Lord Roberts Made Commander-in-chief of the British Army.

A System of Army Reform to be Announced at Once—Return of the Troops.

London, Oct. 1.—It is officially announced that Lord Roberts has been appointed commander-in-chief of the British army from Sept. 30, Lord Roberts's birthday. Although the fact that the appointment has been made was already known, the formal announcement is hailed by the unionist party as a welcome pledge that army reorganization will be carried out in the most effective manner. It was beginning to be recognized that something was needed to give strength to the unionist campaign.

Accordingly semi-official announcements are out that George Wyndham, parliamentary under secretary of state for war, in his speech at Derby will outline the government's scheme of the army reforms, and that the war office is arranging with Lord Roberts for the return of a large part of the army in South Africa.

The Times, in an editorial reference this morning to the appointment of Lord Roberts as commander-in-chief, hints that Lord Kitchener will come home to assist him at his new post.

A Lorenzo Marques despatch says that Barend Vorster, formerly a member of the Transvaal Volksraad, and now of Zoutpanberg, has constituted himself chief of the Boer government, and is preparing to continue the struggle.

It is semi-officially stated that the war office is arranging with Lord Roberts for the return of a large portion of the army in South Africa.

An interesting report comes from Komatipoort, to the effect that Mr. Kruger, in a letter to his wife announcing he is going on a six months' holiday, said, in substance, that after the capture of Machadodorp he knew the struggle was hopeless, and counseled moderation, but that Mr. Steyn's "arbitrary behavior" overruled his counsel.

THEY SAIL FOR HOME.

Mr. Hamilton, in his narrative of the South African war, at the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday next, will dwell at considerable length on the battle of Paardeberg, and give several views of the battlefield, which will enable him to convey a clear idea of the engagement and the part the Canadians played in it.

The grand jury at London, did not agree with Mr. Justice Rose in his condemnation of the court house, and his lordship stated that on his next visit to the city he would make it his business to have an indictment against the proper authorities prepared and have a grand jury pass upon it, unless the condition of the building is improved in the meantime.

Mgr. Cairns, of the Grand Opera House, went to St. Thomas on Saturday to see the production of "The Prisoner of Zenda," which is booked to appear soon at the Grand here. The production is said to be a very handsome one, but Mr. Cairns prefers to trust rather to his own judgment than to newspaper reports and will not recommend this or any other production unless he thinks it merits it. He recommended "The Royal Box" to his patrons and the production seems to have pleased everybody who saw it.

"D" BATTERY'S WORK.

In a report dated Waterval, Aug. 22nd, Major Hurdman, who commands "D" Battery, says that since their arrival at Pretoria on July 13th they have been almost constantly in contact with the enemy. Skirving, Coogan and Shore are with "D" Battery and have taken part in all the engagements referred to by their commanding officer. This is the battery that arrived at DeAar on April 14th, after completing a memorable march of five weeks' duration, from Victoria Road by way of Kenhardt and across the great Karroo desert, a distance of more than 500 miles.

A childless home is a cheerless home. The maternal instinct exists in every woman, and when it is ungratified she is deprived of much of the happiness of life. It often happens that childlessness is due to some cause which can be removed, and often is removed by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The vigor and vitality which this remedy imparts to the delicate womanly organs, puts them in a condition of normal health, the lack of which is often the sole obstruction to maternity. Every woman should read Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages and 700 illustrations. It is sent entirely free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing and customs. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the paper bound volume, or 50 stamps for cloth covered. Address Dr. R. V. ## BOYS TRIED THEM.

What the Emergency Rations Were Like When Unpacked.

An Officer of D Battery Describes Them in a Letter—A Vile Fraud.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—Lieut. Morrison, of "D" Battery (with which are the Chatham boys), in another of his chatty letters to the Ottawa Citizen thus describes an emergency ration:—"I see you have been having lots of fun over the emergency rations issued to us. When we unpacked the boxes containing ours one-third of the tins were empty, and the stuff, which looks like fine oatmeal, sifted through the others. The tins were so cheaply made that the lids would not keep on if they were carried in a haversack. We thought it was some stuff that had been presented as a cheap advertising scheme to the troops. Our medical officer tried some of it, as did also Major Hurdman, but finding it of no apparent use, it was all left at the base. The joke of the thing is that the label states that it is to be mixed with beef tea and a lot of other things when used. If a soldier in extremes had hot beef tea, soup, and such things available, he would not be in need of an emergency ration at all. A good emergency ration that night at Balmoral and on several other occasions would have prevented much suffering with us and subsequent illness."

RUSSIANS LEAVE

And the Americans Will Follow Them to Tien Tsin.

The Chinese Court Reported to Have Adopted a New Policy—Anti-Foreign Princes Degraded.

London, Oct. 1.—The Russian legation and most of the Russian troops in Pekin have withdrawn to Tien-Tsin. The Americans are preparing to follow them. From Shanghai comes an unconfirmed report that the allies have seized Shan Hai Wan. All the news with regard to the edicts emanates from Shanghai. According to these advices, in addition to the edict ordering Grand Councillor Kun Kang to offer oblations before the coffin of Baron von Ketteler, and the edict directing that Li Hung Chang's entire plan be followed in regard to the punishment of the princes and high ministers of state responsible for the anti-foreign outrages, and the decree ordering that funeral honors be paid in Pekin and Tokio to the remains of Sugi Yama Akira, the murdered chancellor of the Japanese legation, Emperor Kwang Su has addressed further letters to the Czar and the Mikado, renewing his request for their aid in the peace negotiations. Various opinions are expressed as to the importance of the edicts. The Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post says: — "The severe punishment ordered by Emperor Kwang Su will only mean a money fine. There are traces of Li Hung Chang's hand, under American influence, in the edicts. The Standard's Shanghai correspondent remarks that the Empress Regent now realizes the true nature of the crisis. After consulting the Emperor she summoned the court dignitaries, and on their assembling, while she remained silent, the Emperor, in a loud voice, delivered a tirade, lasting a couple of hours, against the courtiers. Then, in an angry voice, he dismissed them. After this the decrees were issued." While these have been promulgated, however, fears and apprehensions are still reported from Shanghai and new appointments have been made to the Chinese army and navy. "The Chinese official gazette had resumed publication," says the Pekin correspondent of the Morning Post wiring Sept. 24, and contains an order directing the Pekin officials to follow the court, unless their duties here prevent them leaving. British looting continues and the daily affections are held at the legations. This is likely to last all winter. Members of the nobility are the heaviest losers, Prince Ching in particular.

The latest imperial edict, it is said, orders the degradation of four princes and deprives Prince Tuan of his salary and official servants. He is to be brought for trial before the imperial clan court.

NOW IS THE TIME

The R. T.'s of T. Say For Temperance People to Make Their Influence Felt.

At the district council of the R. T.'s of T. held in Glenwood the following resolution was passed: Whereas the duties of our Order and the cause of Temperance demand the most earnest efforts of all true lovers of temperance, and whereas this is a time when the united efforts of all temperance organizations should be brought to bear with an eye to elect representatives for the Dominion parliament who we feel are in sympathy with us in our noble work and who we believe will in every case use their vote and influence toward securing a prohibitory law for the several provinces or for the Dominion if possible. Therefore be it resolved that Kent District Council R. T. of T. earnestly ask all Christian and social organizations to take prompt action toward using their influence with the electorate of this county to assist them in electing a representative to the Dominion parliament who will use his vote and influence toward securing prohibition,

OH! SIR WILFRID!

In Montreal Sir Wilfrid Laurier asserted: "We never promised free trade. Five years ago I declared that free trade was a principle to be aimed at, but it was impossible to adopt it." This reads queerly in the light of Laurier's Winnipeg speech, as reported in the Toronto Globe, Sept, 1894:

"And now, I will ask you, what is the policy of the Liberal party? I refer to freedom of trade, such as exists in England, freedom of trade as it is practiced in Great Britain, freedom of trade as was in vogue at the time of Cobden and Bright.

"We shall give you free trade, and although it will be a hard fight, we shall not give in one inch or retrace one step until we shall have reached the goal, and that goal is the same policy of free trade as it exists in England to-day."

THE CIGARET CURSE.

The crusade against the cigaret gathers force. Superintendent Ferrier, of the Mimico Industrial school, reports that out of twenty-five boys recently admitted to that school eighteen were confirmed cigaret smokers. This is an alarming fact and should arouse the police force of the towns and cities to such action as will compel respect for the law governing the sale of cigarets to children. The Toronto News, in view of Supt. Ferrier's report, says:—

"The use of cigarets by children is increasing with alarming rapidity and is far reaching in its effects, in that it undermines the health at a period when the foundation of physical and mental vigor is laid.

"Dealers in this deadly weapon are not sufficiently interested in the future of the race to so guard their sales that no children will be their customers. There also seems to be a carelessness on the part of the authorities in enforcing the statute, which inflicts a fine of from $10 to $50 on any person who 'sells, gives or furnishes' cigarets to a minor under eighteen years of ago. A prosecution for such an offence is seldom heard of."

THE INDEPENDENT VOTE.

Mr. McBride, who has reported Sir Charles' meetings throughout his recent tour, contributes to the press an article, dealing with the main features of the campaign to date and giving his impressions of the series of receptions. Writing of the signs of the coming Conservative victory, he observes:—

After all, elections are swung to one side or other by the great mass of independent-minded men, who have no distinct party affiliations, and who have strength enough of purpose to throw over their party when it is in the wrong. The strong party men prepare the cases, but this class decides the verdict. In many cases they go to the polls quietly, and vote without any one knowing which way they have signed but in others they declare themselves beforehand by open speech or by taking part or by refusing to take part in the contest. In 1896 I saw abundant evidence that the Conservative party was about to suffer from this chass, in Montreal Island at least, and the symptoms must have changed if, in Montreal, in the Maritime provinces and in Ontario they are not clearly manifesting themselves now with respect to the Liberal party. One hears of disgruntled Liberals in many towns, and others in whom the leaders can arouse no enthusiasm. Liberals of all shades and complexion have attended Sir Charles Tupper's meetings. They have been attentive listeners, and the challenge of the speakers to name one pledge which the government has redeemed has never been accepted. One wag in Collingwood replied, "Yes, they have given us prohibition," and there was a point to his answer, too.

The Liberal-Conservative speakers have clearly put the issue somewhat as follows: "The Liberals have not redeemed the pledges they made to you, the electors. Then turn them out. If we do not fulfil our pledges when we come to power, turn us out also." In effect, that is what has been said to the electors in every place during the present tour, and in every place one could see that it made an impression on the people. The challenge is a bold one, and strikes an observer as the one great step forward toward a better condition of public life in Canada during the present campaign.

Ald. Stephens is all right himself, but he will have to do a lot of apologizing for his leaders.

The Saturday market appeared to be a regular Smith reunion. Liberals and Conservatives alike, the former in surprising numbers, declared themselves "agin the Government."

