoted. On the contrary, the aim was to show that no company would undertake to build any section of that line on as easy terms as they would undertake to build it in connection with the whole line. As this quotation so misrepresents the letter, I desire to read it in its entirety, and as it is not long, I hope the House will bear with me patiently while I read it :

"OTTAWA, 5th March, 1894.

"Hos. Sir Charles Tepper, "Minister of Railways, Ottawa.

"DEAE SIR.—As it was found necessary: to give the Picton Branch, which cost over $3,400,000—$600,000 in cash and 160,000 acres of Grown lands, in order to induce a company to construct a railway from New Glasgow to the Strait of Canso: An is the said Company, and the Local Government of Nova Scotia, successively, sold their interest in the said Pictou Branch and Eastern Extension from New Glasgow to the Strait of Canso for $1,200,090, which is only half the original cost of the Picton Branch alone, we consider that a subvention, consisting of Fictor Branch alone, we consider that a subvention, consisting of Rastern Extension alone and $3,200 par mile, is totally inadequate for the construction of a railway from the Strait of Canso to Louisburg, in view of the facts (1) that the Pictor Branch pays each year about $50,000, as repeatedly estimated by both political parties in Nova Scotia, over running expenses, and (2) that the Rastern Extension actually earned $9,000 less than running expenses last year. A railway from New Glasgow to Louisburg would prove a valuable f-eder to the Inter-colonial from New Glasgow to Halifax, to which the trade of that section of the Province of Nova Scotia will naturally flow. The railway east of New Glasgow must be treated simply as a feeder to railway east of New Glasgow must be treated simply as a feeder to railways west of New Glasgow. That section from New Glasgow eastward will never carry as much traffic eastward as it will westward. It will therefore be a valuable subvention to railways west of New Glasgow, whether fore be a valuable subvention to railways west of New Glasgow, whether run by the Government or by a company. "The shot line from Montreal to New Glasgow would not have as much interest in extension extward of New Glasgow as the Inter-colonial, from New Glasgow to Halifax. As soon as the short line from Montreal will be finished eastward to New Glasgow hat will cease to have much interest in a line east of New Glasgow that will cease to have much interest in a line east of New Glasgow that will contribute its traffic principally to the Intercolonial, between New Glasgow and Halifax. The company constructing the short line from Montreal to New Glasgow will, therefore, naturally decline ta build east of the Strait of Ganso without a much larger subsidy than would suffice to enable a company to build from New Glasgow to the Strait of Canso, and will require a larger subsidy than would now suffice to induce the same company to undertake the Cape Breton section, concurrently with other sections of the short line from Montreal to Lourieburg. My only object was to prevent any false impression which might be made by the quotation from that letter. Before sitting down, I may say that I entirely concur in the policy of the Government, in reference to the subsidizing of the Pacific Railway, from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic. would even go further and authorize the restoration to the several Provinces of the money expended by each Province on the main line from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic. I believe that, if the Province of Quebec expended money on the main line of the Pacific Railway, they have a right to the restoration of all the moneys. That is my view, and although it may seem strange to some hon, gentlemen in this House, that nine years ago the idea occurred to the leader of the present Government that such a restoration would have to be made in the near future, it may seem still stranger to them that a similar idea occurred to myself nine years ago, and that being the fact, I can hardly forbear to read a letter which I addressed to the Morning Chronicle, on the 12th April, 1875, shortly after the Nova Scotia Government adopted the insane policy of subsidizing railways, east and west, in Nova Scotia. That insane policy was inaugurated in that Province in the year 1872, and having opposed it privately for several years, I gave public expression to that private opinion on the 12th April, 1875, in the columns of the Morning Chronicle. In that letter I stated as follows :-

"The people of this Island desire to make Louisburg the eastern terminus of the inter-oceanic railroad. The Dominion Government assumed the obligation of the Western Extension. not only to a central position in British Columbia, but also across that Province of the Dominion to the Pacific side of Vancouver's Island. For similar reasons the Dominion Government should assume the responsibility of Eastern Extension across Nova Scotia to a good winter port—Louisburg—on the Atlantic side of this Province. The very idea of making Louisburg the terminus of the eastern end of that grand chain of road from the Pacific coast, implies that the obligation of building the Eastern Extension, from Pictou to Louisburg, devolves on the Dominion Government. The obligation to build the Eastern Extension is equally as binding on the honour of the Dominion as the admitted obligation of Western Extension through British Columbia and across Vancouver Island, although not specified by an Act of Parliament, or by any injunction trom the Colonial Office. Justice to western Nova Scotia as well as to eastern Nova Scotia, demand that the Dominion Government should assume its legitimate responsibility in this matter, not by the partial subsidy of that branch of the Intercolonial railroad, from Turco to Pictou, towards this national undertaking, but by adequately subsidizing the Eastern Extension, from Pictou, at the exclusiveexpense of the whole Dominion of Canats. The very fact that the Premier of the Dominion admits the justice of giving the Pictou Branch as a subsidy in aid of Eastern Extension the Dominion to extend the Intercolonial railroad to Louisburg. If any company can be found wilking and competent to build, equip and maintain a railroad from Pictou to Louisburg, on the condition of obtaining the Pictou Branch as a subsidy then the Dominion Premier, by considering this subsidy, did justice to Cape Breton, whose interest he so cautiously professes to aphold. But if the subsidy of the Picton Branch be only sufficient

As a resident of Cape Breton, interested in the development of her immense resources. I protest against giving hundreds of thousands of acres of Urown laad on this Island, hundreds of thousands of acres of mineral rights on this Island, and hundreds of thousands of acres of mineral rights on this Island, and hundreds of thousands of acres of mineral rights on this Island, and hundreds of thousands of acres of mineral rights on this Island, and hundreds of thousands of acres of mineral rights on this Island, and hundreds of thousands of acres of mineral rights on this Island, and hundreds of thousands of acres of understands in the Island and hundreds of thousands of acres of mineral rights on this Island, and hundreds of thousands of acres of mineral rights on this Island, and hundreds of thousands of acres of understands in the Island, and hundreds of thousands of acres of the Intercolonial railroad. I have no objection to giving the Picton Branch to any company competent to undertake a part, or the whole, of the Eastern Extension, as that is Dominien property by an Act of Pariament, and is therefore a legitimate subsidy towards the Louisburg Extension. As more will evidently be required, let the Dominion Government do justice to the east as well as the west, by granting the necessary subsidy to the Louisburg road."

Before sitting down, I desire to say a few words with reference to the very large amount which the hon, member for Maskinongé (Mr. Houde) has stated had been expended in Nova Scotia.

Mr. HOUDE. Not expended, but only voted.

Mr. CAMERON. Then I misunderstood the hon. gentleman. I beg to thank the House for their patience in listening to me at this late hour.

Mr. BLAKE. I dosire to say, with reference to the quotation to which the hon. gentleman has alluded, that I read from the original documents at the Table, and at the request of the reporters I sent the documents to them. If there has been any mistake in the report, it has been by some enrices accident. They did not take the report from my lips, but from the papers.

Mr. BELLEAU. I would like to ask the Minister of Railways if the Government is disposed to admit the principle, that besides the engineer who is to be appointed by the Government to make the exploration, other engineers, who may be suggested by the Provinces interested, could be admitted as parties to the explorations.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. We will be only too glad to receive any suggestion of that kind, in regard to any able engineer, and to avail ourselves of the services of the engineer suggested by any Province of the Dominion which may wish to have the fullest information in regard to any of the proposed railways.

Mr. PAINT. I desire to express my hearty thanks to the hon, Minister of Railways and to the other members of the Government for the wise provision they have made for the extension of a railway into Cape Breton. In moving the Resolutions the other day, the hon. Minister made use of the word "Sylney." But all the memorials that were presented to the Minister in reference to the extension of railways into Cape Breton, referred to Louisburg. The consequence of this statement by the Minister was, that some parties who desired to have the road go by the northern way, or by what is mis-called the central route, telegraphed to the papers at Sydney, that that road was adopted, and the electors from my county telegraphed up here to know if that was the case. I supposed that expression was used in error, because it implies a doubt, as the Resolution says "Sydney or Louisburg." As this is to be a short line, I trust the shortest line only will be selected, and that care will be taken that no mistake is made in this matter. The shortest line, I maintain, of course, is through the county of Richmond, directly to Louisburg, and is eight miles shorter than any other route that can be selected, as is shown by the result of the survey. It has besides the further advantage of avoiding the construction of a drawbridge of a total length of 2,000 feet, over deep water, and obviating any interference with the traffic through the St. Peter's Canal. Though not strictly my place, I would also heartily thank the Minister of Railways for the wise provision he has made for filling up the gap between Digby and Annapolis. I notice that the member for Yarmouth is not in the House, but I need not add anything more, because I see the Minister of Railways, After the very exit will be readily understood that it is my duty to vote against the amendment moved by the hon. member for East Quebec; otherwise I would have hesitated a great deal, as the county which I have the honour to represent, is one of the counties the most interested in having the short line built exclusively on Canadian territory. The Resolution states that the shortest and the best line will be chosen, which enables me to hope, Mr. Speaker, that the line will really be built on Canadian soil, and will go through Rivière du Loup as the hon. member for East Quebec (Mr. Laurier) has said. Consequently I have no objection in voting against the motion in amendment.

Resolution read the second time and concurred in.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER introduced Bill (No. 147) to authorize cortain subsidies and grants for and in respect of the construction of the lines of railway therein mentioned.

Bill read the first time.

FURTHER SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY presented a Message from His Excellency the Governor General.

Mr. SPEAKER read the Message, as follows :---

LANSDOWNE.

The Governor General transmits to the House of Commons further Supplementary Estimates of sums required for the service of the Dominion, for the year ending 30th June, 1885, and, in accordance with the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, he recommends these Estimates to tae House of Commons.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA, 4th April, 1884.

Ordered, that the said Message, and additional Supplementary Estimates, be referred to the Committee of Supply.

CONSOLIDATED RAILWAY ACT AMENDMENT.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER moved the second reading of Bill (No. 135) further to amend the Consolidated Railway Act, 1879, and the Acts amending it. He said : Mr. Speaker, as I propose to make some further alterations in the Bill, as printed, I think it is desirable that I should state, in general terms, what those alterations are, before we go into Committee. It is proposed in the Bill to enact in the second clause the following :-

"The Consolidated Railway Act, 1879, and all Acts in amendment thereof, shall hereafter apply to all railways (except Government rail-ways) and railway companies, subject to the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada."

I find, on examination, that the effect of passing that clause would be to cause a great deal of difficulty and doubt with respect to some of the lines of railway not now brought within the provisions of the Consolidated Railway Act. J propose to have a very careful revision of those railway Acts made, and a consolidation of them prepared, previous to next Session, and also a further amendment of the Consolidated Railway Act made, so that they may be brought into harmony, as otherwise confusion would probably result. As that is the case, in order to carry out the pledges given to Parliament last Session in regard to making applicable railway funds to all lines of railway, I propose to introduce, as the first clause of this Bill, the following :-

"The several sections and sub-sections shall apply to all railway companies and all railways, except Government railways, within the legislative authority of Oanada."

I make what is now the first section the second section, and I omit the second section. That is the principal alteration. I propose when we come to the clause in regard to the employment of the funds of any railway, to strike out the words "or may become competitive to the railway of the company so acquiring such bonds or other securities." \mathbf{As} the clause reads now, it provides:

"No railway company shall hereafter, either directly or indirectly, employ any of its funds in the purchase of its own stock or in the acqui-sition of any shares, bonds or other securities issued by another railway company in Canada, whose line competes with, or may become competitive to the railway of the company so acquiring such bonds or other securities."

As this clause might be attended with doubt and difficulty, I propose to strike out the words I have mentioned. 1 propose, in the second section of the seventh clause, to strike out the words, "in the summary manner under the Act last aforesaid," and to insert, "in any court of competent jurisdiction;" and at the end of that clause to add, "or for which the company is responsible." In the eighth clause, I propose to strike out " in the summary manner under the Act last aforesaid," and insert, "in any court of competent jurisdiction." In section nine I propose to add:

"And for railways under construction or railways already constructed, the Railway Committee of the Privy Conneilshall determine the propor-tion in which the cost of such fencing shall be borne by the railway company and the municipality interested."

I propose, also, to add to the end of the sub-section of clause seven, the words:

"Provided always, that if such alleged contravention shall, in the opinion of the presiding magistrate or magistrates, be excusable, such case may be dismissed without costs."

I move the second reading of the Bill.

Mr. BLAKE. I have not been able to examine this and a number of other Bills, and therefore I cannot express any opinion on it.

Bill read the second time; and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

On section 3,

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. In the 46th line I propose to strike out the words "or may become competitive," because they introduce an element of doubt.

correctly, he predged himself to place the Grand Trunk Rail- | the purchasing company from buying the stock of the rail-198 way Company on the same footing as every other railway company in the country. Now, by the General Railways Act of 1879, and by the amended Act of 1883, the policy was laid down by the Government which the Minister of Railways is now, to some extent, going back upon. It was laid down distinctly by those Acts that the policy of the country should be that no railway should have the right to deal in the bonds or stocks of another railway. Exception was made in favour of the Government railway, in favour of railways having already a right to deal in those stocks and bonds. I find that that principle is only partially taken away, although I understood the Minister to give a distinct pledge that he would take away that right and place the Grand Trunk Railway Company on the same footing as the others. I do not object to the provision that the Bill shall not prevent any railway from holding the securities of American companies, but I do object, having laid down a policy in 1879, and extended that policy in 1883, having declared it to be the policy of the Government, and having, in reply to the hon. member for West Durham, the other day, declared that he had stated last year that it was his intention to take up that question and to place all railways on the same footing, it does appear to me that the limitation which he has laid down in this Bill does not at all meet the case. This only interferes with competitive railways. Now, what are competitive railways? Who can define exactly what a competitive railway is? What I claim is, that the great injury this country has suffered from the privileges that a railway company has, is that a certain railway company has been able to buy up and absorb all the railways running east, west, north and south, and this restriction only applies to those roads which compete with it. It does not comply with the pledge the hon. Minister gave to this House, and I think he ought to carry out the principle that he established in 1879, that he persisted in in 1883, and that he promised would be extended this Session.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I quite appreciate what my hon. friend has said, and there is some reason for complaining, from his point of view. It is quite true, I did undertake to bring in a Bill that would place the Grand Trunk and all other lines of railway under the operation of the Consolidated Railway Act; and this Bill does so. It places all lines of railway on the same footing; but I found, on looking into the subject, that it would be attended with some inconvenience, and with no benefit that I could see, to adopt the stringent measure my hon. friend insists upon. The object Parliament had in restricting the operation of any railway company in becoming interested in any other lines of railway, was to prevent it destroying competition. It was said that railways had been built in different parts of the country, and largely assisted by municipalities, under the impression that they would form competitive lines, and they found them swallowed up and absorbed by the very railways with which it was expected they would compete. We amended the Consolidated Railway Act last year, to prevent that being done; and this first clause declares that all railways shall be subject to this Act, and to the amended Act of last Session. We put them all on the same footing, but we do not make the Act quite so stringent as it was. It is such as to enable a small branch, that cannot be operated at all, unless in connection with a cross line, to be operated in that way, and we thus avoid difficulties that might arise from a too stringent provision. I do not think any objection can be taken to that. This is simply a tentative provision, and if it should be found that it ought to be more stringent, it will be easy to change it. I hope my hon. friend will not press his motion, but will be content to try this clause, as I have submitted it to the Committee.

Mr. MULOCK. There is another class of railways that Mr. MITCHEEL. If I understood the hon. gentleman are not quite reached by these words, which only restrict COMMONS DEBATES.

way that competes with it. But supposing there are several branch lines competing with each other, under this clause you are impliedly giving power to a railway company to buy up any number of competing lines so long as those competing lines do not compete with the purchasing line. I may illustrate this, by referring to the railways that centre in Toronto. I suppose they will be embraced in the term "branch lines." We have the Nipissing Railway, the Northern and North-Western Railway, and the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway, all of which compete with each other for the carrying trade from the northern waters to the city of Toronto. Under this clause, it will be quite lawful for the Grand Trunk Railway or the Canadian Pacific Railway, which do not compete with these lines, to buy up the stock of these competing lines, so that if it is intended to prevent the destruction of competition, I think the clause should read: "whose lines compete with the purchasing line or with each other." People who have undertaken to build competitive branch lines are as much entitled to protection as people who have been building lines to compete with through trunk lines. Moreover, I think the provision in this Bill is an unwise one. It is giving power to a railway company to buy the control of another railway company; in fact, to destroy the independent franchise granted by Parliament, without our being able fully to anticipate the result of such destruction. My opinion is, that after Parliament incorporates a railway company, nothing should be allowed to take place that would interfere with the independent character of that company, without the express sanction of Parliament to any changes that are proposed. If it is proper to allow a railway company to sell out, Parliament will assent to it -

Mr. McCARTHY. Or to amalgamate.

Mr. MULOCK. Or in any way to lose its independent character. Let it come to Parliament, that created it, and get a change in its constitution. But we cannot anticipate what use will be made of such a power as this. It is wholly unnecessary, I think, in the interest of any railway, and therefore extremely unwise and dangerous legislation.

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). There is a great deal of force, I think, in the observations the hon. member for North York has just made. The ordinary rule of law is that no railway company or other corporation shall use its funds for the purpose of buying the stock of any other corporation, unless the express consent of Parliament is obtained for that purpose; and if this House should re-enact that provision, it would be simply re-enacting common law. If a railway company wishes to buy the stock of another company, let it come to Parliament for permission to do so. An exception, an erroneous exception, was made in the Act of 1878, in regard to the Grand Trunk, which was allowed to buy the stock of any other railway company in Canada or the United States. That was a most improper provision, of which we have since seen the results. The Grand Trunk Railway, under that provision, has bought up competing lines in every direction. Then, as to buying up branch lines. Let me illustrate what has been done, by referring to the section of the country I have the honour to represent. Formerly, running through the county of Victoria there were the Midland Railway proper, the Victoria Railway, the Whitby and Port Perry Railway, and the Nipissing Rail way—all competitive lines. Now, all of those lines, together with the Grand Junction and the Belleville and North Hastings roads, have been consolidated into one line, and are parts of the Grand Trunk. And how did the Grand Trunk obtain possession of them? It did so, first of all, by means of that Act of 1878, by using its money to buy the Grand Junction Railway and the Belleville and North Hastings Railway, then the Nipissing Railway, then the Whitby and Port Perry Railway, and then the Victoria Railway; and] Mr. MULOCK.

when it had done that, it had the Midland by the throat, so that railway could not do anything but consolidate with those other roads which the Grand Trunk had bought; and the Grand Trunk, having a majority of the stock and bonds of the Midland system, is running it as part and parcel of the Grand Trunk. So that this policy of allowing one railway company to buy stock in another, may be injurious to the railways as well as to the public. I tail to see why a railway company should have permission to buy the stock of another company, unless it comes to this Parliament and gets that permission with its eyes open.

Mr. McCARTHY. This seems to be a repeal of the section that Parliament introduced last year. Last year these words were put in the Railway Act: "That unlesss specially authorized so to do, it shall not be lawful for any railway company, directly or indirectly, to apply any of its funds to the acquisition of any bonds or stocks of other companies." The amendment is: "Shall apply any of its funds in the acquisition of shares, &c., issued by another railway company in Canada, whose line competes with or may become competitive to the railway of the company so acquiring such bonds or other securities," so that unless the lines are competitive there is ample power to deal in the stocks of other companies. Great injustice may be done by giving power to a large railway company to deal in the stocks of other companies, though they may not be competitors. We know there was a struggle between the companies to acquire the Hamilton and North-Western line, and that the Grand Trunk Railway owns a third or perhaps more of the stock of that road. That was acquired with the purpose of forcing the Hamilton and North-Western into terms with the Grand Trunk Railway, which were believed to be injurious to the public interest. I hope the House will insist on the Minister carrying out the pledge given last Session, and that this clause be struck out: "unless specially authorized, &c."

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. That is out.

Mr. MoCARTHY. But you put it in in a worse shape.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The arrangement last Session was, that this year these first words should be struck out: " unless specially authorized so to do."

Mr. McCARTHY. This clause will give power to any railway to buy all railway stock, provided the object is not competitive. It was the hon. member for West Durham who suggested the Grand Trunk Railway might have nogotiations on hand, under its power to purchase stock and so on, and in view of that it was not thought fair to deprive them of one of the powers Parliament had given them. I shall move that these words be eliminated, and substitute section (b) for the other clause, leaving out the first words.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I hope the hon. gentleman will not press his motion, which will be attended with great inconvenience and injustice. I can understand an hon. gentleman pressing, as the hon. member for Northumberland does, that we shall strike out the words "whose line competes with railways that may become competitive," but I hope the hon. gentleman will not insist upon striking out the provision that will enable a railway company to purchase stock, or shares, or bonds in railways in the United States. No reason has been given why they should not, and the motion of my hon. friend will have the effect of preventing their doing so. When we purchased the preventing their doing so. Rivière du Loup Branch, it was stated to Parliament that one of the objects we had in purchasing that branch was to enable the Grand Trunk Railway to reach Chicago, and we made a provision that the money we paid for it should only be expended in such a way as would receive the sanction of the Governor in Council; and the Grand Trunk Railway were obliged to show they had expended the money they received in obtaining a controlling interest in such lines as would enable them to get to Chicago. It was supposed to be in the interests of the country to get all the traffic we possibly could through the country, and that policy having been adopted, it would be unfair to turn around now and take the opposite course.

Mr. McCARTHY. I am willing to accept that, so long as you leave it out of Canada.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I yield most unwillingly to the combined forces arrayed against me, and will allow these two lines to be struck out, "whose line competes with or may become competitive to the railway of the company so acquiring such bonds or other securities."

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). I hardly like the idea of allowing any Canadian company, incorporated for the purpose of building railways in Canada, to spend their money acquiring railways in the United States. It was allowed, underexceptional circumstances, in the case of the Grand Trunk Railway, and 1 do not think it advisable that power should be continued. Mr. MULOCI

Mr. MITCHELL. I am glad there is some one less liberal to the Grand Trunk Railway than I am. The hon, member for Victoria will not give them the privilege of buying up American roads. While I disapprove of that policy, and if I were a stockholder I should strongly disapprove of it, yet if the directorate desire to do so, I have no objection, provided it is not done at the public expense.

Amendment agreed to.

On section 5,

Mr. BEATY. There is no provision to enable the Government to enforce any action under this section.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. There is no necessity for that provision.

Mr. BEATY. What action can the Governor in Council take on the mere report of the Commissioner?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. It would be evidence that could be used against the company by any of the parties interested. It is not proposed to interfere with the rights the public now have against a railway company for an accident, or for the destruction of life or property. That is provided for by law now, but the object here is, leaving it to the courts of law to enforce the penalties, as under the existing law, to provide for an independent, thorough, technical examination, by experts and persons qualified to make it, in order to show where the error or mismanagement has beet.

Mr. BEATY. The reports show a defect in the road, or some deficiency of that character. The Government ought to be in a position to make the company repair it.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. There would be no difficulty in that. They would be obliged to do that.

On section 7,

Mr. MULOCK. I do not quite agree with the Minister of Railways as to the way the 7th clause is proposed to us. I understand the Minister proposes to leave in the words "wilfully or unnecessarily," in the first sub-section ?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. This is new and very stringent legislation, and I am afraid it will hardly do, in the first instance, to draw the cord too tightly. If you do not leave in "wilfully or unnecessarily," I think you will expose the railway companies to great persecution at the hands of, very often, very irresponsible persons, and I would like, at all events, to test the effect of the clause in this way, and if it should not be sufficiently stringent, we can amend it in another Session.

Mr. MULOCK. I cannot agree to its going in this way. right. This clause goes in the As I understand the law at the present time, railway companies are simply permitted to cross the highways. They have no right to stand upon the highways with their trains Minister accepts the suggestion:

and obstruct the traffic. Nevertheless, we have seen them doing it, and they have done so simply because there was no convenient machinery for preventing their doing so. It was proposed by this Bill, as originally submitted to the House and to the Railway Committee, to provide a convenient machinery to prevent this evil being continued. If the words "wilfully or unnecessarily" are left in the Bill, I think that, when the matter comes to be discussed before a magistrate—is the matter left in the hands of the Magistrates?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I propose to strike out "in a summary manner," and insert "in any court of competent jurisdiction."

Mr. MULOCK. Then the matter is left worse than it is at present, because at present a railway company could be indicted in any court of competent jurisdiction for creating a nuisance.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. This provides for a fine of $50.

Mr. MULOCK. That is a limit. At present the corporation could be indicted before a court of competent jurisdiction without the assistance of this Act, and by this Act you are limiting the jurisdiction of the court to deal with the corporation, as it may in its discretion think fit. At present, the court could fine the corporation as much as the court felt justified in doing, but in limiting it in this way you make the position of the public far worse than it is to-day. Moreover, by introducing the words "willfully or unnecessarily," you are authorizing the railway companies to obstruct the highway, which they have not the power to do at present. They obstruct to-day by force, not by force of law, but by introducing the words you have, you are impliedly saying that railway companies may obstruct the highways, so long as they do not do it wilfully or unnecessarily.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Your own Bill provided that they might do it for five minutes.

Mr. MULOCK. Yes; I thought it was better to give them a legal right for a certain length of time, and limit that right, but here they are having time given to them, and are practically allowed to remain on the highway as long as they like, provided their remaining there after the time named is not considered by the court wilfully or unnecessarily lingering there. Suppose a railway company is brought before this court of competent jurisdiction for having allowed a train to remain for an hour on the crossing, their defence is one or other of the defences provided here, that the obstruction was not a wilful obstruction, or that it was not an unnecessary obstruction. What makes an obstruction, in the sense of this Act, necessary or unnecessary? I suppose the court would hold that, if evidence were given by the train men that they were there as long and no longer than was necessary for the discharge of their local trade, they were lawfully on the highway. This clause is making the position of the public worse than it is to day. It is in no way a benefit to the public, nor is it carrying out the understanding arrived at in the Railway Committee, when the Bill was withdrawn and the matter left in the hands of the Minister of Railways. To-day, we have all the right we have under this Act, and far more. We can indict a railway company; that is all that is proposed to be given to us. The court can fine the railway compary as much as it sees fit; here it is limited. The court to-day would not accept it as a justification for obstruction that they had a reason for being there; they would say you are trespassers, and this proposes to give them that right. This clause goes in the very opposite direction to the legislation which was proposed. I will move to leave out the words "wilfally or unnecessarily," unless the

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. We may compromise. Strike out "unnecessarily," and leave in "wilfally."

Mr. MULOCK. I am afraid that will whittle it away.

Mr. McCARTHY. I think that is a reasonable compromise.

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). The word "wilfully" will not hurt.

Mr. O'BRIEN. If you leave in the word "wilfully," how are the public going to get at the intention as to whether it is wilful or not?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Suppose the engine will not move, and it is impossible to move the train, that would not be wilful. We will strike out only the words, "or unnecessarily."

Amendment agreed to.

Mr. MULOCK. In the last three lines, I think the words "to cross or pass another," cut down the generality of the preceding words, and if a freight train is standing on the highway for another purpose than to pass another train, it can stay there. I think we should strike out the words "to cross or pass another." We have already provided that no train, ongine, car or portion thereof, shall be on the highway for longer than five minutes.

Amendment agreed to.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I propose to add an amendment which my hon. friend from North York has been kind enough to give me, viz.: "Provided always, that if such alleged contravention shall, in the opinion of the court, be excusable, such case may be dismissed without costs."

Mr. CAMERON. That clause ought not to go in, because everybody will be afraid to sue. They will not know what kind of an excuse the company may bring forward, and the whole thing may become a dead letter.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. If the court thinks there is no ground for a suit, why should they not be allowed to dismiss it without costs?

Mr. McCARTHY. The suit could not be maintained unless the train stays longer than five minutes.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Suppose an accident had occurred: that the train had broken down, that any person had been killed and it was impossible to move. Then the court would have the power to say there was no grounds for bringing this case, and to dismiss it without costs.

Mr. McCARTHY. In that case there would be no offence, because it would not be done wilfully.

Section, as amended, agreed to.

On section 8, the blank as to amount of penalty was filled in, by inserting the words "twenty dollars."

On section 10, the words "two clear days," were amended by inserting the words "six clear days,"

Mr. WELLS. I am sorry the Minister of Railways has not changed the present system of conducting arbitrations, with respect to right of way. It has been found most unsatisfactory and most expensive. The method adopted is, that the farmer chooses some friend to act as arbitrator, and the company selects some one in whom they can rely to represent them as arbitrator, and these men really go into the arbitration as advocates, and the question is practically decided by the third arbitrator chosen. I saw the results of five or six cases not long ago, in which my friends were engaged, and I find that the average cost is about $400. The costs on each side are about the same, so that the cost of every arbitration pretty nearly reaches the sum of $1,000. The fact is, that after the arbitrators have been engaged for several days, they feel that to throw the costs on a man whose land is being taken, is practically to deprive him of the land, and the result is that they generally throw it on the company. I would suggest to the Minister of Railways that a far better way would be to have a single arbitrator, appointed by a judge of the Superior Court, on the application of either party, or that the Government should appoint an official railway arbitrator in each Province, and that one of the arbitrators should be chosen either by the parties or one of the Superior Court judges. This plan would be less expensive, and I am sure it would be of great practical benefit both to railway companies and to the owners of land. In some of the United States, when a railway company begins the work of construction, the court appoints three men to arbitrate in all cases, say within a county, and these men go to farm after farm, along the railway, and place a value upon them. The expense is very trifling and the plan has, I believe, been found to work very satisfactorily.

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). I agree with the hon. gentleman as to the very unsatisfactory results of the present mode of arbitration, and that some more economical, practical and impartial plan should be adopted. The substitution of a County Court judge for a Superior Court judge is, I think, a disadvantage. I think it is better that a third arbitrator should be appointed by the Minister of Railways.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The trouble in that case is, that, say, in British Columbia, the distance is so great that delay occurs, and besides, the Minister does not know the people to appoint.

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). If a judge is to make the appointment, I certainly think it ought to be a Superior Court judge.

Mr. WELDON. The difficulty with the clause, in its present shape, would be, that one party might appoint a Superior Court judge and another a County Court judge.

Mr. McCARTHY. Why should not these matters be transferred to the ordinary tribunals, where these case might be tried either with or without a jury. I find this difficulty in these cases, that both the railway company and the owner go on in the most foolish and insane manner, calling witnesses, after the arbitrators stating that they do not want more evidence; and the result is, that the costs increase until the amount is something fearful. The judge could, of course, stop that sort of thing, and he could determine the matter as well as the arbitrators.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I think we will have to let the matter stand now, and perhaps take it up next Session.

Mr. HALL. There is one amendment which I wish to suggest, with regard to an abuse created, when private crossings are used by the public. In one case that I know of, a private crossing has been opened up by the connivance of the proprietor, and it is used by the public. Of course the railway company are not obliged to keep up guards or signs, and as there is a dangerous curve and the grade is objectionable, and as it is used to such an extent that 100 teams a day sometimes cross, crossing is an exceedingly dangerous one. I have no doubt that the railway company would be liable for any injury to persons crossing, but the company themselves are running great risk to their property as well as to the lives of passengers, and I would suggest that at the end of clause eight the following words should be added: "shall not be used for any other purposes than those of the farm property on which they are situate."

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). Would not that prevent a neighbour from using a crossing?

Mr. HALL. Perhaps it would, but certainly its present use is a great abuse.

Mr. TROW. In many cases, in winter, there are snow drifts, so that some farmers have to drive through their neighbours' farms.

Mr. HALL. You might say, for public purposes.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I am afraid you could not enforce it.

Mr. HALL. A case was brought up to test it, and it was held that the law did not cover it.

Mr. WELLS. I would move that the word "county," in this clause, be struck out.

On section 10,

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). Under the 10th sub-section of section 9 of the Act, the company can take no proceeding for the appointment of an arbitrator until a month after the plans have been fyled with the Minister of Railways. This is a wholly unnecessary length of time, and I wou'd move that the words "ten days" be substituted for the word "month."

Amendment agreed to.

³⁵ Mr. LAURIER. I would suggest two amendments—to add to sub-section 2 of section 27, the words suggested already, "or court of competent jurisdiction;" and to provide, in subsection 3 of section 27, that the fines should be paid to the persons suing for the same, instead of their being divided, as at present, between the persons suing and the Crown.

Amendments agreed to.

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). The Act provides that the height of bridges shall be seven feet above the top of the car, and as the new cars are being constantly made of various heights, it is difficult to comply with this regulation. The refrigerator and furniture cars of recent introduction are much higher than others, so that in using these cars railway companies may have to alter their bridges, and the effect of this is to drive from our Canadian roads a great many of the improved cars. In the States, there is a fixed height to the bridges, of eighteen feet; we might make it twenty feet if necessary, but should not leave this uncertain height of seven feet above the car. There is not a railway to-day which is not liable to the penalty of $50 per day on half its bridges, under the Ac^t.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Better let that amendment stand over.

Mr. McCARTHY. I beg to move that the following clanse be added: "No person shall, at any time, be compelled to sell or convey, or give possession, to any railway company, of part of any house or other building or manufactory, if such person be willing and able to sell, convey or give possession of the whole thereof." This is taken from the English Statute.

Mr. WELLS. That clause has had frightful results in increasing the expense of railway building. Under that, where they might take the sheds of a large manufactory, they may be compelled to take the whole.

Amendment sgreed to.

Mr. MULOCK. In the twenty-eighth section and the sixth subsection, it is provided that if a railway is not begun and finished within the time limited by the special Act, the corporate existence and powers of the company shall cease. There is, to my mind, great risk in having such a sweeping clause. In the case of the Cobourg Railway, under a clause that preceded this, in the Consolidated Statutes of Canada, although it was partially constructed, it ceased to exist as a railway, because it had not fully completed its powers in the time limited, Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. This is an important amendment, and my hon. friend had better defer it until the third reading of the Bill.

Bill reported.

QUEBEC TIDAL DOCK.

The House resolved itself into Committee to consider a certain proposed Resolution (page 1216) respecting an advance to the Quebec Harbour Commissioners of $300,000 to enable them to complete their Tidal Dock.

Resolution considered in Committee, reported and concurred in.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN introduced Bll (No 148) to authorize an advance to the Quebeo Harbour Commissioners towards the completion of their Tidal Dock.

LÉVIS GRAVING DOCK,

The House resolved itself into Committee to consider a certain proposed R solution (page 1516) respecting an advance of $150,000 to the Quebec Harbour Commissioners towards the completion of the Lévis Graving Dock.

Resolution considered in Committee, reported and concurred in.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN introduced Bill (No 149) to authorize an advance to the Quebec Harbour Commissioners towards the completion of the Lévis Graving Dock.

Bill read the first time

CRIMINAL LAWS (BRITISH COLUMBIA) EX (ENSION BILL.

Sir JOHN A MACDONALD, in moving the second reading of Bill (No. 132) to amend An Act to extend to the Province of British Columbia certain of the criminal laws now in force in other Provinces of the Dominion, said: The provisions of this Bill are contained in 37 Vic., chap. 42. This Bill is introduced at the request of the Attorney-General of the Province of British Columbia, who has represented that, as the provisions are in the schedule and not in the body of the Act, the courts decline to give effect to them.

Bill read the second time, considered in Committee, and reported.

SPEEDY TRIALS (MANITOBA) EXTENSION BILL

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, in moving the second reading of Bill (No 133) to amend An Act to extend to the Province of Manitoba the Act for the more speedy trial in certain cases of persons charged with folonies and misdemeanours in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, said: Since the Act 38 Vic., chap. 54, was passed, County Courts have been established in Manitoba, and provision has been made for a County Court Judges Criminal Court. It is necessary to make further provision in reference to speedy trials and to remove doubts. The Attorney General of Manitoba and the County Court Judges of that Province ask for this amendment.

Bill read the second time, considered in Committee, and reported.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the adjournment of the House.

Motion agreed to; and (at 3 o'clock, a.m.) the Honse adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

Mr. ORTON. Before the Orders of the Day are called, I wish to refer to the report in Hansard of a speech delivered by an hon. member of this House in which a mis-statement occurs. The hon, member said that a Mr. Sykes wrote as follows to the Regina Leader :--

" ' To the Editor of the Regina Leader :

"'Sin, —I am discouraged on account of the high duties which the Dominion Government are charging on agricultural machinery, and I really cannot see any possibility of the country prospering. I calculate that what with the protection duties and the charges of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a capitalist is at a disadvantage of 50 per cent. as com-pared with Iowa, Minnesota and Eastern Dakota. Again, labour is much higher in the Canadian North-West, and produce is much lower. The Canadian North-West is a garrieulural country and labours at many Canadian No: th-West is an agricultural country and labours at many disadvantages, as compared with the United States. It would have been a divadvantages, as compared with the United States. It would have been a wise policy to have admitted all agricultural machinery and stock duty free. If any class of persons in Canada require protection it is the farmer in the new North-West, as he has to compete with heavy railroad carriage, and he gets very little return from his land for a couple of years. If the present Tariff is to be maintained, a bonus of 50 per cent. should be granted by the Government on each $,000 expended in the North-West. This bonus would not even suffice to place the farmer on an equality with his brother farmer on the south side of the Interna-tional line. tional line.

"'I am a loyal subject of Her Majesty, and a s'autch Conservative, but I cannot support the policy of the Dominion Government, and should be a Liberal in Canada. "'R. SYKES.

"'STOCKPORT, England, Sept. 8.' "

"The Leader goes on to say :

"The Leader goes on to say: "" Mr. Sykes is a large English capitalist and the owner of 20,000 acres of lands (purchased from the U. P. R.) in the vicinity of Troy. He has imported one of John Fowler & Sons' steam ploughs, at an enormous supense, on which he was charged 35 per cent. ad valorem duty by the Dominion Government, and enormous excess freights (over enormous schedule rates) by the Canadian Pacific Railway. He has had a large gang of men at work on his lands since April, thereby necessitating large monthly expenditure, the greater portion of such expenditure being for supplies, which consisted largely (of course) of cauted goods and coal (for run ang the plough engines). magine the thory of a king a man in this country to pay fifty cents per the duty op coal. "'Mr. Sykes' letter speaks for itself, and any intelligent man can judge whether the asinine policy of the present Government is calculated to recommend the Canadian North-West as a field for investment to English (or any othe) capitalists.'"

The hon. member, commenting on this letter, went on to say :---

"I do not know whether these statements are true; I do not give them to the House as my statements, but as the statements of the sup-porters of hon. gentlemen opposite, and of their organs."

Now, Sir, I have examined the Regina Leader of the date of September 27th, 1883, in which this letter, signed by R. Sykes, appears, and I find the letter, but not a single word of comment.

Mr. BLAKE. I rise to order. This does not appear to be a correction of the report of Hansard, but a commentary upon an hon. gentlema is speech with the view of showing that certain statements made in that speech were incorrect.

Mr. ORTON. I refer to a newspaper report of a speech delivered in this House, not to the Hansard, and I think I am in order.

Mr. SPEAKER. I do not know really what the point of order is. The hon, gentleman is going to show that some statements of an hon. member in Hansard are not accurately reported, and, I think, he is in order. If he merely wishes to show that some hon, member has made a mis-statement in the House, I think he would be employed all the time in correcting mis-statements. Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD.

Mr. ORTON. I wish to show that the report is incorrect, so far as the facts are concerned, and as this is a matter of privilege, I think I have a right to refer to that report in the newspaper.

Mr. BLAKE. I rise to order. I understand that what the hon. gentleman is doing-for it is important that what is meted out to one man must be meted out to others-is showing that some hon. member of this House, not now present, some time ago made a speech in the House in which he quoted, or purported to quote, an article in a newspaper, and a letter; and the hon. gentleman is proceeding to say that he examined the newspaper from which the quotation was professed to be made, and that he did not find such a statement there as the hon. member represented was there. He is, in point of fact, discussing the accuracy of an hon, member's speech, not the report of the speech, and ho is referring to a past debate. It seems to me that he is not in order,

Mr. SPEAKER. I think, if he is going to point out simply that an hon, member has made a mistake and has misquoted a statement, he is in order. This was done last night by the hon. member for Inverness (Mr. Cameron), who pointed out that a letter of his had been incorrectly read.

Mr. BLAKE. That was an incorrect report in the Hansard. What I understand the hon. gentleman to be doing is this: He is proposing to prove that an hon. member who addressed the House did not give a correct statement of facts.

Mr. SPEAKER. I understand that he is going to say that this letter as reported in the Hansard is not what appeared in the Regina Leader, from which it purports to have been taken.

Mr. MILLS. Ought not that to be done during that particular debate? Can it be brought up now when the debate is past, and when the hon. member is not here and had no means of knowing whether the hon. gontleman, in the comparison he is making, is mistaken or not?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Surely this is an everyday practice in England, as well as here. There is no reason why an hon. member should not correct a mis statement. An hon, member undertakes to make a quotation from a letter; he is mistaken in his quotation; it is found that the letter is not in the exact terms in which the hon. member read it. It is surely right that the discrepancy between the document as it appears in the newspape, and as it was read in the House should be pointed out. A member is bound to be correct in what he states to this House, and if a member finds that the statement is incorrect, he may call attention to it.

Mr. MILLS. During the debate, but can he draw attention to a mis-statement when the debate is over ?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Why not?

Mr. MACKENZIE. Then, I can only say that the hon. gentleman's system of order would be very disorderly in practice. I do not think the hon. gentleman can give any instance in English precedents of such a thing being allowed. If a man is misrepresented, he has a right to bring up the matter before the House as a question of privilege. In this instance the question is simply, whether the report in Hansard of a statement made by an hon. member is correct?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. It has nothing to do with Hansard.

Mr. MACKENZIE. If it is correct, there is no grievance, and no statement of the fact can be made in our Journals.

Mr. SPEAKER. It seems to me that the question is not as to what the hon. member said, but as to what he read. It appears to me that the hon. gentleman is going to show that the statement which was read is not correctly reported in the Hansard. That was done last night by the hon. member for Inverness, and I think it is in order.

Mr. ORTON. I desire to have this correction made, and I have not the slightest doubt that if the hon. member for West Huron (Mr. Cameron) were here, he would consent to have the correction made. Instead of finding those comments in the Regina Leader, I find in the Globe of Nov. 6, 1883, the letter that I have just read, signed by R. Sykes, and following it, these words:—

"In drawing our attention to this letter a Conservative residing in the North-West furnishes the following explanatory notes: --Mr. Sykes is a large English capitalist, and the owner of 20,000 acres of land, purchased from the Canadian Pacific Railway, in the vicinity of Troy. He has imported one of John Fowler & Son's Steam Ploughs at an enormous expense, on which he was charged 35 per cent ad valorem duty by the Dominion Government, and enormous express freights, over enormous schedule rates, by the Canadian Pacific Railway. He has had a large gang of men at work on his lands since April, thereby necessitating large monthly expenditure, the greater portion of such expenditure being for supplies, which consisted largely of course, of canned goods and coal for running the plough engines. Imagine the idiocy of asking a man in this country to pay 50 cents per ton duty on coal. Mr. Sykes' letter speaks for itself, and any intelligent man can judge whether the asinine policy of the present Government is calculated to recommend the Canadian North-West as a field for investment to English or any other capitalists."

These are the expressions of the correspondent of the Globe, and not the comments of the Regina Leader.

THIRD READINGS.

The following Bills (from the Senate) were severally read the third time and passed :---

Bill (No. 132) to amend the Act thirty-seventh Victoria, Chapter forty-two, intituled: An Act to extend to the Province of British Columbia certain of the Criminal Laws now in force in other Provinces of the Dominion.—(Sir John A. Macdonald.)

Bill (No. 133) to amend the Act thirty-eighth Victoria, Chapter fifty-four, intituled: An Act to extend to the Province of Manitoba the Act for the more Speedy Trial in certain cases of persons charged with felonies and misdemeanours, in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec.—(Sir John A. Macdonald.)

SUBSIDIES TO PROVINCES.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY, in moving that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on a certain Resolution respecting Subsidies to Provinces, said: On Saturday last 1 had distributed some amendments in the wording of this Resolution, and 1 beg now to move the Resolution:

That it is expedient to provide,-

1 That in the accounts between the several Provinces and the Dominion, the amounts by which the yearly subsidy to each was increased by the Act 26 Vic., c 30 (as explained by the Act 37 V., c. 3, as to Nova Scotia), shall be calculated and allowed to Ontario and Quebec (jointly, as having formed the late Province of Canada), and to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, as if the said Acts had directed that such increase should be allowed from the day of the coming into force of the B ritish North America Act, 1867, and that the total amount of the half-yearly payments which would in that case have been made on account of such increase from 1st July, 1867, up to and including the 1st January, 1873, with interest on each at 5 per cent. per annum, from the day on which it would have been so paid, to 1st July, 1884, shall be deemed capital owing to the said Provinces respectively, bearing interest at 5 per cent. per annum, which interest shall be payable to them as part of their yearly subsidies from the Dominion on and after 1st July, 1884; part of their yearly subsidies from the Source -1884; 2. In the accounts between the Dominion and the Provinces of Brit sh Columbia, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island, the amounts now calculated and silowed as the debts of these Provinces respectively, on which they are now paid interest by the Dominion, shall be increased by amounts bearing the same proportion to the respective populations of the said Provinces, as ascertained by the Census of 1881, as the total of the amounts to be added under these Resolutions as capital owing to Ontario and Queber, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick, bear to the combined population of the four last named Provinces, as ascertained by the said Census of 1881; and the amounts of such increases to the said Provinces of British Columbia, Manitoba, and Prince Edward Island shall be deemed capital owing to the said Provinces respectively, bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, which interest shall be pay able to them as part of their respective subsidies from the Dominion, on and after 1st July, 1:84.

The discussion that took place yesterday and on Saturday last with reference to the increased liabilities of the different Provinces renders it scarcely necessary that I should, especially at this stage of the Session, enter very largely into the subject further than to explain the effect these Resolutions will have in affording relief to the different Provinces. may state, however, it is well known that previous to the Union in 1876, many of the Provinces had incurred liabilities for the construction of railways. It is well known that, for ten years previous to that time, there had been a demand in each Province, on the part of the people, to construct these public works for the purpose of developing its resources, and when the debt at which the different Provinces were to enter the Union was arranged, it was based largely upon the indebtedness of Ontario caused by subsidies contributed to railways and for the deepening of canals. In the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, their debt was, I may say, solely created by the construction of Government railways, or in providing subsidies to assist in the construction of railways, and though their debts at the time of the Union did not amount to a sum sufficient to cover the liability at which Nova Scotia and New-Brunswick entered the Union, still they both had engagements sufficient to cover the whole amount provided. We know that since that period, such has been the desire on the part of the people in all the Provinces to have railway extension, we know that the pressure has been such that these Provinces have had, from time to time, to yield to that pressure, until there is scarcely one Province that is not embarrassed at this moment, or if not at this moment, that will be embarrassed when the engagements entered into in the shape of subsidies to roads not yet constructed are met. In 1873 that was the state of things, and the Government thought it advisable, under the circumstances, to ask Parliament to assume the whole of the debt of Ontario and Quebec which then exceeded the amount they had assumed in 1867, and to give to the other Provinces a sum equivalent in proportion to their population. The proposition now before the House is to ante-date, as it were, the operation of the law of 1873, and to give the four old Provinces the benefit of this amendment to the law by giving them the benefit of the interest on that increased debt from 1867 to 1873. I may state here the effect of it will be to give them, not only the debt itself each year, but by allowing them 5 per cent. interest on it the whole amount to Outurio and Quebec jointly, is $5,3.7,503.13 -Ontario, $2,882,289.52; Quebec, $2,549,213.61, on the basis of which the other debt was divided :

To Nova Scotia	$793,358 71
To New Brunswick	604,519 35
To Manitaba, based on the population of 1881	110,825 07
To British Columbia, " " " …
To Prince Edward Island

The amounts that will be payable to these Provinces, under the operation of these Resolutions, will be as follows: -To Ontario and Quebec, $269,375; or in rouad numbers, Ontario $142,400, Quebec $130,000; to Nova Scotia, $39,668.44; to New Brunswick, $30,225.91; to Manitoba, $5,541.25; to British Columbia,$5,155.35; to Prince Edward Island, $10,143.68. The calculations have been carefully made by the Deputy Minister of Finance, and are embodied in the Bill.

Mr. BLAKE. What is the aggregate public charge. Sir LEONARD TILLEY. $7,142,297.89.

Mr. BLAKE. What is the annual charge?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. About $357,000. By this arrangement, will be added as a permanent annual charge upon the Consolidated Revenue. It is provided that the interest is to be paid to the Provinces at the rate of 5 per cent. The proposition, I am quite sure, will commend itself to the leader of the Opposition, because it is general in its character. It serves all alike, and is therefore not open to the objection taken by him on a former occasion. That, Mr. Speaker, is the proposition, and that is the result. I move that the House do now go into Committee.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Then you admit that you did not serve all alike before ?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. No, but I am addressing myself to the hon. the leader of the Opposition, who said we did not.

Mr. BLAKE. The hon. gentlemen seems to allow 6 per cent. to some of the Provinces, and 5 to others. Take British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, the calculation is at 6 per cent., and for the other Provinces it is at 5, as far as I can judge from what he said. These careful calculations will have to be gone over again.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. If the figures in the Bill are not correct, we can correct them in Committee.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The Resolutions speak plainly enough of 5 per cent. and no more.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. Yes, it is 5 per cent. The Bill speaks distinctly on that.

