We feel that Bill C-155 is a product of the back rooms, that it is a product essentially of people in the Department of Transport who feel they know better in terms of western agriculture, the shape which grain production on the Prairies should take and the transportation of those grains. That Department has shown time and time again that it does not know better. It has made horrendous mistakes in the past that have cost the taxpayers of this country some billions of dollars. If Parliament was not here as an institution, I am certain that these people would have spent and wasted even more of the taxpayers' money than they did with Mirabel, Pickering and the passenger transportation system in this country. To allow these people almost a blank cheque is indeed very irresponsible.

What we have here in this legislation is a design to alter radically agriculture and the transportation of grains in western Canada. Earlier in this Bill the Government sets up the position of an Administrator and a Senior Grain Transportation Committee. We have argued in previous amendments that the Senior Grain Transportation Committee did not properly and adequately represent the producers of western Canada, the people who are directly affected by these policies. The Senior Grain Transportation Committee was stacked in favour of the railroads and larger corporations. We stood in the House and fought to enhance representation from the pools on the Senior Grain Transportation Committee. We still have to vote on that, Mr. Speaker, to see how willing the Government really is to make certain that farmer organizations like the pools are adequately represented.

In this Bill we have also seen the Government attempt to enhance the powers of the Administrator. The Administrator is going to have the power of sanctions and awards that it can level against the pools and the Wheat Board. These are tremendous powers in the hands of the Administrator. How those powers will be used we do not know.

The people of Saskatchewan are very paranoid about the intentions of this Government and they have every reason to be. This Government has not been open or sympathetic to the needs of western Canada and particularly to the people of Saskatchewan. Public opinion surveys in Saskatchewan indicate how strongly the people of Saskatchewan are opposed to this Bill. Let me repeat, Mr. Speaker, that the people of Saskatchewan are very paranoid of what this Government is intending to do, and they have every reason to be.

In addition, we now find that the role of Parliament, the role of the representatives of the people, is to be even further curbed. The Government has written into this legislation closure in advance. The people of Saskatchewan are outraged by what the Government is doing. They are outraged by Bill C-155. They are outraged by section after section of this Bill. What we are debating today is just one more item of outrage. It is no wonder that farmers in Saskatchewan occupied Government offices during the last few days. Surely the Government can take this as a signal of the degree of anger that exists in that Province. But no, the Government just buries its head in the sand and ploughs ahead.

Why is this Bill so important to the people of Saskatchewan? This Bill affects Saskatchewan more than any other Province. Saskatchewan is the big loser in this Bill. Hundreds of millions of dollars will be leaving that Province every year because of this Bill. Production of grain in Saskatchewan is our major industry. Towns, villages—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Transport (Mr. Flis) rises on a point of order.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member is never in the House, or comes in late and does not know where we are. For the Hon. Member's attention, we are not at third reading. We are at report stage discussing Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49 which pertain to Clause 22. I wish he would address himself to what is before this House.

Mr. de Jong: Mr. Speaker, I hope that that illogical and out of order interruption will not be taken as part of my time. What I am trying to say to the Hon. Member, if he would only listen and if it would only begin to sink in, is this: If he would only for a moment take that bloody smile off his face and begin to realize the seriousness of this legislation, the Hon. Member would begin to understand that what the Government is doing in this section is introducing closure in advance. I am trying to get it into your thick skull that this piece of legislation is drastically changing the whole way of life in Saskatchewan, not just its economy but society and culture as well. That is something that you darn Liberals, who are so smug and have enjoyed power so much that you become fooled by your own bureaucrats—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: With all due respect to the Hon. Member, remarks should be addressed to the Chair; and I am sure the Hon. Member realizes he is straying just a little bit.

Mr. de Jong: Mr. Speaker, I am sorry I did not direct my remarks through you. The feelings that I have are just further provoked by the types of interruptions and interventions that the Hon. Member just exhibited.

As I was trying to point out to the Hon. Member, all of us from Saskatchewan, whether we are in the Conservative Party or the New Democratic Party, have been trying to point out to the Government that what they are doing has serious ramifications not just for the economy of Saskatchewan, but for the culture, the villages, the towns and communities that have developed because of our major industry, the growing of grains. Regulations and laws have a tremendous effect upon the workings of our Province. It is not just something that should be decided by a group of bureaucrats sitting in the back rooms in Ottawa. It should not just fit into the needs of some railway company. There is a whole way of life involved here. To limit Parliament to only one hour of debate is an insult to the people of Saskatchewan and their representatives.

I see by your motion that my ten minutes is up, Mr. Speaker. If it is only one o'clock, I will continue my remarks after the adjournment.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member's time has expired. It being one o'clock, I do now leave the chair until two o'clock later this day.

At 1 p.m. the House took recess.

AFTER RECESS

The House resumed at 2 p.m.

LABOUR CONDITIONS

HIGH LEVEL OF YOUTH UNEMPLOYMENT

Mr. Stan Darling (Parry Sound-Muskoka): Mr. Speaker, compared with the average 2.4 per cent annual growth in employment between 1971 and 1982, this year's projections of 0.5 per cent are dismal. Economists say it is a respectable performance because a sizable increase in new jobs cannot come before business investment picks up, probably in mid-1984. In the meantime, youth unemployment is extremely high.

In contrast to the over-all trend, the unemployment rate for women aged between 15 and 24 rose in September to 16.7 per cent. The rate for men in the same age group was 20.9 per cent. These rates are far above the over-all 11.3 per cent unemployment rate.

The Economic Council of Canada in its annual review sums it up well. When all the sums have been tallied, putting people back to work or usefully upgrading their skills will be less costly than continuing to support idle resources. A large number of our youth continue to be idle.

LOUIS RIEL

HISTORIC DEBT OF PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE PARTY

Mr. Henri Tousignant (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce and Minister of Regional Economic Expansion): Mr. Speaker, in a speech he held in Quebec this weekend, the leader of the Progressive Conservative Party—I noted to my astonishment and concern—showed very poor judgment in saying that by supporting the unanimous resolution adopted by Parliament in favour of bilingualism in Manitoba, this Party was settling a historic debt resulting from the hanging of Louis Riel by a Progressive Conservative Government. Since the past prepares the future, the Progressive Conservative leader can not hope to wipe out his party's debt so easily or so cheaply. It is also incredible to see how he tries to fool people. He tells his constituents in Central Nova that he has not had time to think about whether he would be living in Quebec for the next election, while he is giving every single organizer in each Quebec riding he visits the impression that he intends to run in that riding. At that rate, he will have to run in 76 ridings, that is, the riding of Central Nova and 75 more in his native province.

SHIPBUILDING

CONDEMNATION OF GOVERNMENT POLICY

Mr. Bob Corbett (Fundy-Royal): Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the thousands of Canadian shipbuilders who have been unemployed for one, two, or three years, I would like to congratulate the Liberal Government for doing an outstanding job to encourage and promote employment in foreign shipyards.

The 1980 policy to slash the Shipbuilding Industry Assistance Program from 20 per cent to 9 per cent, and the failure to implement the promised tax changes to discourage the procurement of foreign equipment, have resulted in an influx of foreign-built ships twice as numerous as those built in Canadian yards.

The Government's plan to ensure work for shipyards abroad at the expense of Canadian yards has worked; employment in the shipbuilding industry has sunk from 14,000 to less than 6,000 nationally. Very real concern has been expressed by the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repair Association.

Excessive unemployment, and billions of dollars in torpedoed business, can be directly linked to government actions that failed to protect Canadian industry and encouraged the importation of foreign-built equipment. Canadian shipbuilders cannot afford the financial and personal losses that come from the Government's protection of jobs in foreign shipyards. We on this side, as usual, are in conflict with the policies of the Government and will return this industry to a productive, vital Canadian sector by implementing legislation that will do just that.

DISASTERS

STORM DAMAGE AT GABARUS, N.S.

Mr. Dave Dingwall (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources): Mr. Speaker, last week a raging storm went through my constituency of Cape Breton-East Richmond, destroying a number of private wharves in the community known as Gabarus. In addition to destroying those wharves, the major breakwater which had been in place for about 25 years was also destroyed.

I wish to put on the record formally that I will be approaching the Minister of Finance (Mr. Lalonde), the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans (Mr. De Bané), the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy), as well as the Minister responsible for Canada Works, to seek additional funding. It should be noted that I will also be seeking the co-operation of the provincial Government in Nova Scotia which viewed the disaster at Gabarus, to assure that it will also be providing moneys so that the facilities at Gabarus can be upgraded, renovated, and put back to normal in order that the fishing industry and the economic benefits of that area can be restored.

IMMIGRATION

FEES CHARGED PROSPECTIVE HONG KONG IMMIGRANTS

Mr. Ian Waddell (Vancouver-Kingsway): Mr. Speaker, on Friday in the House of Commons I brought up the matter of the immigration scam in Hong Kong. I mentioned the lawyers and so-called immigration consultants who are going over there and charging exorbitant fees for giving advice that could essentially be had free from the Canadian High Commission. The Minister should take this matter up with the president of the Canadian Bar Association to find out who these people are, what this is really about, and what he can do about it.

We need to upgrade the Hong Kong office. There are good people there, but there are line-ups, and files all over the floor because there is not enough storage.

There are even ads in the Vancouver Sun about this. On Tuesday, October 25, an ad appeared in the Vancouver Sun saying:

> Eligible for immigration. Make a solid investment in a precious metals refinery in Vancouver and become a Canadian citizen. $300,000.

It gives a telephone number.

There is nothing wrong with having business entrepreneurs as immigrants, but we should make sure that we do not give the impression that you can buy our way into Canada at the expense of the family class. Many of my constituents who have brothers and sisters in Hong Kong cannot afford $300,000, but they also want to get their relatives over here.

This is a real scam that is going on in Hong Kong and it is now going on in the Vancouver papers. The Minister should look into this. We should examine our immigration policy, which is inherently inequitable when you think—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member's time has expired.

NEW EMPLOYMENT EXPANSION AND DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

APPLICATION IN PETERBOROUGH AREA OF ONTARIO

Mr. Bill Domm (Peterborough): Mr. Speaker, for those who had exhausted UIC benefits in the Peterborough area, the NEED Program would allow them to renew claims after a ten week work period. However, I have now been informed that this work period has been increased to 16 weeks because of a supposed improvement in the unemployed rate for Peterborough. This is simply not the case. It is only applicable if Peterborough is averaged into the high employment area of Oshawa which is currently benefiting from an increase in production and sales in the automotive industry.

It is indeed unjust and demoralizing to design a project, the purpose of which is to instil renewed confidence in the unemployed, and then, simultaneously, extinguish their hopes by extending the work period from ten to 16 weeks in the middle of the program. This represents callous indifference to the plight of those so adversely affected by unemployment, and therefore demands immediate attention from the Minister of Employment and Immigration (Mr. Roberts).

The unemployment percentage rate for Peterborough must be determined separately from District 52 since District 52 included job growth in the auto industry to our south. I will be requesting Statistics Canada to supply this breakdown of the job losses in Peterborough separate from District 52 at the earliest opportunity, in the hope that a ten-week UIC qualification period might be returned to the Peterborough federal riding.

ANALYSIS OF AMENDMENTS TO CROWSNEST PASS RATE ACCEPTED BY GOVERNMENT

Mr. Gaston Gourde (Lévis): Mr. Speaker, I think it would be useful to let Canadians know to what extent the present Liberal Government has been analyzing proposed changes to the Crow Rate. Before Bill C-155 was tabled in the House last May, a number of consultations and meetings with the people concerned had already been held. At the second reading stage, 97 Members were given nine days to consider legislation, and they did so for 44 hours. In committee, the Bill required 31 days of work, 11 being used to travel across Canada in order to meet concerned citizens. The Committee heard 240 witnesses and 89 amendments were adopted in committee. Until last week's sitting, and we should include today's as well, about 200 speeches had been made at the report stage in the House. Opposition Members are being excessively touchy about their democratic rights when they claim that the Government is not giving them an opportunity to be heard. Canadians are prepared to have these changes adopted immediately, and I hope this will be done as soon as possible.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

JUSTIFICATION FOR UNITED STATES INVASION OF GRENADA

Mr. Gordon Taylor (Bow River): Mr. Speaker, the New Democratic Party and some of the Liberal "American haters" in this House are excellent examples of the verse, "All is yellow to the jaundiced eye." Everything which is anti-American is gospel to them. For example, the Communists say, and these Members of Parliament parrot, that the Cubans and Soviets were building an airport in Grenada for tourists, that the Cubans and Soviets on the island were labourers, and that the U.S.A. initiated the invasion.

What are the facts? Well, this airport has gun racks throughout the building, even in the toilets. Some tourist attraction! And how come these Russian and Cuban labourers suddenly have rifles and anti-aircraft guns with plenty of ammunition, all Soviet made? What about the warehouse north of St. George's which was packed with Soviet made AK 47 assault rifles, hand-held RPG7 anti-aircraft weapons, and 120 mm mortars in sufficient quantity to supply a battalion for a month?

Furthermore, at least six of the Caribbean nations testified that they asked the U.S.A. to participate. Prime Minister Seaga of Jamaica has stated publicly that the invasion was just in time to stop the Soviets from carrying out early plans, and I quote, "... to turn the island into a Soviet Cuban fortress". How is it that some Hon. Members of this House cannot see that the Soviet Communists are slowly trying to get bases all over the world for the great world takeover?

Americans are fighting, and some are dying, for all freedom loving peoples. God grant that the socialists in this House will open their eyes before Canada becomes the next victim.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I am sorry to interrupt the Hon. Member but his time has expired.

DISARMAMENT

CALL FOR SUPPORT OF PRIME MINISTER'S INITIATIVE

Mr. John Evans (Parliamentary Secretary to President of the Privy Council): Mr. Speaker, there can be no greater need for action in this time of international instability than the need for action to bring about a lasting and secure peace. In this Disarmament Week, Mr. Speaker, I call upon Hon. Members, and indeed upon all Canadians, to support the efforts of the Right Hon. Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) to rally world leaders around new and creative initiatives—

Mr. Nielsen: Where is the apple?

Mr. Evans: —toward effective arms reductions. The initiative of the Prime Minister is an act of personal courage and a continuation of—

An Hon. Member: No more Cabinet shuffles this year.

Mr. Evans: —Liberal Government diplomatic initiatives in the decades since the Second World War when Lester B. Pearson announced Canada's approach to nuclear war. He stated that there is no national solution, only an international solution. The Prime Minister, Mr. Speaker, is continuing the quest for a lasting international solution.

This effort is not, as the Hon. Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Mulroney) would have us believe, simply "philosophical musing".

An Hon. Member: I believe that.

Mr. Evans: Rather than attempting to gain partisan political advantage by undermining the effectiveness of the Prime Minister's bold initiative, the Official Opposition should put aside their partisan rhetoric in an effort to further the cause of peace. There are no second chances, Mr. Speaker.

An Hon. Member: Oh, John!

Mr. Evans: In the cause of world peace, as the old saying goes, if you are not part of the solution, you are part of the problem.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

POLITICAL PARTIES

INVASION OF GRENADA—POSITION OF PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE PARTY

Mr. Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville): Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak on the same topic as the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor), because during the last week the Conservative Party has refused to take a stand against the Reagan administration's invasion of Grenada. Meanwhile, in Britain, that Party's soul sister, Margaret Thatcher, has condemned the invasion as wrong. In fact, many of the Conservative speakers during the special parliamentary debate on Grenada last Thursday were dangerously reminiscent of the 1950 McCarthy regime in the United States.

I ask you, Mr. Speaker, where is the Party of John Diefenbaker, who as Prime Minister was not afraid to stand up to an American president? Where is the Party of Robert Stanfield, a statesman, and a man who was respected on all sides of the House for his balanced and moderate views of the world? Where is the new Leader of the Conservative Party (Mr. Mulroney) when it comes to standing up for Canada? The Conservative Party has been reduced to a branch plant of Mr. Reagan's Republicans. The Americanization of the Conservative Party is complete.

NORTHERN AFFAIRS

NORTHERN CANADA POWER COMMISSION—CRITICISM OF NATIONAL ENERGY BOARD REPORT

Mr. Keith Penner (Cochrane-Superior): Mr. Speaker, on Friday last the National Energy Board released its report on the federally owned Northern Canada Power Commission. Not wanting to be unduly harsh in my judgment of this report, I must, however, describe its recommendations as inept, inadequate and, above all, an insult to the two territorial governments and to the people who live north of 60 degrees. Rather than agreeing to the recommendations of a subcommittee of this House calling for the break up of NCPC into two territorially owned power commissions, with a debt free transfer of the assets, the National Energy Board argues for essentially maintaining the status quo.

It wants yet another federal regulatory agency to set rates and to be given complete and final authority in establishing NCPC's annual revenue requirements. The debt burden, it suggests, should remain, except for a very small portion.

What northerners want is to have their own public utility boards assume full responsibility for the setting of rates, and to have those rates roughly comparable to those in effect elsewhere in Canada. This is impossible under the present legislation which governs the Northern Canada Power Commission. Comparability in rate structures can easily be achieved by adding an energy agreement for cost recoveries in the North as is now done for health, social services, education, economic development, justice and public services, public works, and so on.

ORAL QUESTION PERIOD

[English]

THE ECONOMY

GOVERNMENT'S INDUSTRIAL POLICY

Hon. Michael Wilson (Etobicoke Centre): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Prime Minister in the absence of the Minister of Regional Economic Expansion. Statistics Canada in its economic figures the other day showed that the economy has dropped because of the poor performance in housing, wholesale trade, and manufacturing. This confirms the fears of a number of economists who have been pointing out that we are in a very slow recovery and, in particular, the Canadian recovery is looking much weaker than that of the United States.

Since the key difference between the industrial policies of the U.S. and Canadian Governments is that the Government of Canada has exercised a much greater degree of direct intervention in the economy, is the Prime Minister proposing that the industrial policy of his Government shift to a less interventionist policy?

[Translation]

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Madam Speaker, the Government's policy on the subject was published in the last budget, and also in a number of documents that were published subsequently to stress the importance of the private sector and the role it must play in Canada's economic recovery.

I may remind the hon. gentleman that during the first two quarters of 1983, Canada's economy was growing at a faster rate than the U.S. economy. In fact, our economic growth rate over this period was the highest of all major industrialized countries. We are waiting for the figures for the third quarter. As the honourable gentleman is aware, there was a slack period in July and August especially in August in residential construction as a result of termination of our housing construction stimulation programs. Since that time, however, there has been some recovery, and we believe we shall again have the same high growth rate we had during the first part of 1983.

[English]

Mr. Wilson: Mr. Speaker, the Minister gave us a long speech on economic policy, but did not address in any way at all the question which is put to him.

REQUEST FOR NON-INTERVENTIONIST POLICY

Hon. Michael Wilson (Etobicoke Centre): Mr. Speaker, let me go directly back to the main element of my question. A recent survey by the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce shows a clear desire on the part of business for a non-interventionist industrial policy by Government, for example, no bail-outs of sick companies, the use of broad base tax incentives rather than arbitrary, narrowly focused and, as the Minister knows, sometimes politically motivated grants to industry, and opposition to a major federal Crown corporation designed to invest in particular industries. Is the Government in agreement with this desire for a pull-back in its policies, which policies have intervened in the economy, presumably to benefit industry which clearly opposes these policies?

[Translation]

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, once again, I remind the hon. gentleman that the last budget contained many initiatives that were specifically aimed at stimulating the private sector. In fact, these measures involved funding of about $2.4 billion.

As for the survey the hon. gentleman referred to, you will recall that it was conducted in 1982, and that its findings reflect the views we have often heard in business circles, namely, a desire for less regulation and less government intervention. I believe the measures we have taken during the past year are a step in that direction, but I may remind the hon. gentleman that far from rejecting Government support, businesses are very much interested in obtaining such support.

This morning, the Minister announced, in my presence, a contribution to research and development at Pratt & Whitney, involving about $468 million over the next 10 years, to be matched by a $1.2 billion contribution by Pratt & Whitney, which will create 6,000 additional jobs and generate an additional $19 billion in sales over the next 10 years. That is a significant contribution and an important example of co-operation between the private sector and Government in creating jobs in this country and putting Canada in the forefront of advanced technology.

● (1420)

[English]

Mr. Wilson: Mr. Speaker, that is very, very expensive job-creation money.

MINISTERS' VIEWS ON POLICY

Hon. Michael Wilson (Etobicoke Centre): Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask one more question and I would like to address it to the Prime Minister. The Minister of State for Economic Development is clearly non-interventionist in his approach. He said that the Government should create a better business climate and not intervene directly. The Minister of State for Social Development in the other place takes a contrary view and wants the Government, through the Canada Development Investment Corporation, to invest directly in certain industries. The industrial community has clearly rejected this approach. I would like to ask the Prime Minister what is the policy of the Government. Should the Government invest directly in industrial corporations, or should it not?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, if the Hon. Member followed the reply of the Minister of Finance he would know that current examples were given of co-operation between the federal Government and the private sector, but co-operation where the private sector was holding the equity and we were encouraging development, either through grants for technical development or through tax incentives, some $2.4 billion of which were announced in the last budget.

The answer is quite clear. The Hon. Member refers to the CDIC and to the Minister in charge. The Hon. Member knows what the portfolio of the CDIC is. It is not for the CDIC to invest in the private sector. It is for the CDIC to attempt to provide better management for those shares that the Canadian Government—

An Hon. Member: Like Canadair?

Mr. Trudeau: —that the Canadian Government already owns as a result of us preventing the private sector from allowing the destruction of this aeronautics industry, both in the case of Canadair and de Havilland. All CDIC is doing is managing assets that the private sector proved incapable of managing and that we are now attempting to manage to keep this technology here.

CRITERIA GOVERNING CONTRACTS—UNEMPLOYMENT AT PORT WELLER

Mr. Joe Reid (St. Catharines): Mr. Speaker, in the absence of the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce I direct my question to the President of the Treasury Board who has a certain responsibility for the Niagara Peninsula as well as for southwestern Ontario. Last Thursday in St. Catharines, where the unemployment rate is already at 16.1 per cent, the highest of those metropolitan communities that reported, over 700 employees of the Port Weller drydocks who are unemployed were complaining and protesting about the fact that $4 billion worth of shipbuilding contracts had been let since June, 1983, and none had gone to Port Weller. Since Members of the Government have said that Port Weller drydocks will not share in the allocation of this money because it was not the low bidder, is the lowest bid now the criteria upon which these contracts are let?

[Translation]

Hon. Charles Lapointe (Minister of Supply and Services): Mr. Speaker, according to Government policy, when there is a public call for tenders, the Government always applies the criterion of the lowest bidder. This was done in the case of the six class 1100 ice-breakers. I would qualify my answer only to say that two of the six ice-breakers were to go to shipyards on Canada's West Coast and four to the shipyards in the East. The Port Weller dry-docks bid on the four ice-breakers designated for the East coast, and unfortunately, the bid made by the Port-Weller dry-docks was higher than the bids of the other shipyards who were awarded the contracts for the four ships.

[English]

SUBSIDY TO MARINE INDUSTRIES IN SOREL, P.Q.

Mr. Joe Reid (St. Catharines): Mr. Speaker, my supplementary question is directed to the same Minister, and I trust that he will respond this time. If the lowest bid is the criterion upon which these contracts will be let, does the Minister take into consideration what was announced last week in the awarding of those contracts? By that I mean the grants to the yards themselves, like the federal grant of $2,189,000 that went to Marine Industries which received a contract for two icebreakers. When letting contracts, does the Minister take that $2 million into consideration?

[Translation]

Hon. Charles Lapointe (Minister of Supply and Services): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member mentioned $2 million for Marine Industries Limited in Sorel and there was also an announcement that $1.2 million would go to Davie Shipbuilding Limited and more than one million dollars to Saint John Shipbuilding Dry Dock Co., Ltd., in New Brunswick. These subsidies were granted under the Shipbuilding Industry Assistance Program and represent 3 per cent of the cost of work and renovation already carried out. This amount was not considered when awarding the contracts for the six 1100 icebreakers. The amounts were a 3 per cent subsidies for previous work on ships or for shipyard renovation.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

INVASION OF GRENADA—SUGGESTED PARLIAMENTARY FACT FINDING MISSION

Hon. Edward Broadbent (Oshawa): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Prime Minister and concerns last week's invasion of Grenada. Last week the President of the United States, in attempting to justify the invasion, said that the decision had been made on Sunday, after being requested to invade by a group of east Caribbean states.

It appears from information that was provided over the weekend in Washington that in fact the decision to invade was made by the President of the United States and Mr. Shultz on Saturday and that, after that decision was reached, the United States drafted the wording of a request for invasion which was sent to the Commonwealth countries, and an appeal was made to the Commonwealth countries to use that wording when demanding U.S. intervention.

Considering that the Government of Canada and the Prime Minister were saying last week that we do not have enough information on this deplorable series of events in Grenada, will the Government now agree to send a fact finding group of Members of Parliament, composed of representatives from each Party, to the area in order to report back? Unlike the Conservative Party, we take a position on this important issue.

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I cannot add anything to what I said at the end of last week when last commenting upon this matter, which was that we are attempting to determine the sequence of events and the facts. At this stage I do not see the advantage of naming a fact finding committee of this Parliament to make that investigation. We will try to find the answers in order to satisfy ourselves.

Mr. Broadbent: Mr. Speaker, the Prime Minister knows that the events are not only profoundly important in terms of the impact in this region of the world but have very serious implications well beyond this hemisphere.

SUGGESTED COMPOSITION OF MISSION

Hon. Edward Broadbent (Oshawa): Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Prime Minister why, in the light of statements that he made last week, and in light of the statements made by the Acting Secretary of State for External Affairs, he would not agree to send a small delegation, composed of one Member of Parliament from each Party, and their staff, to visit the region and report back to the House and the people of Canada.

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, the answer is that the Government is trying to ascertain the facts for itself. When we know the facts we will be able to clarify some of these matters in response to questions from the Opposition. There is no interdiction on any Member of the House to go there and attempt to find the facts as well. However, for the Government to authorize Members of the three Parties to go there and find facts does not seem to me to be the right thing to do.

We are in possession of telexes. We know what our ambassadors think. We are trying to reconcile dates and conflicting views.

I answered the House the other day that we thought the decision was taken some time between Sunday night and Monday night. Apparently The New York Times has a contrary opinion on which the Hon. Member seems to be basing his question. We will try to find out, but I would think that it would not make the search any easier particularly to have the NDP and the Tories in the task force because, as the Leader of the NDP rightly points out, he has views and the Tories do not.

Mr. Broadbent: One must not totally despair over the Tories finally making a decision at some point about something.

TIMING OF INVASION DECISION—NATURE OF AIRPORT CONSTRUCTION

Hon. Edward Broadbent (Oshawa): Mr. Speaker, if the Prime Minister wants to rely simply on government sources, whether they are ambassadorial or others, could he now give the Government of Canada's view on when the decision was reached and who drafted the communique requesting American intervention? Finally, does he agree with the British firm that was hired to build the so-called military airport in Grenada that, far from being a military airport, it was constructed for civilian purposes and has been financed not only by the Cubans but by other western European States that are part of NATO? Does the Prime Minister agree with all of that?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I am sorry, I have not seen the statement by a British firm. I will look into it.

I do know that there has been an aid program of Canada to Grenada and, contrary to what the official critic of the Tory Party has said, that it was the highest—

Mr. Stevens: I did not say the highest; I said one of the highest.

Mr. Trudeau: One of the highest. I think it was six out of ten two years ago, and it was third out of ten last year. So one can say one of the highest, I suppose, because ten is not a very large number. However, it does seem to me that we have not denied that we have assisted, in some ways, the Government of Grenada. The House knows that we were hoping to prevent it from being pushed all the way into the hands of Castro and the Soviet Union, and that has been our policy.

On the specific facts of the airport which the Hon. Member asks about, it is not something of which I have knowledge, but I am sure we could find out.

REQUEST FOR REFERRAL TO STANDING COMMITTEE

Hon. Sinclair Stevens (York-Peel): My question is directed to the Prime Minister—

Mr. Broadbent: Here comes a position.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Stevens: My question centres on our request last week for a reference to the Standing Committee on External Affairs and National Defence so that we could look into the Grenadian situation with particular reference to what went wrong with the Canadian airlift, why Canada was shut out from any meaningful knowledge of what was transpiring, and what indeed was the role of the Canadian ambassador in Washington with respect to this affair.

Since the Chairman of the Standing Committee seemed to be well disposed to such a reference, would the Prime Minister assure the House that the Government will co-operate in every way so that the committee can not only have the reference but a meaningful hearing?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I think the question is hypothetical. As I understand it, the Committee has not been set up yet.

Mr. Stevens: It is a Standing Committee.

Mr. Trudeau: It is a Standing Committee. I am sure that, as concerns the terms of reference of a question to it, our House Leader will gladly discuss the question with the House leaders of the other Parties.

POSSIBLE CANADIAN PARTICIPATION IN PEACE-KEEPING OPERATION

Hon. Sinclair Stevens (York-Peel): Mr. Speaker, the Prime Minister will recall that I asked him a question with respect to Canada's possible participation in an observation group or peace-keeping group, with respect to Grenada. Will he bring the House up to date on what steps have been taken by Canada with respect to participating in such a group? Would it be a Commonwealth type of group? Most important, will he assure the House that the provisional Government in Grenada will be consulted and that they will not exclude such countries as Barbados and Jamaica from whatever force is put together?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, may I advise the Hon. Member that we have been in close touch with Mr. Ramphal, through our High Commissioner in London, on this subject over the weekend. I think the Hon. Member would be aware that it is not intended at the present time to constitute a peace-keeping force in the sense that a new force would attempt to interpose itself between the troops presently on the island. What is intended is an effort to help restore constitutional authority on the island after forces might withdraw. I believe that the form that a Commonwealth presence might take is still somewhat unclear, except that it could support an interim government and could assist in the holding of elections at an appropriate time.

INDUSTRY

PROSPECTS FOR FORT ERIE HELICOPTER PROJECT

Mr. Girve Fretz (Erie): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce who is involved in a Cabinet meeting behind the curtain. I understand that the Minister will soon be announcing a deal involving the federal and provincial Governments, Fleet Industries of Fort Erie, and a German helicopter firm.

As the Minister knows, this year the Niagara region has been twice cited as the unemployment capital of the country. First, is it true that Fleet will get the helicopter deal and, second, if it is true, when will the Minister make the announcement?

Hon. Ed Lumley (Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce and Minister of Regional Economic Expansion): Mr. Speaker, my experience in public office, both at the local level and at the federal level, is such that I believe premature discussions and announcements usually lead to very disappointing results. I would request that the Hon. Member refrain from discussing this issue until such time that we finalize negotiations with the company.

Mr. Fretz: I am not sure I appreciate the Minister's answer.

REQUEST FOR MINISTERIAL ASSISTANCE

Mr. Girve Fretz (Erie): Mr. Speaker, since hundreds of jobs are at stake in my riding, would the Minister do everything in his power to assist Fleet in getting this deal?

Hon. Ed Lumley (Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce and Minister of Regional Economic Expansion): Mr. Speaker, if the Hon. Member is serious about these jobs, I think, as I have suggested to him privately and now publicly, that the least said publicly during negotiations usually leads to more productive results.

STATUS OF WOMEN

REQUEST FOR EXPANDED JOB-CREATION PROGRAMS TO INCLUDE FEMALES

Mrs. Margaret Mitchell (Vancouver East): Mr. Speaker, last night the Prime Minister was the absent host for a lounge suit reception for women attending the federal consultations. Obviously, boogeying with Barbra in New York took precedence over the serious economic concerns of Canadian women.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Some Hon. Members: Shame.

Mrs. Mitchell: My question is directed to the Minister responsible for the Status of Women. Since the Government's job creation record for women has been very dismal, when only 20 per cent of NEED jobs went to women, what action will the Minister take, in co-operation with the Minister of Employment and Immigration, to expand job-creation programs to guarantee this year that women will have jobs at least equal to their participation in the labour force?

Hon. Judy Erola (Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring to the attention of Members of the House that last night's reception was co-hosted by three of us, including the Minister responsible for the Status of Women and the Secretary of State. We had a very successful event. I must also say that the Prime Minister's Office was very well represented at last evening's function and that this Government is hosting three days of consultations with the women of Canada, which began very effectively this morning.

I might add that we made absolutely sure that the Members opposite were also invited to the reception and very few bothered to turn out.

Mrs. Erola: I might also add that the employment figures which the Hon. Member has suggested are not the actual figures, and that the number of women employed in the NEED program are much higher than the statistics to which she has referred. Yes, the Minister of Employment and Immigration and I are working very seriously toward very specific programs aimed at the retraining of women.

SERVICES FOR FEMALE VICTIMS OF VIOLENCE

Mrs. Margaret Mitchell (Vancouver East): Mr. Speaker, I have a supplementary for the Minister responsible for the status of women. Battered women need protection now, as was promised in the House of Commons Standing Committee. They do not need just a federal-provincial report card, due in June, 1984, which is one of the things that came out of the meeting the Minister held last spring. What is the federal Government prepared to do right now to prevent further cuts in transition house services in British Columbia and other Provinces, and also to provide the kind of shelter that is urgently needed by women in the Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia?

Hon. Judy Erola (Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs): Madam Speaker, I am shocked—

Mr. McDermid: You are always shocked.

Mrs. Erola: —that the Hon. Member is not aware of all this Government has done in that area. As a matter of fact, last year as soon as the report was released this Government moved to finance more transition homes. We released 150 units immediately. We have exceeded that by at least 20 units in the past year. We have funded more transition homes in the past three years. I would suggest to the Hon. Member that she have a look at the actual figures and the thrust of the work that has gone on in the past year concerning battered women.

As to the project in the Annapolis Valley, I would suggest to the Hon. Member she bring it to my attention so that we can work on it very quickly to see that it happens.

FISHERIES

GOVERNMENT TAKEOVER OF BRITISH COLUMBIA PACKERS' FACILITIES

Mr. Thomas Siddon (Richmond-South Delta): Mr. Speaker, my question is addressed to the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans, if he can tear himself away from his briefing with his predecessor.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Siddon: The question relates to a very serious matter which is developing in British Columbia. Today the Government of Canada will close a deal with British Columbia Packers and hand it $9.8 million so that Small Craft Harbours Branch can take over the operation of the small craft facilities that were formerly provided for fishermen by B.C. Packers. Coincident with that takeover, the fishermen are to be charged, up front, exorbitant increases in moorage and storage costs. Contrary to the undertaking of the Minister in a letter to me, there apparently was no advance consultation with respect to these increases.

Will the Minister please explain for the fishermen, of whom over 1,000 are meeting this afternoon in Richmond, B.C., why he is nicking them at least $1,000 each in the aftermath of a very poor fishing season?

Hon. Pierre De Bané (Minister of Fisheries and Oceans): Mr. Speaker, this is a classical case where the Minister is damned whatever he does. Here is a company, B.C. Packers, which has decided to use its land for a housing development project. As you know, it has berthing facilities for over 1,000 boats there. I came to the conclusion that it was my duty to convince Cabinet to give me the money to buy that facility so those who have their boats there will not have to move either to Port Alberni or to other sites in British Columbia. This is what I have done.

As for the amounts to be paid by our fishermen, this, of course, is open for debate. I understand that in order to score some political points the Hon. Member is against the Department charging a reasonable fee. But I just ask the Hon. Member to look at what the private sector charges, particularly to those involved in sports fishing in B.C., and he will see the Department's fee is very reasonable.

Mr. Siddon: None of these fishermen are sports or recreational fishermen. Some of them operate small vessels. Some of them, particularly a large contingent of Japanese fishermen, were mistreated once before by this Government.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the hon. Member please ask his question?

DOCKING FEES TO BE CHARGED TO FISHERMEN

Mr. Thomas Siddon (Richmond-South Delta): Mr. Speaker, will the Minister please explain why the fishermen are now going to be paying up to $1,000 a year, whereas formerly they were paying virtually nothing for these moorage facilities? Is that a sign of progress? Is that a consequence of the Government's nationalization of our waterfront in British Columbia?

Mr. McKnight: It's user-pay.

Hon. Pierre De Bané (Minister of Fisheries and Oceans): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member is again trying to score political points and really is reaching the bottom. What we are talking about here is that the Government of Canada moved precisely to remove any hardship. But if the Hon. Member is now suggesting that my Department should not try to levy a small fee to have the participants of the fishery pay a small part of the cost of those berthing facilities, which will increase our expenditure on the small craft harbours in B.C. substantially, because of that major acquisition, frankly, I expected some more responsible comments from the former Parliamentary Secretary of the Department.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION

SIZE OF CANADIAN CONTINGENT STATIONED IN EUROPE

Hon. George Hees (Northumberland): Mr. Speaker, I have a question for the Prime Minister. When the Prime Minister visits our NATO allies in Europe this week, does he plan to tell them that this country, as a contribution to maintaining world peace, intends to restore the original size of our NATO commitment to 10,000 fully equipped men, which we pledged originally when NATO was formed, and which we maintained in Europe until 1968 when the Prime Minister took office and unilaterally cut that force in half?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member raises a very complex question. If I could refer him to my speech in Guelph on Thursday night, he would, I think, see the answers to that. There are two ways in which we can raise the nuclear threshold, one, by making the conventional force in Europe equal, by raising our expenditures in NATO on conventional arms, including the route which the Hon. Member indicates, that is, to increase the number of men and material over there. The other would be to have a successful follow through with the mutual and balanced force reduction talks in Vienna.

I would think it would be unwise to prejudge which of the two is better. But, as I said in my speech, surely the purpose of nuclear disarmament is not to make the world safe for more conventional arms. Therefore, the answer to the Hon. Member's question is not certainly that I would propose that we increase conventional arms in Europe. There may be another and a better route which would leave more money free for helping the developing world rather than to spend more money for defence, as the Hon. Member suggests.

REQUEST FOR RESTORATION OF CANADIAN COMMITMENT

Hon. George Hees (Northumberland): Mr. Speaker, would the Prime Minister not agree that NATO is the only effective peace movement this world has known during the past 30 years? Does it not make sense to restore the commitment which a former Liberal Government made under Mr. St. Laurent, when NATO was first formed, of 10,000 fully equipped men, an excellent force, and that that force be restored to its full size so we can play our full part and pay our full share of maintaining this most important peace movement that has taken place during the past 30 years?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Hon. Member would do me the courtesy of reading the "blues" and seeing what I said in answer to his first question, and then reflecting on it a little bit. All the Hon. Member is proposing in his second question, as in the first, is returning to what was. Would the Hon. Member also argue that we should rearm our 105s with nuclear warheads? This Government, when it made the decision to reduce the number of men in the European theatre, also decided to denuclearize our force in Europe. I see the Hon. Member nods his assent. This, presumably, has his support and I am very grateful for that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Hees: Mr. Speaker, I simply asked did the Prime Minister live up to the commitment which a former Liberal Government made to help preserve the peace in this world.

PUBLIC SERVICE

AFFIRMATIVE ACTION INQUIRY

Mr. Rod Murphy (Churchill): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the President of the Treasury Board. He undoubtedly knows that in the Throne Speech of April, 1980, the Government said:

> As a major employer in Canada, my Government will play a leadership role by implementing affirmative action measures in the Public Service.

That was three and a half years ago. We have no programs before us. We have no legislation before us. All the Government has is an announcement that it will be doubling the number of women in the management category in a year and a half if the implementation programs are accepted and implemented. When will we have real action by the Government to bring affirmative action into the Public Service?

● (1450)

Hon. Herb Gray (President of the Treasury Board): Mr. Speaker, my hon. friend must have been on another planet for the past six months. Last June, jointly with the Minister responsible for the status of women, and other Ministers, I announced the extension of an affirmative action program across the entire Public Service, covering women as well as indigenous people and the handicapped. We did not simply announce a doubling of women in the management category. We announced the beginning of a program which would have a number of milestones, with action taken both in the short term and over the next two years. The announcement about doubling the number of women in the management category which, if my hon. friend were sincere, he would applaud, is only one of the initial steps we are taking as part of the extension of that affirmative action program across the entire Public Service. I would ask my hon. friend to come down to earth, and then he would know what is going on.

CANADA LABOUR CODE

INTRODUCTION OF AMENDING LEGISLATION

Hon. Bill Jarvis (Perth): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Labour whose Department, I presume, is constantly examining the Canada Labour Code with a view to making amendments and updating that very important piece of legislation. Is the Minister considering introducing legislation in the forseeable future to amend the Canada Labour Code? If so, will he indicate to the House the nature of those amendments? Would they be either extensive in terms of their number, or very meaningful in terms of the potential change to the Canada Labour Code now contemplated?

Hon. André Ouellet (Minister of Labour): Mr. Speaker, I wish to thank the Hon. Member for his question. I believe he is as anxious as I am to see the present session come to an end, and I can assure him that among the major projects the new session will include, there will be a Bill proposing a series of amendments to the Canada Labour Code.

NATIONAL ENERGY PROGRAM

IMPACT ON INVESTMENT BY OIL COMPANIES

Mr. Jack Shields (Athabasca): Mr. Speaker, in the absence of the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources I will direct my question to the Minister of Finance. Arden Haynes, President of Imperial Oil, stated that Imperial Oil reduced its investment in Canada by $6 billion because of the National Energy Program. What is the Minister's estimate of the total lost investment to Canada because of the NEP, and how many jobs will be lost because of this lost investment?

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I would certainly beg to disagree very strongly with the statement of Mr. Haynes. In effect, the abandonment of the project at Cold Lake, for instance, was like the abandonment of other projects in the tar sands, resulting from the absence of growth in oil prices. This situation has occurred not only in Canada but in the United States and all over the world.

I remind my hon. friend that the same company, I believe, abandoned a project in the United States in which it had invested many hundreds of millions of dollars, around the same time. As a matter of fact I think it was a project which was ready to go into production and was to the tune of a couple of billion dollars. I cannot remember the exact figure, but it was a very large project. We have a situation where, all over the world, investment in the oil and gas industry has had to slow down quite significantly as a result of an absence of growth in oil prices.

EDUCATION

WOMEN'S ELIGIBILITY FOR STUDENT LOANS

Miss Pauline Jewett (New Westminster-Coquitlam): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Secretary of State. It also concerns the problems of Canadian women, many of whom cannot complete university and college programs because some provincial Governments, notably the Government of British Columbia, have tightened restrictions on eligibility for full-time student loans. This has had a particularly adverse effect on women. What action will the Minister take to improve federal loan assistance in such a way that it will not be vitiated by provincial action?

Hon. Serge Joyal (Secretary of State): Mr. Speaker, I have already written to all provincial Ministers of Education, in particular to the Minister of Education of the Province of British Columbia, underlining the understanding of what happened in the House of Commons last June when Bill C-161 was voted on, that the additional amount of money, the $60 million, would be passed on to students, especially students who needed it most, in particular, women. I have not yet received a detailed answer from the British Columbia Minister of Education. I have raised the issue with the chairperson of the Council of Ministers of Education, who is the Minister of Education of Nova Scotia. I propose to meet with him in the forthcoming weeks to make sure that we review the various initiatives which could be taken at the level of the Council of Ministers of Education to ensure that the understanding will be respected.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION

CANADIAN PARTICIPATION IN TRAINING EXERCISES

Mr. Harvie Andre (Calgary Centre): Mr. Speaker, my question to the Prime Minister is supplementary to an earlier one asked by the Hon. Member for Northumberland. The Secretary of State for External Affairs ten days ago in Halifax reaffirmed Canada's commitment to NATO, yet today the Prime Minister indicated that he is not certain whether our full commitment of material and manpower to NATO should be made. In particular, according to The Financial Post, Canadians were not even able to participate in the full range of autumn exercises of NATO because of budgetary constraints. If we are fully committed to NATO, as the Secretary of State for External Affairs indicates, will he not supply sufficient funds so that our troops in Europe can at least exercise with our allies to provide some deterrent? Otherwise, they are worse than useless and might as well be brought home.

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, obviously the Hon. Member was not listening to the question of his seatmate. The question was whether we would return to the 1970 or thereabouts situation. Therefore, the Hon. Member is perfectly unjustified in saying that I said that I was not certain whether our commitments should be fulfilled. Of course our commitments should be fulfilled. They are being fulfilled on the two-track. They are being fulfilled on our 3 per cent per year real increase.

An Hon. Member: They are not.

Mr. Trudeau: They are being fulfilled. The question was about something that happened 15 years ago. The Hon. Member is quite unjustified in saying that I said in my answer that our commitments should not be fulfilled. He is quite wrong, and I wish he would withdraw it.

Mr. Andre: A supplementary question.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Brampton-Georgetown.

Mr. Andre: I have a supplementary, Mr. Speaker.

OFFICIAL LANGUAGES

ISSUANCE OF UNILINGUAL FRENCH PARKING TICKET IN NATIONAL CAPITAL REGION

Mr. John McDermid (Brampton-Georgetown): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Secretary of State. It has been reported in the press that the Secretary of State is prepared, morally and financially, to support an individual in Whitehorse to fight a unilingual English parking ticket, up to the tune of about $25,000. Would the Minister be prepared to give me the same support after obtaining a unilingual French ticket in the National Capital Region last week?

Hon. Serge Joyal (Secretary of State): Mr. Speaker, the program that the Secretary of State administers in relation to the official languages of Canada is essentially based on Sections of either the British North America Act, that is, the Constitution Act, 1982, or on some relevant Sections of the provincial Act of the Province concerned. In the case of the Province of Ontario, there is neither a similar proposal in the Ontario Act nor in the Constitution Act of Canada which could give rise to legal proceedings. It is a different situation in Quebec, for instance, where there is already a case in the Supreme Court of Canada which has been supported by the Secretary of State, and in the Province of Manitoba where there has already been some money provided to a litigant.

After consultation with the Department of Justice, the amount of $25,000 was a fair assessment of the average cost of an action launched at the Supreme Court or Superior Court level, depending on the Province.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Waterloo.

Mr. McDermid: Oh, come on.

Mr. Lalonde: Don't be such a bigot and listen to the facts.

Some Hon. Members: What's going on?

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Hon. Members will bear in mind that the Chair is trying to accommodate as many Members as possible.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: A supplementary, the Hon. Member for Brampton-Georgetown.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. McDermid: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The answer to the question is no, he will not support me on that particular thing.

MINISTER'S POSITION

Mr. John McDermid (Brampton-Georgetown): Mr. Speaker, does the Minister not understand that his strident and unfair, one-sided support of bilingualism is not promoting bilingualism in Canada but is setting it back 20 years?

Hon. Serge Joyal (Secretary of State): Mr. Speaker, with all respect to the Hon. Member, when a citizen wants to go to court and launch an action against the federal or a provincial Government, claiming that he or she has the right, either under the Constitution of Canada or under the constitution of his or her Province, there is a legal question which has to be established. If there is a legal motive or a legal basis on which to launch the action, there is a program to support the initiative. If there is no legal motive, there is no program and no money to support such an initiative. That is the only answer I could give to the Hon. Member.

● (1500)

In Quebec, there is a legal basis of action, Section 133. There is no such Section in Ontario. There is a similar proposal in the Manitoba Act. That is why this House has voted on this. That is essentially—

Mr. McDermid: It was given to me in Quebec, in the National Capital Region.

Mr. Joyal: The Hon. Member mentioned the Capital Region. If it is in the Hull section of the National Capital, then he has a legal ground of action. There has already been a case in the Supreme Court of Canada, the McDonald case, which will be heard in the next session of the Court. There is no doubt that, if there is a legal ground for action, the Hon. Member will have access to the financial support of the Secretary of State.

PETITIONS

TABLING OF REPORTS OF CLERK OF PETITIONS

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I have the honour to inform the House that the petitions, with the exception of seven, presented by Hon. Members on Friday, October 28, 1983, meet the requirements of the Standing Orders as to form. Three of the petitions presented by the Hon. Member for Regina East (Mr. de Jong) and four presented by the Hon. Member for Comox-Powell River (Mr. Skelly) do not meet the requirements of the Standing Orders as to form.

Three Hon. Members have given me notice of points of order. All Hon. Members will be recognized. The Chair recognizes the Minister of State for Economic Development.

POINTS OF ORDER

MR. LUMLEY—APOLOGY FOR REPLY GIVEN DURING QUESTION PERIOD

Hon. Ed Lumley (Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce and Minister of Regional Economic Expansion): Mr. Speaker, during Question Period the Hon. Member for Erie (Mr. Fretz) asked me a very legitimate question. I want to apologize to him for my attitude. The negotiations are at a very critical stage. He asked a legitimate question. I did not answer it in a manner that is appropriate in this House.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Simcoe North (Mr. Lewis) has given notice of a point of order and the Hon. Member for Brampton-Georgetown (Mr. McDermid) will be recognized on a question of privilege.

MR. LEWIS—REPLY OF MRS. EROLA DURING QUESTION PERIOD

Mr. Doug Lewis (Simcoe North): Mr. Speaker, I have a point of order with reference to the remarks of the Minister responsible for the Status of Women during her reply to a question from the Hon. Member for Vancouver East (Mrs. Mitchell). The Minister suggested in her remarks that we were all apprised of and invited to the reception on Sunday evening. The best we can find out is that there were some telephone calls on Friday afternoon to some Members' offices inviting some of us to that reception. I suggest, as a point of order, that the Minister has come as close to lying as one possibly can in this House.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member has made his observation.

PRIVILEGE

MR. McDERMID—REQUEST FOR WITHDRAWAL OF UNPARLIAMENTARY LANGUAGE

Mr. John McDermid (Brampton-Georgetown): Mr. Speaker, I was called some names across the floor of the House which are very unfair. I am going to ask that they be withdrawn. That is my point of privilege. It was said by the Minister of Finance (Mr. Lalonde) that I was a bigot. To quote exactly, he said "Don't be such a bigot".

Mr. Lalonde: And listen to the facts.

Mr. McDermid: I want to make it very very clear to this House and to the Minister of Finance that there is nobody who has supported bilingualism in Canada more than I have.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. Will the Hon. Member please resume his seat. A reference to another Hon. Member in this context as a bigot is, in the opinion of the Chair, unparliamentary. If the expression was used, I invite the Minister, who is a distinguished Parliamentarian, to withdraw it.

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I certainly will withdraw it since it has been uttered by me as has been said. I did indeed say "Don't be such a bigot and listen to the facts", since the point raised by the Hon. Member was answered by the Secretary of State (Mr. Joyal) saying quite clearly that it was his privilege—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. Will the Hon. Minister please resume his seat. The Minister of Finance has withdrawn the particular word which is unparliamentary in the judgment of the Chair. That is the end of this matter.

ATLANTIC FISHERIES RESTRUCTURING ACT

MEASURE TO ESTABLISH

Hon. Yvon Pinard (on behalf of the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans) moved for leave to introduce Bill C-170, an Act to authorize investment in and the provision of financial assistance to the Atlantic Fisheries for the purpose of restructuring certain fishery enterprises.

Motion agreed to, Bill read the first time and ordered to be printed.

[English]

Mr. Deputy Speaker: There are a number of items under the heading "Motions". Shall I dispense?

Mr. Nielsen: As in the past, Mr. Speaker, on this occasion we will not insist upon the motions being read seriatim, but we would agree to your putting the question to the House generally as to whether Members having motions standing in their names wish to call them this day. I do not think you will find any on this side.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I am becoming somewhat concerned about a practice that is developing in the House which has the motions carried en masse rather than carried individually. Over the course of the last few days, albeit there were a large number of motions, on each occasion when we reached motions we have for one reason or another allowed that they be carried without each being read. I would like to indicate that we are not likely to give our consent on any future day after today to this practice being pursued.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, there seems to be a misapprehension in the mind of the Hon. Member that the motions are being carried. That is not the case. They are simply being called by the Chair. We are agreeing to an exception here because we want to debate the Crow rather than taking up time by putting all of these motions. Apparently the New Democratic Party does not want to do that. We will agree on this day and on tomorrow and on any other day where the Crow is involved to treat the procedure individually on that particular day.

[Translation]

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I think there is some misapprehension on the part of my hon. colleague from Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). The motions are not carried, they are only carried over. Furthermore, we are saving considerable time in this way, thus giving us a chance to consider a Bill that has attracted considerable interest on this side of the House and, I hope, on the other side as well.

● (1510)

[English]

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, there was absolutely no misunderstanding on my part. I know exactly what is happening. It is being carried over to tomorrow, the day after and the day after that. The problem, Mr. Speaker, is that the Conservatives decided to put down so many motions in an effort to block the Crow and then did not use them.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is it agreed that we move to Questions on the Order Paper?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

EMEC TRADING LTD.

Question No. 3,028—Mr. Cossitt:

1. To the knowledge of the government, what are the names of the officers of EMEC Trading Ltd., 555 West Hastings Street, Vancouver, British Columbia and are these individuals Soviet citizens and/or residents of the U.S.S.R?

2. At any time did the company use Canada Customs invoices that were not filled out and which were signed blank in Moscow in advance and, if so, what are all the details and on what date was the process discontinued?

3. Did the company misdeclare values on certain import entries such as (a) entry No. 286837 through Vancouver, October and November, 1977, resulting in a short payment of $2,300 (b) entry No. 204610 through Vancouver, February and March, 1978, resulting in a short payment of $125 (c) entry No. 022536 through St. John, New Brunswick, April, 1978, resulting in a short payment of $5,400 (d) entry No. 001088 through St. John, New Brunswick, May, 1978, resulting in a short payment of $4,200?

4. Did the Canada Customs Investigation Branch become aware of this matter and, if so (a) on what date (b) what investigations were made (c) was any action taken and, if not, for what reason?

6. Has the RCMP been involved in investigating the matter and, if so, what were the results?

Mr. John Evans (Parliamentary Secretary to President of the Privy Council): I am informed by the Departments of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, National Revenue and the Solicitor General as follows:

1. Departmental records do not contain the names of the officers of EMEC Trading Limited, 555 West Hastings, Vancouver, B.C. The names of the three directors of this Corporation are: Alexander V. Dgebuadze, Geoffrey Innes Edgelow, Leslie R. Peterson. Mr. Dgebuadze is a citizen of the U.S.S.R., residing in Vancouver, B.C., and the remaining two directors are Canadian citizens.

2. Customs is not aware of such practice.

3. (a), (b), (c) and (d) The import entries in question have been subject to review and Customs is satisfied that proper duties have been assessed.

4. (a) Information alleging undervaluation was received by Customs Investigations Division (Vancouver) in June, 1980. (b) and (c) The entries in question were already being reviewed for Customs valuation purposes.

5. Any information relating to entry documents is confidential pursuant to Section 172 of the Customs Act.

6. Yes, the RCMP commenced an investigation in this case, but subsequently learned that Revenue Canada—Customs was already reviewing the entries in question for Customs valuation purposes. Consequently, the RCMP investigation was terminated.

PROCESSING OF UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE CLAIMS

Question No. 4,655—Mr. Wenman:

1. Was a memo issued to all Members of Parliament on November 12, 1982 by the Minister of Employment and Immigration stating that "our agents are working many hours of overtime on evenings and weekends" to alleviate undue delays in processing unemployment insurance claims?

2. Are these agents being paid overtime and, if so (a) at what rate (b) what was the total cost to the taxpayer for the overtime payments?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): 1. A letter dated November 12, 1982 containing the words quoted was released by the former Minister on November 16, 1982.

2. (a) Pursuant to current collective agreements, agents are paid overtime at 1.5 times their hourly rate for hours worked in excess of the normal scheduled work day and for the first 7.5 hours of work on the first day of rest and double time thereafter. Double time is paid on the second or subsequent day of rest (must be unbroken series of consecutive and continuous calendar days of rest).

(b) As such, total agent overtime cost for the period April-December, 1982, amounted to $4,100,702.

JOB-CREATION PROGRAMS FOR HANDICAPPED PERSONS

Question No. 4,799—Mr. Howie:

1. How many permanent jobs does the Department of Employment and Immigration estimate that it created for handicapped persons in the fiscal year (a) 1981-82 (b) 1982-83?

2. In which industries and services were these jobs created?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): 1. Employment opportunities created through job creation programs are, for the most part, funded for periods of time ranging from several weeks to three years. Although many of the jobs created are not permanent, programs such as the Local Employment Assistance Program, the Canada Community Services Projects and the Program for the Employment-Disadvantaged create jobs which are designed to continue when federal funding ceases.

The following numbers represent the estimated jobs created for the handicapped under the job creation programs of the Employment and Immigration Commission for (a) 1981-82 and (b) 1982-83:

Program for the Employment-Disadvantaged	2,569	2,985
Canada Community Development Projects	1,747	1,700
Local Employment Assistance Program	779	608
Summer Canada	330	335
Canada Community Services Projects	162	178
Totals	5,587	5,806

2. The number of jobs created by sector for the Program for the Employment-Disadvantaged is the following:

Industrial Sector	1981-82	1982-83
Agriculture	62	80
Forestry	6	7
Fish and Game	3	2
Mines-Oil Quarries	2	8
Manufacturing	885	881
Construction	93	122
Transport	86	80
Trade and Commerce	656	816
Finance-Insurance	63	51
Services	698	912
Administration	0	1
Other Miscellaneous	15	25
	2,569	2,985

For the other job creation programs listed in 1 above, the number of jobs created is not available by sector.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE BENEFITS

Question No. 4,893—Mr. Parker:

How many persons in the constituency of Kootenay East-Revelstoke exhausted their unemployment insurance benefits in the first quarter of 1983?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Unemployment Insurance statistics on individuals who exhausted their claim for benefits are not available on a constituency basis.

For the first quarter of 1983 then some 22,500 individuals in British Columbia exhausted their unemployment insurance benefits.

USE OF COURIER SERVICES BY EMPLOYMENT AND IMMIGRATION COMMISSION

Question No. 4,940—Mr. Bradley:

1. Is it a practice by the Department of Employment and Immigration to utilize courier services other than the Canada Post Corporation services to deliver correspondence to Canada Manpower Centres that are occupying space in the same building as Corporation services and, if so, what is the reason for using courier service instead of what would appear to be the more convenient delivery system by the Corporation?

2. What were the total funds spent in the fiscal year 1981-82 on courier services by the Department and what percentage of that cost was to offices occupying the same building as the Corporation?

3. What was the total cost paid by the Department for postal services in the fiscal year 1981-82?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): 1. In some of the regions of the Employment and Immigration Commission it is a practice (i.e. occurs regularly) to use courier services to deliver correspondence to Canada Employment Centres occupying space in the same building as Canada Post services.

The reason for so doing is the faster delivery times provided by courier services (for urgent items) and in certain instances it is less expensive to deliver by courier than Canada Post.

2. The total funds spent in the fiscal year 1981-82 on courier services by Employment and Immigration Canada was $1,072,354. Approximately 11 per cent of this cost was for delivery to offices occupying the same building as the Canada Post Corporation.

3. The total cost paid by Employment and Immigration Canada for postal services in the fiscal year 1981-82 was $11,830,284.

RCMP OFFICER D. R. EWING

Question No. 4,944—Mr. Bosley:

Was RCMP Officer D.R. Ewing transferred from Hong Kong to Amsterdam and, if so (a) on what date (b) for what reason (c) who paid for the transfer?

Hon. Bob Kaplan (Solicitor General of Canada): In so far as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are concerned:

RCMP Officer D. R. Ewing was not transferred from Hong Kong to Amsterdam.

(a) He was transferred from Hong Kong to Bangkok in July, 1978, then from Bangkok to Amsterdam in July, 1980.

(b) In each case the reason for the transfer was to meet career rotational transfer requirements of the RCMP Foreign Services Directorate.

(c) The transfers were paid for by the RCMP.

BUS AND RAIL PASSENGER COSTS

Question No. 5,012—Mr. Mazankowski:

Was a study done on behalf of the Department of Transport to examine the relative cost of bus and rail for intercity passenger services and, if so (a) who performed the study and at what cost (b) what was the purpose (c) what were the major conclusions and recommendations (d) what steps has the government taken to implement the recommendations?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): (a to d) A Study is underway to examine the relative costs of bus and rail for intercity passenger services. The study is being carried out by Marshall, Macklin and Monaghan Ltd. of Toronto, on behalf of Transport Canada. The over-all objective of the study is to improve the efficiency of the Canadian transportation system by encouraging the use of the most appropriate transportation mode for intercity passenger travel and to assist in the work under way in the Department to assess the long-term role of each mode. To achieve this, the study will involve an economic analysis to identify the most appropriate application for rail and bus services within the intercity passenger transportation system including traditional buses, high capacity buses and innovative types of buses.

The cost of the study is estimated to be $49,635. The study was started in May, 1983 and is expected to be completed in February/March, 1984. Upon receipt of the contractor's final report, the Department will be in a position to review the conclusions and recommendations and determine what steps, if any, should be taken for their implementation.

PARTY CELEBRATING PASSAGE OF CANAGREX BILL

Question No. 5,013—Mr. Neil:

Was a party held at the Central Experimental Farm to celebrate the passage of the Canagrex Bill and, if so, what was the total cost?

Hon. E. F. Whelan (Minister of Agriculture): Yes. However, there was no cost to the taxpayer as the hospitality was provided through contributions.

QUESTIONS PASSED AS ORDERS FOR RETURNS

Mr. John Evans (Parliamentary Secretary to President of the Privy Council): Mr. Speaker, if questions Nos. 4,665 and 4,963 could be made orders for returns, these returns would be tabled immediately.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The questions enumerated by the Hon. Parliamentary Secretary have been answered. Is it the pleasure of the House that questions Nos. 4,665 and 4,963 be deemed to have been made orders for returns?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

NATIONAL PAROLE BOARD

Question No. 4,665—Mr. Howie:

1. What are the names of the chairman and members of the National Parole Board?

2. In the fiscal year 1981-82, what amount was paid to each member of the Board, including the chairman, for (a) fees (b) expenses?

3. What were the dates and locations of all Board meetings for the fiscal year 1982-83 to the date this question is answered?

4. How many times per year is the Board required to meet?

Return tabled.

FM PROGRAMMING REQUIREMENTS

Question No. 4,963—Mr. Beatty:

1. Did Mr. J. Sward, Vice-Chairman Radio for the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, state before the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture on April 26, 1983 that "it is common for private FM broadcasters to be required to ensure that more than 60 different mathematical criteria are met for each broadcast day. Very few of these criteria pertain to Canadian content . . . almost all are explicit program content directives from the CRTC" and, if so, is the CRTC aware of the statement?

2. Is it common for private FM broadcasters to be required to ensure that more than 60 different mathematical criteria are met for each broadcast day?

3. Are some of the programming requirements that must be met by most Canadian private FM radio stations that (a) no more than 50 per cent of all musical selections broadcast can have achieved a "hit" status as defined by the CRTC (b) no single musical selection can be repeated more than 18 times in any seven-day period (c) a set minimum (up to 22) of the 15-minute periods each day must be programmed in what the CRTC refers to as "mosaic" format requiring at least 30 seconds spoken word content from "enrichment" categories as designated by the CRTC as categories 2, 3A, 4 or 5 (d) not more than 50 per cent of any broadcast day can have more than three songs in a row without interruption (e) not more than 120 minutes daily of advertising content and not more than 10 minutes in any given hour is allowed and, if so, in addition to these specific directives from the CRTC to private FM broadcasters in Canada, are these broadcasters required by the CRTC to commit to other programming criteria as a condition of licence for up to five years and do these other program criteria include (i) a commitment to approximately the amount of time and minutes which will be broadcast weekly in music from each of their defined music categories or types (ii) a minimum commitment to the amount of news broadcast by the station weekly (iii) a minimum commitment to the amount of public service messages including weather, traffic conditions, etc. to be broadcast weekly (iv) a minimum commitment to the amount of time for sports reporting to be broadcast weekly (v) separate commitments for the amount of spoken word in "enrichment" categories?

4. Did Commissioner John Grace of the CRTC make the statement respecting the Commission's announcement earlier this year of revised programming requirements for FM broadcasters that "The majority statement leaves FM radio encumbered by excessively fine-spun regulations which allow broadcasters insufficient flexibility to respond alertly with their own professional initiatives to the changing tastes of audiences and to a diversity of markets" and, if so, does the CRTC concur with Commissioner Grace's opinion and, if not, for what reason?

5. In the view of the CRTC, what is the role of programming personnel working for the private FM radio stations?

6. Did the CRTC seek information concerning the (a) direct (b) indirect costs to private FM broadcasters of compliance with federal programming regulations and, if not, for what reason?

7. Did the CRTC receive complaints from private FM broadcasters that excessive regulation (a) imposes unjustified costs (b) inhibits creativity and variety and, if so, what was the CRTC's response?

8. Did the CRTC conduct a review of FM programming regulations and, if so (a) what was the cost to the taxpayer in terms of (i) person-years (ii) dollars (b) on what date did the review (i) begin (ii) conclude (c) does the Commission feel (i) radio station audiences (ii) radio station licences received substantial benefits from the review and what were those benefits (d) does the CRTC anticipate a further review of the regulations in the foreseeable future?

Return tabled.

[English]

Mr. Blenkarn: Mr. Speaker, I was wondering if the Parliamentary Secretary could somehow find time to answer question No. 1,741 placed on the Order Paper on November 20, 1980. That question involves the use or misuse of passes by Air Canada in giving directors of CNR Air Canada passes. I was wondering why that very simple information could not be obtained. It is the kind of thing that I think the public of Canada are entitled to know. Surely the use of free air passes given by an airline to other members of the bureaucracy in other Crown corporations is a matter that affects the profitability of Air Canada. I think we are entitled to have that information and there is no reason why that answer should not have been given in a three-year period.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, that is the first I have heard of this particular question but I will look into it immediately.

Mr. Friesen: Mr. Speaker, I would like to know why questions Nos. 4,367, 4730 and 4,737 have not been answered. The first question I mentioned was placed on the Order Paper June 10, 1982 and all it asks for is a list of the legal firms that have been given Government contracts. The other two simply ask for the guest list for the state dinner hosted by the Prime Minister in honour of Her Majesty the Queen in Vancouver and Victoria in March of this year. I want to find out whether the Government sees Her Majesty as a servant of the liberal Party or all other Canadians too. It would be a very simple question for the Parliamentary Secretary to have answered.

Mr. Evans: Once again, I will look into that but I can assure the Hon. Member that that is not the way to get additions to his fund raising list.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that the remaining questions be allowed to stand.

Mr. Parker: Mr. Speaker, the Parliamentary Secretary has answered my question No. 4,893 but I would like to ask where the answer to question No. 4,894 is. I asked that question on May 12. It deals with the Crowsnest agreement, which relates to the debate that we are trying to have. The question was:

With reference to the 50,000 acres of Dominion coal blocks in the Constituency of Kootenay East-Revelstoke, have there been any applications from or discussions with mining companies for the development of these properties and, if so, what were the names of the companies interested in obtaining licences on these lands?

It is important to me that these answers be made so that I can debate the Crow legislation in a very constructive way.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, I will attend to that right after Question Period.

Mr. Speaker, were the remaining questions allowed to stand?

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Shall the remaining questions stand?

Mr. Gamble: Question No. 2,374 was asked by myself on April 10, 1981. It was a very simple question which took about two and one-half lines in Hansard. It asks:

Was the Prime Minister in New York on government business during the weekend of April 3, 1981 and, if so, what was the cost to the taxpayer?

I think it is rather significant that I should be inquiring about the answer to that question placed on the Order Paper over two years ago since the Prime Minister was again in New York last weekend for presumably the same purpose, and I should be asking another question with respect to that. Surely after two years we should have an answer by now to what is a very simple question.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, I will look into that. I have now five or six questions that have been put to me and I will get on to those right away.

Mr. McKenzie: Mr. Speaker, while the Parliamentary Secretary is looking into five or six other delayed answers, I would like him to check one for me. It dates back to November 18, 1981. The question is: "Did three Liberal Cabinet Ministers take separate JetStars to Winnipeg for the official opening of a firm in Winnipeg and, if so, in each case other than the Minister and the aircraft crew who was on the flight?" I understand these three flights were flying in Liberal campaign workers to work in the last provincial election in Manitoba.

I wonder if the Parliamentary Secretary could find out what is causing the delay in answering this question, which is almost two years old.

Also, I have had a question on the Order Paper since June 29, 1982, No. 4,387, with regard to the hiring practices of the RCMP. They are having difficulty in western Canada. Unilingual English Canadians are unable to join the RCMP and I would like to get the answer why they are unable to join the RCMP. This question has been on the Order Paper for well over a year.

Mr. Evans: I will look into those as well, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Shall the remaining questions stand?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS

The House resumed consideration of Bill C-155, an Act to facilitate the transportation, shipping and handling of western grain and to amend certain Acts in consequence thereof, as reported (with amendments) from the Standing Committee on Transport; and Motions Nos. 47 and 49 (Mr. Benjamin) and Motion No. 48 (Mr. Mazankowski).

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to be able to rise in resumption of the debate on report stage of this Bill. I will not take the time of the House to give Hon. Members the benefit of the wisdom I accumulated after listening to several days of petitions, although it will be retained in my memory for years to come. What I prefer to do today is rather to present to the House a series of proposals that I believe would help improve the Bill and which would require unanimous consent.

We have had many days of debate and I think some very useful ideas have been proposed during that period of time. In light of those expressions of recommendation and concern, I thought we might use this resumption of debate to put on the Table amendments which we consider from each of our own groups to be of importance and of significance in improving the Bill and therefore ensuring that we have the right to debate and ultimately vote upon such proposals.

On behalf of the Government I would like to present a couple of key amendments and I would do so by indicating that if Members of the Opposition also wish to present amendments that they would like to have debated, or would like to have on the Order Paper, then on behalf of the Government I would certainly be prepared to provide to them the same courtesy if they would also provide consent to the amendments that I am prepared to bring forward.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. For amendments to be considered at this stage, unanimous consent would be required.

Mr. Nielsen: Let us hear the proposals before we seek consent, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I would ask that the Minister put forward his suggested revisions one at a time and we could deal with them individually.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I am quite prepared to accede to both those requests. I had intended to. The first one is to bring forward for consideration by the House an amended version of what is now called "the safety net proposal". Members will recall that previously we had proposed a safety net to protect or provide assurance for farmers against an increase in their costs in relation to grain prices. That was ruled out of order by the Chair. I would now like to move that:

Bill C-155 be amended by striking out the heading "Part IV," preceding Clause 59 and substituting the following—

Then follows a new Part IV. It is a very lengthy amendment running to some two pages. I have submitted copies to the critics of the Opposition. Rather than reading the entire amendment, if they would allow me, I would précis the contents.

What we are proposing is a safety net brought in over a graduated period, beginning at a 4 per cent level in 1984, 5 per cent in 1985, 8 per cent in 1986, 9 per cent in 1987 and 10 per cent from 1988 onwards. The safety net previously proposed of a flat 10 per cent would start at 4 per cent on the implementation of the legislation on January 1. We believe that would provide immediate protection for farmers against any change in the price-cost ratio. I am prepared to read the whole amendment but Hon. Members have copies.

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 37 by striking out lines 37 to 43 at page 19 and substituting the following therefor:

"(a) the estimated government commitment less an amount equal to the CN adjusment in respect of that crop year, plus or minus the total of the interim adjustment for the current crop year and the final adjustment for the preceding crop year, plus the shipper share limitation adjustment for the preceding calendar year, as determined under Part IV, by".—

I will provide copies of that as well. I think Hon. Members will see that it simply follows upon the first amendment that I proposed.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. In order that this make sense to anyone who wants to read it some time in the future, I wonder if the Minister would be good enough to put his amended safety net proposal on the record. It is two pages long but I think it is important that we have things in proper order so that they can be seen by anyone who may want to read them. I know that some Hon. Members have had the opportunity to look over the proposals because they were provided to us and we are grateful for that.

In the interests of completing the debate, however, I think it is important that the Minister put his amendment, get unanimous consent, then put his further amendment and get unanimous consent for that. In that way we would be quite clear on the process that was followed.

Mr. Mazankowsi: We would have no objection to that. We are cutting into debating time, however, and we are under strict limitation of debate. The motion the Minister refers to has been submitted to the Table and I assume it will find its way into the official proceedings. This happened on a previous occasion when the Minister rose to submit a similar amendment in a somewhat modified form. It found its way into the official record of proceedings.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has a suggestion to make at this point. Perhaps the Hon. Minister could table copies of the amendments he seeks to introduce and some time later this afternoon they could be moved. It might avoid difficulties if the amendments were tabled and Hon. Members had a chance to look at them.

Mr. Mazankowski: Further to that point of order, Mr. Speaker, if we have to await a decision on this, I would rather that the Minister read the motion into the record. Then we could dispose of it as the House Leader for the NDP has suggested.

Mr. Axworthy: Following on that, Mr. Speaker, may I ask if Hon. Members would be prepared to give unanimous consent that I move the consequential amendment I just moved to Clause 37?

Mr. Huntington: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. We have a narrative on the original amendment which I found very helpful. The consequential amendment is very detailed and I would like to have a narrative on that from the Minister.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, what we are seeking at this point is not consent to debate any amendment but merely consent to allow these amendments to be put on the Order Paper. If we have time we will debate them and vote on them.

What the Minister is seeking is unanimous consent to dispense with giving notice to put the amendments he is talking about on the Order Paper, even though some of them were declared inadmissible in the past. By unanimous consent we could do that.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair was under a misunderstanding of the Minister's intention. Obviously, leave to put them on the Order Paper is very different from leave to introduce the motions. Is there unanimous consent for the Minister to put these motions on the Order Paper?

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I think this procedure is becoming unnecessarily muddled. As I understand it, the Minister is asking for leave to have those motions listed for debate and for disposition at the end of the second day's debate. All we are asking is that if the Minister was simply to go back to his original motion and read it, we would then be able to give consent. He could then go to his second motion respecting Clause 37 and read it and we could perhaps give consent, then to his third motion on Clause 2 and read it, and we could give consent, and finally to his Clause 59 amendment and we could deal with that. I think we would then have what we want. He is asking for consent to have those questions recorded and put to the House for disposition along with the other motions that now stand on the notice paper.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, that is exactly what the Government House Leader is saying. If we give unanimous consent to the Minister, those motions will be placed on the Order Paper. The only difference in reading them out is that they will appear in two places, once on the Order Paper if consent is given and once in today's Hansard. The latter is not necessary if we have them on the Order Paper.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is the Minister seeking consent to have these motions placed on the Order Paper?

Mr. Axworthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is there unanimous consent that the Minister place the amendments he has in mind on the Order Paper?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I seek your advice on the point raised by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). I provided copies to Opposition critics so that they would have a chance to read them. If they are put on the Order Paper they will then be on the record and would not have to be read. I am trying to expedite this because the motions are lengthy and we are under some time constraint.

Mr. Nielsen: Just give a brief explanation.

Mr. Axworthy: The brief explanation to the amendment to Clause 37 is simply that it relates to the formula by which the allocation of moneys is determined. The shippers' share limitation would have to be built into that if Part IV is accepted. It is simply a way of recalculating the formula.

I should also like to propose that the House give unanimous consent to placing on the Order Paper an amendment dealing with the review inquiry. It will appear in written form and it is very lengthy. Basically what I am proposing is that the review commission that is being established under the Bill and which will be reporting its findings should look at the whole question of the method of payment and the impact on various aspects of agriculture. Under the legislation as it stands, the report of the review commission would simply be tabled.

I should like to introduce an amendment that would provide for a full day of debate in Parliament on the results of the review commission report in order to provide a clear connection between the commission's findings and the consideration by Parliament. This was discussed with a number of farming groups in western Canada and they felt it was important to ensure that Parliament was seized of the findings and that there was a full day's debate on them. This should respond to some of the Opposition's concerns.

I should like to seek unanimous consent to that particular amendment.

Mr. Mazankowski: We would agree to that, Mr. Speaker. I am not sure whether we are going through this step by step but we will agree.

Of course, we agree with the expectation that similar approval will be granted to four motions that we will be presenting. We hope that we can seek similar unanimous consent for presentation of these motions to be included on the Order Paper for debate and final disposition.

● (1530)

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, that certainly is the procedure which I am prepared to follow with other Hon. Members of the House. If Members on the other side wish also to present amendments for Order Paper consideration, our side is in agreement with that.

Finally, I have one final amendment which is again just a reintroduction of the amendment which was ruled out of order by the Chair during an earlier part of our considerations, some time back there in deep history. That has to do with amending Bill C-155, as follows:

> That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 2 by striking out lines 14 to 18 at page 2 and substituting the following therefor:
> "'grain' means any grain or crop included in Schedule 1 that is grown in the Western Division or any product thereof included in Schedule 1 that is processed in the Western Division and includes any other grain or crop grown in the Western Division . . . that the Governor in Council, by regulation made under paragraph 62(1)(b), prescribes as being included in Schedule 1;"

That is simply a requirement, Mr. Speaker, which is again contingent, I believe, on other matters which will be coming forward. However, it does give Order in Council approval for the inclusion of other crops under this schedule.

Mr. Deans: I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans).

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether or not the Minister was reading from his motion. However, he did not read what I have in front of me. I wonder if it was simply an oversight or whether he was just giving us a sort of outline of what it contains. He made no mention, for example, of the fourth last line, " . . . and any product thereof processed in the Western Division." He spoke only of the grain. I am concerned that perhaps he had overlooked it inadvertently.

Mr. Axworthy: It would only be as a result of my failing eyesight, having examined these amendments many times in the past. It was simply an oversight. Line 6 should read:

—and any product thereof processed in the Western Division—

Therefore, with unanimous consent given to these four sets of amendments, Mr. Speaker, we would be very pleased to have the opportunity to consider them at a future date.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, on behalf of my Party, I will certainly agree, particularly to the last one since I have the expert on the definition of grain sitting at my side, the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight).

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans).

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, we also give unanimous consent. While I am on my feet, we also have some amendments for which we would like to seek consent.

Mr. Mazankowski: A point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) rises on a point of order.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I believe that the Official Opposition has the right of presenting its proposed motions at this particular time. I was simply granting unanimous concurrence from our point of view.

Mr. Nielsen: That is all the Chair was asking for.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: With all due respect to the—

Mr. Mazankowski: That is all the Chair was asking for at that point in time.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair tries to proceed with the best judgment in the circumstances. The Chair did recognize the Hon. Member for Vegreville for whatever purpose he desired to be recognized—

Mr. Nielsen: Consent. It was for consent.

Mr. Mazankowski: Further to the point of order, Mr. Speaker, I did indicate at the very outset that we would be advancing similar motions and expecting the same concurrence. And the Minister stood in his place and agreed with that. I believe there are traditions, conventions and customs in this House. We found that out on a couple of occasions during the course of this debate. I believe, with all due respect, Mr. Speaker, that I have the right to present the motions on behalf of my Party at this time.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I had the floor, if I recall correctly, and I—

Mr. Nielsen: Only for giving consent.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is perfectly right. However, both Hon. Members concerned, who are reasonable men, will recognize the position of the Chair. The Chair recognized the Hon. Member for Vegreville and presumably recognized in the same spirit the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain. The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain is technically right in stating he has the floor. There is no dispute about that. However, I suggest that perhaps the Hon. Member for Vegreville should be recognized to present his motions, then the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain, because the expectation, whether rightly or wrongly, was that both sides were indicating their formal concurrence with the position of the Minister, and the Chair did assume that there would be a normal sequential presentation of amendments.

If the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain wishes to press his point, he will recognize the very difficult position in which he places the Chair. The Chair cannot be a Solomon and please everyone. It can only attempt to dispense the best judgment in the circumstances.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: We know what they think of the Chair. The way they treat the Chair, they should not even be recognized.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I ask the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain to defer and let the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) present his amendments. The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain was recognized and he is on his feet again.

Mr. Nielsen: Point of order—

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker. I seek the unanimous consent of the House to—

Mr. Nielsen: I have a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: May I hear the Hon. Member—

Mr. Nielsen: I have a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Yukon no doubt has a point of order. In the circumstances, I would like to hear just what the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain is proposing briefly, then I will hear the Hon. Member for Yukon.

Mr. Nielsen: He is proposing a motion. I have a point of order before he proposes it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I do not know whether he is or not.

Mr. Nielsen: I do. He has said so.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain has been recognized and the Chair has to concede that this is the case.

Mr. Nielsen: A point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Yukon on a point of order.

Mr. Nielsen: I believe it would help us all, Mr. Speaker, if we reviewed briefly the sequence of events and the procedures which we are applying here. The Minister rose to put four proposals to the House and to seek seriatim the unanimous consent of the House to put each one of those four proposals. After each of those proposals were put, the Chair asked whether there was unanimous consent to put each of those four proposals. On each of those four occasions, the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) rose and gave the consent of his Party, which is Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition in this place, and the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) rose and in each four cases gave his consent—

An Hon. Member: Oh, no.

Mr. Nielsen: Well, on two or three of them, perhaps not all. Nonetheless, that is the process in which we were involved. The Chair in that mode was asking for unanimous consent at the request of the Minister for placing his four proposals on the Order Paper. Now you cannot, when you rise to give consent at the request of the Chair to the Minister's proposals, then smuggle in amendments in the course of giving that consent. The job of this Party in the House is Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition. Any proposals to follow upon the Minister's, which are given first, naturally, by tradition, will be followed by proposals from Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, not from the little red rump down there.

Mr. Deans: Calm down.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: The splinter Party comes third.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In the interest of decorum in the House and the usual good humour which prevails at the beginning of a week, the Chair is respectfully asking the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain if he would perhaps concede that the Chair look to him for consent concerning the proposal of the Minister, and then allow the Hon. Member for Vegreville to move his motion, then recognize the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain, who undoubtedly also will have some matters to raise. The Chair appeals to the Hon. Member to accept this—

Mr. Yurko: Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair sees everyone, but I am sure the Hon. Member for Edmonton East (Mr. Yurko) will let the Speaker finish his remarks before he interrupts. The Chair appeals to Hon. Members to accept this, bearing in mind that it is not an easy thing to settle. The Chair is just trying to exercise fair judgment. The Hon. Member for Edmonton East.

Mr. Yurko: Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to bring to your attention that there is an Hon. Member sitting in this House as an independent whose permission must be obtained when unanimous consent of the House is asked. I notice that you had not made any reference to this Member at all in any of your previous remarks. I wanted to say to you, Mr. Speaker, that I am quite pleased to offer my consent to the four proposals put forth by the Minister before this House. I will be considering seriously offering my consent to the proposals put by the Hon. Member representing the Official Opposition, as well as the House Leader of the New Democratic Party, provided that I also have the opportunity to put forth an amendment and receive the unanimous consent of the House for such a motion.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair wishes to assure the Hon. Member for Edmonton East that his rights as an Hon. Member will be scrupulously respected in every way. The Chair assumes, not having heard to the contrary, that there was consent. The Hon. Member always has the right to rise and express his point of view.

At this stage, the Chair would like to recognize the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) but the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) is on his feet. I will recognize the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain briefly and ask that he defer to the express wish of the Chair under these circumstances.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I had not finished my point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) has risen on a point of order with regard to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain.

Mr. Nielsen: I have not finished it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I think, with all due respect, we may be close to a solution, if the Chair is reading he situation correctly. The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain has been recognized only for the purpose of giving his consent with respect to the remarks and the proposals of the Minister.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the dilemma in which you find yourself, Sir, and I can well understand why Members of the Official Opposition want to grab the floor away from me given that they want to move an amendment in which until this point in time they had expressed absolutely no interest, an amendment that we have been trying to move since April last, and I therefore propose to move it now. I would ask that—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: No, the Chair is not recognizing the Hon. Member for the purpose of moving a motion at this time. The Hon. Member has, however, made his point. I am sure that it has been noted by everyone in the country who is watching the television broadcast of our proceedings. The proceedings as reported in Hansard will amply show the remarks of the Hon. Member who put his claim forward with regard to the amendment.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. You yourself said that you had recognized me and that it was appropriate for me to seek unanimous consent having been recognized. There is absolutely no requirement on the Chair to recognize the Hon. Member for Vegreville ahead of me at any time. The Chair is entitled, under the Standing Orders, to recognize any Member he believes he saw first.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has recognized the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain for purposes of concurrence with the proposals of the Minister, and the Chair is now recognizing the Hon. Member for Vegreville for purposes of moving motions, and will subsequently recognize the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain for purposes of moving motions. The Hon. Member for Vegreville.

Mr. Deans: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, first of all I want to thank Hon. Members of the House for their indulgence, and I particularly want to thank the Hon. Member for Edmonton East (Mr. Yurko)—

Mr. Deans: Point of order!

Mr. Hovdebo: He has a point of order!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain continues to rise on a point of order although he has had ample opportunity to be heard. It is difficult to imagine that he has a point that he has not yet made, but he has the opportunity of expressing himself.

Mr. Deans: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I want you to tell me why it is that, having been recognized since you rose and indicated that I had been recognized and indicated not five minutes ago that I was entitled to move the motion, we are now having the rule changed because of the intervention of the Hon. Member for Yukon.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member please resume his seat? I am sure the Hon. Member, being a Member of some years' service and seniority in the House, will recognize that the Chair is in an impossible position—

Mr. Benjamin: Which you got yourself into.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) please retract his remark?

Mr. Benjamin: Retract what, Mr. Speaker? I did not have the floor.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: There was an intervention made which was certainly reflecting upon the Chair. If the Hon. Member consistently makes remarks reflecting upon the Chair, he knows the difficult position in which he places the Chair with regard to the Hon. Member and future proceedings of the House. Does the Hon. Member for Regina West care to retract his words?

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, after hearing from my colleague, the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain, and the Chair, I will be glad to retract the situation that the Chair allowed us to get into.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair appreciates the courtesy of the Hon. Member for Regina West. At this point, the Chair appeals to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain. He has made his point concerning amendments that may or may not be forthcoming. He certainly has his rights as House Leader of a Party in this House, but the Chair at this point would like to recognize the Hon. Member for Vegreville for the purpose of putting motions, followed by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain for the same purpose.

Hon. Don Mazankowski (Vegreville): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, and I wish to thank Hon. Members of the House for their indulgence, and particularly the Hon. Member for Edmonton East (Mr. Yurko) who has offered his concurrence for the submission of the motions that both the Minister and I on behalf of my Party will be presenting. Essentially, Mr. Speaker, I seek the same concurrence as was granted to the Hon. Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy), and there are three specific motions which I hope to be able to get unanimous consent to have inserted on the Order Paper. Regarding the fourth motion, I think there is a general disposition among all Members of the House to have it accepted, not only for debate but in principle as an addition to the Bill, which will resolve a problem with respect to the definition of the word "export".

The first motion I would like to present reads as follows:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 43 by adding immediately after line 34 at page 24 the following:

"(3) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, the rate a railway company may charge a shipper for the movement of grain for the period January 1, 1984 to July 31, 1986 shall not exceed the existing rates in effect on August 1, 1983."

By way of brief explanation, Mr. Speaker, that would have the effect of retaining the existing statutory freight rate as it now exists until July 31, 1986. That would be the period of time in which the review would take place to look at, among other things, the ability of the producers to pay the economic assessment and the impact upon individual producers and upon the agricultural community as a whole.

The second motion for which I would seek unanimous consent—

Mr. Nielsen: Put that one first.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. Since the Hon. Member for Vegreville wants to follow the procedures of the House as we have agreed to, he might at least allow us to pass judgment on the motions one at a time.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I am sure the Hon. Member for Vegreville was prepared to cede the floor to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain for comment at this point, having introduced the first of his motions.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. The Hon. Member for Vegreville is now asking the Chair to seek unanimous consent to permit the Hon. Member for Vegreville to put the motion, which he read and explained, on the Order Paper.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Vegreville is making the same request as did the Hon. Minister of Transport a short while ago. Under the circumstances, the Chair is asking for unanimous consent. Is there consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Does the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain wish to be recognized on this matter?

Mr. Deans: No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I thank you and I would also like to thank Hon. Members of the House for granting that consent.

The second motion for which I seek the same unanimous consent, Mr. Speaker, reads as follows:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 58 by immediately adding after line 13 at page 34 the following therefor:

"58. (3) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, based upon the recommendations of the committee established under section 59(2) to examine the method of payment, the Governor in Council may, subject to approval by Parliament, make regulations prescribing the manner in which, and the parties to whom, payment of the government contribution, including the Crow benefit, shall be made."

By way of a brief explanation, Mr. Speaker, that would provide for an enabling mechanism, pending the outcome of the review of the Commission of Inquiry established under Clause 59(2), for a modified method of payment, depending upon the recommendations that flowed from the inquiry, to be incorporated into this piece of legislation subject to the recommendations of the Governor in Council and subject to approval of Parliament. This deals with the distribution of the Crow benefit.

Under the provisions of the Bill, the total Crow benefit is paid directly to the railroads. If the Commission of Inquiry finds that there is a better system or way to distribute that payment, and a recommendation flows therefrom, this would enable that to take place.

I would ask, Mr. Speaker, if you would seek the unanimous consent of the House to have that motion placed on the Order Paper for debate and further disposition.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Vegreville seeks the unanimous consent of the House to have the motion which he has just read placed on the Order Paper for further consideration. Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

● (1550)

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, the third proposal concerns Clause 62 of Bill C-155. We are proposing:

That Bill C-155 be amended at page 35 by deleting lines 19 to 24 so that the clause would now read:

"62. Notwithstanding the Crow's Nest Pass Act, and any agreement made pursuant thereto, the Government of Canada, in the spirit of the Constitution of Canada which gives to the several provinces the proprietary interest in, and the right to legislate for, lands, minerals and resources within their respective provinces, shall, for greater certainty, confirm the proprietary ownership in all lands and minerals, including coal, within Parcels 73 and 82 of the Dominion Coal Blocks, to Her Majesty in right of British Columbia to hold, dispose of or otherwise deal with, as is deemed fit."

This particular clause in Bill C-155 as it now exists would see these lands revert to the federal Crown. We are suggesting here that these lands revert to the Crown in the name of the Province of British Columbia. Again, I would ask unanimous consent of the House to have this motion put on the Order Paper for debate.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member asks for unanimous consent of the House. Is there agreement?

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, of course we will be happy to give unanimous consent to something we have been proposing since the day the Bill was introduced. It is unfortunate that the Conservatives had not joined with us earlier in the debate.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member gives unanimous consent. Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I have one more motion I wish to present. I hope the Minister and the spokesman for the NDP will follow this very closely because I think that, in addition to granting unanimous consent to have this motion put on the Order Paper, I believe there is general agreement that the motion I will be presenting has support of all Members in the House. It is something that we have wrestled with in the committee and on the floor of the House for quite some time. It deals with the definition of "export".

Essentially, the proposal that I have is:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 2 by striking out lines 7 to 9 at page 2 and substituting the following therefor:

" "export" is respect of grain means shipment by vessel within the meaning of the Canada Shipping Act to any destination outside Canada and shipment by any other mode of transport to the United States for use of the grain in that country and not for shipment out of that country;"

As I said earlier, this particular definition has caused the committee and the House some difficulty, but I believe, in trying to meet all of the objectives and overcome some of the difficulties we have had with previous definitions, that this will more or less fit the bill. I hope that, in addition to receiving unanimous consent to have this matter brought forth for debate, we might also obtain unanimous consent for its acceptance at the same time.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is there agreement for the Hon. Member to place the amendment on the Order Paper?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Sid Parker (Kootenay East-Revelstoke): Mr. Speaker, I rise to ask for unanimous consent of the House to waive notice and allow the following motion to be put on the Order Paper. The motion is:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 62 by striking out lines 19 to 23 at page 35 and substituting the following therefor:

"the Government of Canada shall convey to the Government of the Province of British Columbia immediately upon the passage of this Bill all lands and the coal, mineral or other rights on such lands which it received pursuant to paragraph 1(i) of the Crow's Nest Pass Act."

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is there unanimous consent for the Hon. Member to present his motion for the purpose of placing it on the Order Paper?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Les Benjamin (Regina West): Mr. Speaker, I too would like to seek unanimous consent of the House to waive notice and allow the following motion to be put on the Order Paper and dealt with. The motion is:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 29 by adding immediately after line 45 at page 14 the following:

"(3) The Government of Canada shall provide the funds needed to rehabilitate to a level of utility allowing reliable year-round train services in reasonable circumstances those railway branch lines protected by order in council against abandonment to the year 2000, and such rehabilitation shall be completed by July 31, 1987."

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is there unanimous consent to placing the amendment of the Hon. Member on the Order Paper?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Bill Yurko (Edmonton East): Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the unanimous consent of the House to put forth the following amendment to Bill C-155 so as to relieve my anxieties with respect to this Bill which have, to a large degree, been lessened by what I have heard here today. I would like to ask the House to approve this amendment:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 54(1)(b) on page 29 by adding after the words "31.1 million tonnes" on line 15, the words "which shall be increased annually by one per cent".

This is in recognition of the fact that the grain industry in western Canada is a growth industry and will continue to grow from year to year. This amendment recognizes this growth. Its purpose is to provide the farmers of western Canada, particularly the small farmers, the appropriate compensation for growing grain, and not only growing new grains but shipping their grains to market.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Does the Hon. Member have unanimous consent of the House to have his amendment placed on the Order Paper for consideration?

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I just want to clarify that we are simply waiving notice and not agreeing.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Yes. Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Stan J. Hovdebo (Prince Albert): Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask for unanimous consent of the House to waive Notice and allow the following motion to be put on the Order Paper. The motion is:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 54 by striking out lines 33 to 45 on page 30 and substituting the following therefor:

change" means zero.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Does the Hon. Member have the unanimous consent of the House for his motion to be placed on the Order Paper for consideration?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville): Mr. Speaker, I ask for the unanimous consent of the House to waive notice and allow the following motion to be put on the Order Paper:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 54 by striking out lines 13 to 16 at page 29 and substituting the following therefor:

"obtained by multiplying the total number of tonnes of grains and grain products moved in that crop year by the aggregate of"

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Does the Hon. Member have unanimous consent of the House for his motion to be placed on the Order Paper for consideration?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. McKnight: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I would like to thank the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy), the Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), the Member for Edmonton East (Mr. Yurko), and my colleague for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) for the efforts they have put forward with respect to the definition of "export". When it is voted on, we look forward to having it included in the Bill.

● (1600)

Mr. Vic Althouse (Humboldt-Lake Centre): Mr. Speaker, I ask for the unanimous consent of the House to include another motion on the Order Paper. It has to do with the shippers' share limitation. The motion is quite lengthy. It is very similar, I suppose, to what the Minister moved earlier on. I would file it rather than read through the two pages. The basic difference is that it would put the price ratio limit per calendar year at 3 per cent.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is there unanimous consent for the Hon. Member's motion to be put on the Order Paper for consideration?

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, now that we have had agreement to have these motions put on the Order Paper for debate, the question arises when, if ever, will we have a chance to debate these points, which I think are pretty fundamental and go to the core of the Bill? I think the safety net proposal with respect to the freeze and method of payment is certainly a fundamental component in this piece of legislation. If these motions are simply going to be added to the Order Paper, the chances are they will not be debated.

Would there be a disposition on the part of the Members of the House to have these motions brought forth for immediate debate? If debate on them is concluded, then we could go on to the other motions appearing on the Order Paper. It would seem to me that we on this side particularly would like to debate these issues. I assume that other Members would see fit that that be done as well.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I have an observation at this point which might be helpful. We have before us Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49 on which debate has taken place but was not concluded. Would it be possible for the House to conclude its debate on these motions or stand them, if the House wishes? Is it possible for the House Leaders or representatives of the Parties to get together and come to some agreement which could be presented to the House as to how they wish to proceed at this point?

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, assuming that is possible—I imagine we can find the Government House Leader—what the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) is essentially asking is for the Chair to see if there is consent to go on with these fundamental items and stand the others so that there will be an opportunity to debate them.

I will certainly take the initiative and seek out the Government House Leader and, along with the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans), see what we can do with the rest, but in the meantime perhaps all other motions could be stood and we could proceed with the Minister's safety net proposal.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The suggestion of the Hon. Member for the Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) is eminently sensible. But there are one or two observations from the Chair. First, it appears that some motions are similar. It appears that they might be grouped for debate and it appears they might even be grouped for votes.

Mr. Nielsen: Only one.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Yes, but other motions were presented today. These might well be details that could be ironed out in private discussions among the representatives of the Parties. The Chair suggests that until such time as there is agreement, perhaps we could proceed with Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49, and possibly dispose of them. Or we could interrupt the debate or set them aside until there is an agreement for an alternative way for the House to proceed.

Mr. Nielsen: May I suggest, because of the fundamental nature of the amendments proposed by the Minister, the other two Parties and the independent Member, following the proposal of the Hon. Member for Vegreville, who has asked the Chair to reserve the matter, that we now proceed with the Minister's suggestion on the safety net and stand everything prior to that? There is only one amendment on the safety net. Let us proceed with that now. Let the House Leaders get together immediately to determine how we should proceed with the other amendments introduced today.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the Government I am prepared to give consent that we now priorize the amendments that have been presented in order to focus debate on significant items.

I do think the Hon. Member for the Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) is slightly mistaken. I do believe the NDP also presented an amendment regarding a safety net. However, I suggest that if you look at the basic thrust of the amendments, aside from the one on export which the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) has presented, at which we are looking favourably, there are two issues being looked at. One is the ability to pay and how we provide some protection on that issue, and the second is the method of payment issue and how the review period can be properly and effectively used and ultimately recognized by Parliament in 1985-1986. Those are two key issues. It would seem to me that if we could group debates around those issues, it would stand the Canadian people in good stead to debate then before we conclude report stage. If that is what they want to hear about and if that is the kind of exchange they want to have, then I would seek a way, either by House Leaders or by myself, of meeting with the Opposition critics to see if we could find a way of debating, certainly over tomorrow, those two key issues centring around the amendments that were presented today. I think we could do a real service to the public by doing that.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, we are not in a position to agree to that at the moment. We remember what happened to us on the day the time allocation motion was moved and how the Conservatives cut us out of the debate.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deans: We would be reluctant to enter into any kind of an arrangement sight unseen.

An Hon. Member: What a phoney!

Mr. Deans: The fact of the matter is that all of the amendments that we have before us are important, all of the amendments, not only the most recent ones, but all of the other amendments which are standing on the Notice Paper and have been waiting there for some time for debate. We are prepared, as we always are, to move through, as expeditiously as possible the amendments as they appear on the Notice Paper. If, as and when we get to the most recent amendments, we will debate them in the most learned and knowledgeable way, as we always do.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, if the New Democratic Party insists on debating frivolous amendments and leaving the issues, such as the very important issue of the producers' ability to pay and the method of payment, very fundamental issues, that go to the very central core of this legislation—

An Hon. Member: You can't be trusted.

Mr. Mazankowski: —it appears the NDP simply wants to filibuster on frivolous motions and fight the Bill, not on the basis of whether it is going to be in the best interests of the agricultural community or the producers of Canada but on whether in fact it is going to be in the NDP's best ideological and philosophical interests.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair is in the hands of the House. At this point there does not appear to be unanimous consent with regard to the suggestion of the Hon. Member for the Yukon. In the circumstances, the Chair suggests that we proceed with debate on Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49.

The Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) is rising.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I am happy to know that the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) called Motion No. 48 frivolous. I am happy to know that he is calling all his own motions frivolous.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is not making a point of order. The Hon. Member will be recognized in due course and will have an opportunity to present his comments on what is taking place in the House.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member knows that a point of order has to be a point of order.

Mr. Blenkarn: He hasn't got a point of order.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, with all respect, my point of order is exactly the same as the one raised by the Hon. Member for Vegreville. He proceeded to complete all his remarks on a spurious point of order. I would like equal time.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please.

Mr. Benjamin: The hon. gentleman for Vegreville is calling a motion—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. Is the Hon. Member suggesting that he himself has a spurious point of order? Is he saying himself that he is seeking the floor on a spurious point of order on the grounds that somebody else has a spurious point of order and succeeded? If that is the Hon. Member's argument, surely it is reductio ad absurdum. Surely he cannot expect the Chair to take that kind of argument on face value. The Chair suggests to the Hon. Member that the best course would be to proceed to a debate and, we hope, complete the debate on Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49, at which point the Hon. Member or some other Member of his Party can well reply to what he considers to be the allegations of the Hon. Member for Vegreville. But I suggest it is a matter of debate.

Is the House ready for the question?

Some Hon. Members: Question.

Mr. Althouse: Mr. Speaker, I assume we are back to Bill C-155 and Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49. To bring the House back to where we are in the debate, we have three motions facing us which make some amendments to Clauses 22 and 25. These are the clauses that deal with the way the House is proposing to handle recommendations from the Grain Transportation Agency Administrator. The Bill provides an opportunity for the House to discuss the proposed regulations of that agency and sets out the timetable and the time limits for such debate.

We are operating now under a form of closure under Standing Order 82 which allows for two days on report stage and a further day for third reading debate. The proposed change to the Act would provide for a one-hour debate under these circumstances. The regulations of the Grain Transportation Agency Administrator would go to the Minister who would file them before Parliament 15 sitting days after they had been presented to him. After having been filed and within five sitting days, either 15 Senators in the other place or 30 Members in this Chamber could cause them to be debated. The process of the debate would be that the regulations would be transferred to the appropriate committee where they would be dealt with fairly expeditiously and would be returned to the House or the Senate, depending upon where the initiation had occurred, and be debated for one hour.

The motions question whether the number of Senators and Members of the House should be the same or otherwise. In Motion No. 47 we are saying that it should take the same number of Senators as Members of the House of Commons to initiate such a debate and have it sent to committee. Also the Bill proposes that once the regulations have been put before the House or the Senate, they will automatically become law six months after being presented to the committee, whether or not they are returned from the committee, I presume, or 20 days after they were laid before Parliament by the Minister, if the House or the Senate chooses not to debate the regulations.

It is our contention that one hour is not an adequate amount of time, given the possibilities which could arise from these regulations. According to the wording of the Bill, the Administrator is responsible for laying out the awards and sanctions for all grain transportation participants; not only the railroads—and it may be changed as a result of some of the later votes—but also elevator companies, farmers, truckers, terminal operators, labour unions and perhaps even shippers on the seaway. Not only does he have the job of imposing awards and sanctions on the participants in the industry, he will be laying out by regulation the performance indicators, whatever they are. I presume they will be the basis for judging whether various participants have been doing a good job, whether it is adequate or inadequate, or whether a fine should be levied because it was judged to be inadequate. In short, we see some of the first regulations coming out of this process as being almost as complex and all-encompassing as the Bill. There could be a whole host of regulations going on for 30 pages or 40 pages. We do not think that that can be adequately dealt with even after committee work—and the committee is limited in its look at the regulations—in a one-hour debate.