THE LAY OF THE LAST (LIBERAL) MINSTREL.

A. W. Wright.

We used to sing of "Tory Hordes," and
"Robber Barons," too;
We never sing those old songs now,
the tunes would hardly do:

"Ring the knell of boodling, boys,"
was once our loud refrain;
We do not sing that old song now,
we never will again.

We had a catchy little song, 'bout
"Binder twine" and "oil,"
But did we try that old song now
'twould make the people smile.

"Economy" was once our song, we mourned our country's debt;
But taxes they are climbing still, the debt is mounting yet.

How expenditure's increasing is more than mighty queer,
And Tarte says 'twill be higher yet,
he'll show us how next year.

We used to sing of "Puritee," for honesty we yearned;
Since then we've stolen seats galore,
and ballots we have burned.

For cleanly men we clamoured once—
no boodling chaps would do;
Since then we've got Pacaud and
Tarte, and Blair and Sifton, too.

We used to sing of honest ways, we scorned all honest means;
But we have fallen far from grace—
our leaders hug machines.

Our songs were very catching then,
and people did beguile;
They're draggled now and out of date,
like Wilfrid's sunny smile.

The party that once boasted Blake—
excuse me while I sigh—
Has nothing left but Sifton's gall, and William Mulocks I.

One time we tried "God Save the Queen," and might have managed that,
Had it not been for Borden's food,
and Archie Campbell's hat.

The people won't believe us now, no matter how we shout;
We may as well give up the game, for they have found us out.

Salient Farm Notes.

That "just anybody can be a farmer" is a mistaken idea. It takes ability to manage a farm, if success is to be attained. The farm will make satisfactory returns only when well directed energy and industry are expended upon it.

If the lebor on the farm commences not with the sun, there is a loss; for the sun governs the length of the day's work. "Early to bed and early to rise" should be the farmer's motto.

Some farmers complain that they have no time to read, but a few minutes can be utilized now and then, which are usually thrown away, except so far as they are given to rest. Almost every farmer wastes time enough to keep himself fairly well posted on the affairs of the day, as well as to gather useful information from the books which he may read.

Every farmer should study to know his own interest. Many who work hard and fail would make a success did they but studyt his matter in all its many-sided phases, and know just what to do with the returns of their labor.

Zenoleum for Hog Cholera.

Even if the most skillful farmer cannot cure hog cholera, he can prevent it. The best plan ever discovered to avoid it is to us Zenoleum freely as a disinfectant and antiseptic. Thoroughly clean out and disinfect your hog-pens and yards and allow the sick to remain in these quarters. Put Zenoleum in their food and drinking water and in their wallow and bath. Sprinkle it about the pens, sheds, feeding grounds, etc., Separate the well hogs by immediately placing them in new quarters, and should any of the supposed well hogs become affected, place them immediately with the sick ones. Keep all neighbors from coming to your hogs from infected farms. Do not wear the same boots and clothes while attending your well hogs that you have used in quarters of the infected ones. Add one tablespoonful of Zenoleum to each bucket or mash. Add one tablespoonful to each gallon of cold fresh water and allow the stock to drink this. The experience of Dr. A. T. Peters, Nebraska Veterinary, with Zenoleum as a disinfectant has been very satisfactory. It is also used to expel stomach-worms in hogs and to kill hog-lice.

Kaffir Corn and Cow Peas for Chickens.

The Okahima Experiment Station has been conducting some experiments to determine the relative digestibility of Kaffir corn, Indian corn and cow peas when fed to chickens. Results of the trials are published in Bulletin 46. Following is the summary:

1. Chickens digested Kaffir corn and corn more completely when the grain was fed whole than when the meal was fed.

2. The Kaffir corn and Kaffir meal fed in this trial yielded but two per cent less total digestible matter than the corresponding corn products.

3. Kaffir corn was a more suitable ration, considering only the relative amounts of growth-making and fat-forming materials, for chickens than Kaffir meal, corn, or corn meal.

4. Cow peas were digested reasonably well and are desirable feed for growing chickens and hens. But little gain in digestibility was secured by grinding the cow peas.

Just how many hens it takes to maintain a family is an unknown quantity, but it is an established fact that fifty well cared for is a considerable help in that direction.

COSTLY DOORPLATES.

Many Were of Silver and Went Over the Hundred Dollar Mark.

"People who get about town much must have noticed one change that has taken place in the past few years," said the man with the red mustache, "and that is the abolition of doorplates for all except business purposes. There was a time, and not so very long ago either, when everybody that aspired to any kind of social prominence decorated his front door with a plate on which his name was engraved. These plates were made of all kinds of metal, ranging from plain tin to solid silver, according to the prosperity of the owner. Some of them were very expensive. I happened to be in the engraving business when the doorplate craze was raging in its most virulent form, and I know for a fact that we turned out any number of plates that mounted up to and even beyond the hundred dollar mark.

"One of the most expensive plates we ever made was for a man who lived over on East Twenty-second street. This man was a Russian who had embraced American customs, and he had a name about seven feet long. I can't remember now what it was, but I do know that it used up about all the plate we had in the shop to fit him out and that when we were finally through with him his front door resembled nothing so much as the billboard of a vaudeville show. There was a peculiar thing about another block over in that part of the city. There were 40 houses in that block. Each was ornamented with a doorplate, and on 31 of those houses the name was 'Green.' I went over to that neighborhood the other day out of curiosity. There are no doorplates there now, and I had no means of ascertaining whether the Green colony still sticks to its old haunts.

"In one way these doorplates were a mighty fine thing. They gave a stranger within our gates invaluable assistance in sizing up the nomenclature of the city, but they savored too much of self advertising to suit the quiet tastes of the more conservative element, and gradually the custom went out of fashion, until now a private house that sports a doorplate is a curiosity."

Might Have Shot Custer.

Major Thomas Lawson, a prominent ex-Confederate of this city, tells an interesting story of General George A. Custer, the dashing Federal commander, who afterward fell in the massacre of the Little Big Horn. Major Lawson served with the Virginia troops. He was in Pickett's charge at Gettysburg and, although still hale and hearty, bears the marks of three serious wounds.

"During the Virginia campaigns," said Major Lawson, "our forces made a night attack. Our regiment charged into Custer's camp and stampeded the Yankees. Chance sent us in the direction of the general's headquarters. In the midst of the rout I saw a handsome man rush from a tent a few feet from me. He was only half dressed, and from his long hair I recognized him even in the dim light as Custer. He had no arms of any sort, and the Confederates were in almost complete possession; but, hastily pulling a bridle over his horse's head and without waiting to saddle up, he jumped on the animal and galloped off, without arms, to attempt to rally his routed men. He was within ten feet of me for more than a minute, and I drew my revolver to shoot him, but I could not kill so brave a man when he had no means of defense himself. It would have been too much like murder.

"I have always been glad that I did not fire on the gallant Custer that night."

They Drink Blood.

"The fire eaters are dying out, but the blood drinkers are on the increase," says a New Orleans physician in The Times-Democrat of that city. "Go down to the slaughter pens near the barracks any morning, and you'll see a crowd of them waiting for their daily draft fresh from the animals' veins. Most of the drinkers are people who show plainly the ravages of tuberculosis, but others are merely run down and debilitated and take the blood as a tonic. There are always women and children in the gathering, and, while all classes of society are represented, it is one place at least where there are no caste distinctions. Their afflictions and the curious treatment they are taking give them a common meeting ground, and it is singular to see how they fraternize. You will find wealthy business men chatting confidentially with hoboes and society women swapping symptoms with women in ragged calico. It's a queer sight."

Street Car Riding For Insomnia.

One of the most prominent physicians in the city is recommending a new remedy for insomnia, a cheap and pleasant remedy, which is at least worth trying. Two hours before bedtime, says he, put on your most comfortable clothes, your easiest shoes and your least choky collar. Then walk over to the nearest car line, take a front seat in the first open car that comes along and sit there till time to go to bed, riding from one end of the line to the other with the cool night wind blowing in your face. An hour's street car riding, he says, scarcely ever fails to bring on a feeling of drowsiness, and he has actually been able to bring sleep to the most nerve wrecked of insomniacs by his simple device.—Washington Post.

WISE LIVING.

Not to be conquered by these headlong days,
But to stand free: to keep the mind at brood
On life's deep meaning, nature's altitude
Of loveliness, and time's mysterious ways;
At every thought and deed to clear the haze
Out of our eyes, considering only this,
What man, what life, what love, what beauty is,
This is to live, and win the final praise.

Though strife, ill fortune, and harsh human need
Beat down the soul, at moments blind and dumb
With agony; yet, patience — there shall come
Many great voices from life's outer sea,
Hours of strange triumph, and, when few men heed,
Murmurs and glimpses of eternity.
—Archibald Lampman.

A GREAT VARIETY

Of Fall Styles to be Seen at Wm. Foreman's & Co.'s.

Some Handsome Hats Which Are Magnificent Tributes to the Head Milliners' Taste and Skill.

William Foreman & Co. are showing a very complete line of goods, supplemented by the most exquisite novelties of the season. Polka dots, in materials running from small dots to those as large as quarters, form the feature of the trade at present. For Outing hats new shapes are shown, high and low, concave or cupped crowns, mushroom shapes are seen in quanties. Pompadour hats flare out instead of up and all hats are quite heavily finished. Everything conceivable in materials is exhibited:—Panne, mirrored plisse as well as plain velvet, satin and taffeta; birds and fancy feathers in variety, also breasts. Ostrich plumes are being largely presented by decrees of fashion. Ornaments are in great prominence this season, embracing everything in in steel, rhinestone and jet and the swell idea in the ornament line is to be seen. Flitter and jet novelties of all kinds are on view, some with silver and gold mountings.

In colors, grey, castor, hunter's green, plum, beaver, wine, bright cardinal, black and white hold supremacy.

Some choice exemplars of hats will now be laid before our readers. Picture hat of velvet, facing of white panne velvet laid in folds and gold lace, high corded crown; trimmings, three ostrich plumes fastened with handsome steel buckle.

Draped toque of wine velvet, fitted crown of folds run on cords, soft draped brim raised high on left side; trimming fancy bird, ornament catching centre of crown.

Handsome chinchilla fur toque with purple velvet trimmings of cream and suchess lace and steel buckles—a perfect gem.

There are only a few tributes to the excellent taste and skill of the talented head milliner, Miss Macdonald.

Small hats will have quite a run. It is early for golf suitings, but large hats will be favoed for the real swell winter styles and for the high class hats.

Turning to another department we find that the new fall dress goods generally worn are cheviots, freizes, camels' hair and homespun and one of the omst popular is automobile red.

The linen department is filled with a large stock of linens imported from Belfast—table linen, and table cloths, adorned with floral designs in fleurs de lis ivy and geranium leaves.

The firm is expecting a large consignment of kid gloves of the recent designs from the most noted manufacturers.

