Very Excellent Pianos-Most Elegant Instruments Seen Anywhere-Singing Qualities all that an Artist Oould Desire-Broad, Rich, Massive Tone-Nothing to Fear from Foreign Competition.

THE BELL PIANO COMPANY (LIMITED), GUELPH, ONT.

Tecumseh House, London, April 28, 1896.

Dear Sirs,—It gives me pleasure before leaving Canada to testify to the very excellent Pianos of your manufacture which I have met with and used in connection with my song recitals in this country. The Upright Concert Grand which was placed at my disposal by your manager in London I unhesitatingly pronounce as one of the most elegant instruments that I have seen anywhere, and whilst its singing qualities were all that an artist could desire, it possessed in addition that broad, rich, massive tone which is absolutely indispensable for solo purposes. I heartily congratuate you on your latest achievements in piano construction, and believe that so long as the present high standard of your instruments is maintained R. WATKIN-MILLS. I am faithfully yours, your company can have nothing possible to fear from foreign competition.

BASEBALL. For the second time this season, Lon don administered a defeat to the Hamiltons yesterday at Tecumseh Park. I proved to be the most listless game of the year, and at no time during the nine innings did the enthusiasm wax warm, notwithstanding the scor was close. The Hamiltons arrived in the city with two players short. The released two of their men last week and had signed players for the vacan places, but they had not made the appearance. To fill the vacancy Jack Player was billeted for right field and Hiscott for center for the game. Both were nominally signed for the day. As it frequently happens on such occasions, both these London players could have won the game for Hamilton by placing safe hits when the bases were filled. Hiscott came to bat twice with the bases filled and Player once, but could do nothing with the stick. The Hamiltons shifted their men around in the seventh and eighth inings after their second baseman had made two disastrous errors. Dean is a tiresome pitcher. He attempts too much upon himself in looking after the bases without any result. With a slow manner in the box, turning from base to base, he makes it tedious for the audience. Umpire Reid eventually Chicago... New York remonstrated. While the batting of both teams was about equal, the Alerts were more successful in bunching their The Hamiltons frequently could have scored with a necessary hit. Morrison and Pfenniger handled every-thing. With the assistance of two outfielders the Ambitious City should keep the other clubs moving to win victories. London went first to bat, Hutchinson got a base on balls, Sippl reached first on a hit to Morrison, Hutch, meantime had stolen second. He was caught at the plate on Snyder's grounder to Pfeiffer. Woods drove one to center. scoring Sippi. Snyder attempted to re also and was caught at the plate In the third Hynd's three-bagger, Snyder's single, an error by Hiscott, and a case of rattles between Dean and Morrison allowed three runs to score. Woods tallied the run in the fifth. Dean sent him to first by hitting him. On in the sixth.

Hamilton did nothing until the third when nine men went to bat. Singles by Stonemar, Baker, Dean and Pfeiffer, a base on balls to Morrison, and two passed balls by Powers, gave them three runs. When the innings closed three men were on bases. This happened again in the fifth, when Player struck out. In the sixth an error by Tierney, a two-bagger by Baker, and Pete Wood's second error

ATHLETICS

STRONGER THAN SANDOW. Cincinnati claims to have the strongest man in the world, Sandow not excepted. His name is Henry Holtgrewe, and he holds not only the gold medal of the State of Ohio, for heavy lifting, but also the Sandow gold medal for feats of strength. Sandow gave the latter to him a few months ago, with the direction to defend it against all comers, and he is now prepared to defend it against Sandow himself. He is 33 years of age, and was born in Osnabruck, Prussia. He came to Cincinnati twelve years ago. When a lad at school in Germany he showed the strength of three boys, and his father had the same reputation, but he did not make any special effort at the development of his natural strength until two years ago, when the Sandow-Montgomery embroglio attracted public attenfor his strength, due to the facility with which he handled heavy furniture and lounges about his saloon, but he has never belonged to a gymnasium. Two years ago he fitted up a training room in the yard in the rear of his saloon, and his training has been entirely according to his own judgment. Since he met Sandow he has continued his exercise with greater zest, and can now do all the feats of strength which now do all the feats of strength which Sandow did then, and more.

He is about five feet six inches in height. His chest expansion is an inch more than Sandow's, and he measures one inch more around the muscles of Mr. Sass, Handcar, Prize, Herman, one inch more around the muscles of with one hand that other strong men Fifth and The Duchess also started. cannot lift with two. A WHEELMAN'S SIGNAL CODE. country roads, where the members of the party-may at times be widely sep-arated, will be interested in an idea which a bright wheelman has introduced in the bicycle clubs of France, and of which the Philadelphia Record speaks as follows: In France the whistle is much pe ferred to the bell as a means of alarm, and for club "runs." or use when more than two eyclists go touring. This wheelman has established a perfect code of signals, in which he uses short and long sounds on his whistle. Some of these signals follow: Ordinary alarm, three short notes: Halt, one long-drawn note: -"Come ahead." or "Follow me." two long notes: -

"Where are you?" or "We are here," three half long notes: "Turn to the right," one long-drawn "Turn to the left," one long-drawn note, two short: ---"Look out! there is danger understood among the clubs, and even outsiders have begun to use them. It might benefit American and Canadian bicyclists to take the matter up and introduce a similar code of signals in this country. . THE CYCLOMETER. Clock and watch makers who found their regular business falling off on account of the bicycle craze are now making up for it in the manufacture and sale of cyclometers. Competition is exceedingly lively among the rival makers to the great benefit of the rider. Three or four years ago there were only a few makes of cyclometers and they were very heavy and costly. Now cyclometers are made as small as a silver quarter, weigh almost noth-

It is a great satisfaction for the dial as he spins along. The present cyclometers are very simple in construction, and as a rule perform their duty without error, but too much must not be expected of what is merely a mechanical contrivance. A rider can hardly expect his cyclometer to measure the distance between two points accurately if he wabbles from one side of the road to the other. might record a mile while he has been pursuing his sinuous course for only In this way a beginner's cyclometer half the distance. Cyclometers are made for wheels of a given diameter not be accurate enough to be valufront tire be soft an appreciable error in the measurement will occur because of the lessened diameter of the bicycle wheel. If the tire sinks in a quarter of an inch under the weight of the rider the error in a mile ride would amount to fourteen yards. Thus the accuracy of cyclometer measurement varies perceptibly according to the hardness of the tire. However, the average bicycle rider is not an engineer or surveyor, and the popularity of the cyclometer is in no way endangered because of this slight variation from the truth, a failing to which the cyclometer is often driven by the scorcher eager for a huge mileage record. So long as the variation is on the cyclist's side the cyclometer's

London, Thursday, June 4.

Does anyone now doubt that London is Liberal?

11 - 11 Londoners have entered into the conspiracy against the Tupper faction. What a dreadful outlook!

11 11 11 In Britain, too, Liberalism is gaining. Two seats until now Conservative were carried by supporters of Lord Rosebery this week.

11 - 11 No one was more in his element last night than Mr. Geo. M. Reid. He is a man whose enthusiasm is infectious and his unselfishness in looking after the interests of his fellows is proverbial. But when he attempted to find room in the Princess Rink for 12,000 to 15,000 enthustastic men and women he had to break the contract.

The Two Leaders.

While Hon. Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Dominion. Oliver Mowat were addressing between 7,000 and 8,000 persons in and around the Princess Rink, and as many more were clamoring for admission, last night, Sir Charles Tupper was, accord ing to a dispatch in the Toronto World speaking to about 2,000 people in Halifax, N. S. Halifax is a larger city than London.

