Over 50 Injured When Car Jumps Rails On Curve, Crashes Through Tree and Plunges To Destruction At Queenston Heights Slope.

BRAKES FAILED TO WORK IN SPITE OF ALL THE MOTORMAN'S EFFORTS

Inquest To Inquire Into Tragedy Postponed Until July 19, As Driver of the Car Is Unable Yet To Attend Court.

[Canadian Press.]

St. Catharines, July 8.—The inquest on the trolley accident at Queenston has been adjourned until the 19th of July, owing to Motorman Boyt being so badly hurt he will not be able to attend court before then. Coroner W. T. Greenwood said this morning the inquest will be held at Queenton.

KNOWN DEAD 19.

[Canadian Press.]

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 8.—Seventeen persons were killed and fifty injured, some probably fatally, as the result of the trolley wreck on the slope of Queenston Heights last night. Racing to catch a steamer for Toronto, a special car of the International Railway, loaded with 121 passengers, left the rails on a sharp curve and plunged into a gulley fifteen feet below. The car struck a tree as it toppled over and was nearly cut in two. Of the dead nine are in the Toronto morgues and eight are in morgues here. All were residents of Toronto.

The dead are:

Charles J. Jennings, 503 Broadview avenue.

H. J. Partridge, organist and choirmaster at Woodgreen Methodist Church.

Mrs. J. M. Hart, 71 Broadview avenue.

Mrs. Henry Sloan, 24 Fairview Boulevard.

Mrs. Alexander Wesney, Bain avenue.

Albert Little, 105 Ilton avenue.

Mrs. M. Crombie, 46 Jones street.

Mrs. M. Crombie, 46 Jones street.

Frederick Page, manager Westminster Publishing Company.

F. W. Drank, advertising manager Westminster Publishing Company.

Robert Wilson.

Raymond Young, organist St. John's Presbyterian Church.

Rita Wiggins, 12 years old.

Rosa Wheater, 15 years old.

F. G. Grant, 20 years old.

Samuel Vogue, 40 years old.

Margaret Tomline, 18 years old, 31 De Grassi street.

Dorothy Keats, 10 years old, Silver Birch avenue.

Twenty of the more seriously injured are in hospitals here. Others whose injuries were not so serious were taken to Toronto on the steamer last night.

The Ontario Provincial authorities have already taken steps to fix responsibility for the wreck. A coroner's jury examined witnesses at Queenston and officers took statements from the injured in the hospitals here. A separate investigation is being conducted by officers of the International Railway. Vice-President Dickson of the railway company stated today that he believed the slippery condition of the rails caused the motorman to lose control of his car.

AWFUL OVERCROWDING.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, July 8.—Sixteen killed and 120 more or less injured, beside 25 or 30 who escaped unhurt, were crowded in a trolley car, built to seat 80, which ran away from the historic Queenston Heights last evening, jumped the tracks and plunged the whole of the jolly Sabbath school excursionists into an indescribable chaos of death and confusion.

This evidence of unheard-of overcrowding was the feature of later news of the tragedy today.

Provincial authorities are taking action to secure a complete investigation of the terrible affair and to place responsibility for it.

It is admitted that Motorman Sidney Boyt stuck to his position like a hero, and turned over with his car into what looked like certain death. He did his best and kept his head, but all his efforts were unavailing.

Other Cars Ready.

Motorman John Boyt, who was in charge of the wrecked car, said in a statement today that the car got beyond his control just before it reached the curve. When he left the Brock's Monument station there were three more cars behind his, the four being intended to convey the Toronto excursionists from there to the boat landing at Queenston. All were open cars.

Rain began to fall, and there was a rush for Boyt's car. Conductor Caswell tried to prevent overloading and signalled Boyt to go ahead, while the people were still trying to get on board. There were about ninety in the car when it got under way. Boyt stopped once at the switch where the cars turn off the main line to the boat landing spur.

Brakes Worked Poorly.

Approaching what is known as the lower curve Boyt applied the brakes. They appeared to work properly, he said, but did not check the speed of the car sufficiently to allow it to take the curve at low speed.

Alongside the track, directly in the path of the car as it left the rails, was a large maple tree with low-hanging branches. When the car hit it all the uprights supporting the roof were smashed, and the upper and lower parts of the car were piled in a tangled mass of splinters and twisted iron at the foot of the fifteen-foot decline.

ITALY LOSES ONE CRUISER BY SUBMARINE

Austrian Craft Sinks It During Reconnaissance in the Adriatic.

NEARLY ALL CREW SAVED

Men Shout "Long Live Italy" As the Warship Goes Down.

[Canadian Press.]

Rome, July 7—Via Paris, July 8.—The Italian armored cruiser Amalfi was torpedoed and sunk at dawn this morning by an Austrian submarine while taking part in a reconnaissance in the upper Adriatic, it was officially announced tonight by the ministry of marine. Most of the members of the crew were saved.

The text of the statement follows:

"A reconnaissance in force was accomplished last night (July 6) in the upper Adriatic. The Amalfi, which took part in the reconnaissance, was torpedoed at dawn by an Austrian submarine this morning, and soon listed heavily to port.

"Long Live Italy."

"The commander, before giving orders to the crew to jump overboard, cried: 'Long live the King! Long live Italy!' The entire crew, drawn up alongside the stern, echoed the shout, giving a remarkable exhibition of courage and discipline.

"The commander, who was the last to leave, slipped overboard shortly before the Amalfi sank. Nearly all the officers and crew were saved."

The Amalfi, which was completed in 1908, had a displacement of 9,958 tons and was 426 feet long. Her complement in times of peace was 684.

Pola, the Austrian naval stronghold, is situated in the upper Adriatic at the extremity of the Istria Peninsula about 55 miles southeast of Trieste. It is probable the reconnaissance referred to in the Italian statement was in this section of the Adriatic.

NO SUGGESTION OF COMMISSION BEING GIVEN UP

Chief Justice Mathers Tells of His Knowledge of Proceedings.

JUDGE MACDONALD ALSO

Commissioners All Take Their Places On the Witness Stand.

[Canadian Press.]

Winnipeg, July 8. — Chief Justice Mathers of the court of King's bench was the first witness called this morning when the royal commission resumed the investigation of "the deal."

He said on May 8 Chief Justice Howell saw him and told him he had been advised by Phippen and Hudson that the Roblin Government was to resign. Norris was to be called on to form a Government, and that the new ministry would press a civil action against Kelly.

"Chief Justice Howell," said witness, "asked me if I thought this action, in so far as Kelly was concerned, would not take the place of the investigation by the royal commission.

Did Not Think So.

"He thought it would, and my recollection is that he intimated that Hudson was of a similar opinion. I told him I did not think it would, that in a civil action there were too many opportunities for delay. I said the evidence given before us indicated grave wrong-doing, and I thought the probe ought to proceed. But I said if Hudson and those associated with him in the prosecution of the charges before us were in office, and had means of taking the investigation into their own hands, and they believed that some other means of investigation would be equally efficient and less erpensive than the royal commission, so far as I was concerned I had no objection personally to adopting that course. The responsibility would be theirs."

No Bargaining.

He told Howell he hoped there would be no bargaining, and was assured there would not be. He understood from Howell that an admission from Sir Rodmond Roblin that the charges were substantially true was to be made before the commission. The commission never gave its approval of the plan proposed, nor did he personally. There was no suggestion that the commission should "put up its shutters," but was to proceed to investigate all other matters, though he thought it would be difficult, since Kelly seemed so mixed up with all the matters being investigated.

Chief Justice Howell told him the new Government was to have an absolutely free hand to take any proceedings it desired.

Mr. Justice MacDonald, colleague of Justice Mathers in the royal commission, was the next witness.

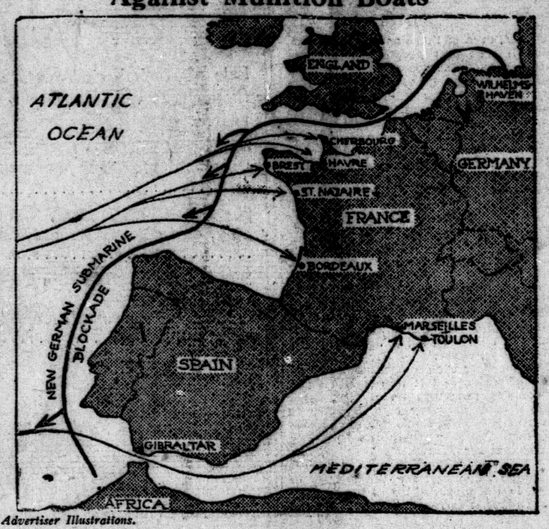

Neither Approached.

Judge MacDonald said he had never been approached by anyone in reference to the commission closing.

Sir Hugh MacDonald, third member of the commission, said he never heard of the suggestion that the commission

ABOUT 50 PEOPLE KILLED AND MILLIONS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF DAMAGE DONE BY STORM

Fearful Rain and Wind Cyclone Sweeps States of Middle West—Ohio, Indiana and Missouri Suffer Heavily —Lasted For Thirty Minutes.

[Canadian Press.]

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 8.—Available reports early today show that thirty-three persons are dead and fifteen or more missing, and are believed to be buried in the ruins of buildings wrecked during a heavy rain and wind storm which passed over Cincinnati and its suburbs at 9:30 o'clock last night. The known dead are: James T. Allen of the Ohio Humane Society; Mrs. E. C. Cohen, Mrs. Rosa Tennebaum, Charles Kline, Brad Williams, captain of the towboat Fulton; William Hemptelman, a manufacturer; Irene Glatthaus, Philip Rizzo, George Fagni; unidentified woman killed by falling tree; unidentified man killed in train wreck, caused by storm; unidentified negro, killed by falling sign; unidentified woman and two unidentified men drowned by overturning shanty boat on Ohio River, eighteen deckhands and roustabouts drowned by capsizing of towboat convoy.

Other Damage.

More than a score of other persons were injured, many seriously.

During the height of the storm the wind blew 70 miles an hour, according to the local weather bureau.

Twenty or more houses were blown down, many buildings were unroofed, windows crashed in, lives of thousands of pedestrians imperilled by falling signs, and several church steeples were wrecked.

Telegraph and telephone service was prostrated for several hours; railroad and interurban traffic seriously delayed by washouts and debris on the tracks.

Lasted Half-Hour.

The storm continued for about thirty minutes, during which rain came down in blinding sheets. The storm had not entirely ceased when the fire department, police patrols and ambulances were called out by alarms from all parts of the city. They found that the greatest havoc was wrought at Sixth and Mound streets, where five buildings in one block had been demolished. River craft also suffered severely. The towboat Convoy, which left Cincinnati for down-river points shortly before the storm broke, struck a pier of the Southern Railway bridge and sank. Of the crew of twenty-four men, eighteen are believed to have been drowned.

Rescue Work Goes On.

Rescue work was still proceeding early today, but it will be many hours

DAMAGE BY STORM

According to figures compiled early today, more than 50 persons were killed and several score injured by the violent wind and rain storm which extended from Nebraska to Ohio last night.

The property damage is estimated at several millions of dollars.

The greatest loss of life occurred in Cincinnati and vicinity, where 30 persons are known to be dead and fifteen missing, eighteen of the dead there being deckhands, who were drowned by the capsizing of the towboat Convoy, on the Ohio River.

In Eastern Missouri, the storm assumed the proportions of a tornado, demolishing 162 blocks in St. Charles, a town of about 11,000 people.

St. Peters, a town of 300 inhabitants, and Gilmore, a village of 100, were almost wiped out by the tornado. In St. Charles and St. Peters there was no loss of life, while in Gilmore only one person was killed.

In Lincoln and Custer Counties, Nebraska, wind and hail caused heavy damage to crops, and in the village of Callaway several buildings were unroofed. There had been no loss of life reported early today.

In Southern Illinois the storm was severe, causing heavy damage on many localities. At Mound City, the business part of the town was flooded.

In Central and Southern Indiana, three persons were killed and many injured. Telegraph and telephone service was demoralized, buildings were unroofed and crops damaged by the heavy wind and rain.

EXPLOSION CAUSES FIRE ON BOARD STEAMER MINNEHAHA CARRYING MUNITIONS CARGO

May Be Due To Bomb Placed By Holt As He Intimated.

HURRYING TO HALIFAX

Blaze in Holds At Distance From Those in Which Is Explosive.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 8.—As if in answer to Frank Holt's last warning that a ship at sea "should sink, God willing, on the 7th," there came last night a wireless message, made public today, from Capt. Claret of the Atlantic Transport Line steamer Minnehaha, telling that his ship was afire at sea, 509 miles southeast of Halifax.

The ship had sufficient ammunition aboard, by the line's admission, to sink her should the flames reach it, but whether the blaze in her hold was started by a bomb which Holt had placed there was a matter of pure conjecture. It was possible that he had done so, an official said, but one man's guess on that point was as good as another's, he added.

Capt. Claret's message said that the fire was in No. 2 hold, and was not serious. The ammunition aboard the vessel was stored aft, at an appreciable distance from this hold. In No. 3 hold, it was asserted, the cargo was of a general nature.

No passengers were aboard the Minnehaha. Her crew numbered approximately 100. She was at her pier here about a week, taking on cargo, before she sailed for London last Sunday, July 4

Caused By Explosion.

The fire aboard the Minnehaha was caused by an explosion, according to a wireless message received at 12:40 p.m. today from Capt. Claret. At that time the fire was said to have been mastered.

Capt. Claret's message read as follows:

"Fire caused by explosion. Now under control by suffocation and steam. Much smoke in holds. Deemed it expedient to make for Halifax. Due off Chebucto Head 9 a.m. Friday. Advise agents."

The message came by way of Cape Race.

THOUGHT OF HOLT.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

New York, July 8.—The first report that flashed through shipping offices here immediately revived the declaration of Frank Holt, Morgan's assailant and terrorist, that he had placed a trunk of explosives aboard a big steamer clearing for England on Saturday. Another theory was that the Minnehaha might have been fired by one of the band of German spies known to be keeping close watch on the departure of ammunition-laden steamers from this port.

Modern Freighter.

"Number 3 hold, where the blaze is reported, contained only a general cargo and no war munitions," said a statement given out by the line at 10:25 o'clock. All ammunition aboard the steamer was carried in holds aft. The Minnehaha was one of the most modern freighters on the sea. She carried a crew of about a hundred, and was especially fitted for fighting fires. For that reason, we do not believe the fire can be serious."

ASSISTANCE READY.

Halifax, N. S., July 8.—The marine department of the Dominion was prepared this afternoon to send a Government vessel to the assistance of the burning Minnehaha should it be asked for. Preparations were made to rush out a steamer on the strength of the press messages which were read to officials, though in the absence of a wireless from the ship herself, giving her course, nothing more could be done.

The Minnehaha did not call at Halifax on her trip.

Queenston Disaster Killed More British Than Battle

(Special To The Advertiser.)

Toronto, July 8.—The British loss in the famous battle of Queenston Heights was only 11 killed and 60 wounded. The loss in last night's trolley accident at the Heights was larger.

The American loss at the battle of Queenston Heights was 90 killed and 100 wounded.

MANY GERMAN REPULSES

Enemy Infantry Attacks Near Arras Thrown Quickly Back.

[Canadian Press.]

Paris, July 8—2:35 p.m.—The French war office this afternoon gave out a statement on the progress of hostilities which reads as follows:

"In the region to the north of Arras there were last evening and last night several infantry actions of considerable violence. Between Angres and Souchez, to the north of the road running from Bethune to Arras, a German attack, preceded by a very heavy bombardment, was completely repulsed. At a point to the north of the railroad station of Souchez we delivered an attack which made it possible for us to draw nearer to the village.

Took Trenches.

"We took possession of a line of German trenches after having put an end to all the defenders thereof by the use of hand grenades and bombs. After this we advanced beyond these trenches. We made some prisoners and captured a cannon.

"The town of Soissons has been bombarded.

"In the Argonne infantry fighting and cannonading lasted all night. At daybreak in the region of Marie Therese, the Germans made an endeavor to come out from their trenches, but they were driven back.

Heavy Fighting.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle last night saw much fighting. In the forest of Apremont, and in the forest of Le Pretre there were cannonading, rifle fire, and the throwing of bombs, but with two exceptions no infantry engagements. These exceptions were between Fey-En-Haye and the forest of Le Pretre, where two attacks on the part of the enemy were checked by us."

GERMAN STATEMENT.

RUSSIANS TAKING UP THE OFFENSIVE

Halt Enemies' Advance and Strike Blow at the Austrians.

LATTER IN DIFFICULTIES

Talked-of Great German Offensive in West Still Lacking.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 8.—So great has been the weight of reinforcements brought up by Russia along the stretch of territory between the Rivers Vistula and Bug, notably in the vicinity of Krasnik, that the Austro-Hungarians for the moment have been forced to assume the defensive and to pause in their rush toward Lublin, and the railways running from that city to Warsaw.

The sector on the eastern front, where the Russians are making a stand, is held almost exclusively by Austrians, and observers here see in the Russian attack not only in the desire to keep their line intact in this important part, but a deliberate blow at the Austrians who, according to the official reports, seem to be finding themselves in some difficulties.

No Offensive Yet.

The much-discussed German offensive in the west has not yet developed, though reports of a big movement of troops to that front are persistent. These forces must be new formations unless the great offensive in the east is to cease. For to withdraw troops from Poland and Galicia now would be to leave unfinished what Field Marshal Von Mackensen set out to accomplish, unless the clearing of Galicia of Russians was the sole aim, and this is considered hardly probable.

The Berlin claim that the Germans have retaken trenches near Ypres, Belgium, recently seized by the British, is not confirmed from British sources.

Turks Getting Tired.

At several points in France the Germans have been attacking violently, but the only appreciable loss conceded by the French is in the St. Mihiel district. The French admit they have lost a strip of trenches measuring 700 yards. The German official statement more than doubles this distance.

Letting the Turks attack with resultant heavy loss and exhaustion has been the recent role of the British operating against the Dardanelles. Official dispatches heretofore spoke of the fearlessness and valor of the Turks, but Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton's report received yesterday said for the first time that the Turks were showing no disposition to attack.

Twenty Thousand Serving With Honor in Army and Navy.

THREE VICTORIA CROSSES

Inmates of Reformatories and Industrial Schools Also Get Commissions.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]

London, England, July 8.—Britain's "Bad Boys," nearly 20,000 of them, have become heroes in the trenches in Northern France. Figures given out here today showed that 19,649 former inmates of reformatories and industrial schools have served with honor in the army and navy since the war began, and that three have been awarded Victoria Crosses by King George for gallant conduct.

Twenty-five of once-wicked youths have received distinguished conduct medals, and twenty have been mentioned in dispatches. Eight hold commissions and three have been decorated by the French Government.

The roll of honor includes the names of 530 who have been killed in action, 62 who have died of their wounds or sickness, and 1,540 who have been wounded.

Montreal, July 8.—A London dispatch to the Gazette says:

"The Daily Chronicle publishes an interview with Albert Thomas, the French minister of munitions, now in London, who had a long conference with Lloyd George yesterday. He discussed the question of the huge demand which the war is making on the munitions factories in this country and in France.

"It is our duty," said Mr. Thomas, "to organize for victory." To this we are bending all our energies. The war may be long; difficulties may reach us of which we may have no provision at the start, but we shall keep on until the end."

CAPT. C. H. WELD, son of Edgar Weld of Delaware, who landed at Quebec yesterday in charge of a party of wounded Canadians. Capt. Weld was wounded in the knee at the battle of Ypres. He was for some years in the London office of the Farmers' Advocate, but was in the Winnipeg branch of that paper when war was declared, and enlisted from there. He was a lieutenant in the 90th (Winnipeg) Rifles, and joined the 8th (Manitoba) Battalion as such, but won promotion in the field. Relatives in the city, apprised of his return by The Advertiser, were surprised at the news, but stated that he had been expected to be invalided home for some time.

Pte. "Bob" Watt of this city, who was wounded and taken prisoner by the Germans, has been moved from the military hospital at Cologne to another prisoners' internment camp in Germany.

In a letter received by his mother last week Pte. Watt announced that his wound was healing so well that he expected to be transferred from the hospital. Yesterday his father, P. J. Watt, received a message from the militia department at Ottawa, announcing that the change had been made.

Manufacture of Shells Helps To Swell City's "Peak Load."

The half-yearly financial report of the parks department will be one of the chief items of business to be considered by the public utilities board at its meeting this afternoon. Tenders for a new lathe at the workshop on Ridout street will also be considered, and the contract for supplying it awarded.

General-Manager Buchanan will report that the city is now purchasing 6,000 horsepower from the hydro commission, or just twice the amount used last year. The increase is partly necessitated on account of the activity in manufacturing, especially in the manufacture of shells and other munitions of war in a number of local factories.

THAW PREPARED FOR CROSS-EXAMINATION

Will Be Questioned on His Whole Career by State Counsel.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 8.—Harry K. Thaw had nerved himself for a long and thorough cross-examination by counsel for the state today in his sanity trial. The state had deferred his ordeal in order first to present evidence which would enable them to question Thaw concerning his entire career. Thaw's direct testimony dealt only with events since his escape from the Matteawan Asylum.

Counsel for both sides attached much importance to Thaw's testimony on cross-examination, realizing that his attitude under the volley of questions from the state's attorneys might have a strong influence in the rendering of the verdict. The questioning of Thaw was expected to occupy the entire day. For the first time since the hearing opened, the court had ordered a night session tonight.

Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, for whom the court had issued a writ of attachment, may be called to the witness-stand tomorrow. Process servers sent by the court were at Chateauguay Lake today to serve the writ, and were under instructions to bring her here as quickly as possible "to answer for misconduct in not obeying a subpoena directing her to appear before the court yesterday."

Thaw's counsel had ended the cross-examination of Mrs. Susan Merrill, Thaw's former landlady in New York, when court adjourned yesterday.

WEDNESDAY RAIN WAS RECORD ONE

Almost Two Inches Fell During Afternoon and Night.

DID GOOD IN COUNTRY

Farmers Declare It Did Not Fall Hard Enough To Beat Down Grain.

Last night's rainstorm was the heaviest in London in years. At the South London observatory the rainfall was recorded as 1.98 inches, or practically two solid inches of rainfall during the night. This is a record that has not been touched for many, many years.

Visions of Edmonton floods and a deluged West London were conjured up as the rain continued to teem down, but in spite of the exceptionally heavy fall very little damage was reported throughout the city.

Few Flooded Cellars.

At the city engineer's office today it was declared that only a comparatively few number of flooded cellars were reported. Things have changed in London since the storm sewer system was built. Though only partially completed now, the storm water sewers carried over countless tons of water, and the reduction in flooded streets, cellars and sidewalks has been most marked.

Springbank pumping station reports a rise of only six inches in the river at the waterworks dam. Roughly speaking, there is just that amount of water going over the top of the splashboards now.

Did Good in Country.

A feature of the rain was the fact that in spite of the tremendous "outpourings" the rain was at no time in the "heavy" class. That is to say, that it was one of the gentle types of summer rainstorms, although it fell in such quantities. Some city gardens were washed out, but the universal report from the country surrounding London was to the effect that it had done more good than harm.

Farmers declared that it was not heavy enough to beat down any of the grain, and that it did untold good to the growing crops.

OBJECT TO TRACKS IN FRONT OF PROPERTY

Bathurst Street Residents Are Against Extending L. and P. S. R. Line.

Mayor Stevenson was advised last evening by the Dominion Railway Board that it will be in London on Thursday, July 15, to investigate thoroughly the situation in regard to the laying of tracks on Bathurst street west of Richmond, as proposed by the London and Port Stanley Railway Commissioners.

Many of the citizens, it is stated, do not wish the tracks to run in front of their premises, fearing it will deteriorate the value of their property.

A meeting of the board of control was held yesterday afternoon at which the contract for paving Bathurst street from Richmond to Wellington was awarded to the Standard Paving Company.

MANY ARE GOING TO EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

Bishop Fallon and Number of Others Expected To Attend.

Extensive preparations are being made for the Canadian Eucharistic Congress to be held in Montreal from July 13 to July 15. The congress has been called by Archbishop Bruchesi, and already 25 bishops have signified their intention of attending. It is expected that Bishop Fallon and a number of other delegates will attend from London.

