"It is much more than a review of fifty years' history, as its title may seem to imply. His work is really a series of historical studies, each tolerably complete in itself, and each covering a long period of time, designed to elucidate the whole progress of the problem involved. The method is scholarly and scientific, and considering the strength of Mr. O'Brien's convictions which he makes no attempt to hide, it is pursued with a discretion and a freedom from prejudice which must commend themselves to those who differ most from the author's conclusions. We may, however, recommend his very carefully and skillfully written work to politicians of all schools as one especially well worth reading at the present time."—Athenaeum.

Old Towns and New Domains; or, Birmingham and Canada Revisited and Contrasted. The author in his dedication (which contains more self-help philosophy and practical common sense than a score of the misleading circulars and pamphlets, etc.) distributed by interested and speculating agents) declares: A man to be of more value than many pigs, and invites the Christian money worshippers, the giddy headed holders of Peruvian and Egyptian bonds to turn their attention to a sensible system of co-operative emigration. He discusses such subjects as the C.P.R., the North-West and Pembina Districts, Twenty Bushels to the Acre, Ontario and Emigration, A Late Seeing Policy Needed, Montreal, Ottawa, Galt, Brantford, Guelph, Exporting Cattle to England, etc., etc.