One most striking point about the general appearance of the Foreman store is its excellent lighting. This is secured in the daytime by the installation of the celebrated Luxfer prisms in the front window, so that Saturday forenoon when the interiors of many stores were dark owing to the overcast sky, Foreman's store was bright and cheerful.

RAISED UNION JACK.

British Commissioner Took Possession of Part of Porcupine District.

Vancouver, B. C., October 1.—A despatch received last evening from the British commissioner's camp, near Porcupine City, Alaska, says Archer Martin, justice of the supreme court of British Columbia, and head of the British commission, raised the British flag on Sept. 17. He took possession of that portion of the Porcupine District recently declared to be in British territory, at least for the time being by the international boundary commission. He then declared that the Americans who own all the claims in this district, should at once apply to have their titles confirmed by this commission.

How to Lay a Fire.

In laying a fire much paper and wood are often wasted. Most housemaids cram a piece of paper tightly down, place a heavy layer of wood on top of it and cover this thickly with lumps of coal. Then they are surprised because the fire will not burn.

The wood for the morning fire ought to be placed on the rack the night before. The bundles become thoroughly dry and ignite quicker. To light a fire the paper should be loosely arranged and the sticks of wood placed leaning against it. Everything burns quicker when placed in an upright position. Small pieces of coal from yesterday's fire should be placed lightly about the wood and space between allowed for the air to circulate.

A fire thus made will use less paper and wood and burn much quicker than if kindled by the method mostly practised. If ash-trays were more generally placed below the grade the labor of cleaning the latter would be considerably reduced and the dust caused by sweeping up the ashes would be reduced to a minimum.

HIS PRESCRIPTION.

The Dude Was Taking the Stuff for Fear That His Hair Would Fall Out.

A dudish specimen of humanity presented last week to the clerk of a certain drug store, on Olive street, a prescription, reading as follows:

"Sodii chloridum, one ounce.
"Aqua pura, four ounces."

The weights were written in the ordinary conventional style. The clerk looked smilingly at the prescription for salt and water and asked the customer what he wanted to use that prescription for.

"I am afraid that every hair will fall out, and my doctor gave me that as a prescription," was the answer. The clerk filled the prescription and charged 75 cents. He put on the bottle a red label, with the word, "poison," and told the dude to be careful, as the "sodii chloridum" was particularly dangerous.

Two days later Mister Dude brought back the bottle to be refilled. The clerk was absent, and the druggist himself waited on him. This gentleman found the prescription on file, but the price had been omitted. He knew that he had to deal with a fool. Therefore he fixed up the salted water and thought that 25 cents would be an honest compensation.

"How is that?" asked the customer. "Last time I paid 75 cents."

The druggist went back to his prescription inclosure to investigate, or rather to invent a satisfactory answer. In a few minutes he returned and explained that the duty on "sodii chloridum" (common salt), which was enormous, had been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States. As to "aqua pura" (pure water) the price had fallen 100 per cent. on account of the absence of yellow fever this year in Central and South America.

The dude went away satisfied with his hair restorer, but the clerk will be discharged if he fails to write the prices on the prescriptions in the future.—St. Louis Republic.

A Friendly Feeling.

"No, suh," said Col. Carter to the man with small, angry-looking spots on his forehead, "I shall not pehmit you to abuse the mosquito in my presence. I used to dislike them, but now I am one of the stanchest friends that a mosquito has."

"Still, they annoy me," replied the man with the spots.

"Of cohse. But they must live. Why complain because the mosquito stays up all night and has his collations, his songs and his aftuh-dinner speeches?"

"You seem to feel very kindly toward the brute."

"I have reason to. Let me tel you, suh, that a mosquito once saved the life of a friend of mine. My friend told me the story himself. We were speaking of large mosquitoes, and he said that he once found himself in a prohibition town, where the mosquitoes were larger than any he had ever seen. The party he was with had a bottle, but no corkscrew, and they would have perished with thirst if they had not taken one of these mosquitoes, extracted his bill, and used it to get the cork out. That mosquito was a martyr, suh, and ever since that time, suh, I have respected him and his relations."—Washington Star.

Just a Suggestion.

A man is, for some occult reason, liable to look a little shamefaced when he gets home after staying out all night at a political meeting. As he came up the path to the farm house his wife came to the door to meet him.

"Did ye have a purty excitin' time?" she asked.

"Tremendous," he answered.

"I 'spose ye've got everything settled."

"No. Ter tell the truth, everything's jes about ez much in doubt ez ever."

"Well, I s'pose it's yer own lookout. But I must say I kinder hate ter see ye wastin' so much good energy."

"How d'yc mean?"

"Pigs is getter be fed an' wood's got to be chopped, politics er no politics. I don't want ye to neglect yer country when they's anything that re'ly calls fur yer. But I hope ye will bear in mind that every time ye wave yer hat in the air just 'cause ye git a little excited, ye're usin' up muscle that might have done good service choppin' wood, an' that every time ye yell 'hooray' 'bout nothin' in particular, ye're usin' up good lung power that'd come in mighty handy ter drive the pigs with."—Detroit Free Press.

The Reason.

"Come, let us reason together," says the young woman to the young man, who has just made the rusty old cry of "The women are crowding us out."

"Well, I don't mind listening to your talk, but I can't see how that will increase my salary, or open more avenues for making money," he says respectfully, yet doggedly.

"I am not keeping you out of a position, nor keeping your salary down, at all. I am only trying to earn my own living, and I have as good a right to do that as you have to earn yours," she answered spiritedly.

"Just look at the thousands of girls who are now holding positions that were held by men, and at much better salaries. Doesn't that mean that thousands of men have been crowded out?"

"No, it doesn't. We never get a position unless there is a vacancy. We don't make vacancies, we only fill them."

"Well, if you weren't around, they would have to take us."

"But we can't help being around."

"Yes, that's so."—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

An Appetizing Sauce.

What is known as horseradish sauce—a delicious combination of egg and whipped cream with grated horseradish—is now one of the most popular of the appetizing sauces to be served with cold meat. Take the prepared horseradish, after it has been grated and allowed to become thoroughly saturated with vinegar. Squeeze every particle of the vinegar from three tablespoonfuls of the horse-radish, and mix thoroughly with the yolk of an egg and half a teaspoonful of salt. Add six tablespoonfuls of whipped cream and mix again. Serve with the meat, or on a separate dish bordered with parsley.

GOOD ST CHIL

In connection with the last visit to London of the late Shah of Persia, many stories are told which sound like satire upon the politics of the East. One of these tales, more amusing perhaps than true, is that he strongly advised the Prince of Wales to make away with a certain influential nobleman who had grown "too powerful to be quite safe."

Another story is vouched for on better evidence. The shah was taken to visit Newgate Prison, and after a somewhat extended examination, he suddenly requested to see an execution. With the utmost politeness, the warden of the prison explained that unhappily no one was under sentence just at that time; but the shah swept away the objections with a wave of his hand.

"Take one of my suite," he said. "Any one will do."

Greatly to his disappointment, the officials declined to comply with his request.

Statesman, legislator, administrator, orator, scientist and philosopher, the late Duke of Argyle was a bright ornament of the noble sphere in which he was born, says the Youth's Companion.

Like many another man of rank, he found his exalted position a lonely one, and his isolation has been neatly described by an innkeeper on the duke's estate.

"His grace," remarked the Scotchman, "is in a verra deeficult poseetion whatever. His pride of intellect will no' let him associate wi' men of his ain birth, and his pride of birth will no' let him associate wi' men of his ain intellect."

The recent visit of Queen Victoria to Ireland, brough out not a little wit; the example which follows bears the tang of its own soil:

The queen's farewell letter to the Irish people was dated from the Vice-Regal Lodge, Dublin. Said a prominent Irish Nationalist Member of Parliament:

"It was the Regal Lodge for the time being; and indeed, for many a day she has knocked the vice out of it."

Sickles' Retort to Ingersoll.

After one of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll's characteristic lectures in New York he met Gen. Daniel G. Sickles, who had been in the audience, and asked him:

"What did you think of my lecture, General?"

"Do you see that cripple across the street?" asked Sickles.

"Yes."

"What would you think of me if I should go over now and kick the crutches from under him?"

"I'd feel like kicking you," answered Ingersoll.

"I feel in almost the same humor toward you. You have kicked the crutches of my religion from under me," said the General.—Kansas City Star.

Just Too Late.

Editor of the Kansas Coyote (meeting Mayor on the street)—I just wrote a two-column article on "The Permanent Character of the Growth of Razzle Dazzle City" for the Coyote, which I think will help the place with Eastern capitalists.

Mayor Skate—Jag, I wish your piece had went in last week. The wind has just blowed the roof off'n the post-office, and there go the boys from Shacktown snaking our court house away with four team of mules!—Texas Siftings.

He Had a Grudge.

"Did you know that Binks had committed suicide?"

"No. When did he do it?"

"Last night at Dusenbury's Hotel."

"Well, that just shows the extremes to which a determined and revengeful man may go. He had a quarrel with Dusenbury night before last, and I'll bet he just did this to get even. He always was a mighty small, mean man in some ways."—Chicago Post.

A Means of Identification.

"Speakin' of twins," said the old man Chumpkins, "there was two boys raised in our neighborhood that looked just alike till their dyin' day. Lem didn't have any teeth and his brother Dave did, but they looked precisely alike all the same. The only way you could tell 'em apart was to put your finger in Lem's mouth, and if he bit yer 'twas Dave."—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Inventions Worth Millions.

"Here are a few cases where inventors have been struck by lightning; it is either money or glory for the successful inventor. Never both. Who knows what his name was that invented the can opener? His family only, and yet no household is without a can opener. He made about a million dollars out of it. (Estimated. Maybe he didn't make so much). Who was it that invented the return ball? While the patent lasted he drew about $50,000 a year from it, and that is as good as being president of these United States—better, for he didn't have to look out for fourth-class postmasterships or worry about a renomination. Why children should want a return ball is a deep, unfathomable mystery, but they do. The rubber string fastened to the ball is forever breaking, and the child doesn't live that can tie it so that it will stay tied, but they will not consent to live without it. The 'Dancing Jim Crow' toy paid its famous author $75,000 a year before it got to be an old story. 'Pharaoh's Serpents' made $60,000 a year during its brief career, and 'John Gilpin' netted something like half a million for its deviser. Most people do not even know what these toys are, let alone the inventors' names."—Ainslee's Magazine.

When wit is kind as well as playful, when information knows how to be silent, as well as how to speak, when good will is shown to those who are absent as well as to those who are present, we may know that we are in good society.—Ladies' House Journal.

What Makes Beauty?

Beauty is made or marred by the blood. When the blood is impure, the cheeks grow sallow, the eyes dull, the hair loses its luster. When the blood flows through the veins in a pure, rich current, the eyes sparkle, the skin is clear, the complexion beautiful. Women who use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, find that it is a genuine beautifier. By purifying and enriching the blood it puts a bloom on the cheek and a brightness in the eye, which tell the story of perfect health.

