Prize Competition Note.

Look at your Pass-Book and see if you have $60.00 entered there, as that is the largest amount on any one Book at present. If you are behind, a little spurt will bring you to the front again. Urge your friends to make their purchases here and have the amount entered in your book. We do not object, as it is trade we are after, and there is $25 in cash for some one on Dec. 24th.

This store closes at 6 o'clock, Saturdays excepted.

We are after your trade, Mr. Customer

We do not want it all for other people have to live, but we are here to save you money if we can. If you can get a yard of cotton for 3c here that you have to pay 4c elsewhere, we want you to save that cent. We showed a man a sweater plainly marked $1.25, said he, I paid $1.75 for the same kind at another store. Fifty cents in the difference that's all, but it meant half a days pay to the same man. Similar stories came to us unsolicited daily. Some people dislike changing their place of dealing. Don't do it, unless you like, but listen; It Pays to look around. Last month's sales were the largest on record with us, and we are going to make November larger still, if special prices will bring this about. The Weekly paper prevents us from giving you daily announcements of our specials and we would ask you to visit our store daily, if only to read the price tickets and see the new things.

A GOOD MOVE.

Great Britain Gets Delago Bay Treaty Secured Regarding Division of South Eastern Africa.

The Hague, October 29.—England have agreed to the So. East Africa, as a diplomatic authority, who get the treaty from the hands of the...

including Delago Bay, Delago Bay, and Beira which will then be the most southerly point in British South East Africa. Portuguese sovereignty will be suspended, but whether Germany and England will buy the region or simply establish a control over the Anglo-Portuguese arrangement. The purchase price is regarded as being to be carried out.

It is believed the British government will begin extensive harbor improvement at Delago Bay as soon as the agreement...

LARGEST CARIBOU

Head shot by a Millersburg, Pa., Sportsman. Other News.

Hunting trophies are still being brought out of the big game district. This season up to date has been the best big game year in the history of the Miramichi, and from present indications next fall will probably be ahead of this.

Chief game warden Robinson has kindly furnished us with the following list of departing and returning sportsmen. Dr. Elsiea Flagg of Marblehead, Mass. has returned from the Bald Mountains. He obtained one moose and one caribou. Sydney Thomas was his guide.

F. B. Bemis, Boston, Mass., hunted in the Bald Mountains district and shot one moose, one caribou and a very large black bear. This is Mr. Bemis' first trip here and he is delighted with the sporting possibilities of this locality and has expressed his intention of returning next season. F. J. Home and wife, Wall Street, New York, who were in the Bald Mountain district with Sydney Thomas as guide, killed one caribou and a black bear.

W. B. Meech, N. W. Merch and Harry Cortes of Millersburg, Pa., who hunted on Main Northwest with Ed. Menzies and Jas. Brander Jr., shot two moose, three caribou and a bear. The head procured by Mr. Cortes is the finest caribou head out this season. Mr. Meech and Mr. Cortes have hunted together for 24 years, and on this, their first trip to Miramichi, have struck the best big game country they ever hunted in.

Mr. Meech offered $50 to be allowed to catch one beaver for his collection of wild animals. He possesses one of the best amateur collections of mounted wild animals and birds in the United States. The party will come again next year. Row Barnard and E. H. Hotchkiss of New York who hunted in Ganges lake district with Geo. Wamboldt and George Schultz, guides, procured one moose and one caribou. This is Mr. Barnard's fourth and Mr. Hotchkiss' second season. J. E. T. Denahan of Wall Street, New York, has gone to Teabody lake with Capt. Bering. Mr. Denahan intends to spend about 40 days in the woods. Robt. E. Perkins and Robt. Saltostall of Boston, have gone to Bald Mountains with Arthur and William Pringle, guides. H. E. Farrington of New York, has gone to Tomopone with Will McKay as guide. Mr. Bemis spent a few days at Tabatabaie bird shooting and speaks very highly of our country in every respect. He expects to return next year and bring his wife with him.

BUY CANADIAN-MADE ARTICLES.

Manufacturers' Association Sending out Pamphlets to the People.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—Secretary Young of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in a statement today says that certain members guaranteed a fund of $50,000 for educational purposes along "made in Canada line." Pamphlets, etc., will be sent out urging people to buy home manufactures, and in this way it is hoped to secure a home market. While requested to subscribe to this fund members of the association are being asked to make suggestions as to why tariff changes. All replies are to be in by November 15 and will be summarized for publication. Mr. Young says that more than half replies received so far state that members of the association are satisfied with present tariff and quite a number suggest reductions in duties and additions to free lists. These seem to be no strongly declared opinion in favor of increases.

Y. M. C. A.

The meeting of the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon was an interesting one. The room was completely filled every seat being occupied and a few standing. Rev. Mr. Pickett gave an address taking for his subject "Faith," showing how this is applied to the different walks and business of every day life. Drawing from this, an illustration of the necessity of having faith in God. The newly formed orchestra presented and rendered good music.

The arrangement for the 8th is not yet made. On the 8th it is not yet made.

DEATH OF R. C. GITCHELL.

Old Resident of Marinette Passes Away—Lived Here Seventeen Years.

Roland C. Gitcheell, an old and highly esteemed resident of Marinette, passed away Sunday afternoon about four o'clock at the hospital. He was operated on there last week, undergoing a very difficult operation for obstruction of the bowels. For a day or so the indications were good, but Sunday afternoon he rapidly grew worse and passed away. Mr. Gitcheell was sixty eight years old and was born in Chatham, New Brunswick.

He came to Marinette in 1885 and engaged in business here. He has been in business a good part of the time since. Mr. Gitcheell is a man whom it was a pleasure to know. His frank, earnest, genial manner made him a favorite everywhere and there will be deep regret at his untimely taking off. He is survived by his wife and three children, Howard, Joseph, and Miss Anna Gitcheell.

The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock from the house, 1610 Carney Avenue.—Marinette Eagle.

Many people of Newcastle remember Mr. Gitcheell, as he was a resident of this town for years. The family have the sympathy of the entire community.

CHURCH MEETING.

Majority Decide not to Moderate in a Call at St. James' Congregational Meeting.

The congregational meeting of St. James' church held last Tuesday evening was, despite the extremely boisterous weather, largely attended. We understand that the meeting tried for a time to keep pace with the atmospheric conditions but after a short time things were brought to order and it was decided by a large majority not to moderate in a call out to hear the remainder of the candidates for the position, there being still a number to be heard.

