Grand Opportunity For Farmers and Horse Owners.

Owing to the wastages of war, scarcity in the horse supply is in prospect for years to come.

The farmer was never presented with a better chance for turning his mares to good account, alike to himself and to the country.

There is little outlay until the foal is weaned. The mare can continue to do her allotted share on the land, and for many years the demand for an animal serviceable either for draught or carriage purposes will be greater than ever.

For the embodiment of quality and substance the horse breeder is referred to the Imported English Coaching Stallion

Stella Mordaunt; The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XXI.

"That's right enough, my lord," he said. "It wouldn't, as you very properly say; but I happen to have known your father; we met out in Australia. We weren't exactly pals, but—well, I knew him."

He kept his keen eyes on Ralph as he spoke, and he had the satisfaction of seeing Ralph's face grow paler and his frown darker. Ralph looked fixedly at his horse's ears, and faced the situation as quietly as he could.

It would be decidedly unpleasant to have this man telling the story of their meeting. What a piquant little recital could be made of it; the Earl of Ratton lounging over a glass of gin in the dingy bar of a London pub! Had Workley already amused the smoking-room of the Bull with an account of the meeting?

As if he had read the question in Ralph's mind, Mr. Workley, still with the pipe in his mouth, said:

"I'm afraid you're not too well pleased to be reminded of our introduction, my lord. Of course, I can understand that it can't be agreeable for a young nobleman to meet with a man who knew him when he was down on his luck, before he came into his property; naturally you like to keep the old times dark. Quite so. And I assure your lordship that I haven't informed anyone of our meeting in the Columbine."

Ralph turned with a look of relief on his face.

"Or that I had the honour of knowing your lordship's father when he was down on his luck," added Mr. Workley, quietly, and with a keen and curious glance at Ralph.

Ralph nodded.

"That—that was very considerate of you, Mr. Workley," he said, with the twist of the under-lip which Mr. Workley had noticed at their first meeting. "Of course a man in my position does not like to have the—er—past—"

The little man nodded as if he understood, and it was not necessary for his lordship to continue.

"Having known your father, and made your acquaintance, my lord, I thought I'd like to have a look at the place you've come into, and I just strolled in and had a quiet pipe. No offense, I hope, my lord?"

"Oh, no, not at all," replied Ralph, still with the uncertain frown and the twist of the lip. "Are you staying here—near here?"

"Yes. I've got a relative in the town," replied Mr. Workley, "and I run down now and again to see him. Oh! you can depend on me, my lord," he said, parenthetically, as Ralph's frown grew darker; "I haven't mentioned it to him."

Ralph nodded.

"I'm sure you will understand—be discreet, Mr.—er—Mr. Workley," he said, trying to speak with easy dignity. "And I'm very much obliged to you. If I can be of any—er—service to you now—"

Mr. Workley took his pipe from his mouth, and seemed to be regarding it reflectively; but he was still watching Ralph's face.

"Thank you, my lord," he said. "I shouldn't have mentioned the matter if you had not been so kind as to offer. I am a little short just now, if the truth must be told."

Ralph put his hand in his pocket and drew out some gold. He liked carrying plenty of money about with him; it was a reminder, an evidence of his newly acquired wealth.

"If that is of any use to you—" he said.

Mr. Workley took the money without any display of eagerness; and, without any effusiveness, thanked his lordship.

"Are you—er—staying long in these parts?" enquired Ralph, as casually as he could.

Mr. Workley looked before him contemplatively.

"I really can't say, my lord," he replied; "but if I do, your lordship can rely upon me. I'm one of the best men in the world at holding my tongue. Good-evening, my lord."

He did not touch his hat, but raised it, and calmly climbed the fence and walked off. But, as Ralph, after a moment or two, rode on, Mr. Workley stopped and looked after him.

"Does he know?" he muttered. "One minute I thought he did, and the next I was sure he didn't. And yet he gave me the coin readily enough. Now, does he know, or doesn't he? Anyway, I've got a soft thing, a remarkably soft thing!"

CHAPTER XXII.

Stella's cry, "I must go back to the island; indeed, indeed I must!" went straight to Lady Cecilia's heart—a very tender and compassionate one. She put one arm round Stella, and soothed her.

"You shall, you shall, dear!" she assured her. "My brother will take you back at once; we will take you anywhere, if you will promise not to fret and make yourself ill again. But you must tell us where the island is. You know we found you in the open sea. There, I don't want to recall it," for Stella had shuddered.

"Suppose you try and sleep for a little while, then when you wake, my brother will talk to you; but, indeed, I don't think you ought to talk to anyone, or think of anything just yet."

Stella murmuring, "How good you are to me, how good!" lay back and closed her eyes.

But she did not sleep, and she

"TIZ" FIXES ACHING, SWOLLEN, SORE FEET

How "TIZ" comforts tired, sweaty, calloused feet and burning corns—Can't beat "TIZ."

People who are forced to stand on their feet all day know what sore, tender, sweaty, burning feet mean. They use "TIZ," and "TIZ" cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. "TIZ" is the only remedy in the world that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet and cause tender, sore, tired, aching feet. It instantly stops the pain in corns, callouses and bunions. It's simply glorious. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel after using "TIZ." You'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't tighten and hurt your feet.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now from your druggist, department or general store. Just think! a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents.

did think. And she reflected that she would find Lady Cecilia's question hard to answer. Where was the island? That it was part of Vancouver, of course Stella knew; but Vancouver is somewhat large, and that portion of it on which she and Rath had lived so happily—oh, how happily!—would be hard to find with only her description of it as a guide. Then, again, would Rath be pleased with her, if, some day, she sailed into the bay with these kind people?

"The island" belonged to him; he would not be likely to welcome strangers, intruders. Besides, there was the gold! These people might discover the presence of the treasure. She had read of the strange way in which gold revealed itself. And that gold belonged to Rath, and Rath only. What right had she to lead strangers to his island, to endanger his possession of the gold?

Then, on the other hand, perhaps he was mourning for her as one dead, and she ought to go back to him as soon as possible. But she comforted herself with the reflection that Rath did not love her as she now knew that she loved him.

Why should he? He would miss her—surely he would miss her, and mourn for her for a few days; but after then he would grow used to her absence, and be resigned. That she loved him with a love that throbbed through every vein and filled her heart to overflowing, was no reason that he should love her. No; the island and the gold within it was his secret, and she had no right to betray it.

So, when Lady Cecilia came into the state-room some hours later, she found Stella calmer, and less set upon going back to her "island."

"Are you rested, are you better, dear?" asked Lady Cecilia. "I have been talking to my brother Cecil, and he is quite willing to go back to the island—if you can tell us where it is."

But Stella said, truthfully, that she could not.

"I will go to England with you, if you will take me," she said, with a sigh.

Lady Cecilia smiled.

