INTENSIVE FARMING.

Some Novel Suggestions Offered by Ontario Farmers—Housing Cattle in Summer—Systematic Feeding by Soiling Method—Hints on Orcharding, Dairy-ing, etc.

Prof. Deia stated, in an address before the Farmers' Milk congress, of Pennsylvania, that the great problem confronting the dairy-farm manager today was how to increase the profits per cow and per acre. I am going to solve that problem by adopting the soiling system, and doing away almost entirely with the pasturing system. The pasturing system of farming is, to my mind, the most extravagant system of farming ever invented. Let us see how it works. The stock are turned out in the spring. The pastures are good, and for a time they do well, but they trample and spoil as much as they eat. In a few weeks' time the pastures dry up, the flies become troublesome, the stock lose in weight, the milk flow decreases, and the profits are low. All this may be avoided by adopting the soiling system in summer, keeping the cattle inside in well ventilated barn, cutting and carrying the feed to them.

Thus we will be enabled to make one acre take the place of three or four under the old system; we can build and maintain nearly double the number of cows, and save forty to fifty per cent. of the crops by preventing the stock trampling and otherwise spoiling them; we shall get increased flesh and an increased milk flow, owing to the greater comfort of the stock; and last, but not least, we can increase the fertilizer produced on the farm by three or four hundred per cent.

The buildings must be modern, convenient, well-lighted and well ventilated. Good ventilation is absolutely essential, as I intend keeping the stock inside winter and summer, and the best of ventilation will be necessary under those conditions.

As regards stock, I would stock the farm with twenty-four milch cows, six two-year-olds, about the same number of one-year-olds, and calves, a pure-bred herd bull, two brood sows, and three horses, one of these being a driver and general-purpose horse. This stock, consisting of, say thirty-six head of full-grown animals, will be kept the year round from the product of thirty-five acres. The rest of the farm, fifteen acres, or thereabouts, will be devoted to orchard, garden and grain crops.

This will necessitate the employment of labor. I would engage the services of an experienced teamster and a boy of about sixteen or more, besides, unfortunately, having to work myself. I should aim to have a separate house built for the teamster, and engage a married man, as this is the only method to obtain steady, reliable farm help, and keep it.

In laying out the work necessary to provide feed for the twenty-four cows and other stock, I would start with the autumn. In the fall, I would plow up nine acres and sow to rye and wheat, to provide early spring crops. Only about half of this will be required for feed; the rest often get, but which is as well for you to know. Everyone has heard of the advantages of the West but few of its many disadvantages. The police referred to are the Northwest Mounted Police.

"The police seem to form a general Board. They also have charge of those who may be in need, the government providing funds for such cases, for instance, the homesteader, with or without a family, who may owing to excessively cold weather, or depth of snow, run short of necessary food or fuel. In some cases, however they come too late. During the severe weather of last winter, an officer in his rounds on the prairie, found a shack where had lived an old couple about seventy years of age. The woman was dead in bed, the man too weak to speak. Three or four horses were dead in the barn, starved and frozen. The man was taken fourteen miles to a hospital, and died a few hours afterwards. An investigation of the case revealed the fact that not long ago, the old people were in comfortable circumstances in England. They had $5000 in cash. Their son, who had come to Canada, persuaded his parents to follow. He secured a homestead for them, built a shack, got their money under false pretences, skipped out, and has not been heard of since although he has been thoroughly searched for since the tragedy.

"Many men, while holding homesteads alone during the long weary winter months, starve to death. You will have noticed that I have not so much as mentioned alfalfa, and for this reason; it is altogether uncertain that there will be a patch of alfalfa of any size on the farm when I go onto it. But, if conditions are favorable, I will seed down thirteen acres of alfalfa. Then this crop will take the place of many of the soiling crops mentioned, as it is undoubtedly the best soiling crop grown in Ontario. The thirteen acres should provide thirty-five to forty tons of the best hay, besides supplying green food in summer. Then, four acres will be devoted to growing root crops, and eight acres to corn for the silo.

The farm team in summer will go out in the morning, and cut sufficient feed with the mower to last two days. This will be brought home and spread on the barn floor. The cattle will be fed five times a day, and before each feeding the mangers will be cleaned out thoroughly. A cow will hunger in the midst of plenty, sooner than eat food that she has breathed on for a time.

If no orchard was on the farm, I would plant out five acres with apple trees, thirty or forty feet apart. These trees will be well looked after, pruned and sprayed as often as necessary to keep them in thrift. This orchard, not being bearing I will devote to sheep, stocking it with twenty-four ewes, and fattening their lambs there. One acre and a half I will sow with rape, and the rest I will seed down to grass, although I am well aware that this will be a loss to our horticultural friends. The rape will be fenced off, but a lamb-creed will be provided to let the lambs in; the young trees will have to be protected with wire netting. A rough shed will be built, in which the sheep will be fed winter and summer in racks. In summer they will get the same soiling crops as the cattle. A separate compartment will be made for the lambs, in which they will always find a supply of crushed oats, bran and oil cake.

The poultry will also be located in the orchard.

From five to seven acres will be devoted to oats, but it will be necessary to buy annually several hundred dollars' worth of concentrated feeds. This will build up the fertility of the soil, and be a good investment.

The milk will be obtained and cared for in as clean a way as possible. It will be separated on the farm, and the cream sent to the creamery. If the water on the farm is above forty-five degrees F. in temperature in summer, it will be necessary to put up about thirty tons of ice every year. The milk will be weighed, and a composite sample made up and tested every month. Thus, an accurate record will be made of each cow's performance. The heifers from the best cows only will be kept, and an endeavor made to build up a herd to average four hundred pounds butter per year.

One thing I consider absolutely essential on this farm. That is, a tank for holding the liquid manure. I will have one constructed of brick or cement and allow the drainage from the buildings and the manure to flow into it. By doing so I will save fifty per cent. of the value of the manure, a proportion that annually going to waste on the farms in Ontario.

In conclusion I will enumerate three points I consider essential: first, the housing of cattle in summer with good ventilation and feeding them in their stalls; second, the sowing each week in May, June and July, enough ground to last for one week; third, the care of manure on the farm.—Address by S. H. Hopkins, in public speaking contest at Ontario Agricultural college.

New Light on the West.

The following extract from a letter to the Westville Free Lance gives a view of the West which we do not often get, but which is as well for you to know. Everyone has heard of the advantages of the West but few of its many disadvantages. The police referred to are the Northwest Mounted Police.

"The police seem to form a general Board. Fatal Drowning Accident

TOM JEFFERSON, YOUNGEST SON OF S. T. JEFFERSON, WELL-KNOWN BUSINESS MAN OF LAWRENCETOWN, DROWNED WHILE IN BATHING.

On Friday afternoon Lawrencetown was the scene of one of the saddest drowning accidents that has happened in this vicinity for years. Young Tom Jefferson, aged eleven years, son of S. T. Jefferson, merchant, was drowned while in bathing with three other lads of his age.

He was in swimming above Hall's Island, in the Annapolis river with his three chums and undertook to swim across a hole about twelve feet deep, but was unable to reach the other side and before help could be obtained had been down the third time about twenty minutes. They tried to recover the body by diving, but there was no place to dive from, as the hole was in the middle of the river. The body was finally recovered by raising it to the surface with a board. Dr Young worked over the body for two hours and tried everything in his power to bring the boy to consciousness, but without avail.

