Persian National Assembly Deposes Ruling Dynasty --- Wembley Exhibition Closes --- Syria Seething With Discontent.

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT WILL NOT RESIGN.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31. The Montreal Gazette to-morrow will carry the following: "Quebec, Nov. 1.—There will be a session of the House of Commons within three months, according to a message received here to-day from Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, adding that Premier King and the Liberal Government would not resign office.

STANDING OF THE PARTIES IN CANADA.

The doubtful seats are Queens, P.E.I., Bow River and Peace River, Alberta, Kinross and Maple Creek, Saskatchewan.

TORONTO, Oct. 31. At nine o'clock to-night the Canadian Press reported the following as the party standing:—Liberals, 100; Conservatives, 116; Progressives, 23; Labor, 2; Independent, 1; doubtful, 3. Total, 245. This summary includes return of E. G. Garland, Progressive, Bow River, Alberta, and G. Spence, Liberal, in Maple Creek, Saskatchewan. Returns to-night indicate their election. The doubtful now include Queens, P.E.I.; Peace River, Alberta; and Kinderley, Saskatchewan.

KING CABINET MEETS TO-DAY.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 31. The Dominion Cabinet will meet on Monday, when the situation, resultant from the general election, will be discussed.

PERSIAN DYNASTY DEPOSED.

TEHERAN, Persia, Oct. 31. The Persian Majlis or National Assembly, Saturday adopted a resolution deposing the Kamar Dynasty, which has ruled that country since 1779. The vote was 80 out of 85 in favor of deposition.

CRITICAL SITUATION IN SYRIA.

LONDON, Oct. 31. A dispatch to the Evening News says that the situation in Damascus, where the French recently put down an uprising, is still critical, while surrounding country is seething with discontent.

WEMBLEY CLOSED.

LONDON, Oct. 31. The British Empire Exhibition, which opened at Wembley in 1924, to benefit British Empire trade, closed its doors to-day. The buildings will be immediately dismantled. In the two years' operations, 27,000,000 persons visited the Exhibition, but it did not prove a financial success. It is contended, however, that the ultimate results will be incalculable in money value.

P. E. L. VESSEL AND CARGO WRECK IN FORTUNE BAY.

ST. PIERRE, Mich., Oct. 31. The British schooner Laramink and her cargo of cattle and produce have been lost in Fortune Bay off the south shore of Newfoundland, after stranding during Friday's northwest gale. Her crew are reported saved. The Laramink was bound for St. Pierre from Prince Edward Island.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 31. Contracts for the operation of ten steamships between Detroit and other lower lake cities and European ports have been signed by the Frank Lane Company, New York.

FEDERATED CHURCHES' OPINION OF PROHIBITION.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. "Prohibition has already yielded results which fully justify its adoption." This is the flat statement of the administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches after consideration of its policy on the subject.

To-Day and To-Morrow

THE LUBY VAUDEVILLE TRIO, CHRISTIAN HOLTMUM, AND CORINNE GRIFFITH.

Such a combination has rarely if ever been presented at a moving picture show in this city for years, and it goes to show why the popular Star continues to nightly add new patrons to the thousands who attend this Theatre.

The Luby Vaudeville team who last week in the language of the street "knocked 'em cold," have decided to remain over for two days more—tonight and to-morrow night, and for an attraction will give an entire change of programme with many new novelties, which will in itself be worth the admission price. Mr. Christian Holtum, who a week ago delighted so many with his exceptional high class singing, will also make his appearance on the bill, and to top it all, the management has decided to show with this a First National attraction. These pictures will be admitted by all movie patrons to be in a class to themselves, but when it is stated that Corinne Griffith is the leading star and the story deals with a bigamist, then it goes without saying, that all roads lead to the Star.

Fish Tagging Reveals Habits

The fish tagging campaign being carried on along the New England and Atlantic coast continues to furnish new and enlightening data on the habits of the cod, pollock and haddock, 32,968 of which have been tagged since April, 1923. Of these 1,278 have been recaptured, 26 being recaptured twice and one having been retaken three times. This is the word from the U.S. Bureau of Fisheries Department of Commerce.

The Haley's three tagging cruises in August resulted in the tagging of 2,224 cod, 220 pollock, and 750 haddock, and the recapture of 33, showing little or no migration. The cruises in August were to Mount Desert, Me., Boothbay Harbor to Boone Island, Me., and one to Nantucket Shoals, Mass. In September when two cruises were made—one to Mount Desert and one to Jeffrey's Ledge and Platts Bank—1,231,510 fish were tagged. The total number tagged this year is 12,379.

Facts learned on these cruises reveal that in the region of Nantucket Shoals it appears that the presence of an abundance of all three species is subject to decided variation from year to year. In 1923 cod were found to be very scarce in the early Spring, but abundant from August to October. In 1924, when the first fishing was done in July, fish were plentiful in mid-Summer, but there was a decided decrease in the Fall as compared with 1923. This year cod were found to be much more abundant in the early Spring than during that period in 1923, but were less plentiful this Summer as compared with 1923.

Lighter Golf Ball is not Approved

ST. ANDREW'S CLUB VETOS PROPOSAL MADE IN RESOLUTION.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The proposal that a lighter ball should be played in the Amateur and Open Championships next year was rejected at the business meeting of the Royal and Ancient Club held in the club house at St. Andrews.

James Younger, of Mount Melville, captain of the club, was in the Chair at the meeting, and, at the suggestion of the Golf Balls Sub-Committee, the Rules of Golf Committee proposed that:

"The Championship Committee be requested to announce that in the Amateur and Open Championships of 1926 only a ball measuring not less than 1.68 inches in diameter and weighing not more than 1.55 ounces shall be played."

A large majority of the 150 members present found themselves unable to accept the proposal on the ground that the Championship competitions are held in order to select the champion of the day as ordinarily played, and that they should not be used for purposes of experiment.

The corresponding limits of the present ball are 1.62 inches and 1.62 ounces.

The remarkable influence of Virol on growing tissues is shown in the above case. Virol builds bone and muscle, restores waste, and strengthens the constitution. Virol gives School Children increased strength to resist illness and disease. Give your child Virol regularly, especially when epidemics are about.

Opening Address

Of Rev. Dr. Chown At Special Conference of United Church

Mr. President,
Honored Fathers, Brethren and Sisters:

When we recall the divine ideals we have unceasingly pursued for many years, and the leadings of Providence which have brought us to this auspicious hour, we must be deeply impressed with the conviction that the divine head of the Church has very important purposes to fulfill in our existence. Accordingly, I would like to say something helpful this morning about the peril and tragedy to which we are exposed if we entertain too limited a conception of our duty. This is a very important matter to keep in our thoughts in these formative days, when our ideals as a Church are being so rapidly and with considerable permanency stamped upon us.

If I apprehend aright the purpose of God in creating this United Church, it is to supercede as far as it is possible, at the present time, the fractional representations of Christianity, which as separate denominations we have hitherto presented to the world, by an organization whose high and holy purpose, and whose primary passion shall be to reveal to mankind in much larger measure than heretofore, the great spiritual realities which are hidden for us in the mind and heart of Christ. A Church with such an ideal is, I believe, the only kind which can hope for abiding success in this another Springtime in the life of the world.

The history of civilization in comparatively recent times, chronicles a series of tragedies which are full of warning for us in this beginning of days. I can briefly refer to but a few of these.

The French Revolution, for instance, was a never-to-be-forgotten outburst of passion for liberty; but though its chief motive was humane and right, and though it left behind it a deposit of public blessing of immeasurable value, some of its results were ghastly, so much so that the world, witnessing the anarchy and bloodshed which it was accompanied, became afraid of freedom, and lost for a time the sweetness of the great word "liberty."

Later, modern democracy awoke as a panacea for political and social inequities, but in due course it brought its own stern disillusionment. Statesmen learned that even the coveted franchise was calamitous unless inspired and directed by character, and that the new democracy solely needed education to give balance to its citizens, and save the State from the effects of mob psychology.

In the course of time a strong social passion for economic justice thrilled the hearts of Karl Marx and others. The Marxian theory became the Messianic hope for multitudes, but the basis of its faith was not broad enough. "Man shall not live by bread alone." And to-day in the reactions of the extreme communistic wing of Socialism as seen in the excesses practiced in Russia, we behold the naked tragedy of a search for Brotherhood apart from the Fatherhood of God, and the sobering sanctions of Christianity.

About three-quarters of a century ago, science led by Charles Darwin as its high priest, stepped forth as a goddess of liberty enlightening the world; the hypothesis of evolution, dangerously misconceived by some of its exponents, not as a divine method of progress, but as a self-contained and self-acting energy, postulated the superman. Germany became the chief national exponent of man's self-sufficiency until the vanished strength of the nation went down in cataclysmic ruin.

The League of Nations, the noblest conception in the realm of modern civilization, has come to life to lift the powers of the world out of the deperate mire of militarism. For six thousand years it had been the custom of so-called kingdoms to kill each other, and to be killed in satisfaction for some real or supposed affront.

Thank God for the remarkable achievements of the League already, but it does not yet appear that it can succeed in quieting the worse than bestial hatreds of man unless the Church of Christ reinforce the conscience of the world with a deeper sense of human value, of international obligation, and breathe into it the very soul of peace. Every national banner must be surmounted by the Flag of the Prince of Peace before unity can be relied upon.

I cannot pass along this way without expressing my feeling, that if the Church of Christ is not soon tremendously aroused to smother the stern righteousness and warning love the outcry of war, its future historians will record with burning shame its surprising apathy at this great crisis hour of human history. The failure of the League of Nations would argue the moral insanity of the world, and the Church of Christ would be to blame for not creating a soul of deep spiritual conviction in the heart of the nations to give effect to the purposes of the League. If the Church fail in this, it would lose an opportunity brought with infinite consequences.

and if war continue, the church will be largely unanswerable for the ghastly barbarisms now impending, barbarisms which will make war more terrible and disastrous than imagination can now portray. It is horrible to think that at this hour the old world seems to be boiling like a witch's cauldron, around which devilish harpies sing in hellish glee:

"Double, double, toil and trouble,
Fire burn and cauldron bubble,
Like a hell broth boil and bubble."