"Why, of course, my dear child," she responded. "You don't think we are going to throw you overboard? Cecil will do anything, everything you wish; and, of course, so will I. I say 'of course,' because he and I always think and act alike. We are twins. That is why we were christened Cecil and Cecilia. He has only just come into his title and the family estate; and he ought to be at home looking after his land and his people; but I'm supposed to be delicate—indeed, I am afraid I am!—and I was ordered a sea voyage; and Cecil left everything to take me on a voyage in the 'Kingfisher.' It is such a beautiful yacht, as you will see when you are able to come on deck, and that will be very soon, for you are ever so much better."

Lady Cecilia proved a true prophet, for, two days later, Stella came on deck leading on Lady Cecilia's arm. One of those admirable inventions, a deck-chair, had been arranged for her in the sunlight by Lord Cecil; and he himself wrapped her round with rugs and set a foot-stool for her. Then he withdrew to a little distance with his sister, so that Stella should be alone on this, her reintroduction to the world of life and motion; and Stella could let the tears roll down her cheeks unchecked.

She looked like some tropical flower struck down by a storm as she lay back in her chair, and presently Lord Lisle's eyes wandered to her wistfully.

"How beautiful she is, Cis!" he said. "I wish to Heaven she wouldn't cry! She is crying, I know she is! Has she told you anything of her history—how she came to be in that boat on the open sea?"

His sister shook her head.

"No; she has told me nothing, and she has not asked again to be taken back to the island. She is very quiet, and when she is not asleep she seems lost in thought, absorbed as if in a dream. I'm afraid I'm terribly curious, Cecil."

He laughed, but in a preoccupied manner.

"The boat in which we found her had the name 'Andromeda' cut in her stern," he said. "Now, the 'Andromeda' was lost some months ago. I forget the date, but I remember reading of it. It must have gone down somewhere off Vancouver. Ask her. No, don't ask her anything. Poor girl! My heart bleeds for her! I'd put the 'Kingfisher' back in a moment if I knew where to put her back for!"

In his way, in his man's way, Lord Lisle was as tender-hearted as his sister—were they not twins?—and his interest in the castaway whom they had rescued grew daily.

For some days, Stella lay back in her deck-chair with closed eyes and, seemingly unconscious of all that was going on around her. The swish of the water as the magnificent yacht cut through the waves, the rattle of the lines, the subdued sound of the men singing, to the accompaniment of a concertina, in the forecastle, came to her as if in a dream.

All her thoughts were of Rath: Rath alone and solitary on his island; Rath thinking her lost and dead; Rath for whom her heart ached with a longing too keen and painful for words. Oh! if she were back with him, if she could see him, hear his voice, feel his strong arms round her! If she were by any chance restored to him how she would cling to him!

There should be no false shame, no reticence. She would not shrink from the touch of his hand as she had done when she had been teaching him to write. No. She would wind her arms round his neck and whisper, "I love you, Rath—I love you!"

After a day or two had passed, Lord Lisle ventured to approach her, and leaning over her chair, talked in the low, subdued voice appropriate to the invalid, of the yacht and the knots she was making, the weather, and so on. And Stella would look up at him with her lovely eyes and pensive smile, as if her mind, and her heart, were miles away, and answer in monosyllables just a few words. But they were very precious ones to Lord Lisle.

He looked forward to their little, broken converse; he watched her face recovering—not its colour—for it was pale still—but something of the hue of health and strength; he found himself listening and hoping for a lessening of the sadness in the sweet voice. And it was inexpressibly sweet to him.

And Stella always greeted his approach with a smile—a little wan and melancholy, but still a smile. He was so boyish, so ingenuous, so like a young sailor without a care or anxiety, that his very presence was like sunshine. She listened to his voice—he went about the snow-white deck singing—with a kind of pleasure. Her heart was full of gratitude to these twins, these kind friends who had rescued her from a terrible death; but she thought of Rath every hour of the day.

One evening, as the 'Kingfisher' was sailing before the wind, Lisle leant over her chair—he would lean over her chair by the hours together—and said:

"We ought to make the English coast the day after to-morrow. Do you feel anything of the patriotic thrill, Miss Mordaunt?"

Stella shook her head. Her heart was behind her, on Rath's island.

"No," she said. "I'm sorry, but—" "Oh, that's all right," he said. "That's only natural. You—you have no friends waiting for you. I beg your pardon, Miss Mordaunt."

She looked up at him with her sad, dreamy eyes.

"It is quite true," she said. "I have no one, nowhere to go. I only want to go—" "back to the island," she might have ended.

"Oh, as to no place to go," he said. "Of course you'll go to Lisle Abbey with Cecilia and me—with Cecilia," he said.

She looked at him gravely.

"Oh, no. I could not! Here, on the 'Kingfisher,' it—it is different—you cannot help having me, cannot get rid of me; but when we land—"

He kept his countenance wonderfully well, considering.

"I hope you will consider that it is the same when we reach land," he said. "Seriously, Cecilia would be heart-broken if you deserted her. You will have to come to the Abbey. That is, if—you haven't anywhere else to go."

Stella shook her head, and her eyes filled with tears.

"No. I have nowhere to go; no one I know."

"That's all right, then," he said, cheerfully, and with a thrill of delight.

Are you Anaemic?

Our blood is composed of red and white corpuscles—the red to nourish the body, the white to fight disease. In Anæmia, the red corpuscles are more or less deficient. Thus the blood cannot properly sustain and nourish the body. The eyes become dull, the face white, and a feeling of intense weariness pervades the whole system. There is nothing so effective in Anæmia as 'Wingarnis.' PRINCESS MARY'S BIRTHDAY.

The fact that the Prince of Wales is still on leave, is taken to indicate that His Royal Highness intends to remain over Princess Mary's birthday when she will complete her eighteenth year. The Prince arrived in town from the front nearly a fortnight ago with Sir John French's Neuve Chapelle despatch. There will be but little commemoration of the "coming of age" of their Majesties' only daughter. Although no announcement is likely to be made, it has been rumoured that the young Princess will give a small party at Buckingham Palace to a few of her close friends to mark the anniversary, and Her Royal Highness is known to be anxious that both the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert should be present at this function, if they can secure leave. Princess Mary will make two semi-public appearances within the next few days. She will accompany the Queen to the patriotic concert at the Albert Hall in aid of the recruiting bands, and will be with the Queen and Queen Alexandra at Drury Lane Theatre on the occasion of the matinee, which has been organized by Lady Paget to help the American Women's War Hospital.

PROHIBITION AND THE KING'S HOUSEHOLD.