"Having been left weak from fever last October, I was under the doctor's care here," writes Mrs. Alice E. Casebier, of Crawford, Dawes Co., Neb. "I took medicine, but did not seem to gain very much. I was tired all the time, had no appetite, had wandering pains all over me more or less, and was very nervous, as I had been sick all the summer. I was all run-down and didn't know what ailed me. I got advice from Dr. Pierce, telling me my symptoms better than I could describe them myself, and also telling me that I would have to take care of myself, and how to take the medicines. I took four bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and five of 'Favorite Prescription,' and gained strength right along. I took one bottle of the 'Pleasant Pellets,' also. I know that these medicines will do all that they are recommended to do."

Use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for sluggish liver.

Joseph Sized Up.

The Sabbath-school teacher had been telling the class about Joseph, particularly with reference to his coat of many colors, and how his father rewarded him for being a good boy, for Joseph, she said, told his father whenever he caught any of his brothers in the act of doing wrong.

"Can any litle boy or girl tell me what Joseph was?" the teacher asked, hoping that some of them had caught the idea that he was Jacob's favorite.

"I know," one of the little girls said, holding up her hand.

"What was he?"

"A tattle-tale," was the reply.

There's Nothing New.

Almost all of man's inventions have been foreshadowed by nature. The hypodermic syringe with which the physician injects morphine into a patient's arm has its counterpart in the sting of a bee. The tunnel-borer is an adaptation of the work of the teredo, or ship-worm. The principle of the balloon is found in certain fishes. The papermaking industry is paralleled in the building of a wasp's nest. In the mechanism of a man's body there are joints and levers similar to those used in engines. The automatic oiling of surfaces which rub together in an engine is on the same plan as the lubrication of joints in our bodies. Man's nervous system resembles the telegraph in its mode of working.

The ball-bearings of a bicycle or automobile are not so very dissimilar to the ball-joints of human hips and shoulders.

The principle of the lever was foreshadowed in the long bones of the human body.

The Cat Resisted Deep-Water Baptism.

"A little boy I knew of in the West," writes Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady, in the Ladies' Home Journal, "belonged to a family who had trained him to believe in the deep-water form of baptism, and was experimenting with the household cat and a bucket of water. The animal evidently did not believe in immersion, for she resisted, bit and scratched and used bad language—in the cat tongue, of course. Finally, the little boy, with his hands covered with scratches and with tears in his eyes, gave up the effort to effect the regeneration of the cat. 'Dog-gone you!' he cried—notice the choice of epithets in the use for the word dog—'go and be an Episcopal cat if you want to!'"

Rube Waddell lost yesterday's game for Pittsburg at Cincinnati by a wild pitch at the wind-up. It was the last half of the last innings. The score stood 3 to 2 in favor of Pittsburg. Two men were out for Cincinnati and two on bases. Then Rube pitched a wild ball and the two men scored.

COAL MAY NOT GO UP.

J. L. Scott stated this morning that he didn't think the price of coal would advance any more here, but of course it would all depend on the strike. As far as he was concerned he thought that he would have to quit taking orders unless there was a change soon, as he was nearly all sold out.

MUST OWN THE CUP.

Everything in football is booming these days and Chatham wants the Walker cup. Captain Wilson says that he thinks the Maple City would make a splendid abiding place for the cup and in his opinion it will have to stay here. There is good material for a strong team and the boys are working hard. The genial captain requests that as many as possible attend the practices every evening at 5 o'clock, as it is only by steady and consistent hard work that the team can get in shape to play winning ball. Mr. Wilson says that he is willing to quit football as soon as ever Chatham owns the Walker cup, but own it the Maple City must.

TO THE K.O.T.M.

Rev. Dr. Hannon Preached the Brotherhood's Annual Sermon—A Large Turnout.

The Knights of The Maccabees attended divine worship at the Park St. Methodist church last night. Some 20 brother Knights with their commander, Leslie Rose, attended from Blenheim, and the Dresden lodge was also well represented. The parade to church marched to excellent music by the Excelsior Band and Ald. G. W. Sulman marshalled the gathering. Dr. Hannon preached an excellent sermon from the text, "A new commandment I give unto you that ye love one another." The whole discourse was directed particularly to brotherly love. This was no good unless active because if brotherly love wasn't combined with action, it was no use to those who needed it. In the second place it should be compassionate, for when a brother was seen to fall, the Christian should rush to his assistance. Lastly, it should be forgiving, because if one were angry, he wouldn't help the fallen and this quality of forgiving should be very active for those who needed help might be needing of forgiveness very often.

The music by the choir, under the leadership of Miss Idle, added greatly to the impressiveness of the service.

The choir sang as an anthem, "I Will Praise Thee," from Farmer's mass in b flat. During the offertory they also sang "How Long Wilt Thou," Miss Callie Idle taking the solo work.

On their return to the lodge rooms the K. O. T. M. passed resolutions of thanks to Dr. Hannon, pastor of the Park street Methodist church, and to the choir for kindness and courtesy.

SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

A Progressive Movement Inaugurated by West Kent and Chatham District Teachers' Association.

The Teachers' Association for this district, met in McKeough school last Saturday, and inaugurated school libraries, beyond a doubt. To Miss Melsaac, the progressive teacher of S.S. No. 3, Union, Raleigh, is due the credit of being the pioneer in this subject, she having last fall established a library in her school by her own unaided efforts. The question came up again at a meeting of the Teachers' Association at Dresden last May, when the executive of the Association were instructed to collect information and formulate plans, to be laid before the teachers at a subsequent meeting in September.

This meeting was held in McKeough school on Saturday. On account of the bad weather, a majority of the country teachers were unable to be present; but those present were strongly in favor of the project. A brief session was held in the morning at which President J. C. Stewart outlined the work already accomplished by the executive; after which the convention adjourned till the afternoon, to enable some teachers who were still expected to be present and take part.

In the afternoon the agent of The Publishers' Syndicate, Toronto, was on the ground, with samples. Several other firms had also supplied samples and catalogues. After an examination of these, the convention was called to order by the President, who, in a brief address, pointed out the value of school libraries to the children, and the steps which the executive proposed to take. They desired the various teachers to pledge themselves to raise sufficient for the establishment of small libraries at an early date, in order to initiate the movement; the understanding being that the teacher had full control over the choice of books. Money could be raised by means of concerts, subscriptions, by grants of small amounts from the various councils, and in other ways; and it was expected that, once established, the libraries would receive government aid.

The response to Mr. Stewart's appeal was most gratifying. Messrs. Williams, Wells, Brackin, Hutton, J. C. Stewart, Millar, G. Stewart, C. A. Goodall, and Misses McIsaac, Wilson and Abraham, all pledging themselves to raise at least the minimum amount.

On motion, the Association Executive was empowered to purchase books and conduct all negotiations. The convention then adjourned.

The executive will be on hand at the Central school for several successive Saturday afternoons, at two o'clock, with samples and catalogues, to enable teachers to make their choice of books. Those teachers who cannot come, can obtain catalogues from the secretary, Inspector Park. It is understood that the Secretary, on his recent visits of inspection, has found the teachers of his district actively and almost unanimously in favor of the project; so that libraries will undoubtedly be everywhere established at an early date. As usual, Kent leads.

PREACH FOR RESULTS

That is What Rev. Mr. Tolmie Says Ministers Ought to do.

The Rev. James C. Tolmie, of Windsor, preached splendid sermons at both services in St. Andrew's Church yesterday, the occasion being the anniversary of the establishment of this church in Chatham. In the evening the church was crowded to the doors. The Rev. Mr. Tolmie took as his subject, "Say not ye, there are yet four months and then cometh the harvest. Behold I say unto you, lift up your eyes and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest."

He spoke at some length on the sowing of the Master's word and how few worked to advantage. Too many ministers preached in a listless manner and as if they didn't put sufficient faith in what they said. They didn't follow the example of Jesus who "spoke as one having authority not as a scribe." This authority was too often lacking in the discourses of many ministers. Mr. Tolmie instanced the case of one preacher who confessed that at first he preached expecting no results, and he got none, but he awoke and preached for results and was rewarded. After dwelling on the harrowing necessary after the sowing Mr. Tolmie made some stirring references to the harvest, and instanced the different results reaped from different sowings. He concluded with an earnest exhortation for all Christians to make such a sowing every day as would furnish a bountiful harvest.

The music provided by the choir, under the leadership of Mr. Marshall, was of a high order at both services. Clair Monteith sang the splendid solo, "Blessed." The anthem, "The Lord is my Shepherd," was rendered by the choir in excellent style, W. J. Wilson taking the solo parts. The quartette, "Lead Kindly Light," was also excellently rendered, Miss Belle Stewart taking the solo parts.

"I want to say for the benefit of some poor dyspeptic that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will give comfort and a cure every time Five dollars a box would not stop my purchasing them should I ever suffer again as I did for a week before using them.

The one 50 cent box I bought at my druggist's did the work and my digestion is all right again.

Many of my neighbors have also tried these tablets and found them to be just as represented and Mr. Ellms also wants me to use his name in endorsing Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Signed.

A. ELLMS and
CHAS. F. BUZRELL. Asst. Postmaster.
South Sudbury, Mass.

Mrs. Jas. Barton, of Toronto, Canada, writes:—For eight months I suffered from what I supposed was bladder and kidney trouble, and took medicine from three different doctors, without any sign of cure. I felt so ill at last I was hardly able to do my work.

I thought I would try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and see if they would make me feel any better, never really thinking I had dyspepsia but after only three or four tablets had been taken all the acid trouble disappeared and then I discovered I had had acid dyspepsia, while the doctor had been treating me for kidney and bladder trouble and one of them treated me for rheumatism.

My digestion is fine, my complexion clear and I am able to do my work and low spirits are unknown to me.

I am so thankful for finding a cure so good and so pleasant to take as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they contain only the simple natural digestives, and taken after meals prevent acidity and caused prompt digestion and assimilation of food.

Physicians everywhere endorse them because they are as safe for the child as the adult; they are invaluable for sour stomach, nervous dyspepsia, heartburn, gas on stomach and bowels and every form of stomach derangement.

BELIEVED IN SIGNS.

The Gripman Must Have Been Raised in the Hoodoo Country of Louisiana.

As the conductor came out with his hand full of nickels the man on the platform leaned over and whispered:

"Say, what is the matter with your gripman?"

The conductor smiled.

"Only superstitious," he responded.

"Superstitious? In what way?"

"Every way. I suppose you notice that he glances over his shoulder at intervals?"

"Yes, that is what attracted my attention."

"Well, you will also notice that there are thirteen passengers. Until some one gets on or off he will be uneasy."

"Then I suppose you notice that boy in the corner with the bundle of feathers?"

"Yes."

