pears a statement to this effect that several of the parishioners of St. Patrick's church told. The World that they are about tired of the endless collections that are being taken up in that church, and that there is scarcely a Sun day but some special demand is being made on the people.

Now, sir, as an old and regular attendant of St. Patrick's church, I must say that nothing could be further from the truth than the above statement. I cannot inderstand the motives of the parties who sunds such statements, unless is its to gratify some petry spite they may have against the Good Father. To show the abourdity of such a charge I say, without fear of contradiction; that where have been fewer collections each year in St. Patrick's church since the arrival of the Redemptorist Fathers than there have been in any of the Catholic churches in the city. The only collections taken up during the pass five or six years were about four each year, the usual Easter and Christmas collections for the support of the priests of the parish, due for the Heuse of Providence, and the other for coolesiastical purposes. Erom this you will see that the statements made to you by "several of the parishioners" is entirely incorrect, they must refer to the copper collection usually taken up for the poor.

TIP-TOP DELIGHT. There the Youth and Maiden of Washing ton Find Sweet Centent.

From Fine Buttmere American Correspondence.

A great evening diversion of the youth and reauty of Washington is riding on the top of the herdica. The summer herdic has seats for RESENCERS to deliver LETTERS and above and convenient foot-rails. A winding stair leads up from the rear of the herdic t the roof, so that madens may climb up to their dizzy perches with all due modesty and propriety. There is room on the roof for fourteen persons—seven comples. As a rule seven sets of congenial spirits meet and monopolize one herdic. The little crowd generally rendezvous on Capitol Hill. At this point the uptown herdics are almost empty, and so the excursionists rarely have long to wait before an empty herdic comes along. Then sever hody climbs modestly up the states.

wait before an empty herdic comes along. Then every body climbs modessly up the starts and they pair off. It is really a pleasant evening's excursion. Washington is a sunset city. During the day the fierce glare of the sun on the asphalt pavements makes the city almost unboarable. But, with the setting sun, the city become a paradise. With the darkness comes a dreary drowsmess that settles over the suffre city. The streets become quiet and deserted by all save the herdics and the street cars. A gentle breeze stirs the fires which line the streets, and the electric lights have been so judiciously placed that strees which line the streets, and the electric lights have been so judicionally placed that they reveal nothing. The ride on the herdic top is like a long journey through some shady forest or roads of wondrous smoothness. The herdic turns from one avenue into another. Everywhere the sighing of the branches; everywhere the sight of meadow, like a clearing in a forest, and everywhere the sweet, strong perfume of the new-mown hay. Indeed, Washington seems like a toy city, which some grant, in propriye mood has always to distribute the strong perfume of the new-mown hay.

strong pertune of the new-mown hay. Indeed, Washington seems like a toy city, which some giant, in sportive mood, has duosen to distribute in some deep, shady forest. Possibly, the young man and the young girl on the herdic don't stop to appreciate all this. They have left the earth, with all its petty passions and wicked worries, far below. There is maurit for them save tender dailiance and the lunch which she has brought with her. The driver, a practical man, not gives to monkey business, lias hitched an extra horse to the herdic, and when he comes up the avenue to the big built when he comes up the avenue to the berdic, and when he comes up the avenue to the big hill past the Treasury, he puts on another horse, and, cracking his whin, he comes up the steep grade of Fifteenth street, driving four-m-hand with all the style of the Deadwood coach. with all the style of the Deadwood coach. The ride over the route is a long dream of love. Coming back the ride is just as long, but it is a pit to be rather dreamier. A stalwart arm surrounds fragile waist, and the home trip is made in the rich eloquence of deep silence. It takes about three hours to make the round arip, and it costs the youth just 20 cents. It is a delightful evening's excursion, and then the men who see the herdics, mader-laden, roll by would give a dollar gladly to be on top. The man without a girl has no business on the top of a herdic, and he meser gets there.

never gets there. Mr. C. E. Riggins, Beamsville, writes:—" A customer, who tried a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery says it is the best thing he ever used; to quote his own words, 'I frust seemed to touch the spot affected.' About a year ago he had an attack of bilious fever, and was afraid he was in for another when I recommended this valuable medicine with such happy results."