Some question having been raised in the House of Commons on April 21st, respecting how far the members of the King's Household were following the Royal example by forbidding the use of alcohol in their homes, it is possible to state that this being done very generally, not only by prominent members of the entourage, but by the more humble of His Majesty's servants who do not live within the precincts of the Palace, while the same is stated to have taken place at Windsor, Sandringham and other Royal residences. This general movement has not been in any way dictated by the King, who has not sought to intervene in any way in the private affairs of those

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, April 27th, 1915. PRINCESS MARY'S BIRTHDAY. The fact that the Prince of Wales is still on leave, is taken to indicate that His Royal Highness intends to remain over Princess Mary's birthday when she will complete her eighteenth year. The Prince arrived in town from the front nearly a fortnight ago with Sir John French's Neve Chapelle despatch. There will be but little commemoration of the "coming of age" of their Majesties' only daughter. Although no announcement is likely to be made, it has been rumored that the young Princess will give a small party at Buckingham Palace to a few of her close friends to mark the anniversary, and Her Royal Highness is known to be anxious that both the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert should be present at this function, if they can secure leave. She will accompany the Queen to the patriotic concert at the Albert Hall in aid of the recruiting bands, and will be with the Queen and Queen Alexandra at Drury Lane Theatre on the occasion of the matinee, which has been organized by Lady Paget to help the American Women's War Hospital.

PROHIBITION AND THE KING'S HOUSEHOLD. Some question having been raised in the House of Commons on April 16th, respecting how far the members of the King's Household were following the Royal example by forbidding the use of alcohol in their homes, it is possible to state that this being done very generally, not only by prominent members of the household, but by the more humble of His Majesty's servants who do not live within the precincts of the Palace, while the same is stated to have taken place at Windsor, Sandringham and other Royal residences. This general movement has not been in any way dictated by the King, who was not sought to intervene in any way in the private affairs of those who serve him, but both his Majesty and the Queen have been gratified that so general and voluntary a lead given to the nation as a whole, and they have expressed themselves to this effect.

A WHISKY ROOM. The panic buying of whisky by private British consumers still continues. The reason of course is the fear that the Government intends to prohibit the sale of spirits shortly. Everybody who uses alcohol seems bent on having a reserve supply in his cellar or cupboard. The manager of a big West End store informs me that the rush of orders for whisky is unprecedented, great quantities being sold every day. His chief difficulty at present is to find two-gallon and four-gallon jars to take the place of those respoing with their contents in customers' cellars. Wholesale firms are inundated with orders which they cannot execute within a reasonable time. One company, whose weekly output of bottled whisky runs to several thousand cases, has during the last month received orders representing three times the amount of its normal business. Judged merely as a trade occurrence, the boom is inconveniently sudden and overwhelming. London houses find difficulty in getting sufficient consignments from Scotland owing to railway delays, and if the extraordinary demand continues, there will be in some cases a temporary dislocation of the stocks maturing in bond, owing to the using up of whisky ready for blending.

PRINCE AS "LIAISON OFFICER." In his reference to the Prince of Wales in the Neve Chapelle despatch, Field Marshal French makes use of the phrase "a liaison officer" as describing a portion of the Frenchman's duties. This shows how the close co-operation of the British and French in the field is already causing new words to creep into our language. This is a French phrase for an officer on the Headquarters Staff of an army in the field, or on

The French papers have been busy of late with the case of the "Embuscque," which is the name given to the man who chooses a safe job in the Army. An incident seen recently on the fringe of Soho, suggests that it is also applied to those who do not choose the army at all. A couple of French soldiers over here in London on leave (they were in joyous mood) coming down a side street, passed the kitchens of a well known French restaurant. They were attracted by the sight of the cooks in the kitchens, and studied them attentively through the grating. They then began to taunt them with shouts of "Embuscque!" The harmless necessary French cooks, started in this rough way in their "ambush," wretorious. There was an angry clattering of pots and pans, and an elaborate slanging match followed between the cooks and the soldiers. The language was rich and varied, and in the storm the sharp word "embuscque" sounded like a bitter refrain.

SUPPLY OF MUNITIONS. Enquiries in well informed quarters go to show that there is little doubt that the 200,000 shells per day Field Marshal Sir John French is understood to have asked for when the time arrives for the general advance to take place, will be forthcoming. By the end of April it is hoped the Committee charged with the output of munitions will be able not only to supply this huge number, but even, if necessary, to exceed it. The work of co-ordinating the manufacture of these shells is progressing in excellent fashion, and already several owners of suitable factories and machinery have placed the whole of their resources at the Government's disposal. Inspections are now being carried out and the necessary conversion is taking place rather more rapidly than an adequate supply of labor can be obtained, but men are coming forward very satisfactorily.

WOMEN IN UNIFORM. The number of women in uniform is steadily increasing. I understand that as a result of the stringent decisions which the Railway Executive Committee are expected to promulgate, more women are likely to be employed on the railways. The pioneer ticket-examiners in London are soon to have a uniform. One may hope that the dress will be more successful in design than most of the uniforms which has been adopted for women's organizations. One women's corps whose members wear dark blue overcoats and soft black felt hats, seem almost to have chosen their dress on the principle that, as it is not to serve the purposes of coquetry, it should be positively repellent. The hats look serviceable enough, but their form would incur the disdain of a policeman. The question is interesting, because there is a prospect of further additions to these organizations. Women policemen, women interpreters at the railway station, women who work lifts, are all by this time in well-established services, and there is a definite tendency towards the multiplication of women's occupations in which uniforms will be used.

(To be continued.) SUSPECT ARRESTED. At noon to-day Detective Sergeant Byrnes arrested on suspicion a lad charged with stealing a watch from a house in the suburbs of the West End of the city. He will be arraigned before the Magistrate on Tuesday.

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN CRIED Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. E. W. LANSING, Route No. 1, Florence, South Dakota. Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ill, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc. If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Cochrane St. Church.

The contract for the erection of the new church was signed in Montreal to-day, by the Downing-Cook Co., Ltd., who agree to build the church at the actual cost price, plus a commission, the total not to exceed $30,000. Under this arrangement the trustees will benefit by any reduction in cost that it may be possible to effect as the building progresses, while their liability is limited by the maximum sum of $30,000. The contractors engage to put the congregation in occupancy of church and school within eight months of the commencement of the work, and to completely finish, exterior and all, within one year. The chief men in their employ, and also one of their foremen, are Newfoundlanders, and these will be here shortly, as work is to begin 1st June. Local labor is to be employed. Nine tenders were received for the erection of this building. Four local firms—Messrs. Davey, Thomas, Kennedy & Ellis—tendered at figures ranging from $16,650 to $121,289. One Halifax firm put in a bid for $29,945; two Montreal firms, $14,997 and $109,500 respectively; one Toronto firm, $21,600; while the Downing-Cook Co. of Montreal secured the contract at a minimum figure of $30,000 under conditions as above stated. The old site will be used, and additional land has been secured so as to give entrances from Cochrane Street, Stewart Ave. and Banerman Street. The school building will be up to date in its layout and appliances, and will be, in fact, the only modern Sunday School building in Newfoundland. Particular attention has been given to heating and ventilation on both church and school.

Buried With Military Honors.