The announcement that an open-air mass will be held on the brow of Mount Royal during the congress will likely attract a great number of lay visitors in addition to the members of the clergy who will attend. Plans have been made for the entertainment of the latter at the Grand Seminary, the Seminary of Philosophy, and the Outremont and Mount St. Mary Convents, on the rush days of the congress, as it is fully expected that the hotel accommodation of the city will be taxed by the great number of lay visitors added to the regular tourist and holiday traffic.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

DOWNPOUR MARS OUTING OF PICNICKERS AT PORT

Thousands at Lake Resort Are Driven to Shelter by Rain —Few Brave Drizzle and Run Off Sports.

Rain and otherwise inclement weather at Port Stanley yesterday seriously marred one of the biggest picnic days so far this season. Nearly a dozen London Sunday schools and other church organizations journeyed to the lakeside in full numbers, but the programs of races and sports were in many cases cut short or omitted on account of the rain. Askin Street Methodist Sunday school, St. James' Anglican Sunday school (South London), Wellington Street Methodist Sunday school, and Wortley road and Egerton Street Baptist Sunday schools had the good fortune to run off their programs early in the day before the rain commenced. Hill Street Methodists and members of the big union Sunday school picnic held jointly by the Sunday schools of Crampton, Belmont, Ingersoll, Putnam, Mossley, Harrietsville, Avon, Gladstone and other centres in the Dorchesters and Oxford County were less fortunate in this respect. The latter picnickers arrived in special C. P. R. trains running from or through these towns.

Wearing red badges, labelled, "Union Sunday School Picnic, Port Stanley, July 7, 1915," they were very much in evidence on the board-walk between the intermittent showers, and in the pavilions and other places of shelter. Twelve special coachloads comprised the main party of their advance upon Port Stanley.

St. Matthew's Anglican Young Peoples' Association and the choir of Knox Presbyterian were other London church organizations which spent the afternoon at the lakeside.

Wortley Road Baptist Sunday school was represented by nearly two hundred members. Early in the day by special cars over the London and Lake Erie Railway they went down to the lakeside. An interesting program of sports included a baseball match which was won by the married men, playing against the unmarried men.

ANOTHER SCORE AGAINST WEATHER MAN.

The choir of Knox Presbyterian Church, South London, had planned to spend the afternoon and evening at the summer cottage of Mrs. John McPherson, Erie Rest. This arrangement was cancelled on account of the rain, the members enjoying themselves variously in little groups and parties.

SPRINGBANK OUTINGS INTERFERED WITH, TOO

The heavy rain yesterday afternoon failed to entirely spoil half a dozen Sunday school picnics which were scheduled to take place at Springbank Park and one on the grounds of St. Paul's rectory. The latter, which was for the benefit of the infants' classes, the older children having had their annual outing the previous day at Port Stanley, was adjourned to Cronyn Hall, when the rain made it impossible to hold it outside. About one hundred kiddies were given a right royal time. A splendid spread was provided for them and afterwards the time was spent in games and races. Before leaving each child was given an ice cream cone, and the party broke up after singing "God Save the King."

About three hundred and fifty scholars of St. George's Anglican Sunday School and almost as many from each of Christ Church and Empress Avenue and Kensington Avenue Methodist Sunday Schools went to Springbank and, although the rain prevented the holding of sports or the serving of supper spent in the shelter of the pavilion, where the young people thoroughly enjoyed the novelty of the situation.

The results of the program of races held by St. George's Sunday school follow:

Talbot Street and Adelaide Street Baptist Sunday schools also held big outings at Springbank. Talbot Street sports were cancelled on account of the rain, but the Adelaide Street program was partially carried out, after which the two Baptist schools took shelter from the rain in the city park pavilion, where supper was served in the evening. Talbot Street picnickers numbered between 200 and 300, and Adelaide Street school had quite as large a turnout.

Following are the prize-winners in the Adelaide Street races which were run off:

U. S. SHIP IS RELEASED

Prize Court Has No Claim, But Collision Causes Delay.

[Canadian Press.]

LONDON, July 7.—6:40 p.m.—The American steamship Neches, whose cargo westbound from Rotterdam was thrown into a prize court two weeks ago, has been released, so far as the British naval authorities are concerned, but still is being held in a libel action on account of sinking a barge in the Thames.

The captain of the Neches declined to responsibility for sinking the barge on the ground that he had no command at the time, of his ship, which was being escorted into the port of London by the admiralty as a prize.

The Norwegian steamer Bratland from Baltimore, June 15, for Norwegian ports, has been taken into Kirkwall, Scotland. The Norwegian steamship Nor, which sailed from New York June 5 for Rotterdam, is being held in the Downs for an examination of certain items of her cargo.

Voice of the People

The General Assembly and Church Union.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

The executive of the Organization for the Continuance of the Presbyterian Church met recently in Toronto. Encouraging reports were received from many quarters. The continuance of the Presbyterian Church, in unity and harmony with other churches, is fully assured.

In as much as the recent vote in the assembly has been claimed as a great advance in favor of church union, the executive resolved to lay before the people the two following facts regarding the assembly and its vote:

1. It was not simply a vote upon union, but a vote as to whether the questio nof union should be now dropped or again sent to the people for their judgment.

Some hold that as the people have already expressed their judgment, only about one-fourth of the membership (27 per cent) voting for union on the proposed basis, with a large and strong opposition, the church should not be again put to the unrest and cost of another vote.

Others, even of those opposed to union, think it well that people should again vote, and some members of the assembly opposed to union, voted with the majority, to send the question again to the people. This was one cause of the large majority.

2. A second fact bearing upon the assembly and its vote is the following confidential letter sent out five months ago by the leaders of church union to some friends in the different presbyteries of the church:

Toronto, January 30, 1915.

Dear .....:

In connection with the recent conference of the committee on church union, the Presbyterian members who are in favor of union met and decided to ask the Toronto members present to associate with themselves other friends of union in order to outline and carry out a plan of campaign designed to promote the common cause.

The meeting thus suggested was held not long since, and it was then decided to compile literature on the question, send a copy to every commissioner to the next assembly, and after the assembly send it as widely as possible throughout the church.

It was, moreover, thought that it would be important for the friends of union in the presbyteries to be on their guard against any attempt to pack the assembly.

It is not for a moment suggested that the opponents of union be deprived of their fair share of representation, but it is held to be important in view of the vote which is likely to be taken before long that the church at large be not puzzled or misled by an abnormally large opposition in the assembly.

Will you, then, along with any others whose co-operation you may think desirable, be quietly on the watch in order to make certain that the union sentiment in your presbytery may be fairly represented by your commissioners?

Will you also represent the committee in your presbytery in regard to the money which will be required for the publication of literature? We reckon that it would be well for us to raise as much as $1,000, and respectfully request that you will personally collect some part of this sum or enlist the services of others, possibly laymen, who will attend to the matter. We would hope that the major part of the money can be obtained in $10 subscriptions. Please indicate as soon as you can what help you think you can give us.

Hoping to hear from you soon. On behalf of the committee, yours sincerely,

On the above letter, this executive makes five comments:

1. The only party in a presbytery that can control the choice of representatives to assembly is the majority, and in practically every presbytery of the church, the ministers who favor union are a majority, even where the people are strongly against it. The instruction of the above letter, so skillfully worded, could therefore only apply to the action which such majorities should take in choosing their commissioners to the assembly.

2. The above-quoted letter is not merely the hasty act of a zealous, irresponsible individual, speaking only for himself, who might intrude, unwelcomed, in the worthiest cause; but it is, from its own statement, the deliberate action of the leaders in church union, who officially represent our church, "outlining and carrying out" their plan of campaign."

3. The letter not only gives instruction regarding the composition of the assembly, but tells also the origin and history of the Church Union Pamphlet, "An Opportunity and a Duty," which has been widely distributed. The letter and the pamphlet each urges its own "opportunity and duty"; the former with regard to uniformity in the assembly, the latter with regard to uniformity in the churches. Both are sent out by the same authority. The letter is an introduction to the pamphlet.

4. Some questions naturally arise, e.g.: What effect had that letter upon the composition of the assembly and its vote? Are such methods to be commended? Does a right cause require them? Are such methods an indication of the "new estimate of values," the "broader outlook," the "wider vision," the "higher life," the "sublime reality," to which these men are calling our church?

5. This executive has never had any previous knowledge or experience of such methods, but is of opinion that they will be disapproved by most men and women within and without the church; and that those who purpose continuing the Presbyterian Church will be confirmed in the assurance that they are doing right, and will be more than ever resolved to have no part in a uniformity movement "outlined and carried out" by such methods of leadership and work.

On behalf of the executive,
T. WARDLAW TAYLOR,
Secretary.

CHECK MYSTERY FOR LOCAL POLICE

Signatures Correspond, But Alleged Writer Denies He Issued It.

ARREST TORONTO AGENT

Gather Medical Battery Man in as Result of Sale of Machine.

"Who Signed the Check?" is the subject of a little Sherlock Holmes mystery the police are trying to unravel in connection with the arrest of William Bingley, a Toronto agent for electric medical batteries. Bingley was arrested last night on a charge of haying obtained money under false pretences from W. Bishop of this city.

According to Bingley's story, he met Bishop's son in a local hotel Monday night, and the young man became so interested in a battery, that he gave him fifty cents, all he had with him, as an advance payment, and then took him to Lambeth and gave him a check to pay for a machine. Bingley says he tried to cash the check, and found there were no funds, and then went to Bishop's father, who said the signature was all right, and gave him the money.

Bingley was to have delivered the machine last night, but gave as his excuse for not doing so that it rained too hard.

Young Bishop, in court today, not only denied the whole thing, but said he never saw Bingley. He wrote his signature and it corresponded exactly with the one on the check. Crown Attorney McKillop called Lambeth by 'phone, and the bank clerk there stated that he did not see young Bishop at Lambeth on Monday night as Bingley stated.

Bingley says he has no home since his wife died five months ago and has no money.

"You talk like an honest man," said the court, "and I will take your own bail to appear here tomorrow morning."

FRENCH READY

phatic reply. "We are going to see this thing through to the end. We have no loubt about the result, however long it may take us to arrive at the desired ending of the war. There can be, there will be, no ending to it save the complete victory of the Allies."

"It has been whispered in this country, Mr. Thomas," said the interviewer, "that there is a certain amount of dissatisfaction in France with the efforts which are being put forward by Great Britain."

Britain a Surprise.

"You may disregard this altogether," said the minister. "We know how great are the resources of your country. We know what immense efforts you have put forth, which have been a surprise not only to us, but to the enemy as well, and we have every reason for believing and knowing that these immense resources will continue to be used in the service of the Allies."

"Then the entente between France and Great Britain remains as cordial as ever?"

"Absolutely, and there is a most perfect understanding between the governments of the two countries."

Defeat Unthinkable.

"Understand me, I do not say that our common task is an easy one, nor do I say that we are on the eve of a speedy recovery; but what I do say is that, be the struggle long or short, we are both ready to double, to treble, and quadruple, and if necessary, to increase tenfold, the output of munitions of war.

"We have pooled our resources, and I, for one, have no doubt that these resources are great enough to stand any strain which we may be called upon to put upon them. Nor have I any fear of an ultimate triumph. All the great moral forces of the world are for our side.

"The Allies are fighting for the freeing of Europe from the domination of militarism, and that is fighting into which every democrat can throw himself, heart and soul. Defeat in such a cause is unthinkable."

TRENCHES TAKEN

width of 800 yards. They were driven out again by our counter-attack. A second attack made by the enemy broke down under our fire. Hand grenade fighting still goes on for possession of a small section of trench in which the French are established.

"Enemy attacks on the positions which we had captured to the west of Apremont lasted throughout the day and night without any success. The number of prisoners was increased by three officers and 400 men.

"On the entire western front lively artillery battles are in progress.

Repulsing Attacks.

"In the eastern theatre,— An enemy attack from the direction of Kovno (in Lithuania) was repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

"At St. Anna, northeast of Przasnysz, a few Russian trenches were taken and retained.

"Enemy advances in the region of Strzegowo and Starosreby, northeast and east of Racionz, were unsuccessful. Attempts made by our opponents to take away Hill 95, to the east of Dolowatka, which we captured yesterday, failed.

"In the southeastern theatre there is no change in the situation of the German troops standing between the Dniester and the Upper Vistula. To the west of the Upper Vistula a number of enemy positions were taken by storm."

THE AUSTRIAN STATEMENT.

[Canadian Press.]

VIENNA, July 7 (via London)—11:30 p.m.—The following official communication from general headquarters was issued tonight:

"On the front held by Archduke Joseph Ferdinand's army, fighting continues. Russian reinforcements arrived and took the offensive at several places, but were repulsed, losing severely. The number of our war prisoners has increased.

"On the Bug River and in Eastern Galicia the situation is unchanged. In the battles on the Lower Zlota Lipa River, from July 3 to July 5, 3,850 Russians were captured.

"In the Italian theatre of war a lull has set in. After the victory of July 5, our troops had still to repulse some timid night attacks on the bridgehead at Gorizia and positions on the plateau. Yesterday the enemy resumed his violent artillery fire, followed by night attacks by weak forces.

An Attack From Above.

"Italian airmen dropped three bombs on Trieste without doing much damage.

"In the Krn region the enemy again attacked the rocky summit which was the object of previous attacks, but were repulsed. The field in front of our positions was strewn with dead bodies.

"In the Carinthian-Tyrolean border districts local artillery duels continue.

"In the southeastern theatre of war, on the heights to the east of Trebinje, our troops have been successful in the battle of the last few days. They captured, after a short, violent battle, the Montenegrin advanced position, forcing the Montenegrins back to the adjacent heights. Next day, a Montenegrin brigade, after strong artillery preparation, made a counter-attack, but lost so severely by the fire of our troops that they retired to their main positions. Several of our airmen successfully took part in the battle with bombs and machine guns."

"VALLEY OF DEATH" IS NOT MISNAMED

Sergt. Barnhill of 12th Battery Declares It So in Letter Home.

26 DAYS UNDER FIRE

London Battery Constantly Shelled 12 Days in One Position, 14 in Next.

The base of a German shell fired at an aeroplane of the Allies, and a soiled handkerchief dropped by a German soldier on the battlefield of Ypres, are two interesting souvenirs which Chas. C. Hoyer, 4 Cherry street, West London, received yesterday from Sergt. John A. Barnhill, the former London police sergeant, who is now an artillery sergeant in the 12th Battery, 3rd Brigade, of the Canadian forces in France. The shell base, Sergt. Barnhill suggests in his letter, might be polished off and used as a pin tray. The shell burst about two and a half inches from the base on one side, the jagged edge running up to a sharp point about four inches from the base on one side. The base fell within the allied lines, and in falling cut a limb from a small tree.

Sergt. Barnhill also mentions that he is sending home some fuses and copper bands as souvenirs from the battles he has been through to other London friends. The remainder of his letter follows:

"We have had a fair show since I wrote you last. We are having nice weather now and cool at night nights. I suppose you will soon be taking your holidays. If you were to take them over here and landed at the right time you would find them interesting.

"The first three days we were in there was quiet; only two or three times they fired a few shells over. About 5:30 p.m. on the fifth day the gas began to come and the rifles and artillery of the Huns began to speak out, it seemed, at the same time. We replied at once. Only one man was slightly hurt. We moved to another position and they did not get us for a day and a night, although we shelled them continually, but the next morning it certainly got us.

"Here it was that R. M. (Robert Mercer) lost his life. We moved again a short distance back, and remained there about twelve days, getting shelled more or less all the time, night and day the same. The position is known as the "Valley of Death,' and believe me, it is not misnamed. We took up another position on the other side of the canal, and remained in that position for fourteen days, and then had a day and a night's march out for a three days' rest, leaving behind two killed and three in the hospital.

"J. A. BARNHILL."

Why Discriminate Against British?

Ambassador Asks U. S. to Explain Neutrality Stand Regarding Reservists.

[Canadian Press.]

Washington, July 8.—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, today asked the state department to inform him what distinction, if any, it draws between the questions of neutrality involved in the return of reservists of those European countries which have reserve systems and the departure of volunteers to those countries which have no such system.

In effect, the ambassador's request points out that reservists have been permitted to return to Germany, Austria and Turkey, while legal action has been taken against persons forwarding volunteers for the British army. It is understood to contend there is no difference in effect in the situations.

British Empire When Attacked Stands for War

Balfour Points Out Position Undreamed of in Past Generations.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]

London, July 8.—Rt. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, unveiling today a memorial to Joseph Chamberlain at the Guildhall, said the common feeling of Empire among all our free self-governing dominions was absolutely novel in history, and had no parallel; it was a creation scarcely dreamed of by our grandfathers, and yet was now in actual operation before our eyes.

When they welcomed contingents of gallant men from Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Cape, they could not forget the spirit which had produced this marvellous result. That the British Empire stood for peace had been admitted sometimes with admiration, sometimes with scorn, but that the British Empire, when attacked, might stand for war was a feature which they saw now before their eyes.

WOODSTOCK, July 7.—Word was received in this city today of the death in Winnipeg of Mrs. James Flynn, widow of the late James Flynn, broom manufacturer, who died in this city about eight years ago. She was born in Dereham Township, 70 years ago.

NEW RULES AND NEAR ACCIDENTS

They Are Synonymous in Connection With Traffic Regulations.

THOUSANDS MISS CARS

Near Side Stops For Down Town Corners Cause All Manner of Confusion.

About 7,000 citizens who either forgot or did not know that the street cars, under the new regulations for downtown traffic, only stop on the near side of the street, waited and watched cars go by them today. Thousands of women who were down shopping and marketing stood on the corners where they had boarded cars in the past and waited in vain for them to stop. The traffic policeman and various street railway officials directed scores of women to the right corners. Signs were placed up on nearby poles by the street railway company, warning people that cars would not stop there, but few saw them.

Near accidents were numerous, as women and children rushed out from behind autos and wagons to try and get cars on the opposite side of the street.

The street railway officials are not enthusiastic about the new regulations. They declare that as long as autos are allowed to stand beside the curbs, where street cars have to stop, there will be trouble and, they fear, accidents.

NO SUGGESTION

suspend investigation of Kelly until Mr. Fullerton made the charges now being investigated. This concluded the evidence of Chairman Mathers and the other members of the old commission.

The cross-examination of G. M. Newton by Mr. Pitblado, Liberal counsel, was then resumed. Newton said he had beed led to believe by Howden that the money paid Chambers had been raised by subscription, and last Monday morning before Howden came to court as a witness he asked him (Newton) to give him the money Chambers had returned. Newton was advised by his solicitor to return the money to Harvey Simpson, brother of Dr. Simpson, and get a receipt from Harvey Simpson, acting for J. H. Howden. After Chambers returned the money to him, and after he had written Chambers telling him he was putting the money with the trust company pending investigation, he met Howden and offered the money to him. Howden refused it.

Wanted Rid of Money.

"I wanted to get rid of the money and did not care whether Howden or Chambers got it," said Newton.

Newton said he got nothing out of the deal with Chambers. He wanted to get the protest against Dr. Montague in Kildonan and St. Andrews dismissed because if it were not it might mean a by-election, and they did not want to fight another election there against the tactics which, he said, the Liberals employed the last time. He consulted no one except Howden. Newton said he had had the advice of the attorney-general and leader of the Opposition in this affair. Questioned by Fullerton, he said he felt the leader of the Opposition knew all about it, because negotiations regarding the payment of the money had been held up until Howden saw him.

He never saw Mr. Norris in this connection personally.

Banked Chambers' Money.

Stephen Stonehouse, partner of William Chambers, was called in reference to his connection fith banking part of the money for Chambers. On one day Chambers gave him two thousand dollars and the next day three thousand, all in one hundred-dollar bills. Chambers made no explanation, and Stonehouse put it in the bank and gave Chambers a check. Stonehouse was questioned very minutely about his trip to Windsor. Counsel interrupted, and the commissioners wanted to know the object of these questions.

"I am seeking to prove that this $3,000 was never paid this man, that the whole story is a fabrication, and that the $3,000 was paid someone else," said Fullerton.

"I swear," replied Stonehouse, "that Chambers gave me the money."

This was the three thousand dollars, which, according to the evidence of Chambers and Stonehouse, was lent the latter by Chambers. A request by Fullerton's counsel that Stonehouses' books be produced was refused by the witness, and taken into consideration by the commission. Fullerton informed the court he expected to finish his case Friday, and Pitblado, said the Liebral case would not take very long. The commission then adjourned.

WEDDING BELLS

HEARNS—LAUGHTON.

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, July 7, at Centennial Methodist parsonage of Bertha D. Hearn, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hearns of this city, to H. Wilbur Laughton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Laughton of Toronto. Rev. H. A. Graham officiated at the ceremony.

After a dainty luncheon, served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. T. P. Johnston, 478 Central avenue, the young couple left for their new home in Toronto.

McLEOD—RUSKEY.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rusky, 1083 Florence street, at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when their second daughter, Ethel, was married to J. McLeod of this city. Rev. H. A. Graham of the Centennial Methodist Church performed the ceremony. The drawing-room was prettily decorated for the occasion. After a sumptuous wedding breakfast the happy couple left for points west on a honeymoon. The bride looked very pretty in a travelling suit of blue silk poplin. She wore a becoming Panama hat. Gifts were numerous and beautiful, testifying to the popularity of the young couple. Only immediate friends were present for the ceremony.

"CHICAGO TRICK" WINS HIM THREE WEEKS' JOB

An Exponent of Windy City Dodges Will Have Steady Employment in Jail.

Telling a local hotelman that he intended to do "a Chicago trick" with a suit of clothes belonging to one of the boarders, resulted in Harry Dale getting three weeks in jail in the police-court today on a charge of stealing.

Ross J. Elijah, agent for a Toronto farm journal, accused Dale of stealing a summer suit of clothes from his room at the Brunswick Hotel. Dale denied that he ever intended to steal the clothes, but said that Elijah had offered to lend him the suit in order that he might make a better appearance in soliciting for magazines. The proprietor said that when he saw Dale with Elijah's clothes on he told him to take them back, and that Dale said he was just going to do a Chicago trick with them.

"I am afraid you intended to steal the suit," said the court, "and I will send you down for three weeks."

TRAVELLERS FORCED TO STAND IN RAIN

Non-Arrival of L. and P. S. R. Train Causes Soaking for Picnickers.

Picnic parties yesterday who elected to travel to Port Stanley by the London and Port Stanley line had reason to regret their choice of a route last night, when five hundred or more of them, a large proportion of whom were quite young children, were compelled to stand on the beach in the pouring rain for more than two hours, waiting for the train which failed to put in an appearance.

At 6:30 a car left the Port for London, and from that time until 9 o'clock the crowd of miserable, drenched youngsters and their elders waited in vain for the train which they expected every minute to appear.

When at last it did arrive it naturally was packed almost to the roof, and then began a journey which will not be forgotten for a long time. Every cross-roads was a stopping point, although the train was supposed to be a through one, and even between stops progress was so slow that to the huddled-in, cramped home-comers the journey seemed never ending.

It was only as midnight was striking that London at last was reached, too late for street cars, and the weary, wet and thoroughly disgusted trippers had perforce to trudge through the teeming rain to their homes, many of them having to walk miles.

NOTED BRITISH AVIATOR KILLED IN AN ACCIDENT

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 8—5 p.m.—Squadron Commander Arthur Henry Leslie Soames of the Royal Flying Corps was killed today as the result of an aeroplane accident. Commander Soames led the great squadron of aeroplanes which flew from England to France at the beginning of the war.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Indian Gets Off Lightly When Brought to Trial Today.

Albert King, the Indian, who was arrested and brought in from Westminster Township on Monday by County Constable Shaver following a drink-incited free-fight among a number of Indians, appeared on remand before Squire Chittick today and was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

The original charge laid was of being drunk in local option territory, but this was changed to a simple drunk and disorderly charge. King's employer, who was in court, gave him a good character and declared his belief that the young man's direlection was due to the fact that he had got into bad company. In view of this, and also taking into account the fact that the accused was badly cut and bruised about the face in the rough-and-tumble, and also that he already had spent several days in jail, the magistrate decided that he had been punished sufficiently.

Four other Indians, who were involved in the fracas, will be tried tomorrow. They are Stanley Hill, Billy Hill, Oliver Sherry, of Brantford, who was recently sentenced by Squire Janes of Delaware to 60 days for selling liquor to Indians, and Tom Kirk.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN THERE

Former London Pastor Called to Toronto Church That Figured in Terrible Accident.