Another meeting was held in St. James' Hall Saturday evening at which there were not so many present but we learn that it was more stormy than the previous one.

It is too bad that a congregation like that of St. James' church cannot decide amicably among themselves who is to hold the important position of pastor of their church and the present hitch only strengthens the old saying "make haste slowly".

ALLAN F. RAMSAY.

A Former Miramichi boy who has Risen in New York.

New York, Oct. 30.—Prominent among the younger generation of men who have achieved success in the business world here, the name of a New Brunswicker stands out in bold relief. Allan F. Ramsay, of the Miramichi, came here 10 years ago and secured a position as travelling salesman with Weil, Haskell & Co., wholesale hardware, of 423 Broadway. He well did his job and in a brief period he was promoted to the position of European buyer, and for several years he has made periodical trips to England, France and Germany in the interests of the firm of which he now has the honor of being a member. Your correspondent was informed by Mr. Ramsay the other day that he had recently been made second vice-president of the firm.—Telegraph's N. Y. Letter.

Many will remember Allan Ramsay, he was for some clerk for Mr. Jesse Brown and also was for a time with Mr. J. D. Creighton.

THE I. O. F.

The Independent Order of Foresters are inaugurating a vigorous winter campaign, and for the months of November, December, and January are resulting to new members the registration and certificate fees, which applicants usually have to pay upon joining. The order has made wonderful strides during the year, and will add to its membership many thousands during the next three months.

Its membership roll now contains a grand total over 200,000 of insured or beneficiary members. Its accumulated fund, which is now $9,000,000 and these funds are increasing at the rate of three per cent a million dollars a year, means a source of aid of over $12,000,000 already paid promptly on death claims since the organization. The I. O. F. is undoubtedly the great and progressive fraternal organization upon its highest and noblest principles.

Committee composed of Mr. J. H. Brown, Mr. H. H. Ross, and Mr. J. H. Brown, the secretary of the order.

THE BRITISH SQUADRON

Can Dominate the Coasts of the United States.

Washington, Oct. 29.—By a decision of the Naval Board of Construction the United States will have two of the most powerful armored cruisers in the world, the Tennessee and the Washington. They will be credited in speed, however, by four of the British cruisers of the Drake class and two of the Boreas Boreas class.

The naval board decided that the Tennessee and Washington are to have a displacement of twenty-two thousand, displacement 14,000 tons. The British cruiser Drake and her sister ship Boreas are to have a displacement of 12,000 tons.

The Admiralty will make a number of alterations in the design of the Tennessee and Washington to make them more powerful than the British cruisers.

NEW BOAT.

Mr. H. H. Lamont Launched a Fine TUG BOAT

For the D. & J. Ritchie & Co. The Launch is Very Pretty.

On Saturday evening about 5:30 o'clock there was launched from the shed on the old Park mill property the hull of a trim little steamer which Mr. H. Lamont has been building for the D. & J. Ritchie concern. The dimensions of the steamer are as follows:—

Length over all 62 feet
Beam 14 feet
Draft 5 ft 9 in.

The hull has been much admired as she floated down to Messrs. Ritchie's wharf from whence she has been taken to Chatham when machinery is being built to propel her.

The model is slick and with proper machinery the ought to be a strong swift boat. Mr. Lamont is to be congratulated on the fine showing this craft has made.

CABLE COMPLETED.

Canada and Australia Now in Instant Touch.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 31.—The completion of the cable line between Vancouver and Brisbane was accomplished last night, although the first message did not get through until this morning, when the announcement was made that one dream of the imperialists was a reality. The cable is still in the hands of the contractors and it will not be open for business for about three weeks. During that time it will undergo an elaborate system of tests, in order that the officials may be satisfied that it is in thorough working order before being taken over from the contractors. The section between Balfour Creek and Fanning Island, which is the longest in the world, already has undergone a series of tests and proved entirely equal to expectations. The great question in the success of the cable was over the enormous stretch, but it was found by test to give a speed of over 100 words a minute with the DeLorve transmitter. The actual time occupied in the transmission of a message from this city to Sydney, Australia, will be less than five minutes in the case of a short commercial message, and this time, of course, will be occupied mainly in the manual repetition of the message at Balfour Creek, Fanning Island, Norfolk Islands and Brisbane.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—The Pacific Cable was completed today. Premier Borden sent the following message to Sir Sanford Fleming, dated Wellington, New Zealand, Oct. 31st: "Delighted to congratulate you on completion of the great work the Pacific Cable, thus rewarding your interest and labor and forging further the link of advantage to our empire."

A GRUESOME WAR DANCE.

Our trouble all came from hiring the young Pawnee to carry in one of Arnold's deer.

We were camped in the thick willows on the Loup river between Timber Creek and the Cedar and had been out three days. There was already considerable snow on the ground, more had fallen during the night, so that the walking was very bad.

On the morning of that third day we sat at breakfast discussing means of bringing in the two deer which Arnold had killed the night before. It was just then that this Indian came down the river and turned into our camp.

As soon as we had hired him to carry in one of the deer we all set out together. After a long search Arnold found one of his deer where he had cached it in a snow drift. The Indian promised to get into camp with it before dark. We went on for the other deer which we found and undertook to carry to camp, packing it turn about. The snow was so deep that long before we got in we were so tired that we could carry the deer but a few rods at a time. However, we did finally get to camp at dark and found three Indians waiting for us. The other deer had not arrived.

While preparing supper we both threw our belts, knives and pistols upon the bed. After we had fed our visitors they told us that they were camped across the Cedar, up the Loup a very short distance. So after supper we decided to go with them and see if the Indian had gotten that far with our deer. We went without arms.

There was no moon; but the stars and the snow-covered ground made it quite a light. The three Indians went ahead, breaking the trail, and we followed. They traveled very fast for some time, then they broke into a trot, which grew gradually faster and faster until we found it almost impossible to keep up with them. Finally we lost sight of them and began to suspect something was wrong. However, we concluded to follow on. They could not hide their trail in the deep snow, and we could always find our way back to camp.

After a while an Indian struck the hills, making a large trail, seemingly to lead us after him. The other two went up the river. We were sure their camp was not in the hills, so we followed the two up the river. Soon another trail, also large, turned into the hills, but we followed the remaining man up the river.

After a short distance the third trail turned in the hills. We stopped to talk over the situation. Far away from over the hills came the shrill, whining wail of a lone coyote; then all was silent.