Some of the nations of Europe appear to be in such unstable equilibrium as to be dancing a dance of death near the very mouth of a volcano whose eruption at any moment might lay their civilization in ashes, and the people in their graves.

With an alarming challenge the facts and tendencies at work in the world to-day are to summon the Church to heroic action for the prevention of war. May this Church cease not night or day to cry unto God until peace be established forever throughout His world. If I speak thus strongly in describing the opportunity and duty of the Church, it is not out of any disparagement of the League of Nations in its agencies for peace, which are working together with the Gospel message to that end, such as the price of the inevitable and inexorable chaos into which the world was plunged by the Great War, the sorrow of bereaved and grief-stricken multitudes, in many nations the sense of the futility of war as a means of settling international issues, the staggering burdens of immense national debts, and the underlying humanitarian feeling of the human heart. These are all of vital assistance to the League, but it must be remembered that in its efforts at cosmic reconstruction it can as a skillful surgeon, only, set the bones of international life, and bind on the splints, trusting to public opinion to hold the fractured members of the bodies' politics in place until the knitting process is complete; and it remains for Christianity radically to change human nature itself, and to create the brotherly love and national righteousness which will ensure the permanency of peace. The illustrations I have mentioned reveal some of the tragedies of our civilization.

I feel we must now confess that the Church of Christ is itself suffering from tragedies of a similar nature—the tragedy of dependence upon half-truths, or truths half-realized, and consequently the tragedy of half-formed purpose. It is our task as a Church to see life whole, and also to see the truth whole, and having seen these, resolutely to set ourselves to carry forward to notable victory the whole range of responsibilities inherent in full orbed christianity.

We are very thankful to recall that the churches from which we sprang did in their day faithfully sound the tocsin of individual regeneration, and by that means carried our country very appreciably toward the realization of the Kingdom of God.

They also carried the social principle of brotherhood onward to enduring benefits. They produced the arship which has commanded the admiration of cultivated intellect, and inspired scholars and poets to sublime heights of reason and of fancy. They have also strewn the bones of their martyrs upon the shores of many nations, and have left them to whiten upon the mountains, and over the prairies of large portions of the globe. Inspired by the Christian conviction that the nations of the earth have been brought into blood relationship in a peculiar sense through the shed blood of the only-begotten Son of God, they have transmitted the universal love of the All-Father into the hearts of men this wide world over in order that every nation and people and kindred and tongue might be brought into the fellowship of the Gospel of Christ.

All these things and many more have been done through the years of our separation with varying emphases and differing degrees of success by messengers of the denominations into which we were formerly unhappily divided.

But a change having come and Union now being an accomplished fact, we should heed the call of God to produce a much more perfect and aggressive development of all the achievements to which I have referred. God is calling us to receive a fresh outpouring of pentecostal power which shall enable the members of our church to observe the first principles, and purest practices of Christianity more fully than they have hitherto obeyed in any previous period in the history of the Church of Christ.

Why should we not believe this is God's call? We have obeyed the will of God. We have healed divisions in the Body of Christ. We have answered, as best we could, the high priestly prayer of our Master that, "They all may be one." We have gone forward under the direction of his spirit to a position of obedience previously unattained by any of the denominations now constituting the Church, and since we have undertaken such great things for God, why should we not expect unprecedented blessings from him? Previous unions of the Mother Churches have been marked in this way.

Then let us with even more vigorous faith and effort than our fathers move to the rescue of sinners from the blighting effects of sin, through individual conversion. Let us go forward more alertly than ever and with hearts full of God's love for humanity to the solution of oppressive and unjust social problems. Let us resolve that we shall do these things with the supreme Christian intelligence of those who walk in the light of God, an intelligence so clear as to remove all lurking superstitions, and banish all compromises and half-truths from the consciousness of our people. Let us carry the gospel of salvation, for every man, and from all sin, unfettered by creeds of human craftsmanship to the uttermost parts of the earth, and further, make it the crowning glory of our Church, to promote unity, international as well as ecclesiastical; a unity so complete and manifest as to compel the world to believe in the divine mission of Jesus, as the one sent of God to be the actual Saviour of mankind, and the leader of the life of the whole human race.

These duties are the unescapable responsibilities of our church in this age, and moreover we are persuaded that only with this grasp of truth and grouping of activities may we hope to receive sufficient direction and power for our unique redemptive task.

The history of any denomination which attempts to reveal Christ by emphasizing only a fraction of the gospel message, will in due time become a tragedy, if not of outward disaster, yet of inward deformity and comparative spiritual impotence. The best of churches, like the purest individuals may become dire and disastrous tragedies by narrow minded insistence upon isolated religious truths, and the loveless practice of isolated virtues.

The Church around which our affections gather with more intensity every day and about which our faith becomes daily filled with higher expectations, should evermore dedicate itself to the production of the whole cluster of graces that receive their inspiration from and stand within the radiance of the Cross of Christ. With such infinite interests at stake, there comes to each minister and lay representative here to-day, yes to all members of our church everywhere, the ringing challenge of Joshua, to the Israelites just as they were about to pass over to the Promised Land. "Sanctify yourselves for to-morrow, the Lord will do wonders among you."

Let our sanctification be without reserve; let it be made in complete

"Sanctify yourselves for to-morrow, the Lord will do wonders among you."

Let our sanctification be without reserve; let it be made in complete sincerity and with full purpose of heart, and the wonders of grace and salvation will surely follow.

May I now compress what I have further to say into one word—It is briefly this; that in this hour of devotion we should pray that the ideals of the new Church may be equal to the needs of the new world, and be big enough to build into our civilization, spiritual values hitherto only distantly disposed of. The members of our church should be so increased in spiritual stature that they shall regard the whole family of nations as one living human organism, to be loved and served as though all the peoples were of the same kin and kin as ourselves.

When the magnificent steamship Mauretania was launched upon her trial trip, her speed proved bitterly disappointing. An expert was called in to discover the trouble. He found that her hull was perfect in outline and construction, and her engines were well adapted to ensure higher speed, but that her boilers were not lacking in capacity to produce plenty of steam to send her forward with much greater rapidity, but after full examination he pronounced her propellers, the part of the machinery by which her motive power was applied, to be too narrow for her bulk. Too little propulsive power was the trouble.

We believe we have now constituted a church well built and strong in every part, all its machinery being adapted, or soon to be adapted, to the purposes we desire to fulfil. We believe we have, and can always claim, sufficient power from God to enable us to move forward with much greater strength and speed than hitherto to the evangelization of the world. The supreme question for us to-day then is—are we ourselves in our motives and ideals, in our prayers and purposes sincere and broad enough as to be willing that the spirit of God should apply all the personality and power we possess to the doing of the whole work we are called of God to do.

Surely the magnitude of the work of the United Church of Canada must move mightily upon every living soul amongst us. Are we willing then to consecrate ourselves that we shall say as Edwin Markham said to me about himself, "You may cut my heart right away through, and you will find Jesus at the centre. I am all for Him, and he is everything to me." Are we willing in the words of another devoted servant of Christ, and of this age, to vow before God that we will take Jesus in earnest. Failing to do this, our history will be but another tragedy—the frustration, so far as we are concerned, of a great divine purpose.

But beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation, though we thus speak.

An appropriate prayer at this time is found in the verses of a poet otherwise unknown to me, William Steward Gordon, of Roseburg, Oregon. It is couched in these sublime words:—

"O Master of the modern day,
Our hearts are kindled as we know
Thou walkest still along life's way
As in the ages long ago;
And by the magic of Thy will
New worlds thou art creating still.

We thank Thee that Thou rulest still
This goodly world, and dost reveal
That Thou dost still reveal Thy will
To those who would the dark dispel—
That upward o'er the peaks of time
Thy plan unfolds in form sublime.

Enlarge our minds to grasp Thy thought,
Enlarge our hearts to work Thy plan,
Assured Thy purpose falleth not
To put Thy spirit into man:
God of the present age and hour,
Thrill us anew with holy power."

On Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 4th, some of the ladies prominently associated with the Society for the Protection of Animals, will hold a sale in aid of its funds. It will be held in Cagon Wood Hall, and it is hoped the public will patronize it liberally, and take advantage of the opportunity to lend a helping hand to one of the most deserving of our local charities. The ladies in charge of the sale are past mistresses in the art of managing these functions, and the present occasion bids fair to surpass all former efforts. You will be delighted with the splendid array of Xmas novelties and fancy articles at the fancy stalls, where there will be something to suit every taste, and purse. There will be attractive tea tables, and an enticing display of home-made cakes and other dainties for sale. Please make a note of this date, because if this sale is largely attended, it will mean a substantial addition to the Society's resources, and will encourage and help the members to carry on their work.

It seems unnecessary to dwell on what the Society accomplishes—the measureless blessings that have come to animals all over the world through the efforts of humane workers. Our Newfoundland S.P.A. employs an Inspector, Mr. Jonas Barter, whose faithful work deserves high commendation, and it is to defray his salary that funds are chiefly needed. The Society investigates complaints, and prosecutes offenders. It provides means for the painless slaughtering of animals for food, and humanely destroys old and worn-out, or badly injured animals. The Inspector keeps an eye on the transportation of animals, and is always on the job, at wharf or railway station, when they arrive or depart. Branch societies are organized and much humane literature distributed, by our S.P.A. and last, but not least, it encourages by every means in its power, the teaching of kindness to animals among the children in the public schools. This last work, which is of paramount importance, has been going on for some years, and the good results of this are already beginning to be apparent. So come to Canon Wood Hall on Wednesday next, ladies and gentlemen, and show your sympathy in a practical way, with those who are perpetually trying to increase the spirit of kindness in human beings, towards the dumb brutes about us. It is not as generally understood as it ought to be how vitally related to the development of human character, is man's right attitude to these faithful servants of the human race.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Monday, November 2, 1925.