The Woodgreen Methodist Church, Toronto, one of the churches whose Sunday school members were in the terrible car accident at Queenston last night, was the one which extended a call to Rev. W. H. Harvey, late pastor of the Askin Street Methodist Church of this city and now of St Thomas. But for an unexpected development that arose in the last conference of the Methodist churches of the London District, Mr. Harvey would have been pastor of the Toronto church and in all likelihood would have been at Niagara for the Sunday school picnic.

Gerard, United States ambassador in Berlin, conferred at noon today with Dr. Alfred Zimmerman, the German under-secretary of foreign affairs, on the subject of the German reply to the American note regarding the Lusitania incident. The conference was for a further discussion of the German tentative proposals from an American standpoint.

Arrangements were made for an open discussion of the question of church union at the next meeting of the Presbytery in Mount Forest.

SQUIRE CHITTICK BETTER.—Squire Chittick, who yesterday was knocked down by an automobile at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets, is still feeling the effects of the shaking up he received, but was able to be at the court-house today. His shoulder and back were badly bruised, but generous applications of liniment have taken out most of the soreness. He declares that the motorist who knocked him down was entirely to blame for the accident, since he took the turn at the corner too short and attempted to pass between the curb and Squire Chittick instead of taking the outside course and passing on the pedestrian's left. However, the magistrate bears no malice, and says he will not institute proceedings provided his condition continues to be satisfactory.

GERMANS HATE CANADIANS THEY FOILED THEIR PLANS

British Officers Loud in Praise of the Canuck Courage.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

STRATFORD, July 7. — Capt. Albert J. Pequegnat, one of the Y. M. C. A. men to go to the front with the first contingent, is home on a two months' leave of absence, owing to illness.

"The Canadians have certainly created an enviable record," said Capt. Pequegnat.

"At first they were subjected to some criticism by English officers, who thought them undisciplined and likely to show the white feather. They have learned differently, and one English officer said that with two battalions of Canadians and a like number of English troops, he felt he could go anywhere."

Referring to the Perth boys who were killed, Capt. Pequegnat said: "They died gamely. The Germans hate the Canadians. They foiled their plans at Ypres."

Capt. Pequegnat left the base in France on May 4.

BATTLES IN FRANCE SERIES OF DEFEATS OF FOE'S ASSAULTS

Enemy Continues Violent Attacks, Yet Losses Ground.

AEROPLANES' BIG PART

Machines Used by Allies Have Great Lifting Power, Writes Sarnian.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

SARNIA, July 7.—James S. Cushen, a former resident of this city and an employee at the Imperial Oil Works before the outbreak of the war, writes to friends here as follows:

"I am again back in the trenches, after being in a London hospital for two months while a bad wound in my left arm, caused by a German bayonet, was getting better.

"The general quiet which has prevailed along our front for some time is now being broken by renewed activities, which gained us a few trenches and made several positions of the enemy untenable.

Air Filled With Steel.

"I am in that part of the western front which has had such a reputation for the use of the yellow gas, and the enemy still makes attempts to keep up to their gas reputation. Most of the fighting lately has been of an artillery nature, the big guns on each side being used most of the time, until at certain periods the air seems to be filled with flying steel and lead, while one has the odor of burnt powder and gas in his nose at all times.

Enemy Keeps Losing Ground.

"So far, the war here lately has been violent attacks by the enemy most of the time, with heavy counter-attacks by us, with the result that we never lose anything and sometimes gain a few yards of their trenches.

"At the present time I am back behind for a couple of days' rest after being in the trenches for a long period, when there was considerable work to be done and the rain was falling most of the time. We have made our trenches as near perfect as possible, but I am not allowed to say what the improvements are, although they are far ahead of anything that we have seen in the abandoned trenches of the Kaiser's troops.

Aeroplanes' Great Work.

"Every day our aeroplanes hover overhead watching every move of the Germans, they being able to see any movement of troops at a great distance, when they are up in the air a few hundred feet. These army and navy aeroplanes are great machines, having great speed and lifting power, and they are very hard to hit with a gun when they are going at full speed.

"Well, I guess that I will close for the timebeing, hoping to hear from you in the near future and also that you will send me a few daily papers, especially those with the Canadian Press dispatches, as they tell us something about the war that we do not know. Well, good-bye, Dick, for this time.

"Send my mail in care of 3rd Brigade, Argone Town, Northern France.

"JIMMIE."

VANDAL BURNS FISH NET.

SARNIA, July 7.—Some person set fire to a section of fish net owned by W. A. Brown, which was hanging on a fence at his fishery just north of the Lake Huron Hotel property. The net, which was worth about $50, was destroyed and only the prompt work of summer resorters stopped the blaze, which threatened to spread to the rest of the nets hanging all along the fence to dry after being dipped in the tar pot.

It is expected that the floor will be packed for the occasion.

CANADIANS' PERFORMANCE "BEST SEEN IN THE WAR"

Former Wyoming Man, an Oxford Graduate, Writes From Front.

WYOMING, July 7.—Owing to a change from King Edward Horse to A 153 Brigade, R. F. A., 9th Division Artillery, British expeditionary forces, now in France, no mail has of late reached the friends of Lieut. D. Neil Hossie of Moose Jaw, a former Lambton County boy who was attending Oxford, Eng., at the opening of hostilities, having then won his B. A.

His letter, dated June 12, from France, reached his aunt, Mrs. W. J. Gauld, second line, this week. The letter in part runs thus:

"Dear Aunt,—I have been over here a month, and feel in fine shape. Our mails come regularly but little time is afforded us for letter writing. A former new college (Oxford) man is our major, while our captain is a Cambridge man, so you see we form a congenial party.

"How I wish we had more Canucks! for they have done wonderfully well. An English officer, who helped them at Ypres told me that their performance their was 'the best yet seen in the war.'

"Our battery has done good work, and we expect will again. According to Lord Devonport's letter of June 1: 'Don't look for an early ending of the war, there's plenty to do yet.'

"Yours,

"D. NEIL HOSSIE."

THROWN INTO DITCH.

Denfield, July 8.—Yesterday evening a drowning accident was narrowly averted here when a party of young men from a distance were driving through the town while a heavy rain was pouring down. The wheels of the rig skidded while crossing a deep ditch, throwing one of the occupants out into the water. He was quickly pulled out, covered with mud, but none the worse for his dip. The party drove on to their destination.

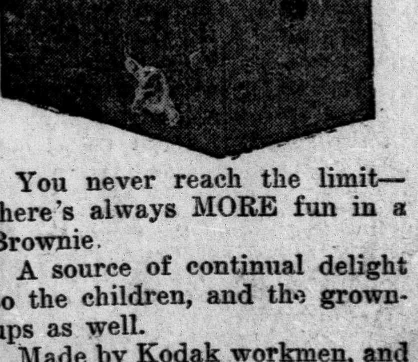

WINGHAM.

Wingham, July 8.—Mrs. Archie Simmons, who has recently been in the Northwest, where her three sons enlisted for the war, has written to friends here stating that she has left for Wingham to spend the rest of the summer.

Amos Tipling, one of the heaviest flax growers and manufacturers here, was in Hensall yesterday attending to a meeting of the Flax Growers' Association.

Nelson Yates, mail clerk here, who has recently been on the sick list, has greatly improved, and after taking a month's rest expects to be able to resume his duties.

Many citizens are improving their premises, putting up verandas and porches, and giving their houses a coat of paint.

News of Men In Training For Great War

LONDON PREPARED FOR INDIVIDUAL ATTACKS BY GERMAN SYMPATHIZERS

Guards Doubled at Camp—33rd Man Receives Letter From Detroit Declaring Rifles Have Been Found There and Pro-Germans Are Preparing For Raid.

One of the members of the 33rd Battalion received a letter from his brother in Detroit yesterday, which tells of the preparations pro-German sympathizers there are making for a possible raid on Canadian border cities or other towns and cities not far from the border. The writer tells of how Detroit officials discovered 150 rifles and other military material in the home of a brother of one of the state senators and a personal friend and colleague of Mayor Marx. Although the officials had proof positive that the man had the rifles and equipment stored for use of Germans in a contemplated raid across the border, no action was taken against him, his high affiliations rendering him immune.

Drilling in Detroit.

The letter also says that in German churches in Detroit members of the congregations are drilling continuously with brooms and perfecting themselves in military tactics. Mayor Marx is said to have made a speech upholding any determination on the part of German sympathizers to come across from Detroit and other American cities and strike a blow for the Fatherland.

Officials at Windsor are taking the greatest precautions to guard against possible raids from the other side and along the entire border Canadian patrols are continuously on the alert. Any person at all suspicious looking is subjected to the closest scrutiny and unless he has a pretty direct story to tell is returned to the American side.

Taking No Chances Here.

Military officials here are not taking any chances either. Last night the guard was doubled about the camp and this will be done on each successive night until the raid scare has evaporated. Although headquarters officers are not fearful of a concerted attack upon persons or property in London, still individual efforts must be guarded against. One man could commit a deal of damage in London, provided the requisite explosives and other paraphernalia could be smuggled in. However, it will be a smart individual who will catch the military officials sleeping.

Refugees Who Occupied Royal Suite on German Liner

Advertiser Illustrations.

This picture shows Mrs. Maria von Pappenheim, wife of the military attache of the German embassy at Pekin, and Frau Hedwig Meyer-Waldeck, wife of the German governor-general of the lost province of Kiao-Chow, China, and her three children, Hans, 13 years old; Hertha, 9, and Dagmar, 7, photographed on the SS. Frederick VIII., when they sailed from New York for Berlin via Copenhagen. Since coming from the Orient several months ago they occupied the royal suite on the interned Hamburg-American Liner President Lincoln, as guests of the German Government. Frau von Pappenheim's husband is at the head of a party of Germans who set out from Kiao-Chow just after the war started on a mysterious mission, which is reported to have been the destruction of the Trans-Siberian Railroad. She has heard nothing of her husband for many months, and does not know whether he is still alive. Frau Meyer-Waldeck's husband was captured when the Japanese took Kiao-Chow, and is now a prisoner of war on the Island of Formosa.

ARE EAGER TO HAVE CHANCE TO MEET TURK

Montenegrins, Mobilized Here, Glad of Opportunity To Fight.

JOINED BY 81 MORE

Another Squad of Big Fine Looking Fellows Arrive in London.

The last squad of 81 Montenegrins awaited by those who have been at camp here for above ten days, arrived yesterday, and this afternoon the 214 men of Montenegro will leave London for Three Rivers, Que., from which port they will set sail for their homeland. The men were in the greatest of good spirits this morning at the thought that before another sun had set they would be on the way to the beloved home country, where a real chance to get a slap at Austrian and Turk would be.

"Bah. The Turk. He no good. He about done now," stated a big, swarthy giant to the reporter who was bidding them good-bye and who had expressed the opinion that the men would be anxious to get a blow at their mortal enemy, the Sultan. "No. The Turk can't fight. He coward. He little man and can run like——, but he can't stand up and use bay'net. Germans lead him now. Germans big brute. No like German, but when see him will wring neck," and the big-muscled hands came together in a suggestive movement.

The men have been putting in strenuous drill here. Early morn and late night found them exercising in some way. If not with bayonets then otherwise. They are all big men, but supple as tigers and quick as cats. Two will throw another ten feet into the air, but invariably the one skyrocketed alights safely on his feet and remains standing. Tom Guzino, who has charge of the men, stated this morning that the story appearing in this morning's paper to the effect that further recruiting of Montenegrins in the United States was to be prohibited did not seem right to him, for as the Montenegrins had not taken out naturalization papers they consequently did not come under the jurisdiction of American officials.

TYPHOID INNOCULATION GIVES RECRUITS ANXIETY

Practical Jokers Among Their Comrades Tell of the Direful Results and Timorous Have an Uneasy Time Of It.

About 300 more men of the 33rd Battalion were innoculated with anti-typhoid serum this morning and a few hours after became afflicted with the languorous feeling the liquid engenders. The boys who didn't have great yarns to tell of the boys who did. That is faint when the sub-cutaneous injection was made. Six keeled over last night when the medical officer ran the hypodermic needle into their chest muscles and this morning two others rendered service to Mother Earth. The other boys so scared the timorous ones before the ordeal that the nerves were taut and the injection caused them to lose control of themselves for a moment or two with the consequent vertigo.

The practical jokers told of the dire effects often coming after the serum had been taken into the body. The men, some of them, believed this twaddle and it took all the will power they possessed to go forward and endure the ordeal. Some "shook like leaves," to quote a 33rd private, and beads of perspiration came out when their turns came.

One Italian recruit thrice started out to meet the doctor, but his courage always oozed just at the crucial moment. A little drummer boy had been watching him and when his turn arrived strutted forward, bared his chest, and submitted to the prick with fortitude. His example so impressed the Italian that this latter took hold of himself and to such good purpose that he too safely came through. The boys are allowed 48 hours' freedom from duties following innoculation, and to those on whom the liquid has little apparent effect the two days are some what of a holiday.

One chap this morning was brave enough to go forward, but misdoubted that he would come safely through. "I'm going to faint, I know," he ejaculated when he walked into the tent, but he didn't.

INFANTRY BATTALIONS NOW ALL BRIGADED

Lieut.-Col. Cohoe Is Brigadier and Major Reason of London Brigade Major.

The 33rd and 34th Battalions are brigaded from today. Lieut.-Col. J. E Cohoe, 5th Infantry Brigade, is brigadier, and this morning was escorted through the lines by Lieut.-Col. Smith, G. S. O. Lieut.-Col. Cohoe was delighted with the work of the men, and seemed of the opinion that they shaped up well for the short time they had been in training. He was particularly struck with the work of the sappers and machine gun sections. Major C. H. Reason, formerly of the 7th C. M. R. has been appointed brigade major Major Reason is well known to Londoners, and is one of the most popular officers in the city. Brigade sergeant-major is Color-Sergeant Instructor H. A. Carter, R. C. R. Sergt. Carter has been subordinate instructor to this time.

STRATFORD ENLISTMENT IS NOW NEARLY FORTY

[Special to The Advertiser.]

STRATFORD, July 7.—The list of recruits at the armories this afternoon includes the following names:

W. Baker, English; W. F. German, English; Jas. McLennan, Scotch; Alex. McKay McKenzie, Scotch, South Africa veteran; John Watt, Scotch; Robert H. Robertson, born London Ont.; Fred J. Smith, English.

Eight more left today for London, making 39 all told.

Having tried to enlist ten times and on each occasion having been turned down on account of his teeth, Pte. Charles Henry Fletcher, Dover street, was finally accepted here and left for London today. His appearance before the physician, after having had six teeth pulled out and fourteen new ones placed in his mouth, was his eleventh. Six times did he return at Toronto, once in London, while he tried all three previous contingents at Stratford. He is a married man, a native of London, England. Seventeen of his relatives are on the firing line.

MEN OF ST. THOMAS IN 2 LONDON CORPS TO GET GOLD COINS

City Decides to Honor Her Own During Visit.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

ST. THOMAS, July 7. — A pleasing part of the proceedings on military day at Pinafore Park on Friday, when the overseas men in training at London will visit St. Thomas, is the presenting to every man who enlisted at St. Thomas with a $5 goldpiece.

The contribution is from the city council. Mayor Johnson will likely make the presentations.

There are a hundred odd to receive the glittering coins.

The M. C. R. shop men have decided to take Friday afternon off and work Saturday, the usual half-holiday, in order to be present at the grand military demonstration at Pinafore Park on Friday. Other shops and factories in the city, who usually observe Saturday afternoon as a holiday, have also decided to change the day to Friday.

SIR ADAM REPROACHES BACKWARD CANADIANS

Deplores Fact That Native-Born Young Men Slow to Enlist

CHATHAM, July 7.—The Maple City's hydro-electric system was officially opened at a big banquet at the armories tonight when Sir Adam Beck pressed the button that sent the electric energy from Niagara over the wires of the city's new lighting system. The banquet was put on by the Daughters of the Empire and the profits will be donated to the Red Cross. They will amount to about $300. Fully 400 men attended the banquet and the enthusiasm ran high.

Major Wanless presided over the program, which consisted of a speech on hydro by Sir Adam and several musical numbers. During his speech Sir Adam touched on patriotic topics and lamented the fact that so few Canadian-born young men enlisted with the first contingent. He hoped that the Canadian young men would yet rally to the call of their country and enlist their services in the cause of the Motherland.

COLOR PRESENTATION TO BE IN PARK

Gift of I. O. D. E. To 33rd Battalion Will Be Given There.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Sir John Hendrie, will present the colors to the 33rd Battalion on July 21 next, on behalf of the Daughters of the Empire of this city. Lady Hendrie and Miss Hendrie will be guests of the I. O. D. E. at the Hunt Club after the presentation, and Sir John will also be lunched by the officers of the 33rd. Civic officials will be at the presentation which will take place in Victoria Park in the afternoon of the 21st.

LONDON NOT DOING ITS RECRUITING SHARE

Officer Declares That For Size and Population It Has Done Less.

Recruiting for the 34th Battalion goes on apace. More men are daily enlisting with this splendid battalion, and this morning eight came in from Woodstock. About 25 or 30 were added to the strength yesterday, and it is expected that this number will be more than augmented when tonight has come. The men coming in are good samples of Canadian manhood. They are mostly from Western Ontario points outside of London.

"This city, according to its size and population, has given less men than the other towns and cities in Western Ontario," declared an officer this morning. This fact seems to strike the officer as rather strange.

THROW ALL STRENGTH ON BUILDING OF SUBMARINES

Germans Set on Destruction of British Carriers, Says the Earl of Selbourne.

[Canadian Press.]

LONDON, July 7. — 9:05 p.m. — The Earl of Selborne, president of the board of agriculture, in moving in the House of Lords this evening the second reading of the bill which empowers the Government to prohibit the slaughter of young stock so as to preserve the meat supply, expressed the opinion that the Germans were putting their whole shipbuilding strength into the construction of submarines. German submarines, he said, were taking a steady toll of British ships, and as the war continued it was probable that more submarines would be engaged in this task.

It would not be the fault of the German admiralty, he continued, if they failed to deal a fatal blow at the carrying trade which supplies Great Britain with food. As it was, even if there was no diminution of the overseas supply of meat, there would probably be less for the use of the civil population.

The bill passed the second reading.

CAPTAIN WELD OF LONDON RETURNING

Lands at Quebec in Charge of Some Returned Volunteers.

HAS GUNSHOT IN HIS LEG

Pretorian Captain Denies His Vessel Was Chased by Submarine.

[Canadian Press.]

Quebec, July 8.—Two Allan trans-Atlantic boats reached Quebec yesterday evening and both had interesting news. The Pretorian captain denied the story that his ship had been chased by a German submarine.

The Sicilian captain reported that on his last trip out from Quebec to Liverpool, June 16, five persons on board died and were buried at sea. On her trip back to Quebec, the Sicilian only had two cabin passengers and seven third-class travellers.

Some Canadian volunteers, a few of them found medically unfit for service, were returned on the Pretorian in charge of Capt. C. H. Weld, a wounded officer of the 8th Battalion, who is on a short leave of absence. Capt. Weld, who is of London, Ont., fell a victim to German fire in the battle of Ypres, April 23. He is suffering from gunshot in his leg. He returned with Ptes. Rigg, 1st Battalion; Hornfield, Gerard and Potvin, of the 14th Battalion.

Among the other passengers on board the Pretorian is G. D. Duguid of Toronto, who was on board the Lusitania when the Cunarder went down. He is of a rather retired disposition and was not at all keen on giving a newspaper representative an interview when seen on arrival.

Roumania is said to have been offered for her neutrality until the end of the war Bukowina and Bessarabia."

CAMP GOSSIP

Half the members of the 29th Battery were innoculated with typhoid serum this morning. The others will be dealt with likewise next Saturday. The battery is up to strength, and the men are greatly enjoying their work. Major Coghlan, their commander, is greatly pleased with his unit, and thinks they are the best-looking number of men on the grounds. The horses did not suffer any from the heavy rainfall of last night, and but few tents were flooded.

Quite a number of the tents were flooded with last night's rain at camp, but the men, none of them, are suffering any ill results this morning. Those suffered mostly whose tents had not yet been floored. Some got sopped and some got just nicely moistened but few escaped scot free. The pioneers have been so busy that they have been unable to get the floorings down in all the tents, which is the reason for partial inundations last night and this morning.

Passes to leave London can only be granted by the camp commandant except week-end passes which will be granted by the officers commanding companies, etc., up to five per cent of their strength from 12 noon Saturday until 12 noon Monday.

The following have been granted leave of absence: Lieut. J. L. Richmond, 33rd Battalion, and Capt. T. L. Haygarth, also of the 33rd.

WOODSTOCK EXPECTS TO SEND ABOUT 30 MEN

Twenty Have Already Signed and Will Be in London Tonight.

WOODSTOCK, July 7.—Recruiting at the local Armories is proceeding fairly well, up to date twenty men having signed up for active service, besides four others who have joined the engineering corps, and who will join the detachment from London which will proceed to Ottawa to complete their training. In addition to the eleven men sent up to fill the ranks of the 33rd and 34th Battalions of London, on Monday, it is expected another batch will go forward tomorrow night. Men will be signed on up until Saturday, and it is expected that about 30 or 40 members will have been accepted by that time.

LOOKING FORWARD TO THEIR TRIP

Men of 34th Anticipating Big Doings At St. Thomas Tomorrow.

PUTTING IN EXTRA DRILL

Various Sections Polishing Up On Work They Will Put On.

The trip to St. Thomas of the 34th Battalion will be held tomorrow, and the men are eagerly looking forward to it. At 3 o'clock Friday morning the men will leave camp and expect to arrive in the Railroad City at about 10 o'clock. They will carry great coats, haversacks, mess tins, knives and forks and spoons. The soup kitchens will accompany them and will provide the men with food en route.

The men in the machine gun section put in extra work this morning, and will also drill this afternoon. They wish to perfect themselves in this work for they will give an exhibition of machine gun firing tomorrow at Pinafore Park. The club swinging squad and the bayonet drill squad were also working hard this morning, and went through their exercises to the strains of music furnished by the 34th Band members. In fact all the exercises will be to the accompaniment of band music.

The men are keen for the trip, and look forward to a good day's sport. The St. Thomas people are as eagerly looking forward to their coming, and promise them the time of their lives. Special trains will be run from various Western Ontario points.

Capt. Frank Ware Only One Left of Seven in 1st Battalion.

WAR'S TERRIBLE TOLL

One Killed, One Wounded, One Invalided and Others Home or in England.

Writing from France a London soldier draws attention to the fact that of the seven local officers who left with the 7th Regiment detachment of the first contingent, only one is now in France. The reduction of from one to seven is but another indication of the terrible toll that has been exacted during the present war.

Lieut.-Col. Becher has been killed in action; Lieut. Chester Butler has been wounded; Capt. George Watson has been invalided home; Capt. Gordon Hunt is here on furlough; Lieut. Campbell Galbraith transferred to the A. M. C., and is still in England, and Major Taylor is also there.

LONDON NURSE NOW IN ENGLISH HOSPITAL

Miss Bella Maguire Describes Work of That One Started By Duchess of Connaught.

Miss Bella Maguire, daughter of Inspector Adam Maguire of the Charities Organization office, and who is a nurse in the hospital established by the Duchess of Connaught at Puddington, England, on the grounds of the Astor estate, has written home to her parents describing her work and experience in this hospital, where many wounded Canadians are being cared for on their return from the battlefront in France. The day of writing, Miss Maguire, stated that 47 Canadians had just been brought in, most of them in a pitiable condition, and many with arms and legs amputated on account of injuries received from the bursting of shells. The hospital has accommodation for 1,000 wounded.

Miss Maguire left London the 1st of June and arrived at Plymouth, England, June 15. In her letter she also speaks of having been up to London, England, on Rose Day, when she saw Queen Alexandra go by amid showers of roses thrown by the people, with whom she is very popular.

KNIFE IS FLASHED AND PISTOL FIRED ON BRANT RESERVE

Isaac Hill Stabbed Three Times—"Firewater" Behind Fracas?

[Special to The Advertiser.]

BRANTFORD, July 7.—It transpires that there was quite a lively time on the Indian reserve on Monday night, and that the event just escaped ending in a tragedy. Knives were used, and at least one 32-calibre revolver was fired.