The regular rules of Parliament should apply. The regulations in the Bill before us should be debated until the debate is finished. If the Government, whoever is in power at the time, thinks that time is being wasted by the debate, it has numerous ways of reducing debate. It can use Standing Order 82 which would limit the debate to three days, as is the case now, or one of several other Standing Orders and procedures to limit debate to as little as one day. However, nothing is as restrictive as the one hour in this piece of legislation.

Mr. Nystrom: It is closure in advance.

Mr. Althouse: As my colleague says, it is closure in advance.

I am somewhat at a loss to understand some of the arguments of my colleagues in the Progressive Conservative Party who have said that a three-day debate would be more adequate. For some reason three days has become an adequate length of time for debate. At the same time we heard a few days ago, when this debate was limited to three days, how inadequate it was. I think they are right when they say that three days is inadequate in cases where the proposal is very complex and all-encompassing. We say that the same rules should apply for debate on these regulations, which will virtually affect the entire transportation and grain handling system and the economy not only of western Canada but beyond.

These regulations are important enough to be worthy of full debate. Therefore we recommend that the House accepts Motion No. 49 that the question be debated until the conclusion of the debate and that every question necessary shall be put at the end of the debate. We hope Hon. Members will support that suggestion and see that it is the most democratic route to go, given that some of the sanctions, awards and performance indicators as a result of the regulations which will be proposed are so important that they may indeed require much more attention or as much attention as we have had to give to this Bill.

The House resumed consideration of Bill C-155, an Act to facilitate the transportation, shipping and handling of western grain and to amend certain Acts in consequence thereof, as reported (with amendments) from the Standing Committee on Transport; and Motions Nos. 47 (Mr. Benjamin), 48 (Mr. Mazankowski) and 49 (Mr. Benjamin).

Mr. Bob Ogle (Saskatoon East): Mr. Speaker, I rise to give what will probably be my last speech on the Crow debate. I realize that we tried hard in this particular debate but did not really accomplish anything which would basically protect the people I represent in the West. I feel this is very much like a last ditch stand, the last time one had something to say, something which could be very important. It will be appropriate if I could enlarge for a few minutes on the motion of a last ditch stand and how important it is, even if you did not win but stayed in the fight.

As we approach the month of November, in which people of many countries remember their dead, I remember in great detail visiting northern France a number of years ago on November 2, the annual day of the dead in France. The French people go to the old 1914-18 fronts to pray at the graves of their ancestors who died in that period. I had the opportunity earlier to join in a last ditch stand and visit that area of northern France, Flanders, with my father. I visited the old trenches and talked to the old soldiers who had been there at the time. They told about how they had built those early trenches. There was a front line trench and there was a position they fell back to.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I always enjoy listening to the Hon. Member, but with all due respect, I have to remind him that we are on Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49 which pertain to Clause 22. It would help this Chamber if he could stick to that clause and those three amendments which were grouped together by Madam Speaker.

Mr. Ogle: Mr. Speaker, I appreciate what the Hon. Member has just said. At the same time I hope the Hon. Member will give me a few moments of patience. Something that is as profound and important to the western part of Canada where I live is sometimes more clear if we use a kind of parable rather than a lot of statistical facts. I am basically saying that what we have here, as with those early soldiers, is a falling back trench by trench, trying in every way possible to stop what those opposite are going to do to the people whom we represent. Finally, I have come to the last ditch. I have no more place to fall back. The House has put on closure. The deal has been made. We know what the final outcome will be.

When I speak to Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49, I am basically saying that I have come to the last ditch, as others in my Party have done. I hope people will remember that as far as we could, we put up a good fight to save the Crow for the people we represent.

The motions now before the House are directed to the procedure for reviewing regulations proposed by the Administrator of the Grain Transportation Agency. A mouthful of words like that cannot mean very much to somebody who has not been following this debate word for word. Perhaps they would not mean much to somebody who has. The motions before the House are important. What they amount to is how this whole massive new Bill will operate, who will operate it, and who will call upon the Administrator to see that this Bill will be put into operation.

The motions before the House now deal particularly with the regulations and who can bring them in. As Hon. Members are aware, the first motion talks about the way the Bill is written to request changes in the regulations. It states regulations can be brought in by 15 Senators or 30 Members of Parliament. It is almost an insult to think that somebody would write a Bill like that.

Who represents the people of this country? Is it the Senators who got their seat by failing in a couple of elections, being a good fund raiser or for any of the different reasons that Senators get their seats, or is it the Members of Parliament, those who have gone out in the line, put up their name, stood and fought and presented themselves in such a way that a number of people in a constituency said that that is the person they want to represent them?

How could it possibly be that anybody writing a piece of legislation would make it sound as if a Member of Parliament only had half the wits of a Senator? I do not know what that means, half the wits of a Senator, but it is not very much. However, that is what the motion says. What we want to do in the motion is to make it equal, that 15 Members of Parliament would have the same weight in bringing about a request for reviewing regulations as 15 Senators would have. That would clearly be understood by all who understand the parliamentary procedure of our House of Commons.

The other motions have to do with the whole idea of closure and time allocation when the committee reports to the House. In Motion No. 49, my Party says there should not be closure. That has been demonstrated very clearly and very well by all Members on this side of the House and, in due course, will be demonstrated by Members of the other side. It is an insult to Members of Parliament that they do not have a place for debate. Closure will be automatically applied on debate. There will not be an open debate on regulations, which could be very complicated. There will be great complication in how the regulations will be put forward and how the procedures regarding the regulations will be put forward, as well as the penalty that will be used in the grain trade when people do not keep to the regulations.

This is very complicated material. The Government is bringing in closure as a prearranged device to keep Members of Parliament who are responsible from debating the Bill in the House of Commons. I hope the Government will be willing to see that Motion No. 49 is carried, that the motion will be brought forward in such a way that this House of Commons will not plan closure even before the event has taken place.

My point in this last ditch stand is that it is a rather sad moment. I really felt in this process that the Government would see what the people of western Canada were asking for and would have some kind of feeling and sensitivity with regard to their request that this regulation, which we have come to know as the Crow, which is part and parcel of the lives of western Canadians, be respected. Like the warriors who have finally gone from trench to trench and put up a good fight but have not been able to carry the day and who are now in their last ditch stand, I hope that that will be appreciated and understood by the people whom we represent.

Mr. John Evans (Parliamentary Secretary to President of the Privy Council): Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to prolong the debate on this. I listened to the Hon. Member's comments with some interest. This morning the Hon. Member for Kootenay West (Mr. Kristiansen) raised the same issue, that only 15 Senators would be required to precipitate a debate whereas it would require 30 Members of the House of Commons to precipitate a debate. Irrespective of what the Members in the New Democratic Party feel about the Senate, we have to all agree that they are Members of Parliament. They have a function to play in Parliament. They play a very useful role as a Chamber of sober second thought.

Apart from that, we should recognize that after the current redistribution or changes which are now before us with regard to the number of Members of Parliament who are to be in this House, we will have 310 Members of Parliament. Thirty Members represents about 10 percent of the House of Commons whereas 15 Senators out of 104 represents 14 per cent of the Senate. If we assume that the Senate has a role to play then it seems to me that to require roughly proportional equality with regard to the number of Members or Senators who would be required to precipitate a debate would be fair. Indeed, the legislation bends over backwards and gives the House of Commons the right to a debate when only 10 per cent of the Members so require, whereas it requires 14 per cent of the Senators to precipitate such a debate. Contrary to the views that are being expressed by the Members of the New Democratic Party, the House of Commons is put in an advantageous position. Perhaps that is by virtue of the fact that we are elected Members and they are appointed, but it is easier to precipitate a debate on this issue under this amendment by the House of Commons than it is in the Senate. Mr. Speaker, I thought I would point that out to Hon. Members and perhaps they could take that into consideration when expressing their views.

Mr. Benjamin: Why bother with the Senate at all then?

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I would like to add a few words to the debate this afternoon concerning Bill C-155 dealing with Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49.

I would like to say how disappointed I am that the Government chose to bring in closure on this particular piece of legislation which has become known as the Crow Bill. It is something we have always viewed as a right for the producers in western Canada. I feel that, as the Hon. Member for Saskatoon East (Mr. Ogle) referred to just a few moments ago, we are in the last stages or in the last trenches. At this point we only have this day and one more to debate in report stage. There will be one more day at report stage and one day for third reading. So we have less than two and one-half days to go on debating Bill C-155 because of the closure the Government felt it had to bring in which does not allow adequate time for debate in this House on the many, many motions that we have.

In the short time I have been here I must say that it has been the most complex piece of legislation that has been dealt with by this House of Commons. I was elected in the February 18, 1980 general election. Since then there has not been any piece of legislation that has had the complexity and the impact on the people and the grain producers of western Canada that this one has.

In regard to Motion No. 47, we are asking to change the current way in which the sanctions and awards can be brought before the appropriate committee. In some cases it may not be the Transport Committee. The way it stands now in Bill C-155 it requires 30 Members of Parliament or 15 Members of the Senate to bring it before committee. We are proposing that it be either 15 Members of the Senate or 15 Members of Parliament, to give it some equality. I know that the Hon. Member for Ottawa Centre (Mr. Evans) just described why it was that it should be 30 Members of Parliament and 15 Members of the Senate. One of my colleagues says it is because he wants to become a Senator. I think there is another explanation, and that is what he is describing as a system of proportional representation. If that is what the Liberal Government really wants, let us not play those percentages in the institutions of Parliament that we have now in regard to the House of Commons versus the Senate. Let us put in true proportional representation and have those people in the other House actually run for public office. If they can get elected, then let them deal with legislation that affects the grain producers and the people living in small communities of western Canada. As soon as those people in the other place get elected, let them start referring things to committee, but until that time I would rather not leven see it be 15 Senators or 15 Members of Parliament. My own personal preference is for the Members of Parliament to bring it before committee and not the people in the other place.

I would like to say that in many ways these motions are attempting to expand the role of Members of Parliament in reviewing the awards and sanctions in Clause 21 that will be designed and implemented by the Administrator. We have to realize that the Administrator is an individual who is not responsible to the Canadian Wheat Board, the producers' organization, but a person who is responsible to the Cabinet and who will be affected by all the political whims that result from this piece of legislation and other matters that affect grain transportation in Canada. I do not think that is a good situation. The Administrator should have guidelines in Bill C-155 to state what those awards and sanctions are based on. He should have some measures whereby he can tell whether there is efficiency or more productivity in the system or whether somebody is not honouring their responsibilities in terms of grain transportation throughout the country. The Administrator has quite wide-ranging powers and because of the way this Bill is set out those powers could be applied to those not directly involved in the movement of grain.

We had hoped, throughout the debate and the many meetings that led up to this legislation that the Canadian Wheat Board would find the control it needs over grain transportation in this country. If the producers want to have an efficient system of moving their grain, I think they have to have some real control over getting their products to the ports and to the markets. We do not know what all the final clauses will be, but it appears that this Bill is going to be in place.

Mr. Benjamin: Heaven forbid.

Mr. Anguish: Heaven forbid as the Hon. Member for Regina West has said. How can we tell whether those awards should be given or sanctions handed out? For the railways, there is a guaranteed annual income in this legislation, but what performance do they have to meet to get that guaranteed annual income? There is nothing in this piece of legislation that states what it is they have to do to get their guaranteed return of 20 per cent on their investment. Can the Administrator or the railways concoct some measurement of success a year from now and say, "Well, we have had a 1 per cent improvement in the efficiency of the grain transportation system"? Does that mean they get their 20 per cent return on their investment? Maybe the rail companies and the Government like that, but I do not like that very much. I would like to know what it is that the rail companies have to meet to get their guaranteed return.

I think it is an oversight role, but a very limited one, that Members of Parliament have. As I mentioned earlier, as the Bill now stands the Members of Parliament, or the Senate can refer a matter to the Transport Committee. When it comes back before Parliament we get one hour to debate it. That is shameful, Mr. Speaker. Even on the closure motion which the Government brought down on this piece of legislation, we had two hours of debate. Something as important to the livelihood of western Canada as the movement of grain, its main industry, making it one of the largest contributors to the balance of payments and international trade in the country, is only to be given one hour of debate.

Mr. Nystrom: Closure in advance.

Mr. Anguish: The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom) calls it closure in advance, and that is exactly what it is. The Liberal Government and the Conservative Official Opposition know that when people in the agricultural industry find out the implications of this legislation they will be very angry regardless of which Party forms the Government of the country. This is a regressive piece of legislation. We want unlimited debate when it comes back before Parliament. If the Government does not like what we have to say and what the people of Canada have to say, then it can bring in closure. At least we will get two hours of debate under that system.

I see that my time has expired, Mr. Speaker, and that you are rising to your feet. I should like to ask for unanimous consent to continue.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is there unanimous consent for the Hon. Member to continue?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: There is not unanimous consent.

[Translation]

Mr. Gaston Gourde (Lévis): Mr. Speaker, I see the Members of the New Democratic Party are glad to hear their Liberal colleagues. I may remind my honourable colleagues opposite that if we had not had this avalanche of motions during the last few weeks, the mood of this debate might have been a little more serene, which would have benefited all Canadians.

Mr. Speaker, I am supposed to speak today to motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49 to amend Bill C-155. The content of these motions, and the speeches we have heard today and on previous days, give the impression that Opposition Members are extremely touchy about their democratic rights, to say the least. I said today in a motion under Standing Order 21 that Bill C-155 had been the subject of frequent discussion, had been debated in public, in the House and in Committee, and probably for the first time in the Parliament of Canada—nor is it usual in our Provincial legislatures,—proposed regulations may be laid before Parliament. I think that in their comments, Opposition Members have neglected to mention that proposed regulations to implement Clause 21(1) of Bill C-155 will be laid before each House of Parliament. In fact, the procedure is that proposed regulations are presented in this House. As soon as they have been presented, they may or may not be referred to Committee. I may refer the Members of the Opposition to Clauses 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25 of Bill C-155.

Therefore, as indicated in Clause 22, proposed regulations are laid before each House of Parliament. That is what the Clause says. Second, fifteen Senators or thirty Members of the House of Commons may decide that the proposed regulations be referred to Committee. I must agree with what the Parliamentary Secretary to the President of the Privy Council said earlier, when he said: All right, I realize that to the New Democratic Party, thirty Members may be a bit much if they happen to be the only ones to want a debate on the issue, especially since they cannot be certain about their Party's future. However, thirty Members is still less than 10 per cent of the full membership of the House. I repeat, to say that the Government is taking too big a slice of the pie is taking a rather exaggerated view of one's democratic rights.

Therefore, fifteen Senators or thirty Members of the House of Commons may refer to Committee—

[English]

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I wonder if the Hon. Member would be kind enough to entertain a question at this time?

Mr. Gourde: Mr. Speaker, I do not think we have yet reached questions, and I would therefore like to finish what I have to say, and perhaps later I could answer one of the Hon. Member's questions.

I myself, although unfortunately I have not had occasion to do so, have a number of questions to put to the Members of the New Democratic Party, because when we went to British Columbia, we heard comments by mayors of municipalities of British Columbia who said they failed to understand how throughout the debate on the Crow, the New Democratic Party Members, and they were very clear about this, had neglected to defend the interests of the people of British Columbia just so they could read a series of petitions. Mr. Speaker, we would have to look at the text of the comments made by the mayors of four municipalities. I do not remember their names, when we sat in Vancouver in August, and then we could see, or possibly hear, but in any case we could see exactly what was said, and I am sure that all Members of this House would find it very useful to know the views of British Columbia taxpayers on the performance of the Members of the New Democratic Party.

In any case, what is also important in this Bill is that a committee to which a proposed regulation—

Here I am reading Clause 22(3) of the Bill:

A committee to which a proposed regulation is referred under subsection (2) shall forthwith consider the proposed regulation and report thereon to the Senate or House of Commons, as the case may be, within thirty sitting days after the referral is made.

Now, since this afternoon—I realize I may have missed some of the debate—all I heard Members discussing was this one hour of debate in the House of Commons. However, the Clause goes on to indicate that proposed regulations will be examined for thirty days before the Committee to which they have been referred.

I think that once the debate on Bill C-155 is over, it would be extremely unfortunate if the first time proposed regulations are laid before the House or its Committees, we would again have to go through a full debate on the Crow in one or two or five years. In the West, we were told by interested parties, both in public and in private, that it took guts to make changes in the Crow rate. They were congratulating us, and perhaps if Hon. Members would give me a chance, I could find in the committee proceedings the part where they congratulated us, and I am not saying that everyone was, because you cannot please everyone, but they were congratulating the Government for acting as it did, because it was not easy to deal with the Crow rate.

In the circumstances, Mr. Speaker, I think there has been abuse. In committee, all these amendments did not give rise to any lengthy debate among the Parties. They were discussed only for a few minutes.

Not knowing whether the debate will be resumed or not is not the worst. The worst problem with the debate on changes in the Crow rate is that we don't know what the Opposition parties will be thinking tomorrow.

The New Democratic Party showed some consistency in the matter, on Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49 and in the entire debate. It showed some back bone, because at least its Members were opposed. I do not agree with them, but at least they were opposed from the start. The Progressive Conservative Party has been less consistent in its policy. I think it is an open secret that the Progressive Conservative Party and its Members, as far as Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49 and the rest of the debate is concerned, have changed position four or five times since the debate began. My problem is not whether Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49 and the clauses of this Bill to which amendments are being requested would constitute a valid subject of debate in the future, my problem is, how many times does the Progressive Conservative Party intend to change its position? Not long ago, I read an article in La terre de chez-nous by Mario Dumais. It was an editorial, under the heading: The Conservatives and the Crow. One party, three policies. Subsequently, in some comments of my own in the House, said "One party, four policies", because the Progressive Conservative Party had one policy in Quebec and another policy in the West, but in fact, it has none at all. During the debate in committee, if I remember correctly, they changed policies twice, and according to what we are hearing today, the Progressive Conservative Party would have us believe it favors the status quo. However, even the present leader of the Official Opposition (Mr. Mulroney), during the last leadership convention, insisted that the Government was going in the right direction. He was discussing the changes in Bill C-155, tabled in May. He insisted that the Government was going in the right direction. He said that the then Minister of Transport should perhaps be willing to compromise, but that he was on the right track with Bill C-155. Since then, we all know what happened. One evening, the Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) was sitting in committee, and he probably decided it was his party's official position, you never can tell with the Progressive Conservative Party, but it probably was, and he suggested maintaining the status quo on the Crow rate.

In the circumstances, Mr. Speaker, and I would like to conclude on this note, I feel that as far as what has been said up to now about the motions before the House, there has been a marked tendency to ignore the fact that the Committees of the House of Commons would also have a function, and that these Committees would be asked to go through, to scrutinize proposed regulations, that they would be able to meet for up to thirty days—I am referring to Clause 22(3)—and that in fact, the hour of debate that would take place here in the House of Commons would represent the official position of the Parties, considering that at the committee stage, it should have been possible to go through all the minor flaws that might be present in these proposed regulations.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, may I direct a question to the Hon. Member now?

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Perhaps I should explain that it is not up to the Chair to decide whether the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville may put a question but to the Hon. Member himself to either agree or refuse to entertain the question.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member for Lévis (Mr. Gourde) mentioned that democracy is very important in our country. However, according to Bill C-155, to refer the regulations to Committee requires a notice signed by fifteen Senators or thirty Members of the House of Commons, and I would like to know whether there is not a difference between Senators and Members of the House of Commons, since the latter or elected by the people, by the general public, and Senators are appointed by the Prime Minister. That is not democracy at all. Does the Hon. Member agree that this clause is not a truly democratic clause, since Senators are not elected? Does he agree with the principle of elected Senators, or does he agree with an anti-democratic system?

Mr. Gourde: Mr. Speaker, I think the Hon. Member's comments are entirely beside the point, and that he should urge the Members of his Party to attend the meetings of the Committee on Senate Reform more often, instead of asking whether or not Senators, because they are appointed, should or should not have the right to refer proposed regulations to Committee. That is not the problem, since the New Democratic Party has, at the present time, more than thirty Members in the House—

Mr. Nystrom: Yes, indeed!

Mr. Gourde: —and, since they have more than thirty Members, this means that today, if the matter were laid before the House, Members of the New Democratic Party could refer proposed regulations to Committee, and I think that is very democratic. We must not forget that it is probably the first time in this House that a Government or Party has decided to suggest to the House that proposed regulations be referred to it and to committee, and this is entirely new and to the credit of the present Government.

[English]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Is the House ready for the question? No Hon. Members having risen in order to be recognized, I presume the House must be ready for the question, which is on Motions Nos. 47, 48 and 49.

The question is on Motion No. 47 (Mr. Benjamin). All those in favour will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): In my opinion the nays have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Pursuant to Standing Order 79(11) the vote stands deferred.

The next question is on Motion No. 48 (Mr. Mazankowski).

All those in favour will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): In my opinion the nays have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Pursuant to Standing Order 79(11) the vote stands deferred.

The next question is on Motion No. 49 (Mr. Benjamin). All those in favour will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): In my opinion the nays have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Pursuant to Standing Order 79(11) the vote stands deferred.

I understand that Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53 have been grouped for debate. Motion No. 50 is to be voted on separately.

Mr. Les Benjamin (Regina West) moved:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 29 by adding immediately after line 45 at page 14 the following:

"(3) A railway company shall, in a subsequent calendar year, invest in railway equipment and plant for the movement of grain an amount not less than the after tax cost of capital, after tax depreciation, and after tax constant cost portion of payments it received under section 55 for the preceeding crop year."

and by renumbering the subsequent subclauses accordingly.

Mr. Charles Mayer (Portage-Marquette) moved:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 29 by striking out lines 10 to 15 at page 15.

Mr. Les Benjamin (Regina West) moved:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 29 by striking out lines 10 to 15 at page 15.

Mr. Les Benjamin (Regina West): Mr. Speaker, this group of amendments—Motions No. 50 and No. 53 in my name, and Motion No. 52 in the name of the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer)—have been lumped together by the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) as being frivolous. I will not bother dealing with the motion of the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette. I presume that Motion No. 58 is frivolous and the Hon. Members do not want the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) to debate that one.

Mr. McKnight: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I would just call to the attention of the Chair that I understood we were debating Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53.

Mr. Benjamin: I am glad, Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster caught up. I will deal, Mr. Speaker, with Motions Nos. 50 and 53 and I will leave the other motion to the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette, and I hope that he can persuade his colleagues that it is not a frivolous motion.

Motion No. 50, Mr. Speaker, deals with what the railways will do with any profits made as a result of this legislation. We have submitted for a number of years, Sir, that the railways should not be allowed to make a profit on any public funds that are provided by way of investments; that if there is a profit, it should either be reinvested or returned to the investors. I leave myself open for criticism from my own Party for recommending this free, private enterprise, sound business practice. However, the investor is entitled to two things. He is entitled to have any profits reinvested in capital improvements or he is entitled to a dividend or interest, either one. He is entitled to a fair return on his investment.

In this case, it is the taxpayers who are putting up the money. It seems to me that the ordinary taxpayer is just as entitled to a return on his investment as he would be if he walked to his favourite broker and invested money as an individual investor. It seems to me the taxpayers are just as entitled to an opportunity to have a return. Through this motion, Mr. Speaker, we are saying that any profits made by the railways for the movement of grain not less than after-tax cost of capital, after-tax depreciation and after-tax constant cost portion be reinvested in capital improvements to the rail system. In other words, we would like to see that any surplus funds will not leak out to the private individual shareholders of Canadian Pacific Limited and will not leak out into investments in other things like more shopping centres or highrise luxury apartments in California or another nickel mine in Indonesia. We would like to see any surplus that the railways have reinvested in the railway plant.

Mr. Blenkarn: Dividends.

Mr. Benjamin: Reinvestment is a kind of dividend, Mr. Speaker, that benefits the whole country. The taxpayers, representing the entire population of the country, have made that investment on their own behalf and on behalf of the country. Therefore, Sir, the best return on that investment is for those surplus funds to be reinvested in the expansion of the railway system in every part of the country, not only in the West. The system should be upgraded not only on railway lines or in tunnels but in signal systems, higher speed trains and new and advanced technology as it comes onstream. That reinvestment should be a continuing process.

We in the country, Sir, have seen a boom and bust cycle in investment in the railway transportation system as well as in other modes of transportation. A transportation system will go for 10, 12 or 15 years letting the plant deteriorate and falling way behind in new technology. Then, all of a sudden, when tracks are grown over with weeds and the capacity is insufficient, the railways want to again dip into the taxpayers' pockets. As the railways have been doing since 1881 and since 1923, if there are any surplus funds, the railways will run off with them and invest them in something else. When are we going to put a stop to that, Mr. Speaker?

Another motion that we are dealing with, Mr. Speaker, is Motion No. 53. I am happy that the motion of the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette is worded in exactly the same as my motion which the Hon. Member for Vegreville has called frivolous. I hope he will explain that to the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette.

Mr. Mazankowski: No, your comments are frivolous; that's what I meant.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, this motion deals with confidentiality; that is that any information given to the Grain Transportation Committee or the Grain Transportation Administrator by the railways will be kept confidential. This Parliament, successive Governments since 1881, the Canadian Transport Commission, before that the old Board of Transport Commissioners and even before that the Commission on Telegraphs, Canals and Railroads, have all been denied access to information from the railways because of confidentiality. For Government agencies to get information has been like pulling teeth. Ten years ago when the railways applied to abandon the transcontinental passenger trains, the Canadian Transport Commission had a heck of a time getting information. Then when it did get information, that information had to be kept confidential. The Commission arrived at a costing order with which I am not sure even it was satisfied. In fact, I do not think it was. However, it was based on the figures of the railways which had to be kept confidential.

It has also been put to us by the railways for decades, Mr. Speaker, that those figures must be kept confidential in the name of competition and in order to keep private internal corporation information private so that competitors do not have access to it. What competitors are the railways speaking off? Canadian National and Canadian Pacific compete in name only. They will drop their prices at competitive points, but their prices always remain the same. The overwhelming majority of their shipping points and probably 75 per cent to 90 per cent of their trackage is located hundreds of miles apart. There is no competition; the shippers are captive.

I recall hearing about an incident that occurred regarding a potash mine in Saskatchewan back in 1969-70, a time when international prices on potash products went down the drain. Products that were going for $24 to $30 a ton had dropped to $9, $10 or $11 a ton. In any event, this new potash mine asked the railways for a rate from Colonsay to Vancouver. Officials of this mine waited weeks and months, and finally a rate was quoted to them from each railway. Strangely enough, Mr. Speaker, the rate quoted from each railway company was exactly the same. It did not matter which railway the mining company shipped on. The price had nothing to do with miles. Officials of the potash company could not figure out how the railways arrived at that rate.

I will never forget hearing the general manager of that potash company telling me about the findings of the transportation and tariff experts at their company in Gallup, New Mexico. Those experts spent weeks trying to figure out how CN and CP arrived at that rate. The railways were competitive in this case; they both had a spur track into that same mine. Finally, one day, by pure accident, one of the experts opened a tariff book and happened to be going through the tariffs of the Santa Fe railways from Gallup, New Mexico, to San Diego. He found the potash rate there. The rate that was provided to the company by these competitors, CN and CP, which has to be kept confidential, was identical to the rate charged by Santa Fe from Gallup, New Mexico, to San Diego.

The rate was not related in any way to the number of miles travelled or to the nature of the terrain.

The excuse of confidentiality in the name of competition does not hold water. As it pertains to the railways, it has never held water. We can no longer let the railways use that excuse. It is another form of Blackmail. Officials of the railways say: "We will not give you the information unless it is confidential, and if it is not going to be confidential, we will not give it to you." Therefore, a member of a Government agency such as the Grain Transportation Administrator will be handcuffed when making decisions. The Senior Grain Transportation Committee will be handcuffed unless it agrees that the information is confidential and legislation will require that it be confidential.

The right of the public to have access to this information is involved here as well. There have been many contentious instances in the last number of years both here and in the United States regarding freedom of information, and when disclosure was finally forced, it really did not affect at all the competitive position of the companies concerned. That myth should be put to rest once and for all in this legislation, Mr. Speaker. Information should not only be not confidential but as well it should be mandatory that any information that the Grain Transportation Administrator or advisory committee want should be provided by the railways. It should be entirely up to the people receiving that information to decide whether any or all of it will be confidential. For that matter, the same provision should apply to the Canadian Transport Commission not only concerning railroads but other modes of transportation as well.

We believe that Motion No. 50 and Motion No. 53 meet the kind of criteria that are in place in many parts of the world for transportation not only of grain but many other commodities. It is in place among modes of transportation in many parts of the world as between different participants in each transportation mode as well as between the transportation modes themselves. Surely it is unnecessary to continue maintaining or adding legislation that perpetuates the past practices of confidentiality and the investing of surpluses from funds received from taxpayers. Surely it is time to put a halt to those practices which have been going on for the last 102 years.

The issue of confidentiality is no longer valid. It is no longer relevant to the duties that we place upon the agency established under this legislation. Similarly, it is long past due that surpluses which are made on money invested by the taxpayer should at least be re-invested in that plant. The two choices are to reinvest it or return to the taxpayers a dividend or interest on their money. I prefer the former option because we will need a minimum of $2 billion or $3 billion a year not just for the next decade but for the next 20 or 30 years in order to bring our transportation system, particularly the rail system, up to the level at which it should be.

Mr. Charles Mayer (Portage-Marquette): Mr. Speaker, usually it is a pleasure to speak to legislation, but in some ways it is not a pleasure when one must deal with a Bill such as this and the amendments to it which are before us.

At the outset let me respond to the concern expressed by the Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) about being frivolous. Certainly any amendment taken by itself cannot be considered frivolous. Certainly it cannot be considered frivolous if one looks at the Speaker's ruling on it. If they were frivolous, they would not have been allowed.

I suggest that it is all relative because when one considers the number of motions that have been accepted, some of them are much more important than others. The Hon. Member for Regina West has been talking about information to the railroads and other matters instead of using our limited time in the House as a result of the disgraceful closure on this Bill to talk about some very substantive measures in this Bill, such as a method of payment, the freeze, the $450 billion in the B.C. coal lands. If he believes that he is doing a good service to his constituents, the producers whom he represents, by talking about the information railways will be putting out, then I suggest that he is being frivolous in his actions in the House. That is precisely what the Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) was referring to.

Furthermore, of all the Members in that part of the House, the Hon. Member for Regina West should know that better than any one else because he was the only Member from the NDP on the committee during the summer. He is the one who should know what are the substantive issues in this Bill, and which measures are important and should be discussed here during the limited time available to us. His concern about being referred to as frivolous simply points out the nonsensical, frivolous, philosophical and ideological position that the NDP has taken throughout the debate.

Our Party has attempted, and in many ways succeeded, in improving a Bill that is very bad. It remains a poor Bill despite our best efforts to improve it. I do not take a lot of satisfaction in saying that the NDP, who represents areas on the Prairies from where I come, has not seen fit to take part in improving what we consider a bad Bill despite our efforts to improve it. The point is that when we should be discussing measures that are of substantial importance to the producers in the part of the country that I represent, the NDP is using the little time that is available to us to debate this Bill to talk about what are basically frivolous amendments when compared to the more substantial motions in this Bill. That is all I will say with respect to the NDP and the Member for Regina West.

I will not use the full ten minutes allotted to me because there is little time to debate this Bill. Since we need to get on with it, the NDP should let us do so and stop putting up a speaker on every motion. Surely Members of that Party do not need to have the whole caucus talk about information being available from the railway. Surely they could simply put up one or two speakers so that we could proceed to debating the important amendments in this Bill.

Let me talk briefly about Motion No. 52. It simply states that Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 29 by striking out lines 10 to 15. Those lines state:

(5) The members of the Committee shall treat in a confidential manner any information submitted under this section that is identified and treated as confidential by the railway company that submitted the information.

Surely if the Senior Grain Transportation Committee will be able to function, it must have access to information. This motion seeks to ensure that the railway company itself should not be in a position to decide what is classified and what is not. I understand that the Government will not accept our amendment. The Government is asking that members of the committee shall have access to the information. However, Clause 68 states that "Schedule I to the Access to Information Act is amended by adding thereto." Therefore there is a clause in the Bill that provides the access to information. But when we deal with the information that the railways should be making available to people other than those on the Commission, the railways will be allowed to decide what should be classified and what should stay with the members of the committee. That does not make sense to me.

I also question why only the members of the Senior Grain Transportation Committee should have access to this information. I believe that the Government is involved, including the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) and the Governor in Council, as a result of the substantial sums of money provided for in this Bill. They are involved with respect to providing rolling stock for the railways. I do not understand why this section allows the railways to limit the information available only to the committee by simply saying that it is classified or shall be treated as confidential and therefore not provide it to anyone but members of the committee. At the very least, this information could be made available to the Minister.

I also believe that this clause is unnecessary. The exclusion of this clause would make the Bill much more straightforward and would make information more available to the public and producers. The Government's refusal to accept our amendment is another example of how this Bill is written for the railways' interest and not the producers. Surely it is the producers who will be paying increases in costs based on some of the costs the railways say they will incur. Therefore, it should be incumbent upon Members of Parliament who are establishing this legislation to ensure that those who will be paying those increases in the future have access to this information. I submit this would be a much better Bill, a much cleaner Bill, it would be simple to read and to administer and it would be in everybody's interest if Clause 5 were simply deleted.

Mr. Lyle S. Kristiansen (Kootenay West): Mr. Speaker, I am glad to rise to participate in the debate on Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53. Motions Nos. 50 and 53 stand in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), my colleague. In addressing Motion No. 50, I just want to put on the record our amendment which reads as follows:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 29 by adding immediately after line 45 at page 14 the following:

"(3) A railway company shall, in a subsequent calendar year, invest in railway equipment and plant for the movement of grain an amount not less than the after tax cost of capital, after tax depreciation, and after tax constant cost portion of payments it received under section 55 for the preceeding crop year."

and by renumbering the subsequent subclauses accordingly.

The intent of that amendment, to put it briefly, is to require the railroads to reinvest any surplus funds received from public moneys paid to them under the legislation.

The principle underlying that intent and our amendment is that public moneys should be put up to increase rail capacity and enhance the transportation system for grain. Public moneys should not be paid to the railroads to enhance their profit position.

I want to make it very clear that we do not have any argument with the proposition that public moneys or subsidies, in the case of retaining or maintaining an essential service such as the railways provided to many parts of this country, should be used not only to maintain those facilities but to protect the profit position of the railroads in doing that. Our objection is that unless there are adequate safeguards, it is not the purpose of public funds to further enhance those profits beyond what the railroads would be able to earn in normal circumstances in their operation. Protection, yes. Enhancement or expansion, no.

Let me deal briefly with Motion No. 53, which reads:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 29 by striking out lines 10 to 15 at page 15.

The intent is to remove the provision of the legislation that would require the members of the Senior Grain Transportation Committee to treat as confidential any information declared to be so by the railroads.

The purpose is that the railroads should not have the right to impose secrecy on the committee. It could come to pass that public disclosure of information would be one of the most effective ways available to the committee to fulfil its mandate. Decisions on the confidential nature of its deliberations or the information available to it should be the prerogative of the committee, not the railroads.

In discussing that, I think it is fairly common knowledge that one of the major arguments for confidentiality when dealing with the activities of a corporation are normally that you protect that confidentiality in order that the corporation not have its information leaked in such a way as might benefit its competitors. I do not know whether the CPR is worried that I or some of my colleagues or anyone of a group of citizens will start up another railroad in competition with it. But clearly in terms of the railways, the Canadian Pacific Railway in particular, it is not a threat by its competitors of which they might make use to the disadvantage of the CPR. It is not one of the major considerations we have to be dealing with.

Seeing that there is no major reason for that confidentiality, particularly not confidentiality that would not immediately be perceived to place the company at risk by members of the committee exercising their duties, surely there is no other reason for writing a carte blanche exclusion for putting a window into the affairs of a corporation which, over the years, has been, is and will be receiving billions and billions of dollars from the public purse. Unless there is a very compelling reason for secrecy, and if there is a compelling reason, members of the committee should be the first to see it, then the operating rules and the expenditures of public funds should be made known directly not only to representatives of the public but to members of the public themselves who should have the right to know on what their money is being spent. They should be able to judge for themselves, not just through the minds of their legislators whether or not those funds are being expended in the most wise and judicious manner.

That seems to me to be an argument that would be difficult to counter in any realistic way. I would hope that if the Government intends to vote against this amendment, which I think is exactly the same wording as Motion No. 52, the PC amendment, we would have at least some explanation other than a vote against our amendments from representatives of the Government.

In terms of the need of the public to know what is happening with respect to the expenditure of public funds and, further, as to whether or not public funds should be expended by the billions of dollars without some return coming to the public for its investment, I think it is worthwhile to take a look at some local experiences, not only within the West Kootenays but elsewhere: I hope other Members will look at the experiences they have had with the railways in their areas. All of us, at least in western Canada, have had experience from time to time with rail line abandonment applications. I know we have had two attempts to abandon a certain stretch of railway between Nakusp and New Denver in my constituency in 1974, 1975, 1976 and again in 1980-81. It has been interesting to take a look at what was demanded of the railway when ordered to maintain the line when the railway was ordered in the 1974-75 hearings to upgrade certain portions of it. In the intervening five or six years we were still left with a line to which, in the view of many of the participants in the 1980 hearings, virtually nothing of consequence had been done to comply with the orders of the CTC. If that is the continuing result—and I know from discussions with my colleagues that similar things have happened in areas right across the West and, I suspect, in the rest of Canada as well—then it is not enough to decide after the fact whether or not the taxpayers' funds that we turn over to the railway by the billions and billions of dollars have been expended for the purposes which not only were recommended but for the tasks which were ordered by the Government agency responsible. It is not enough to look five or six years later and say, "Did they do the job and did they expend the funds in the way that we told them those funds must be expended?" You need to have a mechanism. One of them is to ensure that you invest in equity for purposes of modernization and upgrading of the railways so that you have some direct voice. Hopefully, the voice will become more meaningful in the future than it has been in many cases in the past, especially in terms of the CN, to ensure that the purposes for which the public funds are expended are met and complied with.

Let me read from a submission of the Nakusp and District Chamber of Commerce to the abandonment hearings on September 19, 1980, where we find:

> In our reviewing of past history, including the hearing of five years ago, it is evident that the CPR is continuing to defy past orders to improve this rail line plus they are trucking in fuel to the oil bulk plants and destroying what should be their own efforts to make the line pay.

It is just one example of the nightmare story of what has happened to the railways throughout the West over the past number of decades. They have made no effort to maintain many of their lines where for their own reasons they wanted to scrap or abandon them. As they did with passenger services on many occasions, they have done the same with freight lines. They have taken steps which tend to make rail lines look more uneconomic than they are so that they can be relieved of their proper responsibilities.

Surely it is an adequate argument to say that we must have access to the information and that we must be able to relay all information from investigative proceedings to the public we represent. Surely that is not too much to ask. We are being asked to spend billions of dollars of public money, tax dollars of hard working people, from one end of the country to the other. Surely we should insist upon having a direct voice in the management and decisions of the railways. Up to now many of their decisions have not been in the interests of the public. In fact, they have been diametrically opposed, especially when they have undermined in a very calculated way both the railway services and the communities they serve.

I hope Hon. Members opposite will give some explanation fairly soon as to why in certain circumstances they would be opposed to our amendments, unless of course they have had a change of heart and will support them.

Mr. Stan J. Hovdebo (Prince Albert): Mr. Speaker, I am sorry the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer) did not address himself to Motion No. 50 which, in this group of motions, is really the substantive one before the House.

In Motion No. 50 we are talking about the fact that the Bill provides a guaranteed income to railways but it does not guarantee particular services or reinvestment in railways. That guaranteed income is 20 per cent over operating costs, in laymen's language, and 20 per cent over the fixed and capital costs and return on investment, most of which we all know was made by taxpayers of Canada. In the case of CNR, all of it was made by the taxpayers; in the case of CPR, a major portion of it was provided by taxpayers.

Motion No. 50 puts some backbone into Clause 29 which deals with the ongoing capital investment of railways. Clause 29 requires that the railways indicate how much they will spend on improvements and capital investments during the next year. The Government is supposed to monitor this investment. Grain growers and taxpayers in Canada will provide a subsidy to the railways which, the implication is, they will use to increase the viability and quality of the grain transportation system. In this amendment we are asking for guarantees on investments and on fixed costs or constant costs to be linked to the Government's request or requirement of the railways. In fact, guarantees of investment should be linked by the Government to the investment of the railways and the amount they are paid from capital investments. This is covered in Section 55 which requires certain payments to the railways, gives the Government power to hold back certain amounts of money from them and requires them to fulfil their commitments on track maintenance, branch lines or any other requirement to enable them to operate efficiently. We are asking that the investments the railways are supposed to be making should be established relative to the returns they receive from investments, capital maintenance and fixed costs.

Clause 29 of the Bill contains a nebulous commitment on the part of railways to fulfil the requirements to make their operations viable. Motion No. 50 spells out the amounts which can be reasonably expected of investment by the railways. Ordinarily we would ask why this would be necessary. People who have lived in the West and have dealt with the railways know that it is necessary for a specific amount to be included. Over the years a considerable amount of taxpayers' money has been spent supposedly for upgrading railways. For example, a considerable amount was designated specifically to branch line rehabilitation, much of which was never spent. A considerable amount was designated to improve rail cars, much of which was never spent. Consequently, we cannot trust that the railways will use taxpayers' money for the purposes it was given and demand this kind of guarantee.

Also it is important to recognize that statements of intent to invest are produced on a yearly basis under the Act, but they do not commit the railways to making any kind of continued investment. At the beginning of the year they can say that they intend to do something, but within the statement there is no guarantee that they will fulfil the commitment. Our motion suggests that we want a guarantee relative to the money they are obtaining in subsidies from the Government. That is what we call them. They are subsidies because they are relative to the amount of investments made in railways in the past. If they are paid to railways, we want a guarantee that they will be used to develop a good system for many years to come.

As the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) suggested, we will need several billion dollars a year for the next 30 years to be assured that we will have a railway system which is capable of moving grain and all other necessary products in western Canada over the next few years to develop the economy of the West to the extent we feel it should be developed.

The history of public aid to the railways, which Bill C-155 will perpetuate, will continue. The railways will receive continued aid and a guaranteed annual income. The money that flows to the railroads, which is supposed to be returned to the public, and services and guarantees of service do not necessarily occur. As it stands, Bill C-155 does nothing to improve this position. We have put forward this amendment to improve that.

As a matter of history, let us put on the record the kind of public assistance that Canadian Pacific Railways has taken from the taxpayers of Canada in the last few years. The Royal Commission on Railways and Transportation said the Canadian Pacific received the following public assistance as of 1916: Railways and services completed by the Government, $37 million; cash aid, $66 million; value of unsold lands, $119 million; returns from the land sold minus cost of improvement, $55 million; for a total of identifiable aid in a matter of approximately 30 years of something over $279 million.

If you adjust that and other presentations to the CPR for longer periods of time to present value, those investments would be $8.3 billion. We feel very strongly that we must have some guarantee that further money from the taxpayers will be returned to us in some kind of service. If after having received $8 billion they still give the kind of service they do, there is no way that we can guarantee that we will not receive the same kind of service in the future unless we define very definitely in this Act the kind of investment they must make each year relative to the subsidies they receive. We are not asking them to take their own money and put it back in. We are giving them this money and we want them to use it on building up the railways so that they will be better and we can be guaranteed some kind of service.

Hon. Don Mazankowski (Vegreville): Mr. Speaker, at the outset I would like to move, seconded by the Hon. Member for Moose Jaw (Mr. Neil):

That this sitting of the House continue beyond the ordinary hour of adjournment for the purpose of considering the report stage of Bill C-155.

I move that under the provisions of Standing Order 8(4)(a).

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The motion seems to be in order. I will put the question. Those Members who object to the motion will please rise in their place. There being no Members rising in their place to object to the motion, the motion is deemed to have been carried.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I thank Hon. Members for allowing additional time to debate the very important substantive amendments that have yet to be debated, thanks to the New Democratic Party who denied earlier the House the opportunity of debating some of the very fundamental, integral and vital parts of this Bill.

Perhaps through the extension of time we will have an opportunity to debate the safety net, the method of payment, the farmer's ability to pay, the B.C. coal lands and other matters of that nature. We in this Party have come here to debate this issue to try to work toward a better Bill and a more satisfactory solution than that which is contained in Bill C-155. We hope that the people of Canada will recognize that throughout the course of our deliberations ours has not been one of obstruction and stonewalling, but one of constructive criticism and providing constructive proposals.

An Hon. Member: Shame.

Mr. Mazankowski: The Hon. Member says shame. In the course of their moving an amendment today to adopt their version of a safety net, they threw the Crow out the window. By virtue of their presentation of their version of the safety net based at 3 per cent, they are in fact contributing to the dismantlement of the Crow. This Party says the country is not ready for the kind of increases that are contained in this Bill. That is why we have advocated a freeze.

Getting to the motions under debate, I can sympathize with the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) in what he is attempting to do under Motion No. 50. He is trying to ensure or put some onus of accountability in this legislation on the part of the railways to ensure that they invest money into the plant and equipment that is necessary to move grain.

This issue was debated at length in committee. We in our Party addressed it, and I think we addressed it very effectively because it is contained as a rather substantive amendment in the Bill. I refer to subclause 29(2) which has a large section in it dealing with the monitoring of programs and investment.

While not arguing with the good intentions of the Hon. Member for Regina West, I think he has adopted a rather convoluted way of attempting to attach some strings to the railways' ability to invest. It is rather strange. I heard the previous speaker crying about the guaranteed annual income for the railroads. It is that Party that insisted that any Crow benefit or government contribution be paid directly to the railways, therefore denying the opportunity to develop a system that would be more streamlined and efficient, denying producers the opportunity to cash in on a bit of that Crow benefit.

If we allow for the ingenuity of producers and their innovative ability, they will find a way to move their grain at a reduced price as well as their products to market. In so doing, they will assist their operation and improve their cash flow, bringing about a more efficient, effective and reliable grain handling system.

The Members of the New Democratic Party said no. They want the bundle of $658 million plus to go to the railways. They stand up and say in the same breath that it is awful that we are giving the railways a guaranteed annual income. what is worse is that in the course of doing that, you perpetuate a cost-plus system. The railways will receive all of their out-of-pocket costs, which include such things as depreciation and an 18 to 20 per cent return on investment. Those are two very major items in the cost components. In addition, they are going to get a 20 per cent mark-up for profit. There is not a farmer in Canada that works on that kind of an operation. I recall during the course of the committee hearing one farmer doing a calculation and figuring out he lost $3 or $4 on every bushel of grain he produced. I suggested to him that he must have been using railway accounting, because they can certainly manipulate their figures in such a way that they can show a loss on literally everything. In this case the railways are going to receive full cost recovery for the movement of grain plus a 20 per cent mark-up. The New Democratic Party say that is great and it should all go to the railroads. In the same breath they are saying there should be some constraints placed upon them, charging them with the responsibility of investing this money in plant and equipment.

We dealt with that issue and we moved a very substantive amendment which charged the CTC with the responsibility of monitoring. The CTC is a very important component in this piece of legislation. The proposal that was accepted by the committee as sponsored by the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer) really gave the CTC some authority to analyse the general investment plans of the railway and to submit a report. That is contained in Clause 29(2) at page 14. This really beefs up the monitoring device. It says:

> (2) The Commission shall monitor the programs of the railway companies for the maintenance of the grain dependent branch lines and the investments of the railway companies in railway equipment and plant for the movement of grain—
> (a) annually verify the investments referred to in paragraph (1)(a) and report to the Minister any difference between the statement of investments referred to in paragraph (1)(a), and the investments actually made;
> (b) analyse the general investment plans referred to in paragraph (1)(b), and not later than 90 days following the submission of the statement referred to in subsection (1), submit a report to the Minister on the appropriateness of those general investment plans and proposed investments in ensuring an adequate, reliable and efficient railway transportation system . . .
> (c) audit the expenditures referred to in paragraph (1)(c) not later than 120 days following the submission of the statement referred in subsection (1) and report to the Minister any differences between the audit and the expenditures claimed to have been made by the railway company.

This is a very constructive amendment which accommodates quite well the objective the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) wants to implement.

I want to get back to what the New Democratic Party has been saying about this payment to the railroads. In a Wood Gundy research document dated September, 1983, in which they recommend that their prospective clients buy Canadian Pacific shares, we find this:

> —the Crow should contribute net income of $262 million or $3.66 per share through 1985.

With that kind of windfall clearly there has to be some monitoring device which will make the railways accountable for their performance in terms of providing service and in terms of investment.

This Bill is wrong in so many ways. It is dramatically and fundamentally wrong in that it is paying the $658 million in perpetuity to the railway companies. We hear talk on the other side about what is in the best interest of agriculture and what is best for western Canada. I want to draw to your attention a summary of western perspectives on the Crow as enunciated by the Canada West Foundation, which is an independent think tank which did this analysis. They looked at it in terms of winners and losers. The biggest winners in the Crow debate were the two national railways. Together they will be the recipients of some $658 million per year in constant 1983 dollars, plus they will be receiving an additional portion of the increases. The major losers in the Crow debate are the prairie livestock interests as represented by the feed grain producer and the livestock associations.

Bill C-155 clearly discriminates against these groups by encouraging farmers, through its subsidy structure, to produce grain for the export markets. The biggest loser is the western Canadian agri-business. By paying the Crow benefit to the railways the Government deals a near-death blow to the existing future agricultural processing in western Canada. There are many reasons why this Bill is wrong. It does not provide an enabling device to change the method of payment at some future time.

Mr. Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville): Mr. Speaker, I want to say a few words on the three motions before the House. Motion No. 52 is in the name of the Hon. Member for Portage Marquette (Mr. Mayer). Motion No. 53 is in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). I will be very brief on those two. They are calling in the Bill for less confidentiality than the Minister would like. The intent of these motions would be to remove the provision of the legislation that requires members of the Senior Grain Transportation Committee to treat as confidential any information declared to be so by the railways. The reasons for supporting this motion would be that the railways should not have the right to impose secrecy upon the Senior Grain Transportation Committee and hence the population of Canada. I think it is just another argument in a long string of arguments that were started by a Conservative Member, the Hon. Member for Peace River, Mr. Ged Baldwin, many years ago when he talked so long and eloquently about the need for freedom of information in this country. These two amendments, one by our Party and one by the Conservative Party, are going in that direction.

The other amendment before the House is Motion No. 50 in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West. This would require that the railways invest in each of the subsequent years at least as much money in upgrading the railway system and components of that system as they invested in the past year. The reason for that is that we have often felt in western Canada that we have been short-changed by the CPR and the CNR in terms of the lack of money they have put into the system.

I want to put on the record what I think is one of the real scandals of Canadian Confederation, the history of what I think is one of the biggest welfare bums in this country, the CPR. When I say "welfare bum" I mean welfare bum. We often have complaints about people on welfare because a few extra bucks are given here or there for a few extra services. The biggest welfare bum is the CPR. I want to spend a few minutes telling you why.

In 1917 we had a Royal Commission on Railways and Transportation which said that the CPR in 1917 had received the following public assistance from the taxpayers of Canada: For railway and surveys completed by the federal Government, they received $37.8 million of taxpayers' money. In direct cash aid, they received $66.9 million. In the value of unsold land, the CPR received $119.3 million. Returns from lands sold, minus the cost of improving those lands by the railway company, was $55.5 million. The total of identifiable aid by the 1917 Royal Commission on Railways and Transportation to the CPR in 1917 dollars was $279.5 million. Adjusted to 1982 dollars by 5 per cent for the inflation rate in 1917 and 5 per cent in 1918, and by the average yield on long-term Government securities between 1919 and 1982, the value of that aid would come to $8.3 billion. That is what was given to the biggest welfare bum in the country in taxpayers hard earned, money.

That is not all. In addition, there have been subsidies to the Canadian Pacific Railway for operating losses on railway services of $2.9 million in 1982 dollars. I could give all kinds of breakdowns, year by year. The source of my statistics is the annual reports and the books of the CPR.

As of 1981 the Canadian Pacific owed $1.65 billion in deferred taxes according to its annual report. Adjusted to 1982 dollars that is $1.83 billion. If the ordinary worker in this country, the ordinary farmer or, indeed, the Hon. Member for Assiniboia (Mr. Gustafson) owed deferred taxes, National Revenue would be on his back very quickly to take him to court. But in 1981 the CPR owed $1.65 billion in taxes. It is the biggest welfare bum in the country yet the Government wants to give it extra handouts of money contributed by the taxpayers in my constituency.

This big welfare bum could not even afford to buy its own railway cars to move its own grain. It could not afford to fix up railway cars or buy hopper cars so it came on bended knee to the federal Government saying to Otto Lang and his boys a few years ago "Buy us some hopper cars". So 7,500 hopper cars were purchased by the federal Government with the hard earned money of taxpayers from places like Kamsack, Yorkton and Melville and so on. At about $6,500 per car that cost $490 million.

When you add all the subsidies, the value of land, the value of grants, hopper cars and the improvements in tracks and railways and so on, since the CPR began, in 1982 dollars the value of aid given to the CPR was $13.5 billion. It is the biggest welfare bum in the history of the country, Mr. Speaker.

Motion No. 50 would go some way toward making sure that it paid its fair share, that it paid for some of the rail line upgrading in the country, that it provided some of its own equipment and did some of its own work instead of coming like a beggar to the people of Canada asking for more and more handouts.

In return, Government after Government has prostituted itself giving handouts without taking any equity. For $13.5 billion the taxpayers of this country do not have any equity whatsoever in the CPR. I do not know of any Conservative, Liberal or NDP provincial Government that would stand for that kind of handout of the people's money to the CPR with no return. It is another reason why we on this side of the House will not stand by and let the Government impose closure on this Bill.

That $13.5 billion was given to the CPR in handouts, yet if some poor soul in this country who is on welfare or unemployment insurance gets a few extra dollars or if someone owes a few extra dollars in taxes, they are liable to be taken to court and fined by the federal Government. It is not fair and it is not just, Mr. Speaker. It is an economic system that must be changed and it will only be changed if people, through Parliament, say to the CPR that the people of Canada are the boss and they want a transportation system that is run on their behalf. If they are going to give money to the CPR they should take equity in the railway. We do not have the liberty of throwing away the taxpayers' money on the CPR or any other large corporation in the country. For these reasons I appeal to all Members of the House to pass Motion No. 50. If we do not, the CPR will ask for more of the same.

I have some very interesting statistics here from the annual reports of the CN and the CPR showing how much they have invested in railways in Canada in 1981. The CPR invested $511 million and CPR $317 million for a total of $828 million. Adjusted to 1983 dollars that comes to $1.33 billion.

The plan of the former Minister is called the "Pepin plan" in the west. It calls for less money to be spent now than was spent in 1981. For the CNR it is $491 million and for CPR $315 million for a total of $806 million. That is a decrease of 22 per cent for the CNR and a decrease of 20.5 per cent for CP. That is another reason for Motion No. 50. It would make sure that in the years ahead the railways would invest at least as much as they invested last year on improving the rail lines.

For these reasons I suggest that Motion No. 50 be adopted. It would make sure that farmers in all constituencies would receive a better rail service. I could name rail lines in the Melville area, in the Yorkton area, and in the Kamsack area and tell horror story after horror story about them.

I see that my time is up, Mr. Speaker. I could go on and on giving concrete examples that would persuade you, as a big city Member of Parliament, of the necessity of passing Motion No. 50. It would assure my constituents of some value for the handouts they have given to that welfare bum year after year. It has taken more out of the pockets of my constituents than any other corporation or institution in the country. I am not going to stand for it, Mr. Speaker, and if you will give me extra time I am prepared to put on the record some examples of where that kind of money could be used in my constituency.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Does the Hon. Member seek unanimous consent to continue, as he knows, his time has expired?

Mr. Nystrom: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Is there unanimous consent for the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom) to continue?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

[Translation]

Mrs. Éva Côté (Rimouski-Témiscouata): Mr. Speaker, thank you for giving me an opportunity to say a few words about Bill C-155, especially at this stage where we are discussing, more specifically, Motion No. 50, presented by the representative of the New Democratic Party. A careful scrutiny of Bill C-155 shows that in Clause 29, provision has been made for obliging railway companies to submit to the Canadian Transport Commission, to the Administrator and to the Senior Grain Commission, to the Administrator and to the Senior Grain Transportation Committee, investment plans and programs by which users, that is, grain producers, will be assured of a sufficient number of railway cars and adequate railway facilities as such.

Sub-clause 2 of Clause 29 sets the criteria for monitoring programs and investments.

Mr. Speaker, sub-clause (2) was added to the initial Bill, following extremely useful and interesting discussions among Government Members, the Official Opposition and New Democratic Party Members.

I feel that all important points have been covered and that the railway companies are being asked to make a very serious commitment, looking only at the obligation to submit their investment plan for the current calendar year, to state subsequently what their results have been, while the Commission or Committee is to annually verify the investments requested, analyze the general investment plans and especially the expenditures incurred by these investments.

Therefore, I feel that adopting Motion No. 50 as proposed would be useless and redundant, since it adds absolutely nothing to the Bill itself, on the contrary, and I think that the real purpose of Motion No. 50 is to make the Members of the New Democratic Party feel they have achieved something. They blithely object to the fact that the Government of Canada, by helping the railway companies provide an adequate and necessary service in that part of our country is giving the railway companies a free ride. That is certainly not true if we consider the geography of our country, the enormous distances that must be travelled and the considerable cost to the railway companies if they are to provide the service required by their users, and, as we all know, since Section 262 of the Canadian Railway Act applies here, railway companies are obliged to provide that service.

As for confidentiality, this is referred to in Motions Nos. 52 and 53. I think it is a bit too much to demand that Members of the Senior Grain Transportation Committee not be subject to the same rules of confidentiality as the Canadian Transport Commission. And especially, if we consider the quality or the importance of the members of the Senior Grain Transportation Committee. It consists of the Chief Commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board, the chief commissioner of the Canadian Grain Commission, the Administrator, Members representing grain producers from three provinces, including representatives of the Canadian Corporative Wheat Producers Organization and the United Grain Growers. Add to this representatives of the Canadian Wheat Pools, and all those engaged in the operation of grain elevators.

I think it is a bit too much to demand that documents or information submitted to this Committee, which is responsible for the management, administration and quality of users' services with respect to transportation of grain, not be subject to the same rules as the Canadian Transport Commission.

Mr. Speaker, it is 6:14 p.m., Monday, October 31, and I think that we are again debating a Bill that should have received the full support of Members on both sides of the House, if we consider the economic situation prevailing in Canada today and the commitment made by the Government of Canada and the railway companies with respect to the investments that must be made in the Provinces concerned, the thousands of jobs that must be created, that are being created by this Bill and by the funds that are being invested both by the Government and the railway companies, and when I consider the many hours that have been utterly wasted on motions and petitions presented by both opposition parties over a period of two days. And today, the Official Opposition has the audacity to ask us to sit beyond the normal time of adjournment of the House, which is 6 p.m. I just wonder how the Members of the Opposition, the Official Opposition and the New Democratic Party, expect people to take them seriously on this very important issue. We have lost a tremendous amount of time on this matter, and now they want to make up for lost time because everybody on both sides of the House is hoping that at last the House will be able to adjourn for a week.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to add that this Bill is extremely important to the railway industry, to the Government of Canada and even more so to railway users. And when Members decide to waste the time of the House in order to defend indefensible options which in some ways run counter to the public interest, I hope you will allow me to censure this attitude on the part of the Opposition.

As for the motions before the House, Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53, I think they add nothing at all to the Bill. On the contrary, Motions Nos. 52 and 53 weaken the Bill, and Motion No. 50 does not add anything as such and even diminishes the impact of the Bill through finicky measures that would require railway companies to provide details or information, as well as investments in proportion to taxes payable to the Government.

The Government of Canada has always invested enormous sums in railway transportation. The railways are part of our history, and Canada owes its present position on the international market, especially with respect to grain sales, to the development of its railway network. Today, we must upgrade our railway facilities and ensure that Western grain producers get better service from the railway companies. This is a commitment that should be dear to the heart of all Canadians. By objecting to the passage of this Bill, the Official Opposition and the Members of the New Democratic Party are merely postponing measures that are necessary and indispensable for Western grain producers and for the Canadian economy.

Mr. Speaker, I hope we shall get through this Bill this week and that Canadians will finally be able to take advantage of the benefits, both direct and indirect, of this legislation.

As I see it, this Bill was the result of a presentation made by a large number of Canadians and parties concerned by these measures, including grain producers, elevator operators, railway companies and railway users engaged in the shipping of goods other than grain. We all know that our present railway system is not adequate to carry all the commodities and consumer goods that must be transported, and I think today, more than ever before, after the many hours wasted as a result of the inconsistency or lack of judgment of the Official Opposition and the New Democratic Party Members, we should have the common sense to adopt a Bill that is absolutely essential to the Canadian economy.

[English]

Mr. Bill McKnight (Kindersley-Lloydminster): Mr. Speaker, in rising to take part in the debate on Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53, I would just at this time draw to the attention of the House that now, because of a motion put forward by the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski), we are attempting to debate these motions and get to those matters which most people in Canada feel are at the crux of the problems with its legislation; that is, whether the producers have the ability to pay, what the social ramifications of the increased cost will be on the fabric of western Canada, how the method of payment should be distributed, and whether the contributions of Government to the railroads should be distributed directly to the railroads or distributed to the producers in some form. We would also hope to deal with the issue of the British Columbia coal lands.

If we are successful in dealing with those very important issues it will be because of the responsibility this Party has shown in trying to debate them in a reasonable way. These are the issues that the people in our ridings want to have resolved and want to make the Government aware of. By making the Government aware, we hope the Government will respond to the wishes of the people who will be affected by these changes that we on this side of the House are proposing to correct.

It is encouraging that there have been at least two speakers from the Government side today. Those two Hon. Members travelled sporadically with the Standing Committee on Transport in western Canada and other parts of Canada this Summer. I am sure that the translation of the speech of the Hon. Member from the Government side who just spoke was accurate. She mentioned how much support there was for this Bill and how many people want it passed. She said that we should get on with it and create all of these great and wonderful things the Government is promising through this Bill. However I do not see that the Bill is very promising. The Hon. Member who just spoke should certainly be aware of the facts because she did avail herself of the opportunity to travel across Canada with the Standing Committee on Transport. I was there and I did not hear anybody demand that this Bill be passed in its present form.

When individuals appeared before that committee who represented interests other than interests of grain producers or the cattle industry in western Canada and who wanted to see a change in the statutory rate and wanted added railway investment they were asked: "Do you want it done on the backs of the grain producers and the cattle feeders and the processing industry in the prairie basin? Do you want it so bad that it should be rammed through the House of Commons? Without exception, Mr. Speaker, they answered: "No, not on that basis. We want the added investment but we do not want to harm the grain producers or the cattle feeders or the processors in the prairie basin." That is what every group that appeared before us said, even those groups that mildly or even enthusiastically supported added investment in the railway system in western Canada. Those groups want to see a change but they do not want to see it done on the backs of the grain producers of western Canada.

I am sure that the Hon. Member who just spoke realizes that fact, and was for some reason supporting her Party; a party which at this time needs support. I suppose that is why she made the personal decision to support this Bill.

When I look at Motion No. 50 standing in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), it almost appears to me to be a form of nationalization. It is a very cumbersome way of forcing upon two corporations—one a Crown owned corporation and another a privately owned corporation—investment decisions that may or may not be in the best interests of those corporations. However, what is striking, Mr. Speaker, outside of the nationalization aspect of the motion, is that this Party put forward an amendment to Clause 29 during committee stage which would make it fairly straightforward that the railways are at liberty to make all of the necessary investments for grain movement. We said that the Canadian Transport Commission would be in the position to monitor and verify those investments. The commission would be verifying annually and reporting to the Minister on the investments made in the prior crop year. It would analyse the investment plans for the present and subsequent crop years, and within 90 days submit a report to the Minister on the appropriateness of those plans to ensure an adequate, reliable and effective railway service.

Thus the railways would be at liberty to use those funds and make those investments relating to grain movement, but they would have to contend with the Canadian Transport Commission rather than with people who have studied railway performance and shortfalls or with an American based consulting firm.

Under the amendment to Clause 29, Mr. Speaker, the railways would make investments which would have to be verified by the Canadian Transport Commission which is composed of very capable commissioners located in the City of Saskatoon in western Canada, people who are very familiar with branch lines and with grain handling lines located in the western part of the country.

We might wonder, Mr. Speaker, why we have problems with this Bill and what the concerns are of the people in western Canada. My friend, the Hon. Member for Vegreville, quoted from a summary of western perspectives of the Crow by the Canada West Foundation. Just for the interest of those in the House, the goals and principal objectives of the Canada West Foundation are as follows:

1. To initiate and conduct research programs regarding the economic and social characteristics and potentialities of western Canada.

2. To initiate and conduct informational and educational programs to encourage an appreciation of the Canadian heritage and to stimulate an awareness of the future throughout western Canada.

The foundation agrees that Motion No. 50 deals with one of the biggest problems in the Bill. The Canada West Foundation explains why that is a concern to the people in western Canada who are involved in the basic movement of goods. That is explained on page 6 of the report under the heading "Railway Performance Guarantees" and reads as follows:

THE ISSUE: A lack of trust by westerners of both the Federal Government and the railways has been one of the most significant stumbling blocks to an amicable settlement of the freight rates debate. This issue amounts to an attempt to balance the need to free railways from their serious economic squeeze in order to ensure the necessary large scale investments are undertaken and the need to offer some protection to Prairie farmers who represent in many respects a captive market.

That, Mr. Speaker, essentially expresses in one paragraph the concerns that were expressed during the three months of travel of the Standing Committee on Transport in western Canada. That captive market is at the mercy of the railways that, under this Bill, operate under a cost-plus system in perpetuity. We do not feel that the Government has provided adequate methods for making sure that those railways will not continue to add cost and add cost and come back to the public treasury of Canada to have those costs again increased.

Returning to the report of the Canada West Foundation, under the subheading "Provisions of Bill C-155", it reads:

Bill C-155 requires railways to submit investment information to the Canadian Transport Commission for review. The legislation also lays the groundwork for a system of sanctions and awards to railways to ensure that improvements are made to the system. If the railway investments are deemed inadequate, the Minister of Transport is empowered to withhold a portion of the subsidy equal to what the railways ought to have spent.

We are debating Motion No. 50 together with the next motion, Motion No. 58, which stands in the name of an Hon. Member of the Conservative Party, and deals with the accommodation for traffic which would satisfy what the Canada West Foundation calls the "Western Response" to the problem by forcing the railways to spend money properly. The report reads as follows:

Although most groups appear to be in agreement with the general principles contained in the proposed legislation, they would support amendments to the Bill providing for somewhat stricter control over railway performance.

That comes about, Mr. Speaker, because of the way the Bill was designed. I am not saying that the Government knowingly attempted this. I do not see how any Government could knowingly, with knowledge aforethought, design a Bill that is so disastrous as Bill C-155. I am sure, leaving aside all of the inadequacies of the present Government, even though it has traded pallbearers around the casket by shuffling Ministers, that this Government would not have done that knowingly.

What it did was establish a system which it built up in consultation with people it felt were experts in the field. Those people happened to be of the Canadian National Railways and Canadian Pacific Railway. While I admit they are knowledgeable in their field, they are not the ones that one would suspect to be the best at defending the interests of the grain producers, the livestock feeders and processors in the prairie basin region. The railways are very good at looking after themselves, and the Government has accepted that. It said it would allow the railroads to write a Bill that guarantees them a 20 per cent return. That is something every grain producer and every cattle feeder in western Canada would love to have.

Therefore, when we reach the other amendments in this Bill that will cause the Government and the railroads to provide service and carry grain you will see the determination of this Party to ensure a good return for investment on behalf of the Canadian taxpayers.

Mr. Vic Althouse (Humboldt-Lake Centre): Mr. Speaker, the motion we are discussing at this time deals with the type of monitoring which will be done to make certain that railway commitments are carried through. We believe this is probably one of the more substantive motions that we are offering and concerns one of the most important parts of the Bill.

I am very disappointed when someone who is supposedly knowledgeable about transportation matters, as is the Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski), stands up while we are discussing this motion to say that the NDP is offering frivolous motions and wasting the time of the House.

Mr. Mazankowski: And frivolous speeches.

Mr. Althouse: What we are doing here with our frivolous speeches, Mr. Mazankowski—

Mr. Mazankowski: Order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Althouse: —is pointing out the real problems with Bills such as this that are supposed to be aimed at improving the railway system and the investment climate of the country. I do not know how any body can support a Bill that allows the Government to dip into the public purse and the purse of the farmers of this country to such an extent without having some form of assurance that the railways perform. There is no performance guarantee in this legislation, only something that is similar to the old ironclad guarantee that we saw with the pipeline of a few years ago which never went anywhere. It is a guarantee from the railway companies to the former Minister of Transport and the present Minister of State for External Relations (Mr. Pepin). It is in the form of a letter from CN and CP who wrote to the Minister on January 28 of this year with a so-called commitment to invest $807 million in the railway system in 1983 if the Government cancels the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. After major concessions by the Government the railways have committed themselves to invest, in today's dollars, less than they had invested prior to doing away with the Crow.

In 1981 CN Rail invested $511 million and is now proposing under this new plan to expend $491 million in 1983 dollars, which would be a reduction in investment in real dollars of 22.9 per cent. That is not an investment but a reduction in investment.

Similarly, CP Rail, which actually invested $317 million in 1981, is proposing to invest $315 in 1983 dollars. The total investment for the two railways represents close to 21.9 per cent less in real dollars than that invested in 1981. That is the kind of guarantee that has been proposed under this Bill.

Motion No. 50 attempts to make the railways more accountable and provide the kind of employment initiatives that the Government continually says it is applying with this policy. We hear much about this employment initiative. However, we have no guarantees about what the railways will invest.

The Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) who just spoke pointed out that we can rely on the Canadian Transport Commission. He said that the Canadian Transport Commission will make certain that investments take place. Virtually every Member of this House from western Canada, if they have been watching what is happening in their ridings, knows that this does not happen. We all have branch lines in our riding that come under some regulations from the CTC.

While the railways have been receiving money to maintain those branch lines the funds have never been spent on the branch lines. For instance, in the community of Wishart Bankend in my riding, the railways received several hundred thousand dollars to maintain that branch line before it was finally given up and abandoned. None of that money was spent on the branch line although it was specifically for that purpose. This means that the CTC does not necessarily provide the answer.

Many examples can be given to show that the CTC may rule or monitor but has no way of enforcing construction to take place or saying how expenditures will be made. The railways simply ignore the CTC until such time as the line is in such terrible shape that equipment can no longer be used on the track. The railways then apply for abandonment of the line which is granted many times.

Again, I cite the Wishart case as an example. Clearly, the railways received the money for five years, did nothing with the line or the physical plant on that line and then applied and received from the CTC a total abandonment. That line is now completely abandoned.

These are the kinds of ironclad guarantees I am talking about and the kind of thing the former Minister was attempting to get. Since these guarantees are not in the Bill we believe that Motion No. 50 would attempt to establish some of those guarantees in the legislation.

I indicated that in the letter to the former Minister on January 28 the railways made very few written commitments, and those few only for 1983. At the time, the Minister had been telling the House that the railways would be investing $16.5 billion in the coming decade. But the railways reserved for themselves the option of reducing that amount. They made it quite clear at the committee stage that their plans were not being presented to the committee and that they were not making any guarantees beyond 1983. In fact, they said in their letter of January 28, which was tabled:

> Variations from this expectation could lead to changes in the railways' capital plan during the period beyond 1983.

That was from Canadian Pacific. Canadian National wrote:

> —CN will inform you quarterly of capital investment progress with particular emphasis on major projects in western Canada, and a final review will be made at the end of 1983.

That statement came from the Crown corporation, the railway, over which the Minister would be expected to have some control.

There are even fewer guarantees from CP. Canadian Pacific is the railway which I submit has basically been built with the taxpayers' money and maintained to a great degree with the taxpayers' money. We get virtually nothing back from CP other than the strips of steel across the country.

What does that cost us? The total identifiable aid in 1916, when a royal commission looked into the matter in 1917, amounted to $279.5 million. That included railway and surveys completed by the Government of $37.8 million and direct cash aid of $66.9 million. The value of unsold lands is estimated at $119 million. Returns from lands sold minus the cost of improvements amount to something over $55 million.

Assuming a 5 per cent return on capital at that time, the present value in 1982 dollars of that aid would be $8.3 billion. If you add the present value of the subsidies for operating branch lines of some $2.9 billion you will see that the total current value of aid from federal sources to the CPR exceeds $11 billion and comes very close to the total current value of the CPR.

This company's shares have increased with the announcement of the policy change by more than 40 per cent in just five and a half months. It seems to me the market is guaging the policy proposal more accurately than some of the parliamentarians. The market has decided that the cash incentive this Parliament will give to the railways will be translated very directly into increased dividend payouts, in fact almost dollar for dollar. It is a direct transfer from the people of Canada to the shareholders of CPR.

Mr. Stan Schellenberger (Wetaskiwin): Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak on these motions. I am a little astounded as I follow the remarks of Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse), particularly about two things, one being aid to the CPR. When we were intensively trying to convince the NDP to support payment of the $651 million to the producers rather than the railroads we got no support at all from those Members.

Mr. Althouse: What is the difference?

Mr. Schellenberger: Surely, if there is concern about how the railroads were spending the money, then the support ought to have come for the payment to the producers so the producer had some way of ensuring his product was delivered in a proper fashion.

Mr. Althouse: You pay the producer and charge him ten times rather than five times. What is the difference?

Mr. Schellenberger: Now we see the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre has moved a motion which will, in effect, destroy the Crow.

Mr. Althouse: No.

Mr. Schellenberger: The Hon. Member's motion refers to the number of percentage points by which the freight-to-price ratio in that calendar year exceeds 3 per cent; which means the shipper should not pay any more than 3 per cent. I see the Hon. Member is getting a little agitated. I can understand why. He will have a lot of problems defending what he has just put before the House.

If you look at the statistics, Mr. Speaker, you will find now that the producer is not paying any more than 2.5 per cent. That is the Crow rate today, not 3 per cent. The Hon. Member for Humbodt-Lake Centre has just stood in the House today and moved a motion that in effect destroys the Crow. What is this Party saying? You should not destroy the Crow. The farmers can in no way spend any more of their money for moving grain. That is why we proposed the Bill be frozen for three years.

An Hon. Member: That's an act of desperation.

Mr. Schellenberger: What is the Member proposing? The NDP Members felt they had to put some motions forward that were not frivolous. They ran out and quickly tried to draft a few amendments to put them before the House for unanimous consent. They did not even know what they were doing.

An Hon. Member: They copied a Government amendment.

Mr. Schellenberger: The NDP and the Government have been together for some time. It is no wonder the NDP would copy a government amendment and put it before this House.

Members of the NDP will have to go to their prairie producers and try to defend this action but they will not be able to so. You can see what is happening by now in the polls, and it is no wonder, when you consider the way the New Democratic Party has operated in this House on this Bill.

Let us look at Clause 29 of the Bill. The NDP is trying to amend that clause through Motion No. 50. You will find that in committee the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer) moved a clause that would provide verification of railway investments of the $651 million. That clause was substantially amended by this Party and agreed to by all sides of the House.

The NDP now comes forward and says that we should have restrictions under Motion No. 50 that in effect would allow the railroads to have after tax constant cost portion of payments allowed for the movement of grain. That is very difficult to support. I agree the railroads have not been very good in expending moneys voted by this Parliament in the manner in which we voted them; for example, for branch line upgrading. Many Members have stood in this House and put forward examples of how moneys have been voted for branch lines and nothing has been done with those branch lines.

It is important that we have verification of investment by railways. This amendment says that the Canadian Transport Commission will have the ability to look at past expenditures and decide whether they have been made in relation to the movement of grain. It will then be able to give a report to the Minister. I have great difficulty in being concerned about confidentiality as far as the railroads are concerned.

At the time we got into branch line difficulties the railroads were saying they were not making any money moving grain from branch lines, yet at the same time the railroads were running on those branch lines moving fuels, lumber, hardware and produce into those farm communities. Then they got into the trucking business. They found that the profits, of course, were greater by truck than by rail along the branch lines. Immediately there was an end to investment in the branch lines, despite the fact the grain had to go out by rail. That is why I have so much concern and difficulty understanding this need for confidentiality.

In Motions Nos. 52 and 53 we are proposing that there is no need for confidentiality as far as the information being requested from the railroads is concerned. In fact, most of the information that would be secured would be about investments made in the past, and would probably be in the annual reports of the companies at any rate.

My second, concern is whether or not the money involved in the $658 million proposal will be spent in an adequate fashion. That money is taxpayers' money. The information about how it is intended that that money be spent should be available to the taxpayers. Therefore, there is no need to have Clause 29(5) in the Bill, which reads:

> The members of the Committee shall treat in a confidential manner any information submitted under this section that is identified and treated as confidential by the railway company that submitted the information.

That information ought to be made available to the public.

I always have a little laugh about the railway's concern about competition. In my area there is only one railroad. There is no other railroad competing. The railroad has control over most of the trucking companies that run into those areas. Very few other trucking companies can compete. I have great difficulty in being concerned about the corporate confidentiality of investments in those areas where there is a monopoly. Even if that line were not a grain related line with a federal subsidy going to it, I would still have some difficulty supporting a clause like that. But when this relates to a grain carrying line, whether or not it is supported by direct investment from the Canadian public, then I have a great deal of difficulty in supporting that clause. That is why I strongly support the motions put forward to delete that clause from this Bill. Hon. Members should consider carefully which of the two amendments they should support. I suggest they preferably support ours because it appears first on the Order Paper.

● (1850)

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell).

An Hon. Member: Question.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The situation is difficult for the Chair. Apparently Hon. Members are outwaiting one another—

Mr. Waddell: I am sorry, Mr. Speaker.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): —in due course I will put the question.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. It seems in terms of Hon. Members who are rising to speak that they are playing the cat and mouse game. I appreciate the fact that Members of the Conservative Party moved us into extended hours because there are many motions. With time allocation placed on us by the Government, it does not seem that we will be able to deal with many of the important motions we would like to cover.

In light of that fact, and coming directly to my point of order, if it is important for other Parties in the House of Commons, not just the New Democratic Party, to see the Bill disposed of, we would like the Chair to seek the unanimous consent of the House, in keeping with the spirit of covering adequately all the amendments and motions, to remove the ten-minute limit on speeches. Hon. Members could then fully express their concerns about the various motions they want to cover this evening. Would the Chair seek unanimous consent of the House to dispose of the ten-minute time limit and seek either a 20-minute limitation or, more preferably, remove the limitation on the length of time Hon. Members can speak on any motion with which we are dealing during the extended hours?

It is uncertain as to when the extended hours will cease. I imagine they will cease when no more Members rise in their places or when we have covered all the motions with which we want to deal during report stage of Bill C-155. I ask the Chair to seek unanimous consent of the House to dispose of the time limitation on speeches this evening for the remainder of extended hours.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I rise on the same point of order. We certainly would not have any objection to that. However, I re-emphasize that the basic reason for our Party moving the extension of hours was simply in the hope we would be able to get to what we consider to be some of the very fundamental issues and points which have yet to be debated.

Mr. Speaker, if you have followed the progress of the Bill, you will know that in the course of committee consideration we were not able to deal with the subject of the safety net because it was ruled out of order in that it went beyond the Royal Proclamation or the intent of the Bill as expressed in the vote on second reading. We were unable to debate in a meaningful way the issue of the method of payment because it was ruled out of order. While the particular subject of the British Columbia coal lands was debated somewhat, we were constrained in debating it fully by virtue of the time deadline on the committee. Originally the committee was to report on September 12, and there was a two-week extension. However, we ran out of time.

These are the things we were unable to debate fully. I have referred to the safety net. There was also our proposal which would result in the maintenance of the existing statutory freight rate until the review process was completed; that would be July 31, 1986. Also there was the whole question of the commission of inquiry. It was another issue that was not debated in committee because it was found to be beyond the scope of the Bill.

The thrust of our motion for extended hours was the hope and anticipation that we would be able to deal with those very important matters. If Parliament is to discharge its responsibilities in an effective manner, particularly on this very important and contentious Bill, a Bill which enjoys relatively little support, if any, other than from the railway sector, it is incumbent upon Parliament to debate it. Canadian people, in particular those in the agricultural community, are expecting their representatives to debate these important issues. Within the framework of those thoughts, I would hope Hon. Members of the New Democratic Party would reconsider their tactics and allow progress to be made so that we can get to those issues and have the opportunity to debate them.

Just a few moments ago a member of the Press Gallery telephoned and asked me when we were expected to debate the amendment of the Hon. Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) concerning the safety net. I said that if it went to the bottom of the list it might never happen. We would like to debate it. We would like to hear what the Minister has to say. We would like to hear him elaborate on what is meant by the 4 per cent and the 5 per cent escalating safety net.

I hope NDP Members will reconsider their tactics. We would certainly support an extension in the time limit of speeches, but I implore them to allow the debate to move ahead. Surely it does not require 30 Members of that Party to debate a motion such as the one proposed by the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). I will not comment on whether or not it is important. I think that issue was well dealt with by an amendment which was accepted by the committee. Here we are rehashing a lot of the information which was dealt with, in some detail, in committee. Some Hon. Members of the NDP are really trying to get their feet wet on this Bill. During the course of committee hearings they had one "Lone Ranger" who really carried the whole burden. Now all these followers, these trained seals, are trying to get into the act.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Both the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish) and the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) will recognize that the Chair has attempted in every way to facilitate them so that they might proceed. However, at this point I think the Hon. Member is entering into debate rather than a point of order.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, this is the first we have heard of the proposal of the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish). There seems to be some disposition on the part of the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski), however I am certainly not in a position to give unanimous consent right now. If we could defer any such decision until we have had time to consult and decide exactly the form of the proposal, there might possibly be unanimous consent at a later time. Perhaps we could now return to the debate on the motions, and in the meantime we could discuss these issues and attempt to come up with something which is agreeable to all Hon. Members. Perhaps we could reach an agreement a little later.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, I rise on the same point of order. It is very difficult for me to give unanimous consent to extend the time length of the speeches of Members beyond ten minutes. If a Member cannot express himself in ten minutes, perhaps that Member should not be on his or her feet. I do not think the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) should get away with sloughing off all the blame on the NDP. Between those two Parties, they wasted two full days on the presentation of petitions, procedural wrangles and putting up speakers on one frivolous amendment after another. Now they want more time in which to debate, after wasting two full days of the House.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Chair did try to facilitate what Hon. Members appeared to be interested in. A point of order has to sound like a point of order, not a particular debate or attack on the Government. Let us keep to a point of order.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I think you will find that I do have a point of order. If the Parliamentary Secretary is suggesting that the presentation of petitions, a time-honoured and perfectly legitimate form of making representations on behalf of Canadian citizens, is out of order and he is imputing that we on this side have engaged in that in a frivolous manner, I suggest that he reconsider those remarks.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Are there any other Members who wish to address the point of order? Does the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish) rise on the same point of order?

Mr. Anguish: Yes I do, Mr. Speaker.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I would ask the Hon. Member, now that we have reverted to a more reasonable application of the rules, to address himself to the point of order, not debate.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I did not think I was entering debate when I initiated the point of order. I was asking for unanimous consent that the time limitation on speeches be extended, not only the hours but the time limitation on speeches. This is the most complex piece of legislation that has come before Parliament in my time here.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member should address himself to the point of order, not debate. If he wants me to put the question as to whether there is unanimous consent, I will do so. I know immediately that there is not unanimous consent. Would the Hon. Member take his seat please.

Mr. Anguish: On a point of order.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I will recognize the Hon. Member on a point of order as soon as I have completed putting the question.

Mr. Anguish: It is on the same point of order.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member may not speak twice on the same point of order. I would ask the Hon. Member to take his seat while I put the question.

Mr. Anguish: I rise on a new point of order.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for the Battlefords-Meadow Lake seeks unanimous consent of the House to remove the time limit of ten minutes on any and all speeches during this process of debate under Standing Order 8(4)(a). Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): There is not unanimous consent.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I distinctly heard the Parliamentary Secretary rise in his place in this House and ask for time to consult with his Caucus. Subsequently you called for unanimous consent, although a Member of the Government had asked for time to consult with his Caucus. I think it was very unfair to put that question to the House. If it had been on a different point of order, I suppose, or connected to that, they would have had time to consult and consider the wisdom of extending the time of the speeches.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I do not understand the Hon. Member's difficulty. There is no problem whatsoever in putting the same question to the House for unanimous consent later on. May I recognize Hon. Members for debate. The Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway.

Mr. Ian Waddell (Vancouver-Kingsway): Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak for ten minutes on the Crow debate. I have not spoken often in this debate. I want to speak to Motion No. 50. Before I do and as a preface to that, as a Member from Vancouver, British Columbia, I am against this Bill and the changes in the Crow rate. I admit there will be some benefits to railway construction and so on. However, those benefits would come about anyway. I am told by my colleagues who are doing a magnificent job of trying to block this change in the Crow rate that while we may get a billion dollars in investment down the line, our farmers will lose a billion dollars down the line.

I believe my colleagues. They are honest men. They are sincere. Unlike the Government, they know western Canada. They tell me that the whole way of life in western Canada will be changed as a result of this Bill and that a culture will be destroyed. That is serious. That is what makes this debate important.

I listened to the Hon. Member for Wetaskiwin (Mr. Schellenberger). I thought what he said was in pretty bad taste. He referred to "the way the NDP have operated in this House". The NDP have operated in one way, consistently, unlike the Conservative Party. The NDP has consistently opposed the changes in the Crow rate. The NDP has consistently taken the position that this legislation is no good. The Conservatives, in proposing this debate, are basically, if I can use the expression, just trying to protect their asses in this debate tonight. They are trying to protect their inconsistent position and the fact that the people in western Canada are very disappointed with the Conservatives and the way they have conducted themselves throughout this whole Crow debate. They are not fooling anybody by pulling this act tonight.

Let me speak on Motion No. 50, which is why we are here. The way the situation is now, the railways can state their intent as to what they are going to do with investment each year. We say in Motion No. 50 that the railways should have to state the intent as to how they are going to invest in railway upgrading. We want to put a specific amount into the upgrading and investment so that a decade from now we will know that we will really have an upgraded rail system and that the investment was put to good use, not piddled away by the railways as they have done with public grants in the past. That seems to be reasonable. My colleagues in the NDP, especially the prairie Members, have made reasonable amendments throughout. They have, unlike the Conservative Party, the branch plant of American Ronald Reaganism, been consistent.

Motion No. 50 puts some backbone in Clause 29 which deals with railway capital investment and Government monitoring of this investment in return for the subsidies which the railways will receive under this Bill. Specifically, we ask for guarantees of investment linked to Government payments to railways as outlined in Section 55. Section 55 gives the Government the power for holdbacks if the railways do not meet commitments for track maintenance on branch lines and investment in grain handling equipment. Our Motion No. 50 spells out the amount that can be reasonably expected in railway investment.

Why is this necessary? Because of the past and present railway statement of intention and investment. It is important that the country realize that railway statements of intention to invest are made on a yearly basis. The companies have made no statements committing themselves to the railway megaprojects that the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) continually speaks of in this House. Second, there is a history of public aid to railways that Bill C-155 perpetuates. Money flows to the railways. The return to the public is always in the forms of regulations and guarantees of service and nothing happens with these guarantees and regulations. Bill C-155 does nothing to improve this.

Motion No. 50 sets identifiable levels rather than nebulous ones. It does not guarantee the public equity in the CPR that we would really like. At least it makes the company put its money substantially into grain-related items rather than non-transport, non-Canadian items which CPR has helped itself to in recent years, such as buying railroads in the United States.

That is what we are trying to do in Motion No. 50. Those of us who come from Vancouver—after all, the CPR got half of Vancouver as a result of the famous settlement to build the transcontinental railways—know that you have to keep close tabs on what they do with the public grants that they receive. The CPR has been the biggest corporate welfare bum in the history of Canada. Motion No. 53 deletes the provision of confidentiality. It is the same as Conservative Motion No. 52. I agree with what the Member for Wetaskiwin said on this.

Let me conclude with these two remarks. First, Motion No. 50 makes sense. It is a practical motion and a good motion. It requires the railways to put their investments where their mouth is. Finally, I take great umbrage at what the Conservatives have suggested to be the way the NDP has operated in this House. I have tried to make a speech in which I make a rational amendment and explain it in a practical way. I think that that is what we have been doing.

I was at the Committee hearings in Vancouver. I could not go all across the country but I was in Vanouver and I saw the hearings. The NDP have been perfectly consistent. What you are seeing tonight is the Conservative Party trying to save their derrieres because they have been caught in the squeeze of offering an amendment to postpone the Crow changes for three years. Either you are for the Crow changes or you are against the Crow changes. We are against the changes in the Crow because we are afraid that it will bring a tremendous cultural change and destroy the present prairie farm life. I can understand that cry from prairie farmers, even though I am from Vancouver. That is why I have supported my colleagues here tonight in this motion and in their general, consistent stand against changes in the Crow rate.

Hon. Jake Epp (Provencher): Mr. Speaker, my colleagues, the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski), the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight), the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer), and the Hon. Member for Moose Jaw (Mr. Neil), have worked tirelessly and consistently on this Bill.

Tonight is a revealing evening. As we are coming closer to the end of this debate, it is the NDP who have made the greatest flip-flop in this House since Jack Horner joined the Liberals. Mr. Speaker, they and the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell) say that this motion makes political sense, it makes economic sense, and it is consistent with the position the NDP have taken. Those are his words.

What does the motion say? It is as badly constructed as other motions by the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). I do not consider the Hon. Member for Regina West necessarily wanted to do this, but it again shows his lack of attention to detail. The NDP have been saying consistently that you cannot kill the Crow. They have been saying consistently no change. Today we have a motion which does just that. The NDP has moved an amendment which would kill the Crow, which would alter the Crow. They do not know what they are doing.

An Hon. Member: Get a lawyer or learn to read.

Mr. Epp: The Hon. Member says get a lawyer. I think he is a farmer and I would think he also knows what the average price is that farmers are paying for the Crow.

Mr. Benjamin: He got a lawyer, you didn't.

Mr. Epp: His amendment deals with the shipper share limitation adjustment, which in layman's language means what the average price paid for the commodity moved will be. Right now the average is 2½ per cent. What are they asking for? Three per cent.

Mr. Speaker, today they are asking for a 20 per cent increase to farmers to pay for the movement of grain.

An Hon. Member: That is all the Government wanted in January.

Mr. Epp: They are as bad as the Government.

Some Hon. Members: They are part of the Government.

Mr. Epp: I know some people would say that is impossible. I thought so too until tonight.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, I look forward to debating with my colleague from Provencher (Mr. Epp) the motions that were presented today on which there was unanimous consent. He has yet to say a word about the motions that are in front of the House.

Mr. Nielsen: Hurts, doesn't it?

Mr. Benjamin: Since he and his colleague from Vegreville felt at liberty to complain about some of my colleagues' remarks, I would like to invite the Chair to invite the Member for Provencher to talk about the motions that are on the Order Paper which we are debating and not the motions—

Mr. Waddell: They have the wrong one.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member is endeavouring to speak on a motion which the House gave unanimous consent to be debated and which will be debated later. Would he mind saving that for later and I will be glad to take him on?

Mr. Mayer: Mr. Speaker, am I to understand the Hon. Member for Regina West to say that he does not want the Member for Provencher to get up in this House and debate his own motion? Is he so embarrassed by his own motion that he does not want the Hon. Member for Provencher to discuss his motion? Is that what he is saying?

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, for the benefit of the Member for Portage-Marquette, I was inviting the Hon. Member for Provencher to debate the amendments that I have moved and also one which is from the Member for Portage-Marquette which the Hon. Member for Vegreville called frivolous. I am inviting him to debate our amendments and one of their own amendments.

Mr. Neil: Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the Hon. Member for Regina West is attempting to take over the function of the Chair. It is the function of the Chair to make a decision as to whether or not the Member is debating the motions. It is not up to another Hon. Member to direct his remarks to a Member who is speaking.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): After due consideration of the argument presented, the Chair is of the considered opinion that the Hon. Member for Moose Jaw makes considerable sense in the circumstances. I would invite Hon. Members to continue this important debate.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, with all respect, you no doubt are perfectly correct about what the Hon. Member for Moose Jaw just said. Would the Chair now invite the Hon. Member for Provencher to quit talking about motions that were moved today by unanimous consent but which are not yet before the House and speak on Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53?

Mr. McKnight: Mr. Speaker, I would like to draw to the attention of the Chair that Motion No. 50 talks about the after tax constant cost portion of payments. When you look at the after tax constant cost portion or the tax cost of the capital and after tax depreciation as included in Motion No. 50, any contribution increases on behalf of producers that would be over the existing Crow rate, which is about 20 per cent less than the NDP amendment that my colleague for Provencher is referring to, he would be indeed referring to Motion No. 50 by talking about the safety net and the 20 per cent increase that the NDP have proposed.

Some Hon. Members: Good point.

Mr. Benjamin: That is a long bow.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I have been in this chair since 4.30 this afternoon. Perhaps Hon. Members will do me a personal favour and give me ten minutes without a point of order to get something to eat!

Mr. Benjamin: Wait until 4.30 in the morning.

● (1920)

Mr. Epp: I will try to comply with your human needs and desires, Mr. Speaker. I find it interesting that we are debating the amendment moved by the Hon. Member for Regina West and he does not want us to debate it. His ill-conceived, ill-thought-out and badly drafted amendment would increase the price that farmers are paying for the movement of grain. No matter how you look at the amendment, the effect would be a 20 per cent increase. We will not support that kind of amendment. We are not going to do that to the grain farmers of the prairie basin.

The NDP should at least be consistent in their amendments with the words they are using outside the House. That is all we are asking. It is absolutely amazing that after all these months of debate in the House, in committee and back in the House again, Members of the NDP cannot see that.

The actual cost to the railways of the movement of grain has been a long-standing issue on the Prairies and it has always been difficult to find information on this. Many Members appeared before the Railway Transport Committee when applications were made for rail line abandonment. One of the frustrations of that experience is that the railways would ask Members if they wanted to spend taxpayers' money for secondary rail rehabilitation or maintenance against the amount of grain moved.

The last time I appeared was at the hearing on the Emerson Spur, a distance of 5.8 miles. It was costing taxpayers $140,000 per year to maintain that line. Before the last rail line abandonment hearing I contacted the CTC and the CNR to get a breakdown of where the money was spent. I wanted to know if it was on snow clearance, rail maintenance, ballast, locomotives or whatever. I never got that breakdown and I am sure almost every Member has had a similar experience. It is regarded as confidential, commercial information. The company claimed that the line was non-viable but that the taxpayers should pay up without asking questions. That is unconscionable, Mr. Speaker, and that is why I support our motion.

What our motion would do is put that information in the hands of those who need it to analyse whether the railways are performing the service and meeting the requirements under the law and that they are doing it under a financial structure which they say they need.

There is another matter on the Prairies that is difficult to analyse. During the past year when commodity transportation volume was down because of the recession, we had record grain movements. The railways always argue that they lose money on that so the financial picture is interesting for this year when they moved more grain and less of other commodities.

The Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) has been arguing that the amount of money that would go to the railways, which the NDP say should go totally to the railways, is greater than the railways have shown they need to maintain the railways, improve the system or the so-called short haul movement of grain. That is what these amendments would do.

By an ill-drafted amendment, the NDP is willing to increase the amount that farmers pay for the movement of grain by 20 per cent. They are ready to destroy the Crow, no matter what they say. On the other hand, this Party's amendment would result, without question, in the railways not only being forced to allow us to monitor their performance but also to monitor their actual expenses.

I say to all Members of the House, please do not kill the Crow as the NDP wants, but support the amendments that make sense across the Prairies, the amendments moved by this Party.

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I should like to put a few comments on the record regarding Motions No. 50, No. 52 and No. 53. I was very surprised to hear some of the arguments of the Conservatives to the effect that we want to kill the Crow. I can say unequivocally that the NDP has always stood for maintaining the statutory rate by which western producers move their grain.

I am particularly surprised at the Hon. Member for Wetaskiwin (Mr. Schellenberger). I know him quite well and I have sat on committees with him. He is a member of the special committee set up to study Indian self-government and I have found him to be very conscientious in the work he has done on that committee. His comments on Bill C-155 surprised me when he maintained that the NDP would do away with the statutory Crow rate because we want the payments to go to the railways from the Government instead of the producers. The argument is that if the payments go to the producers, then the producers cannot put leverage on the railway companies for better movement of grain in western Canada.

This is something like the old story that Tommy Douglas used to tell about the elephant doing the dance among the chickens, Mr. Speaker. How could the farmers put pressure on the railway companies for the better movement of grain? Farmers do not have the means to pressure the railway companies that the Government has.

I could use a little parable about Members of Parliament putting pressure on the Government compared to farmers putting pressure on the railway companies for better movement of their produce. In the general election of February, 1980, not one Member of Parliament ran as an independent and was elected. If people are serious about getting elected and feel that they want to do something for their country, they would not run on their own but under the banner of a political Party. That is because there is strength in numbers, Mr. Speaker, in standing for policies, which most Parties should have.

However, it is becoming obvious this evening that there are no policies of the Conservative Party in regard to Bill C-155 because it keeps changing its stand on the statutory rate in Bill C-155 whenever it feels it convenient to do so in its best political patronage interest across this country. That Party finds itself slipping seven points in the Gallup poll and all of a sudden it becomes paranoid. It calls through petitions for the country to go to an election because that Party knows that if it goes on much longer it will not have the public support even to form a Government in this country.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Anguish: I believe that scares those Hon. Members somewhat. I can hear their nervous laughter over there. The Official Opposition and other Hon. Members of this House of Commons must make sure that the Government, whether it be Liberal, Conservative or NDP, protects the best interests of the producers in Canada. I want to dispel the argument that Conservatives are using here this evening that the New Democratic Party is opposed to the statutory Crow rate. We have unequivocally always maintained that the Crow rate is the right of the producers in western Canada and nothing that the Tories can say will detract from that so far as anyone who has followed this issue for any period of time is concerned.

The first amendment, Motion No. 50, which we are dealing with here, is a New Democratic Party amendment. It requires the railroads to reinvest any surplus funds received from public moneys paid to them under this legislation. Why would we want them to do that? I feel there are some very good reasons, Mr. Speaker. If one looks at the hisotry of the rail companies in this country, particularly Canadian Pacific, one will see that Canadian Pacific received over the period of time since it has been in existence some 43,962,546 acres of land. It has also received hundreds of millions of dollars to invest in the transportation system of this country, not only to haul grain, not only to haul manufactured products from other areas of the country, but also to tie the country together. It was part of the Confederation agreement. I do not care how many times Hon. Members of this House hear that. It was part of the Confederation agreement to hold this country together.

It is especially important for the people of western Canada who wanted that link with the great country of Canada as opposed to joining the United States of America. It worked,

Mr. Speaker, but the cost was very high. Almost 44 million acres of land, hundreds of millions of dollars invested in rolling stock, in upgrading of branch lines, in upgrading of the rail beds across the country, particularly in western Canada, and grants when the railways said they were losing money. But they did not reinvest that money in the rail transportation system in this country. The decided to expand.

What are some of the companies which Canadian Pacific owns today which have reaped the financial rewards of that land and money which was given to them by the people of Canada to keep an efficient, modern transportation system? They are numerous, Mr. Speaker. They are Canadian Pacific Air Lines Limited, Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited, Canadian Pacific (Bermuda) Limited, Canadian Pacific Express & Transport Limited, CanPac International Freight Services Inc., Soo Line Railroad Company, CP Telecommunications, Canadian Pacific Enterprises, PanCanadian Petroleum Limited, Cominco Ltd., Fording Coal Limited, CIP Incorporated, Pacific Forest Products Limited, Great Lakes Forest Products Limited, The Algoma Steel Corporation Limited, Maple Leaf Mills Limited, Marathon Realty Company Limited. Marathon Realty Company Limited was not interested in Canadian Pacific in terms of upgrading the rail transportation system in this country. It was interested in selling off a great amount of that 43,962,546 acres of land in order to reap more profits for Canadian Pacific.

Of course, Mr. Speaker, we would like to see Motion No. 50, put forward by this Party, locked into this Bill so that the money which Canadian Pacific receives from the people of Canada will be invested in the rail transportation system of this country and the agricultural producers will have much better movement of their products than they have had in the past.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): With all due respect, the Hon. Member is out of order at the moment. His time has expired unless he has the unanimous consent of the House to continue.

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

An Hon. Member: No.

Mr. Anguish: The other motion, Mr. Speaker, in which I am interested—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): Not having had unanimous consent to continue, I turn now to the Hon. Member for Assiniboia (Mr. Gustafson).

Mr. Benjamin: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. The only "no" I heard was from an Hon. Member on the Government side who was not in his seat. He was standing in the middle of the aisle. He said no, he would not give unanimous consent. No one else said no.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): To resolve this difficult issue in the most judicious way, I will again call for the vote. Does the Hon. Member have unanimous consent to continue his address.

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

An Hon. Member: No.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): I detect a certain no.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, since the first vote was improper, unbeknown to the Chair, how could another vote on the same motion which was improper take place? You must have had unanimous consent on the first occasion because the only "no', came from someone standing in the aisle.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): The Chair was very mindful and respectful of the intentions of the Hon. Members of this House. The Chair did not hear unanimous consent having been proffered in order that the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake could continue. Could we have the next speaker, please.

Mr. Len Gustafson (Assiniboia): Mr. Speaker, it is obvious to see that the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) and the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish) are very concerned about the developments in the last few hours, particularly in respect to the motions which they have moved relating to the statutory Crow rate. When one looks at the increases which that Party is proposing, Mr. Speaker, which are in fact 20 per cent, one finds it has in fact used exactly the same wording which was used by the Government in the Bill. The New Democratic Party has again crawled into bed with the Government and is facilitating increases which the farmers are very, very opposed to.

Mr. Benjamin: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker. As I had to point out earlier to the Hon. Member for Provencher (Mr. Epp), when we get to the motions to which unanimous consent was given earlier today, I will be glad to take that Party on those motions. With all deference, in the meantime, would the Hon. Member for Assiniboia address himself to the matter of the railways reinvesting their surplus money and would he address himself to the matter of confidentiality of information?

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): I would endeavour to ask, in the name of civility, that all Hon. Members address their remarks to the motion at hand and I would ask the Hon. Member for Regina West whether he in all good conscience feels that his intervention was strictly a point of order. On that basis, I would again ask the Hon. Member for Assiniboia to continue with his remarks.