The remains of the late Sergt.-Major Moore of the Newfoundland Regiment, were laid to rest in Belvedere Cemetery yesterday afternoon. The funeral was attended with full military honors and was one of the largest seen in the city for many years. A firing squad from the Reserve Force, under Instructor J. C. Gately headed the procession, and were followed by the C. C. C. band and the pipers of the Highlanders. Then came the casket drawn on a gun carriage by 18 of the volunteers, the Sergeants of the Highlanders acting as gun bearers. Guards of honor from the Volunteers, Highlanders, Frontiersmen, Naval Reserve and numerous friends of the deceased completed the procession. The remains were taken into the Cathedral by the Highlanders and the Prayers for the Dead were recited by Rev. Dr. Green. Rev. Fr. Nangle, who was one of the chief mourners, officiated at the graveside, and as the body was lowered into the earth, the hymn "The Soldier's Song" was sung. The hymn was sounded by Bugler Madden, of the C. C. C., and three volleys were fired by the firing party of the 18th Regiment. While the funeral procession followed its way to the cemetery the C. C. C. Band rendered the Dead March in Saul.

At the House.

FRIDAY, May 21st. Mr. Kent presented a petition signed by the Horwood Lumber Co. Bowring Bros., Bishop, Sons and Co., Franklins Agencies, M. S. Sullivan, M. E. Martin, P. Templeman, McCaroe & Co. and others asking for exemption from the export tax of $1 per cord on pit props cut during the past season. Mr. Kent stated that he was not personally or politically interested in the petition but was merely asked to present it, and would therefore recommend it to the Minister of Finance and Customs for his careful consideration.

The Minister of Finance replied that the matter was already under consideration.

Mr. Coaker called the attention of the House to the delay in tabling answers to questions asked by the Opposition. He said that some of the departments were giving every satisfaction in the matter, but others were not at all prompt. He gave notice that if the questions long since asked of the latter departments were not forthcoming by Tuesday next, he would move an address to the Governor on the matter.

The Premier offered to enquire into the matter and asked Mr. Coaker to give him a list of the questions yet unanswered.

Mr. Coaker then announced that the Upper House had passed the Permanent Marine Disasters' Fund Bill with some amendments.

The Bank Fishery Bill passed its third reading.

The American Newfoundland Packing Co.'s Bill and Redding Allowance Bill passed through the Committee stage.

The Newfoundland Products Co. Bill was read a second time and will go into the Committee stage on Tuesday next. Before the motion was put Mr. Kent moved an amendment that the passing of the contract be deferred for a year pending further information, which was lost on a strict party vote.

Mr. Coaker called the attention of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to the fact that the S. S. Euphrates plying between Bell Island and Kellogg was considered unseaworthy and asked for enquiries to be made in the matter.

Mr. Lloyd wished to point out to the House the desirability for an improvement in the public news service. He was of the opinion that more attention should be given to the editing of the said news as it very often happened two or three messages of the same in substance were forwarded on the same day. He emphasized the necessity of a better service. The amount paid for the compilation at Halifax was $260 a year. This amount was too small to allow of editing of messages. It was actually divided between two men, who were now giving a seven day service of 24 hours a day for less than 40 cents a day each. It was marvellous we got so much work for so little money. It would cost the Government less in the aggregate and the service would be of greater variety and shorter, if the senders were remunerated to edit the despatches.

Messrs. Morine, Coaker and the Colonial Secretary took part in the discussion and all were of the opinion that the compiler of the public news is insufficiently paid and that on the whole the work was faithfully performed, the repetition of messages being to some possible overlapping between Mr. Wier and his assistant. The matter will be taken up by the Colonial Secretary with a view to improving conditions.

The House adjourned at 4.30 p.m., till 3 p.m. Tuesday next.

None of his fellow-officers are mentioning the subject of "boots" to Lieut. Chas. Porterfield of the Eton Motor Machine Gun Battery these days, and there is very good reason for the omission. Having heard a great deal about the qualities, good and bad, of the Canadian military footwear, Lieut. Porterfield decided to import a pair of high boots from England. He sent $25 to pay for the boots, but when they were delivered he had to give $17 for duty and $10 for express and other details, making a total of $52 for the one pair. He intends to wear them out as quickly as possible.

Accidents Will Happen. Unsportsmanlike.

Philadelphia Evening Ledger:—No man with any sporting instinct can look with toleration on the use of asphyxiating gases in warfare. It is like hitting below the belt in a boxing match. The honor of a soldier has become proverbial. He will treat his enemy fairly and defeat him in straight combat under recognized rules or he will accept the consequences uncomplainingly. A soldier in uniform caught within the lines of the enemy receives the honors of war because he is playing fairly. But a soldier in disguise is a spy and is shot or hanged.

Dear Sir,—I wish to acknowledge with sincere thanks your Company's cheque for $1,300.00 being settlement in full in connection with the death of my brother, the late Frank Winsboro, as a result of Cholera.

The amount of his Policy was $1,000.00 costing $12.00 per annum, the annual accumulations bringing the total up to $1,300.00. Wishing your company every success,
Faithfully yours,

Something to Remember.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A great deal has been said in these last few months about the absurdity of the way some of the warring nations ask the Lord to help them inflict suffering and death upon their enemies. It certainly is a strange boon to ask of the Prince of Peace but is it after all, so more absurd attitude than some of us who criticize, hold.

God made man in his own image, and man did the same for God, is an epigram of which I sometimes think when I realize the pathetic littleness of our conceptions of God.

A Strange Warning.

I know a girl who had a very ardent and religious suitor. She finally declined his suit, whereat he was most indignant at her and wrote her that he felt he must warn her. Terrible things, he told her, death, misfortune, disgrace, etc., had come upon people who had opposed his will and brought him unhappiness. He would hate to have anything like that happen to her but he wanted her to know that God was apt to punish his enemies.

His conception of God was evidently that of some Big Person in league with him and willing and eager to punish any slights offered him.

But What About His Enemies' Relatives? Now, unquestionably some of the people who crossed his will must have had relatives to whom their death or misfortune would have been a terrible punishment. What about them? Perhaps they were as good people as the ardent suitor; perhaps they were praying to God for the preservation and happiness of those whom they loved. What about it?

As there is some question as to whether the suitor in this incident was well balanced or not, perhaps that is hardly a fair example. However, here's what a letter friend wrote of an acquaintance of hers, presumably perfectly sane.

"I remember an old lady who told me that God had been so good to her and had given her such a fine day for moving. I could not help being a cat and asking her what was the matter with God the day she had sold most of the furniture; the sale had meant so much to her and it had poured pitchforks, there were only a half a dozen people at the sale and things went for nothing."

When Prayers Must Conflict. Incidentally one wonders whether there may not have been farmers who were praying for rain on that day which was so fine for moving.

Every day there must be someone who is praying for rain and someone who is praying for pleasant weather. Now please do not think I mean to be irreverent or to attack your faith in a God who cares about your little joys and griefs. I only want to remind you—and myself—that we must remember that everything that happens to us affects our fellowmen, too, and to help us broaden our conception of God into a Power that has to deal with millions of conflicting wants and wishes and not with ours alone.

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

HOME LESSONS.