An Extraordinary Campaign. The period of Tupperite rib-stabbing is now in full swing. The other day there appeared in the columns of our city contemporary, the Free Press, an article attacking Mr. Thomas Coffey, publisher of the Catholic Record. The writer was, of course, either afraid or ashamed to sign his name. It is more than evident that his purpose was t injure Mr. Coffey's business by mis representation, because that gentleman would not allow his paper to be used electioneering purposes for the high tax party. The Catholic Record. the anonymous correspondent writes, printed the following: "Priests are forbidden to meddle in partisan polities." "Political clergymen are monstrosities." The first line appeared in an article copied from the Catholic Review, of New York; the second from the Catholic Universe, of Cleveland. Removed from their context, and set forth with the purpose of having the Impression conveyed that they were the utterances of the editor of the Catholic Record, the writer evidently meant to deal a cowardly blow at a neighbor, whose only offense is that he cannot see eye to eve with him in all

In order that our readers may see the true inwardness of the anonymous scribe, we print the paragraphs from which the extracts referred to are

"In purely political affairs Catholics are free to follow any policy or join any party they choose, without let or Mindrance on the part of the church, or of any of its representatives. Its priests are forbidden to meddle in partisan politics. As citizens, they themselves may vote as they please. but they may not dictate to the laity in civil matters apart from faith or morals, nor may they use their pulpits for or against any party, as such. The business of the church is to save couls, not to put the tariff up or down, nor to decide at what ratio silver shall coined with gold .- Catholic Re-

Emperor William says a clever thing now and then that is all the more forcible because of its stinging For instance, truth and directness. the other day, in characterizing Pas-Stoecker, formerly court chaplain, who achieved notoriety by his bitter enti-Catholic venom, the War Lord eclared in a telegram: 'Stoecker has mished as I forefold years ago, Political clergymen are monstrosities.' Only a few short years ago Stoecker agured as chief high executioner of Catholicism in Germany. The church was never more vigorous or flourishing in the German Empire than at present, but see where Stoecker is-Catho-

To those who have studied the politial history of our times, the gymnasacs of the Conservative leaders during the past twelve years form a sidesplitting picture. When Sir Oliver Mowat was to be killed, we had inscribed on their banners, "To hades with the Pope!" and "Down with eparate schools." But when Sir Chas. Tupper is in great danger, they simulate respect for the Pope, the bishops and the priests, and say they are not such bad fellows after all, and that trust or oppose them, and they probelieve that while separate are the crying need in Manitoba, they are an abomination in Ontario! Altogether the Tupper family compact is a peculiar one. The exwould not permit Catholics to live at all in this country, if they could establish such a condition of affairsare given full rein in the Ontario campaigns; but when the tocsin Catholics are told that the "no surthe party. They are read in to kill Mowat and read out to save Tupper. Was there ever such duplicity?

In canvassing for Catholic votes in the present contest it is, of course, somewhat difficult to explain these matters. The Tupper agent, however, makes strenuous efforts to do so but when he turns away from the Catholic elector he winks the other eye.

The Laurier-Mowat Demonstration.

Elsewhere will be found a report the Princess Skating Rink, of London, to the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, the coming Prime Minister of Canada, and to Sir Oliver Mowat, the ever-victorious Premier of the chief Province of the

The attendance last night has never been equaled in the previous history of London meetings. The audience was attentive, alert to every good point, and enthusiastic to a degree.

Dr. George C. Davis, President of the London Young Liberal Club, made model chairman. Mr. C. S. Hyman, who will be Member for London at m. on the 23rd of June, received a genial, and powerful William Paterson, of Brantford, warmed the hearts of all who heard him-and they all

Of course, the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier was the observed of all observers the cyr.csure of all eyes and ears. Tall the embodiment of graceful and dignified manhood: argumentative: logical: brilliant: straightforward in manner and matter having the same words for London as for Quebec, the Liberal chieftain took the immense audience

The meeting was a magnificent sucess, and will powerfully influence every part of Western Ontario.

Get Together.

A telegram from Winnipeg to the Toronto Star says: "If Manitoba does Assinibola against Davin and W. Mc-Donald, the late members." should there not be reciprocity in Manitoba. How delighted the corrupt men who control at Ottawa will be if they can only keep two opponents in the field in constituencies where one only would beat them.

Opposed to Reciprocity Now.

In 1891, the men now in power at Ottawa went to the country suddenly because, as they asserted, they had

It turned out that they had received no offer, and Sir Charles Tupper admitted to Secretary Blaine that the been put into the Governor-General's mouth by his advisers.

In that campaign, the high tax leaders asserted that they were ready to reciprocity in products they considered a one-sided basis.

Now the high tax managers and the newspapers supporting them assert from the United States, would be most injurious to our farmers and to Canadian interests generally!

Well may the old-time Conservative ask the manipulators of his party today, "Where are we at, and into what cepted. Of your local druggist at $1 per bottle, 6 bottles $5. labyrinth of inconsistency do you

International Friendliness

International courtesy between Cantries who try to make a living by stirring up trouble. But occasionally one finds a proof that permanent success will not attend the mischief maker. Canada has no regular steamship communication as yet with the Yukon country, bordering on Alaska, and United States steamers are carrying British Columbia mails to and from that country free of tesy. The less red-tape there is in the international relationship the better. Do we not find a great lesson in the constant care of the great railways of Canada to have as many as possible of the hindrances to travel removed? This idea was voiced by Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the Grand Trunk Railway, in a recent interview, when he spoke strongly in favor of having the tariff walls between the two countries as low as possible. Sir Charles knows placed in the way of commerce is an injury to the great railway interests of Canada and of the very many commercial undertakings upon the prosperity of which they depend for

For more than a half century Littell's Living Age has been republishing the best and most important papers, biographies, reviews, stories, verses and sketches of travel, to be found in the foreign (especially the British) magazines, quarterlies literary weeklies. During this period it has been prized and and long mended for the judgment and taste exhitted in its selections. Hardly one of the eminent British authors of the past 50 years can be named who has not been represented in these pages. Its latest issues contain many articles of present interest and permanent value. The following are worthy of special mention: "Czar and Emperor," by Karl Blind; "Slatin Pasha and the Soudan," by Capt. F. D. Lugard; "Matthew Arnold," by Frederic Harrison; "Nature in the Earlier Roman Poets," by Evelyn Martinengo Cesaresco; "Jean Baptiste and His Language," by Howard Angus Kennedy. In fiction, a short story, by Mary E. Mann, is particularly readable with its mixture of pathos, humor and superstition. Published weekly, at $6 a year, by Littell & Co.,

The Atlantic for June has a long array of well-known names on its index page, among which will be found those of Henry James, Olive Thorne Miller, Paul Leicester Ford, author of that much discussed book,
"The Honorable Peter Stirling,"
George Parsons Lothrop, Mary H. Catherwood, Elizabeth Bellamy, R. H. Stoddard, who contributes a dainty "The Whirligig of Fortune," is good tale by T. R. Sullivan. There is also an interesting paper relating the personal character of Boston: Houghton, Mifflin Holmes.

KATE FIELD'S ROMANCE. Loved Whitelaw Reid-'Tis Said He

Jilted Her. Miss Field's death recalls a story of her youth as told by one who claimed to know. In the beginning of her journalistic career Miss Field worked on the Cincinnati Commercial in collaboration with Whitelaw Reid, who was at that time her accepted lover. When Reid became an editorial writer on the New York Tribune he sent for his old sweetheart to come and take a position on the paper. Until after the defeat of Horace Greeley for the Presidency the pleasant relations between Reid and Miss Field continued. When Greeley returned to his old desk, defeated and broken-hearted, the stock of the Tribune was put upon the market at a very low price. By the advice of Mr. Reid a majority of the stock was purchased by D. O. Mills, and Reid was given full control of the paper. As a result of the rela-tions thus established Whitelaw Reid married Miss Elizabeth Mills, the daughter of D. O. Mills, and became the owner of a majority of the stock of the Tribune. When the news of the engagement of Mr. Reid to Miss Mills became known, Kate Field severed her connection with the Tribune and left the office never to enter it Called a Traitor!