WAKE UP ST. JOHN'S

Unlike a political contest, a civic election awakens little interest in St. John's, whereas in other cities it is the chief topic of conversation for weeks before hand...

For a city with a population of over 36,000, it is not to our credit that such lack of interest is taken in the selection of its governing body, a matter which closely concerns one and all.

What St. John's requires is a body of men in office who can bring power to bear on the Legislature to compel recognition of these rights, men who are thoroughly aware of what is required to make this a modern city...

Scarcely a day during a session of the Legislature, but the House is crowded. Has anyone ever heard of an audience during the weekly meeting of the Council? And yet the discussions are, or certainly ought to be, on matters which immediately concern us...

The lack of funds is the chief reason given for not proceeding with any suggested improvements, but it would be far nearer the truth to say that the shortage of funds was due to the waste incurred in the money expended.

It would be interesting to know if there has ever been drawn up a definite plan of improvements for the city. How can there be, when houses which have been for years an obstruction to traffic and disfiguring to the street lines are rebuilt on the same site?

In fact, is there anyone on the permanent staff of the Municipal Council who is familiar with the methods followed in up-to-date cities, or who is really capable of town planning?

Even when it comes to matters that are obviously primitive, unhygienic and objectionable, no attempt is made to alter them. The garbage is collected during the daytime, when citizens on their way to work get the full benefit of the clouds of ashes...

Under such circumstances can it be said that the permanent officials are showing that they are capable, and can it be said that the Councilors are really on the job?

Under the present system of elections candidates are elected to represent the city. Would it not be better if they represented a ward? At present their work is haphazard; would it not be more effective if they worked on a definite system?

If there is to be a change in the existing state of affairs, the citizens of St. John's must awaken from their long sleep.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Oct. 31st. Some knowledge of mountaineering seems necessary these days if I am to reach the office, since I need must climb the embankments that are left on each side of the car tracks while the new rails are being laid.

Home all this night, busy about my accounts and find my gettings but balance my spendings for the month, which is not good. He better than it might be. So ends this month of cold and storms such as I have never yet experienced and trust I will not again.

Nov. 1st. (Lord's Day) - A bitter cold day, like mid-January, so I home, and do remain by the fire, being the wisest and most comfortable place on such a day. Anon comes Povey and among other things tells me how there will be 2 women candidates for councillor, being Mrs. McNeil and Miss Kennedy, and will indeed make it an interesting election.

Shakespeare says: - "The firmest friendships have been formed in mutual adversity as iron is most strongly welded by the fiercest fire." We can also say that the comradeship of the years of War has welded us in unbreakable links to those who look to us for assistance, the distressed, the fatherless children and widows.

While Away Dull Cares

Positively if you want to forget you ever had a trouble; if you want to chase away your blues the writer knows of no better way than visit Mrs. Malone to-night at the Casino. Unquestionably John Burke is as cream as Dave Delaney and he's only a fair sample of the rest of the cast.

Incidentally, the net proceeds are for Belvedere Orphanage and patrons of the show are materially helping the little orphans by their presence.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

THE APPETITE OF YOUTH.

In the good old land of the Far Away, which I inhabited yesterday, I tried to quiet my hungry eyes, and I have no pain of a fear or two, and I eat whatever seemed good to chew.

In the days gone by, and I whisper low, the rice was swift, though I thought it slow.

I never reckoned my stomach's size, but I have no pain of a fear or two, and I eat whatever seemed good to chew.

In the land of youth I used to dream of mountains of cake and rivers of cream, and I used to think, as we older grow, with sharper teeth we should sit and chew.

I thought when I came to a man's estate, three times for pie I would pass my plate.

Now I watch you eat and I wish that I could eat such flavor in apple pie, and I hear you talk, and I sit and smile.

When you'll come in a little while, when you'll learn that it's only a boy like you, can manage whatever his teeth can chew.

Radio Disturbances

Dear Sir—I read with interest the article entitled "Local Radio Interference" in Friday's edition of the Telegram, and heartily endorse the writer's suggestion.

It would probably interest your readers who are interested in Radio to know of the many disturbing factors in Wireless and Radio reception. As regards local disturbances, besides those stated in the above article, there are several which could be done away with by thoughtfulness and care on the radio fan's own part.

Those who own regenerative and superheterodyne sets, should be careful not to let their sets oscillate, i.e., pick up stations by means of first receiving the stations carrier wave or regenerative whistle. When this is done, the detector tube is oscillating and is sending forth a wave equal in length to the station being received.

As one tube regenerative sets can be heard over a mile and superhets from five to seven miles, can one wonder at the confusion created?

In England it is an offence against the law to spoil another's reception by these means.

Other causes are electric light signs, sparking of street car wheels and trolley wires, ignition system of automobiles, breaking and making of telephone connections, electric motors and generators due to sparking at brushes, etc.

Several of these disturbances can be obviated by care. The greatest enemy of all, known as atmospheric or static, is the one thing which man cannot yet overcome.

We often hear one radio fan informing another "that static was awful last night," but how many fans really know the meaning of the word? To use simple terms, static electricity is stationary. For instance, if you were to leave an aerial ungrounded for any length of time, it would collect electrons from the electrified particles of the atmosphere.

Now, should a person touch this ungrounded aerial and stand on the damp soil, or any metal substance, he or she would receive an electric shock, due to this collection of stationary electricity becoming mobile through the person's body to ground.

Hence we get the term static, meaning stationary electrons with no journey to go, until they can find a path to travel. Therefore when we connect our aerial to the receiving set, old man static has a nice easy path to go to the discharger of the radio fan. Another together to the radio world is that phenomenon sometimes called blank periods, fading, or dead spots.

We in Newfoundland often have periods when reception is practically all, sometimes lasting for two or three weeks. This is caused by magnetic belts, barring entirely, or else weakening radio waves in various zones.

Magnetic belts are apparently caused by a series of sudden climatic changes. (I think all Newfoundlanders will agree on this point).

The above theory is based on the study of atmospheric conditions all over the world for the past twenty years.

Wishing your paper the success it deserves, I remain, Dear Sir, Yours faithfully,

CHARLES R. SCOTT,
Late Officer in charge of Mount Pearl Wireless Station, Mount Pearl, St. John's, Nfld., October 31, 1925.

Ask Grandma she knows that there's nothing like Pearlina for cleaning.

Obituary

MRS. PETER KAVANAGH.

(H. F. SHORTIS)
Sad hearts were grieved by the visit of the Angel of Death on Tuesday last, 27th ult., to the home of Mr. Peter Kavanagh of Corner Brook, Bay of Islands, when a kind wife was removed from the family circle, after a long and painful illness, borne with Christian patience and fortitude, after receiving all the consoling rites of Holy Mother Church. The Almighty God never fails to reward those who are true to their conscience and loyal to the teachings of the Church, and this was exemplified in the dying moments of this truly Catholic lady. The deceased was a woman of exceptional personality combining remarkable business capacity and energy with every quality of the good wife. She was kind-hearted in the extreme, and no case of need came to her door without receiving freely and fully of her aid. She was a home-maker in the truest sense of the word. Some months ago she was in the Hospital of St. John's. The medical aid received there proved helpful for a time, but a recurrence of the malady took place, and it was seen that but little medical help could be given. During her illness she was a constant example to those around her of resignation and patient faith in the designs of Divine Providence, in that she ever displayed a beautiful submission to, and a cheerful compliance with, the trials so inevitably characteristic of a prolonged and painful illness.

Mrs. Kavanagh (nee Mary Manning) was born in Bell Island, Conception Bay, and for many years was a resident of St. John's. About 16 years ago she and her husband removed to Grand Falls, where the latter held a responsible position in the extensive Mills in the inland town. About 3 years ago they removed to Corner Brook, and the husband started business on his own account, where he still resides. She has left to mourn, a kind and devoted husband, and one sister (Mrs. T. Rourke at Mall Bay, St. Mary's Bay), and hosts of friends. The remains were brought to St. John's by train on Thursday. The funeral ceremony in the Cathedral was conducted by Rev. Fr. Savin, and interment was in Mount Carmel cemetery on Friday evening. Requiescat in pace.

Lavish Production at the Nickel To-Night

Given a lavish setting in the whirl of modern social life, "Cheaper to Marry," Samuel Shipman's big New York stage success, was aimed by Robert Z. Leonard and the result, regarded by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials as one of the most dramatic pictures of the year, will be seen at the Nickel Theatre to-night.

Brilliant social events in the luxurious surroundings of New York hotels and clubs, intimate glimpses into the life behind the doors of an exclusive athletic club, and thrilling scenes in the stock exchange all go to make the film version of the play an unusual picture.

Threaded through the picture is a powerful story of the age-old war of the sexes, which comes to a startling and realistic climax.

The cast is an exceptional one. Besides Lewis Stone, it includes Conrad Nagel, Pauline Dural, Marguerite de la Motte, Louise Fazenda, Claude Gillingwater and Richard Wayne.

Miss Dural, former French dancer in Ziegfeld's "Follies," is seen in her first screen role since "Monsieur Beaucaire," the Valentino film in which her characterization of Madame Pompadour won wide acclaim. She is the mistress of Jim Knight, while Nagel and Miss de la Motte play opposite each other for the first time in their careers. A rich vein of comedy runs through the picture, capably handled by Miss Fazenda and Mr. Gillingwater.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE PUZZLED HUSBAND.

He can't see what she can find to keep herself busy about the house all day.

Just a little bit of a house with all sorts of labor saving devices and only two children, and they in school most of the time.

He should think she could hardly find enough to keep her busy. And so, knowing that happiness lies in having enough to do, and being a devoted husband, he does his best to keep her happy.