Mr. BLAKE. I might say that, as far as I can judge, the Resolution which the hon. gentleman proposes to move in Committee goes a very long way beyond the Resolution of which he has given notice, because the original Resolution does not propose to give interest upon the sum from the period of 1873 up to the period of 1884, whereas, by the Resolution the hon. gentleman is going to move in Committee, he proposes to give that interest from 1873 to 1884, which adds somewhat more than 50 per cent. to the sum total of the capital.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. As I stated, the first Resolution was prepared by the law clerk, and he did not get at the intentions and objects of the Government. I stated, when I gave notice of the Resolution, that the object was to allow interest at 5 per cent., but not compound interest. The calculation has been based upon that.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. How did the hon, gentleman get at the figure of $2,800,000 for Ontario and the figure of $2,500,000 for Quebec? Is that based on the population in 1867 or in 1874, or when?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. It is based on the adjustment in 1873, under the decision, I understood, from the Deputy Head of the Department of the Commission. At any rate, it is on the same basis as was adopted in 1873.

Motion agreed to; and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The sum, the hon. gentleman says, amounts to $7,142,000. That, I suppose, is correct enough, or nearly so; but I understand him to say he does not propose to pay this or any part of it in money. He is going to pay 5 per cent. on it. Then the result of that is that, practically speaking, this measure means that we increase, to all intents and purposes, the present debt of the Dominion by $9,000,000, because $357,000 a year represents as nearly as possible, supposing we borrow money at 4 per cent, the interest on $9,000,000. That will practically be the effect of the proposition as male, I presume.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. The hon, member knows perfectly well that, under the Terms of Union, any debt which asking for assistance. The Province of Quebec, as he knows, Sir LEONARD TILLEY.

was at the credit of the Provinces they were to be allowed 5 per cent. on. This is not interfering with those terms. That is the reason for allowing 5 per cent.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. It is not interfering with it, but it is well we should understand what we are doing. This $357,000 almost exactly represents the interest on $9,000,000. As to what the hon. gentleman says, that is true, but I understood him to say that this was not a debt, but an act of grace, he considers, on his part and on the part of the Government. He does not consider that these are sums due, but simply additions we are making.

Mr. BLAKE. I must correct from recollection the statement of the hon, gentleman as to the circumstances under which the former increase was made, out of which this is supposed to grow. He stated, as I understood, that it was in consequence of railway engagements made by the different Provinces. I do not understand that at all. I understand that it grew out of the result of the arbitration between the two Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, and a pressure which grew out of the result of that arbitration on the part of one of those two Provinces that the Dominion should assume the excess of debt. That was the origin of the Subsidy Act of 1873. It was not because of railway engagements entered into by cither Ontario or Quebec, for indeed the railway engagements of those Provinces were not extensive anterior to the Act of 1873. It was upon a solution of the question which had been in controversy between those two Provinces over since 1867. It was found to be very inconvenient, certainly to one of the Provinces, perhaps to both, that the matter should be, as it was up to that time, in the position that the excess of debt should be a provincial debt, and the Government undertook to useume that debt, and of course, assuming that debt, made equivalent allowances to the other Provinces. As to the present proposal I understand it to be based upon the suggestion which has been pressed upon the Government by the Province of Quebec, that it followed as a logical consequence of the action of the Government in 1973 that they should place the Province in the same position as if that arrangement had been made from 1867; and therefore it is propised to place them as if, instead of the public debt of the old Province of Canada being fixed at the figure of $62,500,000, it should be taken as if it had been fixed at its actual figure; and inasmuch as there has been an accumulation of interest owing to the delay of six years before that adjustment was reached, the present proposal is what is necessary to put the Provinces in the position which they would have occupied if the original basis of Confederation had been, as far as debts were concerned, the debt of Ontario and Quebec instead of a sum of something like $10,000,000 less than the debt of Ontario and Quebec.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. There is no doubt the present proposition is for the purpose of relieving some of the Provinces that are now embarrassed, and the embarrassments to which I refer exist to day from the fact that they have been induced to incur large expenditures for the construction of railways, either by the Government directly or by giving subsidies. I think there can be no doubt about that; because in 1867 the amount of money that was provided for each of the Provinces at that time, had they incurred no additional debt, would have been ample, in my judgment, for them; and judging from the expenditures at the present moment they would have had sufficient had it not been for the larger liabilities incurred that had to be met and are to be met by the different Provinces. I think Ontario had a déficit this last year, though they have not pressed any claim. The hon. member knows, if he has observed the proceedings of the Legislatures of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, that they have been has been asking for assistance; their expenditure is very considerable in excess of their receipts in spite of the greatest economy that can be exercised, and the present financial representative of that Government says that they intend to reduce the expenditure to the smallest possible amount, but even then they will require assistance. There is no doubt, therefore, that the pressure for assistance became great, particularly from those three Provinces. With reference to Manitoba she will be dealt with separately; at the same time it was considered proper and just that as we were dealing with the Provinces that are in the embarrassed condition to which I refer, they should all be dealt with alike whatever may be the arrangements that may be subsequently made and submitted to Parliament for consideration at the next Session with reference to Manitoba. Bat with reference to the causes which led to the arrangement of 1873, perhaps the hon. gentleman's memory is more correct than mine, but I was under the impression that it came from the other three Provinces and not from Ontario. It may be that when the accounts were settled Quebec found she was not in the position she expected to be in, and therefore it was to meet the special debts of the three Provinces. Ontario, I may mention here, had paid less in proportion to her population for the purposes of education and for roads and bridges than was paid by the other Provinces; that is quite clear. Under these circumstances she expended far less in proportion to the population since the Union than the other Provinces, and the other Provinces having spent very largely in the con-struction of railways and for education, &c., found themselves weighed down with the debt which left them with deficits. The hon. member may be correct in what he says, but I was under the impression that it was the position in which Quebec, Nova Scot a and New Brunswick found themselves in 1873, which led to the measure of relief that wis given at that time,

Mr. BLAKE. I think in the interests of historical accuracy it is necessary that we should have the thing stated as it was, and it was as I have stated in 1873. It is entirely a new version of the transaction of 1873 which the hon. gentleman has brought before us to day. I am not now criticising this transaction; it may be perfectly correct or it may be quite wrong -- that does not alter the facts as they actually existed. The fact is as I have said, namely, that at the conclusion of the controversy between Ontario and Quebec it was proposed by that Province-parhaps rightly, porhaps wrongly-practically to alter the Terms of Union in the way in which I have stated, namely, that the whole of the debt of Ontario and Quebec jointly should be assumed by the Dominion instead of only a portion of it, and it was in consequence thereof that the measure was brought forward. It was avowedly to meet that demand, and it was brought forward, of course, on terms which were presumed to do that. Of course, in justice to the other Provinces, it would never have done to increase the credit of one of the Provinces without increasing as nearly as possible to the same extent the credit of the other Provinces. I think if the hon. gentleman will examine the accounts of the Province of Ontario he will find that it is in consequence of the greater development of the municipal system and the fact that she pays much more largely than any of the other Provinces by means of municipal expenditure, which is the reason why the Provincial Government has paid less in proportion towards the services to which he refers. It is well known that the municipal system is much more extensive in that Province than it is in the others, and that the larger portion of the expense of education, the expense of the administration of justice and other expenses, which are in the other Provinces to a large extent borne by the Central Government, in Ontario are borne by the municipalities. No doubt that with a ropulation of 65,954 in 1881, is $110,825, an average has nothing to do with the question immediately before us, but I thought it only right not to let this measure pass without that much of criticism from this side of the House. maintain that if you want to ascertain what is the cost of the Local Government of a Province you have got to ascertain what is given by that Province through its municipal government. In a very able speech made a few years ago by one of the Provincial Treasurers of Quebec-I think by Mr. Church-he pointed out that it would be an entirely fallacious comparison to make between the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec not to take into account the fact that the Province of Ontario, through its municipal machinery, contributed very largely to public expenditure in those items which were borne in so much greater proportion out of the provincial revenues by the other Provinces. I think, therefore, that the statement of the hon, gentleman deserves this criticism. But nobody suggested, that I am aware of, that this proposal could be made without considering the position of the other Provinces; and, of course, the only question is what the just consideration to be accorded to the other Provinces is. I am not prepared to judge whother the hon. gentleman's figures are accurate or not, except in the particular I have pointed out; but I suppose we will have an opportunity of seeing what the bases of his calculations are in the progress of the measure which he is about to lay before us. One is not wholly disposed to take these figures upon trust having regard to what occurred a few minutes ago.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What does the hon. gentleman consider the position to be as regards the Provincial accounts just now? We have had for a long time the thirteen millions placed debtor and creditor. That I understood some year or two ago, the hon. gentleman proposed to deal with it and wipe it out, so that we may be no longer encumbered with the unnecessary additions to our portion of the assets and our portion of the credits.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. That matter will be finally disposed of as soon as the accounts between the Provinces and the Dominion Government are settled, whic' I have no doubt will be during the summer.

Mr. WATSON. Is it the intention of the Government to bring down this Session a measure to increase the subsidies to Manitoba beyond the 25,000 stated in this Resolution?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. It is not the intention of the Government to bring down any such proposition. The hon. gentleman knows perfectly well that it was proposed by the Provincial Legislature, that a Commission should be appointed to confer with the Government here. Therefore, whatever the arrangement arrivel at may be, it will be submitted for the consideration of the House next Session.

Mr. BLAKE. What is the proposal which the hon. gentleman has made to the Government of Manitoba ?

Sir LEONARD THLLEY. The Government have given answers to certain proposals outside of the financial position of the Province, and it is proposed by the Legisleture of Manitoba that a Commission should be appointed, and we have expressed our willingness to go into the question of the financial matter with a view to settlement.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. How much did the hon. gentleman calculate as the total due in 1873?

Sr LEONARD TILLEY. The Memorandum of the Auditor General covers the following calculations :- The principal for Ontario and Quebec jointly is $3,151,826.65, with interest, $5,397,503; Nova Scotia, $433,281, with interest, $793,363; New Brunswick, $353,004, with interest, $504,519; making a total of $3,938,111.65 principal, with interest, $6,795,391. The amount for Manitobr.

of $1.68 odd per head; British Columbia, with a population of 49,459, $82,107; Prince Edward Island, with a popula-tion of 108,591, $182,973; making a total for these three Provinces of $376,906. The gross total for all the Provinces is $7,172,297.

Resolution to be reported.

Mr. BLAKE. Perhaps the hon gentleman will have the figures corrected before the next stage is taken.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. Yes, the statement was handed to me by responsible officers, and I accepted it as correct.

FIRST READINGS.

The following Bills (from the Senate) were severally read the first time :-

Bill (No. 150) to extend the limitation of time under the Act 43 Vic., cap. 7, intituled: An Act for the final settlement of claims to lands in Manitoba by occupancy under the Act, 43 Vic., cap. 3.-(Sir John A. Macdonald.)

Bill (No. 151) to authorize the transfer of prisoners from one jail to another in certain cases.-(Sir John Å. Macdonald.) Bill (No. 152) to amend the North-West Territories Act,

1880.- (Sir John A. Macdonald.)

PUBLIC WORKS OF CANADA.

Cn the Order for the second reading of Bill (No. 134) to amend the Act 31 Victoria, Chapter 12, intituled : An Act respecting the Public Works of Canada, being read,

Mr. SPEAKER. I have looked into the point of order raised by the hon. member for West Durham with regard to this Bill. The point of order is that the Bill authorizes the disposal of a portion of the public domain, that it is a money Bill, and should originate in this House, and in Committee of the Whole. Section 53 British North America Act says, that "Bills for the appropriating any part of the public revenue, or for imposing any tax or impost, shall originate in the House of Commons." But this Bill does not appropriate any part of the public revenue, or of the public domain which is, quoad this ques-tion, the same thing. It simply authorizes the lease or sale of some public works, and the money arising therefrom is to go into the Public Treasury, and it does not, therefore, in my opinion, come under the class of Bill appropria-ting any part of the public revenue. I am sustained in this opinion by the fact that the Public Works Act of 1868, which contains a similar clause to that in the Bill now under discussion, did not originate in Committee. I find also that the Ordnance Lands Act of 1877, which authorizes the lease or sale of ordnance lands, a part of the public domain, did not originate in Committee; nor did the Dominion Lands Act of last Session, authorizing the sale of public lands.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN moved the second reading of the Bill.

Mr. DAVIES. The latter portion of the clause which the hon gentleman is introducing into the Bill gives power to the Dominion Government to sell or lease any portion of the shore or bed of any public harbour, the proceeds of all such sales and leases to be accounted for as public money. The hon. gentleman knows that in the Provinces there are Acts passed regulating the rights of the riparian owners, some of them giving power to obtain patents from the Crown on certain conditions, these grants only to be made to riparian owcers or to those who may have their consent in writing. This, however, will be superseded by the present Act if it passes in this form. Whether that would authorize the grantee to construct on a portion of the shore granted any piev or wharf or other obstruction, I am not prepared rate, as those obstructions would interfere with the rights of the owner. If this Act passes, there would be a different set of owners on the uplands from those on the shore, and the consequence would be, I fear, that there would be collision between them, and I think, therefore, there should be some provision to protect the legal rights of these people.

Mr. WELDON. This is a matter which has caused a good deal of consideration in New Brunswick, and a great deal of inconvenience has occurred. If the Government had the sole right to sell or lease, parties would not have any right to make buildings at all. That, however, is a right accessory to the ownership of the land, and being a civil right 1 do not think it can be interfered with by this Parliament, and to leave the matter in the position in which it is now would, I fear, create a great deal of litigation. It was decided by the House of Lords in the case of Lyon against the Fishmongers Company that they had no right to allow a wharf to be erected, or to prevent access to the person's land, as it was held that it was a question of property belonging to the person, as the owner of the land.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. I think my hon. friends are mistaken about the purport of this Bill. I do not see that if any portion of the shore or bed of any public harbour be vested in Her Majesty-it is not the property of Her Majesty, the same as any other property belongs to a private owner. Therefore, if it is the property of Her Majesty, Her Majesty has the right to sell it by public auction or otherwise to anybody she chooses, and I do not see that that would be depriving any person of his rights. But the hon. gentleman says that the riparian proprietor, according to the jurisdiction of the different Provinces, has the right to the shore in front of his property. Well, if that be his right, it is a civil right that belongs to the jurisdiction of the Provinces, and this Bill will not deprive him of it.

Mr. BLAKE. I do not think the hon. gentleman has quite seized the difficulty. The prior parts of the clause are old, and they apply to properties which have been acquired by the Crown; but this part of the clause is new, and it raises an interesting point which I do not think has received sufficient attention as yet from the Minister of Justice, who has probably prepared this Bill. It is obviously based on the view that a recent decision of the Supreme Court has led to the conclusion that, as a matter of law, it is the Crown in Canada, as distinguished from the Crown in the Provinces that is seized of the fore shores or beds of public harbours. I do not think myself that that is good law; but if it be the correct view of the Constitution, it follows that there has been a severance of the supreme right of eminent domain and the right of tenure in reference to the riparian lands and the other lands. It was certainly the case before Confederation that it was the same parliamentary Crown which exercised dominion over the lands on the shore as the Crown which exercised authority over the lands, and therefore controlled the tenure of the lands, as well as shore and bed of the harbour. It naturally followed that as the same supreme jurisdiction dealt with the solid land as with the lands covered by water, there was a harmonious attention to the interests of the riparian proprietor with reference to the lands covered by water in front. While there was that union of jurisdic tion, it was natural that the Legislature and the Crown should exercise their respective rights with respect to both classes of property. But if it be true that the decision of the Supreme Court imports that there is now a division of the supreme dominion, that the bed of the harbour is vested in the Crown as represented by Canada, and that the Crown as represented by the Provincial Legislatures deals with the shore, the hon. gentleman will see that the case is a peculiar and complicated one; and my hon. friend's contentionand I think it is a proper contention—is this—that when we are asked to legislate on the assumption, rightly or to say; but my own opinion is it would not, so far, at any wrongly-I do not say that the Government is not right in acting upon it, so far as this legislation goes-that this Parliament has power to deal with the land covered by water, we ought to declare certain general principles of action. Now, in the Provinces, whether by custom or by legislation—in some I think by legislation, in others, either by logislation or by invariable custom-there was a preemptive right on the part of the riparian proprietor to the fore-shore, and the Crown either could not or would not sell to any one else without giving that riparian proprietor the first opportunity of buying. What I maintain is that we ought to consider whether we should not guard the powers proposed to be vested in the executive with reference to these lands, by some reference to the invariable custom that the riparian proprietor has a preemptive right, and whether we should not say that that custom shall be recognized in the sales. Then, again, probably the hon. gentleman wants to sell in order that wharves and other obstructions to navigation may be erected. I do not think that any ground which could be made under powers so limited as these would create obstruction to navigation; it would require parliamentary authority to interfere with the public right of freedom of navigation. Of course, that power might be derivative, and not the direct parliamentary authority; but still I think great obstructive powers may be created by this elause. If, for instance, the Crown were to sell to "A" the bed, while "B" owned the land on the shore, I think that would be a very unfortunate state of things.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. Of course I understand fully that the objection made in the first instance by the hon. gentlemen from Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick was that they wished to preserve to the riparian proprietors the right that they had previous to Confederation and previous to the decision about the shore or bed of any public harbour. We do not intend by this to deprive them of any legal right they may have. The idea is only to give this power for any portion of the shore or bed of any public harbour vested in Her Majesty. We do not vest any por-tion in Her Majesty, but we say any portion that may be vested in Her Majesty. If you wish, however, to guard against any possible doubt, we may insert the words "save any legal rights the riparian proprietor may have." I may say that one of the reasons for this Bill is that there are certain properties-for instance, there is the old penitentiary property near Halifax, which is not wanted by the Government, and for the purchase of which we have had offers, but we thought we could not sell it without the authority of Parliament.

Mr. MACKENZIE. You own the shore there.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN, We have the property as any other proprietor would own it, and the question was whether we could sell it without special authority from Parliament. We thought we could not. Under these circumstances the hon. Minister of Justice drew this, Bill and included in it this provision.

Mr. DAVIES. We had a Provincial Statute which stated that commercial enterprise would be encouraged by the granting to private individuals parts of the public coasts and shores hitherto ungranted for the purpose of building breakwaters and public slips. Under that, the Government of Prince Edward Island was empowered to give such grants the limitation that no grant of any fore-shore should be given except with the consent of the riparian owner, so that his rights were protected in every instance. Before the Crown could give the grant the applicant must produce the consent of the riparian owner in writing. What I suggest is that the same limitation be put in this Bill.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. As I understand the decision, although I have not looked at it lately, it was that the fore-shore belonged to the Government.

Mr. DAVIES. I was counsel in the case, and the court held that under the word "public harbours" the soil between high and low water mark passed to the Dominion.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. In recognized harbours alone that right obtains. Then there will be pressure made that these public harbours should be improved and the burden of improving them will be thrown upon the Dominion Treasury; in that case I hold the Government should have a clear right to dispose of any portion of that fore-shore at the highest price.

Bill read the second time, and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Mr. WELDON. The hon. Minister proposes to sell the shore or bed of a river, or the ground on both shores when the Crown does not own the shore.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. This applies only to harbours.

Mr. WELDON. It is contrary to law to soll the bed of a river where the shore is not owned by the Crown.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. There again the hou. gentleman speaks of rivers.

Mr. WELDON. No, I spoke of harbours.

Mr. VAIL. The hon. gentleman must recollect that a good many of our harbours are really rivers, and extend for half a mile or more from the mouth of the river. The property on each side may be owned by a private individual and may be very valuable property, and this to some extent settles the question, if an application were made, who would have the right to issue the patent.

Mr. MILLS. I think it would be very desirable to ascertain in the first instance what is the nature of the right the Crown acquires in the case of a harbour. The hon. gentleman sees, of course, that there is no dispute that the property of the Crown in the shore, is in the first instance, vested in the Local Legislature, or in a private individual, who has derived his rights from the Crown through the local authorities. The Government here exercises the right of eminent domain and acquire possession of a certain portion of the shore for the purpose ot erecting a harbour. It matters not whether the harbour was constructed before or after Confederation that would be the view. Then, we have this question as to the extent of the right which the Crown, by the exercise of this right of eminent domain, has acquired in the harbour. Has it acquired more than an easement, or has it acquired an actual right of property? It is to be applied, and I do not conceive that the property that tho Crown has in the harbour is other than an easement. The right of property is in the original proprietor, whether the Crown is represented by the local authorities or by a private individual. If that be the case, the moment the Crown ceases to require the property for the purpose for which it is acquired, it seems to me it should go, as a matter of course, to the proprietor of the original right, whether that be the Local Legislature or a private individual, and that what the Crown would demand would not be the highest price the property might bring at public auction but what would be a fair and just compensation from the party who held the property originally and who has a right to the full property again when the Crown ceases to require it for the purposes for which it was obtained. I do not understand that in any of these cases it is an absolute right to property, but such a right as the use for purposes of a harbour would necessarily give.

· Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I understand that the decision goes farther than that.

Mr. DAVIES. It goes this far, that the actual soil between high and low water mark in Summerside harbour is vested in the Crown as represented by the Dominion of Canada, and that the Local Government grants which were formerly given of that soil are absolutely void. The hon. gentleman sees that, in the case of Lyon and the Fishmongers' Company, decided in the House of Lords two years ago, it is decided that the riparian owner had the right of free and uninterrupted access from his ripa to the channel of the river. If you grant in the bold, unlimited words of this Statute, the soil in front of that ripa to a third person, there will be two antagonistic parties. The riparian owner could not build a wharf to get to the channel, as he has a right by common law to do. What I seek to do is to suggest that, before the Government graut the right, under this Statute, to the soil to the third person, they should get the consent of the owner of the ripr, and I would move, if the hon, gentleman would accept it, to insert the following :

"Provided that no such grant or lease shall be made without the con-sent in writing, properly authenticate l, of the owner or owners of the land in front of or abutting upon which such parcel of the shore to be granted or leased lies. The word 'owner' means a tenant in fee simple or entail general in possession, and every tenant in possession of a term of years in which not less than forty years shall be unexpired."

That was the limitation put on the Crown's right by the Provincial Statute which we have always acted upon in Prince Edward Island, and which appeared to give pretty general satisfaction. If you give the grant now, a man could not put a wharf up against my bank, and I do not know what he could use it for, except perhaps mining purposes. I think some limitation such as I suggest would be necessary and would protect the interest of all parties.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. As I understand it, the fore shore of the harbour is vested in the Crown as represented by the Governor General. The Crown cannot convey more than it has. The hon. gentleman says, and I presume correctly, that the right of soil is subject to the right of the riparian proprietor, subject to the use of the water and navigation.

Mr. DAVIES. Uninterrupted access to the channel.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. It may give the right of access, but not the right to build. Then it is a matter of no consequence whether the Crown holds the title, or the assignce of the Crown holds it, to the fore-shore, to the absolute soil. It cannot affect the right of the riparian proprictors. There is no necessity of protecting them in any way. They have that right by law, and, if the right of soil is of no money value because the water is on the top of it, the Crown gets nothing for it; the Crown cannot build on it, nor can the assignee of the Crown. To say that the Crown, having the absolute title, cannot sell it without the consent of the riparian proprietor is abandoning the right of property, neither more nor less.

Mr. WELDON. But if the question be raised? In the instance given by the hon. Minister of Public Works, the case of Halifax, there is no difficulty, as the Crown holds the property; but in public harbours such as Shediac, it is different. All the land around the river and bay of Shediac is owned by individuals. Could the Crown selling a fore-shore allow a man to build a wharf? He would claim the right to do it. I think no legislation should be passed which would tend to raise these disputed questions. It seems clear to me, as far as the decision in England goes, in the case of the I hames Fishmongers' Association and the case I referred to in New Brunswick, that the Crown would not have the right to cut down the right of the riparian proprietor. It is a question whether the clause should not be amended to of that sum. prevent the question being raised.

Bill reported. Mr. MILLS.

REDEMPTION OF SMALL LOANS.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY moved that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole, to consider the following Resolution :-

That it is expedient to authorize the Governor in Council to raise by way of loan such sum of money not exceeding two million pounds by way of loan such sum of money not exceeding two million pounds sterling, as may be required to redeem by one issue, under the existing arrangement, with the Financial Agents of the Government in Eng-land, the small loans maturing within the ten years next following the first day of January, 1882, or to make good to the Consolidated Revenue Fund, such sums as may have been paid out of it, for redeeming any such small loans which may have matured since the day last named; and also such further sums not exceeding in the whole three million pounds sterling as may be required to meet the charges placed on the Consolidated Revenue Fund by Acts passed in the present or any previous Session relating to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company or for granting subsidies for or in consideration of the construction of cerfor granting subsidies for or in consideration of the construction of cer-tain railways; or to provide for the prosecution of certain public works; the said loans to be raised in accordance with the provisions of the Act 33 Victoria, Chapter 6, as amended by 38 Victoria, Chapter 4, but at a rate of interest not exceeding four per cont. per annum and the moneys so raised to form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canade Canada Motion agreel to; and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The hon. gentleman might inform us what he proposes to do.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I may say to the Committee that the sums for which I require this loan are as follows: It is estimated that we will require to provide for the Canadian Pacific Railway between the first of January last and the first day of July 1835, out of the loan and on account of the subsidy, $20,000,000; liabilities redeemable during the next year, $3,483,000; loans to the Harbour Commissioners of Montreal and Quebec, and to the St. John Bridge Company, $1,000,000; to British Columbia, probably $400,000; to the Canadian Pacific Railway on account of contracts by the Government, a vote now in the Estimater, now before the House, $2,400,000; for the Intercolonial Railway, chargeable to capital, $750,000; to canals, about $1,500,000; to railway subsidies, $1,000,060. It is quite true that only between one and two hundred thousand have been paid already on account of these subsidies, but it is estimated that we will require before the first of July, 1885, $1,000,000-making altogether over $30,000,000. Of this sum $15,250,000 will be advanced to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, upon which they pay interest. Liabilities falling due that are bearing 5 or 6 per cent. interest, $3,483,000. That will not be of course a charge to be taken from the Consolidated Revenue; it will be so much interest saved. The total sum upon which interest will be either repaid to the Government, or out of the $30,533,000, is $19,723,000. We provide under the Act we now propose to the House for £5,000,000 sterling, or in round numbers, $25,000,000. There are, therefore, another $5,000,030 required. It is estimated we will have to meet the following items: A surplus from the revenue of $1,000,-000 from the sale of lands, and $1,000,000 from deposits in the Savings Bank-$3,500,000. It may be necessary to use this, though we had a balance on our hands the first of July last. These items will be sufficient to cover the expenditures to which I have referred.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Does that take into account all the various items that the hon. gentleman proposes to borrow in the several Supplementary Estimates he has laid on the Table within the last two or three weeks? I observe there are about $3,000,000 capital at least, and perhaps a little more that will require to be provided; and in listening to him I did not notice that he took any account

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I think I have included $750,000 contained in these Supplementary Estimates for the Intercolonial Railway, and for British Columbia probably $400,000.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. For British Columbia there is a large amount more than that.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. It may or may not be more than that down to the first of July, 1885. Then we have, of course, the sum on hand in the banks to our credit on the first of July last. But this covers largely, I think, what will be required.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Does the hon. gentleman propose only to make one loan, then, before the first of July, 1885?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I think that the loan asked for by this Resolution will be sufficient with the authority we took last Session. With reference to the redemption of maturing liabilities the first of January next, of course we have anthority for that, but I think the loan now asked for will be all that is required to meet the expenditure down to the first of July next. There will be, of course, the balance to the Canadian Pacific Railway to be repaid in 1891, and it will be a question whether the arrangements for that should not be made for a short loan, but there will be time enough to consider that when Parliament meets again.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What sum altogether has the hon. gentleman taken authority to borrow already, independent of this $25,000,000?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. We have taken authority to borrow a sufficient sum to redeem the debentures maturing on the 1st of January.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. And nothing else?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. This Bill does not interfere with the authority already given, and I think at this moment, without speaking positively, that existing legislation has authorized seven or eight millions for certain expenditures.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Then, practically, the hon. gentleman expects to have authority-that is authority including this, and estimating it roughly at $25,000,000 - he expects to have authority to borrow about $53,000,000. As I understand $35,000,000 is the sum nominally maturing in January; did the hon. gentleman ask authority to renew that?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I think existing authority is sufficient to cover deposits in the savings banks for the year. It is to authorize whatever may be received in that way; therefore part of the eight millions is covered by the three millions and a half that we estimate will be received during the next year.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Is the hou. gentleman now in a position to communicate to the House what his intentions are with respect to the loan maturing in January? I put that question to him at an earlier part of the Session as to what he was doing with it.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. No, I am not. As the hon. gentleman knows it is possible that the placing of two loans on the market within three or four months, or four or five months, might to some extent affect the rate we would realize from it. If it hould be found that a more favourable opportunity would be offered for floating a loan after the first of January, such a course will be pursued, because the debentures which fall due on the 1st January are redeemable at the will of the Government. The Government, therefore, will not decide until they see what the state of the money market is likely to be and what the prospects are. If it is to venture on a step of that kind at present; whether, in found that a new loan can be favourably floated for the fact, he is going to introduce consolidated Canadian 3½ per redemption of the debentures falling due on the 1st January, cents. I consider that would be an exceedingly desirable it will of course be the duty of the Government to do so; but if, by delaying, better prices can be obtained, it will be in the interests of the country to take that course.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. You require to give six months notice.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. Judging from conversation I had with our agent, I think this is not necessary, although it may be desirable.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Then the Minister is not in a position to state whether he proposes to float the whole amount at once or not.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. We propose floating that loan in June; that is the present intention of the Government.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Beyond that, the hon. gentleman cannot say what the intentions of the Government are.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I cannot say.

Mr. BLAKE, We were asked as long ago as last Session to give certain authority with respect to the redemption of the old loan of $35,000,000, and that was done at so early a period because the Financo Minister stated that he expected to be able to make arrangements for a practical renewal of about one-half of the amount of that loan with the present holders at a reduced rate, and he required the authority to make the necessary arrangements. Perhaps the hon. gentleman will state what has been done in regard to the proposed arrangements and how far the expectations he entertained last Session have been verified ?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. The statement I made two months since covered that ground. I stated that the arrangements were that a portion of the loan would be floated in November last; but owing to the proposition of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the arrangements made with them, our plans were necessarily changed; and the new arrangement for the loan to the Railway Company necessitates, of course, an alteration of our plans with respect to the loan. If such had not been the case, the arrangement would probably have been made. To exchange the 5 per cent. maturing on 1st January next for 4 per cent., or something loss.

Mr. BLAKE. Is it possible that these changes in the plans of the Government are to result in our not effecting this exchange, or are we to leave the old lean outstanding at 5 per cent, rather than effect an exchange at 4 per cent? What is there to prevent this transaction with present holders going on?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. That may be done yet, but it will be a matter of arrangement. It was proposed not exactly to exchange but to advertise, and by looking over the list of those holding large sums, it was expected from communications had with them that they would be prepared to exchange. That course is still open to us, and I think it will very probably be carried out-I hope not merely an exchange of fives for fours, but perhaps something better.

Mr. BLAKE. Of course the practical result of postponing the exchange of fives for fours-if we are able to borrow at the latter rate—for six months will be a loss of $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. That will be taken into account in making the arrangement, and no loss will result.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The hon. gentleman stated some time ago that he had hopes of effecting a loan at 3½ per cent., or thereabouts. It will be a matter of genoral interest to know whether the hon. gentleman intends object to accomplish, and I would have been exceedingly glad if the hon. Minister could have succeeded in doing so. Some time ago it appeared to me favourable for such an operation.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. We have not changed our opinion on this matter, and that course is still open to us. I want to call the hon. gentleman's attention to a statement he made the other day regarding which I found it necessary to correct him, because he left the impression on the House that we had stated that we expected to float a $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loan at par. No such statement was ever made. I stated that the agents advised that the loan which would be issued next year, should be issued for a longer period as regards a portion of the amount, and for a shorter period as regards a the balance, and the rate of interest for the longer period should be placed at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., and I think yet we may find it to the interest of the Government to place them at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. instead of 4.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The hon. gentleman is a little in error as I put the matter interrogatively. I asket if he was going to try to do that? If I mistake not, a large amcunt of debentures, by the operation of the sinking fund in connection with this five per cent. loan, have accumulated in hand. Any portion invested in five per cents. will of course disappear; it will be wiped off our books on the first of January, but a good deal of it, if I am correctly informed, exists in the shape of four per cents. What is the hon. gentleman going to do with this?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. If there are no legal objections I think, of course, they would be cancelled, as they are the property of the Government. Of course that sinking fund was supposed to be held as a security for the holders of four per cent. bonds, and there might be some objection to their being cancelled, though I do not see that there should.

Mr. BLAKE. Was the money which was provided under the Loan Act, to be advanced to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, borrowed from English bankers?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. Yes, this is for part of it.

Mr. BLAKE. On what terms was it borrowed?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. Four per cent. I may say that we sold the exchange and made a bandsome thing out of it.

Mr. BLAKE. Were there any tenders invited for the exchange?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. No, we asked two purties, the bank of Montreal and another party in New-York. Some was sold to each.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. How much of the four per cents. does the hon. gentleman hold ?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I do not know at this moment, but I think something like five or six millions in fours and fives—a considerable portion in fives, because latterly fives have been sold rather than fours.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Perlaps the hon, gontleman will ascortain the amount.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I will.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I fan by it is absolutely and wholly at the disposal of the Minister.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. There is no intention of placing the fours in the market at all.

Sir RICHARD CARFWRIGHT. Does the hon. gentleman propose simply to cancel them?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. Yes, unless there is some objection in connection with the engagement made with reference to their issue; but I do not think there is.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Perhaps the hon. gentleman in introducing his Bill, will let us know what at present is the amount at our credit at the various bankers. I do not mean of course the London bankers.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. Yes.

Resolution to be reported.

HUDSON BAY RAILWAY.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole to consider the following Resolution :—

That it is expedient to authorize the Governor in Council to make a free grant of not more than 6,400 acres per mile in Manitoba, and 12,800 acres in the North-West Territories, in aid of the construction of a railway from Manitoba to the Hudson Bay.

He said : The Resolution explains itself. The papers have been before the House, and it is known that there were land grants made, on certain conditions as to price, to two companies running to Hudson Bay, one to Nelson River and the other to Churchill. Those two companies have been negotiating, amalgamating, severing, and amalgamating again, I believe. However that may be, it has been found that unless we made a free grant, there would not be a sufficient inducement for capitalists to undertake the construction of such a railway, and the Government thought well to accede to the request, that the grant should be made a free grant. Whether the scheme is practicable or not, whether it will open up a commercial avenue or not, remains for the future. One thing, however, is clear; the Legislature and theGovernment of Manitoba have made up their minds that they must have that railway, that it will be a means of transporting their surplus produce, that there will be a steady grain trade between England and Hudson Bay. There can be no harm in granting land to the north of Manitoba, of the character of this land. It is broken, and I have no doubt some of it is good, and there may be a good deal of timber as well as minerals.

Mr. MACKENZIE. What is the latitude of the northern boundary of Manitoba?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I forget at the moment. I was not intending to discuss this matter at this time; but after the Resolution should be agreed to, I intended moving that it should be referred to the Committee of the Whole on the Bill (No. 138) to amend the Dominion Lands Act, so that the whole question might be discussed at the same time.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Is the land proposed to be granted, along the line of the railway in some part of Manitoba?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Outside of Manitoba, along the line of railway, or along a considerable portion of the line. I do not think, however, that the terminus or starting point has yet been finally settled. At or near Winnipeg, there is little or no land at the disposal of the Government along the line of railway within the Province of Manitoba. If the line runs west of Lake Winnipeg, the land will lie to the east of the line of railway. The matter has been considered by the Department, and I will give full particulars when we come to discuss the Bill.

Mr. BLAKE. I am sorry the hon. gentleman is taking this course, because it practically means that we are to get the information, and that will be the end of it. I had hoped to have some information as to the details now, so that at another stage we could comment upon it intelligently. Is the proposition to find 6,400 acres a mile in Manitoba for as many miles of this railway as are in Manitoba, and 12,800 acres a mile outside of Manitoba in respect to the line outside of Manitoba.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Yes,

Mr. BLAKE. So that, if it is impossible to find 6,400 acres a mile along the railway in Manitoba, it will be taken somewhere else, by arrangement with the company.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. By arrangement with the company.

Mr. BLAKE. Is it proposed that the land will be taken in a block, or is the principle of alternate sections adopted? Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Alternate sections within Manitoba.

Mr. BLAKE. And outside?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I think not.

Mr. BLAKE. Is it proposed that the appropriation should be made according to the progress of construction with every twenty miles of construction?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Yes.

Motion agreed to; and the House resolved_itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Mr. BLAKE. After what the hon. gentleman has said, 1 will merely ask him to give us, as accurately as possible, the mileage in Manitoba, the mileage outside, and the localities, so far as he can judge, where the land will be taken in the Province of Manitoba.

Mr. MACKENZIE. And also the location of the proposed line, if it has been surveyed, or inform us when it is to be surveyed.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I will get all the information in the possession of the Department.

Reco'ution to be reported.

TEMPERANCE LEGISLATION.

Mr. KIRK. I wish to direct the attention of the First Minister to the condition of the Liquor License Law in the Province of Nova Scotia. He is, of course, aware that the judges of Nova Scotia have decided that the Canada Temperance Act of 1878 is not in force in those counties in which it has been proclaimed to be in force, in consequence of some defect in the law, and the consequence is that to day it is not known what law is in force in that Province-whether the Local Law of Nova Scotia, the Liquor License Law of last year, or the Canada Temperance Act. A B.II has been introduced and has passed the Senate, for the purpose of remedying this difficulty in the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and it has been sent down to this House and has been read the first time. am informed that in one of the licensing districts in the Province of Nova Scotia, the License Commissioners meet to-morrow for the purpose of considering applications for licenses, and the people there, and I believe the Commissioners themselves, do not know whether or not they have a right to issue licenses under the circumstances. Parties have telegraphed to me, asking me to ascertain whether the Government intend to push the passage of this Bill, and to ask them if they do to put it through as rapidly as possible, so as to put an end to this confusion. I would like to ask the First Minister if he will try to favour those people by advancing this Bill as rapidly as possible ?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. The Bill, I fancy, will be ready either to-night or to-morrow.

It being Six o'clock, the Speaker left the Chair.

CONSOLIDATED RAILWAY ACT OF 1879.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER moved the third reading of Bill pany are heard, and usually about the same number of (No. 135) to amend the Consolidated Railway Act, 1879, witnesses are examined. The consequences is, that the average costs of an arbitration is not far from $1,000. I

Mr. WELLS. I desire to move one or two amendments to this Bill, and with that object, will move that it be referred back to the Committee of the Whole House. Sub-section eleven of clause nine of the Consolidated Railway Act provides that:

"The deposit of a plan or map and book of reference, and the notice of such deposit, shall be deemed a general notice to all the parties, of the lands which will be required for the railway and works."

I desire to add to that, these words:

"Provided, that the date of such deposit shall be the date with re erence to which the compensation for rights of way shall be ascertained."

I know, from my own experience, that there is always a great deal of confusion and dispute as to what date shall be taken by the arbitrators, whether the date of fyling the plans, the date of the arbitration, the date of making the award, the date of payment of the compensation, &c. The same difficulty has arisen in the United States, and generally they have settled that date as the date of fyling the plans. Thus, Mr. Pierce says, in his work on Railways:

"The damages are assessed as of the time of taking. In different jurisdictions the act of taking is fixed at different stages in the proceedings for condemnation—as at the time of fyling the location in s me public repository, as required by the Statute, though on failure to comply with the Statute other acts may be deemed as taking."

Now, the particular circumstance which prompts me to move the adoption of this amendment is, that an amendment was moved in Committee last evening, to the effect that where a railway touches a building, the whole building must be taken if the owner so desires it. It will be found that in England that has enormously increased the expense of rai.way construction. All kinds of tricks are played-for instance, in locating a railway through a town, it may pass through the corner of a yard which is attached to a manufactory, and all the owner has to do is to put up a shed and connect it in some way with the building, so that it will be attached to the building, and in this way he can compel the railway company to take the whole factory at a high price. That is not fair. The company should only be compelled to take property at its value and according to its condition at the time of fyling the plans, and that is, 1 think, the spirit of the Act, because the clause I have read shows clearly that the deposit of the plans shall be notice to all parties, and being notice to all parties the position of the parties ought not afterwards to be changed. That I think should be the time with reference to which the valuation should be fixed, and it is in that view that I move that amend-I also desire to make another amendment, ment. changing the mode of arbitration altogether. The House is aware that the present mode is this: The land owner chooses an arbitrator, the company chooses an arbitrator, and the two choose a third. The practical working of this is, that the land owner chooses some intimate triend on whom he can rely, and with whom, although that is illegal, he is, during the arbitration, in constant communication. Now, practically, it is the award of the umpire which settles the matter, and the award is really that of one arbitrator. But the result is enormous expense. First, in having three arbitrators instead of one. Arbitrators, generally, chargo very high fees, the average amount, so far as my experience goes, being from three hundred to four hundred dollars. Secondly, the land concer invariably calls a vory large number of witnesses. I have known nearly a whole week to be occupied in taking evidence. In fact arbitrators will seldom exclude evidence, one reason, perhaps, being because the land owner's arbitrator is not disposed, in the interests of his friend, to do so, and therefore witnesses are called day after day. When the claimant gets through with his evidence, the railway comaverage costs of an arbitration is not far from $1,000. I think that this is a great scandal; it is bad both for the land owner and for the company. As against the company, it works in this way, that after the costs have been piled up to this enormous amount-and we all know the loser has to pay the costs-the arbitrators naturally say, if we find in favour of the company this poor man will have to pay more than the price of his land; and, therefore, although the evidence may be altogether in favour of the company, we find against the company. I propose that there should be, as in effect there is now, but one arbitrator. We know that cases involving very large amounts are brought before one judge every day and there is no reason why these cases also should not be tried before one judge in the same way. I therefore propose that it shall be lawful for either party to apply to a judge of one of the Superior Court, of the Province in which the land is situated, for the appointment of a single arbitrator. In point, of fact, this arbitrator will generally be a County Court judge, but I do not provide that he should be so. I prefer to leave to the discretion of the judge of the Superior Court the appointment of a suitable arbitrator. beg therefore to move:

That the Bill be not now read a third timebut be referred back to the Committee of the Whole House, with power to make the amendment to which I have referred.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. With regard to the first amendment, I think it would be an important one in removing a doubt as to whether the time of fixing the deposit of the plushould bo the period, and in that respect I should be disposed to concur with my hon, friend. The other is a more important change, and I would like to hear the views of hon. gentlemen in the House, who have had experience in connection with the question of arbitration between railway companies and land owners, as to the effect of the amendment. If the fact be as stated by the hon. gentleman, that practically the land owner names a friend and the company a friend, and that it is a game of battledore and shuttlecock between these two, and costs accumulate, and the decision in nine cases out of ten is determined by the third person named, it would be very well worth considering whether it would not be an improvement to have recourse to a judge of the Superior Court, who should name the sole arbitrator, the one person who should decide the question. If, in the opinion of gontlemen who have had opportunities of making themselves acquainted with the practice in this regard, the views stated by the hon. gentleman are borne out, it would be very well worth trying. There is no doubt there is a good deal of difficulty in connection with the arbitrators, and it is calculated to be more expensive, and I think to consume more time. I would like very much to hear the opinions of gentlemen in the House, who are familiar with this question of claims between railway companies and land owners on that subject. It is a point on which I have not any very strong opinion, and if there was a general agree-ment that it would be desirable to alter the law in that respect, I have no very strong objection to it.

Mr. MITCHELL. The proposition, coming from a lawyer, from a professional man, is such a singular one, reducing the expenses and lessening the fees to the profession attending the court, that I think it is a step in the right direction, and I think we ought to encourage such a tendency on the part of gentlemen who are engaged in these arbitrations. I listened attentively to the remarks of my hon. friend, and I entirely approve of the proposition made by him, and think he and his fellow professional men ought to be encouraged in lessening the expenses to the general public.

Mr. IVES. I think the hon. gentleman who last spoke has missed the mark. Where an arbitration takes place under the law as it at present stands, there is not really any proper legal work to be done; there are no taxable fees at Mr. WELLS.

all; but if, as my hon. friend here suggests, we should commence proceedings by an application to a julge of the Superior Court, there would be an opportunity lawyers, rather better than exists at the for the present moment. However, I must say, from my experience in these matters, that the hon. member is right in stating that, as an almost invariable rule, the third arbitrator is practically the man who settles the amount that is to be That has been my experience. I have not awarded. known so large costs to be made as the hon. member speaks of, perhaps because in our part of the country we are a more peaceful and less litigious people than they are in Ontario; but I know that the third arbitrator is practically the man who decides the question, and it seems to me it would be a less cumbersome procedure to apply to a judge of the Superior Court-thus giving the lawyers a chance-to name a disinterested and indifferent person, who would be as likely to be a good man as one agreed upon by the friend of the railway company and the friend of the land owner.

Mr. MITCHELL. I wish to say a word in explanation, with reference to the remarks of my hon. friend. My hon. friend took exception to my remarks, because he said there were no taxable costs at present. That is just what the lawyers like. Where the costs are taxable, they are limited in the extent of them, but we know that lawyers employed by railway companies regulate their own charges and fix their own costs, and they fix them pretty heavily, as far as my experience in relation to railways goes.

Mr. MULOCK. I cannot quite agree with the proposition of my hon. friend from East Bruce (Mr. Wells). The proposition, I think, is that the Superior Court judge shall in each case appoint a sole arbitrator. That involves an application being sent from the locality where the lands may be situate, and where probably the owner or owners live, to the capital of the Province. It would seem to me better if, instead of leaving the appointment to the Superior Court judge, we were to leave it in the hands of a County Court judge, we were to leave it in the hands of a county could judge. It is a local matter, necessarily, in every case, and if it is sent to a Superior Court judge, the Superior Court judge will have no knowledge of his own as to the fitness or otherwise of the proposed arbitrage; a large amount of evidence will have no knowledge about the series of the s will have to be supplied to him and that evidence will necessarily be of a conflicting character; the efforts of the lawyers will therefore be called into requisition at the earliest moment, in preparing evidence as to the fitness of the various persons that the contending parties suggest as sole arbitrator; whereas, if the appointment rested in the County Court judge, there would be much less expense ; the County Court judge himself would probably have some knowledge, and might be able to select a person at little or no expense. So far on the point whether the appointment should rest with the County Court judge or the Superior Court judge. But I think another suggestion might be made; perhaps it would not recommend itself, but it occurs to mo at the moment, that perhaps it would be better to have an official arbitrator in each county, a man enjoying some public office, and who, thus having an official standing, is more likely to deal justice towards all. In that way he would enter upon the duties of his office without the parties having been, in the first place, put to any expense in the matter of selecting an arbitrator, while his official position might, in almost every case, be a sufficient guarantee as to his fitness for the office.

Mr. GIROUARD. I look upon the amendment as a dangerous one. In every country, in Europe and on this continent, cases of this kind have been determined by three arbitrators—two at least, and when the two do not agree, by an umpire—and, unless very good reasons are given to show that the practice which has been universal is bad, I am not prepared to vote to change it.

Mr. TEMPLE. The custom in New Brunswick is to settle railway land damages generally by a jury. It seems to be a different practice here, where they are settled by arbitration, but there seems to be a good deal of argument by hon. members on both sides, that it costs a great deal to settle these matters by arbitration. I have had a good deal to do with settling land damages at different times, and in settling them by a jury it costs very little. In the first place, there is a notice issued by the magistrate to a jury of five men. This jury go over the land and assess the damages ; they go back before the magistrate and make up their award. It is tried by both parties, there are lawyers on each side, and it is settled at once. The whole thing is done in less than two days, and there is very little cost attached to it. I have known, in one instance, fourteen cases to be tried in one day, so you can easily imagine the amount of cost which would be attached to it. I consider it the most reasonable way of settling the thing, and a great deal less expensive to all parties.

Mr. WELDON. I quite agree with my hon. friend from York (Mr. Temple), as to the practice in New Brunswick. The only difficulty is that the railway company have the choice of the magistrate, and consequently are very likely to have a jury of their own way of thinking. I also agree with the remarks of my friend from Richmond and Wolfe (Mr. Ives). The difficulty is, that one arbitrator very often considers himself the counsel of one party and the other arbitrator the counsel of the opposing party, and practically the umpire is the person who decides. My own experience in arbitration is in favour of a single arbitrator, and if I can get the parties to agree upon one arbitrator, I generally do it, because it is much more satisfactory and much less liable to be upset. Where there are three arbitrators, if they disagree, the losing party applies to a lawyer to endeavour to get the award set aside, but where there is a single arbitrator, it is less expensive and more satisfactory.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I suggest that there should be an alternative mode. Where parties can agree to leave it to a single arbitrator they should be allowed to do so; where they cannot agree upon that, they should then resort to the plan at present in force.

Mr. WELLS. They can agree now to leave it to one arbitrator.

Mr. MACKENZIE. In that case, I see no reason for amending it.

Mr. CAMERON (North Victoria). Under the law as it now stands at present, each party nominates an arbitrator. The company claiming the land serves a notice which names its arbitrator; it is then the duty of the owner of the property to name his arbitrator within ten days, and if he fails to do so the County Court judge has the power of naming a sole arbitrator, if I recollect rightly. But if the claimant names an arbitrator, then the two arbitrators meet and appoint a third; if they fail to agree upon a third then it becomes the duty of the Minister of Railways to appoint one of the official arbitrators of the Dominion as the third. Practically, the result is that the two arbitrators named by the company and the owner respectively agree upon a third, that third one practically becomes the sole arbitrator. I have had a good deal of experience in arbitration, and I find that almost invariably the two arbitrators named by the respective parties are partisans, they are advocates for the party who named them, and the decision thus rests entirely with the third arbitrator, be he chosen by the other two, or be he one of the official arbitrators. The present system of leaving it to the Minister to nominate the official arbitrator, is not found to work satisfactorily. Their occupation is such, they are so much engaged with other business in various parts of the Dominion, that it is almost impossible to get one of them capacity positively refused to undertake extra judicial to give the necessary time and attention to the matter. It is within my knowledge that one case has been kept waiting for a year past, until an official arbitrator could attend to it, and even yet the arbitration has not been held. Nothing, in fact, could be worse than the present The result is a greatly increased expense to the Within the last few months I have known cases system. parties. where the property ranged in value from $400 to $1,000, and where the costs had been as much as the value of the property. That, every one will admit, is not a satisfactory mode of proceeding. Where they have three arbitrators, each party exerts himself to call witnesses, and they go on calling witnesses by the dozen, who add nothing to the information of the arbitrators, because after half a dozen witnesses have been examined on each side, the subject is exhausted. The arbitrators, after viewing the property, form their opinion which, generally speaking, is as good as that of any of the witnesses who were called before them to speak on a theoretical question like that of the value of property. The hon. member for North York has suggested that the County Court judge is the proper person to name the arbitrator.