What should we do? Evidently the Indians had not intended to take us to their camp. We were only the more determined to find it. For we were now satisfied that the Indian had stolen our deer and taken it to the Pawnee encampment.

We turned down to the river and went on the ice, where the walking was much better. The snow crunched under our stiff boots, cold wind sighed past our ears, and the eddying flakes blew into our faces. The bright air was deliciously fresh, but on the snow-cad startle prairie nothing appeared to break the stilly whiteness, to tell us which way we should turn our footsteps. However, we traveled up the river several miles, until we were well tired out, and were about to give up the search, when we heard a far-distant muffled sound. Turning a bend in the river, we saw two glowing tents lit up with great fire within.

The Indians were camped in the willows on the west side of the river. Between us was a large air rift in the river, kept open by the swift current. We found a long log which we threw across the dangerous hole. Then balancing carefully we walked over. To have fallen meant a certain death under the ice. We found no trail so we pushed the willows apart and crowded through. In the clearing we discovered several other tents, most of them seemingly deserted. The one nearest us was well lit up. Numerous moving shadows played on its side. Much talking and laughing came from it. We went to it, raised the flap and stepped in. The noise and talk stopped instantly.

The air was close and smelled of cooked meat. In the centre a large fire raged. On it was a great boiling kettle of venison. We looked around. Each Indian had a rib of deer. A feast was on. We knew they were eating our deer.

After a time I asked, Whose tepee is this? A large fat Indian struck himself on the breast and said, It is mine.

Arnold recognised him as the Doctor Big Bear, and shook hands with him. The other Indians then resumed their feast. He gave us seats near himself, and we asked about our deer. Big Bear admitted that it was our deer, explaining that it was all right about the deer that he and Arnold were just like brothers. I told him he should bring the part of the deer not cooked, the hide, and a good blanket to our camp and it would be well. Otherwise we would go to the White Father (the Indian agent) who would send the thief and Big Bear to Omaha, in irons.

The doctor smiled, then he said in Pawnee, Whose deer is it? Did you kill it?

I told him that Arnold killed the deer, but that we were hunting together as one man.

The doctor turned to Arnold, who could not understand Pawnee, and said in English, He-say-he-shoot-deer.

Nervously Arnold answered, Yes, yes, he kill him, he shoot him.

I said to Arnold, That will not do. They know I don't know where the deer was. The boy told them you killed it.

Then in Pawnee to the Indian, I said, Speak straight out from your mouth. We are here; speak straight out.

He turned to Arnold and again said, He-say-he-

I was angry. I hit him on the side of the jaw just hard enough to show him I meant business. The other Indians had been talking and eating. At this a sudden hush ran around the lodge. It should have warned me.

Again I said to the doctor, Speak straight out from your mouth. We are here speak out.

The old rascal kept quiet a moment then calling Arnold brother, said, You come-last-year-my-camp Florence? He say-he-shoot-

Hardly had his mouth closed when I hit him again. The blow twisted his head around sharply. Again the sudden hush ran round the lodge.

He said, Perhaps you are looking for a deer?

Yes, looking for a fight, I said as I put my hand inside my breast, pretending to reach for a pistol.

So we stood glaring at each other. All was still; no one moved. At last three bucks rose. One passed out; the others sat down. Again there was silence; ever, one anxiously expectant.

Ere long outside a squaw began a singsong cry. Now her tones were low and mournful, low and mournful the wail. Now it grew faster, and fiercer, ever more terrible, defiance went her theme, upward hurried the wailing, riffs more hoarsely. I received no answer. All were silent. Then to a boy I shouted, Why does she cry? Because you hit her man, answered he, jumping up.

At this all the Indians sprang to their feet. More Indians crowded into the tepee. They talked and gesticulated fiercely. The excitement was growing. Arnold and I stood back to back waiting.

Some of the Indians began to move in and out still taking, still gesticulating. Soon a deer's hind-quarters were brought in and hung at my feet, then the hide, then the fore-quarters, then more meat. And the smell of blood was added to the stench of close air, cooked meat and Indian sweat.

I said to Arnold, Say all. Tell them to bring it all. Fight for some. Then I added: There are some redhot irons in the big fire. We must grab them, strike right and left, and break for liberty. We can get away before they realize what we have done.

No, no! he answered. We can't do that. There are too many. Let me fix it.

The Indians had quieted down some, watching us, awaiting our next move. Arnold turned to the doctor, took the rascal's hand and said: We are brothers, take the deer, it is wicked to fight.

The Indian smiled, and his beady eyes gleamed treacherously.

Outside the war song had begun again. More meat cooked and thrown at my feet. The excitement was swiftly growing. The Indians moved around us in a circle, all muttering all swaying their arms and legs. Soon the circle began to move. One Indian inside took up the war chant. Others joined in the wailing chant; the gruesome war dance was on.

We folded our arms and looked about. As yet they were afraid to attack us.

Round and round went the dance, faster and faster. Fiercer and fiercer grew the song. Sweat began to stream down our faces. The air was hazy with smoke, dust and stench. It was hell.

Then I thought swiftly and remembered that I knew Spotted Horse, one of the chiefs of this camp. Eagerly I looked for the young chief. He was not to be seen, I despaired.

At last a young Indian came in. He seemed to have just arrived at camp. I looked fixedly at him, until he seemed to be conscious of myself alone. Then in Pawnee I said: "Go tell Spotted Horse to come here. He is white brother wishes to speak to him." The Indian immediately raised the flap of the tepee and disappeared.

Some of the dancers noticed this. The dancing quieted down. The leaders started after him.

Then again Arnold said good-bye to the doctor and we started to go. A crowd immediately stepped in front of us. They pointed to the meat and gesticulated fiercely.

We took our old positions, acting brave, though feeling dejected. Soon the leaders returned, and again the circle was formed. Wilder and faster the dancing grew. Round and round went the circle. More Indians crowded in. A squaw stirred the fire. It roared and crackled, and long-pointed red flames leaped into the dark air, lighting up the cruel faces.

One Indian drew his knife, then another and another. One left the singing circle and danced toward us, singing wildly, and slashing the air excitedly.

This is terrible, muttered Arnold.

Legs so Swelled He Couldn't Walk

This case of Mr. James Treisman, the well-known butcher of 636 Adelaide Street, London, Ont., is another proof that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are effective in the most severe and complicated diseases of the kidneys.