Mr. Gustafson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I was just pointing out the nervousness of Hon. Members of the NDP which was again manifested by a series of points of order that had been raised around the motions about which we are speaking as well as other incidents relating to Bill C-155.

We are dealing here with Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53. Two of those motions were put forward by the Hon. Member for Regina West and Motion No. 52 was put forward by the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer). I think it is very important to realize that we are talking about accountability of the railways. We are talking about information that is submitted to the general public, to the farmers and to everyone involved with increases in freight rates.

I do not know how the Hon. Member for Regina West intends to interpret the issue, but what we are dealing with here in regard to rate increases does not fall under the category of information, nor does it fall under the category of accountability, which is really the crux of the whole situation. In fact, in regard to the primary producers and the prairies farmers, we have at this time a situation in which the Government has not fully inquired into the ability of the farmers to pay. We on this side of the House have not had any qualms about the development of the rail lines. We hear the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) and the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) constantly saying that we do not want to go ahead with the work of advancing the rail lines and we want to stop the job. That is not so. That has never been the position of our Party. Our Party has constantly said that the work should go ahead and that the double tracking in areas over the passes and ports and so on should be dealt with. Our problem is with the farmers' ability to pay and that is where we come to accountability and access to information.

The Hon. Member for Regina West was the only NDP Member who travelled constantly with the committee and informed himself of what was going on. I find it strange that Members of the NDP and especially the Hon. Member for Regina West should suddenly be so concerned about the fact that they have moved a motion to break the statutory Crow rate. The Hon. Member for Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain (Mr. Hamilton) has said again and again in the House that the importance of the statutory Crow rate to western farmers relates to two things. One is the fact that we in the West are 1,000 miles from open water. The second is that the Crow rate is actually the Magna Carta of the farmers and the grain producers. Members of the NDP have broken down that statutory rate by moving in the House an increase of 20 per cent to the statutory Crow rate as it now exists. They are now arguing—

An Hon. Member: They wouldn't support the freeze.

Mr. Gustafson: They certainly would not support the freeze which in fact was a retention of the statutory Crow rate.

I shall deal more specifically with the motions, Mr. Speaker, as they stand before us in the House. The Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette is saying that he would delete these words from Clause 29(5) of the Bill:

> The members of the Committee shall treat in a confidential manner any information submitted under this section that is identified and treated as confidential by the railway company that submitted the information.

The Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette is simply saying that we will delete those words and we will make information public in every way to the primary producers and to the general public so that they will know exactly what is going on.

I dealt with the farmers' ability to pay a little earlier. I would like to make this point again, Mr. Speaker, because I think the most serious omission the Government has made in forcing closure in the House is in regard to the farmers' ability to pay. There has not been an up-to-date inquiry into that ability. The Gilson Report was made two and a half to three years ago.

Mr. Mazankowski: It didn't look at the ability to pay.

Mr. Gustafson: That report did not deal with the farmers' ability to pay but looked at everything in a roundabout fashion. Those who sat in on the committee hearings in Regina, Edmonton, Ottawa, Winnipeg and so on were well aware that the one major point that the farmers and all other groups were making was that they did not have the ability to pay, they did not have the ability to deal with the freight rate increases that would be called for under this Bill. Now today, of all things, Members of the NDP have come along and have put forward the same type of program as the Government.

A Government that would move closure without really digging into the situation to determine the ability of those farmers to meet obligations is beyond our comprehension. Accountability of the railroads to the farmers is very important. It is also important for the Government to have some accountability and to look into the ability of farmers to pay the increases that they are asking them to pay. If I had more time, Mr. Speaker, I would elaborate upon what this type of action and this type of Bill could mean to the country and to the producers if the Government moves ahead with closure on a Bill that will have serious economic effects on the country and the producers.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. The Hon. Member was asking for more time and I would like to assure him that if he needs more time, we would be glad to give him more time so that he could elaborate even further on his point.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, I rise on the same point of order. I certainly defer to my colleague, the Hon. Member for Assiniboia (Mr. Gustafson). He made an outstanding and brilliant speech, but I would simply say with respect to the point of order raised by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) that I think it is about time we heard from Members of the NDP about where they stand on this particular issue.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise again on that same point of order. It is not a matter of where we stand. The Hon. Member for Assiniboia, in the last seconds of his speech, indicated that if he only had more time, he could elaborate further. I can say on behalf of my colleagues that although we found his speech boring and completely irrelevant to what we are dealing with, we would gladly give him more time if he wanted it.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): It is evident that what I ought to do, with the consent of the Hon. Member for Assiniboia, is to ask whether there is unanimous consent to allow the Hon. Member to continue. From my position in the chair, it is clear to me that the Hon. Member is asking for that unanimous consent. Is there unanimous consent for the Hon. Member to continue his remarks?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Shields: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I just wanted to ask you, Mr. Speaker, how your peripheral vision is. I know that I sit very far to the left, but I wonder if your peripheral vision does take me in when I do stand.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Debate.

• (1950)

Mr. Doug Neil (Moose Jaw): Mr. Speaker, I wish to make a few comments with respect to the amendments that are before us at this time. I might say that I listened with interest to several Members of the NDP debating the amendments. Certainly, they wandered far and wide and tried to move away as far as possible from the amendment that their agricultural critic brought in today which in effect would be the first blow to kill the Crow.

Mr. Benjamin: Order. Which amendments are we debating?

Mr. Fulton: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. We are dealing with Motion No. 52 and Motion No. 53. I recognize the ploy that the Member is involved in but perhaps he could dispense with that form of intellectual dishonesty.

Mr. Neil: I hardly think that was a point of order. They talk about intellectual dishonesty. They have spent the last several months saying keep the Crow and today they bring in a motion, a proposed amendment that increases the rate paid by the farmers—

Mr. Anguish: I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Neil: It increases the rate paid by the farmers.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. If you are not going to keep the debate to the motions at hand, we want to know about the aspersions that the Tories are casting on anything the NDP has ever done to do away with the Crow rate. We have never moved any motion. We have never uttered words in this Caucus to do anything to alter the statutory rate. If you are going to allow these allegations to continue, either keep them to the point of the amendments we are discussing or have them tell us what the motion is so we can debate that motion on the floor of the House.

Mr. Neil: Mr. Speaker, as the minutes go by the voices of the NDP get louder and louder until the last speaker was almost screaming, because he understands what they did. They have effectively killed the Crow by their amendment.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: The man is in anguish.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I asked the Member exactly what motion and to describe the motion to us so that we know what is being dealt with. I see the Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) showing the Hon. Member for Moose Jaw (Mr. Neil) how he can cover his argument that he has been making here this evening in his seat in the House.

I ask that you either keep the debate on the amendments or I challenge the Conservative Party to point out in the House where in fact that motion lies and to describe it to us.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order. I think it is perfectly in order for the Hon. Member to call to the attention of the Chair that relevance is one of the rules of parliamentary debate, but I do not think he ought to call upon the Chair to force one Party or Member to do or something. I am quite ready to do my very best to enforce relevance, although I would remind the Hon. Member that if I enforce it on one Member in the debate, I have to enforce it on all Members in the debate.

Mr. Mayer: Mr. Speaker, I rise briefly on the same point of order. We on this side have confidence in the Chair to keep the debate relevant. I do not think it becomes the demeanor of the House at all to have Members from one particular Party getting up and using the judgment of the Chair in such a way that it would draw attention to their own Members' concern in this case. Speaking for myself and our side, I certainly have faith in and support the Chair in seeing that the debate at this extended hour stays as relevant as possible, given the circumstances.

Mr. Neil: I just have one comment to make. If the Member for The Battlefords-Kindersley had been here earlier in the day he would have heard the motion that was proposed by his Party's agriculture critic.

Mr. Deans: He was here before you were.

Mr. Neil: And it was given unanimous consent to be set down for debate.

Mr. Anguish: The Tories accepted it.

Mr. Neil: As I said, if the Hon. Member had been here he would have understood what had taken place.

Mr. Anguish: I was here.

Mr. Neil: He would have heard the motion.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. It is my recollection that in seeking unanimous consent, the Conservatives agreed to have the question debated, just as we agreed to have some questions that they proposed debated. I can only assume that by agreeing to have them debated they must have thought them worthy of some consideration.

Mr. Neil: That is an interesting comment. I will not comment further on the matter. It does not warrant any comment.

Mr. Deans: You cannot think of any.

Mr. Neil: I can certainly think of many comments.

Mr. Deans: Why don't you think? Why don't you make them?

Mr. Neil: I am going to talk about the amendments we are debating right now.

Mr. Deans: Come on, big mouth, make them.

Mr. Neil: A few moments ago the Hon. Member was saying that I was out of order in my comments—

Mr. Deans: I am saying you are irrelevant.

Mr. Neil: Now he is inviting me to make comments that would not be in order. I would not waste my time arguing with the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans).

Mr. Deans: Come on, show us how much you know, Moose Jaw. That is an interesting name for a guy like you.

Mr. Neil: I would like to make my comments with respect to the motions we are debating at the present time.

Mr. Anguish: Do you know what they are?

Mr. Neil: Certainly I know what they are.

Mr. Deans: Tell us about them.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: They partly reflect the NDP flip-flop.

Mr. Neil: It is an indication of the fact that the NDP are very nervous when they will not allow a Member to continue to debate.

Mr. Deans: Tell us about them.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. This is relevant and I will be very brief. Earlier, the Member for Moose Jaw (Mr. Neil) referred to the Member for "The Battlefords-Kindersley". Since there is no such riding I am not sure to whom the Hon. Member is referring. I want him to know that there is no longer any such constituency in the Parliament of Canada represented in the House.

Mr. Neil: If I said The Battlefords-Kindersley, it was an error. I meant The Battlefords-Meadow Lake.

With respect to the motions that are before us, particularly Motion No. 50 put forward by the Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), I would suggest that our Party was successful in committee in amending Clause 29(2) which basically does much of what the proposed amendment of the Hon. Member does. This amendment to Clause 29(2) in committee, which was approved by all Parties, strengthened the CTC position to monitor and verify the investments to be made by the railway. Consequently, we do not believe we can support Motion No. 50.

Motion No. 52 and Motion No. 53 are identical. They delete Clause 29(5) which requires the Members of the Senior Grain Transportation Committee to treat any information submitted under the clause by the railways as confidential.

The taxpayers of Canada will be contributing well over $600 million annually to the railways. In addition, the producers of grain will be called upon to pay double and up to five times the present rate. Under these circumstances I believe it is important that the investment plans of the railways should be made public. They should not be held in confidence because the taxpayers are providing a substantial amount of money and the producers are paying a substantial amount of money. I suggest that to treat the information with respect to the investment by the railways as confidential removes the possibility of the public and the taxpayer of being critical or capable of analyzing what are the investments of the railways. It seems to me with respect to Motions Nos. 52 and 53 that these are amendments in the interest of the taxpayers. They are in the interest of the producer and they are certainly amendments which should be supported by all Members in the House.

Mr. Jim Fulton (Skeena): Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to have the opportunity to speak on Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53. I would like to deal first with Motion No. 50 and try to encourage some Members on the Government side and some Members on the Tory side to respond in some relevant way to this motion. It is really not that difficult for them to deal with. It is a requirement to put some backbone into Clause 29. Motion No. 50 simply states that the money raised through the changes proposed in Bill C-155 must go back in terms of reinvestment into either main-lines, port development, branch lines, grain facilities or something related to the transportation, storage and movement of grain.

I would like to start with a few facts to which I would like to hear Government and Tory Members respond in terms of figures obtained in recent years from public accounts. First I will speak with respect to what has been given to the CPR for the movement of grain and what has happened over the years.

Let me start with 1958. According to public accounts it was given, in present 1982 dollar values, $15.9 million. Ten years later, in 1968, this amount had jumped to $107.9 million, by 1978 to $190.3 million, and in 1981 it had jumped to $253.7 million. Indexed, the total present value of public aid in dollars has been $13.5 billion. As my colleague, the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish) pointed out, CP was given 44 million acres of land which has been used for oil and gas development, for various real estate and other development proposals. What we do know is that the total equity ownership by the public in CP Limited is zero, absolutely zero.

One of the themes that we have been trying to pursue, and I know there is a great deal of support in the country for it, is that when you are involved in giving money, whether it is to a Crown Corporation or to the private sector, you get some kind of equity back. I know that is not supported by the Tories or the Liberals. They like to open the barrel and give all the money they have to their friends. A lot of their friends sort of run off into the hills with it and do whatever they fancy.

What we are trying to do in Motion No. 50 is to bring some kind of legitimacy and have some kind of framework whereby those hundreds of millions of dollars which go each year to the railroads are at least brought back and reinvested. I do not think any Members in this House need to go too far for information. The parliamentary Library is here and the recommendations of Mr. Justice Hall's Royal Commission are lying there waiting for any Liberal or Tory Member to read. Mr. Justice Emmett Hall points out what has happened in terms of the very pale and weak legislation that has been passed historically by the House, the failure of the House of Commons in terms of public accounts to make sure that moneys from the public Treasury are used to rehabilitate branch lines or used to maintain the main-lines.

A lot of Members, particularly on the Government side, including the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy), and the Minister of Employment and Immigration (Mr. Roberts) in particular, have taken to saying in the House in recent weeks and months that if Members on the Opposition benches would stop slowing down passage of Bill C-155 there would be a half a million more jobs in Canada. We are speaking directly to that in Motion No. 50. The Government is not being entirely open and honest when it says that, once Bill C-155 is passed, suddenly there will be hundreds of thousands of jobs. My constituency is a case in point. There is over $100 million in rail line upgrading going on right now in terms of planning. But I know that when Government Members are talking about the Prince George to Prince Rupert line they always say that if Bill C-155 is passed, there will be upgrading. That is sheer poppycock. Upgrading is going on now and the railways planned it a long time ago.

I would be interested in hearing from Government Members why they oppose having some teeth put into Clause 29 which would require public money and money from producers, that has been duly paid for the transportation of grain and some specialty grains either to Prince Rupert, Vancouver, Churchill or the Lakehead, why those moneys—if there are moneys left over each year and if there are additional moneys that have been raised—should not go back into reinvestment in the rail lines. I have heard nothing from the Tories or from the Government Members as to why they do not support that. I will come back to Motion No. 50 in a moment.

The Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) this evening has taken to saying that this group of amendments, Motions Nos. 50 and 52, is frivolous. I am sure the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer) is interested to know that. One of the amendments is his. Perhaps the Tories could get their act together on that. I think the amendment put by the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette is identical to that of my colleague, the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). I think this is something that Members in the House clearly should support if one can reflect on recent speeches made by all Parties in this House on access to information. I think any Canadian who wanted to go back and read those debates would think there is something quite different going on from day to day in this House depending upon the politics of it.

Motions Nos. 52 and 53 are identical and are really quite simple in their intent. It is to remove the provision in the legislation that would require members of the Senior Grain Transportation Committee to treat as confidential any information declared to be so by the railroads. There are three principal arguments for that. One, the railroads should not have the right to impose secrecy on the Committee. I think all Members in the House would support that. Second, it could come to pass that public disclosure of information would be one of the most effective ways available for the Committee to fulfil its mandate. I think that is clear in any case. Information should go out to the public whether it concerns the damming of a river or, as in this case, the hiding of information about what is really going on in the Senior Grain Transportation Committee, because the producers cannot mobilize themselves politically and ask questions of their Members or direct questions to this House unless they have access to that information.

I know this side of the House at least is united on Motions Nos. 52 and 53. I think Canadians have a right—I know we will not get it—to hear from the Government side why it opposes these amendements, which are really access to information. The third point in support of Motions Nos. 52 and 53 is that decisions of a confidential nature on the Committee's deliberation or the information available to it should be the prerogative of the Committee, not the railroads. I think again that speaks for itself.

I would like to touch briefly on the points made by the Hon. Member for Vegreville when Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53 were just coming up. The point the Hon. Member was trying to make was that somehow Motion No. 50—and I know other Members of the Opposition have tried to make this point—is breaking the Crow. Tory Members should come clean. The public record is clear. The Hon. Member for Vegreville, as Minister of Transport, in fact started the changes to the Crow rate. He was the implementor of Bill C-155. The Tories at least three years ago decided they were going to kill the Crow. They support Bill C-155 but are trying various parliamentary manoeuvres to try to make that seem to their constituent not to be the case. But the Tories want a review after the fact. I do not know if anybody goes to visit physicians very often, but you do not ask for open heart surgery and then have a heart specialist check to see whether or not you needed it after the fact. The problem with Bill C-155, as producers know, and as Canadians generally know, is that the impact on farmers, whether it will bankrupt 30,000 or 40,000 farmers in Canada, is still a bit of an unknown. For the Tories to say, "We do not want five times Crow until three years from now", sure, farmers will grab at that, but the fact is the Tories want a review after the legislation is passed. They expect to be Government. They may not be but they expect to be Government. I think they would do this House a great deal of credit, as would Hon. Members on the Government side, if they would deal with Motion No. 50. Why should CN, CP and the other railroads not be required to reinvest the dollars they obtain from this? If the Government has some good reason, I would like to hear it.

In terms of freedom of information or access to information, I would like to hear the position on the Government side. It is pretty clear that the entire Opposition in the House is in favour of accessing information from the Senior Grain Transportation Committee. I would like to know the reason for its position.

I would like to refer to another point, the one which the Hon. Member for Provencher (Mr. Epp) attempted to make. I encourage him to stick around for a few hours tonight because the kind of intellectual dishonesty he contributed to the House is something I do not accept. I dealt with him while I was the Constitution critic and did not find that to be part of him then. I would be interested in hearing his comments later tonight to see whether or not there has been a serious change in his character.

Mr. Epp: I will speak again, if you want.

Mr. Fulton: The Hon. Member is trying to paint a picture of the NDP position which is not fact. Canadians out there know what it is.

Mr. Epp: It is a 20 per cent increase.

Mr. Fulton: His blustering and flustering in the House will not change what is known across the country as our position in maintaining the statutory Crow rate.

Mr. Jack Shields (Athabasca): Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to take part in the debate tonight, but first I must make a couple of comments on remarks made by certain Members of the House in the debate so far, as I think it is only appropriate.

The last speaker indicated the intellectual dishonesty which exists in accusing certain Hon. Members of the House. I will point out some intellectual dishonesty which I hope he and his colleagues will consider. The Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish) said that farmers did not have a way to put pressure on the railroads and that if the money were paid to farmers, they were not capable in any way of running their own business; that is basically what he tried to tell Hon. Members of the House of Commons. The Hon. Member for Skeena (Mr. Fulton), the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake, and a couple of Members from British Columbia went on to state very emphatically that the payments should go directly to the railroads. On the other hand, they turned around and talked about the railroads, particularly CPR, as being the biggest corporate welfare bums that exist in Canada today. However they voted against a motion in the House which indicated that we would give farmers the freedom to take the money directly from the Government or we would give farmers the option to pay to the railroads. They said "No, you have got to pay it to the railroads". That is where the intellectual dishonesty comes from with the New Democratic Party.

How can Hon. Members of the House representing the New Democratic Party stand and decry on one hand the corporate welfare bums and flail away at them unconsciously and on the other hand turn around and say to little individual farmers, "No, we are not going to pay you directly. We are going to make sure that we pay it to the railroads because we cannot trust you to handle your own money"?

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I know that the Hon. Member would not want to mislead the House. He indicated that at some point in time we voted in the House on a matter which he has now raised with regard to the payment schedule and the method of payment. There was no such vote, ever, during the entire time that this matter has been before the House. Quite clearly the Hon. Member is lying.

Some Hon. Members: Order, order.

Mr. Kempling: Withdraw.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Do you have no respect for the Chair? It is the old NDP disregard for the parliamentary institution.

Mr. Stevens: They have done it again.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I ask the Hon. Member to withdraw his words, please.

Mr. Deans: I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, what exactly was it that you wanted me to withdraw?

Mr. Hnatyshyn: You wouldn't know the difference between the truth and a lie if somebody put it in front of you.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order. This is a debate on extended hours. Perhaps we are all becoming a bit tired. The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) knows very well that I wish him to withdraw the words "lying".

Mr. Deans: Withdraw the words "lying"; you mean withdraw the word "lying".

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Yes.

Mr. Deans: Obviously the Hon. Member was not telling the truth, but of course I will withdraw the word "lying". However, I would not want to leave the impression that I thought he was telling the truth.

Mr. Kempling: Isn't that smart?

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Whatever happened to the old CCF tradition?

Mr. Deans: Whatever happened to truth?

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I will do my best to sense the mood of the House. I personally do not regard that as a satisfactory withdrawal. On the other hand, I recognize that Hon. Members have sometimes been called upon to withdraw a word and have used phrases something like that. I think it is a marginal situation. My hope is that the Hon. Member will give second thought to using such an expression.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, in keeping with the rules of the House, of course I withdraw the word.

Mr. Shields: Mr. Speaker, it is not surprising that the Hon. Member—

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, I want to suggest to the Hon. Member that, in making his speech to the House, reference to any vote having been taken with regard to the method of payment is quite untrue inasmuch as there has been no such vote taken. For him to rise and to say such a thing is an attempt to mislead the public.

Mr. Epp: Order.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Now you are getting back into trouble; you were doing so well.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please. For very understandable reasons, the debate is emphatic, but it seems that the best way for Hon. Members to proceed is not to have the debate on points of order. Where there is a disagreement, there is nothing prohibiting Hon. Members on various sides of the House from standing up and entering the debate. If Hon. Members persist in doing it on points of order, which are not points of order, then I will have to become somewhat more difficult in applying the rules of relevancy.

Mr. Shields: Mr. Speaker, it is not surprising that the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) reacted in the way he did. Obviously he does not know that the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), as a representative on the committee at its 66 meetings—and I doubt if the Hon. Member for Hamilton-Mountain attended one of them—voted on behalf of his Party against—

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Not one meeting, and that is the truth.

Mr. Deans: A point of order.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Would it not be possible for Hon. Members to underline their differences in debate rather than in points of order?

An Hon. Member: No.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member is wrong again. I wish, if he is to make allegations, he would be accurate in what he says.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I indicated to the Hon. Member and to all Hon. Members that I will have to be more strict in terms of what constitutes a point of order.

Mr. Shields: I suggest the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain talk to his colleague, the Hon. Member for Regina West, and find out how his colleague voted on behalf of the New Democratic Party during the hearings when the question was put and the amendment was put concerning the freedom of choice option. He will find that the record is clear. If the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain looks at the record, he will find that the Hon. Member for Regina West voted against the freedom of choice option which would allow the farmer a little control over his own destiny.

Mr. Deans: Now you weasel out.

Mr. Shields: It was not the Big Brother approach of the New Democratic Party, which is consistent with its philosophy. The little guy, the individual on the street, according to the NDP, does not have the knowledge or the brains to handle his own business; they as Big Brothers have to do it. Now I would like to turn to Motion No. 50.

Mr. Epp: Chase them out of the House, Jack.

Mr. Shields: Yes, they have to get their marching orders from the union bosses. There is no doubt about that, as Hon. Members have indicated. Motion No. 50 seeks to amend Clause 29 by adding:

"(3) A railway company shall, in a subsequent calendar year, invest in railway equipment and plant for the movement of grain an amount not less than the after tax cost of capital, after tax depreciation, and after tax constant cost portion of payments it received under section 55 for the preceding crop year."

and by renumbering the subsequent subclauses accordingly.

That creates a whole new department within the Department of Transport, a Department of about 100 people, including accountants, lawyers and good socialist hacks who will come in, sit down, go through the books and spend hours and hours on reams of paperwork. That is the Big Brother approach.

We put through an amendment in the committee hearings that was accepted by the NDP, accepted by the Government and, of course, accepted by our Party. The position was very straightforward, one that was accepted by the NDP. It it exactly what the NDP wants in their Motion No. 50. However, the NDP is using politics. It is making some noise, saying to the farmers that it will look after them, that they cannot look after themselves. I read basically the amendment as was put forward in committee:

The railways are at liberty to make the necessary investment for grain movement.

We put an amendment during the committee hearings, a successful amendment to Clause 29(2), which strengthens the Canadian Transport Commission position to monitor and verify its investments by, first, annually verifying and reporting to the Minister on investments made in the prior crop year, and second, analysing the investment plans of the present and subsequent crop year and within 90 days submitting a report to the Minister on the appropriateness of those plans to ensure an adequate, reliable and effective railway service. The railways, under this approach, are at liberty to make investments related to grain movement, but it will be the Canadian Transport Commission, not American-based consulting firms, that will determine their appropriateness as it relates to grain movement.

Those are just some of the comments I had to make. I am sorry that the New Democratic Party Members are using the time of the House in a frivolous manner. I am sorry that they continually stand up, Member after Member, and decry the corporate welfare bums, pointing out that they have millions of acres of land, millions of dollars in rolling stock given to them, millions of dollars in branch lines, on and on and then turn around in the next breath and say that they will not give the farmer the option of payments, that they cannot trust the farmer, that he cannot handle his now affairs.

They are saying to the same Government that they want it to pay the railroads, the same corporate bums, as the NDP would put it. Motions Nos. 52 and 53 are the same. The one before us is the Conservative motion. All we are asking for is freedom of information.

I see that you are signalling that I have one minute, Mr. Speaker. I will try to wrap up. We are signalling to the Government, which brought in and passed recent legislation on freedom of information, that the farmer has to pay the shot the way the Bill has come down now because the majority Liberal Government is forcing the farmer to pay more. There is a clear understanding and a clear commitment that this money will go to upgrade the rolling stock of the railroads and the transportation system, yet we have a clause that does not allow the information to go to the farmer as to where his money will be spent. That is a shame. It should be looked at. I hope Hon. Members will consider that.

Mr. Rod Murphy (Churchill): Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak on Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53. Basically those motions say that when the railways reap the benefit they will reap through the legislation being debated today, that money must be put into the improvement of the transportation system in this country. That is an important and necessary motion.

Many of us who were brought up on the Prairies remember the history of the CPR. As we have heard many times over the last few months, the CPR was given acres and acres and millions and millions of dollars to build the railway system for which the Canadian taxpayers paid. In return for that, they were to maintain a proper railway system in this country, but as we all know, the Canadian taxpayers are always paying to upgrade the rail lines of this country.

What has happened with the profit of the CPR in the past and what will happen with the new profit of the CPR under this legislation is that the money will leave the railway system, and sometimes even leave the country. One need only look at the corporate structure of the CPR to realize what a great Canadian company CPR is.

I only have a few minutes to speak, so I will list only one or two of the great Canadian Pacific companies. Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited is wholly owned and incorporated in Great Britain. Canadian Pacific Bermuda is wholly owned and incorporated in Bermuda. What happened is that Canadian Pacific is not even a good Canadian corporation.

How can they be trusted to take the money they will receive under this Bill to maintain the railway system in this country? If we do not specify this, they will go back to the history they have had since day one. They will reap the benefits but not reinvest them in Canada or in the transportation system. We say the amendment is absolutely necessary to the integrity of the transportation system in Canada. If we do not have it, we run the risk of, five years down the road, having another Bill basically the same as this Bill which will provide more money to the railways in one shape or another in order to maintain the rail lines.

It has been the history of the last 10 or 15 years that we have had to fight with both CP and CN to maintain those tracks. In my riding of Churchill, more Government money comes in than CN money to maintain those tracks. Year after year CN tries to discontinue service throughout the North. How can we trust one Crown corporation and one private enterprise corporation which have in the past so often betrayed the people they are supposed to serve? They have often neglected the communities concerned, cut out passenger rail systems, discouraged the use of freight, and cut back on the use of express service for the transportation of goods. Even when it is the only means of transportation, which happens so often in northern Manitoba where there are no roads to a community and people must rely on the rail passenger and freight traffic, the company has talked about taking out the rail system altogether, both the transportation system for passengers and the freight service.

If we are to be responsible legislators, we must provide protection for the farmers and for the consumers of our railway system under this Act. As I said earlier, we have a history in this country of having one Act after another which gives money to the railways in one form or another. That is the very purpose of the Act which we have in front of us today which is going to kill the Crow rate. Why do we continue to give them money without any real control of the future of the transportation system? One hundred and two years is a long time to keep dumping money into the CPR. It is a long time to be maintaining what is a private enterprise system. It is a long time to be paying for something that we have paid for time after time. I wish we would not pass this Bill but if we do pass it we should put an end to the charity that we have allowed to exist when it comes to dealing with the CPR and the CNR.

The second motion, which is supported by both the New Democratic Party and the Conservative Party, is basically a freedom of information motion. It says that the profits of the CN and CP cannot be kept hidden from the public. If CN and CP provide information to the Senior Grain Transportation Committee, that information can be made public. It does not say it must be made public; it says it can be made public. If the Senior Grain Transportation Committee feels that that information is what the public, the consumers and the farmers need to know, then I think they should have that ability.

We are passing a Bill which is going to give a lot of money to the railways. We do not know what their corporate profits are. We do not know how much it costs them to maintain their lines. We do not know what the conditions of the contract between VIA and CN is. In this country we have so much secrecy, especially when it comes to the rail lines. I, as a Member of Parliament, cannot find out how much CN charges VIA and how it determines the actual costs. Why not? The reason is that we have had similar clauses in past Government legislation. The public has been denied the ability effectively to challenge CN, CP and VIA when they ask for freight rate increases, to abandon lines and for increased tariffs. I suggest that if we are to give more money to the railways, they will have to use that for maintaining the railway system in this country. Second, we must also find out what the real profit and cost structure is in the railways, otherwise it is useless for us to be discussing and debating legislation about whether or not they are profitable and whether or not they need the money to improve the railway system in this country. The public and the House of Commons have a right to know, and without that knowledge it is ironic that in time of freedom of access to information we have spent so many months here without having the very information before us that we should have had prior to the introduction of this Bill.

Mr. Gordon Taylor (Bow River): Mr. Speaker, I want to deal with the principle involved in these amendments. When I read Motion No. 50 and apply it to Clause 29 as it is to be applied, it appears that the amendment and the section illustrate in a very definite way the difference in approach to this problem between the NDP and the Progressive Conservative Party.

The amendment states "shall invest". The NDP wants the Government to tell the railways how they are going to spend the money, where and when. When I look at how the Government spends money in Canada Post and several other places, I am not sure we are not jumping from the frying pan into the fire. That is the approach of Members of the NDP, and I give them credit for it. Dictation is part of their philosophy. They tell the people what is good for them and run the people's business. This motion is in line with their philosophy. I would go one step further and say that the motions that have been presented by the Progressive Conservative Party are in line with our philosophy which is accountability. We are not telling them how to spend the money once the money is theirs. It shall monitor the program, annually verify the investment, analyse the general investments and audit the expenditures. In other words, they are responsible.

There are no two clauses in the Act that illustrate the two philosophies better. One, dictation, the other, accountability. If we are going to have free enterprise in this country, whether for the CPR or the small entrepreneur or farmer, the Government has to keep its nose out of it. If we want to have dictatorship and nationalization, then the Government puts its nose right into it and runs it. That is the difference between the two Parties. The people across this country will have to decide which Party they want.

Section 55 gives authority to the Government to pay for certain expenditures. If that work has not been done and the year's crop was not transported satisfactorily, the Government should never have paid that money, and it is responsible. We want accountability for the money being paid to the railways. We do not want simply to hand it to them as in the past. People across the country are saying, "Is the CPR the Government of this country?" Sometimes they think it is.

The Canadian Transport Commission decided that it would close a branch line in the Province of Alberta. One of the lawyers found that an Act of Parliament had authorized that line to be operated in perpetuity. That was brought to the attention of the prairie section of the CTC, so they shrugged their shoulders and ordered the line abandoned. I made representations to the Cabinet that this was wrong, that CTC has no authority to defy an Act of Parliament. If the Act is wrong, rescind it, but certainly civil servants have not that right. The Government condoned the action of the CTC. It did not look into it. It could not have because its lawyers would have informed it that civil servants have no right to rescind laws passed by this House. Only this House has that authority. We took it to the Appeal Court of Canada and that court said that the CTC had no right to order the abandonment under that Act. The court ruled properly, but the Government went along and did it. That is not accountability, nor is it accountability if under Clause 55 we pay $600 million or $200 million to the railways, unless they have earned it. If they have, then we cannot tell them what to do with it. The next thing, we will be telling the farmer how to spend the money we give him for his crops—that he cannot buy liquor or take his wife to Hawaii. Once you earn money, it is yours. That is our way of life. We are not living in Moscow, although sometimes I wonder. We are not supposed to be living under a communistic Government. When we earn money, it is our own. If I want to take a trip on my own money, that is my business. If a farmer wants to buy a car for his wife or his son, nobody has any business telling him that he cannot.

That is the principle at stake here, Mr. Speaker. Once the CPR has earned the money, it is theirs. If the Government is just handing the money to them anyway, then the Government is at fault and it should be accountable to the people. That is what Clause 55 is all about, and that is what the motions proposed by the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) and his team mean—accountability. We are not going to dictate to the railways how they should spend their own money. They are accountable for certain things for which the money was paid to them, and that accountability is included in the Act.

I do not support Motion No. 50, Mr. Speaker. It is in line with the NDP philosophy but it is not in line with mine. I do not believe in the Government telling me how to spend the money I have earned and I do not believe in the Government telling the CPR how to spend the money it earns, although the Government has a responsibility to make sure that it earned the money before it is paid.

I do not understand how we can have two amendments that are word for word the same, one proposed by this Party and the other by the NDP. Surely one amendment should have stood the test without another being put. I do not know how that happened and I know it did not happen in provincial politics.

An Hon. Member: You didn't have the NDP.

Mr. Taylor: We had one or two Members, but not very many. The motion comes down to a definite principle—whether accountability is going to be secret or public, whether things are going to be done under the table or above the table. The amendment proposed by the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer) provides that it be done above the table, not under it. We want to know what is going on. The principles involved in these two clauses illustrate what the Progressive Conservative Party is trying to do in this Bill. The first is that you pay only when money is earned; the second is that you hold the receiver responsible; and the third is that you keep everything above board.

Can anyone tell me that the Government will not support those three principles? We are in a more serious position than I thought if the Government is going to oppose those three principles which are the heart of the Progressive Conservative action.

Mr. David Orlikow (Winnipeg North): Mr. Speaker, I want to support the arguments put forth by my colleagues in connection with these motions and to deal with some of the arguments from the Members of the Conservative Party. The Hon. Member for Peace River (Mr. Cooper) suggested that if we oppose freedom of choice, the farmer should have the choice of taking the money—

Mr. Shields: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. The Hon. Member for Peace River has not spoken tonight but I have. If the Hon. Member is referring to me, I would prefer that he use my constituency.

Mr. Orlikow: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member for Athabasca (Mr. Shields) said that we oppose the so-called freedom of choice because we were getting orders from union bosses. I want to tell him that I probably have as many railway workers and railway union locals in my constituency as any Member, and I have not had a single request, let alone an order, about what I should do. While I have lots of union members, I have very few farmers in my constituency and he has many. It was the prairie pools, which represent more than 50 per cent of all grain producers of western Canada, that opposed freedom of choice. If the Conservative Party wants to put forward freedom of choice, it is entitled to, but its Members should not argue that people who disagree with them, and not just Members of the NDP, are somehow being unpatriotic.

If I had known that the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor) would speak tonight I would have brought in a copy of Hansard for the day some months ago when he made a speech about CPR in which he was as critical of it as any Member of this Party has been. I could have read that speech into the record word for word and taken the credit for it myself. Yet today, in a roundabout way, he seems to be defending the CPR.

The Hon. Member suggests that the Conservative Party stands for free enterprise, that it must not be controlled, directed or dictated to and that this Party stands for state ownership of everything. I find it interesting that in Alberta for years the Conservative Government and the Social Credit Government, in which the Hon. Member was a member of Cabinet, either on its own or in partnership with the private sector, has been involved in business much more than the NDP Government of Saskatchewan has ever been.

That proves that when you get into the real world, this concept about the great free enterprise system which must not be directed or controlled but must be allowed to operate freely, just does not work. I do not have time to put on record all the corporations in which the Government of Alberta is involved, but one good example is Pacific Western Airlines which, as far as I know, is still 100 per cent owned and operated by Government. That is something which none of the New Democratic Party Governments which we have had in recent years in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, have attempted to do. We had a very good example of how Governments get involved in the last month or so in Atlantic Canada where the privately operated fishing industry was in fact bankrupt. The only thing which had not happened was that the banks had so much out in loans they could not afford to call in their loans, the way they do with the small businessmen and farmers. So what happened, Mr. Speaker? The Liberal Government got together with the provincial Governments of Atlantic Canada, the Conservative Government of Newfoundland, the Conservative Government of Nova Scotia, and they worked out a deal whereby the Liberal Government and the provincial Conservative Governments got together with the private sector to refinance and reorganize the industry.

I point that out, Mr. Speaker, simply because it proves again, as we have learned so many times in the history of Canada, that if the people of Canada are to be served, if their needs are to be met, it can often be done only by the Government or only by the Government in partnership with private interests.

That is the real lesson, Mr. Speaker, in the history of this country. Motion No. 50 says that the public's money, that is, the money which comes from the taxpayers of Canada, should be put up only to increase rail capacity and to enhance the transportation system for grain, and that money should not be paid to the railroads to enhance their profit position. We are not talking about some small corner grocer. We are talking about the largest corporation in this country, whether it is Canadian Pacific Railways or Canadian Pacific Investments or Canadian Pacific Enterprises or any of its many corporations. They are much too large and too many for me to list them all tonight. The Canadian Pacific, Mr. Speaker, is not only into the transportation business, as has been indicated by one of my colleagues. It is not only in the rail business. It is in the air business, and shipping, and probably in bus transportation. It is in real estate, in mines, in forest products. It is in every field in which it can make money.

An Hon. Member: Good.

Mr. Orlikow: Precisely. That is good. That is what it is in business for. No one faults the railways for that. However, when the people of Canada help that company—or any other company—make money they are entitled to receive a return. How did the Canadian Pacific become the largest corporation in Canada? Did it become the largest corporation because investors put their own money in? No, of course not. It became the largest corporation because the Government of the day, 100 years ago or more, believed, quite properly, that without a transcontinental railway, there would be no country. Therefore, beginning with the Conservative Government under Sir John A. Macdonald, and continuing ever since, Liberal and Conservative Governments have given to the CPR cash grants, loan guarantees, hundreds of millions of dollars, and millions of acres of land. Way back, Mr. Speaker, in 1917 a Royal Commission on Railways and Transportation estimated that the CPR had received the following public assistance as of 1916—almost 70 years ago: Railroad and surveys completed by the Government, $37.8 million; cash aid, $66.9 million; value of land, $119 million; return from land sold minus the cost of improvement, $55 million; a total way back then, Mr. Speaker, of $279.5 million.

Those grants to the CPR—and there have been many since then—have made the CPR the largest corporation in this country. This corporation has made hundreds of millions of dollars of profit over the years. What we are saying, Mr. Speaker, in Motion No. 50 is that we want to ensure that the people of Canada have the right to say to the CPR, "When you get money in the form of subsidies for moving grain, we want you to invest that money to improve the system." They are not asking CPR to invest some of its own money. That is a separate matter. At least CPR should invest all the money it receives from the Government in the form of subsidies in improving the railway system. I do not understand why this upsets the Conservative Hon. Members so much. It seems to me to be something natural to want to achieve.

Having heard the speech of the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor) a few months ago in which he was so critical of the CPR, which is pretty unique for a Conservative Member of Parliament, I am surprised he did not greet our amendment with enthusiasm. We are not trying to tell the CPR how to run every facet of its operation, although it needs to be told to do many of the things which it ought to have done and which it has not. What we are saying is that we want to ensure that at least the money it receives in the forms of grants for improving the system will be spent on that improvement. As I indicated, the CPR did not just grow like topsy. It grew because it was able to use the money which it got from Governments for railway improvements and so on, and divert it into other forms when it thought it was profitable, into a steamship line, into the airline, into real estate, into mining, and so on. It has not always been successful in what it decided to do. In the last week or so I—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please. I have been trying to indicate to the Hon. Member that his time has expired. Perhaps he might like to seek the unanimous consent of the House to continue.

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Scott Fennell (Ontario): Mr. Speaker, first of all I would like to thank you for allowing our Hon. Members to get some practice in the Chair. I am sure they will reciprocate after the next election. I had some encouragement this evening when the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) sat down in the House Leader's chair. I thought maybe there was going to be another switch in Cabinet.

An Hon. Member: What a funny man you are.

Mr. Fennell: We have heard common sense, finally, when the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor) talked about these amendments. He has been around in politics a long time and he got very basic points across about these amendments. I notice a lot of noise from the Liberals. It is interesting to note, Mr. Speaker, that in the last three hours there have been no speakers from that side. That indicates there is no one over there who knows what is going on with this Bill. No one over there understands the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. No one over there wants to understand it.

After listening to the debate on this Bill and having an opportunity to speak, I know what this Bill is. It has nothing to do with the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. It is a Crowsnest Pass tax. If this tax does as much damage to central Ontario as the National Energy Program tax has done to central Ontario, I believe we had better bring a Bill up next to give central Canada a bit of a chance.

Mr. Shields: Relief.

Mr. Fennell: Well, we do not need relief. That is one thing that we do not need. I do wonder, Mr. Speaker, what Liberal Members have against western Canada. Obviously they are really mad at western Canada because the two most dreadful Bills that have faced the House in the last four years have been the National Energy Program and the Crowsnest Pass Tax.

I will address myself to Motion No. 50 which has been proposed by my colleague from the New Democratic Party. It is interesting to note, Mr. Speaker, that early in the evening NDP Members were making a great deal of noise. Their numbers are falling, but if you think their numbers have fallen now, Mr. Speaker, wait until after the next election. They will be lucky to have six Members to form a Party. They can hoot and holler all they want. I do not understand why they are hooting and hollering about this motion.

Dealing with this motion, Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out that once we in the Conservative Party form the Government, because of this motion the CNR will be forced to have the Auditor General do a comprehensive audit. That covers half of the problem they are talking about. If they were to bring in eastern auditors at $125 to $150 an hour, that would create a further burden on the taxpayers of Canada, and in particular those of western Canada. The auditors in the country do not need any more business. Some auditors exist only to analyse and justify Government expenditures.

I do not understand why Hon. Members of the NDP brought forward such a convoluted motion. Even a tax lawyer could not understand that motion. Why would they try and bring forward this amendment when there has been a logical amendment accepted by the committee, and agreed to by Liberal Members, already before the House? That motion simply relates to analysing the investment plans for grain movements. That is what it is all about, Mr. Speaker.

Members of the NDP keep on talking about CPI, Canadian Pacific Investments, which has nothing to do with the CPR other than common ownership. Even if they had their way, they could not touch all these companies they are talking about because it is the railway sector of CPR that would be dealt with because only it relates to the grain movement. Furthermore, if the railways want to take in more depreciation, they can take in depreciation on hotels and aircraft through this particular amendment. If you look at the converse, Mr. Speaker, it is a stupid amendment.

I shall now turn to Motions Nos. 52 and 53. One of the thorns in our side is the absolute difficulty we have getting information out of the Government. We as the Official Opposition represent a large portion of the Canadian population. At this point, we represent the majority of Canadians. We should have the right to know what is behind these Bills and what information is discussed in secret. When we go to a Ministry today, we are boondoggled with bureaucratese. We are not given any direct answers on any subjects. It is time that the Government accept the Freedom of Information Act in the spirit in which it was considered and in the way it was put through the House in the first place. Keeping a secret from the people is wrong. It is not fair to the people.

Just as an aside, Mr. Speaker, I am from Ontario. I should be standing here defending the farmers of Ontario. However, the farmers of Ontario are self-sufficient. The grain growers in the West will be relegated to being only grain growers. I would like to know what the Government is thinking when it is not giving the fifty-fifty option to the farmers and the railways. What will happen to the livestock industry? What will happen to the grain processing industry in the West? Those are serious questions, Mr. Speaker. What may possibly happen is what happened to the drilling industry in the West. The National Energy Program killed the oil drilling industry in western Canada. This program will kill the secondary industries in Canada.

We need to broaden our manufacturing base. We need to convert more raw materials into finished products. I cannot think of any more logical approach than feeding cattle in the West, butchering them and sending them in refrigerated cars to Ontario, at which point they would be perfectly tender, edible and ready for market.

It is wrong for the Government to have taken so much away from the farmer. If the Government would give half the amount involved in this Bill to the farmers it would then be giving more to the farmers than ever before in the past. As far as the railways are concerned, I shall not shed a tear for them. They have been subsidized and looked after for long enough. This Bill provides a further subsidy to the railways.

I really must return to the point that the manufacturing sector in central Canada is very important. If money is taken out of the hands of the farmers, then, as mentioned by the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor), those farmers cannot buy another car. That is what we in central Canada make. We make cars and refrigerators and stoves and consumer products of all kinds. We manufacture textiles for use throughout the country. If those funds are removed from the farmers through a tax, we are hurting the rest of Canada.

I do not think the Government really understands the implications of this. I think it should go back and review what has transpired since the National Energy Program was implemented. I think this additional tax is a burden on all of the taxpayers of Canada because it is paid for by the farmer. Thus it takes money out of his pocket that he could spend on finished products.

I trust that somewhere down the line the Government will come forward with a provision to alow the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy), who is answerable to Members of this House, to be provided with information. Members of the Senior Grain Transportation Committee at this time are all Liberals. I am worried that when our Party forms the next Government that committee will still be composed of Liberals. Then when the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) tries to get information from them they might refuse it. That would not be right, and we would be hurt by it. The country would be hurt by it and nobody in Government would know. Perhaps the present Minister of Transport, who may not be in the House then, may be able to get that information, yet the Hon. Member for Vegreville might not be able to get it.

This entire Bill must be re-thought. The Minister of Transport employed a very clever and intelligent man to do a study on this subject. He came up with a solution that was acceptable to all Canadians until it hit the Liberal caucus. The Liberal caucus stopped that proposal from going to the House in the way it was originally conceived. That is inequitable and unfair. I plead with the Government to return to the House with more amendments which, if fair to the farmers, we will not debate but will accept very quickly.

Mr. Arnold Malone (Crowfoot): Mr. Speaker, the motions now before us are Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53. I began my remarks with those words because I want you to know right from the start that I know what motions we are talking about.

Bearing in mind that we are dealing with Motions Nos. 50, 52 and 53, I would like to tell you, Sir, that the bottom line is the question of trust. What frightens me most about this whole proposed legislation is that the New Democratic Party has found it necessary to put some motions before us. In essence, they are saying that if we follow the Minister's policy by which all the money goes to the railway with no competition in the transportation system on the Prairies, and competition is eroded to the point where there is only one mode of transportation, we will need an enormous bureaucracy so the Government can control that system. This would result also from the present motions. I submit that it is a dangerous precedent for us to set.

Mr. Althouse: You better read Motion No. 58 before you go on.

Mr. Malone: What the NDP ought to do is to make their own speeches instead of coaching mine.

Mr. Althouse: Read the motion.

Mr. Malone: Would the Member from Mount St. Helen's quit blowing his top. Calm down for a moment.

We are faced with a situation in which enshrined in the amendment is the whole question as to whether we are to have a bureaucratic structure telling the private sector in the country how to run its business. The Hon. Member for Winnipeg North (Mr. Orlikow) says that we are not dealing with a corner grocery store. He says that we are dealing with one of the largest industries in all of Canada. I say to him, so what? There is a principle of business. When one deals with principles one does not deal with the cost of money or whether a business is large or small.

The NDP claims that it is for small business. Let me tell the truth about the NDP. It is for small business until such time as those businesses become successful. Because the NDP has that kind of hate legacy for anything it deems to be big it does not like them. The NDP likes smallness because it can control it. It is against anything that is large because it competes with its ideology of Government control. NDP members believe that the Government should control, and therefore do not follow business practices but introduce motions which dictate to the private sector how it should spend.

One of the amendments to this legislation would offer freedom of choice in the system of transportation. Consequently, if the railways do not compete as the public feels they should there are competitive modes of transportation available. This means there are other modes of transportation competition, such as the use of trucks, which would then make the railways chase the dollar. When they have to do this in order to make money, since their profitability lies in the farmers, the railways must perform in order to get that dollar. Therefore they will function in a way that is acceptable and in accordance with business practice.

The NDP does not want that. It wants to allow the railways to concentrate on one mode of transportation and then throw the bureaucracy of Government on top, laden with layers of performance tests, bureaucracy to make sure they spend the right amounts on the right things and another layer of Government to run out to the Prairies to monitor the hopper cars. The NDP do not want to see competition. As the Member for Winnipeg North said, "We are not dealing with the corner grocer, we are dealing with the biggest industry in all of Canada."

If business principles are followed and the money is put into the pockets of the farmers, and they are allowed to make their choice as to how to deliver their grain, there would be no need for the bureaucracies that the Liberals and the NDP would find necessary to build. Furthermore, the country would be on the road to efficiency if those principles were to be used. We would be on the road to finding a way to move our grain. This would make us competitive in the world and enable us to earn money in terms of our balance of payments, money that otherwise would be sucked up by governments with their many layers of bureaucracy. It is incumbent upon all Canadians to demand efficiency. This is especially important to demand of the Government which only practices fiscal responsibility by borrowing until responsibility is total irresponsibility.

The issue concerns the difference between the approach taken by Motion No. 52 and Motion No. 53 and the concept of freedom of choice by the producer. That freedom of choice on the Prairies would include choosing between CP and CN for grain transportation. A producer could haul his grain a further distance to a different line and this would give competition between the railways. When that takes place we would then have the business principles being exercised by the producers throughout Prairie Canada, thus forcing companies as big as CN and CP to perform in order to chase the dollar to get the business.

I submit that we are going to end up with something I fear; the Government favouring one mode of transportation. Since it would favour and pay that one mode, it would need the bureaucracy to support it. Even before this Bill has passed third reading or has been enacted, there are amendments on the books providing for that very occurrence. It is a principle that you need to have bureaucracy to control and direct how the money is spent, and that is a sham.

Since there is a more efficient and profitable way to do it, why should Canadians believe that this socialist, left-leaning aberration of economic principle, could ever lead to anything except more debt, higher taxes and less money in the pockets of Canadians, once the grain has been delivered to port and sold to other nations?

The sale of grain is the greatest contributor to Canada's federal coffers of any single commodity. The sale of grain has contributed $6 billion and provides money for the Canadian economy in a way that no other product can. For that reason I believe that this legislation does not only represent a western Canadian issue. The question of the Crow rate is a Canadian issue, because when farmers in western Canada receive extra money for the sale of their crops they can spend that money. They can buy commodities such as refrigerators, automobiles and farm machinery, all of which are probably manufactured in central Canada. The money which comes into Canada from the export sale of grain to the tune of $6 billion means that this is not purely a western issue. The grain industry is a major economic contributor to this country and one of the engines of growth. We should not be foiled by the examples of Motions Nos. 50, No. 52 and No. 53 which set forth false pretenses of economic principle that would burden us with more layers of bureaucracy that are totally unacceptable.

I conclude therefore by saying that these motions are unnecessary because of the provision for freedom of choice. They would be a burden upon us in terms of paper, bureaucracy and layers of Government becoming involved in the private sector. These motions would have the Government run the private sector and breech the principles that business has a right to manage its own affairs.

Sir, that might be the NDP way to say that Government has the right to tell business how to run its business. That is not the accepted way of the majority of Canadians. They believe there is a position in this country for the individual. They believe—the majority of Canadians—that there is a place in this country for families and businesses to run in accordance with the law that allows them to do with their money that which they believe they should do. But not the Liberals or the NDP. They think Government should be able to dictate to business and say what business should do with its money.

I simply say let us open this up to competition, to different modes of transportation. Not only will it be more efficient, not only will it mean we do not require Governments meddling, it will mean that commodity markets on the Prairies, which do not normally export but want to have value added within the Provinces, can ship their barley to feed lots, to poultry barns—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I hesitate to interrupt the Hon. Member, but the time allotted to him has expired. He may continue with unanimous consent. Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Simon de Jong (Regina East): Mr. Speaker, it is somewhat of a pleasure to follow the Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone). One could spend all of one's allotted time just going through his remarks and picking up some of the errors and correcting him. Let me deal with a few.

The Hon. Member suggested that the amendments before us, Nos. 50, 52 and 53 are all socialist amendments and interfere with the free enterprise system. I wish to remind the Hon. Member that Motion No. 52 is a Conservative amendment. It is a Conservative amendment which requests that the information given to the commission by the railways be not kept secret.

Mr. Epp: That is why it is a good amendment.

Mr. de Jong: In other words, this information should be public. Amendments Nos. 52 and 53 are almost identical. One comes from the New Democratic Party and one from the Conservative Party. There are some Members in the Conservative Party who realize that this information should be public and should not be secret. It is true Canadian Pacific Railways is a private company. But there are some Members in the Conservative Party who do believe that information should be public because the decisions of the CPR do have a tremendous effect. Because of the tremendous public effect this company has the public should be aware and have access to that information. It is the friends of the CPR across the way, the Liberal Party, the Liberal Government, who are opposed to making this information public.

Essentially what we are asking for in amendment No. 50, to which the Conservatives are so opposed and about which the Liberals are essentially dead silent, is that we guarantee in legislation that we get what we pay for.

I am amazed when I listen to Members, like the Hon. Member for Crowfoot, who talked as though the CPR were just an ordinary private company carrying on its business and that our amendment really interferes with the operations of that private enterprise and therefore we should not do this. Does the Hon. Member not realize that what we are asking for is that public moneys given to the CPR be spent in a way that benefits the public, that those moneys given to the CPR be spent in the way they are supposed to be? Does that not really make more business sense? I am surprised that Members of the Conservative Party and Members of the Liberal Party, who pride themselves in being good business people, should feel that the public, giving money to this private corporation, should not have the right in legislation to determine that the money indeed gets spent in the way it is supposed to be spent. In other words, that the public gets what it pays for. That is all that we are asking for.

Is this such an outrage to free enterprise? I fail to see it, Mr. Speaker. I think it is irresponsible of a government, whether Liberal or Conservative, to hand out moneys and not ensure that those moneys are spent in a way for which they were paid. To do otherwise is truly irresponsible. Essentially what the Liberals and the Tories want is a blank cheque written for the CPR.

Mr. Epp: Read the motion.

Mr. de Jong: The Liberals want a blank cheque for the CPR. Our good Conservative friends want a blank cheque for CP trucking. The CPR wins both ways.

Mr. Taylor: Baloney.

Mr. de Jong: The CPR wins both ways.

Mr. Taylor: That is more baloney.

Mr. de Jong: One of them is supporting one section of this CP enterprise and the other supports the other section.

Mr. Taylor: More and more baloney.

Mr. de Jong: This Party has consistently taken the same position, over and over again. Let me explain it as simply as I can to both sides of the House.

We claim that the Canadian public throughout all these years has paid for a transportation system, the CP Rail. In 1982 dollars the public invested through various subsidies, grants, et cetera, close to $13.5 billion in CP Rail. We insist that that rail system be used for transportation of grain, that we do not splinter that system. We insist that CP Rail start doing what it was paid to do, that is all. Is that so complicated? Is that an outrage against private enterprise? If it is, I think we are lost. This country is lost. It does not matter really whether it is the Liberals or the Tories who are in power, they will just continue handing out money; one to CP Rail and the other to CP trucks. The Canadian people and the taxpayer will continue to be losers.

Our Conservative friends charge that we are against "the free choice." If you start allowing massive trucking in western Canada you will end up with two systems of hauling grain, both inadequate. You will have a trucking system which depends on public subsidies for roads and the maintenance of those roads, and you will have a railway system which will start making the claim that there is not enough traffic moving along certain lines. This will accelerate branch line abandonment.

Mr. Shields: Big brother knows.

Mr. de Jong: You will end up with two inadequate systems. Our friends in the Conservative Party say this is dictatorial.

Mr. Shields: Big brother again.

Mr. de Jong: Hear the Member crow. It is "big brother", he says.

Mr. Epp: It is.

Mr. de Jong: It is "big brother" to ask the railroads to do what you pay them to do. He calls that being big brother.

Mr. Shields: You want the whole thing for the railroads.

Mr. de Jong: The logic escapes me.

Mr. Epp: You haven't studied it.

Mr. de Jong: I think it escaped those Members a long time ago. Can those Members not get it into their heads that if you start paying it all to the farmers you will fracture the railway system, fracture the transportation system?

Mr. Shields: Big brother knows best.

Mr. de Jong: Surely every study that has been done, as well as the recommendations of various provincial Governments, including Conservative Governments, ask this Committee and ask this Parliament not to allow a system that will fracture our transportation system. Hon. Members on my right are so adamant about this, even though the largest producer organizations—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I regret to interrupt the Hon. Member, but his allotted time has expired. He may continue with unanimous consent. Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Neil Young (Beaches): Mr. Speaker, while we address the entire question about the accountability of CPR to Canadian taxpayers, in face of the large amount of moneys that were transferred from the pockets of taxpayers to that corporation over the years, it is worth while to take a look at the history of the Crow rate, in particular.

In 1881 the CPR syndicate accepted from the people of Canada land, cash, rail lines and other benefits in exchange for a commitment to "thereafter and forever efficiently maintain, work and run the Canadian Pacific Railway". Clearly Parliament intended that the vast land grants and other benefits were to permit the syndicate to finance the railway's ongoing operation. In general terms, the Crow rate is one half of an indivisible national policy dating back to Sir John A. MacDonald to provide tariff protection for central industry and low cost transport to develop the eastern and western regions.

I have no doubt that the House will be interested in what another Member of my caucus will have to say about past Conservative policy on rail transportation. He managed to find, I believe in a used bookstore in Montreal, a 1882 policy document of the Conservative Party which had been used in an election campaign at that time. I am sure the House will be interested in the historical significance of what my colleague will have to say later in the debate.

Specifically, the Crow rate was agreed upon by CPR and the Government of Canada and remains a valid and binding contract. Sir Clifford Sifton, party to the negotiations that established the 1897 Crow rate agreement, said in 1929:

I remember when as a young minister in Laurier's cabinet, Van Horne and Shaughnessy said a line into the Kootenay mining district would not be considered for fifteen years. Also I remember that within six weeks the same two gentlemen came into my office and said that they had to build this line and wanted a large bonus for doing it, that the CPR was on the verge of bankruptcy.

He went on to say:

We gave them this bonus against the public sentiment of two-thirds of the people of Canada. They built the line and the Kootenay mining development—

Of course that was the nucleus of Cominco:

—saved the CPR and saved a good many other things in Canada.

In 1925, Parliament put the Crow rate into statute when the railways offered to keep grain on the Crow rate if they could be relieved from the agreement for low rates on other commodities. At the time CPR made it clear, and again I quote, "we are not asking for any change in the conditions established in 1897 in regard to grain and grain products".

A member of the MacPherson Royal Commission on Transportation, A. R. Gobeil, at the time said:

—the grain rates were not imposed by Parliament. They were not only freely accepted by the railway but were offered by them as an inducement to persuade Parliament to lift that part of the agreement which pertained to westbound rates on other commodities.

At no time in 1925 was there ever a suggestion by either party that the agreement of 1897 was being terminated. The Crowsnest Pass Agreement is a binding contract, and if CP wishes to be relieved of its obligations under the Agreement it must also relinquish the benefits.

The benefits have been rather substantial over the years. Government statistics clearly show over the years the subsidies paid to CPR with taxpayers' dollars. The amounts of money have been rather substantial. I am sure that the House would be interested in hearing what the subsidy levels have been.

For example, in the fiscal year beginning in 1958 the amount was $4.6 million. In 1982 dollars that would equal some $15.9 million. In 1959 the subsidy from Canadian taxpayers was $5 million, and in 1960 it was $12.9 million. In 1961, it was $32.3 million; in 1962, $32.5 million; in 1963, $31.6 million; in 1964, $31.9 million; in 1965, $37.8 million; in 1967, $52.2 million; and in 1968, $38.7 million. These were subsidies paid to CPR by taxpayers of Canada.

Mr. Nystrom: Corporate welfare bums.

Mr. Young: David Lewis, former Leader of the New Democratic Party, was absolutely correct in making charges against some of those corporate welfare bums.

To continue with the figures in 1969, CPR received $33.5 million; in 1970, $27.8 million; in 1971, $32 million; in 1972, $35.5 million; in 1973, $54.9 million; in 1974, $61.1 million; in 1975, $93 million; in 1976, $84.6 million; in 1977, $112.8 million; in 1978, $129.1 million; in 1979, $186 million; in 1980, $221.6 million; in 1981; $232.7 million, for a total, in the years between 1958 and 1981 of some $2,919.8 million from the pockets of taxpayers.

Mr. Forrestall: Who wrote that?

Mr. Young: This is detailed research on which I have worked over the past several months, since my colleagues in the New Democratic Party first brought to my attention what the Government and the Conservative Party were trying to do to western Canadian farmers, and indeed farmers elsewhere in the country. It was because of their eloquence that I decided to dig in and do thorough research. I am glad I did. It has an edifying process. I see my time is up, Mr. Speaker. I thank you for your attention.

● (2140)

Mr. Bob Ogle (Saskatoon East): Mr. Speaker, interestingly enough, earlier today I thought we had come to the end of the discussion on this Bill and that that would be the last time I would have to speak. I am glad that the motion put forward by my colleague in the Conservative Party to continue without interruption has made it possible to say a few more words on this most important piece of legislation to those people in western Canada whom I represent.

Historically, as has been mentioned by some, this Bill has been part and parcel of the lives of Canadians since the time of Confederation. That is why I believe it is important that we consider seriously in great detail each of the motions before the House at this time.

It has always been a thrill to realize the vision of the forefathers of our country when they were able to stop at nothing to see that Canada would be a united country. One of the great historical works that took place within this land was the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It was, as we know, a joint effort between private enterprise and government.

As such, with the vision of the founders of this nation, it tied together this country from one sea to the other. I do not believe that people today have that kind of vision. The people at that time with the materials and machinery available built something that historically would still have to be one of the great human endeavours of Canada.

As that was being done, and as funds were being found in this country, and in foreign investments from Britain and other places, there had to be built into the structures of the railroad's operation system a means of financing that would continue to keep that railroad alive, make it operative and working in such a way that the purpose for which it was built would continue to be met. It was built to give a viable life line to all parts of Canada so that Canadians could live as a family, grouped together, able to communicate and travel back and forth.

One of the ways in which this lifeblood was pumped into the CPR was through public moneys which, as my colleage just said, came in the form of public subsidies paid to it by the people of Canada through the Government. In Motion No. 50 which we are now discussing, proposed by the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), we would change the legislation in Clause 29 paragraph 3, which reads as follows:

A railway company shall use Canadian goods and services in carrying out investments in railway equipment and plant for the movement of grain and more particularly shall use goods and services from the region where the investment is being made to the full extent to which they are procurable, consistent with proper economy and the expeditious carrying out of the investment.

My Party believes that that is not clear enough. It does not specify clearly, surely and without doubt that the moneys that will be received in public subsidies will be put into the construction and the maintenance of the railroads so that the purpose for the railroad, the carrying of goods and in this case the carrying of grain so international markets, will continue without flaw. We are proposing under Clause 29 that paragraph 3 read as follows:

A railway company shall, in a subsequent calendar year, invest in railway equipment and plant for the movement of grain an amount not less than the after tax cost of capital, after tax depreciation, and after tax constant cost portion of payments it received under section 55 for the preceeding crop year.

We are simply saying that the railroad is bound to put into railroad equipment and maintenance of the system the amount of money that comes to it that year by the subsidies that are paid to it for the carrying of the product. That makes perfectly good sense. The subsidy is given to keep the system operating and functioning. It is directed toward the railroad company to see that the machinery, locomotives, cars railways and necessary maintenance to keep the operation mobile and moving is there and in place. We are asking that each year the railroad use the subsidies that have been given to it during that calendar year to put it specifically into upkeep, maintenance and carrying out of the cost of the running of the railroad. Those who have travelled know that because Canadian Pacific Railway is such a huge company with such vast holdings in many different areas that is not always taking place.

We hope that this motion will carry when we come to vote on it so that each year the moneys that have been procured by the public subsidy will be put into the care, upkeep and maintenance of the railroad and not into some other sector of the company's business. For that reason, we have, in union with our colleagues from the Progressive Conservative Party, asked in Motions Nos. 52 and 53 exactly the same basic thing, that this information become public information, that it not be something that could be restricted by railroad companies and kept from the public. Motion 52 as proposed by the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer) reads:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 29 by striking out lines 10 to 15 at page 15.

That simply says and I quote:

To remove the provisions of the legislation that would require the members of the Senior Grain Transportation Committee to treat as confidential any information declared to be so by the railroads.

In exactly the same words, the Hon. Member for Regina West has proposed the same amendment, and I quote:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 29 by striking out lines 10 to 15 at page 15.

It was a surprise to hear the Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) speak against the Motion. I could not understand why he did that. He was actually speaking against the motion put forward by one of his colleagues. The Motion was exactly the same as that of my colleague from Regina West.

It is important to have this Clause amended in that way so that this cloak of secrecy that the railroad company wants to impose upon the Senior Grain Transportation Committee about its operation, where the funds and subsidies have gone, will not exist, that it will be public information for all Canadians, including the farmers, taxpayers, those in the Maritimes and in the rest of the country. They put their money into the system and they should know exactly where it has gone. No railroad company should be given the power to keep that secret from the public.

I trust that the Government will hear very loud and clear that the Opposition Parties, both the Progressive Conservative and the New Democratic Party, have put forward the same two Motions, numbers 52 and 53. I hope that the Government hears what is being said by those on this side of the House, and that when the vote is called on the motions they will pass. That is what the people of Canada have a right to have. They should know what has happened to the subsidies.

I see that you are signalling me, Mr. Speaker. I am happy to have had this opportunity to speak, for which I thank you very much.

• (2150)

Mr. Ian Deans (Hamilton Mountain): Mr. Speaker, I want to add something new to the debate.

An Hon. Member: That will be a change.

Mr. Deans: I listened with interest to my good friend and colleague, the Bard of the Conservative Party who muttered sotto voce "that will be a change." I want to suggest to him that perhaps if he would listen he would understand that the arguments we are putting, though similar, are intended to complement each other in an effort to change the Government's mind.

I want to say that the amendment we are proposing is fundamental to the contract which was entered into between the Government of Canada and the builders of the railroad. It was never intended that the railroads would have access to public funds without explaining fully how those funds were to be used. I would go further and say that it was never intended that the railroads would have access to public funds at all other than through grants for the purpose of building the railroad.

I know you were probably around at the time the railroad was built or maybe just shortly thereafter, Mr. Speaker. You will remember, if not from personal recollection, certainly from your study of history, exactly what took place back in the late 1800s. I can recall reading the history of elections at that particular time. There was a booklet put out by the Conservative Party for the purposes of the election of 1882. At that point in time the Conservative Party, under perhaps the greatest Conservative leader ever, was trying to explain to the electors of Canada the facts. He called it "A record of the Conservative Administration, Claims of the Government for the Support of the People". I intend to quote just two or three paragraphs from this.

I make reference to this because it bears very heavily on the debate we are having here today. The Conservative Party of the day back in 1882 put forward policies as follows:

A national policy for the encouragement of Canadian Industries, Agricultural, Manufacturing, Mining.

A Pacific Railway from ocean to ocean, on Canadian soil, for the development of our Great West and the building up of Canadian commerce.

They went on to put on as their third initiate the "British Connection. A determined opposition to everything calculated to weaken the tie binding us to the Mother Country".

As you look at those headings you have to think of how far the Conservative Party has wandered today. I must say that Sir John A., resting as he no doubt is, and watching the proceedings here, is probably twisting and turning with anguish as he sees what has happened to his Party.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: I used that this morning and it was a lot funnier.

Mr. Deans: Let me read what the claim was in those days and you will be able to see quite clearly why I contend that this particular amendment is an essential part of any redefinition of the agreement between the Government of Canada and the railroads of Canada in terms of how they will serve the economic needs.

On page 15 of that book it says:

The Canadian Pacific Railway

The Opposition—

The Opposition in those days, of course, were the Liberals.

—describe the contract entered into with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to construct the Pacific Railway as the "Giant among Swindles," and as "the most disastrous public contract" and "the greatest railway swindle of the 19th century."

I want to stop at this point because—

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Agreed.

Mr. Deans: —their opposition was clearly misguided. That can happen. I want to suggest that just as their opposition was misguided then their opposition to what we are proposing now is equally misguided. Just as the opposition to the development of the railroad system back in the late 1800s was a misguided opposition, their opposition to our demand that the railroads be clearly accountable publicly for the expenditures that they undertake using public funds is misguided today, as it was in those days.

The Conservative brochure goes on to defend their position. They say:

At that time both parties agreed that it should be built by a company, aided by subsidies of land and money—

And this is the catch.

—but so as not to increase the burden of taxation.

In our presentation we suggested that there was a clear betrayal of the original agreement. The railroads had been given, in return for their commitment to build what was deemed at that time, and undoubtedly was in the national interest, a link between the West and the central and eastern parts of Canada, substantial amounts of capital by way of grants, and they were given substantial numbers of acres of land by way of outright deed. But they were not to be given public subsidy out of the tax dollars. what we are saying today is consistent with that particular principle.

We are saying that if the railroads are to be provided with additional funds, as they have been over the last number of years in order to enable them to live up to their commitment, surely it is not too much to expect that in return for those funds they should be prepared to provide an accurate dollar accounting of how the funds are spent.

I heard the Conservatives moaning and groaning over the course of the last four hours about the inconsistency of our position.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Hear, hear! Right on.

Mr. Deans: They say with some degree of glee "hear, hear".

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Hear, hear, with a hell of a lot of glee.

Mr. Deans: All I can assume is that that particular response is out of ignorance. Quite frankly, if they were to be true to the original tenets of the Party they belong to, they would appreciate that those people who entered into this agreement in the first place quite clearly entered into it with an understanding that there would be no public funds made available on an ongoing basis out of taxation.

Since that point in time no doubt a number of changes have taken place. The one thing that is reasonable to ask is an accounting of how the money is going to be spent. I cannot understand why we cannot gain the support of the House of Commons on a matter such as this. I hear Conservative Members rising one after the other and speaking about the right of the company to maintain its secrecy, to maintain the confidentiality of its affairs. Mr. Speaker, confidentiality has a place, but there is no place for confidentiality if there is the involvement of public expenditures.

I can see that you are on the edge of your seat, Mr. Speaker, and you probably want to make a speech in support of my position. I simply want to ask Members of the House to consider this carefully. I say to the Tories, do not leave your roots; hang in there; you were right in the first place. I say to the Liberals, you were wrong in the beginning; you are wrong again; hear what we have to say.

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, after such a forceful presentation on such an important position one would not want to make a judgment without having slept on the topic. In light of that very sound and sober advice that we need to cogitate, reflect and assess with the proper degree of sobriety and clearheadedness that such an amendment requires, I wonder if the House would like to consider the means by which we could expedite our business so that Members of the Opposition could allow me to give this the consideration they so devoutly wish.

I should like to respond to the concerns they have expressed. They may want to spend at least tomorrow's proceedings examining some of the amendments that were brought forward and placed on the Order Paper today that deal with the fundamental issue of ability to pay. I wonder if we could gain the consent of the House that the safety net amendments which I introduced this afternoon might now be considered. In that way we could use our time very well in examining the debate that has passed, at the same time using the time left in report stage debate to examine items of great seriousness and concern to the western farmer, namely, how we can provide protection during the time of the cost-price freeze that we all face. I should like to ask for consent for such a judgment by the Chair.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair suggests that there might be a disposition to dispose of the amendments currently under discussion and then, with the unanimous consent of the House, the House would be free to adopt any other amendments for consideration. Would Hon. Members care to comment?

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I should like to speak to the point raised by the Minister of Transport. This Party is on record as early as this afternoon as expressing a willingness to debate those fundamental issues. The Minister referred to the proposition of the safety net. We would certainly have no objection to moving that forward for debate as it is very central to the Bill. We have not had an opportunity to debate it in committee or indeed to consider it in any form, since it was considered out of order.

I hope that in the course of consideration of the concept of the safety net we would be allowed to consider some of the motions we have advanced today, namely, the proposal to freeze the existing freight rate structure at least until July 31, 1986—that is this Party's version of a safety net—until such time as a review and study of the farmers' ability to pay and the impact upon producers, can be conducted. Second, we hope that we will be able to deal with the motion that was put forward with respect to the method of payment. Third, there is the motion dealing with the issue of the coal lands. As I indicated earlier today, it was only considered in a rather cursory fashion in committee because we ran out of time.

Mr. Benjamin: We moved an amendment.

Mr. Mazankowski: Yes, we did consider an amendment but the guillotine had been imposed and it was not dealt with in detail.

Subject to those conditions we would be prepared to move on to the amendments suggested by the Hon. Minister of Transport.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I am not exactly clear what the Minister of Transport was asking. Does he suggest that we should now move on to other amendments tonight? I have no objection to moving on to the next set of amendments. We have been dealing with what I consider to be a vitally important matter, the question of accountability. I do not think any Member of the House would disagree with that.

The next set of amendments to be called in the order set down by the Speaker will deal with another vital and important matter. I do not doubt that by five o'clock or six o'clock tomorrow afternoon we will be reaching the point of dealing with other important matters. We are prepared to sit continuously for as long as it takes to deal with the Bill in total.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, to clarify this, I recognize the noble spirit of debate expressed by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). If we look at the record of debate during report stage—and the pattern has not changed during today's proceedings—we will see that the possibility of encountering the 30 or 40 amendments still on the Order Paper by five o'clock or six o'clock tomorrow afternoon is highly unlikely.

An Hon. Member: You should have thought of that before you moved closure.

Mr. Axworthy: The issue that I raised is not simply that of proceeding seriatim to allow the House to reorder its priorities by consent—not to dispose of any amendments but to reallocate the order in which we would deal with them. I suggest that in order to give full attention to the central issue in the time allotment available to us—the ability to pay issue which focuses around the safety net amendment—it might be brought forward as the next order of business when we conclude the group of amendments that we are dealing with.

I suggest this in the interests of debating the issues which are of critical importance. Members from western Canada know that when they go back to their constituencies there will be no issue of more importance. The Government believes that it is answering that issue through the amendments introduced this afternoon. I think it would only be fair for the Opposition to be in a position to respond and have an exchange of views across the floor of the House.

If we go according to the time pattern established by Members of the Opposition in the way they have conducted debate, the chance of our getting to the point of examining the matter within the time allocation, no matter how long we stay, is remote. In the interests of serving the right of the public to know where we stand on this issue, I would like to see if there is some way of arriving at an agreement.

Mr. Deans: Now I understand more clearly what we are dealing with, Mr. Speaker. I appreciate the Minister clarifying the matter for me.

If we continue as we are and it gets to 5.45 p.m. tomorrow afternoon and we have not yet dealt with this matter, we would be quite happy to extend the sitting to accommodate whatever additional time is necessary to deal with any amendments at that time outstanding.

Hon. Ray Hnatyshyn (Saskatoon West): Mr. Speaker, I will be very brief but I want to refer to the hallucinatory intervention of the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). He alluded to a number of things in the course of his speech. In the course of reading a speech prepared by one of his researchers he gave a history of the evolution of the Crowsnest Pass rate.

I want to recall to the House that I believe it was Mackenzie King who said that there really was no difference between the Liberal Party and the CCF Party, that the CCF Party was really composed of Liberals in a hurry. After listening to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain, I must change that particular observation because the last three or four speakers of that Party have been dealing with the 1880s, the 1885s and the 1887s. The New Democratic Party are making the Liberals look like people who are full pace runners in comparison. As my colleague, the Hon. Member for Provencher (Mr. Epp), pointed out quite accurately some time ago, the NDP are really the true reactionaries of our time. It has never changed its point of view. It repeats and repeats the catechism which was originated with their Party under the tutelage of the trade union movement in 1961: never an original thought. Do not address the issue before us but stay with the same old—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. Order, please. Is the Hon. Member speaking to the motions?

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Yes.

Mr. Epp: It sounded good to me.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I am pleased to hear that. Will the Hon. Member please proceed.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: That is why, Mr. Speaker, you hold high office. You are so observant. You are able to see that I am dealing in relevance with this particular set of motions in pointing out the fact that in terms of the approach which the Hon. Members of the New Democratic Party take with respect to these particular amendments, they are the true reactionaries. You, Mr. Speaker, understand the relevance of that because you have been subjected to their various speeches. They like to go back in history. I can go back in history, too. I can refer to the fact that the Crowsnest Pass rates are regarded as part of the Magna Carta of western Canada. In fact, I looked at that Magna Carta just to make sure and refresh my memory as to the relevance of that document to the debate today.

It is interesting, Mr. Speaker, because you will understand that what we are dealing with now is the question of accountability of the railways. One of our amendments was in fact accepted in committee. It was a very important amendment which forced the railways to have an accountability before the CTC with respect to its operations under the provisions of this Act. The Hon. Members of the New Democratic Party have raised some examples of past history, so I thought I would look back to the Magna Carta itself to see whether or not if we went back to 1215 in the time of King John and the barons we could find out exactly what happened then which may have had an influence on the accountability of the railroads.

I am fascinated at the relevance of this document, Mr. Speaker. I draw to the attention of the Minister that the Magna Carta says, and I quote:

> No constable or other royal official shall take corn or other movable goods from any man without immediate payment, unless the seller voluntarily offers postponement of this.

The Government should listen to what the Magna Carta says as to the basic rules of our democratic system in the British tradition, because what it is proposing with this legislation is very much like taking the farmers' corn without payment. I quote again:

> No sheriff, royal official, or other person shall take horses or carts for transport from any free man, without his consent.

The Minister should listen to this because that is what the Government is doing with the transportation vehicle—the railways—with respect to the grain producers in Canada today. I quote again:

> No town or person shall be forced to build bridges over rivers except those with an ancient obligation to do so.

I would like to say one thing, Mr. Speaker. If one looks at the railways today and the obligations they put on towns and persons in our society with respect to maintenance of their railways, their crossings, the snow removal obligations these agents, in the case of the CNR, the Crown, puts upon towns and persons in our society, one can understand that the barons who went up and demanded equal rights, justice and democracy from King John knew what they were talking about. It is too bad that the Government does not understand the relevance of the Magna Carta as it affects this particular legislation.

I want simply to deal with the provisions here because we are talking about the obligations of the CPR and the railways to the people of Canada under this particular legislation. The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) and other Members of the New Democratic Party have made reference to the fact that they are the protectors of the Crowsnest Pass rate. They say that they are not working hand and glove with the Government. They do not support the Government in any way in this regard. When one looks at the question of how much the railways are going to be receiving with respect to the transportation of grain, and at the whole question of accountability and how the profits are to be applied in the amendment which is brought forward by the New Democratic Party, one has to consider the full implication of what that Party did today. That Party brought in its own amendment with respect to the safety net.

Mr. Mazankowski: They said that the Crow must go.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: The Hon. Members of that Party did not even have the good grace, Mr. Speaker, to use their own typewriter. They took the Government motion which is tabled. They went to a photo copy machine and copied exactly word for word the proposal of the Government with respect to the safety net provisions.

The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain will probably not understand this because he attended exactly zero of the hearings with respect to this matter of the Transport Committee. He never appeared. He never showed his face once. At least the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-St. James (Mr. Keeper) came to have his picture taken with the committee once and attended for 15 minutes.

Mr. Deans: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker. It may surprise the Hon. Member who has just spoken to know that not only did I attend hearings, but I read every word of the proceedings. As the House Leader, that is my job.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, I wonder what the consequence is of the amendment which the NDP brought in today, that so-called defender of the Crow rate, these Hon. Members who have been trumpeting their dedication to the statutory rate. By using exactly the same amendment as the Government presented with the exception of blocking out part of Subsection (a) of Motion No. 59 which deals with the number of percentage points of the freight rate price ratio, they removed the graduated scale and put in their own maximum of 3 per cent.

Mr. Epp: Three per cent! That is a 20 per cent increase.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: This is an amazing thing, Mr. Speaker. Here it is, the Liberal-NDP coalition, reading from the same song sheet! They have different figures, but these people are talking about precisely the same thing. What they are talking about is the destruction of the Crow rate. They know they are as guilty as the Liberal Government with respect to the destruction of the Crowsnest Pass rate. I challenge them to stand up in western Canada with a straight face and suggest that they have anything—

An Hon. Member: Any time you want it, Ray.

Mr. de Jong: You are getting red in the face. You must be lying or something. Are you not telling the truth? Why are you blushing like that?

Mr. Althouse: Mr. Speaker, my point of order is that if the Hon. Member is reading a motion, he should give the proper interpretation to it. The safety net is a ceiling, not a floor. It provides a very adequate protection in the event—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, order. The Hon. Member is not making a point of order, he is entering into debate. The Hon. Member for Saskatoon West (Mr. Hnatyshyn) will continue his brilliant remarks.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Let me just say to the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse), Mr. Speaker, that 10 per cent is a ceiling as well. I can tell him that 15 per cent is a ceiling and 50 per cent is a ceiling. Three per cent is a ceiling. The Hon. Member knows, Mr. Speaker, in the situation today, that if we were to take the figures right now in terms of half a cent per tonne mile, it would be the equivalent of a 2.5 per cent figure. The NDP Members are suggesting that they are going to raise this to 3 per cent. That is a 20 per cent increase.

I see, Mr. Speaker, that you are getting ready to stand up and compliment me on my acute observations. However, I would just like to conclude my remarks with one sentence. The NDP Members have declared their true feelings with respect to this matter through this amendment. What they have now proposed is the destruction of the Crow rate. I say to my hon. friends in the House of Commons that I will not let western Canadians forget this during the course of the next election campaign.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is the House ready for the question?

Some Hon. Members: Question.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The question is on Motion No. 50. All those in favour will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In my opinion the nays have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Pursuant to Standing Order 79(11), the recorded division on the proposed motion will be deferred.

The question is on Motion No. 52. All those in favour will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In my opinion the nays have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Pursuant to Standing Order 79(11), the recorded division on the proposed motion will be deferred. A vote on Motion No. 52 disposes of Motion No. 53.

Mr. Les Benjamin (Regina West) moved:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 33 by striking out lines 11 to 43 at page 16 and substituting the following therefor:

"for the purpose of moving grain and the Minister shall take every reasonable initiative to ensure that an adequate supply of rolling stock will be provided for the efficient, reliable and effective movement of grain.

(2) The Minister may enter into agreements with the owners of lessees of railway cars.

(3) The Canadian Wheat Board shall administer and control any railway cars acquired or leased by the Board or by the Minister on behalf of Her Majesty.

(4) The Canadian Wheat Board may, in respect of railway cars under its administration and control, enter into agreements with the railway companies respecting the operation of the railway cars."

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 33 by striking out lines 24 to 30 at page 16 and renumbering the subsequent subclauses accordingly.

He said: Mr. Speaker, when dealing with Motions Nos. 55 and 56, we are dealing with another serious and fundamental issue in this proposed legislation, namely, the powers of the Canadian Wheat Board and its jurisdiction over the allocation of railway cars that have been purchased by the taxpayers, let alone the railway cars that the railways own. There gets to be fewer and fewer of those cars every day.

Several speeches have been made by my hon. friends from the Official Opposition on a motion which we have not dealt with as yet. I only want to say, Sir, that a 3 per cent cap on a safety net means that if, as and when grain prices go down, we could end up in a situation where the railways would even have to refund money. I invite my colleagues from the Conservative Party to go back to the drawing board and take another look at that 3 per cent cap.

The Government's motion regarding the safety net refers to 4 per cent, 5 per cent, 6 per cent, 7 per cent, 8 per cent, 9 per cent and 10 per cent. Our motion would mean that 3 per cent is the maximum forever and a day. Since grain prices will probably keep going down as they have over the last three years, I invite my Conservative colleagues to take another look at that before they start shooting off their mouths about breaking the Crow rate.

The truth of the matter, Mr. Speaker, is that Members of the Conservative Party to this day have yet to say that they are in favour of keeping the Crowsnest Pass rate as is. In fact, they are in favour of doing away with it. However, they are not in favour of doing away with it today as are Liberal Members. Oh no, they are speaking about three years and then two and a half years and now they are speaking about two years. But they are still in favour of killing the Crow.

I have in my possession some Conservative literature from the last provincial election in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Bloomfield: Who won?

Mr. Benjamin: Well, talking about false pretences, the literature read:

The Crow Rate must remain!
The shortfall must be paid for by the federal government.
We oppose any plan to use Saskatchewan dollars—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I must call to the attention of the Hon. Member the rule of relevance. Remarks made at report stage of the Bill, as the Hon. Member well knows, must be strictly relevant to the amendments before us.

Mr. Benjamin: Exactly, Mr. Speaker, and when dealing with Motions Nos. 55 and 56, keeping the Crow rate means keeping the powers of the Canadian Wheat Board. On my right is the outfit that is in favour of decreasing the powers of the Wheat Board in cahoots with the Liberals. The Tories said: "Let's keep the Crow rate, vote PC in Souris-Cannington, vote for Eric Berntson; a Progressive Conservative government will say that the Crow rate must remain." That comes from their literature, Mr. Speaker. Keeping the Crow rate means keeping the powers of the Canadian Wheat Board and we cannot separate the two.

I could go on and read some more Tory literature about keeping the Crow, but Members of the Conservative Party in the House and outside of the House have yet to say unequivocally that the statutory grain rate must remain in place. It must remain in place not for a year and a half or for two years or for two and a half years or for three years: it must remain in place for western grain producers.

During the committee hearings we heard from officials of the Canadian Wheat Board, from officials of the Canadian Wheat Board Advisory Committee, from Mr. Charlie Gibbings, former Commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board for some dozen years or more, and from the prairie Wheat Pools. They all said the same thing, Mr. Speaker. I invite my colleagues who were on the committee to refresh their memories. I am quoting Mr. Jarvis:

> The board, like any other sales organization, must control the shipment of its own product in order to ensure performance. For these reasons, the board has always held the view that overall control of the system as it is developed in co-ordination with the total of the grain industry should be administered by the board.

Motions Nos. 55 and 56 retain the control of the railway cars that have been purchased by farmers and taxpayers in the hands of the Canadian Wheat Board. For the reasons given by the Board and by the Board's Advisory Committee and for the reasons that we gave when dealing with earlier amendments for facilitating sales, knowledge of the location and grades of grains and protection of the block system, these cars must remain under the control of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Motion No. 56 takes away from the Government or the Grain Transportation Commissioner the ability through Order in Council to transfer any administrative control over those cars away from the Canadian Wheat Board. Throughout the history of this legislation, the Canadian Wheat Board Act, the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement and the Canadian Pacific Railway Act, it did not matter if it was a Tory government, Liberal government or the CPR because their word was no good. A deal is a deal. We specifically know why the Conservatives in the last couple of weeks are interested in going along with the Liberals to do away with the statutory grain rate. The reason is that Canadian Pacific Limited doubled their contribution to the Tory and Liberal Parties last year. They raised it from $25,000 to $50,000 each.

An Hon. Member: Do you have proof?

Mr. Benjamin: Yes, thanks to the Chief Electoral Officer and thanks to the fact that during a minority Parliament we were able to have legislation on election expenses passed which allowed us to get this information.

Furthermore, Mr. Burbidge, President of CP, did not give the Tories anything but gave the Liberals $221.68.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: With all due respect to the Hon. Member, he does appear to be straying from the amendment before the House. I would invite him to return to the amendment.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, we already know but I am trying to have the Chair understand why the Liberal Government and the Tory Opposition are prepared to weaken the Canadian Wheat Board and orderly marketing. They want their friends in the CPR and the private grain trade to further decrease the powers of the Wheat Board and its ability to allocate cars in a proper proportion to the elevator companies that are owned by the farmers in order to give more cars to their friends in the Winnipeg commodity exchange and James Richardson and Son. I see the Member for Assiniboia (Mr. Gustafson). He is in bed with Otto Lang. That is a strange couple, or maybe not so strange.

When we tried to get the mineral rights which was given to PanCanadian Oil in 1881, approximately nine million acres of oil and gas rights, I could understand why the Grits and the Tories were not very happy about that. While it was not a great sum, the Tories received $1,200 and the Liberals received $650 from PanCanadian Petroleum. That is a totally owned subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Enterprises. I think PanCanadian bought banquet tickets from the Tories. That is how they fill their banquet halls. The Liberals and Tories have the corporations pay for the tickets and then hand them out to their friends.

We know why the Conservatives have yet to say that they want to keep the Crow rate and stop this legislation, which they could have done weeks ago. The Tories have moved all these motions on unanimous consent which they will debate if we are lucky and then vote on. But they will vote against the Bill. It may look good but they still do not want to stop the Bill. They never have.

The architect of the legislation was hired by the Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski). We must have an idea of what is happening since the Liberals kept him on the payroll. The architect of the legislation refused to accept amendments No. 55 and No. 56 in the committee on behalf of the Government.

The control of the railway cars by the Canadian Wheat Board is essential because the sales, marketing and transportation of grain are inextricably linked and cannot be separated. We believe that control must remain with the Canadian Wheat Board and will not tolerate any sell-out to the contributors from Canadian Pacific Limited and this unholy alliance between the Conservatives and Liberals to get rid of the Crow rate. That has always been agreed to and accepted by the Tory Party here, if not in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Stan Schellenberger (Wetaskiwin): Mr. Speaker, I always enjoy listening to the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) talk about those steps he intends to take. At the same time, however, his Party has moved an amendment, after our amendment which would keep the Crow for three years, which in effect demolishes the Crow rate immediately. Their amendment moves the rate from 2.5 per cent to 3 per cent. I find that hard to believe.

Members will have noticed that the Member for Regina West did not really debate the motions at hand. He talked at great length about other issues because the motions which he moved are not very strong, and when one does not have a strong case, one does not debate it. I can understand why. The authority of the Canadian Wheat Board to allocate cars existed for some time. It has had control of the placement of cars in the Prairies.

When we came to Government in 1979 everyone in the industry recognized that the system was not efficient and there was not an orderly movement of grain from the delivery point to the ports. The solution was obvious since it was used years ago, during the war, when it was essential to get food to the ports. It was decided that a neutral arbitrator should be in place, someone who could decide where the responsibility for decisions should lie in a neutral way.

That was the reason for establishing a co-ordinator and at that time a task force went across the nation, particularly in the Prairies where it was essential to get the information and to gather the facts. Most in the industry expressed the view that a co-ordinator should be put in place and that among other responsibilities he should act as a neutral arbitrator to help resolve problems that often lingered in that area at that time.

When that recommendation was made, the co-ordinator was not established to allocate cars only to the pools on the Prairies because they are not the only organization that has the producers' interest at heart. There is the United Grain Growers, which is also a co-operative, as well as Pioneer Grain Company, Parish and Heinbecker and Cargill. There are many other producer companies. For instance, there is the terminal that was built at Weyburn by producers who had difficulty getting cars, even though they built one of the most modern facilities on the Prairies, to deliver the farmer's product to the market.

Another fact which was made clear was that while the Canadian Wheat Board had the producers' interest at heart, it was basically in a conflict of interest with itself in regard to the allocation of cars. Obviously, its job was to sell grain in the export market and therefore it had a desire to get as much of that grain to the port as possible using the number of cars it had in the system. Therefore, rather than allocating cars as well to a very important domestic producing and processing industry, it would want to put cars into the export market. This is where the conflict arose. No one in the Wheat Board could make the arbitrary or neutral decision.

That is why the co-ordinator became so important in 1979. I think the co-ordinator is important today because a decision must be made about the use of cars in the system for delivery into the domestic market and the export market. While it might not be efficient to have a surplus of cars, there would be no difficult decisions to make because the Wheat Board could have control over the cars for the export market if there were more than needed. But that has never been the case. It is a very expensive storage program if we have too many cars in the system. It would be far better, given the number of cars that are necessary in the system, to use them in the most efficient manner. One day a greater turnaround means a greater number of bushels over a year that can be delivered to port, I have just forgotten the figure.

I can understand why the Hon. Member for Regina West did not debate his two motions too strongly. I do not believe there are very many people on the Prairies who would agree with his motions. The co-ordinator has operated very well in the past. The new Bill suggests that that institution remain, that it be given the powers to see that cars are allocated in an efficient manner and that efficiency continues to operate in the system.

I conclude by saying it is no wonder the Hon. Member who just spoke tried to tie into the Conservative Party, because when you look at the motion the NDP just moved, that Party is trying to get Members who are now debating off their motion and on to other areas. We will not forget very quickly the motion that the NDP moved by unanimous consent to destroy the Crow.

Mr. Jim Fulton (Skeena): Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to have an opportunity to enter into this debate and to know that the people who are watching, or who read the proceedings later will know that the comments made by the Hon. Member for Wetaskiwin (Mr. Schellenberger) are, like most of what the Tories have been putting on the record, just a lot of hot air.

The two amendments which have been proposed by my colleague from Regina are very important, particularly for constituencies such as mine or for elevator systems. The most modern and largest grain elevator being built in Canada, one of the largest in the world, is in Prince Rupert. As most Members know, it is by far majority controlled by the Saskatchewan and Alberta Wheat Pools. I know the position of those two pools. They do not like Bill C-155. They have managed one way or another to take some of the Tories to task for the flim-flam position they are taking. I am sure they will take them to task for the same flim-flam that they are putting up about this proposal tonight to try and get some press and try to get the message out that the NDP are planning to break the Crow. Any farmer or producer on the Prairies who reads our amendments, who reads any of our speeches or who speaks to any of us, knows that the one thing we stand for fundamentally in terms of the overall legislation is no change to the Crow. The Tories are in favour of change. None of them dispute it. They are in favour of five times Crow. They should be standing up in the House and saying that rather than doing what they are doing, which is trying to use smoke, mirrors, rhetoric and falsifying various pieces of information which they bring forward in the House about what their position really is. I think they should really tell the truth, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Malone: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. The Hon. Member for Skeena (Mr. Fulton) just said that Members of the Tory Party falsified information. I challenge him to document that. I dare him. I doubt that he could at all make the claim—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is not making a point of order. He will shortly be recognized for purposes of debate. The Hon. Member for Skeena (Mr. Fulton).

Mr. Fulton: That is right, Mr. Speaker. When I say the Tories have been using false information in the House, people know it is true. The Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) is trying to deny that through the back door.

The two amendments that are before the House are very important in terms of the allocation of grain cars. I think it is important that perhaps some Members on the Government side explain why they will vote against them. I think Canadians have some right to know where Members of the governing Party are coming from in voting against all of these amendments that will come before the House tomorrow.

The Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) has come up with various proposals, again trying to use his own smoke and mirrors in western Canada by saying he is proposing some kind of a safety net. One part of a safety net which the Government could support and which the Tory Party could support is contained in these two amendments. Let me take a moment to go through both of them. As anyone can tell when they read them, they dovetail. They intend to achieve the same purpose.

The first amendment, Motion No. 55, is to give control over railroad grain cars and the allocation of them to the Canadian Wheat Board. We know that the Liberal and Tory tag team are attempting to take away historic control over grain car allocation from the Wheat Board to provide it either to the Minister or to the Administrator, so that the private grain trade can get more cars and the entire nature of grain movement and grain transportation in Canada can be shifted more quickly into the hands of a few people out to make a quick buck rather than give it to people interested in the producers. They do not think about the enormous value grain production and its export has for Canada and our balance of trade.

There are a number of argument for control. The chief of these is that the Canadian Wheat Board, for reasons given by my colleagues on many former amendments, including myself, in terms of the facilitation of sales, the knowledge of the location of grade of grains and the protection of the block system, should have these cars under its control.

Motion No. 56 flows directly from that. This amendment would remove the ability to transfer the administration and control or the ownership of those grain cars presently owned by the Wheat Board to the Minister of Transport. I would be interested to hear from these two Parties who claim to be the great front runners for free enterprise in Canada. For example, the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) knows a little bit about cars, used cars in particular but cars in general. Would he like his own personal car transferred to the Minister of Transport so that the Minister could drive around and use it? The Hon. Member for Vegreville pays the insurance, pays for the purchase of the car, pays for the new tires, greasing and any motor work that has to be done. But who actually uses the car? The Minister of Transport.

The producers in Canada are not naive about some of the deals being made by the Liberals and Conservatives in the interests of the private grain trade, the Cargills, the Otto Langs and certain people in the Winnipeg commodity exchange and so on who want to make more money for themselves. They consider themselves to be entrepreneurs out of the grain business. They want to get that money for themselves. Those cars the producers have paid for one way or the other, whether through a process of not getting as much payment per bushel or per tonne for their grain for a few years while buying grain cars. Now those hopper cars are all over the country. But what the Minister of Transport, the Liberals, along with their Tory friends are saying now is "That is fine. Those cars have been paid for".

These two Parties claim to stand for property rights. They have the audacity and the pomposity to stand in this House and say that, and then go across the country and say they stand for property rights. Those two Parties have brought in almost every expropriationary power in Canada. In my own Province of British Columbia the 48 major expropriation powers that are there were brought in by the Tories, the Liberals and the new coalition called the Socreds. In this case, those farmers, whether in Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia or Manitoba, who have paid for those cars are now being told that the use made of those cars, where those cars are going to be, their availability and so on, will be determined outside of their control, outside of the control of the Canadian Wheat Board. That is expropriation. That is blatant rip-off of something that someone has earned the money for, paid for and now is being denied the right of use.

I do not wonder any more why Liberals and Tories do not get up to speak. What they want to do is create illusions outside the House of Commons about what they are really doing. It is difficult in a forum such as this to get a message out. We in here can see. We listen to the debates. We watch the Minister of Transport go and sit with the Hon. Member for Vegreville. They chat nicely and titter, titter, titter. Then the Hon. Member for Vegreville goes to the Minister of Transport and they make various proposals to help each other. I think producers in the West are waking up pretty damn quickly as they see no Liberal Member speaking and they see Tory Members telling stories that are total fabrication, that all of a sudden the NDP has today decided to completely change its position.

An Hon. Member: It has. Read the amendment.

Mr. Fulton: What a lot of rubbish! I hear someone say "Read the amendment". I know exactly what is in that amendment.

Mr. McKnight: Explain. You don't understand it.

Mr. Fulton: I know what the purpose of it is. The Members are saying explain. We will have plenty of time to explain in this House. You can stand up and use your little tricks to say: "Well, now the NDP has changed its position".

• (2250)

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member realizes his remarks should be addressed to the Chair.

Mr. Fulton: I am always glad to address my comments through the Chair. However, I want to return to the key point in Motion No. 56. I want to hear the Hon. Member for Vegreville and the Minister of Transport put on the record their position so that Canadian producers can sit down at home and read it. Then they will discover why the man who claims he wants to be Minister of Transport and the man who claims he is the Minister of Transport would not support those cars for which the producers have already paid staying under their control through the Canadian Wheat Board. I think they have a right to know that the Tories and Liberals think that the Administrator is just a kind fellow who happens to be putting all the cars out for Cargill and moving the grain down to the United States with Canadian-owned cars that were paid for by the sweat off the brow of Canadian families working on the Prairies and that these two groups consider themselves to be free enterprisers who can make another special deal for CPR.

In conclusion, I would like to refer to a quote of Sir Clifford Sifton when the Crow rate was agreed on by the CPR and the Government of Canada made various statements about it. Mr. Sifton, who was party to the negotiations that established the 1897 Crow rate agreements, aid in 1929:

> I remember when as a young Minister in Laurier's Cabinet, Van Horne and Shaughnessy said a line into the Kootenay mining district would not be considered for 15 years. Also I remember that within six weeks the same two gentlemen came into my office and said they had to build this line and wanted a large bonus for doing it, that the CPR was on the verge of bankruptcy. We gave them this bonus against the public sentiment of two-thirds of the people of Canada. They built the line and the Kootenay mining development—

Of course, this was the nucleus of Cominco:

> —saved the CPR and saved a good many other things in Canada.

This is quite a different debate. The producers and people who are knowledgeable about the debate in western Canada are opposed to what the Liberal/Tory coalition is doing. I wish the Minister of Transport and the Hon. Member who thinks he should be the Minister of Transport would listen and tell Canadians why they do not support Motion No. 56.

Mr. Arnold Malone (Crowfoot): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member for Skeena (Mr. Fulton) as spoken. I have never heard so many lonesome neurons in all my life. What we heard was a bombast of words which meant nothing.

We are dealing with Motions Nos. 55 and 56. Hon. Members of the New Democratic Party are saying that the Canadian Wheat Board must be preserved. Those who believe in good would quickly have to agree, including Canadian farmers. The fact is that their warrant and premise does not lead to the proper conclusion. This has nothing to do with the strength of the Canadian Wheat Board. In fact, the Canadian Wheat Board has come to the realization that when the transportation and allocation of cars is in the hands of another agency, much of the flak against the Canadian Wheat Board is removed and it is left to its proper and just role, the sale of grain in the international marketplace.

What did the Hon. Member for Skeena try to make us believe? He said, "I no longer wonder why the Tories do not speak". We had some 66 committee meetings across the Prairies. All told, there were 86 Members days for the entire New Democratic Party caucus. All 31 of its Members showed up for a total of 86 Member days. Two of our Members were there for 138 days. The Hon. Member for Skeena places himself on a high pedestal. He claims that he is knowledgeable about grain transportation. He is the great wheat farmer from Skeena! The great wheat farmer from British Columbia never showed up for a single committee meeting, according to the minutes of the Standing Committee on Transport.

Mr. Fulton: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. For the sake of the record, I would like to inform the Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) that I am the environment and northern development critic, not the transport critic.

Mr. Malone: Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to know that he is the critic of something for his caucus. The point is that he hallucinated here, trying to make the claim that he no longer wonders why the Tories do not speak. Two of our Members were present for a total of 138 Member days, whereas the entire NDP caucus present for only a total of 86 Member days Their record in terms of what they do in the House is simply unbelievable.

I would like to return to Motions Nos. 55 and 56. The NDP position that the Wheat Pool should have control of the grain cars is interesting. Also it is interesting to note that 2,000 of those cars are owned by the Canadian Wheat Board and 12,000 are owned by the provincial Governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Members of the NDP would like us to believe that the situation is such that somehow they need to protect the control of the Canadian Wheat Board. Canadian farmers have found that when they have a transport agency to which they can go with transportation difficulties, they have been able to pinpoint and resolve their problems faster than when they go to the Canadian Wheat Board. The Canadian Wheat Board was comprised of people who were busy carrying out Canadian Wheat Board activities. They were involved in selling and international negotiations, and they were frustrated part of their day by looking after the car situation. Farmers believe that there was more efficiency in the measure brought forward by the Conservative Government in recent history when the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) was the Minister of Transport. From that time to the present we have seen a more efficient movement of grain in terms of the availability of cars.