"Well, they are peacock feathers and are sure omens of ill-luck. If we should jump the track or telescope another car the gripman would blame it all on the thirteen passengers and the peacock feathers."

Suddenly the car gave a terrific jerk.

"What is the trouble now?" said the man on the platform, holding on for dear life.

"Black cat crossing the street," responded the conductor. "Our gripman is hustling to pass first. If the black cat should cross or get run over it would mean a day of bad luck for the gripman."

"Why, he must have been raised in the hoodoo country of Louisiana."

"Yes, or else been reading witch books and dream literature."

Just then the car came to a full stop and the gripman jumped off.

"What is he stopping for?"

"Horseshoe."

"But it is a wonder he is not reported for losing time."

"He is too slick. If he was ever brought up in the office for losing time he would swear that the horseshoe was blocking the car by being in the slot."

Shave, Sir?

A bald headed man, with four days' growth of beard on his chin, went into a barber's shop and sat down in one of the operating chairs. To him presently went the knight of the razor, who remarked, interrogatively, "Shave sir?"

"No," growled the man in the chair. "I want to be measured for a suit of clothes."

This statement seemed to surprise the barber, but he managed to say, "This isn't a tailor shop, sir."

"Isn't it?"

"No, sir."

"What is it?"

"It's a barber shop."

"What sort of work do you do in this shop?"

"Shave men and cut their hair, sir.'

"Do you think a man with no hair on his head would come in here to have his hair cut?"

"No, sir."

"Do I look like a lunatic?"

This was replied to by a silent shake of the head, but the barber doubtless thought he was acting like one.

"Then, persuming me to be a sane man, but bald headed, what would you naturally suppose I came here for?"

"For a shave."

"Then, my dear sir, why did you ask me if I wanted a shave, when I took a seat in your chair? Why didn't you go to work at once? If some of you barbers would cultivate a habit of inferring, from easily ascertained data, instead of developing such wonderful conversational and catechetical powers, it would be of material aid in advancing you in your chosen vocation and of expanding your profits. Do you comprehend?"

"Yes, sir," replied the man, as he began to lather the customer's face in a dazed sort of way, and he never even asked him if he wanted oil on his hair when the operation was performed.—Tit-Bits.

THE AUSTIN STORE

Has One of the Finest Displays of Millinery

Ever Seen in Chatham—Other Departments Equally Well Stocked.

The autumn season begins in September and it is one of the most delightful seasons of the year. The bright shades of the autumn woodlands, fields and orchards all combine in making pretty pictures that fade, however. Man in his power and ability rivals nature in her works of art and color and a visit to the millinery openings that always happen at this time will easily convince, the ladies at least, that to man belongs the superiority. The millinery show rooms are like a piece of fairyland stolen bodily and set in the centre of the city. When in one of these rooms one seems to have reached some enchanted spots the male visitor looks cautiously around expecting to see some fairy beaming on him from behind the green foliage or from the midst of a richly trimmed hat and perhaps he does see a fairy. No place is this dream of fairyland more apparent than in the millinery department of the great Austin store over which enchanted domain Miss Carrie Mountjoy reigns with grace and dignity. Her kind smile and pleasant manner adds a charm to the place that all who enter appreciate.

Brightly decorated in black and gold the millinery show rooms of the Austin store present a truely beautiful appearance. A large arch of white and gold fashioned of intricate net work and bearing in large letters the hospitable word, "Welcome," ornaments the entrance. Within all is bright and gay with the dashing colors that will be worn this season. The hats of many hues from the somber black of the elder ladies to the gaudy head-covering of the young miss, form pleasing contrasts and charms the eye. The whole interior decorations and merchandise are artistically arranged with a completeness of detail that leaves a feeling that nothing has been left undone and everything used was necessary to make the perfect whole.

The hats were of many and varied shapes and the colors were numerous and pretty.

The toques vary in trimming and style.

A very pretty hat is the black velvet toque with trimmings of pink, pigeon's wings and velvet bows at one side.

Another very becoming hat is the shirred castor velvet toque with sunken crown and brim encircled with chenille and spangled insertion. Two spangled wings caught with a large rhinestone ornament and knot of yellow velvet complete the trimmings.

A great favorite with many of the ladies this season is the "Description" hat. This is a wide rimmed hat of cream colored taffeta edged and trimmed with black velvet. Three rich white plumes droop over the left side and are held with the velvet by a fancy buckle. The brim is faced with black velvet.

A beautiful creation of the milliner's art is a virot model of pale blue felt. The turned up brim is trimmed with a bow of black velvet and fancy feathers.

An exceedingly attractive hat is the brown mink toque with an artistically draped velvet crown and a large rosette of peach colored ribbon. It is finished with a large steel buckle.

The picture hat is made on a form of pastel blue velvet, ornamented with rows of silk stitchings. Black tulle drapes the brim and is held over the hair by a cut steel buckle. The tulle also trims the crown, together with a handsome black plume. Another plume falls over the hair on the left side.

The Tafetta, fashioned on a walking shape, is an elegant yet simple piece of workmanship. It is made of black shirred tafetta, trimmed with three ostrich pom-poms and an osprey.

The Louis XVI. is of wood colored velvet finely stitched with silk of the same shade. Torsade of wood colored velvet finishing with a bow of wide gold braid.

The Mushroom has a crown made of ruffles of castor taffeta alternating with velvet folds of a darker shade. The brim is draped with the same velvet and a large castor toque plume is fastened with a rhinestone ornament.

IN OTHER DEPARTMENTS.

Nelson Emery presides over the carpet and ladies' cloak department, which adjoins the millinery show rooms. He has all the finest carpets, including Wiltons, Brussels, tapestries, Balmorals, etc. The very best that can be secured in the European markets. The line of wool carpets have a wide range in price and are the most durable and prettiest that can be secured. A special feature is made of the three-ply, all-wool carpets.

The ladies' jackets this year are shorter than last year. The cloths most fancied are beaver, kersey and curly cloths. Black, navy blue and fawn are the colors that will be most worn. This season the Austin Store has paid special attention to the wants of the children and misses. They have a wide range of natty little garments for children. The pretty short reefers with fancy braid trimming are a truly artistic and neat article of wearing apparel. The fancy golf capes in fancy tartans and plain braided effects are winning popularity. The fur department contains a very extensive range of ladies' fur coats and capes. Astrachan and electric seal furs are the two mostly in demand. A very pretty garment is the electric seal jacket with revieres and collar of Alaska seal. The stock of caperines is especially complete. These are shown chiefly in electric seals, Astrachans and Alaska sables. Upon entering Austin & Co.'s immense clothing department one is greatly impressed with the immense stock carried. The special display of children's novelty middy suits comprising all the new styles from the fashion centres of the world. One of the leading features in children's vestie suits this winter is shown without the sailor collar in nobby checks, plain serges and over-plaids. The very fashionable able thing for little chaps this year is the reefer jacket. Austin & Co. are showing all the leading styles imported from Germany and the European markets in plain beavers, naps, blues, blacks and fawns.

Such an array of children's clothes, was never seen in Chatham before. In the men's department, Austin & Co., are showing all the leading patterns in neat checks, stripes, hair stripes, nobby over-plaids, plain blue and black serges. There are over 500 suits to choose from and from the smallest to the largest man can be fitted.

The three button double breast and single breast are the latest in suits. In men's suits Austin & Co. call particular attention to the linings, the wide facings, and the all piped edges making perfect tailor-made garments in every respect. The overcoat department bristles with all the beauties of the 20th century cuts—the handsomest garments that have ever been shown. Some of the leading cloths and colors are: Whip cords in light colors; genteel gray cheviots; black and blue beavers. Austin & Co's special tailor made suits, made from pure beavers, all cloths and trimmings selected by themselves, they guarantee to be the best value in the market. Everything required in the clothing line can be secured at Austin & Co.'s from the medium price to the highest priced goods that are made. In hats and caps, are shown all the leading styles in American and English blocks, and buyers at the Austin Store save easily from 25 to 50 cents on the price of their hats.

In the men's furnishing department, an immense range of everything that men wear is carried. This store buys in large quantities entitling them to the lowest possible quotations. Particular attention is called to men's underwear, which is kept in large quantities and bought direct from the makers so that they can sell it at prices which ordinary smaller dealers have to pay for it. Throughout the Austin Store, with its large staff of efficient and obliging clerks, everything in dry goods may be found—superior in quality and variety of style, and none know this better than the busy shoppers of this city and surrounding country.

THE RIGHT KIND.

I like to see a girl
Who knows enough to furl
All her furbelows and get a man a dinner:
Who can sing a bit and play,
Who can sew, darn, knit, crochet,
Well, a girl, in fact, who's got some gristle in her.

A girl who loves her dad
And makes some fellow glad
And who doesn't sneer at any man who labors,
Who's angel of the house,
Yet, if she saw a mouse,
Would jump upon a chair and call the neighbors.

I like to see a youth,
Who'd rather tell the truth,
Than to resort to fairy tales or fabrications;
Who can look you in the eye,
Who, in short, would rather die,
Than disappoint his parents' expectations.

Who, never fond of fight,
Can use his left or right,
And pay a hundred cents on every dollar;
To some one sweetheart true,
He loves his mother, too,
And he doesn't wear a bandbox for a collar.

I like to see a wife,
Who wouldn't for her life,
Tell the neighbors all her husband's little troubles;
Oh, a woman full of hope,
Who could throw a man a rope,
If she saw him in a sea of business bubbles;

A woman who has tact,
Good sense, and—well, in fact,
Almost any kind that isn't quite a noodle,
And who'd rather make a bib
For baby in his crib
Than embroider silken doilies for a poodle.

I like to see a man
Who, if he has a plan
For removing ev'ry evil from creation,
Now and then will give a cent
To his wife, but not repent,
And so ask for every mill an explanation!

Who, if he has to roam,
Will save a smile for home,
And will never tell the sins of other people,
Who isn't a beginner,
Who himself has been a sinner
And who doesn't measure God with a steeple.

—Boston Globe.

JOE BARTLETT.

"She'll be hard to tether, Kitty will. It'll be like lassooing a butterfly, an' I 'low as the man as can do it ain't appeared in camp yit," said Joe Bartlett, meditatively. "As fer me, I ain't got the show of a chance. How in thunder can I expect a dainty little girl like Kitty to care for a rough, ignorant fellow like me?"

He took the pipe from his mouth, and, knocking the ashes from it, filled it carefully; but it was evident that his mind was not upon his task.

"Can't even speak grammar as I'd ort to," he muttered with disgust. "But they ain't nothing I wouldn't do fer Kitty—Lord love her—even to studying a grammar book.

Joe was modest. He had no self-esteem whatever, and undervalued his merits. That so remarkable a creature as Kitty should ever love him was to be considered only in the light of an impossibility. If his love became hopeful he revived himself and blushed at his temerity.