Mr. MULOCK. I suggested it might be well, perhaps, to appoint as an official arbitrator, some official in each county, or as an alternative, to leave it to the County Court judge to make the appointment.

Mr. CAMERON. As the Bill was first introduced, it proposed to leave it to the County Court judge to name the third arbitrator, and I think that is not likely to be satisfactory. If a third arbitrator is to be named, he ought to be some one unconnected with the neighbourhood, unbiassed, and not in any way prejudiced by his previous acquaintance with the parties on the property-unless indeed he be a judicial officer. The real objection to leaving it to the County Court judge to make the appointment is that he could not appoint himself. Now, in most cases that have come under my knowledge, the County Court judge would be a satisfactory arbitrator, and if left to the Superior Court judge the result would be that in a great many cases he would nominate one of the County Court judges as the arbitrator; and he, being a judicial officer, accustomed to exercising a discretion in matters of that kind, and weighing evidence, certainly would be more competent than an inexperienced person. I think the proposal this even-ing to leave it to the Superior Court judge would, in the end, be found to work well. I think a person appointed by the Superior Court judge would be likely to be competent, and would be a far more satisfactory tribunal than the present Board of Arbitration undoubtedly is. The idea of the hon. member for North York, that there should be, as it were, permanent official arbitrators to arbitrate upon the value of property, a single arbitrator to go through the district and value the property in each case taken by the company, would be found to work well. In many of the States of the Union that is the system they pursue, and I think there they have less trouble and more satisfactory results in these land valuations than we probably have here. But undoubtedly some judge is required, and I think that, as we have found the present system very unsatisfactory, no harm would be done in allowing this proposal to go through and try it for one year, at any rate.

Mr. HALL. With some experience in matters of this kind I have no hesitation in saying that a change in this direction would be a beneficial one. The only difficulty that occurs to me, is one of procedure. I know that in the Province of Quebce the judges dislike very much to undertake duties of this kind, which are certainly extra judicial; and I think it will be found necessary that the person holding the office of the judge of the Superior Court should make the appointment. I have known instances where judges in their official duties of this kind. It is not a matter of record, there is no record of the action that they take in reference to it, and therefore they decline, quite properly sometimes, to meddle with affairs of this kind. I do not think there will be any difficulty if that change were made, and the clause made to read "and the person holding the office of judge of the Superior Court shall be the person to select the arbitrator."

Mr. McCARTHY. I desire cordially to endorse the amendment moved by the hon. member for East Bruce (Mr. Wells). I can add my own experience to the statements made by my hon. and learned friends, and the result of the matter is that the third arbitrator makes the decision. I can agree with the hon. member for Richmond (Mr. Ives), who states that under the present system the lawyers are not entitled to costs, and I think it is an injustice to the profession.

Mr. WELLS. Although there is no tariff of costs, it is very largely in the discretion of the County Court judge, who generally taxes liberal fees. With respect to giving the Superior Court judge the power of appointment, I only followed out the analogy of the law as it is now. Where one railway crossed another, the procedure is to apply to a judge of the Superior Court to appoint three arbitrators as between the the two railway companies.

Mr. WHITE (Renfrew). I do not think, as the law stands at present, any injustice is perpetrated on any person as regards the mode of ascertaining the value of the land. It would be very unjust to take away from the person whose land is being expropriated by the railway company the right to name one of the arbitrators to determine the value of the land so taken. If it were determined by the wisdom of this House that the mode of appointment should be changed, then the House itself ought to determine who should be the arbitrators, and not leave that duty in the hands of a judge of the Superior Court. But as the law now stands, it works very much more equitably than would be the case by the mode indicated by the hon. member for East Bruce (Mr. Wells).

Mr. McMULLEN. I quite concur in the opinion expressed by the last speaker. If a change were made in the mode of appointing arbitrators it would be felt to be unjust to property owners, who have hitherto had a say in the appointment of the arbitrators who were to determine the value of the property to be taken by the railway company. If it were left to a Superior Court judge to appoint the arbitrators or arbitrator, the duty of making the application would devolve on the railway company. The result would be that property owners would feel that a valuator was appointed in whose choice they had no part. The law should be allowed to stand as at present rather than make a change in the direction of depriving property owners of a say in the choice of the arbitrators.

Mr. BEATY. The great difficulty hitherto experienced has been the great loss of time and expense in connection with these arbitrations. But we must remember that we have had thirty years' experience, and have built nearly 10,000 miles of railway, and during all this time the difficulty suggested has not been experienced. The person owning the property is interested, of course, in obtaining a large value, and the railway company, whose interests are in the other direction, usually employ an expert, a person who is fully acquainted with the valuation of land. In that respect the railway company has an advantage over the land owner, because they are represented by a really skilled person, with whom the owner's arbitrator cannot usually compete. The result is that the third arbitrator comes in and agrees with one or the other, for two of the arbitrators only, as a rule, agree. The difficulty of getting a judge to do work of this kind is, that it would take him away from further than the hon. gentleman may desire, but it seems to counties. If a Superior Court judge appointed the arbitrator or arbitrators this again would add to the expense, because the application as regards Ontario would have to be made in Toronto, and professional aid would have to be brought into requisition. In view of these aspects, and of the fact that we have had thirty years experience of the present system, the new mode proposed does not suggest itself as advisable. Parties can agree to a sole arbitrator; but they go to work with their eyes open, and after being informed as to the great expense involved, each appoints an arbitrator and the two appoint a third. If the parties do this with their eyes open, who can interfere? But if we are to adopt a different mode of solving the difficulty, my idea would be to let the owner and the company each appoint a friend and these friends appoint an arbitrator, and in such a case he would no doubt be a man of skill and judgment, and the system would involve less expense and loss of time than that at present in operation.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I think, after the discussion, it is obvious that the general sense of the House is against the proposed change. Having listened attentively to what has been said, I am inclined to think it will be better to leave the Act as we have amended it, for the present, at all events.

Amendment negatived.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER moved that the House resolve itself into Committee.

Motion agreed to; and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Sir CHARLES TUPPER moved that the following be added to sub-section 11: "And the date of such deposit shall be the date with respect to which such compensation or damages shall be so ascertained."

Bill, as amended, reported.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER moved the third reading of the Bill.

Mr. McCARTHY. I move that the Bill be not now read the third time, but that it be referred back to Committee, with instructions to strike out the second sub-section of the first clause and insert the following in lieu thereof: -

That every railway company shall be liable to a penalty of $50, to be recovered, with costs in any court of competent jurisdiction, by any person who may sue therefor, one-half of the penalty to be paid to the Urown, and the other half to the person suing for the same.

The difficulty under the clause, as it stands, is that suit can only be brought by the Attorney General. I think it should not be necessary, in such cases, to wait for the Crown, but that any person might bring suit against the company under the ordinary terms, one-half the penalty to go to the informer and the other half to the Crown.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I am afraid that that would be likely to stir up a class of persons who are disposed vindictively to prosecute railway companies-persons of no means, bringing actions in which they have no sort of interest. This would involve the parties in litigation and expense, and what recourse would they have. It appears to me that the Bill as it stands should be sufficient. It provides for severe and stringent obligations on the part of the company, and it provides that the Crown shall prosecute, so that if there is a legitimate case, and the parties interested are respectable, I do not think there will be found any difficulty in protecting the interests of the public. I know that my hon, friend is more familiar with these matters than I am, but I am afraid that where there is no responsibility required in the prosecution of such suits, they will be apt to be brought on mere speculation.

Mr. MILLS. The amendment of my hon. friend may go his ordinary duties, and this could not be done except it some me it would be impossible, in many cases, to bring a suit if the Bill is allowed to stand as it is. Supposing a municipality is making certain improvements, the railway corporations are subject to the law, the same law as any other corporation; a road may be built across a railway track, or there may be a want of drainage, but under the provisions of this Bill no one could bring suit against the railway company, except the Minister of Justice. I do not think the hon. gentleman should so far restrict the right of persons to bring suit against a railway corporation for such grievances. I think every such person, or at all events every municipality, should have the right to bring suit.

Mr. McCARTHY. If the hon. gentleman will allow me to interrupt him, perhaps the substitution of "any corporation" for "any person" would be acceptable.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I would not object to that.

Mr. McCARTHY. I would move that the words "any municipal or local corporation interested in the matter in which such railway company has made default" be inserted in place of "any person."

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Does that take away the right from a private party from suing through the Attorney General? Does it confine that right entirely to the corporation?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. It substitutes the one for the other, I think.

Mr. BEATY. I think persons aggrieved, in such a case, should have liberty to bring the action.

Bill reconsidered in Committee, amended, reported, and read the third time and passed.

LIQUOR LICENSE ACT OF 1883.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the second reading of Bill (No. 143) to amend the Liquor License Act of 1883.

Bill read the second time.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY moved that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on said Bill.

Mr. MACKENZIE. There ought to be a general statement before going into Committee.

Mr. McCARTHY. Perhaps my hon. friend will allow me to make some explanation of the amendments proposed. They are mostly of a formal character. One or two of the amendments, I may state at the outset, it is proposed to drop. The one proposing, perhaps, the most important amendment to the Bill, in which power was given to the Governor in Council to postpone the time for three years, as to the reduction of the number of licenses, it is not proposed to press. The others are mainly for extending the period for the coming into force of the Act, or, rather, for the coming into force of the practical part of the Act, and I think it would be better to make the explanation, section by section, in Committee of the Whole, as the amendments, generally speaking, are purely of a formal character.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Is there any provision to set aside the penalties.

Mr. McCARTHY. No; there is no provision of that kind. I understood the right hon. First Minister to state, on introducing the Bill, that in regard to that his proposition was he would advise the Governor in Council to remit the penalties until the constitutionality of the Act was settled and determined—that is in places where there was any other conflicting Act. In places where there is no attempt to enforce any other law the penalties will be enforced.

Mr. MACKENZIE. What about the costs?

Mr. McCARTHY. They cannot be enforced either, if the penalty is not enforced. Mr. OUIMET. How is the penalty to be remitted? One part goes to the informer, another to the inspector and a third to the municipality. I do not see how the Governor General in Council can remit what belongs to individuals. The only part of the penalty that could be remitted is that which goes to the Crown; the rest of the costs will be at the charge of the prosecuting party.

Mr. MoCARTHY. I do not so understand the law.

Mr. WELDON. This Bill simply makes some amendments in regard to the License Act, and a discussion took place some time ago, on the Resolution of the hon. member for Maskinongé, in which we were led to believe that the only amendment would be an Act to suspend the penalties until a case was brought before the Supreme Court of Canada, or the Privy Council, for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of this law. There are serious doubts as to the constitutionality of the Act, and we see that already great difficulties have arisen in the various Provinces, not only in regard to the Local Governments, but with regard to the municipalities, through the effect of this law. The hon. member for Guysborough, before recoss, called the attention of the First Minister to the position of some of the counties of Nova Scotia. On the 18th March, when the hon. member for Maskinongé moved his Resolution, the hon. Minister of Public Works said :

"My hon. friend may say, what will happen in the meantime? He may say there will be suits entered and penalties imposed, and the law may be worked in that direction, at the same time that it may not be constitutional. I may say that the Government intend bringing in a Bill to amend the law during this Session, and that one of the provisions of that Bill will be that, until a decision is obtained from the proper tribunal, as stated in my amendment, the penalties of the Act shall not have effect. They will not be exacted during that period, and thus nobody will suffer."

That is the explicit statement of the hon. Minister of Public Works, when he opposed the Resolution of the hon. member for Maskinongé; and the hon, member for Quebce Centre (Mr. Bossé) also said:

"Therefore, I say, as a matter of public convenience, as a measure of necessity, if we want to arrive at something definite, a recourse to the Privy Council must be adopted. Then the question could be virtually decided, and acting constitutionally, under the tenets and according to the precepts of the Confederation Act, avoiding the difficulties and expense of prolonged law suits, we would obtain, once for all, a decision to be followed. I say again, Sir, that the mode suggested is all the more advantageous, because from this time up to the date of the decision which we are to expect in the Privy Council, all the rights of the Provinces will be maintained and will not be infringed upon. The Local Governments will collect their revenue, the licenses will not be interfered with by the Federal authorities, and the result, practically and virtually will be, the suspension of the License Act of the Dominiou until such time as the question is settled."

That was the language of the hon. member for Quebec Centre, in supporting the amendment of the hon Minister of Public Works. The Bill does not at all remit the penalties, and, as was stated by the hon. member for Laval (Mr. Ouimet), it is very doubtful whether the Government have the right to remit the penalties where once the right has attached and belongs to other persons. What was pledged to this House and to the country, to use the language of my hon. friend from Quebec Centre (Mr. Bossé), was a virtual suspension of the License Act until the question was decided, and that it should be carried to the Privy Council of England to get a decision as to the constitution-ality of that law. That was the effect of the amendment moved by the hon. the Minister of Public Works to the Resolution of the hon. member for Maskinongé (Mr. Houde), and supported by the hon. member for Quebec Centre, and upon the faith of that the House adopted the Amendment. There is no provision in this Bill for any case. If there is no provision made before this House rises, for a case, we will find the courts flooded with applications to test this question; and, instead of having the matter, which is not only a question between the municipalities and the Government, but between the Provincial Governments and the Dominion Government, suspended for the time being until that is settled, we will find that, immediately after the 1st May, applications will be made to the courts, and there will be litigation throughout the country, and the whole time of the courts and of the judges will be taken up in deciding the different objections that will be raised, because not only will the constitutional question be raised, but there will be technical objections of almost every kind taken, as it will have not only the opposition of the parties brought up for the violation of this law, but will have the public feeling of the country against it, because the Government have not carried out what they pledged themselves, on the 18th March, would be the course adopted in reference to this Act.

Mr. DESJARDINS. I think, if a clause suspending the penalties under this Act is not inserted, it will prove very difficult to meet the difficulties that will have to be met this year, pending decision of the Supreme Court or the Privy Council. It was understood, in that debate referred to by my hon. friend the member for St. John (Mr. Weldon), that before the case is submitted and adjudicated upon, the penalties would be suspended, and upon that declaration I know that many people have applied for their licenses under the Provincial laws, and now they would be submitted to the trouble of being sued and being obliged to pay fines under this law. It would certainly be contrary to the expectations held out to us by the declarations that were made, so I hope the Government will see that it is necessary that a clause be inserted to suspend the penalties under this law.

Mr. MILLS. I think we should have some further explanation from the Government before we go into Committee. The hon. member for Maskinongé proposed that the License Act of last year should be repealed, as inconsistent with the decision of the Privy Council, in the case of Hodge against the Queen. That was met by a promise of the Government to introduce a measure, not such as is indicated by this Bill, not a measure to make the law more stringent than it was before, and assert in a still greater degree, aggressively, the authority of this House against the Local Legislatures, but an amendment to the law, which would suspend the penal provisions until the question was finally disposed of by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. It was understood here that the decision of any court less than the highest court of the realm would not be satisfactory, because it would not finally dispose of the question, and it was distinctly understood that the Bill should contain a provision of this character. In order to make the matter clear, I will read the amendment proposed by the hon. the Minister of Public Works, to the proposition of the hon. member for Maskinongé :-

"In the opinion of this House, it is expedient that the question of the competence of Parliament to pass the Liquor License Act, 1883, should be submitted, with all convenient speed, to the Supreme Court of Canada or the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, or both."

Now, there is no doubt that, until this question is finally disposed of by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, this country will not accept, as a final disposition of the question, any decision that may be come to by any inferior tribunal. Then, again, it is important that there should be a provision that the penal clauses of the existing law should not be enforced until that final decision is had, because it is perfectly obvious that, while the Crown may suspend the penalties, so far as those penalties are payable to the Crown, it cannot suspend the penalties so far as they can be collected by any private individual. It must be done by Bill, or it cannot be properly done at all. I think that, before we go into Committee, we should have the assent of the Government to the acceptance of this amendment by them.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The statement made by me at the time on behalf of the Government is, of course, one Mr. WELDON.

that will be fulfilled. The statement I made was, that this question would be submitted to the decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council or of the Supreme Court, or both. Then it was understood that we would see that the penalties were not enforced. That was a statement I made on behalf of the Government at the time, and I was authorized to say so, and that will be done. The hon. gentleman may be sure of this, that we may go into Committee, carry the Bill through, with such amendments as are required, and before the third reading is carried, there will be an amendment prepared and inserted in the Bill to fulfil the promise of the Government.

Mr. MILLS. I would remind the hon. gentleman of another provision—that the Bill itself was to provide for a case.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. I do not think that was stated, but I stated on behalf of the Government, that the Government would see that the question would be submitted to the Privy Council or to the Supreme Court, or both.

Mr. WELDON. 'The hon. Minister was out when I read what he stated. I will read it again:

"I may say that the Government intend bringing in a Bill to amend the law during this Session, and that one of the provisions of that Bill will be that, until a decision is obtained from the proper tribunal, as stated in my amendment, the penalties of the Act shall not have effect. They will not be exacted during that period, and thus nobody will suffer."

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. Perhaps it is so; but, at all events, whether it is in the Bill or otherwise, the word of the Government is given, and, of course, will have to be fulfilled.

Mr. FISHER. If my recollection serves me aright, after the discussion was concluded, my hon. friend from West Durham referred to the fact that the Government had not stated any plan by which the decision should be arrived at, and that then the First Minister said, when the Act came down, such a provision would be in it. I regret that no explanation in regard to the general tenor of this measure has been made from the Government benches. It is possible that in these amendments there is no general plan followed, except to repair the many errors discovered in the Act passed last Session. It is not very complimentary to the drawers of this Act that they have to come down to-day with a Bill of twentyfive sections amending that Act which was supposed to be drawn up with great care. I observe, in these amendments, a tendency to do away with one or two provisions which were contended last Session to be of great value. It was contended last Session that one of the great advantages of the Act was, that there should be a representative of the people on the Commission for granting licenses; but I find, by the first amendment, that that provision is practically taken away. In the fourth sub-section it is stated that if any first or second Commissioner has an interest in any business in consequence whereof he is disqualified to act, the Governor in Council may assign his duties to another Commissioner, or may appoint another Commissioner to act in his stead. Now, Sir, I am not a lawyer and cannot therefore give an opinion with regard to the effect of this amendment, but I know that in the Province of Ontario it practically places in the hands of the Government of the day the appointment of two members of the Commission. I find that in sub-section (b) of the first section, the Government take to themselves the appointment of a second Commissioner, whenever there are two or more wardens in the same district. So that we find the Government in some cases are assuming the appointment of all these Commissioners. I am glad to hear the hon. gentle-man who has charge of this Bill say that he is to withdraw the most objectionable feature of it, and I think there are one or two other provisions which it would be well to withdraw. I find that in section 7 of this Bill, the following proviso is added to sub-section 2 of section 22 of the said Act:-

"Provided always, that the personal attendance of the applicant may be dispensed with by the Board, in cases in which the report of the inspector has been dispensed with under section 29."

If the hon, gentleman refers to that section, he will find that in certain cases where the applicant for license resides at a distance from the place where the Commissioners meet, the report of the inspector may be dispensed with. You can easily understand that, under such circumstances, it is very important that some accurate knowledge of the applicant should be obtained, and if, as is provided by this amendment, the applicant may be relieved in certain cases from the necessity of appearing before the Commissioners, it is practically abandoning the only safeguard that we have in regard to the applicant's character and in regard to the place for which he wishes to secure the license. If this section passes, the applicant may appeal in writing to the Commissionners to give him a license. There is no check upon him in any way, and no means of obtaining necessary information in regard to his character. I think that although the original section in the Act was decidedly objectionable, this one makes it ten times worse. Another amendment, which I consider of very serious consequence, is that in section 8 of the Bill.

Mr. McCARTHY. That is an error; it is not intended to press that.

Mr. FISHER. I am very glad to hear it. I find, then that two of the most objectionable features in the Bill are mistakes.

Motion agreed to; and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Mr. McCARTHY. I propose to add the following amendment to sub-section 8 in section 5: "In the Province of Quebec he shall hold office for one year, or the portion of the year unexpired in which he is appointed, but he shall nevertheless continue to hold office until his successor is appointed." That only applies to the Province of Quebec.

Amendment agreed to.

On sub-section 2,

Mr. WELDON moved that the word "mayor" be in serted before St. John.

Amendment agreed to.

Mr. AUGER. I desire to draw the attention of the Committee to the fact that in the Province of Quebec the warden, who is named as the second Commissioner, is elected in March, and unless the section is amended, as has been done in another section, the office will be for some time vacant. Commissioners are appointed by name, not by office.

Mr. McCARTHY. The appointments are made by office.

Mr. FISHER. In the Province of Quebec, the warden would issue licenses and make all the arrangements and then go out of office, and he would no longer be responsible for what had been done.

Mr. BÉCHARD. In Iberville, the warden was appointed by name, not as warden of the county.

On sub-section 4,

Mr. BAKER (Victoria). I would like to ask the hon. member in charge of the Bill, why British Columbia is specially excepted in this sub-section?

Mr. MoCARTHY. I understand it is on account of the difficulty in getting wardens in British Columbia.

On sub-section 5,

Mr. FISHER. I would like to ask why it is that the third Commissioner is not included with the first and second, with regard to this provision, as to being interested in any business?

Mr. McCARTHY. For a reason evident on the face of the Bill. He is a Commissioner ex officio, appointed by the Governer in Council, and it is presumed that the Governor in Council will not appoint a disqualified person.

Mr. FISHER. It is possible that the Governor in Council might unknowingly appoint a person interested in the business.

Mr. McCARTHY. But if such a person accepted the office, he is subject, by the Act, to a very heavy penalty.

Mr. BOLDUC moved that sub-section a of section 5 of the License Act, be amended by inserting the words "sheriff, or district magistrate" after the word "prothonotary," in the seventh line of said sub section.

Amendment agreed to.

On section 3,

Mr. McCARTHY. This is merely formal for the purposes of the Inland Revenue office.

Mr. WELDON. Who is going to take out a license if other people are not to be fined for breaking the law?

Mr. McCARTHY. I thought my hon. friend was pressing the Minister of Public Works to bring down such a provision, and now that he has promised to bring it down, my hon. friend is not satisfied.

Mr. WELDON. At this period of the Session, when we are so anxious to get home, I think we are wasting a great deal of time on this matter. We are providing for licenses to be issued, and does the hon. gentleman expect people to take out licenses when those who do not will not be fined, because the suspension of the penalties is the practical suspension of the law.

Mr. McCARTHY. The information we have is that they are taking out licenses.

Mr. MILLS. It is protty obvious that no one would pay to take out a license if he was in no better position than those who do not pay to take out licenses.

Mr. McCARTHY. I rise to order. Is this discussion pertinent to this second paragraph?

Mr. CHAIRMAN. It appears to me, in my judicial capacity, that this question should have been raised before we went into Committee.

Mr. BOLDUC. (Translation.) I move that sub-section (c) of section 7 be amended by striking out all the words after the word "ship." The effect of the amendment, which I have just moved, is to enable ships sailing between Quebec and Montreal, or between Montreal and Toronto, to sell liquor in a bar-room as it was done heretofore. As it is now, by virtue of the Act of 18:3, liquor can only be sold at meal time on board the ships. Still if this clause is not amended it will always be meal time on board of the ships during the whole of the navigation season, so that instead of preventing disturbances we shall give rise to them.

Mr. LAURIER. No adequate reason has been given for this amendment. It is practically making a vessel a bar or a tavern.

Mr. BOLDUC. (Translation.) The hon. member for East Quebec says that no adequate reason has been given in favour of the amendment. For my part I say that no adequate reason has been given against the amendment, and I am waiting for the hon. member to give some. Mr. McCARTHY. The effect of my hon. friend's amendment is to strike out the proviso which restricts the sale of liquors on vessels to regular meals, and prevents the opening of a bar on board the vessel.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. The amendment is, in fact, to establish a bar.

Amendment negatived.

On section 5,

Mr. McCARTHY. The object is to make clear the holder of the license under a local law, last year, shall be entitled to get a license without being required to have a petition signed by a number of ratepayers, and this applies also to Manitoba.

On section 7,

Mr. McCARTHY. The object is to dispense with the attendance of an applicant when through some cause, such as illness, he is not able to come to the meeting of the Board.

Mr. FISHER. I do not think the amendment accomplishes the object desired, while it accomplishes some hing else. This only applies in cases where the report of the inspector has been dispensed with. If a report has been recorded, the Board cannot dispense with the personal attendance of the applicant, and where the report has been dispensed with, it seems to me to be doubly necessary the applicant should attend personally.

Mr. McCARTHY. It does not go as far as I thought it did. The suggestion is if it is too far for the inspector to go, it seems hard to oblige the applicant to come that distance, and the Board will have the discretion of forcing attendance or not.

Mr. FISHER. The report of the inspector is necessary, in ordinary circumstances, to insure the granting of a license, and when that is dispensed with, we should do what we can to obtain the information otherwise. There is nothing but the dictum of the Board themselves to declare when the inspector's report shall be dispensed with, and the Board may dispense with the personal attendance of the applicant, under any circumstances which they choose to think would be a case of hardship. This is opening the way to a great deal of laxity on the part of the Board, and our only safeguard is the personal attendance of the applicant, under any circumstances. If we do not keep this in the Act, the applicant may make his application in writing, and nebody may know anything about him, if in the neighbourhood where the Commission are holding their sitting, and they would be taking a leap in the dark.

On section 8,

Mr. MoCARTHY. We will drop that section.

Mr. WELDON. The word "hotel" should be struck out of that section.

Mr. McCARTHY. It was under a misapprehension it was inserted. There is no necessity there should be any connection. Take the case of the Windsor or the Rossin House: it would interfere with the carrying on of that business, and there is no reason why these shops should have any connection with the hotel.

Mr. WELDON. I think the word "hotel" ought not to be there, because, in the Windsor, in Montreal, or the Russell, or the Rossin House, there are entrances into the eigar stores and drug stores and barber's shops, and that might raise a nice question. I move, in amendment, that sub-section 2 of section 25 of the Act, be amended, by striking out the words "hotel or." Then it will read "no saloon shall form part of or communicate with," &c.

Mr. McCARTHY. My hon. friend will see that it is only for the Windsor. Mr. BOLDUG. Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN The St Lawrence Hall is the same. The hon. gentleman may go to the Windsor or the St. Lawrence Hall, and he will see that those hotels communicate with shops or stores in which, for example, they sell cigars, and this would certainly go against the hotels; but, if the words "hotel or" disappear, there will be no inconvenience, and the hotels will not suffer from that provision. I think the hon. gentleman is right, and that the words "hotel or" should disappear.

Mr. AUGER. It may be very well for the Windsor, in Montreal, but in the country we do not want to have our hotels with our stores, and if you take that away they will have the hotel and store on the same premises.

Mr. JAMIESON. I agree with the hon. gentleman who has last spoken. I think it would be better to leave the section in the form in which it is in the Act. I think this is going to work mischief, especially in many rural sections of the country. I cannot see that, if a store were underneath a hotel, it could be said to be connected with it. It is no part of the hotel, though it may be part of the building.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. "Communicates by any entrance."

Mr. WELDON. Take the case where a hotel is above, and stores below. If there was an entrance from any one of the stores, the party would be liable to a penalty.

Mr. COSTIGAN. It will meet the views of hon. gentlemen if this is made to read: "sub-section 2 of section 25 of the said Act, is hereby amended by striking out the words, 'hotel or.'"

The CHAIRMAN. The first question to decide is, whether that is repealed or is not. If it is repealed, that is enough.

Mr. LAURIER. Before that is carried, I would submit to the Committee that we may very well provide for the case of the Windsor, the St. Lawrence and other large hotels. In their case the provision is a good one, but there is a great deal of force in what my hon. friend from Shefford (Mr. Auger) says. You open the door to a class of hotels to which there is a great objection, a class of low hotels, in rural places, where you have the hotel and store together, which are a source of inconvenience and demoralization of the people. I would suggest that such a clause could be framed as would protect these large hotels, but keep the provision as it exists in regard to other places.

Mr. GIROUARD. I have hotels in my county which are not so big as the Windsor, but which are in the same position, and I have not been able to observe the great inconveniences.

Mr. SCRIVER. My experience is entirely different from that of the hon. gentleman. I believe the mixed stores and liquor places in the country are the sources of very great demoralization. I am entirely opposed to any such amendment as would permit the continuance of any such establishments.

Mr. FLEMING. I would suggest that the Commissioners be empowered to dispense with that, in the case of any particular hotel.

Mr. McCARTHY. I think my hon. friend's suggestion would meet the difficulty. That would enable them to deal with the Windsor, and the St. Lawrence, and the Rossin, and similar places.

Mr. CHARLTON. I think that is placing too much power in the hands of the Commissioners. The law ought to define what it means.

Mr. GIROUARD. I do not suppose we are going to mention the names of the hotels in the Bill.

Mr. FOSTER. Of course you can scarcely form any law that will not work a little hardship somewhere. There is a slight hardship with reference to such hotels as the St. Lawrence, or the Russell House, of this city, but I do not think we ought to open the door very wide, as I am sure it will be opened if we pass this without some guard, just for the sake of a few city hotels. I think that, if necessary, a clause might be framed to let out these city hotels. Allow hotels in the city, in the discretion of the Board, to dispense with this, but do not give a discretion to Boards all over the country, with reference to rural districts. Would not all points be met by simply enacting that city hotels, under the discretion of the Board, shall be allowed to be excepted from this?

Mr. SCRIVER. I think that is a good suggestion.

Mr. GIROUARD. If it is right in a city it should be right also in rural districte.

Mr. JAMIESON. I see no necessity for changing this at all. If you look at the wording, you will see there is no necessity whatever for changing it. "No hotel or saloon shall form a part of or communicate by any entrance with any shop." Now, the Windsor Hotel does not form part of a shop. It may be in the same building, but it is not part of it.

Mr. BOURBEAU. (Translation.) I desire to say a few words on this subject in which the House seems to take such a deep interest at the present time. My experience of hotels where all kinds of goods are allowed to be sold, is that it is a cause of great inconvenience in country places. If some hon. members of this House think that it is proper that different kinds of goods should be sold in hotels, surely this can only apply to cities. As regards country places, I consider that it is a great source of annoyance. 1 understood that the law which we adopted in 1883 was intended rather to put a stop to the abuses resulting from the sale and consumption of liquor. Well, if we wish to attain this end, if we desire to diminish the sale of intoxicating liquors, means must be adopted to prevent the abuses to which I have referred. It has been found in country places that when liquors are allowed to be sold in a store where other goods are sold, this practice was a great cause of drunkenness. If we wish to encourge a misuse of liquors all we have to do is to allow it to be sold in stores, or in hotels, where the sale of other goods will be allowed. It may be proper enough in the cities, but I say it has a very bad effect in the country places, and a distinction ought to be made, to prevent, in country places, the sale of liquors in houses where other goods are sold.

Mr. FOSTER. I move that there be added to sub section 2, of section 25, the following words : "that in cities the Board may dispense, as to hotels, with the necessity of conforming to the provisions of this sub-section."

Mr. DAVIES. I would suggest, instead of that, the following amendment, "unless the Commissioners shall specially, in their license, permit such hotel or saloon to form part of, or communicate with, such shop or store."

Mr. CHARLTON. Sub-section 2 of clause 25, reads as follows: "No hotel or saloon shall form part of or communicate by any entrance with any shop or store where in any goods or meichandise are kept for sale." I suggest that the words "shall form part of" be struck out. This does not prohibit the letting of the basement of an hotel for stores.

Mr. COSTIGAN. I do not think you can carry that in that shape, without amending the law in other respects. The Commissioners have only to decide who shall get licenses, "things. But we have no authority to do that. As the hon.

but they have nothing to do with prescribing the places were licenses shall or shall not be granted.

Amendment to the amendedment (Mr. Davies) negatived.

Amendment (Mr. Foster) negatived.

Mr. CHARLTON moved to strike out of sub-section 2 the words "hotel or."

Amendment agreed to.

On section 42,

Mr. BAKER. I beg to move the following amendment, as a sub-section to section 42:-

"In the city of Victoria, B.O., the limits shall be one for each full 2,200 of the first 8,000 of the population, and for each full 500 over 8,000 of the population "

In the city of Victoria there are at present sixty-four licensed houses, and it is proposed to reduce them to eighteen, which I consider is an exceedingly arbitrary proceeding. I have received telegrams from the Board of Trade and a letter from the municipal council, requesting that this matter be taken in hand, so that a clause may be introduced making the reduction less sweeping. The amendment I propose would have the effect of reducing the number of licenses from sixty-four to about thirty, which the people there think quite a sufficient reduction for the first swoop.

Amendment negatived.

Mr. BAKER. Why was clause 7 withdrawn, because that, to a certain extent, provides for what I have just endeavoured to provide.

Mr. McCARTHY. The Government withdrew it.

Mr. GIROUARD. I beg to move the insertion of the following paragraph at the end of section 43, and this will apply to both 42 and 43 :---

" Provided always, that in the case of a rural municipality adjoining a "Provided always, that in the case of a rural municipality adjoining a town or village municipality, where no shop or hotel licence is granted, or where a less number of licences than is authorized by law is granted, the number of shop or hotel licences for the said village or town may be increased to the maximum provided in this Act, provided that the said increase be approved by a by-law passed to that effect by the respective councils of the village or rural municipality, before the time fixed for the granting of such licences."

Let us take the case of a village, and a township or parish. If the village is not incorporated, the number of licensos in that case would be determined by the population of both the village and the rural district, but if the village is incorporated, the population of the rural district is entirely ignored in determining the number of licenses. It is well known, however, that in most cases the population of the rural district is supplied by the village, and I do not see, since the principle of the Act is that the number of licenses is to be determined by the population, why the rural population should be ignored.

Mr. FISHER. I would like to point out to the hon. gentleman that in the first sub section of section 42 he will find that provision is made for sufficient competition for the rural as well as the village population, and by the fifth subsection of the same clause, special provision is made for summer resorts, such as those in the hon. gentleman's own county. But to make the hon. gentleman's amendment apply to the whole community would be to offer inducements to the building of a nest of hotels or saloons in any country village. Such an amentment would largely do away with the effects of the Act, in limiting the number of licenses, and that in a very insidious way.

On section 11,

Mr. MACKENZIE. The hon. gentleman proposes, by this section, to authorize the municipal councils to ao certain

Mr. McCARTHY. I do not see why we should not have power. The matter decided in the Queen vs. Hodge case, was, that this or any other Parliament can delegate its power to other bodies.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Will the hon. gentleman say that we can give instructions to a provincial municipal body?

Mr. McCARTHY. We do not give them instructions, we merely empower them. The question in the case of the Queen vs. Hodge was whether or not the Provincial Legislature could delegate their functions to an inferior body, and the Privy Council decided that they could, and if they can do it, why cannot we? We are a sovereign power, and these bodies are within our jurisdiction. If we have this power ourselves, we can delegate to a municipal body the same powers that we possess.

Mr. CASEY. I do not think that the decision of the Privy Council in that case maintains the assumption that either we or the Local Legislatures can delegate our powers to any other bodies, except to bodies of our, or their, creation, respectively. The township councils are the creation of the local municipalities, and I do not think we sion in that case.

Mr. MILLS. There is no donbt about our being able to delegate our powers for the purpose of administering our own laws, but we must delegate them to parties under our jurisdiction and under our control. The hon. gentleman shakes his head, but he knows that under the Federal system it has been held that the boundary which separates a provincial establishment from a Federal Government is as distinct as the boundary between one State and another; and so far as this Government is concerned the Provincial Governments within their exclusive jurisdiction, are foreign establishments, and the municipal institutions of the country are unknown to our law. However, the hon. gentleman is proposing nothing on this occasion which has not been proposed in the amendments already adopted. I rise, not for the purpose of contesting the constitutional proceeding under this provision-for I hope we will have an opportunity of doing that at a later stage—but I rise to move an amendment to the second sub-section. Why should it apply to the Province of Quebec and not to the other Provinces? I have no doubt that the proposition to confer this power on the municipal councils shows that this is a power which belongs to the municipal bodies; it is a part of the municipal law of the Province. It was so at the time of Confederation, and there is no doubt that when the British North America Act provided that municipal institutions should be under the control of the Local Government, this provision was under the exclusive control of the Governments of the several Provinces. I propose to strike out the words "in the Province of Quebec," and to insert the words, "in any Province of the Dominion of Canada." I propose that the same powers that are conferred by this Bill upon municipal institutions in the Province of Quebec shall be conferred upon every municipal institution in every other Province of the Dominion. I do not, Sir, attach any very great importance to the amendments of this Bill. I have not taken any very great interest in it, for the reason that I assume that the Bill is ultra vires ; but I think that we ought to deal with all the Provinces in the same way, and I hope that the members from the Province of Quebec who, I believe, are sincerely and honestly devoted to the maintenance of our Federal institutions, will support the amendment. Its adoption will not interfere with our right to deal with this question on its merits hereafter.

Mr McCARTHY. There would be no objection to doing what my hon friend proposes, but for the fact that the Bill that by-law. Mr. MACKENELE, gentleman is aware, such clauses have invariably been does make ample provision for local option throughout the struck out in the Private Bills Committee. does make ample provision for local option throughout the whole Dominion. The people in the Province of Quebec, however, have been in the habit of doing by by-law of the council what in the other Provinces is done by vote of the people. I do not think that councils in Ontario have power to pass a prohibitory law. It was always the case in Ontario, before Confederation, that a by-law for prohibition should be submitted to the people. But in the Province of Quebec it has been the practice of the people to do by bylaw what the people in Ontario do by vote. Both principles are combined in this Bill, and what I propose to do here is to confirm and make clear the powers exercised by by-law in the Province of Quebec, while we have the power to do the same thing in all the other Provinces.

Amendment negatived.

Mr. LAURIER. Will the hon. gentleman explain the meaning of the addition proposed to be made to section 45?

Mr. McCARTHY. Section 45 provides only for confirming such by-laws as existed at the time of Confederation. This addition provides that in every town, village, parish, and township in the Province of Quebec, the municipal council thereof may by by-law prohibit, within the limit of such town, village, parish or township, the sale of intoxicatcould delegate our powers to them, according to the deci- ing liquors. The clause, as it stands, provides for the law up to 1867; the clause in this Bill provides for the future; and now I desire to add a similar provision with reference to the by-laws which have been passed since 1867.

Mr. MACKENZIE. The hon gentleman undertakes to confirm the by-laws of local municipalities. Does he?

Mr. McCARTHY, Yes. Section 45 does so.

Mr. MACKENZIE. That is to say, you did wrong last year and you are doing wrong again this year.

Mr. McCARTHY. My hon. friend's friends all voted for it.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I would certainly vote against doing something that we have no power to do.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. I would suggest that the amondment should except by-laws which are at present in litigition. 1 know of several cases of that kind.

Mr. McCARTHY. I will so amend it.

Mr. MILLS. The Government are proceeding upon the assumption that the powers which the municipalities of Quebec have are powers derived from this Legislature and not from the Legislature of that Province. The hon, gentleman is proposing to confirm by-laws, which he assumes, have not the force of law, because they were authorized by a Provincial Legislature. He proposes to give the manici-palities certain powers; if those powers are vested here, of course it may be possible for us to give them, but if we can give them, we can also take them away. In fact, the Government are proceeding upon the assumption that we are a Legislative Union, and that the powers we are giving the municipalities of Quebec, in reference to the subject of tavern licenses are powers derived from this Legislature and not from the Legislature of their own Province.

Mr. CHARLTON. This whole proceeding is a farce because we are perfecting unconstitutional law, or what we suppose to be an unconstitutional law, in the view that the constitutional question has been decided against us in the. action we are now taking. It is a perfect farce, wasting a whole night in purposeless talk about a law that will never go into operation.

Mr. DAVIES. The effect of this will be that, although a by-law might not be confirmed before the courts of the land because of some informalities, you are legislating to confirm

Amendment agreed to.

Mr. FISHER. I would suggest that the words " restrict " be added to sub-section 2, making it "restrict or prohibit." This will also have to be put in sub section 3.

Amendment agreed to.

On section 12,

Mr. FLEMING. I move, that in the second line, page 5, the words "a majority," be struck out. The section reads "no license shall be granted, save and except in towns and cities, unless a majority of three-fifths," &c. The words, "a majority," should be struck out.

Amendment agreed to.

Mr. GIGAULT. In section 66 of the present law it is provided that no hotel keeper is allowed to sell liquor after seven o'clock on Saturdays. There are many hotels known as summer resorts to which tourists from cities go on Saturday evenings, after seven o'clock, to leave on Monday, and it has been suggested to me, and I think it is right, we should amend this section with respect to these hotels. I move, therefore, that section No. 66 be amended by adding the following words:----

"The Board may authorize any hotel keeper keeping a hotel known as a summer resort, containing a least fifty bedrooms, to sell liquor on Saturdays until eleven o'clock in the evening, from the first of May to the first of October."

Amendment negatived, on a division.

On section 14.

Mr. AUGER. I move that the word "mayor" be added to reeve. There is no reeve in a Quebec county.

Mr. GORDON. There is neither mayor nor reeve in British Columbia. The word "warden" should be inserted to suit British Columbia.

Mr. MILLS. Before we leave that, I would like to ask the hon. member who has charge of the Bill, what the mean-ing of this "stipendiary magistrate" is? As it reads, it would be the stipendiary magistrate of the township.

Mr. McCARTHY. I do not think so. It does not read that way.

Mr. DAVIES. The stipendiary magistrate is generally the official of a city.

Mr. McCARTHY. It is not so with us.

Mr. DAVIES. This does not give the power to a stipendiary magistrate of a city to act at all. The only official is the stipendiary magistrate of a township.

Mr. McCARTHY. Oh, no ; not at all.

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). If you substitute "any" for "the "before "stipendiary magistrate," it would meet the difficulty.

Mr. McCARTHY. I think it is sense now, but we will make it more sensible.

Mr. MILLS. I would like to call the attention of the Minister to an observation that was made during the discussion on the motion of the hon. member for Maskinongé. It was then said we would proceed immediately before the highest court of the land. Mr. Blake asks "how?" Mr. Girouard goes on to say: "It is going to be provided by Bill; it cannot be done otherwise; I presume a Bill will be based upon this Resolution ;" that is, the Resolution proposed by the hon. gentleman, that is a Bill providing for the mode of proceeding for the purpose of deciding the constitutionality of the License Act.

Mr. McCARTHY. I would suggest to the hon. the Minister that the proper way would be to amend the Supreme Court Act, if the terms of that Act already are not another amendment. The license Commissioner at Halifax 201 sufficiently wide to admit of a case being submitted, as possibly they are. Section 52 of the Supreme Court Act, 8ays :

"It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to refer to the Su-preme Court for their opinion, any matter whatsoever, as he may think fit, and the Court shall thereupon consider the same and certify their opinion thereon to the Governor in Council."

If that is not sufficiently wide, I think the better way would be to introduce a new section and amend that Act by giving power to submit this Act or any other Act for the opinion of that Court.

Mr. WELDON. How are you going to carry that to the Privy Council?

Mr. McCARTHY. State a case, by consent of the Governor General and the Lieutenant-Governor, and submit it to the Supreme Court, subject to appeal to the Privy Council.

Mr. WELDON. Will the Privy Council hear it on that? Can we direct the Privy Council to hear a case?

Mr. McCARTHY. There is always an appeal to the Privy Council, unless the right of appeal has been taken away.

Mr. WELDON. In an actual case.

Mr. MILLS. There is no doubt that, under the Act creating the Privy Council, Her Majesty may refer any question to that tribunal; but, in their exercise of their appellate jurisdiction, a case would have to come regularly before them. I do not know whether it would come regularly before them if it were an abstract question of law, as it would be under that particular Act the hor. gentleman has read. I do not think you could appeal from a decision of that sort. You would want a regular case brought before some tribunal in this country, having original jurisdiction, and then taken by way of appeal to the Privy Council.

Mr. McCARTHY. We are now proposing, without any question of our power to do so being raised, to refer the boundary question to the Privy Council, though any litigant may interfere in that as well as we can. It appears to me it would be a good provision, upon the consent of the Governor General and the Lieutenant-Governor, to determine the constitutionality of any Act is that way.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I suggest that we have another Session a little later on, to consider these intricate questions.

Mr. MILLS. Of course, we are referring that by conseut of the two parties. It is not to decide absolutely and formally, but rather as a body of arbitrators, than as the Judicial Committee, because that was stated by the law fficers of the Crown in 1857.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. I must hold that there is nothing before the Chair.

Mr. McCARTHY. I desire to move an amendment to cure a doubt as to whether this law is in force, or affects in any way the provision in force, in the North-West Territories or Manitoba, where no liquor is to be sold, by adding these words to section 141:

"Nor to the North-West Territories, nor to that part of the Province of Manitoba which was added thereto on the well, by the Act passed in the forty-fourth year of Her Majesty's reign, chap. 14, entitled : "Au Act to provide for the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba."

Amendment agreed to.

Mr. MILLS. Will the Minister of Public Works, at this stage, answer the question I put to him some time ago?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. Before the third reading of the Bill, the Government will be ready to answer that question.

Mr. McCARTHY. I will ask the Committee to consent to reports that sixty-nine persons who are entitled to licenses, under the law that existed there before the present Act came into force, have been denied, this year, a license, and he proposes that power should be given to the Commissioners to permit these people to sell out their stock for three months. They have been enjoying a license there under the local law and now coming under this law, a great many of them are deprived of the privilege of selling their stock. Both under the Crooks' Act and in this law there is a provision for a case, where a man has had a license and does not get it again, that he shall have a limited time to sell his stock. I therefore move that the following clause be added :---

"For the present year, 1884, in any case where the Board of any district do not think fit, or are unable, owing to the limit as to the number of licenses to be granted being reached, to authorize the issue of a license to any applicant who has been licensed during the preceding license year or any part thereof, they may nevertheless, by resolution, provide for granting a permit giving a license to such applicant for any specified period of the year, not exceeding three months at their discretion, and such permit, issued under the hand of the chief inspector of the district shall authorize, for the period specified on the resolution of the locard and no longer, the sale of liquors according to the nature of the license held by such applicant during the said preceding year, upon payment or tendering of the proportional part of the duty mentioned in sub-section 2 of section 40 of the said Act."

Mr. FLEMING. I do not think that amendment is necessary if the penalties are to be remitted, pending the decision of the constitutionality of the Act.

Mr. DAVIES. What is the use of that at all, if the Government are going to carry out the pledge they gave the House, that a provision is to be introduced into this Act suspending the penalties until a decision of the Supreme Court is reached?

Mr. AUGER. I think the amendment is useless, because it is provided for in section 39.

Mr. McCARTHY. That provides for the new licenses to be issued under the Act. This is the first year licenses are issued under the Act. The letter I have from the Commissioner, in Halifax, already referred to, states :

"In the license district, city of Halifax, the Board has been compelled to refuse licenses to sixty-nine who have previously held a license from the city. Of these, probably sixty would have received a license had the Board had authority to grant them, under the limit prescribed by the Act, and it will come very hard and occasion much pecuniary loss if such be compelled to dispose of their stock on hand, between this date and first proximo."

Mr. FLEMING. They have until the constitutionality of this Act is determined, to sell off their stock.

Mr. McCARTHY. There is no necessity of remitting the penalties where there is no contest. I am informed there is no contest in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Mr. FLEMING. There must arise a contest everywhere : any individual may raise the question.

Mr. WELDON. I would like to understand the hon. member for Simcoe, for the Government, as I understand, in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, have taken it up. Further than that, in New Brunswick a case has been brought before the court and decided, and I assume that when the constitutionality of the Act is suspended it must be suspended throughout the whole Dominion.

Bill reported.

On the question for the consideration of the amendments,

Mr. DAVIES. If the amendments are to be considered now, we would like to understand from the Minister whether the statement he made is to be received in the sense he expressed himself the other day, or with the limitation the hon. member for Simcoe has put upon it. I certainly understood the hon. gentleman meant what he said the other day, and not what the hon. member for Simcoe now alleges he meant, namely, that those penalties are only to be suspended as regards some of the Provinces and not as regards others.

Mr. McCABTHY.

Mr. McCARTHY. I spoke only for myself; I suppose the House will have to decide shortly where the penalties will have to be suspended. I am only speaking as far as the Bill is concerned, and I made a suggestion to the Minister.

Amendments read the second time and concurred in.

SUPPLY-CONCURRENCE.

Resolutions from Committee of Supply read the second time.

On Resolution 304,

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I was not here when this vote was taken, and I think the Minister stated that the examination had taken place. Such is not the case, and I move that the item be struck out.

Resolution disagreed to.

SECOND READING.

The following Bill was read the second time, considered in Committee and reported :—

Bill (No. 140) respecting the Department of Marine and Fisheries.—(Mr. McLelan.)

SUPPLY.

The House then again resolved itself into Committee of Supply.

(In the Committee.)

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I move that this Resolution be amended by making the sum for the increase of Mr. Thayne's salary $200, thus bringing his salary up to $1,000

Resolution, as amended, agreed to.

IMMIGRATION.