Here are some of the things he obstinately does to drive away the melancholia of idleness:

How He Forestalls Satan.
Instead of using a waste paper basket he always employs the fireplace in that capacity. The envelopes from his evening mail, a dozen burnt matches scattered generously all over the hearth, the cartons that contained the film for his camera, an empty tobacco box—such are the fragments that she must pick up every morning through the summer if she wants the hearth to be an ornament and not a focus of dirt and disorder in the room.

When he undresses he walks around the room and bath leaving each garment where he happens to be when he takes it off. Occasionally he varies this by an excursion into the living room where he sits down to read the paper while he undoes his shoes and leaves a pair of shoes by the easy chair and a pair of garters on the living room table. In the morning if he cannot readily find his underwear or stockings he takes a clean pair and presently has three or four pairs going at once and utters bitter complaints when he finds he has no clean ones and suggests that his wife wash out a few things in the middle of the week.

Reduces Bathroom To A Pulp.

When he bathes or shaves he reduces the bathroom to a pulp of disorder—a towel flung down behind the bathtub, a razor disassembled about the room, soap spongers on the mirror, soiled garments on the chair, a pair of garters on the mantel, a soiled handkerchief on the window sill, a newspaper in the bathtub.

He always fills his pipe either over the livingroom table or over the bureau, dropping tobacco over them liberally as he does so—perhaps to keep the moths from the hairbrushes or magazines. As both places are well covered with objects, that will keep his wife free of the melancholia of idleness for several hours while she takes each object of the bureau or table, shakes the covering and puts each object back into its place.

He also dispenses with ash trays. If his wife didn't have to brush or shake the ashes off the pipe every day she certainly would never know what to do with herself.

And He Never Will Know.
No, he cannot see what she can find to keep herself busy so much of the time and never will know a wife himself with two children who come home from school at odd hours for meals, a sewing basket always full, a telephone and two doorbells always breaking in on him a neighborhood position to live up to, a garden to keep, a club or two to help run, and a thoroughly disordered husband to pick up after will be solve that riddle.

"The First Year" a Tragic Comedy

One of The Outstanding Bills of The Balfour Stock Co.

If you were asked to name the greatest play of the last fifteen years after seeing "The First Year," you would without hesitation nominate that wonderful home-loving comedy of married life, "The First Year," which played for more than two years at the Little Theatre, and for two years on tour was acclaimed by audiences from coast to coast as the finest play written in many years.

After a great many weeks of negotiations, Manager Balfour has secured permission from the Author to produce "The First Year" throughout Eastern Canada, Newfoundland and the West Indies. "The First Year" is known as a "Tragic Comedy" of married life, and the title has something to do with the birth of the now familiar adage, "The First Year" is the hardest so far as newly weds are concerned. It tells a simple, human, straightforward story, without trills or furbelows. It is the story of people who know—perhaps your neighbors, or members of your family—and it may be that other people in the crowd-breaking audience that will gather at the Casino will think they see "you" yourself depicted by one of the actors or actresses on the stage.

Headed vaudeville will also be a feature of the programme of plays and popular prices will prevail. This will be the opening bill, on Monday next. Seats on sale at Casino box office, Friday morning.

British Trade Peril

INDUSTRY AGAIN URGES THE PREMIER TO RECONSIDER.

The Federation of British Industries has addressed to the Prime Minister a letter drawing attention to the state of British trade, "the seriousness of which industry feels the Government has not yet fully realized."

The Federation states: "While Government expenditure has apparently fallen by some 30 per cent. since 1920 (£1,195,428,000 for 1920-1921, against £7,96,400,000 estimated, for 1925-1926), this reduction is largely, if not entirely, illusory, since the purchasing power of the £ sterling, as measured, either by retail or wholesale prices, has increased by approximately 30 to 31 per cent. during the same period. Actually, therefore, the Government expenditure for 1925-1926 is approximately the same in real values as that for 1920-1921.

Nor is this all. To obtain a fair comparison between the expenditure of 1920-1921 and that of 1925-1926 it is necessary to deduct from the former the sum of approximately £300,000,000 which was stated by the then Chancellor of the Exchequer in his Budget statement to represent temporary charges directly or indirectly due to the war. The real result, therefore, of Government economy over a period of five years has been, not to decrease the normal peacetime expenditure of the country, but to increase it by approximately 19 per cent.

The Federation suggests that the different departments of Government should, before preparing the normal estimates for the year, be asked to supply at least two trial estimates based on the assumption that they were required to reduce their present expenditure by, say, 10 per cent. and 20 per cent., indicating which, if any, of their present activities would have to be abandoned, or curtailed, and what reorganization of staff or procedure would be required.

Anaesthetics That Explodes

By A WEST END SPECIALIST.

The recent death of a boy through the explosion of an anaesthetic in his throat has naturally caused some public alarm. Although fortunately still uncommon, these accidents have assumed an increased importance from the inflammable nature of some of the more recently introduced anaesthetics.

Two of these, acetone and ethylene, although in some respects full of promise, have this drawback—they easily burst into flame when freely mixed with air or with oxygen. And for their clinical use a plentiful supply of oxygen is not only desirable but actually necessary.

In the case reported the anaesthetic employed was ether and oxygen. This, too, is a highly inflammable mixture, but it is one that has been used many thousands of times with perfect safety. Every anaesthetist knows that ether, with or without oxygen, cannot be employed in the vicinity of a naked flame or open fire. Nor is it used in connection with electrical apparatus, such as that employed in diathermy applications.

We have, however, to learn the lesson that with these highly inflammable mixtures not merely a naked flame must be avoided, but anything which may bring the mixture to the temperature at which it is inflammable or explosive. That temperature is sufficiently low when large percentages of oxygen are present in the mixture, and may be reached even by such an apparatus as that for supplying warmed air to dry the mouth.

The explosions that have hitherto occurred with anaesthetics have been not only few but fortunately also not generally fatal. Indeed, the amount of damage done when ether has burst into flames has been extraordinarily small. The vapour burns out so quickly that in most instances the patient has suffered little or no harm, and being unconscious at the time has never realized at all that he had been through the flames.

"Toot, toot, toot, toot, toot. Soot, little rabbits soot, soot, soot! It's a long, long way to our pretty home city. And the river is rough and the boat will be dippy."

my youngsters' khaki play-suits, getting three meals a day and washing on Mondays, I feel that it is more comfortable just to stay at home."

"But not so exciting," all of a sudden shouted a voice, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat.

"Gracious me, who is that?" almost sobbed frightened Mrs. Cottontail, looking anxiously about her. But there was no one in sight; no one except a little ant hurrying back to her sand-pile house on the Shady Forest Trail.

"Don't mention that dreadful creature's name," answered poor Cousin Cottontail, now thoroughly frightened. "It gives me the shivers down my back. You don't suppose it is he?"

What the Horse Did in War

120,686 KILLED IN ACTION ON BRITISH FRONT, WHILE OVER 800,000 WERE IN ACTIVE SERVICE.

The British Government has recently issued a report dealing with the part taken by horses in the Great War. A reading of it convinces one that they were a far more valuable asset than is generally realized. This report records the fact that, on the British front in France 120,686 horses were killed in action, and that on all fronts 827,506 horses and mules were employed in active service. When the war was over many of the horses that returned did not find either a pension or green pastures awaiting them, but were sent to the butchers, where they were sadly needed for food. This was during that period when the Director of Prisoners of War in England supplied his charges with meat and mutton, but only because the returned man and his family were trying to live on horse meat, which was none too plentiful at that time. The horses and mules were well cared for, and the mule had the satisfaction of knowing that when life was over its usefulness was over and it was free to wander in whatever Valhalla the gods reserved for it. Both the mule and the horse worked well under fire, and many are the stories that are told of their intrepidity and sagacity during a siege or when under shell-fire. The veterinary surgeons were devoted to the charges and risked their lives again and again to put the animals out of the need for prolonged suffering. A writer in the New Times tells of a scene in Gallipoli where the surgeons came from their dugouts between bursts of shell-fire to shoot the desperately wounded horses.

While the fact is plain that the war could not have been fought without horses and mules and that they were conscripts there because they had to be, on the other hand there is a measure of poetic justice in knowing that despite the hundreds of mechanically propelled devices for transportation, there were times when only the horse or the mule could do the required work. This does not mean that cavalry engagements were numerous, but that the horse and mule were indispensable for ordinary plain, every day living in Mesopotamia and in Egypt. The campaign could not have been carried on without the cavalry, and on the Western front the cavalry charges, while not numerous, were important; there can never be any question of displacing the horse as a factor in military campaigns or manoeuvres. But the report shows that the horse wherever he was placed in the Great War, was useful; it also shows that the thoroughbred was the most intelligent and most deserving of praise.

Harry Wills Wins Over Johnson

IN FIRST ROUND OF BOUT.

Iowa's Seconds Threw in Towel After 2 Minutes of Fighting.

Newark, Oct. 26.—Harry Wills, negro challenger of Jack Dempsey for the world's heavy weight boxing title, won a victory somewhat out of ordinary interest in the first round of a 12-round match here to-night. Johnson's seconds hurled a towel into the ring two minutes after the start of the round while Johnson was standing firmly on both feet. For the time the crowd was in an uproar and could not comprehend what had happened, but the referee, Harry Lewis, said that he had to award the fight to Wills when the towel came flying into the ring.

Newark, N.J., Oct. 26.—Harry Wills, negro heavy weight, scored a technical knockout over Floyd Johnson of Iowa, in the first round of a 12-round match here to-night—the sudden ending leaving 9,000 spectators stunned.

Johnson received Wills' mighty left to the body and head just as the bout started and he appeared worried. The right to the head drove him to the ropes but he withstood the attack and ventured to the centre of the ring, while the towel floated from his corner.