Yet Joe was foreman of the new mine at Clear Creek camp and the most important man in the place.

"No, the man ain't arrived yit," continued Joe, "an' when he does"—he turned a little pale—"when he does God help Joe Bartlett!"

That evening, as was his habit, Joe was at Amos Carter's cabin. There were two reasons why he liked to spend an evening with Carter—he enjoyed swapping yarns with him over their pipes; and Kitty happened to be Carter's daughter. Kitty never suspected his love. Joe knew that she did not return it, and he was not a man to wear his heart on his sleeve. If anyone had asked her about her opinion of Joe, she would have confessed frankly that she was almost as fond of him as of her father.

In the midst of a story of the plains which he was telling for the twentieth time there was a loud rap on the door. Carter went to open it. A stranger stood on the threshold, a tall, slender, well-made young fellow, wearing the garb of the city-bred man.

"Is this Mr. Carter's place?" he asked.

"That's my name, young feller. Will you come in?"

"I was told," said the new comer, as he complied with the invitation, "that I should find Mr. Bartlett here."

Joe came forward and offered his toil-hardened hand to the stranger.

"You are Mr. Ames, the superintendent's son, I guess. He wrote me you were coming up for a spell, but I didn't 'low we'd see you till the next stage. I am glad to see you, sir," he said heartily.

A certain indifference, or inference which seemed habitual vanished from the young man's face and manner. He held out his hand frankly.

"Thank you. I have come to rusticate. I have a bad reputation at home. It arises from a slight difference between the governor and myself. I am conscientiously opposed to work." He squared his shoulders and laughed. "I am supposed to take father's place here, but I have perfect confidence in you, Bartlett, and I will take it as a favor if you will forget to remind me of the responsibilities of the situation." Again his boyish laugh rang out and the others laughed in sympathy.

He was unmistakably a good deal of a dandy. His linen was as immaculate as it would have been in the city, and the hand from which a diamond flashed was as white and shapely as a woman's.

"We must be good friends, Bartlett," he continued, for I want you to let me down easy on the labor problem. Dad wants to make life a treadmill for me."

A broad smile from his hearers greeted this statement.

"I hope you know what work is, young fellow," his smile ending in an audible chuckle.

Clay Ames never knew what reply he made. His eyes for the first time had met Kitty's and he forgot everything else but the tall slip of a girl with the wild-rose face.

In less than a week everybody in camp knew that the superintendent's son was in love with Kitty Carter. Half the men in the camp were his rivals, but they all liked the young boss, who had made himself one of them from the first night of his arrival. Kitty's ways were maddening. If her willful heart favored anyone, even her handsome city lover, she discreetly kept the knowledge to herself.

Joe Barlettt had just left the office and was on his way to the mine. Looking up he saw Kitty's flying figure speeding toward him. He knew at once something was wrong. She was breathless, her lips were blanched and her eyes wild with terror.

"Kitty, what is it? Anything wrong at the mines?" he asked, anxiously.

She caught his arm to steady herself.

"There's been a slide," she gasped, "and Clay——"

A sob choked her voice, and the agony in her face went to Joe's heart like a knife stab. His face whitened.

"Is Clay anything to you, Kitty?" he asked, huskily.

"Everything; all the world to me," moaned Kitty. "My heart will 'break if he dies."

Joe unclasped her trembling fingers from his arms.

"Please heaven, we won't let him die, dear," he said gently, and a moment later he was gone.

How the men worked to reach the deathtrap where six of their comrades were entombed until exhausted, they were compelled to fall back, while others filled their places; how one man, tireless and determined, kept always at the head, never resting for a moment. To tell all this would make a story in itself.

Joe Bartlett inspired everybody and cheered and encouraged the despairing crowd that gathered about the entrance to the mine; and when, after hours of hard work, the last dividing wall of earth was penetrated, and an opening made large enough for a man to enter, it was Joe Bartlett, who, with no thought of his own danger, climbed through into the chamber beyond, and one by one lifted the half-dead men to those waiting on the outside to receive them.

Young Ames had been farthest back and was the last to be rescued. He was very weak, but he waved his hand feebly to the cheering crowd as Joe lifted him back to life and safety.

Through the opening in the wall of earth the excited, shouting crowd had a glimpse of a grimy radiant face—Joe had caught sight of Kitty when she first saw Clay Ames—then there was a sickening sound as of muffled thunder, a horrible underground groaning, followed by a crash; a second slide had occurred and Joe Bartlett was buried beneath it.

For a second or two the crowd was awed into silence by the awfulness of the tragedy, and then a cry of horror burst from a hundred throats. Women screamed and men grew white and covered up their eyes as if thus they might shut out the memory of the brave face that but a moment before had smiled at them from its grave.

It was hopeless from the first.

Yet never did men work more heroically than the miners of Clear Creek camp for the next twelve hours to reach their comrade. Rough men, most of them were, but they cried like babies when at last Joe's crushed body was lifted from under the debris and the light of day fell upon his unconscious face.

They carried him to his own cabin and laid him upon the bed. The bravest man in Cleer Creek camp had given his life for his comrades and the entire camp was in mourning.

* * * * * * *

Moonlight flooded the cabin where Joe lay. The smile which had illuminated his face in the last moment of his life still rested upon it. Two people—a man and a girl—stood beside him. The young man's arm was about the girl's waist, her face hidden upon his breast.

"He was so good," she said. He died for your sake, and mine."

"Yes, dear," said Ames, gently. "He was the best and bravest man I have ever known." His arm tightened about her slender waist. "I'm glad," he said huskily, "that he did not have a sweetheart."

"It would have killed her," whispered Kitty laying her tear-wet cheek against her lover's face. "But Joe did not care for women—I am sure he never loved anyone."

And they never knew; for eternal silence had kissed the dead man's lips.—St. Louis Star.

Caused the Break-up of the Conundrum Club.

As already stated, I am partial to conundrums, and am firm in the belief that there are about thirteen million excessively stupid people, who fail to appreciate a joke or anything that is good, who would have become more entertaining members of society if, in their younger days, they had digested conundrums. But, as I was going to say, I am no longer the president of the Conundrum Club, for the reason that the organization broke up in a row, as follows:

You see, Smith, who at heart is a capital fellow, came into the rooms one evening and says: "I've got a good one."

"What is it?" we all queried.

"When is an apple pie?" He stopped, and every one looked at him expectantly, but said nothing.

"Well?" finally queried a man across the room, "go on. What did you stop there for?"

"Go on? Go on with what?" he asked.

"Why, go on with your conundrum. When is an apple pie what?"

"That's what I said," replied Smith.

"Yes, we know; but what is the conundrum?"

"When is an apple pie?"

"There's no sense in that," said several; "give us the rest."

"There isn't any rest," said Smith. "When is an apple pie?"

When is an apple pie what? you gump!" yelled several from all parts of the room.

'Who said 'apple pie what?' "

"You did."

"I didn't say anything about apple pie."

"You did."

"I didn't; you——"

But his remarks were never concluded, as the whole assembly undertook to eject Smith, who was somewhat of an athlete, and even after the police had restored order, it took several hours to explain that an apple was pie when sweetened and flavored and enclosed in crust, but there were too many sore heads to hold the club together after that fateful conundrum.

A Transaction in Silver.

A merchant said: "A man came into my store to buy a dozen solid silver spoons. When he came to pay for them he picked out from a capacious pocket a bag, and said: 'I am going to pay you in silver.' He proceeded to count out silver dollars, and he counted out enough to pay for his purchase. He remarked: 'I have given you more silver than you have given me.' Said the merchant: 'I am not sure about that. Let's see; here is a pair of scales.' So we weighed the silver, and lo! the extra bullion in the spoons weighed so much more than the bullion in the dollars that the market valuation of the silver spoons was over the market value of the silver in the silver dollars just $2.40. And all the labor on the spoons was thus counted for nothing, and, besides, I received less silver than I gave."—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Shoes Named for the New Empress.

Because the new Empress of Russia has pretty feet and is fond of dancing the faithful French bootmakers have named in her honor a series of new Russian slippers meriting admiration. The Tsaritsa is a rich black satin shoe on which a piece of fine white lace is applied, the pattern suiting the front of the slipper and for other and particularly evening gowns tinted satins are used under lace. The Feoderovna is of the new tan glace kid, soft and pliable, and has bars of patent leather all round with a gilt or bronze slide. A white satin slipper banded with gold and twinkling like Cinderella's own is called the Alix and the Alexander is made of patent leather perforated to prevent any injury to the feet and decorated with a bow of alternate stripes of patent leather twisted with satin ribbons of various colors.

The Time Is Close

October 9th, 10th and 11th are the red letter days for the County of Kent this year.

Last year everybody said the Fair was a good Fair—this year is going to be a great deal better.

Every resident in the County is anxious or ought to be anxious to see the County prosperous. A good County Fair is the best sign of a prosperous County.

Let everybody then push it along and show the people what a really good Fair Kent can have.

It's Your Nerves.

It's the Condition of Your Nerves That Either Makes Your Life a Round of Pleasure or a Useless Burden.

To many women life is one round of sickness, weakness and ill health. To attempt even the lightest household duties fatigues them. Many of the symptoms accompanying this state of decline are: a feeling of tiredness waking, faintness, dizziness, sinking feeling, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, loss of appetite, cold hands and feet, headache, dark circles under the eyes, pain in the back and side and all other accompaniments of a run down and weakene dconstitution.

All these symptoms and conditions are simply the result of a poor quality and deficient circulation of the blood, with a wasting away of the nerve forces.

CAPT. GREGG AND HIS DOG

Doubt Cast Upon One of the Romantic Tales of the Revolutionary War.

One of the most romantic and oft-repeated tales of the Revolution is that of Captain Gregg, who was scalped by the Indians, and whose rescue from a lingering death was attributed to the thoughtfulness of a faithful dog. Gregg was an officer under the command of the brave and capable Colonel Ganse-voort, who successfully defended Fort Stanwix against St. Leger's advance in 1777. Contrary to orders, Captain Gregg, accompanied by a corporal, left the fort in search of game, was surprised by the Indians, shot and scalped, his companion being instantly killed. Gregg, despite his wounds, was found alive and carried into the fort. He recovered and again served his country with honor and credit. Such is a brief narration of the event, void of any sentimental or romantic incidents.

Timothy Dwight, author of "Travels in New England and New York, 1821," seems to have fastened upon this incident the episode of the faithful dog, who has ever since complacently trotted alongside of the story. Dwight says, after describing the attack by the Indians and the wounding of Gregg:

"A small dog which belonged to him and had accompanied him in his hunting, but to which he had hitherto been inattentive, now came up to him in apparent agony, and leaping around him in a variety of involuntary motions, yelped, whined and cried in an unusual manner, to the no small molestation of his master. Gregg was not in a situation to bear the disturbance even of affection. He tried in every way which he could think of to force the dog from him, but he tried in vain. At length, wearied by his cries and agitations, and not knowing how to put an end to them, he addressed the animal as if he had been a rational being. 'If you wish so much to help me, go and call some one to my relief.' At these words the creature instantly left him and ran through the forest at full speed to the great comfort of his master, who now hoped to die quietly.