Mr. Treisman states: "Two years ago I was laid up with kidney disease and urinary trouble. Besides the pain and inconvenience caused by these troubles, I became dropsical, and my legs would swell up so that I could scarcely go around at all. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I procured a box and continued the use of this valuable medicine until now I can say for a certainty that I am entirely cured. I never took any medicine that did me so much good, and am firmly convinced that if it had not been for this medicine I would not be working to-day."

These pills act directly on the kidneys and liver, regulate the bowels and ensure the perfect action of the digestive and filtering systems. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box. At all dealers, or Edinboro, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

We've got to grab those irons, I said. Are you ready?

Yes. It's our only chance. Let's risk it.

Ready! Our muscles were tense for action. But just then I saw Spotted Horse's head thrust into the tepee. Wait! I cried.

Spotted Horse gazed about a second until his eye fell on us. Then he hurried in, dinging dancers right and left, elbowing his way straight to us.

We each grasped one of his hands. He shyly smiled at our signs of relief, and said, You-hap-bad-scare!

Yes, I laughed nervously, heap bad.

The Indians quieted down quickly and one by one sneaked out of the tent.

Spotted Horse led us to his tepee, and gave us seats with him on the raised part, which was covered with robes and blankets I told him our trouble, and the cause of it. So he promised to bring us the deer and a good blanket the next day. We thanked him, shook hands, and started back to camp.

Throughout the Indian village all was dark and quiet, not an Indian in sight. We hurried on silently for a mile; then, feeling more secure, we began to talk over our narrow escape.

At our camp we found everything as we had left it. But we did not sleep much that night. Early the next morning we heard Spotted Horse call. We looked out and saw only an Indian pony some forty yards away. When we answered, the chief appeared from behind the pony. He unloaded the meat, cooked and uncooked, the deer's hide, and a very poor blanket. Then he jumped on his horse, yelled good-bye, and started back.

We laughingly cried after him, Spot, oh, Spot! We said a good blanket!

He laughed, waved his hand, and galloped away. He knew we were glad enough to get off with even a poor blanket.

That day the Indians moved on up the river. We stayed several days longer and enjoyed our hunt without molestation.

A TOTAL WRECK.

The Frederica Ashore Near Cape Spencer.

Crew Taken off by Government Steamer Lansdowne.

Barquentine Frederica was wrecked at 3 o'clock this morning on the rocks about two miles east of Cape Spencer Light. The Frederica, Capt. Churchill, left Parrboro on Friday morning at 5 o'clock for Portland, Me., with coal. She got out a good way in the Bay when a heavy storm set in, and on Saturday was forced to seek shelter at Snook Harbor. She lay there until Tuesday morning with sixty fathoms of chain out. Before breakfast all the chain with the exception of fifteen fathoms was taken in. The weather schootered some, and seeing several scudmers which were lying there putting to sea, it was decided also to sail.

There was a mizzling breeze when the vessel left the harbor. All the sails were set. The breeze again sprang up, and at 3 o'clock the men commenced to take in sail, and the vessel was placed under double reefed mainsail and storm trysail. The course was kept west by south under this sail as long as possible. The gale commenced to increase in violence, and the wind with terrific force with high seas. Somewhere near 3 o'clock in the morning all hand were called out to wear ship, but the breezes were found to be foul, and the yards stuck, so that nothing could be done with the ship, and she was at the mercy of the winds and seas.

A short time afterwards she struck the reef and commenced to go to pieces. The seas washed over her, and the after-companionway broke off. The men crowded on the companionway.

For a time it looked very serious. Three men managed to scramble to shore over the rocks for the purpose of seeking assistance at the lighthouse. The bank was very steep, and one had to push the other up. It was a difficult and dangerous climb in the darkness, with the wind blowing a gale and the great seas washing over the rocks.

After two had gained the summit it was found impossible to do anything for the third man, H. White, A. B., and he was left on the rocks. There he had to remain until the Lansdowne arrived at 9 o'clock. At times the seas washed over him, and he had to cling to the ledges to keep himself from being washed away. The two other men made their way through the woods to the lighthouse, and the lightkeeper telegraphed for the Lansdowne.

The boat was dispatched as quickly as possible, and at 9 o'clock she had the men aboard. She first took the men off the wreck, and then rescued Seaman White from his perilous position on the rocks. The men had a very hard time and lost everything but what they stood in.

A school teacher visiting in a nearby city was a guest at a party the other day, and a lady to whom she had been just introduced did not catch the "Miss" and supposing she was married, asked: How many children did you say you have? Well, only forty now, was the reply that nearly staggered the questioner.

The Frederica was a vessel of 390 tons register, and was built at St. John in 1884. She was owned by Fred E. Sayre, St. John. The freight was insured, but the vessel was uninsured.

A Siege

The nations of the Folsom Orphanage at Lowell, Mass., U.S.A., were they had a siege of whooping cough in their institution. They said that every case was promptly relieved by Vapo-Cresolene. Its value is so great and colds was so great they always kept it ready for use. You know how it's used, don't you? 'Tis heated by a vaporizer and you inhale it. Write us for a book that tells all about it.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should be a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.00; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physician testimonials free upon request. Vapo-Cresolene Co., 26 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

A school teacher visiting in a nearby city was a guest at a party the other day, and a lady to whom she had been just introduced did not catch the "Miss" and supposing she was married, asked: How many children did you say you have? Well, only forty now, was the reply that nearly staggered the questioner.

Mr. Goodchild said that he would like to second Mr. Mansell's proposal. It was of no use for them to meet at conferences and express opinions unless they did something practical and to the point.

The Union Advocate, ESTABLISHED 1867.

NEWCASTLE, NOVEMBER 5, 1902.

BE PATRIOTIC.

The Advocate has been for years trying to arouse a little patriotism among the people of Newcastle, that genuine kind of patriotism that leaves dollars and cents in the town.

At every visit to the express office we are disgusted at the number of parcels that have attached labels of large city stores addressed to private individuals.

In the majority of cases these goods, or better, can be purchased in our town as it has been remarked by strangers that Newcastle's stores are quite as up-to-date as those in the cities, and why not!

Do not our merchants buy directly from the same markets as the city stores. But this is only one side of the story and the smallest side too.

If our merchants have a coat you want, but you send to Montreal for one, and pay the cash you must, what benefit is your trade to the town!

But then again, Newcastle merchants are very lax in being patriotic among themselves. We are talking from experience now.