The funeral service was held at the house, conducted by Rev. Mr. Morris. The body was taken to Round Hill, Mr. Jefferson's former home, for burial, where the boy was laid beside his mother, who died a few years ago.

HIGH RECORD BY GRADE XI OF LAWRENCETOWN SCHOOL

The scholars of the XI of the Lawrencetown grade school, seven in all, were all successful in obtaining their "R." certificates. This establishes a record which we think has never been equalled by few schools in as large a class. We give below the names of successful ones in the order of their aggregates with the aggregate of the highest—Grace Jefferson, 502, Aubrey Whitman, Hazel Balcom, Hettie Fair, Evangeline Elliott, Edith Whitman, Marguerite West. Miss Fair and Miss Elliott made exactly the same. The class is to be congratulated for such a successful showing, making a record which few schools can boast of.—COM.

LIGHTED HIS PIPE IN MOTOR BOAT.

Gasoline Caught Fire, A. ex. Harris Was Drowned and Five Others Had Narrow Escape.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 3.—While entertaining four friends today in a motor boat near Huckleberry Island, in the St. Lawrence River, Alexander Harris set fire to the craft by striking a match to light his pipe. Flames from the resultant explosion of gasoline burned the boat to the water's edge and resulted in Harris' death. The five men clung to the boat's edge as long as they could, dropped off when the fire got too hot, and started for shore. Harris, who could not swim, was drowned in eight feet of water. He was thirty years old and leaves a widow and three small children. Searching parties are grappling for his body.

PASSENGER TRAIN WRECKED BY TORNADO.

Anson, Texas, Aug. 4.—Three coaches attached to a south-bound passenger train at Wichita Valley route were thrown from the track by a tornado at Penicks, six miles north of here last night. Practically every passenger aboard the train received more or less severe bruises. One infant was fatally hurt.

An Objection Raised

(Ottawa Citizen.) Nova Scotia is a fine little province, chiefly peopled with thrifty Scots and their descendants. The people preserve the traditions and in many sections the Gaelic language of their forefathers. An envious Sasatchewan once suggested that the Scotch keep the Sabbath, and everything else they can get their hands on. It is alleged that the Nova Scotians also keep this tradition sacred among them. It is further alleged that they keep the largest share of political patronage and preferment in proportion to the population of any province in the Dominion, not excluding Quebec. Other envious wits have suggested that if it were not for Nova Scotia the civil service would be exclusively French.

When it comes to the statement class, it is pointed out that Nova Scotia is well to the fore. Not only are the leader of the opposition and several of his chief lieutenants from the province down by the sounding sea, but Nova Scotia has two representatives in the cabinet, while at least two other provinces have none. The subject has come up in connection with the report that Sir Frederick Borden is to succeed Lord Strathcona and that Mr. E. M. MacDonald of Pictou is to succeed Sir Frederick in the cabinet. This infers the acceptance of the proposition that Nova Scotia will continue to be represented by two cabinet ministers, while Manitoba and Saskatchewan have none. It is pointed out that the population of Nova Scotia with Prince Edward Island thrown in is only 650,000, whereas the population of Manitoba and Saskatchewan is 1,000,000. The western Liberals are up in arms, and point out that if population is the basis of representation, the portfolio should go to a western representative, whereas it is even betting that the people of Nova Scotia will continue to keep the Sawbath and two cabinet portfolios.

AVIATOR McCURDY HAD A NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH: AIRSHIP TURNED COMPLETELY OVER.

Toronto, Aug. 4.—J. A. D. McCurdy, the Canadian aviator, had a narrow escape from death at the Toronto aviation meeting last evening, when his bi-plane in which he flew from Hamilton to Toronto Wednesday afternoon, turned turtle and dropped about thirty feet, suffering complete wreck. The accident was due to an inequality in the runway from which the flights are started. The machine was skidding along, gathering speed for the ascent, when it struck a slight obstruction, which tilted it upward and caused it to rise into the air before the aviator was ready. A line of automobiles was directly in its path and McCurdy had no alternative but to attempt to fly over them, although the speed was sufficient to enable him to ascend higher.

His machine cleared the autos, but took a dive downwards and then turned completely over. The crowd rushed up expecting to find McCurdy mangled, but found him seated on the ground, coolly lighting his pipe. He had succeeded in throwing himself free of the machine before it struck the ground. The framework of the bi-plane worth $2,000, was completely demolished, while it is feared that the $4,000 engine was also badly damaged. Willard did not attempt a flight.

McCurdy has another machine and will go up today.

A VALLEY FARM.

A Specimen Orchard of the Lawrencetown Section of Our Valley Visited by a Monitor Representative—Good Effects of Spraying and Cultivation Noted.

The outlook for a large apple crop around Lawrencetown this year is especially good, and for the number of trees, will hold its own with any part of the Valley. The crop is large, free from blemish of any kind and will perhaps excel former years in the quality of the fruit. If any prestige has been lost by "Valley" apples in the market through blemish of any kind, in the last few years, then they are in a fair way to obtain again the high position they formerly held.

It was the writer's privilege a few days ago to have the pleasure of a walk over the farm of Mr. Edward Oswald, Lawrencetown, with the genial man himself. Mr. Oswald took the trouble, and his valuable time to show the writer through his orchards and answer to the best of his ability the numerous questions which were put to him.

The farm, though small, consisting only of twenty-five acres, ten of which are set in orchard, is one of the best specimens of the apple orchards of the Valley.

Mr. Oswald is a firm believer in spraying and in keeping the land in his orchards under cultivation. He has a fine undercrop of beans in his orchard as is possible to find anywhere at any time, despite the dry weather. His trees are loaded to the ground, in most cases so that the limbs have to be propped up. The large size and round shape of the fruit was especially noticeable, also the freedom from scab or wormhole.

Mr. Oswald deserves a large amount of credit for the showing of the fruit in his orchard as it was chiefly through his energetic efforts with the sprayer and plough that his orchard is making such a fine showing.

As his farm is a fine specimen of the Valley orchards, so is Mr. Oswald a fine specimen of the "Valley Farmer," kind and obliging and always ready to put himself out to do a good deed. He has the writer's thanks for the courtesy shown him while looking over the farm in his company.

TOWN COUNCIL.

A meeting of the Town Council of the Town of Bridgetown was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, the 7th inst, at eight o'clock with Mayor Harlow in the chair, and councillors present as follows:—W.H. Burns, C.B. Tupper, S.F. Pratt and E. A. Craig.

Ordered that the following bills be paid:—

Foster, poor account $22.00 in all; Labor, etc.—Repairing leak in reservoir;—Caleb Veinot, $2.50, Robert Sabean, $1.50, William Ruffee, $1.25, A.G. Walker, gravel, $1.50, Charles Poole, trucking pipe $1.00; William Connell, for team to reservoir with men, $2.00, Elias Durling, trucking 25c, William Connell, cash paid for teams to lake, $2.50, Wm. Connell, cash paid for cleaning council chamber, $1.60, Canadian Iron Corporation for tees and plug $3.94, W.H. Thorne & Co. Ltd., for handcuffs for policeman, $6.59; A. D. Brown, registrar of births and deaths $3.00, H. LeMoine Ruggles, for copying old plan of town, $5.00, Jas. R. DeWitt, for split-log drag $4.00, Bridgetown Foundry Co., for work for crusher, etc., $31.27.

Resolved that the accounts of Neily and Kinney and Shaffner and Fisher for $25.00 and $5.00 respectively for storing sewer pipe, both accounts covering the same charge, be not paid, as there was no contract with the town and the town disclaims all liability therefor.