NDP Members would like to steal away the successes we have accomplished and return to a system with an agency that principally works with the sale and marketing of grain rather than getting back to the nuts and bolts of fixing up the railways and getting the cars in place. Anyone who deals with the Canadian Wheat Board today will tell us that its credibility was enhanced when it did not have to take the brunt of looking after the organization of cars. I notice Mr. Speaker is nodding; I appreciate your approval of that argument. Hon. Members of the NDP are always taking the position that if we try to establish another agency for the movement of grain, we diminish the power of the Canadian Wheat Board. I appreciate the fact you understand, Mr. Speaker, that by taking away the heat from the Wheat Board, we enhance its credibility in the eyes of the farmers.

Turning to the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse), my goodness, he is a great Member because he attended 45 days of meetings. The Hon. Member for Prince Albert (Mr. Hovdebo) attended 17 meeting days. That is the end of the Party's list. Two of them had an incredible record! The next highest is six meeting days, the highest of the next three NDP Members on the list. Let me read the first seven Members of our Party—60 days, 63 days, 62 days, 66 days, 54 days, 28 days and 25 days. The NDP would like the whole country to believe that somehow they travelled all across the country listening to farmers defend their views. Now they are defending the Canadian Wheat Board.

Mrs. Mitchell: I made four speeches.

Mr. Malone: The Hon. Member says she gave four speeches, one right after the other that day. She is here now speaking on one of the most important issues ever to affect western Canada and saying, "I gave four speeches on that one day; I want all the credibility you can give me because I was there fighting for my country, four speeches that afternoon". They make a mockery out of that. The truth is that what we want in this country is an efficient transportation system. It is not a case of trying to salute whether or not it is the Wheat Board that is the great Magna Carta of the universe. It is not a case of trying to pick out some agency. It is a case of trying to put together a system that works. If the Wheat Board can handle its principal job of sales, if an agency can handle the principal job of allocating the cars and if we do not have to have a mismash in the farmer's mind concerning who does what and who hawls out the other for not fulfilling his responsibilities, that makes more sense.

Because the New Democratic Party politically recognizes that farmers appreciate the Wheat Board, it thinks that everything it has done in the past must be preserved, irrespective of some improvements we might make for the future. Because it uses that simple form of argument to find that which is labelled "good", then anything associated with it it calls good and tries to say it is on the side of the farmers. That Party is simply wrong. There is nothing to prove that better than the speech of the Hon. Member for Skeena (Mr. Fulton). What an interesting speech. What a loathsome speech. It said and meant nothing. It had nothing to do with transportation. He said we falsified our data and could not give any evidence of it. The best evidence we can give as to their credibility is the fact that, all told, they gave 86 Member days to the committee and two of our Members gave 138 days.

I see, Mr. Speaker, you are grabbing the arms of your chair, either in suspense, because you want me to go on, or because you want to tell me that my time is up. As I presume it is the latter, I will resume after the NDP has put up some of its speakers.

Mr. Vic Althouse (Humboldt-Lake Centre): Mr. Speaker, I wish to make a few remarks on the motions before us tonight. There are two basic proposals here. Motion No. 56, which is second in the way it is presented here, proposes to delete a clause of the Bill which outlines the powers of the Minister respecting the operation of railway cars. It would delete subclause 33(3) which reads:

Notwithstanding anything in this or any other Act of Parliament, the Governor in Council may, by regulation, transfer the administration and control of any railway cars held by the Canadian Wheat Board on behalf of the Government of Canada from the Board to the Minister.

That is what the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) is proposing to delete in this motion. He is proposing to add to the Bill something which would have the effect of amending Subclause 33(1). It would drop the portion that now requires the Minister to take control of the supply of rolling stock and to ensure the adequate supply of rolling stock. He rewords that to say that the administration and control of any railway cars so acquired for the purpose of moving grain, and I quote:

—and the Minister shall take every reasonable initiative to ensure that adequate supply of rolling stock will be provided for the efficient, reliable and effective movement of grain.

It goes on further to say:

The Minister may enter into agreements with the owners or lessees of railway cars and the Wheat Board shall administer control of railway cars acquired or leased by the Board or by the Minister on behalf of Her Majesty, and the Canadian Wheat Board may in respect of railway cars under its administration and control enter into agreements with railway companies respecting the operation of the railway cars.

These changes are consistent with the changes we have been trying to bring to the Bill. We have been trying to stop the change to the rates which erode the bargaining power and the spending power of Canadian farmers. We have also been attempting to stop the erosion of the Canadian Wheat Board, which shows up in several instances in this Bill. This is a case in point.

The Canadian Wheat Board has, as part of its duties, the job of allocating the cars to various points where the correct grades of grain are located. It uses the block system of shipping. Basically what happens is that the Wheat Board determines what grain is needed one month hence at which ports. It sets out a scheme of determining from the railroads how many cars are available in that period of time. Each week it takes the allocation of cars that the railways have available to the Board and sends them out so many hundreds of cars per block. Within the block, the elevator companies that have gathered the grain have orders from the Board for the various kinds and grades of grain.

They look at their stocks around the block and get their percentage of cars based on the amount of business they have done over the past year. They allocate their percentage of the cars to those elevator points that have the correct grade and kind of grain so that that grain gets delivered at the appropriate time to the ship. It is a system that works very well. It is crucial to that system that the Board have some control of what happens to the cars.

In 1977-78 there was great difficulty getting any cars to move grain. At that point in time the Board determined to start purchasing cars with producer's money. Some 2,000 such cars were purchased. In addition, some of the Provinces were persuaded to make arrangements to add to the car fleet as well. Also, the federal Government was sprung for a little more money and it supplied a few more cars. It is an interesting statistical exercise. If you wish to take the increase to the hopper car fleet from that time and look at the increased amount of grain that is shipped, it works out almost in exact proportion.

We have been able to set a new record for exporting and shipping grain this year, almost exclusively because of our ability to have more cars made available. The fact that we increased the fleet provided most of that necessary extra capacity. There was perceived to be a political problem in 1979 as to how the allocation of cars was made. The Conservative Government of that day thought that the Wheat Board was not being entirely fair. It was listening to some of the private grain traders who had received a few years before the right to market feed grains through the open market rather than have the Wheat Board supply the domestic markets, as had been the case for many years before. The power of the Wheat Board was broken down further with the domestic feed grains policy.

Some people who were new in the open marketing of feed grains were charging that the Wheat Board was not fair to them and they were not getting their amount of cars in order to move grain. In fact, the Board was taking great care to make certain that volumes of grain in storage at all the pertinent places were kept at a high level. They were monitoring the volumes that the private trade did have in storage and they were allowing those volumes to remain in storage at a considerably higher proportion to sales than what the Board itself considers efficient within its organization. They were allowing far more storage to take place under the private system than had been imposed upon producers and the Board by the former Transport Minister, Otto Lang, who had carried on what had been begun by the current Member for Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain (Mr. Hamilton). He had begun the deterioration of the Wheat Board by permitting feed mills to buy their supplies from outside the Board.

It is not because we are paranoid that we are concerned about the further erosion of the Board. Farmers, Members and residents of western Canada have seen the deterioration of the Wheat Board with policies brought in by the Progressive Conservatives and expanded and carried even further by a Liberal Government. We see some of the proposals in this Bill, particularly Clause 33 that has the effect of further eroding the powers of the Canadian Wheat Board. We would stop that erosion with the movement and inclusion of these two motions by taking away some powers that the Bill proposes to give to the Minister and giving back some powers to the Wheat Board.

One of the major necessities of completing a sale is being able to assure your customer that you can in fact deliver the grain. A major part of being able to assure that delivery is to be able to have as much control as possible over the mechanism that provides that delivery, in this case hopper cars. If the Wheat Board has control and management of the hopper cars, it has a very vital trump card to play when negotiating with the railways for delivery service because it has control of the cars. All the railways have to do then is to supply the locomotive power. There is no complaint about lack of—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Weatherhead): Order. Is the House ready for the question? The Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight).

Mr. Bill McKnight (Kindersley-Lloydminster): Mr. Speaker, I rise to take part in this debate. I do not know whether it is the late hour but I could understand the misconceptions of the Hon. Member for Skeena (Mr. Fulton) regarding Bill C-155. I know he was handed a prepared text and he went on about the ownership of the cars purchased by the producers, people who own Canadian Wheat Board permit books. The Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse), who attended several meetings, went on in the same vein about cars owned by the producers.

Mr. Althouse: Mr. Speaker, I said "controlled by the Wheat Board".

Mr. McKnight: I would like to draw to the attention of both those Members who spoke that for all the good intentions of the Canadian Wheat Board to purchase the cars, the holders of the Canadian Wheat Board permit books did pay for those cars. But the legal ruling is that we do not own them. They belong to the Government of Canada. They belong to the Crown. The Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre has a Canadian Wheat Board permit book and he should know. When the Hon. Member for Pontiac-Gatineau-Labelle (Mr. Lefebvre) in committee was asked the question, did the Canadian Wheat Board as a separate entity own those cars, he answered, no, the Canadian Wheat Board is for all purposes an agency of the Government of Canada, so in fact the Board by law purchases those cars on behalf of the Government of Canada. It owns it because it is the legal entity that can own property. Mr. Speaker, those cars are owned by the Government of Canada. They are not owned by the producers or by the Canadian Wheat Board.

When you look at the amendment put forward by the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), you see it is the same amendment that he put forward in committee which was ruled out of order and the same amendment that the Hon. Member said would not affect the allocation of cars. I probably made a mistake in drafting this because this section does not pertain to the allocation of cars. The Hon. Member for Regina West put forward the same amendment here that was found in order. When you look at the Bill it shows that it has absolutely nothing to do with the allocation of cars.

The Hon. Member for Skeena could well have talked to some of his colleagues who attended some committee meetings and he may have been brought more up to date. We look at Motion No. 56 put forward by the Hon. Member for Regina West. This motion has absolutely nothing to do with allocation, and what he wants to do is to take away from the Minister the authority, by regulation, to transfer, administer and control any railway cars held by the Canadian Wheat Board on behalf of the Government of Canada.

I am convinced, Mr. Speaker, that if we follow this through we will find out that the Minister is in charge of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, I just want to help the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight). The control of the Canadian Wheat Board is under the Secretary of State in charge of the Canadian Wheat Board who is in the other place. All we want to do is to keep these grain cars under the control and administration of the Wheat Board. We are not talking about administration.

Mr. McKnight: That should be taken as given, but I think you will find, if you read the word "responsibilities", that the Secretary of State for the Canadian Wheat Board is an assistant to the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy).

Mr. Benjamin: That is their problem.

Mr. McKnight: The Minister has an assistant. I am not too sure how much assistance that Minister in the other place would give any Minister of the Crown, but that is not the problem that we have on this side. But the Minister is in charge of the Canadian Wheat Board. The Minister being in charge of the Wheat Board he would, in turn, have control of all the cars that are under the control of the Canadian Wheat Board. The Canadian Wheat Board is an agency of the Crown and that Minister is responsible. So we have here one motion by the Hon. Member that wants to remove any responsibility by regulation, transfer, administration and control of any railway cars held by the Canadian Wheat Board out of the hands of the Minister, but then he wants them left in the hands of the Minister because that Minister is responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board.

• (2320)

I find it difficult to decide what these amendments will do for grain producers in western Canada. How can we have an amendment that does not recognize that the Canadian Wheat Board, therefore the Government, owns the cars even though the producers may feel that they pay for them? A lot of people questioned the Canadian Wheat Board when those cars were purchased. Those people were condemned as being against the Wheat Board. The Board is strong enough in western Canada and has the respect of farmers there so it can withstand criticism. Although it is well managed in most cases, it is not without fault. The Board does not deny that there was some problem with the purchase, but it did it out of necessity.

One amendment would take powers away from the Minister and then transfer them back to the Canadian Wheat Board and the other deals with the control of cars that are already owned by the Government.

I hope that the NDP will debate these motions quickly. They must have motions that they feel are more important than these. I think we should be able to do something to enhance the Bill. The Minister is here, he is interested in the debate and we should be able to persuade the Government to take a closer look at amendments put forward this afternoon.

Mrs. Margaret Mitchell (Vancouver East): Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to speak on these amendments although I confess I am not an expert on the Crowsnest Pass freight rates. The Bill has been a tremendous education to us all and we see what it means to be a Canadian. At first I think many of us felt that the Bill had particular significance only to farmers on the Prairies and to the whole agricultural economy there.

As critic for this Party on the status of women, last night I spoke to farm women and I was interested to hear their concerns about the Bill. Often farm women maintain a home, work on the farm in partnership with the family and are forced to go to work in the community in order to bring in more money. The increase in the freight rates will make it even more difficult for them and their families to manage.

These amendments have a particular significance for British Columbians, particularly for the Port of Vancouver.

Motions No. 55 and No. 56 are concerned with the role of railway cars. I do not think the Minister has made it clear why the Liberals want to change the authority for control and distribution of the railway cars. I am not aware of any reason for concentrating power in the Minister or why the Canadian Wheat Board would not have control. I can only conclude that, as usual, the Liberals are more interested in centralized bureaucratic control than in having it closer to the producers. One wonders whether they want to give more control over to the railways as well.

One could ask whether there is a dispute between the Minister in the other place and the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) in the House. Whatever the motivation, the Minister offered no explanation.

The NDP has a very clear and distinct reason for disagreeing with Motion No. 55 and for proposing Motion No. 56. We want the Canadian Wheat Board to be more powerful, and to be able to coordinate the transportation of grain through the system to the point of export, which in my riding is the Port of Vancouver. This means that they must be able to call out whichever type of grain is needed at a particular time, whether it be wheat, barley, oats, etc.

Regarding Motion No. 55, it simply says that the grain cars to which the Canadian Wheat Board now has title should be transferred in title to the Minister of Transport at his pleasure. These cars were purchased from the pool account maintained by the Wheat Board. That means they were purchased from the farmers' money. The amount of money distributed to farmers from the sale of their grain was reduced by the amount that it cost to buy these cars. To simply transfer the ownership of these cars to the Government without any recognition of this fact or the payment of any compensation would be, at the very least, an injustice. It really constitutes a special tax by the state on farmers. All the hoary traditions of British democracy, such as it is, militate against that sort of thing.

It could be pointed out that the question of Government spending on grain cars was itself a controvertial issue and spending by the Wheat Board for this purpose even more so. The argument, at the time, was why should others assume the burden of this capital cost that properly belongs to the railroad. However, the producers, knowing the job had to be done and faced with the intransigence of the railroads, made the investment. This, of course, was good for the country. Should they now be penalized for that? Should they be double-taxed? I believe that view was presented in committee.

I should like now to refer to a letter issued by a very famous statesman, the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin).

An Hon. Member: What?

Mrs. Mitchell: He appears to be an expert on this whole question. This Member has a valuable ability to produce a constant flow of information. I wish Members to my right could get on his mailing list.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: I already subscribe to the National Enquirer and all the joke books.

Mrs. Mitchell: In a letter to constituents he wrote:

> Greetings: I just reviewed some of the earlier letters that I sent to you, and I see that this October 4th I promised to explain, "next letter," the reason why it is so important to maintain the Wheat Board's control over the allocation of grain cars. The pressure of events here caused it to slip my mind.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: That was my reaction.

Mrs. Mitchell: Remembering the pressure of the event on that particular day I cannot help but smile a little, Mr. Speaker. I will continue:

> —it is very important that the Wheat Board retain control of the allocation of grain cars. As Justice Hall pointed out, the concentration of knowledge in the offices of the Wheat Board makes for a very efficient system of moving our grain to export position.
> This Bill would tamper with that and would do our country no good.

So said the Hon. Member for Regina West. As I understand this whole issue, Mr. Speaker, having the control of grain cars under the authority of the Wheat Board—and we are talking about control, not ownership—would make for a much more efficient system of moving grain to export as it is needed than we have had in the past. In the port of Vancouver, for example, one of the big concerns which we constantly have is that we look out at the English Bay and we see 10, sometimes 20 ships sitting there, moored in the outer harbour, from all over the Pacific rim. Of course, we know that the demurrage cost of keeping these ships moored while waiting for their cargo to be loaded, in this case, particular types of grain, is very costly. An unfortunate myth also is that people tend to blame the longshoremen for the fact that these ships are waiting in the port. As I understand it, very often it is the fact that there has not been an efficient grain transportation system for that particular type of grain which a particular ship wants for a particular country at a particular time. It is not there when that ship comes into port. As my hon. colleague says it can get worse if the system is not improved.

The whole marketing of the grain as I understand it, requires control over transportation. The movement of grain must be co-ordinated by the chief marketing agency, which is the Canadian Wheat Board. Therefore, the Wheat Board should allocate the cars according to the type of grain which is needed at a particular time for export; in this case, as I mentioned, the port of Vancouver. Cars must be delivered to coincide with shipping requests.

I recently visited the port of Vancouver in relation to this Bill. Many of the port officials, as well as the waterfront unions, were very concerned that the motion which the Conservatives brought in would make it very difficult for the port of Vancouver to maintain exports through the port. Many of these were going to be transferred to Seattle. I saw the whole process of moving grain from the grain cars through the wheat elevators to the ships. It is a very complicated system, indeed. I can appreciate as a lay person, Mr. Speaker, that it is extremely important that we improve the co-ordination of this whole system. As pointed out by my hon. colleagues, certainly with much more expertise than I, the best way to do this is through the Canadian Wheat Board.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I regret to interrupt the Hon. Member but the time allotted to her has expired. She may continue only with unanimous consent of the House. Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: There does not appear to be unanimous consent.

Mr. Bob Ogle (Saskatoon East): Mr. Speaker, as you are aware, at this moment we are discussing Motions Nos. 55 and 56, both of which have been proposed by the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). These motions have to do with a very important part of the whole Bill, as are all of the motions from my hon. colleague. In general, I would say that the whole debate from the very beginning until now has been that the New Democratic Party has insisted on continuing to try to protect the income of the prairie farmer and at the same time protect the control of the Canadian Wheat Board. Motion No. 55, to begin with, has been inserted into Clause 33 so that the clause would no longer read as it now stands but would read as follows:

Western Grain Transportation Act

The Minister may, on behalf of Her Majesty, acquire or lease railway cars for the purpose of moving grain and administer and control any railway cars so acquired or leased—

The amendment to be included is:

—for the purpose of moving grain—

And continuing:

—and the Minister shall take every reasonable initiative to ensure that an adequate supply of rolling stock will be provided for the efficient, reliable and effective movement of grain.

Those of us who grew up in the Prairies would naturally know that the movement of grain is extremely important. It is the very heart and life of the farming economy of the Prairies. Those of us who grew up in Prairie towns will know that the whole system of movement has improved a great deal over the last 25 or 30 years by a technology which has been brought in in the use of grain cars. These cars have been basically designed by the farmers themselves, by the railway companies and by the engineers. The original grain cars which were used to carry produce on the railroads, and which had originally been planned to carry all kinds of materials of any shape whatsoever, were the old square boxcars which had side doors. I can remember well as a young person at home when one or two cars would come into the local siding. The elevator operator would bring out a kind of special pry that they had for moving the car back and forth a few feet without the use of an engine. The next thing which would be necessary is that they would have to put inside the car door a wall which was made out of slab material. The grain had originally been shovelled in by the farmers. Later it would be piped in out of an elevator. However, the whole formation of the car was not made for the carrying of grain. It was a very inconvenient way of carrying grain. When it finally arrived at the port or elevator where it was to be dumped, the workers had to break that whole wall down which was holding the grain in the cars, and the lumber was just wasted. The Wheat Board bought the new steel cars which are now commonly seen carrying grain across the Prairies, although they are owned by the Government of Canada, as has been pointed out very clearly in the debate. The efficiency of putting grain from a prairie elevator into a car, moving it to the port and dumping it quickly, has been greatly improved with a new design. That is extremely important. It has been a great step forward. The particular amendment which we are talking about ensures that this control would remain with the Wheat Board which saw that it would have to have the proper kind of rolling stock to move the grain. My friend and colleague, the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight), has indicated that Hon. Members of the New Democratic Party were unnecessarily concerned about this and that we were wrong in the fact that we were saying that the Wheat Board owned the cars. Unfortunately, my friend was misinformed about our position because that is not true. We understand that the cars are owned by the Government of Canada. However, the important thing about the amendment is that the Canadian Wheat Board shall administer and control the use of the cars. That is where the very heart of the argument is.

The Canadian Wheat Board is the organization which has been set up by prairie farmers to be an agency which will protect, guide and direct the sale of grain from the moment it is collected at a certain point and shipped to the port at the time when it will be available to sell to a certain part of the world which needs that grain at that particular time. It is a long, complicated, intricate problem which has to be solved if the economy of western Canada is to continue to grow. That is why our amendment, Motion No. 55, which will be spoken about now, insists upon the fact that the Canadian Wheat Board shall administer and control the railroad cars, whether they be leased or owned.

I appreciate the fact that the former Minister of Transport would have liked to have had that power in his hands. That Minister of Transport and I were actually engaged in an election together and I know him quite well. The present Minister of Transport will, I believe, unfortunately meet the same fate as the Minister of Transport of whom I have spoken, the one I had the privilege to run against during an election. Probably one of the Hon. Members in the front row, the Hon. Member for Saskatoon West (Mr. Hnatyshyn), or the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) who plans to be the next Minister of Transport if that happens to be the fate of the country, will meet the same fate. On the Prairies, it is a very difficult and dangerous job to be the Minister of Transport and move the grain that makes the economy of that part of the world operate.

Again, I would say very clearly and specifically that the reason the Hon. Member for Regina West has proposed Motion No. 5 is that it clearly indicates that the Minister will not be taking over the control but that the control will be administered by the Canadian Wheat Board as it is now, so that we can be certain that those cars are in the right place at the right time because the people who want to move the grain at that particular time to the markets are calling for it.

Motion No. 56, also proposed by the Hon. Member for Regina West, is intended for the purpose of protecting the administration and the powers of the Canadian Wheat Board. The reason again, very simply put, is that this is the key to the whole system. The key to the system is who is in charge of the cars when they are needed and where they will be going with the product that is needed at port at that particular time.

I would just like to go on record, Mr. Speaker, along with my Party, as asking the Government and my colleagues on the Conservative side to support us in Motion No. 55 and Motion No. 56. We would like to make the point clearly and precisely that we want the control of cars to remain with the Wheat Board and not be transferred into the hands of the Minister. That transfer would create a whole new infrastructure of power and a whole new bureaucracy necessary to administer and control the system. As far as we are concerned, it would upset a system that is working properly at this time and should not be interfered with.

There will be plenty of problems down the road with this new Bill that is being pushed through the House. There will be plenty of difficulties, plenty of questions and plenty of regulations to be looked at without tampering with one that is so necessary and so much at the core of the matter as is the control of the transportation system and the cars. That control should remain with the Wheat Board. So, Mr. Speaker, I thank you for being allowed the opportunity to address this subject.

Mr. Ian Waddell (Vancouver-Kingsway): Mr. Speaker, my friend from Saskatchewan spoke this evening about the movement of grain. Mr. Speaker, the movement of grain is the core for our Canadian Prairies. It is very important to the life of people in Western Canada. The Member for Saskatoon-East (Mr. Ogle) spoke from experience and he spoke with a passion for the West; he knows Western Canada and we should listen to what he said.

Motion No. 55 is an amendment aimed at making a Bill more like the kind of legislation we are in favour of. We in the New Democratic Party are opposed to any changes in the Crow rate because that would mark the end of farmers in Western Canada. My colleagues from Manitoba and Saskatchewan have told me that farmers can not afford the new rate. Now I realize that Quebecers understand the need to preserve a culture. That is the problem here. We must preserve and conserve the culture of Western Canada.

I want to ask one question. Is it right for an anglophone Government to change the culture and life of the Province of Quebec without representation from Quebec? Here, the same thing is happening. A Government in Eastern Canada is proposing to change the culture of the West without any support from the people of Western Canada. I say it is not right. This evening, we of the New Democratic Party are proposing amendments. On this Bill, the Progressive Conservative Party on my right is not taking a strong position, no more than it has on any other issues in the House. It has no position at all on the Crow. We in the New Democratic Party said that the Crow must not change if we are to preserve the culture of Western Canada. And although I may not be very articulate in French, I must speak a few words of French to explain to Quebecers why this is so important to us in Western Canada. We hope that this amendment will help farmers in Western Canada. In it we are proposing that present system for moving grain, remain unchanged.

[English]

Let me conclude, Mr. Speaker, by saying that I tried to say as best I can in French that this in fact is a Government of the East without representation from the West that is making a fundamental change in the culture of the west. I do acknowledge that there is one Member over there who is from the West. I have a great deal of trouble understanding why in fact the Government is doing this without a great deal of representation and support from western groups.

Mr. Malone: No support.

Mr. Waddell: No support as far as I can see. As the Hon. Member for Saskatoon East (Mr. Ogle), who knows the Prairies much better than do I and much better than do a lot of Government Members, so eloquently put it, Motion No. 55 is simply a motion that would see that control of these cars and the movement of the cars remain with the Canadian Wheat Board so that cars can be in the right place at the right time for the movement of that grain. I think this amendment makes sense and I invite the Government to adopt it.

Mr. Simon de Jong (Regina East): Mr. Speaker, I thank you for allowing me the opportunity to enter into the debate on the motions that are now before us. These are motions which were introduced by my colleague, the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), Motions Nos. 55 and 56. The essential intent of these amendments is to preserve the position of the Canadian Wheat Board. As we stated earlier, many provisions in Bill C-155 attack the main tenets of western Canadian agriculture. We believe that it is an attack on the statutory Crow rate, obviously, and an attack on the Wheat Pools as well as the Canadian Wheat Board.

We have previously argued that the role of the Administrator and the Senior Grain Advisory Committee should not infringe on the job which the Wheat Board has been doing so well. The role of the Canadian Wheat Board has evolved from a lot of thought and consideration and experience which has gone into it. This bill, and particularly Clause 33, represents a further erosion of the powers and responsibility of the Canadian Wheat Board. That responsibility which is being transferred to the Senior Administrator is in essence under the control of the Minister and his Department.

I have stood here and pointed out on other occasions that the Department of Transport does not have a marvelous record and has made some major blunders in the past. I have cited such recent examples as the airports at Mirabel and Pickering as being major billion dollar estates made by the people in the Department of Transport.

We in Saskatchewan feel very unsure about giving more power to the Department of Transport over our lives in Saskatchewan. We simply do not trust the Department and certainly do not see any need for the functions of the Wheat Board to be transferred to the Administrator and, in essence, the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy).

The Wheat Board has done a tremendous job in serving western agriculture. It does this job without much money from the public purse. The Wheat Board exists entirely on what the producers pay into it. This means that when the Wheat Board sends a delegation to China, for instance, to negotiate a new grain agreement, they are not being paid by the Canadian taxpayer but by the farmers of western Canada. The Canadian Wheat Board has done extremely well selling grain and moving it without a cost to the Canadian taxpayer, yet this clause of the Bill shows that the Government is adamant about interfering in an area in which it has no competency at all.

I am somewhat surprised by the lack of position which some of my Conservative friends have taken today. That lack of position is quite different from the position they took in the committee. In fact, when I read the committee records, I discovered that what they said on that occasion is quite different from what they have been saying in the House. To be sure, they have not said very much about this particular amendment. After reading the minutes of the committee I was struck by the fact that the Conservatives were quite surprised that those hopper cars which were bought by the producers were not in fact owned by them but by the Canadian Government.

Let me quote as follows from the minutes of the committee hearing held on September 13, 1983, at page 132 : 58:

MR. MCKNIGHT: Mr. Chairman, is the assumption of about 150,000 grain producers in western Canada, that they own the cars because they paid for them, in fact a fallacy? Is that what you are saying?

MR. D. LEFEBVRE: To the best of our knowledge, that is right.

MR. MCKNIGHT: I think there are going to be a lot of people terribly disturbed about what you have just said, Mr. Lefebvre. I happen to be one of them, because I helped pay for them. So did Mr. Gustafson; so did Mr. Mayer; so did Mr. Althouse.

Later on Mr. Mayer says:

I guess, Mr. Chairman, that totally makes us a socialist country. Everything the Government has is its. I mean, everything we have is the Government's, and by the grace of the Government us poor peasants are allowed to keep whatever we can keep.

First, the Conservatives in this committee were very surprised to learn that the producers in fact did not own these cars that they had paid for. Second, they were quite outraged at this. In fact, the last quote I will read into the record is of the Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) who said:

MR. MAZANKOWSKI: Mr. Chairman, I would like to support this amendment.

That was the amendment introduced by my colleague from Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) that would have prevented the Government from taking over those cars which the producer had bought. He went on to say:

I just wonder what would have to occur since the cars are now owned by the Government of Canada. You would have to do some title switching here to ensure that they were not transferrable. Could you, Mr. Kroeger, or Mr. Lefebvre outline what steps would have to be taken to achieve the spirit of Mr. Benjamin's amendment?

MR. D. LEFEBVRE: I think the words he is suggesting, except those 2,000 or the railway cars purchased with that money, would keep it with the Wheat Board—

In other words, the Hon. Member for Pontiac-Gatineau-Labelle (Mr. Lefebvre) was saying that the amendment of the Member for Regina West would keep those cars in the control of the Wheat Board. Therefore, they would be in the control of the producers themselves.

That was the position taken by the Conservatives in the committee. I wonder what has happened since then? We have seen a lot of switches by our friends on the right.

Mr. Benjamin: More switches than the railways have.

Mr. de Jong: Indeed, I think he is quite right. On the one hand, the Conservatives in the committee were outraged. They wanted to change the situation and ensure that the title would not be switched to the Minister of Transport. However, from what we understand today, and interpret their remarks to be, they are quite prepared to see the title of these cars being transferred to the Minister of Transport. I am surprised that those Members, particularly the ones from Saskatchewan who should be protecting the role of the Canadian Wheat Board together with us, are quite willing to see the Canadian Wheat Board's role being diminished. If that is their position and the deal which they had to make in their own caucus at least to get the unified front, they should have the courage to stand in the House and be honest with us and to say exactly what their position is in terms of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member's time has expired.

Mr. Gurbin: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I think it is appropriate that tonight, just prior to twelve o'clock, the House recognized, along with other Canadians, that while we have been sitting for 13 hours now we are just coming to the end of Halloween day, which many Canadians have observed. I think the Chair might find some sympathy in the House if we agree to seek unanimous consent to waive notice to have pumpkins included in the preferential rates under the Crowsnest Pass Agreement.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Monday, October 31, 1983

The House continued its sitting.

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I think the Hon. Member who just spoke has shown that the Tories are in for tricks and treats. They have brought us into these extended hours because they want to show sincere concern for the producers of western Canada but at the same time, when we are only partially through all of the motions and amendments, we see a Member from the Conservative Party rising in the House asking that we close down debate on this very important issue for the people who represent constituencies in the West.

I intend being heard this evening, until we get through all of these motions, about the very serious nature of this Bill and the effect it can have on grain producers in the communities of western Canada. It shows that over the years the Liberals and the Tories have been exactly the same. One can look at the $50,000 a year contribution they each get from Canadian Pacific. It shows over many years, Mr. Speaker, that the Liberals and Tories are exactly the same whether you look at the $50,000 a year contribution which they each get from Canadian Pacific or whether we look back to the times of earlier elections, in the early 1800s.

I want to quote for the record from "A Record of the Conservative Administration 1878—1882" in preparation for an upcoming election campaign. Reference is made in the Toronto Telegram as follows:

> It is all very well for the chief organ of the Reform party to appeal to former friends to come to the rescue of the party now, and save it from annihilation.

This is the case here today. The quote continues:

> But in many quarters the appeal will not be met with a ready response. The organ has been abusing these people for years, and can hardly expect them to swallow all its abuse and meekly turn round and do its bidding. After the rout of September, 1878,—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. The Chair questions the relevance of the Hon. Member's quotation to the specific amendment before the House.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, it may not have been when you were very alert in the House this evening. I am speaking at twelve o'clock in the evening. I am quoting from a document which has a lot of relevance to the issue we are debating this evening. I think you should listen very closely. You can look at the "blues" tomorrow.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: With all due respect to the Hon. Member, the Chair is listening very closely indeed and having even greater difficulty in determining the relevance. Can the Hon. Member demonstrate how this question is relevant to the debate?

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I can hardly see how you can interrupt me during a quotation in a debate in this House before I have finished the quote.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. Will the Hon. Member please resume his seat. The Chair has an obligation in presiding over the House to call to the attention of Hon. Members the rule of relevance. It is perfectly in order for the Chair to call to the attention of Hon. Members the rule of relevance. It is perfectly in order for the Chair to do this and it has done for a number of Members this evening as the Chair does now for the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish). Will he please indicate the relevance of his quotation to the particular amendments before the House?

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, the relevance is that I am quoting from a book entitled "Facts for the Electors A Record of the Conservative Administration 1878-1882." Many of the facts in this booklet concern the program of the Conservative Party and its condemnation of the Liberal Opposition at that time. The facts that are contained in here had to do with the building of the rail system in Canada.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is not discussing the two specific amendments before the House. If the Hon. Member persists in being irrelevant, the Chair will have no alternative but to recognize another Hon. Member.

Mr. Peterson: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. On behalf of the good electorate of The Battlefords-Meadow Lake, to which my riding is twinned, I would like to support very much your call for decorum, your call for order, your call for relevancy tonight. We feel in The Battlefords-Meadow Lake it is the least we can expect in this House.

An Hon. Member: You were speaking for the only Liberal in The Battlefords-Meadow Lake.

Mr. Benjamin: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has invited the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake to indicate the relevance of the matters he is quoting to Motions Nos. 55 and 56, which are currently before the House at report stage of this Bill. Will the Hon. Member please indicate the relevance to these amendments?

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I hope this is not coming out of my ten minutes allotted time to debate this very important motion. But the relevancy and the bottom line of it is that people in Canada and the rail companies bought boxcars even back in the regime of 1878 to 1882, as they do now. Back in those days at least the rail companies purchased the cars to transport the commodities throughout the country, whereas now the rail companies do not buy the cars any more. I am sure you are aware of that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is making an historical point. The amendments before us are very specific, amendments Nos. 55 and 56. If the Hon. Member has not read the amendments before the House, the Chair is quite prepared to bring them to his attention to assist him in focusing his argument. But in fairness to the House, the Hon. Member is under some obligation to demonstrate how what happened a century or so ago is relevant to this specific amendment proposed by his Party at this point.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, the rail lines in Canada came into existence during this time. It was the era preceding the setting of the statutory rate which we are reviewing in this House now, a rate we view as our historic right. I do not see how you can—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is making general comments and is not dealing with specific amendments. The rule of the House is very clear. Hon. Members at report stage are invited to speak specifically to the amendments before the House. The Hon. Member refuses to do so. If the Hon. Member will not deal with the amendments, the Chair will have no alternative but to recognize another Hon. Member.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, it is a question of control over the rolling stock, over the boxcars and the hopper cars that should be under the control of the Canadian Wheat Board and are not now. I do not know how much more relevant I can be than to quote from a document which was the forerunner to the setting of the historic freight rate which the farmers, the producers in western Canada have appreciated for a long period of time and view as their right. Thus I referred to the document. I will not continue the quotation. I will accept your ruling. I also state that there are facts in that document from which I would like to quote that are relevant to this debate on Bill C-155. I would say with all due respect to you, Mr. Speaker, that I do not need to be told what the amendments are.

I represent an agricultural riding, where agriculture is the number one industry. The amendments we are debating here are both put forward by the New Democratic Party. The reason we put them forward is that the railway companies no longer buy boxcars or hopper cars. In fact, I am not sure which rail company it is, but the last time either the CNR or the CPR bought boxcars was in the early 1950s. The other company has not bought boxcars since the late 1940s, prior to this Member being born. It is no wonder that we are concerned that these amendments must be put in place. Who has bought the boxcars recently?

Mr. Benjamin: Hopper cars.

Mr. Anguish: Who has bought the cars for the movement of grain in western Canada? My colleague has just brought to my attention it is not boxcars but hopper cars. Of course, I know that. But hopper cars are fairly new on the scene, Mr. Speaker. We did not have hopper cars in 1951. But who bought those hopper cars?

First, the federal Government bought some hopper cars, not the rail companies in Canada. It sure was not the Conservatives under an administration of theirs that forced the railway companies to meet their obligations, nor under the Liberals. Both of those Parties have been negligent; a curse on both their houses. The taxpayers of Canada purchased those hopper cars. More hopper cars were purchased. The Government of Saskatchewan purchased some hopper cars. The Government of Alberta purchased some hopper cars because it knew the vital interests that farmers played in the economies of those Provinces. They bought those hopper cars so the producers could move their grain to markets, to ports, because the rail companies failed to meet their obligations.

There is a third group which has purchased hopper cars in recent years. This is the real thrust of our amendment. The people who have purchased those hopper cars are the producers themselves through the Canadian Wheat Board. The Canadian Wheat Board purchased the cars because they thought that if the producers at least purchased their own cars, the rail companies would have a great deal more obligation to haul the grain out to markets where it could be sold. But it has not seemed to work that way.

The Conservatives did not do anything when they were in power to ensure that the grain would move better. The Liberals have not done anything to ensure that grain will move better now that they are in government. Even if the two of them together formed a coalition tomorrow, which they should because they are the same Party, I doubt whether the two minds coming together could move the grain any better than it moves at the present time, Mr. Speaker.

The thrust of our amendment, Motions Nos. 55 and 56 to Bill C-155, first is to give control over railroad grain cars and the allocation of them to the Canadian Wheat Board. If they have the responsibility to deliver that grain to the ports, as the farmers really do because they produce it and the Wheat Board orders it, they must also have the authority to make sure that those cars are in place when the farmers need them to move their grain to where it should be located, or to its final destination.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair hesitates to interrupt the Hon. Member. He was allowed three and a half minutes extra for the interruptions and he has had a fair allocation of time. The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom).

[Translation]

Mr. Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville): Mr. Speaker, we now have Motions Nos. 55 and 56, proposed by the Member for Regina-West (Mr. Benjamin), and these two motions are very important to us in Western Canada because according to Bill C-155 and Clause 33, the federal Government, by regulation, has given considerable powers to the Administrator over the future of this Committee.

Mr. Speaker, in Clause 33, sub-clauses (4) and (5), it is said, and I quote:

Where the Administrator administers and controls any railway cars at the direction of the Minister, the Administrator may enter into agreements with the railway companies respecting the operation of the railway cars, subject to any agreements respecting such operation that have been entered into by the Minister.

Mr. Speaker, it has often been said in this debate that it was very important to Western Canada to have, with the Canadian Wheat Board, the power to organize the grain transportation system in Western Canada, to organize transportation systems because this will be a very important factor. And last summer, more specifically in September, Mr. Jarvis, Chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board, appeared before the Special Committee dealing with this legislation and made the following statement, and I quote: "The Canadian Wheat Board, like any other sales organization, must control shipment of its own product in order to ensure performance. For these reasons the board has always held the view that overall control of the system, as it is developed in co-ordination with the total of the grain industry, should be administered by the board."

Mr. Speaker, it is clear that Mr. Jarvis, as Chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board, must see that the administration and control over the grain transportation system rest with the Canadian Wheat Board.

But if we have a bill as well as a section such as Section 33, there is not much difference, for the Administrator must exercice many powers over the allocation of railway cars.

Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, Canada has given the CPR a lot of money since 1881.

I have here some very important figures taken from the CP Rail and CN annual reports showing that we gave CP Rail direct subsidies totalling $13.5 million in 1982 dollars. For example, in 1960, we provided a direct subsidy of $12.9 million; in 1961, a subsidy of $32.3 million. Mr. Speaker, this is the reason why the government should have more powers over CP Rail, because for many years now, we have been most generous for railway companies.

I remember quite well that during the election campaign, CP Rail gave huge amounts not only to the Liberal Party but also to the Progressive Conservative Party. The Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) who is here tonight has surely received a lot of money from CP Rail for his campaign. I am sure that his federal party received a lot of money. However, it is a good investment for CP Rail, Mr. Speaker, because the company received $31.6 million from the federal government in 1963 and $31.9 million in 1964. In 1965, $37.8 million from the Canadian Government; in 1967, $52.2 million from the Canadian Government. Mr. Speaker, I am shocked because the money we have given to the railways came from the pockets of my constituents, farmers, workers, small business employees and what not.

And it goes on and on. In 1968, $38.7 million were paid to CP Rail. In 1970, $27.8 million were paid to CP Rail. In 1971, still under a Liberal Government: $32.0 million; in 1972, $35.5 million; in 1973, $54.9 million; in 1974, $61.1 million; in 1975, $93 million; in 1976, $84.6 million. But from 1977 on, we went over the $100 million mark: $112.8 million went to CP Rail in this country.

Mr. Speaker, this is quite a big handout. We have been playing Santa Claus for a long time to CP Rail. This is why CP Rail must have this change to the Crow rate. In 1978, another very large increase, we once again went over the $100 million mark to $129.1 million. In 1979, $186 million were paid in grants to CP Rail. That was under a Progressive Conservative Government, not a Liberal one, headed by the Honourable Joe Clark as Prime Minister, and the same thing happened again, a huge grant was awarded to CP Rail. Perhaps it comes to the same thing.

But three years ago, in 1980, we spent $200 million, a massive grant of $221.6 million, and in 1981, $232.7 million.

Mr. Speaker, no doubt you now understand why CP Rail is very supportive of the Liberal Government in this country, because they will change the Crow rate. This is good for CP Rail. It has been getting a lot of money coming from the taxpayers in your constituency of Ottawa West, in my constituency of Yorkton-Melville, in Vancouver-Kingsway and from everywhere else in this land of ours.

That is why I have decided, or rather we in the New Democratic Party have decided to fight every inch of the way against the Government of Mr. Trudeau and the Progressive Conservative Party to stop the movement aimed at doing away with the Crow rate. Mr. Speaker, that is why I hope that the Progressive Conservative Members and the Liberal Members will join us and support Motions Nos. 55 and 56 in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin).

I should like to point out another thing, namely that the Canadian Wheat Board is very important for the producer in Western Canada. It is very important to have an organization like that, a collective organization for Western farmers similar to a union for workers, or a medical association for physicians, or an association for lawyers. It is very important for the farmers. I remember quite well when I was a little boy and my grandfather spoke about the time here in Canada when we had a wheat board and only the Winnipeg Exchange, the Chicago Exchange, the Richardson Grain Exchange and others where the price of grain, the price of wheat and the price of other commodities were set by a few capitalists throughout the world.

[English]

Mr. Taylor: Mr. Speaker, I would like to raise a serious point of order if I could have about two minutes. It has been over two hours since we commenced the debate on Motions Nos. 55 and 56. That means that we are using one hour per amendment. There are 174 amendments on the Order Paper, of which we have considered 56. That leaves 118 amendments remaining. If we divide 24 hours into 118 motions, it comes to five full days. In other words, we will require ten full days to complete the debate. I suggest we are not being fair to Canadians when we spend all this time on one or two amendments. Surely Hon. Members can get to the point in a reasonable amount of time so that we can cover all amendments. If we do not accomplish that, the New Democratic Party will be just as guilty as was the Liberal Party in bringing in time allocation, because it is stopping us from debating some very important motions.

Mr. Waddell: A point of order.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, I rise on the same point of order. I think the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor) made an excellent point. However, why did his party waste a whole day preventing debate on Bill C-155 by presenting petitions which could have been tabled?

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. Hon. Members are not making points of order.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on the point of order raised by the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor). I sympathize with him. We are not moving swiftly through the amendments, but they are very controversial matters. Adequate time has to be taken to deal with them. I am hopeful that by tomorrow, Wednesday or Thursday we will have reached the amendment in which he is particularly interested, but in the meantime he has to show some patience.

Mr. Waddell: I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has heard a number of interventions which were not really points of order. If the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell) really has a point of order, the Chair will hear it.

Mr. Waddell: Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak to the last point of Order so that Your Honour can rule on it. It seems to me—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has ruled that no one has really raised a point of order. The Chair has listened patiently to Hon. Members, but it is convinced that no points of order were raised. If the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway has a point of order, the Chair will hear it.

The Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake (Mr. Sargeant).

Mr. Terry Sargeant (Selkirk-Interlake): Mr. Speaker, you did not say that with any great deal of enthusiasm.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: It is a little late in the day. The Chair does its best. The Hon. Member has been recognized.

Mr. Sargeant: I am well aware of that. I will do my best as well. I welcome the opportunity to speak once again on a group of amendments to this very important piece of legislation before the House of Commons.

Mr. Taylor: You don't have to tell us ten more times; you have already done it 20 times now.

Mr. Sargeant: I especially thank Hon. Members of the Conservative Party for providing me with an opportunity to rise at 12.30 in the morning of November 1 and debate this piece of legislation. I point out, however, to the Hon. Member from dinosaur that we in the New Democratic Party are not especially greedy. If they want to take their turn at debating the legislation—

Mr. Taylor: We do not want an opportunity to say the same thing over and over.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. The Chair has recognized the Hon. Member for the purpose of debate on Motions Nos. 55 and 56. I draw the attention of Hon. Members to the fact that this is report stage and that debate should be strictly relevant to the motions before the House.

Mr. Sargeant: Mr. Speaker, if you could keep this gaggle of geese over here quiet, I could deal with the amendments before the House.

Mr. Forrestall: Get your hands out of your pockets and stand up straight when you speak to the Chair.

Mr. Sargeant: We are debating Motions Nos. 55 and 56 which have been moved by the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). Motion No. 55 reads in part:

> That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 33 by striking out lines 11 to 43 at page 16 and substituting the following therefor;
> "for the purpose of moving grain and the Minister shall take every reasonable initiative to ensure that an adequate supply of rolling stock will be provided for the efficient, reliable and effective movement of grain.

It is time the Government got around to requiring the railways, or indeed some agency in the country, to live up to the mandate of moving grain for the benefit of producers and farmers.

I am not an expert on farm issues. I did not grow up on a farm. The town in which I grew up and still live in is not really a farming community. There are some farmers in the surrounding area, but its main source of income was for many years a Canadian Air Force base and a large fishing industry. I did not grow up with farming in my blood as have some of my friends in the House. However, I represent a constituency with a good number of farmers. In fact, some parts of it have a number of grain farmers, many of whom are concerned about this piece of legislation. One thing I learned before getting into politics and realizing where events were taking me and that I would have to apprise myself of the concerns of the Selkirk-Interlake constituency was that for many years the railways in this country had been allowed effectively to break the law. As was poined out in debate earlier by the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish), the railways have not bought any new rolling stock since the late forties or early fifties. Under Article 262 of the Railway Act, they are required to provide adequate rolling stock. They are required to provide boxcars, engines, etc. to be able to move grain effectively to the ports of this country. They have not done that for many years.

For the last 15 or 20 years, the Government of Canada has been buying hopper cars. In recent years, farmers have been buying them through their pools. In more recent years, we have seen the Governments of Saskatchewan and Alberta buying rolling stock because the railways refused to do it.

I listened to the radio show "Morningside" this morning. A professor from the University of Manitoba was talking with Peter Gzowski about the Crow issue. He put it very well, to my mind. He said that the railways had in effect been on strike. For a number of years they simply refused to live up to their obligations and to honour their contract to move grain to port. We are finally, in this piece of legislation, calling on the Minister to take every reasonable initiative to ensure that an adequate supply of rolling stock will be provided. This has been the law for these many years.

The amendment carries on to say that the Canadian Wheat Board shall administer and control any rail cars acquired or leased by the Board. Over the last few days when we have been debating these amendments most Members of this Party have pointed out that it is absolutely essential for the Canadian Wheat Board to have control of the entire grain handling system. It simply does not make any sense not to have this control. We debated earlier an amendment about the powers that will be given to the Administrator of the grain transportation authority. At that time Members in this corner of the House expressed their amazement and puzzlement at why the Government would want to take power away from the Wheat Board or why it would want to put yet another regulatory step in the whole process of moving grain.

After all, is it not the Wheat Board that is familiar with the system? Is it not the Wheat Board that makes the sales, knows where the grain is needed, when it is needed at such and such a point and where it is located when it comes into the elevators? Is it not the Wheat Board that is familiar with the grades and what grade is needed where, at which port and at what time?

Why do we want to break down a system that has been working very well in this country for years? There is no denying that the Wheat Board played a very important and major role in western Canada. Why do we want to break it down?

In Motion No. 56, we talked about removing the ability to transfer the administration and control from the Wheat Board to the Minister of Transport. This provision of the Bill causes a great deal of concern. For years farmers have learned to look at various Ministers of Transport with less than complete trust. They have seen Ministers of Transport who have diminished the authority and effect of the Canadian Wheat Board. Many years ago we had a Minister in the Diefenbaker Conservative Government who took domestic feed grains away from the Wheat Board. This process was continued until a former Liberal Minister of Transport, to whom the Hon. Member for Saskatoon East (Mr. Ogle) earlier referred and had the great pleasure of defeating in 1979, diminished the power of the Wheat Board and its effect on the Prairies.

We heard from the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) who for a period of time was Minister of Transport. He is now a great defender of the Crow rate. In the few months that he was in power, he started to put into process the very moves we are now going through. He started to put steps into place that would have led to the scrapping on the Crowsnest Pass freight rates, probably much earlier than we are dealing with them today.

The Minister of Transport before this Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) when visiting western Canada promised he would not move on the Crowsnest Pass freight rates until such time as there was a consensus on the Prairies. The committee found out this summer when it travelled across the Prairies that there is anything but consensus on how the changes should be made.

The successive Ministers have all betrayed the trust of farmers. Now we want to move the control and administration of grain cars away from the Wheat Board, the body that farmers have learned to trust over the half century that it has been in existence, and move it into the office of the Minister of Transport. I do not want to cast any aspersions on the present or any future occupant of that office, but farmers with good cause—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. I regret to interrupt the Hon. Member, but the time allotted to him has expired.

Mr. Sargeant: I have an absolutely brilliant speech to carry on, if the House will agree.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member has already been given an extension beyond the ten minutes normally permitted.

Mr. Sid Parker (Kootenay East-Revelstoke): Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to speak to Motions Nos. 55 and 56 to amend Clause 33. Railroaders call this hour of the night the graveyard shift. That is exactly what it is. I am pleased to be here to speak to this amendment to the Bill because it goes to the very root of what this legislation is about.

The original Crow's Nest Agreement stated that the railways would supply the equipment, cars and rolling stock for the handling of grain. That was not done. Throughout the years, the railways kept getting out and getting the Government more involved in putting in the money. The Government has put literally hundreds of millions of dollars into rolling stock. It has now started leasing it out. The railways have gone to the Government asking it to release those cars from the Wheat Board and the pools which are leasing to it and have this looked after by the Minister. What a set up! We have the Minister dancing to the tune of the railways, using the taxpayers' money to build equipment and lease it. The Government now has the gall, when it is going to change the Crowsnest Agreement, to say it should be taken away from the Wheat Board and other groups which lease it and put under the control of the Minister.

We in the New Democratic Party know exactly what is going on. While the Conservatives sit here and take their $50,000 in donations a year from Canadian Pacific and the Liberals take theirs, they are allowing these kinds of things to take place. They have had 14 speakers this evening and we have had 21, yet their House Leader calls them the Official Opposition.

I want to go on with what is happening with this railway equipment. I worked for the railways for over 35 years and I know how the system works. I know how they had the Canadian taxpayers build new cars to supply their demands which they would not live up to. They also had literally hundreds of millions of dollars to upgrade their own equipment, and this was done in a shabby way, not really having done what was supposed to be done to meet the needs. The Wheat Pools and the Government of Canada had to come into the system and start building the cars in order that the demands could be met.

In my riding of Kootenay East-Revelstoke, CP Rail signed an agreement with a Japanese company for the sale of coal. How quickly they obtained their equipment and rolling stock and got ready to meet that demand because it suited their needs and their profits! We in this Party realize there is more to Canada than just shipping coal and lumber. Grain is a very important part of our economy, and the purpose of this Bill is to ensure that the administration of these cars will come under the Wheat Board.

If it ever gets to the point where the Minister handles it and administers it, what is to stop the railways from leaving the cars on sidings for weeks on end and then coming back to the Government and saying that they need more cars? I guess the Government of Canada will have to build more cars. When is this going to stop?

If we are speaking about legislation that is going to have some impact on the shipment of grains in Canada, then we must have the group involved in the sale of wheat and the production of grain and other commodities onstream and able to administer. They must have the authority to carry out their plans to meet their needs at very specific times.

The Conservative Party sits there with its one hundred and some Members, and only 14 of its Members showed concern for the farmers. Early in 1982 I was a Member of the Transport Committee which travelled across Canada. We heard the concerns of many of the farmers with regard to the allocation of cars. The former Progressive Conservative Minister of Transport, the Hon. Member for Vegreville, was there. He openly bragged about the cars and the equipment that he had made available for grain transportation during his administration. His administration lasted exactly nine months, but he talked about all the boxcars that he had built and the equipment that he had upgraded in order to meet the needs of the grain farmer. It takes a lot longer than nine months to carry out that kind of program, build that equipment and get the various groups involved. The ones who took the initiative were not in the Conservative Party. It was the grain growers, the Wheat Board and the Wheat Pools. They realized what had to be done and took the initiative to ensure that it was done. Therefore, for them to try to take that kind of credit is shameful.

For us to be discussing the leasing of this equipment which will be taken away from the control of the Wheat Board and put into the hands of the Minister is absolutely ludicrous. We on this side know that these amendments will not have a chance to be properly discussed, let alone voted on by the Liberals. They have told us there will not be any more amendments passed. These amendments are not going to pass because the Liberals have already made their sweetheart deal with the railway systems in Canada. We have to be able to speak about this. For that reason I am pleased we have had some extra hours so that we could speak on each one of these clauses and about these amendments. It is important to get it on the record to show exactly who is fighting for the Canadian farmers and the Canadian people. If we do not do that and allow this kind of legislation to go through we will find the prairie farmers going bankrupt five to seven years in the future, and we will see the Government of that day coming to the House looking for help for the farmers. After giving it all to the railways the Government will return five years from now to say that it needs help for the farmers. The taxpayers of Canada will have to provide the extra money to help the farmers. We will see the old see-saw back and forth between the railroads and the Wheat Board.

This is very serious legislation. No Member should say that we should not be debating it. The amendments go to the very root of what is being discussed in the House. Each of these amendments is very important to our Party and we will make sure that everyone in the country knows exactly what is happening.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. Would the Hon. Member allow a question?

Mr. Parker: I would be happy to.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member has a minute and a half for the question. The Hon. Member for Saskatoon West (Mr. Hnatyshyn).

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Before asking the question I should say that I was quite impressed by the enthusiasm with which the Hon. Member addressed this issue and I welcome him to the debate which has taken place. In view of the fact that he has strenuously put forward his personal position with respect to this legislation, and has done so with force and effect in the debate on this occasion, and in view of his great interest in this legislation, would he explain why he attended none of the hearings of the Transport Committee when we spent the whole summer considering this legislation, or is it that he just wants to come in the middle of the night to make a speech and then go back to bed?

Mr. Deans: That was very, very clever.

Mr. Parker: Mr. Speaker, I assure you that I have no intention of going back to bed. I also want to answer his question. The fact of the matter is that I travelled with the Transport Committee across Canada in 1982 for over two and one-half weeks going to such places as Regina—

Mr. McKnight: Not 1982.

Mr. Parker: I said in 1982. We went to such places as Regina, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Vancouver and Prince Rupert. That is where I spent my summer of 1982.

I want to say that I had full confidence in our Members that sat on that committee and I have been briefed on everything that took place.

Mr. Jesse P. Flis (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, I had no intention of taking part in this debate on Motion No. 55 and Motion No. 56.

Mr. Deans: That is quite obvious.

Mr. Flis: But since the Hon. Member did take part in this debate specifically on these two amendements, I would like to take a few minutes to draw to the attention of the House what the committee heard when it was in British Columbia.

There was a group of mayors who appeared before the committee. One mayor, Mr. Colgur, had this to say and I would like to quote him. The Chairman said:

Yes, I think it is fair that you should have an opportunity to respond, Mayor Colgur.

MAYOR COLGUR: Mr. Chairman, I think it is necessary, because the member of the committee has distorted the question and the comment I made.

What I said, Mr. Chairman, is that our Member of Parliament, Sid Parker, has not fully represented our position. He has been—he has had representation made to him by all of the Mayors and Councils that you see sitting before you from the southeast today. He has chosen to present in the House, on the other hand, petitions on behalf of two or three farming groups—

Mr. Anguish: A point of order.

Mr. Flis:

—in the Province of Saskatchewan—

Mr. Anguish: A point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member resume his seat. The Chair was about to call the attention of the Parliamentary Secretary to the rule of relevance. Again, the Chair is having difficulty relating the Hon. Parliamentary Secretary's remarks to amendments No. 55 and No. 56 which are before the House.

Mr. Waddell: On a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member first allow the Hon. Parliamentary Secretary to respond to the charge of being irrelevant which the Chair has made.

Mr. Flis: I think it is very relevant, Mr. Speaker, because it is important what constituents have to say on this Bill, and specifically Motion No. 55 and Motion No. 56.

Mr. Parker: A point of order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Flis: The mayor went on to say—

Mr. Parker: A point of order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Flis:

He has chosen to present in the House—

Mr. Anguish: A point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: If the Hon. Member will be a little more polite, he will be recognized. The Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish).

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I have been very patient and have tried to be as polite as I can with you this evening.

Some Hon. Members: Order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member resume his seat, please. I am quite prepared to recognize the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell) on a point of order.

Mr. Waddell: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a similar point of order. I believe there is a parliamentary rule which says that we cannot question the right of a Member to represent his riding. I think this is not only irrelevant but it questions the fact of the Member representing the views of his constituents. That is unparliamentary and out of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is quoting a document. The Chair is trying to understand how the document relates to the debate. That is the first problem. If Hon. Members will just bear with the Chair, it will try to resolve that.

If relevance is not established, the same rules will apply to the Parliamentary Secretary as they will to any other Member of the House.

Mr. Parker: A point of order.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, all I am doing is quoting from the minutes of the committee.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member says that he is quoting from what?

Mr. Parker: A point of order.

Mr. Flis: From the minutes of the Transport Committee.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is quoting from the minutes of the Committee on Transport. The Hon. Member for Kootenay East-Revelstoke (Mr. Parker) says a point of order.

Mr. Parker: Mr. Speaker, the Member has quoted my name when reading, and that is my point of order. I suggest he should have recognized me as the Member for Kootenay East-Revelstoke.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: This has always been a difficult problem in the House when a committee report or document of the House is quoted in which a specific reference is made by name. The Chair is not prepared to recognize that as a point of order at this time. It is a grey area that creates problems for the Chair.

At this point the Chair would like to hear the rest of the statement of the Hon. Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Transport (Mr. Flis), bearing in mind the admonition that his comments must be relevant to Motions No. 55 and No. 56.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, I am quoting from page 117:176 of the minutes of the Transport Committee. We spent all summer on this Bill. This is a direct quote from the minutes of the committee, and this mayor went on to say:

He has chosen to present in the House, on the other hand, petitions on behalf of two or three farming groups in the Province of Saskatchewan, rather than represent the position of his constituents.

Mr. Deans: A point of order.

Mr. Flis:

That is our concern, Mr. Chairman. We are therefore not at all assured by our member's representation—

Mr. Deans: A point of order.

Mr. Flis:

—that our view will be heard—

Some Hon. Members: Order.

Some Hon. Members: A point of order.

Mr. Deans: A point of order.

Mr. Flis:

—and that, Mr. Chairman, is why we are here today.

Meaning the mayors of B.C.

Some Hon. Members: Order.

Mr. Deans: Order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) rises on a point of order.

Mr. Deans: I certainly do, Mr. Speaker. You asked the Member to indicate the relevance of the minutes that he was quoting to the particular amendment we have before us. I now challenge the Member to indicate whether or not the mayor was specifically referring to the allocation of coal cars during that particular intervention. If he did not and if he was not, then I demand that the Member withdraw what he has said.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain is not making any point other than that which the Chair has made. The Chair is trying carefully to follow the remarks of the Parliamentary Secretary in terms of relevance. The Chair can only do this if Hon. Members will at least give the Chair the opportunity of listening, just as Hon. Members extend to Members of the group at the far end the opportunity of speaking so that we can come to some understanding as to whether or not they are relevant.

There appears to be some reluctance to hear the Parliamentary Secretary. The Chair would like to hear a little more on the matter raised by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain about relevance.

Mr. Waddell: Let him put it on the record.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member from British Columbia was representing the views of British Columbians on this Bill and on any amendments or motions that pertain to any attempt to change this Bill or improve it.

Mr. Deans: He was not.

Mr. Flis: How relevant can you get? We heard the Hon. Member for Kootenay East-Revelstoke (Mr. Parker) posing to represent the views of Canadians in British Columbia on this Bill and on all of the amendments that were discussed.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Do these relate to Motion No. 55 and Motion No. 56?

Mr. Flis: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I am just remarking on the comments made by the Hon. Member on Motion No. 55 and Motion No. 56.

Mr. Deans: That is not true.

Mr. Flis: I am commenting on what he said. I will leave the minutes since this seems to have hit a soft spot.

Mr. Deans: No, it hasn't.

Mr. Flis: I will go on to quote a headline from letters to the editor in The Daily Townsman of Friday, June 10. It is under the heading—

Mr. Waddell: A point of order. He is out of order.

Mr. Anguish: A point of order.

Mr. Parker: A point of order.

Mr. Flis: It is under the heading "Parker's position on Crow Reflects outdated thought".

Mr. Waddell: Order.

Mr. Anguish: A point of order.

Mr. Deans: A point of order.

Mr. Flis: This is the problem with the position of the NDP.

Mr. Deans: A point of order.

Mr. Flis: Their whole position—

Mr. Deans: Are you deaf?

Some Hon. Members: Order.

Mr. Flis: —reflects outdated thought. There are other mayors. There is the union of British Columbia Municipalities—

Some Hon. Members: Order.

Mr. Flis: They made a resolution.

Mr. Deans: A point of order.

Mr. Flis: That resolution reads as follows—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has listened—

Mr. Deans: A point of order.

Mr. Anguish: One way for the Liberals; one way for the rest.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will Hon. Member please be seated.

Mr. Deans: I am not sitting down. You cannot sit there and ignore us. Who the hell do you think you are? Take your seat. You cannot allow this kind of garbage. Who do you think you are, Francis.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member please be seated?

Mr. Deans: No. I have been on my feet for two minutes asking for a point of order and you have damned well refused to listen. You sit down.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member please be seated.

Mr. Deans: I bloody well will not sit down. Who do you think you are? You cannot allow this garbage to take place. You may think you are God up there but you are not.

Mr. Anguish: Withdraw, Speaker.

Mr. Deans: I rose on a point of order and by God I will be heard.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) be seated.

Mr. Deans: I will be heard on this point of order. Don't pussyfoot around.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member please be seated.

Mr. Deans: I will be heard.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain please be seated?

Mr. Deans: No. I have been attempting to gain the floor on a point of order and you ignored me intentionally.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain please be seated.

Mr. Deans: No. I have been rising on a point of order. I will be recognized.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain please be seated?

Mr. Anguish: He has a right.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Mr. Deans, I have to name you for disregarding the authority of the Chair.

Mr. Deans: Well, you bloody well go right ahead. But you are going to have a problem. You cannot ignore me when I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I invite the Hon. Member to withdraw from this place.

Mr. Deans: No.

Some Hon. Members: Shame!

[Translation]

Hon. Yvon Pinard (President of the Privy Council): Mr. Speaker, pursuant to parliamentary practice, I move, seconded by the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy):

That the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) be expelled from the House for the remainder of this sitting.

● (0100)

[English]

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is it the pleasure of the House to adopt the said motion?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those in favour please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those opposed please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In my opinion the yeas have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Call in the Members.

● (0130)

And the bells having been rung:

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I am sure you will be aware that Citation 25(2) of Beauchesne's

Fifth Edition indicates that prior to the House making its judgment I am entitled to make a statement. I wish to exercise that right now, with the approval of the Chair, of course.

I regret the episode which occurred this evening. I regret it most profoundly. I have been a Member of the legislature of the Province of Ontario and a Member of Parliament for a total of almost 17 years. Never in my time as a Member representing the people of Hamilton have I been expelled from either of the two Chambers.

I rose on a point of order. It is my understanding from reading the rules that a Member is entitled so to do. Also it is my understanding from reading the rules that it is the requirement of the Chair to recognize a Member rising on a point of order. That did not happen. I want to apologize to you in advance for what occurred, but I believed at the time—and I still believe—it was within my right to request the floor on a point of order, and I was not given the floor according to the rules of Parliament.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the fact that my colleague, the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) is apologizing and taking this opportunity to explain himself. However, I do feel that if we are to comply with the rules of parliamentary procedure, we have no other choice but to proceed with a vote, because the explanation he has just furnished, in accordance with paragraph 25.2 of Beauchesne, indicates clearly that this must be done before I can present my motion. Paragraph (3) reads as follows and I quote:

If the Member satisfies the House by an apology, no further action is necessary. If the Member's statement is insufficient, it is the duty of the Government House Leader to present a motion proposing a suitable penalty.

It would therefore seem that these explanations should have been supplied immediately after the Hon. Member was named by the Speaker.

Therefore, I think that it is a noble gesture on his part to provide an explanation and to apologize. However, from a procedural standpoint, I think that, regrettably, we have no other alternative but to proceed with the vote.

The House divided on the motion (Mr. Pinard) which was agreed to on the following division:

[English]

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I declare the motion carried. I have to direct the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) to withdraw in compliance with the order that the House has just made.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

And Mr. Deans having withdrawn:

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, I want to rise on the same point of order as the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). I want you to consider four different citations, if you will be so kind as to do so, from Beauchesne's Fifth Edition. They are Citations 233(1), 233(2), 235, 237 and 239(1). I would like to take one moment to elaborate. If you look at Beauchesne's Fifth Edition, you will find that Citation 233(1) reads:

Points of order are questions raised with the view of calling attention to any departure from the Standing Orders or the customary modes of proceeding in debate or in the conduct of legislative business and may be raised at virtually any time by any Member, whether he has previously spoken or not.

(2) A question of order concerns the interpretation to be put upon the rules of procedure and is a matter for the Speaker or, in a committee, for the Chairman to determine.

I think the person has to be heard before determination can be made. Second, I refer to the Chair to Citation 235 of Beauchesne. I quote part of the citation:

Any Member is entitled, even bound, to bring to the Speaker's immediate notice any instance of what he considers a breach of order. He may interrupt and lay the point in question precisely before the Speaker. He should do so as soon as he perceives an irregularity in the proceedings which are engaging the attention of the House.

In rapid conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I want to refer Citation 237 of Beauchesne's. I quote:

A point of order—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order please. The Hon. Member was recognized for the purpose of debate. He is raising a point of order. The Chair would ask the Hon. Member if his point of order relates to the proceedings that have just been completed in this House.

Mr. Nystrom: No.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: If it does not, then the Hon. Member certainly has permission to proceed. The Chair is having difficulty grasping just what is the purpose of the Hon. Member's point of order. Which point of order is he making?

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, I am rising on the same point of order as the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). I refer you to two citations of Beauchesne's.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is not permitted to reflect on a decision of the House or a decision of the Chair. Is that what the Hon. Member is doing at this time? He appears to be reflecting on a decision of the Chair and a decision of the House. That is not in order. I will hear the Hon. Member out.

Mr. Murphy: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Only one point of order can be entertained at a time. The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom) is being heard on a point of order. The Hon. Member for Churchill (Mr. Murphy) must realize that he cannot interrupt on another point of order. The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville cannot raise the same matter which the House has just decided.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, I refer you, then, to Citation 239(1) of Beauchesne's which reads:

The Speaker decides questions of order only when they actually arise and not in anticipation.

I suggest, with great deference, that you cannot anticipate—

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: If the Hon. Member is reflecting on a decision of the Chair—The Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) has made an intervention? I hope I did not hear it right.

Mr. Benjamin: I was not on my feet.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom) must realize that he cannot reflect upon a decision of the Chair. He was recognized for the purpose of debate. He made reference to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans)—

An Hon. Member: Oh.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All right, the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, the Parliamentary Secretary had the floor. He was making a speech before he was interrupted by the proceedings which took place in the House in the last hour or so. I am now trying to make the same point of order that the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) wanted to make but was unable to make. I want to make sure that I can make that point of order and that is why I am quoting citations of Beauchesne for your consideration. Citation 239 states that one cannot anticipate what I am going to say.

To get back to the argument I was making, Citation 237 reads:

A point of order against procedure must be raised promptly and before the question has passed to a stage at which the objection would be out of place.

I think that these four citations to which I have referred you, and with some research and a bit more time I could surely give you more citations and more precedents, should convince you as to why I should be recognized at this time for a point of order. My point of order and the point of order of the Hon. Member from Hamilton Mountain, if he were recognized, was going to concern the speech that the Parliamentary Secretary was in the process of making. He was making a speech in this House on Motions Nos. 55 and 56. What the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain wanted to do was to make a point of order under the citations of Beauchesne—the Standing Orders of our rule book—suggesting that the speech he was making was not relevant to the motions before the House. Since he was not allowed to make the argument, I want at this time to make the argument that the remarks that he was making were not relevant.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: With all due respect to the Hon. Member, the Chair was attempting to establish relevance. The Chair had called the attention of the Hon. Parliamentary Secretary to the question of relevance, as the Hansard record will show, and the Chair was doing its very best to determine relevance. The problem the Chair had was the constant interruptions and, therefore, the Chair could not hear what the Parlaimentary Secretary was saying.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The question or relevance has been raised many times in the debate regarding statements by Member of the Party to which the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville belongs. The Chair in every case listened, and listened attentively, with regard to relevance. In the case of the Parliamentary Secretary, the Chair had the greatest difficulty. At a point which the Chair considered absolutely crucial in the argument, it was almost physically impossible for the Chair to hear.

Therefore, with the greatest respect to the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville, the Chair is quite prepared to rule on a question of relevance of any speech. It is not an easy matter to rule on relevance. It is not easy at all. But the Chair was certainly raising the point and had cautioned the Parliamentary Secretary more than once about the rule of relevance. If the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville is making the point that the Chair should have called the attention of the Parliamentary Secretary to the matter of relevance, the Chair will readily agree that it was considering that but had great difficulty hearing the Hon. Member for that purpose.

Mr. Nystrom: My whole point, Mr. Speaker, is that I wanted to be heard on a point of order a few minutes ago, but because of proceedings that I thought might happen because of certain precedents that were set, I wanted to make sure that I quoted four citations from Beauchesne's to point out that I have a right to rise on a point of order. Under Citations 233, 237, 239 and 235 of Beauchesne, I am bound to do that.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Certainly the Hon. Member has a right and an obligation to raise points of order. That is conceded. The problem the Chair has to recognize is that when many Members are on their feet at one time, all claiming points of order, and another Hon. Member is making a speech wherein the question of relevance has been raised by the Chair, the Chair has to make a decision. In this case the decision was to hear further statements of the Parliamentary Secretary before calling on another Hon. Member on the grounds that the speech of the Parliamentary Secretary was out of order.

The decision in this case was to hear further statements of the Parliamentary Secretary before calling on another Hon. Member on the grounds that the Parliamentary Secretary's speech was out of order. The Chair was in the process of doing that when Hon. Members, a number of them, were on their feet screaming, "Point of order". It is physically impossible for more than one Hon. Member to be recognized at any one moment in time. The Chair could not recognize six Members at once on a point of order.

Mr. Benjamin: Nobody asked you to.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: There were six Members of the Hon. Member's Party on their feet at once.

Mr. Anguish: There were not.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: They were all screaming "Point of order".

Mr. Anguish: There was one.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I am sure that the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish) will do me the courtesy of checking with the transcript which is provided by Hansard for the House and he will recognize the fact after the event. From where the Chair observed the proceedings, there were a number of Members seeking to be recognized on a point of order all at once. It is physically impossible to recognize everybody at once.

The Chair made a decision to attempt to hear further statements from the Parliamentary Secretary before calling relevance again. The Chair had already cautioned the Parliamentary Secretary on a speech that appeared to be irrelevant to the Chair, and I was in the process of making a determination.

Now, if the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom) has anything else to add to the record, the Chair would be pleased to hear him. But there is no dispute about the need for relevance in this House.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the Speaker. I would also like to thank him for saying that a Member has an obligation to raise a point of order. I am very glad to hear that. That was what I was trying to do. You allowed me to do that and I thank you for that. I am glad that no dangerous precedents have been set tonight and I am glad we can get back to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Are Hon. Members about to raise points of order at this moment?

Some Hon. Members: Debate.

Mr. Anguish: Are you a mind reader?

An Hon. Member: Button your lip for once.

Mr. Stan J. Hovdebo (Prince Albert): Mr. Speaker, my wife called me this evening and said that she had just seen the Air Farce on television in which they used as their theme the House of Commons debating the Crow rate. She said that they did a very good job and it was exactly what she sees in the House every day. That is what our public thinks of us. That is a very unbiased opinion by my wife.

In any event, I am very glad to rise to speak to these two amendments. The reason for these amendments is the fact that sales and transportation are inextricably linked and therefore it is very important that the Wheat Board have the kind of authority over the movement and placing of cars that it has had in the past and should continue to have. Because it is necessary to protect the block system, it is necessary for the Wheat Board to be able to call out the kind of grain it needs when it is needed. It is very necessary for the Wheat Board to act in a proper way and have the authority to act. Therefore, it is necessary to have these two amendments pass which will make the difference in this Bill.

Besides that, we in this Party want to stop the erosion of the Crow which the Official Opposition and the Government are attempting to bring about, or are in the process of doing. They have not quit attempting to do it. They went through this farce of going out West listening to the people, but made no changes to the Bill. There is change made to the Bill. They added 86 amendments, but the basic Bill did not change. The effect on the farmer is exactly the same as it was when they went out west. We wasted all that time. We wasted time and dollars to find out, and then did nothing. It is what the bureaucracy decided. This is an individual group of bureaucrats who have governed this Government, who have put the words in the mouth of this Government, into the mouth of the Department of Transport, for the last 20 years. They have continued to do it and are still doing it. The bureaucracy decided what it thought was good.

If you had attended the hearings during the summer, Mr. Speaker, you would have seen exactly how much the Government and, to a great extent, the Official Opposition were guided by the officials who are the bureaucracy. They never made a decision on their own. Every decision was a decision of the bureaucrat who was supposed to be an expert, but an expert who had been trained by this particular administration, hopefully, except that none of these people were there then.

You have to go back probably to the Minister of Agriculture in the Diefenbaker Government to find the basis for the training that was here. He was the Member from Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain, I believe. A Minister of Transport in this present administration, at one time the Member from Saskatoon-Humboldt, has since been rewarded and is now the Vice-President of Pioneer Grain. In the last Conservative administration we had the present critic for the Conservative Party, who was the then Minister for a very short period of time. All of these Ministers either contributed to or took orders from the bureaucracy which has now decided we should no longer have the Crow rate, and in the process they decided the Wheat Board should be denigrated as much as possible.

During successive administrations we have had a feed grain policy which reduced the effectiveness of the Wheat Board. We have had an open market system established which has reduced the effectiveness of the Wheat Board. We have had a Grain Transportation Co-ordinator who reduced the effectiveness of the Wheat Board.

It has been very interesting this evening to listen to Members who have spoken. Unfortunately, I cannot criticize Members on the Government side because they have not spoken. I can criticize others, and I do not think you could rule me irrelevant, Mr. Speaker, because you never ruled any of these fellows irrelevant. Earlier, the Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) spoke of the bureaucracy, the bureaucracy that is going to be established. I would like to point out to the Hon. Member for Crowfoot that the Alberta Government, a very strong Conservative Government, has more bureaucracy per capita than any of the other western Provinces. Where does the bureaucracy develop?

The Hon. Member for Westaskiwin (Mr. Schellenberger) said that the best situation we ever had was when we put the Grain Transportation Co-ordinator in place. He forgot to mention the effectiveness of the Grain Transportation Co-ordinator did not really have too much to do with the PC's and, after three years of operation, they went back to the original system which was the Wheat Board operating entirely on its own. The Grain Transportation Co-ordinator is now just somebody there. He takes a little bit of heat but he has nothing to do with the block system and he has nothing to do with the presentation of cars, or the dividing of cars. He is not used. The Hon. Member for Wetaskiwin also forgot to mention the fact that the success of the system depended upon 12,000 cars that were suddenly made available to the Grain Transportation Co-ordinator. He did not mention that after three years the Co-ordinator's ideas all went by the board and we went back to the original system.

The Wheat Board, in its presentation to the Transportation Committee, suggested that although the Grain Transportation Co-ordinator did not get in the road very much, he was really of no value to them. The Wheat Board put up with him and he did take some heat, but as far as the operation of the system was concerned, he was of no value.

I learned a new word tonight from the Hon. Member for Crowfoot who said that there was an "illucination", or was it an hallucination, that the Canadian Wheat Board would have some effect. Again, the Hon. Member for Crowfoot neglected to say there were 12,000 cars in place. That is why anything the Co-ordinator did was going to be better than it was before, but the system there is the system that is working the best now and it has nothing to do with an Administrator being appointed through this Bill, or the Co-ordinator that was appointed by the past administration.

I wonder why the Hon. Member for Parkdale-High Park (Mr. Flis) would put so much trust in a witness rather than in a Member of Parliament. Does the Hon. Member understand the motive of the mayor who made the presentation? He suggested it was relevant. That particular mayor is to be the candidate for the Liberal Party in Cranbrook. In a couple of weeks the Minister of Transport and the Minister of Finance (Mr. Lalonde) are going out to crown him—to make him the candidate.

We must look at Motions Nos. 55 and 56 and say that all of these things which are relevant, which these fellows have said are relevant to this, do not really have very much effect.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair hesitates to interrupt the Hon. Member on a matter of relevance, but the time allotted to him has expired. He may continue only with unanimous consent. Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Ted Miller (Nanaimo-Alberni): Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to rise this morning to debate what I think is a very important amendment. I think this amendment protects the autonomy of the Canadian Wheat Board and prevents the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) from taking over a very important aspect of rail transportation for the movement of grain. Rising tonight in the House reminds me very much of what my colleagues in the New Democratic Party in British Columbia have been doing over the last couple of months, trying to prevent government by exhaustion and legislation by exhaustion. That is exactly what the Tories and Liberals are putting this House through tonight on a very important Bill which has a great deal of significance for the prairie grain farmers in particular.

We are dealing with legislation which will change the whole rural community in our central Provinces. I can now appreciate just what kind of effort my colleagues in British Columbia have been going through to prevent the coalition Government in British Columbia implementing its revenge package, which includes wresting away the power of local school boards, hospital boards, removal of collective bargaining rights, the right to fair rent, and the right to an adequate human rights commission. We are dealing with legislation here in the same manner, presented in the same manner, without any careful consideration on the part of the Government or the Official Opposition as to what this particular amendment would mean.

The coalition in British Columbia, which was formed in 1975, and which was a Conservative, Liberal and Social Credit coalition, had some very important things to say about rail car upgrading. As Members in this Party will recall, the New Democratic Party in 1974 entered into the production of box cars in a plant in Squamish. That plant was the most modern rail car plant in Canada, in fact in North America. It employed over 300 people. It could produce over a box car a day and had orders for years in advance. The Social Credit Government in one of its first activities, the Conservative-Liberal coalition called Social Credit, decided that it did not want those 300 jobs, that it was government intervention in free enterprise, and I suppose that was their rationale for closing down the plant. We still have no rail boxcar plant in British Columbia. We have no opportunity to have one because all the equipment in the original plant was sold because of some philosophical aversion to government involvement.

The Bill before us and the amendment which the New Democratic Party is moving would see some of the Power of the Minister taken away and put back into the hands of the Canadian Wheat Board where it rightfully belongs. Motion No. 55 replacing Clause 33 would do the following. It reads:

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 33 by striking out lines 11 to 43 at page 16 and substituting the following therefor:

"for the purpose of moving grain and the Minister shall take every reasonable initiative to ensure that an adequate supply of rolling stock will be provided for the efficient, reliable and effective movement of grain.

That is an admirable attempt. The Motion continues as follows:

(2) The Minister may enter into agreements with the owners or lessees of railway cars.

(3) The Canadian Wheat Board shall administer and control any railway cars acquired or leased by the Board or by the Minister on behalf of Her Majesty.

(4) The Canadian Wheat Board may, in respect of railway cars under its administration and control, enter into agreements with the railway companies respecting the operation of the railway cars."

It seems that the Canadian Wheat Board, which is responsible to the producers of grain, should have the responsibility of determining what boxcars, grain cars, are available for the transportation of grain, and should be responsible for acquiring or leasing appropriate cars, taking that responsibility away from the Minister of Transport who has other responsibilities toward the Canadian wheat industry. If this does not happen, I can see the possibility of the Minister of Transport taking the same narrow attitude toward government involvement in the production of railway cars as the Socred-Liberal coalition in British Columbia in 1975-1976.

It should really be up to the Canadian Wheat Board to determine who should purchase those cars and from where they should be purchased. That it not happening. It did not happen in British Columbia. I suspect the same attitudes would exist at the federal level, whether it be a Liberal or a Conservative Government in the next couple of years, that is, before the New Democratic Party rightfully assumes its position as the Government of Canada some time in the near future.

If the Liberal-Conservative coalition continues to approach the grain industry and farmers in Saskatchewan and Manitoba in the manner it has, certainly it will lose a great deal of support. Because of its inability to enunciate clearly its real position on the Crow to the people in the Prairies or in British Columbia, it will lose a great deal of support in British Columbia. No one understands what is its position. No one will find out what is its position, by the looks of the debate in the House tonight. Neither the Liberals nor the Conservatives want to participate in the debate on these very important amendments.

Mr. Malone: Do you still wonder why you are at 16 per cent?

Mr. Miller: We will see the Tories at 16 per cent again.

Mr. Malone: It will be 116 per cent.

Mr. Miller: That is wishful thinking on the part of the Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) who finds himself having slipped seven points in the poll last month. Four months like that and they will be in their rightful position, and the race will be on for government at that time.

The people of British Columbia want to know what is the Tory position. Hon. Members of the Conservative Party want to have it both ways. They want to pretend to grain producers that they are in favour of a three-year delay in changes to the Crow. At the same time they want to see massive subsidies going to CP and CN. By the looks of it, they want to see the British Columbia coal lands remaining in the hands of the federal Government. That is not an adequate position for the people of British Columbia who, at the moment, are in the throes of fighting a very repressive Government which is basically comprised of Liberals and Conservatives. Their Government is attacking not only the civil rights of the entire population, but at the moment it is putting the entire province into economic trouble as a result of a possible strike in the public sector within the next 40 minutes. That Government does not respect the views of the community.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): The Chair would very much appreciate it if the Hon. Member for Nanaimo-Alberni (Mr. Miller) could restrict his remarks to those which are relevant to the important debate at hand.

Mr. Miller: Mr. Speaker, I think the type of Government representing the people is very relevant. I was just making the point that the Government will take control of the acquisition and leasing of rail cars as a result of this Bill. The Government does not respect the view of farmers who are saying that the Canadian Wheat Board should control the distribution of cars. Therefore I think my remarks are very relevant. Hon. Members must appreciate the intent of the Bill. It will take control over the acquisition and leasing of rail cars. We have seen the Government in British Columbia take over the control of a rail car plant, a plant which could have provided boxcars for the shipment of lumber and other commodities to eastern Canada and back to western Canada. In conclusion, let me indicate that the Bill before us is important. Also it is important that the Canadian Wheat Board maintain control over the distribution of cars.

Mr. Rod Murphy (Churchill): Mr. Speaker, I would like to continue debate on the amendments which have been put forward by the New Democratic Party. The intent of the amendments before us at this time is to protect the integrity of the wheat shipping system in Canada. We are concernend that there is only one group within Canada that has the expertise and the knowledge to look after the allocation of grain cars. We believe that that group is the Canadian Wheat Board. More than any other group it has an understanding of the grade of grain and a knowledge of the location of various grains, as well as some knowledge of the different ways of facilitating sales.

With that in mind, we do not understand how the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy), whether it be this Minister or any other Minister, can be the one who makes adequate decisions with regard to the allocation of rolling stock. Many grain cars are already owned by the Canadian Wheat Board. They have been paid for by the farmers of Canada. This means that the Act, in its present form, would confiscate the property of producers. It is very important to remember that fact.

These cars, the allocation of which would be taken away from the Canadian Wheat Board, were purchased by farmers by reason of the fact that they received less for the grain they sold in the past. At present the Government is participating in a form of expropriation. One of my concerns is that the Bill gives the Minister of Transport another role in addition to the ones that he already holds in the shipment of grain. It will really increase the number of different levels of people within the bureaucracy.

I mentioned earlier in the debate on a previous amendment that one of the problems faced in western Canada was that VIA had a contract with CN and CP. This creates a problem because we have one Crown corporation, VIA, looking after passenger travel, and another corporation, with its private enterprise like CP, or its public enterprise like CN, having control over the rolling stock, train schedules, et cetera. For that matter, earlier today I pointed out that even the master agreement between CN, CP and VIA was something about which we have no real knowledge. For example, CN can say that its costs are at a certain level for the movement of cars and charge VIA proportionately. In other words, VIA has no right to know why it is being charged so much, or whether or not it should really be paying those rates.

I can see the same problem existing if we have a system wherein the Canadian Wheat Board has a certain level of responsibility and there is someone in the Minister's office—we all know that it will not be the Minister—or someone working with the Government who will have a special office and will also make decisions that may be quite different from those of the Wheat Board. There should be a centralized control of the shipment of grain within the country.

I have argued before in the House that one of the problems at the present time is that there is no interchange agreement between CN and CP.

I would like to refer to the Port of Churchill, if I may. Grain in the northeastern part of Saskatchewan is closest to the Port of Churchill. However, because CP does not have tracks going to Churchill and CN does, the grain crosses the CN line and goes to Thunder Bay, many more miles away. However, at the present time there is no interchange agreement. Therefore, CP controls that grain, even though it would be much better for farmers if they could go to the nearest port. For that matter, only once in history has CP given up its right to take grain over its own tracks.

My concern is that the system will continue to be a hodgepodge. Instead of giving one person or one agency responsibility for the transportation and sale of grain, which I believe should be the Canadian Wheat Board, the Government will add another level of inadequate decision making.

We face a similar problem in many different areas. The Government just wants to create another group to share the blame, and not really share the burden. It will create more of a problem without solving the problems which are already faced. We cannot really accept that. For those reasons I urge the House to vote in favour of the amendments of the New Democratic Party because we are trying to ensure that we have an efficient and comprehensive transportation system in Canada for the exportation of grain.

Mr. Lyle S. Kristiansen (Kootenay West): Mr. Speaker, it is a pleasure to speak in the wee hours of the morning, especially following Hallowe'en. This night of the year seems particularly appropriate to the shenanigans which have taken place in the House of Commons over the last few hours.

Before getting into the meat of my remarks on Motions Nos. 55 and 56, I would like to deal with the scenario which developed when the Conservatives came to the door of the New Democratic Party yelling, "Trick or treat". We did not feel it was appropriate to move to their last minute, out of order amendments, and therefore we denied them that permission. At that time we did not think that their under-performance in defence of the people of western Canada and the farmers of the prairie Provinces really warranted a treat, so we said, "trick", and they did. With their usual lack of imagination, the trick to which they resorted was basically the old one of overturning the outhouse. Unfortunately, as they tipped it over, they fell into the hole. Now they are desperately groping around, trying to climb their way back out of the hole they created.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): Order, please. I believe we are talking about rolling stock, not that other type of utility.

Mr. Malone: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. The Hon. Member who has the floor just made a mistake. He said that we tipped over the outhouse; he meant to say that we tipped over the "Althouse".

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): Do I understand that the Hon. Member is naming another Member of the House?

Mr. Malone: No.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Peterson): We will have no more of that tonight in this House.

Mr. Kristiansen: Mr. Speaker, I am glad that you treated the Hon. Member's intervention with the dignity it so obviously deserved. It was really a pleasure to hear that. Whether they want to roll in it or climb out of the hole, that is up to them. Hon. Members of the Conservative Party have done a very effective job so far of digging themselves into a hole, especially on this issue. I will wait with some interest to see how they manage to rise from it.

Mr. Taylor: We do not have it all over our face, anyway.

Mr. Kristiansen: It is surprising, because they certainly spend a lot of time trying to stand on their heads. However they manage it, it is up to them.

I will return to Motions Nos. 55 and 56 because I know Mr. Speaker wants me to be relevant. Of course Motion No. 55 stands in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). The intent of this Motion is to give control over the allocation of railroad grain cars to the Canadian Wheat Board. For the reasons of facilitation of sales, knowledge of the location and grade of grains, protection of the block system, et cetera, the Canadian Wheat Board should have these cars under its control. We think the purpose of this amendment is rather self-evident. Some of the ground referring to it has been covered in previous discussions.

Motion No. 56 also stands in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West. The intent of this amendment would be to remove the ability to transfer the administration and control of grain cars owned by the Canadian Wheat Board to the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy). If we transfer the administration and control of these cars, effectively we are transferring the ownership of the cars. It is our contention that the Canadian Wheat Board should have control over the shipment of grain and the allocation of cars. Therefore, these cars should remain under the control of the Board.

These cars were paid for out of the producers' pool fund. In other words, grain producers received a smaller payment for the grain sold on their behalf by the Canadian Wheat Board because some of the revenues derived from the sale of their grain went to the purchase of these cars. To transfer administrative control of these cars from the Canadian Wheat Board to the Minister of Transport is effectively to expropriate them from the producers without compensation or, viewed in another way, to levy a discriminatory tax on producers that has not received the approval of Parliament.

Our friends on the Government side and in the Conservative Party might want to ask themselves whether they want to set a precedent whereby the Minister can expropriate or levy taxes through regulation. Today I would ask, if it is the Canadian Wheat Board that is having its cars effectively expropriated without any compensation, and expropriated by regulation and not by any deliberate act of Parliament, then who is next on the hit list? There are hundreds of cars owned by forest product companies across Canada which they have had to purchase because the railways were not doing their job. Will they be next at some point? Will it be the cars owned by B.C. Rail? Who is next on the list?

What kind of precedent are we establishing by allowing the Government, through this legislation, to expropriate without compensation, and to expropriate without legislation because it is all to be done by a regulatory process? You have to wonder if the new Liberal and Conservative slogan is that extremism in the pursuit of avarice is no vice. How far are they going to go in this kind of grab over what the farmers of western Canada have paid for, such as cars? They have indirectly paid for them. To be sure, they have been paid for by their labours over years and years. It should have been argued before.

That case has been made not only by members of this Party, but by many other Hon. Members over the past number of years, that it was the Government of Canada and the railways that should have purchased these cars in the first place. Because of the failure of Governments and the failure of the railways in this country, whether it has been cars of the Canadian Wheat Board or forest product companies or whoever, that has not happened. Now we are going to make some kind of illegitimate power grab to seize something that we have not paid for, and to seize something for which we are not even providing any legislative framework. We are allowing a bunch of bureaucrats to seize by regulation something that does not belong to them.

We in this Party believe that that kind of action is wrong. It is illegitimate. Even though it is the day after Hallowe'en—I think it is called All Saints Day—I suspect that this kind of trickery and chicanery will not be forgiven. As sure as last night was Hallowe'en, the great pumpkin will indeed rise from the pumpkin patch and wreak his vengeance on Members to our right and on Members across the way as well.

Mr. Jim Manly (Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands): Mr. Speaker, I expect a little bit of enthusiasm from my colleagues. Certainly we have not seen much enthusiasm from the Tories this evening. It is rather ironic that they should call for an all-night sitting and yet, on important amendments, they have been silent. This reminds me very much of their blood brothers in British Columbia, the B.C. Social Credit Party, who called for an all-night sitting of the Legislature. They rammed through legislation without even bothering to speak on it. Their leader can only make such speeches before the television cameras rather than appearing in the legislative assembly to defend his legislation.

It is important to note that, as a result of that hasty ill-considered legislation in British Columbia, in approximately 25 minutes from now the employees of the Government of British Columbia will be declaring their contempt for that whole process and going on strike because the legislation was rammed through with no consideration for the real economic or social interests of the people of British Columbia. I believe there is a direct analogy between that kind of legislation that we have seen in British Columbia and Bill C-155, which is really a sham in terms of trying to deal with the problems of the people of western Canada.

I would like to speak in support of Motions Nos. 55 and 56 which were moved by my colleague, the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). Before I begin, I wish to quote a couple of lines from one of the great American poems of the fifties, written by Alan Ginsberg. It is entitled "How". It begins with the lines:

Boxcars, boxcars, boxcars,
I have seen the best minds of my generation destroyed.

Perhaps Ginsberg was a bit prophetic of the Crow debate. I do not know whether it is destroying any minds or not.

This Crow debate is certainly having an adverse effect on the economy of western Canada. The Tories have asked for an all-night sitting, but where are they tonight?

Mr. Mazankowski: I rise on a point of order. One of the reasons the Tory Party asked for an all-night debate was to have the opportunity to debate some of the more important and substantive amendments that have been offered by our Party.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is not making a point of order.

Mr. Manly: Mr. Speaker, what the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) is indicating with his spurious point of order, which was an intervention, is that the Tories have no regard for the Canadian Wheat Board. That is basically what these two amendments are about. They seek basically—

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. The fact is that this Party has a lot of respect for the Canadian Wheat Board, but we are not going to engage in a game of smear and fear.

Mr. Manly: You have it smeared all over you right now.

Mr. Mazankowski: You are smeared from head to toe. You do not know the difference between a Wheat Board and a Fish Board.

Mr. Manly: Mr. Speaker, I would appreciate a bit of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair appeals to Hon. Members. Bearing in mind the hour, perhaps they should refrain from exaggerated eloquence and speak to the motion before the House.

Mr. Manly: Mr. Speaker, I certainly agree with you that we want to try to restrain ourselves and not give way to vile passions.

Motion No. 55 seeks to give the Canadian Wheat Board control over railway cars for the purpose of moving grain. This is where control belongs rather than being transferred to the Minister.

Mr. Malone: Why?

Mr. Manly: The Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) asks why. I think he will recognize the expertise of the Canadian Wheat Board. They know the grain growing potential in the different regions in the Prairies. They know the specific needs of their customers. They know how the different qualities of grain can be brought together to meet the needs of their customers. Therefore, they should have the opportunity and the responsibility to control and administer the railway cars for the sale of grain.

The Hon. Member for Crowfoot feels that this whole thing is irrelevant. That simply indicates that they do not understand the basic purpose of these amendments. I fail to understand why the Conservatives do not wish to support the Wheat Board instead of seeking greater control in the hands of the Minister.

Motion No. 56 would eliminate Subclause 33(3) which reads:

Notwithstanding anything in this or any other Act of Parliament, the Governor in Council may, by regulation, transfer the administration and control of any railway cars held by the Canadian Wheat Board on behalf of the Government of Canada from that Board to the Minister.

I am sure Members are aware that these cars that are presently held by the Canadian Wheat Board were purchased with money that was held back from farmers at the time that they sold their grain. In effect, these cars belong to the farmers. They are being administered and controlled by the Canadian Wheat Board. Our Party asks what justification there is for this power going to the Minister. Why should it not continue to be administered by the Canadian Wheat Board on behalf of the farmers when it is the farmers and producers of the grain who paid the costs of those cars?

This transfer is a form of robbery. It is a special taxation being imposed on the farmers. If the Hon. Member for Crowfoot feels that this kind of robbery in the name of efficiency is okay, and if that is the philosophy of the Conservative Party, I just hope the Canadian people understand what they are really saying, that robbery in the name of efficiency is no vice.

The cost of these cars should have been borne by the railways initially, yet we find that the railways are always crying poor. They always have their hand out. It is a rather surprising fact that the railways in Canada, after all these years, always seem to be losing money and are always asking for more. Yet the people who own the railways seem to be getting more and more rich while the railways are crying poor. The fact is that the railways have a responsibility to purchase those cars. They did not meet their responsibility. The Hon. Member for Crowfoot and the producers on the Prairies recognize that it is important that, in order to move the grain, they have a system by which they purchase cars. Now the Government wants to take them over. We believe that the power and the control over those cars should continue to rest with the Canadian Wheat Board where it belongs.

Our Party would like to see this entire Bill defeated. We make no secret about that. The Government seems determined to forge ahead with it, regardless of opposition. Earlier the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) promised there would be no change in the Crow rate unless there was some clear consensus about this on the Prairies. There has been no consensus. In fact the developing consensus is that Bill C-155 is completely unsatisfactory to the people of western Canada.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. I regret to interrupt the Hon. Member, but the time allocated to him has expired.

Mr. Charles Mayer (Portage-Marquette): Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak briefly to the two motions, and to point out that we in this Party, and there are several of us who hold Canadian Wheat Board permit books, do not need lectures from that great wheat grower from Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands (Mr. Manly) with his phony, trumped up sincerity about the Canadian Wheat Board. I suspect he does not have a clue what the Canadian Wheat Board is all about. If he had followed the proceedings of the committee, he would have understood that even the Pools were basically in favour of some of the things he is talking about. The point is that a lot of the things that have been referred to by Members of the New Democratic Party had nothing to do with the amendment.

I wish to quote from the Grain Transportation Agency Administrator brief to the committee, as follows:

> The Pools accept the formal establishment of a Grain Transportation Agency Administrator with co-ordinating functions and powers.

Nobody is talking about taking anything away from the Canadian Wheat Board. We understand the importance of the Canadian Wheat Board. We understand what it does, what it has done in the past, and what this does. If the Hon. Member had followed the committee proceedings he would have understood what happened. Even the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), who at least was in the committee as the "Lone Ranger" of the NDP, understood what was happening.

● (0245)

I do not think the Member even attended a committee meeting. All of a sudden he is an expert.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Malone: He just woke up.

Mr. Anguish: I do not appreciate the Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) saying I just woke up. I have been awake for several hours, trying to participate in the debate which the Tories initiated.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is not making a point of order. If he has one, will he please make it?

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, my point of order is, with all due respect, that you have ruled on the terms of relevancy many times this evening. I would like you tell me anything that was in the present speaker's contribution to this debate that was relevant to the debate itself. There was no relevancy there.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: It is the impression of the Chair that the most recent remarks of the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer) were strictly relevant to the amendment. I am sure the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish)—

Mr. Anguish: You were on edge.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Would the Hon. Member for the Battlefords-Meadow Lake like to be quiet for just a moment? In the view of the Chair, the most recent remarks of the Hon. Member are strictly relevant to the amendment, and I invite him to continue.

Mr. Mayer: Mr. Speaker, I will not prolong the debate for any length of time. I think we want to get to the next motion which stands in the name of the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight). However, I simply wanted to point out that our record at the committee does not bear out any allegations made by the NDP about this Party's attitude at the committee with respect to the Canadian Wheat Board. In fact, it was the Hon. Member for Wetaskiwin (Mr. Schellenberger), who was very modest in his speech, who was part of the special task force—along with the Hon. Member for Lisgar (Mr. Murta) and the Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster—responsible for setting up the Grain Transportation Agency in the first place. Its record speaks for itself because since the time when the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) was Minister of Transport, Canadian farmers have enjoyed records every year and are increasing the amounts of grain for export.

In closing, let me repeat how nonsensical the NDP has been in terms of this amendment. I do not believe that the Conservative Party can be faulted for anything it has done with respect to the Wheat Board. In fact, we recognize its value, and many of us have dealt with it. I have had a Wheat Board permit book since I was 18, which is close to 30 years. We on this side know the value of the Wheat Board, and I suggest the House would be better off spending its time trying to help the individual producers move more grain for export, earn more dollars, and meet their commitments to their bankers and others so they may stay in business on an ongoing basis. I believe that would be much more useful, rather than engaging in that phony sincerity like the Member for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands, the great weed grower, not wheat grower, and the trumped up sincerity he tries to bring to this issue in terms of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is the House ready for the question?

Some Hon. Members: Question.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Shall I dispense?

Some Hon. Members: Dispense.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is it the pleasure of the House to adopt Motion No. 55?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those in favour of the Motion please say yea?

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those opposed please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In my opinion the nays have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Pursuant to Standing Order 79(11), the recorded division on the proposed Motion stands deferred.

The next question is on Motion 56. Is it the pleasure of the House to adopt the Motion?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those in favour of the motion will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In my opinion, the nays have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Pursuant to Section (11) of Standing Order 79, the recorded division on the proposed Motion stands deferred.

[Translation]

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, could you tell us what amendment we are going to discuss next.

[English]

Mr. Deputy Speaker: We will now be discussing Motion No. 58. Shall I dispense?

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Bill McKnight (Kindersley-Lloydminster) moved:

Motion No. 58

That Bill C-155 be amended by adding immediately after line 43 at page 16 the following:

"ACCOMMODATION FOR GRAIN TRAFFIC

34.(1) The Company shall,

(a) furnish, at the place of starting, and at the junction of the railway with other railways, and at all stopping places established for such purpose, adequate and suitable accommodation for the receiving and loading of grain offered for carriage upon the railway;

(b) furnish adequate and suitable accommodation for the carrying, unloading and delivering of grain;

(c) without delay, and with due care and diligence, receive, carry and deliver all such grain;

(d) furnish and use all proper appliances, accommodation and means necessary for receiving, loading, carrying, unloading and delivering such grain; and

(e) furnish such other service incidental to transportation as is customary or usual in connection with the business of a railway company, as may be ordered by the Commission.

(2) Such adequate and suitable accommodation shall include reasonable facilities for the junction of private sidings or private branch railways with any railway belonging to or worked by the company, and reasonable facilities for receiving, forwarding and delivering grain upon and from those sidings or private branch railways, together with the placing of cars and moving them upon and from such private sidings and private branch railways.

(3) If in any case such accommodation is not, in the opinion of the Commission, furnished by the company, the Commission may order the company to furnish the same within such time or during such period as the Commission deems expedient, having regard to all proper interests; or may prohibit or limit the use, either generally or upon any specified railway or part thereof, of any engines, locomotives, cars, rolling stock, apparatus, machinery, or devices, or any class or kind thereof, not equipped as required by this Act, or by any orders or regulations of the Commission made within its jurisdiction under the provisions of this Act.

(4) Such grain shall be taken, carried to and from, and delivered at the places aforesaid on the due payment of the toll lawfully imposed by this Act.

(5) For the purposes of this section the Commission may order that specific works be constructed or carried out, or that property be acquired, or that cars, motive power or other equipment be allotted, distributed, used or moved as specified by the Commission, or that any specified steps, systems or methods be taken or followed by any particular company or companies, or by railway companies generally, and the Commission may in any such order specify the maximum charges that may be made by the company or companies in respect of any matter so ordered by the Commission.