Referee Harry Lewis, Wills and Johnson all gazed at the towel, in a mingling astonishment and the throng rose to its feet in clamor. Lewis took Johnson by the arm and led him to his corner and then informed the press he could do nothing but award the fight to Wills after that towel had dropped into the arena. As the fighters departed protests came from the crowd which had only seen two minutes of contest. "Fake, fake," came the cry. "That's the end of boxing in New Jersey." But as a matter of fact Johnson was not far from oblivion when the succoring towel appeared. The negro had gone at him smilingly as they tapped each other lightly in the centre of the ring. He was fully confident. A half minute of sparring preceded the first blow of the contest, a drive to the body. Then he wrestled his foe to the ropes and drove a right fist to the chin, after which Johnson became conscious and bore away. Another left found his jaw and he backed to the ropes to receive a solid shower of rights and lefts to head and body.

But the Iowan, known in the past as the "Bulldog of the West," continued to throw his arms out before him and gradually worked to the centre of the ring as his seconds went into action.

Dr. William Silverstein, physician for the State Boxing Commission, examined Johnson after he had reached his dressing room and pronounced him in good condition. The blow that rocked him was a left jab to the head, according to his handlers. Wills had been a top-heavy favorite to win by a knockout in five rounds for Johnson, once in line for heavy-weight honors, had deteriorated as a boxer since his defeat three years ago by Jess Willard in seven rounds at the Yankee stadium.

"I was punch-drunk," Johnson said in his dressing room after to-night's bout. "Wills' left caught me on the right side of the neck and left me dizzy. I didn't know where I was." The weights: Wills, 215; Johnson, 203.

George Courtney, of Oklahoma, and Charley Arthur, New York, middle weights, fought a rattling ten round contest as a preliminary. Courtney proved the better boxer.

The referee stopped the semi-final between Frank Moody, of Wales, and Homer Robinson, Pittsburgh, negro, in the seventh round because the going was too slow to suit him.

Dead Man's Ashes at Dinner

LONDON, Oct. 23.—A dead man has figured as a guest at an extraordinary banquet in London. About a year ago one of an innumerable trio of wealthy city merchants known as "Jimmy," died, and, in accordance with his last wish, was cremated.

For years the men had celebrated each other's birthday at a famous restaurant in Regent street, and last week, on the anniversary of "Jimmy's" birthday, the two other companions paid a visit to a crematorium in the country and asked for the urn containing the ashes of their departed friend.

The caretaker said he could not allow them to remove the urn, but after the two men had related the story of their life-long association he finally agreed.

"Jimmy Is With Us." At the cafe that evening dinner for three was ordered. "But," exclaimed the puzzled waiter, who had known the trio for years, "there are only two of you."

"Dinner for three," repeated one of the men, "for Jimmy is with us to-night." And then the waiter's glance fell on the urn, which had been placed on the table in front of a vacant chair.

All "Jimmy's" favorite dishes were ordered and served; Champagne also was ordered, and "Jimmy" was toasted royally.

Subjects in which "Jimmy" had been interested were discussed. Old days were recalled and old adventures recounted.

"It was the most pathetic and touching incident throughout my career," said the waiter, "and I have never felt so moved in my life, for I had known the three for many years; they might have been brothers."

The affair was conducted with such dignity and respect that there was no suggestion of impropriety.

THE BEGGAR.

On a busy city corner sat an old blind beggar man, and I placed a hard-earned quarter in his little rusty can; then a glow of conscious virtue lighted up my careworn face, and my head was proudly lifted, and my heart was good and warm. For the quarter I had used; it would buy some fresh cigars, it would purchase noontime luncheon, pay my passage on the cars; but I gave it to the beggar and all day my heart was light, and I thought recording angels would jot that transaction down. When I read the evening paper I could feel my face grow pale, for that beggar was arrested, and was in the city jail. It was said he faked his blindness; he had money salted down, he could buy nor miss the rubles, all the poets in the town. Then I felt a wave of anger surge through my embattled frame, and I swore I'd never fall for any other beggar's game. "Nevermore," I sadly muttered, "will I do without a smoke, that a mendicant may fatten, with my own, his greasy pook. And no more I'll walk the pavement while my wiser neighbors ride, that arrogant phony blind man may have oaks and oysters fried." But while grumbling I remembered how that quarter thrown away, made me swell with conscious virtue through the long hours of a day. Then I canceled all those pledges, I expunged them in a trice, and I said, "That snow-white feeling, it was cheap at any price! Little boots it if that beggar has the assets of John D.; when he deigned to take my quarter, surely he uplifted me!"

Saved by a Miracle

By a SURGEON.

What, I wonder, would the surgeons of a century ago have thought of one of the most astounding operations of modern times recently performed at the London Hospital? There a surgeon actually cut open and dilated one of the valves of the interior of the human heart while that heart was still carrying on its normal circulatory function.

Since the very birth of medical science, the dream of performing this operation has stirred the imagination of the surgeon. But never has surgical technique been the equal of surgical imagination.

This is the history of this amazing operation:

In 1921, the patient, a young girl, came up to the London Hospital suffering from mitral stenosis, or a gradual closure of one of the four valves of the heart. In spite of continuous treatment the patient did not improve and it was decided to operate.

A large flap of skin and muscle over the girl's heart was laid back and the ribs over the cardiac area were removed. The pericardium, or sac containing the heart, was then exposed to view, and the heart could be seen pulsating at the rate of 125 beats to the minute.

The sac was then opened, an incision was made in the auricle (one of the four chambers of the heart) and the gloved finger of the surgeon was inserted as a plug to stop the immediate fountain of blood.

After examination it was decided not to incise the valve as had originally been intended, but merely to dilate it with the finger.

The surgeon very slowly and with infinite care did this without any mishap: the incision was sutured, the pericardium closed, the ribs, the muscles, and the skin replaced layer by layer. While he was doing this the heart maintained a very nearly normal pulsation, which became wholly normal when the chest was closed. The patient made a speedy and uninterrupted recovery, and when I last heard of her stated that she felt perfectly well.

This is the first time this operation has ever been performed on the human heart. Each month, each week almost, sees some new advance in medical knowledge. But it is doubtful whether more than a very few of the people who hurry along under the grey walls of London's hospitals realise anything of the great pioneer work that is being carried on unceasingly within them.

Come and bring a friend to the George St. Mission Circle Sale on Wednesday afternoon and evening. Concert at 8 p.m. Nov. 21, m.w.

Man to Keep Two Wives by Order

LONDON, Oct. 22.—A case of a divorced man who re-married and had to keep two wives was disclosed at Willesden Police Court, when William Bartlett, of Wallasey, Cheshire, applied for the discharge of a maintenance order for 120s. a week made against him in 1921 respecting his first wife.

Bartlett's solicitor said that it had always been understood that a decree absolute put an end to a police court maintenance order. It was, however, urged by the other side that as the man still owed High Court costs he was "in contempt" and could not legally sue for discharge of the present order.

The Bench decided not to annul the order, but to reduce the amount to 20s. a week, with a 5s. weekly off the arrears of £24.

The Latest Plot Against Women

By ROTHAY REYNOLDS.

Berlin.—A dastardly plot to ruin the happiness of millions of women has been hatched in New-York. The conspirators have extended their work to Paris and their agents are active all over Europe. Fortunately a writer in the German Press has discovered their ugly secret and revealed their dissembling intrigues.

The plotters, he states, are makers of hairpins, tortoiseshell combs, wigs, transformations, fringes, and plaits, who see ruin staring them in the face. In their despair they have engineered a world-wide war against the shingled woman.

The sum of $20,000 has already been subscribed by the wholesale dealers in false hair of America to finance the conspiracy. Money is being subscribed by manufacturers in Paris and, as the plot extends to London, Berlin, Vienna, Warsaw, and Rome, there will be ample funds to carry it out.

The aim of the conspirators is to burden women's heads with masses of plaits and curls and to stick them full of iron pins. Their method is to instill the idea that the truly fashionable woman is no longer cropped and to create in women a longing for flowing tresses.

Not a thought do they give to the misery of their victims in the months and perhaps years which must elapse before short-hair has grown to rat-tails and rat-tails to a tress which can be plaited into a neat knob. All they think of is their own pockets.

The agents of these sordid men are hard at work. They are already sowing unrest in the minds of women by means of incoherent paragraphs in the newspapers. I am told that they are seeking to suborn artists to praise the fashions of bygone times and that they have gone so far as to drive poor girls into the streets of Paris with bits of other girls' hair attached to their heads.

Here in Berlin they have no success. Three of the greatest actresses have just been cropped, and a fashionable hairdresser states that he chops off fifty nigtails a day. The only difficulty is the German husband, who appears to have a superstitious idea that a woman's hair is her glory. Husbands, however, were made to be managed, and the advice of a German to one of her friends who dreaded her husband's anger may be usefully repeated.

"Go and get your hair shingled," she said, "and do what I did. When I got home after the operation and my husband began to fume, I just turned on him, declared that I had been shingled for a whole week, that I had not even noticed it, and that it was perfectly clear that he didn't love me. I made such a scene that he gave me a nice present next day."

Horse Trainer Suicides

TRANSVAAL II'S TRAINER—UTTERLY RUINED.

The Cesarewitch has had a tragic sequel in the suicide of the trainer of one of the most prominent French candidates.

M. Wadomski, trainer of Transvaal II, which finished tenth at 100 to 1, was found hanging in his bathroom at his home in Maisons Laftte, near Paris, where his stables are. In his pocket was a purse containing a sum equal to less than 1s. In his bedroom he had left three letters, in one of which addressed to M. Mantacheff, the owner of the horse and a Russian millionaire, he stated that he was utterly ruined, and that the only solution was suicide.

M. Wadomski learned of the failure of Transvaal II by a telegram. He retired to bed early, after telling his head lad to call him as usual at 7 a. m. When the lad called he was surprised to receive no reply, and entering the bathroom he found the trainer hanging by a leather belt from an iron waterpipe.

400 in Stable.

M. Wadomski, who was of Polish origin, was training before the war for the world's largest stable, that of M. Mantacheff, in Russia, and was understood to have had in his charge at one time nearly 400 thoroughbreds. The advent of the Bolshevist regime compelled both owner and trainer to flee, and while most of M. Mantacheff's racing stable had to be abandoned to the Bolsheviks, the better horses were saved and smuggled out of Russia and brought to France, after travelling almost round the world, via Siberia and Vladivostock.