Patron Grand Lodge Officers Search for Conservative Secretary Welch,

But Fall to Find Him or to Get Access to Patron Possessions.

Grand President Mallory's Challenge to His Traducers.

Strathroy, June 4.—At a public meeting in the Lyceum last night, Grand President Mallory, of the Patrons, and Mr. Currie, Patron candidate in West Middlesex, spoke in reference to the recent address by L. A. Welch, grand secretary of the Patrons, in Saxton's school house, near this town. Only ranged. It is contended that Dr. paign roorbach, to influence Conservative Patrons to return to their allijust as well for Liberal Patrons to know that where Conservative candidates are running, this game will be worked for all that it is worth by the man of anonymous letters and Queen's letter to the Indians notoriety. Joseph H. Alexander occupied the chair at last night's meeting. Mr. Mallory took up Mr. Welch's assertion that the Liberals, Patrons, and McCarthy Conservatives had enand McCarthy Conservatives had entered into an alliance to aid in defeating the Government at Ottawa, to whose programme they are all opposed. Mr. Mallory said that according to the account contained in the newspapers, a member of the grand board—one the was trusted by the Patrons for the last five and a half years-had betrayed the trust reposed in him. He thought Mr. Welch's honest and proper course would have been to call meeting of the grand board if he had found such an alliance in existence, and was desirous of promoting the order's welfare. A certain letter had been placed in the hands of Hon. John Haggart, written by the speaker to Mr. Welch, but the whole of the letter was never made public by the parties who were using it. Mr. Mallory defied Mr. Welch or anyone else to publish the whole letter, and expressed his willingness to face any man on the platform in reference to it. Since the appearance of the speech of the grand secretary, the speaker was unable to get access to the Grand Lodge offices in the town, and he attributed this to the fact that Mr. Welch had turned his face on the grand board, because he knew he had made false statements for a purpose. Mr. Mallory dealt with many of the other statements made by the grand secretary, who, he said, had proven himself a traitor to the Patron cause, and took from the Patron office documents which should never have been removed without the approval of the whole grand board.

Mr. Currie spoke at some length. He dealt with the Welch matter in very strong language, saying that he was surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find that one in whom he always had implicit confidence had surprised to find the surprised to fin surprised to find the surprised to find the surprised to find t betrayed the board. Mr. Welch could be seen by others, but not by any of the Grand Lodge officers, since the speech in Caradoc, and Mr. Currie believed that he (Welch) yet had a conscience, and that it was now rebuk-ing him. He betrayed his own trusts, and that was the reason he was not man enough to be at the meeting to vindicate his actions. "Why did not Mr. Welch tell the whole truth?" Currie asked. The man who told half and concealed the other half was generally a base slanderer and a de-ceiver. He dared Mr. Welch to repeat his charges on a public platform, where they could be met and combat-Currie concluded by saying Mr. Welch's statement that the binder twine company was simply a money making concern was a malignant falsehood, as the shareholders could not pay large dividends if they want-

The talk of the town is the disappearance of Mr. Welch and the search of the Grand Lodge officers after him.

Programme at Springbank by the Seventh Band.

Chance to Enjoy the Down-River Trip in the Early Evening.

The full band of the Seventh will set the concert season at Springbank in operation this evening. They were to have given a concert down at that pretty little pleasure resort last evening, but the management wisely post-poned it for a night. The citizens of London are naturally a music-loving lot of people, and as there will be no city band concerts in the park until after the election, the concerts at Springbank will be a great drawing card. The trip to Springbank is to be best enjoyed in the early evening, and many who were unable to enjoy their outing on the Queen's birthday owing to the crowd will doubtless take another opportunity of seeing the beautiful scenery in the valley of the Thames at its best. Following is the concert programme:

March—Argandab. S. Thompson
Quadville—St. Andrew's Day. T. Wright
Grand selection on Irish Airs
Gavotte—Kaiserin. Paul Hertel
Coronet solo—Perfection. E. C. Ramsdell

ing examined. They were Sarah Jefries, Thos. Jeffries, Jas. O'Connor, Patrick Tierney, Wm. Dearey, Henry Gibson, Robert Angus, Wm. Coyne, Wm. Tierney, and Thos. G. Siddel. Witnesses were called to testify to the character of the young prisoner, and March last when Geo. Dowling was robbed of some $40.

Mr. Toothe appeared for the prisoner, and spoke on behalf of his client. He pointed to the fact that the evidence at its best, wherever there appeared to be any against the prisoner, was purely circumstantial. He also laid stress upon the fact that the robbed man had other companions, and had been drinking, so that he was unable to say positively who he was really with, and that nearly all the witnesses had had different ideas about the time the affair happened.

Crown Prosecutor Magee followed. He pointed out to the jury that circumstantial evidence had always to be taken into consideration, but that the prisoner should be given the benefit of the doubt if in their minds any existed. The man who took the money and abused him knew where he kept is the Truth Concerning John Gibbons East London.

He Was Tortured With the Pains of Pills Cured Him When All Else Had

There are two things in this world which Mr. John Gibbons, a resident of Queen's avenue east, will hence-forth place implicit confidence in. One is the judgment of his wife, and the other is the curative qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In his case the two went hand in hand; Mrs. Gibbons thought of the remedy, the pills did the rest, and today Mr. Gibbons is a well man, where last fall he was virtually a cripple. An "Advertiser" reporter called at the house the other evening and was met at the door by Mr. Gibbons, to whom he told the object of his visit, and was cordially invited in. The reporter had no sooner got comfortably seated, when Mr. Gibbons went into an adjoining room. The sound of clinking bottles floated through the half-open door, and when Mr. Gibbons reappeared he had in his arms a whole basket of bottles-all he has to show for many and many a hard-earned dollar spent in useless drugs. As Mr. Gibbons was busy showing the bottles and descanting upon the impotency of the medicines they had contained, the reporter had abundant opportunity of marking the personal appearance of the man. His speech betrays his English birth, and his face still bears the mark of suffering, but his frame is erect, his step light and elastic, and when he tells you that he can work, run or jump, with any man, you cannot help but believe him. He is 29 years of age, and was born in Bowl Road, Strat-ford, England. He came to Canada in 1882, and located at Galt, where he is well and favorably known. He worked for Hon. Mr. Young, member The Bacon Case Collapses Because the of Parliament, for a long time, and seven years ago he married Miss Alice Mann, also of Galt. They gave me prescriptions. but none of them seemed to do me any good. The neighbors could hear me all over Queen's avenue when I would get an attack of the pains.

Last fall I was taken out of this place in a back and was taken to the hospital. I remained there about three weeks, and the doctors did what they could for me, but could not give me any relief. At the end of three weeks I came home again suffering as much as ever. My wife got hold of a pamphlet which told of a number of remarkable cures by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and we determined to try them. will appreciate such close prices. Plain Chambray, in pink and blue, that you used to pay 12 1/2c for can now be had at 10c; and another line worth 18c can be had at 121/2c—that is, if you come in time. Then we have some very fine Cotton Llama Goods, in pale blue only, 36 inches wide—cheap at 15c, but you can buy it now at 121/2c. Here we mention a line that we feel is almost too good value for the money -we don't want to get our customers into expecting too much, but we'll tempt you this time with some

Light and Dark Prints at 5c.