John Workman is delighted that his letter to the Education Boards is drawing forth some expression of opinion, first from Mr. Grace and second from a writer in the city. I hope that succeeding issues will contain many more letters about the matter of Home Lessons and that the agitation will bear fruit in having them at least curtailed. Next Saturday, perhaps, Mr. Workman will have another letter, as the response to his appeal has made him interested not only in Education but in many events transpiring around him and affecting him and all of us.

REPLY TO MR. PATRICK SULLIVAN.

Mr. Sullivan, in the Mail of Tuesday last, takes me to task for certain words of mine last Saturday in reference to Hell. What I did doubt was the existence of a Hell of Fire and Brimstone, or any place devoted to such torment. This word Hell is very misleading, as its use in many places by the translators of the Bible is far from consistent, with the original. Mr. Sullivan can easily verify this. And it is because of the several meanings that it is always necessary to qualify the word, and so I referred to Billy Sunday's interpretation of a hell of fire and brimstone. It seems hardly necessary to defend a disbelieved in such a place. God, in my conception, is infinitely greater in mercy and love than our idea of such attributes. If then, we would not for a moment prepare such a horrible pit of fire for our bitterest enemy, how then can we think that God, who holds no thoughts of enmity and who is as a Father to us, can be capable of providing such a place. To think so is to dishonour Him. That there is a recompense for all deeds, good and evil, is an evident fact.

Rub Soreness Away With "Nerviline"

Prompt Action Often Prevents Pleurisy or Pneumonia.

Do long breaths hurt you? Try it, and see. If you notice a wheeze or a catch in your side, then be sure trouble exists.

Proper action consists in a vigorous rubbing of the back, chest, and sore side with "Nerviline." This wonderful liniment sinks into the tissues where the pain is seated—gives instant relief. That catch disappears, the sense of soreness goes, and you then know that Nerviline has probably tion in your hearts to do good work, so long as your right hands have motion in them; and to do it whether the issue be that you die or live, no life worthy the name will ever be possible to you, while, in once forming the resolution that your work is to be well done, life is really won, here and for ever."

THE PENITENTIARY.

One of the most remarkable, I had almost said impudent, letters appeared this week from Mr. A. A. Parsons, the Supt. of the Penitentiary. His attack on Grand Jurors is insulting, unnecessary, and apparently he allows the injury to his personal vanity to overshadow the worth of one of our greatest safeguards. The Grand Jury dates back to ancient Anglo-Saxon times, and has powers which make it one of the most valued possessions of democratic institutions.

Mr. Parsons devotes a column in telling some of the "out-of-order" questions that grand jurors have asked, and no doubt future Christmas Xmas will contain these "bon mots" when Mr. Parsons reaches the "My Recollections" stage!

No matter what questions are asked or what remarks are made, I question if the Supt. is not stretching his authority in cutting short a juror who seeks to find out the conditions under which the prisoners live. It is a matter of public concern that the Penitentiary should be run in a proper manner. The days of the Bastille are past, and any man has a right to know how prisoners are treated and to demand that such treatment shall not be to the detriment either of his mental or his physical nature. It is certainly questionable whether a man can be improved mentally amid such surroundings, but the time is surely coming when the punitive nature of the Prison will be changed to a definite ideal of improvement. What can be more horrible than the fate of poor Jake, condemned to solitary confinement? When any part of us is not used, does it not get useless? With nothing to engage his mind but his own bitter thoughts, with no employment for his hands, what result but the one that came could be expected? The Supt. implies that the giving of him work was the reason of his madness, but I venture to say that the injury was done long before that. I say that no matter what crime he committed, the sentence and the treatment meted out to him was inhuman, un-Christian and a disgrace.

To Mr. Parsons this is "maudlin sentiment." But it is this maudlin sentiment that has done away with the thumb-screw and the torture racks. It is this same maudlin sentiment that has cast out the galliotine and the executioner's axe. It is the very same maudlin sentiment that has brought forth the Hospital for poor people and suffering people might be treated, and cured. It is exactly this maudlin sentiment that is responsible for all that alleviates distress, and that made the Man-God say, "Come unto Me, ye weary."

If such be maudlin sentiment, give us more of it!

BILLY SUNDAY.

An unknown friend has sent me a clipping referring to Mr. Sunday's work in Philadelphia, and has headed it with the delightful invitation: "O taste and see." I have also received a paper containing an open letter to the Rev. William. Both clippings follow:

"O Taste and See."

Rev. Dr. Floyd Tomkins, rector of the leading Episcopal Church of Philadelphia, writes an article in "The Christian Endeavour World" expressing appreciation of the evangelist's work in that city. He closes his letter in these words:

"Personally, I thank God for Mr. Sunday and his work in Philadelphia. I love him, I trust him and I believe him to be a messenger of God."

Open Letter to Billy Sunday.

"Interpret your doctrine of salvation in terms of modern life! Would not Jesus if he were face to face with a multitude of $10-a-week men, feed their bodies before he attempted to save their souls?"

"You have declared your interest in the salvation of the city of Philadelphia. Look around you and ask yourself what salvation means here. The city is filled with unemployment and poverty; multitudes are literally starving; thousands of little children toiling in the city's factories and stores; its workers, a third of a million strong, have no workmen's compensation law for their protection; meanwhile the railroad interests which control the hard coal fields are reaping exorbitant profits; the tractor company exacts the highest fares paid by the people of any American city; the manufacturers entrenched at Harrisburg are fighting tooth and claw to prevent the passage of up-to-date labor laws, and the vested interests are placing property rights above men's souls."

"These monstrous offences against humanity exist to-day in the city which hears your message.

"And further! The well-fed people, whose ease and luxury are built upon this poverty, child labor and exploitation, sit in your congregation, contribute to your campaign funds, entertain you socially, and invite you to hold prayer meetings in their homes. These are they that bind grievous burdens upon men's shoulders, that make clean the outside of the cup and the platter, the devourers of widows' houses against whom Christ hurled his curse. Here is Dives; yonder is Lazarus, and it is Dives who has made your campaign financially possible.

"Make no mistake! The chief priests, scribes and pharisees of Philadelphia will never crucify you while you deal in theological pleasantries. Had it occurred to you that their kindness is a return for your service in helping them to rivet the shackles of economic servitude upon the bodies of those who do their bidding?"

"The employers of labor have always welcomed anyone who could divert men's minds from the world into heavenly bliss. Turn your oratorical brilliancy for a moment against low wages, overwork, unemployment, monopoly, special privileges, and the other forces that grind the faces of the poor, and watch them show their fangs."

"Before you leave Philadelphia will you speak these truths? Dare you preach them from your pulpit? Will you champion the cause of the poverty stricken, the underpaid, and the exploited? Dare you tell the masters of industry and the takers of profit that they have no right to enjoy ease and luxury while their fellow-men suffer the pangs of hell on earth?"