M. Wadomski lost his wife in tragic circumstances about three years ago, when, owing to a defective internal combustion stove, the couple were found unconscious in their bed. They were hurried to hospital, where Mme. Wadomski died.

Transvaal II won the Paris Grand Prix last year, and both the owner and trainer thought he had a first-class chance in the Cesarewitch.—Daily Mail.

Last of Clipper Ships Goes to Doom

WITH ALL ENSIGNS PROUDLY FLYING.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(A. P.)—A requiem was sung yesterday for an institution of the sea.

The last clipper ship has "set sail" on her final voyage, a journey from the realm of things material to the land of memories. Within a few weeks she will be junked, ground to bits under the hard heels of progress, torn down because she has outlived her usefulness.

A little group of sober-faced men of the sea, members of the Neptuna Association, men who swabbed her decks and oiled her masts in years gone by, men who raced with her round the Horn, comprised the few who gathered on the decks of the Benjamin F. Packard, last of the clippers, to bid her farewell.

There was not much to be said, nor much to be done. Somehow speeches seemed out of place, it was too solemn an occasion for these men who realized that the last shrine of the old-time sailors' love and devotion was passing forever.

Some little ceremony was planned. Capt. D. J. Martin, who brought the Packard safely through her last trip was to haul down her ensign. He grasped the halyards, the little group in the waist faced aft and with bared heads watched the ensign flutter to the deck.

But it did not stay down, for Capt. Martin sent it aloft again immediately. It was a moment before anyone grasped just what was happening, that the clipper was to be permitted to go proudly to her doom with flags flying, but when they did the response was spontaneous.

Shoulders bent with the weight of years were drawn a little further back, eyes dimmed by the lash of drizzle spray, sparkled a trifle brighter, and hands, once firm, but shaking now, held hats aloft as an involuntary cheer broke out.

"Champagne is good, and so is rum," boomed Capt. P. B. Blanchard, in a flash the "crew" was at the main sheet, tugging away and roaring the chorus: "Whiskey for my Johnny!"

"And beer is good enough for some."

"But whiskey for my Johnny!" The lilting note for the old sea Chantey floated over the harbor. The main sheet was dropped and reminiscences were in order. Never again will the Packard haul out of the Bay of Bengal, leave Ceylon and Madagascar on her starboard side, double the Cape of Good Hope and bear steadily up the west coast of Africa with the Benguela current.

Never again will her keel slip silently through the warm waters of the South equatorial current, nor will she ever again go racing 'round the Horn.

One by one the famous ships have gone. The glory of the seas, the Young America, the Tamohanter, the Sovereign of the Seas, the May Queen and the Swallow Tail all have passed. And with the passing of each, some little bit of sentiment, some cherished memory, some modicum of a sailor's love has been transferred to the ones remaining.

Because of this fact the Packard, last of a distinguished company, with her holds empty, her decks deserted, and her wheel forever in becket, bears a cargo of forgotten memories far more precious than any freight she carried in the halcyon days of her glory.

But though they tear her rigging down, strip her mighty yards, and strike her ensign, the Benjamin F. Packard will not die.

Captained by a phantom skipper, manned by a ghostly crew of bygone days, she will sail on in the remembrance of those who trod yesterday, for the last time, the decks of a clipper ship. She will be recalled to sail around many a fire-side when old skippers assemble to swap yarns.

Whole Crew Bailed Tiny Steamer Over Two Days

LONDON, Oct. — (By Mail) — Six British seamen who arrived at Liverpool from Canada as passengers in the White Star Liner Regina told a graphic story of a hazardous voyage in a 400-ton steamer from Montrose, Scotland, to Vancouver.

The little craft was the Lady Cyn this, a mine sweeper 200 feet long, converted for coastal work between Vancouver and Bowen Island.

She was in charge of Captain A. Dickson and a crew of 20 men.

They started from the Scottish port on July 3 and were 47 days making the voyage via Panama to Vancouver.

When off Washington Point they struck bad weather, and for three days the Lady Cynthia was tossed about like a cork by the raging seas and tempestuous winds.

The great difficulty was preventing the little steamer from being swamped, and for 50 hours the whole crew was engaged bailing the ship.

WILLIAM FOX presents

DANTE'S INFERNO

The Banishment of Hatred

Speaking at a luncheon at which he and the other Foreign Ministers were the guests of 200 newspaper correspondents, Mr. Chamberlain said of the Pact:

This is the realization of the common ideal—the banishment of hatred and distrust and the dawn of a new era of friendship and good will among nations.

The destiny of the world depended upon the success of our work, and the agreement reached is a stepping-stone to universal peace.

The mutual relations of the nations of Europe have been founded here on a basis of absolute equality, good will, and mutual consideration. The treaty which we shall take away does not represent the triumph of any one delegation; it is the result of the most sincere collaboration, of mutual agreement, and of the best suggestions every delegate had to contribute.

At the conclusion of the speech, Dr. Luther walked over to Mr. Chamberlain's side, and, thanking him for all he had done at Locarno, clinked glasses with him. M. Briand added his congratulations to those of the German Chancellor.

Viscount Hastings

ELOPES WITH TANGO DANCER.

LONDON, Oct. 22. — Temporarily dispensing with his title, three of his names and considerable of the dignity connected with his position as heir to the Earl of Hurlingham, the 24-year-old Viscount Hastings eloped with Cristina Casati.

Cristina is an expert tango dancer, a beautiful girl, well known in London's Bohemian circles and of noble birth herself, for her father is the Italian Marquis Casati. She is 24 years old.

Senator William Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy, witnessed the runaway wedding.

The elopement became known Wednesday. It took place Tuesday night.

Lord Hastings escaped curious attention from officials when he obtained the license by giving his name as plain Francis John Hastings, not only omitting his title but three of his Christian names, Clarence, Westcra and Plantagenet.

The Earlom to which Lord Hastings will succeed some day, with his bride as a Countess was created in 1829.

"Dante's Inferno"

MAJESTIC TO-NIGHT.

Since the announcement by the Majestic Theatre that the Fox production of "Dante's Inferno" has been booked for to-night, great interest has been aroused in the celebrated allegory with which his name is associated in the mind of everyone who has a knowledge of classic literature.

The poem "Inferno" is one of three which form what is known as the Divine Comedy. The other two poems, "Purgatory" and "Paradise," are not concerned in the Fox picture.

"Inferno" narrates an imaginary journey made by Dante through hell. At the outset, he finds himself lost within a fearful forest, where he encounters three wild beasts. Fearing the monsters will devour him, he looks about for help, and before him appears the spirit of the ancient Roman poet Virgil who has been summoned from punishment in Purgatory by Beatrice to lead Dante on his perilous way through the terrors of the nether regions. Beatrice has taken this means to prevent the man who had loved her in youth from straying from the path of righteousness.

After crossing the Black River, Acheron, ferried over by the aged boatman, Charon, the two poets find themselves at the door of Hell, over the door of which is the inscription, "All Hope abandon, ye who enter here."

 DRAMATIC SCENES WHEN COMANCHE TOOK FIRE.
 NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(A. P.)—Dramatic scenes aboard the steamship Comanche when fire broke out in its hold last Saturday night, off Florida, were described today by 66 members of the crew returning to this port.

Women praying in the saloon, as they put on life belts, an orchestra of three musicians playing jazz to keep up morale, men passengers "maddening with the officers' work and playing cavaliers instead of men of help" in the invasion of the boat deck by men and women passengers before the life-boats were ready—these were some of the episodes described by the returning crew members.

A passenger from the Comanche arriving here today, Miss Christine B. Roberts, of Bloomfield, N.J., said she did not witness any cowardice on the part of negro members of the crew as other passengers had charged earlier.

INTER COLLEGIATE FOOTBALL—COLLEGIANS DEFEAT B.C.C.

It was regrettable that weather conditions were not more favorable on Saturday afternoon for the inter collegiate football game between the Felldians and Collegians. It was generally thought by the fans that the contest would prove to be the best and most closely contested game for the season...

Both teams were handicapped under the conditions, but if anything, the M.C. victory was largely due to the fact that they had a much heavier team and they were better able to stand the heavy going over their lighter opponents...

First Half. The teams faced off with the Felldians defending the western goal. From the outset it was seen that playing would be very difficult, due to the greasy condition of the field...

giving the M.C. players a slight advantage. For this reason much of the play was confined to the western goal and the Felldians were kept on the alert defending their goal. The Felldians, however, were not altogether on the defensive...

Second Half. With two goals against them the Felldians went out for the second period with renewed vigor and determination to reverse the lead against them...

Play was general, all the players working hard and the spectators were most interested. After about twenty minutes of play the Collegians again scored, when Barbour was in the right place to receive a pass from Butt...

A despatch from Calgary, received over the Post's leased wire, says that on Wednesday the mercury slipped down to five below zero, the coldest October reading in half a century.

There was not a breath of air, and the weather was reminiscent of mid-winter, with the exception the streets of the city were free of snow.

A Winnipeg correspondent of the Post, writes under date of October 22: Winter made his formal appearance on the streets of Winnipeg with a genuine snowstorm Wednesday night.

NEWFOUNDLAND CRAFT BATTLES WAY TO SYDNEY. AT TIMES SHIP ALMOST ENGULFED IN TROUGH OF MOUNTAINOUS WAVES.

"During my twenty-five years on this coast I never encountered such weather as that experienced on my last trip from St. John's here," said the skipper of the schooner Albatross, which reached anchor somewhat battered after running through the recent heavy gales which swept the North Atlantic.

"The waves ran mountain high," observed the captain, "and there were times when our vessel dropped into the trough of the sea. I feared her bows would never lift. However, we came through the storm with little damage excepting some torn sails, but you have my word for it, we are glad to be in port."