(6) Every person aggrieved by any neglect or refusal of the company to comply with the requirements of this section has, subject to this Act, an action therefor against the company, from which action the company is not relieved by any notice, condition or declaration, if the damage arises from any negligence or omission of the company or of its servant.

(7) The Commission may make regulations, applying generally or to any particular railway or any portion thereof, or may make an order in any case where it sees fit, imposing charges for default or delay by any company in furnishing accommodation, appliances, or means as aforesaid, or in receiving, loading, carrying, unloading or delivering grain, and may enforce payment of such charges by companies to any person injuriously affected by the default or delay; and any amount so received by any person shall be deducted from the damages recoverable or recovered by such person for the default or delay; and the Commission may, by order or regulation, determine what circumstances shall exempt any company from payment of any such charges.

(8) The railway companies shall afford to the carriage of grain a level of accommodation equal to that afforded to the carriage of other traffic and failure to provide such a level shall be remedied by such orders as the Commission deems appropriate in the circumstances.

(9)(a) Where the Administrator is of the opinion that reciprocal and other arrangements between railway companies are required to facilitate the efficient, adequate and reliable movement of grain on behalf of, and in the interests of grain producers, the Administrator shall apply to the Commission for such order or orders as may be required to achieve the necessary reciprocal and other arrangements between railway companies, and the Commission may make an order granting in whole or in part the Application of the Administrator.

(b) If the special circumstances of any case so require, the Commission may exercise any of the powers given to it by Sections 59 and 71 of the National Transportation Act and may thereby make an interim ex parte order or orders.

(c) Any railway company or person directly affected by an interim ex parte order made pursuant to paragraph 9(b) may at any time within ten days after becoming aware of such order, apply to the Commission to vary, amend or rescind such order and the Commission shall thereupon, on such notice to other parties interested as it may in its discretion think desirable, hear such application, and either amend, alter or rescind such order, or dismiss the application, as may seem to it just and right.

(d) Any interim order made pursuant to paragraph 9(b) shall apply for a period not to exceed one hundred and eighty days but any such order may, within the said period, be converted by the Commission to a permanent order.

(e) If railway companies affected by any order requiring them to provide reciprocal and other arrangements are unable to agree as to compensation each should receive or pay, the Commission may, by order, fix the amount of such compensation but in no instance shall such compensation exceed the variable costs associated with the provision of such reciprocal and other arrangements.

(10)(a) For the purposes of this section, the Administrator may, on behalf of any grain shipper or group of grain shippers, commence any proceedings before the Commission or the Courts to secure any of the remedies herein provided.

(b) Where any remedy, against a railway company, other than the remedies provided herein, is available to shippers pursuant to this Act, the Railway Act, or the National Transportation Act, the Administrator is deemed to be a shipper and he may pursue such a remedy or remedies and any remedy or remedies he obtains, shall to the fullest possible degree, apply to all grain shippers."

and by renumbering the subsequent Clauses accordingly.

He said: Mr. Speaker, I rise after a considerable time to speak in this debate. It is now 3 a.m. and, while that is not actually important, if Members of the NDP had been a little slower in their haste and had knowledge of Motion No. 58, I think they would have recognized that Motion No. 58 fulfils many of the wishes that they seem to have in pieces, parts, and jibs and jibes, in their motions preceeding Motion No. 58.

This motion is basically accommodation for grain traffic. Part of it has been taken directly from the National Transportation Act, Section No. 262.

Mr. Benjamin: We knew that.

Mr. McKnight: I am glad that the Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) knows that. I have heard him speak quite often about that Section of the National Transportation Act. I presume that he would be in full support of this motion. As a matter of fact, he has launched cases using that Section of the National Transportation Act, although I hestitate to ask who his counsel was because I understand that he was not successful in those cases.

Basically, this motion, if accepted, will force the railroads to carry grain. If the railroads are going to receive the benefit of the taxpayers' dollars and the producers of grain will have to continue to pay increased costs for the shipment of grain, when it comes time to vote on this motion we hope it will be part of the Bill because it will leave absolutely no doubt in the mind of anyone reading this legislation in the future. It will not give the railroads the opportunity to say that they are not being adequately compensated for the movement of grain, which is the argument they have made in the past to prevent being forced under Section 262 to move grain.

Our amendment states that the railroads must furnish adequate and suitable accommodation for carrying, unloading, and delivering the grain. This would be of assistance along with Section 2 for the protection of private sidings and private branch lines of any railway belonging to or worked by the company. What that would do would facilitate the use and the maintenance of sidings and facilities that have been abandoned by railroads when abandonment has been allowed by the Canadian Transport Commission. It would maintain those sidings. It would force the railroads to provide the facilities that would allow producers to use producer cars, to establish their own elevator system, or their own private railway line.

Any time there is any talk at present under the existing legislation of producers getting together and forming their own railroad and running a right-of-way it appears the railway companies refuse to co-operate. This amendment would force the railroads to co-operate.

The other protection we see in this piece of legislation is that it would rely on the Canadian Transport Commission. I know there are some Members in the New Democratic Party, I have heard them, not all of them, but some of them, who speak of the inability of the Canadian Transport Commission to meet the needs of producers in western Canada. I would like to say that those of us on this side of the House put a great deal of faith in the Canadian Transport Commission. In fact we put more faith in the Commissioners established in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, when it comes to the abandonment and protection of branch lines and the movement of grain in our area than we do in the whole of the Canadian Transport Commission, I am sure.

As you come along and look at the Bill, under this Section the Commission may order that specific works be constructed or carried out, or that property be acquired, or that cars, mode of power or other equipment, be allotted. That would force railroads to repair branch lines that are in disrepair, and to repair bridges that may not be adequate, to provide rolling stock when it is in short supply, and to provide cars when they are in short supply. There would be no excuse for railroads to say they do not have enough diesel power, because this amendment would cause them to purchase that power. Then we move into other segments of the Bill. In Motion No. 58, I quote sub-paragraph (8) which reads:

The railway companies shall afford to the carriage of grain a level of accommodation equal to that afforded to the carriage of other traffic—

That simply says that the railroads would not be able to differentiate as they have in the past, and probably under this Bill will in the future, between the movement of grain and of those other commodities sharing the same lines.

Again, the Commission would be able to force the railways to carry grain and take appropriate action under the circumstances as the Commission sees fit. In sub-paragraph (9) it mentions the Administrator. We know that some Members of the Committee believed the Administrator was given too much power. We had an earlier amendment to this Bill which would cause the railroads to enter into reciprocal agreements if it were in the best interests of the grain producers. In sub-paragraph (9)(a) it states:

Where the Administrator is of the opinion that reciprocal and other arrangements between railway companies are required to facilitate the efficient, adequate and reliable movement of grain on behalf of, and in the interests of grain producers, the Administrator shall apply to the Commission for such order or orders as may be required—

When we brought in that amendment by itself earlier on it was supported strongly by Members of the New Democratic Party, and I am sure was even supported by some Members of the Government Party, because the reciprocal arrangements are so important to producers to move their grain. We have heard the bleating and the cries about Churchill. This is something that would facilitate and require the railroads to enter into agreements that would be in the best interests of the producers.

There is also a part in this amendment dealing with the need for the Commission to act quickly. There are times when the movement of grain is delayed and, if the railways refuse to co-operate or refuse to enter into discussions, the delay can cause the producers of that grain a considerable loss of income. It is very simply put in this Motion. It reads:

9(b) If the special circumstances of any case so require, the Commission may exercise any of the powers given to it by Sections 59 and 71 of the National Transportation Act and may thereby make an interim ex parte order or orders.

That simply means the Commission can go ahead without having the railroads present, without any of those parties being present, and make an order to remedy whatever circumstance they may need to remedy.

The other thing we do is fairly civil. I think the railroads are treated in the right way, the appropriate manner.

In sub-paragraph 9(c) the motion reads:

Any railway company or person directly affected by an interim ex parte order made pursuant to paragraph 9(b) may at any time within ten days after becoming aware of such order, apply to the Commission to vary, amend or rescind such order and the Commission shall thereupon, on such notice to other parties interested as it may in its discretion think desirable, hear such application—

It does not say they have to, but it says they may. That is only fair.

I come down to another fair and reasonable portion of this motion. It reads in sub-paragraph 9(d):

Any interim order made pursuant to paragraph 9(b) shall apply for a period not to exceed one hundred and eighty days—

That is only reasonable. We would not want it to continue forever in that period of limbo. It goes on to read:

—but any such order may, within the said period, be converted by the Commission to a permanent order.

We think that is consistent with the desires of the producers of grain in western Canada, the people who require the service of the railroads.

I had a friend who reviewed this. He felt that sub-paragraphs 9(a), (b), (c) and (d) would, in his opinion, cause corporate convulsions in the boardrooms of Canadian Pacific and Canadian National. I think that is probably the intent. There is not any reason they should be denied the right to worry about what would happen if they did not perform. The producers have to worry about what happens to them if the railroads do not perform. Therefore, we think we have found a way in this to satisfy all parties.

When you come to the close of the last paragraph which is found in sub-paragraph 10(a), it is a change from Section 262 of the Railway Act, and it reads:

(10)(a) —the Administrator may, on behalf of any grain shipper or group of grain shippers, commence any proceedings before the Commission or the Courts to secure any of the remedies herein provided.

(b) Where any remedy, against a railway company, other than the remedies provided herein, is available to shippers pursuant to this Act, the Railway Act, or the National Transportation Act, the Administrator is deemed to be a shipper—

In closing, I would like to read the definition of shipper that we sought and had accepted in Bill C-155. A shipper means any person, partnership, corporation or organization that enters into a contract with a railway company for the movement of grain.

Mr. Ian Waddell (Vancouver-Kingsway): Mr. Speaker, may I say I think the Hon. Member mentioned there were a couple of clauses that would cause consternation in the boardrooms of Canadian Pacific Railway. The last time the Conservatives caused consternation in the broadrooms of Canadian Pacific Railway, I think the only time, was when it was revealed that Sir John A. Macdonald was taking money from Canadian Pacific in the Pacific scandal in the last century. The Conservatives are still taking money from the Canadian Pacific Railway. They are not about to upset the apple cart.

This amendment is a piece of fluff. That is what it is. It is a piece of fluff. It, in many ways, exposes the Conservatives' approach to the Crowsnest Pass rate and to Bill C-155. When you cut through all the verbiage, it does nothing to the Bill. In fact it changes nothing in terms of the existing legislation.

The provisions contained within this Conservative amendment on the responsibility of the railroads to provide service are already covered under the National Transportation Act. The Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) admitted that in his speech. It is already covered under that Act. The amendment shows up the Conservatives' approach to this legislation. It is all form and has no substance.

Faced with an aroused electorate—and perhaps we should explain this to some of the Liberal Members across the way so they know what is happening here tonight—on the Prairies that is adamantly against changing the Crow rates, the Conservatives have a position that is essentially the same as the Liberals when you really get down to it, and the Tories are reduced to moving amendments of this nature. It is all fluff and no substance. Because they have nothing to say, they end up saying basically nothing at all. Instead of addressing themselves to the critically important areas dealt with in Bill C-155, the Conservatives have chosen to deal with the window dressing with this amendment. That is what they mean when they talk about their responsible approach to the legislation. In fact, the irresponsibility of their approach is shown when you look at this amendment.

The responsible approach, I submit, is shown by the New Democratic Party which has stood firm, united, and consistent for the interests of their constituents and for the country as a whole. Its stand is basically change in the Crow rate—three-year option, no flim-flam as in this amendment. The thrust of all our amendments has been basically to eliminate changes to the Crow rate.

It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that serious people should not focus on the irrelevant. People who have something to hide often do. We should not be diverted by this rather trivial Tory amendment. Whether you vote for it or not is really fairly irrelevant. We should get it over and get on to some of the more important NDP amendments which deal with the real guts of this issue, namely, how we are going to preserve the culture, the historic rights in Confederation of the western farmer, and how we really are going to bring the railways, including the CPR, in tow and force them to upgrade rail lines while keeping the viability of the prairie farmer through the existing Crow rate.

Hon. Don Mazankowski (Vegreville): Mr. Speaker, we have certainly heard from the joker from Vancouver-Kingsway. What a joke. It was hilarious to listen to that exposé. It is an embarrassment to his colleagues, and it is an embarrassment for anyone to be sitting in this House listening to the comments just advanced by the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway. He is suggesting that everything that needs to be contained in this Bill to protect the farmers and the grain producers is contained in Section 262 of the National Transportation Act. I think everyone knows that Section 262 of the Act has not been adequate and sufficient to date. It is certainly not improved with the passage of this Bill.

If the Member can show me in any one instance where the Act signifies the interest of the grain producer, or even mentions the word grain, then perhaps I would at least partially share some of comments he has made. But for him to suggest that this amendment is trivial, that it is nothing but fluff and has no substance, clearly shows up the lack of knowledge which this Member has about this Bill, or the lack of his knowledge about the history that producers and groups have experienced when dealing with Section 262.

Perhaps it all goes to show that this particular Hon. Member was handed a speech prepared by his researchers. He read it into the record. His knowledge would have certainly been served far better if he had engaged and participated in some of the committee meetings during the course of last summer. I know that the Hon. Member appeared before the committee hearing in Vancouver. He stayed for a short period of time, made an intervention, and left. That was the sum and substance of his interest in Bill C-155, yet he rose tonight and promenaded as the great defender and great saviour of western Canadian grain producers.

I compliment the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) on his comprehensive and thorough amendment. Yes, it was patterned after Section 262, but it is strengthened in many areas and is tailored specifically to grain. That is the important part, and that is the point which the rookie from Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell) overlooked. Furthermore, it is consistent with our commitment to improve the Bill in terms of its relationship with producers.

The Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster just handed me a quotation from which I would like to read. At page 93 of the committee proceedings, No. 132, the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) is quoted as saying:

> Mr. Chairman, as one who has had two bitter experiences in trying to get the CTC to act under Section 262, in the case of several farmers who tried to act under the provisions of Section 262, those farmers were turned down because they were not called a shipper. The courts turned them down because they were not classified as a shipper. It was a board grain.

We certainly addressed that matter in the course of the committee proceedings by defining a shipper. He went on to say:

> Now, if the GTA is not a shipper, he can complain all he likes to the CTC and he can go to court: he is not a shipper, he is out of court. I tried it with grain cars, I tried it with livestock cars, and all the CTC did was respond to me, after the railroads and I went back and forth two or three times each, that the railroads were making a reasonable effort to provide suitable accommodation for traffic offered under Section 262.

In the words of the Hon. Member for Regina West, Section 262 is not adequate. The Hon. Member for Regina West, the "Lone Ranger" who sat through the committee proceedings, has a fair knowledge of the contents of the Bill and of transportation in general. Certainly we may disagree on a number of approaches to transportation, but I would never suggest for a minute that the Hon. Member does not understand transportation. However, I would suggest that the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway should spend some time with the Hon. Member for Regina West and learn a little about transportation. Then he could contribute in a much more positive manner to this debate.

As I indicated, this particular comprehensive motion goes a long way toward strengthening the accountability of the railroads in terms of what they will be called upon and expected to do in the area of providing service. Quite frankly, it charges the railway, under a legal obligation, to provide adequate service and adequate accommodation to move grain. As I said earlier, the motion is designed to incorporate grain and to incorporate grain producers.

In dealing with this Bill, and from the various exchanges which have taken place, we know that the railways are indeed obtaining a sweetheart deal. They will be receiving well over $1 billion per year for the movement of grain. During the course of committee proceedings the impression was left with us that the railways did not think that that amount was enough. As a matter of fact they are still complaining, notwithstanding the fact that the Government has been very generous in terms of the funds which will be provided for the movement of grain, and very harsh in terms of the additional freight rate increases which will be imposed upon farmers.

Therefore, it is very important that Subparagraph (8) be looked at very carefully. It goes a long way toward spelling out clearly the following:

The railway companies shall afford to the carriage of grain a level of accommodation equal to that afforded to the carriage of other traffic and failure to provide such a level shall be remedied by such orders as the Commission deems appropriate in the circumstances.

The Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway called that fluff. One of the reasons that is important is because we know that the apportionment of contribution to constant costs in this particular Bill is calculated at a figure of 20 per cent.

I have a document in my hand which I am sure all Hon. Members received from CN. It outlines some of the pros and cons of this particular piece of legislation. It made the point that the contribution to constant costs is not sufficient and that, in its presentation to Snavely, it made a case for a contribution to constant costs of 35.3 per cent of volume and line related variable costs. Also the document dealt with the cost of money.

We know that that particular figure was calculated at 20 per cent for the last crop year and that it is 18.5 per cent for this year. That component is taken into consideration in determining the cost of moving grain. They left that at 18 per cent, whereas CN and CP are arguing for 30 per cent. Snavely set it at 25.43 per cent. I urge Hon. Members to look very seriously at subclauses (7), (8), (9) and (10) because they go a long way towards strengthening the kind of legal obligation which should be imposed upon railways to discharge their responsibilities in the interests of moving grain efficiently, reliably, effectively, and in the interests of producers.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, I would be quite happy to allow the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) to continue his remarks. This is a major motion on the Order Paper. I am sure the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) would be willing to allow the Hon. Member to continue his remarks. I would suggest that the Chair should seek unanimous consent for the Hon. Member to continue.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Does the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) wish to have the consent of the House to continue his remarks?

Mr. Mazankowski: I would be very happy to continue, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Does the Hon. Member have the unanimous consent of the House to continue?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, this provides me with an opportunity to elaborate further on the subclauses to which I referred earlier. I have already dealt with subclause (8). Now I would like to deal with subclause (9)(a) which significantly points out the incorporation of the Administrator in terms of holding the railways accountable and providing a legal obligation for them to discharge their responsibilities and to provide adequate accommodation for traffic.

Subclause (9)(a) reads:

Where the Administrator is of the opinion that reciprocal and other arrangements between railway companies are required to facilitate the efficient, adequate and reliable movement of grain on behalf of, and in the interests of grain producers, the Administrator shall apply to the Commission for such order or orders as may be required to achieve the necessary reciprocal and other arrangements—

Earlier we had some discussion on a motion wherein we moved an amendment to obligate the railways to enter into reciprocal arrangements, if necessary, and in the best interests of producers. Here we have a repeat of that same provision, and here again the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway calls it fluff. I am startled and flabbergasted that he would make such inappropriate comments on a motion which was advanced in a comprehensive manner by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster. This particular motion goes to the very heart of performance objectives and the assurance that the necessary service will be provided.

Throughout the course of committee hearings and, indeed, throughout the debate on this Bill in the House of Commons, we heard from producer groups and organizations, particularly as we travelled throughout the country, and in the letters we received, that there were not adequate service and performance guarantees. While there are provisions contained in the Bill in terms of awards, sanctions, and what not, in terms of the individual shipper who is being aggrieved or is not provided with a service which he deems appropriate, enabling devices which would allow him to seek redress were certainly not provided in this piece of legislation. This particular amendment goes a long way toward answering that particular problem.

Turning to subclause 10(a), it gets into the real meat of the particular motion. It provides a means by which a senior Government officer may, on behalf of a grain shipper or shippers, lead the way toward the recovery of some sort of remedy for a shipper or group of shippers. When we look at the cost of litigation, I think this is a very important component for producers. I am sure the Hon. Member for Regina West could tell us about the costs of litigation. It is extremely expensive, and it is a very difficult burden to bear for small operators.

Mr. Benjamin: Oh!

Mr. Mazankowski: If the Hon. Member for Regina West wants to speak, I will yield the floor to him. I wish he would stop his mumbling, bumbling, bickering and snickering. These guys are just like a bunch of chickens. They yap, yap, and yap. There is a bunch of chickens at one end of the Party and there is a bunch of fox terriers at the other. It is the most rude group I have ever seen in a debating forum.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I was simply supporting the Hon. Member for Vegreville. I was agreeing with him about court costs. I would like an opportunity to indicate how we managed to collect some. I was supporting what he was saying. I do not know what he is complaining about.

Mr. Mazankowski: In any event, subclause 10(a) would provide a very major benefit to shippers and, indeed, to farmers. I will read it into the record:

> For the purposes of this section, the Administrator may, on behalf of any grain shipper or group of grain shippers, commence any proceedings before the Commission or the Courts to secure any of the remedies herein provided.
> (b) Where any remedy, against a railway company, other than the remedies provided herein, is available to shippers pursuant to this Act, the Railway Act, or the National Transportation Act, the Administrator is deemed to be a shipper and he may pursue such a remedy or remedies and any remedy or remedies he obtains, shall to the fullest possible degree, apply to all grain shippers.

Our friends in the New Democratic Party have criticized and ridiculed the role of the Administrator. I would suspect, in the course of addressing this particular motion, they would saddle up very closely to the Administrator because here again the Administrator can act on behalf of grain shippers and provide a valuable service.

I would hope that in the course of this debate we might hear from the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy). He is a fair person. He recognizes that there is a very heavy obligation imposed upon the taxpayers of Canada, indeed upon the farmers, to pay for the service that we hope will be discharged by the railways.

He will recognize, as we have recognized throughout the course of our hearings and the course of this debate, that the producers want the assurance that they will have service and performance delivery. They want assurance that their grain will move on time, that there will be the right grain at the right time, at the right place at the right time, that they will be freed from heavy demurrage charges and losses of grain sales. If in the event that this does not occur, there should be some recourse by the producer. In this case the Administrator can act on behalf of the producer.

The Government will probably say that it covered this particular provision by including the provisions of Section 262. As has been pointed out previously, certainly by the legal counsel to the committee, in terms of the movement of grain Section 262 is not very effective. We have heard from the Member for Regina West and other Members who have sought recourse against the railways under the provisions of Section 262. It simply has not been an effective vehicle.

As we enter the final stages of this debate I hope that the Minister of Transport will have a serious look at this particular provision. If there is some wording that might be changed, I am sure that could be accommodated with unanimous consent. I genuinely commend Motion No. 58 to the Minister for consideration. I ask him to consider it seriously. I believe it would alleviate a lot of fears and suspicions that may very well rise in the minds of the producers. I am sure it is paramount in the minds of the producers because of the bad experiences they have had. Hopefully the Minister, or his Parliamentary Secretary, will enter into this debate. They have had some opportunity to consider this particular provision. I hope they will reconsider it and look at it in a positive light. It will certainly go a long way toward improving this Bill, incorporating a provision that would apply specifically to grain, grain shippers, and producers. It could be a major benefit to them in future years.

Mr. Les Benjamin (Regina West): Mr. Speaker, I am delighted that we have reached this major motion of the Conservative Party. I say to my hon. friend and colleague from Vegreville that he transposes in Motion No. 58 what is already in the National Transportation Act and the Railway Act. I am sure my hon. friend will agree, from bitter opposition as a Member of the Opposition, and as the Minister of Transport trying to straighten out all that had been going on in past years, that whether through the Canadian Transport Commission or the Courts, we have never succeeded in getting the provisions of those Acts enforced.

I have carefully read through Motion No. 58 moved by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) who, I hope, will speak more on this. What is incorporated in this amendment is the same motherhood stuff we have had since the MacPherson Commission of 1965-66. Members of Parliament of that day, and maybe my friend from Dartmouth-Halifax East will remember because he was here before I was—

Mr. Forrestall: And don't you forget it.

Mr. Benjamin: Members of Parliament of that day thought that the new National Transportation Act, which came about as a result of the MacPherson Royal Commission, would solve the problems which the Hon. Member for Vegreville has mentioned. We have been trying to do this for 25 or 26 years. I made two or three submissions to the Canadian Transport Commission under the Railway Act and the National Transportation Act to try to get enforced some of the very things that are in this amendment.

What did the CTC tell us? They thought the railroads were living up to a reasonable expectation. It did not matter that the Hon. Member for Medicine Hat (Mr. Hargrave) could not get enough stock cars. That did not matter. It did not matter that potato growers in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island could not get enough railway cars to ship their products. What do we get here? We get an amendment supported by the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski). We can vote for it. It is motherhood. There are no teeth in it. This is the kind of legislation that Liberal Governments have introduced.

If the Hon. Member for Vegreville, who in his visions of grandeur is going to be Minister of Transport, is going to put the same damn thing in the legislation concerning the Crowsnest Pass rate that is already in the National Transportation Act and the Railway Act, that is why my colleague from Vancouver-Kingsway said that it is fluff. I say it is window dressing.

If the Hon. Member for Vegreville means business, he will have his colleagues move some subamendments in order to put some teeth in this amendment. All he wants to do is repeat what is already in the legislation. I do not know if he has any experience trying to have the present legislation enforced. If you try with this amendment, you will be no better off than you are under the legislation already in place.

I have here a couple of pages from the National Transportation Act. I invite you, Mr. Speaker, to read it. Then read through the amendment which is two pages long, written by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster. It is amazing how much of the wording is similar, identical to, or fits in with what is already in the Railway Act and the National Transportation Act.

There is nobody in this House who will complain about the objectives of the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster. We will not complain about that. His objectives are beautiful. We agree with those objectives. When are the Tory Party members going to put their actions where their mouths are? When are they going to put, in this kind of amendment, how they can compel the railways to live up to the law? No Government, Liberal or Tory, since the National Transportation Act, the Railway Act, or even the old legislation under Telegraphs, Canals and Railroads, has ever been able to enforce the law. If the Government had the political will and the popular support, and any Government has the popular support to enforce the present law, we would not need this amendment which is supported by the Hon. Member for Vegreville.

Mr. Mazankowski: I wonder if the Hon. Member would permit a question.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) accept a question?

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, I would be delighted to entertain a question from my hon. friend. I assume from that that you will allow a minute and a half extra for my speaking time.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: We will need the unanimous consent of the House to extend the Hon. Member's time.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, since the Hon. Member for Regina West finds so much fault with Motion No. 58, is he satisfied with the provision that has been incorporated in this Bill by the Government, which really states that the provision of Section 262 of the Railway Act shall apply? I take it, since he has found fault with this and found it inadequate, that he finds the provisions of 34(4) acceptable. Is that correct? Would I be correct in assuming that?

Mr. Benjamin: Is the Hon. Member talking about Motion No. 58?

Mr. Mazankowski: Clause 34.

Mr. Benjamin: In response to the Hon. Member's question, maybe he has been involved with Section 262 as well as myself. I have certainly been involved with Section 262 before the Canadian Transport Commission on at least two, or maybe three, other issues. We lost every time. I am objecting to a repetition. He has put, in different words, what is already in the Railway Act and the National Transportation Act. Every time a group of farmers, shippers or consignees tried to get protection under the present legislation, they were defeated. Where does Motion No. 58 make any damn difference from what is already in place?

The Hon. Member for Vegreville should get a couple of his colleagues to move some subamendments to put teeth into this so that it becomes something more than, and different from, what is in the Railway Act and the National Transportation Act. Under Section 26 the Hon. Member for Medicine Hat is perfectly aware of a case that we took to the CTC about livestock cars. Even though we proved that the railways were destroying and scrapping their equipment, the CTC said that it thought the railways were making a real effort. Instead of 1,100 stock cars, we got 500.

We went to the CTC under Section 262, which the Hon. Member for Vegreville just mentioned. There were numerous submissions, letters, and phone calls. The CTC said that its interpretation of Section 262 of the Act was the same as what is in the amendment of the Hon. Member for Vegreville. It said that the railroads were making a reasonable effort. However, the time is long overdue. We should give the railroads two choices in the provision of service to shippers, either compulsory or "they have to".

I know that this will appeal to the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor). Let us visualize his version of a fully private enterprise, free, and open market government in this country, where all the railroads were privately owned but would not provide suitable accommodation, which is in the amendment of the Hon. Member for Vegreville. Would the Hon. Member for Bow River make it compulsory? Would he interfere?

When will the Tory Party make up its mind? A public, common utility that everyone must use directly and indirectly is the railway. It is the same as a sewer line and water line, and at the moment our rail lines are like sewer lines. However, everyone must use them. It is not possible to reconcile a public utility under an amendment such as the one supported by the Hon. Member for Vegreville. It has not worked the Railway Act and the National Transportation Act. He is simply duplicating them without putting much teeth into it. This indicates to me that, should the Hon. Member ever become the Minister of Transport again—and I wish him well— if he is going to incorporate legislation which has nothing more to it than this amendment, then he will lose. He will lose just like five of his predecessors have lost. I remind the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) about a previous Minister of Transport who said to him and me behind the curtain in this House that someone should tell the railroads that they are not running this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member's time has expired. Is there unanimous consent for the Hon. Member to continue?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Len Gustafson (Assiniboia): Mr. Speaker, by dealing with this motion introduced by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) we have finally arrived at an amendment which deals with some of the very serious concerns of the producers and shippers of grain. It is interesting to note in connection with the term "accommodation for grain traffic", that the last two speakers for the NDP, the Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell) and the Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), went to great lengths to point out how frivolous this amendment is, in their opinion.

However, I would suggest that finally in this debate, at ten minutes to four, we have arrived at some substance. The Hon. Member for Regina West has been talking about what is wrong with this Bill, but it was he and his Party who did not support a grains co-ordinator when, in fact, the grains co-ordinator was trying to bring together that which was not being carried out by the railroads.

I wish to point out some clauses in the motion which are specifically important. They deal with the loading of grains, and the receiving of grains. We have producer cars on the Prairies. This means that a primary producer can order a car and load it at a siding where the railroads service the cars, deliver them and make accommodation available for the producer to do the same. I suggest that this is an area which could be improved, that is, splitting a producer car. While this is not addressed in this motion, it is certainly an area of concern and the Minister should consider this matter at some point when enhancing the position of producers loading cars on a siding. This is quite permissible and happens quite often in various areas where the producers do not load through the elevator or a grain company but choose to order cars on their own.

This Bill deals with this situation, but the NDP consider this frivolous, instead of being concerned with the situation that faces the producers. Of course this is due to the fact that many NDP Members are not permit holders or farmers and do not really understand the intricate workings of the grain system and the problems faced by the producers, the shippers, and those who load cars. In this case I am talking about cars that are spotted as producer cars.

Another area which I do not believe has been dealt with concerns Clause 34(4) which states:

> Such grain shall be taken, carried to and from, and delivered at the places aforesaid on the due payment of the toll lawfully imposed by this Act.

Under our freeze provision, this would mean that the statutory Crow rate would remain in place at least until 1986. Of course the Hon. Member for Regina West did not deal with that specifically, but circumvented our freeze position. That, of course, is most important to the farmers and producers because it would guarantee a freight rate until some sanity could prevail on the Government side. I make that comment to the Government with respect to the ability of the producer to pay. I began to speak about this issue earlier this evening, that this ability would be upheld by this Clause 34(4) and our freeze provision. I think it is most important to consider the ability of the producer to pay.

I already indicated this evening that the House should understand the position of the Progressive Conservative Party in regard to this Bill. We are in favour of the development and the work proceeding. We do not like to hear the Government saying that we want to stop jobs or stop development. That is not true. Our contention is simply over the ability to pay. We are saying that the Government of Canada should accept the responsibility of paying the railroads for the enhancement and for the upgrading that the producers do not have the ability to pay for at this time of falling world prices and an increase in freight rates.

The Canadian producers are facing a very difficult situation when one considers the competition they meet as a result of subsidies that are paid in other countries around the world. These countries include the United States, the European Common Market countries, and Argentina, where the freight is completely paid for, and Australia where the grain growing areas are close to open waters. These situations are taken into account in Clause 34(4). Of course our provisions would also include the freeze which would open the door for the primary producer to achieve what I believe is possible for Canada.

Mr. Benjamin: That is my speech.

Mr. Gustafson: The Hon. Member for Regina West says that that is his speech. A new Canada could emerge.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I would like to ask the advice of the Chair. Is there any way that another Member of the House of Commons can sue a colleague for plagiarism? He is making my speech over again.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member is not making a point of order. I call to the attention of the Hon. Member for Assiniboia (Mr. Gustafson) that his time has expired. Is there unanimous consent for the Hon. Member to continue?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville): Mr. Speaker, I wish to make a few short comments on Motion No. 58. I am sure you would sympathize with me when I say that it is certainly one of the longest motions we have seen in this debate during the last few weeks, because you had to read it earlier this morning.

I would certainly support the motion. I would assume that most Members on the Opposition side would do so. I predict that all Members on the Opposition side would support the motion. The Government could also support it. My research on this motion tells me that almost everything that is said in here comes under either the Railway Act or the National Transportation Act. Maybe the Hon. Member feels that a number of these provisions should be repeated. If that is so, being such a good friend, I think we will support it. However, it is probably not an important amendment in terms of making any new points.

However, the Hon. Member covers and reinforces a number of points that are important in terms of transportation. That is why we have the National Transportation Act and the Railway Act.

This motion outlines a number of things the company should do, including ensuring an adequate and suitable accommodation for receiving and loading of grain, in terms of loading grain onto the railways. That is important. There are many examples in my riding over the years where we have had problems in terms of adequate facilities for loading grain onto the railway cars. But that is already covered in the National Transportation Act. I think the provision is strong enough to be enforced in that Act, even after the Liberal Government has abolished the Crow as it is determined to do.

This amendment simply reintroduces something that is in the National Transportation Act. It states that the company shall furnish adequate and suitable accommodation for the carrying, unloading, and delivering of grain. It says that this must be done without delay, with due care and diligence.

Almost all of the points made in this amendment already exist in the National Transportation Act or the Railway Act. The Conservatives are attempting to incorporate references to the Administrator and the new Senior Grain Transportation Committee. As I have said, for that reason I believe it is probably wiser to support Motion No. 58 and it would be to oppose it.

Mr. Mazankowski: No, vote against it.

Mr. Nystrom: I have been invited to vote against it. I find that a very strange way to lobby on behalf of farmers. You put a lot of work into something and you have some researchers—

• (0400)

Mr. Mazankowski: Isn't that awful? Do not support it.

Mr. Nystrom: I am the only one so far who has been complimenting what you put before the House. I am trying to be nice and generous. I am sure the Member who moved the motion, the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight), would not react that way. He has a bit of grace and a bit of respect and decency. I am sure he appreciates a little bit of extra support for this motion that is before the House. I am surprised at the attitude of the Hon. Member for Vegreville. Maybe it is because of the wee hour of the morning. If it is, maybe he should go and get a bit of sleep.

Mr. Mazankowski: It is because of your claptrap.

Mr. Nystrom: Well, there is an expert on claptrap, if I ever saw one, sitting across the way.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. I would ask Hon. Members to remember the decorum of the House even though the hour is late. The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom).

An Hon. Member: Let the Hon. Member himself go back to sleep.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, I think the Hon. Member for Saskatoon West (Mr. Hnatyshyn), if he wants to speak, can get the floor a little bit later on.

A number of the things I mentioned are very important. I suppose the reason they are is that they were reiterated by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster and he wants to make sure they are covered, because the retention of the Crow is very important to our having a good transportation system in this country.

The Hon. Member for Assiniboia (Mr. Gustafson) was making a few points earlier that a number of us have made before, that other countries around the world do subsidize their grain producers. The Argentinians subsidize freight rates. The Australian producers are all very close to sea ports. There are massive subsidies in the European Common Market. We are all aware of that. You could spend a long time putting on the record the subsidies that are paid by the European Common Market.

I had a chance, with the Hon. Member for Calgary South (Mr. Thomson), and the Minister of Trade, to go last November to the GATT meeting in Geneva. It was a real eye-opener for the three of us and the officials accompanying us to see and hear the kinds of arguments going on between the Europeans and the Americans about subsidies, and to learn about the kinds of support which other countries were giving their grain producers. I would like to suggest to you that the support offered by our Crow rate in return is not an exaggeration in any way whatever. The Crow rate gives us an opportunity to be competitive with other countries around the world. Their subsidies are massive indeed. I remind you that their producers are a lot closer to a sea port than ours.

I do not know whether you, Mr. Speaker, coming from the Toronto area might not be aware that the farmers of Canada, particularly those in the Province of Saskatchewan, are farther away from a sea port than any other farmers in the world. That is why it is so important the transportation system be efficient and that it be there at the cheapest possible rate per bushel, or per tonne, for our farmers so we can be competitive with farmers around the world. Since we have to go farther than the others, it is important that we keep the Crow.

The Americans have the Mississippi and the Missouri River systems. The Europeans are close to the sea. The Argentinians are close to the sea. The Australians and the New Zealeanders are close to the sea. We have a long way to get to a deep water port. It is therefore important that we have a very efficient transportation system. It is an important reason why the Wheat Board must remain the sole authority in terms of organization of the system and in terms of allocating the box cars, in terms of making sure that the system runs on behalf of the farmers of this land.

Motion No. 58 is a reference to a whole series of things. It talks about the Commission and the regulations that can be made and can be applied. You can go on and on and on. I refer to the many different items in detail that are repeated here in the motion that is before the House. As I said before, many of these things, not all, are referred to in the Railway Act or the National Transportation Act. I suppose that is why the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell), learned lawyer that he is, said this amendment is really a piece of fluff. I guess he means by that it is fluff because it is padded and is a repetition of something that is already in the statutes of the land. I guess that is also why he said in many ways it exposes the Conservatives' attitude toward the Crow. They are trying to have it both ways. They are trying to make believe they are actually fighting for the Crow, but they are not really doing much to protect it.

When you cut through all the verbiage in this amendment, you find that it does not really change anything in terms of existing legislation. I think, because my Conservative friends come from the Prairies and have put forth in a small way the arguments of the farmers, I will certainly will be voting for and in favour of Motion No. 58. I see you are being very polite, Mr. Speaker, and signalling that my time is up. Rather than make you stand up at this hour of the morning and call me to order, I will sit down.

Mr. Charles Mayer (Portage-Marquette): Mr. Speaker, there are a couple of things I want to say. First, I want to deal with a few of the interventions made by the NDP and to dismiss them as quickly as I can because this is an important amendment and I want to get to the parts of it that are most important. I am pleased to see the Minister is here. I hope, when I have finished speaking, the Minister will be aware of some of our concerns and why this amendment was moved by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight).

When the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell) called this amendment fluff, I would like to point out to the House that he managed to attend parts of one afternoon Committee meeting in Vancouver and he made three interventions. The Chairman ruled on one of them that the question put did not have to be answered because it was really a political question. If anyone was fluff in terms of his participation respecting this Bill when it was in committee, it was certainly the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway. Anything he may say may be dismissed as fluff, based on the kind of performance he showed in committee.

With regard to what we just heard from the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom), when he said that we want to have it both ways, I would like to ask him or his Party to explain why, on the one hand, they say they are in favour of keeping the Crow and, on the other hand, move an amendment that, in effect, has the purpose of dismissing the Crow. As soon as the NDP agree to a safety net above the level of the Crow, to my mind at least it means the NDP has changed its tune or position. Members of the NDP are the ones who are trying to have it both ways.

That is enough about the NDP except to say, when they stand up and bemoan not having a Liberal Government or a Tory Government that will ever do anything on behalf of the railways, and when we see their performance here tonight and how sad it is, we can understand why the NDP will never be in a position to form a government. If the performance of the Members of the NDP is any indication of what would happen if the NDP were in government, we have to be thankful that the prospect of the NDP forming a government is very, very remote, and slim indeed. That is something we have to be thankful for during this late evening.

Let me speak about the motion. I think the Minister will agree with me that a preferable way to proceed with this Bill would have been to make some of the money available to producers so they could put some efficiency into the system themselves. But that is not the case. Given that fact, and because we deal with a regulated industry—any of us who sat in the committee this summer could not help but realize what a regulated and totally controlled industry it is—surely it becomes incumbent upon the Government to see to it to the best of its ability that the railways that are regulated to perform, do the kinds of things this Bill intends and instructs them to do. That is what this amendment does.

In many respects the railways should not be able to have it both ways. They should not be able to live freely in a regulated society. They should not be able to get money without expecting to have some regulations by which they have to live. In fact, that is what Motion 58 does. The NDP can talk all it wants about its similarity to Section 262 of the Railway Act. There are a lot of similarities, except that what this motion does is to collect parts of the Railway Act and the National Transportation Act that are applicable to grain, and translate them into language that is specifically applicable to grain. I would argue in this respect it should be more effective than Section 262 of the Railway Act. When we have a regulated industry, of which the railways are a part and the Government is a part, surely the railways should expect some regulations to be put in place to see they perform.

Second, when we do have so many regulations, and all the money is going to the railways, I would also suggest that it is incumbent upon us to see that the amount of money that is going to the railways is as lean as possible. What you are going to have is inflationary costs borne by the Government and the producers. That inflationary increase will be based on the initial amount of money with which we start. In many ways that was the fault of the Gilson process.

The people at the Gilson meetings, to my mind, were more concerned than they should have been about some of the things that came about after the agreement. There was not enough concern about the producers initially, and about the Government's share of the money. Everybody was concerned about getting a piece of the pie. The bigger amount of money they could pile on the table and which the Government was going to commit—and we have to give the Government credit for putting a large amount of money on the table—the more money there was to be shared, everyone thought part of that money was going to go to the producers and, the more you started with, the more would be spread among producers. We know now that is not going to happen. When you start from a position where all of the money goes to the railways, I think it is incumbent upon us to see that the railways perform and to see their bill is as lean as possible.

When you get to a situation in subsequent years, just to make my point, say in the 1986-1987 crop year, when producers are asked to pick up a share of the increase based on the initial amount of money, which is the $651 million, taken roughly—it is not quite exactly that—as their increased cost goes up as time goes on, the phased in contribution to constant costs will be $165.61 million. That figure is the Minister of Transport's figure. At the same time, the producers' payment, if there was no increase in Crow, would amount to almost the same amount. It would amount to $168.2 million.

We are dealing with a lot of money as far as the producer is concerned. I am just talking about the share of the money the railways will get as a result of this Bill, and which is their contribution to constant costs. That will be almost equal to what the producer would be paying in 1986-1987 if there were no increase in the Crow. In fact, that is the Crow rate. That is a lot of money.

Again, when the producer is going to be asked to pick up his share, and the Government, and the taxpayer, then it is incumbent that we write as many regulations into the Bill as possible to see that the railways perform. If they do not perform and we have an inefficient system, and the costs are higher than they should be, and there are not proper regulations to ensure that the railways perform, everyone will lose. Then the producers will pay more because they will be financing an inefficient system, and because the Government is going to be picking up the inflationary costs over 6 per cent in 1985-1986, the Government stands to lose as well. That means the taxpayers lose. Despite the fact that I do not like regulations and I would much sooner see some inefficiencies in the marketplace through paying some of that money to the producer, we feel that because of the Government's position on this, whereby all the money goes to the railways, we need regulations.

To me that makes a certain amount of sense, Mr. Speaker. I do not understand what the problem is. If the Government chooses to pay all the money to the railway, why would not the Government see to it that there are adequate stipulations in the Bill to ensure that the railways perform? We are asking that the CTC do this.

To the best of our knowledge, the CTC is the one neutral body we have in the country. Admittedly it is an agent of Government, but we know that it has acted in the past not necessarily in accord with the Government. The Government has disagreed with the Commission and, on occasion, has had to overrule it, but basically it is an independent body. It has some very good people in the western division in Saskatoon. By the way, we managed to get a definition in the Bill which defines the western division based in Saskatoon. We are not asking that the railways or the Government administer this. We are asking that a well-respected, independent agency of Government administer the amendment contained in Motion No. 58. That makes good sense to me.

I notice the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) is listening to my comments. I appreciate that very much. All the money goes to the railways. There is no room in the Bill, as I see it, for efficiency in the marketplace because some of the money should go to producers. I think the Minister would agree with that. He has indicated as much. He indicated that there will be a review process, immediately upon the Bill being passed, to look at the method of payment. Because of those things and because producers will be forced to pick up part of the increased costs, as time goes on we think that in order to guard producers and taxpayers as much as possible we need many teeth in the Bill to force the railways to perform. Very simply that is what the amendment indicates.

The Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) dealt with the guts of the specific subclauses in the motion, as did the Hon. Member who introduced it. I have attempted to outline broadly the initiatives which we say would flow from this amendment and how they would benefit producers, the Government and, therefore, Canadian taxpayers. To my way of thinking it is an eminently reasonable amendment which I hope the Government would look favourably on and support.

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, during the course of the debate on this particular amendment I have received several entreaties from Hon. Members opposite to respond and to comment on Motion No. 58. My participation comes at a late hour, as we all know. I suppose I could say that I have taken proper account of nocturnal submissions. However, there are one or two submissions which are very sensitive to the proposals in this motion.

One of the last points of the Hon. Member for Portage-Marquette (Mr. Mayer) concerned the ability to pay, and that there was a government choice. I remind Hon. Members that that is not totally accurate. If he recalls the various proposals put forward during the committee hearings, he will remember that there was no consensus because major prairie producer groups, the Pools in particular, were prime proponents of payments to the railroads. If Hon. Members opposite are asking us listen to the voices of producers, this is a very clear example of us responding to the voice of some 60 per cent of them in the prairie region, and the Pool organizations, both of which were very adamant.

The Hon. Member made a very important corollary, that with the elimination of the producer payment under the 50/50 system there has to be a somewhat different form of discipline to ensure performance because the market system would no longer have the same application, force or leverage it would otherwise have. We believe that the requirement for the use of Section 262 under the Railway Act was a proper recognition of that need. We felt that the clear obligation arising from it would provide the performance requirements which were the concern of many of us who appeared before the committee. Of course these requirements have been raised this evening. However, I have taken note of the very strong arguments made by Hon. Members of both opposition Parties.

Perhaps the simple mention of the obligation under Section 262 is in itself insufficient, in particular in relation to precedents which have been set, and perhaps the more extensive or elaborate wording of the amendment put forward by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) should be and could be a more comprehensive set of criteria which would impose performance obligations upon the railroads. I am prepared to consider that suggestion. However, I would point out that during the course of committee proceedings there were some fairly lively and difficult exchanges between legal counsel as to the implications of accepting the amendment. Counsel for the Department was of the strong opinion that Section 262 was sufficient and that to accept the whole wording of the proposed amendment might create some further legal complications. This raised some question marks.

I want to return to the offer of the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski). He recognized that there may be need for some re-working of the language of this particular amendment in order to eliminate what might be complications perhaps resulting in contrary decisions being made in relation to the Railway Act, under the Bill. We want to have some degree of harmony and to eliminate contradiction. Of course that takes time. I think all Hon. Members would recognize that we cannot expect legal counsel to be available at 4.22 o'clock in the morning. I know that public servants are very diligent and responsive to the command of their political Ministers, but at this time of the morning it would be too much to expect them to be on call.

An Hon. Member: Why not?

Mr. Axworthy: They are not exactly a 24-hour hamburger service. In order to obtain the sharp, pristine legal judgment we require, we would expect them to have a proper night's sleep, unlike Members of Parliament who, we presume, are able to function, even if they have to attend Cabinet meetings at eight o'clock in the morning.

I will take into account Motion No. 58, but obviously I would like the time to consult with legal counsel. Perhaps at that time I would be in a position to respond to the concerns of Hon. Members of the Opposition or to determine if the complications are too overwhelming to accept. Perhaps some other wording might be accepted, or adapted, which would incorporate the reference to grain requirements throughout the Bill without getting into the contradictory propositions mentioned by legal counsel during the committee hearings. I think Hon. Members opposite would understand my concern as the Minister responsible for the Bill. I cannot require us to come back with further amendments which would not be harmonious with legal principles.

I would be prepared to take a hard look at Motion No. 58, but I would want to be able to give it the kind of assessment it requires. Obviously we would require some time in order to determine the possibilities. Knowing that Hon. Members opposite are anxious for us to proceed with such an examination, I would like to move, seconded by the Hon. Member for Parkdale-High Park (Mr. Flis):

That the House do now adjourn.

Some Hon. Members: Shame.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The House has heard the terms of the motion. Is it the pleasure of the House to adopt the motion?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those in favour of the motion will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In my opinion, the yeas have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Call in the Members.

The House divided on the motion (Mr. Axworthy) which was agreed to on the following division:

MEDICAL CARE

TRIBUTE TO PERSONNEL INVOLVED IN SAVING LIFE OF OTTAWA YOUTH

Hon. Jake Epp (Provencher): Mr. Speaker, it is with mixed emotions of sadness, pride, and concern that I address Members of the House today. Sadness stems from the most unfortunate accident involving Steven Gerald Bednas, an Ottawa youth whose legs had to be amputated as a result of a tragic accident last Friday when he was caught in a box shredder. The pride, stems from the effort by doctors, ambulance attendants, firefighters and policemen, whose joint efficient efforts saved the life of this young man.

With such a gallant team effort one is reluctant to impart special recognition to a select few individuals. Unfortunately, the names of all those involved are not yet available. Nevertheless, the heroic humanitarianism and professionalism displayed by Drs. Barry Armstrong and Charles Buckley, of the Canadian Armed Forces, and by Dr. Justin Maloney of the Ottawa General Hospital, deserve recognition for their efforts in saving Steven Bednas' life. Also deserving a great deal of credit is Dr. Armstrong's wife who, upon witnessing the accident, ran to inform her husband and called Dr. Buckley to assist him. What is especially remarkable about the contribution by these doctors is that they were not on duty at the time. They were preparing for a special function that evening. Yet they committed themselves to saving that young man's life without concern for time or legalities.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I rise with concern, because evidently some equipment necessary to deal with the crisis was not on hand. Some of the equipment needed had to be brought in from the Ottawa General because it is not carried by ambulances. Dr. Armstrong indicated that if a paramedical system had been in existence the equipment would have been available from the start. Equipment and special training are essential. The example of the need for both in this case was revealed in the training that Dr. Armstrong received at the National Defence Medical Centre, known as the Advanced Trauma Life Saving System.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. I regret to interrupt the Hon. Member, but his allotted time has expired.

INDUSTRY

RECOMMENDATION TO CANCEL LIQUOR EXCISE TAX PENDING TASK FORCE REPORT

Mr. Louis Duclos (Montmorency-Orléans): Mr. Speaker, the situation today is very difficult for Canadian distilleries and their employees. The industry is operating at 40 per cent of its production capacity, and the number of jobs has reached its lowest level since 1965. In my own riding, several dozen workers have been laid off in recent months. In the circumstances, the 13.3 per cent increase in the excise tax on liquor which has been in effect since September 1 of this year has increased the hardship for the industry and its employees.

I know this automatic increase merely maintains the ratio between federal excise taxes and the final sale price. I am also aware that the federal Government receives only 31 per cent of the revenue collected by all governments on sales of alcoholic beverages, while 10 years ago, its share was 40 per cent. Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, in view of the extent of the problems with which the Canadian distillery industry is faced, I suggest the excise tax increase should be cancelled, pending recommendations by the task force responsible for looking into this matter, which was announced last summer by the Minister of Finance (Mr. Lalonde).

Finally, I would like to remind the Government that substantial increases in the tax on liquor may bring about an equally substantial drop in sales, thus reducing the total amount of tax revenue.

STATUS OF WOMEN

BATTLE FOR EQUALITY

Mr. Lee Clark (Brandon-Souris): Mr. Speaker, this is an especially opportune week for all of us to recognize the progress Canadian women have made toward full equality. But it is also important at this time to recognize that there are victories still to come.

Yesterday a Manitoba lawyer named Isabel Ross Hunt was presented by the Governor General with the Persons Award.

The award was established on the fiftieth anniversary of the recognition in Canadian law that women were persons and, therefore, could become Senators. Since that landmark ruling, women have fought diligently for legal and economic equality. But the battle is not over. For our part, as parliamentarians, we can support the recognition of homemakers in the Canada Pension Plan. We can actively encourage an increase in the role of women in the political process, and we can seek greater representation of women in the Senate.

For her part, Isabel Ross Hunt, who is an authority on family law, has made important inroads with regard to property rights. But the battle for full equality ought not to be fought by women alone. Indeed, those who seek full recognition of women's rights do so knowing that to achieve the goal is to achieve a better Canada.

RAILWAYS

AMENDMENT OF CROWSNEST PASS RATE—INDUSTRIAL REPERCUSSIONS

Mr. Gaston Gourde (Lévis): Mr. Speaker, passing Bill C-155 will mean that capital expenditures of $16.5 billion will be made by the railways, and 375,000 person-years of employment will be created. Canadian National plans to spend over $10 billion and Canadian Pacific will be spending $6.5 billion over the next eight years. Most of the money will be used to renew, upgrade and extend railway networks in the West. Thus, the industrial impact will be felt across the country, not only in Western Canada where much of the construction will be done but also in the East, where the steel and equipment is manufactured. The bulk of these expenditures will depend on whether the Bill is passed and on changes in the Crow rate. The railroads have already started their projects, in anticipation of passage of the Bill. Mr. Speaker, in Quebec we intend to spend $308 million over the next four years on upgrading equipment and facilities. CN and CP are expected to spend about $1.4 billion on railway supplies and equipment in the next decade, in the Province of Quebec alone. The Government intends to order 3,840 new hopper cars, most of which will be built in Quebec. Mr. Speaker, this is another good reason why Hon. Members opposite should stop their delaying tactics.

HUMAN RIGHTS

SOUTH AFRICA—INTERNMENT OF REVEREND SMANGALISO MKHATSHWA

Mr. Bob Ogle (Saskatoon East): Mr. Speaker, today a referendum is taking place in South Africa to see how South Africans will react to a new constitution which will permit three Parliaments in that country. One Parliament will represent the whites, of which there are about 4,300,000; one Parliament will represent the coloured, of which there are about 2,400,000; one Parliament will represent the Indians, of which there are about 750,000; and the blacks, who represent about 18,600,000, will not have a Parliament at all. The referendum is not binding. Nevertheless, it is being voted on only by whites. The executive authority of the constitution still permits the President and the executive to be appointed by a panel comprised of a majority of whites. In general, it is a mockery of democratic life. The blacks, who still provide the labour force, are banished to the homelands. In actual fact they are disposable labour. It is a trick to improve the image of South Africa to the rest of the world.

On top of all this, Reverend Smangaliso Mkhatshwa, a Roman Catholic priest and Secretary General of the Catholic Bishops of South Africa, has been interned. I would like the House of Commons to support this man who is known for his stand on human rights and equality for blacks. We should protest his internment, along with South African Catholic Bishops, and demand that he be removed from detention immediately.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

PREVENTION OF FUTURE WARS

Mr. Jack Burghardt (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Communications): Mr. Speaker, on November 11, 1983, Canadians across the land will share in Remembrance Day ceremonies. It is of concern to me that November 11 not only continue to be a day of commemoration, and of pride in those who served their country, but a day to reflect upon the present and future course of our great country.

The events of the last few months have escalated global tensions. Not since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis have we been so acutely aware of a possible movement toward war. On Remembrance Day we will honour those who gave their lives in past wars. Perhaps the greatest tribute we could pay to these courageous men and women is to work as parliamentarians toward preventing future wars and the loss of life and property that would result. It is my hope that we will do everything in our power to promote and ensure world peace.

Furthermore, I urge my hon. colleagues to lend their support to the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) as he embarks next week on a round of talks with world leaders in an effort to reduce global tensions.

EMPLOYMENT

GOVERNMENT POLICIES—QUEBEC UNEMPLOYMENT RATE

Mr. Jim Hawkes (Calgary West): Mr. Speaker, today, the Parliament of Canada has 64 Liberal Members for Quebec. For nearly 18 years the Liberal Party has been in power, but year after year, Quebecers have been saddled with a high unemployment rate. In my view, neither youth nor the workers of this country or this Province but the Liberal Members of the House are to blame. Their policies on energy, agriculture, industry and tourism have caused a great deal of harm.

Canadian citizens need a federal election, a new, Conservative Government that understands that specific policies are necessary for each region and each Province.

Mr. Speaker, the responsibility lies with the Liberal Members and their failure to speak up and take the intitiative with respect to these problems. Voters want and need to make a new choice. After four years it is time for a federal election.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES—CANADIAN MEMBERSHIP URGED

Mr. Bill Yurko (Edmonton East): Mr. Speaker, throughout the years Canada has permitted its influence and presence in the affairs of the Caribbean and Latin America to recede by failing to join the Organization of American States.

On July 9, 1982, I moved a motion in the House asking for Canadian membership in the Organization of American States, but did not receive unanimous consent. Subsequently the Chairman, the Hon. Member for Labelle (Mr. Dupras), of the Subcommittee on Canada's relations with Latin America, publicly recommended that Canada join the OAS. Indeed, even the Minister of Justice (Mr. MacGuigan) indicated to the news media his disposition for full Canadian membership in the OAS.

● (1415)

The United States of America is a member of the OAS but is not a member of the OECS, the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States. In my view Canada's possible influence in the Grenada events was severely limited by its stubborn refusal to join, and lack of membership in, the Organization of American States. I therefore call upon the Government to review again its foreign policy with regard to Latin American nations and the Caribbean nations, and undertake to become a full member of the Organization of American States at the earliest opportunity.

METRIC CONVERSION

COURT DECISION ON LEGALITY OF IMPERIAL AND METRIC MEASUREMENT SYSTEMS—GOVERNMENT POSITION

Mr. Bill Domm (Peterborough): Mr. Speaker—

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Domm: —I would like to take this opportunity to address my question to the representative of the tiny group of fanatics or the dinosaurs, namely, the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, who is not present. In her absence I would direct my question to the Prime Minister. In light of the recent judgment in Toronto that both imperial and metric measurement are legal in Canada today, is it the intention of the Prime Minister to proceed as it is the intention of the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, who, at 1.30 today, said that the judgment will not stop the Government "from proceeding with its position on mandatory metric"? What is the position of the Government of Canada in light of the decision of the judge in the court in Toronto?

Mr. David Berger (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs): Mr. Speaker—

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Berger: I thank the Hon. Member for his question. The Minister has had the opportunity to comment upon it and will obviously be saying more, now that she has arrived in the Chamber. However, I would remind the Hon. Member of the purpose behind the Government's position, that to allow both systems could lead to confusion and put the consumer in a weaker position when it comes to verifying price increases, which I understand is a concern of the Hon. Member and his Party. Further, the law and regulations were designed to ensure equity in the marketplace for the consumer and between retailers. I am sure that the Hon. Member supports these objectives.

Mr. Domm: I cannot say that I appreciate the answer representing the tiny group of fanatics in the Government who think that mandatory metric is the only route to go.

INQUIRY WHETHER APPEAL WILL BE LAUNCHED

Mr. Bill Domm (Peterborough): Mr. Speaker, I will address my supplementary question to the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, or whomever. Given the fact that Judge William Ross described the methods of your inspectors as draconian, and your actions in enforcing poorly drafted regulations as devoid of any semblance of decency, fairness and natural justice, is it the intention of the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs to agree with the judge, or to ignore the judge and go through the process of appeal?

Hon. Judy Erola (Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs): Of course, Mr. Speaker, we will follow the law. We have not yet received a written decision. When we do, we will base our appeal on that decision. At the moment, of course, the law prevails and we will not be able to enforce any of those regulations in the Province of Ontario.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

● (1420)

APPLICATION OF LAW

Mr. Bill Domm (Peterborough): Mr. Speaker, on behalf of all the citizens of Canada I ask this question of the Prime Minister. The Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, who represents a tiny group of fanatics, the dinosaurs of this nation, says that in Ontario we are free to use imperial and metric. What does the Prime Minister say is the case as it applies to all of Canada?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I cannot comment on fanatics, but I do know that the dinosaurs are those who refuse to see metric is world-wide in its scope and that Canada has to live in the world if it wants to trade in the world. I also know that the Hon. Member's Party voted in support of the metric system. The metric system was first brought in by Tory Prime Minister John A. Macdonald. So much for the dinosaurs.

I understand that the judgment just came out.

Some Hon. Members: It is just a judgment. It is just a judge.

Mr. Trudeau: Yes, it is just a judgment until all appeals have been exhausted, or until a decision has been made not to go to appeal.

An Hon. Member: Walk on water, Pierre.

Mr. Trudeau: Mr. Speaker, I appeal to the Leader of the Opposition and remind him once again that he has talked repeatedly about civility in the House of Commons. I wish he would talk to his own caucus rather than talking to the press.

ENFORCEMENT OF REGULATIONS—APPLICATION OF CHARTER OF RIGHTS

Hon. Ray Hnatyshyn (Saskatoon West): Mr. Speaker, I want to ask the Prime Minister a very important question with respect to the Charter of Rights and Judge Ross's very blistering attack on government activities in terms of regulations which infringe on the rights of individual citizens of this country. Will the Prime Minister do the just thing in the spirit of the Charter of Rights, and give direction that, until this matter is resolved, regulations which allow the metric enforcement squad to go in and shut down the livelihood and operations of service station operators in Canada are not to be enforced?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member should remember that the Charter of Rights, which is binding upon all Canadians, is the work of this Government. His Party fought the Charter of Rights for a year, saying that it should only be done after patriation of the Constitution, which really meant it never would have been done because we know the difficulty there was, even before patriation, to get agreement from the Provinces.

Mr. Speaker, there is a Charter of Rights to protect the citizens. The courts are there to enforce the Charter of Rights. As the Minister said, we want to live with the laws and the Charter as they are willed by this Parliament. Let the process go through the courts; then the Government will decide if the law is an infringement of the Charter or not. If the courts decide that the regulations are an infringement of the Charter they will be changed, obviously.

GOVERNMENT POLICY INQUIRY

Hon. Ray Hnatyshyn (Saskatoon West): Mr. Speaker, I have a supplementary question for the Prime Minister. Judge Ross stated in his judgment that this Government regards the Charter of Rights only as a mere declaration. If the Prime Minister has any interest, aside from words and proclamations and declarations, will he take some active steps in terms of policy to prevent the Gestapo-like tactics such as those going on with respect to the metric enforcers and in the Department of National Revenue, to ensure that the spirit of the Charter of Rights, with respect to the rights of individuals vis-à-vis the Government, will be observed?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I suspect the Hon. Member is not quoting the judge correctly. If the judge said that this Government is considering the Charter only a declaration, then the judge does not know what he is talking about. I suspect that he is being misquoted.

Mr. Crosbie: Have you read the judgment?

Mr. Trudeau: I suspect he has been misquoted by the Hon. Member.

FISHERIES

FEES CHARGED TO BRITISH COLUMBIA GILLNET FISHERMEN

Miss Pauline Jewett (New Westminster-Coquitlam): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans. At the meeting with gillnet fishermen at Steveston on Monday, Mr. Parkinson, head of the Small Craft Harbours Branch, made only two minuscule cuts in the exorbitant charges being levied on gillnetters, charges which will ruin the majority of them. Will the Minister authorize the branch to hold up the proposed rates for at least a year while consultations take place? Will he, or his deputy, attend the meeting of gillnetters to be held in New Westminster this Friday, and hear the concerns of the gillnet fishermen directly from them?

• (1425)

Hon. Pierre De Bané (Minister of Fisheries and Oceans): Mr. Speaker, the commitment I can give to the Hon. Member is that I will personally review the whole case and, within a few days, make a final decision.

I should like to give a general outline of the matter so that Hon. Members will understand it. The fees that are charged by the Department for use of the facilities—and we have over 2,400 wharves and berthing facilities in Canada—are about 50 per cent of what the private sector charges for berthing facilities. The fees that fishermen pay for storing equipment with the Department are barely 20 per cent of what the private sector charges for similar facilities.

Our major investment in B.C. means that starting now, and in the years ahead, we will have to increase our expenditures substantially. I will review the case personally but I ask Hon. Members to think about this. If our fees are so high, why is the waiting list of fishermen who want to use the facilities of the Department, so long?

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

INVASION OF GRENADA—REPORTED WELCOME BY CITIZENS

Mr. David Kilgour (Edmonton-Strathcona): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Secretary of State for External Affairs. The Government has, in effect, condemned the landing of Caribbean and American forces on Grenada. My talks with dozens of randomly selected Grenadians last Sunday indicated that, without exception, they welcomed this as the liberation of their island. "We are free", was the most common comment. Will the Minister indicate whether popular support for the landing on that island would change the Government's position to any degree?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to hear that the Hon. Member had a successful visit, and I appreciate the comments he has made. In reply to his specific question about whether new factors have caused the Government to change its position on this particular matter, I have read very carefully the comments made by the Prime Minister and the Minister of State for International Trade and I have seen no developments, even in those comments made by the Hon. Member, that would cause the Government to change the opinion it has already expressed.

REPORTED MASSACRE BY SOLDIERS OF FORMER REGIME

Mr. David Kilgour (Edmonton-Strathcona): Mr. Speaker, on October 21 the Minister of State for External Relations said in the House that after a "decent period of time" the Government would be recognizing Messrs. Austin, Coard and company as the new Government of Grenada. Is the Government aware that, on October 19, coup soldiers massacred between 100 and 200 men, women and children, according to my advice from eyewitnesses of that incident at Fort Rupert? If so, why were the Liberals conditioning Canadian public opinion to accept such a brutal regime so quickly?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Madam Speaker, the Hon. Member refers to the loss of life at Fort Rupert. I know there has been a loss of life. His estimate of 100 to 200 is much greater than any estimate we have. We have no evidence that the number is greater than 20 or so, but the Hon. Member may have information not available to us. I assure the Hon. Member that he is rather unfair in suggesting that we were attempting to condition public opinion to the acceptance of this kind of activity.

FISHERIES

RESTRUCTURING OF FISHERIES IN QUEBEC—GOVERNMENT POSITION

Mr. Alexandre Cyr (Gaspé): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Hon. Minister of Fisheries and Oceans.

Could the Minister inform the House whether his offer to restructure the fisheries industry in Quebec still holds, considering the unwillingness expressed by a number of ship's captains in Newport who want to have their own factory, and could the Minister inform the House whether negotiations are continuing with fishermen in the Gaspé?

An Hon. Member: Good question!

Hon. Pierre De Bané (Minister of Fisheries and Oceans): Mr. Speaker, I am happy to inform the House that the federal Government's offer still stands, and I was very pleased to receive the support of the majority of Newport fishermen. However, should a majority of the Newport fishermen change their minds, I would then have to reconsider the federal Government's offer. If our offer cannot be maintained, all the efforts of the federal Government to prevent Pêcheurs-Unis from going bankrupt will have been for nothing, and not the creditors will lose money but the fishermen themselves who, with the factory workers, have invested over $1,200,000 of their own money in this co-operative, and the Government of Quebec and the Government of Canada who represent Canadian taxpayers as well. That is why we made an offer under which fishermen will not have to invest again, and we shall set up a large company in which fishermen, factory workers, unions, creditors and both Governments will be asked to work together. However, I repeat that if Newport changes its mind, I think we will have to reconsider our position, because—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I hesitate to interrupt the Hon. Minister, but his answer is getting longer and longer. Could he perhaps finish his answer?

Mr. De Bané: Very briefly then Mr. Speaker, the Canadian Government's offer is a comprehensive offer to the entire Pêcheurs-Unis movement, and if the Government of Quebec wants to take care of Newport, it is welcome to do so, provided it does the same for all other factories.

VIA RAIL

CANCELLATION OF TOUR SERVICE TO NORTHERN MANITOBA

Mr. Rod Murphy (Churchill): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Transport. As he is probably aware, there has been a lot of concern in northern Manitoba about the lack of service or co-operation by VIA Rail with the tourist industry. Churchill Wilderness Encounters cancelled five tours this year. Toronto based Horizon Holiday Tours have expressed absolute frustration in dealing with VIA. Travel Network of California has stopped bringing people to Churchill. Great West Tours of San Francisco have also stopped bringing people in.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member please ask his question?

Mr. Murphy: Mr. Speaker, it is not my fault that there are so many problems at VIA. Will the Minister investigate and see what he can do to improve the marketing practices of VIA, especially from Winnipeg to northern Manitoba?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, we are presently doing that.

UNITED NATIONS

NICARAGUAN RESOLUTION—GOVERNMENT POSITION

Hon. Sinclair Stevens (York-Peel): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Secretary of State for External Affairs. In view of the fact that a Nicaraguan resolution is up for debate in the UN General Assembly today, with a vote anticipated tomorrow, would the Minister indicate to the House the position the Government of Canada intends to take respecting this resolution? In particular, will the Government be voting in support of the resolution and continue its condemnation of the Caribbean countries' and American intervention in Grenada?

Mr. Broadbent: Where do you stand?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, instructions have not yet been delivered to the Canadian delegation on what position they ought to take on this resolution. The situation is changing rather quickly at the General Assembly. There may be amendments, there may be further resolutions, and until the situation is fully clarified it is not the intention of the Government to give specific instructions. But such instructions will be given, and the Canadian delegation will be asked to take a stand on this particular resolution.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

INVASION OF GRENADA—REQUEST FOR REFERRAL TO COMMITTEE

Hon. Sinclair Stevens (York-Peel): Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the Chairman of the Standing Committee on External Affairs and National Defence has not been seen in the House for questions since last Friday when I asked him if he would arrange through the steering committee—

Mr. Mulroney: There he is.

Mr. Stevens: Good. Mr. Speaker, would the chairman of that committee indicate to the House if he has now made arrangements for an immediate reference to be heard in that committee with respect to the Grenadian affair so that there can be an open discussion in a committee of this House about all facts and activities on Canada's role leading up to and during the intervention in Grenada?

[Translation]

Mr. Marcel Prud'homme (Saint-Denis): First of all, Mr. Speaker, I am very surprised that the Hon. Member should have noticed my absence since last Friday, for I was in the House yesterday, the day before yesterday, and I am here now. I did say quite clearly that I would consider the advisability of convening the steering committee. I might point out to the Hon. Member that I followed the debate earlier today, even though I had other consultations to make, as I had promised, behind the curtains and in private, that I would. I am still making them, but the Hon. Member will appreciate that he is not the only one I must consult. I paid close attention to the Oral Question Period today, although I was expecting another phone call during my consultations, and I wondered which of the two Members was the Official Opposition critic—the Hon. Member for Edmonton-Strathcona or the Hon. Member who has just taken the floor. I have to decide as well with whom I should negotiate. At 4.25 p.m. yesterday, I did receive a letter from the Hon. Member for Edmonton-Strathcona and, because the mail delivery service is sometimes slow, I got in touch with the Hon. Member's office first thing this morning to tell him I had received his letter. I have it here, in fact. I carry all my documents with me. I will continue my consultations, but I am not in a position to tell him whether—

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

AUDITOR GENERAL'S RESERVATIONS

Mr. Doug Lewis (Simcoe North): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the President of the Treasury Board who will know that the Auditor General has issued a qualified opinion on the 1982-83 Public Accounts. He stated in his opinion that he has four serious reservations about the fairness of the financial statements. In effect he is saying that they are misleading, and I suggest to the President of the Treasury Board that this is a serious matter for the taxpayers-shareholders of Canada. What steps is the Minister taking to encourage his officials to eliminate those reservations?

Hon. Herb Gray (President of the Treasury Board): Mr. Speaker, there is a difference of opinion between the Auditor General and our accounting advisers on the approach to the statements. The approach we are following is based on policies set out in a note to the statements, that we are primarily responsible to Parliament and our statements, therefore, have to respond to the legislation passed by Parliament. That is the basis on which the statements are being prepared. But the Comptroller General is already carrying out a study in depth into what the appropriate definition should be of the accounting entity in a way which is intended to address the concerns of the Auditor General. In doing this he is responding to a request of the Public Accounts Committee made last year.

Mr. Lewis: The Auditor General makes the point that it is not just a question of compliance, it is a question of not misleading the Canadian public.

CANADAIR AND DE HAVILLAND LOSSES

Mr. Doug Lewis (Simcoe North): Mr. Speaker, I have a further question to direct to the same Minister. One of those reservations involves the accumulated losses of Canadair and de Havilland. In Volume III these losses are written off and shown as deficits. In Volume I they are treated as explicit guarantees. Can the Minister tell us how we can go from a loss in one set of financial statements to a guarantee in another, and not mislead the Canadian public?

Hon. Herb Gray (President of the Treasury Board): Mr. Speaker, I want to repeat that there is no intention to mislead the Canadian public. The statements are developed and reported on the basis of the legislative requirements of Parliament. The statements respond to the necessity of reporting to Parliament. I will be happy to provide further information to my hon. friend on the specific point he has raised. However, I simply want to say that the Comptroller General, at the present time, is carrying out a study designed to address the concerns of the Auditor General. In the meantime, our view is that we have no alternative but to follow the direction of Parliament and report on how the Government is operating on the basis of the laws passed by this Chamber.

ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY

FREEZE ON TOLLS IN 1984

Mr. Jack Masters (Thunder Bay-Nipigon): Mr. Speaker, my question is addressed to the Minister of Transport. As the Minister knows, many western grain producers have indicated their concern at the possibility of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority raising its tolls for the 1984 season. As this comes under the responsibility of the Minister, would he inform the House of his intentions on this matter which is very important to the farmers and to many others who use our great St. Lawrence Seaway?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, the Government has been very concerned about trying to limit the various factors of cost which relate to the movement of agricultural goods.

An Hon. Member: How about the Crow?

Mr. Axworthy: I would be pleased to inform the House, if Hon. Members opposite would like to listen, that after consultation with the U.S. Secretary for Transportation, Mrs. Elizabeth Dole, we have come to the conclusion that there will be a total freeze on Seaway tolls for 1984.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

IMMIGRATION

EXERCISE OF MINISTERIAL DISCRETION ON COMPASSIONATE GROUNDS

Mr. Dan Heap (Spadina): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Employment and Immigration. As the Minister knows, his immigration guidelines empower him to use his discretion to relieve unusual hardship for a last remaining relative in the old country who may not be in the immediate family class for immigration, but who, by long association, is dependent on a Canadian family for physical or mental well-being. Since the Minister has announced that he is cutting back on immigration next year by about 15,000 in spite of the clear signs of recovery in unemployment, will the Minister assure this House that he will continue to exercise his discretion on compassionate grounds on behalf of such remaining family members?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, I believe I should say, first of all, that the Hon. Member is not technically correct when he says that I will be cutting down. The figures which we have announced are not the targets which will be inevitably reached, but are the estimated entry levels which we expect will take place. We believe that the entry next year will turn out to be about the same as it will prove to be this year, because I expect entry this year will be below what we had originally anticipated.

Of course there is no intention, Mr. Speaker, of changing the practice or the power which does exist to exercise consideration on humanitarian grounds. I am always prepared to examine individual cases which are presented to me by Hon. Members, to see if they are worthy of the exercise of that discretion.

METHOD OF PRESENTATION—AUDITOR GENERAL'S RESERVATIONS

Mr. Don Blenkarn (Mississauga South): Mr. Speaker, in the absence of the Minister of Finance my question is directed to the Minister of State for Finance. The Minister will know that the Minister of Finance has presented the Public Accounts of Canada to the Governor General about which the Auditor General has expressed serious reservations. Essentially what the Auditor General has said—and the Minister will appreciate this—is that there has been a netting out of expenses and receipts so that the expenses and receipts of the Government are grossly understated. Will the Minister change the system of reporting in future so that we will have what the Auditor General says is a reasonable, clean statement? We will then not have reservations by Parliament's auditor as to the way the accounts of Canada are presented.

Hon. Roy MacLaren (Minister of State (Finance)): Mr. Speaker, each year the Auditor General gives his comments on the Public Accounts to which the Hon. Member opposite has referred. As in previous years, we shall take full account of his proposals with respect to the way in which the Accounts are presented. The fact remains, however, that the presentation of the Public Accounts conformed with past practices and, if there are improvements to be made, as suggested by the Auditor General, we shall take those into account.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

PRESENCE IN GALLERY OF HON. THOMAS WELLS, ONTARIO MINISTER OF INTERGOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I would like to call to the attention of the House the presence in our gallery of the Hon. Thomas Wells, Ontario Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

INDUSTRY

BOMBARDIER TRAIN CONSTRUCTION CONTRACT

Hon. Michael Wilson (Etobicoke Centre): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Regional Economic Expansion. The Minister is now the proud owner of two slightly used train sets which were repurchased by the Government for some $9 million after Amtrak Corporation in the United States refused to buy the trains from Bombardier MLW under the terms of a lease-purchase agreement. When the Government entered into this contract with the Bombardier Company, to whom did the Government intend to resell the trains if it was called on to buy them? Or was the Government simply rolling the dice, hoping it would never have to perform on the contract?

Hon. Ed Lumley (Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce and Minister of Regional Economic Expansion): Mr. Speaker, I thought the Hon. Member was going to rise and ask me some questions with respect to Pratt & Whitney, so that I would have a chance to answer him directly in the House instead of doing this all by himself. With respect—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Would the Minister answer the question please?

Mr. Lumley: With respect to the question concerning the LRC matter, I wasn't around when those decisions were made. I believe I would make the same arrangement tomorrow as whomever made the decision at that time. The fact of the matter is that there was a potential of hundreds of millions of dollars of export business for Canada, as well as thousands of high technology jobs with a future by entering into that contract. It did not work out, Mr. Speaker. However, I concur in the decision to take the risk.

Mr. Wilson: This proves again that there is no foresight, no planning, and no understanding of how the taxpayers' funds are to be looked after. It is another example of government waste.

NON-USE OF TRAINS

Hon. Michael Wilson (Etobicoke Centre): Mr. Speaker, I will ask the Minister directly if he will explain why he has allowed these trains to sit in the yard by Bombardier's plant since the spring of 1982 when, at the same time the repurchase occurred, VIA Rail was placing a $100 million order for ten trains at double the price at which the Government has been asked to take these trains back? Why have they been sitting around there rusting and totally unused?

Hon. Ed Lumley (Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce and Minister of Regional Economic Expansion): Mr. Speaker, first of all, we tried to sell those trains to other railroads around the world. We tried to sell those trains to other rail lines in North America. We have had discussions with VIA Rail and those negotiations are still ongoing. However, with respect to the information from the Hon. Member, I just want to remind him, while I have the chance, about Pratt & Whitney—

Some Hon. Members: Order.

Mr. Lumley: —the cost per job is $2,500, not $100,000. He should get his information straight.

SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

RESTRUCTURING OF DEPARTMENT

Mr. Simon de Jong (Regina East): Mr. Speaker, my question is addressed to the Minister of State for Science and Technology. The Minister's Department has been cut in half, reduced to a head without a body. The Minister has stated that this change is for the better, because the head will have direct access to Cabinet. That remains to be seen. As the Minister knows, Cabinet proceedings are secret. Therefore, can he assure this House that the shake-up at MOSST is not just the way to put government policy on science and technology behind closed doors, in secret, and away from the scrutiny of an informed public?

Hon. Donald J. Johnston (Minister of State for Economic Development and Minister of State for Science and Technology): Mr. Speaker, there is no shake-up at MOSST. MOSST was restructured to make it more effective in its new role as chief science adviser to the Government, with direct access to Cabinet Ministers, to Cabinet Committees, and to the Prime Minister's Office. This is very much in keeping, I would think, with what we have seen happen in the United States. The role has been made clear. The lines of responsibility, I believe, are now well established. Dr. Berlinguet has assumed his post. I would judge, contrary to what the Hon. Member feels, that this is indeed a major improvement in terms of moving forward with the science and technology policy which I announced in the House last May.

CANADIAN BROADCASTING CORPORATION

EXTENSION OF SERVICE TO NORTHERN NEW BRUNSWICK

Mr. Maurice Harquail (Restigouche): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Communications. It concerns the subject of CBC radio which has long been awaited by Canadians living in northern New Brunswick, with respect to facilities that are in place to bring the new signal of CBC English programming to that part of Canada. Could the Minister indicate when the people living in that part of Canada will be able to enjoy this broadcasting on a daily basis?

Hon. Francis Fox (Minister of Communications): Mr. Speaker, I am glad to answer the Hon. Member. This is a question that has been on his mind for some time now. I know that he has brought pressure to bear on CBC to encourage development of this additional coverage.

I am delighted to say that today I have been informed by the Executive Vice-President of the CBC that the CBC English AM service will, as of today, be available on a daily basis on the FM network to the citizens in northern New Brunswick he has mentioned.

I would also like to add, for the Hon. Member's information, that as far as French language television is concerned in that area, CBC coverage in the French language is going out on a test pattern basis at the moment. If those text patterns can indeed be received, as we expect they will be, the French language television service of the CBC will be available on an official basis as soon as these tests have been completed.

METRIC CONVERSION

ENFORCEMENT OF REGULATIONS—APPLICATION CANADA-WIDE

Hon. Allan Lawrence (Durham-Northumberland): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Prime Minister and it is supplementary to the questions raised earlier by the Member for Peterborough on the metric decision handed down yesterday by an Ontario court, and the Prime Minister's reference to the Charter of Rights.

Implicit in the answer given in the House today by the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs was that, until the Government decides what to do, the enforcement of the regulations is now going to be stopped, but only in Ontario. Surely a basic tenet of any decision on any citizen's right, whether it is included in the Charter or not, is that all Canadians from coast to coast should be treated exactly the same under federal law. The answer of the Minister is clearly discriminatory. Will the Prime Minister now indicate if metric enforcement will cease right across the country?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I understand that the Hon. Member is making a representation and a point. I indicated earlier that I had not read the judgment. I have not conferred with the Minister.

I do not know if any decision has been made to appeal the judgment. Until that is decided it is premature to say that the judgment is the law of the land. It becomes the law of the land when all appeals have been exhausted, or when an appeal has not been lodged.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: A short supplementary.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

USE OF WRITS OF ASSISTANCE

Hon. Allan Lawrence (Durham-Northumberland): Mr. Speaker, in view of the Government's growing trend to deal in a discriminatory way because of court decisions, I would also ask the Prime Minister to look at the decision of the Solicitor General to continue the use of writs of assistance only in those Provinces where the courts have not declared it invalid?

Hon. Bob Kaplan (Solicitor General of Canada): Mr. Speaker, in that matter we are following a very clear, established policy of this Government, and which was followed by prior Governments as well. When there are conflicting court decisions across the country, or when decisions of lower courts are made in parts of the country, the Government respects that decision for the jurisdiction in which it is decided. But when the matter is resolved at a higher level, that settles it for the country as a whole. I do not see how a process could work on any other basis.

CHARITABLE ORGANIZATIONS

RETENTION OF STATUS BY CANADIAN MENTAL HEALTH ASSOCIATION, BRITISH COLUMBIA DIVISION

Mr. Walter McLean (Waterloo): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of National Revenue. It stems from the harassment by the Minister's officials of individuals, artists, and now voluntary agencies across Canada. The Minister may know that on June 22 the British Columbia Division of the Canadian Mental Health Association was advised by his departmental officials to alter proposed amendments to its constitution if that Association wished to retain its charitable status. The objectionable section in the statement of purpose states, "to advocate and lobby for improvement and integration of treatment and rehabilitation services for persons who become handicapped or disabled by emotional disorders." I would simply ask the Minister if he authorized that harassment of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

[Translation]

Hon. Pierre Bussières (Minister of National Revenue): Mr. Speaker, I should like to indicate to the Hon. Member that the responsibility of Revenue Canada officials is to make sure that the legislation voted by Parliament and the laws as interpreted by our courts are enforced. I urge him to examine the provisions of the Income Tax Act dealing with charitable organizations, as well as the decisions made by the courts. Since the Members of his party have been finding so much significance in court decisions during Question Period today, he should indeed delve into the legal precedents related to charitable organizations and he will realize that the action taken by the Department to ensure compliance with the Income Tax Act is very much in keeping with the legal precedents of the past few years with respect to charitable organizations.

INDUSTRY

FUTURE OF BOWATER PAPER MILL AT CORNER BROOK, NFLD.

Hon. John C. Crosbie (St. John's West): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce. He will know that the mill at Corner Brook, Newfoundland, now owned and operated by Bowater, is to be closed by them by next year if they do not find a prospective purchaser, putting the jobs of a thousand people in jeopardy, and all the allied jobs. Is the Government working on any plan that might see the continuation of the operations of that mill, or any plan to see that the mill's machinery is modernized? Is the Minister working with the Government of Newfoundland on this situation?

Hon. Ed Lumley (Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce and Minister of Regional Economic Expansion): As the Hon. Member knows, as I believe I responded in the House two weeks ago, Bowater have not been in touch with my office directly. They have been negotiating with the Premier of Newfoundland and the Newfoundland Government for the last three or four months. We were advised by the Government of Newfoundland about three or four weeks ago of the possibility of the mill closing.

As the Hon. Member knows, under a pulp and paper modernization agreement, the Government of Canada committed about $17 million, with the Province of Newfoundland, toward the modernization of that mill a few years ago. The company decided not to proceed with the modernization. That money is still available for any prospective new buyer.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Oshawa.

Mr. Crosbie: A supplementary, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Speaker has recognized the Hon. Member for Oshawa. There has been a problem up to this point in recognizing that Hon. Member.

BANK OF CANADA

REQUEST THAT GOVERNOR BE INSTRUCTED TO REDUCE BANK RATE

Hon. Edward Broadbent (Oshawa): Mr. Speaker, since the Minister of Finance has arrived in the House, perhaps we could proceed. In the first six months of this year there were signs that economic recovery was under way. That was largely, but not entirely, due to good export sales. There are opposite signs now that the recovery seems to be stalled and the principal reason for this, according to the Conference Board, the C.D. Howe Institute, and Statistics Canada, is the real level of interest rates, which have increased by 300 per cent during the course of this year. Will the Minister exercise the power that he has, and instruct the Governor of the Bank of Canada to bring down the bank rate?

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I apologize if I was somewhat delayed from being in the House this afternoon. I just could not make it earlier.

With respect to the question raised by the Hon. Member, he has a rather simplistic solution to what is a real problem. He knows that the real interest rates in Canada are now lower, indeed, significantly lower than in the United States, when one compares the inflation rates in the United States and in Canada with the level of interest rates.

Since August, 1981, we have succeeded in reducing the spread between the rates in Canada and the United States by 4.7 per cent, which is quite significant in terms of interest rates. We have real interest rates in Canada now that are lower than in the United States.

If there were any way we could achieve even lower interest rates in this country I would certainly not hesitate for one moment to take whatever steps would be required to achieve this purpose, if it were responsibly feasible without creating even more serious problems than the one the Hon. Member is trying to resolve. I must advise him, however, that we have met with considerable success during the course of the last year in reducing interest rates in Canada. Our policy is to achieve a continuation of the reduction of interest rates. I hope that the reduction of inflation rates in Canada, along with steps taken in the United States, will enable us to bring about a gradual reduction in the interest rates in Canada.

REQUEST THAT MINISTER TAKE ACTION

Hon. Edward Broadbent (Oshawa): Mr. Speaker, I know that the Minister likes to convey with accuracy statistical reality. In that context, I am sure he will acknowledge that interest rates in Canada are higher than in the U.S., the bank rate is higher than in the U.S., and the real rate of interest is about the same as that in the U.S. In light of the fact that a lower interest rate in Canada would help our exports of lumber products, and it would help the sale of all kinds of export goods in other sectors abroad, as well as stimulate consumer spending, all of which would produce more jobs for Canadians, I repeat, will the Minister exercise the power that he has as Minister of Finance, take the responsible economic action, and bring down the interest rate level charged by the Bank of Canada?

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, the latest information I have is that the prime rate in Canada at the present time is 11 per cent. It is the same as in the United States. Second, rates for short-term paper, up to seven years, in Canada and the United States, are about equal at the present time, while over the last couple of years they were significantly higher in Canada than in the United States.

Third, the rate of inflation in Canada is still higher, unfortunately, than it is in the United States and, therefore, the real interest rates in Canada would be lower than in the United States.

Again, to come back to the point raised by the Hon. Member, if I thought the simple issuance of a directive to the Governor of the Bank of Canada would be beneficial to the Canadian economy, I would not hesitate to have recourse to such a step. However, I am convinced that the step recommended by the Hon. Member would indeed be very counterproductive. It would be a completely artificial decision that would not represent the real state of the economy and would lead to more serious problems than the ones we are facing. I think the economic recovery in Canada has been proceeding extremely well this year, and I am confident that we will continue to note a high rate of growth this year and next year.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Presenting Reports from Standing and Special Committees.

Mr. Broadbent: Mr. Speaker, a supplementary question.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. The Chair has tried to be fair with Hon. Members. Bearing in mind the limitations of time and that it is now beyond three o'clock, with due respect to the Hon. Member for Oshawa, the Chair has tried to accommodate him. At this stage the Minister of State for International Trade has a statement he wants to make to the House, I believe.

POINT OF ORDER

MR. NIELSEN—REFERENCE TO TELEX BY MR. REGAN

Hon. Gerald Regan (Minister of State (International Trade)): Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order in relation to the Friday, October 28 deliberations in the House and a point of order that was made at that time by the Opposition concerning the tabling of a telex which had been in my possession from the High Commissioner of Barbados to the Department of External Affairs. At that time Madam Speaker, in commenting on the point of order, after hearing both sides, said the following:

I can look at the "blues" after giving the House at this time my preliminary impression about what has just taken place in the House. That would allow the Minister time to reflect upon the nature of that document and tell the House whether or not he feels that it can be published without any injury to any matters of public interest.

On Monday, October 31, I wrote to the Speaker asking that the ruling on this question be delayed because of my involvement with the federal-provincial trade Ministers meeting on that day and of my inability to be in the House. At that time, in a letter, a copy of which I had sent to the office of the Leader of the Opposition, I also explained, upon perusing Hansard, that it had become obvious to me there was confusion in the House between two telexes, both of which had referred to conversations between our High Commissioner in Barbados and the Prime Minister of Barbados.

I think, so that the matter can be properly examined by the Chair, it was important and is important that that distinction be made. There were a number of questions in the House in relation to the discussions that had taken place on the Friday prior to the invasion between High Commissioner Noble Power and Prime Minister Adams, and whether what had been said constituted in effect any warning to Canada of the possibility of an invasion. I was concerned with rebutting that suggestion, and as a consequence I had in the House, though I did not read from it, a subsequent telex that had been sent by Noble Power after the invasion when, at my instructions, he had gone to see Prime Minister Tom Adams to ask for an explanation of why Canada had not been informed. The other telex was not in the House nor in my possession.

The words that need to be examined to determine whether anything was said or done by me that would warrant an order for the telex to be tabled would refer—

Hon. Erik Nielsen (Yukon): I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Regan: I am on a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: There is a point of order before the House raised by the Hon. Member for the Yukon. The Chair would like to hear the rest of the Minister's statement and will be pleased to hear the Member for the Yukon as soon as he sits down, if that would be in order, before passing judgment on the matter.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I would—

Some Hon. Members: Sit down.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deans: Throw him out!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: With all due respect the Hon. Member for the Yukon, would he please sit down?

The Chair would like to establish the practice, when a point of order is raised, of hearing the statement of the initial person or the initial response, as in this case, and after a period of time in which to investigate the facts, turning in an orderly way to other Hon. Members who obviously are concerned about the matter. With the permission of the Hon. Member for Yukon, the Chair would like to do that in this case.

Mr. Pinard: He is on a point of order.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I will rise on a question of privilege, if necessary.

Some Hon. Members: Sit down.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has recognized the Minister, and the Chair will certainly recognize the Hon. Member for Yukon as soon as the Minister has completed what the Chair hopes will be a short statement.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a question of privilege.

Some Hon. Members: Sit down.

Mr. Pinard: The Minister is on a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair will certainly recognize the Hon. Member for Yukon as soon as the Chair has had an opportunity to analyse, to listen, to what the Minister has had to say. The Hon. Member for Yukon's rights will be scrupulously observed. But the Chair would like to hear the rest of the Minister's statement.

Mr. Nielsen: I rise on a question of privilege, Mr. Speaker.

Some Hon. Members: Go ahead, you have the floor, Gerry.

Mr. Regan: Mr. Speaker—

Some Hon. Members: Continue.

Mr. Nielsen: I rise on a question of privilege, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I understand it is the practice of the House to hear a matter of privilege at any time, bearing in mind that a point of order is under discussion. The Hon. Member for Yukon is rising on a matter of privilege. The Chair will hear him on a matter of privilege.

Mr. Nielsen: I will be very, very brief, Mr. Speaker.

An Hon. Member: You can't be brief.

Mr. Nielsen: Yes, I can be very brief if interventions will cease and if I might—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Yukon has been recognized and the Chair is listening attentively. Will the Hon. Member make his point of privilege, please?

An Hon. Member: Turn on the microphone for him.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I would love to make my point of privilege if the jackals over there would just be calm for a moment. My question of privilege is that the privileges of all Members of the House are affected when, under the guise of a point of order, a Member, or worse, a Minister of the Crown, reflects on a ruling of the Chair. Madam Speaker made a ruling with respect to the production of the document, which is now being reflected—

An Hon. Member: That is not a question of privilege.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has heard the Member for Yukon. In the judgment of the Chair, a preliminary ruling was made by the Speaker and the Chair has examined it very carefully. The Speaker very carefully said that she wanted the Minister to examine the matter further and see if it would be possible to table a document "without any injury to any matters of public interest." That is a direct quote from Madam Speaker. The Chair at this point would like to hear what the Minister has to say relating to matters of public interest.

● (1510)

Mr. Nielsen: Don't let him reflect on that ruling.

Mr. Regan: Mr. Speaker, the question which was asked by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) was where a reference was made to the telex. I will not read those references.

Mr. Nielsen: You can't.

Mr. Regan: I did not quote from the telex, but if you were to read my two answers to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain, it would indicate the words used in the House that could in any way conceivably relate to the only telex I had in the House.

Mr. Nielsen: He is being allowed to reargue his case.

Mr. Regan: If the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) would just be quiet, I might be able to be briefer.

Mr. Nielsen: You are rearguing your case which has been ruled upon.

Mr. Regan: I am not doing any such thing.

Mr. Nielsen: You certainly are.

Mr. Regan: The Hon. Member is a little rusty.

Mr. Nielsen: At least I am not dense.

Mr. Regan: I want to say beyond that that the conversations which took place between High Commissioner Power and Prime Minister Adams in any event were held in confidence. To reveal these telegrams to the House would break the confidence of the conversation, not only with Prime Minister Adams but with other Prime Ministers whose conversations are reported in the same telegram. Such a course would be contrary to the basic conventions of international communication and could adversely affect our ability to have such conversations.

The tabling of the telegram would further involve some risk to the security of the Canadian diplomatic communications service. It would not be possible to table the telex or telegram without harm being done to the public interest. Therefore, I would have to lay that before the Speaker for consideration.

Mr. Nielsen: I submit, Mr. Speaker, without any reflection upon the Chair, that the Minister, if you will examine what he said today in the "blues", has been allowed to reargue a case which was put to the Speaker last Friday and upon which she made a ruling.

[Translation]

Hon. Yvon Pinard (President of the Privy Council): Mr. Speaker, like my colleague who can interrupt other Members who have the floor on a point of order, I thank you for recognizing me on a question of privilege. You have stated clearly yourself that this was not a ruling by the Chair, but that there had been a tentative or preliminary ruling leaving the door open for additional arguments which might enable the Chair to make a final decision.

Under these circumstances, the Minister cannot be faulted for having discussed or questioned a ruling which has not been rendered by the Speaker. That is why I suggest that the only thing the Hon. Member is trying to do once again is to waste the time of the House.

[English]

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair finds itself in the same position as before. The Chair would like to hear the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) and to hear the balance of his statement at this point.

Mr. Nielsen: I am surprised that the President of the Privy Council (Mr. Pinard), who should know better, was allowed to smuggle in under the guise of a question of privilege further argument on a point of order when I was prevented from doing so myself.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Nielsen: Madam Speaker made a ruling and that ruling must not be reviewed. Unlike the President of the Privy Council, she left no doors open with respect to the production of that document. She ruled that it was one of those documents which should be produced.

Mr. Regan: Which one?

Mr. Nielsen: The Minister was only waving one at the time.

Mr. Pinard: Which one?

Mr. Nielsen: What a cop-out! They are now playing the old shell game with documents that should be produced in the public interest. They are saying, "Which one?" We saw him wave one. We saw him quote from it. We must accept his word when he says, "we didn't read from it", but by his own admission he quoted four or five words from that document. That area must not be reviewed, but the Minister was allowed to do it, and that is the only reason I am covering the same ground. He realized his mistake a little further on in the submission and got to the real crux of the matter, which was the only door left open by Madam Speaker at the time she made her ruling. That was, that if the Minister, upon reflecting upon that document, made the decision that it was against the interests of national security—I think the words she used were, "public interest"—then he could take refuge, which he is doing, in the fact that it would not be in the public interest to release the document. He can take that refuge, but what a cop-out. If that document were to have been produced, it would have proven beyond any rational doubt that what he was doing was playing with smoke and mirrors when he was answering the questions from this side.

We cannot do anything about Ministers who lack courage or about a Government which is so obsessed with the doctrine of secrecy that it takes refuge in the doctrine of its being against the public interest or against the national security to release documents.

I suggest that the defence and the position of the Minister and the Government are absolute hogwash. They do not have the courage to produce the facts, to which Canadians are entitled, to show how inept and bungling they have been through the whole Grenada affair in ensuring that the safety of Canadians caught in that situation down there had not been cared for far sooner than it was. They have bungled. They have been incompetent.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Nielsen: That telex would prove beyond any shadow of a doubt that that is the case. I am sure that is the way it is viewed by the vast majority of Canadians throughout the country.

Mr. Ian Deans (Hamilton Mountain): Mr. Speaker, you will recall that this matter arose as a result of the Minister's answering a question from me. I am not exactly clear at the moment why the Minister is refusing to table the document. Perhaps Mr. Speaker can help me in this regard. Is the Minister refusing to table the document because he now claims that he did not quote from it, or is the Minister refusing to table the document because he believes that it would, in one way or another, violate the public interest? If the Minister is claiming that he did not quote from the document—and I heard him say that at one point during his statement today—then the way to solve that question might well be for the Minister to show the document to the Speaker in confidence, since the Speaker is quite clearly sworn to secrecy. He could show the Speaker the document to satisfy the Speaker that in fact there is no quote in Hansard which was taken directly from one or the other of those two documents.

On the second question, I doubt very much anything can be done if the Minister determines that somehow or other it would be detrimental to the public interest to table the document. I happen to believe, as the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) stated, that the public interest would be better served in coming to reasonable conclusions about what took place in the days immediately preceding the invasion of Grenada if the documents that transmitted the information from our High Commissioner in Barbados could be made public.

However, in order to satisfy what I consider to be a requirement of the House as placed upon the Minister by the Speaker, I ask that the Minister of State for International Trade (Mr. Regan) provide for the Speaker the documents in question so that the Speaker can satisfy himself that those documents were not quoted from, and I would be prepared to accept the Speaker's ruling in that regard, whatever it turned out to be.

[Translation]

Mr. Pinard: On the same point of order, Mr. Speaker, I simply want to draw your attention to two citations in Beauchesne's Fifth Edition, namely citation 327 and particularly paragraphs (2) and (3), even though the entire citation makes for interesting reading. The explanations given by the Minister today and on an earlier occasion did answer fully the two questions raised by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). First, the Minister denies having quoted from any telex whatsoever, since the three or four words to which he referred were in his personal notes. As he has already had an opportunity to explain and, secondly, even if we do not admit that he was quoting from that document, even if it were true, Beauchesne indicates that since it cannot be done without injury to the public interest, as the Minister stated, that is sufficient justification for you to prevent him from tabling the document.

As to the new practice suggested by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain, it is an insult to the honour of parliamentarians because we do have a well established principle in this House to the effect that, when a Member—particularly a Minister responsible—makes a statement and gives his word that such is the situation with respect to security or public interest, that is sufficient and ought not to be questioned. Therefore, it is not necessary to add to that practice the requirement that the word of a Minister be checked by the Speaker of the House, notwistanding all our respect for the Chair. Citation 327 (2) reads simply, and I quote:

● (1520)

It has been admitted that a document which has been cited ought to be laid upon the Table of the House, if it can be done without injury to the public interest.

Those are the key words. We do not admit that this document has been quoted by the Minister who, on the contrary, said that the three or four words that he used were from his personal notes. I quote Citation 327(3):

A public document referred to but not cited or quoted by a Minister need not be tabled.

Those two citations should be sufficient for the Chair to prevent the Minister from tabling the telex he talked about. Further, may I draw your attention to the argument made by my colleague, the Minister, who made a clear distinction between the two telexes. This should also be taken into consideration before you make your ruling.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I submit that a ruling is not necessary. Madam Speaker made the ruling that the document was one of those which should be tabled. The Minister shakes his head in the negative, but that is what happened. She went on to say that if the Minister, on reflection, thought that the production of the document would not be in the national interest or the public interest, then that was his way out. We are satisfied with Madam Speaker's ruling. We are satisfied that now that the Minister has stood in his place and said that it would not be in the national interest or public interest to table a document, it need not be tabled, even though we feel it is a cop-out.

In my submission, the Chair is not in a position now where it needs to make a ruling because Madam Speaker has done that. She made the ruling, left the way out, the way out has been taken by the Minister. That is the end of it. There is certainly no point in making another ruling on top of the one that has already been made. Obviously the document, on the declaration of the Minister himself, is not one of those which need be tabled because he has said to the House that it would not serve the national interest or the public interest to do so. That is the end of it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. The Chair has reviewed the remarks of the Speaker. The Chair is satisfied that the Minister has stated that it is against the public interest to reveal the document. That is the end of the matter.

PETITIONS

MR. PELLETIER—TESTING OF CRUISE MISSILE ON CANADIAN SOIL

Mr. Irénée Pelletier (Sherbrooke): Mr. Speaker, I would like to present a petition.

It is addressed to the Honourable House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled, the petition of the undersigned residents of Canada, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your Honourable House will therefore provide a remedy. This petition containing 1,400 names was organized by the Conseil estrien pour la paix and the Carrefour de solidarité internationale de l'Estrie. Briefly, expresses the wish that Canada would refuse to test the Cruise missile and humbly showeth:

That the Cruise missile is a military weapon and not a peace weapon.

That its greater prevision and ability to fly without being detected by existing radar systems makes it a front line offensive weapon.

Wherefore, the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon your Honourable House not to authorize the testing of the Cruise missiles on its territory, to support the initiatives for a multilateral disarmament at the special session of the United Nations, to assert its will not to escalate the arms race and to refuse unreservedly the presence of the Cruise missiles in Canada.

And as in duty bound, your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. SCOTT (VICTORIA-HALIBURTON)—FULL MAIL SERVICE FOR LINDSAY, ONTARIO

Mr. W. C. Scott (Victoria-Haliburton): Mr. Speaker, I have the honour to present a petition to the House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled, signed by residents of Lindsay, Ontario, who now exercise their ancient and undoubted right to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that whereas a portion of Oak Street and Birch Court are already receiving full mail service, we the undersigned, do hereby petition for full mail service to the remainder of Oak Street and Birch Court in Lindsay. And as in duty bound our petitioners will ever pray.