A letter was read by the Mayor from Arthur Roberts, Esq., Hon. Secy. of the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities requesting the Council to appoint two or more delegates to attend the convention to be held in the city of Halifax on the 23rd and 24th inst.

His Worship, Mayor Harlow and Town Clerk and Solicitor Ruggles were appointed delegates to attend the convention.

The Mayor named Councillors Craig and Burns as substitute delegates in case the other delegates could not attend.

A petition from John Carter and other residents of the town north of Jeffrey street was read by the Mayor asking for water extension to their dwellings and agreeing to take a certain number of taps. After some discussion it was resolved that the matter be left with the water committee for consideration and report.

At the request of the fire-wards sealed tenders called for by them, and addressed to them were submitted to the Council for concreting the engine-house floor.

Tenders were opened by the Mayor and on discussion it was resolved that the expenditure be deferred for the present year as there are no funds on hand for the work.

Minutes read and approved and Council adjourned.

Natural Products to be Free of Duty

Here are some of the articles that will pass duty free into the United States from Canada if the electors vote approval of the arrangements made for the simultaneous removal of duties on natural products:

Table listing various natural products and their U.S. rates. Items include Cattle, Horses, Hogs, Sheep, Wheat, Oats, Barley, Hay, Straw, Potatoes, Onions, Apples, Peaches, Butter, Cheese, Fresh milk, Fresh cream, Eggs, Cod, Halibut, Mackerel, Salmon, Timber, Planas and deals, Posts and poles, Mica, Feldspar, Fluorspar, Talc, Wood pulp, Print paper.

That list of articles represents the issue before the people of Canada. There are a few other proposed changes such as a reduction of from 2-1/2 to 5 per cent. on agricultural implements, farm wagons and supplies, but in effect the elector is asked this question: Do you approve of the removal of all duties on natural products passing from Canada to the United States and from the United States to Canada?

THE NIOBE ASHORE.

Dominion Government Training Ship Meets With Serious Mishap. (Yarmouth Times.)

The Canadian government training ship Niobe, which came to Yarmouth to assist in the Home Week celebration, and which left here on Saturday for Shelburne, went ashore the same night at Round Shoal, near Cape Sable light, within a short distance of the place where the S. S. Hungarian met her fate and about six or seven miles from Clark's Harbor. The accident occurred in a dense fog and a heavy wind. When an inquiry is held it will probably be found that strong currents contributed to the disaster. Wireless messages announcing the ship's perilous position were sent and were quickly picked up from Cape Race to New York, including the Navy Yard at Charlestown, Mass. Halifax and St. John. The tug Hugh D. and Wanda were quickly despatched from here by the Messrs. Cann and, with the assistance of the McNaughton helped get the ship clear and towed her to Clark's Harbor. The ship spent most of Sunday held by two anchors near the ledges in thirty-six fathoms but by evening was conveyed to safe anchorage. Her starboard engine room is pierced and there is considerable water in that compartment, but is being kept down by the pumps. The port engine is all right but the starboard one cannot be used.

HELP WANTED FOR NOVA SCOTIA ORCHARDS.

The maritime provinces have good crops this year, and so has Ontario. Anybody who wants work can get it in these provinces during harvest time. Apple pickers are now being advertised for to work in the Annapolis Valley. The western harvest is earlier than usual - about ten days ahead of the regular time, so the number from the rural districts of Nova Scotia and other eastern provinces is likely to be lessened in consequence. -Exchange.

ARBITRATION TREATY WILL BE SIGNED TOMORROW.

Between Great Britain, the United States and France.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 1 - The general arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States and France will be signed at three o'clock Thursday afternoon in President Taft's office at the White House. Ambassador Bryce will sign the British treaty jointly with Secretary of State Knox, and the French treaty after it is signed by Secretary Knox will be despatched by special messengers to Paris to exchange for the one bearing the signature of French Minister of Foreign Affairs Selves.

Sherbrooke, July 28 - In the Halifax Herald yesterday a dispatch from Sydney was published that the steamer John Irwin, Captain Heather, which left Port Morien last Monday, for Halifax, carrying a cargo of coal was overdue and had not been heard from. The fear was expressed that the steamer had been lost during the gale.

The news now comes that the steamer foundered on Tuesday morning, and that her crew of eleven all perished with the exception of one man W. L. McLeod, the mate, who had an escape little short of miraculous.

A Wife's Confession

Make no mistake in reading the following little confession of what I would like to tell my husband. If I dared to "speak out in meeting," here are some of the things I'd say to my husband. My desire to do so is by no means born of spite or anger but rather of a great love which would have perfection in the beloved object.

I would tell him that women are peculiarly susceptible to odors; that they are in a measure a determining force in their lives. To me, for instance, there is nothing quite so repulsive as the nauseating fumes of stale tobacco smoke. Some men can smoke and smoke and be nearly free from all taint of it, while others seem to give it forth from their very pores. I would tell my husband very gently that he is one of the latter, and that there are times when I feel like opening all the windows in the room in which we are sitting. I would tell him that his fingers are wretchedly stained by nicotine and suggest that he put them through a thorough cleansing with peroxide and powdered pumice. When he was courting me he did not smoke in my presence except once in a great while, but now I must worship him not through clouds of cigarette or pipe smoke or not at all.

Then I would tell him that I cannot help but think of the cost of this habit of his. On Monday I put the remnants of Sunday's soap through the meat chopper in order to save a trifle on the weekly butcher's bill, and after eating my croquettes or meat loaf, Mildred sits in the parlor and sends forth several times my small savings into smoke.

"Yes, and you buy candy and soda in place of my cigars." I can hear him say if I dared mention this, I would tell him that if he would promise to smoke only the value of what I spend weekly in these little luxuries, I would be altogether content, for if I, or any other woman ate as many sweets as our husbands' tobacco would pay for, we would have a ruined stomach and complexion. It is not that I wish to deprive my husband of the chief masculine comfort, but I do think he is selfish and extravagant about it, and that it has become an unclean and injurious habit with him. I don't tell him all this, however, I grin and bear it. -The Delectator.

Separation of the Sexes at School

The public school inspectors of Toronto, says the Mail and Empire, have approved the proposal of Dr. Comboy that in the higher classes, boys be taught in one set of rooms and girls in another. This reform ought to have been made long ago. The change is called for on the grounds of educational economy as well as on other grounds. In schools where the two sexes assemble in the classroom the progress in learning and in character building cannot be so great as in schools where boys are taught apart from girls. The methods required to maintain discipline among boys are different from those required to maintain discipline among girls. Some masterfulness is usually required to keep boys attentive to their studies, and the strong courses sometimes required in dealing with the boys do not always have an agreeable or beneficial effect upon the impressionable on-looking girls.

The teacher who is able to handle boys successfully may be a failure in dealing with girls, and vice versa. If the more dominating teachers who rule rather by siravit, than by sign of personality were assigned to the girls classes, all the pupils would be brought through their courses more rapidly and more satisfactorily, and the boys would be more manly and the girls more womanly. As the time passes, the case for separation becomes more strongly grounded on economy. The schools are more and more concerning themselves with subjects and exercises that bear more or less directly upon the business of life. Technical and commercial and domestic courses are taking up more of the time spent at school. Thus the courses tend to divide in accordance with the sex division, the boys being occupied with manual training and technical training and girls knowing off into the groups of subjects known as domestic.