"Driving rain and blinding snow drifted along with the wind, so that it was difficult for us to keep our bearings. Along the coast of Newfoundland many vessels were driven ashore, but there was no loss of life."

"On the way here we passed several craft laboring heavily through the mist and spume thrown up by the hurricane, but so far as I can learn they all weathered the storm and got to port without serious mishap."—Sydney Post, Oct. 29.

Several people in the town of Dominion will have a "wet Christmas" that is if inspectors are lenient and refrain from conducting a search for 50 barrels of rum, part of the cargo of the ill-fated rum runner Inez G., which foundered off Lagan Head some weeks ago and took six men to a watery grave, says the Glace Bay Gazette of Saturday.

Yesterday's gale from the north sent the waves rolling shoreward mountain high and the Inez G. lying on the ledge about three-quarters of a mile off shore began to break up. Parts of wreckage piled up along the beach at Inez, but floating sections of the unfortunate craft did not interest the thousand or more people collected along the beach.

Some fifty kegs of rum came ashore and these were salvaged in quick time by many of the more daring persons in the crowd. The rum vanished in quick time, and is now doubtless stored in some safe and out of the way place, for future use.

The deck of the Inez G. came ashore practically intact. The fact that it was reported that Captain Vatcher, who went down with his boat, had $7,000 on board in a chest added frenzied interest to the search of the wreckage along the shore.

Whether or not the story is a myth, no trace of the captain's treasure chest has been found.—Sydney Herald, Oct. 28.

HOBOKEN, N.J., Oct. 28.—The United States liner President Harding poked her wave-scarred nose through the Narrows yesterday, four days late, but hero of a thrilling sea rescue.

The ship bore safely to port 25 men and a cat, survivors of the foundered Italian freighter Ignazio Florio, who were saved from the fury of the sea by the captain and crew of the Harding.

As the steamer came through the Narrows and up the harbor the horns and whistles of the craft of all sorts and all nations gave her a rousing welcome.

Captain Lauro, of the Florio, gathered his crew of twenty-seven on the deck of the Harding, and they gazed hard at dry land. The sea had the Florio, but it had only one man of her crew, the second officer, who was washed off the bridge at the height of the storm, and a sea-going dog named Rex.

"Captain Greeting, of the Harding; that captain is a very great humanitarian," said Lauro. "He is a real hero; I like him."

Lauro had cause for liking Greeting. Exactly one week ago, when the Florio was disabled and rolled heavily in the trough of the giant seas one thousand and six hundred miles off Ambrose Light, the Florio's wireless operator, D. Ambrosi, listened through his head phones and turned to the captain: "He says commander will stay by you till finish. Do not worry."

"But all the Harding could do was to stand by. The 35-mile cable made an approach to the Florio impossible, and when the Harding let go an empty boat it was smashed to splinters against the Italian's side. All night the Harding moved in a drunken circle, playing her searchlights on the hulk. She poured oil to the windward of the Florio and one of the crew said he might as well have spat in the sea.

The barometer rose, the wind fell and there was a lull in the storm. The Harding manned one big lifeboat and made the Florio, where the crew, with lifebelts on, leaped into the sea, and were fished out to safety.

"It was a miracle," the captain of the Florio said.

Capt. Greeting wrote in his log: "Detention 21 hours, 15 minutes rescuing crew S. S. Florio; overcast, whole gale, high seas."

The Florio was bound from Montreal with a cargo of grain, when the gale smashed her rudder and rendered her a derelict.

"Printing Isn't Expensive If You Pay Enough For It"

The task which business stationery has to perform is to convey a message. That is its primary purpose. But it has another. It should convey an atmosphere—a personality—which identifies the business it represents, and it should convey that atmosphere or personality so convincingly, so pleasingly, so substantially, that it makes the same kind of favourable impression that a good salesman or a fine office does.

Business stationery which fails in this particular is too expensive to use, because it is not doing the whole job. That's why printing isn't expensive if you pay enough for it.

We have lately installed an embossing machine which produces beautiful glossy or dull relief work on plain type printing that defies actual die or plate embossing in appearance.

A trial order will convince you of its excellence.

PHILLIPS PETROLEUM.
Earned $5,554,275 Before Depreciation and Depletion in September 30 Quarter and $16,012,769 in Nine Months.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Phillips Petroleum for the quarter ended September 30, 1925, reports consolidated net earnings of $5,554,275, after expenses, Federal taxes, and charges, but before depreciation and depletion, against $6,090,092 in the preceding quarter, and $2,561,893 in the third quarter of 1924.

Net earnings for the first nine months of 1925 totalled $16,012,769 after expenses, Federal taxes and charges, but before depreciation and depletion, and before inventory adjustment, against $12,699,924 in the same period of 1924.

REPUBLIC IRON AND STEEL.
NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Republic Iron and Steel reports net profit of $846,461 after tax, depreciation and charges for September 30 quarter, equal after regular 7 per cent. preferred dividend requirements, to $1.26 a share on $30,000,000 common, against $840,266, or $1.24 a share in the preceding quarter and deficit of $45,380 in the third quarter of 1924.

Nine months' net was $2,499,327, equal to $3.95 a common share, after regular preferred dividends, against $1,785,000, or $1.10 a share in the same period of 1924.

Unfilled orders September 30 last of finished and semi-finished products totalled 123,842 tons, against 102,320 tons June 30, 1925, and 77,998 September 30, 1924.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL.
CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—"Our September net after expenses, tax and all charges was about $1,700,000," said President Markham of Illinois Central. "Last year September net was $1,503,805. September will bring nine months' net about $300,000 behind 1924. October results will make up that shortage and leave us something to the good, and November and December will show further gains over last year. Passenger earnings are now showing increase over last year."

"We ordered recently 75,000 tons of rails and 1,000 box cars and do not expect to place any more such orders for the present. Central of Georgia, however, is ordering 1000 box cars and is in the market for four mountain type locomotives."

GENERAL MOTORS.
Record Third Quarter Net Around 25 Million Despite August Price Reductions—Record Year.

N. Y.—Notwithstanding drastic price reductions in August on practically all models produced by General Motors Corp., bankers are estimating third quarter earnings around $25,000,000 net for dividends, a decline of only 10% from the record showing in second quarter. Results the past three months exceeded any corresponding period in the corporation's history.

Net of $25,000,000 for dividends would equal close to $4.50 a share on 5,151,599 shares of no-par common. During first six months of 1925 General Motors earned $46,032,226, equal after preferred dividends to $5.19 a share on the common. It is expected to show over $70,000,000 or between $12 and $13 a share on the common for nine months, exceeding by a good margin the largest yearly earnings reported, $62,967,526 in 1923.

These figures do not take account of equity in undistributed earnings of either Fisher Body Corp., of which 89% is held, or General Motors Acceptance Corp., owned entirely here. In first six months of the year the equities from these sources were equal to $2 cents a share on General Motors. Both companies, particularly Fisher Body, have made notable strides in earnings since.

Estimated earnings of General Motors for nine months are practically double the corresponding period of 1924, when net was $37,416,413 or $5.13 a share on the common. That net in the third 1925 quarter alone, normally considered a period of receding earnings, is estimated at about two-thirds of this total indicates the marked prosperity developed the past year. It offers decided contrast to previous booms which have usually developed weak spots not apparent at this time. Executives are confident the situation is fundamentally sound, with no prospects of sharper retrenchment than that made necessary by the ebb and flow of popular demand for automobiles.

Arrest Made

IN CONNECTION WITH ANGLICAN MOTOR CO. BURGLARY.

At 11 a.m. to-day Head Constable Byrne named under arrest a young man named Croty in connection with a robbery which occurred last week at Anglo-American motor car premises on Water Street when a sum of money totalling $500 was stolen from a safe.

At the request of the police the Telegram suppressed publication of this daring burglary at the time to give them a chance to round up the culprit. Access to the premises was gained by a window from the rear.

The glass was smashed and the thief released a bolt from the inside which allowed the window to drop about 8 inches, making space large enough for a man to force himself through. The money was then taken from a drawer in the safe. Mr. Coker, the proprietor of the store, was the first to arrive on the premises on the morning of the burglary, and immediately notified the police that he had been entered and that the trespasser had got away with the contents of the safe.

Besides the bank notes, there were also found missing several pieces of gold and a diamond stick pin. All that was left in the box was a fifty cent piece. The police department after investigating the burglary could obtain very little to work upon, but since then they have been keeping close watch on the man referred to, hence the arrest which followed.

A Motor Collision

On Saturday afternoon, a motor collision occurred on Quidi Vidi Road near the avenue entrance to the General Hospital when a Studebaker car owned by George Churchill, Mallman, Portugal Cove, ran into a Ford car, owned by Mr. Buckingham. Churchill's car, which was heavily laden at the time, suffered little or no damage, while Buckingham's car feared very badly having the front wheels rendered useless, the radiator smashed in, and windshield broken. The Ford was proceeding from the General Hospital with three passengers on board, and upon nearing the Quidi Vidi road, which leads from Plymouth Road, the driver had the presence of mind to slow down his car, and prevented what might have been a very serious accident. The occupants of both cars escaped uninjured. Contrary to a previous report of the accident, there is not a blind corner at this junction and the sweep of the road is considerable.

Furness Pier Damaged

In berthing the S.S. Geraldine Mary at A. Harvey's premises this morning, the ship brushed against the Furness Pier, with such force that the central portion of the wharf, back to where it adjoins the shore, a distance of about 100 feet, was shaken as if by an earthquake. Some of the corrugated siding on the western side of the central storage shed was displaced owing to the bolt to the wharf on which it is built. A section of the pier was stove in somewhat, where the ship hit. The Geraldine Mary sustained no damage. The accident, it is claimed, was due to a heavy undertow. A survey of the damage is being made this afternoon.

Bourlamaque Gold Mine

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—I would appear that Mr. Francis J. Hunter does not quite realize his position. A very large sum of money—amounting to $40,000 to $50,000—has been invested by Newfoundlanders in a reputed gold mine in the Province of Quebec. It is not an exaggeration to say that this money has been subscribed solely upon the faith of representations made by Mr. Hunter.