The fracas occurred at Martin's Corners, and too much "firewater" is supposed to have caused the trouble. Isaac John Hill received the worst hurts. He was stabbed three times in the side, but not dangerously. Another man also was hurt. Dr. Davis, the Six Nations physician, dressed the wounds.

Constable Jamieson of the reserve made a preliminary investigation, and High Constable Kerr has been deputated by Major Smith of the Indian office to make further inquiries.

WITNESS SAYS NORRIS KNEW NOTHING OF SAW-OFF FUND

Chambers Tried To Draw Out Premier, But Got No Satisfaction—Money Was Never Mentioned To Leader of the Liberals.

[Canadian Press.]

WINNIPEG, July 7.—William Chambers, the man alleged by ex-Attorney-General J. H. Howden to have been the representative of the Liberal party in the negotiations looking to the dropping of certain election protests in Manitoba, was the principal witness on the stand at the session of the Fullerton commission today. The Conservative negotiator in the affair, G. M. Newton, also began his evidence, which will be continued tomorrow.

Chambers declared, at the outset, that in the negotiations he had with Mr. Howden and Newton, he had acted wholly without instructions from anyone in the Liberal party. Mr. Howden's evidence tended to show the plan as having originated with Chambers, but Chambers declared Newton had been the first to broach it, having come to him and asked him if anything could be done in the way of having the protests dropped. Chambers treated the matter as a joke at first, and had said it would take $50,000 to reimburse the Liberals for their expenditures in connection with the protests. Newton, he said, had taken it literally and had thought the amount too much, but came back later and offered $25,000.

Read $50,000 Ready.

Witness said he had not promised anything, but that he would try to have the protests called off. He insisted that the $50,000 be in sight before he made an attempt at making an arrangement. This sum was raised and in sight, but before any money was paid over to him events had transpired which made it seem less possible than ever to maintain the Government's majority, and Howden had told Chambers he would only advance $25,000. Chambers eventually agreed to try and carry out the matter for this sum.

His first step, he said, was to cautiously sound Mr. Norris and try to find out, in a roundabout way, if he was interested in having the protests settled. He found that Mr. Norris had given the matter slight attention, and was quite indifferent and uninterested in the matter. Chambers declared he was careful to give the Liberal leader no hint as to any arrangement which he, Chambers, had made. He had mentioned nothing of his negotiations with Howden, and had not breathed a word about any money consideration.

A Source of Anxiety.

When Newton paid over the $25,000 to him, it was brought to Chambers' office in a valise, and he stuffed it in his pockets and took it home, when he put it in a dresser drawer, where it remained for a considerable period, though while it was in the house it was a source of anxiety to himself and his wife, who knew it was there.

Being unsuccessful with Mr. Norris, Chambers said he tried to return it, but Howden refused to take it back. Chambers also had an interview with Thomas Kelly, who had led him to believe by inference that the money was his (Kelly's). He tried to get Newton to take it and he also refused. Finally he took the money to Newton's house at Selkirk and left it on the table. Mr. Fullerton questioned the witness closely as to deposits and withdrawals in his bank account of sums, totalling over $7,000, which Chambers explained by stating that the money was given him to do as he wished with and he used a little now and then, replacing it later. Fullerton conceded this was all right, but said what he wanted to know was whether Chambers had paid any of this money, which passed through his bank to anyone in connection with the election protests. This Chambers emphatically denied.

Not for Understrappers.

On G. M. Newton taking the stand he told of the negotiations between himself and Chambers, to whom he had mentioned that some hotelkeepers were trying to settle the petitions respecting the election in Kildonan and St. Andrews. Chambers had said: "Understrappers could not arrange things of that kind."

Newton had pursued the matter to find out Chambers' idea on the point, and the latter had said that for $50,000 he thought he could settle all the protests. Then followed the interviews with Mr. Howden until the deal had been arranged, the money raised and deposited, and $25,000 handed over by Newton to Chambers, under Howden's instructions. Newton's examination will continue tomorrow.

FORM ORGANIZATION TO PUT "PEP" INTO SLOW FLAX INDUSTRY

Government Aid Will Be Sought and Educative Campaign Launched.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

HENSALL, July 7.—In an endeavor to secure stability to the flax industry of Ontario, long suffering from a number of causes, a representative body of growers and manufacturers met here today and organized as the Canadian Flax Growers.

Gratification was expressed for the current high prices for flax fibre, but it was unanimously decided to secure every assistance possible in order that the difficulties of flax culture, such as the farmers' and laborers' prejudice, may be removed.

A propaganda of education and governmental assistance such as is procured in Europe was advocated. Once flax became permanently established in Ontario, it was declared, the industry, practiced on the old methods, would thrive.

The following officers were unanimously elected:

President, Howard Fraleigh; vice-president, Owen Geiger; secretary, Jas. A. McCracken; treasurer, Wm. Forrester.

GERMANS DONE FOR, WRITES SOLDIER IN BAVARIAN REGIMENT

Ammunition Stores Woefully Depleted Against Russ—Cannot Beat World.

[Special to the Advertiser.]

WINDSOR, July 7.—That the resources of Germany are being rapidly exhausted in the drive against the Russian forces in Galicia is revealed in a letter just received by a Detroit factory worker, from his brother serving in a Bavarian regiment.

This letter was received by a Windsor man, employed in the same shop as the Teuton, and the information it contained was given only after the Canadian, who in general appearance and speech much resembles a German, had assured his co-worker that he was a native of the Fatherland.

Cannot Keep Up Pace.

"We cannot keep up this pace much longer," the letter reads. "Officers of my regiment have told me that our large stocks of ammunition are being rapidly depleted in the drive against the Russians and men are being sacrificed like flies in an effort to end the campaign so far as Russia is concerned.

"Our chance for victory rests on this Russian drive. But our men cannot stand it much longer. It is march, march, march; fight, fight, fight, for days without rest.

Peace Now, But for Alsace.

"We have fought well, but we cannot beat the world and the combined forces will wear us down in time. If the French were not now occupying part of Alsace, peace terms would be offered by our Government right now.

"We are sick of war, tired seeing men shot down in thousands and left on the battlefields to suffer and die without medical attention."

On account of the position he holds, the Windsor man's name cannot be given, as it would jeopardize his employment.

MORATORIUM GOES ON

PARIS, July 7.—4 p.m.—Alexandre Ribot and Gaston Thomson, respectively, French ministers of finance and of commerce, appeared today before the commerce committee of the Chamber of Deputies, which is considering the moratorium for commercial bills of exchange that are falling due.

Both ministers declared that it was the intention of the Government to continue the moratorium. M. Ribot, speaking on the bill, which would create a commercial industrial loan bank, told the committee that while he favored every measure looking to the resumption of business, it seemed to him that it would be difficult to create such a bank before the end of hostilities.

TORONTO VARSITY ASKS FOR HALF OF SUCCESSION DUTY

Deficit for Next Year Estimated at $100,000—Expenses Trimmed.

TORONTO, July 7.—In spite of their rigid economy the governors of the University of Toronto were forced yesterday to ask the Ontario Cabinet to ratify an estimated deficit for next year of $100,000. This amount is about $50,000 more than last year's deficit, which is still outstanding.

Sir Edmund Walker, chairman of the board of governors, this morning stated that the original amount of the deficit for next year had been $120,000, but that the governors had ruthlessly cut off necessary expenditures to bring the sum down to $100,000.

Will Be Fewer Students.

"One reason that our estimate for next year is higher than last is that our income from students' fees will be undoubtedly smaller next term," said Sir Edmund. "It was necessary for the bursar to cut $50,000 off our estimated income for next year to take care of that item. We think that the greatest reduction in students will likely occur in school of science, though arts and medicine will also suffer. We are judging, of course, by the indications which we were able to observe during the past year. I suppose the diminution in numbers will amount to about five hundred students."

Received $275,000.

The amount received by the university in fees last year was $275,000. When questioned regarding the possibility of the arts' fees being raised to cover part of the deficit, Sir Edmund did not care to express any opinion.

It was shown by President Falconer when before the Cabinet yesterday that the university was still in need of the $1,500,000 for buildings and completions to buildings started at the university, as mentioned last year. That request was not, however, pressed. It was also shown that the universities of the United States, without exception, had a much higher operating expense per student than Toronto University, in most cases the amount being double.

Half Succession.

The request of the governors was that the university should have the deficit of last year of $70,000 and the proposed deficit of $100,000 for next year taken care of, and that thereafter the university should be granted half of the succession duties of the province, as previously agreed, instead of $500,000, as afterwards limited, as has been the case in the past few years. Last year the succession duties for the province, minus the deposits, amounted to $1,165,000, and if half of this went to the university, it is believed that the university could support itself each year without taking hat in hand and waiting on the Government each spring.

BECKER'S COUNSEL TO ASK WRIT OF ERROR

Base Request on Gov. Whitman's Alleged Lack of Bias.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 8.—Counsel for Charles Becker were ready to go to Washington today to apply to a justice of the United States supreme court for a writ of error in an effort to save Becker from the electric chair. The reprieve in Becker's case set the date for his execution during the week beginning July 26.

It was stated today that Becker's counsel would base their application on the ground that Becker had been denied the right of executive clemency because of the fact that Governor Whitman had been his prosecutor and could not be unbiased.

Should the supreme court deny the application it was said that Becker's counsel were prepared to ask the federal court in New York for a writ of habeas corpus in his behalf. Other moves such as the instigation of an inquiry to discover whether there was a conspiracy on the part of witnesses to testify falsely against Becker were said to be under contemplation in case of failure to obtain either of the two writs.

"SINK'ER ALLEN" TAKES HIS PLACE IN IMMORTAL LIST OF BRITAIN'S NAVAL HEROES

Command Given to His Crew in Battle With Nurnberg Off Falkland Islands by Captain Allen, of the Kent, Wins For Him Undying Fame.

Victoria, B. C., July 8.—"Sink 'er Allen" is the expressive term by which Capt. J. D. Allen of H. M. S. Kent is popularly known to the crew of his warship. After a cruise of about nine months, during which period she sank the German cruiser Nurnberg in the battle of the Falkland Islands, and assisted in the destruction of the Dresden off the Juan Fernandez Islands, the Kent has steamed into Esquimalt, B.C., for repairs.

Although under fire twice, and in the first instance for a considerable period, there were no pronounced ill effects. She appeared good for several more such affairs. Her hull was a trifle battered, there were shell holes in her funnels, and there was no doubt that a coat of paint was needed badly. Outside of this, however, she was in as good shape as ever.

Of course, the Victorians could not do enough to express their appreciation of her notable services to the British Empire. The captain, other officers and the crew received the freedom of the city, and were made welcome at all manner of public and private entertainments. The residents seized the opportunity that was given to them to inspect the ship in such numbers that permits finally had to be prohibited in order that the most necessary work of repair might go forward without interruption. And during the consequent intercourse between the seamen and the civilians the sobriquet "Sink 'er Allen" became almost as much used among the latter as the former, as the public was informed of the circumstances leading to its bestowal.

It was learned that when the Kent's captain received orders to chase the Nurnberg, off the Falkland Islands, he spoke to his men, telling them in the blunt words of a sanor and a fighter that not only must the fleeing German vessel be caught, but that she must be sunk.

"We must sink 'er," he exclaimed, and the sailors echoed. "You're jolly well right! We will sink 'er!"

Captain's Spirit Inspires Crew.

The captain's spirit spread throughout the ship. It stimulated the stokers to frantic efforts. Theirs was the important task of developing a pressure of steam that the boilers of the Kent never before had been called on to stand. How grandly they rose to the occasion is a story frequently told since then. The lack of fuel did not interfere with the accomplishment of their purpose.

"Tear up anything that will burn and throw it in the fires," was the captain's command. Companionways, boats, chicken coops, furniture, everything combustible on board the ship, with the sole exception of the best furniture in the officers' quarters, was sacrificed. The only reason it did not go was because it was not necessary.

The Kent did better than on her trial trip twelve years before, and came within range. The rest was "up to" Capt. Allen's manoeuvring and the marksmanship of the gunners. Both proved equal to the occasion. The British ship was struck 36 times, but while this was happening the German had been incapacitated and slowly was sinking. Fire started and spread so rapidly that before long all that could be seen above water was a sheet of flame, in the midst of which were descried the figures of men leaping to their deaths in the sea in preference to staying in the hell created by the Kent's salvos. As many of the enemy sailors as could be found alive were rescued, to be interned later in South America.

From the captain to the humblest able seaman full credit is given for the bravery of the German crew. They stood to their guns to the last.

"No, I'm not anxious to see anything like it again," observed a bluejacket. "It is awful to see the other fellows dying by the hundreds, but it is worse to stand by while your mates are killed My mate was struck with a bit of shrapnel and died painfully."

Taking the circumstances into account, however, the Kent's losses were insignificant. Only seven or eight casualties was the total, but the ship's armor was penetrated several times above the water line, and her decks were pitted.

Marine Saves Ship.

What would have happened had Sergt. Mayes not given evident of marked presence of mind and gallantry is another story. A shell had burst and fired some cordite charges in the casement. Flames shot down the hoist in the ammunition passage. It was then that the brave marine came to the rescue. Picking up the charge he threw it overboard, and, grasping a fire hose, he quickly subdued the flames. This probably was one of the most outstanding instances of individual initiative, and it won for Sergt. Mayes the conspicuous gallantry medal.

The ship's bass drum is worthy of more than passing attention, for on it painted a list of the battles in which British ships bearing the name H. M. S. Kent have figured in the past. It follows:

Lowestoft, 1665; Sir James Tight, 1666; Barfleur and La Hogue, 1692; Vigo, 1702; Malaga, 1704; Superbe, 1710; Cape Passaro, 1718; Princessa, 1740; Ushant, 1747; Calcutta, 1757; Nurnberg, 1914; Dresden, 1915.

DELAY IN SUPPLYING MUNITIONS OF WAR CALLED UNAVOIDABLE

Contractor Explains That Sudden Need Found Manufacturers Not Prepared.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 8.—Most of the causes of delay to the contractors supplying war munitions were unavoidable, according to a letter to the Morning Post from the managing director of one of theh contractoing firms. One difficulty was to obtain thousands of gauges needed by the sudden multiplication of the factories producing munitions, the gauge-making craft being a very limited one, and being quite powerless to meet the sudden demand.

Transport delays also caused great trouble, and it was necessary to obtain much of the material and machinery from the United States. In many instances the voyage from New York to London occupied 60 instead of 20 days, while the British docks and railways were so congested that transit from Liverpool to London sometimes occupied five weeks.

To these difficulties were added the fact that the army in the first months of the war took away the bulk of the skilled workmen.

Today, however, these causes of delay have been, for the most part, removed, and, the writer says, the work will proceed in ever-increasing measure

POLICE LOOK FOR HIDDEN DYNAMITE

Circumstances Point to Holt Having More Than Was Thought.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 8.—Police authorities continued today their investigations to ascertain whether Frank Holt had planted bombs on board any steamships now on their way across the Atlantic Ocean. As a result of wireless warnings, reassuring messages had been received from the captains of the Saxonia and Philadelphia in mid-ocean saying that those steamships had been searched for bombs and nothing found. These were the two vessels mentioned by Holt in his letter to his wife in Dallas when he wrote that one of them should sink on July 7.

More Dynamite Hidden?

Further inquiry was conducted by the police today to discover what had become of the sixty pounds of dynamite missing from Holt's store of explosives hidden here. Although it appeared that Holt had bought 40 per cent dynamite, that found in his trunk was the 60 per cent kind. This suggested a possibility that all his explosives had not been found.

Thus far the police authorities have not been able to discover that Holt had any accomplices in the making or placing of his bombs. Police Commissioner Woods said the indications were that Holt had worked alone.

Sure He Was Muenter.

Arrangements had been made to hold an inquest on Holt's suicide today. His identification as Erich Muenter, indicted in Cambridge, Mass., for the murder of his wife, was regarded by the authorities as complete.

J. P. Morgan, who was shot by Holt, had so far recovered yesterday as to be able to walk about his house at Glen Cove, and his family hoped that today the financier would be able to go outdoors for the first time since he was shot.

OFFICERS ARE FOILED IN SECOND ATTEMPT TO CORRAL WILD GANG

Capture Girl Mother, But Are Slipped Up In Gathering In Two Men Who Had Lair Under Brush Pile—Will Try Again.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

AYLMER, July 7.—Upon advice from Avon that the balance of the strange, wild-acting gang of people who were routed out of a bush on the farm of Neil Brown, in Northeast Dorchester, on Monday, were in a swamp near the Brown farm, two autos bearing six officers made a further sensational raid in the wee hours of this morning. They captured the girl who escaped them Monday.

But as yet there are two men at large whom the officers are particularly anxious to apprehend.

The autos arriving at the swamp, went straight to Mr. Brown's, and there found young Potts, son of the man arrested Monday, who had been sent by the gang to get clothes and food left when they had got out.

The officers took Potts with them to the shanty of Bloomstein, a man who lives with a woman and three children, though it is alleged that the couple are not married.

Bloomstein was asked if he knew where the gang was, and replied, "Yes, I will go and show you."

He took the officers to another shanty, where there were three other men and a girl of 21 years, with a baby 4 months old.

She is the girl who escaped on Monday from the Brown farm.

Bloomstein Gets Away.

While the officers were waiting for the girl to dress, Bloomstein made good his escape by bolting into the woods. He no doubt joined the other two men wanted, Timothy Meyers, or Corliss, and Arthur Howard.

Returning to Bloomstein's hut, they managed, by the aid of Bloomstein's 12-year-old son, to discover the place where Meyers and Howard had been sleeping, hidden under a brush-pile, and where Bloomstein had been feeding them for days. The girl captured in the swamp shanty and her baby were brought to the lock-up here and she will get a hearing before Magistrate Summers.

The officers hope to round up the rest of the gang in a day or two.

WEDDING BELLS

THOMSON—McGORMAN.

ST. MARYS, July 7. — A wedding of wide interest in St. Marys and vicinity, because of the fact that both bride and groom are well known in this district, took place at noon today at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomson, James street south, when their youngest daughter, Miss Mary E. Thomson, became the wife of Dr. W. T. McGorman, formerly of this place, but for a number of years a resident of Port Arthur.

Rev. Mr. McLean, of the Presbyterian Church, was the officiating clergyman, while the "Bridal March" was played by the bride's sister, Mrs. A. A. MacIntosh, of London. Miss Carrie Young, accompanied by Mrs. W. C. Thomson of Crumlin, sang during the signing of the register.

There were no attendants. The bride entered the drawing-room, accompanied by her father, and wore a gown of pale pumpkin satin, trimmed with chinchilla lace. She wore the groom's gift, a pendant of oriental pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. After the wedding breakfast Dr. and Mrs. McGorman left for a two weeks' trip east, after which they will go to Port Arthur to make their home.

The bride is a graduate and gold medalist of the Ontario Ladies' College, and also a gradute of Emerson College, Boston. Many beautiful gifts testified to her popularity.

NICHOLSON—DROWN.

STRATFORD, July 7.—At St. James' Church, at noon, Miss Mary (Minnie) Drown was united in marriage to Byron Nicholson of the G. T. R. by Rev. W. T. Cluff. Misses Bertha Drown and Myra Nicholson were bridesmaids and Seth Nicholson groomsman.

STRATFORD, July 7.—Mary Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Pte. and Mrs. James S. Smith, was married to Albert Mayo, by Rev. Finlay Matheson. After a honeymoon the groom leaves for London to join the 34th Battalion. He is a good footballer, having been a member of the local junior championship team.

RAIN FLATTENS—BUT DOES GOOD.

FLORENCE, July 7.—The present heavy rain which fell in torrents, which flattened potatoes, corn and tomatoes, also did a great amount of good, as the ground had become very dry. Haying has been resumed and the fields of standing grain look fine. Corn fields also look good. The rain has aided the strawberries also, and it is thought the crops will no doubt balance all right again this year.

The potatoes, etc., has again straightened and look none the worse of the downpour.

MONTENEGRINS IN STATES MUST NOT ENLIST FOR SERVICE

But Those Already on Way Will Not Be Detained—Enrollment Prohibited.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Although department of justice officials are confident they have nipped in the bud a plan to ship a large number of Montenegrins back to their native country to join the colors, it was said tonight there was no present intention of preventing the departure of Montenegrins, who already have been induced to start for home.

It is said the efforts of the Government are to be directed chiefly toward the conviction on charges of violating the neutrality laws of the three or four representatives of the Montenegrin Government, charged with inducing their countrymen to enlist and to return home.

Prohibits Enlistment in U. S.

The activity of the department leading to these arrests is a part of a general effort to prevent enlistments in the United States for the armies of belligerent European nations. Officials called attention today to the fact that the criminal code plainly prohibits enlistment in this country of "any person" to bear arms against a friendly people. Evidence so far discovered points to violations in enlistments for the British and Montenegrin armies and Government agents are keeping close watch on reported attempts to recruit for Italy.

Discussed With British.

It became known that B Martinovich, one of the Montenegrins arrested in Bisbee, Arizona, spent some time in Washington about a month ago and talked with Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, about the observance of American neutrality in endeavoring to have Montenegrins return for military service.

Martinovich was told of laws covering such matters and also was informed that during previous foreign wars reservists had left the United States in large numbers.

Officials of the British embassy hold that the return of Englishmen for military service, even where free passage is extended does not constitute a violation of the United States, unless there is an actual muster or an engagement to enlist across the Atlantic.

Embassy officials declared no consular agent or diplomatic officer of the British Government had engaged in securing enlistments in this country.

COME INTO CANADA.

[Canadian Press.]

PORTLAND, Ore., July 7. — After having been detained three hours here today by federal authorities, a party of 145 Montenegrin alleged recruits, hurrying on a special train from Globe, Ariz., to Vancouver, B. C., was allowed to proceed. At the same time Jovo Macanovich and P. M. Luburich, alleged Montenegrin recruiting agents, who were arrested here yesterday on the charge of conspiring to violate the neutrality of the United States, were released on bonds of $10,000 each. They did not, however, accompany the party going to Canada.

HAIR WITH SOAP DON'T WASH YOUR

When you wash your hair, don't use soap. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advt.

OBNOXIOUS POSTERS.

THE billboards of New York City are covered with twenty-four sheet posters, which read:

AMERICAN CITIZENS—

UPHOLD THE HANDS OF THE PRESIDENT in his noble efforts to PRESERVE PEACE by urging that Congress empower him to STOP the EXPORTATION of ARMS and AMMUNITION from the United States to Europe.

THE ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN WOMEN FOR STRICT NEUTRALITY.

This is nothing more nor less than a disingenuous German appeal designed to prevent the Allies from receiving the assistance that Germany would be glad to receive were it in a position so to do. And it is to the credit of the people of New York, where there is really a strong anti-German feeling outside of the German localities, that recently fifty women protested to Mayor Mitchell against the wilful misrepresentation by which the posters led the casual reader to believe that the President desired to prohibit the exportation of arms and ammunition, when in reality his position is directly the opposite and is clearly defined in part of his note of April 21.

The women also claim that these posters incite citizens who are ignorant of the true import of these posters to act contrary to the law by failing to uphold the law. No more striking result of such German propaganda in the United States could be cited than the attempt upon the life of J. Pierpont Morgan by the German assassin Holt. Whether or not the New York posters were part of his work, he was no doubt seeking to force home the German contention upon the President by emphasizing the same spirit as is contained in the posters.

The facts of the matter, as set forth in the American note to Germany on April 21, following a protest by Germany against the exportation of arms and ammunition to the Allies, make plain the treachery to the United States that lies at the roots of the billboard campaign. The note made it plain that any stoppage of the exportation of supplies for war would be a distinct breach of neutrality. The gist of the note was as follows:

". . . I note with sincere regret that in discussing the sale and exportation of arms by citizens of the United States to the enemies of Germany your excellency seems to be under the impression that it was within the choice of the Government of the United States, notwithstanding its professed neutrality and its diligent efforts to maintain it in other particulars, to inhibit this trade, and that its failure to do so manifested an unfair attitude toward Germany.

"This Government holds, as I believe your excellency is aware, and as it is constrained to hold in view of the present indisputable doctrines of accepted international law, that any change in its own laws of neutrality during the progress of a war which would affect unequally the relations of the United States with the nations at war, would be an unjustifiable departure from the principle of strict neutrality by which it has consistently sought to direct its actions, and I respectfully submit that none of the circumstances urged in your excellency's memorandum alters the principle involved.