"We pray, 'Thy kingdom come on earth.' While men are underpaid while women are overworked, while children grow up in squalor, while exploitation and social injustice remain, the kingdom of God never can come on earth and never will."

PROHIBITION.

After consideration of the Bill providing for a Plebiscite, one cannot but feel that the Prohibitionists are seriously handicapped by its provisions. To obtain 25,000 votes an agitation as stirring as the last election is needed, and it is exceedingly improbable that such will result, as the Anti-Prohibitionists have only to induce men not to vote and the election will be run so quietly that many will not think it worth while to vote. Those not acutely interested will be approached in a conciliatory way and it will be impressed on them that it is a matter for the "people" to decide. All of us speak of the "people" as if we did not have anything to do with that great body, and we forget that after all, the "people" is made up of individuals, of whom we are some. Of course at the same time we may reckon on a big vote from the outports, and whereas it is split in two in a general election, now it will be a united vote, or at least one would expect it. It will be to the outports that St. John's will look for help, unless the opinion here has changed since the Local Option election. What is needed now is the right man and the right committee who will have the confidence of the temperance workers in all classes and in all denominations. The fight is not against men, but against a business that immediately affects the lives and interests of men and women. I should advise a full consideration before the first step is taken. Let no false step be taken and let the fight be waged systematically, reasonably and determinedly. The Prohibitionists will have to get as many voters as they can to go to the Polls. The Anti-Prohibitionists need not vote at all and will persuade as many people as they can to stay away from the Polls. How much better the situation would have been if a stated majority of votes had been asked for?

What is needed now is the right man and the right committee who will have the confidence of the temperance workers in all classes and in all denominations. The fight is not against men, but against a business that immediately affects the lives and interests of men and women. I should advise a full consideration before the first step is taken. Let no false step be taken and let the fight be waged systematically, reasonably and determinedly. The Prohibitionists will have to get as many voters as they can to go to the Polls. The Anti-Prohibitionists need not vote at all and will persuade as many people as they can to stay away from the Polls. How much better the situation would have been if a stated majority of votes had been asked for?

After consideration of the Bill providing for a Plebiscite, one cannot but feel that the Prohibitionists are seriously handicapped by its provisions. To obtain 25,000 votes an agitation as stirring as the last election is needed, and it is exceedingly improbable that such will result, as the Anti-Prohibitionists have only to induce men not to vote and the election will be run so quietly that many will not think it worth while to vote. Those not acutely interested will be approached in a conciliatory way and it will be impressed on them that it is a matter for the "people" to decide. All of us speak of the "people" as if we did not have anything to do with that great body, and we forget that after all, the "people" is made up of individuals, of whom we are some. Of course at the same time we may reckon on a big vote from the outports, and whereas it is split in two in a general election, now it will be a united vote, or at least one would expect it. It will be to the outports that St. John's will look for help, unless the opinion here has changed since the Local Option election. The Bridges at the Head of Quidi Vidi Lake

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Through the columns of your paper I would like to call the attention of those who are responsible for the erection of the bridges at the head of Quidi Vidi Lake year after year to the fact that now is the proper time to have them erected, and not when the season is half over as has been the custom in recent years. I understand that not so very many years ago a fairly substantial bridge was built over the main river at the head of the Lake, and that it remained there for a number of years, but latterly it has been the same old rickety thing year after year. Why, in the name of common sense (now that a good road runs from King's Bridge Road to the head of the Lake) is not good permanent bridges erected there so that residents on the north side of the Lake, White Hills and Sugar Loaf, and the public generally benefit from the same? In the evenings, from now on, people wander down the new road, off King's Bridge Road, thinking they will be able to take a quiet stroll along the beautiful north bank of Quidi Vidi, when they are abruptly brought up for the need of bridges and are forced to retrace their steps, and grumble, perhaps, at a pleasant stroll being interrupted from such a trifling cause. Why is it we are so backward in these little matters? Surely it cannot be for the cost. Is there any other country, I wonder, boasting of its progressiveness, as we are prone to do at times, so backward in these little things? Wait up! whoever is responsible, and let us have the bridges—(permanent ones)—good and early this season. We cannot depend on the Regatta this season for them, and why should we? So get to work, gentlemen, and let us have them, and you will be conferring a boon on hundreds.

Yours, PROGRESS. May 21, 1915.

Princess Pats Use Zam-Buk

NOTHING MORE WELCOME IN THE TRENCHES.

Pte. J. R. Smith, of the "Princess Pats," writing to a friend in Ottawa, says: "Tell the friends if they want to help me, such articles as socks, handkerchiefs, cough lozenges and Zam-Buk would be useful indeed."

Scores of other messages from the front are to similar effect. One private writes: "Mrs. — offered to send me a rug. I have written to tell her to send out some Zam-Buk instead. It will be of more use here than all the blankets in Croatia."

Another says: "Advise every one of the boys to bring with him a box of Zam-Buk; it is better than a loaf of bread to a starving man out here."

Still another private says: "On the retreat from Mons we had a forced march of 27 miles, and not a man who used Zam-Buk on his feet felt out."

For sore feet, chafed places, cuts, abscesses, painful sores, etc., Zam-Buk is a veritable marvel. It stops the pain and heals so rapidly. Here it costs but fifty cents per box. Out at the front, to your friends in the trenches and engaged on communications, it is priceless. Send a few boxes in your next parcel. Remember also that, for the same kinds of injuries sustained at home, it is just as good.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"When one visits a distant city and is entertained at parties and dances by persons with whom she was not acquainted before her visit, should she pay them party calls or merely thank them for their hospitality?" asked Jessie.

"She should call on her hostess within two weeks after the entertainment, or if she does not intend to visit that long in the city, she should try to call before leaving the city," answered her aunt.

Great Sea Battle Likely for Control of Adriatic.

Command of this Sea, which will carry great advantage, will be First Object of both Austria and Italy if Latter Enters War.

London, May 17.—The command of the Adriatic will be the first object fought by both Austria and Italy should war be declared between these two countries. Military strategists have considered this in all discussions of the initial movements when hostilities begin. That Italy is powerful enough to block the Austrians at the northern frontier is not for a moment doubted, but it is not so certain Italy can prevent a strong Austrian fleet blocking the Straits of Otranto and thus rendering safe the passage of a large body of troops from Fiume down the Adriatic to some point well below Venice. The threatening of an invasion in the vicinity of Brindisi or Taranto would demand of Italy the withdrawal of a large body of troops from the north, which would otherwise be available for purposes of advance on Austrian territory.

It must not be overlooked that at the battle of Lissa the Austrian navy showed what could be expected of it, and at the present time Austria has a fleet of great strength, and one built on lines essentially those characterizing the fleet of Germany. The Austrian fleet is based on Pola, the great naval station of the dual monarchy, and during the present struggle the ships of the Austria-Hungary monarchy have remained practically unimpaired.

The French fleet has made a show of blocking the Straits of Otranto, and only recently a French battleship was torpedoed while on this duty by an Austrian submarine.