FERRY STEAMER STRIKES SHOAL AND SEVEN PERISH.

Massena, N. Y., Aug. 1 - Three persons were drowned late this afternoon in the St. Lawrence river when the ferry steamer Sirca struck a shoal eight miles below this city, capsized and hurled its twenty-five passengers into the water. Four bodies have been recovered.

The identity of the three persons, who, according to the captain's tally, are missing, is not known. Scores of persons in motor boats and skiffs are endeavoring to recover the bodies.

The steamer Sirca left the dock here this morning for Cornwall, on the Canadian side, with seventy-five persons bound for a day's outing there. Most of those aboard were residents of Ogdensburg and Massena.

A REAL LADY.

Among the youngsters belonging to a college settlement in a New England city was one little girl who returned to her humble home with glowing accounts of the new teacher. "She's a perfect lady," exclaimed the enthusiastic youngster, "that's what she is!"
 The child's mother gave her a doubtful look. "How do you know?" she said. "You've only known her two days."
 "It's easy enough tellin'," continued the child. "I know she's a perfect lady, because she makes us feel so polite all the time."

Henry Pasquet lost his wife a few years ago and soon afterward he appeared with a wide mourning band on his sleeve. Time went on and he finally began to woo the sister of his departed wife, with the result that he married her some five months

 "Oh," said Henry, thoughtfully, "my sester-in-law, she die."

COMPARATIVE PAINS.

Before the use of chloroform had become so general as it is in our days, a quack advertised that he would draw teeth painlessly. A patient was placed in the chair, the instrument applied to his tooth, with a wrench, followed by a groan from the unpleasantly surprised sufferer.
 "Stop!" said the dentist. "Compos yourself. I told you I would give you no pain, but I only gave you that twinge to show you Carter's operation."

Again the instrument was applied to the tooth, and another tug and another roar.
 "Now don't be impatient. This is Logan's method," said the dentist.
 Another application, another tug, another roar.

"Now, pray, do be quiet. That is Tate's way. I see very well that you do not like it, and I am not surprised by this time the tooth hung by a thread, and, whipping it out, the operator exultingly exclaimed: "That's my mode of extracting teeth. You are now able to compare it with the operations of Carter, Logan and Tate."

THINKS DANGER POINT IS PASSED.

Paris Papers Believe German Emperor's Influence is on the Side of Peace.

Paris, Aug. 1.—Paris newspapers in general express the opinion that the danger point in the Moroccan situation has passed, and that a compromise will be arrived at very soon. With the arrival of the German Emperor at Swinemunde, the French press has become decidedly hopeful. Whether well or ill-founded this change of front reveals a strong belief in the Kaiser's Pacific intentions.

The Radical in this connection says: Emperor William II. is less impulsive than some of his speeches would lead one to imagine, if, as we believe is the case, his power will be used on the side of peace and moderation, it will not be the first time that he will have repaired the blunders of his ministers.

The Raphael says:— It is evident the Powers are negotiating for a reasonable ratification of the frontiers in Africa in order to facilitate the occupation of their respective colonies. Regarded from such a standpoint the question is capable of a peaceful solution.

Legend of Vengeance Inn

OLD INN AT YARMOUTH IN TIME OF KING GEORGE IV. SUPPOSED TO BE OBJECT OF SUPERNATURAL VISITATION.

(Written for The Yarmouth Times.)

In 1788 this Inn or Tavern was built at what is now the southern extremity of the town of Yarmouth by a Mr. John Richan, a Scotsman from one of the Orkney Islands.

It was called the "Vengeance House," so called from the British man-of-war Vengeance, the proprietor having served as a lieutenant on board that ship. It would seem to be a very forbidding name for a hotel nowadays, but then, although newspapers were few and far between, and telegraphs not even thought of, all the corners and goes at the old Inn knew why it was thus named, and had a fair idea of where the ship then was, and in what wars she had been engaged; they thought the name very appropriate. Being an artist of more than ordinary ability the owner painted his own sign board—a picture of the ship Vengeance going into action and discharging her broadside of 74 guns. The Vengeance House was much frequented by all sorts and conditions of men, and was used for various purposes. It was there that all public meetings were held. It was court house and jail, and its yard held the whipping post, then used to mend folks manners and morals. Some 60 years ago an old great uncle used to tell me of seeing culprits receive their 39 lashes, being securely tied to the whipping post. A tall flag-staff stood within the Inn's front enclosure, and from its top floated high the British ensign.

At the southern side of the Inn's wide platform stood a mounted cannon bearing the inscription "Captain Kelley's pocket piece," it having been presented to the town by that gentleman. On King George's birthday (June 4), known in country parlance as "Trainin Day" the militia men arrayed in all their warpaint and feathers, formed themselves in battle array, and marched to the Vengeance House and saluted the British flag with 21 guns. In return Captain Kelley's pocket piece blazed a reply. Then, with all the pomp and circumstance possible the brave defenders of their country marched proudly away flushed with their bloodless victory. The colonel and officers on that day together with all the clergy and magnates dined at the Vengeance House, and they all proved themselves good trencher knights. The dining room rang with patriotic songs and noise of clinking glasses as toast after toast was proposed and drunk. Needless to say those were not temperance days and many a doughty warrior who would have scorned to yield to powder and shot was overcome by a subtler foe before that day was wassailing was done.

Time passed on in its usual way and in 1807 a young girl named Mary Smith became an inmate of the Inn. She was an untutored country lassie, with nothing particular to notice in her appearance or manners. With counting the two daughters of the house there were three young girls in the Inn, and they all roomed together. One morning, some months after Mary's arrival, they were awakened by a knocking at the head of the bed in which two of them slept. Each girl accented the other of making the noise, but at length each was convinced of the other's innocence and that the knocks as they expressed it, made themselves. The day passed as usual and the girls at its close retired together, but no sooner had they fallen into their first sleep than they were again awakened by the knockings. As before they seemed to be upon the head-board. At last they dropped asleep again, but the first sound they heard in the morning was the knocking. Its hearers were not a bit alarmed or superstitious about it and named their odd visitor "The Rub-a-Dub" and by that name it was always after known. Upon rising they informed the house mother of their experience, but she sharply rebuked them for their credulity and folly, and it was with difficulty she could be convinced that they were speaking the truth. After the girls had retired for the night she went quietly to their door, and distinctly heard the tap, tap, tap of the Rub-a-Dub. She went softly away and called her husband and they could plainly hear the knockings. The old gentleman got quite irate, had lights brought up and proceeded to make a thorough investigation of the room. He made the girls rise and stand upon chairs, shook the bed clothes, peered under the bed into the corners, lifted the carpet, etc. He then had the plaster knocked away, thinking rats might have caused the noise, but nothing could be found, so perplexed, discomfited and angry he retired. As weeks passed, the knockings became louder and the boarders in the house were disturbed by them. It was found that the Rub-a-Dub would answer questions by a particular code of knocks. Slow or quick, loud or gentle, and it was plied with questions grave or gay. Various surmises and suggestions as to its origin were broached. Some clever person at last thought of putting the girls in separate rooms and then it was found that the Rub-a-Dub was heard only where Miss Smith was. In walking the knocking seemed to be directly under her feet, if sitting, on the back of her chair, riding, the knocks were all about her. Gradually the news of this wonderful thing spread and people from various parts of the country came to see and hear for themselves. The Vengeance House was thronged with visitors, night and day. Scientists came and theorized about it, clergymen tried to exercise it by prayer, the superstitious murmured "Ghosts," the skeptical who whispered "Fraud," the practical who suggested "rats, mice, insects, wind," etc. But in spite of all the Rub-a-Dub knocked louder than ever. Everything practicable was done to stop it, but it would not down, partitions removed, and a thorough investigation was made by honest men of the whole premises, intent only on getting at the bottom of the mystery. One Captain McNeil (a bearded) offered £100 sterling to whoever would discover the cause of the knockings. The money was never claimed. People now began to wonder if there could be a supernatural cause for the noises. Was it anyone in the spiritland trying in this way to hold converse with earthly friends? Miss Smith had a brother killed by pirates the year before, was it his spirit seeking communion with hers? A clergyman staying at the Vengeance House asked if "Have you anything you wish to communicate from the spirit world by a human voice? If so knock three times slowly," whereupon was heard three slow distinct knocks. When the affrighted hearers had gathered up their courage a little the clergyman again asked "Will you reveal it to us here?" A hurried rustling, rattling knock was heard, that being the way the Rub-a-Dub knocked when it was angry (as they interpreted it.) The clergyman then asked "Will you reveal it to Miss Smith?" If so knock slowly." Then followed six distinct knocks—"With one other person present." Again the rustling knocks. With Miss Smith absent, it answered in the usual way but unfortunately when something might have been discovered Miss Smith's mental and bodily powers had given way under the long strain. She was prostrated by severe and continued illness. Almost a mania from want of sleep, plied with questions from all sources, living in constant excitement for months, complete prostration of mind and body ensued.