"The placing of an embargo on the trade in arms at the present time would constitute such a change and be a direct violation of the neutrality of the United States.

"It will, I feel assured, be clear to your excellency that, holding this view and considering itself in honor bound by it, it is out of the question for this Government to consider such a course."

Of course, it is quite within the philosophy of the Kaiser-American to spread posters through the country maintaining that those who protest against the export are "upholding the hands of the President" when they actually circulate a treacherous falsehood. It is sincerely to be hoped that Mayor Mitchell will order the posters to be taken down. The Britisher within the gates of New York is apt to feel himself in a German community and to guard himself against internment while these Kaiserish proclamations are permitted to be maintained.

THE ROTARY CLUB.

WHILE the newly-formed Rotary Club of this city has gone its way quietly, without attempting to reform anything or to cause a sensation of any kind, those who have the good fortune to be included in its membership and to imbibe the spirit it represents must feel that it has won a place in the community.

The membership now comprises 70 citizens, representative of 60 distinct lines of professional or business endeavor. The club meets once a week for luncheon and is subject to rigid discipline as to the time of starting the feast of viands or rhetoric, for the idea is that after the physical man has been satisfied, some one of the members shall rise to his feet and utter words of his own choosing. He usually has not more than fifteen minutes to talk, and the custom up to the present time has been for the speaker to dilate upon his own calling. The result has been that a number of unpretentious speeches have been made by the members, and it may be said by one who has heard most all of them, that none of them lacked in interest.

The club is young in spirit, although there is a wide range in the age of members. The members get doses of both youthful exuberance and sage counsel. They get it without trimmings or oratorical flourish, and as the spirit of the club is one of mutuality, it is safe to say that no one has been made to feel that he got on his feet and "made a fool of himself," whether he did or not. The unspoken idea is to open the mind of one man to his brother and to get acquainted with those who are met together. The Rotary Club has already been a useful, broadening influence for those who are members; it will be useful to citizens as a whole when the full force of its personality is brought to bear. Although its aim is not to affect public affairs, it is the sort of non-political, non-controversial and non-bigoted organization of which this city is much in need. There is a good deal of fun-making about it and a good deal of common sense.

ARE THE SUBS COMING?

A RESERVE officer of the German navy says that Admiral Von Tirpitz is about to extend his submarine warfare to Canadian waters, and that presently the transports and supply ships sailing from Quebec and Halifax will fall victims to the underseas terrors. On top of this, American submarine experts say the scheme is quite feasible, and that the British will be unable to thwart the Germans.

It seems odd that the German admiralty should thus show its hand. The modern war leader is not in the habit of laying down his cards so the enemy can read his plans and act accordingly. In surprise lies much of the effectiveness of an attack. So it may be that the German officer is merely expressing what he would like to see, or talking with the object of raising an especial bogey for Canadians.

The foe has shown himself so amazingly resourceful that it is not safe to say he will not be able to extend his submarine activities to the American and Canadian coasts, but even the layman can readily see that there are many and great difficulties to be overcome. At the very outset the submarines will be compelled to cross the Atlantic on their own power. They can't be sent over by merchant vessel or warship, as Germany has been stripped clean of the one, and dare not venture out with the other.

And once across, the problem of a base has to be met. Along the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts no doubt are countless spots that appear ideal as bases because of their isolation, but how long would they remain secret from the searching eyes of the British cruisers guided by the island fishermen and sealers who know this coast as well as they do their own hearths. True, fuel, ammunition and provisions might be taken on from ships sent out from United States ports, but the British and French warships that are strung along the American coast from Canada to the Caribbean would not let many of these slip through. The Germans may be able to bring a submarine or two across for the harrying of British shipping from our ports, but their activities are very likely to be quickly nipped.

A GERMAN CELEBRATION.

ON SUNDAY last throughout Germany there was a great celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the acquirement of Heligoland from the British. That the celebration should have been enthusiastic and sincere is easily understood. But for its island fortress on the North Sea, Germany's ships, big and little, would have been shut up in the Baltic. Her submarine raids would have been much more limited than they are at present, and there would not have been the constant menace to the British coasts and ships that Heligoland holds.

It has been customary of late for Germans to ridicule John Bull for permitting Heligoland to get away from him. They say it was due to the failure to recognize the strategical importance of the island, fast crumbling away. The fact is, as is pointed out by the Springfield Republican, that Lord Salisbury, who negotiated the deal, put it through in order to promote better feelings between the two nations. There was no serious ill-will between the two peoples at the time, although we now know that the securing of Heligoland was a move in the preparations of the War Lord against that day when he felt he could challenge the British for the supremacy of the seas. Four years later the Kiel Canal was opened, and immediately commenced the building of the mighty German navy of today. The concession of Heligoland played a large part in preparing the way for the present terrible conflict. At the conclusion of the war its possession once more by the original owners seems certain.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Death has called a halt to Holt.

Garland, M. P., star of drug supplies scandal, has definitely resigned his seat. Please omit garlands.

Study the Canadian League standing while standing on your head and our team looks pretty good.

The Germans now talk of using bloodhounds against the Allies. If they are as harmless as the great danes of the Uncle Tom's Cabin parades, there is nothing to fear.

It is worth noting that for the most part those who are saying they are tired of the war and who growl, grumble and criticise those who are conducting it for the Empire are the ones who are doing nothing to help.

Why don't the German-Americans request the Kaiser to put an embargo on Krupp's? That would "bring peace," to use their phrase when they importune Wilson to stop the export of munitions from the United States.

For the Kaiser to say where, when and how Americans may travel on the seas of the war zone is not the solution of the trouble that the United States will accept. None but a fifth-rate power could consider such a humiliating proposal.

Because of "headaches," Sir Edward Grey has been obliged to take a vacation. Last time the "headaches" drove him to Rome for relief, and he returned feeling fine. This time, it is understood, he is trying the Balkans up Bucharest and Sofia way. And his cure may cause the Teutons a severe headache or two.

"The most important question now is: 'How can peace be restored?' "—Mr. Bryan.

It is not. The most important question is: "How best can VICTORY FOR THE RIGHT be brought about?"—New York Herald.

The salvation of the American people is that it has newspapers like the Herald to serve as an antidote to Bryanism and Kaiserism.

There has been a notable lull along the British front in Flanders for some time, and it may appear as if the British were losing a golden opportunity while Russia is so busy in the east. We may be sure, however, that French is building up an impregnable defence and concentrating a vast force against the next drive at Calais. Until the munitions handicap is overcome Britain's game is attrition.

In the course of a year, tons of matter from the Government reach the daily newspapers. Most of the matter is a form of free advertising conveying certain views of the Government experts to the public in general and accompanied by a very courteous letter requesting publication. The matter is seldom of general interest and would not be printed in the ordinary course of publishing a newspaper. But the Government apparently expects the newspaper to publish its material and to take it out in courtesy and love of country. But when the Government buys boots or binoculars or other materials, it does not expect that the manufacturer will "take it out in courtesy." It pays for what it buys and pays a good price. But it expects to get newspaper space—the only thing the newspaper has on its shelves—for nothing. If some of the thousands of wasted public money were used to acquaint the public with the aims of Government and the great issues of the present time, Government would begin to improve. The newspapers spend thousands to give the actual news of legislation, but the politicians do next to nothing to help the newspaper to a legitimate share of business. In the last Administration they have thrown pap to favorite Government organs, but there was no public service, only a desire to reward the faithful servant, in this method.

SUSPICIOUS.

[Judge.]

Bridegroom (on railway train)—What makes you think I don't love you any more?

Bride (pouting)—When we passed through the tunnel, you never kissed me.

PIE CULTURE.

[Peter McArthur.]

An article published some days ago, in which I mentioned the fact that the cherry pie was at one time considered the supreme test of a housewife, or, rather, the test by which it might be discovered whether a girl was competent to be a housewife, has brought me a good story from Dr. Hugh MacCallum of London. According to him, the cherry pie plays a much wider part than I suggested in the life of the New England States. He says:

"At a medical banquet which I once attended, our great Dr. Osler of Oxford stated that Dr. Weir Mitchell of Philadelphia had once put his culture to the final test. Dr. Mitchell, who was present, nodded gravely.

"'He gave me a piece of cherry pie to eat and watched me while I ate it.'

"Once more Dr. Mitchell nodded.

"'And,' continued Dr. Osler, 'I ate it to his entire satisfaction.'

"Dr. Mitchell applauded enthusiastically."

Naturally the assembled medical men wanted to find out how a cherry pie should be eaten, for the test was one that any of them might be obliged to face at any time.

"All we could learn," said Dr. MacCallum, "was that he ate it with a spoon and that he rejected the pits."

This information contains the possibilities of much further discussion. It will be news to the eaters of factory-made pies, and even to housekeepers who are making their own cherry pies during this cherry season, 1 to 12 o'clock, has been named used with their pits. Also the writers of books of deportment must record the fact that in the case of the cherry pie the fork must give place to the spoon. But the most important fact is that no matter how a cherry pie is eaten, it is the best pie that is made.

SOME FRIEND.

[Exchange.]

Clerk—I'd like to get a week off, sir, to attend the wedding of a friend.

Employer—A very dear friend, I should say, to make you want that much time.

Clerk—Well, sir, after the ceremony she will be my wife.

LEST WE FORGET.

[Frank Browne.]

Lest we forget! Yea, be it so!
But who forgets? Who can forget?
How fares the field to which we sow?
The seed has not its fruitage yet—
Yet to its harvest shall we bend
In grief, or thence shall paean ascend?

Thanks that have birth in righteous deed,
Or tears that wail the effort vain;
The counter-mart of breed to breed,
The potential quick, the valorous slain—
Thanks that the worth that made men proud
Uplifts again above the crowd!

Nay, we forget not these nor them,
Though with their dying light had died,
The wail that was their requiem,
Defiant, still the foe deride.
In baffled hope and truce delayed
Keep us as they, the unafraid!

And let us to ourselves be just,
To know what is required of each;
Not only in ourselves to trust,
The end, but that we stay the breach.
As once the cry rang out, lo, it rings,
To freedom unbegot of kings.

Yea, we forget not, though the toll
Of blood is paid with valorous deed!
And in the drum's long muffled roll,
The bleeding heart again does bleed.
In grief, in thanks, in stricken praise,
Uplifted they our hearts upraise!

THE CHALLENGE

The challenge now so clearly heard
No thoughtful mind may shun:
And all free nations have been stirred
To say what must be done.

In all free nations everywhere
Brave souls are moved to speak:
And one in heart they all declare
The strong must help the weak.

The challenge brings an urgent call
That men themselves may give:
It says, "Who stands if truth should fall?
Who dies if truth shall live."

Responsive to the urgent need
The allied armies move:
With steadfast purpose they proceed
In honor, faith and love.

They say, "Ourselves we freely give;
One aim unites us all:
Not one of us would choose to live,
If Freedom's throne should fall."

And Righteousness shall be their stay
Who meet the great demand:
And Liberty shall win the day,
And Freedom's throne shall stand.

PEARL OF THE CROSSROADS

By Frederick Briggs.

Someone said that a sailorman was good for nothing but to chase about the world and send people presents. Pearl Smith had known this all her life, though perhaps she had never resolved it into just that expression.

She drew the line at having more than one man on the same ship. Still, this was not at all inconvenient, for there were sometimes no less than fourteen men-of-war, besides a score of merchant ships, in the Crossroads of the Pacific at one time.

The girl came by the prosaic name of Smith because her father's name had been something else, in some other country. He came to Honolulu before the cable was in good working order, and remained. Marrying a half-caste Kanaka girl, he had kept a sailor's boarding-house on King's road since Pearl was a baby. The presents had been coming in since the little girl was big enough to climb on a sailorman's knee, and their volume increased with her size. She was grown up at fourteen.

To see her, then, was like being wakened from a sweet sleep on a balmy afternoon by having great clusters of red, red roses pressed to one's cheeks. Young men, dropping in at the Crossroads, swore that they would never go to sea again—only to ship with the next tide for the Indian Ocean, in search of a pearl to match her skin.

She was like Honolulu days. The shimmering softness of her skin matched the warm afternoon skies. Rich reds of the island sunsets burned in her full, dimpled mouth. Tropic twilights lay behind her inky eyelashes, deepening to midnight in her long hair.

Men-of-war's men and merchant sailors sent different presents. The navy men leaned toward fancy jewelry and manicure sets, while the traders stuck to bales of silk, uncut rubies, loose pearls, ivory fans, and ostrich plumes. This from the young men. To enumerate the junk that was dumped at the feet of this island goddess by silly old sea-captains, and others, would be to copy the cargo-bills of an East and West India tradesman. There would also be a list of small animals and birds, with a number of Arctic treasures appended. Pearl kept what she fanicied, and her father sold the rest.

As for a girl accepting presents from a dozen men at the same time, it must be remembered that Pearl lived neither east of Frisco, nor west of Suez—which is only another way of saying that the girl was bred in a man's country, where anything a woman gets is so much for her gain, and no less for her honor.

Pearl was a good listener. Therefore, she was a diplomat without ever suspecting it, and a thorough businesswoman without the dollar-sign being once tacked to her thoughts.

New admirers invariably meant more presents; but when a sailorman can jolly his superior officer and get anything he wants, just for the asking, women had better beware of him. When he stands six feet in his socks, laughs out of big, blue eyes, and conceals a 'cello note in a drawling voice, so much the worse for the women. Heine—that was as far as they got with his name aboard ship, and it will suffice here—Heine was all of this, and more. He was an American blue-jacket, boatswain's mate of the destroyer Shark.

He met Pearl at Waikiki Beach. She was shooting the surf when Heine saw her first. Standing upright, with outflung arms, she ballanced on her polished board of kamani wood as it raced ahead of a giant breaker. Swift as the wave, she flashed past the swimming sailor, but as the waters broke over his head he remembered every line of her beautiful body. The grace of her attitude struck him harder than the wave. Turning, he swam strongly toward the beach, where the spent roller had landed the fairy surf-rider.

Half a dozen men were begging Pearl to be allowed to take her board out to the reef again, but she laughed them away with a flash of milk-white teeth, and struggled out alone. Heine met her a hundred fathoms from the beach, where the water came almost to his shoulders as he stood on the sand.

"I'll carry your board for you!" he cried, as the girl broke through a wave almost upon him.

Startled, she turned her head, and the board slipped, striking on her flower mouth. As the blood came, Heine caught her in his arms. The wave, receding, shut the other bathers from view, and for ten seconds the sailorman held the girl close to his heart.

"My lip will swell!" she panted, struggling to free herself.

But Heine jollied her, just as he jollied the commanding officer of the Shark, and within half an hour she had checked her surf-board and bathing costume at the bathhouse, and was riding back to town with him, holding her handkerchief to the swelling lip.

Three days later the fleet was ready to sail. Dusky singers with their tiny guitars strummed the sad "Aloha Oe" —"Farewell"—in every street. Pearl managed her other admirers so that Heine might have the last evening. When the time came for a final good-bye, Heine told her that he was coming back to Honolulu—some day.

Pearl studied his face; then she pouted.

"That's what they all say!"

The sailor's eyes danced as he kissed her bruised mouth. Then he was gone.

This time Pearl did not look for a present. She would have preferred the sailor back again; but the gift came. It was a brooch, set with a genaine ruby. Heine bought the uncut stone from a Lascar mess-attendant. It cost him sixty-five dollars to have it cut and polished, and the ruby was valuable.

"To match your lips—from Heine," was the word that came with the jewel.

Pearl's heart was filled with fear. Sailormen who sent presents never came back. Did she not have cream and rose pearls from the remittance-man in Ceylon, and a black diamond to rival her eyes? There was only one other man whom she had longed to see again—an English mate who sent her a perfect pair of pigeon-blood rubies from Bombay. The jewels were torn from the eyes of a Hindu god, and the Hindus tore the mate's eyes from his head in revenge. But Pearl did not know this. She fastened Heine's gift on her bosom, and put the other jewels away.

Heine was discharged from the naval service shortly after his visit to Hawaii; and, without informing Pearl, he returned to Honolulu. He had served a jeweler's apprenticeship before entering the navy, and soon found employment in a local store as an engraver. He purchased a little bungalow in Kalihi with the savings of his naval cruise, and kept out of sight in Honolulu as much as possible, wishing to avoid meeting his sweetheart until he could surprise her with a complete arrangement for housekeeping.

One day, as he bent over his engraving-tools, his heart gave a great bound as Pearl's voice floated through the lattice partition. She was talking with the jeweler in the front of the store. Peering through the slats, Heine saw a number of jewel-boxes spread out on the counter between them. The jeweler was speaking:

"Do you get all these as presents, Miss Smith?"

"Oh, of course. The sailors — they are so good to me," she laughed. "But what are they worth—pins, brooches, rings, watches, and all."

The ex-sailor sank back, stunned. A look crept into his face that his commanding officer had seen when his boatswain's mate reported "both anchors carried away, sir," as the disabled Shark wallowed with the wind toward the thundering rocks of Cape Flattery. Heine had trusted his anchors. Now he thought of his early training —of his sisters, and the girls back in the Kansas home—his standards of honor for women.

The jeweler was speaking again.

"I will allow you two hundred and twenty dollars."

"Will that buy a very fine watch, with diamonds?" she asked.

"A very fine watch, but not with many diamonds," he replied.

"Then I'll wait. More will come"; and she walked out.

The jeweler found his engraver sitting listlessly, with idle hands, and eyes that stared into space. He suspected the vitiating influence of the tropics.

"Go out and get a gin-fizz," he called, cheerily. "Don't let the heat get away with you!"

Heine thanked his employer, and went out. He had a fizz, and was soon back at his bench. The next day he saw a real-estate man and tried to sell his bungalow, as he intended to sail from Hawaii on the Mongolia, which was due, homeward bound, in two weeks.

A few days before the China mail came in, Heine was startled again by his sweetheart's voice. He heard every word as she offered the pigeon-blood rubies for sale. The jeweler was in ecstasies. The stones were flawless and perfectly matched. A deal was made for a beautiful diamond-incrusted watch in exchange for a number of jewels, including the rubies.

Heine had never seen the girl more beautiful. Her face, shaded by a wide hat of delicate straw and rich flowers, seemed touched with the brush of melancholy. Her neck was bare, and the point of the low V of her white gown was secured by a ruby brooch—his ruby.

"I'll take this one," she was saying, "and you must cut these words in the heart."

She stood there, gazing wistfully at the watch, for a long time. When she had left the store, the jeweler brought it back to his engraver.

"Get this out as soon as possible," he said, depositing the watch, with the slip of words to be engraved.

Heine glanced at the slip. It read:

To Heine—from Pearl.

Pushing back his stool, he sprang to his feet, and faced the jeweler.

"I've been judging that little Kanaka girl all this time from a Kansas standpoint!" he dashed from the building.

"Heat's getting in its work," the jeweler mumbled to himself. "That's the trouble with these newcomers; can't stand the heat"; and he shook his head sadly, for the newcomer was an excellent engraver, and he let the gin alone.

Heine overtook the girl in front of the Young Hotel, and there, utterly oblivious of the staring public, he caught her again in his arms, kissing her perfect mouth, no longer bruised, but soft as a red hibiscus blossom.

TALES From The Trenches

A GERMAN ON THE BRITISH.

The respect which the Germans have for what they used to describe as "the contemptible British army," is shown in the following letter from a German Red Cross officer:

"We have been kept working at high pressure practically every day since Christmas, as the English 'Tommies' do not give us any time for rest,' says the writer. "Morning, noon and night they keep up their cannonading, and we never know, from one day to another, when they will make another attempt to break through.

"A couple of days ago the pounding they gave us was terrific, beginning with the explosion of a mine under a piece of rising ground, which a company of our men had been holding for a long time. It was altogether an unfortunate day for us, the losses being extremely heavy in the best regiments, and we were all thankful when night came on and prevented the cursed English gunners from continuing their deadly work."

After stating that reserves were being hurried forward and the headquarters had given instructions that the new line of defence was not to be sacrificed at any cost, the writer adds: "This sounds all very well on paper, but it is not so easy to instil courage into those who took part in the last attack, which some of the men say was like trying to drive them through a living hell."

K. O. S. B. IN THE FIGHT.

The King's Own Scottish Borderers played a prominent part in the action now famous as the attack on Hill 60. Their severe casualties are eloquent proof, and some of the wounded men are now in hospital in Edinburgh.

After the mines were exploded by our engineers, it fell to the brigade to which the Scottish men were attached to clear the remaining Germans from the trenches and consolidate the gain. That they did with characteristic thoroughness, but throughout the following night they were called upon to repel numerous counter-attacks. Time and again the Germans came on in close formation. They could not face the withering rifle and machine gun fire of our soldiers entrenched in the remnants of the hill, however, and were mown down in their attempts to clear the hill. Following these unsuccessful attacks, the German artillery concentrated on the point, and rained a pitiless shower of shells on the position, but the defenders never flinched. After being relieved the Borderers had a spell in a rest camp behind the firing line. On the fourth day, however, they were again warned to hold themselves in readiness for more fighting. They were quickly on the road, and Private Pennel, who is lying at Craigleith Hospital, in an interview recently told how they were shelled as they left their billets.

"Up Against It Again."

The following morning they were in touch with the Canadians, who were putting up a stubborn resistance to the Germans in the neighborhood of St. Julien. Heavy artillery fire compelled the Borderers to seek what cover they could find near a roadway, and when the shelling had slackened they were ordered to unfasten their "packs," and leave them behind. "We knew we were up against it again when we received this order," remarked Private Pennel. "At Hill 60 we got a similar order before storming the wrecked trenches. Our experiences there were nothing compared with the fighting at St. Julien. The battalion had orders to take a strong line of German trenches. We opened out into extended order, and pressed on to the German position in face of a deadly fire. Men were dropping on all sides, but we held on. Twenty yards from the Germans I was wounded, and put out of action, but I saw the remnants of the battalion finish off their job." Sorely depleted in numbers but triumphant, the Borderers sprang into the trenches, and deadly bayonet work crowned a brilliant charge. It was at a heavy cost, but their object was achieved.

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letter can be answered privately.]

No Marriage Agency.

Lover of Corresponding—Sorry, but I cannot commence such a "correspondence column" as your suggestion would lead to. You should subscribe for a matrimonial sheet. "Lonely's" case was an exception.

Follow Mother's Wishes.

Dear Miss Grey.—I am an interested reader of your column, but as this is my first letter will only ask a few questions.

1. Have hazel eyes and fair hair; what are my colors?

2. Am seventeen. Am I too young to go out with a boy friend without my mother's consent; if so, should I also stop having any conversation with him if my mother objects without any special reason?

3. Can you read my character from my writing?

And lastly. What do you think of my writing?

Thanking you, I remain,

INTERESTED.

Ans.—1. Hard to say without knowing if your complexion is dark or fair. Should think blue, pink, tan and brown would be becoming.

2. It is next to impossible to give a definite answer without knowing the circumstances fully. I certainly believe your mother's opinion should be heeded, but probably she will not object to your being "just friendly" with him, if you do not consider him as a sweetheart.

3. No.

4. Very good, but too much slanted to be easily read.

Received Announcement.

A Subscriber.—You are not required to make any reply to the announcement unless you wish. If the bride lives near you, you might call on her some time soon, or otherwise could send her a note wishing her every happiness. I understand how you feel at "being left out," and am sorry you have had this unpleasant experience. Try, however, not to cherish harsh feelings, for the slight may have been unintentional.

An Angel Cake.

Dear Miss Grey.—This is my second letter to you. I certainly enjoy reading the letters published in your mail box. Will you please answer a few questions for me.

1. Will you please tell me where I can get a map showing the roads of Ontario?

2. Will you publish the flirtation signs of gloves and handkerchiefs?

3. What day did August 16, 1893 fall on and August 5, 1896?

4. Will you publish a good recipe for a medium-size angel cake?

Hoping this will escape the W.P.B.

I remain, DOLLY DIMPLE.

Ans.—1. I believe these can be purchased at stores keeping sporting goods or automobile supply shops. Would be pleased to procure one and mail it to you if you cannot get one in your town.

2. This I do not know, and anyway. It is considered a mark of "commonness" if not vulgarity, to carry on a flirtation by this means. And you, Dolly, are of course neither common or vulgar, I know!