Italy's Powerful Fleet. On the other hand Italy in recent years has devoted her energies to building a powerful fleet, and this determination to increase the strength of her fleet has been a source of apprehension of the deepest sort to Austrian statesmen. The bases of the Italian destroyers and submarines in the Adriatic are Venice and Marano.

Italy does not possess such favorable coast line as Austria for torpedo operations in the Adriatic. The coast of Dalmatia affords excellent shelter for this type of craft and faces within close striking range of the Italian coast line.

The southward of Venice there is no good natural shelter between Austria and the Gulf of Manfredonia. What the Italian general staff long has had to consider has been the danger of a strong hostile force landing in the region of Rimini and Ravenna, to be followed by an advance against Bologna and Ferrara. A feat of this character, if accomplished, would be recorded as a great military success, and especially so if another hostile army should succeed in making a landing in the vicinity of Pescara. From Pescara the roads to Rome itself would be threatened.

The Italian frontier on the north is defended by numerous forts armed with 11-inch and 12-inch guns. There also is a strongly fortified camp between the Tiber and the sea. Recently the Italian military engineers have succeeded in linking together the great works at Cadoc and Osoppo by a series of new and connecting fortifications.

The object of these new works is to protect the concentration of troops in the northern part of the Italian front. The new military defense on the frontier also included the works on the course of the Isonzo.

No aid from Allies. The military measures recently taken have been for the sole purpose of holding the northern frontier, while for the southern shore lines the defence in the first instance devolves upon the navy.

In any operations between the Italian and Austrian fleets, little help, it is declared, could be given at the present time by either Britain or France. These two countries require the maintaining in being of strong home squadrons to meet any possible attack from the German high sea fleet, and all available vessels of the second fighting line, with an occasional exception, such as the Queen Elizabeth, are engaged in the Dardanelles. In the circumstances the control of the Adriatic would resolve itself into a problem to be worked out between Italy and the dual monarchy, and it is for this reason that a naval engagement of magnitude is believed inevitable at the outset if Italy decides to join the Allies.

Goeben's Sortie.

Was an Absolute Fizzle. Petrograd, May 16.—The following statement was issued to-day at the War Office:

"The Goeben, which fired 200 shells at the Russian fleet while it was bombarding the Bosphorus, without scoring a single hit, was herself obliged to return to the Golden Horn, with a hole in her hull stopped up with collision materials. "A portion of her main deck was torn away, and a turret was damaged. Many of her crew were killed or wounded." The warship referred to in the foregoing is the Turkish cruiser Sultan Selim, formerly the German cruiser Goeben.

Seventy Years Old Feels Like Fifty

MRS. WHITEHEAD'S TRIBUTE TO DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Saskatchewan Women Advises all People Suffering from Weakness to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Goschen, Sask., May 21st (Special)—"I am very nearly seventy years of age but I feel like fifty." These are the words of Mrs. David Whitehead, a fine old lady well known and highly respected here. And Mrs. Whitehead does not fail to state that she owes her splendid health to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was so afflicted with weakness," Mrs. Whitehead says, "that I often fainted. I believed my trouble arose from my kidneys and reading an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Now my weakness is gone; I can sleep better and I don't have a tired feeling as before."

"I advise all women suffering as I did to use Dodd's Kidney Pills." "Thousand of old men and women in Canada will tell you that Dodd's Kidney Pills have made them feel younger. And the reason is that with Kidneys made healthy by Dodd's Kidney Pills, pure blood carries new strength all over the body."

EARLY MORNING.

When the eastern sky is shining with the first bright tints of day, his beads reclining, throw the best of life away. He is but a horrid warning who will sleep and dream and snore, when the birds of early morning sing and twitter at his door. An old and bent and hunched, and by day I feel my years, and at night I'm so disgusted I could shed all kinds of tears; but when comes the wondrous breaking of a new and perfect dawn, I forget my ills and aching, all my weight of age seems gone. I whose heart was lately sorer than a grizzly with a grouch, halt the beauty of Aurora, as she rises from her couch, hail her with a song of gladness, for I feel my youth renewed, and I dump the load of sadness over which I'm wont to brood. Something in the splendid dawning makes the kicker think he's small, and his heels like straightway pawing all his bile facts and his gall. I behold that scene majestic, and I turn around and say, to Jemima, our domestic, "Till forget my grouch to-day."

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, May 21. The French Government report the German aeroplanes brought down by British and French artillery.

LONDON, May 21. The Russian Government report successes in the region of the confluence of the Vistula and the San. The 4,000 were captured here on May 15th. Heavy fighting continues north and south of Przemysl.

SENATE RATIFIES ACTION.

ROME, May 21. The Italian Senate to-day ratified the action of the Deputies in conferring all war powers upon the Cabinet. Throughout the morning there were persistent rumors that the war would have been called.

ITALY STRUCK FIRST BLOW.

PARIS, May 21. Italy has struck the first blow at Austria through her fleet, according to a news agency despatch from Rome. This asserts that Italian warships which have been patrolling the Adriatic coast have entered the Austrian port of Cattaro, Dalmatia, on the Adriatic Sea. The despatch gave no details as to whether Cattaro had been bombarded.

AUSTRIANS FIRE ON ITALIANS.

VENICE, May 21. Austrian troops to-day fired upon Italians who had started a demonstration at Zara, the capital of Dalmatia, and had destroyed Austrian flags. Several persons were killed and many wounded.

AUSTRIAN AIRMEN ACTIVE.

PARIS, May 21. The Temps publishes a despatch from Rome to the effect that a flotilla of Austrian aeroplanes from Gorz, near Trieste, are patrolling the frontier between Italy and the Adriatic.

CONFIRMS STATEMENT.

LONDON, May 21. The Stefani agency at Rome confirms the statement that the Italian Government have adopted a bill conferring extraordinary powers on the Government in the event of war.

FRENCH REPORT.

PARIS, May 21. The French War Office this afternoon gave out a report as follows: To the north of Ypres, movements to the east of the Yser Canal, the enemy at an early hour last night started an attack against our trenches. He was successful in the beginning in gaining a footing, but an immediate counter-attack resulted in his complete repulsion. At the same time we won ground beyond the original positions. In this fighting we took 120 prisoners. Further to the south the British troops made some progress at a point north of La Bassée. At Notre Dame de Lorette and on the front between

MAIDOS REPORTED CAPTURED.

LONDON, May 21. A despatch from Athens says the town of Maidos on the Gallipoli Peninsula has been captured by the Allies. The town of Dardanelles has been destroyed by the Anglo-French fleet's bombardment and that a large part of the town of Gallipoli has been destroyed by bombs dropped by the Allies' aviators.

WILL MAKE REPRESENTATION TO GERMANY.

BERNE, May 21. The Swiss Federal authorities have decided to make suitable representation to Germany on the sinking of the Lusitania, as a result of which three Swiss citizens lost their lives.

ADMIRALTY STATEMENT.