Crud though it was, she was urged and commanded to question the Rub-a-Dub alone, but she was past obeying. Her mother had come and conveyed to her home the wreck of her once blooming daughter. Fortunately for the girl her mother was a sensible woman of great force of character. She sternly closed the door against all visitors and denied all access to her child and nursed her herself. The poor girl gradually won back her old time vigour and cheerfulness, health did come even though slowly and the troublesome Rub-a-Dub was quiet.

Mrs. Smith, who was a woman of undoubted veracity, related that one evening some months after Mary's return, she had fixed her comfortably in her chair when she suddenly screamed "O Mother, Mother, come, come quick! something is biting my ankle." As Mrs. Smith rushed to her side she heard apparently directly under Mary's feet a loud noise of a stick being roughly and sharply drawn across a picket fence, the sound seemingly crossing the floor and out at the open door. That was the last of the Rub-a-Dub in Yarmouth.

In course of time Miss Smith married, lived an uneventful life and died in extreme old age. To the last she could give no reason for, or explanation of, the strange happenings of her early life.

Another house stands now where the Vengeance House once stood. Alien voices sound through its halls and no Rub-a-Dub disturbs the peace. King George's ensign has long since ceased to flutter in the breeze.

The men and youth of the country muster no longer on "Trainin Day" about the Vengeance House green. All the actors in this strange true tale have gone to that land where all mysteries are made clear. But none have ever returned to explain. "There are more things in Heaven and Earth than are dreamt of in (your) philosophy" and so far our philosophy has found no satisfactory solution of the why and wherefore of the Rub-a-Dub. But it may come yet some day.

Electric Beans Are a Natural Remedy for Nerve, Stomach and Liver Disorders.

Once upon a time disease was thought to be due to direct influence of evil spirit and magic was invoked to cast it out.
 Science has taught us wisdom. The evil spirits still exist, we call them "Disease Germs," and they must also be cast out. Once lodged in the stomach or intestines biliousness with its aches and pains, or in fact seventy-five per cent of the ills that affect the human race, is the result.

Electric Beans are the approved remedy for driving out disease germs. Their action is quick and thorough, they clear the intestines, rouse the torpid liver to new life, stimulate mucous membranes to healthy action and cleanse and invigorate the whole digestive tract. Be prepared for emergencies by always keeping a box in the home.

See our booklet of remarkable, true testimonials. Test this remedy at our risk, if it is not satisfactory we will cheerfully refund the money paid for it.
 Electric Beans can be had from the Royal Pharmacy, S. N. Wear, prop., or direct from us at 50c. a box. THE ELECTRIC BEAN CHEMICAL COMPANY, LTD. Ottawa, Ont.

Did Man Descend From the Fish

Startling Theory Advanced by Sir John Murray of England.

(Gloucester Times.)

Resuming his lectures on "The Ocean," Sir John recalled a statement which, made by him nineteen years ago had aroused considerable discussion.

"I then asserted," said he, "that we human beings are nothing but human aquaria. I meant that the cells of which our bodies are composed are the lineal descendants of cells that lived at one time in the ocean.

"We are struck with the large number of marine animals compared with the number of those which live in fresh water. Now these ocean animals have handed down to the present time the cellular structure of their bodies and nineteen years ago I argued that their chemical composition as well as their morphological structure, might also have been handed down by heredity.

"In recent years a good deal of work has been done in the examination of the composition of the blood-plasmas of both vertebrate and invertebrate animals, and it has been found in its inorganic constituents remarkably like sea water.

BLOOD RESEMBLES SEA WATER.

"Take any of the lower marine organisms, the medusae, for example. The circulatory fluid of that animal is nothing but sea water, for its cavity is open to the sea.

"As evolution proceeds you find a closed body cavity, shut off from the sea water. Examine the blood of a fish and you will find that the potassium and the calcium are also in much the same proportion as in the sea with potassium rather more, and the magnesium very much more.

"Well, the argument is this: Take the stimulus, a kind of crab, which has developed an organ like a kidney, and goes on the land or into fresh water.

"If you analyzed its blood and found it to be of very much the same composition as the oceans show today you may say that the analysis shows what the composition of the ocean was up to the present time.

"Now apply that argument to the past. One writer on the subject says: fishes indicate at the present time the composition the ocean had when the ancestors of these fishes took to living on the land or in fresh water.

"It is now believed, if that be true, that the vertebrate have been able to preserve the medium in which their cells lived during the whole time which has since elapsed.

"So it is extremely likely that the kidney, in the evolution of the vertebrates has been for the keeping of the composition of the blood very much the same as the water was, and that they have been able, because of that constancy, to adapt themselves very much better than any other creatures by having this internal medium which floods all the cells.

"Hence it is not at all unlikely that you may have people maintaining that the kidney is a more important organ than either the spinal cord or the brain."

Germany Would Stand Practically Alone Against all Europe

France Desires Peace, But Will Not Relinquish Rights.

Paris, Aug. 1st.—The foreign office adhering to its pact with the German foreign office, refrains from all communication to the press regarding the Franco-German negotiations, but it is understood here that the situation is very unsatisfactory. The status of the negotiations is almost as described as a "black" NORWAY VISIT CANCELLED.

Nothing is said, however, about Germany's withdrawal from Agadir, the occupation of which France understands would be objectionable. But the French press publishes the announcement from London that the British Admiralty has cancelled the proposed visit of the Atlantic fleet to Norway and this move, taken in connection with Chancellor Lloyd George's speech before the English bankers is thought by the papers to show not only the intention of Great Britain to stand firm, but that the negotiations have reached a crisis.

While the press generally are severe in their comments, some papers, like La Petite Republique hope that Emperor William will see that Germany would have all Europe against her in the event of a conflagration and accordingly suggests a conciliatory formula to his ministers.

