DESTRUCTION BY FOREST FIRES.

The village of Bines of Wales and Musquash, the western part of the county and county of St. John, were almost completely wiped out of existence Wednesday afternoon and evening by forest fires which reached their way from the northward, driven by a gale of wind.

Some fifty or sixty buildings in all were laid low. From the upper part of Prince of Wales, where the fire started in, down to the Musquash hotel, about where it stopped, were about fifty miles and as most of the buildings in that compass were the main road was consumed.

On Tuesday John Anderson, who came up to the city says he did not see any fire at all, although there was a fire at the northward of Musquash, where the fire started in, down to the Musquash hotel, about where it stopped, were about fifty miles and as most of the buildings in that compass were the main road was consumed.

Practical Talks and Plain Precepts for Farmers.

Edited for the Farmer readers of the MONITOR by an Annapolis Valley Agriculturist

We invite contributions, criticism and questions bearing on agriculture or horticulture and will be glad to answer the latter, or will undertake to have them answered by experts. We want to make this a helpful corner of the Monitor and one not only for the farmer but what will be of greater benefit, one by the farmers. (Ed.)

Extracts from an Address on Education for the Improvement of Agriculture.

(By Prof. Jas. W. Robertson.)

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: It is my great pleasure to speak on education to the improvement of agriculture in Nova Scotia. I need not congratulate the farmers of this province on the progress they have made during recent years. Every one in Nova Scotia is in Canada is proud of the progress that has been made in agriculture.

Some of the essentials for good rural schools are (1) good teachers with a wide range of knowledge, (2) good buildings, (3) good equipment, (4) good location, (5) good management and (6) good cooperation. We have had years of bountiful harvests, abundance of pasture and enjoyment of the people everywhere. We have always been a progressive country. The agricultural interests of the country have been growing larger, but it is only recently that we have begun to recognize ourselves as becoming in any sense a great country. It is only now that we are beginning to realize that we have given us credit for being at the beginning of a new era. We are not identical either in agriculture or in national progress. Each province has its own characteristics. I have noticed many comments of late, not merely upon Canada's greatness, but upon Canada's greatness. Our greatness is coming through the advance of our interests, situation and agriculture. There is no more important theme or question before the public of Canada today, or before any body of legislators than education for the improvement of agriculture.

AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES. This province has wonderful resources. I will not weary you with statistics, but the fact is that in this province there are inexhaustible resources. These are not only in the soil, but in the water, and in the air, and in the sun. We have in this province a wealth of resources that are not only inexhaustible, but they are also valuable. You have in your minerals a valuable resource, but they are exhaustible and not restorable. There is a difference between a country having a revenue derived from its exhaustible resources and a country having a revenue derived from its inexhaustible resources. The latter is the better. The agriculture of Nova Scotia is not one of the minor interests in this part of the continent. You are happily situated in having many resources in this province. You have your minerals, you have your fisheries, and a variety of other resources outside of agriculture. But what is this true, it is equally true that agriculture counts for more than any other material interest in Nova Scotia. There are over fifty-six thousand acres of land in this province. There are over five million (5,000,000) acres of land in Nova Scotia. Of these 56,000 acres are improved land. These 56,000 acres are divided into 1,257,465 acres of improved land. These 56,000 acres are divided into 1,257,465 acres of improved land. These 56,000 acres are divided into 1,257,465 acres of improved land.

Let me make an explanatory parenthesis here. There is a real difference between knowledge and ability. There is a wide difference between theory and practice. There are many who understand soil physics can manage land and crops better than if they did not understand the principles. Knowledge will help every man to greater ability, but it does not in itself constitute or confer business ability. A man may know all about the composition of a soil and yet be a poor farmer. Therefore, someone may say, "I know knowledge to the winds." Not so. Every man who has a better far as he knows more and knows better, but a man may know much and not be able to apply it. There is a difference between scientific knowledge and the business application of it. Huxley once said he could not grow as big turkeys as Hodge, but he could tell Hodge what would enable him to grow still bigger turkeys and to make more money. The agents who become instruments of progress in farming and other affairs are men. Knowledge and wealth with the efficiency of these factors, and with the effective use of these means, education has nearly everything to do.