great broad streets of Glasgow, to plunge into the labyrinth of the various slums, to follow for miles the walls of house after house. without a break in the soul-crushing monotony. A gloomy church or chapel is seen here and there, but where are the theatres, where are the pleasure gardens, where the dancing salcous, where the merry fair, with its games, its whiching wooden horses, its fancy swings, its loud noise of children laughing, the laugh-ter of impressive which is the truest huma of ter of innoceuce, which is the truest hymn of praise? What shame would overcome a conscientious citizen of Glasgow if he could stroll under the trees of the Champs Ellises of the French capital, listen to the band in the Luxembourg Gardens, or visit the permanent fair in the Prater of Visinas! What care have the money lords of Glasgow shown for the welfare of the people whose labor has enabled them to amass their fortunes! Where can the Glasgow worker, with his wife and child, spend a pleasant avening when his daily work is done? Throughout Glasgow, in spite of its population of half a million, there was but one theatre open. I went and saw an old-fashioned melodrams entitled "Rags and Bones," where, after many vicissitudes and impossible inoidents, virtue trumphed attd true love met with its customary reward.

and true love net with its customary reward, The story was most unrealistic, and therefore its moral, though good, remained inapplicable. And this, but for the Exhibition, would have been the only diversion available for the seething population of Glasgow.

The the Great Flaw.

From The Qu'Appelle Progress.

It is a common saying that every law has some flaw that prevents in some degree the carrying out of its full intention. The one great about the Northwest Territories Act is about the Northwest Territories Act is about the Northwest Territories and is about the Northwest Territories and is about the Northwest Territories Act is about the Northwest Territo flaw that prevents in some degree the carrying out of its full intention. The one great flaw of the Northwest Territories Act is absolute power given to the Goyernor either to permit the entire Jiquor traffic with all its attendant evils, or to prohibit it completely just as he may will to do. This may look like an extreme way of putting it, but it is nevertheless true that he has such power. The permits to sell beer recently issued are an evil. an entreme way of putting it, but it is nevertheless true, that he has such power. The permits to sell beer recently issued are an evidence that the Governor can it he wills it, by his own authority make a full license law. It he has power to permit the sale of beer of four per cent. alcohol, he most certarnly can permit the sale of all kinds of spirits. The Governor, because it was so wisely and sparingly exercised. No. such power to subvert the will of the people should be given to any man. The ex-Governor, Mr. Dewdney, would have been glad to have been relieved of it, and if we understand Mr. Royal's views correctly he is also desirious of a change in the law. He is asked—Is he trying by one bold move to bring the permit power into such disrepute that there will be a violent clamer for a change, and in consequence the Dominion Parliament will be induced to relieve him of its. Whatever may be said in its favor in the past, that it was all rights when the Governow was also Indian Commissioner, and the population was largely composed of Indians and half-breeds, if its high time that there were to administer the law in respect to intoxice ants which should be so inconded as to prevent the possibility of this flooding the country with highor. The Dominion Government should bring such a change before the Dominion Parliaments at its next session, and it would not doubt pass.

Bourished Through Her Skin.

Miss Annie Cole, a young woman living in the street, near Jefferson, died the other day after a protracted illness, having been nourished for several months preceding her death, through the pores of her skin. The case is through the pores of her skin. The case is an extremely unusual one, and has attracted considerable attention. Some time acc, when it was found impossible to administer nourishment to the invalid through the usual channel, every device was resorted that shest might be saved from death by starvation. The stomach ejected all food, and even the liquid gruels and other substances which were introduced did not remain in the stomach long enough to impart nourishment. Miss Cole was emaciated and on the point of death when the attending physicians noticed that the action of the ing physicians noticed that the action of the pores of the skin was normally healthy. As half of the digastible matter is emitted through the pores of the skin, an effort was made to of the skin, an end, way. A mix-nonrichment in that way. A mixsure of oil and grease was composed and ap-plied externally. The heated skin rapidly ab-arbed the nourislment, and the patient showed signs of renewed vigor. After each of these applications the skin was care-fully cleaned, and in this way Miss Cole