Some are last season's patterns, but they are none the worse for that You can see them in the window. If you want a Challie Dress we can sell you pretty patterns at 5c, were selling at 81/2c. A line of beautiful Llamas, printed, 32 inches wide, for 6½c, were 12½c. These are chances that we cannot offer every day. Decide to purchase early if you want any of them. The prices are too low for them to stay with us long. That's why we made them low-within reach of everyone.

> VALUE OF A SLAVE. Chambers's Journal.

When the slave trade was in full swing, it was a common thing for merchants on the west coast of Africa to purchase a cargo of rum and tobacco and give slaves in exchange. The price of a prime slave when Mungo detachment, consisting of 85 men, Park was among the Mandingoes was which returned to Vamos, the town from nine to twelve minikallies, the equivalent of one minikalli being somecently besieged in order to remove war thing like the following; Eighteen gunmaterial, was cut to pieces by the inflints, 48 leaves of tobacco, twenty surgents, only two of the Turks escharges of gunpowder and a cutlass. Dr. Livingstone, than whom no explorer did more to expose the ravages of the slave-raider, says he never knew of an African parent selling his own offspring. When on his first great missionary journey he relates how, in a foray against the Makololo, 30 captives were given in exchange for three English muskets. Livingstone is especially severe on the Boers for locting his mission station in 1852, killing many of the Bakwains, and driving nearly 200 of his mission children into slavery. The Boers, by so retarding his work, and making him uncomfortable at Kolobeng, helped to decide him to move northward, a decision

That Procession.

The friends of Mr. C. S. Hyman, they are legion-could not have wished night for the promotion of his candidature. They are deeply indebted to the self-sacrificing efforts of all those who contributed to its success, more especially that portion which pertained to the street display. Too much praise cannot be given to the yeomanry of Westminster and to the city horsemen who turned out in such large numbers. The efforts of Mr. James Mc-Cormick in enlisting hundreds of city wheelmen into the service are also worthy of hearty appreciation. And us refer to the officers and members of the Young Liberal Fleet, who made the most picturesque spectacle of all. Their friends in the city were proud of them, and visitors from near and far were delighted with their natty appearance. Taking it all in all, never in the history of Western Ontario has so imposing a spectacle been presented. It was not a forced or paid for demonstration. It was the result of a spontaneous outburst of loyal enthusiasm, and it was an augury of near-at-hand victory.

A Stirring Condemnation of War General-Tribute to Northern and Southern Soldiers.

Washington, D. C., June 1.-What could be more appropriate or stirring than this discourse by the Rev. Dr. Talmage, at the time of the year when the friends of those who wore blue and the gray have decorated the mounds of the fallen? The text was Solomon's Song, iv., 4: "The tower of David builded for an armory, whereon there hang a thousand bucklers, all shields of mighty men." The church is here compared to an armory, the walls hung with trophies of dead heroes. Walk all about this tower of David, and see the dented shields and the twisted swords, the rusted helmets of terrible battle. So at this season, a month earlier at the south, a month later at the north, the American churches are turned into armories adorned with memories of departed braves. Blossom and bloom, O walls, with stories of self-sacrifice, and patriotism and prowess. By unanimous decree of the people of tional cemeteries—a statue of liberty in the form of a Christian woman, with her hand on an open Bible, and the United States of America, the graves of all the northern and southern dead are every year decorated. All acerbity and bitterness have gone out of the national solemnity, and as the other hand pointing down to the men and women of the south one graves of the unknown, saying: "These month ago floralized the cemeteries are my sons, who died that I might and graveyards, so yesterday we, the men and women of the north, put upon the tombs of our dead the kiss tively little importance what was the of patriotic affection. In a battle during our last war, the Confederates were driving back the Federals, who were in swift retreat, when a Federal officer dropped, wounded. One of his men stopped, at the risk of his life, and put his arms around the officer to carry him from the field. Fifty Confederate muskets were aimed at the young man who was picking up the officer. But the Confederate captain shouted: "Hold! don't fire; that fellow is too brave to shoot." And as the Federal officer, held up by his private soldier, went limping slowly off the field, the Confederates gave three cheers for the brave private; and just before the two disappeared behind a barn, both the wounded officer and the private lifted their caps in gratitude to the Confederate captain.

The in- great generals who have fallen, but no news about the private soldiers. In that awful waiting for news many a life perished. The strain of anxiety was too great. The wife's brain gave way that first week after the battle, and ever and anon she walks the floor of the asylum, or looks out of the window, as though she expected some one to come along the path and up the steps, as she soliloquizes: "Missing! missing!" What made matters worse, all this might have been avoided. There was no more need of that war than at this moment I should plunge a dagger through your heart. There were a few Christian philanthropists in those days, scoffed at by both north and south, who had the right of it. If they had been heard on both sides we should had no war and no slavery. It was advised by those Christian philanthropists, "Let the north pay in money for the slaves as property, and set them free." The north said: "We cannot afford to pay." The south said: We will not sell the slaves, anyhow." But the north did pay in war expenses enough to purchase the slaves, and the south was compelled to give up slavery anyhow. Might not the north better have paid the money, Up the system is at this season. The and saved the lives of five hundred thousand brave men? And might not the south better have sold out slavery and saved her five hundred thousand brave men? I swear you by the graves of your fathers and brothers, and sons, is the great builder, because it is the to a new hatred for—the champion curse of the universe-war! O Lord, God, with the hottest bolt of thine omnipotent indignation, strike that monster down forever and ever. In the name of the millions of the graves of its victims, I denounce it. The nations need more the spirit of treaty, and less of the spirit of war.

War is more ghastly now than once not only because of its greater destructiveness of its weaponry, but be-cause now it takes down the best all infamous persons, and such as ine men, were weeded out of the army, it would soon be reduced to a pretty moderate number." Flogging and mean pay made them still more ignoble. Officers were appointed to see that each soldier drank his ration of a pint of spirits a day. There were noble men in battle, but the moral character of the army then was 95 per cent lower than the moral character of an army today. By so much is war now the more detestable because it destroys the picked men of the nations.

Again, by this national ceremony, we mean to honor courage. The Church of God is in woeful need of men who can stand under fire. The lions of worldly derision roar and the sheep tremble. In, great reformatory movements, at the firsts hot how many fall back! The great obstacle to the church's advancement is the inanity, the vacuity, the soft prettiness, the namby-pambyism of professed Christians. Great on a parade, cowards in battle. Afraid of getting their plumes ruffled, they carry a parasol over their helmet. They go into battle, not with warriors' gauntlet, but with kid gloves, not clutching the sword hilt too tight lest the gloves split at the back.

In all our reformatory and Christian work the great want is more backbone, more mettle, more daring, more prowess. We would in all our churches like to trade off a hundred dornothings for

THE TOBACCO HABIT CURED.

In the interest of the masses, for whom these reports are compiled, the United States Health Reports have examined and investigated many preparations having for their object the cure of the tobacco habit, but among them all we have no hesitancy in giving the editorial and official endorsement of these reports to the remedy known as "Uncle Sam's Tobacco Cure," manufactured by the Keystone Remedy Company, at 218 La Salle street, Chicago. They are distributing literature this week all through the city, and in the light of our examinations and tests of "Uncle Sam's Tobacco Cure," we are but performing a duty we owe the public when we indorse the same, and stamp it as the crowning achievement of the nineteenth century, in the way of destroying a habit as disgusting as it is common (For Only $1) hence we earnestly advise you to read full particulars, and if you have not seen circulars to call at W. S. Bryers Bark-well's, wholesole and retail agents for Canada, 268 Dundas street, London.

A Prisoners' Strike at the County Jail-How it Was Cured.