Some one asks, "Does education pay?" That is a question put by the citizen who pays the tax. What does it pay? What is worth while? What is life itself and the world worth to the citizen? Nothing, except as they provide for and make for richness of experience. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" You may stick everything which he can desire around him, and what would be worth to him unless they helped to make his life more of an experience. If you put flowers around a blind man with no sense of smell, of taste or of touch, would he care to be blind? However, the presence of a blind man does not abolish the beauty of fragrance of flowers in your garden. The use of faculties trained to the widest range of enjoyment, is what makes for the richest experience in life. Education itself is a series of experiences leading up to personal intellectual ability and understanding. It is not a mere learning of names, although sometimes memorized knowledge from a second-hand source has been counted as such. It is a series of experiences from the doing of things, whereby ability is gained to enjoy things and to enjoy life. In every sense education does pay. It is a thing that enriches the life of individuals and nations have.

NEAT AND BEAUTIFUL SURROUNDINGS. Pleasant and well-arranged surroundings.

ings are silent, potent educational forces that naturally try to put themselves into harmony with what surrounds them. This does not mean that education is, in part, of his education. What a change that sentence brings against the untended, uncared-for and hardly decent surroundings of many school houses in rural districts. The improved, comfortable, unobtrusive interiors and exteriors of many school houses in rural districts. The improved, comfortable, unobtrusive interiors and exteriors of many school houses in rural districts.

There are over 100,000 school gardens in use in European countries. These school gardens are the most beautiful and attractive place in the locality? If the children are to spend six or eight hours a day there, should it not be made a place to be proud of, and known all about by the community at large? Would it not be a good thing if the hands selected, prepared and sometimes hardly decent surroundings of the schoolhouses were improved? The gardens, expressing the refined taste and skill of the people of the locality, would be a credit to the teacher? If unshiny and repellent premises are not in themselves degrading, they have a tendency to dull the mind and to lower the judgment of young persons who would be benefited in early life to have an surroundings of such a sort to stimulate and develop a love of neatness, order, and good work. The school should be a place for supplying those conditions which are necessary to help on the harmonious development of the child's character and interests and adequate support.

When we can arrange at once to bring into existence all the desirable conditions for good schools, we should strive to secure as many of these conditions as we can, in as many places as we can. There is no witchery or fairy charm in the word or act of consolidation to put away all the present weakness and fill of small rural schools. However, consolidation will bring opportunities and means for improvement within reach of the teachers, the people and the children. Ever increasing benefits may be found by using those who have to the fullest extent.

GOOD TEACHERS. Teaching is a great art. It is the art of living, the art of living and instilling so as to lead young lives into those destinies and destinies to the unity, therefore, happy, the greatest of all teachers said, "I am come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly." In addition to scholarship the teacher should be an example of neatness, good manners, good temper and cheerful attitude towards all. He should be a model of the life of the school in particular, and should know by experience the character of the children, their interests and their needs. THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Here is a cluster of useful suggestions. For cleaning woollens and velvets I have found colonial dampened with gasoline to be very effective. Lay the garment on a paper spread on a table, put in general and rub around and rub vigorously with a piece of linted underwear. This seems to take out the dirt better than anything else. Cleanse until the garment is thoroughly cleaned, which you will find hard work.

NEATNESS OF FIRST IMPORTANCE. Neatness is a good thing for a girl, and if she does not learn it when she is young she never will. It takes a great deal more neatness to make a girl look like a girl than it does to make a girl appear passable without it. Neatness is the primary step towards comfort and economy of time that leaves many a minute for the accomplishment of outside work and play that in the end counts for much.

The Household. How to get rid of cradles. Things Ruskin considered necessary to that happens in work of every human being. (Ed and women) must be fit for it, must not do too much of it, and must have a sense of success in it. A doubtful sense, such as needs some testimony of other people for its confirmation, but a sure sense, or, has been done well, and fruitfully does whatever the world may say or think about it.

Joker's Corner. There is a very bright little girl in Detroit whose mother is now trying to teach her that she can use her tongue with both truth and diplomacy. This is a difficult task, as the child does a great deal of reasoning for herself and has the straightforward logic of an unprejudiced mind. A certain incident led up to this training. The father had a high-spirited position in a leading factory. The institution was absorbed by a trust and the father thrown out of employment. In the heat of his wrath he repeatedly declared that all trust and monopoly magnates were robbers and thieves and the little daughter implicitly believed him. He happens to be one of those rare men whom it is very difficult to replace, and he was offered his former position. But, being shrewd and knowing his own worth, he was not to be lured except by a great deal in addition to his salary. So he became part of the trust, but did not understand why the little daughter looked at him so doubtfully and was more convinced in her own mind that her father was a robber and a thief, but he had a trust and the father thrown out of employment.