310 Aid to Montreal Women's Protective Society $1,000 00

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. This is the third time this vote has been given for this organization in Montreal, composed of the leading ladies of the city, for the purpose of inducing the immigration of respectable females to Canada. Their operations have been very successful in inducing this class of immigrants to come into the country.

meant, namely, that those penalties are only to be suspended Mr. CARON. When the original Estimates were before as regards some of the Provinces and not as regards others. It is committee, I stated that the vote of $2,000 for sending a team to Shoeburyness had been dropped, and that instead of it, $2,000 would be devoted to the Dominion Rifle Association, for the purpose of sending a team to Wimbledon, and for the purposes of the Association of Canada. The vote of $18,045 is for the purpose of completing the repairs which are required to be made at the different infantry schools-one at Fredericton, one at St. John's, Quebec, and one at Toronto. The vote for the Ottawa rifle ranges is a new vote. Up to the present time, these ranges have been under the charge of the Dominion Rifle Association, and it was really a very heavy charge to be imposed upon the limited means of that association. In view of the fact that all the militia force in this district make use of these ranges for the purpose of rifle practice, it was considered only fair that the Department should relieve the Association from that charge. This vote of $1,800 is very much larger than will afterwards be required to keep the ranges in repair; I do not think that after this we shall require more than $200 or $300. The expenditure is large this year, from the fact that a portion of the property which was leased by the Department was taken back by the lessor, and that it is necessary to remove the targets from their present position to the position in which they will require to be placed, before they can be made use of by the force.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The first item of $47,660.22 should disappear, as it is more a book account than anything else. This amount, with the two succeeding amounts, were charged against the vote of $259,000 that was voted by Parliament as an advance to be made to the Government of British Columbia on account of the Esquimalt dock; but under the new arrangements that ceases, and therefore these amounts of $134,512.66 and $7,000 should be charged to another account. The last item is the amount that is estimated by the Chief Engineer of my Department as necessary to complete the Esquimalt dock.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What is the total cost to be?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. This is the total cost, so I am informed by the Chief Engineer.

PORT ABTHUR.

315 Amount required for the construction of Port Arthur Harbour and dredging the Kaministiquia River...... $150,000 00

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The object of this vote is to build a breakwater at Port Arthur, in order to make it a complete harbour, able to shelter the vessels that come there in large numbers, and will come in larger numbers now. The Canadian Pacific Railway have already built large works there, that have cost them over $100,000, I am told. They are also erecting other works at Kaministiquia, because the two places, which are only three or four miles apart, will really form only one harbour to the Kaministiquia river. I understand that bulky articles, such as coal, will be landed there and sent to Winnipeg. A portion of the vo'e will be expended in dredging the bar of the Kaministiquia, which will most likely cost $10,000 or $15,000. Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. So it has been discovered that the river, for articles of heavy transport, is an exceedingly useful harbour. I will not say the hon. gentleman now learns that for the first time, but it must be news to his colleagues and supporters. Still, I think he is doing a wise thing.

Mr. CHARLTON. What will the breakwater cost?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The whole work will cost about $250,000. The local authorities at Port Arthur have subscribed $25,000.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What size is it to be? Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. At least 1,500 or 1,600 feet long.

Mr. CHARLTON. What depth of water inside the breakwater and the bar of the Kaministiquia will you have when this will be expended?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. I cannot say, but I know the water is very deep there. The depth at the entrance to the river will be 16 or 17 feet.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

316 Cape Tormentine Harbour, N.B... $150,000 00

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. This is a work required to communicate between the Island and New Brunswick.

Mr. DAVIES. Has there been a survey?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. Yos.

Mr. DAVIES. Where is the harbour and pier to be built?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. There is the railway-

Mr. DAVIES. The railway does not come down that far, but is waiting for the terminus to be settled. As there has been a good deal of dispute about the proper place, I would ask the Government whether they have settled on a place and what the length of the pier will be?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. It will not require to be a long pier. It will be necessary to construct a wharf at Cape Tormentine, about 2,100 feet long, which will cost about $147,000; there will be 700 feet of wharf available for vessels, and the depth of water will be 10 or 12 feet at low water, in spring tide.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I observe these two items are charged to capital account. In the case of all the harbours constructed on the Upper Lakes, they have been invariably charged to income.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. I do not see why those large amounts should be charged to revenue. They are permanent works, the same as railways, and our children and grandchildren must help us to pay a little portion.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. We are putting a great deal on our grandchildren within the last few weeks. Cape formentine is no different from Goderich or Southhampton, yet those were charged to income. Is the hon. gentleman going to make a new departure and charge every saleable harbour to capital account?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. I do not suppose we will have many of these.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I do not see any ground for the distinction he is making. These other works to which I have referred, have cost several hundreds of thousands of dollars, and they were works very closely analogous to Port Arthur, at any rate.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The piers at Halifax, for example, though they were piers and some did not cost this amount, were charged to capital. Why? Because they were connected with the railway. 1604

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. They were part of the Intercolonial, or were supposed to be.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. This is really a portion of the Island Railway, because you must have a place for the steamers to cross. Then, Port Arthur is a harbour connected with the railway as well. I think these are chargeable to capital; there is good reason for it.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Certainly not, in the case of Port Arthur.

Mr. CHARLTON. There seems to be a tendency to lessen the amount apparently chargeable to Consolidated Fund by charging these amounts to capital when they ought to be charged to Consolidated Fund. I hold that the Government are not warranted in doing this. It creates confusion in our financial statements, and the comparisons between the expenditure of the different years cannot properly be made. The present Government have charged $600,000 for Dominion lands to capital which were formerly charged to income, and here are other instances where these gentlemen may conceal one or two million dollars of expenditure in a year or two, by charging to capital what ought to be charged to Consolidated Revenue. I protest against this mode of manipulating and doctoring the accounts. They ought to honestly charge to Consolidated Fund what was formerly charged to it, and not to conceal the immense sums they are expending, by resorting to these shifts.

Sir LEONARD TILLY. The $10,000 and the $4,000 above are charged to capital by the mistake of the clerk, who placed them under that head. They will be transferred.

Mr. CHARLTON. The amount for Port Arthur harbour is charged to capital account.

Mr. DAVIES. Do I understand the wharf will be 2,100 feet in length ?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. 1 will read from the Report: "For the protection of the steamer and the shipping, it will be necessary to construct a wharf at Cape Tormen. tine, about 2,100 feet in length, estimated cost $147,148, which will give 700 feet of wharf, with a depth of 10 to 12 feet at low water, spring tides."

Mr. VAIL. What Dominion buildings are these at Halifax?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The public buildings there belong to the Government. These are for changes and improvements.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. The Custom house and post office.

Mr. VAIL. It is only one building.

Mr. VAIL. Is it intended to make such an arrangement as to give the postmaster there an office to himself?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. Yes, it is.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What is to be the total cost of this South Sydney building?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. With the lot, I suppose between $18,000 and $20,000.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. Yes. There has been a report made by an officer of the Department on the walls.

Mr. DAVIES. The local officer, Mr. Sterling?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. Yes. He has been instructed to take steps to remove such portions of the walls as are threatening, and to report upon the position of the walls, whether they are good still, and upon the foundations, and in the meantime sketches are being prepared and instructions received from the Departments that are to use that building, in order to know the requirements of each Department. This is only towards construction.

Mr. DAVIES. The hon. gentleman has not quite determined whether any portion of the existing structure can be utilized or not?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. No; because I do not know how it stands. It will have to be very good if it is to be used.

Mr. DAVIES. I hope so. I know Mr. Sterling is a very competent man, but many fears have been expressed that an attempt might be made to use some of the old portions and so spoil the building.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The old Luilding has been burnt down, and it would be only if the walls were very good that they would be used; otherwise they will be knocked down and the foundations used if they are good.

Mr. DAVIES. I suppose the style of architecture will be pretty much the same as that of the old building?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. I cannot say. We will try to make it a credit to us and the Island.

Mr. DAVIES. The old building was a very handsome one.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. Yes; it will cost that, $2,650.

Mr. FISHER. What is the nature of the expenditure upon the St. Vincent de Paul Ponitentiary ?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. We will require additional material for the walls of the west dormitory, $1,300; materials for building, $300. Then an amount of $4,000 is asked for the conversion of the dining hall. Then we will purchase property to extend the penitentiary. There is a property next to it that we can have now for $3,500, and as it is very convenient, we do not wish to lose the opportunity of buying it.

Mr. WILSON. In that item there is no further grant for the buildings at St. Thomas. Somewhere about $18,000 have been expended, and certainly you will require more than that to complete the buildings. That does not amount to the original contractor's estimate. It seems to be evident that the object is not to complete the buildings in 1884 or 1885.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. I have consulted with the Chief Architect of my Department about this, and he reports to me that on account of the slow progress made by the contractor, he does not think that more money than the amount voted in the general Estimates for 1884 85 will be required, and therefore we do not ask for any more this year.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. In the county of Colchester.

Mr. VAIL. Where is Port Greville ?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. In the county of Cumberland.

Mr. VAIL. Would the Minister inform me if, before making this estimate, he considered the application that has been made from several places in Digby county, for instance, Sandy Cove, George Point, Salmon River, and other places. I do not see anything for Sandy Cove. The people there subscribed $800 or $900 themselves last year, and I understood the Minister last year to say that this year something would be done for them. They are very important works. But I am inclined to think they will share the fate of the Ingonish wharf, where something like $80,000 was lost for the want of a larger sum to complete the works.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. All these places were submitted to the Council, and the Council decided that those works should be undertaken for which we have made the estimates now presented to the House. If any of the piers are in danger of being carried away, it is a reason for asking for more money to put them in repair. I will not name any, but the hon. gentleman will see some on the list that he knows well.

Mr. VAIL. Really, I do not see any mention made of them. I observe that the two Ministers from Nova Scotia have been careful to look after their own interests, and both have received grants. For instance, the county of Colchester received last year $5,000, and this year it gets $5,000. I think she has but one harbour, and that is closed a considerable portion of the year. Then there is Port Greville, in the county represented by the other Minister. I think it is only fair they should have considered some of the other counties in Nova Scotia.

Mr. McLELAN. The hon. gentleman must know that the county of Digby has shown in almost every Estimate in the House since Confederation, and even previous to Confederation large sums of money were voted by the Local Government to Digby piers and Digby wharves. There are perhaps twenty or thirty harbours in the county of Colchester that have never yet had any grants for public wharves in any of those harbours, and this is the first.

Mr. VAIL. My hon. friend will acknowledge that the only side of Colchester county at all exposed, to the east, is that portion of it on the Bay of Chaleurs.

Mr. McLELAN. The hon. gentleman is entirely wrong. Both sides of it are exposed, one for thirty miles and the other for twenty miles.

Mr. VAIL. The upper end of it is frozen, and vessels never pretend to approach it in the winter season at all. In the county of Digby there are six important piers that are washed by the Atlantic, and the harbours are open from year's end to year's end. The people are constantly shipping in winter, as well as in summor, and it is very essential that these public works should be kept up in the interest of trade and commerce.

Mr. WILSON. I desire to call the attention of the Minister to the fact that frequent representations have been made respecting required improvements at Port Stanley and Port Burwell harbours. The applications made by the petitioners should have been considered and something done. Government engineers have been there, but they made no report to the Government. If no appropriation can be made this year, I hope the Government will send an engineer to make an examination.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The matter has been looked into since deputations waited on me, and we have determined to send an engineer to report.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What is intended to be done with the $5,000 for an examination of projected improvements between Mattawan and Lake Temiskaming?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. A large deputation of members of Parliament and lumbermen waited on me in regard to this matter. They are urging the establishment of communication between Mattawan and Lake Temiskaming, a distance of about forty-five miles. They ask that some examination may be made, so that the scheme may be considered by the Government. They consider it is a most feasible work. By that means a large stretch of water will be made available for steamers and other craft, and it will facilitate also the settlement of the country. It is intended to construct a sort of reservoir, so as to assist the descent of lumber. There are two schemes; one a very extensive one, which would involve the expenditure of a very large sum; but there is another, by which a very important improvement could be made at a very moderate outlay.

Mr. MILLS. Will the surveyors be instructed to ascertain whether communication can be made between Lake Abittibi and Lake Temiskaming.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. I do not see that $5000 will be sufficient to cover that additional work; but the engineers might be instructed to make a very hasty examination as to the character of the country, and then we could decide whether a more thorough examination might not be desirable.

Mr. CHARLTON. What is the nature of the improvements, and where are they to be made.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. We have expended money already for the removal of rocks, between the Forks of the Saskatchewan and Edmonton, and also on the south branch. Amongst the works required, but which have not yet been undertaken, are wing-dams, in order to increase the depth of water in the river. I understand from Mr. Brydges, who has shown much interest in the work, that the money expended last year has produced very good results; and we may expect from this additional sum even more important results. This work need not be carried on year after year, but if it is continued, so as to carry out the improvements desired, an amount of $30,000 or $40,000 will have to be granted in future years.

Mr. CHARLTON. I think we should have some expla-nation of this vote. Was this amount for work done outside of the regular contract.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. This was for work done outside, from 1873-74, until about the end of 1878 or 1879. They claim that they should have performed the work and judgment was given in their favour.

Mr. CHARLTON. When was the claim made.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I think it was between 1878 and 1879.

Mr. CHARLTON. Have they any other claims of this kind?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. No; they relinquished all claims down to three or four months ago.

Mr. CHARLTON. I understand that they are about to set up a claim for profits on something like $250,000, given out in the same way, on which, in addition to the Government paying double prices for the work, the firm will pro-bably claim $60,000 or $70,000 profits. I understand that the contract at the present time is in precisely the same form as the one under which this was recovered.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. They have no claim against us, and I am not aware of any arrangement being made, since 1879, by which 25 per cent. was to be paid with regard to work which was sub-let.

Mr. DAVIES. Why does the hon. gentleman say they had no claim?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. They made a relinquishment of their claim about four months ago, and the papers were laid on the Table a week or ten days ago.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The hon. gentleman said that these men had not sub-let. Perhaps not, but we have found out that it is clear that the Government have been paying five or six times the genuine value of the work, over and over again, for printing done outside, for the pur-pose of aiding and assisting their particular friends. For instance, there is the case of the Montreal Gazette Company, an important member of which is a member of this House.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. That was all certified by the Queen's Printer, as was done under the late Government.

Mr. MILLS. I would like to ask the Finance Minister whether he is not aware that the Citizen Company had a contract for printing several thousand immigration pamphlets for the Department of the Interior, whether they have not been paid for that work, and whether, up to this hour, they have printed the pamphlets for which they have been paid?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I am not aware of anything of the kind.

Mr. CHARL/TON. Is it not the case that this company were paid three times over, and left their forms standing?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I know nothing of that.

Mr. CHARLTON. I think it is to be regretted that the Government should allow this kind of work to go on. I think they deserve consure for giving out this work at prices three or four times as great as the prices paid to the Government contractors, besides leaving those contractors a chance to sue for damages for the loss of the work.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. When such an item as this appeared against the late Government, I am sure my hon. friend supported it.

Mr. CHARLTON. The perpetration of wrong by one party does not justify another party in perpetrating the same wrong. If the previous Government did wrong, I would advise the present Government to change.

Mr. DAVIES. Will the Minister of Finance tell me whether the rates for printing, now paid McLean, Roger & Co., are the same as those paid from 1873-74 to 1878-79?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. The rates are lower, I think. Mr. DAVIES. And whether or not any consideration was given to them for relinquishing their claim?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. No consideration. The only consideration was, that they asked in the present contract for the transfer from Mr. Drummond, to which the Government refused to consent, until they would relinquish all claims they might have under that contract.

Mr. DAVIES. Can the hon. Minister give me the items for the different years, from 1873 71 to 1878 79?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I cannot; the matter has been before the courts.

Mr. DAVIES. But I dare say the hon. gentleman has seen the claim.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. No; I never saw it. The Minister of Justice may have seen it. They are also claiming interest on the amount, which the Government are resisting.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. How long is their contract to run?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I think about a year.

346 To provide the expenses of an expedition (by water) to Hudson Bay, to test the prac-ticability of the route for commercial purровев $70,000 00

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. When is this expedition to start?

Mr. McLELAN. This spring.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Are arrangements made for it to be in the waters of Hudson Bay in the month of June?

Mr. McLELAN. Arrangements are being made.

Mr. DAVIES. Is the hon. Minister purchasing a vessel or chartering one?

Mr. McLELAN. If we can get a suitable vessel, we shall charter it. Enquiries have been made as to what vessels are available, and they will be examined in a few days.

Mr. DAVIES. Has any arrangement been made as to the gentleman who is to have command of this vessel?

Mr. McLELAN. If we charter a vessel, it is probable that the owners will furnish the sailing capital. Then there will be some scientific man to take charge of the expedition.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What is this for?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. It is an appropriation for the Academy of Arts. They wanted $5,000. It may probably be for an annual exhibition, but it is not decided yet exactly how it is to be disposed of.

Mr. DAWSON. This orphanage is maintained by subscriptions from a distance, and the number of pupils is from thirty-five to forty. For a long time it has received $200 yearly, and I would like to enquire whether this $300 is intended to cover the whole amount they are to receive, so that it will be only $100, in addition to the pittance they get now, or is the whole amount an addition, making $509 altogether.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I cannot answer the question, in the absence of the leader of the Government

British Columbia.

Mr. BAKER (Victoria). I would like to ask upon whose recommendation this amount was put in the Estimates?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I cannot answer-probably on the recommendation of the Indian Commissioner there.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Mr. MITCHELL. There was a notice on the paper yesterday which was given by the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald in relation to the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada. When that motion was passed over, I asked why it was passed over, and the right hon. gentleman said it would be taken up to-morrow. Now we have reached to-morrow, and we have come to the order of the introduction of Bills, and I want to know what course is going to be taken with reference to the Bill on the paper intituled "An Act to amend an Act of the present Session respecting the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada," and to suspend all the Rules respecting Private Bills in connection therewith.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I do not know that the hon. gentleman has any right to ask me about it, but I will tell him. I hope there will be no necessity for my moving that Bill, but if there is a necessity, I will move it to morrow.

Mr. MITCHELL. To-morrow again. I make just one remark in reply to the hon. gentleman. He says he does not know what right I have to ask. I think it is the right of any gentleman occupying a seat in this House, when the Session is so near its close, to ask what course is going to be pursued with reference to a matter that affects the interest of Canada and the business of this House.

PUBLIC WORKS OF CANADA.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN moved the third reading of Bill (No. 134) further to amend the Act 31 Vic., cap. 12, intituled: An Act respecting the Public Works of Canada (from the Senate).

Mr. DAVIES. As the amendments I proposed yesterday in Committee did not meet with the approval of the First Minister, I beg to move that the Bill be not now read the third time, but be referred back to the Committee of the Whole to be amended in the direction suggested by the Minister of Public Works, by adding the words " provided that no such sale or lease shall prejudice or affect any right or privilege of any riparian owner." The First Minister, in the remark he made yesterday did not, I think, apprehend the effect which the passage of this Bill would have in respect to any grants made under it. He said that by the decision of the Supreme Court, the Crown was held to pos-sess the ownership of this soil, and could not grantee rights which it did not confer on any possess. But the decision of the Supreme Court goes no further than this-that the Crown, as represented by the Dominion of Canada, possesses rights formerly possessed by the Provincial Governments. The Crown, represented by the Provincial Governments, only held the rights of the fore shore in trust for the public, and had no power to confer them upon anybody. Now Parliament steps in and pro-poses to confer a right which the Crown did not possess before, viz., to sell the fore shore to a third party. If that Beaty, Belléau, right is exercised, the grantee under this Act will possess a Bergin, right which the Crown before the passage of this Act did not possess. But I think this amendment will meet the case. Billy, Blondeau, Bolduc, Bill recommitted, amended, reported and read the third time and passed.

DEPARTMENT OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.

Mr. McLELAN moved the third reading of Bill (No. 140) respecting the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I do not want to detain the House unnecessarily, but I have listened attentively to the explanations given by the hon. gentleman as to this measure, I have endeavoured to the best of my power to consider what is the necessity for the introduction of this Bill which, to all intents and purposes, is a measure for the creation of an additional Department, and I have not the slightest doubt, from former experience, that the result will be practically to add many thousands of dollars to our already exorbitant expenditure for Civil Government. Very possibly, in the fullness of time, having created an additional Department, having provided an additional Deputy-Head, having given half-a dozen additional officers double the salary they now postess, we will find it will be necessary to add a Minister for the purpose of minding the machine properly. At any rate, I see quite clearly that the result of this will be without, as far as I sidies to the Provinces be received.

can judge, adding at all to the efficiency of the service, to add a large sum to the annual public expenditure. I do not think any case has been made out in this House, I do not think any good will result from it, I see no reason at all why this should not be managed as a branch of the Marine and Fisheries Department as it has been hitherto; moreover I feel we are going on at a rate which cannot fail to land us in very serious embarrassment. In the last four or five years, beginning with an expenditure for Civil Government of $823,000, we have reached this year an expendi-ture of $1,160,000, and if all the items which properly belong to it were included, our expenditure would reach fully $1,200,000 a year for Civil Government alone. Therefore, without delaying the House further, who are naturally and pardonably impatient, I beg to move that this Bill be not now read the third time but that it be read the third time this day six months.

Bill read the first time.

SUPPLY-CONCURRENCE.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY moved that the House concur in the following Resolutions, reported from Committee of Supply, and postponed :---

Mr. MULOCK, in moving

That the said item be reduced by $3,359, being 5 per cent. on $29,509, the cost of the High Commissioner's residence, and 15 per cent. on $12,500, the cost of the furniture for the High Commissioner's residence, said: It will be remembered that, when this item came up in Committee on the 20th March, the following occurred, as appears by Hansard. Mr. Blake states as follows:—

"Originally house rent, fuel and taxes were paid directly by the Government, but subsequently an arrangement was made by an Order in Council giving a lump sum of $3,500, in lien of bouse rent, fuel and taxes, and since that time we have paid practically the whole amount of $4,000 in a lump sum. Is it intended this amount shall cover those expenses?"

Sir John A. Macdonald answers "yes." Since that item was under consideration, the House has voted $29,500 for the purchase of a house and $12,500 for the purchase of furniture for that house. If, therefore, we purchase a house for the High Commissioner, it is clearly our duty to reduce the item which, up to that time, included house rent for the High Commissioner; otherwise we are doubly paying rent for the house of the High Commissioner. As to the amount mentioned in the resolution, 5 per cent. on the capital amount of $29,500 amounts to $1,475. I should think that is not an unreasonable rate at which to charge the High Commissioner, as it were, or to deduct from the appropriation to the High Commissioner for house rent. As to the interest on the furniture, that I estimate at 15 per cent., being I think not too high, considering the rent charged for furniture. Certainly it does not represent more than the depreciation and interest upon the money. Interest at that rate upon the item of $12,500, the amount voted for the furniture, is $1,875, the two items making $3,350.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. It is the intention of the Government to deduct the interest on whatever the building and furniture may cost, but, while we have some idea of what the building will cost, at present it is only an estimate with reference to what the furniture may cost. It is an outside estimate, and it is expected that the whole will probably not cost what the House has voted. Under the cirbably not cost what the House has voted. Under the circumstances, you cannot sit down and make a calculation, you cannot say what the amount to be deducted is, when you do not know what the principal may be; but we state that out of the $4,000 is to be deducted the interest on the outlay for the building and the furniture. In reference to the rate of 15 per cent., I think it is somewhat excessive. I will be quite willing, when I have to give place to my hon. friend who has moved the amendment, to let him have my furniture at 15 per cent. a year.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Let him have it for 15 per cent. deducted for each year you have it.

Indians, Manitoba and the North-West......$688,271 70

Mr. MACKENZIE. The hon. gentleman was to bring me some information as to the amount asked for schools, as to where they were required. He was not able at the time to say. It was not an item in the Indian estimates, and no other schools were aided that I was aware of except the missionary schools.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I really did not understand from my hon. friend that I was to furnish the information as to where the schools were to be situated. There is a reduction of $7,000 on the Indian schools this year.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I have not the item before me, but there was an item evidently for public schools, because the vote for schools in connection with the Indians was not in the Indian vote.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. This is the Indian vote. The only enquiry I think was made by the hon. member for Bothwell (Mr. Mills) as to the farms. There were originally twenty-six farms for the instruction of the Indians in the North-West. At present only seventeen are in operation, seven having been closed. The amount expended on the farms will be found in the details in the annual report of the Department.

Mr. MILLS. The report gives, not the product of the farm simply, but the product of the reservation in the immediate vicinity of the farm. If the product of the farm is included in the report, there is no distinction made between the product on the Indian reservations and the product on the farms in charge of these particular farmers. It seems to me we ought to know what each farmer is doing, and, if he is not succeeding in accomplishing the object of the Government, then we ought to know precisely why it is he has failed to do so. The hon. gentle-man has not given the information that I specially asked for. I asked his attention to the fact that there is a charge in the Public Accounts of $80,000 for implements and supplies for those farms. Now it is a very extraordinary thing, those farms having been in operation for several years, that there should be so large an expenditure for supplies. Certainly the farmers are not even paying their way, to say nothing about purchasing supplies or aid to the Indians, when we find that nearly $81,000 has been expended in a single year supplying those farmers with such necessaries as they may require. Now it is very desirable that we should have a statement, not only of the operation of those farms, but also of the aid they have received from Government, what each particular farmer has obtained, what has been expended upon flour, provisions, cattle, agri-cultural implements, &c. What is the character of the is capable of doing almost anything required to be done on a farm, upon the Indian reservation-not upon a separate and distinct farm-to see that the Indians are properly instructed in their work, that they engage in their agricultural pursuits and do something towards providing themselves with the means of subsistence. A man with some force of character who is trusty and industrious, I have no doubt could, by labouring upon the reservation and by directing the labour of the Indians, do a great deal towards diminishing the expenses of the Government. Those farms have been now in operation upwards of four years-the hon. gentleman shakes his head, but he will remember that he asked a vote for those farms in 1879, and that is five years ago. At that time the farmers were appointed, and the next year we discussed the character of some of those parties whom he had appointed-I think one or two had been merchants from the county of Peel who had failed in business. And now I call the hon. gentleman's attention to the fact that to supply those men with appliances for the purpose of carrying on their farming operations last year, a charge of $80,000 was made upon the Public Treasury. Now if those farmers had gone into the North West as ordinary settlers they would have been obliged to pay their own way and provide for themselves the means of subsistence; and it does seem to me a very extraordinary condition of things that four years after their appointment, and after those farms had been established, a charge of $80,000 is made upon the Public Treasury to provide those men with the means of subsistence.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I do not know that it will answer any good purpose to renew this discussion. We had it all the other day when the hon. gentleman stated fully what he now states again. He objects to those farms; it is a question of policy upon which the hon. gentleman and myself cannot agree. He asks for information respecting the public farms, the quantity produced, and the details of the expenditure. Well, I have given the hon. gentleman, as furnished me by the responsible officers of the Department, the references where all these details are to be found.

Mr. MILLS. The hon. gentleman has only given part of the information asked for; his information does not give the amount expended, and the purpose for which it was expended.

Resolution concurred in.

On Resolution 176, .

Expenses of Government in N.W. Territories..... $32,000 00

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I was asked for information which I was unable to furnish at the time about this additional $5,000. This sum is asked for on the recommendation of the Indian Commissioner, and is altogether for aid to schools in the North-West-to schools in the various settlements in the North-West outside Manitoba.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Have you any details as to the manner in which the money is to be expended, or is it merely a general vote?

Sir RICHARD CART WRIGHT. At whose disposal is the money?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. It will be placed at the disposal of the Lieut.-Governor, the Commissioner of the North-West; but we will take care that he consults his council, which is partly elected now. They have to provide certain funds for schools, and this money will be divided, I suppose, on the same principle as Government aid to schools in Ontario. Mr. MACKENZIE. There is no local ordinance on the subject yet, I suppose?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I think they have.

Resolution concurred in.

On Resolution 225,

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Some considerable objection was taken to that item, which appeared to involve the very questionable doctrine of paying the claims of returning officers, and we were to have some further statement on Concurrence.

Mr. CHAPLEAU. I do not think it would be worth while to detain the House a long time on this question. It may be stated in a few words. Certain returning officers made a return of their accounts of the various expenditures incurred by them and of the services rendered by them during the Election of 1882, and difficulties arose as to the correctness of their accounts. I need mention but few of the items disputed by hon. gentlemen opposite. For instance, the main discrepancy in the accounts was for the sub-division of the electoral polling districts of the city of Montreal, where a sum varying from $150 or $180 to $360 was charged by three returning officers in Montreal, that did not meet the approval of the Auditor General, who held that this payment had not been contemplated by law. But the work had been done and the extra work was this : In other districts the municipal authorities are obliged to give lists to the registrars, and the registrars give them to the returning officers, and out of these the divisions are made. In Montreal such is not the case. The electoral district of Montreal East has over 14,000 electors. The lists prepared by the city authorities are not prepared according to electoral divisions in accordance with the Dominiou Election Act. After a returning officer receives those lists he is obliged to make an actual survey of the city, ward by ward, and sub-divide it so that each electoral sub-division shall not include more than 200 voters. That item is sufficient to show that the amount claimed by the returning officer was for work done, but payment for which, in the view of the Auditor-General, was not exactly covered by the Act. On account of that part of the work the returning officer charged $360, every item of which is detailed in a special memorandum. Out of this amount of $360 only $150 was at first allowed ; a subsequent amount was afterwards allowed and there was a balance of $270. Necessary printing was charged $117; and necessary service of assistants in preparing the list cost $60. Out of a total account of $1,457, the amount charged by one of the returning officers, $705 remained in dispute with the Auditor-General, the legality of the payment for which not being yet determined. I may mention this instance to the House: The printing costs were refused payment as being either extravagant or illegal. The printer sued the returning officer. The Government were notified of the suit; a counsel was chosen; the case went before the court, and judgment was rendered for the plaintiff for $117 and costs. Every precaution was taken that the legality of the charges made should be tested before the court, nevertheless the plaintiff won the suit. Judg-ment was taken against the returning officer and even seizure was threatened; by a compromise it was not executed, but it is still pending against that officer. I mention only the case of one returning officer, but there are others in almost the same position with the difference of a few dollars in their respective accounts. The third account amounted to a little over $2,050. Under the circumstances the defendants asked the legal opinion of an ex-Minister of Justice who was said to have prepared the Electoral Act-Mr. Laflamme.

Mr. MACKENZIE. That gentleman did not prepare the host of people, though it is not sufficient to pay these par-Election Act; it was done by the present Chief Justice of ticular claims. Quebec.

Mr. CHAPLEAU. At all events we have the fact that an ex-Minister of Justice has given his opinion that the returning officers have a colourable right to the payment of these accounts. The Government are not ready to say that these accounts are correct in every particular; for they have to be examined and discussed. The question which the House has to decide is whether we should vote $2,000 en bloc to cover the expenditure mentioned in this account and other similar accounts, because I understand there are some other accounts amounting to a certain sam. The Auditor-General has sent a gentleman to Montreal to make a preliminary enquiry. The returning officers assert that this enquiry was ex parte, and that all the facts and evidence were not placed before the Commissioner. I said the other day there was a rather curious provision in the Act. Clause 126, which speaks of accounts which can be paid to a returning officer, mentions in sub-section 20 that expenses can be paid for services rendered under section 64. I only make these remarks because the other day it was mentioned that the details should be given, and that the legal opinion on the subject should be placed before the House. I am ready to give these details and the opinion of the legal gentleman.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I did not ask for the details which the hon. gentleman has given. The case which the hon. gentleman mentioned appears to have this peculiarity, that some of the lists in Montreal were not the same as those for the sub-divisions in the last General Election-they were different from the municipal divisions. Now we know that since the Gerrymander Act was passed there are a large number of counties which are different for the Local Legislature from those for the Federal Parliament, and if this account is right then there should be accounts from others also. I do not accuse the hon. gentleman of not laying the matter fully before the House, because I think he has done so, but I cannot understand why there should be accounts only from Montreal when a number of other electoral divisions were in the same position.

Mr. CHAPLEAU. I understand that the claims will not be granted unless a legal right is shown.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Does this cover only one electoral division?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. No, there are claims from Algoma, British Columbia, and other places.

Mr. MILLS. It seems extraordinary that the Government should ask special votes in this House on the ground that the law is defective, and yet they do not bring in an amendment correcting the law.

Mr. CHAPLEAU. The legal gentleman whom I mentioned has said the account could be paid under the existing law, though there are certainly some legal difficulties with regard to section 126 which did not apply to the Election Act.

Mr. CURRAN. I regret that this sum is not destined solely for the returning officers in the city of Montreal, because it is less by some hundreds of dollars than is legally due to these gentlemen, for money paid out of their own pockets. and to meet judgments which have been delivered against and to meet judgments which have been delivered against them in the courts. Nobody has ventured to say that these accounts were not proper, legal, and legitimate accounts, or that they were overcharged in any way; and if they are not paid it will be impossible in future to get respectable men to be returning efficers in Montreal, if they are to harassed in this way before receiving their money. In spite of all the opinions given that the law covers this case, we find that this amount is to be divided amongst a whole Mr. CHAPLEAU. Mr. CHAPLEAU,

I have brought these papers and will read to the House the evidence in regard to the St. Andrews :

evidence in regard to the St. Andrews: "The basis of claim was that the loss was caused by negligence on the part of some of the officers on the canal, and failure to maintain in efficient condition certain floats or tenders, provided to keep vessels from striking the rough rock edges in the bank of the canal, between Port Colborne and Stonebridge. The official arbitrators gave an award in favour of claimants, finding that negligence had been shown by the canal officers, charg d with the management of the floats. In support of the plea of negligence John B. Smith, Deputy Superintend-ent of the Welland Oanal, states: "The object of float tenders is to protect vessels from damsge against the jagged sides of the canal in rock cuttings They should be placed floating on the water aga nst the rock, or solid backing; they rise an 1 fall with the water in the canal. In case, at any time, the inner edge of the floats should lodge on the projections of the bank, they should be shoved off. I would not consider that the canal men did their duty unless they shoved them off." "William Ellis, Superintendent of Welland Canal, stated: 'Floats are placed on the water not on the bank. They have no business on the placed on the water not on the bank. They have no business on the bank (except for repairs). They are not made for that purpose. I would not consider the float to be in a proper position during the season of narigation. The inner edge should not rest on the top of the bank, would not consider the noat to be in a proper position during the beason of navigation. The inner edge should not rest on the top of the bank, or any part of it; every part must be floating to protect fully the vessels. When these floats are in proper position it is impossible for the hull of a vessel to run foul of the rocks without first smashing the floats.' "Alexander Hamilton, Overseer of the division of the canal, when the accident occurred states: 'His duty was to examine cor dition of the floats regularly. Could not say how long it was before the accident when he last inspected them. Did not think he had ever missed more than a week. Examined the floats on the day of the accident after it happened. They were all right except that the water had fallen away and left them lying on the bank. On a glant. The lower edge was in the water, the other resting on the bank. The floats were not fastened in the usual manner. I think that the water going down parted the chain and that a stake was driven down to fasten it.' "Charles Carter, Harbour Master, Port Colborne, states: 'He exam ned the floats after the accident. The floats were lying nearly flat on the top of the rock as the water was down about 'three feet ; they would be about one foot above the water.' "Question. You say then that none of the floats were in the water that day?

day? "Answer. I think they were not within 300 or 400 feet of the bridge. Some of them might have huvg over, but I do not think they touched the water.'

That is the ovidence; in fact, there was no doubt that the St. Andrews ran upon the jagged rock at the side, tore off a portion of the planking, and sank. In the case of the Jennie Graham, the evidence is as follows :---

"The claim is based on the negligence of the person in charge of the canal. The claiments charge that a hole was knocked in the vessel at or in the Allanburg Lock by her striking upon some portion of a broken gate remaining in the water, which had not been removed. "W. Hurley, twers keeper, village of Allanburg, states to the effect that he was standing at the lock when the Jennie Graham entered the lock." She forthough the the is fast for time the hold mean the lock and went through without aimenity. "Captain Flett, captain of the Sylvester Neelon, testified that he tried to enter the Allanburg Lock after the Jennie Graham, but could not get in. He thereupon backed out Bruce and Higgens, lock tenders, got a raft, and felt around in the lock to try if there was any tenders, got a raft, and felt around in the lock to try if there was any obstruction in the way. They found a piece of iron casting. It was a large piece of iron; there were two prongs, one, I think, partly broken. There was also a piece of wood, with a piece of iron attached to it like a roller. If the vessel came down on the prongs between the frames, the prongs would go through the vessel's bottom. Had no difficulty in entering lock after removal of the obstructions found found.

"John Whelan and John Bengough, ship carpenters by trade, testify that the hole in the bottom of the Jennie Graham was such as would be made by her setting down on the iron casting found in the lock." "William Higgins, lock-tender, Allanburg, was present when the Jennie Graham was backing out of the lock, and also when the Sylvester Neelon tried to enter; confirms the evidence of Hurley and Captain Flett, that the Neelon struck as the J-nnie Graham had, and was backed out of the lock. Was out of the lock. Mr. Bruce and I got a float and searched the lock. We found a mullion with part of an iron valve frame attached. We also found a small flat piece of iron. We began our search when the Nector pulled up. Thought it was the obstructions we found which stopped the Jennie Graham. The whole four lock-gates were broken in Septem-bar Mr. Bruce is dead Mr. Bruce is dead. ber.

ber. Mr. Bruce is dead. "David R. Bruce, assistant lock-tender, was with his father when the Jennie Graham sank at the lock at Allanburg. When she first attempted to enter the lock a tug was shoving her. I think she struck about half way; they then carried a line to a tug above the lock, and the two pulled and shoved. My father raised the valves to let the water in. The vessel did not get in, and they backed her out. As soon as the Sylvester Neelon could pass, she tried to get into the lock. I then went to dinner. On my return from dinner Mr. Higgins and my father were preparing to search the lock. I was present when they found the wooden end of the search the lock. I was present when they found the wooden end of the frame of the valve with iron end attached."

I do not suppose it is recessary that I should read the evidence any further. It is quite obvious that in both cases the arbitrators were quite satisfied that there was negligence on the part of those whose duty it was to protect the canal, and having been satisfied by this evidence, they ordered the damages which we are now asked to vote.

Mr. MACKENZIE. The hon. Minister has not read the report of the superintendent.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I will read the report of the superintendent. It is dated August 26, 1878, and is signed by Mr. Bodwell, who was superintendent at the time the accident occurred, and is as follows :-

accident occurred, and is as follows :---"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 15th of February last, forwarding to me the report of the Minister of Justice, as the basis of a further report upon the subject of the claim of the Anchor Insurance Company in respect of the vessel Jennie Graham, which you request me the supply. I herewith enclose letter of Mr. Paterson, overseer, division No. 2, Welland Canal, upon which division the alleged damage is said to have been done. I also enclose a sketch of the bottom of the Jennie Graham made by Mr. Shickluna, who built the boat. It will be seen by the latter that the keel of the vessel being 9 inches, and the planking 3½, that the keel extends below the planking 5½ inches. The mitre sill rises 12 inches above bottom of lock. The keel of the vessel is 5½ inches below the planking, making 172 The keel of the vessel is 5¹ inches below the planking, making 17¹ inches between bottom of lock and lowest possible part of vessel beside the keel. The sketch of the t bstruction shows that it could not possibly have rise n more than 14 inches above bottom of lock, giving strong prob-ability at 1 ast to Mr. Paters on's position that the broken valve could not have been the obstruction upon which the vessel received damage. I have seen Captain Graham and asked him to let me see the piece of I have seen Uaptain Graham and asked him to let me see the piece of iron alleged to have been taken out of his vessel when she was placed upon the dry-dock, but up to the present time I have not been favoured with a sight of the piece of iron. If he has the piece, and it corresponds with the missing portion of valve, it would be pretty strong evidence in favour of his allegations that it was the broken valve that did the dam-age, and I should naturally think there would be an anxiety on his part of here at the most certainly set the metter at vest to exhibit it, as it would almost certainly set the matter at rest. Ibave the third that I can add to former reports except the above. I still feel that neglect or careleseness on the part (f officials has not been shown, as every diligence was used in scarching the lock for obstructions at the time the lock was carried away. None were found when the lock was next cleaned out."

Mr. MACKENZIE. That is a supplementary report.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Yes, it seems to be.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Well, I will call the hon. gentleman's attention to the main point that was taken over to the member for West Durham and it was on that the other evening, and perhaps he will have something to report he raised the question, and the Minister said he would say on that. The question raised by my hon. friend from West Durham was whether up to that time any claim had been recognized by the Government for damages in the case of an insurance company, and the Minister promised to bring a special opinion of the Department of Justice on that subject.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The claim was made by Messrs. Mowat and McLennan on the part of the Anchor Insurance Company. That was referred to Mr. Lash, and he made a report upon it, which has been read to the House, in which he stated that they had no legal claim, that it was not pretended that they could maintain their action as a question of law because it was against the Government ; but if the question was regarded as one between subject and subject and the Government decided not to take advantage of the legal technicality, it could only be determined by the arbitrators taking evidence whether there had been nogligence on the part of the Government as common carriers in charge of this canal. I do not remember whether this was the first case of an insurance company gaining or not, but there was no pretention, there was no statement that because they were an insurance company and had paid the damages for the sinking of the vessel, they did not stand precisely in the same position as the owner.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. That was precisely the point raised by the hon. member for West Durham.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. That was not raised by Mr. Lash, because he treated it on the ground that the parties who had suffered the damage were entitled to compensation, if the damage was caused by the negligence of the Government officials.

Mr. MACKENZIE. The insurance company insured the eargo, not the bottom.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. In one case they insured both, in the other case the party obtained the value of the vessel on the same principle.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The hon, member for West Durham drew the hon. Minister's attention to the fact that Mr. Lash's report did not deal at all with the question of whether the Government ought or ought not to pay an insurance company, and on that point the hon. Minister declared he would get information.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The application on the part of Mowat and McLennan, for the insurance company, was referred to Mr. Lash, and he did not raise any question as between the owner and the insurance company.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. We knew that; but the question raised by the hon. member for West Durham, on which the hon. Minister promised to get information was as to whether the Government ought or ought not pay the insurance company.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER 1 do not think there is any special reference to that. This is the original report of Mr. Bodwell the superintendent:

"In reference to the Jennie Graham, I have to report that on the 25th of October, 1875, in entering Allanburg lock, she struck, and after ineffectual effort to surge her in, and supposing her to have struck on the mitre sill, search was made, and a broken valve and mounted block was fund in the lock, which was supposed to have been the obstruction that had prevented her from entering, after which it was found she was damaged. Whether the damage was received from these obstructions, I am unable to say."

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. All I wanted to know was whether the hon. Minister had considered the point taken and obtained information from the Department of Justice. All that was very fully gone into in Supply. Mr. Lash's report was read by the hon. Minister and handed over to the member for West Durham and it was on that get information. I will just read what occurred. Mr. Blake said :

"Because it is their business to take these risks. They receive the premium and take the risk. But what I have been asking is, whether there has been, up to this time, say claim on the part of any insurance company which has been recognized by the Government, and whether the legal department of the Government advise that claims of this description should be referred to arbitration without aspecial consideration of the question of the relation of an insurance company to the Government.

"Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I will get that information."

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Is not that point fully covered by Mr. Lash's report:

"Upon the reference from the Department of Public Works for opinion upon the petition presented by the Anchor Marine Insurance Company claiming compensation for damages to cargoes insured in that company which were being shipped in vessels per Welland Canal. I beg to report that the ground upon which the claims are based is that the damage was sustained by reason of the negligence of the officers in charge of the works. The petition states that the petitioners are advised that they have no remedy under the Petitions of Rights Act, the claim being in the nature of damages for a tori, the petition is not presented under that Act, but the claim is submitted to the justice and favourable consideration of the Crown. I am therefore relieved from expressing any opinion as to whether or not the liability sought to be imputed to the Crown is one which might, under the provisions of the Petitions of Rights Act, be enforced against it. Treating the case as it is treated by the claimants themselves, I now explain what would be the rights of the parties were the matter one between subject and subject instead of between subject and Crown."

Mr. Lash does not raise the question that this being an insurance company it stands in a different position from a private individual, but states that as, between subject and subject, they had a good claim, and he goes on to recommend that the claim be settled by a reference to the arbitrators and by sworn testimony being taken as to whether there was negligence or not.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The point the hon. member for Durham did take was that the case was not precisely the same between an insurance company and the Government as it would be between subject and the Crown, and on that point he asked that special reference be made. There is one other point I would ask, and that is if any explanation has been given of the very long delay amounting to eight or nine years.

Mr. GAULT. This case will be made a precedent. I know of half-a-dozen claims that could have been made on better grounds than the present claim, and no action was taken because it was understood no claim could be made against the Government.

Mr. DAVIES. Assuming that the hon. Minister of Railways is right in his contention that the Anchor Insurance Company was subrogate to the rights possessed by the owners of the vessel, there were two material points brought to the notice of the Committee which I think the hon. Minister of Railways has not answered. The hon. member for West Durham first asked whether the point had been decided upon by the arbitrators as to the damage being caused by the negligence of the officials of the Government. He contended that the award did not show that the damage had been so caused; the only point the arbitrators seemed to decide was how much damage had been caused, and not by whose negligence. He said that the Chief Superintendent was never called at all. The hon. Minister of Railways said he had no doubt his evidence was obtained and he promised to ascertain that fact and state it to the House.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I will deal with the first question first. The hon. gentleman will find that Mr. Lash's report covers that case. He said :

"The legal right of the claimants as an insurance company to seek compensation in their own names may be doubted. I incline, however, to the opinion that they possess that right. See North of England Insurance Association vs. Armstrong."

And then he gives the authority, the case which establishes the right of the insurance company to claim as the owner. He states the case.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT.

"But, for the sake of greater caution, I think it should be required to procure an assignment to them from the owners of the cargo, of their claims, if any, on account of the loss."

With reference to the testimony of the superintendent of the canal, the then superintendent was, as I stated, in British Columbia, but the arbitrators had before them all the evidence he could give, because they had his report to the head of the Department, made when the accident occurred.

Mr. DAVIES. The other point was that the award did not find whether negligence was caused by these officials or not.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Nothing could be plainer than the fact that the arbitrators, to whom was referred the question, and Mr. Lash's opinion showing that it was only in case negligence could be proved against the canal officials that they could find a verdict, recited the ground on which the claim was made, and then stated the amount to which the party was entitled. These arbitrators are not lawyers, but they are men of ability and common sense, and, with the opinion of the Department of Justice before them, that they could find a verdict only in case the negligence could be established, and having taken testimony which established beyond controversy the fact that negligence did exist, for no case could be stronger, they then set out the ground of the application and find the amount that the Government are bound to pay.

Mr. MACKENZIE. The award was written by a professional gentleman, not by the arbitrators. It was evi-dently written with a view to lead to the inference being drawn, instead of stating the fact. That is perfectly apparent. Not one of the arbitrators wrote that award. It is clear that it was written to cover the amount of damages, but without assigning any reason for it, and it is extremely defective on that account. I came to the conclusion that there was no negligence shown by the officers of the Department, and that was the decision of the Government at the time, and the report the hon. gentleman presents, shows that, if that iron instrument, which was accidentally, not negligently, left in the lock, was there, it was in such a position that the vessel would not touch it, the vessel must have floated at least four inches above it. So it is impossible that it could have obtained that injury through that iron, at least there is no probability that it did. Negligence would consist in its being shown that such a thing was there and no attempt being made to get it out, but there is no such proof given, there is no such evidence in what the hon. gentleman has read. To come to details, has the hon. gentleman got the policy of insurance?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Then upon what is he proceeding?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Upon the award of the arbitrators, who had all the testimony and all the papers before them, and whose business it is, instructed by counsel, to see that there is no possible room for a failure of that kind.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Does he know whether there was a subrogation clause in the policy?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No, I do not.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Then the law officers of the Department do not seem to have looked into the award. Very material things are evidently absent.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I cannot conceive how the hon. gentleman can possibly entertain the shadow of a shade of doubt as to this matter. First, he has the superintendent, who was responsible for the keeping of the canal clear and preventing accidents, reporting what occurred, reporting that the vessel undertook to go through, that she struck upon something and sunk immediately after. He had that before him from the superintendent of the

Then he has the evidence that they had the canal canal. dragged, and that they found this serious impediment and obstruction there, the instrument which was calculated to make the hole in the bottom of the vessel. Then he had the evidence that the Sylvester Neelon came immediately afterwards, struck upon something, was hauled back, and could not get through; that they dragged the canal, got this obstruction out of the way, and that the Sylvester Neelon went through. If that does not satisfy the hon. gentleman, then he is very difficult to satisfy. There is no other hon. gentleman in this House that, I think, will have a doubt at all as to what occurred. The hon. gentleman has the testimony of Mr. Bodwell—who was responsible for this, the party who was responsible for the condition of the canal, and who was chargeable if there was not due care and attention shown, who admitted that this thing had prevented two vessels from getting through, knocked a hole in the bottom of one, and sunk her, and delayed another, until the obstruction was dragged out of the way-to these facts. Could anything be stronger? But he says there were a few inches between the bottom of the vessel and this obstruction, if it were lying in the bottom of the canal. But he has also the testimony here that the vessel was surging, that she was being pushed from behind, and that she would be surging so that, even supposing this weak attempt on the part of the superintendent to quit the canal authorities of blame were correct, it is perfectly accounted for why she should have struck this obstruction and knocked the hole in her bottom. There can be no shadow of a shade of doubt as to the way the accident occurred.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I am not to be deterred by the usual extravagance of language of the hon. gentleman. He says that no one can or ought to have a shadow of a shade of doubt. We are accustomed to that sort of language. I have discussed the matter in a temperate way, and I am satisfied that, instead of every other member being of his opinion, there are comparatively few in the House who hold his opinions if they examine the documents. If he found no shadow of a shade of doubt that this should be paid, why has he allowed it to rest unpaid from 1878 to 1884? That shows that either he has been grossly negligent of other people's interests committed to his care, or he has entertained very serious doubts as to the propriety of making this payment. We have not had documents presented to us which should be here. There are several that ought to be here and are not, and the evidence of the then superintendent, and his deputy, Mr. Patterson, was clearly that there was no negligence shown by the Government officers.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I think he admits it in the clearest terms.