3. Wednesday; Wednesday.

4. Angel food.—Take 1 tumbler of flour, put into it 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, and sift four times; beat whites of eleven eggs to a stiff froth and then beat in 1 1-2 tumblers pulverized sugar, a teaspoon vanilla and pinch of salt; add the flour and beat thoroughly but lightly; bake in a bright ungreased pan 40 to 45 minutes. When done, turn over to cool, placing something under the corner of the pan so that the air will circulate underneath and assist the cooling.

You might also like to have this recipe for mock angel cake, which only requires two egg whites—Sift together four times one cupful granulated sugar, one cupful pastry flour, three level tablespoons baking powder. Heat one cupful of sweet milk to the boiling point, then stir it gradually into the flour and sugar mixture.

Then add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and one teaspoonful of vanilla or other extract. Bake in an ungreased pan for about forty minutes in a moderate oven. Ice when cool.

A Kind Wish.

Dear Miss Grey,—I have read your column with much interest for some time, and now I would like to ask a few questions.

Could you tell me where to go to learn domestic science?

2. Do you have to be very far advanced in high school to go through for a domestic science teacher?

There are so many that are lonely that I will sign myself, HAPPY.

P. S.—I hope those that are lonely will soon be happy.

Ans.—1. You might write the superintendent of Macdonald College, Guelph, Ont., for full particulars for this course.

2. I do not know, but am sure the superintendent will gladly furnish all particulars.

Interested In Her.

Lloraine.—Am very much interested in your letter, as I have "been over the road" myself, and can sympathize. Believe I could advise you better by a personal talk, so will waive my usual rule and should like to have a chat with you some day, if you wish. Should be pleased to have you telephone me and make an arrangement to meet.

OLD SONGS and POEMS

ROBIN TAMSON'S SMIDDY.

My mither men't my auld breeks,
A an' wow! but they were duddy;
And sent me to get Mally shod
At Robin Tamson's smiddy;
The smiddy stands beside the burn
That wimples through the clachan,
I never yet gae by the door
But aye I fa' a-lauchin'.

For Robin was a walthy carle,
An' had ae bonnie dochter;
Yet ne'er wad let her take a man,
Tho' mony lads had socht her;
But what think ye o' my exploit?
The time the mare was shoeing,
I slippit up beside the lass
An' briskly fell a-wooing.

An' aye she e'ed my auld breeks,
The time that we sat crackin,'
Quo' I, "My lass ne'er mind the clouts,
I've new anes for the makin'
But gin ye'll just come hame wi' me,
An' lea' the carle, your father,
Ye'se get my breeks to keep in trim,
Myself and a' thegither."

"Deed lad," qou' she, "your offer's fair,
I really think I'll tak' it;
Sae, gang awa', get out the mare
We'll baith slip on the back o't;
For gin I wait my faither's time,
I'll wait till I be fifty.
But na! I'll marry in my prime,
An' make a wife fu' thrifty."

Wow, Robin was an angry man
At tynin' o' his dochter,
Thro 'a' the kintra-side he ran,
An' far an' near he socht her;
But when he cam' to our fire-end,
An' fand us baith thegither,
Quo' I, "Gudeman, I've ta'en your bairn,
An' ye can tak' my mither.

Auld Robin girn'd and shook his pow,
"Gude sooth," quo' he, "you're merry,
But I'll just tak' ye at your word,
An' end this hurry-burry;"
So Robin an' our auld wife
Agreed to creep thegither,
Now I hae Robin Tamson's pet,
An' Robin has my mither.

DESCRIBES HOSPITAL AT BOULOGNE

Splendidly Equipped Is This Hospital, Says Sir Frederick Treves.

Sir Frederick Treves, one of the foremost English surgeons, who is now occupied exclusively with military work, has written an interesting description of the hospitals of Boulogne, the largest English hospital base in France.

At the back of the maritime station the freightsheds have been converted into a military hospital of the type known as stationary. An uninviting, dismal and uninhabitable building has been changed into a series of bright wards, spotlessly clean, well lighted, well warmed and well ventilated.

Perfect Equipment.

This hospital is perfectly equipped in every particular, even down to a special ward for pneumonia cases. The white walls, the white sheets, the red blankets and the grey uniform of the army sisters provide a spectacle as far removed from any conception of the freightshed as can be imagined. There are two operating theatres in the hospital, both up-to-date in every point.

The hospital has also a rest station consisting of a ward of over fifty beds. It is intended for the less serious cases, for men who may have some time to wait between the arrival of the ambulance train and the departure of the transport. The Boulogne Casino has been converted into a military hospital. The building is in a garden by the sea. The casino makes a magnificent ward, with over ninety beds. At the bar, where rare wines were once served out, medicines for the ward are dispensed.

The ballroom and the room of the roulette wheels have been turned into superb wards. The finest ward is in the great baccarat hall. The cashier's office is now a nun's room, on the counter of which lint and gauze are paid out in the place of bank notes and gold. The American bar has become an X-ray room.

A body of eminent consulting physicians visits the hospitals daily to advise upon any medical cases of difficulty. No major operation is carried out until the measure has been approved by one of them. Working with this exceptional staff are a number of specialists.

Mode of Transport.

It is in the matter of transport that so much has been done for the comfort of the wounded. The motor ambulance has gone far to solve the problem. Some of these are new and especially built for the purpose, embodying the latest refinements in hospital train construction. One type of car has on either side a series of strong frameworks of iron which carry stretchers in a double tier. This can take 36 lying down cases, and can be evacuated in less than fifteen minutes through the great side doors with which these carriages are provided. It is perfectly heated and at night well lit. In loading and unloading the car the stretchers are passed through the windows without the least discomfort to the patient. No matter how long the journey lasts, the wounded can be well looked after and provided with all they want.

SOME GAMES TO PLAY ON WET EVENINGS

New Diversions Sometimes Welcomed When the Rain Comes.

Summer evenings are sometimes damp and rainy, and the hours seem long to the young folks of the house, especially at the summer cottage where the ordinary indoor diversions of the city home are not always to be found. On such an occasion, a game or two, such as are found below, may be welcomed very kindly.

Five Points.

Pile together as many sheets of notepaper as there are persons to play. Scatter on the upper one, at random, five grains of rice. Prick with a pin, without disturbing the rice, five holes through the spots where the rice has fallen. You will then have a number of sheets of paper, each containing five pinholes arranged in the same order. The game consists in each person drawing a figure which shall come within the points, using one for the head, two for the hands, and two for the feet. A great variety of amusing figures and attitudes will be the result.

What Time Is It?

This game needs two players, who understand it, a leader and his "accomplice." The accomplice leaves the room, while the leader and the other players remain inside. The leader asks the players what hour they will choose for the accomplice to guess. One will say, "Four o'clock."

The player who is outside is then called in, and says to the leader, "What time is it?" The leader answers thus: "Don't you know?" "No," says the assistant. "Tell me, what time is it?" The leader's answer is, "Doubtless, dancing time," when he assistant immediately answers, to everyone's astonishment "Four o'clock."

The key is that each hour, from 1 to 12 o'clock, has been named according to the letters of the alphabet, in rotation, from A to K. The leader, in answering must be very careful to begin each answer with the letter indicating the chosen hour; thus in the above the assistant noticed that each answer began with "d," and as "d" is the fourth letter, 4 o'clock was the time that had been chosen. Only the exact hours must be chosen.

As the different players think they have discovered the secret, they may in turn, take the assistant's place, and the funny mistakes that result will furnish amusement. The game can be explained to all after a short trial.

According to the Dry Goods Economist, in the veiling field attention is scattered among white, black and white and black combinations. Plain hexagon meshes for wear in close chin or nose arrangement are again much to the fore, but dainty woven and dotted borders and elaborate hand-run scroll effects are prominent.

Some very effective large meshed white veilings are shown which are especially appropriate for wear with outing hats such as are now dominant in the millinery world.

FASHION'S WHIMS.

Dimity and flowered organdie are very fashionable, and lavender the color of colors in prim Victorian days, is very much preferred.

Even in ordinary life the unselfish people are the happiest — those who work to make others happy and who forget themselves. The dissatisfied people are those who are seeking happiness for themselves.

Checked Motor Coat

Either the very long or three-quarter length coat is considered correct and practical for motor wear. The three-quarter length is illustrated in black and white checked gabardine. Ample sized patch-pockets and rippling fullness are features of this coat. A circular cape, hip-length, is fashioned so that it may throw back over the shoulders, or fasten high at the throat. A practical motor hat of patent leather and a heavy veil complete the outfit.

I.O.D.E. TO ENTERTAIN LADY HENDRIE

Plans for Reception Made at Yesterday's Meeting—Gratifying Report Received.

The executive committee of the Municipal Chapter, I. O. D. E., met yesterday in Cronyn Hall, when arrangements were furthered for the reception and entertainment of Lieut.-Gov. Hendrie, Lady Hendrie and Miss Hendrie, on July 21, when the lieutenant-governor is invited to this city to present colors to the 33rd Battalion, on behalf of the order. It was decided that the Municipal Chapter entertain Lady Hendrie and her daughter at luncheon at the Hunt Club. It is presumed that the lieutenant-governor will be looked after by staff officers and civic officials. The presentation of the colors will take place in Victoria Park at 3 o'clock on July 21, and it is probable that there will be a "march past" by the battalions stationed here.

The committee appointed to arrange for the colors will also have charge of the luncheon, and arrange for the reception of the visitors. Appointed on it are Mrs. McKillop (convener), Mrs. Niven, Mrs. T. H. Smaliman, Mrs. E. B. Smith, Mrs. Whitwam, Mrs. W. A. McCrimmon and Mrs. R. M. Graham.

Jam Arrived Safely.

A letter was read by the secretary from the assistant commissioner of the Red Cross in London, England, who writes in acknowledgment of the shipment of four and a half tons of jam, recently sent by the order here. He says: "Shipment arrived safely, and we received the supplies, which are most acceptable to us. Shall distribute in the way you desire, largely between Cliveden and Shorncliffe hospitals. It is very good of you and your colleagues to assist in the Red Cross Society's work in helping us to meet this very special need.

(Signed) "D. G. BRYAN.
Assistant Commissioner Red
Red Cross Socley."

Linen Shower Results.

Mrs. Cl. T. Campbell gave the report of the field comfort committee, stating that 17 bales in all were secured from the linen shower recently held, comprising 359 sheets, 2,166 towels, 853 pillowcases, about 1,000 mouth-wipes, 5,000 bandages, besides a great quantity of old linen.

Mrs. A. A. Campbell, who was appointed by the Municipal Chapter to secure supplies and comforts for the sick soldiers in the field hospital here, reported that she had received the following: Six pairs pyjamas, 6 dozen towels, 1 dozen pairs slippers, 20 dozen handkerchiefs, 2 dozen four-inch bandages and many yet to be made, 408 towels, 2 packages mouth-wipes.

Mrs. W. A. McCrimmon gave the report of what the field comfort committee of the Municipal Chapter had given to the hospital, contributions of Sir George Ross Chapter and the Seventh Regiment Chapter. A special vote of thanks was passed to Mrs. T. H. Smallman, who took the initiative in regard to the linen shower, practically "mothering" the affair. A second vote of thanks was also passed to the packing committee, whose members worked faithfully in assorting, labelling and packing. Mrs. Callard was convener, and Mrs. McCrimmon assistant convener of this committee.

Following the meeting, Mrs. Niven entertained the members of the Lord Roberts Chapter, who met in the adjoining room for sewing, and members of the Municipal executive, at afternoon tea.

Members of the Princess Patricia Chapter are most enthusiastic over the garden party which they are arranging in aid of soldiers' comforts, to be held on Friday night on the lawn of Col. Smith's residence, Wortley road south. The 33rd Battalion Band will supply music during the evening, and home-made candies will be sold by members of the chapter. Indoors, dancing will be a feature of the evening's entertainment.

The National Chapter, I. O. D. E., has asked all chapters throughout the Dominion to send reports of the money raised since the war broke out. It was stated yesterday that in London, the Lord Roberts Chapter alone had raised $3,275 in various ways since last August.

Josiah On the Woman Question

People who have in time past enjoyed the writings of "Samantha Allen" will without doubt be equally amused in a new book from the pen of Samantha's creator—Marietta Holley—this time, however, the writer being Samantha's "life pardner," Josiah Allen, and the subject "Josiah on the Woman Question."

In explaining his resolve to write a book, Josiah says:

"I had decided not to tell Samantha about my great book against female suffrage till it wuz writ and published and the crash come, but the very day I begin my memorial work she wuz cookin' a young duck with dressing, and the delicious uroma come like incense to my nostrils and insensibly it softened my feelings, and I thought mebby I ort to prepare her for what would be the effect of my book on her sect and the world at large. We'd lived together for years, and outside of her uroneous beliefs, she'd been a kind and agreeable companion, a fur better cook and housekeeper than any aunty suffragette I ever see or hearn on, and had been a help and comfort to me; she wuz baking a plum pudding too, and some hubbard squash, and as I inhaled the delicious odors I felt more and more soft and meller towards her, most as soft as the squash, and so I broached the subject to her.

"Sez I: 'What do you think, Samanthy, about my great projeck of destroying female suffrage? What do you think of my writing a book?' I said the words and paused for a reply. . . Would she overwhelm me with reproaches and entreaties to stop and not ruin her sect? Would she be overcome and swoon away? And the appaulin' thought comes to me onbid, if she did who would finish up the dinner? As I asked the question she paused with the choppin' knife in her hand and sez:

"'When I wuz a girl we had a debatin' school, and there wuz one feller that we always tried to git on the side opposite to us, his talk and arguments wuz such a help to us. I hain't no objections to your writing the book, Josiah.' And then she resoomed her work with her linement ca'm as ever. I felt relieved, but couldn't see what sot her off to telling that old story at this juncter, and can't to this day. But set it down to female inability to grasp holt of important questions and answer 'em in a straightforward way as males do."

In one chapter Josiah treats with "Man's Protectin' Love."

"'Samantha,' sez I, 'wimmin ort to marry instead of votin',' and she sez, 'why can't they do both? Men marry and vote.'

"'But,' sez I, "that is very different, Samantha. 'Men have bigger, roomier minds; wimmen and politics can sort o' run side by side through 'em without crowding each other. But female minds being more narrer and contracted, they naterally can't and hadn't ort to try to hold more'n one of 'em. But,' sez I, with a last effort to put forth the beautious arguments that my sect has clung to for ages, I sez in a deep protectin' axent, 'Marriage is the holiest, the most beautifullest thing on this earth.'

"'Yes,' sez Samantha reasonably, 'a happy marriage is, I guess, about as nigh heaven as folks ever get on earth, but how many do you find, Josiah? . . . Wimmen,' sez Samantha, 'are beginnin' to look upon marriage differently than they used to. They look now on both sides of the question . . .' sez she. 'So many avenues of pleasant, lucrative employment are open now to wimmen, and the epithet "old maid" is not of as old a badge of contumely that women won't take a ticket for the lottery of marriage for but one reason—the only reason that ever made marriage honorable and respectable, and that is through love.'

"Sez she: 'If a woman tries to talk sense and reason to a man about her needs and rights, he will generally pay her a compliment about her eyes or her nose. Tennyrate, he will turn the subject some way and won't listen to her. But if she makes eyes at him and talks soft nonsense and flatters him, he will purr like a pussy cat.'

"'Tain't so! Who ever hearn a man purr? Purrin' is sunthin' a man's nater would rebel at and scorn with perfect contemp. . . .'

"But sez Samantha: 'Lots of men stay up on a self-made pedestal looking down mentally on them who in many cases is their superiors.' Then she added that wimmen wuz more to blame for this trait in men than they wuz, for they had been educated to look up to men instead of lookin' sidewise where they ort to find him on a level at her side. It is needless to say to anyone who knows my kind of inteleck that I took immegiate advantage of this slip of her tongue and sez: 'I am glad that you admit, Samantha, that wimmen are always in the wrong. I and my sect have always knowed it, and we have always laid blame on 'em from Eve down.'

". . . I passed on to another faze —wimmen's extravagance. Sez I: 'It hain't enough fer her to spend money like water on her bridge parties and maskerades and theatre and tango parties, but she has got to wreck what little brain she's got trying to get up new follies that other wimmen hain't thought on. She has to have her dog parties and her monkey parties, when them animals come dressed like human bein's, with human folks to wait on 'em. Even you can't say but what male men look down with abhorrence on such fool doings.'

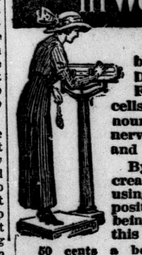

"But Sammantha sez: 'I d'no. Take a stag party sometimes—mebby in the beginnin' them stags might be able to look down on the monkeys, but after highballs and cocktails and gallons of shampain has been consumed, I d'no whether them stags could look down on sober, temperate monkeys, or the monkeys look down on them, though no doubt some of the stags behave and can see straight.'

"I scorned to notice this slur onto my sect brung up I knowed to make me swurve from my subjeck. . . .

I smashed that argument about vanity to once and for ever. Sez I so scathingly that it seemed as if she must show signs of scorchin': 'Did you ever see a man wear a cosset? or carry a vanity bag?'"

After one heated argument in which Samantha had worsted Josiah, he writes: "Spent most of the mornin' putterin' around the barn and hen house. Not that I was feared, because I belong to the fearless sect. . . . The smell and taste of the tender roast lamb and lushious vegetables softened my feelings considerably, or would have if it hadn't been for the look on Samantha's face. It wuzn't a cross look, nor a mean one—would that it wuz, for I could handle them looks better. No, it wuz a kind of superior look, as if she had conquored me in the argument. . . ."

New Players Will Arrive Before the Week Is Out

Manager Reisling Has Three New Men On the Way—South Michigan League Blows Up, Resulting in Many Good Players Being Turned Loose.

Manager Reisling and his London team spent last night and part of this morning in London, and left at noon for St. Thomas, where the club plays today and tomorrow, returning here Saturday for a double-header with the Saints. The local team is still in a crippled condition, although Lacroix will likely be able to work today. Mulina, the new pitcher, reported last night.

Mulina Reports.

Reisling is out after new players, and the club will be greatly strengthened before the week is out. The pitching staff is in poor shape, but with the addition of Mulina, who seems a likely youngster, it should improve. Dillinger and Hammono are still not in form, and Graham is slowly recovering from his attack of tonsilitis. If these players ever get into form again, the team should win a lot of games. The boys have been sitting well and scoring four or five runs every game, but they have not been getting the pitching. The infield is not as strong as it might be either. Lusk is pretty weak in the field, although he has appeared to advantage at bat. Schaffer would be more valuable in the outfield, but he is playing a good game at second base, despite the fact that he is not at home there.

A New Experience for London.

As a result of Brantford winning yesterday, London is now tied with Warner's team for last place. This is the first time in the history of the Canadian League that London has been so low in the standing at this time of the season. The South Michigan League blew up yesterday, and as a result some pretty good ball players are loose. Reisling is in touch with two or three of them, and they will likely come here either tomorrow or Saturday. The South Michigan has been on the rocks all season practically, and the explosion did not come as a surprise. In most minor leagues in the States, the end of the season is usually around July 4.

Rain is Hurting Canadian League Clubs Somewhat

London Has Been Away a Week But Only Two Games Have Been Played.

Once more, rain stepped in and cost the London Club a bunch of money. The team has been away for nearly a week and yet only two games on the road have been played. Just when the Brants were picking up, and Brantford fans would have turned out in large numbers, rains spoiled three games, one Friday and two Saturday. Yesterday, the London and Guelph clubs were to have played at Galt, but rain prevented the game. A half holiday was declared for the occasion, and there is no doubt that the attendance would have been good enough to have given both London and Guelph a good sum.

Wingham Cinches Lacrosse Group by Beating St. Marys

Northern Town Team Beats Stone Town Club, 15 to 5, Away From Home.

ST. MARYS, July 7.—An intermediate lacrosse game played here today, between Wingham and St. Marys, resulted in a win for the visitors by a score of 15 to 5. The match was played in a downpour of rain, which lasted through and marred what otherwise would have been the largest crowd that ever witnessed a game here. The game was very even up to the third quarter when the superior condition of the visitors in the last quarter won the game for Wingham. Allan Kinder of Preston acted as referee and gave splendid satisfaction. The line-up:

Alberts	2nd Def.	Hawkins

TEN HOMERS AT BRANTFORD DURING GAMES WITH OTTAWA

Brants Won Again Yesterday, Cooper's Hitting Being the Big Feature of the Game.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

BRANTFORD, July 7. — Two more home runs occurred in today's game betwen Brantford and Ottawa, which the locals won by the score of 4 to 3. This makes ten circuit clouts during the series here this week, and this is a new Canadian League record. Today's game was the best played of the series. Ottawa got the jump by scoring two runs in the first frame, but the Brants came back and added one, and in the fourth tied up the game by scoring two, after Ottawa had secured one in its half. The game was won in the fifth, when the locals shoved a run across. Peterson was taken out in the fourth and Roberts finished. Cresswell pitched fine ball for the locals after the first inning. Petie Powers got a home run off him in the fourth.

Cooper, the Brantford catcher, was the star of the game. He had a home run, a double and a single in four times up, besides playing a great game behind the bat.

Of the ten home runs made in the series just closed, the Brants made seven of them.

The score:

Brantford	1 0 0 2 1 0 0 0 0	—4 12 0
Ottawa	2 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0	—3 6 1

PITCHER MULINA RETURNS HOME! HIS SISTER DIES

London's New Twirler Reports Last Night and Receives Sad News This Morning.

The London baseball club can capture all the medals for being the original hard-luck club. Last night Pitcher Mulina reported to "Doc" Reisling and was to have been used against St. Thomas in the game at that city today. This morning Mulina received a telegram from his folks in Buffalo stating that his sister had died suddenly. He left on a noon train for his home, and will not be back until next week.

This is just another case of hard luck that the club has run into. Mulina is a likely-looking boy, and at present Reisling needs another pitcher badly. Hammond and Dillinger and Graham are in poor shape, and the club is badly crippled. Three more players will arrive tomorrow, and it would just be the club's luck for them to get into a train wreck or some other kind of accident before they reach here.

THE GREATEST PITCHER IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Advertiser Illustrations.

GROVER ALEXANDER, the Philadelphia National League Club's star twirler, who is pitching such good ball this season that the experts say he is the greatest pitcher of them all. On Monday he held the New York Giants to one hit. He has only been beaten four or five times this season and he has a great record of games won. His work has been largely instrumental in keeping the Phillies within a few games from the top of the league.

BRAVES AND DODGERS PLAY A RUNLESS TIE

Neither Team Scored a Run In Sixteen Innings.

BOSTON LOST FIRST ONE

New York and Philadelphia Broke Even, Tesreau Losing Ten-Inning Game.

BROOKLYN, July 7.—After making it four straight from Boston, by winning the first game of today's double-header by 4 to 3, the Brooklyns fought out a sixteen-innings runless tie. The first game was a battle between south-paws, Smith having a shade on Tyler.

The second game was called at the end of the sixteenth inning on account of darkness after Douglass had fought a great duel with James and Davis. The Braves got only one hit off Douglass in the first nine innings and only four altogether. James allowed two hits in five innings and then gave way to a pinch-hitter. Davis pitched great ball in the last eleven innings, keeping the nine hits off him well scattered. Both teams had numerous chances to score, but were stopped by brilliant fielding.

GIANTS AND PHILLIES SPLIT.

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—New York and Philadelphia divided a double-header today, the Giants taking the opener 5 to 4, and the home team the second game, which went to ten innings, 1 to 0. In the first contest both Mathewson and Mayer were hit hard, but double-plays saved the former. It was suffrage day and Niehoff was presented with $10 for making a home run. In the closing event, Tesreau pitched to only twenty-seven batsmen in nine innings, only two men got on bases and these were victims in double-plays. In the tenth, Byrne singled. Bancroft was called out when hit by a ball that he bunted. Whitted doubled and Byrne scored on Cravath's single.

ORANGEVILLE LACROSSE TEAM LOSES TO SOUNDERS

OWEN SOUND, July 7.—In one of the closest and hardest games ever seen on the local field, the Greys defeated the Orangeville O. A. L. A. Intermediates, by a score of 3 to 1. Owen Sound took two in rapid succession in the first quarter, but then the visitors settled down and for half an hour it was exciting. Then Orangeville notched one. In the last quarter, Owen Sound tallied another, making it safe. The line-up of the two teams was as follows:

Orangeville—Booth, Cushion, Morrison, Cranston, Scott, Stephen, Wungs, Keith, Sarles, Bennett.