Jailer Kelly has within the confines of his castle 27 prisoners—24 men and 3 women. He has also in the yard a long pile of wood, upon which the prisoners may exercise themselves. A prisoners may exercise themselves. A week ago, six of the "nobles" were shown into the yard by Mr. Kelly and informed that they could amuse themselves with the wood pile. When they saw the size of it, they "caved" a little, and finally they all refused to saw wood, but were content to do anything else.

"Well," said the jailer, "there is not much choice of occupation here, and I'll give you a few minutes to decide as to what course you will pursue, and whether you will do as you choose or as I say." much choice of occupation here, and choose or as I say." When the time given them to answer had expired, three of them decided to saw wood, but the other three decided that their physical strength was not equal to the task and refused, but signified their willingness to do anything else. There was nothing for them to do, and Jailer Kelly marched them to do, and Jailer Kelly marched the men to the dark cell, where they were confined for 72 hours, with a diet of bread and water, upon which to recoup sufficient strength to comply with the keeper's command.

A Proud Hen.

Wabash Times. He was being interviewed on the poultry business, when he said: "I don't want to boast, but I do think we have got the knowingest hens in the world in our end of the town. I have a flock of 200, all black. It is a theory of mine that black hens lay better than those of any other color. One day I found a hen in my flock with a few white feathers in her tail. I called the hired man and told him to catch and kill her. 'You can't rely on the laying capabilities of a hen with white feathers,' I said. "The hen gave me a sorrowful look, but did not say a word. Next morn-Mooney, of the Gore of London, was ing the hired man told me he could not find her. A month or two later I opened a pile of potatoes I had stored in the cellar, and found a big, hollow space in the center of them. There was a bunch of black feathers in the place with three white ones standing up in a defiant sort of way. Behind the feathers were 66 eggs. I recognized at once that it was the work of the missing hen. The sensitive creature had stowed herself away and worn herself out laying eggs to prove that the theory was a mis-

Never before in London's history has the city witnessed such a political demonstration as was witnessed last night, never was there such a welldemonstration fraught with more significance. The feature of the demonstration was not so much the procession, colossal in proportions, though it was, not altogether the immense and overpouring attendance, unprecedented as it also was; nay, the conclusive, all-convincing feature of the great gathering was the boundless enthusiasm with which every point brought out by the speakers was received. The remarkable juvenality and sustained vigor of the venerable leader of the Legislature, Sir Oliver Mowat, was in evidence as he leaned over the bar and launched himself into the tide of Federal politics-the vast impelling resistless tide leading to Liberal victory. The graceful, eloquent words of the silvertongued Laurier swayed the audience like the passage of a summer's breeze over the broad bosom of the prairie. The storm center of applause was the speakers' bar. Originating there the ripple spread and grew in volume with each receding row until it broke on the outskirts of the crowd-a redhot, burning wave of enthusiasm. The surges of applause and cheers were as regular as the surf beat on the ocean shore. It began with the address of the chairman, and only ended when the last address was given and the greatest political meeting in Canada came to an end.

The Vast Crowd.

London had an early tea last night and then went to see the procession. Prudent and sagacious campaigners profited by former experiences with Liberal meetings and waived the opportunity of witnessing the procession and camped out in front of the place of meeting, waiting for the doors to open. A thousand people did this, and the lucky thousand sat in front rows during the meeting. From 7:15, when the doors were open, until 7:45, when the first faint drumbeats of the approaching procession along Dundas street were heard, the A. Burnett, onslaught was sure and steady. The rink was seated for 4,000 people, and by this time the seats were nearly all | C. McCarthy, taken. As the procession passed Wellington street the mass of people set out for the rink. The sidewalks houlevards were no impediment to locomotion, and the road was a veritable king's highway. But the largest vessel has its limit; so has the largest rink, and at 8 o'clock the citizens had found that limit—and found it, too, when half the people were yet outside! There were more than 2,000 people around the sides, in the galleries, and on the shelving roof-making the attendance over 6,000. No wonder the people sang:

"Hyman will roost in the Parliament coop, Hurrah for victory; But Beattie will surely be in

Hurrah for victory." The ladies graced the occasion by their attendance, and the rink was festooned with flags and banners, mottoes, and other decorations. Maple branches garnished the platforms and Frank Love, spread around the fragrant and peculiar incense which proved to be ex- J. The Procession. The procession started at a rink Joseph Young and ended at a rink, and had both Frank Harley, rinks had their usual complements of George Harper, ice the warmth of enthusiasm at each would have completely spoiled John Green the skating. At 7:15 Sir Oliver drove James Shand, to the Simcoe street rink, or armory G. H. Allen, "B." and inspected the fleet. The Grand Old Man was loudly cheered Peter Wilson, on his appearance as he walked up Ex.Ald. T. Browne, to the entrance with his hat upraised | Simon McLeod, in acknowledgment of the ovation tendered him. While the different W. J. Milloy, companies were performing their Dr. Peter Wood, graceful and intricate movements, E. Jarmain, Mr. Laurier arrived. The shout that Roselle Pococke, went up nearly raised the roof. The boys cheered their welcome, the John S. Brown, drums beat out a sharp measure of Wm. Tytler, greeting, and even the band found Rev. A. Stewart, it impossible to proceed playing "Ben J. J. Then came the pipe band, led by Pipe Major Wallace. The pipers were Donald McGregor, George Angus, Alex. Milne, and Alfred and A. Bright and Jack Wilson, of St. Thomas. The drummers were Wm. Templeton, bass, Wm. Allen, snare, and Allister Allen,

Following the pipers came a section of a hundred Westminster horsemen, under ex-Sergt. David Smeaton, of the Toronto Dragoons, and ex-Corp. Dineen, of the same regiment. The skirl of the slogan sounded familiar in the ears of the visitors, who were presumably of Scotch descent.

The Oneida Indian Band, unexpectbut none the less welcome, followed, and were loudly cheered. Then came the largest section of Westminster horsemen-at least 200 of

Their opponents, he said, were going London, smarting under the sense of around trying to frighten the manufacturers and workingmen by representing the Liberal policy to be one of avenged at the polls, and that day will free trade and the total destruction of the tariff in the event of its victory. Mr. Hyman pointed out that in 1895 the Government's action in clinging to the expenditures of the Dominion were $36,132,000, while the revenue from all sources, excepting customs, was about time. Alluding to the change of lead-$16,000,000, leaving $21,000,000 to be col- ers in the Conservative party, he relected by a tariff upon imports. As marked that the hare sheds its coat he understood the policy of the Liberal every year, and so the Government party, it meant that there would be had changed its coat and put on ansuch a tariff as would

RAISE ENOUGH MONEY from economical and efficient government. In 1895 they would have been face to face with the question as to how they were to raise $21,000,000, should that amount have been necessary for the public service. That money would be collected by taxing imports at a sufficient rate to yield the sum required. It was one of the strong planks of the Liberal party that they would aid the manufacturers by making his raw material as free as possible. There were only two ways by which a manufacturer could be aided by legislation. One was by placing a tariff against all outside competitors, which enabled him to get a higher price for his goods; but t made the consumer pay a larger amount for them, and so, while it might aid the manufacturer, it injured the purchaser. The other method of AIDING THE MANUFACTURER was by giving him raw material free of taxation, which enabled him to obtain the same profit at a lower price to the consumer. (Cheers.) Liberal party came into power, it could only reduce the tariff by such an amount as it could save by careful and economical administration of the Government. (Hear, hear.) The tariff would stand there, not upon protective principles, but upon ar evenue basis. Mr. Hyman then said he would touch

These propositions I will prove by the of Mr. Chamberlain, father of the plan in England, and L will prove it by the great newspaper, the organ of public opinion in England, the London Times." (Cheers.)