Mr. MACKENZIE. He does not admit it. He says he is not able to say whether that produced the fracture or not, but in his supplemental report he encloses a diagram showing the position of the iron relatively to the vessel, and he shows conclusively, to use the words of the hon. gentleman, without the shadow of a shade of doubt, that it could not be the iron that produced the fracture. He also shows that a piece of iron was found in the vessel, and that it was asked that it be produced; but the captain never produced it to this hour, showing still further that it was not as clear as the hon. gentleman says it is. We came to the conclusion at the time that there was no case for the Government pay ing the money, and the hon. gentleman seems to have entertained the same doubts and the same belief, and to have come to the same conclusion for five years, and then he comes down and asks Parliament to pay the money, declaring that everything is as clear as evidence could make it, and that it is a claim against the Government that ought not to be resisted. It is quite clear, from the statement of the hon. gentleman from Montreal West, that numerous other claims, which the | many anxious to get out of the Government that the hon.

hon. gentleman said were much stronger, and are of a similar nature, exist. Now, my objection to these payments is not by any means so much on account of the amount in these part-cular cases as because I know, as everybody does know who knows anything of the working of these canals, that you have got to watch these things most jealously or you may have claims preferred to the extent of many hundreds of thousands of dollars on the precedent which, so far as I know, for the first time has been introduced here. It is not on account of this particular item so much as on account of the precedent established that it has been found necessary to investigate it. Did the hon. gentleman not take the point in law, with regard to the Prince Edward Island Railway case, that the Crown was not bound as an ordinary citizen ?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. That was stated when this claim was made. The Minister of Justice said the parties admitted that they could not press their claim by Petition of Right because it is against the Crown.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Yes, and you pay then all the same; but in the Prince Edward Island case, it strikes me you did not pay the parties.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I beg the hon. gentleman's pardon. The hon. gentleman has quoted the strongest possible case in point. Although the Government defeated the claimants upon the strict point of law, they respected the statement of the judges that they ought to have substantial consideration at the hands of the Government, and we asked Parliament to vote $23,000 for the purpose of meeting the claims on which they could not legally push. We thought the verdict was excessive and beyond anything that was reasonable in the one case, and we reduced it to what we thought was a legitimate amount, but we acknowledge the principle by paying the money.

Mr. DAVIES. I think the hon. gentleman has drawn a very violent conclusion from the evidence he read to this House to-day, and in the presence of the express finding of the arbitrators to whom it was referred, that there was negligence, I do not think he was justified in paying the claim.

Resolution concurred in on division.

On Resolution 255.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I understand that hon. gentlemen were informed, in another place, that the present occupant of the office would not require to use this house and furniture. We would be glad to know if we are to have the pleasure of the hon gentleman's further residence here longer than we expected.

Mr. MACKENZIE. A statement was made by a Minister representing the Government in the other House, that the present High Commissioner is not going to London, and I think we ought to know whether that be correct or not. The statement was made two days ago.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I have not heard of it. It is news to me.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Will the hon. gentleman toll us, in confidence, if it is true or not?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I have no hesitation in saying to my hon. friend that it is not only quite new to me, but quite unexpected. I fully expect to go to London.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I am extremely surprised to learn that there is a cabal against the hon. gentleman in the Government.

Mr. MILLS. So far as we can understand, there are so

Resolutions reported from Committee of supply (April 25th) read the second time.

On Resolution 315,

Amount required for construction of Port Arthur Harbour-revote, $50,000 $150,000 00

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. All I have got to say to that is what I said last year--there does not appear to be any sufficient reason why that expenditure should not be charged as usual to the ordinary expenditure from the Consolidated Fund. There is no reason why the expenditure for Port Arthur harbour should be put on a different footing from that of Toronto or Goderich harbours, or any other large harbour. They stand entirely in the same position and ought to go to the same place -that is, chargeable to income and not to capital.

Resolution concurred in.

On Resolution 316,

Cape Tormentine Harbour, N.B $150,000 00

Mr. DAVIES. I wish to refer, in the presence of the Minister of Railways, to a remark made last night on this mat-ter. J understood from the Minister of Public Works that no reports or inspection had been made of the locality since 1878. Last night I referred to the great difference of opinion that exists as to the exact locality in which this wharf ought to be built. Of course, as it is of vital importance that the proper locality should be selected, I would strongly urge upon the Government, before they go on to build, in pursuance of Mr. McLeod's report, that they should make further investigation as to the best locality. There is a bay one or two miles long, and a great many people say the eastern end is the best and others say the western end is the best. There is a great difference of opinion, and I think the Government should satisfy themselves from further examination as to which is the best spot.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. It is the intention to have those two or three miles specially examined ?

Resolution concurred in.

On Resolution 319,

Mr. MACKENZIE, I desire to call the attention of the Government to a return which came down lately, giving the amount expended in each town, the income from the various Departments of the Government at such places, and the population of the town or village. I find that the population of the village of Sussex is placed at 4,000. Surely that is inaccurate. The gross income is $1,500.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. There may have been an error made in copying ; but the population is easily ascertainable by looking at the Census.

On Resolution 325,

Harbours and Rivers, Nova Scotia. $22,600 00

Mr. VAIL. I am very sorry to observe that the vote under this head is decreasing year by year. The grant for Ontario and Quebec is undoubtedly a very important grant in the public interest, as I am prepared to admit; but when we come to Nova Scotia, a Province where more than twothirds of the harbours are open the year round, and where a gentleman who is now Commissioner may be compelled to | important in that Province than in those Provinces where the harbours are closed about six months of the year. In 1873, Parliament voted for harbours and break waters in Nova Scotia over $123,000. Next year, when the hon. member for East York (Mr. Mackenzie) came into power, the grant again was $123,000. The following year it was $145,000; but it was reduced to $42,000, in consequence of the failing revenue, which prevented the Government from doing all they considered necessary in regard to the Maritime Provinces. Nevertheless during the five years of the late Government the average amount granted to Nova Scotia under this head was $78,600 a year. Since the present Government came into power the amount has been gradually declining, and the annual average for the four years previous to 1882 was only $36,000, as compared with $78,600, granted by the Government of the hon. member for East York. I point this out because this is a most important service in the interests of the Maritime Provinces. I am quite aware there are other public services which are important in this country, but I do not hesitate to say that this is one of the most important, so far as the Maritime Provinces are concerned, with which the Government have to deal. I do not think they are fairly looking after and doing justice to the Province of Nova Scotia in this regard, when they reduce a grant of $123,000, which was formerly considered necessary in the interests of the Province, to $46,000 for the present year. And strange to say, as I pointed out to the hon. Minister of Public Works in regard to the grant of last year, nearly all the money voted this year goes to the eastern portion of the Province, which has a population very nearly the same as the western portion of the Province. Only $10,750 is granted for the Province west of Halifax; $5,000 of which goes to Lunenburg; the other $5,750 is divided among six of the western counties, nearly all of which are maritime counties, and very much interested in the public works referred to. I do not pretend to say that the eastern counties are not entitled to a fair share of the public money; but I think the Government should look after those counties that have their harbours open all the year round, which is not the case with some of the harbours on the north side of the Province. If the hon. gentleman is not able to bring down a supplementary estimate this year, I hope in future he will see to it that a sufficient grant is given to at least keep these public works in repair.

Resolution concurred in.

On Resolution 330,

Harbours and Rivers, Manitoba-Waterhen River, $10,000 00

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Perhaps the hon. gentleman will state the object of this vote. Is this a proposal in connection with the lowering of one of the lakes, or simply a proposition to remove obstructions in the river?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. It is to remove obstructions in the river, in order to make it a floatable stream, and also to prevent the flooding of the neighbouring country.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I have not seen any of the very recent reports on this subject; but I understand that the difference of level between the two lakes is eighteen feet nine inches, and that the Waterhen river, performing a long circuit, has a comparatively slow current. If the improvement means the deepening of the channel of the river, the removal of boulders or the straightening of its course, the result will be the lowering of the water in the upper lake and the filling of the lower lake to an extent which may do serious damage. I suggest that great caution be exercised by the hon. gentleman in making the improvement he prolarge portion of the population get their living from the poses, as the flooding of the country, either north or south, sea, it will be admitted that harbour works are much more may be the result of the operation.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. If we were to undertake the large works which were suggested by Mr. Gerret in his report last year, such danger might be apprehended. I do not know whether my hon. friend has taken notice of the report, but it is a very valuable one.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Yes it is.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. He recommends a canal, but he says it is doubtful if it can be done, or whether, if we should remedy the evil complained of, we would not be producing a still greater evil. In this case we only intend to remove the boulders without constructing the canal. That work must be left for future consideration.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Then the hon. gentleman does not intend to shorten the channel of the river.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. No.

Mr. MACKENZIE. That is wise.

On Resolution 336,

Mr. MACKENZIE. I saw it stated somewhere lately that though there has been an expenditure of $100,000 upon the fish hatchery in Lake Ontario, the Government have never acquired any right to the property, either in fee simple or by lease. Is that the case?

Mr. McLELAN. There is a lease of the property and an annual payment. I took up the question some time ago, as to the acquisition of the property, but there came up another point, and that was, whether it would not be better to remove the hatchery to some other place. It was mainly placed where it is for the purpose of breeding salmon, in which it has been unsuccessful. The rearing of whitefish is proving more successful, and it is thought that a better point might be got for that purpose, nearer to the source of supply.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Then the matter has not been decided?

Mr. McLELAN. No.

On Resolution 340,

Mr. MACKENZIE. Who is the legal adviser and what is the legal advice. I think we are not in the habit of giving votes of this kind unless specific sums are named.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I am not sure, but I am under the impression that it is for legal advice to the Auditor-General, who has authority to consult advisers outside the Department of Justice.

Resolution concurred in.

On Resolution 346,

To provide the expenses of an expedition by water

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Will the Minister state whether he proposes to purchase or hire a steamer for this work?

Mr. McLELAN. It is not quite decided, but the probabilities are that the steamer will be hired.

Mr. DAVIES. I have been informed that it requires ment made by an hon. member opposite, that the late Govabout £25,000 to purchase and equip a Newfoundland ernment were responsible for only $200,000 of expenditure 203 steamer, so it would seem, from the amount asked by the hon. gentleman, that he intends to charter a vessel.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I would suggest to the hon. gentleman that it would be advisable to get extracts from the reports made by the Imperial officers of the Imperial navy, because many of the British vessels have been in that quarter and may have given valuable information to the Admiralty archives at home.

Mr. McLELAN. I am gathering all the information I possible can on the subject.

Mr. MILLS. Has it been decided who is to be put in charge of the expedition ?

Resolution concurred in.

On Resolution 351,

Indians, British Columbia-To assist in the purchase of a printing press for the use of the Rev. J. M. R. Le Jeune, O.M.I., at Kamloops, with which to print certain manuscripts of vocabularies in five Indian dialects $50 00

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What sort of use is that vote? I do not object to $50 for a printing press, but if they are going to print vocabularies in five dialects this amount would not go very far.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. This is to aid Father LeJeune in the purchase of a press, which I believe he has already acquired.

Resolution concurred in.

On Resolution 353,

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The Minister of Inland Revenue was to give a statement of the number of officers who are at present also acting as municipal officers.

Mr. COSTIGAN. I asked the Commissioner to make enquiries and to let me know, as far he could, what officers are holding municipal offices in addition to their offices in the Department. He says:

"I only knowlof three—Knowlson, of Lindsay; Vincent, of Montreal; and Oamyré. Vincent has since resigned."

That would leave Camyré, in the Province of Quebec, and Knowlson in the Province of Ontario, holding such offices. I may state that I have received indirect information of one or two other cases.

Resolution concurred in.

On Resolution 361,

Mr. MACKENZIE. I just take advantage of this to say a word in regard to some remarks my hon. friend, the Minister of Finance, made a few evenings ago. In replying to my hon. friend beside me (Sir Richard Cartwright), he made the statement that the expenditure for canals on capital account was commenced by the late Administration. I interposed a negative at the time. I have since looked into the accounts, and I find that prior to 1874 our predecessors let contracts on the Welland canal to the extent of $2,659,019, and on the Lachine canal to the extent of $1,112,882. I mention these facts in order to show that the hon. gentleman was mistaken in the statement he made.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I did not state that the expenditure on canals on capital account commenced with the late Government. What I stated, in reply to a statement made by an hon. member opposite, that the late Government were responsible for only $200,000 of expenditure during the five years they were in office, was that they were not bound to execute any arrangements made by their predecessors, and that they were not bound to spend the sum of money they did expend, as they did not act upon the tenders that were in, but asked for new tenders. Therefore, it was quite competent for them to close the work at that time, if they thought it desirable to do so. But as for saying that the expenditure for canals on capital account commenced with them, I made no such statement, and Hansard will not show it.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Nothing else could be inferred from the statement the hon. gentleman made. His statement was, that no tenders were let or acted upon when he came into office, whereas we find that nearly $4,000,000 of contracts were let before we came in, and however much we might be opposed to the enlargement of the canals, it was too late for us to stop the work. I do not pretend to say that I was entirely opposed to it myself, although I undertook no further work of that kind.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I think I remember the hongentleman, or one of his colleagues, reading a statement in justification of the expenditure on canals, on the ground that the cost of labour was low, and that it was a good time to do the work.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I will tell the hon. gentleman what was stated. It was pointed out by me, on more than one occasion, that that was an advantageous time for letting contracts, because at that time they could be obtained at a lower rate than previously; and I might remind the hon. gentleman that when my hon. friend beside me reduced some of those contracts, he was very viciously attacked by hon. gentlemen then opposed to him, because he was diminishing the amount of employment that might be given to people out of work at that time.

Resolution concurred to.

On Resolution 363,

. Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Is this quite a new work?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. This vote is for the construction of a wharf at this locality to accommodate steamers plying there, and the Chief Engineer estimates that this amount will cover the cost of the work.

SALE OF COAL.

Mr. COSTIGAN moved that the Order for the consideration of Bill (No. 119) respecting the sale of coal, be discharged and Bill withdrawn.

Order discharged and Bill withdrawn.

SUMMARY CONVICTIONS AND ORDERS.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, in moving the second reading of Bill (No. 137) to further amend An Act respecting the duties of Justices of the Peace out of Sessions, in relation to summary convictions and orders, said: The object of this Bill is to make provision for an appeal from the decisions of justices of the peace in the unorganized district mentioned in this Bill.

Bill read the second time, considered in Committee, reported, and read the third time and passed.

It being Six o'clock, the Speaker left the Chair.

After Recess.

LEVIS GRAVING DOCK.

Bill (No. 149) to authorize an advance to the Quebec licenses the Scott Act can never apply to, under the decision Sir LEONARD TILLEY.

Harbour Commissioners towards the completion of the Lévis Graving Dock.

Bill read the second time, and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. This sum will, according to the report of the engineer, complete the dock.

Mr. MACKENZIE. The whole plan?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The graving dock.

Mr. MACKENZIE. There was a sum of $500,000 before, was there not?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. More than that. This will make altogether $750,000. That will complete this work.

Bill reported, and read the third time and passed.

QUEBEC TIDAL DOCK.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN, in moving the second reading of Bill (No. 148) to authorize an advance to the Quebec Harbour Commissioners towards the completion of their Tidal Dock, said : This Bill is, word for word, the Resolution ; not a word beyond.

Mr. MACKENZIE. What is the amount?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. The amount there is $300,000. That is towards the contracts that have been made for the cross wall. The hon. gentleman is au fait with the work, and now we are going on with the cross wall, and then we will go on with the caisson. During the recess we intend to ask the Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department, and two or three other engineers, to go over the whole work, and see exactly what will be wanted to complete the work, so that there will be no money lost and no work not in the proper direction.

Mr. LAURIER. That will not complete the work, then?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. No; this will not complete it.

Bill read the second time, considered in Committee, amended, reported, and read the third time and passed.

CANADA TEMPERANCE ACT AMENDMENT.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the second reading of Bill (No. 136) to amennd the Canada Temperance Act, 1878.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Will the hon. gentleman explain ?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, Yes. Under the Scott Act, in the ninety-sixth clause, it is provided :

""When any petition, embodied as aforesaid in any notice and in any proclamation under this the first part of this Act, has been adopted by the electors of the county or city named therein and to which the same relates, the Governor General in Council may, at any time after the expiration of sixty days from the day on which the same was adopted, by Order in Council published in the Canada Guzette, declare that the second part of this Act shall be in force and take effect in such county or city upon, from and after the day on which the annual or semi-annual licenses for the sale of spirituous liquors then in force in such county or city will expire."

It has been decided by the courts in Nova Scotia that in those counties where there have been no licenses issued, the Act cannot take effect at all, because it says it shall "take effect in such county or city upon, from and after the day on which the annual or semi-annual licenses for the sale of spirituous liquors then in force in such county or city will Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN moved the second reading of expire." It is obvious that those counties which had no of the court, and this was introduced in the other House at the request of the leading men in the temperance association, and without reference to the value or to the good effect or otherwise of the Scott Act. It is quite clear that, as long as it is on the Statute book, it should be made workable, and it is clear that where no licenses were issued, it was not workable. This clause is therefore amended by adding thereto the following words : -

"And if in any county or city there are no licenses in force when the petition mentioned in the first part of this Act is adopted, then the second part of this Act shall become and be in force and take effect in such county or city after the expiration of thirty days from the day of the date of an Order in Council to that effect, published in the Canada Canada " Gazette.

Then the second clause is :

"If any Order in Council has been published in the Canada Gazette declaring that the second part of the Canada Temperance Act, 1878,' shall be in force and take effect in any county or city upon, from and after the day on which the annual or semi-annual licenses for the sale of spirituous liquors then in force in such county or city will expire; and if, in fact, there were at the date of such publication no such licenses then in force in such county or c ty; then the second part of the Canada Temperance Act, 1878, shall be deemed to have been in force and taken date of such Order in Council."

The third clause is:

"Nothing herein shall be construed so as to; "(a) Affect any existing legal right or remedy in respect of any prose-cution heretofore brought under the second part of 'The Canadian Tem-personce Act, 71873; "(b) Authorize the bringing hereafter of any prosecution for any offence committed against the second part of the said Act, prior to the passing of this Act; "(c) Affect any cause of action now existing, or any suit, action, prosecution or proceeding now pending."

The third clause has the effect of allowing all legal proceedings to remain unaffected by this amendment to the law.

Bill read the second time, and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

On the preamble,

Mr. IVES. Before the preamble is adopted, I desire to move a fourth clause, in the following words :-

"4. Whenever a county municipality, after the passing of a prohibi-bitory by-law under 'The Temperance Act of 1864,' or after the issue of an Order in Council under 'The Canada Temperance Act, 1878,' declar-ing the second part of the last cited Act to be in force in such county, is divided, and a town or city municipality is created out of the territory separated from such county municipality, such by-law may be repealed or such Order in Council may be revoked as respects the new munici-pality in the manner provided by sections 97 and 98 of the said 'Canada Temperance Act, 1878,' in like manner as if such by-law had been passed or such Order in Council had issued in relation to the new municipality separately. And whenever a county municipality has been divided or such Order in Council had issued in relation to the new municipality separately. And whenever a county municipality has been divided and a town municipality has been created out of the territory separated from such county municipality, before the passing of a prohibitory by-law under 'The Temperance Act of 1861,' or the issuing of an Order in Council under 'The Canada Temperance Act of 1878,' declaring the second part of the last cited Act to be is force in such county, said town municipality or said county municipality may petition the Governor General in Council for the bringing of the second part of said last cited Act into force within its territory, but in that case, the said town municipality and the said county municipality shall petition and vote separately and shall be considered separate and distinct municipalities, to all intents and purposes, as if they were different counties.''

Under the law as it now stands, that is to say, the Canada Temperance Act and the Liquor License Act passed here last Session, the principle of local option, so far as the passing of prohibitory by-laws is concerned, has been extended to every town, township, village, and parish in the whole Dominion, that is, the smallest municipal organization known to the law in any one of the Provinces may prohibit the issuing of licenses, whereas local option for the repeal of prohibitory by laws, so far, has not been given to any smaller jurisdiction that a county or city. In this particular those who are promoting probibitory by laws have a very great the Scott Act and which runs through the Liquor License Act passed last Session, has been inequitably and unjustly extended much further in favour of prohibition than it is in favour of the will of the people being found out and respected, with respect to the repeal of prohibitory by-laws. This measure is as much in the interest of those in favour of the Scott Act as it is in favour of those who are opposed to it. It simply proposes to give to town municipalities that have an organization and a being independent of the counties, the right of adopting, independent of the county in which the town may be situated, a prohibitory by-law. It is well known that in many counties of the Dominion a prohibitory by-law might be passed, were it not for an adverse vote in some large town which is situated within that county, and therefore I say that the adoption of the amendment which I propose would be in favour of the temperance party, in this respect: that it would give the county the opportunity of dropping out the adverse vote of the town and of adopting the Scott Act in the rest of the county, and vice versa. What I mean to say, Mr. Chairman, is this, that the spirit which runs through our legislation on this subject is one of local option, the local option of the municipalities. They may adopt, and after adopting they may reject and repeal, and I say that it is unfair, and inequitable, and unjust, that the principle of local option in respect of prohibition should have been extended to towns, villages and parishes, and that the smallest municipal corporation that can repeal is a county or a city. Now, I desire to point out another reason why this amendment should be adopted. As the law now stands, there is no machinery whatever by which a prohibitory by-law can be repealed or can be adopted in a county where there is a separate and distinct municipal organization of a town. For instance, in any county in Canada, if there be an incorporated town which is not connected municipally with the county, there is no machinery under the law by which a prohibitory by law can be repealed in any way, either by a vote of the two distinct municipalities or by a concurrent vote of the two municipalities voting together. Take, for example, the county of Richmond, in the Province of Quebec, where the Dunkin Act has been nominally in force, but not really in force, for many years. In that county a town has been incorporated, the Town of Richmond It is separated from the county for municipal purposes; it is not represented upon the county Board; it pays no part of the county taxes; it is a separate municipal organization, as separate from the county of Richmond as it is from the counties of Compton, or Drummond and Arthabaska, adjoining. Under the law, as it now stands, the Dunkin Act can not possibly, by any machinery known to the present law, be repealed, even though it were the unanimous desire, both of the town and county, to repeal it, because there is no machinery, there is no way of deciding who is to be the returning officer, no machinery by which a vote can be taken, either severally or jointly, by those two distinct municipalities. Therefore, there is a hiatus in the law which my amendment will cover. On the other hand, in that same county, where there are two distinct municipal organizations, if the Scott Act were proposed to be adopted there, it would not be possible to have a vote taken. A vote could not be taken in the county independent of the town of Richmond, and a vote could not be taken in the town of Richmond, and therefore I say the law requires the amendment which I propose. The amendment is introducing no new principle; it is simply giving to incorporated towns, towns of considerable importance, the local option, which the License Act already gives to villages, parishes and hamlets. I therefore move: first, where a prohibitory by-law has been in force, and after it has come into force, a town has been incorporated and made a separate municipal entity, that town or county may sevadvantage over those who do not believe in prohibitory by-laws, and the principle of local option, which runs through and on the other hand, the second part of my Resolution says, that where an independent municipal entity has been created before the passing of the prohibitory by law, either the remainder of the county or the incorporated town may pass a prohibitory by law. I therefore say that this Resolution should not meet with the opposition of hon. members who generally support the Scott Act and everything in connection with the cause of temperance, because it is as much in the interest of one party as in the interest of the other, and it is necessary, in order to give effect to the principle of local option, which underlies our whole legislation on this subject. I move that the clause I have read be inserted as clause 4 of this Bill.

Mr. FOSTER. It is not my intention to discuss the question at any length. I would be sorry if the Resolution moved by the hon. member for Richmond and Wolfe (Mr. Ives) should be carried and appended to this Bill. So far as I understand the temperance sentiment of the country, and I think I understand it pretty well, I look upon this Resolution as tantamount to a repeal of the Canada Temperance Act in most of the counties in this Dominion. In 1878, when the Act was given us by Parliament, it was given as a step in advance; it was passed as being something given to the temperance people in advance of the Dunkin Act, the Canada Temperance Act of 1864. The great argument against the Dunkin Act was that it applied to very small localities, and it was stated and found out by experience that it was very difficult to carry a prohibitory law in exceedingly small districts. Therefore, when this law was framed it was very wisely provided, in answer to the request of the temperance people of the country, that the district which could adopt the law should be a county or a city-a county taking in all the smaller municipalities, incorporated villages, townships and towns. It was in answer, I say, to the request of the temperance people that the law was framed on that basis. I think the amendment which has been proposed by the hon. member for Richmond and Wolfe would have the effect of destroying this law; it would make it inoperative in most of the counties which have already adopted it; and it would do more-it would stop the efforts of the temperance people in organizing plans which they are now adopting to carry the Canada Temperance Act in various counties of the Province. At this moment there are some sixteen or twenty counties the same time, and decide according to which they conin the Province of Ontario that are agitating for the adopsider the most reasonable. tion of the Canada Temperance Act. In most of these counties there are towns and municipalities which would come under the provisions of the amendment offered by the hon. member for Richmond and Wolfe. If this amendment were carried, these counties would immediately stop the agitation for the Canada Temperance Act; and although I do not think such was the intention of the hon. member for Richmond and Wolfe, I certainly think the amendment must have that effect. There has been no request made by the country at large for such an amendment as that introduced by the hon. gentleman. From 1873 up to the present time, there has been no public demand for either this measure or any other measure which would reduce the operation of the Act to a smaller limit, or which would in any way impair the efficacy of the Act. On the contrary, there has been a very large and powerful opinion expressed in opposition to any attempt to destroy the efficacy of the Act; there have been most influential demonstrations made in every part of the country, which have called on this Parliament and the Governments which have from time to time held power, to keep the Act intact have from time to time held power, to keep the Act intact and not impair its validity in any respect. I hope, Mr. Chairman, you will exercise your authority to pre-vent this disorder. It is a very peculiar style of argu-ment to adopt. I think, Sir, it will not be necessary for me to speak very much longer, if this is the kind of argument which is to be used by the supporters of my hon. friend from Mr. Iwes Chairman, you will exercise your authority to pre-vent this dicorder. It is a very peculiar style of argu-ment to adopt. I think, Sir, it will not be necessary for me

Richmond and Wolfe (Mr. Ives). I think a little more of that kind of argument would effectually kill his amend-I wish to state, however, that the temperance ment. people of Canada restrained themselves within bounds, There were a great many in regard to this Act. things which they thought might have been better, some clauses which they would have preferred as being more stringent, but they contented themselves with asking for the simple amendment before the House, in order that an Act which had been solemnly passed by this Parliament, which went into force by the people's will in twelve counties in Nova Scotia and was, by a technical defect, found to be inoperative, should be amended, so as to remove that difficulty. We do not ask Parliament to pass any other restrictions with reference to it, however desirable we might think them. We are making a simple request, after showing a commendable degree of moderation and temperance, and I think it is but fair that we should be allowed it. If the opponents of the Canada Temperance Act wish to destroy its usefulness, or impair its conditions, I think they might go about it in a square way. They might have the matter discussed in principle, and if it is found better to have the Act repealed, let it be repealed. But at this late hour of the Session, when there has been no call for such a repeal or amendment from the country, when there is a wide concensus of opinion standing on record as calling on this Parliament to keep the Act intact and not impair its provisions, and when, in addition, we had the statement of the right hon. the First Minister, given to quiet that uneasy feeling which was abroad in the country, a year or two ago, that in any legislation which took place in this Parliament, there would be no relaxation of the stringencies at present imposed on the traffic-I say, Sir, I think, under those circumstance, we have good ground for asking the Government and this House to reject the amendment of my hon. friend from Richmond and Wolfe, and to stand by what the Government introduced, in answer to the direct request of the people most interested. Now, Sir, I thank you and the House for the impartial and good hearing which has been allowed me, and I only hope that all disinterested hon. gentlemen present—and nearly all are disinterested—will weigh carefully my arguments, together with the arguments which have been going on at

Amendment negatived.

Mr. IVES. If you will not grant an amendment of this character as applicable to the whole Dominion, I presume that the hon. gentleman who last spoke would have no objection to a provision, which would be specially applicable to the county of Richmond, being adopted. The old Temperance Act of 1864 has been nominally in force in the county of Richmond for several years, but only nominally, at any rate, in the town of Richmond. Ever since I have known anything about the town of Richmond, liquor has been sold there as freely and with as little restraint as in any city in the Dominion. At the time the Dunkin Act was passed, Richmond was a small village; but at present it is an incorporated town, with a population of several thousands. About a year ago, the council of that town passed a by-law, repealing the Dunkin Act; so that the Dunkin Act is repealed in effect, but not legally. Therefore, I propose that this clause be added :

Mr. IVES.

county of Richmond, appointed under the Liquor License Act of 1883, to grant licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors in the said town of Richmond, under the provisions of the last cited Act."

Mr. SCRIVER. I am sure I need not appeal to the House to grant this special legislation. As to what the hon. gentleman said with reference to the council repealing the Dunkin Act, I know that a good many members of this House have received representations from some of the most influential members of that town, urging them to oppose this amendment with all their heart.

Mr. OUIMET. I will vote against that amendment, for this reason: The power of regulating the liquor trade within the municipalities is a municipal franchise, and my opinion is that this Parliament cannot abrogate any municipal franchise which existed in 1867. Therefore, I will vote against this amendment, in order that my voice should not be raised to confirm the pretended right of this Parliament to abrogate any municipal franchise in the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. IVES. The Local Legislature, so far as it could authorize the town of Richmond to repeal the Dunkin Act, did so, and the council acted under the power which the Local Legislature sought to give them; but the license Commissioners held that the Local Legislature had no power to permit a portion of a municipality to vote separately to annul the by-law, and that they had to come to this Parliament to obtain power to enable them to rid themselves of this by-law.

Amendment negatived.

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). I have an amendment to propose, which, I am quite sure, will be received with much more favour than those of my hon. friend, because I have an authority of the highest character in the temperance ranks in favour of the proposition which I propose to ask the House to adopt. I do not intend to occupy the valuable time of the House, and I will, therefore, briefly move the addition of the following clause :--

"That the 57th section of the Canada Ten perance Act of 1878 is hereby amended by substituting the words 'three-fifths' for the words 'one-half.'"

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. The hon. gentleman evidently refers to myself, because last Session, when we were passing the Act, I advocated the three-fifths vote, but the hon. gentleman will recollect that two Sessions ago, when a proposition of this kind was made, to interfere with the provisions of this Act, though I stated before it was introduced that there should be a majority, I would be the last person to interfere with the provisions of the Act as it was enacted. I shall take the same course to-day as I did two Sessions ago, and vote against the proposition.

Mr. CAMERON (Victoria). This House is solemnly committed to a three-fifths majority, as in the License Act.

Amendment negatived on a division.

Bill reported.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the third reading of the Bill.

Mr. IVES moved, in amendment, that the said Bill be referred back to the Committee of the Whole for the purpose of adding the following, as clause 4:--

"4. Whenever a county municipality, after the passing of a prohibitory by-law under 'The Temperance Act of 1864' or after the issuing of an Order in Council under 'The Canada Temperance Act, 1878,' declaring the second part of the last cited Act to be in force in such county, is divided, and a town or city municipality is created out of the territory separated from such county municipality, such by-law may be repealed or such Order in Council may be revoked as respects the new municipality, in the manner provided by sections 97 and 98 of the said 'Canada Temperance Act, 1878,' in like manner as if such by-law had been passed or such Order in Council had issued in relation to the new municipality separately. And whenever a county municipality has been divided and a town municipality has been created out of the territory separated from such county municipality, before the passing of a prohibitory by-law, under 'The Temperance Act of 1864' or the issuing of an Order in Council under 'The Cauada Temperance Act, 1878,' declaring the second part of the last cited Act to be in force in such county, said town municipality or said county municipality may petition the Governor General in Council for the bringing of the second part of said last eited Act into force within this territory, but in that case the sail town municipality and the said county municipality shall petition and vote separately and shall be considered separate and distinct municipalities, to all intents and purposes as if they were different counties.'

Bill read the third time and passed.

SECOND READINGS.

The following Bill was read the second time, considered in Committee, reported, and read the third time and passed :--

Bill (No. 142) further to amend the present Tariff of Duties of Customs.-(Sir Leonard Tilley.)

HALIFAX REFORMATORY.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, in moving the second reading of Bill (No. 141), respecting a reformatory for certain juvenile offenders in the county of Halifax, in the Province of Nova Scotia, said: It is proposed to establish, in the county of Halifax, a reformatory for boys of the Roman Catholic faith, there being in existence an institution for those shown by the Census to be Protestants. This Bill is drafted upon the Act respecting the industrial schools of C mada.

Bill read the second time, considered in Committee, reported, and read the third time and passed.

THE JUDICIARY OF MANITOBA.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, in moving the second reading of Bill (No. 146) to provide for the salary and travelling expenses of an additional Puisné Judge of the Court of Queen's Bench, in the Province of Manitoba, said: The Bill has not been distributed, but it is simply the Resolution, with the words "be it enacted" before it.

Bill read the second time, and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Mr. MILLS. This is a most extraordinary proceeding. There is no Bill at all. The hon gentleman is asking the House to take a Resolution and proceed with it as if it were a Bill.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Well?

Mr. MILLS. I think that is a most extraordinary proceeding.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. It has often been done. Mr. MILLS. I have not seen it done.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Yes, you have, often.

Mr. MILLS. My impression is, I shall not see it done to-night.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I move, Mr. Chairman, that you rise and report progress, and ask leave to sit again. Progress reported.

MANITOBA AND HUDSON BAY RAILWAY.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the second reading of the Resolution, reported from Committee of the Whole, to authorize a free grant of land in aid of the construction of a railway from Manitoba to the Hudson Bay.

Resolution read the second time, and concurred in; and referred to Committee of the Whole on Bill No. 138.

DOMINION LANDS ACT AMENDMENT.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, in moving the second reading of Bill (No. 138) to amend the Dominion Lands Act, 1883, said: The Bill contains a number of amending clauses. Perhaps it will be more convenient to go into Committee at once.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Just state generally what they are, please.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Under the original Act, persons holding land could not obtain a homestead or preemption entry on contiguous lands unless the land they owned and the land they desired to preempt as a homestead did not exceed a quarter of a section. Then the second clause of this Bill is to provide for the case of families con-taining several sons. At present, if a father and two or three sons settle on adjoining lots, they must each of them, under the present law, build a house before they can get their patents. This is to enlarge that restriction and to enable parties living within a radius of two miles from the homestead, to live together, so that families or friends going up there and settling together can put up one good, comfortable house and live in it, each one cultivating their farms. Then there is a clause which, in some discussion which took place in this House, seemed to meet with very considerable favour, that is to say :

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD,

"The Governor in Council may, from time to time, for the preservation of forest trees on the crests and slopes of the Rocky Mountains, and for the proper maintenance throughout the year of the volume of water in the rivers and streams which have their sources in such mountains and traverse the North-West Territories, reserve from sale, lease or license, such portions of the land in the North-West Territories, on, adjacent to, or in the vicinity of the Rocky Mountains, as to him appears expedient so to reserve, and may define the limits or boundaries of such reserves; and may set aside and appropriate such lands for a forest park, or forest parks, as he deems expedient, and may appoint officers for the preservation of such reserves and forest parks."

The next clause provides for protecting timber. Then I am going to move an amendment that is not in the Bill from the Senate, and that is, to extend the privilege of preemption for two years. By the present law the privilege of preemption expires the 1st January, 1885. Now the right of preemption being so extensively advertised in Europe by colonization companies, by the Pacific Railway, and by Government agents, it is believed it would cause considerable disappointment if this right was allowed to expire next January, 1887.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Did I understand the hon. gentleman to say that he was going to move that the Committee consider the Resolution respecting a free grant of land to the Manitoba and Hudson's Bay Railway at the same time?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Yes; and add that to this Bill. It is convenient to do so. Under the Dominion Lands Act the Government have power, for the purpose of aiding railways, to sell lands at such prices as they may fix. They may fix a nominal rate if they please. Under the general purview of the Act, land cannot be sold under a dollar an acre except for special purposes, and there is provision in this Act that for railway purposes and other public purposes land may be sold at a price fixed by the Governor in Council. We might have fixed a nominal rate, but we thought that would be an evasion of the Statute and so we thought we would lay the case before Parliament and get the consent of Parliament.

Bill read the second time; and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I may say that this is not the form in which the Bill was introduced. The Bill, as introduced, provided that if a person settled upon land his brother, or his father, or his son, specifying the relationship, could live with him.

Mr. MILLS. Supposing the father lived five miles away, then this Bill would not apply at all.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. It provided that they should live on contiguous lots. In the Upper House there was a strong attempt made to introduce a cultivation clause without residence, but that was opposed by the Government, as giving too much chance for speculators. The law now is, that they must each have a residence, and this is to withdraw that restriction. They are allowed to live in one house if they make these improvements. In the homestead clauses it was provided that parties should each put up a house and reside in them. If a man puts up a house and resides in it, that ought to be sufficient evidence that he is a settler and is going to cultivate the land, but as this does not provide for putting up a house, it provides that they must go on from year to year and make substantial improvements—ten acres the first year, fifteen the second, &c. That is the alteration here.

Mr. MILLS. A patent should not be issued until some buildings are erected and indications given of permanent settlement.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. The house must be put up before the patent is issued. Mr. WATSON moved the following as sub-section 7 to section 33:

"In addition to the cases heretofore mentioned, any person claiming a patent for a homestead shall be entitled thereto, upon proving that he has erected upon his homestead a habitable house worth not less than $400; that within the first year after the date of homestead entry he had broken and prepared for crop not less than twenty acres of the homestead quarter-section; that within the second year he had cropped the said twenty acres and broken and prepared for crop not less than thirty acres additional, making in all not less than fifty acres of the aaid homestead cropped and thirty acres additional thereof broken and prepared for crop, within three years from the date of making his homestead entry; and that he has been a resident of the Province in which the homestead is entered during the entire period covered by his entry."

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I am opposed to the idea of cultivation without residence; and if we adopted this clause, we would be simply opening the door for speculation.

Mr. WATSON. I think the great object of the Land Act is to encourage people of the Province to place their earnings in the cultivation of the soil. This amendment would have that effect, because a great many men worth, perhaps, a $1,000, and now employed in trade, would put their earnings into land cultivation.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. This clause was submitted last Session and the sense of the House was against it. It is introducing a new principle; it is doing away with the homestead principle, which is that a man shall build a house and the Government afterwards give him the land.

Mr. SUTHERLAND. I was in favour of this clause last year; but I found it was very unpopular among the settlers. They at once set up the argument that rich men would pick up all the best sections and poor men would have no chance. The amendments proposed in the Bill are in the right direction; and I am glad to see the hon. gentleman has given to farmers sons and unmarried brothers who reside with married brothers and work adjoining lots the right of holding their land, even if they live in the same house. This concession will be found to be very popular. I am not sure that the cultivation homestead clause, which I proposed last year, would be popular. I received a great many letters after I made the proposal in question last year, condemning the clause, which I then thought would be a good thing for the country. I find, however, that it is not popular, and I cannot support it.

Mr. CHARLTON. The hon. Minister states that the opinion of the House last Session was against a clause similar to that now proposed. The Government have, however, made a long step in the direction of concession since that time. They have abandoned the stipulation that homesteaders shall be actual residents on their lots; and it is well to bear in mind that the conditions of the present proposal are very stringent-that the person shall erect a house of not less value than $400, and break eighty acres in three years. I believe such a measure calculated to bring the country under cultivation cannot be a bad measure; that a person taking a homestead, breaking eighty acres and building a house, cannot be considered as a speculator seeking to take up the best lands of the country. I see no reason why the Government should not depart from the rule laid down last Session still further than they have done. The person would have to be a resident in the Province, and I doubt whether only rich men would take up land. On the contrary, I think mechanics and many of the wageearning class would avail themselves of this privilege and seek to secure farms for themselves.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Under the clause these persons must be residents in the Province. Speculators would build houses, but they must live in Winnipeg; this privilege does not extend to men in Ontario. It limits the privilege to gentlemen of means in Winnipeg.

Mr. WATSON. I know that a great many persons besides speculators would avail themselves of this privilege. There is not much speculation in securing 16J acres, when in three years eighty acres have to be broken and a $400 house erected. They work at their trade in order to keep themselves, but they hope eventually to procure themselves a home on a farm. If this clause were added, you would induce artisans to become farmers and to put their earnings in the cultivation of the soil, which as I understand, is the great object of all the land regulations passed by this House.

Mr. MILLS. I think the leader of the Government does not make sufficient allowance for the effect of withholding the patent. Of course, so long as you do not base the patent upon the actual improvements, you can allow a great deal of latitude with regard to residents. I do not see any reason for that provision limiting the period of residence, the party to reside within two miles. Suppose a young man went there and was unable to obtain property within two miles of his father, he might wish to reside at home and cultivate his land. He and his father's hired man might spend a part of the time on the lot he had taken up, and it might be four or five miles away instead of two. The amendment suggested by the hon. member for Marquette would not be liable to the slighest difficulty. If the party does not receive the patent until after he becomes a resident, there would not be any danger of speculators taking up lots. There are many tradesmen scattered throughout Ontario and other parts of the Dominion who are anxious to take up land, and ultimately give up their trade for farming, and they simply wish an opportunity of securing the lots under favourable circumstances, while there is an opportunity of obtaining land.

Amendment negatived.

On section 4,

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved that clause 39 of the Act be struck out, and the following substituted :--

"The privilege of preemption in connection with a homestead entry shall be discontinued from and after the first day of January, Δ . D., 1887.

Amendment agreed to.

On section 5,

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the following amendment:--

"That the Governor in Council is authorized to make a free grant of not more than 6,400 acres per mile in Manitoba, and 12,800 acres per mile in the North-West Territory, in aid of the construction of a railway from Manitoba to Hudson Bay."

The question was asked, when we wore in Committee of Supply, whether the land lying on each side of the railway, outside Manitoba and in the North-West Territory, would be sub-divided into sections, and every alternate section given to the company. That would be found very inconvenient, because it would cost a great deal of money to survey the land, and from the broken nature of the country it would be an absurd waste of money to survey it. This clause enacts what the Resolution provides for, viz., a grant of lands for the Hudson Bay Railway.

Mr. MILLS. The objection I make to that clause, as it stands is, that it does not correspond with the plan the hon. gentleman has laid on the Table, because it does not provide that the land shall be along the line of railway. As I understood the hon. gentleman's proposition, it was that the land should be granted in alternate blocks along the line of railway.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Of course the land granted will be along the line of railway as long as it will hold out. There was no such specific provision, however, made in any of the grants to railways, except in the case of the Pacific Railway.

Mr. MILLS. That fact ought to be stated, then, in the Bill, otherwise a Government might make a private arrangement with a company to grant it the best lands in the North-West. The clause ought certainly to express the intention of the House.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. The Resolution as passed by the House is rather more liberal than this plan. It gives a larger grant.

Mr. MILLS. That is not the point. In that clause he has not confined the grant to the land along the railway. It may be granted a thousand miles away where the road is not of the slightest consequence to the development of the country. It does seem what ought to be done is to provide that the land should be granted on each side along the line, and then if any further land be required the Government might have power to give it elsewhere.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. We have stated that to be our policy and we will carry it out.

Mr. MILLS. It should be put in the Statute. The hon. gentleman may not be in office six months hence. It is contrary to our notions of Parliamentary Government that we should hand over the entire public domain to the Government to give any portion of it they think proper to any railway company. We do not do so with the public funds. The Government are obliged to state to Parliament the particular purpose for which every dollar of public money is required. The public domain is part of the public resources, and the whole theory of giving aid to public railways is that the lands which are to be improved in value by the construction of the road shall be given in aid of its construction, so that the parties who settle on that land and enjoy the facilities for transportation will, by the payments for such lands, contribute to the building of the road. The hon. gentleman brings down a plan intended to mislead the Committee. That plan is laid on the Table. The right hon. gentleman says we propose to do so and so. We ask him to put that statement in the Bill, and he refuses. He must have some object in that refusal. This is not carrying on the Government in accordance with the well understood wishes of the people. I say the proposition is a monstrous one, and this House will not support it if hon, members do their duty.

Mr. WATSON. I would like to suggest another amendment. Section 37 provides:

"Any person who has obtained a homestead patent after three years residence, or a certificate countersigned by the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, as in the next preceding clause mentioned, with the additional statement that there has been three years' residence, may obtain another homestead and preemptin nentry.

The Bill provides also that a man who resides on his homestead continuously for twelve months and brings 30 acres under cultivation has the privilege of purchasing at $2.50 an acre, but has not the right of acquiring a second homestead. As a rule, the Government grant permission to take a second homestead, and I do not see, therefore, why it should not be made statutory. A man who resides twelve months continuously on his homestead, and has brought under cultivation 30 acres, and paid $2.50 an acre, should have the right to take a second homestead as well as the man who resides on his homestead six months in the year, for three years, living in all eighteen months on his land. I move, therefore, in amendment, that the following section be substituted for section 37:--

"Any person who has obtained a homestead patent or certificate countersigned by the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, as in the next preceding clause mentioned, may obtain another homestead and preemption entry."

Sir John A. MACDONALD.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. This is out of order. It would be giving away the lands by giving a man the right to have a second homestead, and must be introduced by a Resolution.

Mr. WATSON. Not so; he purchases the land. It could pass under the principle set down by the right hon. gentleman in admitting a clause of similar character in this Bill.

Mr. MILLS. The hon. gentleman has nover introduced a Bill here with homestead clauses, in which the homestead clauses were introduced by Resolution in Committee, where the consent of the Crown was had before they were inserted. I do not think the hon. gentleman's objection is well taken. He has introduced a homestead Bill and has never introduced a Resolution in Committee.

Bill, as amended, reported.

SUBSIDIES TO RAILWAYS.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER moved the second reading of Bill (No. 147), to authorize certain subsidies and grants for and in respect of the construction of the lines of railway therein mentioned.

Bill read the second time, and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee.)

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I propose to amend the first clause. Hon. gentlemen will see that the third clause provides for carrying out the objects of the Resolution with regard to the extension of the Canadian Pacific Railway, from its terminus at St. Martin's junction, near Montreal, or some other point on the Canadian Pacific Railway, to the harbour at Quebec, and the necessary legislation is provided in the third clause for that. I propose to amend the first section by putting in, on the fourth line on the fourth page, after the words "four years," the words "except the line mentioned in the third section of this Act, which shall be commenced within one year," so that it will read :

"All the lines, for the construction of which subsidies are granted, shall be commenced within two years from the first day of July next, and completed within a reasonable time, not to exceed four years, except the line mentioned in the third section of this Act, which shall be commenced within one year, to be fixed by Order in Council."

This is to make it conform to the third clause.

Mr. AMYOT. (Translation.) I should like to know, in case that the road should not be commenced in twelve months from now, if the $960,000 would revert to the Quebec Government?

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. (Translation.) In answer to the hon. member I must say that in case the road should not be commenced within a year, Parliament will then have to take action and to give effect to the provision which is contained in this Bill, viz: to either extend the Pacific Railway as far as Quebec, or to dispose of the $960,000, in the way pointed out by the hon. member. Parliament is asked to pledge itself to have the extension built this year; if that is not done, Parliament will have to take action again. As to the question whether this amount will be given to the Province of Quebec, or whether it will be applied to the railway extension, Parliament will be perfectly free to act in whatever way it may be thought to be the most proper.

Mr. AMYOT. I want to put another question. The hon, the Mininter of Railways has declared that the Government would be ready to accept the services of some engineer designated by the local authorities. We want to enquire by whom that engineer would be paid, whether as forming part of the general exploration.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. That will be a matter of arrangement. I think the Government will be disposed to deal very fairly with any suggestion from the Province of Quebec or any localities interested in having a full exploration. I do not think there will be any difficulty in that.

Mr. WELDON. With regard to the Northern and North-West subsidy of last year, I would ask the hon. Minister whether he would not allow it to remain. It is an entirely new departure to repeal a subsidy. I understand the parties have spent a good deal of money, some $80,000, for the purpose of carrying out that railway, and the Minister said, last year, he changed the vote in Committee for the purpose of giving the very option the Local Government have now taken. It seems to me that, after the parties, on the faith of that subsidy, had gone in and made expenditures, the hon. Minister should allow the vote to remain, and not make another vote in lieu of it. The matter can be discussed by the parties with the Local Government, and the company being organized and having gone to this expense, it is a very serious matter to repeal that subsidy, and it is adopting a very bad principle, where parties have, on the faith of these subsidies, entered into this expenditure, to say that their subsidies should be repealed.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. My hon. friend will see that, by the legislation of last Session, the company, if they proposed entering into any engagements whatever, were bound to make an agreement with the Government. They have never made any agreement. So far as I am aware, they have never proposed any agreement. That was the first step, because they did not know that the terms that would be exacted would be the terms they would comply with, until they had come to the Government. The legislation of last Session, while it gave greater latitude in the selection of a route, still retained that selection. It did not at all give that to the Government of New Brunswick, or any other party than this Government, so that, until the company made an arrangement and entered into an agreement in the terms of the Resolution, and until they had their route located, by their location of the route being adopted and confirmed by the Governor in Council here, they had no ground of complaint whatever. In the next place, the amount proposed to be given to that company is increased. They are getting, for the same line of railway, a larger subsidy, and in addition they are getting the construction of fourteen miles as a branch of the Intercolonial Railway. I think they have very little ground of complaint; in fact, they have no ground of complaint.