Paris, Aug. 1st.—A closer understanding between France and Spain appears a probability, both countries being anxious to avoid difficulties growing out of clashes between the respective authorities in northern Morocco. Definite arrangements are likely to be published within a few days.

Madrid, Aug. 1.—The main lines of a Franco-Spanish modus vivendi to prevent a repetition of incidents such as have occurred recently at Alcazar, Morocco, have been drawn up. It is expected that the agreement will be signed before the end of the week.

Berlin, Aug. 1.—The tone of the newspapers in discussing the Morocco question is much calmer this morning the local Anzeiger, however, says:

"Germany is not inclined to permit such wanton and frivolous intervention as is preached in the English press, and warns meddlesome disturbers to keep hands off."

Paris, Aug. 1.—Within the past year there have been various rumors to the effect that Germany had determined to take a hand in affairs in Morocco, giving the excuse that France was exceeding the power granted to her and that Morocco was being dismembered. In the latter case Germany would declare the Algeciras agreement broken and prepare to exact her share of Moroccan territory.

Out of the smouldering fire there suddenly came nearly a month ago a sudden burst of flame when the German foreign office announced the sending to Agadir, Morocco, the cruiser Thetis and the gunboat Panther.

This was looked upon by France as a direct interference by Germany in Moroccan affairs, and an action for which there was no warrant, according to France.

Don't Give Way to Lazy Moods

Pity the creature of moods; he's foredoomed to failure.

He who, when work waits, cannot put himself in the proper frame of mind for the task gets little done today and less tomorrow. For having made himself the slave of mood, he finds its tyranny ever increasing and with each succeeding day more despotically exacting.

The task you now neglect will become doubly distasteful tomorrow and on the following day even thought of it will be positively painful. Flagger interest at the beginning is disgust in the end. Disinclination now is loathing after a while.

Work is the most satisfying thing in life, and the joy of creation the sweetest of all, but to be satisfied and happy your whole heart must be given to the task before you. Wandering wits and unwilling hands, it subdued and driven to toil, will presently be hungrily reaching for more labor, but he whose hand lags and whose wits go wool-gathering finds work a burden and mental application a torture.

Look to your "off-days" that they do not corrupt the days when you are "feeling right." Don't give way to your lazy moods. When your thoughts wander and your hand fails to show its usual cunning, take a grip on yourself and plunge into your task. It may be hard work for an hour, but will conquer mood if it is worthy of the name. You can boss your brain as easily as you can boss your hand, and it is a good deal more important that you do so.

Beware of mastering moods. He who surrenders is foredoomed to failure.—Uncle Gav.

Lumber Used by Agricultural Implements and Vehicle Manufacturers

Statistics of the lumber used have been received from one hundred and sixty-eight companies, consisting of the Agricultural Implement and Vehicle Manufacturers of Canada in six provinces, by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior. 76,474,000 feet of lumber were used worth $2,513,265, or an average cost of $32.86 per thousand. Ontario used nearly ninety per cent. of the total for the Dominion; Quebec purchased six per cent.; Manitoba four per cent. and Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island used very small amounts. Woods used in these industries require strength and durability which is shown by the large amount of maple, elm, oak, ash, birch and hickory that were used. Of the native woods, cherry was the most expensive at $104.00 per thousand, and ironwood the cheapest at $15.00 per thousand. Mahogany at $120.00 per thousand, was the most expensive of imported woods.

The species of woods having the technical qualities required by these industries at present grow only in small quantities in the agricultural and farming districts of Canada. For this reason the supply is rapidly becoming diminished so that unless steps are taken to reforest or conserve the production, we must depend more and more for our supply on the United States. The fact that the woods necessary for the proper building of agricultural implements cannot be secured in any quantity in Canada tends to increase the cost of manufacturing in Canada.

AMONG the prizes we are offering in our big Prize Contest is one of $100.00 (Prize "C") for the farmer in each Province who furnishes us with a photograph showing the best of any particular kind of work done on his farm during 1911 with "CANADA" Cement. For this prize, work of every description is included.

Now just as soon as you finish that new silo, barn, feeding floor or dairy, that you've been thinking of building, why not photograph it and send the picture to us? The photograph doesn't necessarily have to be taken by a professional or an expert. In fact, your son's or your daughter's camera will do nicely. Or, failing this, you might use the kodak of your neighbor's son nearby. In any event, don't let the idea of having a photograph made deter you from entering the competition. Particularly as we have requested your local dealer to help in cases where it is not convenient for the farmer to procure a camera in the neighborhood. By this means you are placed on an equal footing with every other contestant. Get the circular, which gives you full particulars of the conditions and of the other three prizes. Every dealer who sells "CANADA" Cement will have on hand a supply of these circulars—and he'll give you one if you just ask for it. Or if you prefer, you can use the attached coupon—or a postcard will do—send it to us and you'll receive the complete details of the contest by return mail.

If you haven't received your copy of "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete," write for that, too. It's a finely illustrated book, of 160 pages full of useful and practical information of the uses of concrete.

Write us to-night, and you'll receive the book and the circular promptly. Do not delay—sit right down—take your pen or pencil, and fill out the coupon NOW.

THE HOME

WHEN BABY IS TAKEN QUEERLY.

A few months ago, while enjoying the comfort of tea at home with my family the bell rang furiously, and a disheveled housemaid cried: "Come, doctor, as quickly as you can. Baby is taken so queerly."

As the house was very near I was soon with the little patient, and discovered the lady of the house much disturbed during the progress of a Sunday afternoon tea.

A cursory glance through the room revealed a dozen women of ages varying twenty-five to fifty, and the young mother, the centre of an anxious group, holding in her arms a child in the throes of convulsions.

To plunge the baby in a warm bath, ninety-two degrees Fahrenheit, put cold water to its head was the work of a moment, and I said to myself: "I wonder why in the world no one of these women knew what to do? Some of them are surely grandmothers."

Reader this is no uncommon experience for a physician, and I do certainly feel that lessons for mothers would be incomplete without some thought given to possible emergencies of this sort, and so this paper will be taken up with very practical details; and, in advance I earnestly hope for each one of my readers an opportunity to put the suggestions in practice.

And first concerning convulsions or fits. An attack of this sort may be the forerunner of very grave disease and, as such, indicates a severe type of the malady. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, cerebro-spinal meningitis, even pneumonia and dysentery, are sometimes ushered in. Dentition is accompanied by convulsions, especially in children of nervous temperament, and often from overloading the stomach a sensitive child may be thus affected.

The conclusion, whether arising independently or as a precursor of another disease, is usually preceded by some characteristic symptoms. The mother, if she have the habit of observing her child with care, will notice irritability, restlessness, drowsiness, and a sort of staring expression of the eyes, and she wonders why John or Harry, Ruth or Jane, has changed so much. The truth is, the little one simply feels uncomfortable, and does not know exactly what is the matter; and the convulsions may come like a streak of lightning out of a clear sky, and may even follow a little disturbance caused by the mother's ill-temper or a nurse's hasty word.

The indications are unmistakable. There is a peculiar, fixed, staring expression, a cry pitched very high, and seeming to have no reason in it, the thumbs are drawn toward the palm of the hand, and toes are rigidly fixed, and consciousness is lost; the body seems rigid, breathing irregular face at first pale, then livid and congested. This lasts what seems a lifetime to the loving mother, but it is only a minute, then all the muscles of the body alternately relax and contract, and a froth oozes from the lips. The breathing is very irregular, and occasionally the little one catches the tongue between the teeth, and with foam which exudes from the lips some little blood may come.