Continuing, Mr. Laurier quoted from a speech by Mr. Chamberlain, as re-ported by the London Times, in which that gentleman said: "It seems to me that if that principle, that is to say, the principle of a revenue tariff, were adopted by the colonies, there would reason for calling the council of the Empire. And I cannot but think that something like a satisfactory and workable arrangement may be arrived They were to have at London in this present month of June, added Mr. Laurier, a meeting of the boards of trade from these colonies, and they had to discuss the question, How was it possible to expect that England, which has had free trade with a part of her system, would go in for pro-tection in order to favor the colonies? The thing was not to be contemplated. Mr. Chamberlain told them that it was not to be thought of.

In another issue of the Times, in dis-cussing the question, it stated: "Tariff or revenue is to be accepted as a funamental principle of the present agreement. It is only tariff for protection as between different parts of the Empire which must be abolished." This was the condition laid down. If they wanted preferential trade tariff for revenue had to be adopted. But they could not have a preferential trade as long as they had a tariff for protection. (Hear, hear and applause.)
Mr. Laurier dwelt forcibly on the fact that what this fertile district wanted was markets. (Applause.) They had there the possibility of securing the largest market in the world. They would have to chose between Sir the people whom I am now address-Charles Tupper's high tax policy and tariff for revenue, and as far as the city of London was concerned he knew choice would be preferential trade and Charles Hyman. Then Mr. Laurier quoted Sir Charles Tupper as asking at Winnipeg if they would vote to bring into power a Roman Catholic and a French-Canadian, who declared that he would do more for them. There he was appealing to the people of Manitoba upon the baseground of creed and race, asking if they were going to turn them out of power to place in office a Roman Catholic Premier? ("Shame! shame!" Mr. Laurier challenged Sir Charles to repeat that statement in Quebec, and at Sohmer Park he had the courage to repeat himself so far as to say: "Are you going to turn us out of power to give power to a French-Canadian Roman Catholic?" but he added these words: "Who is a traitor to his race and to his religion."

BRANDED AS A DISGRACE. "Now, sir," added Mr. Laurier, brand those words in the face of all Canada, I brand them as cowardly words. (Cheers.) I brand them as a disgracea nd a shame, and a crime against our Canadian fellow-citizenship." (Cheers.)

Mr. Laurier said that he had never sought the position, and knew that political capital would be made out of his race and creed. When pressed to accept the position it was said to him: True, you are by birth a French-Canadian and a Roman Catholic. But place yourself at our head, for, thank od, the Liberal party knows no dis-inction of race or creed." (Prolonged cheering.) Before sitting down, Mr Laurier again referred to the school question, and said that he would be proud to have in the task of settling that vexed question the help of such a man as the veteran statesman—Sir Oliver Mowat. (Great cheering.) He referred to the ladies who graced the occasion by their presence, and con-cluded by stating that if the ladies were with them he need not tell them that God was, and victory. Mr. Paterson referred to the critical nature of the relations between Great Britain and the United States at the time this strike was on at Ottawa-to the threatening telegram of the German Emperor in regard to South Africa, and the growling of Russia. Where, he asked, was the Minister of Railways at that critical time, when any moment he might have been called upon to organize the resources of the service to move troops for our defense? Notes and Incidents

Mr. Laurier's references to the great "I" caused much laughter. About 50 repesentatives from St. Marys were present at the meeting. Sir Oliver Mowat is as light of step and rubicund in countenance as many a 50-year-old. Sir Oliver arrived on the Pacific express, G. T. R., and was given a great reception. Two veteran colored citizens entered the procession in a rig on Dundas street and were loudly cheered. Among those who turned out on horseback were Mr. Geo. C. Gibbons, Q.C., and Master Gibbons. The first portion of the procession had reached Princess Rink before the last section had passed Wellington

George Simpson, Stuart Lyon and A. C. Craig for the Mail. All London seemed to have turned out to welcome the coming Premier, his veteran lieutenant, and the able representative for the city. Several Strathroy wheelmen were present. They included Will Meekion, Dr. Wilmont, James Waugh, Geo.

Prangley and Duncan Ross. Mr. W. T. Element was chairman of the decoration committee. He performed his duty to perfection, assisted by his energetic committee.

It was one of the best-natured crowds that ever assembled in London. Keen, too, it was in appreciating the witty sayings of the orators. Carriages crowded the avenue in front of the rink, which were taxed to their full capacity by the crowd outside in order to catch sight of the coming Premier.

A delegation of about 100 from Ingersoll, accompanied Mayor Jones, ex-Mayor Watterworth, J. B. Jackson and Jas. Vance, president of the Reform Association, were here.

Sir Oliver looks 15 years younger than he really is. He has taken as good care of his physical resources as he has of the material resources of his native Province, of which he has been Premier for 24 years. Many houses along the route of the procession were beautifully illuminated and decorated, prominent among them on Queen's avenue being the residences of Col. Lewis, Mr. Charles Leonard, and Mr. Samuel R. Brown.

The most disappointed people were the thousands who witnessed the procession, and then rushed for the rink, only to find that the rink was already crowded in every nook and cranny, and thousands were clamoring for admission and unable to get near the entrance.

Never have the arrangements for the press been so complete as on this the head of the committee which had charge of this work. He armed himself with a club and fought off the crowd who would have seized the

There was no more disappointed crowd than the thousands who lined William street and Queen's avenue when they discovered that, through some mistake, the main portion of the gigantic procession had been headed down Maitland street. They regarded it as a direct imposition to be deprived of the unique sight.

When the procession reached Queen's avenue, a delegation of little maidens hailed Mr. Laurier's carriage, and insisted on presenting him with bouquet after bouquet. They each looked for a kiss in return, but there was not time to give it, and little Miss Betts

The London slogan reached St. Thomas. In the afternoon the usual business seemed to be suspended, and large numbers had business at the railway ticket office, and tickets for London sold like hot cakes. The County Council of Elgin, which is in session, wended its way to the train in a body. All available cars of the L. E. and D. R. R. drew up to the station, at 7 p.m., and the crowd got aboard and filled the seats and occupied most of the standing room. There must have been 500 on the train. Among them were Dr. Wilson, Liberal candidate for East Elgin; W. E. Idsardi, mayor; W. E. Leonard, J. Far-ley, Q.C., Warden Locker; J. Steele, reeve of Southwold; Frank Hunt, de-W. What Will Follow?

The Earth is Losing Speed and Will Finally Come to a Standstill.

Prof. Thompson believes in the theory that all planets will eventually come to a standstill. In other words, a day will arrive when the great system of worlds will cease to revolve upon their axles, and to make their gular periodical revolutions around the sun. When that time comes, if it ever should, all motion will cease, and the universe will be at rest. Our finite minds cannot comprehend such a state of affairs, but the philosophers give what they call good proof, that such an era is fast approaching. Primarily the case interests us only so far as it applies to the motion of our own little world, but we have been told that whatever affects the other spokes of the great wheel will surely affect us sooner or later. So it is with our world as respects the others. If there is "a retarding medium in space that is causing a gradual slowing up of the earth's movements, as all the great astronomers declare, that same "medium" is at work slowly but surely decreasing the axial and other motions of the sun, and his whole vast systems of worlds. THE RATE OF LOSS. Newton's great mind conceived the idea that the friction of the tides and "other forces calculated to retard motion," were having their effect on the earth's axial as well as annual revolutions, but the majority of thinkers of his time, and of the last hundred years, have argued that such motion will continue forever. Within the past decade, however, there has been a change of sentiment on that score. It is now pretty certain from calculations made by astronomers that the earth is now losing speed at the rate of one hour every 16,000 years. When the loss is so slight, it appears that it can be of no particular mo-

ITS ULTIMATE FATE. At best, we only live a tithe of the period which it takes to lose that hour, and the whole of the 24 hours must be lost before motion entirely ceases. But all should have an interest in the ultimate fate of the old world, and of the universe in general; therefore, it is interesting to know that there is as much as a minute lost in the course of even 100,000 years. Whatever the loss is, it eventually means a cessation of motion and a general standstill.