Mr. WELDON. The hon. Minister will see that, up to this Session of the New Brunswick Legislature, to get the subsidy given by the New Brunswick Government, they were fixed to a certain point and were not in a position to come before this Parliament. The charter was renewed in 1881, giving them ten years, and they were not in a position to come here until the legislation was passed by the New Brunswick Legislature. That has only been passed within the last few weeks, and it seems to me unfair to take that sub-sidy away from them. That subsidy is for an entirely different portion of the road.

Mr. MITCHELL. My hon. friend says it is upfair to take that subsidy from them, as the legislation which changed the subsidy was passed in the last two weeks. He forgets to tell the House that that subsidy was fixed by the Local Parliament of New Brunswick, and fixed in a parti- | existence for three or four years, and the president even of cular place, and the subsidy last year was granted for that | that company, was the man who came up here and at whose place. It was applied for by me for that locality, from Derby siding upwards. It was upon that application the Government granted it, and it was only when the legislation was laid before this House applied on my own behalf, knowing what the county and was passing through, that the telegrams were received, wanted, for this road to be built as a branch. My hon friend asking to leave the junction an open question. To that I has not taken the trouble I have taken to get a subsidy for assented; but when I found that nearly a year had elapsed and no step had been taken, except to get a Chancery lawsuit up between two companies, when I saw the chances of a railway at all for the locality were going to be baulked, I applied to the Minister of Railways to do what I asked him to do in the first instance, to build it as a branch of the Intercolonial. That is the only chance I saw of getting a local railway through the county, a railway very impor-tant to the county. When my hon, friend takes such a deep interest in Northumberland and makes these assertions he ought to tell the whole facts in relation to it. He has not told the whole facts. He has left the impression on this House that the changes had been made contrary to justice and to right. I tell him that of the men who sent that telegram not one of them had ever asked to obtain a subsidy for the road they are going to build. I applied, on my own account, knowing, as I did, what the county wants, and knowing its interests far better than the hon. gentleman. I applied for that subsidy for this particular locality, where the branches are going to be built. I would not be doing justice to the people of the parishes through which it is proposed to build this road, if I permitted it to be diverted from the purposes Parliament had in view and the purposes I had in view. If these gentlemen want a subsidy and will come and ask for it, they will find me as ready to help them to get a subsidy for their lineif it is necessary, as I have no doubt it is-as I have been to get this. But I will not allow the people of the parishes, who have not the same facilities for sending telegrams to the Opposition as well as to the Government, who have not the same facility for combination as the town people-I will not allow them to be cheated out of the subsidy which I asked for on their behalf, and which the Government granted to me for that particular purpose.

M. WELDON. Of course, I am not the member for Northumberland, but I am a member for the Province of New Brunswick, and I feel as much interest in the north shore of that county as the hon. member himself, who is not now a resident of that Province. With regard to this matter, this grant was given to the Northern and North-West Company, which is now regularly organized. My hon. friend says there were two companies. There were not; the court decided there was only one company, the company seeking this subsidy. They are the parties who now send forward this telegram, the parties who applied last year, when the Minister of Railways said he was in receipt of telegrams which changed the position. My hon. friend says I do not tell the facts. Does he tell the facts ? The route originally was through Nelson and Derby, but when his friend, the late Surveyor-General, came in, and the subsidy was renewed, he had it confined to the north shore entirely and left the south shore out in the cold. But when it was brought before Parliament this Session it was made optional, so that justice might be done to the southern part as well as to the northern part.

Mr. MITCHELL. There was a Subsidy Act passed in 1872, but after ten years the subsidy of $5,000 a mile was allowed to lapse. Why did not these gentlemen go on and build the line themselves? Why, Sir, they never made the first move. My hon. friend says the court decided the second company had no existence; but this company which was decided by an ex parte statement of the judge to have no existence was really the only company that has been in instance I got a requisition signed by two-thirds of the New Brunswick members in this House, asking for this subsidy for these very men. Before he came, though, I had COMMONS DEBATES.

a railway through Northumberland. The only interest I have ever seen him take in the county is to thwart its interests. There has not been the slightest chance of either of the companies doing the work, because the district is divided; and I felt it was my duty to endeavour to get it through, even if I had to shorten the distance, for I would rather have four miles as a branch than fifty miles built by these private companies, the possibility being so remote of the companies going through with their enterprise.

Mr. FORTIN. I crave the indulgence of this House for the few remarks I have to address to it before the vote is taken. I think this measure is one of justice towards the several Provinces of this Dominion. Perhaps it is not extended equally to each Province, because some of the Provinces had formerly received their shares, directly or indirectly. It is but natural I should say a word in reference to the share that falls to the Province of Quebec out of these subsidies. The subsidy for the railway built by the Province of Quebec, from Ottawa to Quebec, is nothing but what was due, in my humble opinion. I approve especially that part of the subsidy which provided for the terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway being placed definitely and irrevocably at Quebec. It has been promised repeatedly by the promoters of the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway and of the establishment of the North-West. How could any one, having at heart the welfare of this country, consider, without the greatest regret, the greatest magnificent port of Quebec, isolated from the trade of the west and the north-west of this continent. And it would be so, if Quebec were not one of the principal eastern termini of the Canadian l'acific Railway system, Montreal being the other; I mean the termini, especially for the produce and articles which, coming by the Canadian Pacific Railway, are destined for Europe and have to be transported through the River and Gulf of St. Lawrence. I consider that it is the bounden duty of the Government and I will add, of the Liberal Conservative party, to carry that idea and put it into execution. I hope it will not be considered out of place for me if I say a few words in reference to the Bay des Chaleurs Railway. I thoroughly approve of the course the Government has adopted in this respect, as it appears to be the only way this important branch of the Intercolonial Railway could be secured. It will be several years before this work can be brought to completion; but the population of the two counties, interested in this important branch railway, will now not only live in hope, but will be sure that their aspirations after the long cherished idea of being put in communication by means of a railway with the other ports of Canada and especially with the markets will be realized. When this railway will have reached the important port of Gaspé, one of the finest and most secure harbours in the world, it will have traversed the greatest part of the counties, of Bonaventure and Gaspé containing over 5,000,000 (five millions) acres of land, of which a large part is of the best quality, with a population of 40,000 inhabitants, which is fast increasing—witness the increase of the population of the county of Gaspé, from 15,557 in habitants, that it was, in 1871, to 20,685, in 1881. That does not include the population of the Magdalen Islands, which is of 4,316 in-habitants. I think, it will be interesting to know what are the principal productions of that country, in 1881:

I think I have said enough to show that the Government is doing a patriotic act when it takes this means of developing the resources of this important part of the country. I am sorry I was accidentally absent from the House when the vote was taken on the concurrence to the railway Resolu-tions embodied in this Bill, because I would have voted in favour of the measure.

Section, as amended, agreed to.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER moved, that after the second clause the following be inserted :

"The Canadian Pacific Railway Company may, within six months from the passing of this Act, purchase the North Shore Railway from St. Martin's junction to Quebec, or may obtain control of the same, or may make with the owners of said railway such arrangements as will allow the said Canadian Pacific Railway Company to extend its railway to Quebec, failing which, the provisions obtained in the three follow-ing sections may take effect."

This is merely a prelude to the clauses which follow, for the purpose of carrying out these Resolutions.

Amendment agreed to.

On section 3,

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I propose to amend the third clause by adding after the words, "said railway," on the 41st line, "to the harbour of Quebec."

Amendment agreed to.

On section 5,

Mr. BELLEAU. (Translation.) I understand, that by this clause it is intended to provide for the case in which the Company should build an independent line from the North Shore Railway to connect at a certain point with the Lake St. John Railway. As it may not be easy for the Pacific Railway Company to buy the Lake St. John Railway-for that will depend on the willingness of the owners of the road to part with it—it might be expedient to provide that the Pacific Railway may leave this road or make with the owners of it such arrangements as may be entered into to give them the right of way.

Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN. (Translation.) I am informed that the words "which may be acquired" cover not only the buying but also the leasing of the road; consequently, what is desired by the hon. member is included in this clause.

Mr. DE ST. GEORGES. (Translation.) I was glad to hear the member from Lévis (Mr. Belleau) advocating the cause of the county of Pontneuf, which I represent, and through which passes the Lake St. John Railway. I regret that what is granted to railways in other Provinces has not also been granted to that line. I have heard with great pleasure the explanations given by the Government on this question, but still I think that the same subsidy which is granted to other railways should have also been granted to the Lake St. John Railway so as to put us on equal footing with the other Provinces.

Bill, as amended, reported.

JUDICIARY OF MANITOBA.

The following Bill was again considered in Committee, reported, and read the third time and passed :--

Bill (No. 146) to provide for the salary and travelling expenses of an additional Puisné Judge of the Court of Queen's Bench, in the Province of Manitoba.—(Sir John A. Macdonald.)

ORDERS DISCHARGED.

The following Orders for second reading were discharged :---

Bill (No. 7) respecting the Electoral Franchise.---(Sir John A. Macdonald.)

Bill (No. 106) to define certain offences against persons employed in Factories.—(Sir Leonard Tilley.)

Mr. CARLING. It is thought necessary in the Department that a first-class clerk should be appointed in the supply branch; and as soon as an examination is made, one of the clerks at present in the Department will be promoted to the position, and this will be substituted for his present salary.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The Minister of Finance was to give details of this vote.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. The Law Clerk, Master in Chancery, Clerk of Committees, and English translator now receives $2,000, and this increase will make his salary $2,200. The second Clerk Assistant, Master in Chancery, and Chief French translator now receives $1,900; this will give him $2,200. The first French translator and clerk now receives $1,600; this will give him $1,900, the same as it is proposed to give to the chief French translator. The clerk of French journals and Assistant Serjeant at-Arms now receives $1,200; this will give him $1,400. The Assistant Accountant and junior Clerk now receives $1,200; this will give him $1,250. The bank messenger now receives $750; this will give him $800. For postage and carriage of mails, it is proposed to increase the amount from $800 to $900.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What is meant by bank messenger?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I do not know. That is voted every year.

Mr. DAVIES. Will these increases make the salaries of these officials the same as those of the Commons officials?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. The Law Clerk in Chancery receives $2,200; our Law Clerk receives $3,200 and his assistant $2,000. This will make it $200 more than the assistant.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. How long have these officers been employed?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. That I cannot say. The Law Clerk only two or three years.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. They have a pleasant way of increasing the salaries of their officers without any particular regard to the amount of work they do. Their position is important enough, and I have nothing to say against these gentlemen, still the duties attending the officers in that venerable body are very much less onerous than those discharged by our officers. I am not prepared to acquiesce to any doctrine that they are to be paid necessarily in the same ratio as the officers of the House of Commons.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. In regard to the $150,000, the case stands thus: When the Intercolonial Railway was provided for, a portion had been constructed by the Government of New Brunswick. When the Intercolonial Railway was being constructed under an Act of this Parliament, from Rivière du Loup to Truro, the question arose as to the section constructed in the Province of New Brunswick. After some pressure from this Government, the Government of New Brunswick were obliged to accept a smaller sum than they had been obliged to pay to secure the construction of that road; it has been a matter in controversy from that time to this. A memorial from the Government of New Brunswick was referred to my Department, and I instructed Mr. Frank Shanly, who was acting as Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial, to take the question up and examine it in all its details, and make a report. He made a report to the effect that this $150,000 was fairly due to New Brunswick, in connection with the construction of that portion of the line, and he showed that the basis which had been adopted, when this settlement took place with the Province of New Brunswick, required to be When the road was purchased it was purrevised. chased on the ground that the amount of money paid to New Brunswick was the sum that would be required to construct it, if it had not already been constructed by the Province of New Brunswick, and when it subsequently proved that the estimated cost per mile of the contracts which were let upon the Intercolonial Railway, on which the cost of construction was based, were greatly exceeded in the course of construction, it was considered only fair that that matter should be reconsidered, and the Government came to the conclusion, on the report that had been made and in view of all the circumstances, that it was only just we should pay the Province of New Brunswick this $150,000 which the road had cost them, over and above what they had received for it.

Mr. WELDON. I hope the Government next year will give us the interest.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. It is pretty clear that everyone of these items will open the door for a great many other demands. I see the hon. Minister asking for another quarter of a million—I forget how many quarters of millions he has had already for rolling stock within these last few years—for coal cars. How many will be built?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Four hundred.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I suppose they will hold twelve tons or more apiece?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. They will hold twenty tons each.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. What additional quantity of coal does the hon. gentleman expect to transport with these?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. According to the coal companies, the amount of coal they are prepared to provide for the output during the coming year will be greatly in excess of the provision 1 am making. This provision does not cover, according to the evidence the coal companies have given as to the contracts they are making, the necessity for increased means of transport. The output of the Spring Hill coal fields is about 1,000 tons per day, and it is stated that by August next their output will reach 1,500 tons a day, so that undoubtedly there will be a great additional demand for the means of moving coal, and this amount is the smallest we could ask, with any regard to the evidence, to meet the increased traffic.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. This is $625 a car. Where will they be constructed ?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I shall call for tenders and take the lowest we can obtain, so as to secure their construction at the least possible cost. The moment the vote passes, tenders will be called for.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. They are not to be constructed at the old Government works?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. No. Sir Charles Tupper. Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Will the hon. gentleman state roughly how many coal cars he possesses now on the Intercolonial?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. About 1,400, of different capacities.

Mr. WELDON. Are there any arrangements with the United States about the bridge across the St. John river?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. This will only be expended in case the Government of the United States make provision to the same extent to build the other half.

359 To pay contractors and others, as reported by Commissioners appointed to enquire into claims arising out of the construction of the Intercolonial Railway...... $358,200 00

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I need not tell the Committee that this is a question that has long been pressed on the attention of the Government, and various efforts have been made to arrive at some solution. Mr. Fleming gave two estimates originally for the construction of the Intercolonial Railway, that is the whole twenty-three contracts up to formation level-one the maximum, which would be sufficient to cover it under any contingency, and the other the minimum estimate, the very lowest for which he supposed it would be possible to secure the construction of that work. His maximum estimate was $13,750,000, and his minimum estimate $11,000,000; that is, for the construction, up to formation level, of the entire Intercolonial Railway from Rivière du Loup to Truro; on the whole, twenty-three contracts, leaving, of course, the ballasting and track laying, and steel rails and everything of that kind to be provided in addition. The aggregate of the first contract prices for the whole twentythree contracts amounted to $8,705,000. A number of the contractors broke down. The prices were found to be inadequate; they abandoned the work, and the Government were obliged to re-let the contracts, and the aggregate of the contract prices, after these sections had been re-let, was $10,037,000; and, deducting the wooden superstructure of bridges, of which the contractors were relieved, which amounted to $270,000, the total of the contract price was reduced to $9,767,000. In the first instance, as hon. gentlemen opposite know very well, the contracts were made with a provision to have wooden bridges constructed. Subsequently it was decided not only to adopt steel rails for the Intercolonial Railway, but to substitute iron bridges for those of wood and relieve the contractors of this work, which reduced the amount of the contracts by $270,000, which was the contract price for the wooden bridge superstructure. When the work was finished, it had cost the Gov-ernment $1,200,000 more; that is to say, the Government had been obliged to take hold of a number of contracts in which the contractors broke down, and finished the contracts at the public expense. In that way, the total expenditure for that work, for which Mr. Fleming had estimated a minimum of $11,000,000, was $10,960,000. Claims were made for over $4,000,000, on various grounds, by the contractors who had been engaged in the construction of this work, and the Committee will recollect that Mr. Frank Shanly was appointed for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon these claims, making a careful examination, taking testimony, giving the parties an opportunity of establishing, as far as they were able, the justice of their claims, and making a report, not for payment, but for the information of the Gov-ernment. Mr. Shanly discharged that duty, but although he was an engineer of very considerable ability, the Government felt that, in a matter involving such a very large sum of money, it was necessary to take still greater precautions in regard to the expenditure likely to be involved, and it was finally decided to appoint a Commission, consisting of parties who were thoroughly qualified to investigate, with great care and attention, claims of such magnitude, and possessing a thorough knowledge of, and acquaintance with, railway That Commission consisted, as hon. members are work. aware, of Judge Clark, Mr. Broughton, the manager of the Great Western Railway, who had had great experience in regard to claims in connection with railway work, and Col. Boulton, who had had experience both as a barrister, as a person accustomed to weighing testimony and dealing with questions from a legal standpoint, and also very considerable experience in regard to railway matters, as I believe he had been president of a company, if not a railway manager. The result of that examination has been an award by the Commissioners, or a report, deciding that they found just legal claims to an amount of $148,000, in round numbers. If you add to this the sum, after waiving the right to deduct the value of the diminution of work caused by change of grade and location, exclusive of interest, it would make a sum of $183,000, which, with the total amount of the cost of the work before stated, would bring up the entire expenditure, on the twenty-three contracts, to $11,143,000, or $143,000 only in excess of the minimum estimate prepared by Mr. Fleming before the work was undertaken. Some time after the works were undertaken, when they were in active and vigorous progress, it was found the prices were inadequate to enable the contractors to proceed, and Mr. Fleming reported to the Commissioners that, in his judgment, it was better to waive the claim for the diminution of work. The contracts provided that, where the work was diminished or increased by a change of grade or location, the contract sum would be diminished or increased, as the case might be. If the work was diminished, the amount of diminution was to be taken off the contractor; if it was increased, the additional amount was to be paid to the contractor; and I may state that in every one of the twenty-three contracts, from beginning to end, there was a very considerable diminution of work, as the road was finally constructed, below the amounts stated in the contract. When it was found that the prices were inadequate, that the contractors would break down, and that the works would have to be relet, that not only time would be lost, but probably a large increased expenditure incurred from the increased prices that would be asked by new parties taking these contracts, Mr. Fleming reported that he thought it was better to go on paying the contractors for the amount of the work they per-formed, irrespective of any diminution which took place. I may say that the Commissioners never formally adopted that course, but practically it was done, because it was found that, in a large number of cases where the contractors were unable to finish their contracts, notwithstanding that a deduction for the diminution had not been enforced, they were constructed at a large additional expense to the country, over and above the amount that related to the diminution of the work. That being the case, the Government have felt that they might fairly waive that $183,000, and might apply the same principle, that practically had been applied to the contracts that were settled and to those that were taken out of the hands of the contractors. There is $71,349 of the finding of these Commissioners that applies to ballasting and other matters outside of this question of bringing the works to formation level, embraced in Mr. Fleming's minimum. Add that to $182,617 the finding of the award of the Commissioners, with the waiving of the right to charge the contractors with the diminution of the work, and it makes a total of $253,996, and if you add the interest to that, from the date of the completion of the contracts, it would make a total sum of $405,200, which the Government submit for the approval of thus voted are embraced in the total amount that I have Parliament. That would add, as will seen be at a glance, but a very insignificant sum to the minimum estimate of Mr. Fleming, in the first instance. Those who are familiar with the progress of these works are aware that the contractors took these contracts at prices altogether inadequate, in most cases, for the performance of the work. This sum of $405,200 covers the award of the Commissioners for work performed in the St. Julion and Bic station yards; but waiving the right to deduct the diminution of the work and adding interest on the amount, you still have the work preformed at a much smaller amount than would have been possible had the Government done it themselves, except through the agency of contractors working upon a bulk sum. These contracts were not let like those on the Canadian Pacific Railway and on the canals, but they were let on a bulk sum; and as I said before, where the contractors broke down and Government had to intervene, it was found that the prices Government were compelled to pay, in order to secure the completion of the works, were much greater than the amount paid to the contractors who had thus broken down-in fact, I may say, to any of the contractors; and I think, under the circum-stances, this vote having been examined with great care, the report which has been laid upon the Table, stating in the clearest manner the grounds of the action of the Commissioners, the principles by which they were guided in coming to the conclusion they did, the House will agree with me that it is not unreasonable we should ask for the larger amount, that we should ask for the amount of their finding, without deducting the diminutions that were not deducted from the other parties, and adding the interest, making a total of $405,200. Now, I may say these claims, which have been examined, exceed $4,000,000, and the sum awarded is only one-sixteenth the amount of the claims that were placed before them. I will not detain the Committee further, because the report which was laid on the Table, and which will, doubtless, be printed, shows clearly the mode upon which all these claims were treated; and in addition to that, I have made, in regard to all these amounts for which we are asking Parliament for appropriations, a special report in each individual case, giving the minutest details as to the principles upon which these amounts were arrived at.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The amount asked . here is $358,200.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. $47,000 of the $405,000 was the amount already paid and voted in the Estimates this Session, for McDonnell & Company, and is deducted from the total.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I thought that was struck out?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No; that was. It is paid deducted from this total of $405,000. I treat the whole because that amount is embraced in the Commissioners' reports, as my hon. friend will see, if he refers to the report on the Table.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Were there not a considerable number of other claims paid some years ago, in connection with these same Intercolonial Railway claims?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. These are all embraced in the amounts I have stated : that is to say, they are all covered. Half a dozen of the first contractors broke down, and the statement made to the Government, when tenders were invited, was that the information was so utterly inadequate as to make it impossible for them to arrive at a correct conclusion. A large number of these parties had been unable to meet the claims for labour, and we asked Parliament a specific vote for the purpose of covering the expenditures on those contracts at the time the works were re-let, and all those sums COMMONS DEBATES.

stated here the work has cost. Then there has been some comparatively small sums, that were reported upon by Mr. Shanley, specific items that were voted, but those are insignificant.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. But there were other items which were examined into and arbitrated on by Mr. Samuel Keefer, if I remember rightly.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. They are all embraced in this total expenditure.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. But it has been paid already.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. That was a year ago-$100,000.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. There are some others, I think.

Sir CHARTES TUPPER. That is the principal sum, I think.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. But that would form part of the claims of $1,000,000, to which the hon. gentleman referred, surely?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No; the $4,000,000 are the claims referred to this Commission, and that were settled and paid previously.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Can the hon. Minister tell me, generally, what has proved to be the cost per mile to us of the Intercolonial Railway that we constructed apart, of course, from the Rivière du Loup branch?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. About $47,000 per mile.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I recollect clearly having heard, a good many years ago, in this place, that it would probably cost us from $21,000 to $22,000 a mile—quite a difference from the actual cost. I think it would have been better, in drawing this vote, if either a list had been appended or if that be too long, that special reference should have been made to some item in the report.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. It is on the Table. For the convenience of hon. gentlemen, I had the report prepared by a type writer, so as to make it more legible, and on the last page the hon. gentleman will find a detailed statement of the amount recommended for each individual.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I see these are made, in the first instance, without interest, and this $405,000 includes interest. I will oblige the hon. gentleman by reading the items for him: Mr. McGreevy, $55,313, with interest, $84,075; Alexander McDonald & Co., $36,761, with interest, $61,758; Neilson & McGaw, $41,707; D. Macdonald, $36,397; Jones & Co., $30,032; Smⁱth & Pitblado, $2,279; Starr & De Wolf, $14,453; D. Fraser, $9,472; Martin Murphy, $14,417; D. Macdonald, $22,269; McBean & Robinson, $5,483; John Russell, $36; Alfonse Matté, $479; J. M. Blaikie, $1,865; F. Turgeon, $2,242; A. McDonell & Co., 47,005; and some other small amounts. These constitute the sum total in the present case, wholly the total amount of claims paid, including those adjudicated on by Mr. Keefer and Mr. Shanly?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The principal one was Murray & Co., about $100,000. The others were comparatively small sums. I suppose $10,000 would cover them all:

Mr. DAVIES. Will this close up all claims in regard to the Intercolonial.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. This is the report of the Commission.

Mr. DAVIES. Are there any outstanding claims? Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No; none that have not been considered by the Commission.

Mr. DAVIES. Then this pays everything.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. This report deals with all the claims against the Intercolonial Railway.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Do you propose to reopen them?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Certainly, I do not propose to reopen them.

Mr. MITCHELL. There are two or three trifling claims that I have brought under the Minister's notice, and which I received from my constituents. I hope these claims will not be shut out from consideration.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Nothing can be foreclosed. That is a matter for Parliament entirely.

Mr. DAVIES. I understand then it is quite possible that Parliament may be called on to devote further sums in liquidation of other claims than those before us now.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. When the hon. member for Northumberland refers to small matters, respecting which he has sent a communication to me, they will have to be examined; and it is impossible to say that we will close the door against all such claims. I say that all claims against the Intercolonial have been dealt with by the Commission. They have reported on all of them.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Mr. Chairman, I may say, in regard to this matter, that the Committee is aware that very extensive changes were made by the Department in the construction of Contract 42 on the Canadian Pacific Railway, known as section "B." The amount of that contract was over $4,100,000, that is to say, the contract prices at which the work was let amounted to over that sum. In the progress of the work, as the Committee is perfectly well aware, we were exceedingly anxious that the work should be prosecuted as vigorously as possible, and we considered it of the utmost importance, in respect to the development of the North-West, that the Canadian Pacific Railway, upon which so much money had been spent, between Port Arthur and Winnipeg, should be completed as rapidly as possible. The engineers in charge came to the conclusion, some time after the contract had been let, that it would be impossible to accomplish the object of opening that line of railway within the time stated in the contract (and it was opened within that time) without losing another year, unless a very considerable change took place in regard to some of the structures, unless we substituted trestle piling for solid rock embankment, in crossing a number of the water stretches that were encountered on that line. these circumstances, feeling it was quite Under practicable to construct a first-class road and to make this section equal, in every respect to the other sections between Port Arthur and Winnipeg, and at the same time affect a very large reduction by this change, the change was made. The contractors raised grave objections, on the ground that the rock borrowing was the only profitable portion of the work; that the change was of such a radical, or as they called it, a revolutionary character, as to expose them to ruin; and, in fact, they stated that if we persisted they must demand payment for work done and abandon the contract. Under those circumstances the Government, knowing that to re-let the contract would involve a great increase in the expenditure, and that it would be impossible to do so without losing a year's time, which was considered of the greatest value to the country, the Government agreed to submit to an independent arbitration. Questions were raised by the contractors. They raised two questions, both of a very formidable character. They raised the question that they had been led to expect that Section 15 would be completed at a much earlier period, than was actually the case and would afford an easy access to their section; that such contract was not completed for more than one year after the date named in the contract for its completion, and that they had in consequence been put to an enormous expenditure in getting in plant and supplies. They also claimed that the radical change in their contract took away the only portion of it which was profitable, and they refused to go on with the work. They demanded payment for the work they had done, and said they were prepared to abandon the contract. Under these circumstances, the Government considered that it was in the interests of the country that they should agree that an arbitration should be had, under which the contractors should chose one arbitrator, the Government another, and in case these two could not agree upon the selection of the third, that he should be chosen by a judge of the Supreme Court, and that to that arbitration should be submitted the question of what damages they were entitled to, if any, by non completion of Section 15 at an earlier period, and also the question as to the changes which had been made in the character of the work. That arbration has taken place. The contractors selected Mr. Brydges, the Government, Judge Clark, and as Mr. Brydges and Judge Clark could not agree, the Chief Justice of the Su-preme Court nominated Mr. Light, the Government engineer for the Province of Quebec, as the third arbitrator. That arbitration has dealt with the two questions submitted to them. In the first place, the contractors maintained that the Chief Engineer, and myself, as Minister, had done them great injustice in the principles we applied to the measurement of loose rock, and some other questions of that charactor - in f...ct, they denied that they had had the fair mea-surement to which they were entitled. In the second place, the question of the extent of the damages, if any, inflicted upon them by the delay in the completion of Section 15, and the radical change of contract by the substitution of a different kind of work for a kind which they were prepared to carry out, was also considered. The first point was disposed of, and an award was made of some $44,000. There were two awards made. In the first place, they dealt with the question of classification of work, as to which they complained of the rule adopted by the Chief Engineer and myself. The award given by the arbitrators on that point was unanimous, and it was, that they were entitled to an amount, in round numbers, of some $44,000. Then they took up the second question. They proposed to postpone the consideration of this question, but I stated that I was anxious that the whole matter should be brought to a conclusion. Mr. Brydges returned from Winnipeg, and after an exhaustive examination, after the best defence the Government could make, two of the arbitrators awarded the contractors $395,200 for damages. That award the Government have not decided to pay. We think it prudent to take the vote, but at this moment the matter has been referred to the Department of Justice, and as the amount is a large one and greatly exceeded that which the Government considers they should claim, by any possibility, it is proposed, before paying the award, to take the opinions of the ablest counsel at the command of the Government, who will carefully examine the whole question. If it is considered it is an award from appealing with success, the appeal will be had. If, on the other hand, we are advised, after the best opinions we can obtain, that it would be hopeless to appeal, that there is no prospect of successfully appealing, then this money will be paid. I have stated to the Committee frankly what the position of the matter is. I propose now to draw attention for a moment to the position in which the contract will stand, assuming the worst-viz.: that amount of the award is paid. The amount of the contract, when it was made, was $4,130,707. The total cost, including the award, will be less, as shown by the figures which I will now give. The final estimate of all the work done by the contractors, will be $2,863,000. The portion of the contract work undertaken by the contractors remaining undone was $359.800. We have made a contract for the completion of that, under circumstances of which the Committee are well aware. The further amount claimed, on account of tressle work, is some $62,000. Including the award of $395,600, would bring the total amount to $3,680,400, which sum, would be $450,307 less than the contract price, when the contract was made, and less than the lowest estimate of the Chief Engineer, for this work. I may state that the amount claimed and which was submitted to the arbitrators by the contractors was $711,335.

Mr. DAVIES. Which of the arbitrators made the award?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The award was made by Mr. Brydges, the arbitrator chosen by the contractors, and Mr. Light, selected by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Mr. DAVIES. What counsel represented the Government?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The counsel representing the Government were the firm of O'Connor & Hogg, Mr. Hogg being chiefly engaged, and Mr. Christie, of the firm of Pinhey & Christie, two of the ablest counsels to be obtained in Ottawa.

Mr. CASEY. In the main Estimates the sum of $500,000 was asked for the portion of the railway between Prince Arthur's Landing and Red River. Was this to cover the arbitration?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No, but I gave to the leader of the Opposition a detailed memorandum, showing how that $500,000 was expended. The only portion of this contract it covers, is $359,800 of work belonging to the contract taken over by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Was the award laid on the Table?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Yes; and I only discovered this morning that they had not sent down the domand made by the contractors.

Mr. CASEY. In connection with this matter, some statements have been made which it would be perhaps as well to have settled once for all. One was made by Mr. Manning, I think, in a letter to the Globe, when the subject of the removal of Mr. Jennings, the engineer in charge of the work at that time, was being discussed in that paper. It had been asserted by the Globe that this engineer had been removed at the instance of the contractors, and Mr. Manning stated that that was correct, that they had not been satisfied with Mr. Jennings and demanded his removal, and that he was removed consequently. Mr. Jennings, I believe, was afterwards sent to British Columbia, but did not stay there long. I would like to ask the Minister if this statement is correct-that the engineer was removed at the demand of the contractors, whose work he was appointed to supervise, and, if so, whether he was given other work, and whether he is still in the pay of the Government; and if he was not which we should appeal, from which there is a prospect of removed for that reason, for what reason was he removed ?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I may say that Mr. Jennings' connection with that work was severed when I was not in the country. There is no doubt that at a very early period the contractors became very hostile to Mr. Jennings; in fact, from the very day on which this contract was let, down to the hour at which it was at an end, they have been at constant issue with the Department, and have been making complaints of the way in which they have been treated by the Government, by the engineers, and by everybody else, so far as I am aware. There is no doubt that they complained of Mr. Jennings, as they held that he was not giving them fair play. With those representations I have not been satisfied. I have always had confidence in Mr. Jennings; I believe he was an able, faithful and trustworthy engineer. He was recommended by Mr. Fleming, who stated that he was an engineer of high standing, and he was appointed by me in consequence of that recommendation. I hold the same opinion of him to-day; all I have seen of him goes to show that he is a thoroughly conscientious man and an able engineer; but, as hon. gentlemen know, it is not always such a man who gets along smoothly with contractors. As a rule, I find contractors very much disposed to find fault with whoever has the duty of supervising their work. I did not act on any represen-tation that was made by any of the contractors; but when these works had reached that stage of completion, Mr. Caddy, who was also an able engineer, selected by Mr. Fleming, was considered able to perform the work on both sections, and Mr. Jennings was transferred to British Columbia. He remained there for some time, and subsequently returned to Canada, and I am glad to be able to say that he is at this moment - for I have always taken the very warmest interest in him-occupying a very important and responsible position, and is receiving the greatest salary and advantages that he has ever enjoyed.

M. VAIL. In the Government employ?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No; in the employ of Mr. Onderdonk, on his section in British Columbia. If Mr. Jennings was not employed there, he would be to-day in the service of the Government, because I had decided to send him as the inspecting engineer over the Canadian Pacific Railway work, between the Columbia river and Kamloops, when Mr. Onderdonk made an application for him to the Government, and he is paying him $3,600 a year, with a free houso.

Mr. CASEY. I am very glad to hear from the hon. Minister such a well-deserved tribute, as I believe it is, to Mr. Jennings. But the hon. Minister has not yet answered my question, as to whether the contractor was correct or not when he stated that Mr. Jennings was removed on the demand of the contractors. Although not in the country at the time, the Minister must know on what grounds the Department acted; they must have left some memorandum of the reasons for this proceeding. I am aware that Mr. Jennings went, in the first instance, to British Columbia, and that he came back from there a year ago last Christmas on account of severe illness in his family, on the understanding that he was to return there as soon as circumstances would allow. However, he did not return, although I have been told that he remained in the pay of the Government while looking for another job. I asked the hon. Minister how long that arrangement continued. I would judge from his remark, that when Mr. Onderdonk applied to the Government for him he was still, at that time, in the pay of the Government.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. He was in the employ of the Government when Mr. Onderdonk applied for him.

Mr. CASEY. Was he constantly in the employ of the Government? Mr. CASEY. Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No.

Mr. CASEY. Intermittently?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Yes.

Mr. CASEY. Then I think the hon. Minister ought to say whether or not the statement of Mr. Manning is correct. It is true, as the hon. Minister says, as a rule, the more honest and conscientious an engineer is, the harder time he has with the contractors, because he is put there for the purpose of looking after them; and if this able and conscientious engineer, who is so highly endorsed, has been removed from the work on the demand of those he was set to watch, it is certainly a very serious charge against those who were in charge of the Department at that time.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The hon. gentleman will allow me to say that there has never been a moment when that contract has not been under the close supervision of an able and experienced engineer. When Mr. Jennings was transferred, the work on Section A and Section B had advanced sufficiently to enable one engineer to do the work, and Mr. Caddy took his place.

Mr. CASEY. I am not disputing that an engineer has been in charge. If I am rightly informed, Mr. Caddy did not actually do the work which Mr. Jennings had been doing, but a resident engineer named, I think, Mr. Davie.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No; Mr. Davie was only resident engineer. It is of no consequence where the superintending engineer resides, because it is necessary for him to go all over the work, and he has all the resident engineers under him. Mr. Jennings was in charge of the entire contract of 65 miles, from end to end, and when he left Mr. Caddy assumed his work as superintending engineer over the whole.

Mr. CASEY. But I understand that Mr. Davie had supervision of the same work that Mr. Jennings had when he was there. Since that time, the contractors appear to have been satisfied with the supervision of Mr. Davie and Mr. Caddy more than with that of Mr. Jennings. No doubt these gentlemen did their best, but they could not have been as familiar with the work as a gentleman who had charge of it from the beginning. I hope the hon. Minister will be able to give a positive denial to the positive statement of Mr. Manning, that this engineer was removed at the demand of the contractors.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I have stated the facts as clearly as it is in my power to state them If the hon. Minister of Agriculture, who was kind enough to act for me in my absence, were present, he would be able to give more definite information; but I think I have stated the facts fairly, and the hon. gentleman can hardly expect me to go further.

Mr. CASEY. Probably the hon. Minister could get the information from the proper source, and give it to us on Concurrence.

Mr. FAIRBANK. As a year's time was saved in the construction by the change of plan, I presume a considerable saving was made in the cost. Has the hon. gentleman an estimate of that?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. About $850,000.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. From that, this $400,000 has to be deducted ?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. Certainly.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The result is this: Under the original contract we were to pay $4,130,000. If this sum has to be paid, we pay $3,680,000. That is so far well, but we receive a considerably inferior road to that we contracted for.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. True, we do not receive as good a road, but we receive a first-class road, equal in every respect to every other contract between Lake Superior and Red River, and there were several—14, 15, 21, 25 and 13. This road will compare favourably with any other of the contracts between Lake Superior and the Red River. It is a first-class road, but not so permanent as it would have been if the original design of having a rock embankment up to water level had been carried out.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. How many miles of trestle-work have been substituted for rock filling ?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. It would not be miles; I will furnish that information.

Mr. CASEY. The hon. Minister stated Mr. Jennings was in the employ of the Government at the time he was transferred to Onderdonk.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. He was employed in making out the final estimates of this very work. He was brought here by the Government, to give evidence and support the Government as strongly as possible before the arbitrators, and then he was engaged in making out the final estimate of the work, with which of course he was familiar.

Mt. CASEY. The hop. gentleman intended sending an inspecting engineer?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Yes.

Mr. CASEY. Was it not a pity to give away an engineer of that capacity?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. My difficulty is how to dispose of engineers of ability who have been long in the public service. The work on which Mr. Marcus Smith is engaged is coming to an end, and I found he could perform this duty which otherwise I had determined to assign to Mr. Jennings. This was advantageous to the Government, and prevented, at an early day, the difficulty of knowing what to do with an engineer long in the service. When this offer was made to Mr. Jennings, I advised him to accept it, and Mr. Smith would be the inspecting engineer.

Mr. DAVIES. Last year the hon. gentleman said that, in his opinion, and the opinion of the Chief Engineer, there was nothing in this claim. When the hon. gentleman is considering the advisability of appealing from this award, is he going to leave it simply to eminent counsel to advise on the law points connected with the award, or act on the judgment of the Chief Engineer and himself, as Minister of Railways, on the practical part of the evidence.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. My hon, friend is mistaken in saying I said there was nothing in the claim. I said I was bound to assume there was nothing in it. It was my duty to pay any legitimate claim, and the fact that the Government refused to pay it, showed we considered there was nothing in it.

Mr. DAVIES. What was your opinion?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Acting as the Head of my Department and upon the advice of my engineer, we resisted these claims and fought them as strongly as we could. I have no hesitation in saying I consider that those contractors have accomplished very arduous and difficult work, which they were only able to accomplish by the command of a great amount of capital, and the exercise of untiring energy, but I regard this as a very excessive award.

Mr. DAVIES. Is the hon. gentleman going to take the opinion of ominent counsel, as to whether the Government should, under the circumstances, appeal from the award? 205

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. This question is now in the hands of the Department of Justice. They are instructed by the Government to take the best opinions that can be obtained, as to whether this is an award which we can appeal from, and whether there is any chance of improving the position of the Government should an appeal be had. The Department of Justice will, of course, have the advantage of all information, opinion or a lvice, from the Chief Engineer and myself.

Mr. CASEY. The hon. gentleman was asked what the Government had calculated would have to be paid? We know now what the contractors' claim was. It was but natural to suppose the Government had some estimate of what amount might be properly due to the contractors, if certain contentions were held good. Has the hon. gentleman such information?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I said we were bound to assume there was nothing due.

Mr. CASEY. No doubt the Government had calculated on what would be due to the contractors?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. No; we did not assume anything was due to them. If we had thought anything was due, we would have paid it.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Was the ovidence brought down?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. It was sont to the Department of Justico.

Mr. CASEY. Of course, if everything was agreed upon, there would be no dispute about this, but if the contention that they had a right for damages for delay was admitted, the Government —

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. We did not admit it.

Mr. CASEY. I know; but suppose it was sustained by the arbitration, the Government must have had some estimate of the amount of damages it would be proper to give for that claim. They must have considered the point first, whether the contractors had any claim on the ground of delay.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I see the point. I do not hesitate to say, that if the contractors were entitled to damage, for not having access to their contract at the time named for the completion of contract 15, the amount would be very large—the additional expense entailed upon the contractors by not having that access would be a large one.

Mr. CASEY. In settling up with the sub-contractors on this road, I understand that they were settled with on the basis of the original measurements. Were any steps taken to recoup these sub-contractors when the measurements and classifications were changed to the benefit of the original contractors ?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I have no information on that point.

Mr. CASEY. Will the Government take any steps to see they are recouped?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I do not know that we have any power to do so. We have nothing to do with sub-contractors. If we give anything at all, it is on compulsion. If we were making a bargain it would be a different thing.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHF. I observe that it was stated, whether correctly or not I do not know, that the examination of these witnesses was conducted in private and the press excluded. Does the Minister know if that was the case, and if so, why?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I saw it so stated, and saw comments in the press in regard to it, but I do not know why it was done. Shorthand writers were present, who took everything down, I believe, so I suppose it was for the purpose of being able to prosecute their enquiry with less interruption. I know nothing more about it than the hon. gentleman knows.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I would be glad if the Minister would enquire and let me know, before to-morrow, if that was the case. I would like to know the reason why, because I have observed on many occasions, in these enquiries, that the publicity given to the evidence on both sides, when claims are made against the Government frequently lead to other and more valuable evidence being produced, when the examination extends over a period of time, and I think it is much to be regretted if the press were excluded, unless there was some very grave causes for it.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I must say that I take the same view myself. I do not know what led to this. I take it for granted it was done, because I saw it stated in the newspapers and I did not see it contradicted, but I could not see any reason why an investigation of that kind could not take place in the most open manner.

Mr. CASEY. Will the evidence be published in a Blue Book?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. That had not keen considered at all.

Mr. CASEY. Can it be brought down to-morrow and laid on the Table?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The evidence has been sent to the Department of Justice. It would be impossible to make copies; we would have to bring down the originals, and it would be a very serious matter to lose anything of it. It will all be available for Parliament, if they wish to have it.

Mr. DAVIES. It would be very desirable to have an opportunity of looking at it before Concurrence.

Mr. CASEY. What are the "land and other contingencies" referred to in this vote, in connection with the inspecting engineers.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. We cannot charge this now to the Canadian Pacific Railway vote, as the money and the loan are appropriated in a particular way, and we have to provide outside for the expenses of the engineers. There are a few land claims still coming up from Manitoba, in connection with the right of way.

Resolutions to be reported.

DISPUTED TERRITORY BILL.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, in moving the second read ing of Bill (No. 144) respecting the Territory in dispute between the Dominion of Canada and the i'rovince of On-tario, said: This is a Bill to carry out the triangular arrangement made between Ontario, Manitoba and the Dominion. The first clause is :

"The Governor General in Council may agree to refer the questions in dispute between the Governments of Canada and of Ontario, in respect of the boundaries of Ontario, to the decision of the Judicial Com-mittre of the Privy Council, upon such terms and conditions as he deems proper, and the decision of the said Judicial Committee shall be final and conclusive, so far as the Patliament of Canada has authority so to declare or enact."

Then it provides:

"Until the boundaries of the said Province have been decided under the soil reforence, the courts, judges, magistrates, been find and other offi-cers of the Province of Ontario, and the courts, judges, magistrates, Session to bring in a Bill for the distribution of insolvent Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT.

sheriffs and other officers of the other Province or territory in which the locality in which any question as to the boundaries arises, is claimed to be, by the Government of Ganada, shall, in respect of all matters within the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada, have the same jurisdiction and authority in such locality as if such locality were within the Province or territory in which such courts, judges, magistrates, sheriffs or other officers have undoubted jurisdiction, and were part of the county, district, or bailiwick, over or in which they are entitled to exercise jurisdiction and authority."

Then it continues the Act passed in the 43rd year of Her Majesty's reign, with respect to the administration of justice.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. The First Minister, I suppose, would inform us as to whether he would be prepared to advise His Excellency to agree to this on the terms and conditions agreed upon between Manitoba and Ontario. If I am not misinformed, the case has already been agreed upon between the two Provinces which, no doubt, the hon. Minister has carefully considered. This first clause leaves it in doubt. Do I understand he is prepared to recommend His Excellency to acquiesce, on behalf of the Dominion, in that case?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. If the hon. gentleman looks at the papers he will see there was a case prepared between Manitoba and Ontario, and that arrangement provided that the agreement could be altered within a cortain time by a consultation between Mr. Mowat and Mr. Robinson, acting on behalf of the Dominion. The agreement provided that it should be a particular day. That day has been extented, by mutual consent, by Mr. Mowat and the Minister of Justice.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Are you prepared to state whether you substantially concur with the terms, as between Ontario and Manitoba?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. The main points of the case, I think, are fairly stated. Perhaps they will be more fully and specifically stated in the case as between Mr. Mowat and the Minister of Justice.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I understand the First Minister informs us that he agrees, substantially.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Yes; of course.

Bill read the second time, considered in Committee and reported.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the adjournment of the House.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I presume that Bill No. 118, the Insurance Companies Bill, will not be proceeded with.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. We will have a discussion on it to-morrow, we have got along so well with the public business.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Can the First Minister now, seeing that both sides of the House have conducted the discussions so admirably to night, in all respects, state when he will allow the House to go?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I do not know; Idaresay the House will be prorogued on Friday afternoon, or if not, Saturday at the latest. I think to morrow will finish all the business; then we will make the usual arrangement, so as to " let some of the hon. members go. There will be no new business at all-that is the usual arrangement on the last day-except what is interchanged between the two Chambers.

Mr. GAULT. I am sorry nothing has been done this estates, and I hope that before the next Session the Minister of Justice will have a Bill prepared to meet the wishes of the country. The commercial people of the country feel that their interests in this respect are not being attended to here at all.

Motion agreed to; and (at 1 o'clock, a.m.) the House adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THURSDAY, 17th April, 1884.

The SPEAKER took the Chair at Three o'clock.

PRAYERS.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY BILL.

Mr. MITCHELL. Before the Orders of the Day are called, I wish to state that we were promised the matter of the Grand Trunk Company would be proceeded with to-day, and I should like to know what the right hon. gentleman proposes to do in relation to it.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. That item will be dropped. The Government have received assurance from the Grand Trunk Railway Company that they will set aside out of the money £1,000,000 sterling to be applied to no other purpose than the placing of a double track between Montreal and Toronto.

Mr. MITCHELL. If the Government are perfectly satisfied that they have got sufficient assurance of that kind, I am satisfied; and I am satisfied for this reason, that the public interest which I had in view in pressing this matter has now been secured, and the public will get the benefit of the double track. I take this opportunity of resenting some of the imputations cast against me with reference to my actions and motives in endeavouring to get this Bill into a shape that would serve the public interests and protect the rights of those we are here to serve. My actions have been inspired wholly by the public interest and not by private interest, and I think the result of this legislation has fully vindicated my course. With regard to the other point of the insult to Parliament, that is a matter for Parliament and the Government to deal with. I wash my hands clear of it.

REGISTRATION OF DEEDS, &c., IN THE N. W. T.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole to consider the following Resolutions respecting fees and charges to be paid for the registration of deeds and instruments in the North-West Territories :-

That the Governor in Council shall fix, from time to time, the fees and charges to be paid for the registration of deeds and instruments. That the salaries of Registrars shall be fixed by the Governor in Council, and shall be payable out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada; but no such salary shall exceed twelve hundred dollars a

Whenever the registration fees and charges collected or collectable by any Registrar in any two years consecutively amount to more than fifteen hundred dol ars a year, as ascertained by the quarterly returns and Rep ort of Inspector hereinafter mentioned, the salary of such Regis-trar shall cease to be so payable, and thenceforth be may retain to his own use all the fees and emoluments received by him in each year. That the salary of the Inspector of Registry Offices shall not erceed twelve hundred dollars a year, and shall be payable out of the Consolid-ated Revenue Fund of Canada. That the Sheriff may, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant Gov-ernor, appoint Deputy Sheriffa, who shall be paid such fees as are appointed by a schedule to that effect made from time to time by the Governor General in Council That section eighty-nine of the said Act be hereby amended by strik-ing out the following words, "To District Registrars not erceeding $1,000." year. Whenever the registration fees and charges collected or collectable

He said; the necessity for moving this Resolution arises from this fact that under the present law there is one Chief Registrar with $2,000 a year and soveral assistants who get $1,000 a year. The fees are funded, and it is thought the sooner these officers should become, like the Registrars in other parts of the Dominion, paid by fees the better. The present salary given for the District Registrars has now stopped and the Registrar in Chief gets $2,00. It so happens that most of the work can be done by the District Registrar and not by the Registrar in Chief. However his salary is preserved as long as the present incumbent holds the office. The Bill provides that, when the fees for two consecutive years amount to a certain sum provided in the Bill, the salary shall cease and he shall receive the fees, putting him in the same position as Registrars elsewhere. Then there is a provision for an Inspector of Registry Offices. Then there was pressure from the different districts-they like to have as many officials as possible-to have more than one Sheriff appointed. The Sheriff has very little to do. He is moved, however, to Regina, and, instead of appointing Sheriffs for each district at present, the Bill provides that he may, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor, appoint deputies, to be paid fees fixed by schedule approved by the Governor in Council. The matter can be more fully considered on the Bill.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I would like to ask whether the divisions into districts are more arbitrary divisions, or are kept as nearly as possible the same size.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. They have been divided according to population. They are provisional. I do not know when Assiniboia or Alberta will have population enough to become Provinces. Directly they do, they will deal with that as they do in Manitoba. There is a Registrar at Regina, one at Battleford, one at Edmonton, and one at Calgary, and as they are required the number will be increased.

Mr. MACKENZIE. My object in asking is that the hon. gentleman will observe that, if the districts are so cut out now that they will have to be changed very soon, it involves copying the whole of the deeds and documents relating to the territory added from one district to another, and will cause a great deal of trouble. My own impression is that it would be better to make the districts as near as possible uniform in size. Even if it would cause some little trouble in regard to salaries in the meantime, the Government would gain by it in the long run. One of the most serious difficulties in Ontario has been found in cutting up counties into registration districts. Wo will find the same in the North-West, and it would be better to have listricts of the same size, extending over parts of the country which are likely to be settled, than to run the risk of confusion in a few years.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I am quite aware of the difficulties the hon. gentleman mentions as having arisen in Ontario in regard to the necessity, when a new registry office is established, of copying all the documents affecting the new district. The attention of the Department has been directed to that subject, and the sub-divisions of townships are so arranged that, in case of any alteration, the whole book can be carried bodily away without the necessity of copying.