MR. ROCHE—AMNESTY FOR POLITICAL PRISONERS

Mr. Douglas Roche (Edmonton South): Mr. Speaker, I have a petition on behalf of Amnesty International signed by 249 Albertans, primarily in the city of Edmonton. The petitioners claim that it is an affront to humanity for thousands of men and women to be imprisoned throughout the world solely because of their political beliefs, colour or ethnic origin. They also claim that there is an indissoluble link between human rights and world peace. Therefore, they petition Parliament to call for an amnesty backed by the United Nations and declared by all governments for all such prisoners of conscience, which would give effect to the moral and legal principles of the Charter of the United Nations and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. ANGUISH—RETENTION OF CROWSNEST PASS RATES

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I have a few petitions I would like to present this afternoon. They have been sent to me by Canadian citizens. The petition of the undersigned of the Province of Saskatchewan, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that the undersigned have carefully considered the alternative plan presented by the New Democratic Party, that they feel the Crow rate must be maintained and that the railways of all of Canada must be upgraded and developed into a modern and efficient transportation system.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. ANGUISH—CALL FOR PASSAGE OF BILL C-678

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I should like to present a petition this afternoon signed by the residents of the Province of Quebec who believe that the testing of the Cruise missile in Canada escalates the nuclear arms race and is therefore a threat to world peace. The petitioners ask Parliament to recognize that history proves that as military strength increases, so too does the temptation to use that military strength and, therefore, multilateral nuclear disarmament must occur in order to secure peace in the world. The petitioners call upon Parliament to debate and pass Bill C-678, an Act to Declare Canada a Nuclear Weapons Free Zone so that Canada, along with other countries that wish to participate can, as a traditionally peaceful nation or collection of nations, play a crucial role in mediating the world-wide process of disarmament.

Mr. Gimaïel: How many names?

Mr. Anguish: There are a number of people here. One Member is calling for their names. There are several names. The Member who is asking can inspect the petition once it is laid upon the Table. Most of the residents are from Montreal.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. The Hon. Member will confine himself to his petition.

MR. ANGUISH—CALL FOR SALARY INCREASES FOR MPS' STAFFS

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, the petition, signed by the residents of Canada who now exercise their right to present a grievance, humbly sheweth that the salary budget for staff of Members of Parliament is frozen until August 3, 1984, under the six and five program, and that Members of Parliament were not informed of the freeze into the first year of the program, and as a result most MPs' staff will not receive any salary increases during 1983 and most of 1984.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to increase the salaries of MPs' staffs so that these employees are able to meet financial arrangements they entered into based on salary increases Members of Parliament and staff were led to expect. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. ANGUISH—RETENTION OF CROWSNEST PASS RATES

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, the next petition I have is signed by residents of the Province of Saskatchewan. The petition of the undersigned residents of Canada, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that the undersigned have carefully considered the alternative plan presented by the New Democratic Party and that the Crow rate must be maintained and that the railways of all of Canada must be upgraded and developed into a modern and efficient transportation system.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party's alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass Agreement and rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. ANGUISH—CALL FOR PASSAGE OF BILL C-678

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, the next petition is signed by the residents of the Province of Manitoba who support the passage of a Private Members' Bill standing in my name, Bill C-678, an Act to declare Canada a nuclear weapons-free zone. The petitioners believe that the testing of the Cruise missile in Canada escalates the nuclear arms race and is therefore a serious threat to world peace. The petitioners stress that Canada, as a traditionally peaceful nation, can and must play a crucial role in achieving multilateral disarmament. They believe that the passage of Bill C-678 will allow Canada to act as a mediator, along with other countries who wish to participate, in the world-wide nuclear disarmament process.

And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

Mr. Speaker, I do have several petitions here this afternoon and I will not go on to present all of them. I will take advantage of other days to do that. I will present one last petition and then I will take my seat.

MR. ANGUISH—RETENTION OF CROWSNEST PASS RATES

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I have a petition signed by the residents of the Province of Saskatchewan to the honourable the House of Commons in Parliament assembled. The petition of the undersigned residents from the Province of Saskatchewan who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that the undersigned have carefully considered the alternative plan presented by the New Democratic Party and that the Crow rate must be maintained and the railways of all Canada must be upgraded and developed into a modern and efficient transportation system.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party's alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

CONSTITUTION ACT

AMENDMENT RESPECTING DURATION OF HOUSE OF COMMONS

Hon. J. Robert Howie (York-Sunbury) moved for leave to introduce Bill C-694, an Act to amend the Constitution Act, 1867 to 1982 (duration of House of Commons).

Some Hon. Members: Explain.

Mr. Howie: Mr. Speaker, my Bill seeks to authorize general elections at statutory intervals under certain conditions and provisions set out therein.

Motion agreed to, Bill read the first time and ordered to be printed.

HOLIDAYS ACT

AMENDMENT TO DESIGNATE "HERITAGE DAY"

Mr. Bill Yurko (Edmonton East) moved for leave to introduce Bill C-695, an Act to proclaim the first Monday in August "Heritage Day".

Some Hon. Members: Explain.

Mr. Yurko: Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this Bill is to designate the first Monday of August "Heritage Day" and to offer to all Canadians an occasion to express their appreciation and their pride in being part of a multicultural nation. I cite the work of Michael Beaupré and Dianne Davidson of the Law Branch and David Pratt of my office in drafting this Bill. A Member would have to be politically naive not to vote for this Bill.

Motion agreed to, bill read the first time and ordered to be printed.

BLUE WATER BRIDGE AUTHORITY ACT

AMENDMENT RESPECTING INCREASE IN MEMBERSHIP

Hon. Bud Cullen (Sarnia-Lambton) moved for leave to introduce Bill C-696, an Act to amend the Blue Water Bridge Authority Act.

Some Hon. Members: Explain.

Mr. Cullen: Mr. Speaker, when the Blue Water Bridge Authority was established it was assumed that there would be Americans and Canadians serving on the authority. As it turns out, Michigan has decided to put the Blue Water Bridge totally within its highway system. As a result of that, rather than having eight members doing this work we now have four. I am suggesting that the number be increased from four to five so that we can handle the Canadian side.

Motion agreed to, Bill read the first time and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Motions.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, we are prepared again today to forgo the usual practice of reading the riding of each Member presenting a motion for concurrence, the exception being for today only.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Agreed. I will dispense with reading the rather lengthy list.

Mr. John Evans (Parliamentary Secretary to President of the Privy Council): Mr. Speaker, the following questions will be answered today: Nos. 4,243, 4,790, 5,017, 5,023 and 5,260.

CHANGES TO UI MATERNITY BENEFITS

Question No. 4,243—Mr. Herbert:

1. Is the Government contemplating introducing changes to the legislative provisions dealing with benefits for reasons of maternity and, if so, would such changes include the right of a claimant to choose the length of time before and after delivery?

2. Were any such changes submitted to Cabinet for approval and, if so, what is the anticipated time that an enabling bill would be submitted to the House?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): 1. The provisions of the Unemployment Insurance legislation dealing with maternity benefits were examined by the Task Force on Unemployment Insurance and their report was tabled in Parliament in July, 1981.

The proposals for revamping the maternity benefit provisions would extend maternity benefits to adoptive parents, and eliminate the "magic 10" rule, Section 46, and the provision which limits payment to the first 15 weeks of benefits.

Under present legislation, a maximum of 15 weeks of maternity benefits is payable commencing eight weeks before the expected date of confinement and ending 17 weeks after the actual date of confinement. Personal flexibility is available within these parameters and the Task Force did not propose any modifications to this particular provision.

2. Following extensive consultation across Canada, recommendations on various provisions of the UI legislation, including several dealing with maternity benefits, have been formulated. An enabling bill will be prepared and placed before the House based on the final decisions of the Cabinet; these have not yet been finalized.

VULNERABLE EMPLOYEES IN EMPLOYMENT AND IMMIGRATION COMMISSION

Question No. 4,790—Mr. Herbert:

1. How many supernumeraries or vulnerable employees are presently retained on salary in the Department of Employment and Immigration?

2. What was the total following the reorganization of the Department?

3. What is the budgeted cost of the reassignment program in the fiscal year 1983-84?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): 1. There are a total of 187 vulnerable employees on strength in the Department of Employment and Immigration and the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission. Of this number, 41 are employees whose positions were transferred from the National Capital Region to Bathurst, N.B., as a result of the Government's decision to relocate the Central Index, Annuities and Employer Registration Divisions. The balance are employees displaced as a result of the integration of the former Department of Manpower and Immigration and the Unemployment Insurance Commission. In addition, there are also 112 employees who, as a result of the integration process, have had their positions downgraded in classification level and have been accorded "Present Incumbent Only" status.

2. The integration of positions and employees was a gradual process that took place over several years following the approval in 1977 of the Bill authorizing the creation of the Department of Employment and Immigration and the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission. In view of this fact, an answer to Part 2 is not possible.

3. One officer (PE-2—$24,260 to $34,880) at National Headquarters is currently involved in full-time efforts to find new assignments for vulnerable employees and employees with "Present Incumbent Only" status.

Question No. 5,017—Mr. Clark (Yellowhead):

3. Is Via Rail represented by any subsidiaries, agents or offices in other countries and, if so, in which other countries and by what other subsidiaries, agents or offices?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): The management of VIA Rail Canada Inc. advises as follows:

(b) A sum totalling $15,000 was paid for the design to ARC in January, February and March, 1976.

TRANSLATION OF PLACE NAMES ON GOVERNMENT MAPS

Question No. 5,023—Mr. Stewart:

1. Is it the intention of the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources to translate all place names on government maps, in accordance with provisions in the Official Languages Act, and, if so, to reprint all government maps in both official languages?

2. What is the Department's best estimate of (a) the number of person-years required to translate place names on government maps (b) the cost to reprint government maps with place names in both official languages?

Mr. Dave Dingwall (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources): The Department of Energy, Mines and Resources reports as follows:

1. EM&R does not intend to translate all place names on government maps. All maps produced by the Department are now available either in a bilingual format or in separate

English and French language publications in accordance with the spirit and intent of the Official Languages Act.

It is the practice of the Department to portray on maps only the official form of the name provided by the Canadian Permanent Committee on Geographical Names and as approved by the Provinces or Territories. An exception to this practice is that certain features of national significance are shown with names in both French and English language forms (e.g. Fleuve St. Laurent/St. Lawrence River).

2. Not applicable. See answer to part 1 above.

VICTORIA COAST GUARD RADIO STATION

Question No. 5,260—Mr. Skelly:

1. Is the Station Manager of the Victoria Coast Guard Radio station retiring in December of 1983?

2. Will the Department fill this position with a full-time manager through the normal competition procedure and, if not, does the Department intend to fill the position with an acting or temporary manager?

3. If the Department intends to appoint an acting or temporary manager, is the Department beginning to implement a program which would see the closure of Coast Guard radio stations at Victoria, Comox, Alert Bay and Bull Harbour?

4. Is there a committee of the Department of Transport examining the closure of Coast Guard radio stations in B.C. and, if so (a) what are its terms of reference (b) who sits on the committee?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): 1. Yes.

2. Yes.

3. Not applicable.

4. There is no committee of the Department formed for the express purpose of examining the closure of Coast Guard Radio Stations in British Columbia.

(a) There is, however, a committee with Terms of Reference to: "Prepare an area master plan for the updating of the present Maritime Mobile Radio Communications Services provided by the Coast Guard Radio Stations on the West Coast of Canada."

The master plan is being developed by a team of regional and headquarters officials from the Canadian Coast Guard's Telecommunications and Electronics function.

(b) The team submits periodic reports to a Steering Committee consisting of:

Chairperson:	Regional Director General, Western Coast Guard Region
Members:	Director, Telecommunications and Electronics, Coast Guard, Ottawa
	Director General, Aids and Waterways, Coast Guard, Ottawa
	Director General, Ship Safety, Coast Guard, Ottawa
Ex officio:	Regional Manager, Telecommunications and Electronics, Western Coast Guard Region

GARRISON DIVERSION—SUGGESTED MEASURES TO PROTECT ENVIRONMENT OF MANITOBA

The House resumed, from Monday, February 9, 1981, the motion of Mr. Sargeant:

That, in the opinion of this House, the Government should consider the advisability of taking those measures necessary to ensure that there is no damage caused to the Manitoba environment by the completion of the Garrison Diversion Unit in the State of North Dakota and, that such measures to be considered could include:

1. The convening of a joint meeting between provincial, state and federal authorities affected by the Garrison project;

2. The offer of legal and technical assistance to those citizen's groups in Canada now attempting to halt the progress of the Garrison Diversion; and

3. The bringing to trial in the World Court, the government of the United States, should Canada be unsuccessful in its efforts to receive satisfactory assurances regarding the future safety of her environment.

Mr. Dan McKenzie (Winnipeg-Assiniboine): Mr. Speaker, this motion refers to the Garrison Diversion project and addresses suggested measures to protect the environment of Manitoba. The first measure set out in the motion is as follows:

1. The convening of a joint meeting between provincial, state and federal authorities affected by the Garrison project;

It is too late for that, Mr. Speaker; it has been done many times over the past few years.

The second measure set out in the motion is as follows:

2. The offer of legal and technical assistance to those citizen's groups in Canada now attempting to halt the progress of the Garrison Diversion;

We are far too late for that, Mr. Speaker. It has all been done years ago.

The third proposal set out in the motion is:

3. The bringing to trial in the World Court—

We do not have time for that either. The United States has made it perfectly clear that it is going to complete the Garrison Diversion project, and it has started work on the Lone Tree section of the project without consultation with Canada.

I have called on the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) to contact the President of the United States personally to discuss the Garrison Diversion project and get assurances that it will not continue without further consultation.

I will go into details in a moment of where the United States, especially North Dakota, has made it perfectly clear that it is going to complete the diversion plan. We have been told that a fish screen is to be installed to act as a barrier. The report of the International Joint Commission indicated the commissioners simply did not believe that a workable and reliable fish screen could be developed. It wrote:

It is doubtful that the McClusky Canal fish screen even with modifications would be a reliable and effective barrier to the transfer of foreign biota from the Missouri River to the Hudson Bay drainage basin.

A lot of studies have been done on this fish screen. We do not know who is right and who is wrong, but they are proceeding with it regardless.

I want to make some comments about the Republican Senator, Mark Andrews, of North Dakota. He has described Canadian objection to the controversial Garrison water diversion project as a bogeyman and red herring. He stated that the decision to build this project was not going to be made in Canada and that it would not be made in Washington but in North Dakota. He said that if people there can get their act together, they will have it. There could be no statement plainer than that, Mr. Speaker, to indicate that Senator Mark Andrews will do everything in his power to see that the Garrison Diversion is completed.

I have debated this subject in the past with Senator Andrews who is known to his colleagues as "the king of pork". He persuaded a House-Senate conference committee to reinstate a water diversion project after it had been overwhelmingly defeated in the House of Representatives.

Congressman Silvio Conte stated publicly in Washington that the Senators knew that they must vote in favour of these moneys for Garrison or risk having Senator Andrews put a halt to their own projects. He is determined to have the diversion project completed, Mr. Speaker, regardless of whether we go to the World Court or whatever.

I debated this subject with Senator Andrews at a Canada-U.S. parliamentary meeting in Calgary in 1979. At that time he made a number of statements which I subsequently had Environment Canada check. In a letter to me on September 27, 1979, an officer of the Department stated:

In reply to your question I think Congressman Andrews has either completely missed the point of our objections or is trying to sidestep them. The main thrust of our concerns, and this is a problem that was identified by the International Joint Commission, is that the Garrison Diversion Project would introduce into the Red River drainage biota not naturally found there.

I was given a detailed answer of places where Senator Andrews had misled the discussions at the Canada-U.S. parliamentary meeting.

The Attorney General for North Dakota has said that construction of the Garrison Diversion project will not be stopped by the Canadian Government or by the IJC if the United States determines that the project is in the United States' best interests. He said that the bottom line is that the project will be built if the United States Government decides it is in its best interests. That is what the Attorney General of North Dakota, Walter Wefald told a University of North Dakota law class in 1982. You can see the determination to complete the project and why the motion that we are debating today has come too late.

When the Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake (Mr. Sargeant) introduced his motion on February 9, 1981, he said:

We in Manitoba have not been reassured in the past with regard to the government's concern about the Garrison diversion project.

NDP provincial Governments in the past have not shown a proper regard for this, Mr. Speaker. They have sat back while the project went full speed ahead.

Following a tour of diversion sites and meetings with American officials, the Manitoba Conservative caucus concluded that key data on the Manitoba situation is missing from American studies and that Manitoba apparently is relying exclusively on these studies for its protection. As a result, the Conservatives called on the NDP provincial Government to do a complete environment impact study, itself. The NDP claimed that no such independent study was necessary because both countries were working amicably on the full range of environmental impact reviews. In addition, Manitoba has a pledge from the U.S. State Department that the Americans will abide by their treaty obligation and do nothing to pollute Canadian waters.

I have just pointed out what the Attorney General of North Dakota stated and what Senator Mark Andrews stated—they are going to complete the project.

The Leader of the Manitoba Conservative Party stated that the Government's reliance on another jurisdiction to protect Manitoba's interest is a gross dereliction of duty. He was referring to the NDP Government of the day. It sat back while North Dakota was proceeding full speed ahead with the diversion project.

The North Dakota Senate commended a former NDP premier of Manitoba for not attempting to stop the Garrison Diversion project. How naive can we be, Mr. Speaker.

A Member of the United States National Audubon Society, Richard Madson, said in an interview that the former NDP Premier of Manitoba received a letter, approved by both the United States Senate and the legislature of North Dakota, which thanked him for not backing a proposal to finance court action against the project. The former NDP Premier of Manitoba had taken this action although the State of Minnesota had come to the conclusion that litigation was the only way to stop the project in time. This former premier now lives across the street from the Prime Minister, Mr. Speaker.

It was reported in the Winnipeg Free Press that at a time when Minnesota was wisely implementing legal action to protect the rights of its citizens to a clean and healthy environment, the former Manitoba NDP Premier not only blocked such action on the part of Manitobans but received a commendation from the very individuals promoting the development which will degrade the quality of Manitoba's environment. The resolution of commendation from the Garrison promoters is an incredibly clear indication of just how completely the former Manitoba NDP Premier and his caucus had failed in their elected responsibilities to protect the interests of Manitobans.

In October of 1982, the Winnipeg Free Press reported that the Manitoba NDP Government spent more than $86,000 that year on its fight against the giant North Dakota Garrison irrigation project without reaping any tangible evidence of success. That includes more than $20,000 in legal bills from a Washington law firm and expenses for a Crown attorney to lobby Congressmen on Capital Hill. The NDP Government has hired more people, spent more money and published more pamphlets, yet has not been effective in halting the Garrison Diversion project, and by the time we go to the World Court to debate the Garrison Diversion project, it will be completed.

If Garrison proceeds, a multimillion dollar Canadian industry will be destroyed simply by changing the direction in which that river water flows. North Dakota is bisected by a height of land or divide. North of the divide, water runs north to Hudson's Bay through the Hudson's Bay drainage basin. Land south of the divide is in the Missouri River drainage basin. The two drainage basins have been separated since the last ice age. Each has developed its own kinds of fish. For the first time, because of the Garrison project, the Missouri River water flow north across the divide. With the water would come fish and fish eggs, as well as parasites and diseases which do not now exist in the Hudson's Bay drainage basin.

Use of this water to irrigate land in this basin would enable Missouri fish to move north into Canada. The International Joint Commission investigated the Garrison Diversion project. The Commission warned that the introduction of foreign species of fish into Lake Winnipeg would result in major reductions in the more highly valued species. Whitefish, walleye and sauger populations could decrease 50 per cent to 75 per cent. This would wipe out the commercial fishery. The IJC further stated that while most of the impacts can be mitigated, those from the possible Biota transfers are so threatening that the only acceptable policy at present is to delay construction of those features of the Garrison unit which might result in such transfers. Furthermore, if this project proceeds, it will violate the 1909 Boundary Waters Treaty, which reads:

—waters herein defined as boundary waters and waters flowing across the boundary shall not be polluted on either side to the injury or health or property on the other.

I suggest again, Mr. Speaker, that the Prime Minister of Canada contact the President of the United States and launch an official protest. I understand a report came out of Minneapolis last week that a note was sent recently to Mr. Schultz in the United States. We have been sending notes, having little meetings and writing letters for about seven or eight years, but the project is still being continued. As I pointed out earlier, Senator Andrews and the Attorney General have made their positions perfectly clear. They are going to complete the Garrison Diversion project regardless of what is going to happen to Canadian waters.

I reiterate, Mr. Speaker, we have gone beyond the point of funding little groups to study the matter, and going to the World Court. The Prime Minister will have to take a position on this immediately and contact the President to ask him if he will investigate and report back to the Prime Minister on whether he will be able to stop this project and make sure that Canadian waters are protected.

Mr. Bill Blaikie (Winnipeg-Birds Hill): Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to be able to participate in the debate today on Motion No. 28, a motion which was put forward by my colleague, the Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake (Mr. Sargeant), and seconded by the Hon. Member for Winnipeg North Centre

(Mr. Knowles). This is a motion, as we know, which has to do with the Government's responsibilities as they relate to Canada's intervention in the North Dakota Garrison Diversion unit.

Perhaps I should first make some reply to the remarks made by the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Assiniboine (Mr. McKenzie). Mr. Speaker, I wonder if I could have a little order over there.

[Translation]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order, please! The Chair has also noticed that the noise level is perhaps somewhat higher than usual in the House. It is probably due to the excellent attendance on the part of Hon. Members. However, I believe that we should listen closely to the speech of the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Birds Hill (Mr. Blaikie).

[English]

Mr. Blaikie: We are not used to having so many Liberals in the Chamber all at one time, Mr. Speaker, except for votes, and those Hon. Members are not used to it.

I would like to reply, Mr. Speaker, to the remarks made by the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Assiniboine, who has responded with his usual generosity of spirit and lack of respect for the facts. He has taken it upon himself to violate one of the most important features of the struggle against the Garrison Diversion unit, that is, the non-partisan nature, the unanimity with which Manitobans have tried to prevent this environmental disaster from ever becoming reality. The Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Assiniboine has disregarded the power of that unanimity and sought to score cheap political points, mainly by referring to supposed or alleged inaction on the part of the former New Democratic Government which was in power prior to 1977 and was defeated in October of 1977. What the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Assiniboine failed to point out was that until late 1977 all Manitobans were waiting for the report of the International Joint Commission on the Garrison Diversion project. At that point in time there was still reason to believe that whatever judgment that body made would be respected by the Americans.

We learned later, in 1978, that that was not the case. For the next four years, after we had the report of the International Joint Commission, we had a Progressive Conservative Government in Manitoba which did virtually nothing. It put all its faith in diplomatic relations with the United States. That Government said that because of our good neighbour to the south we had nothing to worry about. It displayed that usual uncritical attitude toward the United States, which did not serve it in good stead, Mr. Speaker. However, I am glad to see that the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Assiniboine is finally on board, that he finally has a mature attitude toward the way in which the United States of America acts when its own self-interests are involved. Finally we hear from a Conservative Hon. Member talking about a Republican in North Dakota and saying, that when it comes down to it, the United States acts in its own self-interests. That is the bottom line of American foreign policy. It is refreshing, indeed, Mr. Speaker, to hear that kind of mature analysis coming from a Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament. That is something one can welcome hearing.

I hope I have now corrected the record for the benefit of those Manitobans who may be listening to this debate, who will actually know themselves that the present Government of Manitoba is doing more than the previous Progressive Conservative Government to stimulate public opinion, opposition and knowledge about the Garrison Diversion project. In the end, this is going to be one of the crucial ways in which we oppose this project, by making people aware of this concern and by doing everything we can to bring about an end to that project.

The motion currently before the House says that the federal Government:

—should consider the advisability of taking those measures necessary to ensure that there is no damage caused to the Manitoba environment by the completion of the Garrison diversion unit—

The important word here, Mr. Speaker, is "completion", because the completion of the Garrison Diversion Unit, as the Member for Winnipeg-Assiniboine pointed out, means a melding of the Missouri River drainage basin with the Hudson's Bay drainage basin. This is of crucial concern. What is being proposed by the State of North Dakota and the United States Department of the Interior in respect of the Garrison project is indeed mind-boggling and a glaring tribute to the misplaced vanity of man. This Promethean project aims to irrigate about 250,000 acres of North Dakota soil by constructing reservoirs and dams, which will eventually, through human engineering, do something nature never intended, namely, link a southern flowing drainage basin and a northern flowing drainage basin. In effect, the Garrison project will do away with the great continental divide in North Dakota. No longer will all rivers to the north of the divide flow into Hudson's Bay and all rivers south of the divide flow into the Gulf of Mexico via the great Mississippi River. Instead, the two river systems will be linked and the waters of the systems will be mixed.

● (1600)

About ten years ago people in Manitoba who had looked at plans for Garrison started to wonder about the effects it might have on Canadian waters. The two river systems flowing north and south have very different characteristics. There are fish species in the southern drainage system which are completely foreign to Canada, and vice versa. What other kinds of aquatic life such as tiny bacteria or foreign chemicals might also be transferred into Canada by that mixing of the waters, people ask. As Manitobans started to ask more questions about the effects of Garrison, they started to get more worried about what they might be in for if the project went ahead. Manitoba politicians were soon on the phone and using the mails to contact their counterparts in Ottawa about making representations to the U.S. Government about Garrison. Talking to the State of North Dakota was one possible way for Manitobans to get their increasing concerns across, but it soon became obvious to those making the representations that Garrison was as much a U.S. federal concern as it was a state matter. So the Canadian federal Government got dragged in to help Manitoba through the intricacies of international diplomacy and negotiation.

Through the efforts of the Canadian Government, agreement was reached in 1975 that the International Joint Commission would do a comprehensive study of the trans-boundary transfers expected to occur as a result of Garrison, a study I already referred to, Mr. Speaker. The IJC was also given a mandate to assess the impact of these environmental transfers on the ecosystem of Manitoba. It was 1977 before the IJC completed its report and made it public. Most people who live in Manitoba did not need to know the minute details of the report to grasp one basic conclusion that the IJC put forward, namely, that Garrison, if it were constructed and completed as designed in 1975, would have a serious impact on the waters of Manitoba. Not only that, but the study said it was likely that various kinds of fish alien to Manitoba would eventually find their way into the Province's lakes and rivers. With them would come the threat of competition for limited food sources and the possible waning of indigenous fish populations to be replaced by the hardier variety of southern fish.

Since the IJC report, Mr. Speaker, and on the strength of that report, Manitobans have been waging war against Garrison. The current Government has established a Garrison focus office to answer citizens' inquiries and to keep on top of the issue. I know the Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake and other Members of the House from other Parties have travelled to Washington, along with Manitoba Cabinet Ministers, to lobby American legislators. Indeed, I had an opportunity to do this myself in September of 1981 when I was in Washington with a Canadian parliamentary delegation. I met with American politicians from North Dakota and Minnesota, and tried to get a meeting with Senator Mark Andrews, but he displayed the same kind of closed-mindedness that the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Assiniboine referred to. In fact, he was not even prepared to meet with me. I phoned one hour before the meeting and confirmed that he would indeed be meeting with me, and when I got there he had suddenly been called away. I had hoped to look him straight in the eye and just tell him what this project meant to Manitoba and what the Americans were doing to their relationship with us by being willing to go ahead with this come-what-may, despite the effects on Canada. But there was no opportunity to do that because, let us put it bluntly, he avoided me as I am sure he has avoided others on this issue.

My colleagues and I in the NDP, Mr. Speaker, are kept up to date on matters relating to Garrison by the Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake, who has concerned himself with Garrison. I have been informed by him recently of allegations which emanate from the U.S. and involve bogus scientific information as distributed by the Department of the Interior. The information has to do with Garrison, and I would therefore like to move an amendment No. 28 that:

The Canadian Government do everything in its power to investigate charges that falsified information has been used in preparing U.S. environmental assessments relating to wetlands and wildlife habitats in North Dakota and that, further, the Government do everything in its power to ensure that no falsified information has been used which might result in adverse environmental effects to Manitoba's waterways.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): The Chair would ask the Hon. Member if his amendment is in addition to the present text of the motion or does—

Mr. Blaikie: It is an addition and it will become item No. 4, Mr. Speaker.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): The Chair finds the amendment to be in order.

Mr. Taylor: Mr. Speaker, could we have copies of that amendment? Secondly, I assume it will be possible to discuss both the amendment and the motion at the same time.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Yes. Debate is now open on the full text of the motion as amended. Strictly speaking, the debate would be on the amendment but the amendment includes the full text of the motion, so if you debate one, you debate them all. Also, the Hon. Member will get copies of the amendment.

Mrs. Suzanne Beauchamp-Niquet (Parliamentary Secretary to Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, regarding the motion presented by the Member for Selkirk-Interlake (Mr. Sargeant):

That, ... the Government should consider the advisability of taking those measures necessary to ensure that there is no damage caused to the Manitoba environment by the completion of the Garrison Diversion Unit in the State of North Dakota and, that such measures to be considered could include—

And at this point, three suggestions are made. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased with this opportunity to rise in the House today and address a matter of serious concern to the Government.

The Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake is suggesting that the Government consider taking the measures necessary to ensure that no damage is caused to the Manitoba environment by the completion of the Garrison Diversion Unit in the State of North Dakota. The Government is very much aware of the risk of damage to the Manitoban ecosystem as a result of the present plans for the Garrison Diversion project, and consequently, it has taken steps to ensure that the United States does not renege on the assurances it has already given us that it will not undertake any work in connection with the Garrison project that might have a damaging effect on waters flowing into Canada. As the Hon. Member is aware, these assurances are based on the Boundary Waters Treaty concluded in 1909 between the United States and Canada, which provides, and I quote:

● (1610)

—waters flowing across the boundary shall not be polluted on either side to the injury of health or property on the other.

The assurances given Canada by the U.S. Government in connection with the Garrison Diversion project are also based on the recommendations of the 1977 report by the International Joint Commission. The Commission's main recommendation was that construction of those parts of the Garrison Diversion project that might affect waters flowing into Canada should be put on hold for the time being.

The Government has taken advantage of every opportunity to ensure that the concerns of Canadians and more specifically of Manitobans are fully understood and considered by the U.S. Congress and Administration, with respect to the design and construction of works under the Garrison Diversion project.

Recent developments, including an increase by Congress in appropriations for the so-called Phase I and the contract awarded for construction of the Lonetree dam and reservoir, have been followed very closely by the Governments of Canada and Manitoba, with a view to being ready to intervene at senior political levels in order to protect Canadian interests.

Very recently, after the Lonetree contract was awarded, the Government expressed its concern about the impact of the timing of the contract award on the current consultation process. We still consider consultation with the United States as the most effective way to respond to Canadian concern about aspects of the Garrison project that might have a disastrous effect on waters flowing into Canada.

Mr. Speaker, on October 3 of this year, the Canadian Government, in a memorandum to the State Department, specifically deplored the fact that the contract for construction of the Lonetree dam, the main work of the Garrison project's water distribution network, was awarded on August 24, 1983, before consultations scheduled by the International Joint Commission were finalized and agreement was reached by both Governments. This Government was particularly critical of the U.S. step because it was taken after a meeting of representatives of both Governments in Ottawa on July 20 of this year to discuss technical aspects of Canadian concerns about some of the project works, on the basis of plans and technical specifications that had been submitted to the Canadian side. At the meeting, a substantial amount of useful information was exchanged and resulted in a fruitful discussion that seemed to prepare the ground for a high level consultative meeting equally productive that both Governments intended to have in September. In the memorandum it sent to the State Department, this Government mentioned that realistically, the September consultations could not have given positive results if they had more or less coincided with the Administration's announcement that a contract had been awarded for construction on the main work of the Garrison project, the very part of the project that was still the subject of intense consultations.

The Government of Canada reminded the State Department that in principle, it saw no reason to object to projects aimed at promoting the economic development of certain regions of the United States, as the Garrison Diversion project was, and that it could understand and fully appreciate the American Administration's standing commitment to the people of North Dakota to replace farmland used to build flood control works. Nevertheless, the Government also felt it should point out that certain parts of the plan as authorized by Congress were likely to have a disastrous effect on waters flowing into Canada, as had been the conclusion of the International Joint Commission in its 1977 report to both Governments.

Mr. Speaker, as long as the plan authorized by Congress is maintained, the Government of Canada can only assume it is still possible that the Garrison project will be funded by Congress up to completion, and this includes what is designated as Phase II. This situation will go on fueling the serious concerns which Canadians have with certain aspects of Phase I and the whole of Phase II. On the other hand, the Canadian Government did inform the United States that it appreciated the general assurances given on various occasions by the Administration, as well as the qualification tied to the last estimates approved to this date by Congress for the 1984 fiscal year that no monies earmarked under the current commitments of Congress shall be used for the completion of sections of the Garrison diversion project in North Dakota that could pollute, introduce foreign biota into or unduly increase or decrease the volume of water flowing into Canada. However, the Government fully recognizes that, in order to efficiently protect Canadian interests and prevent pollution of Manitoba waters by foreign biota originating from a diversion of waters from the Missouri River basin, it must make sure that the general guarantees given by the United States at the ministerial level will translate into technical assurances and guarantees included in the specifications for the Garrison project.

For this reason, the Government is currently attempting to co-operate with officials from the American State Department and Department of the Interior in order to monitor, clarify and resolve specific issues of a technical nature raised by the Canadian representatives after a scrutiny of the Garrison project specifications. In the course of that scrutiny, the Canadian officials' major concern has been to evaluate to what extent the specifications involved the hazard of transferring biota, larvae and fish from the Missouri River basin into the Hudson Bay basin. Other questions have been identified in connection with wildlife management plans, especially as far as migrating birds are concerned.

As I have already said, an important bilateral meeting of experts was held in Ottawa on July 20, 1983, which was attended by representatives of the Water Board and the Department of Fisheries and Wildlife of the state of North Dakota, the "Garrison Conservancy District", the Bureau of Reclamation in Bismark, Denver, Billings and Washington, and of the State Department on the American side, and on the Canadian side by representatives of the Department of Natural Resources of Manitoba, Environment Canada, the Department of Fisheries and Oceans, and also the Secretary of State for External Affairs. The purpose of that meeting was to give the Administration an opportunity to provide technical data concerning the Garrison project and to allow Canadian representatives to raise other matters and concerns. A first list of technical problems drawn up by the Canadian representatives and submitted to the State Department by the Canadian Embassy in Washington before the meeting made it possible to delineate the issues involved and the discussions that followed.

Mr. Speaker, despite a very useful exchange of information, Canada has not yet received any answer to some of its major concerns about the impact of the project on the flow of water into the Hudson Bay's basin and Canada. Such was the conclusion reached by the officials who attended the federal-provincial meeting held early in September, when the Deputy Minister and officers from the Manitoba Department of Natural Resources met in Ottawa with representatives of Environment Canada, Fisheries and Oceans and External Affairs.

Consequently, the Canadian government has decided to officially submit to the State Department a final list of technical issues of concern for Canada in connection with the Garrison project. Through that list which accompanied the note delivered by the Canadian government during the first week of October, Canada is asking that technical alterations be made to the works provided under Phase I. By doing so, Canada is complying with the recommendations made in the 1977 report of the International Joint Commission which provides for consultations between Canada and the United States until an agreement is reached so that any piece of work the construction of which has been approved will not affect streams flowing into Canada.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to tell the House about the technical problems which Canada tries to solve through such consultations. I would like to mention more especially the McClusky fish screen, the drainage of municipal and industrial wastes at the Lonetree dam and reservoir and the plan to minimise the impact on wildlife.

Canada is concerned because the Bureau of Reclamation has mentioned in the final schedule to the statement on impacts filed with the Environmental Protection Agency in July 1983 that the construction of the McClusky fish screen is no longer considered. The construction of such a screen was provided in the 1979 statement on the environmental impact, but the final statement mentions that the area now to be developed does not affect any Canadian interests and suggests instead that the water running through the Garrison project be filtered at several locations downstream the Lonetree reservoir.

When a fish screen is built on the channel, the fish, their eggs the larvae and all other biota in the Missouri River could flow directly into the Lonetree reservoir situated in the Hudson Bay drainage basin a few metres away from the Cheyenne River. As the Hon. Members know, the Cheyenne river flows into the Red River which is part of the Hudson Bay drainage basin. The fish and other biota in the Missouri River would not only be found in Lonetree Reservoir but also in the entire system: head races, inner reservoirs, irrigation areas, and retaining channels, thus greatly increasing the danger of biota transfers from the Missouri River drainage basin to the Hudson Bay basin.

The International Joint Commission had based its assessment that the construction of the Lonetree Reservoir was acceptable not only on the establishment of a closed system, but also on the installation of a fish screen in the McClusky Canal. Canada strongly supported the recommendation of the International Joint Commission to the effect that fishing on the Lonetree Reservoir be prohibited. On the other hand, Canada does not believe that this position could be strictly enforced. It has therefore concluded that the fish screen in the McClusky Canal had to be set up during Phase I to act as a first barrier against fish and fish eggs and lessen the dangers of transfers between the basins. Canada has noted similar findings by the Environment Protection Agency in its detailed environmental impact study.

Mr. Speaker, while supporting the setting up of a fish screen, and in spite of recent improvements in the design and use of fish screens, Canada must agree with the International Joint Commission that the McClusky fish screen, just like any other mechanical device, could not entirely and for all times prevent transfer of foreign biota between the drainage basins. On the other hand, Canada would oppose any plan to stock the Lonetree Reservoir with fish to check the effectiveness of the fish screen, in order to minimize the dangers of biota transfer between the basins resulting from fishing activities.

Canada is concerned also with the possible use for municipal and industrial purposes of unfiltered water and the dangers of possible biota transfers from the Missouri River hydrographic basin into the Hudson Bay drainage basin. Canadian experts have indicated that the bolted obturator, which is being planned to close the down-stream end of the municipal and industrial overfall, could easily be opened. In times of drought, the temptation would certainly increase to open the overfall; so Canada has asked that the plans be modified to provide for a more permanent obturator such as a reinforced concrete sluice-gate.

Third, Canada has advised the United States that it would like to open consultations on the 1982 plan for lessening the impact on wildlife, as described in the final supplement to the environment impact study by the Bureau of Reclamation. Although this plan is supposedly based on the creation, preservation and restoration of wetlands and wildlife habitats, as well as related pastures and woodlands, it does not provide for the replacement "acre by acre" of the marshlands which the officials of the international dual commission had recommended. The representatives of the Canadian Wildlife Service who reviewed and evaluated the alleviation plan have pointed out that the modelization process of the habitat assessment procedure has not yet been tested in the field to determine the validity of the data used in this plan. Canada still believes that the United States must continue to fully respect the spirit of the migratory birds treaty they signed with Canada in 1916.

In addition to the three major concerns which I have just described, the Canadian Government has called the attention of the United States to other technical problems which we would like to have solved in the near future through the consultation process. These issues deal with the question of how to design and build the Lonetree Reservoir to prevent fish eggs, larvae and viruses to filter through the banks and the bottom of the reservoir and join the rivers flowing into Hudson Bay, the possibility that irrigating the lands along the McClusky Canal will result in the transfer of biotas between basins, the need to preserve the present sluice gates of the New Pockford Canal until the Lonetree Reservoir becomes completely operational, the design of the segments of the New Pockford Canal which cross tributaries of the Sheyenne River, the additional information required about the Warwick-McVille irrigation zone, and the fact that the Oakes Canal and the Taayer Reservoir are located very near the watershed of the Wild Rice River, which flows into the Red River.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to conclude by saying that the Government is determined to ensure that in any work of what is commonly called Phase I of the Garrison Project all possible precautions will be taken to eliminate the possible transfer of human organisms from one basin to the other and its effects on Manitoba lakes and rivers. We hope that the problems—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): The Hon. Member for Témiscamingue (Mr. Tousignant) on a point of order.

[English]

Mr. Tousignant: Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring to the attention of the House that the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Birds Hill (Mr. Blaikie) at the beginning of his remarks made some allegations that the Government does not care. He is not even here to listen to the answer.

[Translation]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order please! That is not a point of order.

[English]

Mr. Lee Clark (Brandon-Souris): Mr. Speaker, I would like to share some thoughts with Members of the House this afternoon and in doing so express the concern of many Manitobans about the Garrison Diversion a project which has been in the works for many years. We are particularly concerned in the Province of Manitoba about the recently announced first phase.

• (1630)

As all Hon. Members of the House know, the Government of the United States recently announced plans to proceed with the $5.82 million Lonetree Reservoir. Unfortunately, that decision was made without sufficient safety precautions having been taken. We in the Province of Manitoba are concerned about this development for a variety of reasons. First, we have been and continue to be concerned about the problem of the quality of water which comes into the Province of Manitoba, particularly in my constituency of Brandon-Souris, from the State of North Dakota within the Souris River system.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order, please. I apologize to the Hon. Member for Brandon-Souris (Mr. Clark), but according to the Standing Orders only one Member may be on his or her feet at the same time. I plead with Hon. Members to lower the tone of their conversations.

Mr. Clark (Brandon-Souris): Mr. Speaker, your intervention indicates that you understand this is a very serious problem in the Province of Manitoba. We appreciate your concern. As I was saying, we have been concerned for a long time about the quality of the water. Also we are very concerned that sufficient safety measures were not taken into consideration, and about the possibility of seepage and fishermen using the water system in North Dakota and quite innocently transferring foreign species into the Canadian water system. As well we are concerned about the fact that when the first phase was announced, it seemed to come as a surprise to the Government of Canada. As was suggested recently in the Winnipeg Free Press, the Canadian Government might not have been surprised if it had taken every available opportunity to have observers on site.

Mr. McKenzie: The New Democratic Party was invited to send scientists and it declined to do so.

Mr. Clark (Brandon-Souris): I hear my hon. colleague. He is quite correct. Prior to entering the Chamber this afternoon, I heard the debate which was taking place. Differences of opinion were being expressed as to the roles of various Manitoba Governments in this case. It is important for all Hon. Members to understand that the concern about the Garrison is something which transcends Party differences. We may disagree on how best to implement the concerns, but it is very important to realize that this is a non-partisan matter about which all the people of Manitoba are very concerned. Therefore, we urge action by all concerned Governments. We believe that this is the time for energetic leadership by both Governments. They should take every available opportunity to ensure that they are as fully conversant with developments as they can possibly be.

Our concern is even greater as a result of recent revelations in the American press. It appears that falsified information was used by some Americans with respect to the environmental impact of the proposed development. Therefore I am very much in sympathy with the amendment introduced by the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Birds Hill (Mr. Blaikie). It is important that the House register its concern and do everything it possibly can to ensure that such falsified information has not been made available to Canada so that the sense of security of some Canadians is not based upon false premises.

We need some guarantee that the quality of water in the Souris and Red River will not be impaired by this development. Also we need some guarantee that foreign species will not be introduced into the river system, thereby endangering both our sports and commercial fishing, and that the Governments involved will regard this matter as a very high priority.

As I said in the House prior to the visit of the Secretary of State for External Affairs (Mr. MacEachen) to Halifax and his meetings there with his American counterpart, I had hoped that our officials would make this a very high priority. From reading newspaper accounts of those meetings, I suspect that the priority was not as high as I had wished. At that time I was hopeful that the change in personnel in the United States with direct responsibility for this—that is, the dismissal of Mr. Watt—would lead to a more favourable individual assuming his responsibilities. I regret that that does not seem to have occurred.

Therefore, I conclude my remarks by reiterating the belief of the people of Manitoba that this is an issue of paramount importance. We impress upon the Government—and we hope that the Government of Manitoba would be likewise concerned—to approach this question with the utmost urgency.

[Translation]

Mr. Pierre Gimaïel (Lac-Saint-Jean): Mr. Speaker, if I want to take a few minutes to discusss the subject now under consideration, namely the Garrison project, it is because, having been involved in the work of the subcommittee on acid rain, I have been in a position to realize the value of the discussions on environmental issues between Canada and the United States and because, for the past several years, the International Joint Commission has been reviewing the various issues which affect the Canadian and American environments, especially where water is concerned.

I would like to come back to the third suggestion contained in the motion under consideration, namely the bringing to trial in the World Court of the Government of the United States, should Canada be unsuccessful in its efforts to receive satisfactory assurances regarding the future safety of her environment.

I believe that this would to much too great an extent involve a third party in the discussions between Canada and the United States, in view of the fact that in an area as important as the environment, these two countries have managed to come to an agreement these last few years. Involving a third party would show a lack of confidence in a field where close cooperation and consultation between our two countries already exist. It is true that we do not always agree, that our positions can differ, but in the end a kind of tacit understanding does exist as a result of which, until an agreement has been reached, neither country will take concrete steps on any issue relating to the environment. In addition, since the middle of the sixties, a lot of progress has been accomplished in the areas we are discussing, namely the protection of Manitoba waters.

As an illustration, I would point out that, last year, the American Congress, by a very impressive vote of 252 against 152 as I recall, refused to authorize a $4 million allocation for the development of this project. It was the first time that such funds had been refused. It is true that later on they were granted by a joint senatorial and congressional committee, but the fact still remains that a majority of American Congressmen turned down the request for these expenditures which shows how deep is their concern for the environment, both in the United States and Canada. And that is so precisely because the joint committee responsible for looking into environment related issues between the two countries, particularly with respect to waters, has done its job, as it did in other cases such as the Great Lakes, with constant concern for the environment.

Of course, when it comes to an issue such as acid rains, we must admit that there are different opinions. But it is true as well that the Americans view those problems from an angle which differs from ours in Canada. We must keep in mind the fact that there are over 200 million Americans—almost 250 million—in a country somewhat smaller than ours. Obviously, they have commitments towards the population which we Canadians do not have. As Canadians, we have the right and the duty to protect our environment because it is our greatest wealth, and since there are only 24 million of us in the second largest country in the world, we do have wealth and plenty of resources which very few nations of the world enjoy. And I think that, in the name of mankind, we have an obligation to protect the resources of the country in which we live. But the Americans have to reconcile that aspect with the fact that they must provide their population with food, electricity and all kinds of other things. In my opinion, asking a third party to intervene in areas which have been the subject of constant discussions with them over the years would be dishonest first and, second, it might jeopardize what has always been wide open co-operation between the two countries. In other words, the important thing in the realm of ecology is that the two countries maintain a constant dialogue.

If the dialogue were broken, Mr. Speaker, I might consider the suggestion by the hon. member as useful, but certainly not of a nature as to reestablish the dialogue. Quite the contrary! On the other hand, if we did it now when there is constant dialogue between the countries and when there are mecanisms which have been developed by very wise politicians over the years, whatever their political affiliations, I suggest it would be ill-advised at this time to involve a third party which would be entirely unaware of past dealings which go back some 20 years in this case and even more in other cases.

Far from being based on facts, the accusations against the government are quite surprising, considering that the Canadian government is perceived as one of the world leaders in the area of environment protection, that it is probably the one country which is most responsible for arousing environmental awareness in the United States, especially in the areas of air pollution due to acid rains, or Great Lakes pollution, or the protection of territorial waters, whether Canadian or otherwise. Indeed, if there is a government and politicians who are aware of the importance of sport fishing, or drinking water, it is the Government of Canada which is constantly involved in discussions with the provinces through its Environment and Forestry departments, and which . . . through this House has on two occasions taken upon itself to provide the Sub-committee on acid rains with orders of reference urging its members to take the necessary steps to meet throughout Canada with people on an international level and devise a valid and workable strategy to fight against this curse of the 20th century.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order. It is my duty, pursuant to Standing Order 24(2) to interrupt the proceedings.

Shall all orders listed under Private Members' Notices of Motions preceding order No. 102 be allowed to stand by unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

INCOME TAX ACT

TAXATION OF VISUAL AND PERFORMING ARTISTS

Right Hon. Joe Clark (Yellowhead) moved:

That a Special Committee be appointed to review all relevant provisions of the Income Tax Act relating to the taxation of visual and performing artists including, but not limited to, the criteria for establishing the professional status of visual and performing artists and the method for determining allowable business deductions for such artists and to recommend any changes that the Committee deems necessary and proper;

That such review include the hearing and consideration of the views of interested parties and organizations;

That the Committee consist of nine (9) members;

That it be an instruction to the said Committee that it meet forthwith;

That the Committee have the power to send for persons, papers and records and to examine witnesses and to print such papers and evidence from day to day as may be ordered by the Committee; and

That the Committee submit its report not later than January 17, 1984.

He said: Mr. Speaker—

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Clark (Yellowhead): —Hon. Members will know that since I last spoke in this House, I have changed my status and have become a statesman!

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Clark (Yellowhead): It is in that spirit that I am raising an issue that has nothing to do with partisan differences and has everything to do with our work as Parliamentarians and, in my view, with our identity as Canadians.

The particular issue today is the tax status of visual and performing artists in Canada. That question was dramatized some weeks ago when the internationally successful Canadian artist, Toni Onley of Vancouver, concluded that he had only one way to avoid a tax treatment which almost all visual artists consider to be unfair, and that that way would be for Mr. Onley to burn a million dollars worth of Canadian works of art. Mr. Onley by that action forced us all to face the absurdity of a public policy which through the CBC, the Canada Council and other grants encourages artists to create and, on the other hand, through tax policy, leads them to destroy their works or to limit their imagination.

[Translation]

Members on both sides of the House have intervened personally to ask Mr. Onley not to destroy his work. We said we would not only look into his case but also the hundreds or perhaps thousands of other cases to which he has wanted to draw our attention by his dramatic threat. Today we are considering an instrument that would enable elected representatives, Members of Parliament, to deal with a matter that has been a serious problem for at least a decade and that can only be resolved if Hon. Members take a direct and active interest in this issue.

Perhaps I may review past events. For many years, the special status of artists was recognized by Canada's tax policy. In the 60s, although there was no legislation on a special status for artists, the practice was to allow them to be considered as employees for the purposes of unemployment insurance premiums and the Canada Pension Plan, while at the same time they were considered to be self-employed so that they could deduct expenses incurred in the performance of their art. These included purchase of supplies, instruments and costumes and the travel expenses incurred in order to perform on the stage, to paint or to write.

[English]

That dual status for artists was an unintended victim of the Government's decision in 1972 to consolidate and rationalize treatment of social security programs by Revenue Canada. That change brought an end to the practice of individual officers of Revenue Canada assessing artists on an individual case by case basis. Instead, the computer did the assessment. The only computer categories into which artists fit were, on the one hand, as hobbyists if they did not generate a profit from their art or, on the other hand, as a manufacturer if they did generate a profit from their art.

If you are an artist whom the computer calls a hobbyist, you cannot deduct legitimate business expenses related to the production of your work. If you are an artist whom the computer calls a manufacturer, you must sell or liquidate your inventory, which in this case is all of your artistic works, on a yearly basis if you wish to deduct all of the legitimate expenses for that year.

The implications of this are staggering. In the case of Mr. Onley, his means of liquidating his inventory so that he can deduct legitimate expenses was to hold a big bonfire on Wreck Beach. In the case of artists whose reputation in their field is so well established that they are asked to teach and who can earn more from their teaching than from their art, they can become hobbyists to the computer in National Revenue. They probably cannot claim the cost of their paints, research or other preparations. Less established artists who are trying to get started and who are supporting themselves during the time when they are trying to get started in some other job are also hobbyists according to the computer. They cannot deduct their legitimate expenses. It is safe to say that nobody planned things this way. The Government simply wanted to bring order to its taxing operations back in 1972 and Canadian artists are quite literally the victims of computer error. That is what is happening.

An additional and related problem has been to categorize performing artists as employees of the group for whom they perform rather than as independent artists. That has been the case with members of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra. That is a matter which the Government now has under review. It has been a matter in the case of the Carousel Players of St. Catharines. It has been the case with the Mermaid Theatre in Wolfville, Nova Scotia. It has revenue implications for both the performing companies and for individual performers.

These problems are very real to individual artists. They create an atmosphere of stress and an atmosphere, unhappily, of anger that harms not only Canada's artistic reputation but also the interests of our artists in working in their art.

The House may want to know what some of these things mean in human terms. It means, for example, that a film maker from Montreal who is today premiering her latest film with the National Film Board here in Ottawa is classified as a maker of home movies because her films have not yet made a profit. Consequently she faces today a reassessment of literally thousands of dollars in taxes. It means that a professional sculptor from British Columbia whose works are cast in bronze by a Canadian fine arts foundry is told that he has to change his long and delicate process of creating a bronze sculpture because he is classed, not as a sculptor, not as an artist, but as a manufacturer. He has to fit the production, completion and the sale of a work of art into fixed yearly increments just like any manufacturer of widgets would if he wants to be able to deduct his heavy outlays in labour and materials from income earned.

To cite again the case of Carousel Players of St. Catharines where the Government has decided to treat performers as employees rather than as independent artists, Revenue Canada in this case is seeking to recover employee and employer contributions to unemployment insurance and CPP from both the company and the players. The company and the players have no money and they cannot pay. Revenue Canada has issued a third party demand on incoming grants from the Ontario Arts Council and the Canada Council and they have already seized funds in excess of $15,000.

That illustrates perfectly the crazy dilemma that we have to resolve. Parliament deliberately authorized the Canada Council to help artists. We did not deliberately authorize the computers of Revenue Canada to harass artists. No one in their right mind would find any logic in a system in which Revenue Canada is getting grants from the Canada Council, but that is what is happening in this case and it is inexcusable.

As Parliamentarians we have to ask ourselves why we have a policy by default. Nobody planned it this way. None of the Ministers opposite planned it this way. Indeed, some of them have been working to change it. We as Parliamentarians, dealing with a matter of very real importance to our country, have a policy by default. We have to ask ourselves why we have it and why we have it particularly on the issue of taxation of artists which bears so directly on their ability to create and to produce here in our country.

This is the Parliament that has been so preoccupied with creating a Canadian identity, with encouraging Canadian culture. Why not be consistent about it? Why allow a policy developed by default to undercut all of the excellent work we are doing through our work in the Canada Council, in the CBC, in the other instruments of Canadian expression and Canadian identity? I am not blaming the Government, I am blaming Parliament. We have to ask why we have left to the computer and to the tax collector decisions that should be taken here by us as the individual men and women sent by electors across the country to decide important public policy.

The answer to this question is all the more troublesome if we consider that, as long as 12 years ago, the Arts and Culture Branch, which was then new, of the Department of the Secretary of State, as it then was, recognized the pressing nature of the employment status of artists and the attendant problems faced by them. The Government engaged the accountant Russell Disney in 1976 to study all of these issues. He published a report in 1977, the major thrust of which was to call for a return to the dual status concept for artists.

Interdepartmental committees and subcommittees of every relevant Government department were put in place to advise the Government on the implementation of the Disney recommendations. the work of those interdepartmental committees continued for more than two years. In addition, the Government's only review of federal cultural policy, the Appelbaum-Hébert Committee, spoke forcefully for the resolution of these issues, characterizing them as a question not of special pleading by the artist but of simple equity. Simple equity is the language of the Appelbaum-Hébert Report.

Through all of this time individual artists and their professional organizations have had to become experts in the intricacies of Revenue Canada policy as they pursue their cases through the appeals process to Ministers and to the various regulatory boards involved. We will never know how many works of art have been lost in this country because artists who should have been creating art were instead trying to figure out how they were going to deal with policy that this Parliament never approved relating to Revenue Canada. We know that the anguish and anger that has been caused in the artistic community is severe and it should be stopped.

To date the Government has not taken any steps to implement any of the Disney recommendations. I am not saying there was bad faith. Going back to Gerard Pelletier through all intervening Ministers, including David MacDonald, there has been a very real interest on the part of responsible Ministers in getting action. It is just that until today the issue has not been important enough to enough people to get priority. In this Parliament we can give priority to an issue that goes to the very heart of our determination to encourage a distinctive Canadian culture and a distinctive Canadian identity. It is in our power as Members of the House of Commons to do that.

Recent cases like the Toni Onley case and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra case have brought again public attention to the issue. They have brought public attention to the fact that the present Minister of Communications (Mr. Fox) is working very hard to try to have the Minister of Finance (Mr. Lalonde) and the Minister of National Revenue (Mr. Bussières) address these issues.

It appears that within the process of Government the relative balance of demands for policy change in Revenue and Finance is weighted heavily against the small and financially strapped arts community, a community which has seen the average annual income of its self-employed artists fall from $4,835 in 1974 to $4,352 in 1980.

I would argue that it is wise for any society to encourage its creative and its daring, but it is absolutely imperative for Canada to do that because we are a country of such majesty and such complexity that we can be known only by our artists' imaginations. We in this House, whatever our Party, whatever our background, have all had the opportunity to travel very widely in this country. Yet I would wager that most of the important things that most of us feel about our country we have learned from the paintings, songs or literature of Canada.

It is no accident that the most respected of our Native people, the Indians, the Eskimos, people who were on this continent before the rest of us, are their elders. This is not just because they are old but because they transmit the story of what was to those who will carry the tribe forward into whatever the next frontier may be. Perhaps countries with more history need less imagination but this country is a nation whose history is ahead of us and our duty as lawmakers today is to encourage the creative imagination that will let us become a complex, diverse, exciting community.

It is clear on the basis of the last 12 years that nothing will be done unless we do it. That is why I am proposing that a special parliamentary committee be appointed immediately with a mandate to report back to this House no later than mid-January, 1984. I suggest such a committee is the only process which can give a more balanced weight to the issues involved in the taxation of artists. It will provide a public forum for all of the people involved to plead their case.

I urge Members of the House to support this motion in order that we may finally remove from our tax regime some very serious obstacles, that none of us planned or approved to the growth and development of the arts in this country.

Mr. David Orlikow (Winnipeg North): Mr. Speaker, I want to support the motion moved by the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead (Mr. Clark). Members of this Party can agree with nearly everything he said.

For many years now Liberal and Conservative Governments have recognized, as have the Governments of most if not all modern industrialized countries, that artists, whether they be visual artists, musicians or artists of other types, need support if they are to create the works they want to create. Very few artists are in a position to support themselves through the sale of their work.

Over the years, regardless of which Party forms the Government, we have given support to artists and performers of various types through the Canada Council, through the CBC, through grants from the Department of the Secretary of State and the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. But recently, Revenue Canada has come forward with an aggressive policy of zeroing in on artists, musicians and writers in an attempt to reclassify them and make them pay income tax on income three or four years back.

A month ago I put a question to the Minister of National Revenue (Mr. Bussières) and requested him to put a stop to the present policy of the Department until the matter could be reassessed and re-examined as is suggested in the motion of the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead. At the same time, questions were put to the Minister by Members of the Official Opposition and a Liberal Member asked a question about the Toronto Symphony. All Members got a pretty negative or pretty hostile reply.

There are not many Tony Onleys in Canada who have $1 million worth of art to sell. Most artists in this country are poor. Most artists in this country are living in poverty. The Applebaum-Hébert Committee, for example, found that only one of every five Canadian artists earns a gross income of over $5,000, that 60 per cent of artists in a sample survey conducted in Ontario were living in desperate conditions, and that the most recent estimates show that 80 per cent of visual artists in Canada earn less than $7,250 in direct art sales every year.

Recently, Revenue Canada suddenly made a ruling that members of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra are to be classified as employees. That will mean that they will not be able to deduct their expenses as musicians for tax purposes. Members of the Toronto Symphony have a contract which says that they are guaranteed 48 weeks of work per year but only 19.5 hours per week. It is pretty obvious to anyone, except to officials of Revenue Canada, that musicians must have other employment as they cannot live on what they earn with the orchestra. It is important to them that they be able to deduct their expenses as musicians from income as musicians. Yet Revenue Canada has told them that they cannot do that.

Now Revenue Canada is going after writers. Very few writers in Canada can earn a living just by writing. Like many other artists, some of them try to teach, if not every year, perhaps one year in two or one in three or four. That way they can at least have an income they can count on for one year. Now Revenue Canada is starting to put the squeeze on them.

The Minister has been saying that Revenue Canada is only interpreting the law. I find it strange that in 1983 Revenue Canada is making interpretations it never made before. Not only is it being unreasonable about the current year or the last year, but it is going back three and four years and expecting artists, musicians and I suppose writers to account for everything they have done. That is really impossible.

Like the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead, I have had representations from artists and musicians from Vancouver to Halifax. Some of the cases are beyond belief. In Montreal a well known sculptor received a letter from Revenue Canada telling him that it had arbitrarily—and that is the Department's term—decided that his claim for art materials, supplies and expenses is not admissible and that he must pay $8,000 within the next three months. Apparently grants which he has received from the Canada Council to go toward his expenses were judged to represent the extent of his costs. Other costs were disallowed.

In Vancouver an artist was given 21 days to prove that his activities as an artist showed a reasonable expectation of profit. He wants to know how one can prove to Revenue Canada that a reasonable expectation of profit exists in the research, development production, promotion and sale of original works of art.

I would ask Hon. Members to think about some of the most famous artists in the world—Picasso, Gaugin, Van Gogh or any other. When those artists produced their works they could barely give them away, but those works are now worth millions of dollars. Revenue Canada is asking our artists to classify themselves as manufacturers. How does an artist know that the work he produced in 1982 or 1983 will sell or for how much it will sell? The Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead blamed the computer. I blame the people who stopped using their heads and substituted the computer.

Another artist who was the recipient of an honour from the Governor General which made him a Royal Canadian artist is now subject to niggling scrutiny by Revenue Canada for every cent he spends on art supplies. He said that the action by Revenue Canada makes him feel that the honour he received is ludicrous.

All these cases bring us back to one glaring reality: the Government, as represented by Revenue Canada in its efforts to maximize revenue, has lost all perspective of the role of arts and culture in the life of this country. The attack on Canadian visual and performing artists has the potential of retarding the development of arts in this country.

If the present policy of Revenue Canada continues, artists will stop producing. They are already living in poverty and will not be able to afford to continue working. This attacks the most vulnerable group in society. At the same time we have a tax department which permits people who make large amounts of money to pay little or no tax on huge incomes.

Jack McArthur, who regularly writes a business column in the Toronto Star pointed out some of the things which go on in this country. He pointed out that in 1980 there were 179 people in Canada with incomes of more than $200,000 who did not pay any income tax at all; that there were 651 Canadians who had incomes of between $100,000 and $200,000 who did not pay any income tax; that there were 4,020 who had incomes of between $50,000 and $100,000 who did not pay any income tax.

It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that the Minister of National Revenue and his Department would be doing a much better job in thinking more realistically and more humanely about the burden of taxation which we all have to face if they would concentrate their efforts in trying to plug the loopholes which permit a relatively small number of very large income earners to pay no income tax at all. They should not be concentrating on artists, musicians and writers whose incomes are quite small and who need assistance, help and sympathy from the Canadian Government, rather than the kind of harassment they have received in the last few years.

I have raised this question during the question period and I have arranged, as well as other Hon. Members, I am sure, for meetings between the representatives of the artists and musicians and representatives of the Canadian Conference on the Arts, when I could not reach the Minister. They had a very good discussion and afterward both sides understood better what the other side was talking about. It was obvious that the Assistant Deputy Minister either could not or would not budge. I say, Mr. Speaker, that it is time for the Government to act. I believe the idea of a parliamentary committee to look at this question is a good one.

I wish that we could look more seriously and more quickly at the recommendations made in the Disney Report. I say to the Minister of National Revenue that until this committee meets, has an opportunity to hear representations and makes its report, and until the Government can act on the report, the Minister ought to say to his people in Revenue Canada: "Stop this harassment. Stop this drive to collect what will actually be very small amounts of money." Let us go back to the period of a year ago when the Department was looking at these things with a relatively humane attitude. Until then, Mr. Speaker, we certainly support the concept of establishing this committee.

Mr. Douglas Fisher (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I am grateful to the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead (Mr. Clark) for introducing this topic and bringing it forward for discussion today. I agree with the motion. I would like to offer some amendments which I believe would help us to operate more easily with the idea. Hopefully, it will expedite our treatment of the idea. I would like to come back to the amendments in a few minutes. However, let me congratulate the Right Hon. Member for bringing this topic forward.

I come from a background in book publishing. For some 12 years before I was elected I had some experience as an editor and salesman in the book industry. Therefore, I feel I understand something about the problems facing writers in just generating income, let alone getting as far as paying their taxes. Many writers, as has been eloquently stated here, are really very underpaid. We do not in any way reflect in our financial rewards any gratitude at all for the heritage which they are leaving for our country's future, and the great enrichment of our country to which writers are contributing. I know the same is true for visual artists and for performing artists, as the Right Hon. Member noted earlier.

I would like as well to draw attention to the key document, the Applebaum-Hébert Report, the recent survey of the arts in Canada. This study has had a significant impact already and has been referred to the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture. That Committee has been reviewing portions of the study. It has completed one significant part, I believe on broadcasting, and is now turning its attention to artists, writers and the performing arts. Therefore, this motion presented by the Right Hon. Member fits in in a very timely way with the study of the Committee on Communications and Culture.

Before I continue, I would like to draw to everyone's attention what I consider to be a refreshing move by the Minister of National Revenue (Mr. Bussières). Earlier this week something happened in response to a query by the Hon. Member for Willowdale (Mr. Peterson) and earlier from the Hon. Member for Rosedale (Mr. Crombie) and, I believe, the Hon. Member for Winnipeg North (Mr. Orlikow). Those Hon. Members have been inquiring about the audit by Revenue Canada of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra. The Minister, because he wanted to be fair, ordered a moratorium on the ruling. He has subsequently met with members of the orchestra. The meeting was very fruitful. I attended the meeting and I feel that the ruling will be reviewed carefully in light of the discussions at that meeting. Certainly, the musicians and their representatives are getting a full day in court from a very sensitive and practical Minister.

I referred a moment ago to the work of the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture which is working with the Applebaum-Hébert Report. I will have some amendments to this motion to send to that Committee to tie it into the study of the Applebaum-Hébert Report. That Committee has the expertise to appreciate the story from the artists' perspective rather than from a financial perspective. Therefore, it is appropriate that a motion like this should go to such a group. The artistic community will get its best hearing from that Committee. Certainly, they would be talking to people who understand their working conditions, living standards and the tax problem these people face. The best audience for a motion like this is in the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture.

I know that the Hon. Member for London West (Mr. Burghardt), who is a Parliamentary Secretary working on that Committee, would like to say a few things in a moment about the work of the Committee.

The Applebaum-Hébert Report made several comments on its insight into the nature of these tax problems. It listed several tax problems as follows, if I may quote from that report:

> —matters such as the treatment of artists' costs (and whether or in what circumstances artists should be considered as employees or self-employed), the valuation of works donated by artists to public institutions, and the income-averaging tax provisions available . . . Although such proposals may appear to the department of Finance to require departures from standard practices, to the extent that they involve nothing more than simple equity they can scarcely be construed as special pleading—

That line of thought coincides quite closely with the presentation of the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead. The issue over the past few years really has been that artists have been treated as if they are business people or businesses per se. Of course, there is no need to do that. However, that parallel has come about because we have been trying to treat all taxpayers equally.

The question of tax equity has arisen. If we depart from that standard, we must do so carefully because potentially we will be favouring one group and at the same time creating an incentive for a lot of other people to call themselves members of that special group. Before we depart from that standard, we must ensure that we can define who is the artist and why they are getting special treatment. In general I invite the Committee to turn its mind to that particular problem.

Let me take a few examples and just ask for the Committee's advice. The Right Hon. Member raised the question of what is known as the accrual method of accounting. To state it simply, you cannot write off or deduct an expense until the item for which the expense was incurred has either been sold or declared unsaleable. That system applies for all businesses. According to the description of the Right Hon. Member, it is that system which caused Mr. Tony Onley so much trouble. Of course, an artist would like to use the cash system, as would a lot of small businesses. One can write off the expense in the same year it is incurred and you do not have to wait until the item is sold or declared unsaleable. We use the cash system with farmers. But in a debate about farmers we find in a very revealing way the problems you incur with the cash system for one group and the accrual system for another.

Many people would love to have access to the cash system. In my neighbourhood, for example, in Mississauga, there are not a lot of farmers. There is a lot of vacant land and a lot of people sitting on that land and they would love to be able to call themselves farmers and take advantage of the cash system. It would give them a better write-off and they would be able to mix in a lot of different things under this disguise of being a farmer. So I think when the Committee goes to work on this problem it should indeed take a look at potential abuses in the cash system. It looks so temptingly easy and yet farmers' representatives, such as the Cattlemen's Association, said to me last spring they do not want to lose the cash system and they do not want to have the Government loosen up its regulations and invite abuses of the cash system. Equally, if artists want to have this marvellous advantage, let us hope the Committee will give us some definitions of what an artist is, as well as the areas of potential abuse. Artists can do that. They would have no problem telling us how to define themselves. So we invite artists to come in and then perhaps a committee can look at ways to turn their definitions into a workable taxable definitions.

In the same way let us take a look at another problem. The tax department says to businesses that they have to operate with a reasonable expectation of profit. You cannot set up a business just to write off your living expenses. I know some people like to do that. A lovely yacht, a trip here or there, and people would love to have those kinds of write-offs. It would be a terrific incentive. But the tax department will not let you do that. You cannot write off simple living expenses.

One way to define the difference between legitimate business expenses or personal expenses is to ask whether the person has a reasonable expectation of profit. That is how they do it with a business. That is a reasonable standard. But how do you do it with an artist? How do you do it with someone, for example, who has a brilliant ability but simply has not sold anything, such as a young artist just launching his or her career? Obviously such a person will not have a reasonable expectation of profit in the first few years of his or her career.

I must say there is a butcher near my house who claims that in his early years Danby offered him a print in return for some pork chops. Certainly the print appreciated in value a lot faster than those pork chops and it would have been a real expectation of profit for the butcher. I am not so sure it was for Mr. Danby. However, the problem is there. How do we handle the distinction between business expenses and personal expenses for an artist, especially when that artist is going to go for a long time without making any profit? So again, we invite the Committee to give us some guidelines on that.

There are parallels here again which help the Committee. The Committee might look at the problem of farm losses, how farmers set themselves up and how the tax department treats young farmers or new farm businesses incurring initial losses with the hope of getting a profit. Again we would ask the Committee to bring us the artists' perspective and we will try and turn that into some workable law.

The question of profit helps us with businesses to distinguish between genuine practitioners and phonies. There is a problem we run into with all fields of human endeavour. It is just as true in the arts as it is anywhere else. There are people who are hobbyists, there are people who would love to have the tax write-offs but have not really earned them. They are not really artists, they are hobbyists. The Committee should give us some indication of ways to distinguish between those who are practising a hobby and who want to go to Greece and paint a Grecian sunset. How do we know they are legitimate and should write off the airline tickets and hotel bills and whatever else is incurred, as opposed to some struggling, genuine artists who may be just walking out into the country to paint sunsets there? How do we tell the difference between the two?

Finally, we have the controversy mentioned by the Hon. Member for Winnipeg North, the question of employees versus the self-employed. This has real ramifications beyond the arts. We get into problems with engineers, with professionals in other areas, with people who just set up little companies in order to get tax dodges. Again the Committee should give us some indication of how we distinguish between genuine artists who are self-employed and those people who have put themselves in real employee circumstances. That is a tricky area, not one to be treated lightly at all. We should keep our eyes on the ramifications in other areas as well.

I think the motion has presented an important topic and I personally welcome it. I welcome the guidance the Right Hon. Member has given us in his comments and I hope my own comments pass along a few more guidelines for the Committee. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I move:

(a) by deleting line 1 and substituting the following therefor:

"That the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture review all"

That puts the material into the Committee. Further:

(b) by deleting line 3 and substituting the following therefor:

"taxation of visual and performing artists and writers including, but not"

That includes writers in our consideration. The same happens with my third amendment:

(c) by deleting line 5 and substituting the following therefor:

"of visual and performing artists and of writers and the method for determin-"

(d) by adding immediately after line 8 the following:

"That such review be conducted as part of the Committee's study of the Applebaum-Hébert Report and its conclusions on this matter be reported to the House before the Committee continues to other topics within this Report;"

(e) by deleting line 10 and substituting the following therefor:

"the views of interested parties and organizations."

(f) by deleting lines 11 to 19 inclusive.

● (1730)

Very briefly, those amendments put this motion into the Standing Committee that is equipped to handle it. The motion ensures that the Standing Committee will deal with the matter as a top priority, that it will report back to the House with its findings and that it will include writers as well as visual artists and performing artists.

Finally, there is a chance that the House will prorogue before all of this is done and we will ask our House Leaders to include this item in their negotiations and that the reference be continued on into the next session.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order, the Chair should say that it has some reservations about the wording of paragraph (a) of the amendment which reads, "That the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture review all". I would like to draw the attention of the Hon. Members to Beauchesne's Fourth Edition, Citation 202, Paragraph (6) on page 169, which reads:

It is not an amendment to a motion to move that the question go to a committee.

Nevertheless, the Chair appreciates that the House seems to be disposed to refer this matter to the Committee, and since Beauchesne deals with procedure and not legality, the Chair is prepared to accept the text of the amendment as proposed unless there is a strong and violent objection from any quarter in the House.

Hon. David Crombie (Rosedale): First, Mr. Speaker, let me pay tribute to the remarks made by the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead (Mr. Clark). This is his first intervention in the House in some time. It seemed to me that he not only chose an area which needs the kind of weight he can bring to a motion, but he did so so eloquently and in such detail that there is very little left for anyone else to say. I suggest that not only his eloquence but the wisdom of his remarks is already bearing fruit on the Government side because it has now offered an agreement to send this matter to a committee. I will respond to that agreement on behalf of our Party in a moment.

Since I do not want to talk out our own motion, I will underline only three points. First, there was much made of the proposition that this was somehow a new matter that has come upon us and which we must deal with quickly. While we must deal with it quickly, it is certainly not a new matter. This issue has been in existence since 1972, as the Right Hon. Member has said. Indeed, the Disney Report was published in 1978. That report is the basis upon which the Committee can answer many of the questions raised by the Hon. Member for Mississauga North (Mr. Fisher). Indeed, I suggest that if this report had been dealt with by the Government when it was first published five years ago, we would not have the kind of problem that exists now, where artists are finding it almost impossible to figure how to go about the business of creativity without either going to jail or going broke.

I simply say that the questions being raised were not raised for the first time today by the Hon. Member for Mississauga North. The Disney Report dealt with this problem five years ago. We would have saved people a lot of pain if the Government had dealt with it then.

The second point I want to underline is that we are talking about the importance of establishing a tax status for artists. Again, this is not something new. While it is new to the Government, it is not new, as noted in the Disney Report, to 14 other countries surrounding us. Countries in the western world have been doing this for a decade. Those countries which appreciate the importance of art to them have found a way to deal with the tax status of artists so they can continue to be artists. The important function of the Committee will be to recommend a tax status for artists which will allow them to be artists in this country.

The third point I want to emphasize is something which the right hon. gentleman mentioned earlier. This is not a small matter. Artists are small in number but they are fundamentally important not only to us but our children and our grandchildren. The only way that people in this country know who they are and where they are going is ultimately through performing artists, writers, sculptors or musicians. We learn who we are and where we are going through art. Surely it is not beyond the competence of this House and the Committee to come up with a status which allows those people who define who we are to be able to do so.

With respect to the agreement offered by the Government, we agree with the motion and that is why I seconded it. We do so with the understanding that the Government has undertaken to raise the matter of prorogation with the House Leaders if, indeed, the matter will die as a consequence of the House being prorogued. Second, we also accept that it is clearly understood that the artists and those affected by the legislation will be heard by the Committee. Third, we accept the proposition that the Government will do its best to bring forward the resources at its command within National Revenue to make sure, at the end of all of this, that we are not simply talking once more but actually doing something for the artists of this country. That will make this day possible.

Mr. Jack Burghardt (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Communications): Mr. Speaker, I certainly welcome this opportunity to speak for a couple of moments about the Right Hon. Member's interest and concern in this question. While it does not fall within the mandate or directly affect the Minister of Communications (Mr. Fox), it does affect directly the community for which the Minister of Communications is responsible. On that basis we certainly welcome the opportunity to speak to this matter which has come before the House.

As the Hon. Member knows, the question of the methods whereby the federal Government creates a climate in which the arts can flourish has been a matter of intense study by the Government over the past three years. The report of the federal cultural policy review committee has already been mentioned. The Standing Committee on Communications and Culture has, of course, looked at one phase of this, that dealing with broadcasting and film. Certainly it is the intent of the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture to review the entire Applebaum-Hébert Report. As a matter of fact, just yesterday the Standing Committee voted to seek a renewal of that reference in any new session so that it might continue the work already begun. Certainly the question of the tax treatment of artists is a priority among the issues that will be examined in that context.

I agree with the Hon. Member for Rosedale (Mr. Crombie) when he suggests that we should be able to call witnesses to that Committee. Witnesses from all endeavours of the artistic community should be heard so that we can properly understand this very burning problem in which the artistic community is now engaged. We certainly want it rectified.

I think that has already been proven on this side of the House by the work done by the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture. While I recognize the urgency of the Right Hon. Member's motion, I too would like to add my voice to the opinion that the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture is the proper forum to study this particular question.

It certainly would be irresponsible of me to assure Members that total solutions will be found. As Russell Disney prefaced the recommendations in his famous report, the problems he was dealing with were the residual hard core of issues where fundamental differences of opinion and principle exist between fiscal policy and cultural policy. However, I can assure the House that serious efforts are being made and will be made to come to terms with these problems and resolve them.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Is the House ready for the question?

Some Hon. Members: Question.

NARCOTICS

CANNABIS OFFENCES

The House resumed from Friday, December 11, 1981, consideration of the motion of Mr. Gass:

That, in the opinion of this House, the Government should reconsider its plan announced in the Speech from the Throne to move cannabis offences to the Food and Drugs Act and to remove the possibility of imprisonment for simple possession and should consider the advisability of leaving cannabis offences as they are in the Criminal Code.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): When the House adjourned the previous debate, the Hon. Member for Lambton-Middlesex (Mr. Ferguson) had the floor.

Mr. Taylor: Mr. Speaker, in view of the lateness of the hour and the importance of the subject, I move, seconded by the Hon. Member for Malpeque (Mr. Gass):

That we call it six o'clock and that the remaining time on Motion No. 43 be either number one or number two on the next Private Members' day.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, the procedure proposed by the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor) requires notice. We cannot agree to the moving of the motion. We would be willing to call it six o'clock, but in so far as the condition that the next time we deal with the motion, either as number one or number two, that matter should be left for the House Leaders to negotiate in the meanwhile. If the Hon. Member is seeking unanimous consent that we call it six o'clock, we agree. I would be willing to consider the Hon. Member's second request. I am not saying I will agree to it, but I will consider it.

Mr. Forrestall: Mr. Speaker, just before we agree to that let me say I understand the Government House Leader's concern. It does highlight the problem that continues under our present rules with respect to Members' private matters when we get into this position. It is a matter that has been brought to the attention of the House Leaders and the House generally which is still not resolved. We had hoped that the precedent of either extending the hours or extending the courtesy of a place at the next proper time for Private Members' business might have been followed. Having said that and having highlighted the necessity of resolving the problem in a formal way, we agree.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, let us make it clear. What we are saying is not that we resume debate on Motion No. 43 the next time. First, the reason we agree to calling it six o'clock and we are not able to proceed on this matter is that the Hon. Member for Malpeque (Mr. Gass) is not here. We are accommodating the Hon. Member by saying yes, we will call it six o'clock because the Hon. Member for Malpeque is not here.

An Hon. Member: He is here.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, if he is here and he wants to proceed, fine.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order, please. I should inform the President of the Privy Council that this is continuation of debate and the Hon. Member for Malpeque has already spoken.

An Hon. Member: He is here.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, if the Hon. Member wants to go on with this debate, we will not object. If the Hon. Member for Malpeque prefers that we call it six o'clock, we are willing to agree to that. But we do not want any strings attached. In so far as House business is concerned for the week to come, whether it be the next Wednesday or the following Wednesday, I suggest that be discussed among House Leaders.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): The motion proposed by the Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor) is unacceptable for the obvious reasons cited by the President of the Privy Council. However, I detect there may be unanimous consent to call it six o'clock. Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Gilbert Parent (Welland): Mr. Speaker, before addressing the substance of this motion, I would like to point out to Hon. Members that cannabis offences are not presently under the Criminal Code. They are covered under the Narcotic Control Act. The fact that the Hon. Member earlier made this mistake is not untypical of the confusion regarding the current laws on cannabis and the proposals contained in the Speech from the Throne for reform of these laws.

Since the announcement in the Speech from the Throne, the Minister of Justice (Mr. MacGuigan) and his colleagues, the Solicitor General (Mr. Kaplan) and the Minister of National Health and Welfare (Miss Bégin), have received many letters and phone calls from individuals concerned that the Government intends to legalize cannabis or in fact reduce the status of the offence to that of a traffic violation. They are concerned that the Government is condoning the use of a potentially noxious substance. Let me state categorically that this is not and was never the intention of the Government, and surely it was no intention of mine as a Private Member. As was stated by the Minister of Justice in an appearance before the Justice and Legal Affairs Committee of the House of Commons on May 26, 1981, concerning cannabis, he said:

> It is our intention to bring about changes which will serve to lessen the severity of the penalties for possession of this substance, without "legalizing" or even "decriminalizing" marijuana. The Government believes that marijuana is a health hazard and intends to launch an active public education program among Canadians, especially the younger members of our society, to continue to discourage its use. Furthermore, we will continue to prosecute with vigor all those who traffic in this drug.

This statement is self-evident and is a direct quotation.

The Government does not condone the use of marijuana and other cannabis products by Canadians. That should be clearly understood by all Members of the House as well as the general public. We are concerned with the adverse health and safety effects of drug use and will be doing more to inform Canadians in this area.

As a high school teacher some years ago we found in many of the schools in our area cannabis was beginning to be a problem. I am happy to say from the information forthcoming in the last few years this problem has subsided somewhat. This is an encouraging sign for those still in education and for myself in public life who must deal with these problems on a weekly basis.

Why did the Government propose to change the cannabis laws? The pressure for change stems from the inadequacies and unfortunate consequences of the application of the present law. Under the current legislation, possession of cannabis, even in minimal quantity, exposes a person to the possibility of damaging criminal records entailing difficulties in terms of social stigma, employment and immigration. In the past ten years more than 200,000 Canadians have been found guilty of possession of cannabis, and in spite of considerable enforcement efforts, an increasing number of Canadians use cannabis, indicating an apparent lack of effectiveness of the law. The cost to society of using the full weight of the criminal process to discourage cannabis use has been very high, and I might add with very little return.

During the course of the next few minutes, I would like to indicate some of the background factors which influenced the Government to initiate its study on the problems of cannabis use and cannabis laws per se. Cannabis is not an opiate narcotic in any pharmacological sense, yet the control of cannabis is now under the Narcotic Control Act along with such other substances as heroin and cocaine. This may be due to the fact that little was known about cannabis back in 1923 when it was first added to the schedule of prohibited narcotics under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act of 1920.

It is unfortunate that cannabis has been grouped together with narcotics because in the public mind they are seen to be equally harmful substances with the same addictive properties, producing the same physiological damage. The Narcotic Control Act is reserved for more harmful drugs, the narcotics. Therefore, the law regulating the control of these substances is much more severe. This fact is worth nothing because I think the general public is unaware of the penalties listed in the law when they hear or read about courts giving discharges to offenders. The Food and Drugs Act is the statute reserved for the control of non-narcotic drugs that may be subject to abuse. Many argue that cannabis more properly belongs under that statute. I want to make clear at this point that this is not my view. I am not convinced as a Private Member that it should come under the Food and Drugs Act.

It may come as a surprise to Hon. Members to learn that the maximum penalty in law for possession of cannabis is seven years, if it is proceeded with as an indictable offence. Normally it is proceeded with as a summary conviction offence, in which case the maximum penalty is $1,000 and/or six months for a first offence and $2,000 and/or one year for a subsequent offence. The offences of trafficking and importing carry very severe penalties, up to life imprisonment. In the case of importing, it is further specified that the minimum sentence is to be seven years imprisonment, with a maximum of life imprisonment also. I state categorically that for those people trafficking in drugs and importing them, I believe the full force of the law should be applied.

Unauthorized or simple possession of cannabis is the offence which concerns us most. I believe it is what we are discussing today. It is the most frequent offence and the one that results in so many of our young people being perceived as criminals. Simple possession is a hybrid offence, that is to say, punishable either on summary conviction or by way of indictment. However, at the initial stage it is treated as an indictable offence, which means that the individual is usually fingerprinted and photographed and a centralized permanent police record is created. Hundreds of thousands of Canadians, many of whom would not have otherwise become involved in this stigmatizing process, have been fingerprinted and photographed for simple possession of cannabis; some have even been imprisoned. In addition, the majority of those charged are found guilty and now bear the burden of a damaging record.

The fact that many people are breaking the law and being convicted is not reason enough to change it. However the law should reflect the gravity of the conduct penalized. The current high maximums relating to simple possession of cannabis products bear no relationship to present sentencing practices and can hardly be justified with respect to any offence of a basically non-violent nature where the main victim is the user. Here again I digress. If we were to take this statement as it is, there would be the implication that we would be condoning the use of cannabis. That is our last idea. Because it is so damaging to the people who use it—and it is my belief that the Le Dain Commission which brought down its report some years ago did not have the facts at its disposal which we now have—we must make decisions on behalf of Canadians.

The law should also reflect the attitudes of Canadians generally. In this regard it is worth noting that national surveys conducted in 1977 and 1978 indicated that about two-thirds of the population was in favour of either a regulatory scheme or minor penalties for possession of cannabis. Only one-third favoured the present law or something more severe. I count myself among that third. A survey conducted in 1980 confirmed that this support has remained about the same, with some increase in favour of the status quo.

A Gallup omnibus study on marijuana, jointly commissioned by the Department of Justice, the Department of National Health and Welfare and the Ministry of the Solicitor General in August and September, 1981, explored a different aspect of marijuana control—the severity of penalties imposed by the courts. In terms of the perceived appropriateness of the sentences imposed by the courts for possession of marijuana, 15 per cent of the respondents thought the penalties were too heavy, 26 per cent thought they were about right, and 36 per cent thought they were too light. The remainder, 23 per cent, had no opinion or thought that possession was legal. A clear majority of respondents believed that penalties imposed by the courts for trafficking and importing marijuana were too light. The point which has to be emphasized in the House of Commons is that when we are dealing with trafficking and importing, these are the people who must be stamped out; they must be caught and must be the ones who are most severely punished by society.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Parent: Also the survey indicated that over 80 per cent of respondents said that a change in the law would not affect their decisions concerning whether or not to use marijuana and, in the case of users, how often to use it. About one in six respondents reported knowing of someone who had been caught by the police for possession of marijuana. In virtually all these cases, those apprehended were reported to have experienced problems, namely with their families and arising from having a criminal record.

The reform of cannabis legislation has been commented upon by a variety of interest groups. Some of these, such as NORML—the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws—have been organized specifically for this purpose. Most others, such as the Canadian Medical Association and the Canadian Bar Association, have commented upon it due to the interest of their members.

From the public pronouncements of these various groups there does emerge a consensus. Generally they agree that possession of cannabis should remain an offence, with which I agree; that it should be shifted to the Food and Drugs Act, about which I have reservations; that the consequences of conviction should be reduced. If they mean the consequences of conviction with regard to those people who are caught, I do not know that I would want to go that way. The consequences of conviction also imply that we are dealing with the families of people who are known or caught using this narcotic. Finally, they agreed unanimously that there should be increased efforts at public education, with which I believe everyone in the House would agree.

Reform of cannabis laws is not a recent issue. This matter was considered previously by the Government. As a result of the Le Dain Commission which was completed in 1973, there were several tentative steps toward reform. The House may recall that the Government introduced Bill S-19 in the Senate. The Senate passed that Bill but it died on the House of Commons Order Paper at the end of the 1974-75 session of the Thirtieth Parliament. The problems associated with the current law continue, so this most recent initiative to review the law was launched by the Government.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS

[English]

MEASURE TO ESTABLISH

The House resumed from Monday, October 31, 1983, consideration of Bill C-155, an Act to facilitate the transportation, shipping and handling of western grain and to amend certain Acts in consequence thereof, as reported (with amendments) from the Standing Committee on Transport; and Motion No. 58 (Mr. McKnight).

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. Before we proceed with further consideration of the Bill at report stage, I would like to refer to the motions placed on the Notice Paper last Monday with the unanimous consent of the House.

As Hon. Members are aware, a great many of these motions were previously ruled out of order on procedural grounds. It is not the intention of the Chair to interfere with the unanimous agreement of the House to place the motions back on the Notice Paper for consideration. However, even though the House has agreed to set aside its rules and practices in some regards and go beyond any procedural limitations in regard to these motions, the Chair is still confronted with a major difficulty.

Eight of the motions involve the additional expenditure of public funds and, therefore, require a Royal Recommendation which can only be signed by His Excellency. The four motions standing in the name of the Hon. Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy), namely Motions Nos. 14A, 74A, 157A and 160A, have been covered by the required Royal Recommendations. However, Motions Nos. 51A, 125A, 126A and 157A, standing in the names of the Hon. Member for Regina East (Mr. de Jong), the Hon. Member for Edmonton East (Mr. Yurko), the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom) and the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse) respectively, are not so accompanied.

Beauchesne's Fifth Edition, Citation 543(1), provides:

> If any motion or bill or proceeding is offered to be moved, whether in the House or in a committee which requires, but fails to receive, the recommendation of the Crown, it is the duty of the Speaker to announce that no question can be proposed upon the motion, or to direct the withdrawal of the bill, or to say that the problem may be rectified by the proposer obtaining a Royal Recommendation.

The citation is clear and unequivocal and is backed by long practice. Under the circumstances and in light of this citation, I do not see how I can in conscience, respecting my obligations to the House, accept that Motions Nos. 51A, 125A, 126A and 157B can be proposed for consideration. No unanimous consent can get around the problem. I regret very much that I have to reach this decision, but I hope all Hon. Members will appreciate the difficult position in which the Chair has been placed.

I would also like to indicate to the House that the motions placed on the Notice Paper by unanimous consent on Monday last have been inserted in their proper numerical order and given, as the case may be, a letter A or B, in addition to an arabic numeral, so that all those motions which have been before us would not need to be renumbered. The new motions are Motions Nos. 10A, 14A, 74A, 90A, 134A, 154A, 157A, 160A, 165A and 165B.

Once consideration of Motion No. 58 now before the House is completed, the next motion to be considered will be Motion No. 10A. It in turn will be followed by debate on Motion No. 14A. Both will also be voted on separately. Motions Nos. 157A and 74A ought to be debated together. Since Motion No. 74A is consequential to Motion No. 157A, a vote on Motion No. 157A would also dispose of Motion No. 74A. Motion No. 90A should be debated and voted on separately.

Motion No. 134A will be grouped for debate with previously grouped Motions Nos. 63, 68, 69, 99 to 103 inclusive, 115, 127, 128, 130 to 133 inclusive, 136 to 138 inclusive, 140 to 144 inclusive, 148 and 149. An affirmative vote on Motion No. 133 will dispose of Motion No. 134A; however, a negative vote on Motion No. 133 would necessitate the question being put on Motion No. 134A.

Motion No. 160A should be grouped with the previous grouping of Motions Nos. 159, 160, 161 and 162 for debate, which had been grouped for debate but separate votes. It is my intention to group Motions Nos. 160A and 160 for voting as follows: An affirmative vote on Motion No. 160A negates the need for putting the question on Motion No. 160, while a negative vote on Motion No. 160A would require the putting of the question on Motion No. 160.

Motion No. 154A will be grouped for debate with the previously grouped Motions Nos. 153 and 154, and each will be voted on separately.

● (1110)

Motions Nos. 165A and 165B ought to be grouped for debate and an affirmative vote on Motion No. 165A will dispose of Motion No. 165B; however, a negative vote on Motion No. 165A would require the putting of the question on Motion No. 165B. I am sure all of that is clear to Hon. Members.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I hope that you will be prepared to hear at least some argument on the question of whether certain amendments are admissible or otherwise. I would like to draw your attention, if I may—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. Is the Hon. Member not accepting the decision of the Chair with regard to four amendments that have been ruled as requiring a Royal Recommendation and are being rejected accordingly? Is that the point of the Hon. Member?

Mr. Deans: Well, it is not a matter of not accepting it. I would like to put before you some considerations which may not have been taken into account by the Chair in arriving at the preliminary ruling.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair cannot accept argument on a decision of the Chair after the decision has been rendered.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. It has been a practice of the Speaker to allow some discussion on rulings such as this immediately after—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. The Chair does not permit debate on a ruling of the Speaker. That was a decision in our Standing Orders taken some years ago. The Chair intends to respect the clear intent of the Standing Orders of the House of Commons. A decision has been made by the Chair on these matters.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, might I just interject, not for the purpose of coming to the rescue of the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans), but merely to make an observation without in any way reflecting on the ruling of the Chair. There has been a practice that has grown up in the House which I, and I am sure all Members, would like to see retained in situations such as the one which the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain is attempting to speak to today and which by our custom he is prevented from doing.

Normally the occupant of the chair, as Madam Speaker did when these amendments had to be dealt with, generally expresses concern about the acceptability of a motion or motions and warns Members that the Chair does have concern and will hear submissions at some later time. I am in accord with the Chair, so naturally I cannot question it. However, I would suggest that we would not want to dispense with that past practice and replace it with the practice where the Speaker initiates rulings without any warning to Members who may wish to make some submissions in the future.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) has made an observation which the Chair will heed carefully. The Chair, however, has considered this matter, taken advice and is firmly of the opinion as expressed.

[Translation]

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to remind the House of Standing Order 79(10), which provides, and I quote:

(10) The Speaker shall have power to select or combine amendments or clauses to be proposed at the report stage and may, if he or she thinks fit, call upon any Member who has given notice of an amendment to give such explanation of the subject of the amendment as may enable the Speaker to form a judgment upon it.

It is clear that in this case, the Chair did not think it would be useful to exercise its discretionary powers and call upon a Member to explain the subject of the amendment. The Chair made its ruling without consulting the Hon. Member, and I think this is sound practice because it saves considerable time. Not long ago, this latitude was still granted, and the result was that precious time was wasted in the House of Commons, and I think that the Chair now tends to simply apply the Standing Order. I realize that the Standing Orders are seldom crystal clear, but I must say I welcome this return to strict application of the Standing Orders, as opposed to a not so literal interpretation when the Standing Orders are clear and allowing any number of interventions, as has been the case in the past, unfortunately, which has led to considerable waste of time.

That being said, Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out that notwithstanding the Chair's ruling, which I respect, if there is a way to allow the House to give its unanimous consent for a vote on the amendments that were rejected this morning—I realize that the Chair, in giving its ruling, explained that it was difficult, but nevertheless the Chair reiterated that on this side of the House, we would give that unanimous consent if it was required and if it would allow the Chair to put the question on these amendments. However, without wishing to oppose the Chair's ruling, I want to make it quite clear that this is not a case of obstruction or opposition on the part of the Government. The Chair's ruling is there, and we respect it, but if unanimous consent would be useful for the New Democratic Party, we are prepared to give it.

[English]

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair is in a difficult position. The Chair has considered the matter of the Royal Recommendation, a long-standing practice of the House. Motions that require a Royal Recommendation and do not have a Royal Recommendation cannot be put before the House. The Chair has not been able to overcome this very great difficulty, in fact insuperable difficulty, with regard to procedural acceptability of motions. If there is unanimous agreement of the House Leaders to put some type of motion or amendment before the House, the Chair at this stage can only suggest that there might be consultations and it might be possible for the House Leaders to come back with further suggestions. The Chair is the servant of the House, but at this stage the Chair cannot see its way to accepting motions that clearly require a Royal Recommendation, which is not there for those four amendments. With regret, because of the unanimous decision of the House, the Chair has had to make the ruling that it has made and the Chair does not do this lightly.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I am in a bit of a quandary because we understood when we agreed to give unanimous consent to allow certain matters to be put on the Notice Paper and voted upon that we likewise were being given unanimous consent for that practice to be followed in the case of the amendments we put in. We had no indication from anyone at the time that there would be a counter-ruling made which would result in our not being permitted to vote on our amendments. I must say that had that matter been made clear to us at the start we would not have acceded to the unanimous consent being given on the other questions.

I want to suggest that there is perhaps a way out. The unanimous consent was given, I believe, by both sides of the House with the understanding that the questions would be put to a vote. I would like the Chair simply to consider whether or not in the circumstances, given that the Hosue is entitled to give unanimous consent to a matter such as this, and without establishing a precedent, as is clearly set out in Citation 14 of Beauchesne, that the intent of the House would be thwarted if the vote were not allowed to be taken.

I can appreciate the difficulty of the Royal Recommendation. I would like to suggest that what we are offering in at least two of the three amendments can be considered as amendments to the Government proposal which has, in fact, a Royal Recommendation. The Government has put forward a proposal on the question of shipper share under 157A, and in the normal process of debate we would have been able to offer an amendment to that proposal as long as our amendment did not require the Government to spend more money than they had heretofore allocated for 157A.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair is listening to the Hon. Member and is seeking a way out of the difficulty. All the Chair can suggest at this point is that there might be some conversations between House Leaders of the Parties to see whether amendments can be offered in a form which would come within the scope of the Royal Recommendation. It appears from what the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain is saying that there might be a disposition on the part of the Government to make amendments to the legislation so that matters might be so considered.

The Chair has a problem with the Royal Recommendation. The precedents are abundantly clear. It is one of those things that the Chair cannot set aside.

The Chair would like to suggest that the House Leaders, especially the House Leader for the Government and the House Leader for the New Democratic Party, have a private conference and see whether it is possible to frame amendments in such a way that they can be brought within the scope.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I think it is very important to make sure that the record is clear. There are two points to be made. First, we did hold discussions concerning the acceptance of amendments for debate, and the position we took was that if Members of the Opposition Parties wanted to bring such amendments forward, we would not object. I think it is important to point out to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) that in the discussion we did not receive copies of their proposed amendments until minutes before Question Period—almost minutes before consent was to be given. We had no opportunity to determine their advisability within the scope of what is normally considered the Royal Recommendation. I believe that that is within the discretion of the Chair. The offer was made and accepted but because there was no time to give them a full examination and make that judgment, I do not think we can be held responsible.

Second, let us make it clear that there is no disposition on the part of the Government to accept such amendments. We are prepared to have them debated but I want to make it clear we are not prepared to have them accepted. If they want to debate them, that is well and good. But if you are suggesting that we try to rework them so that they are acceptable, I think you will find that negotiations would not lead very far.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, I want to carry on with the debate on the motion put by my colleague, the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight).

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I thought we were still debating this point of order but since my hon. colleague is entering into debate—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: With all due respect to the Hon. Member, there is no further debate on the point of order; the matter has been settled. The Hon. Member is recognized for debate.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I rise on another point of order.

[Translation]

All I want to say, Mr. Speaker, is that you made a ruling this morning, we are abiding by that ruling and we can live with it. However, since you suggested that I have some discussions with the New Democratic Party's House Leader, if the Chair is not advised of any unanimous consent in the course of the day, the Chair's ruling stands and we shall vote on the amendments as the Chair ruled, and I want that to be quite clear.

In other words, I would not want your suggestion for consultations to be an excuse for delaying the vote until later this evening. I want to make that quite clear.

[English]

Hon. Ray Hnatyshyn (Saskatoon West): Mr. Speaker, I want to return to the merits of the debate. At the outset of today, the last day of report stage because of the invocation of closure by the Government, I think it is important that we spend time debating the issue.

The Government House Leader mentioned that there have been delays on points of order. I suggest that the ultimate delay was caused by the Minister himself when he had the audacity to move the adjournment of debate at 4.30 on Tuesday morning. At that time, Members on this side of the House were quite prepared to continue debating on our own time, regardless of whether we got any sleep, because we believe this is an important issue. The Minister was embarrassed and ashamed of the position of the Government on this issue and so moved the adjournment. This caused him to lose the ability to put this matter through before the Armistice Day break. I know that Members of the Liberal Party are seething and unhappy over the incompetence of the Minister in the way in which he did this. I simply would like on one occasion to join with Liberal backbenchers and say that I am mad as hell about this and so is everybody on our side.

This particular proposal, which was put forward by my colleague, the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight), is a very sensible one. Before the Minister moved the adjournment of the House at 4.30 a.m. on Tuesday, he said he was going to take this matter under advisement but he did not think that any of his legal advisers were up at that time. He wanted to adjourn the House so he could get competent legal advice with respect to the admissibility of this very sensible motion. The Minister has had all of Tuesday morning, all day Wednesday, and all of this morning to consult with his legal counsel to find out whether or not this particular provision can in fact be accepted by the Government. I will be anxious to hear, now that the Minister has had three days to consider the matter, whether this motion will be accepted.

This motion proposes to specify that in fact the railways will be held under obligation to provide suitable accommodation for grain. This is a matter of some serious consequence because the whole proposal which the Government has brought forward is an extremely rich package as far as the railways of Canada are concerned. I said on an earlier occasion that if I were on the board of directors of CPR I would commission a statue of the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) and the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) and have those statues put in the foyer of the headquarters of the CPR, because the CPR is really beholden to the Government for this rich package. I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, that the people of western Canada understand that. When they are called upon to pay an enormous price in terms of extra cost to move their grain, they will not forget what the Liberal Party has done to them with this legislation.

Another point made by my colleague, which I believe is very helpful, is that under this provision the Administrator of the transportation agency is deemed to be a shipper for purposes of making an application, which would be at public expense but on behalf of the producers, with respect to any inability on the part of the railways to carry the grain of the western producers. I believe this is a very sensible proposition because what is going to happen, under the circumstances we now have in this Bill, is that if there is any complaint, the individual producer, either himself or in co-operation with his fellow farmers, will at his own expenses have to petition with respect to inequities which may in fact occur as a result of the inability of the railways to carry out their mandate and obligation to move the grain to export points.

I also want to voice my concern that one of the motions which has been proposed by the New Democratic Party has in fact been ruled out of order. The reason I am sorry that this motion was not brought up for a vote on the floor of the House is that it is a motion which, in my estimation, demonstrates the greatest turnaround by any political party in recent history. With respect to the motion brought forward by my colleague, the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster, in regard to assisting the movement of grain and making sure the railways carry out their obligations, the New Democratic Party has now done a great flip-flop in its attitude toward the retention of the statutory Crow rate. The implication is clear from the motion it put forward that the New Democratic Party, as my colleague the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) has said, has now taken the position that the Crow must go. It has done a complete 180 degree reversal over the position they ostensibly took.

Mr. Hovdebo: Do you believe that?