Owen Sound—Bell, Rodgers, Hart, T. Young, B. Young, Stafford, Orford, Neving, Wilson, Oliver.

Should Not Send Polo Challenge for Fifteen Years

Foxhall Keene Says America Should Wait Until After the War.

CHICAGO, July 7.—It would not be sportsmanlike for American polo players to send a challenge to England for the international polo trophy within fifteen years, according to Foxhall Keene, here today to referee the opening tomorrow of the western polo championship tourney.

"England took the cup away in fair play," he said. "Of the army players who did it, one or two have been killed and others wounded.

"England cannot rehabilitate its polo team in fifteen years. And until her teams are thoroughly back to form I do not think a challenge should be sent from America. We want the cup, but we want it with honor."

JACK DUNN'S RICHMOND TEAM DEFEATED LEAFS

McTigue Was Hit Hard—Royals Lost to Harrisburg—Jersey City Wins.

RICHMOND, Va., July 7.—Jack Dunn's former Orioles defeated Toronto today, 4 to 2. McTigue was hit hard, while Morrisette kept hits scattered, except in the first and sixth innings.

SKEETERS WIN CLOSE ONE.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., July 7.—Crutcher and Huenke battled on even terms for six innings today neither yielding a run. In the seventh and eight, however, Huenke faltered and the Skeeters put a run across in each inning. Rochester made a bid in the last frame, but Crutcher tightened up and Jersey City won, 2 to 1.

GRAYS BEAT BISONS.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., July 7.—Providence beat Buffalo today, 3 to 1, chiefly through Schultz' ability to hold the Bisons safe when hits meant anything. The Greys got an early lead off Fullenweider's pitching and had the game won before Tyson took up the Bisons' burden.

Attraction of Automobile Work

Although the various branches of the automobile industry offer so many opportunities to the young man desirous of entering an attractive and paying profession, there does not appear to be enough thoroughly qualified men to satisfy the ever-increasing demand.

An employer is not willing to turn his garage into a schoolroom for teaching a man the technical details of a car, but wants to get in touch with a man who knows a car from A to Z—the man who has the technical end—the man who has studied.

A very interesting free booklet, "Automobile Running," can be obtained at the local office of the International Correspondence Schools, 286 Dundas street. This little book tells you how to qualify quickly and at small cost for one of these well-paid positions. July8,10

Charley Herzog, of Reds, Visits St. Thomas to Look Over Player Merlin Kopp

Manager of Cincinnati National League Club and Noted Cincinnati Sport Writer Attended Yesterday's Game at Pinafore Park, But Rain Spoils Everything.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

ST. THOMAS, July 7.—Jack Ryder, one of America's most famous sport-writers, who accompanies the "Reds" on the road for his paper, the Cincinnati Inquirer, and Charlie Herzog, the manager of the Cincinnati National League club, were visitors in St. Thomas today. The Reds had an off-day, making the jump from Chicago to New York, and Manager Herzog seized the opportunity to come to St. Thomas to look over Merlin Kopp, the Saints' great outfielder. They did not see the youngster in action properly, as the rain broke up the proceedings at the end of the third innings of the first game.

Dropped In On The Quiet.

Herzog and Ryder did not advise the local manager of their coming, they dropped in quietly this morning, and spent a portion of their spare time by making a visit to the home of "Bob" Emslie, the wellknown National League umpire, who resides on Elgin street. They knew Robert was absent, but wanted to see his family.

Manager Herzog is one of the smallest men playing in the big leagues, and very much resembles Norman Elberfeldt. Mr. Ryder is almost a giant, being about six feet three inches tall, and very burly.

Saw Only Three Innings.

The visitors were very much disappointed, when the rain stopped the play. Both expressed themselves as pleased with the three innings they witnessed. The gentlemen also expressed much astonishment as to the City of St. Thomas, saying that it was one of the prettiest and most modern little cities they had visited. They left for New York on the Wolverine at 7:20 p.m. Manager Herzog stated to the club officials that he hoped to be able to see Player Kopp in action some day soon again.

NIAGARA BOWLING HALTED BY RAIN

Hamilton Fernleighs and Guelph In Trophy Finals.

FINAL MATCH ON TODAY

Downpour Stopped Play In Sixth of Association and Fourth of Consolation.

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, July 7.—The rain that had been threatening since noon came down this afternoon and stopped play in the sixth round of the association and the fourth round of the consolation. The finals in the trophy match will be played tomorrow afternoon.

The fifth round of the Association brought some crack rinks together and some rattling games ensued. Sir John Willison furnished perhaps the best of the lot. He was up against Heaman's crack London Thistle rink, and with the latter lying three, Sir John ran the jack with his last bowl, and won by a single shot. J. Rennie's Granites clashed with Ecclestone's St. Kitts rink and won a fine game by a narrow margin.

RAIN BROKE UP DOUBLE-HEADER IN ST. THOMAS

[Special to The Advertiser.]

ST. THOMAS, July 7.—Rain interfered with the scheduled double-header at Pinafore Park here today. Hamilton got a run over in the second innings, and the Saints had a man on second and third with one gone in their part of the fourth when Ump. Cockman decided it was raining too hard to continue play. It was very unfortunate for the St. Thomas club, who seem to have hit a winning stride and stood a good chance to grab the double bill from Cristal's men. It was the first Wednesday half-holiday, and had the weather been nice a good crowd would have been present. Hughey was on the mound for the locals and Dolan worked for the Hams.

402 ALIENS PAROLED HAVE FAILED TO REPORT

TORONTO, July 7. — Chief Constable Grassett, the registrar of alien enemies, states that of 3,386 alien enemies on the books turned over to him by the former registrar, 402 have failed to report, as they had promised when they were paroled.

"In the majority of cases the men are ignorant laborers, who are continually moving about in search of work," he said.

GERMANS ALLEGE FRENCH CALLOUS

Allege That War Prisoners Are Treated With Harshness.

SOME GONE TO GUIANA

Germany Retaliates and Goes Back to War of 1871 for Excuse.

[Canadian Press.]

BERLIN, July 7, via London, July 8. —3:07 a.m.—Reports of continued unsatisfactory treatment of German prisoners of war by the French have resulted in the German Government adopting further retaliatory measures in an effort to secure better conditions for them.

The case foremost in public attention here is that of the German cavalry patrol, headed by Lieutenant Von Schierstaedt and Count Strachwitz, who were caught behind the French lines in the retirement from the Marne and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for appropriating the food on which they lived during their three weeks of wanderings before they surrendered. Lieutenant Von Schierstaedt's sentence provided that he be transported to the penal colony in French Guiana. The members of the patrol, despite all efforts to change this sentence, are still confined in the military penitentiary at Avignon, it is reported, and are treated the same as French military criminals. Lieut. Von Schierstaedt is said to have gone insane under the treatment and to have been sent to an asylum.

Taken to Spandau.

Six French officers today were transferred in retaliation to the military prison at Spandau. They will be given the same treatment as the patrol members until the latter are treated as regular prisoners of war.

Fifty other French officers were taken from officers' prison camps and sent to Fort Zorndorf, near Kuestrin, in an effort to force better treatment of fifty German officers at Fort Entrevaux, France. These Germans, it is said, are held in strict arrest in four casements of the French fort and are allowed to leave their cells only an hour daily. Officers who are prisoners in Germany, including the French, have, on the other hand, full freedom of movement within the limits of the camps and can exchange visits. They are not even locked up at night, merely being pledged to remain within their sleeping quarters.

The Government announces that if further complaints are received the retaliatory treatment will be extended to other French officers, and calls French attention to the statement that many more French than German officers are prisoners.

Blame It On 1871.

One cause of the Franco-German complications regarding prisoners of war dates back to the Franco-Prussian war. Officer prisoners were often granted additional liberties upon giving their word of honor not to attempt to escape. Germany has not extended this privilege to French prisoners in this war, it being stated that there was wholesale breaking of parole by French officers to join Gambetta's armies in 1871 and that the Government felt unable to grant the privileges now.

In regard to England the situation is much better. The Germans acknowledge that fair treatment now is generally accorded German officers who are prisoners in England and are disposed in return to make the lot of British prisoners as easy as possible. The Germans also express gratitude for the efforts of the American embassies on behalf of prisoners.

French Cruiser on Asiatic Coast Hits Teuton Emblem.

[Canadian Press.]

BERLIN, July 7.—The French armored cruiser Jeanne D'Arc, according to the Overseas News Agency, has again bombarded the Turkish town of Alexandretta, on the Gulf of Iskanderum. The Turkish authorities, the dispatch adds, refused to haul down the German flag flying over the German Consulate, and it was shot down by the French warship.

ONLY HAND BRAKE ON CAR SPEEDING TO AWFUL PLUNGE

Passengers Scattered Like Matches When Old Car Crashes Over Bank and Smashes Into Trees — Awful Scene as Rescuers Reach Wreckage.

(BY LOU E. MARSH OF THE TORONTO STAR, AT THE SCENE OF THE WRECK.)

[Special to The Advertiser.]

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, July 7.—A greasy rail, an antiquated car overburdened with passengers, a steep grade and a horseshoe curve, resulted in the instant death of fifteen excursionists from Toronto and the fatal injury of several more and the injury of over 40 others at Queenston at 7 o'clock tonight. The dead and injured all belong to Toronto.

They came over on the Sunday school excursion of the St. John Norway Anglican Church and the Greenwood Avenue Methodist Church on the Niagara steamers in the morning, along with the Westmorland Avenue Church Sunday School picnic.

The Westmorland Avenue excursionists remained at Niagara-on-the-Lake while the others went on to the Falls. The accident occurred on the return trip to Queenston to embark on the steamer Chippewa.

Only a Hand-Brake.

The last, a car crowded to the guard rails, was the unfortunate one. There were over 100 people, principally women and children, on the car. Coming down off the Niagara Heights into Queenston from Brock's Monument, the railway takes a sharp curve. The grade is steep and the curve acute. The overloaded car was equipped with only a hand-brake. The rails were slippery from rain which had just commenced to fall. Half-way down, the car got beyond the control of the motorman and his hand-brake, jumped the rails of the curve, sliced through one of the poles which carries the trolley wires, leaped down the embankment and, partially turning over, landed against two sturdy trees.

Scattered Like Matches.

The final crash wrecked the rear of the car. Those that were not killed or pinned in the wreckage were thrown far and wide among the rocks and bushes. The motorman was probably injured when the car struck the post, while the conductor was thrown 30 feet, alighting on a rock. Both were dangerously, if not fatally, injured. When the men and women who were uninjured or only slightly hurt in the party pulled themselves together they immediately set to work to succor the injured. Two women, otherwise unhurt, fainted at the scene. It was heart-rending work for everyone, as all the uninjured had children or relatives or close friends in the wreckage.

Rescue the Injured.

The accident, which occurred only a quarter of a mile from Queenston wharf, attracted instant attention and everybody in the little village turned out and helped pull the wounded and dead out of the heap of wreckage. Telephone messages to Niagara-on-the-Lake brought the Red Cross and ambulance corps from the military camp as fast as the motors could bring them and hot on their heels came the local doctors and medical men from the O.B.A. bowling at the Queen's Royal. In less than an hour they were on the ground. The military men who went up took charge of affairs. The wreckage was rapidly cleaned up.

Quick Aid to Injured.

Those instantly killed, four men, two women and a small boy and girl, were laid out, about a dozen of the dangerously injured rushed off to the hospital at Niagara, and the remainder carried to the steamer which crossed to Lewiston, called at Niagara-on-the-Lake and then hurried for Toronto. On the steamer were over forty injured people. On woman died before the boat left the river.

Terrible Scenes on Boat.

The scene on the boat was a horrible one, men and women and children with injuries ranging all the way from broken arms and legs to gashed heads and bodies and internal injuries, were scattered all over the boat, and around them were gathered crying women and whimpering children. Two doctors were busy all the way down endeavoring to succor the injured. Behind them in the rain at the scene of the accident lay eight bodies covered with sheets, a grim, ghastly line beside the tracks, guarded by soldiers until the coroner arrived. He ordered the removal of the bodies to Niagara Falls.

On the body of a dead man was found a watch engraved, "Presented to Robert Watson by the Humane Society for rescuing a child from drowning." No other identifications were made up to midnight.

Ship Company Delayed?

There was much sharp criticism of the steamship company because the steamer on which the injured were placed delayed to cross to Lewiston and to make the call at Niagara-on-the-Lake. Those who commented upon the matter insisted that in such an emergency the steamer should have gone full speed for Toronto, leaving the Corona, of the same line, which was lying at Lewiston, to make an extra trip and take care of the Lewiston and Niagara-on-the-Lake passengers.

MYSTERIOUS BOXES LUGGED INTO HOUSE DURING NIGHT

Seventeen German Sympathizers Said To Have Been Meeting Secretly in Tilbury—Authorities Appealed To.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

CHATHAM, July 7. — German residents of the section of the country about Tilbury are alleged to be holding two or three mysterious meetings a week. This was the complaint which was given to High Constable Peters this morning by a respectable resident of Tilbury.

Seventeen German sympathizers are alleged to have congregated at one of these nightly meetings. Queer-looking automobiles are known to have been driven to the "suspected house" in the dead of the night, discharging luggage in the shape of boxes, one of which it took four men to lift. It is also claimed that the people supposed to have attended the meetings have been very wary since they heard that the police were after them.

RUSH OF TURKISH HORDES FOLLOWING HAIL OF SHELLS BREAKS UPON ALLIED FRONT

Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton Places Losses of Oriental Enemy at 5,000 — Some Detachments Simply Withered Up Under Fire From Machine Guns.

[Canadian Press.]

LONDON, July 7.—8 p.m.—The Turkish forces completely failed in the big attack which they began on July 4 against the Anglo-French forces on the Dardanelles, according to a statement issued today by the British official press bureau, which added that the Turks lost heavily.

The text of the statement follows:

"Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton reports that the night of July 3-4 was quiet in the northern section, but at 4 a.m. the enemy started a heavy bombardment of the trenches. All the guns previously used against us and some new ones were in action, but the bombardment died away about 6 a.m., without doing much damage. During the bombardment about twenty 11.2-inch shells were dropped from a Turkish battleship in the straits.

Five Thousand Shells Thrown.

"In the southern section the Turks kept up a heavy musketry fire along the whole line during the night, and did not leave their trenches. At 4 a.m. their batteries started the most violent bombardment that has yet been experienced. At least 5,000 rounds of artillery ammunition were expended by them.

"Meanwhile this shelling of our lines on the peninsula proved the preliminary to a general attack on our front, with special efforts at certain points. The principal effort was made at the junction of the royal naval division section with that of the French section. Here at 7 a.m. the Turks drove back our advanced troops and assaulted a portion of the line held by the royal naval division. Some 50 Turks gained a footing in our trenches, where, nevertheless, some men of the royal naval division held on to our supports, and the men who had retired counter-attacked immediately and hurled the Turks out of the trench again.

An Abortive Attack.

Another attack on the right of the 29th division section was practically wiped out by rifle and machine gun fire. On our left the Turks massed in a nullah to the northeast of our newly-captured trenches, and attempt[illegible]

eral attacks. None of these was able to get home, owing to the steadiness of our troops and our effective artillery support. The bombardment died down towards 11 a.m., though it was resumed at intervals.

"Not only was the result a complete failure, but while our losses were negligible, and no impression was made on our line, the enemy added a large number to his recent very heavy casualties. It seems plain, from the disjointed nature of this attack, that he is finding it difficult to drive his infantry forward to face our fire."

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE OF PREMIERS NOT POSSIBLE IN PRESENT CONDITIONS

This is Bonar Law's Reply To Inquiry Regarding Coming Visit of Borden.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]

LONDON, July 7.—In the House of Commons tonight Montague Barlow asked the Colonial Secretary if, in view of the proposed visit of the Canadian Premier, the opportunity would be given the prime ministers of other dominions to assemble at an early date in London to discuss the conduct of the war.

Bonar Law replied that if the Prime Minister of Canada or any other dominion comes to London the Government will gladly take advantage of the opportunity of discussion offered by his visit, but, as explained by my predecessor, in regard to the imperial conference, I do not think anything in the nature of a full conference is possible at present.

BRAKES DEFECTIVE, NO SAND FOR RAILS, CAUSES OF WRECK

Admissions Made by Motorman to Doctor— Injured Rushed to Hospitals.

TORONTO, July 7.—The cause of the trolley accident near Queenston Heights, according to Dr. Arthur Lipman, was the trolley coming off the wire, the brakes not working and the motorman not having a supply of sand to spill on the rails. Dr. Lipman said that the motorman of the car told him these facts. Dr. Lipman was a passenger on the ill-fated car, and received slight injuries to his head.

At Niagara Falls, every doctor in the city, with assistants from the American side, attended the wants of the injured. The entire automobile transports conveyed the injured from the car to the hospital on Jepson street. The limited staff at the hospital did all in their power to alleviate the sufferings of the injured, the injuries consisting of broken and lacerated legs, arms and heads.

RUSSIANS REPULSE DESPERATE CHARGE

Germans Hurled Back From Strong Position—Allies Capture Guns.

PETROGRAD, July 7. — (Via London, July 8.) — The following Russian official statement regarding the progress of hostilities was given out here tonight:

"Between the Vistula and the Vieprz Rivers, in the direction of Lublin, on Wednesday stubborn fighting continued. Between the villages of Josefow and Urzendow persistent attempts by the enemy to capture the heights on the right bank of Podlifle brook were unavailing. On the upper course of the Urzendowka River the enemy delivered violent attacks against the sector of the villages of Skortchitze and Evunine. These were repulsed and we threw him back in complete disorder.

"Along the road leading from Krasnik and the Rivers Bystrytza and Kossajevka, where the enemy's dispositions form a salient angle, our troops on Wednesday successfully continued to develop the counter-attack begun on Tuesday, and the enemy was compelled to pass to the defensive. In the course of the day we took on this front no fewer than two thousand prisoners and several machine guns.

CANADIAN VESSELS WARNED TO WATCH FOR ENEMY CRAFT

Submarine Rumor Gains Credence by Official Notice.

[Canadian Press.]

MONTREAL, July 7.—Rumors that German submarines might cross the Atlantic for the purpose of attacking ships leaving the St. Lawrence and Maritime Province ports are probably the causes of a strong warning that has been issued to mariners by A. Johnson, deputy minister of marine and fisheries.

The notice reads:

"The masters of all vessels navigating Canadian waters are warned as to the necessity of keeping a sharp lookout and reporting any suspicious craft they may sight. Small fishing and coasting vessels are particularly urged to at once report any such craft to the nearest customs officer for transmission [illegible] telegraph on the east coast [illegible] captain in charge, Hal[illegible] yard, and on the w[illegible] superintendent, [illegible] yard.

NO HOLT BOMBS ON CUNARDERS

Saxonia and Philadelphia Are Carefully Searched in Mid-Ocean.

GREAT SUSPENSE GONE

New York Detective Force Unable to Locate 30 Lbs. of Dynamite.

[Canadian Press.]

NEW YORK, July 7.—Fears for the safety of the Cunard Line steamship Saxonia were dissipated late today when a wireless message, saying there were no bombs aboard, was received here from her captain in answer to the warning sent out that Frank Holt had asserted that this boat and the steamship Philadelphia of the American Line, were in danger of internal explosions today. Earlier, a report had been received from the Philadelphia that no bombs were found aboard her.

However, the tension caused by the warning of the man who set off the Capitol bomb, then shot J. P. Morgan and finally killed himself, was not entirely relieved, because it was not known that he had not left explosives aboard other steamers. Both the Saxonia and Philadelphia left New York on July 3 for Liverpool. The Philadelphia, being the faster boat, is due to dock on the other side on July 10 or 11, while the Saxonia should reach her destination on July 13 or 14. Both boats were in mid-ocean today. Holt had written that "steamers leaving New York, July 3, will be destroyed in mid-ocean by an explosion."

Holt Really Was Muenter.

The growing belief that Holt was Erich Muenter, the alleged wife-murderer, was strengthened here today by the positive identification of the dead man as Muenter by three men who knew the latter as the former Harvard instructor.

While the police are working hard on the theory that Holt had accomplices in his dynamiting operations, nothing was made known tonight as to the result of the investigation.

Prof. Charles Munroe, expert on explosives of the bureau of mines at Washington, who conducted the investigation here after Holt dynamited a room in the capitol, declared today he was confident Holt had accomplices or at least some source of money for his operations. Prof. Munroe pointed out that Holt's pay was small, but his operations had been expensive.

Wife Admits the Letter.

Admission that Mrs. Frank Holt received a letter yesterday from her husband intimating he had planned to blow up one or more transatlantic liners with timed bombs was made today by Mrs. Holt's attorney, J. E. Cockrell, in Dallas, Texas. Mrs. Holt previously had denied receiving the letter.

French Report Capture of More Than Two Hundred Yards of Enemy's Ground.

[Canadian Press.]

PARIS, July 7.—10:40 p.m.—The following official communication was issued by the war office tonight:

"Quite spirited artillery actions have taken place in the region to the north of Arras and in the sector of Quenneviere.

"On the heights of the Meuse there was a violent bombardment of our positions at Les Eparges.

"In the forest of Apremont, after fierce engagements, which continued through part of the morning, the infantry action reported in the preceding communication ceased, the enemy, who suffered material losses, making no new gains at any point.

"In the western part of the forest of LePretre, by the use of grenades, we have retaken more than two hundred yards of trenches.

"There is nothing of importance to report on the rest of the front."

ITALIANS MAKING STEADY PROGRESS

Do Serious Damage To Austrian Defences in the Corderole Valley.

AVIATORS BOMB JUNCTION

Also Drop Shells On Aviation Field Causing Several Fires.

[Canadian Press.]

Rome, July 7, via Paris, July 8.—The official statement issued tonight at the headquarters of the Italian general staff was as follows:

"An attack against our position at Passo di Campo in the Val d'Adone was repulsed with heavy loss.

"In Cadore our heavy artillery opened fire on the enemy's defensive works at Corte, in the upper valley of Cordevole. At La Tagliata and Tresassi, in Val Porala, serious damage was done.

"In Carnia we repulsed attacks against our positions at Passo Promosio and in the direction of Val Grande.

"Combats continue on the Carnic plateau, where we are making slow but constant progress. Between July 4 and 7 we took 1,400 prisoners.

"On the night of July 6 an Italian dirigible effectively bombarded the railroad junction north of Opcina (northeast of Triest). Aeroplanes dropped a number of bombs yesterday on the Austrian aviation field near Aisevissa, east of Gorizia, causing fires, and also on the railroad station at Nabresina. Our aviators were obliged to alight, but returned unharmed."

GREEK BOATS HELD

Two Taken to Malto for Examination —One From New York.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 8.—According to an Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, the Greek steamers Thessaloniki and Janina, from the United States, were stopped at Gibraltar and were subsequently convoyed to Malta for further examination.

The Thessaloniki sailed from New York June 19 for Piraeus. There is no record in the maritime records of the Janina.

INDIA TO LEND HAND IN MAKING MUNITIONS

[Canadian Press.]

LONDON, July 7—(Through Reuter's Ottawa agency).—An official dispatch from Simla, India, says:

"The Government is inquiring into the capacities of railway and private engineering works to ascertain to what extent they may be able to supplement the existing production of military munitions factories. Most encouraging offers of help have been received from the managements of the various Indian railways and leading private engineering shops and firms.

"The gallant fighting of the Indians and the Allies and recent events in Europe have deeply impressed the Indian public with the fact that India must play her part in the Empire's struggle. The Indian civil service of the United Provinces set a fine example recently, by agreeing to give a percentage of their salaries to the war fund. Other provinces will likely emulate this patriotic offer.

"Military patriotism continues undiminished and a fresh wave of patriotism is now rolling over the country. The monsoon set in satisfactorily and the cultivators view the crop prospects with great hopefulness."

FRANCE CONSERVING ITS SUPPLY OF GOLD

[Canadian Press.]

Paris, July 8.—A decree has been published prohibiting the export of gold except by the Bank of France. This is a precautionary measure taken at the suggestion of Minister of Finance Ribot. It has been found that gold which has been exported has not been destined always for a neutral country in settlement of accounts. A free outflow might result in a dangerous traffic, according to M. Ribot.