Resolutions considered in Committee, reported and concurred in.

may become a party to the submission of this special case, but the right of appeal is only given to the Lieutenant-Governor.

Mr. McCARTHY. To the Governor General or the Lieutenant-Governor. The Lieutenant-Governor represents his Province, and any Province therefore may appeal to the Privy Council just as well as the Governor General.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I understand that only the Lieutenant-Governor of such Provinces as become parties to the case can join the appeal.

Mr. McCARTHY. If they will not join in the case to the Supreme Court, they cannot of course be parties to the appeal.

Mr. MACKENZIE. That is what I object to. They should have the right of appeal whether they appear in the first place or not.

Mr. FLEMING. This amendmont, if I understand it aright, provides that a case may be referred by the Government to the Supreme Court, the decision of which shall be final, unless some of the Provinces or the Federal Government itself, expresses a desire to appeal. Now suppose neither of these parties express any desire to appeal from that decision, the decision of the Supreme Court cannot be final as to the constitutionality of the Act. It is not for a Province or for the Federal Government to take up the case in that way, for I as a citizen, to have this case decided by the highest court in the realm. No provision of this kind will deprive any citizen of the right to go to the Privy Council to have a case tested. Unless this Act provides for such a complete reference on a test case, then the constitutionality will not have been finally determined, and their proposed amendment will be a farce.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. The hon.gentleman does not see the effect of the amendment. This is not a question of litigation and appeal. It is a proposition that the question as to the constitutionality of the Act shall be submitted, under the provisions of the Supreme Court Act, for its answer. Its opinion will be given to the Crown. There could be no appeal from that, because it is an opinion, not a judgment. This is the only way of doing.

Mr. FLEMING. What will the opinion be worth?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. No matter what the answer may be by the Supreme Court, it cannot prevent it arising again. If the Supreme Court should decide tha the Act is constitutional, then the clause which prevents the enforcement of the penalty will be at an end, so far as that opinion goes, and any person can be prosecuted under the Act. Then it comes up legitimately by way of appeal, by way of the Privy Council, and there is no other way of doing it. This provides simply that it shall be submitted by the royal prerogative, and it provides also that in case the Governor General or any Lieutenant-Governor—that is to say his Government—asks that the question should be referred to England, that the Queen should exercise Her prerogative, and submit it to the Privy Council. Then we will have an opinion from the Privy Council, in the same way as from the Supreme Court.

Motion sgreed to; and the House resolved itself into Committee.

(In the Committee)

Mr. MILLS. I would like to ask the hon. gentleman, looking at the observations which have been made by the First Minister, why we should declare by this Act that the decision of the Supreme Court shall be final. There is no object in retaining that?

Mr. McCARTHY. I suppose it is final so far as the Supreme Court goes, because if the hon. gentleman should desire to try it, it would come before the same tribunal again. Then it would be carried to the Privy Council, and if they decided the question it would be final, so far as it goes, and I know of no higher court. It scoms to me, therefore, that the hon. gentleman is merely criticising for the sake of criticism.

Mr. MILLS. If the matter is referred to the Supremo Court, the hon. gentleman says that it will be final so far as they are concerned. I admit that, but why use the words, as they would be misleading, so far as the public are concerned. As I understool the Government, when the motion of the hon. gentleman for Maskinongé was under discussion, the proposition was not to submit an abstract question, under the provisions of the Supreme Court Act, but to provide for referring the case to the Supreme Court in the ordinary form, so that the whole question might be discussed the same as if it were raised by private parties. Otherwise, how can you invite the Government of the Dominion, or of any Province, to become a party to the case? Now, it seems to me that the object which the Government promised, and which I have no doubt they desire to accomplish, and the object which would be most satisfactory would be, that no penalties should be enforced, except for the purpose of raising this particular question; that it should come up in a suit, the same as the Hodge case, and that the Governments of the different Provinces might invited to become parties. In that case a be suit could be taken in appeal from the Sapreme Court to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. But the hon. gentleman will say that if you refer this question you can take it by appeal to the Privy Council. But there is no provision for anything of the sort. The only way it could be taken would be by petition to the Queen, asking Her under the fourth section of the Act-

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. That is provided for.

Mr. MILLS. But that is not what is desired. It is not desirable to multiply litigation, and it is desirable to have the suit discussed, and to have such a decision of the Supreme Court, or the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, as would render it unnecessary, on the part of any private person, to raise the question in the ordinary way. Now the hon, gentleman can accomplish that without difficulty, by slightly changing the phraseology of this section. Under the section as it stands what we anticipated would be provided will not be accomplished.

Mr. McCARTHY. The hon. gentleman forgets that this section does not cover the whole ground in that respect. The parties might still, if they liked, litigate, and all the hon. gentleman speaks of may be accomplished. But if I understand the feeling of the House it is that provision should be made by this Bill for a question to be raised between the Dominion and the Provinces, and that question shall be whether the Act is or is not constitutional? As I understand, that is the feeling of the House; and if not, there is no object at all in the amendment. My hon. friend and hon. gentlemen beside him the other night in sisted upon this, and extracted from the Government a promise that they would bring in such an amendment.

Mr. MILLS. Not that amendment?

Mr. McCARTHY. Substantially this amendment. How can we provide that the Government shall take up the case of "A" or "B," a tavern-keeper, and carry it through by Act of Parliament? I understand that the desire is that the Federal and Provincial powers shall agree on a simple case, as to the constitutionality of this particular piece of COMMONS DEBATES.

legislation, and that that question shall be determined by the Supreme Court, with the right of appeal to the Privy Council.

Mr. MILLS. That is not provided for.

Mr. DESJARDINS. I think you should provide for that.

Mr. McCARTHY. The Bill provides that the Governor in Council may, with the consent of any Lieutenant-Gover-nor, or the Lieutenant-Governors of all the Provinces, submit a case to the Supreme Court, and that the Supreme Court's decision shall be final unless any one of the parties desire to appeal to the Privy Council.

Mr. DESJARDINS. But what will be the case ?

Mr. McCARTHY. The case will be whether this Act is constitutional?

Mr. COURSOL. Will the Local Governments be a party?

Mr. McCARTHY. Yes, if they choose. It is provided that any one of the Provinces may be a party, and may be heard before the courts by counsel. So it will be a better representation, perhaps, than any private individual can make, in order to have this important question determined by the very highest tribunals.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Was there not a case agreed upon in the matter of the New Brunswick School Law? That was not a matter of opinion, but the Legislature provided for it.

Mr. McCARTHY. I do not think it was provided by legislation.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. No; that was an ordinary case of litigation. There were contradictory decisions, and the Government of the Dominion came forward and agreed to pay the expenses on both sides. That was approved by Parliament, and the money was voted afterwards to pay the expenses.

Mr. MACKENZIE. The money was voted in advance.

Mr. MILLS. The hon. gentlemen will remember that in that case, before any private suit was brought before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the Government here were to obtain the opinion of the law officers of the Crown; and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council advised that they would not express an opinion on a question of law presented in the case, but would only do so if a case came before them in the ordinary way of appeal.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. The reason why I stated n the House the other day that in my opinion it would be better not to put in the Act anything about suspending the penalties, but to leave that matter in the hands of the Government, was that the objection which the hon. gentleman has just now raised occurred to me-that if you suspend the penalties, there can be no litigation, and if there is no liti-gation there can be no appeal. The hon. gentleman now suggests that the penalties shall be suspended, except in the case for trying the question; but the court won't allow any collusive arrangement of that kind. The case must be one of bond fide litigation. If it is only brought for the purpose of trying the question, the court will refuse to try it. However, the opinion of the House was in favour of having the penalties provided for in the Bill, and I do not think there is any means of satisfactorily altering that provision now. I think it had better be allowed to go, and we shall get the decision of the Supreme Court. If any one of the Provinces desires to have, as well, the opinion of the Privy Council, then, under this clause, the Governor General will ask the Queen by petition to submit the question to that tribunal.

Mr. McCARTHY.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. When the Supreme Court has given an opinion, the Privy Council will certainly give an opinion as well.

Mr. DAVIES. The Committee, I think, understood from the hon. member for North Simcoe, that the intention of his Resolution was that a case should be agreed upon between the Dominion Government and the Provincial Governments to be submitted to the Supreme Court for their opinion, whether the Bill was constitutional in whole or in part. If that was his intention, the Resolution does not express it. As it stands, the Governor in Council of the Dominion is to submit one single question: is that Act constitutional? That is a very difficult question for the court to answer. There are some parts which I think, very likely, they would answer are constitutional; but there are other parts which I think are not constitutional. I would suggest that you add the words in whole or in part.

Mr. McCARTHY. There is no objection.

Mr. DAVIES. The latter part of the Resolution speaks of a case, while there is no case referred to in the previous part of the Resolution. I would suggest that the hon. gentleman incorporate in the first part of the Resolution this expression-that there be submitted a case, agreed upon between the Dominion Government and the Provincial Governments, as to whether this Act is constitutional in whole o. in part, and if so, in what part?

Mr. McCARTHY. Unless one of the Provinces join, there cannot be a case. The Imperial Government may submit a question to the Privy Council, and this Government may submit a question to the Supreme Court; but unless there is some other party there cannot be a case, and there is no doubt that one of the Provinces will join.

Mr. OUIMET. I am very sorry that the reference is not made larger than it is. It will be all very well to know whether or not the Act is constitutional in whole or in part. For myself, I have held the opinion that it is constitutional in part; but as it has been decided, in the case of Hodge vs. The Queen, that the Provincial Legislatures have concurrent jurisdiction with this House in the matter, I think it would be better to have the question extended, so as to have a decision on the whole question, not only of the constitutionality of the Federal Act, but of the different Provincial License Acts. In that way we should obtain a determination of the question of the jurisdiction of this Parliament on this subject, and also to what extent the Provincial Legislatures have jurisdiction. My own opinion is, that if the Provincial Legislatures have jurisdiction-and I think they have-we ought to let them exercise that jurisdiction, because I think the Provincial Legislatures are better able to judge what is in the interest of their Provinces in the matter of licenses than the Dominion Parliament. For instance, what will suit a county in Ontario will not suit a county in Lower Canada, and here we are forcing legislation on the different parts of the Dominion, which is against the habits and the principles of certain parts. Prohibition may do very well in certain counties of Ontario-Halton, for instancebut it won't do in certain counties of Lower Canada. We do not believe, in Lower Canada, in legislating people to become moral or virtuous. Although it may suit the majority of the Dominion, I think it is a tyrannical exercise of power to force the same legislation on all parts of the Provinces; and I hold that if the Privy Council or the Supreme Court decided that the Provincial Legislatures have jurisdiction in the matter, it would be much better for us not to touch this subject; it would be much better for us not to encroach on the municipal rights, and I hold this opinion so strongly that I am really very sorry this whole subject should not be made a Mr. MACKENZIE. They will refuse to give an opinion. I subject of reference to the Supreme Court and afterwards to the Privy Council. I think that the different Provincial Governments will refuse to join in a case of the kind proposed; they will refuse to expose themselves to having a test which might be invoked against them, in order to place them in a worse position than that in which they are to-day; because to-day, I hold, that the decision in Hodge vs. The Queen is clearly in their favour and they have a perfect right to maintain their exclusive jurisdiction in the matter. When the question comes back before the House, I intend to move to add after the words "referring the said question," the words "together with the constutionality of the License Act in each Province."

Mr. MILLS. I think the hon, gentleman has confused the question of constitutional law and the question of public policy. I am sorry he did not entertain those very strong views at an earlier period of the Session, but what we have to consider is the section which the hon. member for Simcoe has before the Chair. The hon, First Minister, by this Resolution, as I understand it, proposes to proceed, under the power given by the Act to this House, to refer the question of abstract law to the Supreme Court. My impression is it would be better to bring it under the general jurisdiction of the court, and I hold that by a very slight alteration of the proposed section it could be provided that a case be agreed upon by the Government of the Dominion and any one or more of the Provinces that desire to become a party to it, for the pur-pose of deciding the question of the jurisdiction of this House over the question involved in this particular law. There would be no difficulty in amending that, so as to accomplish this particular object, and it will be more satis-factory than to deal with the abstract question of law which would not prevent private partics coming forward under Provincial Acts.

Mr. McCARTHY. Let the hon. gentleman write out the amendment he desires to be made. Nothing in this Act will prevent what the hon. gentleman says being accomplished. If a man will only sell liquor without license, he will have an opportunity of carrying his case to the highest court. The words I propose to add, to meet the views of the hon. member for Queen's, refer to the Supreme Court of Canada, for hearing and determining the said question as to the constitutionality of the said Act, in whole or in part; such court shall thereupon hear and determine whether the same is constitutional, wholly or in part, and if in part, in what part, and certify their opinion.

Mr. DAVIES. The only other objection I have to make is that the submission of the question to the Supreme Court should be in a form agreed upon, as a case between the Government of Canada, on one part, and the Provincial Government on the other. I do not understand the Resolution to mean that question shall be submitted in an agreed form.

Mr. McCARTHY. That is the effect of it. Nothing will be submitted if they do not agree to submit it. We cannot compel them to agree; it is a matter of negotiation between the two Governments. We say there is to be a case, and there cannot be a case unless they agree on one.

Mr. DAVIES. I do not think the hon. gentleman says there is to be a case at all.

Mr. GIROUARD. In the amendment we should provide for the examination of the constitutional question, as to the local Acts, and I hope the Government will see the propriety of putting the whole legislation both Local and Federal before the court.

Mr. MILLS. That is settled already.

Mr. McCARTHY. The court will have to look at the law of the land. If the Local Legislatures have power, then they have what my hon. friend calls exclusive power, for this Parliament will have no power. If this Parliament has power, under the interpretation of the British North America Act, as I read it, and as I think it has been interpreted in every case, where this Parliament has power the Local Parliaments have not and vice versa; and in dealing with the question, no doubt every case that has yet come up will be referred to, as well as the different laws passed by the different Provinces.

Mr. GIROUARD. Suppose a case was put before the Supreme Court, in which both the Federal Parliament and the Local Legislature have concurrent jurisdiction?

Mr. McCARTHY. There can be no such thing.

Mr. GIROUARD. The court can decide that. I would like to see the whole matter brought before the court, and we should have a clause framed to this effect.

Mr. FLEMING. The object of this amendment is this: Last year this Act was introduced under the stern plea of necessity, because the Government must act; now, this amendment appears to be introduced with the object of showing that they will act, whether or no.

Mr. McCARTHY. I would desire to add to the first section, the sections 83, 84, 89, and 91.

Mr. DAVIES. Why not say the sections imposing penalties, and not limit to any particular or.e.

Mr. McCARTHY. Suppose a license were taken out under this Act, there are special penalties with regard to the keeping of a proper house, and we do not wish to remove those penalties. What we want to add is, that if a man takes a license under a Provincial law, he shall not be prosecuted for having done so, but if he has taken no license we will prosecute him.

Mr. FLEMING. Will he be obliged by this Act to take out a license under a Provincial Act?

Mr. McCARTHY. No.

Mr. FLEMING. He is obliged to pay the fco.

Mr. McCARTHY. Yes.

Mr. FLEMING. If this Act is valid, it is only the Provincial license they are bound by.

Mr. McCARTHY. He comes before the Board; the Board says he must get a license, but before the license issues to him he must bring a receipt from the local authority, and on his payment of the tax imposed by the local authority he gets his license.

Mr. FLEMING. That is the only license they can issue, if this Act is final.

Mr. McCARTHY. I do not know what they can issue.

Mr. DAVIES. I understand that, if a man possesses a license from the local authorities, and while he possesses that license, the hon. member does not reek to enforce any penalties under that Act?

Mr. McCARTHY. Quite so.

Mr. DAVIES. Why not say, no penatics shall te exacted under this Act against any one holding a license from the local authorities?

Mr. McCARTHY. That is what is done.

Mr. DAVIES. You are limiting it to two sections.

COMMONS DEBATES.

Mr. McCARTHY. Four sections. There are no other sections. Macdonald) Mr. GIROUARD. What is the necessity of montioning any section of the Act? SUBSIDIES TO RAILWAYS.

Mr. DAVIES. What sections does the hon, gentleman mention?

Mr. McCARTHY. Sections 83, 84, 89, and 91.

Bill reported.

On motion for third reading,

Mr. IRVINE moved in amendment thereto, that the said Bill be referred back to the Committee of the Whole, for the purpose of amending it, by adding the following section, viz. :--

That sub-section 3 of section 3 after said Act, which provides that nothing in the said Act shall apply to any person selling liquor in any r-freshment room at the Senate or House of Commons, or the Legisla-tive Council or House of Assembly of any of the Provinces, by the per-mission and under the control of the Senate, House of Commons, Institute Council or House of Assembly of any of the Provinces, by the per-Legislative Council or House of Assen bly, respectively, is hereby repealed.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. That affects Provincial rights.

Amendment negatived.

Mr. MILLS moved in amendment:

That the Bill be not now read the third time but that it be referred back to Committee of the Whole, with instructions to amend, by pro-viding that inasmuch as the decision in the case of the Queen against Hodge has established the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislatures over the subject of the issue of tavern, saloon, and skop licenses, the License License Aut 1982. Liquor License Act, 1883, be repealed.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. That has been decided this Session. The amendment is not in order.

Mr. MILLS. I would say, on the question of order, that the hon, gentleman has remitted to us an Act upon a particular question, and the vote of the House upon a similar question in another Act does not at all interfere with the right of the House to amend this Act in any way that the House may determine. I think it has been over and over again ruled, in the Parliament of United Canada, that while a motion cannot be brought up in the same form in which it was before, it may be brought up in another form. The hon. gentleman knows that the reason given by the Government for inviting the House to vote againt the Resolution of the hon. member for Maskinongé (Mr. Houde), was that the Government proposed to deal with the question, that they proposed to bring in a Bill that would content certain classes. Now, if the character of that Bill was not satisfactory to the House, it was open to this House to vote for precisely the same proposition laid down in the Resolution. There can be no doubt whatever that this motion is strictly in order.

Mr. SPEAKER. I find that the same question was before the House on the 18th March, last, and the House decided then that the Liquor License Act should not be repealed, and it would not be reconcilable with that previous decision, if the House were now asked to consider the amendment.

Bill read the third time and passed.

THIRD READINGS.

The following Bill (from the Senate) was read the third time and passed :-

Bill (No. 138) to amend the Dominion Lands Act, 1883. -(Sir John A. Macdonald.)

The following Bill (from the Senate) was read the second time, considered in Committee, reported and read the third time and passed :-

Bill (No. 150) to extend the limitation of time under the Act 43 Victoria, chapter 7, intituled: An Act for the final be postponed to allow time to arrange documents and Mr. DAVIES.

settlement of claims to lands in Manitoba by occupancy, under the Act 33 Victoria, chapter 3.-(Sir John A.

On the Order for the third reading of Bill (No. 147) to authorize certain subsidies and grants for and in respect of the construction of the lines of railway therein mentior el, being read.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER moved that the Order be dis charged and the Bill be recommitted to the Committee of the Whole House, with power to amend the same. He said: My reason for making this motion is that in the course of some remarks to the House in regard to the Pontiac and Pacific Railway I stated that the Resolution provided that the grant would be given to the Railway and not to the Company. I find I find that the word "company" has been introduced in the Bill, which, in this respect, differs from the Resolution. I propose to make the Bill conform to the Resolution in that particular.

Mr. BRYSON. A comparison of the Bill and Resolution shows that two words, "railway company," have been added.

Bill recommitted, reported, and read the third time and passed, on a division.

DISPUTED TERRIFORY BILL.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD movel the third reading of Bill (No. 144) respecting the Territory in dispute between the Dominion of Canada and the Province of Ontario.

Mr. DAWSON. Mr. Speaker, the Bill now before us, providing as it does for a reference of all matters connected with the territory in dispute between the Government of the Dominion and the Government of Ontario, to the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council, and binding the Dominion to abide by the decision, whatever it may be, is perhaps the most important measure that has come before the House during the present Session. The high tribunal-the very highest in the Empire-to which the question is to be submitted can, I apprehend, only decide on the case as submitted, and it behaves the Government of the Dominion to see that it is properly submitted. The Government of Ontario has, for the last eight years, had the ablest counsel to be found engaged in getting up a case for their Province. Volume after volume has been produced until now they have no less than five volumes of arguments and documents upholding their views, together with the most elaborate and carefully prepared maps in readiness to submit, while the Government of the Dominion, in so far as I know, have nothing of any consequence to meet these documents with, except the report of the Select Committee of this House appointed in the Session of 1880 to enquire into all matters connected with the disputed boundaries. That report contains a great deal of valuable information, no doubt, but it is not in a form to render it easily understood, for it was sent to the printers in rather a disconnected shape, at the very close of the Session, when the Committee had no opportunity of supervising its publication, and the documents in the appendix-many of them very valuable-are huddled together in rather a disconnected way, without even so much as an index. Moreover, maps are quite as necessary as written documents to elucidate and explain the different phases of the dispute, and of these the: e is not so much as one accompanying the report, so that as matters now stand, Ontario will have a In view of all the circumstances, great advantage. think it would be well that the reference should prepare maps so as to meet Ontario on equal terms. And yet the case seems simple enough in itself, and it really is so; but it has been so overwhelmed with writings of all kinds and irrelevant documents, that it must take even the learned and accomplished members of the Judicial Committee a considerable length of time to become thoroughly familiar with it in all its bearings. I may say that I was Chairmau of the Select Committee of 1880, appointed to investigate this matter, and that a large part of the territory in dispute is within the constituency which I have the honour to represent, and it was my duty to study this matter in all its details. I trust, therefore, that although the Session is so near its close, hon. members will bear with me while I touch, in the briefest manner possible, on the leading facts regarding the northern boundary, which is the chief question in dispute. It will be within the knowledge of many members of this House that the three eminent judges, who were called before the Committee to which I have referred, gave it as their opinion that in defining the northern boundary of Ontario, we must go back to the Act of 1774, commonly known as the Quebec Act. They smiled at the idea of commissions to Governors, or even proclamations being made to supersede, annul or override an Act of the Imperial Parliament, and in this view their opinions were the same as those expressed by the eminent judges who decided the deReinhard case, in 1818. With the leave of the House, I will read the clause of the Act of 1774, defining the boundaries of Quebec, as enlarged by that Act:

"That all the territories, islands and countries in North America, belonging to the Crown of Great Britain, bounded on the south by a line from the Bay of Chaleurs, along the high lands which divide the rivers that empty themselves into the River St. Lawrence, from those which fall into the sea, to a point in forty-five degrees northern latitude, on the eastera bank of the River Connecticut, keeping the same latitude, directly west, through the Lake Champlain, until, in the same latitude, its meets the River St. Lawrence; from thence up the eastern bank of the said river to the Lake Ontario; thence through the Lake Ontario and the river commonly called Niagara; and thence along by the eastern and south-eastern bank of Lake Erie, following the said bank until the same shall be intersected by the northern boundary granted by the charter of the Province of Pennsylvania, in case the same shall be so intersected; and from thence along the said northern and western boundaries of the said Province, until the said western boundary strikes the Ohio; but in case the said bank of the said lake shall not be found to be so intersected, then filowing the said bank until it shall arrive at that point of the said bank which shall be nearest to the north-western angle of the said Province of Pennsylvania; and thence along the western boundary of the said Province until it strikes the liker Ohio; and along the bank of the said Province until it strikes the liker Ohio; and along the bank of the said Province until it strikes the liker Ohio; and along the bank of the said Province until it strikes the liker Ohio; and along the bank of the said Province until it strikes the liker Ohio; and along the bank of the said Province until it strikes the liker Ohio; and along the bank of the said Province until it strikes the liker Ohio; and along the bank of the said river, westward, to the backs of the Mississippi, and northward to the southern boundary of the territory granted to the Merchants Adventurers of England, trading to Hudson'

Surely that is clear and emphatic enough and there can be no doubt as to the northern boundary of Ontario, providing it can be shown what line Parliament had in view or meant as the southern boundary of "the territories of the Merchants Adventurers of England, trading to Hudson's Bay. Where was that boundary recognized to be at the time the Act was passed? That is the question, and after very long and careful study of the matter, I have no hesitation whatever in saying it was the height of land or southern summit of the Hudson's Bay watershed. There was no other boundary possible, none other by which the Act can in any way be construed to refer. On reference to the Cavendish debates-a pet work with the hon. member for Bothwell, for in all his writings and speeches he is sure to quote from itit will be seen that when the Act came down from the House of Lords, where it originated, and was under discussion in the Commons, the description of the boundary line was very closely debated in all its bearings, except in so far as it related to the southern boundary of the Merchant Adventurers territories; and why was this? Simply because it was a well-recognized boundary beyond cavil or dispute; because it was a natural boundary, a watershed separating the great river systems of the St. Lawrence and Mississippi from that of Hudson's Bay. It matters not, to my argument, whether the Hudson's Bay Company's claims were good or the reverse. All the volumes that have been written against the validity of their charter and in relation to the French occupation are, in this view, of no account. If the Act is to hold good, the question simply is, where was the boundary meant and indicated by that Act; and I shall, by what I conceive to be the most irrefragible evidence, endeavour to show that the height of land was that boundary, and here it is. In the same year that the Act was passed, a commission was issued to the Governor-General, Sir Guy Carleton, bearing date 27th September, i774, and it is as follows [Page xiii, Boundary Report]:

"And further know you, that we, reposing especial trist and sonfidence in the prudence, courage and loyalty of you, the said Guy Oarleton, of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have thought fit to constitute and appoint you, the said Guy Carleton, to be our Captain General and Governoir Ohief insend over our Province of Quebec, in America, comprehending all our territories, islands and countries in North America, bounded on the south by a line from the Bay of Chaleurs, along the high lands which divide the rivers that emoty themselves into the Biver St. Lawrence from those which fall into the sea, to a point in forty-five degrees of norther 1 latitude, on the eastern buck of the River Connecticut, keeping the same latitude it meets with the River St. Lawrence; from thence up the eastern bank of the said river to the Lake Ohamplain, until in the same latitude it meets with the River St. Lawrence; from thence up the eastern bank of the said river to the Lake Ontario, thence through the Lake Ontario, and the river commonly called Niagara, and thence along by the eastern and south-eastern bank of Lake Erie, following the said bank until the same shall be intersected by the northern boundary granted by the charter of the Province of Pennsylvania, in case the same shall be so intersected, and from thence along the said northern and western boundaries of the said Province, until the said western boundary strikes the Obio; but in case the baak of the said lake shall not be found so intersected, then following the said bank until it shall arrive at that point of the said northwestern angle of the said nervince, and thence along the western boundary of the said Province, until it strikes the River Ohio, and along the bank which shall be nearest to the north-western angle of the said northwestern angle of the said Province, and thence so in the said northwestern angle of the said Province, and thence so fingbank of the said Province, until it strikes the River Ohio, and along the bank

This commission, issued only three months after the Act had became law, shows very clearly that while the Mississippi was regarded as the western boundary, the northorn boundary of Quebec and southarn boundary of the territories of the Merchant Adventurers was to be met on the Mississippi. In other words, at the head of that river, on the Hudson's Bay watershed. On 18th September, 1777, some three years afterwards, a commission, word for word the same, was issued to Sir Frederick Haldimand, then Governor General. On 8th January, 1814, Governor McDonell, of the colony of Assiniboia, in which was the Red River settlement, issued the following proclamation---(page 48 Boundary Report).

(page 48 Boundary Report). "Whereas the Governor and Company of Hudson's Bay have ceded to the Right Honorable Thomas, Earl of Selkirk, his heirs and successors, for ever, all that tract of land or teritory, bounded by a line running as follows, viz: Beginning on the western shore of Lake Winnipic, at a point fifty-two degrees and thirty minutes north latitude; and thence running due west to Lake Winipigashish, otherwise called Little Winnipic; then in a southerly direction through the said lake, so as to strike its western shore in latitude fifty-two degrees; then due west to the place where the parallel of fity-two degrees called Assiniboine; then due south from that point of intersection to the height of land which separates the waters running into Hulson's Bay from those of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers; then in an centerly direction along the height of Land to the source of the River Winnipic (meaning by such last-named river the principal branch of the waters which utite in the Lake Saginagas); thence along the main stream of those waters and the middle of the several lakes through which they pass, to the mouth of the Winnipic River; and thence in a northerly direction through the middle of the Lake Winnipic, to the place of beginning; which teritory is called Assinibois, and of which I, the undersigned, have been duiy appointed Governor.

"(Signed) MILES MODONELL."

This is valuable in showing that the height of land was a recognized boundary.

It being Six o'clock, the Speaker left the Chair.

After Recess.

Mr. DAWSON. In 1809, one Mowat was tried and punished by the courts in Lower Canada for a crime committed some distance to the north of the height of land, under the Act 43, Geo. III., chap. 138, which gave that Province jurisdiction in the Indian territories. In 1818 the highest court in the land, in trying a person arrested for alleged crime within the Indian Territories, declared that the height of land or Hudson's Bay watershed was the northern boundary of Upper Canada. In 1859, Rupert's Land was formed into a bishopric, and letters patent wore issued by Her Majesty the Queen, in which the bishopric is described as covering all the territories granted to the Hudson's Bay Company, and the bishops of that diocese have over since exercised ecclesiastical jurisdiction up to the height of land, as will be seen on reference to the Bishop of Ruperts Land's statement, page 145, Boundary Committees' Report. In 1850, the Government of Canada entered into a treaty with the Lake Superior Indians, the preamble of which runs thus-(page, 85, 86 Boundary):

"LAKE SUPERIOR TREATY, 1850.

"LAKE SUPERIOR TREATY, 1500. "This agreement, made and entered into on the seventh day of Sep-tember, in the year of Our Lord, 1850, at Sault Sainte Marie, in the Pro-vince of Canada, between the Honorable William Benjamin Robinson, of the one part, on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen, and Joseph Peaude-chat, John Ininway, Mishemuckqua, Totomenai, Chiets, and Jacob Was-seba, Ahmuchwagabon, Michel Shebagesbick, Manitoshainse and Chi-genaus, principal men of the Ogibbeway Indians inhabiting the northern shore of Lake Superior, in the said Province of Canada, from Batcae-wanaung Bay to Pigeon River, at the western ext emity of said lake, and inland throughout that extent to the height of I and which separates the territory covered by the charter of the Honourable the Hudson's Bay Company from the said tract, and also, the islands in the said lake within the boundaries of the British possessions therein, of the other part." part.'

Here we have an unbroken chain of evidence showing, if it does nothing more, that the height of land was a recognized boundary for at least a period of seventy-six years, or from the year in which the Quebec Act was passed (1774) up to 1850. But the boundary was never seriously disputed by Canada until 1857, so that for a period of upwards of eighty years the height of land, or Hudson's Bay watershed, appears to have been a recognized and accepted boundary. No matter what the claims or titles of the Hudson's Bay Company may actually have been, it is enough for my argument to show that the southern boundary of the territories of the Merchant Adventurers trading into Hudson's Bay, as referred to in the Act of 1774, could have been no other than the summit of the watershed of Hudson's Bay. No matter what the claims of Canada were, here was a natural boundary, and it is clear, to my mind, that no other boundary could have been, or was intended by the framers of the Act, because there was, in those days, no other boundary which they could have had in view, none other so clear and obvious that the in view, none other so clear and obvious that the on in the Act could have pointed to. The Act of refore made the height of land the boundary on the the enlarged Province of Quebec, and when that was divided into the two Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada by the constitutional Act of 1791, uned to be the northern boundary, for that Act dded to nor took from the area of the former Pro-Quebec, or at least that part of it which remained Britain after the war of independence, but simply the Province in two. That Canada had a fair claim bries extending far to the north and west of the slid of Quebec, as constituted by the proclamation of enlarged by the Act of 1774, I am not prepared to But had that claim been made good, which it DAWSON. description in the Act could have pointed to. The Act of 1774 therefore made the height of land the boundary on the north of the enlarged Province of Quebec, and when that Province was divided into the two Provinces of Upper Canada and Lower Canada by the constitutional Act of 1791, it continued to be the northern boundary, for that Act neither added to nor took from the area of the former Province of Quebec, or at least that part of it which remained to Great Britain after the war of independence, but simply divided the Province in two. That Canada had a fair claim to territories extending far to the north and west of the ald Province of Quebec, as constituted by the proclamation of 1763 and enlarged by the Act of 1774, I am not prepared to dispute.

never was, these territories would not have formed part of Upper Canada. They would have belonged to Canada and would have been as much the property of Lower as of Upper Canada. New Provinces might have been carved out of them, but they could not, without a new Imperial Act, have been made part of Upper Canada. Much has been said about the intention of Parliament in passing the Quebec Act and the debate in the House of Commons, as reported by Sir Henry Cavendish, has been twisted in every possible way. It has been claimed that that intention was to embrace the whole of French Canada in the Province of Quebec, but there is really nothing to support this contention. The Act is very clear and precise in its wording, as regards the Loundaries, and far from its having been the intention of the Government of that day to include all Canada, Attorney-General Thurlow stated most emphatically, on the part of the Government, that there was no such intention, he said, page 26, Cavendish Debates :

"It is undoubtedly true, if you read the French history, that the bounds prescribed neither are nor ever were the bounds of the Province of Canada, as stated by the French : and therefore the argument itself is not a proper one to proceed upon "

He says also, page 25, Cavendish Debates:

"Now the House will remember that the whole of Canada as we allowed it to extend, was not included in the proclamation, that the bounds were not co-equal with it as it stood then, and that it is not in-cluded in the present Act of Parliament."

Surely this ought to be conclusive, as to the intentions of Parliament. But the Attorne-yGeneral of Ontario has based his argument in great part on commissions to Governors and in his pleading before the arbitrators, claimed that they were as much law as the Act of 1774 itself. In a former discussion in this House I endeavoured to show where these commissions would land the western boundary of Ontario, and the Attorney General of that Province has not since mentioned them. If commissions are to be taken at all, the later ones must govern, for they are of equilauthority with the earlier ones. The seven last commissions, commencing with that to Lord Durham, in 1838, bring the western boundary of Upper Canada only to the entrance of Lake Superior, and if they are to hold good, as the Hon. Mr. Mowat claims for all the commissions, then, according to his view, his western boundary must be found at the lower end of Lake Superior. Up to 1838, the only commission that carried the boundaries of Upper Canada into the Hudson's Bay watershed was that of 1786, to Sir Guy Carleton (afterwards Lord Dorchester). This commission followed the wording of the Treaty of 1783, with the United States, but it was never repeated and in 1791, on the passing of the Constitutional Act, it was cancelled and revoked in the most absolute way, as will be seen by this extract :

"COMMISSION.

"12TH SEPTEMBER, 1791.

" GOY, LORD DOSCHESTER-Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of the Provinces of Upper Canada and Lower Canada.

" GREETING:

"Whereas, we did by Our Letters Patent, under Our Great Seal of direction of north thirty-four degrees west of the westernmost angle of the said Seigneurie of New Longueuil; thence along the north-weatern boundary of the Seigneurie Vaudreuil, running north twenty-five degrees boundary of the Seigneurie valureuit, running north twenty-into degree east, until it strikes the Ottawas River, to ascend the said river into the Lake Temiscaming, and from the head of the said lake by a line drawn due north until it strikes the boundary line of Hulson's Bay; the Pro-vince of Upper Canada to comprehend all such lands, territories and islands bing to the westward of the said line of division, as were part of Our said Province of Quebec, and the Province of Lower Canada to comprehend all such lands, territories and islands lying to the eastward of the said line of division, as were part of Our said Province of Quebec." (Page 21 Boundary Committee's Report.)

Yet it was this commission, thus emphatically revoked, that seems to have given rise to most of the difficulties surrounding this question. Many years ago, the Hon. William McDougall, when employed as counsel by the Government of Ontario, based an argument, written in his usual clever style, on the commission of 1786, claiming the north-west angle of the Lake of the Woods as the western and northern limit of Ontario. He was not aware, at that time, that he had rested his argument on a revoked com-Nevertheless, it was on his judgment, I believe, mission. that the arbitrators, in some measure, based their award. Mr. McDougall has recently revoked his former opinion in a published document, in which the following passage occurs :

"The Dominion Government maintain, and a court of law has decided, that the legal boundary of the Province of Untario on the west, 'is a line drawn due north from the confluence of the Ohio and the Mississippi Rivers.' Therefore, neither Prince Arthur's Landing, nor the settlements between that place and Rat Portage can be legally included in a writ issued for the election of a member for 'the elec-toral district of Algoma, in the Province of Ontario,"

The Government of Ontario will, from this, be able to judge of the value which should attach to the opinions of their paid advocates. A great deal of importance has been given to General Alured Clark's proclamation by the advocates of Ontario's claims, but as it is published, it is absolutely without meaning, probably arising from a clerical error, and it was in contravention of the instructions to his superior officer, Lord Dorchester, which I shall quote from the Boundary Committee's Report:

"Extract from His Majesty's instructions to His Excellency Lord Dor-chester, dated at St. James', the 16th September, 1791, viz.: "1st. With these Our instructions, you will receive Our Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britsin, constituting you Our Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief in and over Our Provinces of Upper General and Governor-ir-Jbnief in and over Our Provinces of Upper Canada and Lower Canada, bounded as in Our said Commission is par-ticularly expressed. In the execution, therefore, of so much of the Office and Trust we have reposed in you, as relates to Our Province of Lower Canada, you are to take upon you the Administration of the Gov-ernment of the said Province, and to do and execute all things belong-to your command; according to the several powers and authorities of Our said Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, and of the Act, nessed in the present year of Our Brigg, therein regited and of Act passed in the present year of Our Breat Set of Great Britain and of these Our instructions to you and according to such further Powers and Instructions as you shall at any time h-reafter receive under Our Signet and Sign Manuals or by Our Order in Our Privy Council. "2nd. And you are with all due solemnity, before the Members of Our Executive Council, to cause Our said Commission to be read and with the bains done you whill then take and also administry published, which being done, you shall then take, and also administer to each of the Memters of Our said Executive Council, the oath men-tioned in an Act passed in the first year of His late Majesty King George the First." (Boundary Committee's Report page 21).

These instructions are, I apprehend, clear enough as to what was to be proclaimed, but General Clark may have meant merely to show the extent of the country over which the jurisdiction of the Governor General extended. His proclamation covers the entire portion of Canada which had been made over: by the Treaty of 1783, to the United States, and this shows its utter absurdity. The Indian territories, and the Acts of the Imperial Government respecting them, have been entirely ignored by the advocates of the claims of Ontario. These Indian territories were declared by two Imperial Acts to be beyond the limits of Lower Canada and Upper Canada, although adjoining them. In fact, the Province of Quebec, or the portion added to that Province by the Act of 1774, was carved out of the Indian territories. The Act of 1803, 43 Geo., cap. 138, gave the Province of Lower Canada regard to the award, I shall say nothing further than that, jurisdiction in these Indian territories, and that jurisdiction with the best intentions, the arbitrators made a mistake.

was exercised for many years in the region immediately to the north and west of the height of land, without cavil or question on the part of Upper Canada. In 1821, the Act was extended to the Hudson's Bay Company's territories, as well as the Indian territories. Lower Canada, before that time, had the superior jurisdiction, but the Act of 1821 gave equal concurrent jurisdiction to the two Provinces. That the country immediately to the north and west of the height of land, at Lake Superior, was Indian territory clearly shown by Governor General Sherbrooke's proclamation, which was a proclamation carefully prepared in England. I shall read it (page 147 Boundary Report):

By His Excellency SIE JOHN COAFE SHEARBOOKE, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Military Order of the Bath, Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief in and over the Provinces of Lower Cenada, Upper Cauada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and their several De-pendencies, Vice-Admiral of the same, Lieutenant-General and Commander of all His Majesty's Forces in the said Provinces of Lower Canada and Upper Canada, Nova Scotia and New Bruns-wick, and their several Dependencies, and in the Islands of New-foundland, Prince Edward, Uape Breton and Bermuda, &c, &c.

J. C. SHERBROOKE.

" By His Excellency's Command. "JOHN TAYLOR, " Deputy Secretary."

Two Commissioners were sent up at the time this proclamation was issued, to investigate and report on the disturbances that had occurred north of the height of land, so that the region immediately north of the watershed was treated as Indian territory, and not as a part of Upper Canada. In Having passed the height of land, they could find no northern boundary, as one of them (Sir Francis Hincks) has since admitted, and proceeded to make one. The order of reference gave them no power to do this, and a condition of the award was, that it should be accepted by the Dominion Parliament. It has never been so accepted, but, on the contrary, rejected. It would be easy to show how far they erred, as I have done on former occasions in this House. In adopting the Albany boundary, they ignored the tenth article of the Treaty of Utrecht, and the Hudson's Bay Company's long and uninterrupted possession, and in adopting the north-west angle of the Lake of the Woods, on the west they ignored the Act of 1774, and made a cancelled and They revoked commission to a Governor override it. ignored, moreover, the old colony of Assiniboia, which had clearly defined boundaries, and had been recognized by the Imperial Government as a colony quite distinct from Upper Canada. I shall detain the House only a short time longer, in referring to the western boundary. My own opinion is, that the Mississippi was intended by the framers of the Act of 1774, but if Parliament used, as it did, the word "northward" instead of Mississippi, then the word "northward" must stand and the position of the western boundary must depend on the interpretation to be given to that word. The experts ex amined before the Select Committee, of 1880, gave it as their opinion that it could not be interpreted otherwise than to mean due north. One of these experts was Mr. Lindsay Russell, Surveyor-General of the Dominion, a gentleman whose high character and high attainments should give weight to his opinion. He is at the very head of his profession, has been long accustomed to giving instructions to. land surveyors and is perhaps the most accomplished astronomer in the Dominion. He gave his opinion very clearly, in these words:

" Trespay, 2nd March, 1880.

" Mr. RUSSELL, Surveyor-General, called and examined.

" By the Chairman :

"By the Chairman ? "17. Having regard to the Act of 1774, commonly known as the Quebec Act, and looking at the different rivers and boundary lines as set down on the map recently issued by the Government of Ontario, entitled 'Map of part of North America, designed to illustrate the offi-cial reports and discussions relating to the boundaries of the Province of cial reports and discussions relating to the boundaries of the Province of Ontario,' where would you consider the western boundary of the Pro-vince of Quebec, as constituted by that Act, to have been? "In interpreting the clause of the Quebec Act, which describes the boundary, I consider that there are two points of view from which the subject may be treated: first, what the describer intended to do; second, what he has actually done. "From the limited number of possibilities in this case, to select that intention which is the most probable is a metter of indoment: which are intention which is the most probable, is a matter of judgment; what has been done in the description is a matter of fact. "The effect of the description is to make the western boundary of

Ontario a line due north from the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi

Rivers. "The word 'northward,' though seemingly lacking in precision, is "The word 'northward,' though seemingly lacking in predision, is not really indefinite, and admits of no choice in its interpretation; for, corresponding to the assumption of any direction to one side of north, there is an equal and opposite possibility on the other side thereof, and the two are mutually destructive. Therefore, by exhaustive process, 'northward,' taken by itself, that is, without any conditioning or qualifying word or phrase, can mean nothing else than north. In the description under consideration, it stards unconditioned and unqua-lified lified. "If I were asked my opinion as to the intention of the describer, to affirm what he intended to do, not what he has done, I should still say that he meant due north. "When it is a question of his intent, I consider that, in endeavouring

"When it is a question of his intent, I consider that, in endeavouring is interpret any certain word or expression used by him, due regard should be had to his own phraseology and use of words in the rest of the description; further, to the greater or less precision of thought, indi-cated throughout in his dealing with the vast circumstances and condi-thons of the boundary described. "Had it been his intention to define the boundary as extending north-ward along the banks of the Mississippi, that idea, I have no doubt, words thence along the eastern and south-eastern boundary of Lake Eric.' Again, the word 'nerthward,' on the application of which so much turns, he employs, when speaking of the Ohio, the expression, 'along the bank of the said river, westward;' this last affirmation being Mr. DAWSON.

one to express a similar condition, with but a difference of direction, to that which would have obtained had he intended to say, 'along the bank of the Mississippi northward.'

'That he should, in one sentence, so clearly state the special condi-tion under which the boundary was to go 'westward,' and in the very next sentence, while intending to define an equally restrictive and equally important similar condition, should omit to use the least word or phrase to specify how the same boundary was to proceed 'northward,' I cannot conceive. I am, therefore, obliged to hold that by northward he meant path ' (Derry 1) Barrefore conceive. I am, therefore, obliged to 1 north." (Page 11, Boundary Report.)

There is, however, a decision of the highest court existing in Canada, in 1818, and I may as well read it also:

" FRIDAY, 29th May, 1818.

"FRIDAY, 29th May, 1818. "Chief Justice Sewell.—The Court are most distinctly of opinion, on referring both to the Act of 1791 and that of 1774, that the argument on the defence must fail. What was the object of each Act? Among to others, that of 1774 was to enlarge the Province of Quebec, which had been created in 1763. That of 1791 was to separate or divide the Pro-vince of Quebec into two Provinces, to be denominated Upper and Lower Canada, and make each respectively independent of the other, by giving a Legis'ature to each respectively, but still retaining between or within the two Pr.vinces, the same extent of country, the same space as the one Province contained. What is the Act? What is its object, its avowed object? To repeal certain parts of the Act of 1774; and what is the part repealed? It is that part of it which gives authority to the Council of the Province of Quebec; and what is the reason assigned for so doing? Why, that His Majesty had signified it to be his Royal will and pleasure to divide his Province should be extended by the separa-tion, appears to me repugnant to the plainest principles of common by this that the limits of the Province should be extended by the separa-tion, appears to me repugnant to the plainest principles of common sense, and therefore I cannot assent to it. The short history of the Act of 1791 is briefly this: The King signifies to Parliament his Koyal inten-tion of dividing his Province of Quebec, and he calls on the Legislature to provide for this alteration by granting an Act adapted to the change. The Legislature pass an Act providing for the due government of the two Provinces, and under the authority of this Act, and the Royal Pro-clamation, the Province of Quebec was accordingly divided, the Royal Proclamation being an exercise of Sovereign authority. His Majesty in that Act, by and with the consent of his Privy Council, declared what should be the line of separation between Upper and Lower Canada, and Charaction, the Frovince of Quebee was accordingly divided, the royat Proclamation being an exercise of Sovereign authority. His Majesty in that Act, by and with the consent of his Privy Council, declared what should be the line of separation between Opper and Lower Canada, and how much of the former Province of Quebec shall belong to the one, how much to the other. The object of the Act and the object of the oyal Proclamation are so clearly expressed that we cannot for a mo-ment doubt uson the subject. What says the Act? His Majesty having been pleased to signify his Royal will and pleasure to separate and divide the Province of Quebec. What says the Proclamation? Why, the very same words. To divide the Province of Quebec, not to all to it, any more than to take away from it. Therefore, Upper Canada, in the pur-view, could include only that part of the Province so divided as was not contained in Lower Canada; but it could not extend beyond these limits which constituted the Province of Quebec, otherwise it would cer ainly have been an Act to enlarge, rather than an Act to divided. In deliver-ing this opinion I am speaking our unanimous sentiment, for we have consulted our brother Perrault upon the subject, and he clearly concurs with us. According to our understanding of the Act and the Royal Pro-clamation, we are bound to say that we consider the argumant of the gentlemen concerned for the prisoner, though presented with great ability and ingenuity, must fail, because the western boundary of the Province of Upper Canada is 'a line drawn due north from the con-fluence of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, till it strikes the boundary territory line of Hudson's Bay.' " The question of fact will remain with the jury. It is they who are to say, whether this place, the Dalles, is or is not to the west of the line which we now declare to be the western boundary of His Majesty's Pro-vince of Upper Canada. If they are of opinion that it is to the west of this line, then I am giving you our unanimous opinion, when guilty of offences within certain parts of North America."

I shall conclude by saying that the result of all enquiry and investigation is to bring us back to the Act of 1774. Within the four corners of that Act must be found the boundaries of the onlarged Province of Quebec, and consequently of Upper Canada, which was carved out of the Province of Quebec. In further reference to the award, I may say that, the Government of Ontario has practically thrown it aside and shown its willingness to re-open the whole question, perhaps in the hope of getting a still larger slice of Dominion territory, for the Attorney General of Ontario has inserted, in the joint case, drawn up between himself and Attorney-General Miller, of the Province of Manitoba

"The Province of Ontario claims that the westerly boundary of that Province is either the meridian of the most north-westerly angle of the Lake of the Woods, or is a line west of that point."

This is really setting aside the award and re-opening the whole case, and I believe the whole case should and must be re-opened, but I hardly expected that the suggestion should come from the Attorney-General of Ontario. It might rather astonish hon. members if they should awaken some fine morning to find that the whole of the North-West Territories had been decided to be in Ontario. It is quite within the range of possibility that such a decision should be given, for once admit that Ontario has any territorial rights north of the height of land there is really nothing to stop her, short of the slopes of the Rocky Mountains. Cross the great natural boundary of the height of land and you cannot logically stop short of the sources of the Saskatchewan.

Mr. MILLS. I would like to ask the First Minister what are the provisions of this question between Ontario and the Dominion.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I believe a case is being agreed upon between Mr. Mowat and Mr. Christopher Robinson. I do not know that the case has been finally settled yet, but it will be conclusive, as far as Ontario and the Dominion are concerned.

Mr. MILLS. Has that settlement reached such a point that the hon. gentleman is able to tell us, in general terms, what it is? Is the question to be raised as to the limits between Ontario and the Dominion?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I think so, but I cannot speak positively.