Mr. Hunter admits that the questions asked in my previous letter are "most reasonable." I submit that it is not sufficient for him to intimate that he is prepared to reply to me privately. He has stated in print that he is here for the purpose of giving the fullest information regarding the investment. If he has nothing to hide why does he not take the public into his confidence?

In a lengthy letter, published by Mr. Hunter last week the statement is made that "a prominent and popular Newfoundland has been appointed to the Directorship" of his Company, the inference being that the appointment will inspire confidence in the investing public. Who is this mysterious gentleman, whose name apparently can only be privately divulged?

If the mine is working night and day, as Mr. Hunter states in his letter, there surely can be no objection to announcing the average monthly output of ore, the estimate of value, and the expense of mining the same. I am of course referring more particularly to the Bourlamaque mine, in which Newfoundland money was invested, and not to the Union mine.

The latter, according to Mr. Hunter's letter, has absorbed Bourlamaque, but if we are to believe the statement in the last letter received by the shareholders from Maloney, Allerton & Co., Bourlamaque has merely acquired a controlling interest in Union. The two statements do not quite tally.

A rather disquieting rumour has been current of late to the effect that the money subscribed in Newfoundland did not go into the Treasury of the Mining Company, but into the pockets of Maloney, Allerton & Co., that firm being reported as having unloaded here a large block of stock allocated to them as the original promoters of the mine, and for which they presumably did not pay cash. If this rumour is untrue Mr. Hunter should lose no time in giving it public, not private, denial.

Messrs. Maloney, Allerton & Co. have apparently now disappeared from the scene, their place being taken by a new company, Francis J. Hunter & Co. Ltd., who are described as "sole underwriters." Mr. Hunter is announced as Vice President and Director. Who is the President? and why has Mr. Hunter lent his name to a corporation of which he is not the head? He was "President" of Maloney, Allerton & Co. Is the new Company merely the old firm under another name?

In writing this letter I desire to say that I make no reflection on Mr. Hunter. In the advertisement which appeared in the Press announcing his present visit he is described as "our old friend, the former manager of the Bank of Montreal." These words would alone give investors confidence, but in addition Mr. Hunter has had long experience in the commercial world, he belongs to the old conservative school of finance and his reputation for integrity stands high. It is because of that reputation—a reputation upon which large sums have been invested by Newfoundlanders—that I hope he will at once furnish to the public the information asked for, and so dispose of the rumours which for some time have been in circulation regarding the Bourlamaque Gold Mine.

Yours truly, SCRUTATOR. St. John's, Nov. 2, 1925.

Haden Guest Shows His Appreciation

BACK FROM NEWFOUNDLAND.

The twelve members of Parliament who went to Newfoundland—be careful how you pronounce the name in their presence—have now returned to London bursting with facts about fish, lumber, electricity, paper pulp, and all the other things the island specialists know.

"To show how complete our education was," said Dr. Haden Guest yesterday afternoon, "let me tell you that we spent two whole days fishing. All day long we sat, with the patience of Job. But only one of us got a bite, and he was a Labour member. And then he was so excited that he forgot what he had to do to land the salmon, and he lost it."

And finally, when they had had enough of angling, they were gently told that they had been fishing out of season. Their hosts apparently did not want to appear inhospitable, and when the M.P.'s suggested fishing they did not like to say them nay. (Considering that our Fisheries Guest left the country on Sept. 5th, it would appear that someone had been pulling the doctor's leg.)

SUCCESS WITH THE LADIES.

They had dinner with the lumbermen, and a very good dinner it was too, according to Haden Guest—pork and beans, and dull and "cody" (very thick treacle).

Then we went on to Grand Falls, and lived in a house designed by Lutyens, and had a wonderful time seeing the paper-making machinery. In the evening a dance was given in our honour, and we M.P.'s seemed to cut all the local gallants out of the picture. Ben Smith was the only non-dancer. William Lunn, ex-President of the Board of Trade, was the greatest attraction. He gave us all a lesson on the right way to hold a lady in the ballroom.

ORATORICAL RECORDS. But it wasn't all as easy as that. At St. John's they had a perfect orgy of public dinners and luncheons. The dinners began at nine o'clock, and they used to ask for five speakers, each to speak for three-quarters of an hour. The dinner lasted till three in the morning.

THE MOTION CARRIED. Sir Patrick McGrath told Dr. Haden Guest a story of a man who, as a reward for political services, was appointed a paid magistrate. His knowledge of law was limited, but he remembered Parliamentary procedure, and knew that if a resolution was moved, it had to be seconded.

A case came before him in which the prosecutor made out a rather serious charge. The defending counsel got up and said he wished to ask the judge to discharge the defendant altogether. "I move, sir, for his discharge," said the counsel.

THE MAGISTRATE PRICKED UP HIS EARS, and recalling his political days, said "Does anyone second this motion." The defending counsel nudged the prisoner's father. "I do," said he. The motion was declared carried, and the prisoner was discharged.

PETER PAN II. It is not only our adventurous M.P.'s who face the unknown perils of Newfoundland. Sir George Frampton, too, has returned safely from the same voyage. He went over to be present at the unveiling of the replica of his Kensington Gardens Peter Pan, which he had made for St. John's.

I don't think Sir George also shared a lumberman's dinner. If he did, it may have reminded him of the days when he shared with Anging Bell a shed in Cambewell, which they prosaically called their studio. They used to prepare their own meals, with Anging Bell as chief cook and Frampton as assistant.

Communism in Canton

For nearly a year, or ever since the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen went to North China, we are told, Canton has been under the control of Chinese Communists, who are "thoroughly infected with the virus of Bolshevism." But this is a very different fact from an "all-Bolshevik China," say certain Chinese writers, who admit, nevertheless, that the Bolsheviki hold on Canton in of grave importance.

Their leader at present is said to be General Chiang, Commandant of the Whampoa cadets from the Red military school of that name. Russian anti-Bolshevik editors, who publish their journals in Europe at a safe distance from their homeland, are particularly emphatic about the grip that the Bolsheviki have on Canton and the province of Kwangtung, in which it is located. They maintain that the Government of South China, as it is usually called, has always shown sympathy for the Russian Soviet Government and the Russian Communist party. They charge that ever since this Government was founded by the late Sun Yat Sen, famous chief of the Kuomintang party, it has been undergoing a slow evolution into radicalism. These Russian writers also remind us that in 1924 the army of the Southern Government was commanded by General Pavlov, a Bolsheviki officer and a former adversary of General Denikin and of General Wrangel.

This Southern Government of China, it is alleged, often resorts to "requisitions" and "expropriations" after the Bolsheviki manner, and it is said to improve its financial condition it sold religious properties at public auction.

It is charged, too, that this Government has organized various demonstrations of sympathy with Soviet Russia, and that the Canton region shelters all the Communist agitators in China. The military school of Whampoa is said to be really a school of Communist propaganda, whose acting director is Borodin, a noted Russian Communist, who is described as an influential adviser of the Southern Government. What is meant by this charge is that besides military science, the young men at this school are taught social science according to the lights of Bolsheviki theory. It is true, these anti-Bolshevik-Russian journals admit, that the Canton Government is weak and controls only one-third of the Kwangtung Province, while exerting no great influence on Chinese affairs in general. Yet the conclusion is drawn that because the Soviet Russian press always speaks of the Canton Government with such warmth and always with such indignation outlaws its enemies, the political importance of this pro-Bolshevik nucleus in China must not be underrated. A famous Bolsheviki foreign agent, Karl Radek, writes in the official organ of the Russian-Communist party, the Moscow Pravda, that Canton has been "the center of the revolutionary movement in China ever since the Chinese revolution." And he speaks of the Government as "the first peasant and proletarian Government in China." Mr. Radek tells us further that the radical policy of the Canton Government has caused a split in the Kuomintang party, and he adds:

"The bourgeois elements of the Kuomintang have separated from the radical and revolutionary elements. While the latter have sought the support of the workers, peasants, small traders and artisans, the former have turned to the big industrialists and business men. The radicals preach a pitiless struggle against international imperialism, but the moderates dream of forming an alliance with it. However, this division of the party can not be completed in a brief space of time, and it is still under way."

The very fact that Canton has become the center of the most revolutionary group in China, Mr. Radek goes on to say, explains why it excited such hatred on the part of the British imperialists, and he informs us also that:

"Canton has become the headquarters of labor organizations and of the labor movement in all the islands of the Pacific. In Canton took place the first conference of seamen of the Pacific, in which sailors of China, of the Philippines, of Hawaii, and of British and Dutch Pacific colonies took part. Moreover, the strategic position of Canton and its proximity to Hongkong, a center of important British interests, make the existence of the Southern Government dangerous to British imperialism."

The Peking Daily News advises us that Gen. Cheng Chingming is trying to dislodge the Bolsheviki from Canton, the sympathy of the authorities in Peking is naturally with him, and it goes on to say:

"Reports have been current lately in the vernacular press to the effect that in order to give support to General Chen's campaign against the Canton Bolsheviki, the Government will issue a mandate, proclaiming the crimes of the Canton Reds and announcing the decision of the Government to start a punitive expedition against them. According to the World Evening Post, the report is not exactly correct. "Since the ascendancy of the Bolsheviki in Kwangtung, the Government has received petitions from different quarters, asking the authorities to start a punitive expedition against the Kwangtung Reds, but the authorities do not consider such a step advisable, because it would involve the Government in further factional strife, which is going on between the parties in Kwangtung. The Government, however, has fully realized the gravity of the situation in the country created by the presence of Bolsheviki agents, who have been responsible for all the disturbances and labor unrest throughout the country. In order to put an effective stop to the pernicious activities of the Bolsheviki agents, the Government is contemplating the promulgation of a set of regulations relating to the suppression of Bolsheviki activities in the country."