For the past four years we have carried a line of wrapping paper, paper bags and twine which we sell at the same prices as these articles are sold in St. John, yet with a few exceptions our merchants buy of St. John travelers.

that they do not like it. Query—If they refused to work on Sundays how long would they remain in the employ of Mr. Bush?

Mr. Bush is not aware that any clergyman of any denomination has "made any effort to get such of our men were brought here to go to any church."

No one, as far as I know, thinks "we are all heathens," but Sunday labor has a tendency to make men so.

Mr. Bush may not be aware of the fact that there are twelve tides during the six days of the week.

Of course there is a certain amount of repair work to be done here, as elsewhere on Sundays, such as making good some serious breakdowns, that if not immediately attended to, would involve danger to life and limb and a great loss of property.

Mr. Bush is engaged in have been, and are being done without resorting to Sunday labor. Neither do the pulp mills run on Sundays as on other days.

In reply to the string of questions Mr. Bush asks, it is sufficient to say, that two wrongs do not make a right. If one man violates the sanctity of the Day of Rest, it is no justification for Mr. Bush doing ditto.

Dark Hair. We mean all that rich, dark color your hair used to have. If it's gray now, no matter; for Ayer's Hair Vigor always restores color to gray hair.

invitation to men of intelligence to attend it. No one wishes to treat his men as heathens but it is only heathens that would fancy that a church exists for any other purpose than worship.

It is scarcely fair either to try and heap upon the church's head all other signs of the community. The church has done and is doing still all it can to suppress the liquor traffic, we are glad to state that the inspector is an elder of the church and if Mr. Bush looks up any number of the Advocate during the past six months he will see that Mr. Menzies is prosecuting that work with untiring energy.

The churches stand in this. The first day of the week is the Lord's day and it is long the sanctity of the Fourth Commandment. (I am prepared to prove that if Mr. Bush desires it.) No company or man has the right to destroy that sanctity as has been done by the Don. Bridge Co., Not only does the divine law say that but the civil law says it and the Lord's Day Alliance having sought the highest authority in the land is now prepared to say that

Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back. For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh he so much needs. To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

if this work is continued the company will be prosecuted at once. Yours, A. M. MacLennan. Millerton, N. B.

Mr. Editor, Mr. Bush in his defense of Sunday work on the Northwest bridge, tries to make out that he partly does it to help the working men who are away from home, and may lose time through the week.

No Mr. Editor, as a working man I would day to every fellow workman, if the Sabbath was created for any special class of men, it was for us and we should put forth every effort not to allow any individual, corporation, no not even the government, itself to rob us of that God given heritage, that priceless boon, the workman's day of rest, the Christian Sabbath.

Yours truly, WORKING MAN.

The Editor's Mail. To the Editor of the Union Advocate. Dear Sir:— "H. D. Bush, Esq., Engineer of the Don. Bridge Co. Ltd., takes up two thirds of a column in the Advocate of Oct 25th in saying nothing on the matter at issue, viz, The Desecration of the Lord's Day. He is entitled to one's sympathy. Probably the intimidation from Attorney General Pughley to discontinue work on Sundays under threat of an action for the violation of the Lord's Day Observance Act somewhat disconcerted him.

The Country. An Epitome of Events Gathered by ADVOCATE Reporters

BATHURST.

Another broken week as regards the weather with cold rains, generally at night and damp chilly days making fires in the furnaces and grates a necessity. Up to this date there has been rather a scarcity of fuel both wood and coal in town, but a considerable quantity of good furnace wood has come in by the Caraquet Railway as well as what the farmers are hauling in lately, and coal is coming in from Springhill and elsewhere.

Reports from several districts in Gloucester are to the effect that the potato bug has again got in its work and played havoc with that important root. It is strange that nothing will kill off the pest, which every year destroys hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of excellent food.

A considerable quantity of oysters from Bay du Vin, Tabouintac and other points have come in during the past week and this reminds us that the delicious Caraquet oyster, the only oyster of the famous Delaware Blue Points in the World is almost a thing to be wished for as unobtainable. For years and years fishery affairs and others who saw this state of expectancy among the local politicians. It is evident that everything is as dry as tinder and it only needs the spark to start the fire. We must that air of confidence which was one of the notable features in the meetings and conversations of "Our friend, the Enemy" up to a certain point in the agitation they started. We hope nothing we have said disturbs their equanimity.

JANEVILLE.

Janeville, Oct. 31st 1902.—The weather still continues cold and rainy, taking each by turns. We had a very heavy rain on Tuesday, which made the ground very soft for ploughing and rose the brooks and rivers very high. It is bad weather for trap-pulling and also for the lumbermen, and it is almost impossible to portash supplies into the camps.

Messrs. O'Donald and Buttiner have a large crowd of men and horses in the woods and have commenced yarding their logs. Mr. O'Donald has returned from P. E. I., and brought with him two fine horses which they are portashing with now. Messrs. Chapman & Haley are also busy with the lumbering, there will be several other contracts given this winter. The wages are very good and men are very scarce.

W. H. O'Brien has finished his contract of sawing at the Millstream and has moved his mill to Janeville siding. He will have the winter's sawing here with P. G. Mahoney and the mill will be taken in the woods in a few weeks. There has been several additions made in the mill. A large engine has been added and a double engine also.

Several times during the past few weeks we have heard thunder and lightning. It is very unusual at this time of year.

Mr. Waldron Cis spent Wednesday in Bathurst. Mr. Robert Miller is finishing his new house which he started several years ago. It is a five story building with bay windows and a veranda around three sides and is very pretty.

A. J. W. McKenzie is buying up potatoes to load a car. Prices 70 cts. delivered at the station.

Miss Laura Buttiner left on Wednesday morning for a trip to British Columbia and California where her brothers reside. She will be absent for several months and will be much missed in the Sunday School and in the choir of the Presbyterian and the Methodist Churches during her absence.

We are glad to report that our town pump is in excellent order, not affected in the least by the severe frost of the past few weeks. Mr. Reginald Jennings spent Saturday and Sunday at his home here. Miss Bella Eddy, our popular teacher spent Saturday and Sunday at her home in Stonehaven.

We heard great talk of a new bridge to be built over Sullivan's brook and another over Eddie's brook both badly needed. One load of cedar has been hauled to Sullivan's, but I supposed that the election will be postponed and if that is so the bridge will not be built till next year.

Mr. James Barry and Son of Niagara Falls are visiting his mother here.