The amount of gold in the Bank of France has been increased 13,500,000 frnes ($2,700,000) this week as the result of the appeal made by the Government that the gold supply of the country be exchanged for bank notes.

JOHN D. CELEBRATES HIS 76TH BIRTHDAY

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 8.—John D. Rockefeller celebrated today the 76th anniversary of his birth on his estate at Pocantico Hills, Tarrytown, N. Y. He had intended to go to Forest Hills, his home in Cleveland, for the anniversary, but changed his plans within a few days if the weather permitted. Mr. Rockefeller expected to take a round of golf on his own links, dine with his children and grandchildren and spent a quiet day with his family and friends.

LIST OF DEAD IN TROLLEY DISASTER

the cause of last night's tragedy, when the lives of thirteen Toronto people were crushed out by the derailment of a trolley car, is best indicated by the statement of Motorman Sydney Boyt of Niagara Falls, Ont., who, with Conductor George Caswell of the same place, was in charge of the car. He said: "At Lowry's Corner, the third curve above the wharf, the car began to skid. I saw that it was getting away from me, and began to work in every way to curb its momentum. The brakes would not work, neither was there any effect when I tried the reverse. The rails were greasy and the sand I poured on the tracks did no good.

"I passed the second curve safely, but she was gaining speed all the time. I knew that even if the next curve was passed all right the car would plunge through the platform at the wharf. I did not lose my head, but tried again and again to break her speed, but to no avail."

Motorman Boyt is an old and tried employee of the system. His shoulder was dislocated and both hands lacerated.

STORY OF THE ACCIDENT

[Special to The Advertiser.]

TORONTO, July 7.—Plunging down the steep, curved electric line, running wild of all control, a Niagara Falls and Victoria Park Railway car, crowded with Sunday School picnickers from Toronto, jumped the tracks just above the village of Queenston at 7 o'clock tonight. The car swerved on the embankment, careened over on its side and plowed into the ground below. Fifteen of its passengers were killed outright or died of their injuries and over fifty were injured.

CAR PACKED WITH PEOPLE.

The tragic accident occurred upon the historic grounds of the battle of Queenston Heights. The car, which was literally packed with excursionists standing between the seats and even hanging on behind, swayed madly round two of the curves on the steep incline, swept past the switch and plunged from the tracks 100 feet from the base of the heights. The motorman, Sidney Boyd, lost control of the car through the brakes failing to respond a considerable distance above the village. The car immediately began to gain a terrible momentum. The screams and cries of the terrified passengers attracted the stupefied attention of those above and below. There was no possibility to give aid.

Cuts Through Tree Like Knife.

Two of the sharp curves the madly speeding car negotiated in safety, though, and as it swept around them, spectators held their breaths. On the third and last curve the car plunged from the rails. It completely jumped the tracks, and wiping away a trolley pole as though it were a fishing pole, landed upon its side, and ripped for some few feet along the ground, cutting down a tree as though with a knife.

Debris and Crushed Bodies.

Contact with the tree completely wrecked the rear part of the car and the forepart slewed on for some further distance, leaving in its wake a trail of debris and crushed bodies.

The fearful swiftness with which death had come to some of their companions and injury to many others had scarcely time to make an impression on the passengers at the steamer dock below, and to send them swarming up the track to the hillside to begin the work of rescue, before unexpected help came from twelve soldiers of the 19th Regiment on guard upon the international bridge. They were nearer to the scene of the disaster than the people on the dock or in the village. When they reached the overturned and crushed car with its swarm of writhing victims, their first work was to remove the woodwork that pinned in the passengers and prevented those who remained alive from freeing themselves.

Car Was Jammed.

The car was an open, cross seated trolley, and it is estimated that there were 160 people in and on it at the time of the disaster. The car would normally hold from 60 to 80 people, but a rain coming up, suddenly a rush was made by the crowd until it was filled to its utmost capacity.

As news of the incident reached Queenston Heights, the military camp at Niagara was promptly communicated with by long distance telephone, and the entire field hospital of surgeons, nurses and equipment were hurried to the scene in automobiles.

Relief work was done quickly and well. About an hour and a half after the accident there remained only the wrecked car and the long, still sheet-covered remains to show what a terrible ending had come to those who left their homes in the morning full of life and eager for the enjoyment of it.

A Morbid Crowd.

It was a scene dreary and dreadful, beyond description. Through the dusk and the shadow of the trees the rain was falling, a score of the morbidly curious walked from body to body remarking a shoe torn off, a foot here, a sign of distortion there. A county constable and two soldiers were in charge, and restrained those whose curiosity aroused them too far. The living had gone on to Toronto, the badly injured had been taken to Niagara Falls, and the dead were there alone. Just in the rear of the car was a little pile of children's hats and coats and a man gulped as he passed—he had little ones of his own.

Emergency Brake Required.

A man in a conductor's uniform volunteered the information that the car had got out of control. He said cars travelling on such a steep grade should be provided with an emergency brake. It was a bad night on the railway. Rain had just begun to fall at the time the accident occurred, and a half-wet track is the worst a railwayman has to deal with. Watchers waited and wondered if the coroner would ever come. The county constable held out no encouragement. Anyway, they simply viewed the bodies and had them removed.

The terrible stillness that clung to those shapeless beings under the sheets began to get on the nerves. One of the victims, a man, carried a watch presented to Robert Watson by the Humane Society for rescuing a little girl from drowning.

From Two Churches.

Most of the victims, it was stated, belonged to the Woodgreen Methodist Church, and St. John's Church, Norway, both of which were holding a Sunday school picnic. The majority of the people connected with the churches had left on an earlier boat, and even the pastor of the Woodgreen Church, the Rev. Dr. T. E. Bartley, was unaware of the tragedy until a late hour tonight.

The steamer, with its freight of dead and injured, and its many bereaved, reached Toronto shortly before 11 o'clock in a downpour of rain. It was met by all the available ambulance cars in the city, and these had to be supplemented by automobiles. A crowd of anxious relatives and friends were there to get word of their kin. Yonge street was given over to rushing motors. Street cars stopped at the shriek of horns to let them by, as they carried the more seriously injured to the hospital. Several trips were necessary before all were laid in the wards. Numbers less seriously injured were assisted by friends to the street cars. Some lamed and others with bandaged heads and arms passed up Yonge street, while crowds of interested spectators stood in the rain to watch them.

LOSES HER LIFE IN TRYING TO SAVE CHILD

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, July 8.—Mme. F. Pint, Buyer street, lost her life yesterday in an unsuccessful attempt to save from drowning her little son, who had waded out beyond his depth in the St. Lawrence River, off St. Helens Island. The swift current at this spot caused both mother and child to be carried out into midstream, where they disappeared.

STEAMER REFLOATED.

[Canadian Press.]

Quebec, July 8.—After being stuck hard and fast in the mud a little above Three Rivers since early Tuesday morning, the Canada Steamship Lines steamer Quebec was refloated at 5:25 p.m. yesterday. The vessel, which had run some distance on the bank a mile and a half above Three Rivers, was pulled into deep water by five tugs—the Magnolia, Hudson, Alaska, Spray and Rosalie. The steamer was reloaded last night, and reached Quebec this morning. The local officials of the Canada Lines, Limited, stated today that she was not at all damaged, and that she will resume her regular service this evening, leaving for Montreal at 6.30.

THE DIARY OF MARS

At the moment when the Teutonic march through Southern Poland was beginning to threaten first Lublin and then Warsaw, it has been brought to a halt. Official statements from each side agree that at the one point—in the angle north of Krasnik—where the Russian lines were still displaying weakness, they have been strengthened. It now appears that Grand Duke Nicholas' forces are holding their ground all along the extended front

Determined attempts by the Austro-German forces to drive the Russians out of what remains to them of Galicia are continuing. Petrograd reports assaults by great forces east of Lemberg, but declares they were repulsed with heavy losses to the attacking army.

Apparently there is a lull in the furious fighting along the Austro-Italian front after the recent determined attacks by the invading forces. Official statements from Rome, however, declare continued advances are being made on the Carnic plateau, where the progress is described as "slow but constant."

The Italian armored cruiser Amalfi has been sunk in the upper Adriatic by an Austrian submarine. Most of the crew were saved.

Lord Mersey has rendered judgment in the British Board of Trade inquiry into the sinking of the liner Falaba late in March, with the loss of 111 lives, finding that the steamer had been torpedoed by a German submarine.

Following the recent order forbidding the exportation from Great Britain of lead and other metals necessary in the manufacture of munitions, an order-in-council has been issued prohibiting jute yarn and other jute products from being sent out of the country.

Sherbrooke, Que., July 8.—A coroner's jury investigating the death of Catano Calaro, who was murdered on the Belvidere road a week ago, brought in a verdict holding Joseph Care, Tom Ceminero and Joe Mitz responsible. DEMANDS LIGHT BE SHED ON SITUATION

British Weekly Says Munition Problem Worse Than Known —Dismiss Unworthy.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, July 8.—A London cable to the Gazette says:

Sir William Robertson Nicoll, a close friend of David Lloyd George, writing in his paper, the British Weekly, on the munitions question, says: "Everyone is asking why Woolwich should be only partially employed. We wait for an answer, all that Lord Haldane has to say is "Do not sacrifice Von Donop. This matter was dealt with by a distinct committee.'

"We deliberately affirm that it is a matter of common knowledge that the shortage of munitions is even graver than the Minister of Munitions himself, in his refreshingly bold speech, has ventured to tell the public. This business cannot rest as it is. We realize to the full that everything cannot be told at present, but the nation will not submit, after Lord Haldane's speech, to the darkness which shrouds the situation. They do not wish to go back to what is past and done with; at the same time they will see to it that men unworthy of their confidence shall no longer remain in their employment or be accorded the powers which they have misused or abused. All experience shows that if a democracy is to act promptly and wisely it must know the truth."

RAILWAY COMMISSION NEEDED IN THE U. S. A.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, July 8.—A general railway commission for the whole of the U. S. A., similar to the railway board of the Dominion of Canada, was advocated by Lewis J. Hill, son of J. J. Hill, whom he succeeded as president of the Great Northern Railway here today.

The difference between Canada and the United States in this connection, Mr. Hill contended, was that while there were statesmen in Canada, they had politicians across the line. Here in Canada the railway commission had established a good record, being conservative and evidently prompted by a desire to give general satisfaction. While in Canada the commission is a national organization, almost every state in the union has its separate commission, resulting in anything but a satisfactory situation.

GRAIN.

Winnipeg, July 7.—Wheat prices advanced today; July sold at $1.31¼. October was $1.02⅞ bid, weakening at the close; opening prices were 1⅛c higher for July and ½c higher for October, following which further advances took place. Trading in futures was quiet; oats opened ¼c to ⅜c higher and held steady; flax opened ½c to 1c higher and fluctuations were narrow later.

Local millers report an inquiry for flour from the French Government, but no business has as yet transpired.

In cash lines, business was dull; for wheat there was only a little demand for No. 2 northern and no inquiry for the other grades. Offerings were light. Low grade oats were being asked for and barley was in better demand, while there was no demand for flax. Exporters were the buyers of both the wheat and oats.

Inspections on Thursday were 59 cars, against 495 last year. In sight today, 50 cars. Deliveries through the clearing house today were: Wheat, 3,000 bushels; oats, 76,000 bushels; flax, 39,000 bushels.

Wheat futures closed ⅞c to 1⅜c higher; cash wheat, 1c to 1¼c advance for contract grades; oats, 1c to 1¼c higher.

Cash grain:

Wheat—No. 1 northern, $1.30; No. 2 northern, $1.27¼; No. 3 northern, $1.22.

Barley—No. 3, 69¼c; No. 4, 63c; feed, 56c.

Flax—No. 1 N. W. C., $1.55; No. 2 Canadian western, $1.52.

Chicago, July 8.—Storm throughout the Ohio Valley resulted today in general commission house buying of July wheat. Other options, which were at first relatively weak, responded soon the strength of July. Bullish sentiment, however, was checked in some degree by chances that the Government crop report would indicate a larger yield than was predicted a month ago. Opening prices, which ranged from ½c off to 1⅜c up, were followed by the market steadying at a moderate advance all around above last night's level.

WALL STREET.

New York, July 8—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—Liquidation was resumed at today's opening, all parts o fthe list recording declines. Louisville and Nashville, St. Paul, Canadian Pacific and Southern Pacific, yesterday's weakest features, lost 1 to 2 points in the initial dealings. Chicago and Northwestern fell 2⅝ to 118⅞, the lowest price in years. Missouri Pacific, at 4¼, made a new low record, and other secondary railways, as well as industrials, declined fractions. United States Steel was the most steady leader, soon recovering its moderate decline. Trading was active, but in small volume. Rallies were quite general before the end of the first half hour.

Noon.—The rally carried some stocks well above yesterday's close, but was followed by renewed selling of the southern railroad shares, Louisville and Nashville and Southern Railway, preferred, making new low records. Other more active issues then yielded to pressure and foreign selling, but recovered on the support accorded to Union Pacific and Steel. On the second rebound the market became listless with narrow price changes. Among the high-prices specialties American Coal Products was conspicuous for a further gain of 6½ points. Sales of Japanese 4½ per cent bonds, bearing the German stamp, suggested liquidation by Berlin.

1:30 p.m. — Low-priced railways were the sole feature of the mid-session. Missouri Pacific continued to decline to 3½, while Missouri, Kansas and Texas, common and preferred, were heavy. Dealings otherwise were negligible.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE.

London, July 8.—Money continues a drug on the market, but discounts ruled firm on the prospects of a temporary lightness until the war loan application money is released. The good bank statement cheered sentiment, but failed to affect rates.

In view of Saturday's closing of the application list of the war loan, the old issue had an achtive business, but otherwise the market was neglected. Oil shares and home rails were the only stocks showing any life and steadiness.

The American list started below the New York final quotation of yesterday, but hardened a fraction under the lead of Canadian Pacific, and finished steady.

HUGE SUIT DISMISSED

N. Y., N. H. and H. Stockholders Fail Against Directors of Road.

[Canadian Press.]

Boston, July 8.—A suit of minority stockholders to recover $102,000,000 from former and present directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, who were charged with responsibility for alleged improper expenditures of company funds, was dismissed by the supreme court today.

Wm. G. Rockefeller, Lewis Cass Ledyard, James S. Elton and Charles S. Mellen were among the defendants.

The decision was handed down by the full bench, and was on an appeal by the railroad from a superior court decree enjoining the corporation from transferring stock standing in the names of defendants.

In the rescript accompanying today's decision the court says: "The allegations of the bill do not show reasonable application to directors to institute proceedings to recover the loss referred to in the bill nor facts showing that such application would have been useless.

ABOUT 50 PEOPLE

before a full list of casualties is obtained.

The plant of the Western Union Telegraph Company on the fifteenth floor of the Ingalls Building, was prostrated. Windows were blown in, admitting the rain in such volume as to flood the office, rendering useless the dynamos and other equipment. A temporary panic ensued among the employees, but none was injured.

Several freight cars on the Pennsylvania Railroad were overturned at Terrace Park. Two of the cars contained valuable running horses. The animals stampeded, and many of them were so badly injured that they had to be shot.

SEVEN IN MISSOURI.

St. Louis, July 8.—Reports early today from Eastern Missouri, which was swept by a tornado late yesterday, show that seven persons were killed, several score injured, and three are missing. The damage to buildings and crops is estimated at between $500,000 and $1,000,000. One of the remarkable features of the tornado was the small number of deaths considering the nature of the property damage.

Thus in the city of St. Charles, 162 blocks were practically demolished, but not one life was lost there. Forty of the sixty buildings which formed the town of St. Peter were blown to fragments, but only a few slight injuries were reported from that place.

Gilmore, Mo., was nearly wiped out, yet but one man was found dead there. Near Wentsville, a Wabash passenger train, known as the Colorado Limited, crossed the path of the storm, and the first four coaches in the train were neatly plucked by the wind and laid to one side of the right-of-way.

Not a person was injured seriously in this accident. Those in the ditched cars ran back to the five passenger coaches left standing on the track; these were coupled to the tender and the train proceeded on its journey.

Lifted Horse and Buggy.

Two miles west of O'Fallon, the wind lifted a buggy off the road and carried it with horse and three occupants some distance through the air, and then hurled it to the ground. Daniel Minor, the driver, escaped with a few bruises, but his wife and one child were killed.

At Dardenne, Mo., the home of Thos. Flaherty was demolished, and Mrs. Flaherty and their two children were killed. Fifty other homes in this town were reduced to splinters and piles of brick.

At Wentzville, Mo., Mrs. Herman Oberlind was killed and at Gilmore the body of Frank Kunzie was found on the railroad station platform after the storm.

St. Charles, after a night of total darkness—the electric light plant having been put out of commission—today looked upon the ruins of the entire central portion of the city, including more than one hundred residences. Search was instituted for the bodies of a woman and two small children who took refuge in the St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church a few minutes before it was razed by the wind. It is supposed they perished. The Borromeo was the oldest church in St. Charles, having been built in 1862 at a cost of $100,000.

The property damage in St. Charles alone, it is believed, will aggregate nearly a half million dollars. The damage to wheat in St. Charles and St. Louis Counties is estimated at more than $100,000. A dozen towns in these counties were isolated last night, as miles upon miles of telephone and telegraph wires were on the ground a tangled mass.

From St. Charles the tornado swerved across the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers into Illinois. There it branched out sending cloudbursts to Rock Island and to Mounds, near Cairo, in the extreme southern part. The business sections of both these towns were flooded.

THREE DEAD IN INDIANA.

[Canadian Press.]

Indianapolis, Ind., July 8.—The wind and rain storm which swept Central and Southern Indiana last night caused three fatalities, many injuries and much property and crop damage. Telephone and telegraph services were interrupted and many interurban and steam lines suffered from washouts.

Indianapolis, Brazil, Bicknell, Martinsville, Terre Haut, Greencastle, Vincennes and Muncie felt the storm most. In all these cities an unprecedented seasonal rainfall was reported accompanied by high winds. Streets were flooded, telephone poles blown down, and in many cases houses were wrecked. At Vincennes a brewery and a furniture factory collapsed under the gale, and near Vincennes the farm home of Tom Riley was blown down and Riley's daughter killed.

Silas Felton, night engineer, was caught beneath the falling walls of the brewery and fatally injured.

Struck by Lightning.

At Greencastle a prisoner in the state penal farm, was struck by lightning while walking in a field and killed. Two companions were stunned, but were revived.

At Martinsville, Floyd Oakes, an electrician, was electrocuted while repairing a break in a wire. The storm knocked out the lighting system and left the city in darkness. Bicknell reported that houses were unroofed, and trees were uprooted there. Several Several persons suffered injuries. Near the town Roy Chambers' barn was blown down, and it is reported Chambers was buried beneath it.

Terre Haut and Muncie reported no loss of life, but much property damage. At La Fayette the Monon Railroad reported a 1,000-foot landslide over its tracks near Logan, and a 400-foot washout near Ellettsville.

Rural sections detail damages to the corn crop and to wheat in the shock.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE REBUKES HALDANE

Calls Latter's Statement Regarding Munition Plans Inaccurate.

[Canadian Press.]

LONDON, July 7.—10:45 p.m.—David Lloyd George, British minister of munitions, in an authorized statement tonight, takes issue with Viscount Haldane on the latter's version of what took place at a meeting of a committee of the cabinet in October to consider the matter of the supply of munitions of war. Mr. Lloyd George says that Viscount Haldane's version of what took place was "incomplete and in some respects inaccurate," and adds:

"The very fact of this conflict of memory having arisen shows the unwisdom of this partial and unauthorized disclosure of decisions of highly confidential committees of the cabinet."

In a speech before the National Liberal Club on July 5 Viscount Haldane said that in October a committee, presided over by Lord Kitchener, assembled in the war office. David Lloyd George and other ministers were in attendance. It was decided, continued Viscount Haldane, that it would be necessary to increase the output of munitions tenfold. Everyone was consulted. The necessary orders were given to manufacturers, who undertook to execute them. If these orders had been executed, said he, the country would have been in tremendous position, but labor difficulties confounded all the calculations of the manufacturers, and that explained the trouble of today.

THREE STRATHROY CHUMS OMINOUSLY TOLD OFF.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

STRATHROY, July 7. — Pte. Arthur Holderness, of the 1st Battalion, officially reported as missing, is formerly of Strathroy, although his next of kin is in England. He worked at the Strathroy Furniture Company before enlisting, and was a member of G Company, 26th Middlesex Regiment. He was an enthusiastic football player. It will be recalled by his friends that Charles Garton and Lawrence Pembleton, chums of Holderness, also enlisted, and that the three used to be known as "Faith, Hope and Charity." Garton has been wounded and Pembleton killed.

PRISONERS SOON TO WORK GERMAN FIELDS.

THORNDALE, July 7. — Mrs. Leonard Salter received a card this morning from her husband, Sergt. Leonard Salter, who is a prisoner at Giessen, Germany. He stated that he was well, but his brother Oscar, who is also a prisoner there, is not very well on account of the heat, but he should be all right in a few days.

The sergeant also expects that they will soon be sent to work in the fields, but that they will feel better doing that than lying around idle.

For reading matter they were permitted to send to England for magazines.

Pte. Lilley Wants to Fight.

Edward Logan recently received another letter from Pte. Mark Lilley, who is in a hospital in England. He is anxious to get back to the front again.

PTE. OLIVER SNELGROVE WILL MAKE RECOVERY.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WOODSTOCK, July 7.—The many friends of Pte. Oliver Snelgrove of the 1st Battalion, who on June 26 was reported suffering from concussion, will be glad to learn that a field postcard received from the wounded soldier, written in a hospital in France, declares that he is fast improving and soon hopes to receive his discharge. Pte. Snelgrove, who is a son of Walter Snelgrove of this city, enlisted at St. Thomas, Ont., with the first contingent, having been a resident of that city two years prior to his enlistment.

PLACES GUN TO HEAD AND TRIPS TRIGGER WITH PIECE OF WOOD

Farmer of Euphemia Found Dead—Top of Head Blown Off.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

FLORENCE, July 7.—Royal H. Hart, a well-to-do farmer of Euphemia, aged about 50 years, was found dead in his sugar-bush yesterday noon, by his wife and eldest son, with the top of his head and part of his face shot away.

It was obviously a case of suicide, as, when the victim fell, his hand still clutched a stick which he had evidently used to press the trigger, having rested the stock of the gun on the ground and placed the muzzle to his forehead.

Coroner Dr. Kelly of Florence viewed the remains at the scene of the tragedy and decided that an inquest would not be necessary.

The reason for the rash deed is not known, save that Mr. Hart had been in a depressed mood in the morning. His wife and eldest son, aged 19, went to Newbury about 9 o'clock in the morning, and when they returned about 1 p.m. Mr. Hart was not at home.

Remembering a remark he had made when they left in the morning they went to look for him and found the body in the bush about a quarter of a mile from the house.

Dr. Kelly was promptly summoned. A neighbor recalls having heard a shot fired about 10 a.m. Death must have been instantaneous.

Mrs. Hart, the widow, is a sister of Reeve G. A. Annett, of Euphemia. Besides the son mentioned above, there are two other boys, aged 14 and 11 respectively.

Much sympathy is felt for the stricken family.

FINED IN WOODSTOCK FOR SHOOTING RATS

Court Victim Protests That City Owes Him Debt of Gratitude.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WOODSTOCK, July 7.—Because he shot rats, sparrows, etc., on his premises without a permit, William Coventry of Mill street was assessed $2 in police court this morning. For years the defendant claims, rats from the city garbage dumps have infested his premises, and he declares that the city owes him a debt of gratitude, instead of making him pay fines. He secured a permit this morning.

THERE are many distinct differences between Lowe Brothers "High Standard" Liquid Paint and ordinary paints, but the most noticeable is in the pocketbook.

Ten gallons of "High Standard" will usually do as much work as twelve to fifteen gallons of cheap paint—and do it much better.

"High Standard" costs a little more per gallon, but you will use so many less gallons that your total cost will be lower. It works easier, too, and your painter can apply it in less time.

"High Standard" is thoroughly tested to meet your requirements.

Ask us for color cards. We will cheerfully give you an estimate on your requirements. 600