"The dog made his way directly to three men belonging to the garrison, who were fishing at the distance of a mile from the scene of the tragedy; as soon as he came up to them he began to cry in the same afflicting manner, and advancing near them, turned slowly back toward the point where his master lay, keeping his eye continually on the men; all this he repeated several times. At length one of the men observed to his companions that there was something very extraordinary in the actions of the dog, and that in his opinion they ought to find out the cause; his companions were of the same mind, and they immediately set out with the intentions to follow the animal whither he should lead them.

"After they had pursued him some distance, and found nothing, they became discouraged. The sun had set, and the forest was dangerous; they therefore determined to return. The moment the dog saw them wheel about, he began to cry with increased violence, and coming up to the men, took hold of the skirts of their coats with his teeth, and attempted to pull them toward the point to which he had before directed his course. When they stopped again, he leaned his back against the back part of their legs, as if endeavoring to push them onward to his master. Astonished at the conduct of the dog, they agreed, after a little deliberation, to follow him until he should stop. The animal directed them directly to his master. They found him still living, and after burying the corporal as well as they could, they carried Gregg to the fort. Here his wounds were dressed with the utmost care, and such assistance was rendered to him as proved the means of restoring him to health."

It may be observed here that the only thing that serves to save this dog's reputation from actual damnation is the fact that the three men who accompanied the animal were fishermen; even a dog should not be held responsible for their stories.

Colonel Gansevoort's military papers have been carefully preserved by his descendants, and in their possession is the original draft of his report of this occurrence to General Schuyler, under date of June 27, 1777, which is as follows:

"I am sorry to inform your honor that Captain Gregg and Corporal Madison of my regiment went out a-gunning yesterday morning, contrary to my orders. It seems they went out just after breakfast, and at about 10 o'clock Corporal Madison was killed and scalped. Captain Gregg was shot through his back, tomahawked and scalped, but is still living. He informs me that the misfortune happened about 10 o'clock in the morning. He looked at his watch after he was scalped. He saw but two Indians. He was about one mile and a half from the fort, and was not discovered until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. I immediately sent out a party and had him brought to the fort, just about 3 o'clock; also the corpse of Madison. Gregg is perfectly in his senses, and speaks strong and hearty, notwithstanding that his recovery is doubtful."

Colonel Gansevoort makes no mention of the dog, and is particular as to the time of the scalping, which we see is widely different from that given by Dwight. Neither in other correspondence of Colonel Gansevoort's in relation to this event is there the least mention of any connection of a dog with the finding of Captain Gregg.

Dwight's narrative is a fair sample of how fictitious details are interwoven to add imaginary strength to a story powerful enough in its naked and simple facts. Colonel Gansevoort, with the precision of a soldier and the instinct of a gentleman, lets the truth suffice.

Quicksands.

Nothing is too big or too small to escape the maw of our hungry globe. Quicksands are the traps she spreads for smaller fry. Probably the worst and most dangerous in the world are the "Shotts" of the Sahara. These are perhaps the dregs of some prehistoric sea. Now they are covered over with a thick crust of salt and sand. Whole caravans have walked unconsciously into these death traps, and been quickly swallowed up. Reclus, the great French authority, declares you can sound these quicksands to a depth of 300 feet without finding bottom.

THE MOTHER.

She Has Great Power for Good in Her Ever-Expanding Influence.

There is no class of women who know so well the delights of all the dear feminine prerogatives, the power of those exquisite qualities, grace, delicacy, and sweetness, and at the same time who feel more deeply the need of any and all means of enlightenment and advancement. There are no women better fitted to temper the present discussion; none who can better offer sympathy, yet counsel moderation, to those restless sisters whose demands so often grew out of bitter personal experience and too often rise to a discordant clamor. Of course, this view has been of mothers as a class. There are, alas! pitiful exceptions—women who do not admit the responsibilities of motherhood, and women who dare not demand the rights which motherhood gives them. Such women present problems which cannot be dealt with here. Certainly these remarks may apply to every mother who will exercise a certain just self-appreciation, who will devote a little time and attention to the consideration of this question, and her own duties and responsibilities in relation to it. Is it not possible for such women to show that womanliness does not mean weakness—that the very life of all lives the most womanly needs for its right living not goodness only, but wisdom, knowledge and freedom? On the other hand, ought they not to demonstrate that in this womanliness essentially, in the clinging to it and emphasizing it, they will gain a peculiar power which nothing else can give? It is surely a strength and freedom, not to be left behind in the march onward to new strength and new freedom. It is a quality which must be cultivated and emphasized in this "new era." It is an emotional superiority, a God-given essence, which he cannot afford to lose, in our new grasp upon the intellectual forces within us. If every intelligent mother in this land could bring herself to an accurate realization of the power for broad yet conservative advancement which lies merely in her position in the plan of society—what an immediate uplifting of womankind there would be! And beyond this, too, reaching away off into the future, is the influence she exerts upon her children, and through them upon an ever-widening circle. She has great power for good in this never-ending, ever-expanding influence, which must go out to the world from her, through her children, as well as in the strong and right expression of her individuality.—Popular Science Monthly.

Let the Boys Sleep.

Boyhood owes a debt of gratitude to the British Medical Journal, which, in one of its recent issues, explodes the fallacy with regard to early rising. Courageously turning its back on all the wisdom of the past, and in flagrant contradiction with all those writers of moral essays concerning greatness achieved by early rising, this leading medical authority takes the part of the sleepy youth against his wakeful parents. We learn now that it is natural and proper for elderly people to rise at 5 or 6 A. M., because their vascular system has become stiff; but that it is equally natural and proper for the healthy boy to keep his bed until 8. Henceforth boys must deny themselves such violent delights as rising with the lark, and their elders must cease encouraging them in so vicious a practice. The early worm may be all very well for the early-rising parent if his gastronomical tastes lie in that direction, but there are more palatable articles of food at the disposal of the boy who gets up later in the day which derive additional savor from the conviction that by lying abed he has done justice to his vascular system. It is a great thing to have a vascular system—especially for boys.

Why Not Home Made Ice.

If the courts fail, science may be depended upon to knock out the ice trust says a chemist in the Kansas City Star. "I venture the prediction that the average well to do family will be making its own ice inside the next two years. For a long time past a number of the cleverest inventors in the country have been trying to devise a small, compact ice machine, with a capacity of from 50 to 100 pounds a day, that can be operated by any domestic servant, and they have made sufficient progress to bring success clearly in view. It is an interesting fact that nearly all the remarkable improvements which have been made in large commercial machines during the last two or three years have suggested themselves in this tireless search for a practical household apparatus.

"When I say that success is in sight, I mean that all the most serious problems have been solved, and the difficulties that remain to be overcome are purely mechanical. As a matter of four or five small machines are already in the market, but none of them quite meets the requirements. The ideal apparatus for use in cities will probably obtain its power from an incandescent lamp socket, just like the ordinary electric fan. The cook will fill up the receiver with water, make the connection and go about her business.

There is nothing Utopian about this little forcast. Private ice plants are already practical for very small commercial concerns—resturants, confectioners, etc.—and the household machine is one of the advances along the line of domestic economy to which we may look forward with absolute confidence. By the by, one of the inventors who is pegging away at the problem is a New Orleans man, and I was told lately that he had turned out a very successful working model. I have said nothing about liquid air, because that strange product has proven so tricky and intractable that it is risky to venture any predictions as to what may or may not be done with it. Another substance which has been exploited as the 'refrigerant of the future' is a so called 'freezing powder.'

Brevity is the soul of wit.—Shakespeare.

PIMPLES
CURED BY
Cuticura SOAP

The most effective skin purifying and beautifying soap in the world, as well as purest and sweetest for toilet, bath, and nursery. It is the only preventive of pimples, blackheads, red, rough, and oily skin, red, rough hands with shapeless nails, dry, thin, and falling hair, and simple baby blemishes. It is so because it strikes at the cause of most complexional disfigurations, viz., THE CLOGGED, IRRITATED, INFLAMED, OVERWORKED, OR SLUGGISH PORE.

My face was covered with a pimply, ruptured, and itching skin. After using CUTICURA SOAP for six weeks my skin made a remarkable change, all the pimples went away, my skin getting as soft as velvet.

A childless home is a cheerless home. The maternal instinct exists in every woman, and when it is ungratified she is deprived of much of the happiness of life. It often happens that childlessness is due to some cause which can be removed, and often is removed by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The vigor and vitality which this remedy imparts to the delicate womanly organs, puts them in a condition of normal health, the lack of which is often the sole obstruction to maternity. ## THE OLD FAVORITES

Seem Completely Forgotten--A Good Thing for the Writers.

Who reads today the "popular novel" of last season or the year before? That is one of the questions the recently formed American Publishers' Association set out to have answered. Their investigation showed that this year's popular novels sold as follows: "David Harum," 500,000 copies up to the time the investigation was made; "Richard Carvel" 438,000 copies; "To Have and to Hold," 200,000; "Janice Meredith," 250,000; "Red Rock," 84,000, and so on.

But "Trilby" and "The Gadfly" and "Helen's Babies" and all the other old favorites, what of them? Thousands and tens of thousands had bought them, read them, lent them, bought other copies for their friends and acquaintances when they were in vogue. —why don't they sell now? Other "children of a larger growth" were arriving at an age when familiarity with such great "sellers" as these former "popular novels" must be claimed in order to pass as tolerably "well read," and yet the old favorites seemed completely forgotten.

One explanation vouchsafed was that the department stores were all the time crowding the regular booksellers to the wall and that the department stores seizing a book of ephemeral popularity pushed it so vigorously at a price far below the publisher's or regular bookman's list price that all standard works and past favorites were ruthlessly banished from sight and hearing. Ask for "Trilby," and the bargain counter jumper says, "Haven't got it but here's 'To Have and to Hold;' just as good, and brand new, too."

Occasionally a publisher gets out a new set of plates, and has an edition of a once favorite novel run off, and then tries to boom it, but unless it is an edition of Kipling or Corelli or Conan Doyle little is heard of it. "There's always a demand for 'Lucille' and a few other tales of love or adventure, or both," said a bookseller the other day, "but it's hard to find anybody today who recalls the book that created a furore a few seasons ago. Perhaps it's a good thing for the writers' too," he added, with a smile.

To Live to Be a Hundred.