Bill read the third time and passed.

INSOLVENT BANKS, INSURANCE COMPANIES, &c.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the second reading of Bill (No. 145) further to amend the Act 45 Vic., of Bill (No. 143) further to amend the Act 45 vic., chap. 23, initialed: An Act respecting Insolvent Banks, Insurance Companies, Loan Companies, Building Societies, and Trading Corporations. He said: This is a Bill from the Senate. The first section amends the first section of the Act passed in 45 Vic. The only amendment made to this section is the omission of the words, "either under a general Act or a special Act," in the fourth line of the section. The words are omitted to give the section a larger scope, and especially to cover the case of a company being wound up in any manner, such as by order of the Court of Chancery. In sections 2 and 3, where the original Act applied to companies which at the time of the passing of that Act were insolvent, or in the process of being wound up, no procedure was provided, whereby effect could be given to that provision, and in the Bill it is intended to provide for the omission. Section 4 simply makes a verbal change. Of course it is the court that appoints the liquidators and we insert the words, "the court, in making the winding up order, must appoint a liquidator." Section 5 places the liquidators in the same position as the liquidators of the companies. Section 6 makes two changes in the existing law. First, it provides not only that there shall be a meeting of the shareholders to consider the question as to who shall be nominated as liquidator, but there shall be also a meeting of the creditors for the same purpose. Recent proceedings in Montreal show the necessity for this provision. Second, a judge shall not be bound to accept the recommendation of the majority of the shareholders, but he may select from all those nominated such persons as he may think best fitted for the office of liquidators. Those are the alterations in the law.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Do I understand aright, that a demand may be made against a perfectly solvent corporation to wind up? The first section seems to indicate that. The former Act was wholly for insolvent companies, and I don't think it is advisable that this should be made applicable to solvent companies.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. This Act applies to incorporated banks, including savings banks, and to insurance companies, and loan companies, for borrowing purposes, and to incorporated trading companies, which are insolvent or in process of being wound up. It is only with reference to corporations insolvent or in process of being wound up.

Mr. MACKENZIE. But a perfectly solvent company is in process of being wound up.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Not if they are doing business.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I mean that solvent companies are every day winding up their affairs. It seems application can be made to any one of these.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. This clause is exactly the same as in the old Act of 1882, except that it leaves out the words, "either under a general or a special Act." Action under this Bill can only be taken where the company which is to be wound up is actually insolvent.

Bill read the second time, considered in Committee, amended, reported, and read the third time and passed.

TRANSFER OF PRI ONERS.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the second reading of Bill (No. 151) to authorize the transfer of prisoners from one gaol to another, in certain cases. He said: The Bill is simply intended to add, after the words "the Governor General in Council," the words, "or the Lieutenant-Governor of any of the Provinces," in the Statute 31 Victoria. It appears that at present there is no law to provide for the removal of prisoners from one county gaol to another, and as this belongs to the criminal law, and as a request has been made by the Attorney General of Ontario to the Minister of Justice here, that such a change should be made, we have thought proper to introduce this Bill.

Bill read the second time, considered in Committee, reported, and read the third time and passed.

THIRD READINGS.

The following Bills were severally read the second time, considered in Committee, reported, and read the third time and passed.

Bill (No. 154), to re-adjust the yearly subsidies to be allowed by Canada to the several Provinces now included in the Dominion.- (Sir Leonard Tilley.)

Bill (No. 156), to authorize the raising, by way of loan, of certain moneys required for the Public Service.—(Sir Leonard Tilley.)

SUPPLY-CONCURRENCE.

Resolutions from Committee of Supply read the second time and concurred in.

On Resolution 360,

Canadian Pacific Railway.

Amount awarded to Contractors on Section B ... $395,000 00

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Before this Resolution is concurred in, I desire to say a few words to explain the reasons why I think it is inexpedient that this vote should be concurred in, or indeed should have appeared in the Estimates. Last year, the Minister of Railways, as reported in Hansard, declared that as far as he could judge, and as far as the engineers could judge, there was nothing properly due by the Government to these contractors on this particular contract. He certainly declared that no such sum as this, in his judgment, was due. That, however, is only one of the reasons which appears to me to render it inexpedient that this vote should be concurred in. I doubt exceedingly whether this was a case for arbitration at all. It appears to me that of all the cases which have come before us, this was a case which ought to have been dealt with by the Exchequer Court, and it was an unfortunate thing, in the interest of this country, that it was referred to arbitrators. Then, I call the attention of the House to the fact that we have only had the information connected with this large amount of money put before us at an exceedingly late period of the Session, when it has been a matter of extreme difficulty for the members to acquaint themselves either with the ground on which the arbitrators proceeded, or indeed with even the ordinary terms of the submission. Now, S.r. there are circumstances, on which I will not enlarge tonight, connected with the gentlemen who are to receive this award, and connected with their alleged relation with the Government of this country, which make it particularly necessary that care should be taken to see that the rights of the Dominion in the matter of this award are carefully attended to. The Minister of Railways did not deny last night, nor did I understand him to approve of the fact, if it was, as I believe, a fact, that the pross were excluded from hearing the evidence which was tendered to the Commissioners, or the discussions which took place before them. It was unfortunate that these proceedings were not conducted with the fullest publicity. As I have already taken occasion to observe, many things have been said with reference to the concessions of the Government to these contractors, and as the hon. Minister well knows, proceedings were taken against a certain influential newspaper in this country, by one of the gentlemen who, if I am correctly informed, is to receive this large sum of money; but although these pro-ceedings were taken, and although there was, in my opinion, very good ground indeed for proceedings being taken, if the allegations made, not merely against the person himself but against the Government, were correct, still those proceed-ings were abandoned. Under all these circumstances, I think it is not expedient this vote should be pressed; I think we should have had full opportunity to have informed ourselves as to all the facts, so far as they are in the possession of the Government, which led the arbitrators to give this award. Then, too, the Minister himself expressed his opinion that it would be right and proper that this award should not be acted upon, but that this matter should be carried, as I think it onght to have been, in the first instance, to the courts, who would pronounce upon the question whether those persons were or were not entitled to receive $395,000 from us. I feel we ought not at present be called upon to concur; I think this matter should stand over, and I think it might very well stand over for another Session; and then, after fully examining and looking into the matter, we might reasonably be asked to vote whatever sum might then appear proper, particularly if the hon. gentleman's intention is carried out and this matter is appealed to a higher court. As the matter stands, and as I am at present informed, I must, for my own part, refuse to concur in the Resolution.

Sir GHARLES TUPPER. The hon. gentleman commenced by saying that he doubted if this was a case for arbitration. I think he overlooked the statement I made to the House last night, as to the circumstances under which the Government agreed to give this arbitration. A contract was made, a very large and important contract, smounting, Sir Richard Cartweight, at the contract prices, to over $4,000,000, for the construction of 65 miles of very difficult and almost inaccessible work, in the part of the country lying between Lake Superior and the Red River. It was impossible to make available the very large sum of public money that had been expended in constructing the intervening portions of the line; that expenditure would be of no use whatever until this link was put in, and the Government attached the very greatest importance to having that line of communication open at the very earliest possible date. The engineers of the Department, Mr. Fleming, in the first instance, and Mr. Schrieber, who was acting at the time under Mr. Fleming, concurred in the view, a considerable period after this contract was made, that it would be quite impracticable to open that road by the time specified in the contract; that, in fact, at least another year would be consumed, unless a very radical change wers made in important structures on the line; that unless we abandoned the intention of having the lakes filled to the water level with a solid rock embankment, and resorted to the easier, less expensive and more practicable mode of getting the road quickly constructed, by substituting piling for this rock embankment, in considerable sections of this road, it would be quite impossible to accomplish the opening of that line without adding another year to the period. The Government considered that a matter of the gravest importance in regard to the progress of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and to our communications with the North-West, independently altogether of the great loss it would be to the country to have the entire capital locked up, some $19,000,000, until this road could be made useful by having this link put in. The contractors refused to proceed with the work when this change was made which they declared to be, to use their own language, a revolutionary change in the contract. They demanded that we should pay them for the work they had done and allow them to abandon the contract, because they said it was not the contract they had taken, but another and different contract which had been substituted for it. They claimed we had substituted a class of work on which they would receive comparatively no profit for that portion of the work which, in taking the contract, they regarded as profitable, and upon the execution of which they relied for the profit in their contract-in fact for making their contract practicable at all. In this state of the case, we were in this position: either we must abandon opening that road for another year, we must resort to the mode contemplated when the contract was made which would involve a much greater expense to the country than the new proposed arrangement by which, through the intervention of piling, we would obtain the accomplishment of the work at a much earlier period, or we must relet the contract at probably a large additional cost to the country and, as I said before, in any case, involving the loss of a year. It was under those circumstances that the Government came to the conclusion to secure the prompt progress of that work, and the opening of it at the time stated in the contract, by giving them an arbitration. They said-and it was not an unreasonable statement: What we ask is this: we have been prevented from having access to this work by the delay which has taken place in the opening of Contract 15; we were led to suppose, we did suppose, when we took our contract, that we would have access, at a much earlier period; we were put to immense loss and inconvenience in regard to that, and we claim heavy damages for the increased costs which have been involved in carrying on our contract, over and above what we had reason to suppose would be involved at the time we took it; we say, in the next place, you have so completely changed the character of the contract as to make what was a fair and reasonable contract one which must involve us in ruinous loss; and we therefore, under those circumstances, refuse to go on unless you submit our claims, as to the loss we have sustained and the extra cost involved, in consequence of not giving us access to our work by the completion of Section 15, at the time we were led to suppose it would be completed, and consequently to the destruction of a profitable portion of the contract, by changing the item from rock borrowing, on which we relied as the main element of carrying our contract to a successful completement, for one that sweeps all that away. Under these circumstances, the Government agreed not to pay them anything outside of their contract, because we did not recognize; as Head of the Department I denied their right to claim on either ground. I said I recognized the fact that it was quite true that the earlier completion of Section 15 would have saved them a very large sum of money, but I said that was a contingency we had not guaranteed, and therefore I did not consider that we were bound to make good the damage. I said, in the next place, that under the contract I considered the Department were perfectly at liberty to make such changes as they considered in the interest of the public, in carrying out the contract. We therefore joined issue with them on both those points, but in order to secure the prompt construction of the work, and in o der to prevent the great loss to the country of having to do with-out that work for a year longer and the loss of the money which had been put into the other sections of the work for another year, the Government agreed that, on the complotion of the work, these two questions in dispute should be submitted to an independent arbitration, composed of an arbitrator selected by the Government on the one side, of an arbitrator selected by the contractors on the other, and that, in case they could not agree upon a third, he should be selected by a judge of the Supreme Court. I think the House will agree with me that, whatever view may be taken as to the character of that award, the position in which the Government were placed and the immense interests that were at stake perfectly justified us in referring a question of that kind to an independent arbiratment, as it would be between any two individuals or between any company and any contractor. In the next place, the hon. gentleman has referred to the alleged relations of these contractors with the Government. I will say, in the most distinct and emphatic torms, that the only relation I have had with these contractors-and I represented the Government in relation to them-is that, from the first day on which they signed the contract down to the time when it was closed, they were complaining of me as administering not only scant justice, but as doing them the grossest injustice. It was against the action of the Chief Engineer and of the Department that they have been complaining and contending from the first, and the Government, in allowing this arbitration, allowed it for the purpose of enabling them to enbstantiate such claims as they alleged they had pressed ineffectually and uselessly upon the Minister and upon the Chief Engineer. I need not, I think, say more than that on the subject, for the very fact that the ar-bitrators have awarded this large sum of money is the answer to every person, that they have received no favour or undue consideration at the hands of the Governor under ment, under whom they have been engaged 88 Then the hon. gentleman referred to the contractors. exclusion of the reporters. I said last night that I regretted myself that they had excluded the reporters. It was a matter over which the Government had no control. They had appointed the arbitrators, one of the other two was appointed by Sir Willian Ritchie, the Chief Justice, and the other by the contractors. They were all men of high character and standing and great ability—Judge Clark representing the Government, Mr. C. J. Brydges represent-ing the contractors, and Mr. Light, the Government engineer, of Quebec, having been relected by Chief Justice Sir William Ritchie as the third arbitrator. These gentlemen, in their wiedom, decided not to admit the reporters, and to day 1 with one of the arbitrators, to learn the ground of that exclusion, and I am furnished with the following :

"At one of the hearings, the arbitrators were asked whether newspaper reporters would be admitted, and they answered in the negative. The decision was by the arbitrators, on their own responsibility, and was

These are the reasons I am furnished with by these gentlemen, as the ground upon which they decided not to admit the presence of reporters.

Whom did the hon. gentleman say that Mr. DAVIES. letter was from?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. That letter is signed by Judge Ciark, the only one of the arbitrators who, I believe, is in town. The hon. gontleman says it is not proposed that this shall necessarily be acted upon, but that it shall be carried to the courts. Now, that is not strictly what I sad last night. What I stated was, that this submission to these gentlemon as arbitrators, and their finding, had been placed before the House. They had found the sum due by the Government of Canada to these contractors of $ 393,600, and that award had been sent to me by the Minister of Justice. When I suy, by the arbitrators, I have of course already stated that the submission provided that any two arbitrators should be competent to make an award, and that award was made by Mr. BryJges, representing the con-tractors, and by Mr. Light, selected by the Chief Justice of Judge Clark dissented from that the Supreme Court. award, and under these circumstances, that award has been sent to the Department of Justice, and the Government, having considered the question, arrived at the conclusion that they must ask Parliament to appropriate this sum of money which had been found by the award, but that no portion of that monoy would be paid until the Department of Justice has seeured the opinions of the ablest coursel, whose opinious could be obtained as to whether, in the first place, it was competent to challenge the award at all, and if so, what action should be taken and how the matter should be dealt with. The Government asked the appropriation of this money, subject to the statement that I have made, that it shall be ascertained by the ablest counsel whose services the Government can command whether, in the first place, the award can be challenged, and if so, what prospect there would be, in view of the evidence and in view of the opinions of the counsel for the Crown, Messre. Hogg and Christie, of challenging the validity of that award or the extent of the finding in the courts of justice. That, I think, covers the objections of the hon. gentleman with one exception; that is, the late period of the Session at which this is submitted. My hon. friend will bear in mind my statement, that there was a second matter separately referred to these arbitrators, and that was the question of the measurements, the question of what was termed loose rock and one or two questions of that kind, on which the Chief Engineer and the Department, on the one side, and the contractors, on the other, came to a direct and very strong issue. The Government refused to pay them except upon a certain principle. They contended that princommunicated, indirectly-I have not seen any of them - | ciple was not warranted by the specification and the terms of the contract, and it was decided to refer that matter to arbitrators and to have the ablest engineers, contractors, and experts in the country brought before them and the evidence submitted for their consideration. Under that award, they found about $44,000, if I remember aright, as the balance that they were entitled to be paid, over and above what the engineer or the Department was willing to pay them It was proposed to postpone the matter for some time, owing, I believe, to its being inconvenient for Mr. Brydges to attend. I expressed, myself, a very strong opinion that they should proceed and bring this matter to a conclusion, and I did that, I may state, for the information of the hon. gentleman, on the ground that I was anxious that the whole question, and everything in relation to it, should be submitted to Parliament before it rose. All the pressure that could be brought to bear to expedite matters and bring this to a conclusion, so as to lay it before Parliament at the earliest possible moment, was brought, and, as I have said before, the whole matter has been submitted for the consideration of Parliament without any delay whatever.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I understood, some day last week, from the hon. gentleman that, of this award, $275,000 was given on account of the road westward not being finished, and $120.000 fcr damages and something else. Will the hon. gentleman now state the sub-divisions of the amount?

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I may say, on that point, that I found that a letter which had been addressed to me by Judge Clark was marked private and confidential, and I was directed to return it, on the ground that it is not competent for a dissenting arbitrator to make a separate report, where the submission is to three arbitrators, with the un-derstanding that the finding shall be given by two arbitrators; there being no information whatever, eccept a bulk sum of $395,600 as their finding. The communication, as I said, being private and confidential, I am advised it is not open to me to use that information or to make any statement in regard to it.

Mr. MACKENZIE. But the hon. gentleman has used it and he cannot withdraw his statement.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I do not withdraw anything, but I am not able to submit the matter further,

Mr. MACKENZIE. Then the statement the hon. gentleman made was correct, I presume.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I am not in the habit of making incorrect statements.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I am not so sure about it.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I am much obliged to the hon. gentleman.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I do not say the hon. gentleman does it wilfully. I think we ought to have more substantial information on this matter now.

Mr. DAVIES. I think it is unfortunate that the hon. gentleman, in view of all the circumstances, should press the House to an immediate decision upon this very large sum of money. With regard to the award of $14,000, which was made some time since and for which the hon. gentlemen obtained a vote, I do not understand the hon. member for South Huron to call that in question at all. The itcm we are now asked to concur in is the vote of $395,000 for damages, and I will venture the assertion that outside the Minister of Railways, and possibly the hon. member for East York, there is hardly a gentleman in this House, beyond the counsel who were engaged in the cause, who has any idea of what this money was awarded for, or who is able to obtain, from the papers before the House the Mr. DAVIES. It may be, but I do not see it. But Feb-slightest idea of what the award was made up. That ruary, 1884, is long after the submission was made. The amount of $14,273, which the hon. gentleman has referred submission was made in 1883, and it refers to certain Orders for specific damages, in reference to specific items, breach of contract, or changes in the commat with reference to loose rock, rock of a certain prism, or cross-logging, as they are termed. I submit to the llouse that we ought not to be asked to vote this large sum of money without further information. In the first place, we have not the contract brought down at all; we do not know what the contract was. In the second place, the submission to the arbitration which has been laid before the House is so vague-

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. The hon. gentleman will find that that contract was not only brought down, but it has been published verbatim in the Sessional Papers.

Mr. DAVIES. It may have been. I am speaking of the papers the hon, gentleman brought down here since he has asked the House to vote this money, which is the only information. The hon. gentleman has brought down certain papers having reference to this award; amongst these papers I find the submission, and I complain now that the submission is so loose that it is impossible to ascertain, from reading it, what was referred to the arbitrators and what was withheld from them. I ventured the assertion that no lawyer will read that submission without coming to the conclusion that it was not inartificially drawn for the purpose of raising legal disputes afterwards. It almost looks as if the gentleman who drew it out drow it for the purpose of allowing matters to be referred to the arbitrators, which no Minister of Railways would have allowed to be referred to them, had he kept them within the compass of that submission. The hon. gentleman will see that the submission, after reciting that a claim has been made by these contractors, says:

"It is agreed by and between the parties, and they do hereby agree to refer the claims of the contractors in connection with that contract, and all matters arising thereunder, to the extent mentioned, and such as provided for by the said Orders in Council, dated 28th March, 1881, and 2nd April, 1883."

So that, on the face of the submission to the arbitration, there is nothing referred, and anyone who wishes to construe what was referred to the arbitrators by this submission must go back to the Orders in Council. The hon. gentleman has not brought down those Orders in Council.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Yes.

Mr. DAVIE5. I beg the hon. gentleman's pardon; only one of them has been brought down.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I think the hon. gentleman is mistaken.

Mr. DAVIES. I have gone over it three or four times, and find only one; so that the limitation placed upon the submission, or key to the meaning of that, has not been supplied. Before you can understand what has been referred, you must turn to the Orders in Council. But the hon. Minister has only brought down one of the Orders in Council, that of March 28th, 1881. That merely reports to the Minister that this would be the most fair and satisfactory mode of arriving at a settlement of the question at issue, and recommends, accordingly, that authority be given for a reference of their claims to arbitration.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I ask the hon. gentleman whether the Order in Council of February 18th, 1884, is not there also ?

Mr. DAVIES. It is not referred to in the submission at all.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. Is it not there among the papers?

to, as I infer from the papers, was an amount awarded in Council which contain the matters to be referred to the arbitrators, and of these Orders in Council only one is before the House. So I say, that at the present time this House is asked to vote this enormous amount of $395,000, and the Order in Council containing the statement of what was referred to these arbitrators to adjudicate upon has not been brought down at all; and so, I think, I have substantiated the position I took, that no member of this House is in a position, from the evidence before us, to say whether this vote should be given or not. I would be very sorry to pass any opinion upon it; I do not think anybody could pass an opinion upon it, until he had first seen what had been referred to the arbitrators, and then had seen, read and digested, the evidence given before them. Now, on referring to certain correspondence which the hon. gentleman has brought down here, and which took place between these contractors and the Government, in 1881, I find they make a claim, and that the main portion of that claim was on the ground that the Government had not constructed the railway under contract No. 15. But, I find that under the terms of their contract, the Government were not bound to build that road, so that they are making a claim against the Government for not having done that which, by the terms of the contract, the Government were not bound to do-they had no claim at all, then. On what do they base their claim? They say they are advised that the Gov. ernment were bound, sometime thereafter to build-literally, "we are advised within a reasonable time thereafter." I say the terms of the contract made between Manning & Co. and the Government, as construed by the Chief Engineer of the Government, as construed by the Minister of Railways himself, last Session, and repeated by him last night and to day, the terms of that contract do not bind the Government to provide these gentlemen a ready access by rail to their Section B; it is because they were not provided with that access by rail that they claimed this enormous amount of damages. There is nothing in the claim made-and I have read the papers twice-in the absence of the Minute of Council, to enable the House to understand whether the award was found within the terms of the arbitration or outside of them. There are other grounds why this payment should not be made. The hop. member for Centre Huron (Sir Richard Cartwright) has referred to the relations between those now notorious contractors and the Government. The Minister of Railways has stated there were no improper relations, and of course the House is bound to accept his statement. Very serious charges were made against those contractors by a very prominent newspaper, a short time ago, and although an action for libel was commenced, it was dropped. The inference drawn by the public was that the accusation was true. It, therefore, behooves the hon. Minister to be more than usually cautious. First, because the hon, gentleman did not allow that there was any claim, because a reading of the papers shows that their claim was more than doubtful; and, second, because the award was not a unanimous award of the arbitrators. A very experienced arbitrator, Judge Clarke, who is employed very largely by the Government, dissents absolutely from this award. There is still an additional reason why the hon. gentleman should be cautious in asking this House to vote the amount stated. The hon. Minister says he does not intend to pay the award until he has taken the opinion of very eminent counsel on two points: First, as to whether the Government can appeal from the award at all; and the Government can appeal from the award at all; and second, whether having the legal right, there is sufficient probability of upsetting the award to justify such action being taken. I hope the hon. Minister will obtain such legal opinion. The country will not begrudge any reasonable outlay for the opinion of very eminent lawyers, because hon, members on both sides of the House will reluctantly not the overhient amount of damages to these men for a vote this exorbitant amount of damages to these men. for a claim which the Minister of Railways assured the House last year did not exist. I agree with the hon. member for clined to give any assurance to any party tendering.

Centre Huron (Sir Richard Cartwright), that in the face of all the facts, in the absence of the Minute of Council to which I have referred, in view of Judge Clarke's dissent from the award, and all the circumstances surrounding the making of this award, the hon. Minister of Railways should not ask the House to vote this money until he has had the opinion of eminent counsel that the Government cannot appeal from it, and that there is no fair chance of upsetting the award, if a legal right to appeal exists. It is time to ask the House to vote this money after we have exhausted the legal rights we possess to test whether the award is legal.

Mr. ALLISON (Hants). I think hon. gentlemen opposite have rather short memories in dealing with this railway question. They seem to ignore or forget the fact that the Government have taken the greatest possible pre-aution in this matter; that they have submitted to an independent arbitration and have guarded every step with the greatest possible care and consideration. Hon. gentlemen opposite fail to tell the House that which many hon, members cannot fail to remember, namely, that not very far from the location of this contract there was expended, under the regime of the hon. member for East York, in connection with his own Department, and contrary to the wishes of many leading friends and engineers, no less than $250,000, on a work which is unfinished and abandoned-the Fort Frances lock.

Mr. DAVIES. Is that any reason why this amount should be paid to these railway contractors?

Mr. ALLISON. It is no reason. But it is a very good reason why hon, gentlemen opposite should be a little more cautions in making charges against the Government, in connection with this contract under consideration. Anyone who has heard the discussion must be convinced that the Government, and especially the Minister of Railways, have taken the greatest possible precautions to guard the interests of the country at every step.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I have only to say to the hon. gentleman that there is no reason why hon. members should cease to discuss the question before the House, in consequence of the matters to which the hon. gentleman has referred. I am prepared to defend the Fort Frances lock, as I have done before; and whenever the hon. member is prepared to open a debate on it, he may depend that he will be met. But that is no reason why this vote should be allowed to pres, even supposing that the building of the Fort Frances lock was wrong, which was not the case. The hon. Minister of Railways gave, as a reason for not bringing down the specifications, that they were printed in the Sessional Papers. He was right, to a certain extent, but they do not appear in the bound volumes. The hon. gentleman printed them in pamphlet form; but they were out of print long ago.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. They were printed by Order of the House.

Mr. MACKENZIE. I looked for the particulars in the Sessional Papers, but they were not there. Where the hon. Minister and the Government erred was, in allowing a submission to be made, which enabled the contractors to press the question of damages, which the Minister believed did not exist, and to base their case on the fact that the adjoin-ing section had not been finished. But there was no obligation on the part of the Government to have that section finished at the specified time. The contractors for Section 15, raised this very same point at the time they sent in tenders. Messrs. Kane & Macdonald were the lowest tenderers for Section 15. and they wanted an assurance from the Government that the time for finishing the section from Selkirk to Cross Lake would be adhered to. I declined to give any such assurance, although I had no reason to doubt that the contract would be finished within the time; but as a matter of public policy, I de-

I said : here are the specifications, there are the quantities; make your calculations as you please, tenders will be reseived, and the lowest tenderer will get the contract; but we entered into no obligation of any kind. The hon, gentleman said, the other night, that because Section 15 was not finished, the arbitrators awarded $275,000 of damages to this firm. Now, it must be quite apparent to any person that there was no claim whatever upon the Government, and that the course of the Government was to decline to make any such submission as was made. I have not been able to see the papers, as I was not aware, until to-day, that they were brought down, and therefore, I am not prepared to discuss the matter; but 1 understand that the hon. gentleman stated last night, in addition to what I have already said, that the difference between the amount of the original contract, as estimated, and that of the contract, as degraded by the change of work, was $800,000. I would ask the hon. gentleman if those figures are right, because he stated, on a former occasion, that the amount was about $600,000.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER. I will give the hon. gentle man the information, as furnished to day by the Chief Engineer. This is a memorandum of saving in connection with the modification of design : Rock borrow base, with structures thereon, as originally designed, $960,477; rock borrow and pile foundations, with structures thereon, of modified design, $449,106; saving, $511,371. The saving made by the change of location is not yet finally made up, but it will probably amount to from $500,000 to $600,000.

Mr. MACKENZIE. Then the statement made last night was a mistake. Another point to which I desire to call the attention of the House, is this: there were $275,000 damages awarded because Section 15 was not completed in time to suit these gentlemen; there were $120,000 awarded as damages for work which they did not do, but which was originally contemplated in the contract. Now, Sir, the contract was not for a lump quantity of work at all; it was for certain articles at certain prices. I find that there was clearing, close cutting, grubbing, platform of logs across muskegs, average sixteen inches deep, covered with brush; fencing, solid rock excavation, loose rock excavation, earth excavation, including borrowing; earth borrowing, with haul of one to one and three-quarter miles; off-take ditches, outside railway limits; under drains, bridge masonry, paving, concrete, crib-work in abutment and piers of bridges, rip-rap, cast iron pipes laid in concrete, bridge superstructure, &c. I need not go over all the items, but I may say that they are all very particular in detail as to sizes, quanti-ties, qualities, &c. Therefore, everything was given Therefore, everything was given entering into the construction of the road, and the tenders were offered at fixed prices. They knew that they would have to take the materials 172 miles, and it was their business to consider how they were to take them. If they did loose rock work, then the schedule for loose rock work would apply—if they did more, it would apply for additions, and if they did less, for reductions. But all conditions are set aside and the arbitrators declare that they are entitled to $120,000 damages, because they did not have as much rock work as they expected. The Government were only bound to give approximate quantities for this class of work, and to dispense with all or any portion of that work, in any of the places and under whatever description. The power taken was as complete as it could be, especially in that district of the country, and now, Sir, we have, as a result of all this, that these gentlemen are awarded $120,000, because the materials they had to deal with were changed from the contract, and they are awarded $275,000 because another contract was not finished, which the Government here to-night admitted they were under no obligation at all to finish. They had to take their chances, and I have only to say that I am utterly unable to conceive how such a verdict desired it in the terms of their submission. I say I cannot conceive how it can be done. I do not like to pass any hasty opinion until I have seen and read the documents. have not been able to do so yet, and I do not believe that half a dozen members have been able to read them; but it is impossible that anyone can come deliberately to the conclusion that this is just and equitable, under any circumstances. I must, in self-defence, vote against this item, as I have no reason to believe that a single dollar of it represents damages fairly accruing through default of the Dominion.

Mr. MILLS. It seems to me that there was no ground whatever to send this case to arbitrators, when we have an . Exchequer Court especially created to deal with cases in which certain parties have claims against the Government. I observe, Sir, that in this case one of the best known principles in the administration of the law was violated. We have at least two great authorities for saying that no enquiry into the rights of parties should take place in secret. Both Mr. Burke and Mr. Bentham, distingui hed writers on that subject, have laid it down that no secret investigation of the rights of any party should be had by any regularly constituted tribunal. We have no means of knowing whether there was any conspiracy, any secret understanding between the Administration and those gentlemen, entering into the contract. We know that before the arbitration was created, before the arbitrators were called upon to adjudicate between these parties and the Government, these men were charged with contributing very large sums of their own means, in aid of the Conservative party, in the elections in the Province of Ontario. We know that it was said over and over again, in the public press and elsewhere, that those parties would look to the Administration here to recoup them for the expenditure they made in the interests of the party, and in the interest of the lieutenant of the First Minister, in the Province of Ontario. Now, Sir, if there ever was a case in which it was necessary that the Government should have taken special care against leaving themselves open to a charge of this sort, this was the case. If ever there was a case which they ought not to have submitted to a tribunal agreed upon between themselves and the contractors, this was such a case. I have looked at these papers, and it is impossible to say from them what was the particular order of subjects referred to these arbitrators. The papers are not all brought down; and from those which are here, it is impossible to say what the precise claims made by these contractors against the Administration were. It was not only desirable that the Government should have submitted these papers early, but that they should have brought them down in a complete form, so that there would have been an opportunity, not only for the members of this House, but for the press and public, to consider them. So far as we can judge from the papers, these parties were not entitled to the moneys that have been awarded to them. That being the ease, I do not think this large amount should be voted. I think this question should still go to a properly constituted court, that the investigation should take place in public, so that the people may know how well those who are entrusted with their affairs are guarding their rights and We have no means of knowing how far the interests. Administration have defended the rights of the public in this matter of dispute between themselves and the contractors. For aught we know, there may have been an understanding between the Adminstration and those contractors; and if there was any foundation for the statements that have gone abroad, it would be a case in which it would be highly probable that there was such an understanding. Under these circumstances, it was a most improper pro-ceeding on the part of the Administration to refer this was arrived at by any sensible man, unless the Government dispute to arbitration at all, and it was equally improper for the investigation to be held in secret. What was the object in having it secret? Was it for the purpose of What was concealing the facts? Was it for the purpose of conducting a sham enquiry, and conducting it in a way that would not bear the light of day? If the Administration wished to create suspicion against themselves, if they wished to convince the public that the rumours that have gone abroad are well founded, they could not have done so more effectually than they did in the manner in which they have proceeded. Then the hon. Minister has intimated that it is not improbable that the Government may appeal from the decision of these arbitrators. If so, is it right to anticipate what the judgment of the superior tribunal would be? It will be time enough for the Government to ask for an appropriation to be made when a properly constituted tribunal, after a full, fair, and open enquiry, shall decide that these parties have a just claim against the Administration. But until then, I think this money ought not to be voted, and I, for one, will vote against this motion for concurrence.

NORTH-WEST TERRITORIES' ACT AMENDMENT.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, in moving the second reading of Bill (No. 152) to amend The North-West Territories' Act, 1880 (from the Senate), said: One of the clauses of this Bill, as I have already explained, provides that sheriffs may, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor, appoint deputy sheriffs, as there is a demand for a sheriff in each district. There are clauses altering, in some degree, the practices of stipendiary magistrates. There is a provision for an appeal from the stipendiary magistrates to the Court of Queens Bench of Manitoba. I propose to move an amendment allowing an appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace, other than a stipendiary magistrate, to the stipen- | have had time and a sufficient number of members present diary magistrate. As a doubt has been raised as to the power of the North-West Council to impose taxation for school purposes, I am going to propose a clause that will enable it to do so.

Bill read the second time, considered in Committee, reported, and read the third time and passed.

WAYS AND MEANS.

House again resolved itself into Committee of Ways and Means.

(In the Committee.)

Sir LEONARD TILLEY moved :

That towards making good the supply granted to Her Majesty for the financial year ending 30th June, 1884, the sum of $1,762,967,65 be granted out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Resolution agreed to.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY moved :

That towards making good the supply granted to Her Majesty for the financial year ending 30th June, 1885, the sum of $30,304,459.07 be granted out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Resolution agreed to; and Resolutions reported and concurred in.

SUPPLY BILL.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY introduced Bill (No. 155), for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money required for defraying certain expenses of the Public Service, for the financial years ending respectively 30th June, 1884, and the 30th June, 1885, and for other purposes relating to the Public Service.

Bill read the first time.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY moved the second reading of the Bill.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I suppose the hon. gentleman will now close, practically ?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I think we ought to make the same arrangement as is always customary, that when we adjourn to-night, we meet to-morrow at 3 o'clock, for the purpose of finishing the business that is now current between the two Houses, and for no other purpeses

Mr. MACKENZIE. No other business?

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. No other business whatever, so that hon. members who are obliged to go may leave, without feeling that they have neglected some duty.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Then, will you prorogue to-morrow ?

Sir JOHN A. MAODONALD. No; the Upper House will not be through.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. I thought they were going to sacrifice themselves by meeting at half past ten.

Sir JOHN A. MAODONALD. I am cognizant that there are some measures that will be amended in the other House, that will prevent our proroguing until Saturday.

Mr. MILLS. Those amendments may necessitate further action here.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. Of course the House will" deal with all matters between the two Houses ex necessitate, but no new business will be taken up, and no business on our paper.

Bill read the second and third times and passed.

BILL DISCHARGED.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. I had hoped that we might to discuss and dispose of Bill (No. 118), to modify the application of the Consolidated Insurance Act, 1877; but I think, under the circumstances, I would consult the wishes of the House by asking for its discharge.

Order discharged and Bill withdrawn.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the adjournment of the House.

Motion agreed to; and (at 10.45 o'clock, p.m.) the House adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY, 18th April, 1884.

The SPEAKER took the Chair at Three o'clock.

PROROGATION.

Mr. SPEAKER informed the House that he had received the following letter from the Secretary to His Excellency the Governor-General :—

SIR,—I have the honour to inform you that His Excellency the Governor General will proceed to the Senate Chamber to prorogue the present Session of the Dominion Parliament on Saturday, the 19th instant, at three o'clock.

I have the honour to be, Sir, Your most obedient servant, MELGUND, Governor-General's Secretary.

CIVIL SERVICE ACTS AMENDMENT.

Mr. CHAPLEAU, in moving that the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate to Bill (No. 130) to amend the Civil Service Acts of 1882 and 1883, said: The first clause of the old Act was repealed, and a complete new clause proposed in its place. That section provided for an addition to the money to be paid to the examiners and the time for which they should be paid, but, as no resolution had been proposed for that, it had to be dropped, but, in dropping it, the whole of the salary of the commissioners was dropped with it. So that that part of the Act has been restored to the same position as it was in 1882.

Mr. WHITE (Cardwell). I hope in connection with this Civil Service Act that something will be done to secure, at any rate, examiners of some little common sense in regard to the examinations to take place under the Act. The mat-ter has just been brought to my own notice by a letter which 1 will gladly show to any one as indicating the attainments of the writer. A young man in one of the Departments in Toronto goes up for examination and passes on all the subjects except composition, obtaining over 70 per cent. of the marks, 30 being the necessary number to entitle him to promotion, but who, with respect to composition, is found to have obtained only 20 marks. Now, Mr. Speaker, I venture to say without any disparagement to the members of this House or to gentlemen generally, that the letter which he writes me, and another letter which I know is an official letter to the Head of the Department, will do credit to any gentleman, and the whole substance of the letter indicates a man of more than ordinary intelligence and yet by some catch question put in on the subject of composition, instead of the party being asked to write an ordinary letter to show what his general intelligence is, he is asked a question on which he finds himself plucked, although he has, as I say, obtained on all the other subjects in his Department, 70 per cent. of the marks. I think the subject is one that ought to engage the attention of the Government with a view of appointing as examiners persons who will at least have ordinary common sense.

Sir LEONARD TILLEY,

Mr. CHAPLEAU. My hon. friend does not know, perhaps, that his remarks apply more to the Government than to the Civil Service Board of Examiners. An Order in Council has been passed that a certain number of points must be obtained by the candidate on each subject. On different subjects a candidate might obtain more than the necessary number of points, but if on one subject he has not obtained the minimum number he cannot pass the examination. This is what the Civil Service Board of Examiners have to require of candidates. With respect to the case of the young man referred to, I have seen the letter ho has written and it certainly proves that he should have obtained the necessary number of points in composition, but he might have had a failing, a circumstance which occurs some-times, not only in examinations for the Civil Service, but in University examinations where the best scholars, through a mistake or through nervousness, fail in one subject. In the case of the young man referred to I think there must have been some accident which prevented him from passing, and for which the Board of Examiners can-not be blamed. The Board of Examiners have themselves proposed, and I think the suggestion will be adopted, that when a candidate has a large number of points in excess of the minimum on all subjects, an accidental deficiency on any one subject shall not deprive him from securing the benefit of a successful examination; but under the existing Order in Council they cannot do otherwise than they have done.

Mr. WHITE. That is doubtless quite true, but it does seem to me that in the subject, for instance, of composition what is wanted in the Civil Service is ability to write an intelligent letter, and that is all that is in that particular respect wanted. But that is certainly not the examination to which he was subjected; he was subjected to an examination in which a certain phrase was given, and he was asked to put that into better form. Well, composition is now coming to be much a matter of taste, and he might not happen to please one of the examiners who may have particular views on the subject, and the young man finds himself stopped in his progress in the Public Service simply by the peculiar disposition of the examiner. I think the matter is really of some hardship in a case where the practical subjects have all been so well passed as to give him 70 per cent. of the marks when only 39 were required.

Mr. COOK. Perhaps he is a Grit.

Mr. CHAPLEAU. It was not a literary composition but an ordinary letter, and there might have been an accident.

Mr. BAKER (Victoria, B.C.) There is another little matter that occurred among my own constituents. Two officers of the Customs Department applied for promotion, one to be surveyor and the other to be appraiser, but their promotion was contingent on their passing the Civil Service promotion examination. They were ready and willing to pass the examination, and had so expressed themselves, and I believe departmental instructions had been given to that effect. The usual questions had been drawn up by the Minister of the Department for the Civil Service examination, and yet after twelve months have passed no examination has been held, and I am at a loss to understand why a day should not have been named for special examination in these foreign and far off parts, so to speak. These gentlemen have been in the service a good many years; they have laboured very industriously and have been recommended by the Head of the Department who acquiesced in the suggestions made that they should be promoted and that their salaries should be increased. Now, however, their salary cannot be increased and their commissions cannot be issued until this Civil Service examination is held. I would like in that respect to impress upon the Secretary of State the necessity of seeing that this friction between the Civil Service Examiners and the Department is removed so that the individual officers who are meritorious should not be prevented from doing their duty.

Mr. CHAPLEAU. If there is a grievance I have not heard of it before. I am sure that the examiners have not been remiss in their duty. At all events, the examiners will advertise that next month they will proceed to British Columbia where an examination will be held.

Mr. BAKER. The point is plain that the Civil Service examiners seem to override the Head of the Department.

Mr. CHAPLEAU. Oh, no.

Mr. BAKER. I have seen correspondence from which it appears to me that they are, so to speak, kicking against the pricks, and in that case it is they, and not the Head of the Department who ought to submit.

Amendments concurred in.

INDIAN ACT, 1880, AMENDMENTS.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, in moving that the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate to Bill (No. 143) further to amend the Indian Act, 1880, said: When the Bill left this House it provided that any person who excites or stirs up any Indian or half breed to make any request or demand on any agent or employé in the service of the Government, which leads to a breach of the peace, or to any act calculated to cause a breach of the peace, shall be guilty of misdemeanour and be liable to imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not exceeding five years nor less than two. This has been qualified in the sense suggested by the hon. leader of the Opposition, and the punishment has been reduced to a term not exceeding two years with or without hard labour. The last clause is amended by inserting that the Act shall go into force on 1st January, 1885, instead of 1st January next. I rather regret this amendment, which involves such a waste of time; but as the Senate in its wisdom has so amended the clause, I move that it be concurred in.

Amendments concurred in.

LIQUOR LICENSE ACT.

Mr. McCARTHY, in moving that the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate to Bill (No. 143) to amend the Liquor License Act, 1883, said: The first amendment is to clause 25 of the Bill. This is the clause we had under discussion yesterday as to an hotel being separated from any place or shop where merchandise is sold; and the Senate have amended it so that the law will stand with respect to all places except in cities and towns; that is to say that shops and hotels must be separated in all places except cities and towns, but in cities and towns the Board has discretion to have endorsed on the license that the section is not applicable thereto. Therefore, such hotels as the Rossin and Windsor will be allowed to remain as they are.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH NEWFOUNDLAND.

Sir RICHARD CARTWRIGHT. Will the Finance Minister say whether or not he has any further information as to the progress of negotiations with Newfoundland?

Sir LEONARD TILLEY. We have received no answer yet.

. Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved that when this House adjourns to day it stand adjourned until Saturday at a quarter to three o'clock in the afternoon.

Motion agreed to,

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the adjournment of the House.

Motion agreed to; and (at 4:50 o'clock, p.m.) the House adjourned.

PBAYERS.

ABANDONED GOVERNMENT MEASURES.

Mr. MILLS. The hon. Prime Minister and the Finance Minister ought to take this opportunity of pronouncing a funeral eulogy upon their legislative children who have perished during the Session. The First Minister introduced the Franchise Bill this Session for the fourth or fifth time; he promised that it should be carried through the House, and declared that it was absolutely necessary that a measure of this sort should receive the attention of Parliament. But the hon. gentleman has abandoned his favourite offspring to perish, and the Finance Minister has been guilty of the same heartlessness. I noticed the hon. gentleman introduced the Factory Bill early in the Session -in fact, these were the only two measures the Government really did introduce at an early period; they referred to them in the Speech from the Throne, they called the attention of Parliament to the importance of these measures, but before the Session was over, both were abandoned. The hon. gentlemen have succeeded in suddenly bringing before us and carrying through the House a number of measures which they had not announced at all; and I apprehend, to day, that if they did not anounce them it was because they did not attach any special importance to them. This Session seems to have been very extraordinary in that particular, because there is scarcely a measure which was referred to in the Speech from the Throne which the Government have seen proper to carry through Parliamont. What they declared to be of great public importance they have abandoned. They have had new light since the Session began, and what they considered matters of very little consequence then, they have pressed upon our attention at the very last moment.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD. I think this is a breach of the arrangement made, that nothing should be said except in regard to communications from the other House. That was the arrangement made, but the hon. gentleman has no leader now, and I suppose he is his own leader.

Mr. MILLS. This is not a new matter; this is an old matter-in fact, we are speaking of the dead offspring of hon, gentlemen opposite. I have not, Sir, been guilty of any breach of arrangement; I have not proposed any new measures; I have not proposed to deal with anything that has not been on the Notice Paper, or with anything-that we have not reached; it is with what we have reached, and with what the hon. gentlemen, after having reached, have seen proper to abandon, to which I have been inviting the attention of the House at this particular moment. Then, Sir, I observe that the hon. gentlemen have introduced all those measures which they have carried through this House during the past ten days. I believe that three-fourths of the Government measures have been carried through during the present week. This, Sir, is a very extraordinary cou-dition of things. Now, in Esgland, I have taken care to look over the important measures introduced by different Administrations since 1881, and I do not find a single instance of an important measure introduced by the Administration after the first five weeks of the Session had gone by, All, their important Government measures, although the Sessions there last for half a year, are introduced at a very early period in the Session, and are submitted to the attention of the House and of the country; because the rule there recognized is, not that the entire wisdom of the country is concentrated in Parliament, but that the wisdom of the country is fairly represented in Parliament, and measures are introduced at such a period that it is possible for the public to consider them, and advise their representatives upon them. Now, we have over and over again observed, in the history of legislation in England, in respect to the important measures introduced to Parliament, that in every instance the Government have announced, in introducing those measures, that sufficient time would elapse to allow the representatives of the people an opportunity of consulting those whom they represented, and that gentlemen of experience in the various Departments of, private industry might have an opportunity of consulting those who were likely to be affected by the measures which were submitted to Parliament. In this way, not only have those who represent the people an opportunity of discussing and fully considering those measures and bringing to light any latent defects that may be discovered, but they have an opportunity of bringing to bear upon them the intelligence of the entire country, Now, Sir, no such opportunity is afforded us. It is supposed that legislation is under the control of Parliament; it is supposed that Ministers will only seek to direct legislation as far as it affects the general administration of the affairs of the country. If important measures are introduced, that are likely to affect the general well-being of the country, and in regard to which any particular Department could not be efficiently administered, then, it is proper that Ministers should seek to direct and control legislation on that particular subject; because they are responsible for the ordinary administration of the affairs of the country, it is only right and proper that they should have an opportunity of promoting legislation. But that really does not apply nor is it recognized as applying to the general legislation of the country, in which members of the House are supposed to stand on an equal footing, and the Government are supposed to assist in promoting legislation on the various subjects. The Government have not only undertaken to control legislation but they have systematically, during the whole period they have administered public affairs, sought to suppress the action of Parliament until the last few days of every Session. If we look at the history of Parliament in England, we find this to be the case: at an early period the representatives of the people took no part in directing the legislation of the country. They only could control legislation as they could control supplies, and they made it a condition, on which they granted subsidies, that redress should be given in regard to certain matters in the public interest. In that way the people acquired, through their representatives, a share in the legislation of the country.

Mr. HAGGART: I rise to a point of order. What is the motion to which the hon, gentleman is speaking?

Mr. SPEAKER. I suppose the hon. gentleman intends to conclude with a motion. Does the hon. member, for. Bothwell intend to conclude with a motion.

Mr. MILLS. I have not yet made up my mind; but if the hon. gentleman will permit me, I will proceed.

Mr. SPEAKER The hon. gentleman is not in order unless he intends to conclude with a motion.

Mr. MILLS. If the hon. gentleman will permit me to proceed, I shall feel inclined to conclude with a motion of want of confidence.

Mr. WHITE (Hastings). The hon. gentleman should thank the Government for the course they have taken in withholding public measures until he became a member of Mr. MILLS.

the House; and, as they supposed he would be here, the Government, no doubt, thought they would keep important measures back in order that he might criticise them. But does the hon. gentleman forget everything that occurred from 1874 to 1878, when he, with his colleagues, were responsible for the administration of the affairs of the country?

PROROGATION.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY.

The Commons of Oanada have voted the Supplies required to enable the Government to defray the expenses of the Public Service.

In the name of the Commons, I present to Your Excellency a Bil¹ initialed: An Act for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money required for defraying certain expenses of the Public Service, for the financial year ending respectively the 30th June, 1884, and the 30th June, 1885, and for other purposes relating to the Public Service,—to which I humbly request Your Excellency's assent.

To this Bill the Royal Assent was signified in the follow. ing words : -

In Her Majesty's name, HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL thanks Her Loyal subjects, accepts their benevolence, and assents to this Bill.

After which His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to close the Second Session of the Fifth Parliament of the Dominion with the following

SPEECH :

Honourable Centlemen of the Senate :

Gentlemen of the House of Commons :

The assiduity and zeal shown by you in the performance of your important duties deserve my best thanks, and I desire to convey them to you.

There is every reason to anticipate that the liberal aid given by the loan to the Canadian Pacific Railway will secure the speedy and satisfactory completion of that great national work.

I congratulate you on the adjustment of all matters of difference between the Dominion and the Province of British Columbia by the legislation of this Session.

The larger appropriations made for the furtherance of railway construetion may be expected to assist materially in the development of our commerce, both foreign and domestic, as well as to open up for settlement extensive fortile districts hitherto almost inaccessible.

The several measures for the benefit of the Indian communities and for their encouragement to assume the responsibilities of self-government are well adapted for the purpose, and the amendments of the laws relating to the Dominion lands will give additional facilities and advantages to settlers in the North-West Territories.

The re-adjustment of the annual subsidies to the several Provinces, while adding to their resources. will place their pecuniary relations with the Dominion on a satisfactory and permanent basis.

The several important measures which occupied your attention, and will now become law, must all tend to the benefit and improvement of the country, and the numerous Private Bills with industrial objects, submitted to me, indicate the existence of a healthy spirit of enterprise among our people.

Gentlemen of the Nouse of Commons:

I thank you in Her Majesty's name for the supplies you have granted for the Public Service.

Honourable Gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In bidding you now farewell until next Session I trust that when we next meet I may beable to congretulate you on the continuing prosperity of our country.

The SPEAKER of the Senate then said :

Honourable Gentlemen of the Senate :

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

It is HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL'S will and pleasure, that this Parliament be prorogued until Thursday, the twenty-ninth day of May next to be here held, and this Parliament is accordingly prorogued until Thursday, the twenty-ninth day of May next.

The Parliament of the Dominion of Canada was then prorogued to the 29th day of May next.