An attack of this sort is not necessarily grave, but it should certainly cause the mother to send at the earliest possible moment for her doctor, although the best of the work can be done long before the doctor comes, and it is my privilege to suggest some of the simpler treatments which can be attended to in the meantime.

Get some hot water quickly as possible, sprinkle a little mustard in it and be careful the water is not too hot, for fear of accident. Remember ninety to a hundred Fahrenheit is about right; better begin with ninety degrees, and gradually increase. Cold cloths should be placed on the head, and this should be kept up, with the bath, for about ten minutes, or until the child shows symptoms of recovering consciousness; then have it gently wiped, rolled in a warm blanket and put to bed.

It is always safe to use some little emetic, like salt and water; and if the pulse seems weak, rub wrists and ankles briskly, to stimulate the circulation.

In the early part of my life I had a very grave experience with a child who was never able to eat an Irish potato. One or two meals of baked or boiled potato would be quite sufficient to set the little fellow in convulsions. The frantic attempts of the family to save him from what seemed to them imminent death annoyed me very seriously, since the whole difficulty could have been avoided had only some care taken in regard to the child's diet; and this is the rule which can be too often repeated: Find out what disagrees with your child, and have the courage to forbid such diet.

So much for the convulsions. The next cause for anxiety is the colic, which often makes night hideous for many a father and mother, and makes also, of the child, who ought to be the joy of the house, a trouble and care. When a baby, apparently in perfect health, wakes from sleep with wild cries, the first thought of the mother is: "Surely baby is hungry;" and her first impulse is to supply needed nourishment. I would most earnestly beg that no one would be so unwise as to supply food to the poor little stomach which protesting by pain against some cause of discomfort. Because a baby cries, that baby is not necessarily hungry; and ordinary wisdom would lead the mother to inquire what indications there were in the movement of the child to suggest the cause of this cry.

Baby may be thirsty, therefore give him a drink. Baby may be cold, warm his feet and bowels. But if these simple remedies do not avail, then unbutton his clothing and look at his abdomen, and if you have a case of colic, you will see a swollen and sometimes knotted condition of the intestines underneath the abdominal walls. This knotted condition is due to the accumulation of gas, caused by imperfect digestion, and as the hand presses on the abdomen the pain is relieved.

Baby naturally draws his legs up when in pain; then, because this gives him no comfort, he sticks them out again; and also kicks, and throws himself about, and emits short, sharp piercing screams, and the little face indicates extreme suffering. Hands and feet may be very cold, and common sense would suggest that an extra heat should be applied; so place the baby on your lap, flat down on its abdomen; let the toes come as near as possible to the fire, rub the back gently, placing the tips of the fingers toward the sides, kneading the abdomen from behind toward the navel.

Half a teaspoonful of hot and slightly sweetened water will be a comfort to the little sufferer, and when the child is tired of lying on its face, turn it over toward the right side, but rarely to the left or on its back, because a person lying on the left side or on the back increases the tension of the abdomen. Our grandmothers used catnip tea and fennel seed tea, but the advantage derived from these decoctions was really from the quantity of heat given internally to the baby to supplement external warmth.—New York Ledger.

TO SAVE THIN STOCKINGS.

The popularity of thin stockings, which include lisle and silk, has caused individuals and firms to invent all kinds of guards to make these thin stockings wearable. The woman who indulges in them has added two or three kinds of "harness" to one pair of stockings, but she makes by it in the end, for her stockings last longer, and they do not show the large darns, which are not attractive. The first protection is a round chamois pad, which is attached to the end of each corset elastic and goes between the top of the stocking and the steel hook. The pulling of the stocking comes against the chamois instead of the metal, and, therefore, one does not have those unightly "Jacob's ladders" which ruin the best stockings ever made.

Another safety device is a toe guard of knitted silk. This comes in white only, and it can be worn under any color of stocking without showing because of its shortness. This catches the impression of the toe, and the silk stocking escapes.

Used in Canada for over half a century—used in every corner of the world where people suffer from Constipation and its resulting troubles—

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, stand higher in public estimation than any others, and their ever-increasing sales prove their merit. Physicians prescribe them.

LAUGHING AND SMILING ARE THE KEYS TO HUMAN NATURE.

Laughing and smiling are keys to human nature. Study a man's laugh, watch him smile and you will know more about him than you could know by listening for hours to his talk.

There are frank smiles, sour smiles, crafty smiles, cruel smiles, tired smiles, sickly smiles. Study them and learn to know them. Laughter describes character. The loud laugh sometimes does betray a vacant mind out sometimes it tells of superabundant health or of another nationality. A laugh natural and pleasing in an African might surely indicate intoxication in a certain type of white man, and the charming laughter of Italy or Southern France might mean insanity in some cold Northern being. Remember also that smile and laughter tell not only of different characters in different men, but tell also of the condition of the individual.

You can learn as much about a man by watching him smile as in any other way. In anger man becomes brutal, the animal comes to the surface, and you see little of the man hidden by the animal. In tears all men seem weak and foolish. Weeping with the majority of men is a lost habit. We no longer express emotions as they were expressed in the old days, in the famous song of Roland, for instance, when "One hundred thousand men fall to the ground fainting," as they see the dead body of Roland.

Smile and laughter carefully studied will tell you more about a man than any other study, except possibly the study of man in a serious, concentrated mood, the mood that tells whether it is really a man or only an imitation that you are studying.

Laughter makes life cheerful, drives away the blues; only, like happiness, it is contagious. Cultivate contagious happiness, and thus fight contagious disease.

There is no other remedy, at any price, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a 25c. box of FIG PILLS. Only curative results can come from taking FIG PILLS and a few doses mean clean, active, healthy Kidneys, Bladder and Liver—and no Backache.

Keep Off the Grass

Obedience—the Best Lesson That a Boy Can Learn—Scouts Urged to Stick to Rules.

(By A. Cooper.)

You cannot walk in any public park in England, I suppose, without seeing the sign, "Keep off the grass."

There are a good many orders like that in life—definite orders, unmistakable regulations, things which we must do, or suffer the consequences of disobedience. It is right that it should be so. Life is not a play-game. It is intermixed with play, but its main part is made up, or ought to be of self-denial, of doing hard, unpleasant, and irksome things and obedience is the best lesson which a man or boy can learn. This is why the scout movement is such a good thing for boys; it teaches them discipline, self-control, attention to details, and, above all, it rubs in the fact that without obedience and strict attention everything in this world would soon be in a hopeless jumble.

Of course, there have been cases of glorious disobedience. I would like to ask a company of boys if they can think of such a case.

If I had been asked when I was a boy, I think I should have said, "Yes, the most glorious case of disobedience in the world's history was when Nelson put his telescope to his blind eye and pretended that he could not see the signal 'cease action,'" at the battle of Copenhagen, and thereby won a great victory for his country."

But we must not forget that such a glorious instance of disobedience is the exception which proves the rule, and the rule undoubtedly is, obey orders and ask no questions.

"Theirs not to make reply, Theirs not to reason why, Theirs but to do and die."

Is not that the true spirit of the soldier? Is not that the sense of discipline which not only wins battles, but causes the country which possesses such splendid men to take the front rank in the world?

What do you think would become of our Navy if every officer in it were to take Nelson's one act of glorious disobedience as his model in his service for his country? Why, we should not be able to sleep at nights for fear of invasion, we should not be able to trust our Navy for five minutes.