Mr. John Ward has completed a large shed which is quite an addition to his barn.

Several moose have been seen in this vicinity lately but we have not heard of any being shot.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Edward Scott has a very sore hand, he was to the Dr. several times last week, it is now improving.

Mr. H. A. Cole spent several days of last week in Bathurst. P. G. Mahoney of Melrose and W. H. O'Brien of Bathurst spent a day in Janeville last week.

Mr. Alfred Daley of Canobie and Miss Emma Hillock of Clifton, were married in Bathurst on Monday, Oct. 27th, by the Rev. John Goldsmith. They returned home to Canobie on Monday evening.

A Bad Breath

A bad breath means a bad stomach, a bad digestion, a bad liver. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers. 40c. per tin. Sold by all druggists.

We wish them a long and happy married life. People are very busy hauling seaweed after the heavy blows for banking, manure, etc.

CARAQUET.

CARAQUET, Oct. 31.—Several of our young men met on Monday night at the residence of Mr. N. St. Croix for the purpose of organizing a skating club, and maintain a skating rink. Mr. St. Croix was elected President; W. S. Hornaby, Secy-treasurer; Messrs. Jas. W. Young, P. Veaty and A. J. Witzell, committee to superintend the work on the rink. This large village has been devoid of winter sport for quite a number of years and we are pleased to see that our young men are at last making an effort to revive it. It is hoped that their efforts will meet with success.

Mr. Morrissey of Newcastle was here on the 27th. He has just completed a large warehouse near the station, and intends doing business here on a larger scale than before.

A. N. McKay, Commercial Traveler, St. John, won the mare lotteried by Mr. W. P. Foley.

S. J. Melanson, General agent of the National Life Assurance Co., passed a couple of days here this week.

Mr. Pickles of the Union Advocate was also here for a few days. Nearly all the fishermen have placed their boats ashore for the winter. It has been a very successful season with them.

MILLERTON.

Messrs. Burton Vanderbeck, D. Crocker and Charlie Newman, have returned from the harvest fields of Manitoba. Evidently the trip was a most agreeable one.

Hallow'een passed by very quietly. Splendid violin and mandolin music was enjoyed by those attending Prof. Reddan's concert. The little wonders gave evidence of thorough training and presented a very pleasing stage appearance.

A quiet and pretty wedding took place at the residence of Rev. Wm. Brown in which Millerton lost one of her popular young ladies, Miss Clementine Newman. The bride was becomingly dressed in Royal blue Pearl cloth. Among the many beautiful presents from numerous friends was a gold watch and chain, the gift of Mr. D. Ronnell, the groom. The happy pair amid showers of rice and well wishes, left on the day express for their home in Bathurst.

BLACKVILLE.

At the residence of the bride's mother on Oct. 21st, Miss Hannah Underhill was united in marriage to Mr. Frank Gerrish, of Inlandtown, by the Rev. Mr. Fraser. After luncheon the happy couple drove to the groom's home where a reception was held. We wish the young couple every success in life.

Mr. Juwan McEachern of Millerton, spent Sunday with his daughter Mrs. W. A. K. Underhill.

Mr. Sydney Patterson has returned from a two year sojourn in the wild and woolly West. He reports many losses and accidents during his trip.

Mr. George McEachern spent the past week with friends in Blackville.

Mr. James Cosgahan of Nelson came to Blackville last Saturday to attend the funeral of her brother Thomas W. Underhill.

Benj. Garrison of Lockstead is at present visiting relatives in Inlandtown.

ACCIDENTS ON TWO RAILWAYS.

Obstruction in two places on the T tracks of the Midland Road.

TURO, Nov. 1.—A serious accident occurred on the Midland railway today. A flyer passing into Turro ran into two crossing gates that had been piled on the track by some unknown parties.

The passengers were badly jarred and great excitement prevailed.

When the train stopped two more fatalities were found piled about 200 feet from the ones the train struck.

Manager Harris was told by telegraph today that the railway company have suspicion the four gates were piled on the rails by some vicious party, and a reward of $200 will be offered for conviction of the guilty parties.

Some are of the opinion that they were placed there by thoughtless boys as a Hallow'een trick. An investigation will be held.

Tonight's Sydney flyer was ditched at Lakeville near Windsor Junction. Some one had left the switch open and the train, dashing along at 45 miles an hour, emerged off on a blind siding, struck a small station house at the end of the side track and demolished it, and ditched the engine. The driver and fireman were injured, but no serious results are anticipated.

ONE LOVE TOO MANY

Or THE FUGITIVE BRIDE

By F. W. CHAPPELL

There were frequent stoppages made at towns, and little way landings, and woodyards, but all seemed to be on the other side of the steamer, so she had no opportunity to escape to the shore.

But at last, when she thought it must be near daylight, they stopped again upon the same side at a lonely woodyard, and with the profanity which seems ingrafted upon the river boatmen, the crew began to take on wood.

Then she got up morning, and started to walk along the bank whither she knew or cared not, for her physical suffering had now become such almost to obliterate from her mind the motives of her flight.

Still she staggered on, and at last the gloomy morning dawned, and showed her a lovely country apparently, but thinly settled. She was walking through a deep forest of walnut, hackberry and hickory, and shortly came into a path which she instinctively followed.

CHAPTER XIV. It is likely that Bel's sorrows would have been done for, along with her life but that a few moments after her fall she was discovered by a sharp-eyed little dog, which had been smelling around the yard.

CHAPTER XV. After leaving Jeems the girl drew a long, deep sigh, and stopped a moment with a slight appearance of hesitation, but suddenly throwing back her head, stepped forward with firm and determined tread.

and had been obliged to stop often to rest. She told Jeems to wait at a certain spot, and then she looked about till she found a jeweler's shop, where she offered for sale her two rings.

CHAPTER XVI. After leaving Jeems the girl drew a long, deep sigh, and stopped a moment with a slight appearance of hesitation, but suddenly throwing back her head, stepped forward with firm and determined tread.

CHAPTER XVII. With a quiet, business-like air she looked for a store, which she entered and bought a cheap shawl. Then she walked to the river and found the wharf.

CHAPTER XVIII. Arrived there, she looked about her and asked a ragged boy when the next down boat was due.

CHAPTER XIX. "That she is a cunning' now," he replied, pointing to a faint pencil of smoke far up the river. "That's the Hesperides."

CHAPTER XX. Bel thanked him and sat down to wait. It seemed strange that she was so waiting her journey on that boat.