According to Sir James Sawyer, by observing the following rules one stands a good chance of being a worthy member of the One Hundred Year Club:

Eight hours' sleep.
Sleep on your right side.
Keep your bedroom window open all night.
Have a mat at your bedroom door. Do not have your bedstead against the wall.
No cold water in the morning, but a bath at the temperature of the body.
Exercise before breakfast.
Eat little meat, and see that it is well cooked.
For adults, drink no milk.
Eat plenty of fat to feed the cells which destroy the disease germs.
Avoid intoxicants, which destroy those cells.
Daily exercise in the open air.
Allow no pet animals in your living rooms; they are likely to carry about disease germs.
Live in the country if you can.
Watch the three D's—drinking water, damp, drains.
Take frequent and short holidays.
Limit your ambition.
Keep your temper.

South Dakota's Wind Cave.

The good people of South Dakota regard Wind Cave as the tenth wonder of the world. From surface indications it would seem that a large part of the state is hollow, and the extent of Wind Cave is unknown. It was discovered in 1877 by a notorious character known as "Lame Johnny," who distinguished himself on several occasions by holding up the Deadwood stage and ambushing caravans of unwary travellers. His lack of prudence in one of these adventures resulted in a "necktie party," which ended Johnny's career, so that he was not able to profit by his discovery. J. B. McDonald rediscovered the phenomenon in 1884 by finding a large gap in the plain through which the wind was pouring out with great force, like the draught of a chimney. There are similar vent holes at frequent intervals over the prairie, and the people of this neighborhood claim that several have been opened within the last few years.

The cave is divided into chambers. It is asserted that more than 3,000 different rooms have already been discovered, varying in size from twelve feet in diameter to over three acres, and this is believed to be only a small portion of the cavern. The cave ceiling is not so high as that of Mammoth Cave, and the geologic formations are not as wonderful as those of Luray, but it has many attractions, and one in particular—the dryness of the atmosphere—which is said to afford instant and complete relief to asthmatic people. The temperature of the cave is about 45 degrees the year round, being unaffected by the variations of the thermometer outside, but the variations of the barometer are sharply perceptible. When the mercury rises on the outside a current of air flows into the cave and follows a certain direction. When the glass falls, this current changes and the air flows in another direction. This phenomenon has not been studied by competent meteorologists, but is so apparent that it attracted the attention of the early explorers of the canon.

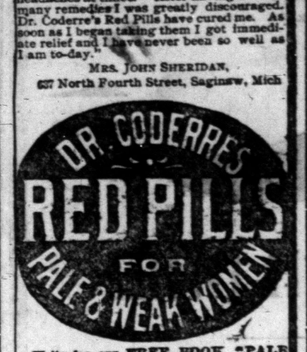

The effect of the air of the cave upon asthmatic people is equally peculiar. A sufferer from that disease finds immediate relief upon entering the cave, and there will be no return of the trouble for several days after. This has suggested the possibility of a permanent cure for such as can have the privilege of visiting the cave frequently, and a hotel is planned for their accommodation.—From the Chicago Record.

Must Dress for a Voyage.

The time has passed, it is said, when any old clothes that a traveler might possess were accounted good enough for an ocean voyage. Indeed, the dressing of passengers on some ocean liners has recently become so elaborate that persons looking for ease and informality are alarmed at the rapidity with which the former ideas on this subject are changing. A recent traveler says that three-fourths of the gentlemen on the steamer wore their dress coats at dinner, and women wore diamonds as at a party.—Boston Herald.

Stanstead Junction, P. Q., 12th Aug., 1893.
Messrs. C. C. Richards & Co.

Gentlemen,—I fell from a bridge leading from a platform to a loaded car while assisting my men in unloading a load of grain. The bridge went down as well as the load on my back, and I struck on the ends of the sleepers, causing a serious injury to my leg. Only for its being very fleshy, would have broken it. In an hour could not walk a step. Commenced using MINARD'S LINIMENT, and the third day went to Montreal on business and got about well by the use of a cane. In ten days was nearly well. I can sincerely recommend it as the best Liniment that I know of in use.

AT THE TWO T'S

Where Slater Shoes and Perfect Fitting Clothes are Sold.

Something About the Most Perfect Fitting Shoe in the World.

"Perhaps you don't know who we are? If you don't you don't live any where within Kent County, and you must come from a long distance away. However, we will tell you. We are the T's., and we are famous amongst other things, because we have the sole agency for and sell the Slater shoe in Chatham. We are under contract with the Slater Shoe Company not to carry less than $3,000 worth of $3.50 and $5 Slater shoes, but have now nearly $5,000 worth of shoes in the store. We handle no other lines, and the 2 T's is the only place where you can get the Slater shoe at $3.50 and $5 and made to fit any foot in the land. These fiendish shapes of shoes with all their deforming influences, distorting tightness and freakish styles have been for 16 centuries evolutionizing the foot from a source of comfortable support, handsome and strong, to the kind of a foot most men now pinch into modeern shoes of advanced fashionableness, But while this has been happening the 19th century shoemaker has been making shoes from lasts modelled as feet ought to have been, and ignoring the foot as it is. Even to-day few factories have more than one shape of lasts, and absolutely no other factory in Canada except the Slater shoe factory, has a variety of lasts to fit all shapes of feet except those few which are so badly distorted as to require a special last of their own. This is where the Slater shoe differs from all others in its foot conforming qualities and this is the shoe which you can purchase from The 2 T's (that's us). The Slater shoe is made in 12 shapes, eleven sizes, and five widths for men, and with correct shapes and sizes to fit boys' feet. These shapes are not evolved by guess, but they are made from lasts which the makers of the Slater shoe had modelled from actual human every day feet.

You've never seen an ugly pair of Slater shoes, and yet many of them cover most unlovely feet. Beauty and style without comfort in shoes is easily attainable. Comfort without appearance is equally simple. It is the combination of these which raises shoemaking to an art. The presence of this art you realize when you don your first pair of Slater shoes. The 2 T's have these shoes in all their shapes and sizes. The inside or foot space may differ considerably from the outside appearance. Slater shoes are named according to their chief characteristic of shape. They are: The Dandy, Beau Ideal, Natural, Bull Dog, Common Sense, Foot Form, Comfort, Rational, Broadfoot, Aristocrat and Arrow Point. The Aristocrat is narrower than the Beau Ideal with the same straight outside line of sole (American type), high, stiff box toe without ridge, rounded and moderately full at point. The characteristic of this shoe is its stylish effect, which has made it a favorite with Parisians. It is made in sizes and half-sizes from 5 to eleven, and in widths to E. The Slater Comfort is one of the most comfortable shapes yet produced for wide feet, has a wide, sweeping curve on the outside, full, round toe, high at the great toe, full and high from the instep to the toe, high instep, handsome curves and manly appearance.

The Rational is designed for gentlemen who appreciate graceful curves which respect their corns and tender bunions. The toe is stiff, full, round and wide across the curved ball and is higher on the great toe side from the curved instep than on the small toe side. It is a graceful shoe that looks well on a big man.

"The other styles can be seen at the 2 T's. Come, it costs you nothing to investigate.

"The Slater rubbers are a feature of the many products of their factory. They make their rubbers of all shapes and sizes so that they will fit any shoe made. Paste this in your memory so that you will know where to buy your rubbers when the wet weather comes.

"The boys and youth's shoes at $2.50 to $3 are also a peculiarly popular product of this now famous factory.

"There are only seven lines of patent leather shoes but the very latest is a new French enamel that will not crack. They have extension soles and cost $5 per pair.

CLOTHING DEPARTMENT.

"A department of this store which we, the 2 T's, pride ourselves on, is the ready made New Method clothing department.

"We keep overcoats in stock—by that we mean that we can fit any person of the masculine persuasion who comes to our store. Vencunia cloth in Oxford Grey is the most popular color this fall and neat and nobby do the suits made from them look.

"If there is one thing that attracts more attention than another on King street it is the beautiful and always artistically draped and dressed windows of the only black and white store in the world. These windows are fitted with the largest of mirrors which reflect and intensify the glories of the goods displayed. Ornamented with electric light and silver fittings, the window is a work of art but the whole picture is intensified by the addition of the shoes and the gay colorings of the other materials sold. If you don't believe all this just call at the 2 T's and see the proof of what has been said."

AT THE THEATRE.

Mr. John Griffith who has inaugurated the first season of his starring contract with Manager Al. Caldwell, with a magnificent scenic production of Goeth's poetic sermon "Faust" will be the attraction at the Grand tonight, Mr. Griffith enacting the role of Mephisto. Commenting on this production, the Chicago Tribune of a recent date says—"That Mr. Griffith is altogether an effective actor in that he finds expression for all the varying moods of the great psychological study he essays to interpret is not speaking too much in his praise. His Mephistopheles contains more elements of mirth of the character as the German poet conceived it and a finer, better appreciation of its real signification than any that has been seen recently in Chicago. "In the hands of various actors, Mephistopheles has degenerated to a buffoon with only a red mantle and a malignant grin to identify him. Mr. Griffith restores to it its moving force with considerable artistic skill, defines its psychologic significance, and invests the roll with a satirical, grim humor which is commendable."

Mgr. Cairns returned yesterday from St. Thomas, where he went on Saturday for the sole purpose of seeing a production of the "Prisoner of Zenda," an attraction which will appear at the Grand this week. He reports the production to be a satisfactory one in every particular, and says it will please every patron of the Grand who may see it. The costuming could not be handsomer, being even more elaborate than that of "The Royal Box." The company carries nearly all of its own scenery and three of the sittings are very handsome. The cast is thoroughly competent throughout and certainly deserves the extravagant praise that it received at the hands of the Hamilton and Brantford papers. The production received such a reception from the audience at St. Thomas on Saturday night that the manager of the house there at once closed arrangements for a return date. Mr. Cairns strongly recommends the production to his patrons and believes it will please them all.

COWSLIP FARM.

The Hartford Times, of Hartford, Conn., under date of Wednesday, Sept. 5th, writes as follows, of the new four act pastoral comedy drama "Cowslip Farm," which will be presented at the Grand, Thursday evening. "Cowslip Farm," a comedy drama, written by Arthur L. Tubbs, was produced at Parson's Theatre Tuesday evening before an audience which completely filled the theatre. It is a new play, and is in the hands of competent artists. The story is a simple one with an interesting heart story. The scenes are laid in sumptuously furnished apartments in New York, and on a comfortable farm in Vermont. Jack Willoughby, a New Yorker, bets all his money and his wife's entire fortune on a horse race, he gives the money to one Ashley Burton, who is thought to be a heartless villain, but who turns out to be a kind hearted, sympathetic friend. A mistake makes Willoughby suspect the fidelity of his wife, and this suspicion added to his supposed loss, drives him to distraction, and he leaves his wife. A happy reunion takes place amid the pastoral scenes of the Vermont farm, the supposed villain turns up with the money which he did not bet on account of missing the train. The principal character, "Aunt Melinda Jane Boggs," taken by Mr. Warren, was admirably acted, and afforded a great deal of amusement. Marguerite Hammond as Trix, was a vivacious fun making character. Taken as a whole, Cowslip Farm was the most enjoyable performance presented at Parson's this season."