It is its manly discipline which makes our navy what it is. Obedience is better than guns or armour-plate or Drednoughts. It is not so much the sun that matters, but the man behind it.

No one knows better than a soldier or a sailor the value of this respect for commands and regulations, even though they seem to be irksome and to be a fetter upon personal liberty.

You remember the old story about the Duke of Wellington and the farmer's boy at the gate. Waterloo had been fought and won long years before that little episode occurred, and you might have thought that the old Duke had forgotten the value of discipline, but he had not. He was out fox-hunting and wished to pass through a gate at which a boy stood with a hay-rfork in his hands.

"Now, my boy," he shouted, "open the gate."

"Can't, zur," said the boy. "Can't said the Duke, 'but you must.'"

"Sorry, zur," said the boy "but master said if it were the Duke of Wellington himself, I wurnt to let 'um through."

The Duke laughed, gave the boy a shilling, commended him for his sturdy defence of the gate and rode round another way.

Of course, keeping off the grass is a very trivial matter, but the principle which underlies it is not trivial, it is the most important thing in life. In fact, duty is made up of pebbles and clods of earth and rocks and sand and soil. These are all very trivial things in themselves, but they make a mighty impassable barrier.

A boy who does not obey his mother or his teacher will not obey his conscience when he gets older, and will not conform to the ways, rules, and laws of his country. He will want to go his own way, and it will end in disaster. He is sure to become a cropper. He is sure to tumble into one of the ditches of life. He has never learned to "keep off the grass" and he will find that things which seemed trivial once are far-reaching in their effects on his character, and his life.

There is a wise saying that it is well that a boy should feel the yoke in his youth. It is perfectly true. What good would a horse be if it was never broken in? Depend upon it, the boy who is determined to do as he likes and obey nobody, is the boy who, sooner or later, will have to do what other people like, and obey everybody whether he likes it or not!

DAILY AIR-SHIP FLIGHTS AT HALIFAX EXHIBITION.

The Annual Nova Scotia Fair, which Opens on August 30th, Will be a Happy Blending of Amusements and Educational Features.

The dates of the great Exhibition at Halifax are rapidly approaching. On the 30th of this month the Industrial Fair, of which the Province is so justly proud, will open its gates at Halifax. For the past couple of years the Commission having the Exhibition in charge have devoted themselves exclusively to what might be called the legitimate features or the educational aspect of the Fair. This side of the Exhibition will not be neglected in the coming Exhibition. The education exhibits in manufactures and our natural resources will be magnified and made the most of, but the Commission will see to make the amusements connected with the Fair a source of real attraction. Education and amusement will be combined in a happy way without the sacrifice in any respect of the one for the other.

A salient feature of the amusement programme will be the air-ship flights by Frank B. Goodale, an aerial aviator twenty-three years of age. The newspapers of the United States have devoted a great deal of space to the splendid work of Mr. Goodale, who will make daily flights from the exhibition grounds at Halifax, and who will be seen as an aviator whenever the wind is not blowing more than twenty miles an hour. Besides Mr. Goodale the Commission have secured seven good vandaville acts.

There will be horse racing on every one of the seven days of the exhibition.

A ROMANTIC FARM.

Sandwich Golf Club Has Bought the Prince Homestead.

The town of Sandwich has long been distinguished as a place of beauty as well as for its historical interest, and one of the most lovely, as well as the most interesting spots in the vicinity has been secured for the new golf and tennis club, in which many men from Windsor and Detroit are interested. The Oak Ridge Golf Club was formed some ten years ago and had a nine-hole course on rented property below Sandwich, but as a long lease could not be obtained it was decided to give up this property and purchase grounds where permanent improvements might be made with some confidence that such expenditure would not be wasted. With this in view an option was secured on fifty-six acres of the Park Farm, and a stock company was incorporated and sufficient stock subscribed to purchase this property and provide funds to make a good start towards laying out a golf course and fitting up a clubhouse. The credit of originating this scheme and successfully carrying it through is due to Mr. E. M. Morton, and shareholders are congratulating themselves on having made such a good purchase, for in a few years this property will be worth double the money expended. This venture will alter one of the most romantic places in western Ontario, for Park Farm was long ago the home of Col. John Prince, conspicuous for his forceful conduct during the Patriot rebellion in 1837, and particularly that part of it which culminated in the battle of Windor, where, as Col. Prince's official report states, "of the brigades and pirates twenty-one were killed, besides four that were brought in at the close of the engagement, all of whom I ordered shot, and it was done accordingly. This was certainly a drastic measure, and a military council looked into the matter and it was discussed in the Imperial Parliament, where the great Wellington himself spoke in behalf of Col. Prince, declaring that the circumstances required vigorous treatment; that no mob should be allowed to enter a country and march against unprotected citizens without being severely dealt with. Certainly the shooting of these prisoners cleared Essex County of those styling themselves Patriots."

The coming of John Prince to Sandwich was an event in its history, for he introduced foreign tastes and a flavor of the English gentleman of leisure. He had been a barrister in Gloucester, England, and a member of the Canadian bar in Ontario. It mattered little to him where he settled, so long as game was abundant and the company congenial. These conditions being fulfilled in Sandwich, to Sandwich he came in 1854, accompanied by his wife, three sons, five English servants, and a box of golden guineas so heavy two men were required to lift it. Two servants, man and wife, decided to try farming, so Prince looked about him, and finally purchased a beautiful piece of rolling land, directly behind Sandwich. He stocked the farm with thoroughbred cattle imported from England, built a house, and placed his retainers on the land. The woman, however, was an expert cook, and, being of country life, she and her husband established themselves in a hotel in Sandwich, where for years their house was famous for old English comfort and the excellence of its dinners. Prince then decided to occupy Park Farm himself. He added two large wings to the house, and turned it into what he called a shooting-box. He made the grounds beautiful with hedges, gardens and miniature lakes, he imported pheasants, peacocks and swans, and placed deer and other game in the natural woods adjoining. When he and his family were settled in Park Farm his hospitality knew no bounds; the house was soon filled with sportsmen, and the stables with their horses. Prince spent money lavishly, and was never known to refuse a loan nor take a note for security.

An Unprofitable District. Two very interesting reports on portions of the Northwest Territories, southwest of Hudson Bay, have just been issued by the Dominion Geological Survey. They are of especial value to Ontario, on account of the fact that the region concerning which they give information is that part of the unorganized Northwest Territories, formerly part of the district of Keewatin, which Ontario is so strenuously endeavoring to have added to its area. Judging from both reports there seems to be little prospect that the province will gain a region in which may be found any valuable economic minerals in paying quantities. Even if the difficulties of transportation are overcome, it is very doubtful whether the mineral found would repay working. Big Chiefs. It isn't necessary to go to Grankark to find a snag, independent principally and its ruler. "Big Chief" Elliott of the Six Nation Indians, who dropped in upon a Toronto newspaper, rules over a domain, namely, the reserve near Brantford. It is a 16 by 9 miles kingdom. The chief is a natural orator, with a gift of eloquence, which observers say, held Sir James Whitney spell-bound when the chief spoke with the deputation of patriots recently. "Big Chief" has a fluency which must be heard to be appreciated, and a vocabulary a Boston colorist would envy. He is also a colonel-sergeant in the 37th Regiment. Not to Be Forgotten. "I say, do you think much of Black?" "I do unfortunately; he owes me a ten spot." Abdominal Surgery. Abdominal surgery first was attempted in France in the fourteenth century.