If this period of planetary rest should ever come, what will be the result? Will the great worlds and suns hang in space—the planets freezing on one side and burning up on the other-or will they fall down, down, forever? But in such a case, gravitation would cease to exert its influence. Then there would be no "up" or formance with her husband. When it became plain that Montsey was not going to bring any more rabbits in, Mrs. Paltauf arranged a box for the family and put it in the kitchen. The happy family were transfered to this box. Mrs. Paltauf didn't know how rabbits are reared, and she thought that those that Montsey had brought inches. If they are higher than that to her home impht starve. So she tried to feed them with milk from a spoon, but the rabbits were too young to take it, and she was obliged to give up the effort. But the young rabbits soon learned to take their nourishment in the way that Montsey's own children would have. Montsey acted toward them just as any cat ard her kittens. She fed them and cleaned them, and they allowed her to do anything she wished to them. The rabbits were all alive and thriving yesterday. They have grown considerably since their home was changed, and give promise of long and healthy lives. Mr. and Mrs. Paltauf have decided to keep them and bring them up as pets. Montsey is proud of them, and George Henry stands guard over their bed when his mother is not there. The only question is as to the

The Sand is a Nuisance, but There Are Rumers of Big Diamonds.

Wady Halfa Letter in the London Standard. The work on the railway is progressing in satisfactory style, although the Sirdar declares he will not be quite content until one mile per day is the total. The conditions of workand run together, and, of course, there was a great deal of in-breed-ag among them, no attempt being made to keep anything like a recorded pedigree. The need there is for preservents of the labor of digging is at least doubled. The misery inflicted in a sandy country by a chronic gale is quite un-known in Europe, and hard to imagine. At Sarras and Akasheh it is sometimes almost impossible to one's vis-i-vis at table inside the messroom, so thick is the air with fine sand, whereas outside it is as yellow as a London fog. With an at-mosphere so charged, of course, the ready stated, palmed off Icelanders mouth, nose and lungs are forcibly dosed with a good share, while everything eatable or drinkable is salted profusely with the horrible, gritty little particles. The greatest trial, in-deed, of life in these regions is the sand, and the impracticability of breeds, and besides, it should not be keeping it out.

The flies are rather a nuisance, and there is a 'morning and evening' fly who devotes special attention to ankles and wrists, and whose tooth is like a darning needle; but there are no fleas or mosquitos, and only a few sandflies. The temperature is only disagreeably hot for a few hours in the middle of the day, and the mornings and evenings are ideal for riding, swimming, squash rackets or any other mild form of exercise. Polo has not yet commenced, though a bad ground exists; but the racket court is crowded every evening from 4 o'clock onward. One of the common amusements is to sail for an nour or taract in a native boat. The ascent is easy enough, but there is scarcely sufficient strength of water to counterbalance the wind, as a rule, and to tow back is. therefore, inevitable. A theory has been propounded that of the formations to be met with turning over the pebbles, in the hopes

There are several stories which give color to their expectations, the principal one being that, in the construction of a bridge over a gully not far from here, a stone was picked up and taken home, and something open and found to contain a fair diamond. The bridge is now the Kantara el Jowahir, or the Jewel Bridge. There is also a legend that during the last Nile expedition a British soldier collected a few pebbles, and on his return to showed them to a merchant in the bazaar, who immediately offered him £80 for the stones. There can be little doubt, I think, that an experienced hand, even if he found no diamonds, might make a very profitable little business by searching in his spare hours among the masses of agates, crystals and such like which lie thickly strewn in places over the desert on the road, as I have seen it, between here and Sarras, and probably further. If once the idea spreads among the there will certainly be no lack of keen eyes and busy fingers, and it is without some bounds of possibility that something valuable might result from a systematic search. A Kimberley on the Nile would be a curious rutcome of Mahdism.

Justin McCarthy Tells Some Good Stories

of Men He Has Met. London News.

Of the great men he has met, Justin McCarthy has some excellent stories to relate. A few of these he recently recounted in a lecture in the Tyne

Theater Newcastle. Among his most cherished memories are recollections of William Makepeace Thackeray. Those who knew Thackeray from his books will readily conceive that he would take infinite delight in telling a story against himself. Here is an anecdote that he used Thackeray found much relate: pleasure in taking long walks into the country. When on one of these excursions with a brother journalist, "Jacob Omnium," who, tall as Thackeray was, was even taller than the author of "The Newcomes," the two gentlemer came across a country fair. Observing a tent where "giants" were exhibiting themselves, they agreed to enter. When Thackeray was preparing to pay the usual admission fee, the attendant at the door remarked: "We make no charge to the profession, sir." An instance of very smart reparted on the part of John Bright is told by Mr. McCarthy. Mr. Bright, unfortunately, had on one occasion to leave his Parliamentary and other duties on account of an affection of the brain. Recovering from the attack, Mr. Bright resumed his active interest in public affairs. But in the course of a debate a member of the House of Commons with surprising and inexcusable indecency, replying to Mr. Bright, said that gentleman had been suffering from a disease of the brain. With comparative self-restraint the famous reretorted: "That is a disease which Providence itself could not inflict upon the noble lord."

Mr. McCarthy remembers very well the only speech he ever heard the great Duke of Wellington deliver in the House of Lords. It made a decided impression upon the future Irish leader. The man of iron wore a blue frock coat and a pair of white duck trous ers, the only person he knew, except his friend, Gibson Bowles, who adopted such unmentionables. A bill was under discussion, and Wellington criti-cised it adversely. The peer in charge of the bill remarked bitterly that the noble duke did not understand the bil Then Wellington rejoined: "I have read it three times; and if, after that, I don't understand the bill, I must be a

Among the anecdotes Mr. McCarthy relates is one concerning himself. At the close of a lecture in Glasgow he turned to the chairman and said he hoped he had not taken too long. "Na, na," said the Scotchman, "aw thenk ye hae had a vera patient audience!"

A GIRL who can see the Roentgen rays has been found by Dr. Brandes, of Halle, who discovered her. Starting from the fact that the rays do not penetrate lenses, he hunted for some one the lens of whose eyes had been removed, an operation performed not rarely for extreme short-sightedness or for cataract. The girl, who had had the lens of her left eye removed, was able to see the light with it, though her right eye, which retained its lens, see nothing. Dr. Brandes asserts that the rays affect the retina of the eye, and if anyone's head is enclosed in an opaque vessel near the source of the rays the light can be seen even with closed eyes.