CHAPTER XXI. Presently the steamer reached the landing, she walked aboard, went to the office and bought her ticket to St. Louis, and then sat down in the saloon.

CHAPTER XXII. She should not be so severely blamed for her mind was not more occupied with her dreadful sin, for in truth the greatness of her pang for him left but little space for other emotions, however strong they might have been under different circumstances.

CHAPTER XXIII. She was not insensible to the heinousness of the crime she had committed, and had there been involved no other considerations than those of her own individual suffering, would, doubtless, have been willing to atone for it with her life.

CHAPTER XXIV. For a long time she sat in the cabin of the Hesperides completely absorbed in her own emotions, and all unminimally of the throng which ebbed and flowed around her.

CHAPTER XXV. "Ladies and gentlemen, we will reach St. Louis in fifteen minutes," and passed on, repeating her intelligence as she went.

CHAPTER XXVI. There was a sudden rush of preparation, and "There was that in all her wandering, she suffered none of the tremors which considering the fact, she had no wraps of any kind, was a very best thing for her. She did arrive there till late in the afternoon, though a good walk, she was still weak from her recent illness.

CHAPTER XXVII. The clerk seemed to have been struck with her voice—he could not see her face—and contrary to all precedent, leaned over his desk and gave her more explicit directions. As he did so, however, his unsteady eye caught sight of her scarce attire, and he drew back hastily, actually blushing at his rash conduct.

CHAPTER XXVIII. Bel thanked him again, but in her eyes he was but a machine, which, having supplied her needs, had ceased to exist.

CHAPTER XXXII. In the bosom she carried the diamond necklace she had worn upon the occasion of her marriage, and which she was resolved upon no account to part with. It was her wedding gift from Charley, and an heirloom in the Marshall family.

CHAPTER XXXIII. She turned from its contemplation, resolved not to give way to overpowering, sweet bitterness of memory, and tried earnestly to plan out her future life. But in this hour of bodily weakness she was almost ready to give up.

CHAPTER XXXIV. She did not shrink again from the prospect, but was puzzled and perplexed, her whole knowledge of the past and of her own life being derived from a few novels she had read, and her faint recollection of other well-reached from cities to all country places.

CHAPTER XXXV. "What can I do?" she asked herself. "What steps must I take to obtain employment? Will it be safe to show my face in search of it?"

A NOVEL TRADE WAR.

The great struggle which is going on at St. Helen's, Lancashire, says The London Daily Mail between the Co-Operative Society and the retail tradesmen marks the beginning of a new form of trade war which has the appearance of spreading throughout the north.

In St. Helen's, as in many other towns, co-operation has attained such proportions that it is embracing almost every phase of industry with the result that retail tradesmen are either becoming absorbed or destroyed.

St. Helen's has a population of 86,000 inhabitants. Half of them are co-operators, and the number is increasing every day. During the last few years the Co-Operative Society has wrested something like £175,000 worth of business from the retail tradesman, and it is pushing its enterprise into every part of the town.

The already palatial headquarters are being enlarged to twice their present size. The society intends not only to cater for every kind of household want, but to provide a first class restaurant with roof gardens. To protect themselves the retail tradesmen have formed a "defence association," the plan of which is to boycott all co-operators. They contend that, inasmuch as the purpose of the Co-Operative Society is to exterminate the private retail dealer or dealer she...

AMERICA THE LAND FOR FAKIRS.

Chinese Juggler Tells Duluth Paper of his Travels.

"America is the best country in the world for a fakir" said Ah Wing to a reporter. Ah is the jolly Celestial in a mottled yellow robe who has been selling things, worth nothing, at ten times their value near the corner of Third avenue west and Superior street, in Duluth, for a week or more.

And he knows whereof he speaks for he has trod the Orient and Occident in the successive roles of mystic juggler and fakir.

All a fellow has to do here, went on the Chinaman, who speaks excellent English, is to go out and get the money. The people you relieve of their coin like it, and nobody seems any the worse. And at that, they are the wisest people in the world. Maybe that's the reason they don't kick on little things.

It's entirely different elsewhere. The meanest people in the world for a fakir to work are the Hindoos and the next the Turks. The Hindoo knows the game too well, and, although the Turk is ignorant, he doesn't want to let you know it. He brings you to court for little cause, and it is a serious thing to go to court in Turkey, as I will try to prove by an actual happening to me in the land of the Sultan.

When I was a boy, nearly forty years ago I learned a few tricks of juggling and other styles of black art, and thought I was all right. I started to make a living in that line in Canton, but I encountered the competition of a whole school of really good men, and people laughed at me.

From my native land I passed, with a troupe of wandering jugglers into India, where we half-starved. Then we went on to Arabia, and earned a precarious existence by following a pilgrim caravan almost to Mecca. As we approached the Holy City the pilgrims got religion bad, and were not looking for amusement. Our band stranded, in the worse sense of the word and every one had to shift for himself.

For several weeks I fared very badly, and square meals did not come with much regularity. In fact, I don't remember having one the whole time. Finally I got work as a camel-tender, with a caravan going north. I did very well until we reached their point of destination, when I was out of a job again.

A nomad doesn't care much for a juggler and fakir, and I worked through Palestine and up to the Bosphorus alive, and that was all. I was near Constantinople and the big European cities to the West, and I felt that at last I had reached a land where I could make a name for myself.

But my troubles had just begun. When I came into the capital of the great Turk I got busy to amuse the people at once. I set up my stand on a back street, and after doing tricks, eating chemical fire, and making a few fake trees grow at my bidding, came down to active business.

The Turks are all Mohammedans and deeply religious. I decided to turn that fact to a profit, and put a glowing display of relics—beads and shells from the Holy City—on sale. I explained as best I could the "sacred" thing I was dealing in, and soon was doing a rattling business. I was thinking out a fairly good pun about Mahomet and the profit when the change came.

A little squad of Turkish soldiers came silently down the street and one of them stepped over and pointed at me with his sword. I plains and gave a few performances earning enough to get a little clothing. An old woman, however,

THE CAUSE OF DYSPEPTIC PAINS.

Improperly digested food usually forms gases that cause a painful distention of the stomach and pressure against the heart. This results in much pain and distress, but Nerviline will relieve the distention, dispel the gas, and cure the dyspeptic pain very quickly. Polson's Nerviline is really an excellent remedy for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Cramps, Summer Complaint and all Stomach and Bowel Troubles. No household is complete without Nerviline. Try a 25c. bottle.