Mr. Hnatyshyn: As you can see, Mr. Speaker, I have two pieces of paper. One is the motion put forward by the Minister of Transport with respect to the safety net provisions. The other one, Mr. Speaker, is an NDP amendment. You can see from your chair that these two documents are typed on the same typewriter. They are precisely the same with one exception; they blotted out a part of the safety net provision and inserted their own figures. Instead of the Government provision of 4 per cent in 1984, 5 per cent in 1985, 8 per cent in 1986, 9 per cent in 1987 and 10 per cent after 1988, they put in their own provision of 3 per cent.

• (1130)

Mr. McKnight: It must be a mistake.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: No mistake, Mr. Speaker. As I said, they did not have the grace to use their own typewriter; they used a Government typewriter and put in exactly the same motion. What does this mean, Mr. Speaker? It means the NDP has flip-flopped.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, not only is the Member wrong but he is debating a motion just ruled out of order. I would very much like to have had this motion debated by the House and voted on. This motion would not only have preserved the Crow but would have reduced—

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deans: —the impact on the farmers of western Canada. However, now that the Hon. Member is able to hide behind the Speaker's ruling, he is taking a position he would not have been able to take. I ask that he be required to speak to the amendments before the House and refrain from speaking to amendments ruled out of order by the Speaker.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) suggests this part of my reference to motions and positions of the Party, whether they have been accepted or not, is not relevant to this particular motion. I point out that there is nothing more relevant to the motion put forward by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster, which requires the CTC to ensure the railways carry out their obligation to provide adequate accommodation for the movement of grain. What are they going to consider? They will consider the cost to the railways and their level of payment. Therefore, we have then to assess how much should the railways be paid. Their motion, whether it was ruled out of order or not, deals specifically with that very question. Therefore it is of the highest relevance.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain raised a point of order and he is correct in that at some time during the remarks of the Hon. Member for Saskatoon West considerable reference was made to a motion ruled out of order. I think the proper route for me is to suggest the Hon. Member try to address himself to Motion No. 58 and try to contain his remarks in that regard.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: You have a record of fairness and equity in this matter, Mr. Speaker, and as you know I always follow your rulings with absolute dedication. I propose to do just that. All I can say with respect to the position of the NDP—I am not going to refer to any particular motion ruled out of order so I will not be irrelevant—is that their position, generally speaking, and having no regard to motions ruled out of order, is that they have done a flip-flop on how much the railways should in fact receive for the movement of grain. These people are absolutely shameless.

Mr. Althouse: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, my understanding of the rules of order in this House is that Members in debate cannot impute motives to individual Members or Parties.

Mr. Forrestall: Who was imputing? I thought it was a very direct charge.

Mr. Althouse: I think the Hon. Member has done this by a total misinterpretation of something of which he apparently knows very little. If I may explain—

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. McKnight: Try and explain it during the election.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I think the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse) should seek the floor in debate if he wishes to explain something. With respect to the point of order, the Hon. Member is correct but I think the Chair has a duty to allow as wide ranging a debate as possible. The Hon. Member for Saskatoon West has only four minutes approximately remaining. If he could be allowed to continue his remarks we can move on to less rambunctious debate.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, I am sorry the NDP is so sensitive over this terribly bad policy they have adopted. Imagine how you would feel if you had gone around telling the people of western Canada that you want to retain the Crow and the first chance you have to do anything with respect to this legislation is to give the western farmers a hick in the slats to the extent of a 20 per cent increase right now in the cost of transporting grain. You would be livid, Mr. Speaker, and I see you understand that.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, we in this Party have taken a firm and consistent position with respect to the retention of the Crow. The freeze is an understandable, fair and reasonable position for our Party to take with respect to this matter until after the review period has been completed.

What do I mean by that? We say out west you do not want to buy a pig in a poke. They say that out east as well, and I am going to say it right here in central Canada. We do not want to buy a pig in a poke. We want to see how this system operates. Would you buy a bill of goods, Mr. Speaker, and pay for it before you see whether it works, without any guarantees? Not on your life. But that is what the grain producer is asked to accept. There are all sorts of vague references to the obligations of the railways, all sorts of talk about safety nets, but in the final result the NDP and the Liberals are saying the farmers pay more without seeing whether or not this system is going to work. Well, we say the western farmer does not deserve that kind of contemptuous action on the part of the Government.

My colleague from Kindersley-Lloydminster, along with Members of our Party, attended faithfully all the hearings on this matter in committee. Where were the NDP Members? Where were these defenders of the Crow? Except for the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin), the Hon. Member for Prince Albert (Mr. Hovdebo) and the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre who were there half the time, the rest of them were there on one or two occasions to get their pictures taken. This was so that they would have a photograph to send out in their householder mailing.

People in our Party hold permits and know what it is to get on the land and produce. They know the problem involved in grain transportation. My colleague makes a proposal which is going to put an additional and specific obligation on the part of the railways to deliver, and I cannot understand why anyone in this House would not support this wholeheartedly.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, the Minister, before he moved adjournment of the House, indicated he was sympathetic to this matter. I think it would be incumbent upon him or his Parliamentary Secretary to let us know whether or not we are going to have this proposal added to the Bill. Opposing as we do the ruinous aspect of this legislation, we have tried to be constructive in this debate. We have attempted to say that we object to this legislation but here are some things the Government should consider. I hope the Minister will give fair and sympathetic consideration to putting in this very useful amendment and I look forward to someone from the Government standing up and accepting our proposition.

• (1140)

Mr. Jesse P. Flis (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Transport): The Hon. Member for Saskatoon West (Mr. Hnatyshyn) requested that someone from the Government side respond to his remarks. I would like to take this opportunity to do so.

Mr. Mazankowski: Why not the Minister?

Mr. Flis: The Hon. Member asks why not the Minister. He knows the rules of the House. We are only allowed to speak once for ten minutes on each amendment.

The Hon. Member for Saskatoon West said that people in our Party hold permit books yet not once did I hear any Member from the other side get up and declare a conflict of interest.

Some Hon. Members: Shame!

Mr. Flis: As a lawyer, perhaps he should look into that.

The Hon. Member opened his remarks by blaming the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) and the Government side—

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, I listened without interruption to the Hon. Member. I would ask him to give me the same courtesy.

The big concern of the Hon. Member is why we moved adjournment at 4.30 a.m. I will tell him why, and I would suggest to him that had he been here all night like the rest of us, he would have known why.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: I was here.

Mr. Flis: The Minister got up to make a remark and I will quote the Minister.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a legitimate point of order. I do not want the Hon. Parliamentary Secretary to be acting under any delusions. I was here from the beginning to the end of the debate for absolutely 100 per cent of the time.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, over a week ago—

Mr. Gustafson: Mr. Speaker, I rise on the same point of order. The Hon. Member refers to a conflict of interest. I want him to know that the present Minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board does hold a permit book, and rightly so. There is absolutely no conflict of interest if he wants to rule out all farmers having any voice in terms of producers. That is absolutely ridiculous, Mr. Speaker. I think he should reconsider.

Some Hon. Members: Shame!

Mr. Flis: Since I have heard that there is no conflict of interest, I will withdraw those remarks.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Flis: In all fairness, Mr. Speaker, a little over a week ago I rose in the House asking to extend debate time past six o'clock. The Official Opposition turned that down because I did not add to my request a time limit. I did not say that debate should end at 10 or 12 or at whatever time. The Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) got up on Monday and made the same request, again applying no time limit. That meant that we could have sat, Mr. Speaker, for one or two weeks.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please. I have had occasion to ask other Hon. Members to try to keep their remarks relevant to the motion before us. I think I have to ask the Hon. Parliamentary Secretary to do the same.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: If you are going to move adjournment, sit down.

Mr. Mazankowski: The Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Transport (Mr. Flis) complained about the fact that he was not as successful in moving the motion to extend hours as was I. I suspect that my powers are a little more persuasive than his. Furthermore, if the Liberal Party would have had 25 Members in the House, it could have prevented the situation from occurring rather than having the embarrassment of moving the motion to adjourn.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, you asked me to remain relevant to the motion.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Yes, I did, and I would appreciate if the Hon. Member would.

Mr. Flis: My remarks are relevant because the Hon. Member asked why we moved adjournment when we were debating Motion No. 58 which is before us. The Minister got up and said, and I quote from page 28614 of Hansard:

> I will take into account Motion No. 58, but obviously I would like the time to consult with legal counsel. Perhaps at that time I would be in a position to respond to the concerns of Hon. Members of the Opposition or to determine if the complications are too overwhelming to accept. Perhaps some other wording might be accepted, or adapted, which would incorporate the reference to grain requirements throughout the Bill without getting into the contradictory propositions mentioned by legal counsel during the committee hearings.

During the committee hearings we heard from two legal counsel who stated that there was no need for this lengthy amendment since most of it just quoted from Section 262 of the Railway Act. This Bill continually refers to other Acts, Mr. Speaker, and if we were to quote from every other Act every time one was mentioned in the Bill, the Bill would be so lengthy that it would be too heavy to lift. We were advised in committee that there was no need for Motion No. 58. We voted it down, but the Minister, in good faith, made the following proposition: "Give us time to check with legal counsel again and maybe we can accept it".

The next day, Mr. Speaker, instead of coming to vote before eleven o'clock so that we would not have lost the day, Hon. Members of the Conservative Party decided to come to the House after eleven o'clock.

Mr. Malone: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I note that the Parliamentary Secretary is suggesting that the Minister wanted to have time to seek legal counsel. I am wondering, since the Bills of the House are written in legal language, if he would be in conflict of interest if any lawyers happened to read that Bill.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, Conservative Members came back the next day. Had they come before eleven o'clock, we could have gone into day two of the debate and considered Motion No. 58 at great length. No, they decided to waste another day of the House.

Mr. Mazankowski: This is day two.

Mr. Flis: The Hon. Member who spoke before I rose got up and blamed the NDP—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please. I understand the points being made by the Hon. Parliamentary Secretary but I think he should restrict his remarks to the nature of Motion No. 58.

I would remind the Hon. Member that there is some difficulty in that Members are not permitted under Standing Orders to cast reflections upon a vote. He is approaching the area where it becomes difficult for the Chair. Perhaps he could try to address himself to Motion No. 58.

Mr. Flis: Thank you for your advice, Mr. Speaker. However, the whole debate arises out of Motion No. 58 and whether to accept it or not. I am trying to present arguments to show that had Members of the Opposition co-operated in good faith, as they say they do but never do, there may have been the possibility of accepting that motion. However, if they are going to play these kinds of obstructive games, my advice to the Minister will be to vote the motion out.

Members of the Opposition have wasted day after day. Together with Members of the NDP, they wasted three full days on procedural wrangles. They wasted a day with petitions that could have been tabled and they wasted a day by coming in after eleven o'clock. That makes three parliamentary days that they have wasted during which we could have debated every amendment that is put before us on the Table, including Motion No. 58.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I would just like to draw to your attention the rule of relevancy and I invite you to enforce it. I am sure you would get support from all concerns of the House. Previous Speakers have done that in the past. I understand the rule and we all understand it. For the sake of the debate, I think the Parliamentary Secretary should obey that rule as well.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, I rise on the same point of order. I believe that the question of relevancy is very important now that we are under the constraint of closure. I would simply want to add my voice to the argument that all comments should be strictly relevant. If not, there are so many motions on this complicated Bill that we will never get through them before 5.45 p.m. and will not, in the true parliamentary tradition, have a legitimate opportunity of looking at each of these items.

In terms of the response of the Parliamentary Secretary, the Minister has now had three days to consult his lawyers—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please. Order.

Mr. Flis: He is the same Member, Mr. Speaker, who five minutes ago tried to blame the NDP in order to cover up the Tory flip-flop. He is now standing up on a point of order.

Hon. Members of the Progressive Conservative Party said that they were bringing forward motions like Motion No. 58 to protect the western producers. Let me ask Hon. Members opposite how Motion No. 58 protects the poultry producers, the livestock producers and the specialty crop producers who have told us time and time again that the retention of the Crow rate has hurt those producers with a 86-year distortion. The Hon. Members who were on the committee heard this. They are nodding.

• (1150)

How is Motion No. 58 going to get rid of this distortion? How is Motion No. 58 going to get rid of this hurt that has been caused to the farmers in the west over 86 years? They have not addressed that. They kept flip-flopping. They were against the Gilson proposal. They were against the Pepin 50-50 proposal. They came up with their own freedom of choice. When we came in with payment to the railways, they then wanted to support the Pepin 50-50 proposal. Then they come in with the three-year freeze. How was that three-year freeze going to protect these producers who are hurt by the retention of the Crow, who have had this distortion imposed upon them by the retention of the Crow?

Mr. Malone: The hurt has increased.

Mr. Flis: Now they are trying to say that the NDP is flipping. We know the NDP's position. The NDP has at least been honest and upfront right from the beginning. But I cannot say that for the Progressive Conservatives, Mr. Speaker. They were dishonest. They were flip-flopping all over the place on this Bill and they still are with this amendment.

An Hon. Member: You are defending the NDP.

Mr. Vic Althouse (Humboldt-Lake Centre): Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak on Motion No. 58 which presents a long and detailed regurgitation of a lot of what is now in the Transportation Act. It attempts simply to restate some of those clauses into this Bill. I do not know whether there is very much to be said about this long and detailed amendment except that it contains a lot of words that are already written into law and are part of the current Transportation Act. It really changes very little or changes nothing. It simply goes over many things that are now in existing laws. It simply transfers some phrases into this Bill.

For instance, the first aspect of the motion talks about furnishing adequate and suitable accommodation for the receiving and loading of grain offered for carriage upon the railroad. This would normally mean new sidings. That has been part of the Railway Act for many years. It has been written into law that the railways must provide the sidings. But in actual fact if a customer wants a siding, for the past number of years the customer has had to pay for it. That has been written into this Bill, but it is already in other laws. Therefore, it will not change anything. I submit that it will only reiterate present laws that are not being enforced.

This motion also goes on to say that it would furnish adequate and suitable accommodation for the carrying, unloading and delivering of grain. That sounds like hopper and railway cars. Yet we know for a fact that in spite of this being part of the existing Railway Act, no cars have been purchased by either railway company for the movement of grain since the 1950s.

In subparagraph (c) we read:

(c) without delay, and with due care and diligence, receive, carry and deliver all such grain;

That provision is already in the Railway Act. It is a very detailed piece of legislation, yet we know that in 1977-1978 the CPR refused to supply cars to move grain and the Wheat Board and the Provinces ended up having to buy cars to get the grain moving again.

Motion No. 58 subparagraph (d) reads:

(d) furnish and use all proper appliances, accommodation and means necessary for receiving, loading, carrying, unloading and delivering such grain;

One would think that would include up to and including branch lines. We know that in spite of this being a part of existing transportation law, and having a branch line act providing subsidies to provide service on those branch lines, the branch lines are not being maintained, even those that have been designated to be kept up by the Canadian Transport Commission. We know the cost of upgrading them to meet CTC rulings is something like $1.6 billion. The Government has only $1.1 billion to put toward that objective and the railways are refusing to find the other half billion.

We know these things are not happening in spite of all these fine things in Motion No. 58 that already exist in laws and apply to the railway system. We see that there are sections on due payment of tolls lawfully imposed by the Act. We see there are portions in here that deal with payments. There is a section dealing with how persons who are aggrieved by the railways under this act may act against the companies for the refusal of the company to comply with the requirements of this section. It is almost a straight removal of a similar section in the Railway Act that exists now. We know that was not successfully used. It is not something farmers can use. Farmers did take the CPR and the CNR to court because of their refusal to provide adequate rolling stock and service in 1977-1978. The courts ruled that the law was not strong enough. The court said the farmers were not in law the shipper and could therefore not act against the railway. These fine words being lifted out of a couple of other acts and put into this one will not change the way the system operates.

I would like to say a few words about the producers' share of costs in this Bill. It seems to me there is not a current way of protecting farmers from paying more than a specified share of the cost of freight. That is why there has been a discussion about 3 per cent or 7 per cent or 10 per cent.

I would like to point out to you, Mr. Speaker, that over the past number of years the shipper's share of the freight charges on the six major grains, according to figures put out by the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, has been as follows. In the 1979-1980 crop year the average percentage of the price of the shippers' share was 3 per cent. In 1980-1981 the average share of the freight for the six major grains was 2.6 per cent. In the 1981-1982 crop year the shippers' share was 3 per cent. The shippers' share is not quite the same thing as the safety net, but I put in these figures so you can compare them with the proposal for the safety net to show how relevant the figures are, Mr. Speaker.

The safety net is a ceiling that would provide a net above which—

Mr. Mazankowski: It is 2.5 per cent.

Mr. Althouse: —the proportion of freight costs cannot climb. I have just read into the record how it has been 3 per cent for the last couple of crop years and that it dropped to 2.6 per cent in 1980-1981 essentially because the price of the grain went up in 1980-1981. That is the secret. If the price of grain continues to fall along the line that it started back in June, 3 per cent would be a safety net even under the current rate.

If the Conservatives could do arithmetic or had any analytical ability, they would know, even under the current rate which is what we have been talking about all through this debate, that if the price of grain goes below $1.50 per tonne for the six grains on a weighted average, there would be more than 3 per cent of the producers' income going to pay freight even under the current Crow rate. A 3 per cent safety net guarantees producers against additional freight costs even with the existing Crow rate. That is a fact that some of my colleagues on this side of the House totally ignore. They are completely ignorant of facts. They do not wish to read, listen or understand. While we hear a lot of them saying they are farmers, that they have quota books and their understanding of this issue is all knowing and supreme because of this fact, they, I think, are kidding themselves. They are attempting to fool the Canadian people, but they are only fooling themselves.

If they were farmers and had to make their living from agriculture, they would have sharp pencils and know the real effect of the safety net as proposed in this Bill and how important it is to keep that safety net at 3 per cent. It would be a protection, even with the current Crow rate, at a time when prices are falling. It would provide a protective blanket. With the 3 per cent safety net which I have proposed, when the price of grain falls a little more, as has been the case in the last few months, the actual Crow rate would be forced down.

Since this matter has been raised six or seven times by Hon. Members of the Conservative Party, I think it is time the true facts on the safety net were presented. I hope it is debated from here on in on the basis of the actual facts instead of illogical falsehoods.

[Translation]

Mr. Gaston Gourde (Lévis): Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak a few minutes to motion No. 58 and explain briefly that the purpose of the motion is, in fact, to insert Section 262 of the Railway Act in Bill C-155. During the proceedings in Committee, it was generally understood, except by the Progressive Conservatives, that it was useless to add Section 262 because it was already referred to in the Bill.

For the sake of comprehension, I would like to refer to the comments of Mr. Lefebvre who assisted us during proceedings in Committee, and perhaps I may read a few lines of what this expert told us at the time, and I quote:

MR. D. LEFEBVRE: Mr. Chairman, for the record I would like to say that as Bill C-155 now stands, in my view it is clear that Section 262 applies. However, I might add that to repeat in a statute something that is already there, even if you repeat it at length, does not make it any stronger or any clearer.

When the railways came because they alleged that the compensation Bill C-155 afforded them was barely enough, it was contended that it might be some sort of an excuse for the CTC not to enforce Section 262. The amendment that has been circulated, I believe, makes it clear that is no excuse and the compensation provided by Bill C-255 is adequate.

The amendment: Again from the point of view of drafting legislation, one objection I would have is that it repeats a good part of the law. In large measure I think we should try to co-ordinate statutes and when something is said and we want to deviate to reinforce it, I think we should concentrate on it rather than repeat extensive provisions of the law that already exist.

Mr. Speaker, what the Progressive Conservative Party is trying to do with this motion, and I say it again, is to simply include a provision that already exists in other legislation, in other words, it is repeating it. Far be it from me to give you a lesson in law, but I remember when we were studying the principles of interpreting laws, Justice Pigeon, of the Supreme Court, told us that whatever is in the law is there for a purpose. Therefore, a single reference to a section of the Railway Act would be adequate, in the circumstances. I think that wasting time in Committee and wasting time today in the House on such an elementary principle is ample proof that the Progressive Conservative Party still wants to obstruct the proceedings of the House and still wants to waste the time of the House when it is considering a measure as important to Canadians as Bill C-155 concerning changes in the Crow rate. These past few weeks, we have witnessed the Progressive Conservative Party taking various positions which amount to a filibuster of a piece of legislation which would serve all Canadians. The Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Transport (Mr. Flis) alluded to that a few minutes ago, and all we can say is that the position of the Progressive Conservatives has been shifting all along.

When we went to Western Canada . . . I am talking about the current position of the Progressive Conservatives with respect to the whole Bill, but more particularly to Motion No. 58 generally. The Conservative Members are now advocating the status quo. I would refer them to some of the statements made in Vancouver by Mayors Colgur, Lester and Harcourt who appeared before the Committee. If I may, I would like to quote the words of Mayor Colgur, among others:

Mr. Chairman, our greatest fear is that nothing will happen, that we will fight and that the committee will fight to maintain the status quo. We are concerned that that could be devastating to the Province of British Columbia.

We are mindful of the problems—

And further:

But, Mr. Chairman, if the committee chooses to do nothing, we believe that will be devastating to all Canadians. Certainly we have our own constituents who we have to represent and we are mindful of doing that, but if we have to advise our constituents that after having gone through this process nothing has happened, I believe that all of Canada will be the worse for that.

I draw the attention of the House to the fact that those statements were made by witnesses who appeared before us in Vancouver, not by a Government Member. Mayor Lester also said, and I refer to the proceedings of the Committee on Transport, page 117:179:

We have not got excellent relations with the CNR, still I think that the state of the railway is of real concern to us, and we can see very clearly that the maintenance of the Crow rate has damaged the railway and distorted the transportation system. And, of course, if that were to be changed, then the situation would be reversed.

That was another statement made by one of the mayors of the Vancouver region.

Here is another statement by Mayor Colgur, of the Vancouver region in British Columbia, which I would like to quote:

I think I can speak generally on that point, Mr. Chairman. What the member is suggesting is tantamount to doing nothing . . .

He was then referring to a statement made by a member of the New Democratic Party whose riding I forget. However, my colleague did say earlier that those mayors were supposed to be Social Democrats, therefore against the Progressive Conservatives. Now, this was in answer to a question asked by a Member of the New Democratic Party:

I think I can speak generally on that point, Mr. Chairman. What the member is suggesting is tantamount to doing nothing, and that is our concern, that no decision is the worst possible decision. That to me—and I believe I am speaking for the other mayors—is tantamount to another elongated delaying tactic, which will really result in our having nothing in Canada other than what we have had for the last 85 years, which is basically now long out of date. I suppose another way of looking at it, Mr. Chairman, is: it is tantamount to trying to update the dinosaur, which is now extinct.

Well, Mr. Speaker, I am not the one who mentioned the dinosaur, it was a mayor of British Columbia. Anyway, the current position or policy of the Progressive Conservatives might be described as a standpat policy, and that policy has gained the full support of the Members of the New Democratic Party. That is rather strange because, on July 11, 1983, I received a letter from the new Leader of the Opposition addressed to me personally: Mr. Gaston Gourde, M.P., Confederation Building. Here is part of that letter:

With respect to your remarks in the House of Commons concerning the Crow rate—

I had taken the floor one day to find out whether the new Leader of the Opposition might for once indicate to us the position of his party on a topical issue. We all know that in many other fields the Leader of the Official Opposition has decided to remain silent in the belief that, if he did not say anything, he would not put his foot in his mouth. In any event, we had asked him to state his position, and he did just that.

I continue the quotation:

I must advise you that I stand squarely behind the Progressive—

—the word "Progressive" is there all right.

—Conservative Members who have stated the policy of our Party. As you undoubtedly know, the Hon.—

—I have to read the name—

—Don Mazankowski made an important speech in the House on May 12, in which he set forth our position in detail.

Mr. Malone: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I notice that the Hon. Member is reading from some document. I wonder if he might table it when he has finished his speech.

[Translation]

Mr. Gourde: Mr. Speaker, I will be pleased to table an excerpt from my latest householder to all the residents of my riding, and I hope the Canadian people will make good use of it. And it will probably—

[English]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Bloomfield): Order. I have to tell the Hon. Member that his time has expired.

[Translation]

Mr. Gourde: If I may, Mr. Speaker, I would seek unanimous consent to continue my remarks for a few minutes—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please. That is up to the House to decide.

[English]

Order. Is there unanimous consent for the Hon. Member to continue?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Doug Neil (Moose Jaw): Mr. Speaker, I listened with considerable interest to the Hon. Member for Lévis (Mr. Gourde) expressing the reasons why this Bill should pass. He quoted extensively from evidence that was given at committee by various mayors and others who were present for the passage of the Bill. I can understand the concern of these witnesses. However, what the Government has overlooked and what many of these witnesses have overlooked is the effect that Bill C-155 has on the producer, because the producer in western Canada is the one most affected by the change. I suppose the attitude of the Government is based on the fact that it does not have within its caucus any producers from the Wheat Board area.

I was surprised that the Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Transport (Mr. Flis) should make a comment regarding the fact that a number of Members on this side of the House were in conflict of interest because they held permit books. I was happy, however, that he did withdraw those comments subsequently. It is an indication of the attitude of this Government which is not concerned and never has been concerned about the farmers of western Canada.

I can put the New Democratic Party in the same category. The Members on the Government side say that what I am speaking about is a lot of nonsense. The Members on the Government side have looked after the railways very handsomely as far as dollars and cents are concerned, but what they are attempting to do as far as the producer is concerned is to bankrupt him. The Government wants to increase the rates so it will be prohibitive for the producer to raise grain in western Canada. The barley producer and oats producer will be out of business because, on the basis of this Bill, it will take half the selling price of those two grains to pay the freight. Therefore, the producers cannot survive.

I was saying that the NDP are in somewhat the same position. They have been rather embarrassed by the motion they put which will have a safety net of 3 per cent and which in effect would immediately, on passage of this Bill, increase the freight rate to the farmer. In the short time allotted to me, I would like to discuss the particular amendment we are dealing with at the moment.

This amendment substitutes the proposed section for Section 262 of the Railway Act. The question might arise as to why we want to put in this section and not leave Section 262 of the Railway Act in place. A few minutes ago the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse) said that Section 262 of the Railway Act had been ineffective. What we are attempting to do in our Motion No. 58 is to bring in a section which is similar to 262 but which deals specifically with the transportation of grain. In addition, and I will speak to this in a few moments, there is added strength in the section that we are seeking to amend.

The Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell) appeared at the committee hearings in Vancouver for about one hour and then disappeared. I wish to quote what he said about Motion No. 58. I quote from page 28605 of Hansard for October 31, 1983:

> This amendment is a piece of fluff. That is what it is. It is a piece of fluff . . . It is all fluff and no substance.

The Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre says that Section 262 has not been effective. Under these circumstances, it would seem that the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre and the other Members of his Party would be supporting an amendment which would be effective in ensuring the carriage and transportation of grain by the railways.

Motion No. 58 tightens up what used to be Section 262. It is interesting to refer to the Transport Committee minutes. I refer to issue No. 132, page 91 Mr. Thompson, counsel for the committee, was asked about this amendment and about Section 262. I quote from page 91 of the proceedings of the Transport Committee:

> When the railway officials were here they indicated basically that the revenues they were going to get under the provisions of Bill C-155 were adequate, but one got the impression that they were saying that they were sort of minimally adequate or barely adequate. Now, in the event they would attempt to accord less beneficial treatment to grain traffic, subclause (8) is available for the commission to take a look at.

Subclause (8) is part of Motion No. 58, but time will not permit me to read it.

There is one other aspect that Mr. Thompson spoke about when he was giving evidence, and he refers to subsection 10(a) of Motion No. 58 which has to do with the Administrator being allowed, on behalf of any grain shipper or group of grain shippers, to take proceedings before the commission. This is what Mr. Thompson says:

> The basic purpose of Subclause (10) is to provide a means by which a senior government officer may, on behalf of the grain shipper or shippers, lead the way towards the recovery of some sort of remedy for a shipper or a group of shippers. If anyone is in doubt about the cost of litigation, I can assure them that litigation is extremely expensive and it is a very difficult burden for any small operator to bear. If the administrator were to bear this responsibility, it would be a very small matter in terms of the expenditures of the government, but it might be a very significant matter to assist the shippers.

Mr. Speaker, I see my time is almost up but I would like to say in closing that I am very disappointed in the Minister. First of all he brought in closure and then, when we on this side extended the debate and were debating Motion No. 58, he stood up and said this particular amendment was interesting and he might be able to accept it, but because it was the middle of the night he could not contact legal counsel in his Department to discuss it. But he said he would like to look at it. Having said that, he then adjourned the debate.

I appreciate, Mr. Speaker, that if the Minister stands up and takes part in debate on this motion it would end the debate as far as this particular motion is concerned. It would seem to me that the Minister could, on a point of order, stand up without closing debate and tell this House what consultations he had with his legal counsel and what decision he has taken with respect to this particular motion.

Amendment No. 58 strengthens the power with respect to the railways so that they may be held to the rules when delivering grain. I invite the Minister to stand up on a point of order, or alternatively I am sure that the Members of this House would give him unanimous consent, to tell us what his decision is with respect to Amendment No. 58.

[Translation]

Mr. Jean-Guy Dubois (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, it is a pleasure for me to take part in the debate on Bill C-155 and more specifically on Motion No. 58 before the House today.

I must say I find the Motion situation—we have now had over 80 motions—rather surprising after sitting on the Transport Committee and conducting hearings across the country, and subsequently considering the Bill, clause by clause, in late August and all through September—and seeing a situation where motions were submitted to the Committee by the Official Opposition to reduce the number of members on the administrating Committee and today, another motion is being proposed to have the same number we had in the Bill originally. As for Motion No. 58, when questions were asked during clause by clause consideration in committee, the legal expert said at the time that this provision already existed in the Railway Act.

I am rather surprised at the whole situation, because to me, Mr. Speaker, this is just filibustering, and has definitely no connection with the aspirations of Canadians, not even those of Western Canada. I heard the previous speaker saying that no one on this side of the House understood the producers, and I would like to remind him that when we were conducting hearings in Regina, his hometown, the chairman of the Prairie Farm Commodity Coalition, when asked whether producers were able to pay more, answered yes, and of course, there were many members of the National Farmers Union in the room at the time in Regina who did not entirely agree. But I think that the Prairie Farm Commodity Coalition is a very farsighted group that sees the future of Western agriculture in a different perspective, and it was, in fact, Mr. McMillan who said at the time that producers were able to pay more.

As for the motion before the House today, namely Motion No. 58 which concerns Clause 33, and considering what we were told by Mr. Lefebvre in his answer to a number of questions, I feel, Mr. Speaker, that this motion is merely being added to the number of motions we already have to add to the delay, just like the four positions of the Progressive Conservative Party, and perhaps I may explain. It has become their trademark to put motions like the one before the House today to make people think they are very concerned, when in fact, they are merely trying to play for time or to waste time, because, Mr. Speaker, since I chaired a sub-committee in the Quebec caucus on this issue. I remember clearly that in March, the Member for Joliette (Mr. La Salle) said in the House, when the motion was being proposed, that the Liberal Members who had formed the sub-committee should persuade the Government to change the method of payment and that it was intolerable. He even wanted us to resign. At the time, the Member for Joliette was referring to payments to the railways and not to producers. Then all of a sudden we heard their official critic talking about freedom of choice. This option, and even Motion No. 58, are issues we discussed with representatives of the agricultural industry in Quebec, to find out what they thought. Well, the answer we got when we conducted hearings in Quebec was that the concept of freedom of choice was the ultimate in hypocritical posturing, and that was the position defended by the Progressive Conservative Party.

I would like to comment on another position defended by the Progressive Conservative Party and a statement was reported in the newspaper La Terre de chez nous, referring to the leadership campaign when the present leader was still just a candidate he said in Alberta that he was going to help producers and if possible direct payments to producers. That was the third position taken by the Progressive Conservative Party. And finally, they managed to come up with a fourth position when they talked about maintaining the status quo, and this is because Official Opposition does not know where it is going and is really ambivalent about the issue, because when we were in the Vancouver area and people came to our hearings, they said: to do nothing would be the worst that could happen. Something must be done about the very substantial investments expected in the Vancouver area. Local Members who were there—some were not—and even some Members of the New Democratic Party came to our hearings, and that is where they heard from the local mayors. Some of them were more or less told off and even Members of the Official Opposition were told that the worst that could happen in connection with the Bill and investments to be made in the Vancouver area by CN and CP, if the Bill was not passed, doing nothing would be the worst that could happen. So I feel that as the Government we must make a choice, and consider what is important for breeders and producers, and in this connection, we must not forget that under Clause 59, we are establishing a committee to review the operation of this legislation and the effectiveness of the method of payment, and to examine the implications. We met members of the Prairie Farm Commodity Coalition, and of course they had some apprehension, but this is a solution that is attractive to them and they are in favour of being able to examine the implications and having a committee consisting of at least three and not more than five members and reporting before March 1985, to inform the Department about what is going on.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that in view of the situation and the large scale investments expected both in Western and Eastern Canada, including the manufacturing of hopper cars and railroad tracks, and prospective investments in the Vancouver terminal area, to create jobs in an area which, as the House knows, is suffering from some disruption at the present time, that is why a group of mayors came to give us their point of view.

I believe that we must not stop this process and that we must therefore see to it that the bill is passed. Unfortunately, because of the obstructive methods used by the Official Opposition and the New Democratic Party, we have been forced to set a limit on the number of days for the debate. Normally, Mr. Speaker, the Committee was to report to the House on September 12. However, there were many discussions in committee and the Opposition members said: "We may not be able to do it by September 12; we shall perhaps need a few more days." We trusted them and granted a few more days to discuss this bill. However, it was a futile exercise because, when we were able to report to the House, there was still more obstruction in spite of the fact that during the committee hearings, we had heard all possible viewpoints about this bill and absolutely everyone was heard.

I even recall one day in Regina when our hearings began at 9 o'clock. We did not stop for lunch or dinner. We heard all the groups and even individual witnesses until 10:30 or 11 that evening. Committee members on both sides organized a rotation. We heard all the witnesses. It has been said that producers cannot pay more, but some of them at least tell us that they can. What they fear is the effect on livestock producers and the possibility of these producers being hurt by this bill.

As for the livestock producers, they are the ones who asked the government to change not this bill, but this situation because of the problems involved. They are asking however that the payment be made to producers on the basis of acreage.

There had been the Gilson report. Then, there was the 50/50 formula and another proposal for a middle-of-the-road solution. This is why now with this bill, Mr. Speaker, we must make the payment to the railways because it is a transportation problem, and afterwards look at the effects of this change in committee.

It is not what the Progressive Conservatives and the NDP want. So far the Progressive Conservatives have had four positions. They are all mixed up because they have to say something in Quebec and something else in Western Canada, so that they will not lose any votes. That is in fact their position. As for the New Democratic Party, their position is to do absolutely nothing, to maintain the status quo, in spite of everything that the progressive groups in Western Canada want.

We should therefore pass this bill and implement it. Then, when the Committee submits its report in 1985, people in Western and Eastern Canada will know what are its final consequences, and if it is necessary to make adjustments to improve the situation, the Government can make them, but without following the example of the Progressive Conservative Party and taking four positions, particularly a special position in Quebec because they need votes in that province. They have to get some votes in Quebec, but they are simply being hypocritical when they talk about freedom of choice in Quebec. Then, as concerns the issue of payment to the producers, they say: It is a transportation problem. That is the position of the Progressive Conservative Party, to try to win votes by being on both sides of the issue without ever saying anything, like their new Leader.

Mr. Speaker, this is why their attitude should be condemned. The bill must be passed without delay to ensure that the producers will know what is really going on.

[English]

Mr. Arnold Malone (Crowfoot): Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak following a most despicable performance.

Mr. Rossi: You don't know where you stand, just like your Leader.

Mr. Malone: I know where I stand. I stand in this House of Commons as a Member of a Party with regional relevance. We have just listened to a speech from a member of the St. Lawrence Seaway party, a little party that just sits along the Seaway. It is a part of no other part of Canada. It has nothing to do with the north or the west and hardly anything to do with the Atlantic region.

Mr. Rossi: You are just like your Leader.

Mr. Malone: Mr. Speaker, let me bring to your attention some of the things that just came spilling out of the mouth of the Hon. Member for Lotbinière (Mr. Dubois). He said that the progressive groups in western Canada know that we must have this change. I am going to issue a challenge to him and I will eat a little crow if he can meet it. I want him to name one group that favours the Crow rate. There is not one prairie Government, one agricultural group in western Canada that favours the present legislation on Crow rates.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Malone: There is not one. I stand here as a Member of Parliament from western Canada. The Hon. Member opposite says that we are holding up the House because the progressive groups in western Canada want this Bill. That is a complete fabrication of the facts and I dare the Hon. Member to establish what group that is. It is not the farmers' union; it is not the Wheat Pools; it is not Pioneer grain; it is not Cargill grain; it is not the Alberta cattlemen's association; it is not the western stockgrowers association; it is not the pork producers; it is not the poultry producers; it is not the Alberta Government; it is not the Saskatchewan Government; and it is not the Manitoba Government. He cannot produce any evidence for that false statement.

[Translation]

Mr. Dubois: Mr. Speaker, I would ask my hon. colleague whether he attended the hearings in Regina when the President of the Prairie Farm Commodity Coalition indicated to the Committee that he was in agreement with the producers paying more. I would like him to tell us whether he was there.

[English]

Mr. Malone: Mr. Speaker, I want to take up the challenge that has just been issued to me. The question was whether I attended the Regina hearings. I attended nine hearings but I did not attend the one in Regina.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Malone: I wrote down what the Hon. Member said and that was that they sat in Regina from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. without stopping for a meal. What he did not say was that there was virtual unanimity throughout that Regina hearing on one point: every person there spoke with emotion and compassion and said this Bill is wrong.

Mr. Dubois: Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

Mr. Taylor: Sit down. You were heard.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I have to remind the Hon. Member that points of order are not acceptable as a mechanism of intervening in debate. I will recognize him but I hope it is on a point of order.

[Translation]

Mr. Dubois: Mr. Speaker, I would like my colleague to tell me whether he read the record of the hearings held in Regina, and whether he can tell us at this stage what was said by the representatives from the Prairie Farm Commodity Coalition?

[English]

Mr. Malone: Mr. Speaker, I know what the position of the Prairie Farm Commodity Coalition is. I have met with it many times. I should like the Hon. Member opposite from Lotbinière—

Mr. Blais: Lotbinière.

Mr. Malone: Lotbinière. I stand corrected on the pronunciation. I wonder if he would be so good as to look at something that is relatively recent. A newspaper headline of November 2 reads "Prairie groups withdraw support for federal Crow Bill". Yet the Hon. Member tries to say that all those progressive organizations are giving support. The truth of the matter is that the Hon. Member speaks from a vacuum. His neurons are lonesome. He stood in this House and said that beef producers want change. Let me tell you, Sir, if he can—

Mr. Dubois: Yes they do.

Mr. Malone: —find one beef organization anywhere in this country that is asking for a change, he should name it. He accused the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) of sticking fast. I wrote down what he said. He said that they wanted to pay the railways because this is basically a transportation Bill. That is a statement that came from the Hon. Member.

Mr. Dubois: Yes.

Mr. Taylor: It is completely wrong.

Mr. Malone: This is not a transportation Bill. This is an economic development Bill. If the Hon. Member thinks otherwise, I challenge him to go back to the time when the Crow rate was written. What Members of Parliament of the day were talking about then was not just running a train west; it was the economic development of all of western Canada. That is what the Crow rate was about. It was about the economy and the diversity of the country. By taking away the concept of freedom of choice which the Hon. Member chose to attack today, what the Hon. Member does in supporting that position—

Mr. Dubois: What is it?

Mr. Malone: —is to kill the red meat industry in western Canada. He intends to take away 6,000 jobs from the packing plant industry. He intends to hurt the Province of Alberta by some $6 million annually. That is the kind of tactic he would choose. It is his position that if you pay the railways, the only way the farmer can get his share of the subsidy is if he exports his grain. That means the poultry, pork and beef industries, and those value added industries, do not have the opportunity to have the usage of feed grains because they are going to be exported out of the Province.

● (1240)

Mr. Dubois: It is for Western—

Mr. Malone: Why not sit here and listen, Sir? You do not come from the Crow region. It would pay you well just to listen.

Today is the first day we have seen Liberal backbenchers speaking on this Bill. It is the last day of closure, Mr. Speaker, and they stand to speak. How I would love to use an unparliamentary word to express what I think of that. Here we are in the last few hours on the Bill and they fill up the time with Liberal backbenchers. Where were they before, when this Bill should have had its examination, when we should have had full debate in this House? They rise today and suggest that, because they are backbenchers and it is the last day, they have an equal right to time. I defy that kind of—

[Translation]

Mr. Dubois: Mr. Speaker, concerning the reference to where Hon. Members were, I would like to tell my colleague opposite that when all the hearings started in June, July, August and September, there were on the Committee eight Liberal Members who sat through all of the hearings, but not the way the Hon. Member from Alberta did!

[English]

Mr. Mazankowski: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker. There may have been eight Liberals, but they sat in silence most of the time.

Mr. Dubois: A point of order, Mr. Speaker.

[Translation]

Mr. Deputy Speaker: If the Hon. Member for Lotbinière (Mr. Dubois) rises on a point of order, I must of course hear him.

[English]

However, I am concerned that he is using points of order which are in fact points of debate.

Mr. Evans: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I would ask that you consider Citation 306 in Beauchesne's Fifth Edition. I will quote it for you:

> A Member who, during a debate, has spoken to a question may again be heard to offer explanation of some material part of his speech which has been misunderstood; but he must not introduce new matter or endeavour to strengthen, by new arguments, his former position which he alleges to have been misunderstood, or to reply to other Members. Here again, a greater latitude is permitted in cases of personal explanation, where a Member's character or conduct has been impugned in debate. The proper time for explanation is at the conclusion of the speech which calls for it, but it is a common practice for the Member desiring to explain, to rise immediately the statement is made to which his explanation is directed. If the Member in possession of the House gives way and resumes his seat, the explanation is at once received; but the explanation cannot then be offered if the Member speaking declines to give way.

I am not sure that an Hon. Member can rise on a point of order to make such a explanation. However, certainly an intervention by an Hon. Member who has previously spoken, who has been misunderstood and who has been misquoted or whose character is being impugned, has the right of reply in this House. He has the right to rise and make that statement.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): We will continue with the same point of order. The Hon. Member for Bow River on the same point of order.

Mr. Taylor: Mr. Speaker, not one of the items mentioned by the Hon. Member for Ottawa Centre has been the case. He is simply getting up and introducing new debate.

An Hon. Member: He was misunderstood.

Mr. Taylor: He was not misunderstood.

Mr. Rossi: There is a Speaker here. Sit down.

Mr. Taylor: He is just getting up to talk.

Mr. Rossi: Who are you to judge that? Sit down.

[Translation]

Mr. Tessier: Mr. Speaker, I would simply remind the Hon. Member from Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski), who suggested that we were there but remained silent, that we said in a few seconds what he relishes in repeating for hours on end.

[English]

Mr. Keeper: On the same point of order, Mr. Speaker, I want to say that it is bad enough that the Government is using closure to silence opposition to the Crow rate. Now those Hon. Members are abusing the rules of the House and using points of order to stop the opposition—

Mr. Blais: Now who is the pot who is calling the kettle black?

Mr. Keeper: —from bringing forth valid points on this legislation.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, Hon. Members opposite cannot have it both ways. One day we are being criticized because we are not taking part in debate to allow them more time. Today we are being criticized because we are taking too much time, too active a part in the debate. The opposition cannot have it both ways, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Keeper: You just conceded the point of order.

Mr. Malépart: Mr. Speaker, all the difficulties come from the fact that the Hon. Member is completely irrelevant. That is why we are standing up, Mr. Speaker.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for Crowfoot.

Mr. Malone: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. For a moment I thought you had forgotten I was here.

An Hon. Member: We prefer to do that.

Mr. Malone: We really did want to debate this Bill. We were here ready to do it and certainly would have liked to do so. However, the Minister chose to close the House up and said we could not continue the debate because he wanted to get some legal advice on this piece of writing known as the Crow rate. However, one of the Hon. Members opposite says that farmers should not be writing the Crow rate Bill nor speaking on it because it would be a conflict of interest. I suspect that probably what he is suggesting is that those people in the House who are doctors should not have anything to do with medical Bills because of a conflict of interest. Lawyers should never read any of the writing which is in Hansard because a lot of that is in legal form. Therefore, anyone who knows anything about anything should never do anything—which sounds to me very much like the kind of Government we have, Sir; those who know the least do that which they know the least about. I find that has certainly been the tradition with the Liberal Party in Canada. I suspect it will probably continue to act that way until there is no one left in that Party.

There is something else I would like to note. One of the Parliamentary Secretaries suggested that I was impugning the character of an Hon. Member. I tell you, Sir, that he is expert in doing that for himself. I do not need to impugn his character. When he comes forward and gives these kinds of speeches, making statements about the great acceptability of Crow rates in western Canada, then claims he was there in Regina, by golly, I dare him to make that statement and then read the record of the situation in Regina. It is too bad we do not have a videotape so he could see the anguish on those people's faces.

The truth of the matter is that there is pain and hurt in western Canada, caused by a group of people called the "St. Lawrence River Party", a little party in the middle of the country without regional relevance which is impacting upon the great economy of western Canada. They claim that freedom of choice as part of the legislation is something which cannot even be considered, and by that move they have ruined the meat industry in western Canada because feed grains will be exported. I see an Hon. Member shaking his head. I hear him shaking his head from over here, Sir.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Malone: An Hon. Member whose constituency is five or six provinces away from the west shakes his head. That defies logic. The truth of the matter is that if you pay a subsidy and the only way you can get the subsidy is by putting the grain on the train, if you attract the farmer that way, he is going to export. How are they going to feed their cattle if the federal Government dangles a $651 million carrot to make the farmer export his grain? How do you look after the feedlots, the poultry barns and the like, when the source of your feed stock is now being exported out of the province? Farmers know that and they are worried.

Today we get a lecture in the last dying hours from Hon. Members in the back row opposite who never chose to speak before today. There are some exceptions, but certainly that Party did not speak en masse like it is today. I have to ask, where is the Hon. Member for St. Boniface (Mr. Bockstael), the only other Member of Parliament from the west other than the Minister? Oh, my gosh, he is here! I am looking forward to a western Liberal speech from him.

This Crow rate does impact on all of Canada, because it is only when there is an enrichment in their economy that western producers have the wherewithal to buy the refrigerators, cars and farm machinery which are made in central Canada. There is an interdependence in this country. We ought not to lose sight of the fact that we are a country, a nation, that we are bound together and that all parts are better off when one part is better off. This is not a fight between east and west and it should not be viewed that way. There is an enormous potential for growth.

I say to my Quebec friends on the other side—

Mr. Tessier: You have friends in Quebec?

Mr. Malone: —those of you who thought that enrichment of the western red meat industry was a threat are dead wrong. We can extend our markets into California, which are not your markets. You can have your markets in central Canada and the northeast United States.

There is an opportunity here for changes to the transport policy which would contribute to the economic development of our country where we would all be better off. This debate has been a farce. It has meant a delay because the fundamental issues could not be heard. But whatever the tactics were to try and get the deadwood heads to listen, there was a tremendous number of great amendments which would have made a bad Bill acceptable all across the country and they are not going to be heard. It is an unfortunate sham. Long after the vote is taken on this issue there will still be anguish in the major part of this country because the St. Lawrence River party decided to impose its might against those with legitimate rights to have their views heard in a major debate in the House of Commons of Canada.

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I was happy to see the Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) acknowledge there would be anguish for a long time around this House. I hope it is an offer of a solid seat in The Battlefords-Meadow Lake for one Anguish.

Just leading into the remarks I would like to make on Motion No. 58 to Bill C-155, Mr. Speaker, I am a little concerned when Members opposite do not want to listen to the Opposition Parties, whether it be the NDP or the Progressive Conservatives. The great philosopher Voltaire once said that one of the very basics in democracy is: I may disagree profusely with what you have to say but I will defend to the death your right to say it. Honesty, openness and a willingness to listen makes for much better government for the people of Canada rather than always having the Government Party disagree with Members of the Opposition and not even listen to them.

From the knowledge I have, that has been the way since the beginning of this great country in 1867. Ever since that time there has been a sort of parliamentary wedlock between the Conservatives and Liberals. They say one thing in opposition critical of their partner in wedlock on the other side, and then when they are in Government it is a complete switch about. It has always been like that.

The New Democratic Party is the only Party which has consistently maintained we should have the statutory Crow rate unaltered for the protection of the western Canadian producer. The Conservatives started at the beginning of this Bill to say the Crow had to go. In fact, when they were the Government they were planning exactly the same piece of legislation which the Liberals are implementing by closure here today through Bill C-155.

Mr. Mazankowski: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I think the Hon. Member has an obligation to prove to the House what he just said. He said the Conservative Party had exactly the same piece of legislation ready to present to the House to dismantle the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. I ask that he substantiate that statement or else withdraw it.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I would be happy to do that if the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) would table in this House all the documents he was privy to while he was Minister of Transport.

Mr. Evans: The onus is on you.

Mr. Anguish: If we can examine those documents, I will be more than happy to point out the accuracy of the allegation I have made. But until that happens I will go on—

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, it is obvious the Hon. Member has no evidence to substantiate the statement he made.

Mr. Manly: You have the evidence, you table it.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, the plan the Liberals are implementing now, which would have been put in by the Conservatives, would have cost the producers in my riding dearly. For example, the Meadow Lake delivery point—

Mr. Mazankowski: I hate to dwell on this point, Mr. Speaker, but I think the Member has an obligation either to put up or shut up. If he cannot prove his statement, then he should withdraw it.

Mr. Keeper: Mr. Speaker, on the same point of order, I think the Conservative Party has an obligation to make clear to this House and the Canadian people that they mean that this Crow legislation must be stopped. They have talked only of postponing it.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, under the plan I was talking about put forward by these partners in parliamentary wedlock, it will cost the farmers who deliver to the Meadow Lake delivery point—

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I respect the Hon. Member and I hope he respects the traditions of this House. I think it is most unfair for a Member to make a statement which has absolutely no foundation whatsoever. Unless this hon. gentleman can substantiate what he has stated, namely that we as a Government and I as Minister of Transport had legislation exactly the same as this legislation ready to be introduced, which is absolutely false, I ask the Hon. Member either to produce the evidence or withdraw the statement.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The difficulty is that the Chair is not in a position to rule on whether or not debate, or some part of it, is either true or false, accurate or inaccurate, or whatever. That is not the function of the Chair. The Hon. Member for Vegreville had a grievance and I think he has certainly made clear his difference of opinion and his grievance. At this point in a procedural sense I simply have to leave it to the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake to proceed as he wishes.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, what I have said has more foundation than what the Conservative—

[Translation]

Mr. Tessier: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for Mégantic-Compton-Stanstead on a point of order.

Mr. Tessier: Mr. Speaker, on the same point of order as my colleague for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski), maybe the Progressive Conservative Party did not have any legislation ready, but originally they had the same thing in mind as this Government, but they want to see this Government incur all the odium of such a legislation. They are not ready to face up to their responsibilities.

[English]

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, the assertion I made certainly has as much a foundation, and likely more, than that of the Members of the Conservative Party who stand in this House and say the NDP is tryingto break the Crowsnest Pass Agreement.

Mr. Neil: Mr. Speaker, if the Hon. Member alleges that what the NDP is doing in its safety net amendment is not breaking the Crow, I would like him to explain why their proposed amendment would have had the effect of immediately increasing the cost to the farmer of moving grain by 20 per cent. How does he explain that?

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please. I have asked Hon. Members to attempt, if they can, to avoid using points of order to intervene in the debate of another Hon. Member. I leave it entirely in the hands of the Hon. Member for The Battlesfords-Meadow Lake, but in view of the interventions, perhaps he would like me to call it one o'clock. Would that be convenient for him?

● (1300)

Mr. Anguish: Not at the moment, Mr. Speaker. In regard to the remarks made by the Hon. Member for Moose Jaw (Mr. Neil), he was either not listening or not present in the House of Commons, because this morning the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse) in his intervention explained exactly what was happening. I do not have the table here before me.

I would like to go on with my comments on Motion No. 58, Mr. Speaker, which is designed to protect the producers by guaranteeing them service from the rail companies relating to movement of grain from western Canada.

Mr. Speaker, I see you are rising. Shall I call it one o'clock and resume my remarks when debate begins after the Question Period?

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I nodded my head in agreement, which is to say that I shook my head, something that I do not ever want to do again after hearing the comment made by the Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone).

It being one o'clock, I do now leave the chair until two o'clock this afternoon.

At 1.02 p.m. the House took recess.

INCOME TAX

CANCELLATION OF NORTHERN BENEFITS

Mr. F. Oberle (Prince George-Peace River): Mr. Speaker, the Government proposes to cancel the special tax advantages available to people working and living in the North despite the protests of every group with any understanding of development in that area, including some parts of the Government itself.

The cancellation of these northern benefits will bring in only a small amount of additional revenue to the Finance Department and have a disastrous effect on industries such as mining. It will do nothing to assist northerners whose disposable income is dramatically reduced by high costs of living. Instead, it will simply add employees of large companies and Governments to the list of people suffering these disadvantages.

We on this side of the House can find only one explanation for the decision, and that is that the Government intends to replace a stimulant available to all, with a grant system available only to those it selects. This has been the pattern of economic assistance over the last several years, and it is one with grave consequences. Industry spokesmen have pointed out that the grant system rewards industries whose imminent failure means political problems for the Government. They have said the grant system is "addictive", and that it forces bureaucrats to make decisions about the validity of industrial efforts with which they may not be familiar.

It is time the effort was made to provide stimulative tax measures for everyone, so that personal and industrial initiative can take advantage of opportunities instead of turning to the Government and asking for a special grant or loan.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

LEBANON—SYRIAN ATTACK ON PALESTINE LIBERATION ORGANIZATION CAMP

Mr. Roland de Corneille (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Veterans Affairs): Mr. Speaker, at this very hour the Syrian backed faction of the PLO is attacking the camp of the PLO loyal to Arafat in the city of Tripoli, in northern Lebanon. The Syrians in the surrounding hills are pouring artillery shells on the camp, and we have learned that already many civilians in that camp have been killed and wounded. Arafat is pleading with world leaders to save the people from a Syrian backed massacre.

S.O. 21

Is it not ironic, Mr. Speaker, that it is only a matter of days since our Secretary of State for External Affairs (Mr. MacEachen) was in Syria, and was assured by Syrian leaders, according to the Minister's own words, that Syria would like to see a sovereign and independent Lebanon, that Syria would like to see the process of reconciliation there take place, and that it would be unwise to disregard the role which Syria occupies in pursuing the path to peace?

In the light of the slaughter taking place in Tripoli at this very time, Mr. Speaker, it is ironic that, although PLO factions have for years been terrorizing innocent Israeli and Lebanese civilians, massacring innocent Jews throughout the world, and now are terrorizing one another, Canada is in contact with the PLO and is even musing aloud on upgrading the level of that contact.

At the very time when the PLO is increasingly discredited, in disarray, and treated with disdain by more and more Arab nations, I oppose that Canada should be giving any appearance of shoring up the sagging fortunes of these terrorists. Instead, perhaps our Government should review its policy on the PLO and, based on its recent contacts with Syria, should on humanitarian grounds call on Syria to stop immediately the slaughter it is perpetrating in Tripoli.

TRADE

RESTRICTIONS ON TRANSPORTATION OF HAY TO UNITED STATES

Mr. Alex Patterson (Fraser Valley East): Madam Speaker, I rise today to bring attention to a situation which is causing concern to a number of Canadians, many of whom reside in my constituency of Fraser Valley East and other areas on the Province of British Columbia. I am speaking of the problem of reciprocity in the treatment of truck drivers between Canada and the United States.

The situation has been ongoing for a number of years, but on June 1, 1983, the Canadian hay dealers were notified that they no longer would be allowed to take unloading crews into the United States. While the order in itself does not constitute a serious limitation to hay movement if the situation is handled the same on both sides of the border, the enforcement has been much more prohibitive in the United States than in Canada. United States drivers continue to assist in the unloading of hay imported into Canada from the U.S.A. by United States dealers.

As there are some 4,000 instances of hay importation from the United States to Canada, and as U.S. alfalfa hay will remain in demand for our high producing dairy herds in British Columbia for many years to come, we urge that customs officials take measures to ensure that equal treatment is accorded to Canadian hay dealers to permit them to compete in their own marketplace.

As well, there is concern that loads of hay are not moving directly from the U.S. to the farms which have bought the hay. In some cases U.S. hay dealers have set up a sales location to use as a base from which to sell hay. Such action constitutes further unfair competition with Canadian hay dealers.

INCOME TAX

ARTS AND CULTURE—GOVERNMENT POSITION

Mr. Robert Gourd (Argenteuil-Papineau): Mr. Speaker, I should like to take this opportunity today to congratulate the former Prime Minister, the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead (Mr. Clark), who has finally discovered the sad predicament the artists are in two years after I introduced in the House a motion to amend the Income Tax Act in order to alleviate the financial problems threatening the very survival of those who are part of our Canadian culture. The party opposite has discovered overnight the difficulties experienced by Canadian artists, but I merely want to remind the House that the government Members had already done their job. Unfortunately, copyright does not seem to mean much to the former Leader of the Opposition and former Prime Minister.

INDIAN AFFAIRS

SAFEGUARDING OF TOBIQUE BAND FUNDS

Mr. Jim Manly (Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands): Mr. Speaker, the Tobique Indian band in New Brunswick held a duly called election on September 19, but because of a narrow interpretation of the Indian Act, Department of Indian Affairs officials will not allow the new chief and council to take office until November 29, ten weeks after the election.

The new chief and councillors fear that in the interim the outgoing chief will spend the meagre funds the band has to operate with for the rest of the fiscal year. In spite of these fears, the Minister and his officials have refused a request from the new chief to freeze funds until the new council takes office.

Indian Affairs will act to enforce the fine points of the Indian Act no matter how ridiculous, but the Department will not accede to a request from an elected chief to safeguard band funds. Small wonder that the Tobique band members have occupied the council office to try to get attention for their problems.

The Tobique band is one more reason why the Indian Act must go, and one more reason why the Department of Indian Affairs must go, and why Indian people must have the right to conduct their own business without interference by federal or provincial bureaucrats.

RAILWAYS

SPEEDY ADOPTION OF BILL C-155 URGED—POSITION OF BRITISH COLUMBIA RAILWAY COMPANY

Mr. Jean-Guy Dubois (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, I should like to advise the House that some time ago I received a telegram from the company operating the railways in British Columbia praising the Transport Committee for accepting to deal with an amendment to Bill C-155 concerning the British Columbia Railways. What I found both surprising and extraordinary was that after commending us for accepting the company's position, the telegram urged us to rush through this legislation which it said was of paramount importance for British Columbia generally and the Vancouver area in particular. As this is the second day of debate at the report stage and the Third Reading will be tomorrow, I warn the Official Opposition and the other party that we must hold the votes quickly today and proceed to Third Reading tomorrow to meet the expectations of Canadians. I challenge all Hon. Members from the Vancouver area to stand in the House and voice their opposition to my own position and that of the British Columbia railway company, and more especially that of the people in the Vancouver area who want to see this bill adopted so that the infrastructure may be strengthened, investments encouraged and job creation increased in their area. I hope that we will complete the study of this bill very quickly.

UNITED NATIONS

INVASION OF GRENADA—CANADIAN ABSTENTION ON NICARAGUAN RESOLUTION

Hon. Sinclair Stevens (York-Peel): Mr. Speaker, within hours of a rescue operation being launched in response to a request for aid from the island of Grenada, the Liberal Government condemned the rescue move. Yet, last evening a vote took place in the General Assembly of the United Nations on a Nicaraguan resolution condemning the rescue operation. Our Government did not vote for the resolution, nor did it vote against it, as did such Caribbean countries as the Barbados, Dominica, Jamaica, St. Lucia, and as did Israel, and the United States. Our Government boldly abstained.

Does this mean the Government has changed its mind? Does it now realize that it was too rash in initially condemning the intervention? What is the Government's position as of this moment? Surely this once again demonstrates the need for the Standing Committee on External Affairs and National Defence to review the Government's handling of the entire

Grenadian affair, to review what forewarning the Government had as to what was happening on that island—

INCOME TAX

REQUIREMENT THAT SENIOR CITIZENS PAY TAX IN QUARTERLY INSTALMENTS

Mr. Jack Burghardt (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Communications): Mr. Speaker, senior citizens are a most important, yet often forgotten, segment of Canadian society. During retirement years an individual's income in the majority of cases will drop dramatically, and many financial adjustments are made necessary. Also, many seniors will discover that for the first time in their lives it has become necessary to pay their income tax by quarterly instalment. This longstanding provision of the Income Tax Act was originally designed to help individuals avoid interest penalties. However, through lack of understanding of the income tax provisions, and because of errors in the calculation of yearly income, many senior citizens are still faced with instalment interest penalties at year end.

While the Department of National Revenue has made an effort to improve the notification process for individuals who are required to pay their income tax by instalments, there is a need for further review and clarification of this provision as it affects senior citizens. It is my hope that the Minister of National Revenue (Mr. Bussières) and the Minister of Finance (Mr. Lalonde), in reviewing any changes to the Income Tax Act, will give the concerns of Canada's seniors their utmost consideration.

MULTICULTURALISM

CALL FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF SEPARATE MINISTRY

Mr. Jack Murta (Lisgar): Mr. Speaker, people from many lands have come to Canada's shores and contributed to the rich cultural and linguistic mosaic which is Canadian society today. Canada is now a multicultural, multiracial, and multireligious country. It is a heritage which makes us the envy of the world.

Those who sought the freedom and opportunity offered by our country must be encouraged to participate fully in Canadian public affairs. We must recognize the diversity of culture, race, language, religion, and heritage, which forms the basis of our society and undertake a determined initiative to ensure equality of access for all Canadians.

In order to facilitate this process I urge the Government to strengthen the structure of the present multiculturalism directorate by creating a separate multiculturalism ministry with its own independent budget and minister. This ministry should be a vibrant centre, and given responsibility for ensuring that every government Department, Crown corporation, board and committee truly understands and responds to the multicultural reality of Canada.

At present there is no central source of information for the collected experience and knowledge relating to multiculturalism. In addition to its monitoring duties, the new ministry should assume a role as a national multicultural information bank in order to facilitate greater understanding of minorities which have yet to be included in the mainstream of Canada's social, political, and economic life.

CHARITABLE ORGANIZATIONS

OBJECTION TO DESIGNATION OF FRASER INSTITUTE IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Mr. Ray Skelly (Comox-Powell River): Mr. Speaker, events in British Columbia have reached a crisis as provincial public sector employees have been forced to strike by the intransigence of the Conservative-Social Credit Government which is misguided by right-wing ideology. We have been reminded frequently of the influence held by the right-wing Vancouver think tank, the Fraser Institute, in providing policy direction to the Socreds before, during, and after the 1983 provincial election.

The Fraser Institute has held charitable tax status with Revenue Canada since October, 1974, when it reportedly was financed by Conservative business interests who were more concerned with the overthrow of the progressive Government of the day led by Dave Barrett than with the generation of new ideas.

Common law has solidly established that if any purpose of a group is to influence Parliament or a legislature to change existing laws, or to enact new laws in accordance with the views of interested bodies, that purpose will not be charitable. This principle is supposed to guide Revenue Canada officials in their granting of charitable status. Many research organizations have been denied such status due to this principle. Revenue Canada in fact published a pamphlet explaining the consequences of a charity having political objectives and carrying on activities which are political in nature.

The Minister of National Revenue (Mr. Bussières) must re-examine the policies of his Department regarding charitable status in light of this accepted common law. Either he should grant tax exempt status to research organizations regardless of their political colour, or he should direct his officials to revoke the tax number of the Fraser Institute. It is clear that there is nothing charitable about this right-wing—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member's time has expired.

ORAL QUESTION PERIOD

[English]

THE ECONOMY

SIZE OF GOVERNMENT'S DEFICIT

Hon. John C. Crosbie (St. John's West): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Finance. He has not given the House any hard information on our fiscal situation since April when he brought down his last budget, but he shared some of his musing with The Globe and Mail yesterday. Would he tell the House what is the expected deficit of the Government now for this financial year, and whether or not it is still $31.3 billion? If it is not that, what is it? Could he also tell the House whether our expected revenues are up or down, and whether our projected expenditures are up or down? What is our present fiscal position? We have passed seven months of the financial year. What is the position?

[Translation]

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, to answer the hon. gentleman very briefly, I would say that some of our revenues are higher and some are lower, some of our expenditures are higher and others are not as high. Generally speaking, I am maintaining my deficit forecast of $31.3 billion, but I shall be reviewing the situation in detail with my officials around the end of December, when figures for the third quarter will be available. I shall then be in a better position to provide a more precise estimate of the deficit for the current year, but I have no reason to make any substantial changes in the forecast I made in my last budget.

[English]

Mr. Crosbie: That was very informative. When the Minister is high, he is often at his lowest, or when he is highest he is lowest, and when he is lowest he is highest. In other words, the Minister is saying that he has no information for the House.

UNEMPLOYMENT FORECAST

Hon. John C. Crosbie (St. John's West): Mr. Speaker, my supplementary question is directed to the same Minister. He told The Globe and Mail that growth in 1984 would be worse than even he predicted. That would mean higher unemployment than the 11.4 per cent which he predicted in the budget. Could the Minister tell the House what steps the Government will take to counteract this new forecast of increased unemployment? Will he increase real personal income, for example, by eliminating the Canadian ownership charge, or reducing interest rates? What steps will he take to overcome this pessimistic forecast which he gave publicly this morning?

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I thank the Hon. Member for explaining his own jokes, but I would hope that he would be better at explaining articles in The Globe and Mail. What the article in The Globe and Mail indicated was not what the Hon. Member said. I indicated that for this year the growth in Gross National Product would be significantly higher than I had anticipated last April, that inflation would be lower, that unemployment would be lower, that employment would be higher and that, therefore, all the main economic indicators would be more favourable this year than I expected at the time of my budget.

As far as 1984 is concerned, I indicated that the Gross National Product increase might be between 4 per cent and 5 per cent. It may be closer to 5 per cent than to 4 per cent; I am not in a position to forecast that. In the budget last April I indicated 5.2 per cent. Obviously, if we have a significantly high rate of growth this year, this establishes a higher base from which to start. It would be normal, if we keep roughly the same forecasts as I am forced to do at the present time until we review them at the end of the year, that since we would start from a higher base in 1984 that would mean the rate of growth itself would be somewhat lower, but not significantly. I am happy to inform my colleague that unemployment is expected to be lower next year, 1984, than I forecast in my budget of last April.

MINISTER'S STATEMENT ON INFLATION

Hon. John C. Crosbie (St. John's West): Mr. Speaker, the Minister is saying that what he says he does not mean, and what he means he does not say. I quoted to him from what he said, according to this morning's Globe and Mail.

The Minister also said that he is "stepping up his crusade against inflation since he has no other practical options for substantially reducing unemployment". Since we just had a record number of bankruptcies, a record number of unemployed, and record misery because of the Minister's crusade against inflation, what is he now going to do as he steps up his crusade against inflation? How many more unemployed will there be? How many more bankruptcies will there be? What does he mean by this confession of failure? Will he get out of the way, if he has no practical options to offer to overcome unemployment?

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, from hearing the Hon. Member the only conclusion I can reach is, as I said, that he does not want to understand. I will try again.

The level of unemployment is lower this year, and will be lower this year than even I anticipated in April. The number of jobs created will be higher this year than we had anticipated. The rate of inflation will be lower than we had anticipated. In 1984 those figures will also be better than had been projected in the budget of last April. The clear conclusion what my colleague should reach is to the effect that the economy will have been performing better in 1983 than I had forecast and better than most forecasters had forecast. It will perform better in 1984, better than all the forecasts we have seen. That is what is foreseen for next year.

As far as the number of unemployed is concerned, unemployment is expected to be lower this year than had been anticipated. Employment will be higher. If we want to achieve that growth, and a sustained growth in this country, we will have to maintain our level of inflation at least close to that of the United States. I would be even happier if it were below that of the United States. I do not think we will achieve lower unemployment in this country by jacking up inflation. Everybody would suffer if we followed the role recommended by the Hon. Member.

SALES TAX INQUIRY

Mr. Don Blenkarn (Mississauga South): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Finance. In his confession to The Globe and Mail the Minister indicated that he really thinks growth is going to be down from his forecast. He admitted that to my colleague from St. John's West, that it will be down to the 4 per cent range. In view of that decline in anticipated growth, will he be introducing increases in sales tax as contemplated in his April budget?

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I have indicated that in 1983 we will have a higher rate of growth than had been anticipated, significantly higher. If you start from a higher base, it would be normal to expect that the rate of growth next year would be somewhat slightly lower than had been foreseen when we foresaw a rate of growth of only 2.3 per cent this year. It is likely to be above 3 per cent this year. This is simply mathematics. It is easily understood. It does not mean that the economy is going to slow down next year. It is going to grow, and grow quite significantly and rapidly. As I said, I had foreseen 5.2 per cent in the budget last April.

I will have an opportunity to introduce a new budget some time in 1984. By then I will be able to give a specific figure to my hon. friend. However, if next year we end up with a growth of 5 per cent or 4.9 per cent, compared to the forecast of 5.2 per cent last April, we will still know a higher rate of growth, especially in view of the fact that we will have grown this year by much more than had been anticipated.

INTEREST RATES CHARGED BY CHARTERED BANKS

Mr. Don Blenkarn (Mississauga South): Mr. Speaker, we now know that four is higher than five point two. I will now turn to the question of interest rates.

The Minister will know that the Economic Council, the Wood Gundy Report, and the Conference Board have all indicated that interest rates, in their view, must come down. We see that the Bank of Canada rate is roughly 150 or 152 points today below the prime rate that the chartered banks charge. Will the Minister do something about interest rates, such as have a conference with the chartered bank presidents and ask them to reduce their prime rate to, say, 10 per cent? The history is that for years the chartered banks have been able to get along with a spread of no more than 50 bases points. Why do they now need 152 bases points?

[Translation]

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I answered a similar question yesterday by the leader of the New Democratic Party. I informed him that interest rates in Canada had dropped significantly during the past year, that if we went back as far as 1981, there was a spread, interest rates in Canada being 4.7 per cent higher than they were in the United States. Today, the bank rate is the same as in the United States, and rates for short term paper are slightly lower or about equal to American rates. We have compressed interest rates in Canada to a very significant extent over the last two years, and especially during the past year. We managed to do so without affecting the value of the Canadian dollar, and I said that if interest rates in United States were to drop again, Canada would be in a position to benefit immediately, as would most other industrialized countries.

I can inform the hon. gentleman that I shall be meeting with major directors of Canadian banks in the near future, and certainly intend to discuss with them the whole issue of current real interest rates in Canada. Once again, if we really want our economy to prosper and to reduce interest rates, it is important not to have an inflation rate that is higher than the U.S. rate, as it is at the present time.

[English]

IMPACT OF NATIONAL ENERGY PROGRAM

Mr. Nelson A. Riis (Kamloops-Shuswap): Mr. Speaker, my question is also directed to the Minister of Finance. In the last few days he indicated that he expected the unemployment level to remain in the 12 per cent range until 1984. He has also indicated that he and his Government have little room to manoeuvre in terms of any real job creation. Is one of the reasons that the Government has little room to manoeuvre because the National Energy Program provides for Canada's most wealthy investors an opportunity to receive 80 per cent of their investment back from the federal government in cash grants?

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I have stated quite clearly and repeatedly that in 1983 the level of unemployment will be lower than had been anticipated. We had foreseen an average of 12.4. I expect that this year it will likely be below 12 per cent. As far as 1984 is concerned, I want to tell the Hon. Member that the level of unemployment is expected to be below 12 per cent, not above 12 per cent as he has suggested.

As far as the specific point he has raised is concerned, I remind him that the grant system that has been introduced with regard to the oil and gas industry has been introduced as a replacement of a fiscal system one of whose basic characteristics was that it was mainly helping the wealthiest companies, which fundamentally were foreign multinationals. The new system is biased in favour of Canadian firms. It has succeeded in significantly expanding Canadian ownership of the oil and gas industry. I am amazed that even the NDP cannot realize that.

TAX WRITEOFFS

Mr. Nelson A. Riis (Kamloops-Shuswap): Mr. Speaker, I want to rephrase my question in human terms. Very specifically, I want to ask the Minister whether he, in his previous position and present one, has introduced legislation that would provide someone making a $7,000 investment with the opportunity of securing a major tax writeoff worth many thousands of dollars for this year, and then receiving $18,000 in a federal cash grant for 1984? Is this the kind of step that the Government has taken in an effort at job creation in this country, with these unbelievable tax giveaways?

• (1430)

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, what the Hon. Member does not realize is that such benefits will materialize if there is an oil or gas discovery, and the Canadian public gets 25 per cent interest in any discovery that is made. The Canadian people are going to be rewarded for their investment in the discovery of oil and gas in this country, not only by achieving self-sufficiency and energy security, but also by sharing in the wealth that will have been discovered due to the support that is provided by the Government of Canada, to all companies, but more particularly to Canadian investors. We will all benefit by such a regime. This is a better regime than the one which existed before, which benefited mainly multinational companies.

USE OF ENERGY TAX FUNDS

Mr. Nelson A. Riis (Kamloops-Shuswap): Mr. Speaker, certainly people are being rewarded for a $7,000 investment with $18,000 in cash plus tax benefits. Will the Minister confirm that, in a consumer-led recovery which he had hoped for, by increasing taxes under programs such as the Canadian ownership special charge he is doing two things? He is taking money out of the hands of the Candian taxpayers and hindering a recovery and, perhaps as important, is collecting money from the Canadian taxpayers to enable him to give these unbelievable tax holidays to the most wealthy Canadian investors. Is that not what he is doing in terms of redistributing income upwards?

[Translation]

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I must say I entirely disagree with the hon. gentleman. Once again, grants paid to businesses in the gas and oil industry are basically earmarked for gas and oil exploration in this country. The grants in question are paid only if the money is spent on prospecting for gas and oil. If none is found, the $7,000 and the government grant will have been spent on wages and services in an attempt to discover gas and oil. If gas and oil discoveries are made, the Canadian Government and the Canadian taxpayer will have a 25 per cent interest, and in this way we shall have made a contribution towards achieving energy security and self-sufficiency, something all Canadians want to achieve and the basic objective of our national energy policy. I would like to say to the hon. gentleman that if he looks at the facts, he will see that we have made tremendous progress in this respect over the last two years.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

PRESENCE IN GALLERY OF MINISTER OF JUSTICE AND OF THE MINISTER RESPONSIBLE FOR INDIAN AND NATIVE AFFAIRS, OF THE PROVINCE OF SASKATCHEWAN

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I would like to call to the attention of the House the presence in the gallery of the Hon. Gary Lane, the Minister of Justice of Saskatchewan, and of the Hon. Sid Sutchak, the Minister responsible for Indian and Native Affairs, of Saskatchewan.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

AIR CANADA

RESIGNATION OF CHAIRMAN

Mr. Pat Nowlan (Annapolis Valley-Hants): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister of Transport. In view of the temper and tone of the letter of resignation of the Chairman of Air Canada this morning, will the Minister table in this House those parts of the report of the RCMP investigation not relating to criminal matters, but rather pertaining to conflict of interest and improper conduct of the Chairman in the discharge of his mandate?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, I think the Hon. Member should know by this time that any investigation of that kind is a matter in the jurisdiction of the police officers and authorities who undertake such investigations. It is not the practice to make reports of such investigations public, for all the obvious reasons. I would say that the Hon. Member is intemperate in asking for such.

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE REPORT

Mr. Pat Nowlan (Annapolis Valley-Hants): Mr. Speaker, I have a supplementary question for the Minister. Since the Minister has seen the RCMP report, will he state in this House on his ministerial oath that, separate and apart from the criminal aspects, there is nothing in that report pertaining to conflicts of interest, improper conduct, or irregular conduct of the Chairman in the discharge of his duties? Is the Minister really trying to pretend that the Chairman is a martyr, or should he really be complimented on being a great barterer since he is going to be paid one and one-half time his salary in a lump sum?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, if the Hon. Member has any further allegations to make, I would invite him to make them outside this Chamber.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

COPYRIGHT

GOVERNMENT POSITION

Mr. Robert Gourd (Argenteuil-Papineau): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs who is also responsible for the copyright legislation. I am pleased to find that the Opposition has finally discovered that some artists do reside in Canada. Yesterday I noticed that the former Prime Minister and former leader of the preceding Government was asking for special rights for authors, and I should think that the copyright is the first right that must be given to Canadian authors and composers. Can the Minister tell us what the current situation is and whether some progress will soon be made in that field?

[English]

Hon. Judy Erola (Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to answer the Hon. Member's question. The Minister of Communications and I have been working very closely for the past couple of months on the development of new copyright legislation which is long overdue in this country. We hope to produce results very soon.

SMALL BUSINESS

REQUEST FOR EMPLOYMENT TAX CREDITS

Mr. Otto Jelinek (Halton): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister of Finance. The Government has been most generous in recent years with Canadian tax dollars in bailing out super-large multinational corporations, often throwing good money after bad. Since the small business sector remains the largest potential employer in Canada, will the Minister, in fairness to small business, commit himself today to redirect at least a portion of his Government's so-called bail-out fund to the establishment of employment tax credits or similar incentives for small business? This is where jobs can and should be created. Why is the Minister not acting in this regard?

Hon. Marc Lalonde (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, I wonder where the Hon. Member has been for the last six months? I will send him a copy of the budget and, if it is too big, I will send him a copy of "The Budget in Brief". It is short; it is all listed there. He will find that there are hundreds of millions of dollars in tax incentives that were included in the last budget.

An Hon. Member: You have not passed one piece of legislation.

Mr. Lalonde: The measures addressed to the corporate sector in the last budget were, on the whole, biased in favour of small and medium-sized businesses. All the measures that were contained in the budget, whether in the area of research and development or in the area of investment, were available to all business, particularly small business. In many instances there was a special bias in favour of small and medium-sized business. If the Hon. Member is interested, I will send him my own copy.

NUCLEAR ENERGY

REQUEST THAT ROYAL COMMISSION INQUIRE INTO NUCLEAR INDUSTRY

Mr. Jim Fulton (Skeena): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources. Close to half the nuclear reactors in Canada are closed down, this coming at a time when the United States has cancelled proposals for 48 more nuclear reactors this year. At the same time the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources has endorsed 12 more for Canada. In light of the visibly bankrupt economics of the nuclear industry in Canada and the unlikelihood of Canadians continuing to support the nuclear industry, particularly exports to the United States, or accepting strawberries back from Romania in return for a Candu reactor, will the Minister stop being a lap dog to Bill Davis and the nuclear mobsters in this country, and establish a Royal Commission of Inquiry into the entire nuclear fuel cycle?

Hon. Jean Chrétien (Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources): Mr. Speaker, there was a lot of investment made by Canadians in that system. It is a very good system. In operation you can always have some problems, but it is very evident that the problems that have been faced in Canada have been well managed. There was no danger to anybody. The system is very safe and it has been proven that, under the circumstances, there was no danger to anybody. Hydro Quebec, Hydro Ontario, and the federal Government have proven that we can operate Candu reactors in Canada. It is a good system. We have invested too much just to cancel a big program like that in a flim-flam way as the Hon. Member would like us to do.

MINISTER'S POSITION

Mr. Jim Fulton (Skeena): Mr. Speaker, talk about flim-flam. I would like to get a yes or no answer from the Minister of Energy. The nuclear industry in Canada is in absolute chaos. The Ontario Government is proposing to expand the nuclear industry in order to deal with acid rain. It states it can shut down coal-fired plants by expanding the nuclear industry. Will the Minister support a Royal Commission of Inquiry into an industry that is obviously in chaos, is endangering Canadian health, and is dragging at least Ontario into bankruptcy?

• (1440)

Hon. Jean Chrétien (Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources): Mr. Speaker, the answer is no to a Royal commission.

CANADA POST CORPORATION

IMPACT OF ACTIVITIES ON SMALL BUSINESS

Mr. Ron Stewart (Simcoe South): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister responsible for Canada Post but, in his absence, I should like to put it to the Acting Minister. Can he explain why Canada Post encourages its employees to use its own private travel section for their private travel arrangements, pockets the commissions, and thus forces small travel agencies into even more trouble? Why does it use its admail service to promote the delivery of advertising flyers through the mails, thus drawing revenue from local newspapers, the backbone of Canadian communities, and from the small printing shops? This action is subsidized by a Crown corporation and creates direct competition for small business which is trying to create new jobs for Canadians.

Hon. Francis Fox (Minister of Communications): Mr. Speaker, the Minister responsible for the Post Office could not be in the House today. I will be pleased to take notice of the question and draw it to his attention. He will undoubtedly give an answer to the Hon. Member's question.

SHIPBUILDING

UNEMPLOYMENT IN INDUSTRY

Mr. Bob Corbett (Fundy-Royal): Mr. Speaker, I should like to direct a question to the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce. In view of the wonderful promises made by the Minister when he announced changes to the excise and customs jurisdiction in order to protect the Canadian shipbuilding industry last December, how does he account for the fact that the shipbuilding policy is still not in effect, when two foreign-built ships are entering Canada for every one that is currently being built in Canadian shipyards? Unemployment in the shipbuilding industry is at the highest point it has been since 1939. There are 8,000 unemployed shipyard workers waiting for the Minister and the Government to stop dithering over this issue.

Hon. Ed Lumley (Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce and Minister of Regional Economic Expansion): Mr. Speaker, with respect to the legislation, perhaps the Hon. Member would like to direct his question to the Minister directly responsible for the legislation.

The Hon. Member should know that there is substantial under-capacity utilization throughout the world in the ship-building industry; it is not just in Canadian shipyards.

The announcement made by my colleagues, the former Minister of Supply and Services and the former Minister of National Defence, with respect to the frigate program indicated one of the largest megaprojects and job-creation programs in all of Canada. As well, there was the Minister of Transport's announcement with respect to the Coast Guard frigate program. Obviously the Hon. Member has not paid attention to the recent announcement made by my colleagues in this House.

FISHERIES

STATE OF INDUSTRY IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Mr. Benno Friesen (Surrey-White Rock-North Delta): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans. Of late the issue of extra berthing costs has been raised in the House. I should like to ask the Minister if the position he is taking is the result of recommendations made by the Minister's advisory council. As he knows, the salmon industry is already prostrate and this issue is strapping it even more.

With respect to the proposed buy-back program, I should like to ask the Minister if, in the implementation of that program, he will respect the prudence of those who have been in the industry for a while and who have acted cautiously, and see to it that the buy-back program will not be a bailout of the banks.

Hon. Pierre De Bané (Minister of Fisheries and Oceans): I am very happy, Mr. Speaker, that the Hon. Member has put his question in that light. The problem of the fishery on the Pacific Coast is very serious. The first responsibility of the Minister is to look to the stocks, because the whole industry is based on the stocks. At the moment they are under very heavy pressure from over fishing. The report of Dr. Pearse, that we should reduce the fishing effort, is something with which I fully concur.

As the Hon. Member said, I have received the advice of the Minister's advisory council, and that includes about 17 associations, on how to go about it. My Department is carefully reviewing those recommendations. I can tell the Hon. Member that I will be giving the recommendations the highest consideration. I hope that in due course I will be able to announce the policy of the Government.

FISHERIES

RESTRUCTURING OF INDUSTRY IN EASTERN QUEBEC—GOVERNMENT POSITION

Mrs. Éva Côté (Rimouski-Témiscouata): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans, and it has to do with the information he gave us yesterday concerning the restructuration of fisheries in Eastern Quebec. I would like to know from the Minister whether it is true that his Assistant Deputy Minister and senior officials of his Department are to meet in Rimouski tomorrow with fishermen in the Gaspé to pursue the discussions on the restructuration of the processing plants in Quebec?

Hon. Pierre De Bané (Minister of Fisheries and Oceans): Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to confirm to the Hon. Member for Rimouski-Témiscouata that, among others, Newport fishermen did call my Department and asked for a meeting with the Assistant Deputy Minister with a view to going over the details of the offer made by the Canadian Government to the entire Pêcheurs-Unis movement. Needless to say, the officials of my Department gladly agreed to meet with the representatives of Newport fishermen, and I might even say that if they were invited to go to Newport, they would do so. As for me, of course, I have no intention to behave as my Quebec counterpart did, that is go over everybody's head, up the ante and try to make people believe that the problem can be solved by concentrating the efforts in a single place. The issue facing us is to find a solution to all the problems of the Pêcheurs-Unis movement, not only to those of one community at a time.

TRADE

PACIFIC RIM MARKETS

Mr. Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of State for International Trade. Earlier this week the Minister met with his provincial counterparts. One of the requests they made was that, in his exploration of closer links with the United States, markets in the Pacific rim not be sacrificed. They expressed real concern that we explore the Pacific rim for more markets. Because of the importance of this to job creation in Canada, with the high unemployment rate, and the importance of the Pacific rim to western Canada as a market for many of our products, can the Minister tell us what concrete steps he is planning to take in the next few weeks to expand our trade with Pacific rim countries such as Japan and China?

Hon. Gerald Regan (Minister of State (International Trade)): Mr. Speaker, some two and a half weeks ago I participated in two investment seminars, held in Tokyo and Osaka. They were aimed at increasing the level of Japanese investment in this country, which at present is only $1.2 billion as against the book value of foreign capital investment in Canada of over $50 billion. We believe that there are ample opportunities for jobs to be created in this country through additional Japanese investment in addition to the creation of jobs through the sale of Canadian goods.

The Hon. Member may be aware that several months ago I led a mission through the ASEAN countries of Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Hong Kong and Singapore. On that mission we signed contracts for $166 million worth of Canadian sales, and we also set the stage for several hundreds of millions of dollars worth of contracts. Those later contracts are developing at a rapid rate.

Our rate of growth of sales into the Pacific Rim market is very encouraging. The Hon. Member should also recognize that sales into the United States, where a more rapid rate of recovery is occurring than anywhere else in the world, are also important as they create jobs. A 10 per cent increase in sales to the United States would amount to more additional sales than anything we could achieve elsewhere in the world.

Mr. Nystrom: As a supplementary—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Malpeque.

UNITED STATES HEARINGS ON IMPORTATION OF CANADIAN POTATOES

Mr. Mel Gass (Malpeque): Mr. Speaker, in the absence of the Minister of Agriculture my question is directed to the Minister of State for International Trade. As he is aware, the potato industry in Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick is anxiously awaiting the announcement of the U.S. Department of Commerce concerning allegations of the dumping of Maritime potatoes into the New England states. Sales to the United States from the Maritime potato industry have averaged $32 million per year and this is crucial to the economy of the Maritime Provinces. Not only are these financial aspects at stake, but this case will set a precedent for all cases concerning trade with the U.S. in agricultural commodities.

I think the Minister is aware that recently a Bill was introduced in the United States Senate by Senator D'Amato which, if passed, would impose heavy tariffs on all fresh vegetables entering the U.S. from Canada.

● (1450)

In view of the importance of the outcome of these hearings to all of Canada, will the Minister tell the House what the Government is doing to assist the potato farmers of Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick in their struggle against the dumping allegations?

And is the Minister aware that incomes for potato farmers in all five of Canada's eastern potato producing provinces have been reduced by not less than 20 per cent by the 17.9 per cent surcharge which the Americans are imposing upon us? And does Canada—

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order.

Hon. Gerald Regan (Minister of State (International Trade)): Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend the Hon. Member for his keen interest in a very important and serious problem. I want to tell him that the Canadian Horticultural Council is co-ordinating the reply of the industry in the battle against this threatened action. We believe that there is no justification for the anti-dumping charges which have been laid. We have made representations on a continuing basis to the American authorities to ensure that this matter is dealt with in the quasi-judicial sense which is provided for by the law down there.

The strange thing, of course, is that many years we buy more potatoes from the United States than it buys from us, primarily in western Canada. The circumstances under which its potatoes are marketed in this country, from a pricing point of view, are remarkably like those under which our potatoes are marketed into the United States. I feel it is certainly not in the interests of the United States, or of good relations in trade between our countries, for any anti-dumping charge to be laid by the Americans—

Mr. Stevens: Do you believe this?

Mr. Nielsen: How about him? Order.

Mr. Regan: May I say I am in close touch with the Horticultural—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. A short supplementary to a previous question. The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville.

INVOLVEMENT OF FOREIGN-OWNED BRANCH PLANTS IN EXPORT TRADE

Mr. Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville): Thank you very much, Madam Speaker—

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Nystrom: My supplementary question is directed to the Minister of talk, because all we have had is a bunch of bull. The Minister is aware that one of our major stumbling blocks in diversifying our trade is the export restrictions put on branch plants by their parents. I would like to ask the Minister specifically if he is willing to bring in a Bill which would prohibit export restrictions on foreign-owned branch plants in this country, in order to create more jobs for Canadians?

Hon. Gerald Regan (Minister of State (International Trade)): Madam Speaker, the Hon. Member talks—

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Regan: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member talks about bull. It is quite true that we do export some bulls as part of our export trade—

Mr. Scott (Hamilton-Wentworth): Some of it stays here, too.

Mr. Regan: —and, indeed, the export of cattle is an important part of our international trade.

The Hon. Member then quickly changes the subject and talks about restrictions on subsidiaries of foreign companies operating in Canada, in relation to their capacity to participate in export markets. I can say to the Hon. Member that this is a matter which has been of serious concern to a succession of Governments. As a consequence of global mandates in particular products, it is less a problem than in previous years, and more and more subsidiaries of foreign companies in Canada are increasing their exports. We hope that healthy trend will continue.

UNITED STATES POTATO IMPORT HEARINGS—REQUEST FOR CANADIAN REPRESENTATION

Mr. Fred McCain (Carleton-Charlotte): Mr. Speaker, my question is supplementary to that of the Hon. Member for Malpeque. I would like to direct my question also to the Minister of State for International Trade. Will representations be made to the U.S. in the strongest possible terms regarding the consequence of comparable applications of surcharge for other food products exported from Canada to the U.S.? Will the Minister's own Department and the Department of Agriculture send representatives to the ITC potato hearings scheduled for November 18, 1983, in Portland, Maine? Would the Department also supply statistical data respecting total fruit and vegetable trade between Canada and the U.S., illustrating the extent of the unfavourable balance of trade which Canada is experiencing? Would the Department supply statistics to show the percentage of U.S. consumption supplied by Canada—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. The Hon. Member is asking a question of which the level of detail is more appropriate to be placed on the Order Paper. However, the Minister may reply to the question.

Hon. Gerald Regan (Minister of State (International Trade)): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member has asked a series of questions. May I say that the response of the Department on these matters has been that which has been worked out in conjunction and through consultation with the Canadian Horticultural Council. If it feels there is some particular advantage in representation at the hearings, then, yes, we certainly would be prepared to provide it. We are staying in close consultation with them as to the best way in which this matter can be combated.

In relation to the other vegetables, the Hon. Member may be aware that there are many, many bills of a protectionist nature which are introduced in the American Congress. They are regularly opposed by the administration, and very few of them progress very far. However, we are watching the Bill to which the Hon. Member refers. We will monitor it closely and take appropriate action.

INDIAN AFFAIRS

RECRUITMENT OF INDIAN URBAN ENTREPRENEURS

Mr. F. Oberle (Prince George-Peace River): Mr. Speaker, my question would likely best be answered by the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. It is in regard to previous questions I have raised in the House when I informed the House that the Cabinet was considering a Machievellian scheme whereby $345 million of taxpayers' money would be spent to recruit urban Indian entrepreneurs who are leaning toward the Liberal cause. It is one thing to consider something like that in Cabinet, and quite another to implement it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member should ask his question.

Mr. Oberle: Yes, I will. Can the Minister tell the House why it is that he did not respond to very serious efforts by his own colleagues in the Liberal Party to delay the announcement of this Liberal vote-buying scheme headed by Maurice Strong? Why did he not delay the announcement at least until such time as the report—which he ordered delayed—is published, which will be within days? It could be considered by Cabinet, particularly those recommendations in the report which deal with the spending of such money in a way which would not only mean economic development for Indian people but would—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Would the Minister reply to the question?

Hon. John C. Munro (Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development): Mr. Speaker, I find so many humorous undertones in that question, I would just love to answer it. But it is not—

Mr. Oberle: It is not funny.

Mr. McDermid: There is nothing funny about that.

Mr. Munro (Hamilton East): I find it very funny. However, Mr. Speaker, it is not my responsibility. The Hon. Member should know it is the responsibility of the Minister of State for Small Business.

MEDICAL CARE

GRANT MADE TO NOVA SCOTIA HEALTH COALITION

Mr. Bruce Halliday (Oxford): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of National Health and Welfare who has been all over the House in the last two days—

An Hon. Member: She is campaigning for Chrétien.

Mr. Halliday: She is the peripatetic Minister.

Mr. McDermid: She is campaigning for the leadership.

An Hon. Member: Here she is.

Mr. Halliday: Mr. Speaker, the Minister will know that her Department has awarded $25,000 under the Community Forum Program to the Health Coalition of Nova Scotia so they can hold a series of public meetings in support of her yet-to-be-seen-by-Parliament Canada Health Act. Would the Minister indicate to the House, first, when the program was announced? Second, why was there no news release issued? And third, how was the Nova Scotia Health Coalition, whose views are known to be sympathetic to the Minister, apprised of the program?

Hon. Monique Bégin (Minister of National Health and Welfare): Mr. Speaker, in the information program about one of the most expensive and best programs for Canadians, namely, Medicare, we have a small sum of money put aside, as we do often in my Department, for voluntary associations which have public meeetings on preserving Medicare. If the Hon. Member did not receive any documents, I will make sure he has them as soon as I return to my office.

EMPLOYMENT

CANADA WORKS PROGRAM—QUEBEC MUNICIPALITIES—GOVERNMENT POSITION

Hon. Roch La Salle (Joliette): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister of Manpower and Immigration.

Since the period provided for submissions under the Canada Works Program is now over and as I understand there is still no agreement between Quebec and Ottawa, can the Minister confirm today that the amounts available under the Canada Works Program cannot be distributed to the municipalities under an agreement with Quebec? Must we conclude that there has been no agreement between the two levels of government?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, if I understood the question asked by the Hon. Member, I believe that he has confused several matters. It is true that discussions are going on between the Quebec Government and Ottawa to determine how the Federal Government could deal with the municipalities in various cases, including employment projects. We have always believed that, as the Government of Canada, we should be able to deal with the municipalities in Quebec, as with the municipalities everywhere else in Canada, to create jobs. This position has been questioned by the Quebec Government and discussions are now taking place.

However, we have also decided that, if there is some money available that cannot be used in cooperation with the Quebec municipalities because the provincial Government has prohibited such an arrangement, this money will be used for other projects in Quebec so that the citizens will not be deprived of these amounts. We still want to continue as in the past to ensure that the funds put aside for job creation in Quebec will be used. We hope to use them for this purpose thanks to common sense and goodwill.

TABLING OF REPORTS OF CLERK OF PETITIONS

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I have the honour to inform the House that the petitions, with the exception of two, presented by Hon. Members on Wednesday, November 2, 1983, meet the requirements of the Standing Orders as to form.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

WEEKLY STATEMENT

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I have several questions with respect to the Government's intentions concerning the business of the House. All Members will of course be anxious to learn what business the Government intends to call tomorrow. Under the experimental rules the House will be rising tomorrow at the close of business and ordinarily would not be returning until Monday, November 14 next. That generates the question as to whether the Government has any intention of recalling Parliament next week. In addition, does the previous prediction of the Government House Leader with respect to a Throne Speech around November 14 or November 15 still prevail, or is the Government now thinking of another date?

While he is pondering those questions, will he also look into the matter of Bill C-653. I understand the committee has had only two meetings on that matter. There is no reason why the committee could not conclude its work and report back to the House forthwith, which is the sincere desire of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition.

Lastly, will the Government House Leader, in view of the obvious reluctance of the chairman of the Standing Committee on External Affairs and National Defence to call a meeting to consider the Grenadian affair and the removal of Canadians without the fumbling of this Government, ask the chairman of that Committee to convene the Committee immediately so we can examine and expose to the cold light of day the facts surrounding the obvious mismanagement of the whole affair by the Government of Canada?

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I will try not to play the same kind of political games that my colleague is now playing.

On the last point concerning the Committee dealing with the Grenadian invasion, if it was so urgent we would have expected questions today in Question Period. Despite the lack of interest by the Opposition, and in particular by their Leader, on anything for that matter, I will nevertheless raise the matter with the very distinguished chairman of the Committee who I understand is consulting.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Crosbie: Who with, Andropov?

Mr. Pinard: On the second point raised by my colleague concerning Bill C-653, he suggests I consult and I will consult.

[Translation]

Mr. Speaker, as regards the first question, the Government's priority is to create new jobs, and we believe that the hundreds of thousands of jobs that will be created, once Bill C-155 to repeal the Crow rate is passed, should be a priority, not only for the Government, but also for the Opposition. Furthermore, we hope that if the Opposition is willing to show its good faith, and if especially the leader of the Progressive Conservative Party would care to observe yesterday's tragic anniversary in a more positive fashion next time by promoting employment instead of massive lay-offs, we shall, with the unanimous consent of the House, be able to dispose tomorrow of the third reading stage of Bill C-155.

In any case, Mr. Speaker, our priority is Bill C-155. This evening, we shall be voting on the report stage. Only one day of debate is left, and tomorrow will be designated for that purpose, in the hope that, I repeat, the Opposition does not try to prevent the creation of jobs in Canada. Tomorrow, we shall seek the unanimous consent of the House, and all Government Members will be in the House to try and create those hundreds of thousands of jobs. Tomorrow we shall seek the unanimous consent of the House to put the question on third reading before the end of the day. Not until Bill C-155 is passed by the House of Commons and the Senate and has obtained Royal Assent will we be in a position to consider a reasonable date for proroguing Parliament, no matter when or at what time Royal Assent for Bill C-155 is granted.

In the circumstances, we hope Bill C-155 will be passed as soon as possible, and as soon as the Bill is referred to the Senate, and until it is either referred back to the House or receives Royal Assent, I hope the House will be able to dispose quickly of the following Bills, subject to change, as usual, it being the Government's prerogative to establish the Orders of the Day and to change them, subject, of course, to reasonable notice, and I am referring to Bill C-170, Bill C-96 and Bill C-91.

If we assume that the Bill is referred to the Senate tomorrow evening, the House will definitely not be sitting next week. Should Bill C-155 not be referred to the Senate tomorrow evening, like all Members I shall be waiting for the Speaker to recall Parliament, and if the Speaker does so, I shall act accordingly.

[English]

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I did not quite hear the tail end of the translation so I missed the last half of the Government House Leader's response.

Some Hon. Members: Ask your Leader.

Mr. Nielsen: However, if the jackals would be quiet for a moment, I did not get a specific response with respect to the intention of the Government. Is it the intention of the Government to recall Parliament next week or is it not? We assume from the House Leader's remarks that we will be proceeding with the Crow tomorrow. In view of the fact that the stupidity of the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) prevented us from dealing with the fisheries Bill tomorrow by way of his closure on closure the other day, can the Government House Leader inform us when he intends to bring that very important legislation forward?

● (1510)

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I deplore the attitude taken when questioning on House business. When I answer in English, the Hon. Member never complains but when I answer in French—

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Pinard: When I deal with sensitive parts of House business in French, and this is not the first time I have done so, he is always complaining about the translation while my colleagues on this side and the Leader of the Official Opposition (Mr. Mulroney) who sits beside the Hon. Member understand me very well. Therefore I do not intend to repeat in English what I just said in French. We have very good translators. I suggest that my hon. colleague has been playing politics with the Minister of Transport, a man who is doing a marvelous job trying to create hundreds of thousands of jobs in Canada.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Pinard: I think the Hon. Member should ask questions of the Leader of his Party. The Leader does not want to ask questions but I hope he will be able to answer the questions of his own House Leader on this subject.

May I remind my hon. colleague from Yukon that his Party is responsible for having wasted time last Tuesday. Members of his Party decided to spoil a whole day for reasons of their own which I do not share. We intended to proceed on Tuesday. It is obvious that we had sufficient Members present and ready to vote in the House before eleven o'clock. Therefore they wasted the time, not the Minister of Transport.

The Hon. Member knows that we have a meeting at four o'clock this afternoon. If he wants some clarification on our intent, I will be pleased to repeat in English what I just said in French over coffee in my office.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair would like to recognize the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) at this point.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: With all courtesy to everyone concerned, the Chair would like to recognize the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain and then recognize the Hon. Member for Yukon.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I have—

Some Hon. Members: Sit down.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain has been on his feet repeatedly seeking to be recognized and the Chair would like to recognize him. The Chair will then recognize the Hon. Member for Yukon.

Mr. Nielsen: I have a question of privilege.

Mr. Deans: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I must confess that it is a little difficult to be heard.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Nielsen: Question of privilege!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has recognized the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain.

Mr. Nielsen: Question of privilege!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Yukon on a question of privilege.

Mr. Nielsen: My question of privilege, Sir, is that by long-standing traditions and practices in the House, the House Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition in the House of Commons is recognized until the question of House business has been exhausted. I was just going to ask one further brief question which, as House Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition in the House of Commons, I am entitled to do and I would like to have the Chair's blessing in order to do so and perform my function. I say, Sir, that it is not the practice of this House to deny that right to the House Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition in the House of Commons.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: It is within the discretion of the Chair to recognize Hon. Members. The Chair tries to be impartial and catch the eye of Hon. Members while bearing in mind the total circumstances. The Hon. Member for Yukon was recognized for purposes of asking a question about House business. He has been subsequently recognized twice to clarify House business—

Mr. Nielsen: Once.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair stands corrected on that matter; I was under the impression the Hon. Member was recognized twice. The Chair will recognize the Hon. Member for Yukon for a short supplementary question and will then recognize the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I shall begin my short supplementary question by stating to the Government House Leader that I was not complaining about the translation. I was listening in English just as he listens in French and I have no complaints with the excellent translation. It was simply that I did not get the last half of the Minister's answer.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member's point does not appear to relate to House business.

Some Hon. Members: Sit down.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: If the Hon. Member wishes to clarify House business, he may do so. Matters relating to translation surely are not House business. Will the Hon. Member—

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will Hon. Members please be quiet? The Hon. Member for Yukon has a supplementary question on House business and I invite him to place it.