WHAT the Cuban folly really means to the people of Spain is shown in a vivid way by a "little human vignette" given by Mr. W. J. Dawson, in a letter to the British Weekly. Literature has seldom of never, in her time, been a passport to royal favor. It is not a literary family—not a family which reads much, except dispatches and state papers and the curt summaries of Parliamentary proceedings which the Prime Minister, or the Minister who leads the House of Commons, writes on his lap towards the close of each sitting for her Majesty's information. Not many marks of disin Braemar, Scotland, Some keepers tinction have been conferred during the present reign on eminent Engwriters. Still less, then, was it likely that an American writer should be singled out for notice because he was an American writer. It is probable the Queen knew that Mr. Lowell had published books; less probable that she had read them; least probable of all that they were the foundation of the regard she had for him. The regard was due to his personal qualities and to the fact that he was known to her as the advocate of a good understanding between the kingdom over which she rules and the great commonwealth beyond the seas which her grandfather flung away. For the Queen has ever been the advocate of friendly relations with the United States. She knew how much this American Minister had done to promote them, and valued him accordingly. Upon acquaintance with Mr. Lowell she came to value him for his own sake, and not least, I have been told, for his somewhat unconventional independence of speech and thought. The imagination cannot conceive of Lowell as a courtier. But to Queen, as to everybody else, he would speak his mind. The freedom he used sometimes left courtiers aghast, but gave the Queen no offense. It may have amazed her because of its originality; it certainly increased her respect and liking for the loyal fault of good breeding in it; there was, no doubt, a certain indifference to court customs. A breath of fresh air swept through the presence-room when Mr. Lowell entered it. In Harner's Monthly for May Mr. lesheph H. Twitchell gives a character sketch of the great American humorist, which is illustrated by a portrait as frontispiece and views of his house at Hartford. Mr. Twitchell worships Mr. Clemens almost as much clerical guides through Chester Ca-thedral as long ago as 1882 delighted the hearts of some American tourists by telling them, in reply to the mod-est reply of theirs that they had no Chester Cathedrals in America, "But Cathedrals in America, "But things we have not." When you have things we have not." asked to specify what things they have that we have not, the answer came pat, "Well, you have Mark Twain and Harper's Magazine." No other literary man of this generation," says Mr. Twichell, has enjoyed such universal favor with readers of all ranks. His home in Hartford is naturally a kind of pligrim shrine: Not long since a caller of that class, a big, good-natured countryman-a butcher, as he introduced himselfafter a few minutes' chat, asked: "New, tell me for a fact, are you the one that wrote all them books?" "Truly I am," said Mark.

"Of course you are! Of course you are!" cried the honest fellow; "but, by George, I shouldn't think it from our looks!" Whereat Mark nugely tickled.

HIS EARLY ADVENTURES. In 1861 Mark Twain was a pilot on the Mississippi River, a calling which he had pursued for the previous ten years. The outbreak of the war destroyed the Mississippi traffic, and Mark Twain regarded the event which drove him to literature as one of the greatest misfortupes. The first thing he wrote was "The Jumping Frog," a story based on fact. It was a story thought it looked so flat that he pigeon-holed it for some time, and no one was more surprised than he at immense popularity it achieved as soon as it saw the light. After seven years of roughing it in California he came East and accepted the editorship of the Buffalo Express, a post which he held until 1872. "The Innocents Abroad" was isued in 1869; of articles for the Atlantic Monthly, other and was on the point of declining, as cated.

he had no faintest idea of any practical subject. Just at this time, how-ever, he had been talking about his experience on the Mississippi, whereupon his friend suggested that he should write his life on the Mississippi, which he forthwith did.

HIS WAY OF SAYING THINGS. He married in 1870, and no more devoted couple ever existed. His father-in-law made him a present of house in connection with which "It was while this house was his formal manner and at this time of day, but your house is afire!""
That at this point the meeting suddenly adjourned it is unnecessary to

For another example of his humorous way of saying a serious thing: One Sunday, when he had happened specially to like the sermon he heard in church, he lingered at the door after service, waiting for the minister to come out, in order to give him a pleasant word, which he did in this fashion: "I mean no offense, but I feel obliged to tell you the preaching this morning has been of a kind that I can spare. I go to church to pursue my own trains of thought. But today I couldn't do it. You have interfered with me. You have forced me to attend to you-and have lost me a whole half hour. I beg that it may not occur again."

Mr. Clemens can read both French and German with ease, and speaks them both pretty well. It is interesting to know that he does not relish Dickens, neither does he enjoy Charles Lamb, but he has a great admiration of Browning. His particular hobby is history, particularly that of England middle ages. and France in the wichell states definitely that the story"Personal Recollections of Jeanne which has been running in Harper's, was written by Mr. Clem-No one would have guessed as much from internal evidence. He is positively devoted to cats, and he is very reluctant to allow the lash to be used even upon the slowest of nags. IN PRAISE OF HIS WIFE.

Of his wife he declares that the best thing that he ever did in his life was to fall in love with her. In 1885 he wrote the following tribute of praise: "The mother of my children adores them-there is no milder term for itand they worship her; they even worhand has made sacred. They know her for the best and truest friend they have ever had, or ever shall have; they know her for one who never did them a wrong, and cannot gentleman who thought the ties of do them a wrong; who never told humanity universal. There was no them a lie nor the shadow of one; who never deceived them by even an ambiguous gesture; who never gave them an unreasonable command, nor ever contented herself with anything short of a perfect obedience; who has always treated them as politely and considerately as she would the and oldest in the land, and has always required of them gentle speech and courteous conduct towards all, of whatsoever degree, with whom they chanced to come in contact; they know her for one whose promise whether of reward or punishment, is gold, and always worth its face to the uttermost farthing. In a word they know her, and I know her, for the best and dearest mother that livesand by a long, long way the wisest." When your cake is heavy, soggy, indigestible, it's a pretty sure sign that you didn't shorten it with COTTOLENE. When this great shortening is rightly used, the result will surely satisfy the most fastidious. Always remember that the quality of COTTOLENR makes a little of it go a long way. It's willful waste to use more than two-thirds as much as you would of lard or butter. Always use COTTOLENE this way, and your cake and pastry will always be light, wholesome, delicious. Genuine COPTOLENE is sold everywhere in tins, with trade-marks - "Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath-on every tin.

He Had Pearls by the Quart and Eight Hundred Women in His Palace.

The title of the new Shah is clear as it can be. He is the eldest son of a wife of royal blood. The sons of seus and Andromeda differing from Esthers-that is to say, of women of the usual presentation of the latter mean birth-are of no more account now than they were in the days of Artaxerxes. Presumably, the Shah just proclaimed has found a vast fortune hoarded up by Nasr-ed-Din.

M. Diamanti, ex-European Secretary to the late Shah's Foreign Office, has been giving at Paris some information about Persia as it now in 1872 it had enjoyed a sale of 125,—

The royal palace is called the Ark. The treasures heaped up in it are of incredible richness. One sees there enameled pictures on gold tablets, of great size. The diamonds, rubies, and pearls are of unheard-of splendor, and in such quantities that one sees in the presses where they are kept European decanters and tumblers him "Interviewette," which I found in filled with them. The late Shah liked them to be in transparent vessels, so that he could rapidly see if the bulk was notably diminished by a thief. He had a big aquarium glass case filled with nothing but carefully sorted pearls of the finest Orient lustre. Side by side with these treasures lie tawdry "articles de Paris," hardly good enough for a charity bazar. The enameled paintings on bazar. gold had between them cheap German chromo-lithographs.

The women's part of the palace accommodated 800 souls-admitting that Asiatic women have souls. Of these 80 were concubines. The wives of royal blood were not numerous. The one who bears the first child is always the senior wife. There were about 700 servants, but a great number were engaged in fine needlework, distilling essences and making confectionery. They were very clean, however, all, from highest to lowest, ate the mutton and rice ragut with their fingers. They sat on their heels in circles around low tables on which the dish was set.

The Shah ate alone. The present New York hotels and mercantile buildings, which have already reached the height, in one or two cases, of 23 stories, will be pigmies compared with this giant. And yet we are told that the plans of erection are actually under consideration!

Paintings Found at Pompeii.

At a meeting of the Hellenic Society recently, a paper was read by Mr. Talfourd Ely on newly discovered paintings at Pompeli. The paper was illustrated by photographs, which were handed around for inspection.