Gentlemen,—In June '98 I had my hand and wrist bitten and mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days and the tooth cuts refused to heal, until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I began using, and the effect was magical. In five hours the pain had ceased, and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever.

men arrested me, pinioned my arms and marched me along.

Next morning I was taken before a magistrate and sentenced. I learned after that I was tried for profaning their religion, but at the time I was sentenced had no knowledge of what crime I had committed. The magistrate must have known, however. He pronounced my doom, and, after striking me three times over the shoulders with a three-cornered whip, turned me over to the guard. I was hurried from the city, and at every stopping place between there and the Greek border severely beaten on the feet. When I was placed on Greek soil I was without shoes, hungry, ragged and penniless. The guard gave me not a parting look, and rode grimly away.

A number of mountaineers I met shortly after gave me food, but they had little clothing for themselves and none for others. After several days I got down to the plains and gave a few performances earning enough to get a little clothing. An old woman, however, accused me of bewitching her cattle and made it so unpleasant that I left the district by night. Indeed, had I waited until next morning, the peasants would have hanged me.

From Larissa I worked my way by boat to Rome and thence to Mexico. There the people were hospitable enough, but in the country districts and smaller towns the Indians, who composed most of the population, thought I was legitimate prey and robbed me about twice a week. The church, too, interfered, and I came into the States.

This is more than thirty years ago, and I do not care to leave. The American is all right. He doesn't take things seriously unless they are worth while. If you fool him with some clever trick, he just wonders how you did it and let's it go at that. It's the best country in the world for my class of work.

A number of sewer connections are being made.
The pumps for the water system have arrived and are being placed in position.
We understand that Hickson's mill will close down for the season the last of this week.
We are opening this week a beautiful line of Bell's evening slippers for Ladies, at McMillan's.

Governor Snowball laid the corner stone of the Moncton Hospital Wednesday afternoon.
Another span was successfully placed in position Friday evening. They did not have to wait until Sunday as the R. R. authorities gave Mr. Bush leave to suspend traffic Friday evening.

In another column Mrs. Thim of Moncton advertises for a first class girl at excellent salary. This ought to be a chance for some of our bright young girls.
Mr. Fred Gough is erecting a Blacksmith shop on the vacant lot between the Union Hotel and the residence of Mr. W. Elliott.

A meeting of the members and adherents of St. James' Church, Newcastle, will be held in the church this Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. Business of importance to be brought up.

Mr. D. Doyle is having the Lonsbury Warehouse, recently purchased by him, fitted up as a livery stable. The interior is sheathed and made warm and a number of nice stables erected. The office in the front is being made small and comfortable. Mr. Doyle expects to move in this fall if he can get water connections.

A. T. Hinton, General dealer, Bathurst is showing his enterprise in new directions this fall. Besides having a car load of sleighs, he has placed in a fine stock of general merchandise which he sells at exceptionally low rates. See ad.

Messrs. Black, Donkin and Tennant returned from Tabasco on Friday with 120 hant and ducks. They shot 60 of them on Thursday. They left for Amherst Friday evening.—World.

Messrs. Miller Bros., the bustling butchers, have purchased the property adjoining their meat shop and we understand are making arrangements to build a modern market building on the new site and that now occupied by their shop. This is a step in the right direction and we trust the plans will be carried to a successful finish.

We have made arrangements whereby we will be able to sell copies of a large illustrated paper entitled, New Brunswick Illustrated. This will contain many fine views of the Miramichi with a good write up of the town of Newcastle. Send 10 cents to Anslow Bros and order a copy. The edition will be ready early in December.

Large straw head tubes may be seen passing through the mail just now and many wonder what they contain. When opened a pair of beautiful pictures will be found. They are entitled "Alone" and "Partly" and are the premium pictures given with the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, this season. Family Herald subscribers will be surprised when they see them for they certainly are the best premiums ever offered.

The attention of our readers is drawn to the announcement on another page of this paper, which affords a splendid opportunity to secure that great family paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, absolutely free of charge for the balance of 1902. The Family Herald and Weekly Star is acknowledged to be in a class entirely by itself as a family paper, and the desire to introduce it into New homes has enabled us to make this arrangement with the publishers of that great paper. We learn that the Family Herald publishers will shortly announce their new premiums for this season, and the public will get a pleasant surprise. Read the announcement in this paper.

ST. PIERRE, MIQ.,

Devastated By a Fire That Swept Main Part of Town.

St. John's N. F., Nov. 2.—The town of St. Pierre, Mich., has been devastated by fire. A destructive conflagration started last night and swept the main portion of the town. The governor's house, the government buildings, the court house, the building occupied by the ministry of marine, the Roman Catholic Cathedral, the presbytery, the schools and a number of other buildings were destroyed.
It has not yet been learned how the fire originated. There was no wind last night, else the entire town would have been completely obliterated. Even as it is the extent of the disaster is very far reaching and the financial loss will probably reach half a million dollars. There was no loss of life or serious accident. The rapid spread of the conflagration was due to the trifling water supply and to the fact that St. Pierre has no adequate fire fighting appliances. The town of St. Pierre has been partly burned down three times before—in 1865, 1867, and 1870.

PREMIER BOND HOME.

He Says That the Terms of the Treaty Will be Published as Soon as Possible.
ST. JOHN'S, N.F.L., Oct. 31.—Premier Bond has returned here from Washington. In an interview to day the Premier said he had succeeded in negotiating a convention with the Washington authorities; that on Oct. 18, the British Foreign Office instructed Ambassador Herbert to sign this convention and that he then started for home, his work in Washington being completed. Continuing the Premier said that he submitted the terms of this treaty to his colleagues in the Cabinet here yesterday and that they regard it as eminently satisfactory. Premier Bond added that the terms of the treaty would be published as soon as possible.

OBITUARY.

Thomas W. Underhill, of Blackville, died at his home on Thursday, Oct. 23rd, after having been in failing health for the past two years. He was 75 years of age, and leaves a sorrowing wife, three sons, two daughters and a host of friends in this community and elsewhere. The remains were followed to the Holy Trinity burial ground by a long line of mourning friends and relatives. The religious services at the house and church were conducted by the Rev. O'Neil Bayles, of Derby. The pall bearers were his three brothers, namely, B. N. T. Grian, and Hudson Underhill, and John, David and James Coughlan. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.