LONDON, May 21. The following statement has been issued by the Admiralty: The following decorations have been awarded to the officers and men of the submarine E-14, which, operating in the Dardanelles and Sea of Marmora, sank two Turkish gunboats and a transport: The Victoria Cross to Lieutenant-Commander Edward Boyle; Distinguished Service Cross to Lieutenant Reginald Lawrence; and the Distinguished between Souchez and Neuville St. Vaast there were artillery exchanges during all of last night. Nothing has been reported from the remainder of the front.

ANOTHER OFFICIAL REPORT.

PARIS, May 21. Official this evening: Supplementing previous reports as to the importance of the defeat suffered by the Germans in their attack north of Ypres, during the night of May 20-21, we captured 150 prisoners and took several mine-throwers. The ground was strewn with more than 500 German dead. The weather having improved, our troops on the slopes of Notre Dame de Lorette, made an attack which succeeded brilliantly. We have taken the German fortified works called White Way (La Blancs Voie) which are situated on only one of the five southern ridges of Lorette Hill, which is still partially in the hands of the enemy. From this point the Germans, with their quick-firers, were considerably hampering our action, as also was the case on the plateau and to the west of Souchez. The entire Lorette Hill and lesser ridges, which the enemy had defended heroically for more than six months, are, therefore, in our power. In addition we have captured that section of Ablain St. Nazaire, which is linked with the White Way works. The northern end of the village is still occupied by the enemy. In this fighting we captured more than 250 prisoners, several of the officers. We also took the cannon of the enemy. The enemy replied to our success here with a very violent bombardment. They have not, however, counter-attacked. The day was uneventful on the rest of the front.

SIR JOHN FRENCH REPORTS.

LONDON, May 21. "Since my last communication of the 17th," says Sir John French, "our operations have been hampered by weather, but in spite of this our troops have made appreciable progress east and south of La Bassée. The main characteristics of these operations have been numerous local fights for strategic points behind the enemy's original line. Capturing several of these points, our infantry again displayed great gallantry. On the remainder of the front there is nothing to report, except minor artillery engagements. Last night we brought down a German aeroplane in the neighborhood of Ypres."

LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, May 21. A state of war now actually exists between Italy and her former allies, Austria and Germany, although no formal declaration has yet been made. Austrian troops have been withdrawn from some frontier posts and all navigation services in the Adriatic have been suspended.

SWITZERLAND TAKES CHARGE.

BASEL, May 21. Italy has asked Switzerland to take charge of Italian interests in Germany. The Federal Council has accepted the charge.

ITALIAN TROOPS MASSES IN GREAT NUMBERS.

GENEVA, May 21. Information gathered by correspondents in the eastern part of Switzerland, shows that the Austrian-German forces with heavy artillery have been concentrated at Trent, Bozen and Meran. Movements of considerable bodies of troops are reported from Munich. The theory is advanced that Germany and Austria expect to break through the Italian frontier defences and carry fighting into Italian territory. Italian troops are massed in great numbers along the same front.

CONFIRMS STATEMENT.

LONDON, May 21. The Stefani agency at Rome confirms the statement that the Italian Government have adopted a bill conferring extraordinary powers on the Government in the event of war.

In Tropical Countries Liver Chill Very Common

In Northern latitudes also the liver is a very unruly organ and requires careful watching. The concentrated vegetable juices in Dr. Hamilton's Pills act directly upon the liver and stimulate its action to a normal basis. The blood is purified, the skin grows clear, headaches disappear and robust health is firmly established. No medicine for the stomach, liver or kidneys can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. box at all dealers.

LIVELY BOMBARDMENT.

LONDON, May 21. There was a lively bombardment yesterday of the Dardanelles, directed against Turkish camps at Komu Barrut in the Asiatic side, says Reuters' Athens correspondent. It is stated that Chanaik and Kalesis have been destroyed. The town of Gallipoli has been badly damaged.

BOMBS CHARGED WITH POISONOUS GASES.

LONDON, May 21. An intimation that German Zeppelin airships probably will use bombs charged with poisonous gases, if they make raids on London, is contained in a notice issued by Scotland Yard to-night. The caution previously given that the public should not enter their houses in order to be of any use in the event of a gas attack, is the following added injunction: "It would be well for persons thus taking refuge to keep all windows and doors on the lower floors closed, so as to prevent admission of these gases."

ADMIRAL VAN ESSEN DEAD.

PETROGRAD, May 21. Admiral Van Essen, Commander of the Russian Baltic Fleet, died of pneumonia in the marine hospital at Rival.

THE NATIONAL CABINET.

LONDON, May 21. The first authoritative announcement as to an appointment to the British National Cabinet outside of Asquith and Sir Edward Grey, is that of Arthur Henderson, labor leader, who succeeded Rt. Hon. Herbert Louis Sausse, as President of the Local Government Board. Trade Unionists are pleased at the appointment.

NEWSPAPERS ON KITCHENER.

LONDON, May 21. One of the most remarkable features in the ministerial crisis of England at the present moment, is the sudden outbreak of more or less severe newspaper attacks upon Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, at the outbreak of the war, was the nation's military idol, and was loudly proclaimed by the same newspapers as the only man in the country for the position of War Secretary.

The Daily Mail and other newspapers, in prospect for it, have been an open secret for a long time that Italy and Rumania have an agreement to act in concert. Rumania, however, is awaiting the conclusion of an agreement with Greece and Bulgaria, which are also expected to join the Allies, before she takes up arms.

These anticipations explain the tremendous effort Austria and Germany are making to complete the defeat of the Russians, who have been forced out of Western Galicia and the Carpathians, now are offering a stubborn resistance to the further advance of the Germanic Allies behind the San River around Przemysl. Although the Germans have crossed the San north of Przemysl, the Austrians have advanced southeast of that town, they appear at last to have brought to a halt, as to-day's report from Berlin does not claim any further progress.

Just to the north, in Poland, the Russians are carrying a strong offensive, driving the Germans back, and have, at least partly, exhausted the German flank in Galicia. However, after the way they have been driven back by the heavy artillery bombardment they have had to undergo, the Russians must take some time to regain the initiative.

Since the foggy weather stopped the battles in the West, the Allies have confined themselves to attempts to improve and organize the positions gained. In this they claim to have been successful, although the Germans state that all the Allies' attacks have been repulsed.

Unofficial despatches from Athens continue to report successes for the Allies, but official quarters remain silent, an attitude which meets with some criticism.

AMERICAN SUITS!

Season--1915.

Never was Men's and Boys' Tailoring more perfectly demonstrated than in this season's models. The new consignment of American Cut Suits we have just opened contains some splendid examples of really smart Tailoring.

In Pure Wool Tweeds and Serges, in choicest Greys, Browns, Blues and Mixtures, these Suits for Men and Boys are without question the finest stock we have ever handled.

The reputation we have attained for Ready-mades has been built up by their exceptionally good quality, their refinement of style and coloring, and their distinctive character—the essential features which assure satisfaction in wear and a well-dressed appearance.