Mr. Nielsen: I had finished my clarification. The question I wish to ask is, in view of the stupidity of the Minister of Transport in moving closure on closure and thus wiping out that day, when will the fisheries Bill come before the House? That was the question he did not answer. Perhaps he could answer it now.

[Translation]

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I answered the Hon. Member's question earlier, in French. I suggest the hon. gentleman read what I said in Hansard. It was very clear. It was about Bill C-170 which I mentioned earlier.

[English]

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, is it not interesting how the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) cries?

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Deans: I seem to recall that when I disobeyed the Chair, I got turfed out.

Some Hon. Members: Out with him!

Mr. Deans: However, I understood the Government House Leader to say that he would be seeking—

Mr. Kempling: "Ian Nepean".

Mr. Deans: That was very interesting and very clever. Imagine the Hon. Member for Burlington (Mr. Kempling) thinking that I—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Would the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain please ask his question?

Mr. Deans: Thank you very much. I have been trying to ask my question but I was interrupted by the Hon. Member for Burlington. If I understood the Government House Leader correctly, and I am sure I did, he appeared to indicate his intention to ask for unanimous consent to deal with Bill C-155 at third reading stage tomorrow. Did I understand that correctly?

Some Hon. Members: Yes.

Some Hon. Members: Read the "blues".

Mr. Deans: My understanding was not correct? I just wanted to make sure that the Government House Leader understands that he will not get that consent.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I want to be very clear. I was not seeking unanimous consent to deal with third reading tomorrow because we do not need unanimous consent to do so. We will deal with third reading tomorrow unless the Opposition prevents us from reaching that stage. If this is a notice of obstruction, that is another matter.

Assuming, Mr. Speaker, that, like a normal Parliament, we will seek unanimous consent to vote tomorrow as opposed to allowing the vote to be deferred. That is the unanimous consent of which I was speaking.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I anticipated that that might well be his answer. Now that I have it perfectly clear, there will be no unanimous consent tomorrow.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. In view of that position, can the Government House Leader now tell us whether he will be recalling Parliament next week?

[Translation]

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, if the Hon. Member would care to analyze the answer I gave earlier, he will have the answer to his question.

PRIVILEGE

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has received notices from the Hon. Members of matters of privilege to be raised at this point. The Chair will call first on the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell).

MR. WADDELL—WITHDRAWAL OF REMARKS CONCERNING MR. RON ATKEY

Mr. Ian Waddell (Vancouver-Kingsway): Mr. Speaker, I have a question of privilege with respect to a disservice I did to Mr. Ron Atkey, a previous Member of this House and a former Minister. At page 28450 of Hansard for Friday, October 28, 1983, I asked a question of the Minister of Employment and Immigration (Mr. Roberts). In my supplementary question, I mentioned Mr. Atkey's name. I would like to read just a part of my question as follows:

> A number of immigration consultants and lawyers, including the Hon. Minister's predecessor, Ron Atkey, the Conservative Minister, have been to Hong Kong to take advantage of this bonanza business. Does the Minister think that our immigration policy, which favours business investment over family reunification, can lead to inequalities, and encourages these sharks to go to Hong Kong and say that you can in fact buy your way into Canada, at a time when the Hong Kong people are very uneasy over the renewal of the British treaty with China? Is not the policy itself inherently inequitable when it leads to this kind of situation?

It seems to me on rereading Hansard that I was inadvertently classifying Mr. Atkey as a shark. I did not want to do that. I never intended to do that. Mr. Atkey is not a shark. He is a prominent and good lawyer. I have dealt with him in the past.

He has not approached me. I read Hansard and I realized that I would be doing a terrible disservice if I left my remarks as they were in Hansard. I tried to clarify the matter outside the House with the press. I kept to the point that I was trying to make in the House that there were rip-offs in Hong Kong and because of the uneasiness there a lot of lawyers, including Mr. Atkey, had flocked to Hong Kong. I did not want to convey the impression and I do not want to convey the impression that Mr. Atkey is in any way a shark. I want to clarify that and to withdraw that remark. I do not think it has caused Mr. Atkey any problem, but if it has I apologize to him.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Just look at the newspapers.

Mr. Waddell: I think that clears up the matter and I thank you, Mr. Speaker, for allowing me to do so.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member's point is not a question of privilege, but he has made his point.

MR. SARGEANT—ALLEGED LEAK OF REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON INDIAN SELF-GOVERNMENT

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has also received notice of a question of privilege from the Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake (Mr. Sargeant). The Chair would like to make one observation. The Chair will hear the Hon. Member but his point of privilege apparently relates to a report of a committee that has not yet been laid before this House and it is impossible for the Chair to decide the Hon. Member's question of privilege until such time as such report will have been laid before this House.

Mr. Terry Sargeant (Selkirk-Interlake): Mr. Speaker, it is exactly because that report has not been laid before the House that I feel my privileges as a Member of this House have been violated. I refer specifically to the report on Indian Self-Government, the contents of which have been widely covered in much of today's press.

First I shall read Citation 647 of Beauchesne, which states in part:

The publication of proceedings of committees conducted with closed doors or of reports of committees before they are available to Members will, however, constitute a breach of privilege.

Let me elaborate briefly on my personal concern. I consider the subject matter of this report to be of great importance to all Canadian natives. I sat on this committee very briefly last spring and I have been looking forward for some months now to the final report of that Committee.

I would point out that in my constituency there are 11 reserves. The chiefs of all of these reserves have been following this exercise, this study of self-government, very closely. In recent weeks a number of those chiefs have asked me if they could get copies of this report. I had to inform them that the report was confidential until such time as it was tabled in the House. I promised to make this report available to them as soon as it was tabled in the House.

I have been told by our caucus representative on that Committee, the Hon. Member for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands (Mr. Manly), that the report will not now be tabled until at least November 14.

I must tell you, Mr. Speaker, that next week during the break I have already scheduled a number of meetings with chiefs in my constituency to discuss any number of concerns. You can well imagine that the first question will be: Why can we not have copies of this report when it is now widely circulated? To say the least, Mr. Speaker, I will be a touch embarrassed to have to admit to them that even Members of Parliament cannot get their hands on this report while much of the press have seen it. Given that this report has been so widely covered, I am not sure what kind of credibility they will attach to my disclaimer. According to one rumour I picked up this morning—I stress it is only a rumour—there are now 150 copies of this report circulating outside the House of Commons. I do not want to be critical at all of the press for the role it has played in this matter. After all, the press was only doing its job in reporting this leak. But I must be critical of some unnamed and indeed unknown member of that Committee—the only possible source of that leak would be somebody on the committee—who showed no concern for the rights and privileges of all Members of this House by leaking the report.

From my own personal point of view, the only possible solution would be for the chairman of that Committee to table that report in this House right now.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Sargeant: Not to do so will continue to violate the privileges of all Members of this House.

At this point, Mr. Speaker, I would like to move the following motion:

Whereas the publication of the report of the Special Committee on Indian Self-Government before it has been reported—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. I call to the attention of the Hon. Member that before he can move a motion the Chair has to find a prima facie question of privilege. The Chair indicated at the beginning its concern that, not being in possession of the report of the Committee, it is quite impossible for the Chair to determine whether or not there was a leak. The Chair is quite prepared to listen to the Hon. Member's statement. If the Hon. Member wants to say that if a prima facie question of privilege were found he would then be prepared to move such a motion, that would be in order.

Mr. Sargeant: Thank you for your advice on this matter, Mr. Speaker. Given the fact that it has been so widely reported in today's press and will continue to be reported over the next day or two, I do not think there is any doubt that the report has been leaked. If you do find there has been a prima facie case of a breach of privilege I would at that time like to move the following motion:

Whereas the publication of the report of the Special Committee on Indian Self-Government before it has been reported to the House breaches the privileges of Members of this House;

I move that this matter be referred to the Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections for investigation to discern how and why this document was released before it had been reported to the House.

Mr. Keith Penner (Cochrane-Superior): Mr. Speaker, I rise on the same question of privilege raised by the Hon. Member opposite. I would like to respond briefly as chairman of the Special Committee on Indian Self-Government. It is regrettably true that not the report but an early version of the report has come to the public's attention. Anyone who has been here for any length of time at all knows that we live in a very leaky ship. I am surprised that the whole system has not sunk by now.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Nielsen: You are on the Titanic.

Mr. Penner: Despite that, it seems to be more or less afloat. Who leaked the report or for what reasons, it is impossible to say. I do not think it really much matters at this point.

Mr. McDermid: You know what reasons.

Mr. Penner: However, I do think a couple of points should be made. First, the effect of leaking a copy of a report prior to the final version is unfortunate, not for Members of this House but for the Indian people of Canada. The positive impact of that report is certainly blunted to a considerable extent.

This was a serious attempt by Parliamentarians from all political parties, plus some very dedicated and enlightened Indian leaders, to make a positive contribution to Indian policy in this country and move us out of the current situation which is unacceptable to everyone. It is regrettable that this leak took place and that the Indian people themselves are adversely affected.

I do want to say to the Hon. Member who asked the chairman to rise in his place immediately and table the report that I regret that I am unable to do that for the simple reason that I act on the authority of the Committee itself. The committee met and by way of motion it was agreed that on November 14 that report would be tabled in the House.

● (1530)

I recognize that the passage of one week will be difficult for Indian leaders and for some Members of Parliament who are anxious to engage in dialogue on this report. I also know that when it is tabled next Monday it will no longer be current and much of the news media will no longer have interest in it.

Mr. Nielsen: A week Monday?

Mr. Penner: Of course the serious press will continue to take some interest in it. However, I want to say that this report was never intended to be just a one-day flash in the pan, anyway. This report was designed by Hon. Members to make a lasting contribution to Indian policy in the country. Although there is a one-week delay, I think it will stand the test of time and prove to be a very notable contribution to Indian policy in Canada.

Hon. Erik Nielsen (Yukon): Mr. Speaker, there is an outstanding question of privilege which has to be decided by the Chair. I wish very briefly to add my submission with respect to that matter so that it might be considered thoroughly by the Chair before rendering a decision on the question of privilege raised. We now have not simply an allegation of the leakage of a confidential committee report; we have an admission by the Chairman of that committee that indeed there was a leak of an official confidential report of the committee. We just cannot let the matter die there. There is no authority in the Chair, I respectfully submit, to order any production, but there is certainly authority in the Chair to refer the circumstances, as set out in the motion of the Hon. Member who raised the matter, to the Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections.

If that is not done, then there is a cloud which hangs over every single Member who worked on that committee. At least the Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections should have the opportunity to come to the conclusion, to which it may well come, namely, that no Member of Parliament sitting on that committee had anything to do with the leakage of that report. At least that much should be the subject of inquiry.

I listened carefully to the terms of reference which the Hon. Member set out. I suggest that the Chair take them under very serious consideration before coming to any conclusion. If there is a prima facie breach, which seems to be quite evident on the basis of the admission of the Chairman himself, then the matter should be referred to the Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections in the form that was presented by the hon. gentleman who raised the question.

Mr. Jim Manly (Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands): Mr. Speaker, I rise on the same question of privilege. The Chairman of the committee said that he could not release the report because of a motion which took place within the committee. The Chairman is aware that there was a division of opinion within the committee on the date of release for the report. I would ask if the Chairman would consider calling an emergency meeting of the special committee to reconsider the question of the date of the release of the report.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair will hear interventions and has one or two observations to make.

Mr. Cyril Keeper (Winnipeg-St. James): Mr. Speaker, clearly we have a report here that is of vital interest to the Indian community of the country. It is now admitted that it has been made public and that it is not available to other Members of Parliament. Mr. Speaker, perhaps between the time when you make your ruling as to whether or not this matter needs to be referred to the Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections, Members of the House who are on that committee could hold a brief and expeditious meeting and release the report today before the earlier report becomes too widely circulated, so that accurate information could be made available to Members of Parliament and to the Indian community.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair has two difficulties at this point; it will hear the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish).

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I will be very brief on the same question of privilege. I sat for a short period of time on that committee, and I do not have access to a copy of the report. I am in a similar situation as the Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake (Mr. Sargeant) who raised the question of privilege, in that I have meetings arranged for the November break with some of the 17 Indian bands within my riding. It is very embarrassing. There is a breach of privilege in the fact that we do not have access—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake (Mr. Sargeant) made that point very clearly. Does the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) have anything to add at this point? The Chair has one or two concerns it wishes to express.

Mr. Nielsen: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I have an observation and then a submission to make to the Chair as a result of the submissions made after mine. First, the suggestions I have heard with respect to the Hon. Member for Cochrane-Superior (Mr. Penner), as Chairman of that standing committee, convening another meeting to review the situation sounds eminently sensible. That still does not absolve the Chair of the responsibility of making a decision on the question of privilege which has been raised. Whatever the committee now does is up to the committee, but certainly the question remains outstanding. I submit that there has been a breach of privilege, and that the motion should be referred.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I will hear Hon. Members if they have anything additional to add, but I do not like to hear a mere repetition of argument.

Mr. Nielsen: It is not a repetition.

[Translation]

Hon. Yvon Pinard (President of the Privy Council): Quite briefly, Mr. Speaker, I will say that we on this side of the House do not feel that there has been a breach of privilege. These questions of privilege are quite limited and must lead you to conclude that there has been a prima facie case of a breach of privilege. That essentially is the basis for a question of privilege. As to the issue raised in the House, I suggest there is absolutely nothing to support the allegation that Hon. Members have been prevented from carrying out their duties; we submit, therefore, that you cannot rule that there is a prima facie case of a breach of privilege. Whatever you decide, we will act accordingly.

[English]

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair invites the Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake not to repeat the arguments of the Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, with all due respect to you and the Chair, I did not feel I was repeating the arguments of the Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake. I also feel there has been a breach of privilege, which I was trying to voice. I would have appreciated you hearing me out until the conclusion of my remarks and showing me the respect that I show for the Chair.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member has to show respect to the Chair. If the Hon. Member has an additional point to raise, the Chair requests him to get to it. The Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake very explicitly indicated the position he was in through not having access to the report, and the Hon. Member says that he is in the identical position. Fine, now what else does he have to add to that?

Some Hon. Members: Nothing.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In that case the Chair will make two observations. First, the Chair is not in any way attempting to avoid its responsibilities, but the Chair very appropriately must seek counsel and defer at this point.

The second concern of the Chair is a very real one of having one committee of the House investigate the work of another committee of the House, moving something to the Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections to investigate what took place in the committee chaired by the Hon. Member for Cochrane-Superior (Mr. Penner). The suggestion of the Hon. Member for Yukon is an eminently good suggestion, that the Chairman could call members of his committee together to see what they can agree to do in these circumstances. The Chair makes the suggestion to the Chairman, the Hon. Member for Cochrane-Superior, that he seriously consider such a request. The Chair is not in a position to direct committees. The Chair is only in a position to decide matters placed before it, and the Chair at this point will defer.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Spekaer, I rise on a point of order. I think if you will check the record you will see that the suggestion to which you referred as coming from the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) did not in fact come from him but, rather came from the Hon. Member for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands (Mr. Manly).

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands (Mr. Manly) also made the suggestion very clearly, and the Chair in no way wishes to detract from the eminently sensible and precise contribution of the Hon. Member for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands.

PETITIONS

MR. BLAIKIE—REPAYMENT OF CMHC INTEREST REDUCTION LOANS

Mr. Bill Blaikie (Winnipeg-Birds Hill): Mr. Speaker, I have the honour to present a petition signed by my constituents who are concerned that the repayment of the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation assistance for mortgage payment in the form of interest reduction loans, they will be in a situation where the homes that they live in will be mortgaged for more than the original mortgage five years previous. They are concerned that in order to satisfy repayment of the interest reduction loan with current interest rates and other economic conditions, they will experience additional severe financial and emotional stress. Finally, they know that since the existing policy recognizes that need for assistance in the form of "grants" as opposed to "interest reduction loans", they, the undersigned, call upon Parliament to enact legislation that will forgive repayment of Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation assistance for mortgage payments in the form of interest reduction loans. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. WENMAN—CANADA'S DEFENCE COMMITMENTS

Mr. Robert Wenman (Fraser Valley West): Mr. Speaker, I have the duty and honour to present a petition on behalf of constituents of Fraser Valley West, expressing support for Canada's full participation in the NATO and NORAD alliances and requesting that Canada honour its obligations toward the defence of the free world and take all necessary action, including the testing of the Cruise missile in Canada to achieve these goals. The nature of the petition is to indicate that in the face of Soviet conventional and nuclear military superiority and intransigence in seriously negotiating at the START INF and MBFR talks that unilateral disarmament initiatives would have a destabilizing and regressive effect on the reduction of weapons. The purpose of this petition is, therefore, to support the concept of the balance of power and negotiating from a position of mutual strength as the foundation of pursuing both security and disarmament to lower levels of armaments through mutual balanced and verifiable reductions.

MR. TOBIN—CONSTRUCTION OF FORESTRY RESEARCH CENTRE IN CORNER BROOK

Mr. Brian Tobin (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Fisheries and Oceans): Mr. Speaker, I have the pleasure to present a petition to the honourable House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled. The petition of the undersigned 14,000 residents of the area of Corner Brook, Newfoundland, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that the Government of Canada proposed to construct a forestry research centre in the Province of Newfoundland and Labrador and that preliminary funds for this purpose were allocated in the federal budget and that the Ministry of the Environment and Mr. Brian Tobin, M.P., indicated publicly that the Government of Canada would construct the forestry research centre in Corner Brook if the Government of Newfoundland agreed to relocate the provincial forestry service from St. John's to Corner Brook, which has been accomplished and that a sight selection committee was appointed by the Government of Canada to find a suitable location and the provincial Government has offered the preferred sight in Corner Brook free of charge.

Wherefore, we the undersigned, the petitioners, being of the full age of 18 years and being residents of the city of Corner Brook, 14,000 Humber Valley, the Bay of Islands, hereby petition the Government of Canada to proceed immediately with the construction of a federal forestry research centre in the city of Corner Brook. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

RETENTION OF CROWSNEST PASS RATES

Mr. Cyril Keeper (Winnipeg-St. James): Mr. Speaker, I have the honour to present a petition regarding the Crow rate, to the honourable House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled. The petition of the undersigned residents of Canada, who now exercise their right to present a grievance common to your petitioners, humbly sheweth that western Canadian farmers paid $131 million to move export grain under the Crow freight rate in the 1981-82 crop year. This grain in turn contributed $6.3 billion to the balance of trade. The undersigned believe that this is the farmers' fair contribution to the Canadian economy and that western farmers will pay one times Crow, that is, no change. Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to maintain the present statutory Crow rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I have a few petitions to present this afternoon. All of them are with regard to the Crow rate. The first petition I have is signed by residents of Conquest and Bounty, Saskatchewan. They have addressed this petition to the honourable the House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled. The petition of the undersigned residents of the Province of Saskatchewan, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that the undersigned have carefully considered the alternate plan presented by the New Democratic Party and that the Crow rate must be maintained. In addition, the railways of all Canada must be upgraded and developed into a modern and efficient transportation system.

The undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party alternate plan, which will not change the Crowsnest freight rate agreement. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

Mr. Speaker, this petition is from residents of Eston; all farmers from Eston, Saskatchewan. They present a petition to the honourable the House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled. The residents state that they have paid their fair share in terms of Canada's economy. They view their right to the maintaining of the statutory Crowsnest Pass Agreement as their constitutional right, and that without this provision to have their preferential rates for shipping their products to the ports of Canada and to the export markets they will be adversely effected. They fear that many farmers in Saskatchewan will be jeopardized if this Government puts through its planned changes to kill the Crow rate in Canada. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

The next petition I have is from residents of Biggar, Saskatchewan. The residents of Biggar have also asked that I express their concern through this petition to the honourable the House of Commons in Parliament assembled. The undersigned residents, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that they are concerned, like the people from Eston, and that the undersigned carefully considered the alternate plan of the New Democratic Party. They want the Crowsnest freight rate maintained. The railways of all of Canada must be upgraded and developed into a modern and efficient transportation system which in their particular instance would allow for better movement of the grains that they produce in western Canada.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the position of the New Democratic Party alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

This petition is from farmers in the Lashburn area. These farmers are concerned that the dismantling of the statutory Crow rate will adversely affect the farms that they presently occupy in the Lashburn area. This will have a very adverse effect on the economy, not only of the farmers but also on the small businesses. They fear that if branch lines are abandoned because of Bill C-155, the communities will also suffer. If you look at the community of Lashburn they point out it will cost hundreds of thousands of dollars more within the next seven years if in fact Bill C-155 passes.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

There are signatures on this petition from Biggar, Saskatchewan, and Landis. The petitioners have asked me to present this petition to the House of Commons in Parliament assembled. The petition is from the undersigned residents of the Province of Saskatchewan, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy. The undersigned have carefully considered the alternative plan of the New Democratic Party. They state very clearly that they want the Crowsnest Pass Agreement to be maintained and the rail system that presently moves their grain to market to be upgraded into a modern and efficient transportation system.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

This petition has been sent to me by constituents of the Kindersley-Lloydminster riding, all of whom are people involved in the agricultural sector in the Unity area. They are concerned that this Government wants to push through Bill C-155 which has become known as an Act to change the Crowsnest Pass agreement. They want this agreement to be maintained. They are asking that Bill C-155 not be passed by this Parliament. They want the representatives here to act in the best interests of the people involved in agriculture in Canada.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

This petition comes from residents of Marshall and Lloydminster areas. They have personally written to me and asked that I present their petition today in the House of Commons. The petition is from the undersigned residents of the Province of Saskatchewan, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy. They are concerned that the Crow rate must be maintained, and they do not want the passage of Bill C-155 as it is now before the House. They prefer to see the Bill split into three distinctive and separate areas, first dealing—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I presume the Hon. Member is reading distinctly from the document—a perusal of the document he put on the Table will verify that—and is not making a speech or ad-libbing at this point. Otherwise, I invite him to confine himself to the petitions.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I am trying to confine myself to the petitions. I am going through them as expeditiously as possible. With all due respect, Mr. Speaker, I am trying to give the title of the petition, what it represents, a very brief description and the prayer, as has been ruled previously in this House.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I will draw to the Hon. Member's attention that he appears to be going a little beyond the usual format, and I invite him to conform to it.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I would point out to the Hon. Member presenting his petitions that what he is in effect doing is denying the rights of Members of the House of Commons to debate the Crow legislation. The longer they go on with those petitions, the less time we still have under time allocation for debating the Crow legislation. We have to finish at six o'clock tonight. That leaves us two hours and five minutes to debate the final stages of the report stage of this legislation. The longer he goes on with petitions, the more it eats into that debating time of Members of the House.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member's point is well taken. The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I am sure my colleague has only two other petitions to present. I wish the Conservatives had thought of that on the day the Minister moved time allocation when they purposely kept us from having a chance to speak.

Mr. Anguish: Mr. Speaker, I will respect your call to go more precisely to the point on the petitions. I also respect the intervention of the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen). I did learn about the thrust of presenting petitions when their own Party delayed for an entire afternoon in the House by presenting petitions of a much less relevant nature.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I would appreciate the Hon. Member getting to the point. Would he please state his position?

Mr. Anguish: I cannot really remember where I was on this petition, Mr. Speaker.

The thrust of the petition is—

Mr. Nielsen: Do you remember where you are?

Mr. Anguish: —that the constituents of the Province of Saskatchewan who sent this have asked that the Crow rate be maintained and that Bill C-155 not pass and they support the alternative plan of the New Democratic Party.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

Mr. Speaker, I do have several other petitions, but I will not take up the time of the House today. The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) has indicated that I would present one more petition, and I will do that and resume my seat.

This petition is signed by people in the Province of Saskatchewan and also the Province of Ontario. The undersigned have carefully considered the alternative plan presented by the New Democratic Party. They feel that the Crow rate must be maintained and Bill C-155 must not go through in its present form. They also want the railways of all of Canada, not only in their own areas, to be upgraded into an efficient and modern transportation system.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass Agreement. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

I thank you, Mr. Speaker, for indulging me the time to present these petitions.

Mr. Stan J. Hovdebo (Prince Albert): Mr. Speaker, I have the honour and duty, seeing there are only a few more days of Crow debate, to present a petition on behalf of the undersigned petitioners from the region of Prince Albert. We, the undersigned, do hereby signify our objection to changes to Crow rate rail freight rates as proposed in Bill C-155. We pray the Parliament of Canada to defeat this Bill on the grounds that it guarantees economic hardship for Canadian agriculture while assumingly proposing benefits.

And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Motions. Could I have the unanimous consent of the House to dispense with the reading of a fairly lengthy list of motions standing in the name of various Members?

Mr. Forrestall: Mr. Speaker, we would be quite pleased to grant unanimous consent with respect to that, with the reservation that it be for this day only.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I have taken the time since this morning to look over the motions standing on the Notice Paper, particularly in the light of what unanimous consent means. I must tell you that I came to the conclusion that perhaps they should be read. With the benefit of hindsight, however, I have decided that today might not be the best day. We will give unanimous consent for this final day.

Twelve of these recruits are F.O.L.F. and were engaged in April, 1983 to undertake English language training at the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Academy in Regina. Twelve more recruits are to be engaged in September, 1983 to join the first group engaged in April. Selection of the 12 recruits for the September group has not been made as yet but it is anticipated that both official language groups will be equally represented.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN KOOTENAY EAST-REVELSTOKE CONSTITUENCY

Question No. 4,892—Mr. Parker:

How many persons in the constituency of Kootenay East-Revelstoke were unemployed in the first quarter of 1983?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): The number of persons on U.I. (regular and fishing only) in the constituency of Kootenay East-Revelstoke for the months of January, February and March, 1983, amounted to 4,608, 5,535 and 5,675 respectively. These statistics do not include special benefits such as sick leave, maternity leave and retirement which are not recorded by constituency office.

[English]

Mr. Forrestall: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. Once again I rise to make an inquiry with respect to the response to a question which has been on the Order Paper for some time. I have raised it on a number of occasions. It is a starred question. I do not want this Parliament or the distinguished Parliamentary Secretary to forget for one moment that, notwithstanding the attitude of the Government with respect to positions in this House, we still believe that starred questions should be responded to orally and quite rapidly.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, we obviously have an argument with that and we have raised it before, with regard to the timing of answers to starred questions. I can certainly not forget the starred question that the Hon. Member has in mind, with all the respect that I have for the Hon. Member and the request that he has made before.

Mr. Parker: Mr. Speaker, I also have a question for the Parliamentary Secretary. He has notified us today that Question No. 4,892, which is standing in my name, is being answered today. In fact, it was answered last week.

Last week I asked that Question No. 4,894 be answered. I hope that it was his intention to answer Question No. 4,894, because those coal lands are very important to me. I wish to have the question answered that I asked last May.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, I am quite sure that there is a mistake. I will check and make sure that Question No. 4,892 was answered and not Question No. 4,894, to make sure that the Hon. Member's question is answered as promptly as possible.

Mr. Parker: Mr. Speaker, not only is there a mistake, but the number is also wrong. The information I have is that the answer to this question today is in the name of the Hon. Member for McKenzie (Mr. Korchinski) who was asking a question with regard to the RCMP. That has nothing to do with the question I asked. The question I asked is in the name of the Hon. Member for Mackenzie. There certainly is a mix-up.

Mr. Friesen: Mr. Speaker, I brought it to the attention of the Parliamentary Secretary several days ago that some of my questions had not been answered. They referred to the guest list for the state dinner held in honour of Her Majesty in Victoria and Vancouver earlier this year.

I know it is the perogative of the Government to invite whomever it wishes, but the list is public property. I just want to determine whether admittance to state dinners was gained by flashing a Liberal membership card or if there was some other way of getting to the dinner.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, I can assure you that flashing a Liberal membership card would not get you through the door.

I ask, Mr. Speaker, that the remaining questions be allowed to stand.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The questions enumerated by the Parliamentary Secretary have been answered. Shall the remaining questions stand?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Orders of the day.

MEASURE TO ESTABLISH

The House resumed consideration of Bill C-155, an Act to facilitate the transportation, shipping and handling of western grain and to amend certain Acts in consequence thereof, as reported (with amendments) from the Standing Committee on Transport; and Motion No. 58 (Mr. McKnight).

Mr. Doug Anguish (The Battlefords-Meadow Lake): Mr. Speaker, I will try to continue my remarks on the Conservative Motion No. 58. When I was speaking before lunch I was interrupted several times.

I should like to recap some of my comments. I was trying to put forward several arguments. First, the Government does not like to listen to opposition, regardless where it comes from. That is an erosion of democracy in the country. Second, there is no difference between the Conservative Party and the Liberal Party. Had the Conservative Party been the Government or should it become the Government, or had the Liberals not tried to force the Bill through—I would remind Hon. Members that it is not through yet—then the Conservative Party would have brought it in. The Conservatives should realize the negative impact of the legislation on many communities along small branch lines in western Canada.

The Conservatives often say that the NDP Members are not very knowledgeable on this subject as not many Members of this Party hold permit books. I can assure you, Mr. Speaker, that some Members of the New Democratic Party who sit in the House are permit book holders. They know as much about grain transportation as anyone in the House; in fact, in most cases they know more about it.

The Conservative Party has put forth many arguments which do not relate to grain transportation. They have asserted that the NDP does not want the Crow rate to be maintained. I say that we do; we have always stood behind the statutory rate and we will always voice our concern.. We want the Crow rate maintained.

The Conservatives started out wanting the Crow rate to be dismantled. Now they claim that they want the Crow rate to be maintained and that Motion No. 58 in the name of one of their Members is designed to put pressure on the rail companies to give better service.

I do not know if those Conservatives who claim to be permit book holders are talking as grain shippers; I think the term is "bull shippers". The things they have said did not have a lot to do with the transportation of grain. The only other agricultural commodity involved would be livestock, so I think "bull shippers" would be more appropriate than grain shippers when applied to Members of the Conservative Party.

The change in the Conservative position is phenomenal. Just let us look at the effects of this in western Canada. They claim that Motion No. 58 will ensure that grain companies provide better movement for grain. I say that that is a false contention. The same thing appears in Section 262 of the Railway Act. In the Battlefords-Meadowlake we have not had good movement of grain or good rail transportation for many years.

My constituency contains about 70,000 square miles and not one passenger train moves through that entire section of Canada. There are branch lines going into such places as Meadow Lake where you cannot take a hopper car in. If you rode a hopper car in you could not haul it out because the rail is so light the track would buckle under the weight of a fully loaded car.

If Bill C-155, the concoction of Liberals and Conservatives, goes through, it will cost the people who haul to the Meadow Lake delivery point, $1,438,000 more per year than they are paying at the present time.

Look at the situation in the city of North Battleford. I am not referring to the town. It will cost the city $1,155,000 more per year for the delivery point at North Battleford. Battleford, which is often referred to as The Battlefords-Meadow Lake, because there is a town on one side of the river named Battleford and on the north side of the river there is the city of North Battleford, is a delivery point which will cost the producers who haul there each year, $917,000 a year more to haul their grain to the market. We feel that is unfair. Hon. Members criticized the Hon. Member for Vancouver-Kingsway (Mr. Waddell) when he said the legislation was a piece of fluff. But the legislation is a piece of fluff. There is no protection for the producers. There are all kinds of written in protection for the rail companies. Motion No. 58, as presented by the Conservative Party, should in fact say at the conclusion that if that performance is not met by the rail companies in Canada, they do not get any return; their investment is guaranteed by the Government of Canada. If they do not provide the service, they can suffer the loss. I must say, Mr. Speaker, that at certain times the rail companies do give good service, but we are dependent upon their inclination as to whether they want to move the grain from The Battlefords-Meadow Lake constituency or whether they do not want to move the grain. It is not working, Mr. Speaker. You cannot whitewash the rail companies to the people and farmers in The Battlefords-Meadow Lake who rely on agriculture. They not only know that this legislation is not in their best interests, they also know that the Conservative Party of Canada and the Liberals certainly do not represent their best interests. Otherwise this piece of legislation would not be before Parliament.

If the Conservative Party really wanted to protect the best interests of the farmers, it could have broken this Bill into the three sections, which the New Democratic Party recommended. Because of the complexities of this legislation, we wanted the Bill broken up into three distinct areas: first, an area dealing with the statutory rate for the movement of grain in western Canada; second, a section dealing with the upgrading and improvement of the rail transportation system; and third, a section dealing with the Dominion coal blocks. If the Conservative Party had the best interests of our producers at heart it would have supported us in this intent. The Conservative Party did that when there was a Bill for the oil companies before the House. It let the bells ring for 14 days in the House of Commons, holding Parliament to ransom. Those Hon. Members did it for the oil companies, but they sure will not do it for the farmers of western Canada, Mr. Speaker. They backed down. They know they would do exactly the same thing that the Liberals are doing today.

What motivates that Party to do that? I do not know for sure. Is it the $50,000 a year which CPR gives not only to the Liberal Party, but to the Conservative Party of Canada as well? Regardless of which of the major political Parties gets elected in Canada, the best interests of CPR are protected.

Mr. Murta: Talk about how much CN gives the two political Parties. Tell us about the CNR.

Mr. Anguish: Some Tory Members are asking about the CNR. The CNR came about back in the 1920s because of Liberal and Conservative administrations which had allowed a number of rail companies to develop in Canada, which all became bankrupt. The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce was about to go under because of the heavy loans it had made to bankrupt rail companies which had received patronage from Liberals and Conservatives. Finally, the Government at that time decided to save the Liberals, Conservatives and the banks of Canada and form one national railway company. As the Hon. Member for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands (Mr. Manly) said, "Socialism for the wealthy". When the CNR finally came about, it was at a bit of a disadvantage as a national transportation company, a Crown corporation, because as we all know—at least we all should know—it came into being with a debt in excess of $1 billion.

That is not much in terms of Government spending today, Mr. Speaker, but back in 1923, $1 billion was a lot of money to be handed over to a railway company which was not even expected to succeed. Some people still question whether the CNR has succeeded. I believe is has done amazingly well with the debt load it had when it started out back in the 1920s. That is the story of the CNR, Mr. Speaker. It has never been on as favourable a footing with a government—whether Liberal or Conservative—as Canadian Pacific Railway has.

Before I conclude my remarks I think I should also mention the windfall which has been given to CPR. It was supposed to receive, over its period of existence, some 43 million acres of land and several hundred millions of dollars. In fact, if you take all the benefits which have been given to CPR since its beginning, added on to present day dollars, its entire assets have been paid for by the Canadian people. Of course, it should give good service from time to time. However, I maintain it could have done a little better in terms of taking branch lines, like the one in Meadow Lake, and making sure one could haul a fully loaded hopper car out over that CP line. It should also have made sure that its sidings in such places as Denholm and Brada are sufficient to unload enough boxcars so that the elevators are not plugged for a good portion of the year.

There have been some problems with the movement of grain. I would not want to say it is all because of Canadian Pacific or Canadian National. The root of the problem lies here in this House, Mr. Speaker, with Hon. Members who have an ignorance of the grain transportation system in this country. Hon. Members from the Conservative and Liberal Parties have continually propped up the rail system of grain transportation in this country. So I do not blame the rail companies, Mr. Speaker. I blame the inadequate administration of Conservative and Liberal Governments which have ruled this country since 1867. Hon. Members should not try to lay the blame on the New Democratic Party. They should not try to lay the blame on the producers of western Canada. The blame lies here with inept Governments which have led this country into the state it is in right now.

If this Bill goes through, even with motion No. 58, we will find ourselves in a situation where the farmers of western Canada cannot compete in the international markets. Once that happens we will be working for legislation a few Parliaments from now—

Mr. Murta: Order.

Mr. Anguish: —asking for help for the farmers of western Canada because they cannot meet the financial obligations which have been placed on them by these Governments over so many years.

Mr. Gordon Taylor (Bow River): Mr. Speaker, I would like to try to clear up a couple of points before I deal with the particular motion. These were points made by two or three former speakers. The Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake (Mr. Anguish), in spite of the fact that the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) challenged him this morning to give proof that the Progressive Conservative Party would bring in this Bill if we were in power, continued that allegation this afternoon. The NDP is pretty devoid of arguments which are sound if it has to dream things up for which it has no proof. The Hon. Member is having a hallucination. In no way would a Progressive Conservative Government ever present this Bill the way it is today. The Hon. Member for The Battlefords-Meadow Lake should accept that. He has no proof that we would do it because no proof exists. The very fact that we have opposed this Bill indicates that we would not bring in this type of legislation. I will not spend any more time on this because it is a hallucination and the people out there will know it.

The Hon. Member for Duvernay (Mr. Demers) said that the Progressive Conservative Party did not know what it stood for, or words to that effect. I believe the people of Canada know where we stand. I would just like to reiterate where we stand. We have not waffled at all on this matter. We supported the former Minister of Transport in setting up a commission to study the anomalies which existed for western Canada and try to solve them. We spent $400,000 of the taxpayers' money on a report. The various grain, cattle, hog and processing people spent probably close to $1 million in arriving at a consensus. Then, when Gilson reported that he wanted the money to be divided 81/19 to start with and then gradually reverse it so that eventually the producer got most of the money, we supported that stand. That would have been sensible. As Gilson said, in no way should you give all that money to the railways, but we would give the increased freight to the railways so they could have a paying proposition. The shortfall would go into the pockets of the producers to help pay for the increased freight. That was a sensible arrangement. But then what happened? The Liberals waffled. Then they went 50/50. They said we will give half to the producers and half to the railways. That was not as good as the Gilson report but it was better than nothing. It would have helped to eliminate the anomalies in the cattle, hog and processing industries. It would have given the West half a chance to reach its potential in agriculture.

What happened after that? The Government eliminated the Gilson report, and this number one item was out, no longer could it be discussed. So then came the number two alternative; the 50/50 came up. We generally supported that because some of the money would go into the pockets of the producers who are now on a reduced income. Their income is 25 per cent or 29 per cent lower this year than it was last year, and last year was lower than the year before. As the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) has said time and again, where is the producer going to get this money for the increased freight? Well, that shortfall would have done it.

Then the Government changed its mind again. It said it was going to give not only the increased freight rates to the railway, but the shortfall as well. We objected to that and we still object to it. It is not fair at all. It is completely contrary to what Gilson said. It was the very thing Gilson said not to do. In other words, we wasted $400,000 of the people's money. The industry wasted all the money they spent in trying to reach an equitable and sensible solution to this problem. Then Government said Gilson was no longer negotiable, and the 50/50 was no longer negotiable.

Then, Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member for Vegreville suggested another solution. He said, leave it up to the producers, let them have freedom of choice. That suggestion spread like wildfire across western Canada. That proposal would give each producer the chance to participate in Government, and it would have given the Government the chance to reflect the thinking of the people. But no, the Government would not accept that proposition. It said this is not acceptable, and it would not even include it for discussion. The Government said, "We have to give it whole hog to the railway, all of the shortfall and all of the increased freight rates". So what could this Party do then? Freedom of choice was gone and the Government was not even going to talk about it. Gilson was not negotiable, the 50/50 was not negotiable, the freedom of choice would not be considered, according to the Government. So what did we say? Well, freeze the freight rates. Put a three-year freeze on so the railway will not get those increased freight rates. They would still get the shortfall, the Government said. They could go ahead with their improvements but there would be no increase for the producer. But the NDP Members would not support that. They are the ones who waffled. They wanted to do something else. Under our proposal, at the end of the third year—at which time I would hope the PC Party would be in power—we could then do something to reflect the thinking of the people. But no, that was opposed by the Government and the NDP. It was in the interests of the producers of western Canada. It would have given us the opportunity to do something at the end of three years. In the meantime they would not have been stuck with these increased freight rates which they do not have the money to pay for.

No wonder, as the Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) said this morning, every organization opposes this legislation. We are giving it all to the railways and doing nothing for the producer. We are destroying the potential of our cattle, hogs and processing industry.

During the term of the present Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) we have seen our packing plants move east. We have seen our hog production in the West go down and down and it moved east. Now the Government is going to do the same thing to our cattle industry. No wonder the people in the West are saying we will never have a chance to play our part in building this country.

That is where we stand, Mr. Speaker. We have not waffled a bit. We have stood firmly to help the producer from square one, and he will be there at square "z" if it goes that far.

The Government says that the amendments introduced by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) are just a repetition of the Transport Act and Railway Act. They are not. They put some teeth into this Bill. They put the Administrator in the place of the shipper. The shipper does not have money to pay for litigation. Lawyers are expensive these days, they cost hundreds of dollars. So what did we say? We will take the part of the producer. The Administrator will become the shipper and he will fight the case in court. The benefits will accrue to all producers. Let the Liberals and the NDP put that in their pipe and smoke it. All the benefits would accrue to all the producers in western Canada. We have not waffled, Mr. Speaker. We have stood for the producer, we stand now for the producer, and we will do so until the very end.

Mr. Jack Murta (Lisgar): Mr. Speaker, it is with a great deal of pleasure that I join my colleagues in debating the closing stages of what has been a long, protracted and bitter debate over one of the most important changes to take place in western Canada possibly since Confederation. That, of course, is the whole question of the transportation system and where we go in terms not only of how it impacts on the grain farmer but also how the transportation system in western Canada impacts on the cattle producer, the coal, potash, sulphur and lumber industries and all of the commodities that are exported out of western Canada, and consequently how that impacts on the rest of Canada. Of course, as we all know, the impact will be substantial.

● (1630)

From a western point of view, it is certaintly with a good deal of sadness that we arrive at the voting stage on a Bill to which we on the Conservative side of the House have been opposed fairly substantially since it was first brought in. Previous speakers have indicated our feelings about where we as a Party would have liked to have gone in terms of the concept of this legislation, but the Bill itself has never been acceptable to our Party. In fact, the legislation itself is not acceptable to western Canada, the area in which it will have the greatest impact.

The various organizations that have come before the Standing Committee on Agriculture have indicated to Government and Opposition Members alike their concern for the legislation. Those concerns are virtually unanimous. At this stage of the legislation, the opposition to the legislation is almost unanimous in western Canada.

All of the grain companies in western Canada, including the pools, have grave concerns with and are very worried about the legislation. The United Grain Growers, for example, another very large grain company in western Canada, is against the legislation. The commodity groups are against the legislation. In fact, many commodity groups tell us they would sooner not see the Bill passed at all. Livestock interests are against the legislation. Truckers are not happy with the legislation. The railways, while they will obviously get more money, are not happy with the legislation. Individual farm groups are not happy with the legislation. Most Hon. Members of the House receive very few letters written by people who in any way at all congratulate the Government for what it is doing.

When the Government flies in the face of that kind of opposition, Mr. Speaker, there must be a substantial fall-out, not only politically for the Party but also for the country itself. We are getting this legislation that we do not want rammed down our throats through closure. The changes that will have to be made to this legislation because it is so unpalatable could very well be substantial and could take a number of years to bring about.

There is no question in the minds of any Hon. Members, except perhaps a few Hon. Members of the New Democratic Party, that Canada needs a better and more efficient grain handling system. There is no question at all about that, Mr. Speaker, because, as we look into the future, we know that the life blood of the country will flow as a result of the exports that are generated primarily in western Canada. We all know that those exports consist basically of raw materials and hopefully at some stage will include processed materials. Initially those exports include raw materials like grain, oilseeds, coal, potash, lumber, sulphur, etc. We do need a better system. We do not have that system at the present time.

The crux of the debate, Mr. Speaker, is surely the kind of system into which we evolve and whether that system treats all areas of interest on an equal basis. In effect, we do not need to have distortions. This is the key question that we have tried to work around throughout the entire debate. How can we best serve not only western Canadian interests but how can we best serve Canadian interests as a whole with a minimum of distortion taking place?

Many people in the country feel that a small step could have been made if we had listened more closely to the recommendations of the Gilson report. A number of Canadians, and probably a number of Members of the House of Commons, have agreed that even if we had taken more seriously the Pepin proposal of method of payment, which was 50 per cent to the railways and 50 per cent to the producers, we would have taken another more positive step down the road to some kind of fairness and equity. What we will have is something that could only be described as a totally botched piece of legislation that satisfies no one because it will be implemented for all of the wrong reasons.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. You were in the Chair when I spoke this morning on Motion No. 58. At that time, four Conservative Members drew to your attention, Mr. Speaker, by points of order, that I was not being relevant even though I was speaking on Motion No. 58. I have listened to the Hon. Member for five minutes now. Not once has he addressed himself to Motion No. 58. I enjoy listening to the Hon. Member because he makes good sense, but I think he should save that speech for third reading since it would be more relevant to third reading than it is to Motion No. 58.

Mr. Murta: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member, who is a good friend of mine, knows that Motion No. 58 is so broad that a number of topics may be debated. I suggest to him that my train of thought is very relevant to the debate on Motion No. 58 and to what other Members of the House have been talking about.

I was basically indicating, Mr. Speaker, that in working toward the answer to the question of where we will go, we have come up with the worst possible piece of legislation. As has been mentioned before by a previous speaker, Hon. Members of the Conservative Party have indicated the general position that we would like to take.

The general position taken by the Conservative Party has been stated many times and is basically that the Conservative Party believes that the producer payment in the context of the Bill should be withheld for the next three years. There are three reasons for that position. First, the railways will receive enough money so that over the next three years or so the very necessary rebuilding program will in fact take place. We are assured of that. We feel comfortable that that will be the case. Capacity will not be cut back or curtailed because of a lack of funds.

As the Government has indicated, there will be a committee formed to study the method of payment. That committee will look basically at two methods of payment, one being the Alberta method and the other being the Manitoba Farm Bureau method, and hopefully some kind of equity can be introduced through that study. There is some uncertainty surrounding the method of payment.

Another reason for the position taken by the Conservative Party, Mr. Speaker, is that the farmer himself does not feel that he can pay that amount at the present time.

[Translation]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for Mégantic-Compton-Stanstead rises on a point of order.

Mr. Tessier: Mr. Speaker, I understand the Hon. Member when he says he is a friend of my colleague the Parliamentary Secretary, but I should like him to explain to us the relevance of this Motion No. 58 he is supposed to be dealing with.

[English]

Mr. Murta: Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that I have only a minute and a half left. I would urge the Hon. Member to listen to what I am saying. What I am trying to describe is the general direction taken in the last few months not only by the House of Commons and the country itself but particularly by the Conservative Party in terms of this particular debate.

● (1640)

If I could be allowed, I should like to conclude my remarks by saying that the farmers themselves on the Prairies do not feel they should be paying any more money. When you look at the cash flow charts or sheets which the farmers produce, you find the highest cost they have is interest at the present time. So they feel, and I think rightly so, that there should not be an additional burden at this time. If you take those three elements, the uncertainty, the fact there is going to be a revision, the fact that the farmers do not feel that they should pay, there is every reason to wait until after this crucial review of the method of payment is over before payment should start. That is the direction we should be taking in the House of Commons. It is logical, it is rational, and it makes common sense to most producers in this country, and after that period of time, after the three years are up, we can decide with the producers in this country, and after that period of time, after the three years are up, we can decide with the producers and their organizations the direction in which the grain handling industry should proceed.

Mr. Stan Schellenberger (Wetaskiwin): Mr. Speaker, I listened with great interest to the Hon. Member for Lisgar (Mr. Murta). He put on the record a great speech on behalf of his constituents and the people of western Canada. The Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) moved Motion No. 58. This motion is one the Government ought to consider seriously. It puts in place in this Bill the opportunity for the producer to have the benefit of having the railways deliver his grain. If the railways do not, the producer within these number of sections of Motion No. 58 has the ability to question that railway or railways and, through the Administrator, to take the railways to task if the producer feels he has lost money in any way as a result of the way the railways acted. This has always been a concern of mine. In this Bill we have very little in the way of being able to take the railways to task if they do not perform in the way we think they should perform given the subsidy that is being put forward. This motion which takes the good wording from the National Transportation Act and adds to it the shipper, adds to it the ability of the Grain Transport co-ordinator to act on behalf of the shipper in the courts. It makes eminent good sense and should be in the Bill.

We all know it is very difficult for an individual to go before the courts and discuss his case. Why is it difficult? Because in today's system it often costs a lot of money to do that. Very few farmers at the far end of a branch line have the ability to take a railway to task if it does not provide the service. In this motion which is being proposed, the farmer could complain to the Grain Transport Administrator and he could act on the farmer's behalf and take the railway to task either through the Canadian Transport Commission or, I suspect, even as far as to the courts and say that the railways are not providing the service they ought to be providing under this legislation. That is why this motion is being proposed. The intention of putting this motion in the Bill is to give farmers in western Canada the opportunity to take the railways to task if they do not provide service.

It costs farmers a lot of money to have the railroads take those very efficient and huge locomotives and run them down branch lines. Neither company has ever proposed building a small locomotive capable of pulling four or five cars down a branch line. They run those huge heavy machines down branch lines and immediately the cost of the maintenance of the branch lines goes up. If in western Canada they had machines built to deliver cars to the mainlines in an efficient manner with very little expenditure attached, I am sure efficiency would go up tremendously. It would seem to me that that would be an interesting concept to look at. I believe Mr. Justice Hall in his report suggested a similar concept to that through the prairie rail authority. That suggestion did not go very far. It is not even looked at in this Bill. There is nothing in this Bill that says the railways need to provide an efficient service to the farmer to move his grain. Yet we are providing over $600 million a year, and over the next three years we are providing over $1 billion to the railroads. We have very little in this Bill to compel the railways to do anything as far as the producers of grain are concerned.

What does the Government say? What is the Government going to do to protect the producer? The Government has brought something forward called a safety net. It is a good idea. It is good protection. In fact, that is what the Crow rate was to the farmer. He would never pay more than one-half a cent per tonne mile. The new idea comes forward that the farmer would pay 4 per cent this year on an increasing rate to 10 per cent in 1988. That is the least he would pay to move his grain. But here is the catch. The catch is that it is an average of six grains moved. When you add up those six grains: rye, wheat, rapeseed, flax, barley and oats, it does not take much calculation to figure out that it would be impossible in five years, given that present grain prices stay reasonably the same, for any prairie farmer to ship barley or oats into the export market. Why do I say that? Look at the present prices—$9 approximately for canola, it is called rapeseed in the Bill; I am not sure of the price of rye, but it is about $2.84 a bushel; flax is in the neighbourhood of $8 per bushel; wheat by the end of this year will probably be in the neighbourhood of $6 a bushel; and then you come to oats and barley, barley being $2.30 a bushel and oats about $1.40.

When you average all of those together and besides put in the calculation for the number of tonnes moved to port, you will find that the average will probably be based at a little higher than the price of wheat. That means that in today's market, if this safety net is in place, the farmer would pay approximately 60 cents a bushel to move his oats and barley to market. Given that price, it would be impossible for him to even take them out of his bin.

This safety net does not protect the farmers in western Canada who produce feed grains. It is only a proper safety net for those grains that are at the top of the price scale, namely wheat, rapeseed and flax. In the northern parts of our prairie Provinces there are very few farms capable of producing those grains. I suggest that if this is the answer the Government is proposing, it ought to take a very serious look at it.

This Bill as presented to us now under closure of debate needs substantial amendment or else the farmers' ability to pay to move grain to ports will be severely damaged. If we look at the desperate situation of most farmers today, we find they simply cannot, given present prices and cost of production, produce and move grain to export markets in the next few years if we do not have the freeze on the transportation of grain or if we do not have a proper safety net.

As the Members have said previously, if at least the money were paid to the producer he would have a chance to get his grain into the domestic market from the northern parts of the Provinces, to the feedlots, to the manufacturers of feed or food on the Prairies, he would have the money in his hands to transport by either rail or truck to those markets. But he does not even have that under this system. This Bill without the motion we are now debating, Motion No. 58, does not provide any protection to the producer at all. The Bill as it stands now without Motion No. 58 provides no protection to producers; it is a beautiful Bill for the railroads. They will be obtaining a substantial subsidy from Canadian taxpayers. If this Bill is not amended, western grain producers will be placed in serious jeopardy. If the amendments about which I have talked are not passed later tonight, there will be nothing in the legislation to assist livestock farmers, given the hurt which will result from the subsidy going directly to the railroads.

● (1650)

I have suggested that if the Government had not accepted the freeze, if it did not come forward with an adequate safety net it ought to have used the agricultural adjustment fund suggested by Mr. Gilson in his report. That $204 million, which the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) says is still in the envelope, could be used to assist prairie livestock farmers until the review process is completed. This is just a last-minute desperate plea. We should not have to make such a plea to the Government. It ought to accept eminently sensible amendments which this Party has put forward in an attempt to improve the Bill, but that does not seem to be what the Government is intending. After this Bill is passed there is nothing in the way of the Government to prevent it from taking that agricultural adjustment fund, moneys which are supposedly in the envelope, to attempt to assist livestock farmers until we can put some reasonable sense in the legislation after the review process.

At present we are talking about Motion No. 58. Our Party has put forward many amendments which would improve the Bill; even the New Democratic Party has put forward one or two amendments which would make it somewhat better. When we vote on the motions tonight, I ask Government Members to consider a number of them—and I am not referring to all of them—which will make the Bill even better, given that they have not accepted some of the very important amendments which were put forward. I hope the Government will do that and will look seriously at Motion No. 58.

Hon. Jake Epp (Provencher): Mr. Speaker, in the history of our country there are certain pieces of legislation which stand out as having been directives in terms of creating an economic climate in a given region or on a national basis which have had long-term effects. For example, we had the national policy of Sir John A. Macdonald. It was based on the principle that a fledgling country, largely separated by unsettled areas and an area which was getting a rudimentary transportation system, needed a national policy that would create in the heartland of Canada an industrial base which could serve the rest of the country. I do not have to tell Hon. Members what has been the effect of that legislation on the development of Canada's economic structure.

Transportation and land settlement through the Homestead Act have been a vital and integral part of the development of western Canada. It is important that this legislation was always regarded as a legislative framework which allowed western Canada to develop into the agricultural basin it has become. Having said that, it is important to note that the transportation system can in fact be improved. The status quo does not have to remain untouched.

However, when I look at the legislation before us, I have no doubt that it will hurt western Canada. I have no doubt in my mind that it will hurt the farmers I represent. I have no doubt that the farmers in my area will have less ability to determine how they want to conduct their farming operations. I have no doubt that they will have greater difficulty meeting their expenses and costs. I have absolutely no question in my mind that a number of them will not be able to maintain their farming operations as they are today.

I want to show in a very practical way why the proposals of the Government will simply not have the positive impact which it suggests. Motion No. 58 is another attempt to put into place a provision which will avoid what I think is not only a mistake but could have financially disastrous effect on farmers. This point was already begun by the Hon. Member for Wetaskiwin (Mr. Schellenberger). There is the argument that a 10 per cent safety net is eminently reasonable. According to the Government's argument, 10 per cent of the price of the product is a valid amount of money to charge for the movement of a commidity. In a very practical sense, it has a very determining effect upon the manner of farming in many areas. Let me be very specific as it relates to my riding.

The riding of Provencher, unlike most Prairie ridings which have an east-west elongation, has a north-south elongation. In the southern part of my riding farmers have made tremendous strides in changing to higher return crops, almost always with concomitant higher risks. However, their return per acre has been enhanced by these new crops. For instance, for years it was not regarded as possible in certain parts of my area to grow dry corn. They are now doing it. We were always importing corn from the Iowa area. Now some of it is produced where we live. That is not where the problem is. The problem develops as we go further north and the different crops which can be grown become more limited. Eventually we reach an area where basically it is oats and barley or coarse grains. When we take a look at the weighted average and at the 10 per cent safety net, the weighted average of those crops, for the purpose of discussion today, would be approximately $5 to $6, and a 10 per cent safety net would result in a 50 cent to 60 cent cost be bushel. It is one thing to apply that amount of transportation cost against a grain which receives a relatively high return, but in an area where farmers are largely restricted to growing coarse grains, where barley might be going at $1.65 and oats at $1.90, we can see that the percentage of the cost of transportation rises well beyond 10 per cent because it is the weighted average. Therefore, when we make this plea to the Government today in the last hours before the voting is to be held, it is a very sincere one.

• (1700)

Day after day the Government says that this legislation must be passed because it will create more jobs. I am not arguing that it sincerely holds that point of view. However, if that argument is valid, surely the argument should apply and be valid that farmers who are now farming should be able to continue farming. That makes reasonably good sense. I can argue with the NDP Members about specifics, they can argue with me; I can argue with the Liberals and they can argue with me. The point I am trying to make is that under these provisions, some people will not be able to farm. I am saying that it might just be impossible. That is true for the parkland area of the Prairies. The Government is reducing the options which the farmers are going to have.

An Hon. Member: No.

Mr. Epp: The Hon. Member says no. When he says no, I hope that he understands the Prairies. The fact remains that there is no better expert in this House with regard to the livestock industry than the Hon. Member for Medicine Hat (Mr. Hargrave). I refer not only to his expertise but also his experience. Listen to a gentleman like that and what he says this means to the livestock industry. Members do not have to listen to me. They should listen to him.

When that Hon. Member speaks in the House about the livestock industry and the effect this legislation will have on it, he is not doing that simply from a self interest. If there is any plea I make to the House, it is that the Government look at some of the amendments and consider them seriously. If it is sincere about wanting to create jobs, by the same token this Bill should not reduce the ability to farm or restrict the ability of livestock producers to survive.

I have not had a chance to touch on other areas such as poultry. However, at 6 o'clock today when Government Members stand up, I ask them to consider that many of these amendments are not Conservative amendments. The only way that farmers will be able to survive in parts of the Prairies is if the Government accepts these amendments.

Mr. Stan J. Hovdebo (Prince Albert): Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to speak to Motion No. 58. This motion cannot be considered a substantive motion because it is already in the National Transportation Act and the Railway Act. However, the fact that it is transferred to this Act may have some value. Consequently, we cannot say too much about having it here.

We have a few problems with the Bill. One is the designation of the Administrator as a shipper. Within the last year or so, the National Farmers Union took the railways to court. The case was thrown out. The court said the farmer could not be considered a shipper because the shipper was the Canadian Wheat Board.

In this Bill we have the definition of a shipper. It does not go with this amendment. This Bill is badly enough worded without creating further problems, such as the definition of a shipper. That will not help very much. We will probably accept this amendment. We support it because it may do something to strengthen the position of the farmers.

I very much agree with the Hon. Member for Provencher (Mr. Epp) in his analysis of what happens when you increase the freight. A large portion of the crop grown in my area is barley. It is a fairly major crop. We get 100 bushels to the acre and sell it very quickly in most cases. Therefore, it is a very important crop. If we receive $1.90 a bushel and have to pay 80 cents a bushel to ship it, there is no way that the producers in my area will go on producing barley. Therefore, barley will become less and less available. Who will be most affected?

The barley producers in my area will replace the barley with another crop such as canola, wheat, or flax. Therefore, hog producers in the Province of Quebec who depend on western barley will have to pay higher prices for feed from the United States or pay more for western barley. We will not grow it unless we get approximately $2 a bushel. That is what it costs to grow under almost all circumstances.

The Hon. Member for Bow River (Mr. Taylor) mentioned the Gilson report. The Gilson report did play some part in this whole operation. Even though it may have been a very bad part, we have to look at it thoroughly.

At a cost to the Government, and therefore, the taxpayers of Canada, of $400,000, Mr. Gilson regurgitated almost exactly the instructions he was given by the then Minister of Transport. If you look at the terms of reference he was given and his final report in summary form, and it included a lot of pages, you find that they are almost identical. Therefore, he merely regurgitated the instructions he was given at a cost to the taxpayers of $400,000. It ended up being of very little value because it did not change the position the Government had taken previously, obviously because it was the decision of the Government.

As I said earlier, the amendment established the Administrator as a shipper. The courts have defined the shipper as the Canadian Wheat Board. If you take away the responsibility of a shipper from the Board, you weaken the Board. Consequently, it does not make sense.

In the last couple of weeks we have received a number of presentations from numerous farm related groups. Just today the Canadian Wheat Board issued a press release in which it suggests that a motion like Motion No. 58, which attempts to put some teeth into the Bill, does not do that. This motion does not do enough to assure the Board that we in this Parliament should support or pass this Bill.

The advisory committee to the Canadian Wheat Board identifies three or four areas in the Bill which should be changed before the Bill is passed. The Board states that the rates should reflect the grain producers' ability to pay and to remain competitive in world markets. It should exclude variable rates. It should guarantee branch line rehabilitation. It should eliminate the volume cap and it should not affect the Canadian Wheat Board's power to purchase and transport grain. It affects all those matters. Therefore, the advisory committee to the Canadian Wheat Board suggests that we should stop this Bill right now because if we leave those things it will do harm to the agriculture industry in the West.

There is no group in Canada that better represents the farmers or the grain producers than an elected group of representatives who are the advisers to the Canadian Wheat Board. Mr. Speaker, the Saskatchewan Pool has made an almost identical appeal to this Government to stop this Bill. They say: "The transportation Bill does not contain the amendments we require with respect to safety net, volume caps, producers' share of cost and variable rates". Therefore, we can only conclude that this Bill should be thrown out.

It is very important in these last few hours of debate at report stage of the Bill that we look very carefully at the Bill and know how it is going to affect the grain producers. It is going to affect the grain producers, and the cattle and hog producers, not only in the West, but the hog producers in Ontario because Quebec hog producers will be competing for their feed. When that happens every organization related to agriculture will feel its effect. I assure you that not one Member on the Government side, in fact not one Member in this House, can really put his finger on exactly what the results of this Bill are going to be. We know it is going to be disastrous in certain areas for certain parts of the agricultural industry, such as the grain producers. It is going to eliminate the marginal producer. It is going to change the crop structure and the delivery structure. People who now depend on grain crops from the West are not going to get those grain crops because the producers cannot afford to grow them, let alone ship them. If that happens it will change the basic understanding and the relative relationship between the agriculture and processing industries in Canada. We do not know, and the Government does not know, what is going to happen. We do know that for a major group of people in this country this Bill is going to be a disaster. Western farmers now contribute $6 billion in foreign exchange every year. This contribution is going to be affected in a major way by changes in this Bill. They cannot afford to pay the freight rates that are being suggested here, and the safety net will not make any difference.

Mr. Jack Shields (Athabasca): Mr. Speaker, I am particularly pleased to have the opportunity to speak on Motion No. 58. This is a motion proposed by our Party and sponsored by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight).

It is a sad commentary on the makeup of the House of Commons when we look at the legislation that is before us and recognize the impact this is going to have on individual farmers. I am talking about the farmers in western Canada. It is a sad commentary on the makeup of this House of Commons when we find there is not one Member sitting on the Government side who directly represents farmers in western Canada. The Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) is from Winnipeg-Fort Garry, an urban centre. The Hon. Member for St. Boniface (Mr. Bockstael) represents an urban centre. There is not one Member of this House of Commons sitting on the Government side who represents the farmers in western Canada.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to interrupt the eloquence of the Hon. Member, but I would not want him to continue in his assertion without knowing the fact that in the riding of Winnipeg-Fort Garry there are at least seven or eight farms, and even more important, a UGG grain elevator. To suggest that there is no representation is not exact.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order. That is obviously a debate.

Mr. Shields: Mr. Speaker, I am very happy that the Minister of Transport represents six or seven farmers. I am also happy that he represents the elevator companies. Certainly the legislation that is before the House is favourable to the elevator companies, as we on this side of the House have pointed out in committee time and time again. They were one of the biggest opponents to the freedom of choice payment where the producer, the little farmer, the farmer with 160 acres who is growing the crop, has the choice of deciding whether the money will go to the railroad or whether he gets it, which in turn protects the cattle industry and some of the processing industries in western Canada. Of course, this flew directly in the face of the elevator companies and their self-protection and self-interest.

When the committee travelled across the country, our Members put an awful lot of effort into this. The Opposition has been constantly barraged with press releases and statements by Members on the Government side saying that we are being obstructionist and are acting childishly and foolishly in holding up this Bill and trying to work on it.

During committee stage, 89 amendments were accepted on this very poorly drafted legislation. We have on the paper a further 80. This over-all legislation was so badly drafted that an unprecedented number of amendments were accepted by the committee which, because of the makeup in numbers, is controlled by the Government.

I submit that Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, through our Members on that committee, were doing an exceptionally fine job in trying to make this Bill acceptable to the farmers in western Canada.

Mr. Speaker, let us not oppose Motion No. 58 because it is presented by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster or because it is presented by Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition in this House. Let us look at it and see what it really means. This is a long Bill but all it does is to incorporate Section 262 of the Railway Act. That is exactly what the Government wanted in the motion. We carry it slightly further and give it a little more teeth. We add paragraph 10 which says that the Administrator is deemed to be a shipper under Section 262. That means that because the Administrator is a shipper he is in a stronger position and is able to go to the railroads and force them to move grain at the toll imposed by this Act. All we are saying is that we should give the Administrator more power to act on behalf of those small farmers who need to ship their grain in order to earn a livelihood. We should give him the power to ensure that the tarrifs are correct, through the courts if necessary, and to force the railroads to move the grain. That is fair and it is a protection for the farmers.

• (1720)

Our amendment would provide that the railways must move the grain at the toll imposed by the Act. We would leave the rate structure where it is for three years. I have talked to many farmers at meetings in communities in my constituency such as Lac La Biche which some Hon. Members may never have heard of, and St. Lina, Bonnyville and Iron River. The farmers stated emphatically, and in most cases without opposition, that they are prepared to pay more to ship their grain but they cannot afford it now because their costs have increased so drastically. In some cases they have doubled and tripled. The cost of farm fuel has the federal tax in place, and so does the fertilizer costs because all of these are derived from petroleum products and so the petroleum gas revenue tax is included.

Mr. Dion: No, no.

Mr. Shields: Mr. Speaker, I am not ready to hear an interjection from the Hon. Member opposite. He does not represent the farmers of western Canada and he does not have a sense of what I am talking about.

Farmers are hurting out there. They phone every week to ask how they can hang on. Many of them have loans with the Farm Credit Corporation and with the banks and those institutions are coming down on their backs and threatening foreclosure.

How can we in the House justify putting another burden on the producer when grain prices are at an all-time low? Yet we are proposing another burden for the farmers. The effect of this Bill will be to take $400 million per year from western grain producers and transfer it to the railroads.

Time and time again over the last 18 months I have seen the Government give that much money and double that much money to industries in central Canada, in Ontario and Quebec, without a qualm, because it claimed that this would save jobs. It is not saving jobs in western Canada; it is killing the farmers, Mr. Speaker. The Government will rue the day it brought this legislation forward. I implore the Government to institute the three-year freeze and give the farmer a little clout by passing Motion No. 58.

Mr. Penner: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. Earlier today following Question Period a question of privilege was raised regarding the leaking of a draft copy of a report of the Special Committee on Indian Self-Government. Following that, the Speaker had conversations with me, as Chairman, and advised that the Committee should be reconvened to consider whether it would be wise for the Committee to table the report immediately rather than on November 14, in light of the fact that a draft copy had been leaked. Accordingly, we have met and, if the House agrees, I will table that report.

I seek the unanimous consent of the House to revert to the presentation of reports of standing and special committees.

Mr. Schellenberger: Mr. Speaker, in this Party we are prepared to give unanimous consent to revert to motions.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, first of all I want to congratulate the Committee on the move it has taken. On behalf of my colleague, the Hon. Member for Selkirk-Interlake (Mr. Sargeant) who raised this important matter earlier today, and asked that the report be tabled, and the Hon. Member for Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands (Mr. Manly), who prompted the Committee action. We hope the tabling will forestall a very difficult situation that was about to arise.

The Committee has worked hard and it would have been a shame to have seen all that work undermined as a result of an inadvertence on the part of someone, whether a member of the Committee or otherwise. We are pleased to give unanimous consent.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Does the House agree to revert to the presentation of reports from standing and special committees?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Penner: Mr. Speaker, I thank the House for its courtesy in altering the order temporarily.

INDIAN SELF-GOVERNMENT

PRESENTATION OF SECOND REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE

Mr. Keith Penner (Cochrane-Superior): Mr. Speaker, I have the honour to present the second report of the Special Committee on Indian Self-Government to which, pursuant to Standing Order 69(13), the Committee requests a comprehensive response. I submit this report in the two official languages of Canada.

MEASURE TO ESTABLISH

The House resumed consideration of Bill C-155, an Act to facilitate the transportation, shipping and handling of western grain and to amend certain Acts in consequence thereof, as reported (with amendments) from the Standing Committee on Transport; and Motion No. 58 (Mr. McKnight).

Mr. Robert Bockstael (St. Boniface): Mr. Speaker, I am quite pleased to deal with Motion No. 58 which was moved by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight).

[English]

Mr. Speaker, I had the opportunity of serving on the Special Committee on the resolution of the Crow rate all through the months we were discussing it. I want to tell Hon. Members that although I do not have any farms in my constituency, the first time I ran in St. Boniface it included quite a large agricultural sector. In 30 years in the construction industry, I built a lot of farms, granaries, silos and storage facilities for people in the grain producing business. I learned a great deal from those producers and I still have contact with producers in and around the city of Winnipeg and throughout Manitoba. I feel qualified to speak about what producers have to face in supplying grain to the Canadian Wheat Board, which has its headquarters in Winnipeg.

I served as Parliamentary Secretary when the Minister of State for External Relations (Mr. Pepin) was Minister of Transport and initiated the Gilson report. That report took into consideration the role and functions of the railways.

The Opposition makes a great deal of the number of amendments proposed in the Transport Committee hearings on the Crow rate. The Hon. Member for Athabasca (Mr. Shields) spoke of the numerous amendments that were proposed and accepted. I think it is important to point out that some of those amendments covered such things as the inclusion of the word "reliable" after the words "efficient and proper service". I think that this insignificant amendment occurred three times.

It was evident in the hearings that the Conservative Party wanted the Liberals to pass the Bill so that at the next election they could claim that the Liberals were responsible and that they would have done things differently. They could have pointed to the changes that they had proposed and claimed that the Bill was being foisted on producers by the Liberal Party. The Liberal Party has the interests of the transportation system in Canada at heart, Mr. Speaker.

Members of the NDP had their say at the hearings of the Transport Committee across the country. The Committee heard evidence about the things that the railroads must do and their role in improving the system—to double-track, to build the infrastructure needed to move grain to export. In another context in this House, the moment we talk about a lay-off at the CNR shops in Transcona or the western shops in Winnipeg, the NDP says we cannot do that to railroad workers. On the one hand we do not want the deficit of Canada to rise. But what is the difference if the CNR has another deficit? The taxpayers of Canada will pay for it. We must keep those railroad workers working. We have to repair cars and build new cars and new facilities for the rail transportation of grain. When we go to public hearings we are told, "No, no, we cannot have the producers pay for any of that, but make sure the railway workers have jobs". This entire Bill is designed to create work, to improve the economy of western Canada, to build better railway systems, to supply all the electrification, signs, road-building and tunnel-building that is needed, so that the grain will move efficiently and so that the commitment which the Canadian Wheat Board makes to the producers to deliver the grain on time will be met.

• (1730)

Mr. Blaikie: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I wonder whether the Hon. Member for St. Boniface (Mr. Bockstael) actually believes that the tunnel-building will take place at the Transcona shops in Winnipeg.

An Hon. Member: That is what he said.

Mr. Bockstael: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member is taking things out of context. The tunnel-building system, the rails are going to be made in other parts of Canada, but the concrete ties are going to be made in Alberta. Other things will me made all over the West. There will be $75 million spent in the West. It will enhance the economy. What I was trying to point out to the Hon. Member—

Mr. Blaikie: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. The Hon. Member still has not said what will be built at the Transcona shops. The only—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): That is hardly a point of order. The Hon. Member is seeking to put a question to the Hon. Member who has the floor. He may or may not accept a question at this time. He has the floor to make a speech.

Mr. Bockstael: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The rolling stock will be maintained and will be rehabilitated to make it possible to take the grain to Churchill, to Thunder Bay, to Prince Rupert and to Vancouver. This means that there will be a lot of maintenance work done in the shops. It is going to mean employment. You cannot have it one way and say, "Look, when there is unemployment at the railway shops you must make sure they have work. It does not matter if it adds to the deficit". On the other hand, if we are to improve the capacity of the railways, it has to be borne by the producer. Actually, I must correct a myth. The Crow rate is statutory. The former Minister of Transport identified that at some time there had to be a datum set. When the Crow rate was started, there were 289 loading points and 2,915 miles of railway track. It went way beyond that in the 1920s. In 1929 and 1930 it went way above that. However, even after rail line abandonment and the number of shipping points has been decreased, there are still 1,245 shipping points and 16,500 miles of railway track to be maintained. That sets a certain datum about the perpetuity of the Crow rate. The Crow benefit is being perpetuated by the Government of Canada, by the people of Canada.

When the Hon. Mr. Pepin determined—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): No, the Hon. Member should refer to his colleagues in the House by their Ministry or by their riding. He is obviously referring to the former Minister of Transport.

Mr. Bockstael: I was referring to the present Minister of State for External Relations (Mr. Pepin) who was the former Minister of Transport. He set a datum. They took a benchmark, a record delivery of 31 million tonnes in 1981-82, and the cost to transport that grain was $651 million. They established that as a datum, and the Government of Canada, the people of Canada, are going to provide that $651 million subsidy to the producers of Canada in perpetuity. The New Democratic Party wants no change to the Crow, yet it turns around and wants to add more products. The NDP wants to add 25 additional products to the list. That Party cannot have it both ways.

There is a terrible myth about the Crow rate. The railways have been doing their job. They are delivering, but they cannot just keep absorbing the additional costs at today's prices.

Mr. Blaikie: That is a nice joke about the railways doing their job. I like that.

Mr. Bockstael: We went through a period when records were set only because other products were not competing with wheat and grain to be delivered to ports for export.

Mr. Shields: Also because others supplied the grain cars, not the federal Government.

Mr. Bockstael: Everything has gone up and people accept that. I would like to remind Hon. Members that in 1935 a loaf of bread sold for 5 cents. Wheat was selling for 60 cents a bushel. One could buy a beer for 10 cents and a chocolate bar or a coke for a nickel. I can recall in 1940 buying an automobile, a de luxe Chevrolet, for $1,060.

Mr. Benjamin: What the hell has that to do with the motion?

Mr. Nystrom: How about the rule of relevance?

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order, please. The Hon. Member has 30 seconds left.

Mr. Bockstael: Everything else has gone up proportionately, Mr. Speaker. The producer should not pay any more, yet he pays more for everything else. Hon. Members have identified all the items for which they pay more money today than they used to.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order.

Mr. Malone: He has expired.

Mr. Benno Friesen (Surrey-White Rock-North Delta): Mr. Speaker, I must say I did enjoy the speech of the Hon. Member for St. Boniface (Mr. Bockstael). I enjoyed it not so much for the content but because it is the first time in the four years in which I have heard him speak that he has not read a text. He was flying very well today.

Mr. Flis: That is cheap.

An Hon. Member: Next time you read a speech, I will tell you about it.

Mr. Bockstael: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker. The Hon. Member for Surrey-White Rock-North Delta is challenging me for always reading my texts. I have referred to notes in previous talks, but he cannot say truthfully that I have always read my speeches.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order.

Mr. Friesen: The next time I read a text, you will not catch me at it.

An Hon. Member: You have one there.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order.

Mr. Friesen: I do not know why Hon. Members are so upset over there, Mr. Speaker, with that oblique remark.

An Hon. Member: It was a cheap shot.

Mr. Friesen: I did not think it was that cheap.

I am glad for the opportunity to speak to this particular motion in the name of my hon. friend from Saskatchewan, which calls for the Government to provide in the legislation security that the railways will provide service to the producers. That is imperative, Mr. Speaker, because we know that in the competitive world in which we live there is a continual move to squeeze out the competition. It does not matter at what industry one is looking. It does not matter what the conditions are. Sooner or later the large corporations are going to squeeze out the little man. Right now Hon. Members may wonder why we need the kind of provision to make it obligatory that the railways provide service to the producers. I know that Hon. Members will say, "Well, the CTC already provides that kind of security". Those Hon. Members ought to know that it is just not working. As my hon. friend from Medicine Hat (Mr. Hargrave) has pointed out, every time one calls the railway companies to account with respect to the transport of cattle and say they must provide service, the railways say, "Yes, but just make sure the cattle are ready at the right time. Then we will have all the box cars you need". It is as though the farmers could now control the gestation period of cattle along with everything else. It is imperative that the Government provide assurance to the producers that there will be modes of transportation.

Government Members from Ontario and Quebec may not realize what is happening out there in industry. Right now Smith Transport is undercutting the trucking industry to the point at which it could drive them into oblivion. I think those who understand the industry know there are two plans for providing piggyback service for the producer to market. There is a range of charges for plan one which is very expensive because it calls for more equipment. Plan two is cheaper for the producer because there is less equipment called for. At the present time, Smith Transport, a subsidiary of CPR, is providing plan one service to the producer below the cost of plan two. In other words, they are losing millions. Why are they willing to do that? Because in the process they will drive all the trucking companies into bankruptcy. Once that happens, they have the entire industry to themselves. Once that happens, there is no way we can make it obligatory to provide service.

It is imperative that the Government listen to a very reasonable request for a very vulnerable industry, and make this amendment part of the legislation so the producer will have some security. In 1967 this House passed the Railway Transportation Act. In the debate the Government at that time and the Minister of Transport, I think it was Mr. Pickersgill, conceded that you could not in fairness give a grant to one mode of transportation and not to others. You could not give a grant to the railways and not the trucking industry. As much as Mr. Pickersgill emphasized that point in 1967 and made sure the principle was incorporated in the legislation, the Government is now backing down on that provision, denying the principle, and giving grants to only one mode of transportation. That is like giving a credit card to the CPR and letting them run that operation as they wish. With that endless supply of money to the one industry, the competition has absolutely no way of competing. I am asking the Government to reconsider its adamant position on the grant system because it is giving a competitive edge to only one industry.

We and the producers of western Canada are going to rue the day that the Government did not listen to representation in this House regarding this provision. The only thing the producer has going for him at this point is that grain is not an immediately perishable product. But what will we do if we are talking about perishables such as eggs, vegetables or fruit? It seems to me that when the Government considers the $600 million it is providing to the railways this year alone, when it is receiving hundreds of millions of dollars in taxes by way of the fuel tax which applies to the trucking industry, let alone the licencing and all other revenue sources from that industry, it is acting in an incredibly prejudicial way in favour of the railway system. It is not the railway system which is going to keep this country together, it is the producer. If the Government insists on providing for only one form of transportation, there is no way they can ensure that the railways will market the crops in the future.

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, I do not want to interrupt the Hon. Member in his last speech on this issue, but there is a matter of some urgency before the vote at report stage can be taken, and I wonder if I might have the consent of the House to move some consequential amendments?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I would ask that the Minister seek consent to move the amendments one at a time.

Mr. Axworthy: That is understood, Mr. Speaker. I will be moving them seriatim. Therefore, I move:

That Bill C-155 be amended in clause 54 by striking out lines 17 to 26 at page 31, and substituting the following therefor:

"(a) in respect of the 1982-83 crop year, $22.05,

(b) in respect of the 1983-84 crop year, $22.99,

(c) in respect of the 1984-85 crop year, $23.93,

(d) in respect of the 1985-86 crop year, $24.86, and

(e) in respect of the 1986-87 and subsequent crop years, $25.80."

These changes are consequential to the increase in the volume ceiling of 31.1 to 31.5, and result from line-related costs being spread over a greater volume. I would appreciate having it put on the Order Paper as part of the grouping for the vote.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, since the effect of this amendment will be to reduce the cost of shipping to the grain producer in the West, we of course give consent. But it is one more example, after 80 amendments in committee and 84 in the House of Commons, of how ill-prepared the Government was. It is still trying to clean up a very badly prepared Bill.

Mr. Deans: I agree this is clear evidence that we ought not to be voting on the amendments today since the Government, even at this late minute, is still introducing amendments. However, on this particular one we will give consent.

Motion agreed to.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, it just shows the Government is ever alert, to the very last moment, to possible changes it might make to improve the Bill. I do have a second technical amendment which really is a consequence of the time that has elapsed since the Bill was drafted. It has nothing to do with matters of technical competence, but more to ensure the Bill is in concurrence with the time frame. We would like to withdraw Motion No. 167 and substitute the following motion. I will not read it because I have submitted copies, but in effect it is that every railway company, on or before November 1, 1983, shall file and publish a tariff respecting the period beginning January 1, 1984 and ending on July 31, 1984. We would like to change the word "November" to "December", 1983. We ask for unanimous consent to take into account it is now November 5, and it is a little rough to establish a tariff until the legislation is passed. This is simply to take into account the elapsed time.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Does the Minister have unanimous consent—The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans).

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, as I read the Bill at the moment, the tariff which would have to have been filed on November 1 is the existing Crowsnest Pass freight rate. We certainly do not give consent to alter it to December 1.

• (1750)

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) does not have the unanimous consent of the House and therefore the amendment cannot be introduced. Does the Minister have any further amendments he wishes to introduce at this point?

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, considering that we are batting 500, now is a pretty good time to stop.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. It being 5.50 p.m., pursuant to order made Wednesday, October 26, 1983, it is my duty to interrupt the proceedings and put forthwith every question necessary to dispose of the report stage of the Bill.

Hon. Don Mazankowski (Vegreville) moved:

Motion No. 10A

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 2 by striking out lines 7 to 9 at page 2 and substituting the following therefor:

" "export", in respect of grain, means shipment by vessel within the meaning of the Canada Shipping Act to any destination outside Canada and shipment by any other mode of transport to the United States for use of the grain in that country and not for shipment out of that country;".

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is it the pleasure of the House to adopt the motion?

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, we have had discussions about the procedure that is being adopted. You have before you, Mr. Speaker, a grouping of motions to be voted upon in order to save time in the voting process, because we do not want to be here into the wee hours of tomorrow voting on 84 motions. However, there is a residual procedural problem and that is the calling of the yeas and the nays in each of the groups upon which the yeas and the nays have not yet been heard. I would suggest that that process is a prior process and should be proceeded with before putting the votes on the various groups.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair would inform the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) that that is exactly what the Chair is proposing to do.

Mr. Nielsen: It was not so stated.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I have called Motion No. 10A, which has not previously been put before the House. I intend to go seriatim through the rest in accordance with the grouping indicated previously by the Speaker.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. As the Hon. House Leader of the Official Opposition has indicated, we intend to vote on these by groups. Considering that, I wonder if the motion that has just been accepted by the House for unanimous consent dealing with the changes in volume would properly be grouped under group A and that that would be added to the group A category for yeas and nays.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Minister is perhaps anticipating. It is my understanding that at this stage, groups A, B, C, D and E come before the House for votes. At this stage we are dealing with the motions that have not previously been considered by the House.

The question is on Motion No. 10A. All those in favour will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In my opinion, the yeas have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Pursuant to Standing Order 79(11), the recorded division on the proposed motion will be deferred.

The question is on Motion No. 14A.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, may I suggest that you proceed group by group and apply the yeas and nays that you have now heard on Motion No. 10A to all of the remaining motions within that group that have not yet been subject to the yeas and nays procedure.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I regret to inform the House that the Table has not had time to put all of these in the form indicated by the Hon. Member for Yukon and the Chair is bound by the limitations that it now faces. The Chair will attempt to proceed as expeditiously as possible. If the House wishes to do it that way, it will take the officers of the Table perhaps five minutes.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I have an alternate suggestion which might find acceptance from the House. Perhaps we can take a division of the yeas and nays on the first undisposed motion in each group and apply that result to each undisposed motion in the group affected without going to the trouble of enumerating them all.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair is in the hands of the Members of the House. One difficulty the Chair must point out is that the motions have not been put to the House. In many cases there are no seconders and it is difficult to dispense quickly of motions that have not been placed and have not been properly put and seconded. However, the Chair is open to suggestions.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, in a few moments you will have a list of the six groups we are talking about. In each group, there are some motions that have not yet been put. I agree with the suggestion made by the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) as I have consulted with the House Leaders on this question. When you call the first motion in each group that has not yet been put to the House, Mr. Speaker, we suggest that the same yeas and nays apply to the other motions in the group that have not yet been called. We are not suggesting that you do not call those motions but we are suggesting that you do not have us shout yeas and nays every time.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: With the permission of the House and in the interest of expediting matters, we will presume that House Leaders are seconders in every case. We will simply make that presumption and we will attempt to put the motions in an orderly way with that assumption.

The House is dealing with group B. Motion No. 24 has been deferred.

Perhaps the Hon. Member for Yukon can explain again and the Chair will attempt to interpret as best it can.

Mr. Nielsen: With respect, Mr. Speaker, we have not yet disposed of group A. We have heard the yeas and nays on Motion No. 10A. May I suggest to the House that the yeas and nays on Motion No. 10A apply to all other undisposed motions within group A? After that, we would then move on to group B in the same fashion.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: For the sake of the record, the yeas and nays applying to Motion No. 10A will also apply to Motions Nos. 14A, 61, 156, 164, 168, 169 and 171. Is that agreed?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Pinard: It is agreed, Mr. Speaker, but you should add to that list the last amendment moved by consent by the Hon. Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy).

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Added to this list is the last amendment introduced, by unanimous consent, by the Hon. Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy). Is that agreed?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport) moved:

Motion No. 14A

That Bill C-155 be amended in Clause 2 by striking out lines 14 to 18 at page 2 and substituting the following therefor:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I declare the motion lost.

The next question is on Motion No. 71. According to the agreement, this division also applies to Motions Nos. 74A, 90, 91, 101, 142, 157A, 167 and 170.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I am just curious to know when we will decide on Motions Nos. 40, 49, 78, 134A, 84 and 165B. The reason I ask, Sir, is as follows: a negative vote—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In the interests of following each other, could the Hon. Member indicate which group these motions are from?

Mr. Deans: Yes, I will, group No. C, which we have just completed voting on. The following situation arises: a negative vote on Motion No. 39, which we have just completed, necessitates a vote on Motion No. 40. A negative vote on Motion No. 48, which we have just completed, necessitates a vote on Motion No. 49. A negative vote on Motion No. 133, which we have just completed, necessitates a vote on Motion No. 134A. A negative vote on Motion No. 83, which we have just completed, necessitates a vote on Motion No. 84. A negative vote on Motion No. 165A, necessitates a vote on Motion No. 165B. Finally, a negative vote on Motion No. 77, necessitates a vote on Motion No. 78. I was wondering if you might go through those now, Sir, in order that we—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member properly raises a point in the interests of getting the record straight. Every one of those motions has been included in other groupings for the vote. None of them have failed to be mentioned individually in the course of the groupings. The point the Hon. Member makes is a very valid point. However, it has been considered in the groupings. There could be a discussion, perhaps, between the officers of the Table, to verify. However, I am informed that each one of these has been considered at some point.

Mr. Nielsen: Yes, they are.

Mr. Deans: I do not see them.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Motion No. 77 is in group C. Motion No. 78, which has just been mentioned, is in group B, and so on. The Hon. Member, if he looks at the motions, will find that every one of these cases has been provided for in the grouping. They have been checked and rechecked, I am assured by the Table officers. There appears to be a consensus also among Hon. Members close to me who indicate they have also made the check.

Mr. Deans: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am sorry, Sir. This is one of the difficulties when one is working from two different pieces of paper. I asked before the vote started if we would all be working from the same piece of paper. Let me suggest to you that it is entirely possible that Hon. Members might have voted differently—I do not know. I will accept the vote as it is.

Mr. Blenkarn: You have no choice.

Mr. Deans: Well, I do have a choice. The Speaker in his original grouping made the suggestion that I am now requesting be looked at. The Speaker's grouping originally said that a negative vote on Motion No. 39 necessitated a separate vote on Motion No. 40. I am, therefore, not at all sure that Members who voted on the last grouping understood that voting for Motions Nos. 39 and 40 at the same time is the same thing as voting for Motion No. 39, and subsequently having to vote on Motion No. 40.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The point of the Hon. Member is extremely well taken. This was the original observation of the Chair. However, the Chair can only observe at this point that every motion has been provided for in the grouping. Reference was made to Motion No. 40. This was referred to very specifically in group C. I believe that for any motion that the Hon. Member cares to mention, the Chair can provide a point at which it has been provided for.

Mr. Nielsen: We are all working from the same piece of paper.

The House divided on Motion No. 71 (Mr. Axworthy) which was agreed to on the following division:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: This disposes of the motions according to the groupings agreed upon.

There remains Motion No. 174 in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin).

Hon. Members will recall that, on October 3, 1983, the Speaker observed that motions to alter the long title of a Bill are not in order "unless such substantial changes are made to the Bill that would necessitate a change in the title to reflect the content and intent of the Bill". In this regard, I would refer Hon. Members to Citation 780(1) of Beauchesne's Fifth Edition, and also to Erskine May's Nineteenth Edition at page 531.

The Chair is not convinced that the amendments agreed to at report stage necessitate an amendment to the title. Therefore, I must rule out of order Motion No. 174 standing in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin).

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport) moves that Bill C-155, an Act to facilitate the transportation, shipping and handling of western grain and to amend certain Acts in consequence thereof, as amended, be concurred in.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is it the pleasure of the House to adopt the motion?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those in favour of the motion will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In my opinion the years have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Call in the Members. Shall we dispense with the ringing of the bells?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

The House divided on the motion (Mr. Axworthy) which was agreed to on the following division:

REMEMBRANCE DAY

COMMEMORATION OF SERVICE MEN AND WOMEN

Hon. W. Bennett Campbell (Minister of Veterans Affairs): Mr. Speaker, it is an honour for me as Minister of Veterans Affairs to remind all Hon. Members that next Friday is Remembrance Day.

I will have the happy duty next week of accompanying a number of First World War veterans to Vimy Ridge. For these veterans it will have been 65 years since the Armistice ending the First World War signalled their salvation. They had survived the bloodiest conflict in history, and bequeathed to Canada a reputation for gallantry that has been untarnished by time. Remembrance Day was intended to commemorate the memory of those who lost their lives in the "war to end all wars", but on November 11 Canadians will also be honouring the victims of later conflicts.

Next year, Mr. Speaker, another generation of Canadians will be returning to France to recall the fortieth Anniversary of D-Day, the day that returned hope and freedom to millions of Europeans held prisoner in their own lands.

Last month, Canadians went overseas to honour the sacrifice of those killed in yet another war. A delegation went to the Far East to mark the thirtieth Anniversary of the end of the Korean conflict. The welcome given to these Canadians by the people of Korea left no doubt about the enduring respect our forces won in the service of the United Nations. Mr. Speaker, more than 110,000 of our countrymen and women died in those wars. Many others returned home with injuries that would be a permanent reminder of the pain of war.

Next Friday, on the sixty-fifth anniversary of the event that led to Remembrance Day, we should, above all, remind ourselves that Canada's commitment to the almost three-quarter million veterans alive today and their families has no cut-off date, no sunset clause. This commitment continues until the last veteran and the last dependant of a veteran has passed away. They gave of their best, and, in return, they deserve the best.

Hon. Erik Nielsen (Yukon): Mr. Speaker, I thank the Hon. Member for Victoria (Mr. McKinnon), our critic for Veterans Affairs, for affording me the opportunity in joining with the Minister in this tribute, an opportunity I have never sought in the lengthy time that I have been in this House.

Sixty-six years ago, on November 11, 1918, the guns were stilled on the Western Front and Allied and German troops fraternized in the mud of Flanders. Some 41 years ago, the sons and daughters of these same men once again laid down their arms after years of the most horrendous carnage the world had seen, involving battle-fronts in all the corners of the world. Such was our good fortune historically that the gods of war stayed away from our shores in this country, except for brief incursions in 1759, 1774, and 1812-14.

Today, the fires of war are flaring in the Caribbean and Central America as two conflicting world philosophies meet in deadly confrontation. It is our hope, and that of all men solicitous for the continuation in prosperity and hope of the human race, that diplomacy, understanding, and mutual self-interest, will outlaw war from this planet.

Today, with hope for the future and reverence for the past, we mark the deeds of those who have passed into the shades of history. Although vanished, they have gained immortality for their achievements.

Men and women fought and died 40 years ago—and many who fought are still living—so that freedom should not perish. Freedom to those of us who are veterans was more than an abstraction, more than an ideal to serve as a centre-piece for commencement addresses. Freedom was something we understood in the very fibre of our natures, something without which life was not worth living.

Freedom is that without which all of the other blessings of human living become merely ashes. Freedom is man's capacity to pursue individual goals as well as the goals set by society. Freedom is the right to create, to preserve, to nourish the original flashes of human genius without requiring the approval of the state. Freedom is man's right to reach for the stars, whether or not his grasp is adequate to attain the creative ideals which his nature conjures up.

The exercise of real freedom demands peace. There can be no full exercise of freedom in war, where everything is subordinated to the military objective. No society can be more desirous of peace, more anxious to attain it, and more eager to preserve it, than a free society.

The upward movement of the human mind required to produce great literature, art, ballet, technology and other creative arts must have that free play of the human mind which comes only with peace. The free world is dedicated to the cause of peace and the freedom of men's minds that goes with it. We shall do all that must be done to preserve it, and shall avoid everything that threatens its attainment.

Remembrance Day

While the cause of freedom must never intrude in the domestic affairs of others, nevertheless it must be prepared to respond when freedom is endangered. Freedom cannot be imposed on those who reject it, but it cannot be withheld from those who are willing to make an effort to retain it or to attain it.

Recently, in this House of Commons, Prime Minister Thatcher of Great Britain said, "It is time for freedom to take the offensive." Freedom cannot take the offensive by closing its eyes to the incursions of those who sponsor aggression and total control over minds and bodies. Justice may be blind but freedom cannot be, if it intends to survive. Nor can freedom be the cherished possession of the few while denied to the restless and helpless millions around the world.

Freedom stems from the very nature of humanity, from the fact that men and women are gifted with intelligence and the capacity to choose for themselves. By so much as they are denied that right, by so much does humanity suffer.

When creative thinking is placed at the service of the state and reduced to a servile status so that the best and greatest minds are denied the capacity to function creatively, then this is an assault on the very nature of man.

Joseph Howe, in the early days of this nation, had this to say:

> Let a wise nation preserve its monuments, decorate the graves of its illustrious dead, repair its great structures, and foster national pride by perpetual allusion to the glories and sacrifices of the past.

All Members of this Chamber, and particularly those of us who are veterans on both sides of the House, join with Canadians in this pledge to our fallen comrades. We shall remember them. Their memory is green in our hearts.

Mr. Ian Deans (Hamilton Mountain): Mr. Speaker, I am proud to be able to join with my two colleagues in offering, on behalf of this Party, and in particular on behalf of my colleague, the Hon. Member for Beaches (Mr. Young), our Veterans Affairs critic, some words on the eve of Remembrance Day.

● (1115)

Each year on November 11 we pause, albeit for a moment, to remember the horrors of war, to remember those who died, to remember those who returned from the battle, broken, disabled, and in some cases devastated.

Those of us who lived through the destruction remember the bombs and sirens, and the panic and the blackouts, and the gas masks and the fears—the fear of a letter that might arrive any day from the War Office. We remember the end of the conflicts. We remember the celebration of victory, and we remember the relief tnat was felt that, at last, it was over. We remember the triumphant return of men and women to their homes and families, and the tears for those who could not return.

We vowed—I remember we vowed—never again. We vowed our enthusiastic commitment to peace. We understood that we owed a great deal to those whose lifetimes would be ones of suffering, and we owed a great deal to the widows and families of those who had lost their lives. We were prepared to make sacrifices to make sure that those who had returned, and those who had lost, would never want.

I ask—have we kept the faith? Could we have done better? Have we truly remembered as we promised we would?

We remember all those things on November 11 each year, but that is not enough. We are once again poised on the brink—another world war, perhaps? All around, the signals warn of the possibility—armed conflict in the Middle East, armed conflict in the Caribbean, armed conflict in Afghanistan—wherever you turn in the world it seems that those who have disputes settle them by armed conflict. We see terrorism and fanaticism. We watch as the super powers play politics with weapons capable of total destruction.

I ask, has the sacrifice of all those who went through the wars been forgotten? I do not think so, but I do believe that the passage of time dims the memory.

We have to remember every day, not just on November 11. We have to rededicate ourselves to the necessity for peace in the world, to showing by our example, our gratitude to those who fought in wars that were intended to end all wars, by taking up where they left off, and by re-echoing the plea that I remember, and I am sure many here remember—for God's sake, never again.

On behalf of my friend and colleague, the Hon. Member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Knowles), whose battle for veterans has been and continues to be never ending, and on behalf of all my colleagues in the New Democratic Party, I join in paying tribute and in pleading that in the years ahead we will try to pay our debt to those who served in World Wars I and II, in Korea, and in the other conflicts as part of our peace-keeping effort—conflicts in which we participated willingly. I pray that we will remain mindful of the need to develop throughout the world an economic order that will eliminate poverty and want for all people, and to that end, eliminate, once and for all, the need for war.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

STATEMENTS PURSUANT TO S.O. 21

[English]

MEDIA REPORTS OF DEBATE

Mr. Arnold Malone (Crowfoot): Mr. Speaker, I have chosen to chew on my own political umbilical cord one more time. A politician who is not sensitive to the need for eternal infatuation with the news media is, to be sure, a person with lonesome neurons. Nevertheless, I elbow our centralized news media about national issues with regional roots.

For the better part of a year Canadians have heard about the Crow rate. The media would have them believe the issue deals with excessive debating, hours of petitions, Members of Parliament still speaking and poking holes in the air with their fingers at 4 a.m., and a beautiful Member of Parliament with silver, curly hair being ejected from the House of Commons. Most Canadians have come to believe that the Crow rate and parliamentary tactics are synonymous.

The majority of Canadains were never educated, however, to the fact that the Crow rate is not just a western issue but a national one. Annually it impacts on $6 billion worth of relief to our balance of payments. It affects the capacity of western producers to purchase central Canadian goods.

Some will argue, with legitimate logic, that a total payment of the Crow benefit to the railways will devastate the western meat industry and other value added economies. Others will argue that variable rates will change the map of prairie Canada, diminishing its towns and villages in favour of a few widely dispersed prairie cities.

Few realize that the present Crow rate legislation does not have the support of any of the prairie Governments or of a single prairie farm organization. Let us hope that Knowlton will give a balanced, objective, educational media report on this national issue before he "Nashes" another goodnight.

Some Hon. Members: Oh!

INDIAN AFFAIRS

NEWFOUNDLAND'S OBLIGATION TO RECOGNIZE INDIAN RIGHTS

Mr. André Maltais (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development): Mr. Speaker, the native people in my riding are very pleased with the news that the special report on autonomy and native rights was presented yesterday. I think some words of congratulations are in order for the Committee, which did tremendous work on recognition of native rights, and I feel this is the direction in wich all native people want the Government to go. However, I would like to draw the attention of the House to the obligation of the Government of Newfoundland to recognize Indian hunting, fishing and trapping rights in Labrador. For four years, the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development has been trying to get permission for native people in Labrador, in the Schefferville area—they are practically the only people left around Schefferville—for native people born in that region, to hunt, fish and trap according to their traditional ways. However, the Conservative Government of Newfoundland has always denied the Indians this absolute right to live according to their native traditions. Mr. Speaker, speaking from the floor of this House, I would urge the Government of Newfoundland, and especially Mr. Brian Peckford, to acknowledge as of this fall, that Indians in the Labrador region of Newfoundland have hunting, trapping and fishing rights. This is extremely important, and there are daily examples of flagrant injustice in this part of our country, and I think that if our friends opposite agree with the philosophy of the report presented by the Special Committee on Indian Affairs and Northern Development, we should immediately put pressure on the Government of Newfoundland to recognize this absolute right.

SMALL BUSINESS

RECOMMENDATION THAT EMPLOYMENT TAX CREDITS BE INTRODUCED

Mr. Otto Jelinek (Halton): Mr. Speaker, because of my concern with the very high level of unemployment in Canada, and the fact that small business is one of the hardest hit sectors with respect to lost jobs—in fact 700,000 to 800,000 jobs were lost in the small business sector between January, 1981, and February, 1983—I asked the Minister of Finance (Mr. Lalonde) during Question Period yesterday a very simple question, namely, whether he would consider introducing employment tax credits for small business since it is a widely accepted fact that small business, despite all obstacles, still remains the largest potential provider of new jobs.

I expected a civil answer from the Minister, particularly because, when I asked him a similar question a few months ago, he thanked me for recommending such a positive idea and said that it was worth while pursuing. Yesterday, in his answer, you will recall that the Minister, in his pompous and arrogant way, did not even address himself to this very important question of creating jobs within the small business sector. Instead, he rattled on at length about unrelated matters. Obviously the Minister of Finance is either hard of hearing or he intentionally attempted to mislead this House. In any event, I want to emphasize to the Minister that, despite his apparent disinterest in the potential of job creation within the small business sector, and his obvious fixation with bailing out large multinational corporations instead, this Party is committed to pursue all positive incentive oriented recommendations—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member's time has expired.

THE MEDIA

CALL FOR IN-DEPTH NEWS REPORTS

Mr. Stanley Hudecki (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of National Defence): Mr. Speaker, major events in our global community occur with such suddenness that many people are caught unaware and they become uneasy and anxious. This insecurity arises partially because many are ill informed and often confused by international events as they unfold.

For Canadians, the major sources of information about global incidents are the newspapers and television. However, the main thrust of reporting in the visual and print media is "news as it occurs", with little attempt to provide background data to put the news in a historical perspective. The communication of appropriate background information to current news is vital if Canadians are to be more aware of world events.

It is time that serious consideration be given to the establishment of a more in-depth international component to our national television networks and newspapers, with more emphasis given to ongoing news and information about the various regions of the globe. This information should be presented in such a way as to provide substantive historical and cultural background material, as well as a review of current political, military, and social developments while limiting, as far as possible, slanted views and editorial comments.

IMMIGRATION

CALL FOR UPGRADING OF OVERSEAS OFFICES

Mr. Ian Waddell (Vancouver-Kingsway): Mr. Speaker, last week in the House I spoke about the situation where Canadian immigration lawyers and consultants flocked into Hong Kong to take advantage of the difficult situation there. Some put misleading ads in the papers, and charged big fees for work the Canadian Embassy could do for nothing. It got so bad that the Embassy took out counter ads. This situation gave Canada a bad reputation.

I am happy to report to the House I have had discussions with the immigration section of the Canadian Bar Association, whose members are self policing and who report bad or misleading ads, and are trying to upgrade the status of immigration lawyers generally. I think that is a very good response. In return, I would like to ask that the Government and the Minister responsible upgrade our immigration offices in Hong Kong, Islamabad, and in Delhi. The people are burning out there. Money to improve the facilities there is tied up in Treasury Board.

There is a further problem. I warn the Government that the immigration policies themselves are inequitable. The implication is that if you are a Chinese Canadian with a brother or sister in Hong Kong, you cannot get them in under family reunification, but if you have $250,000 or $300,000 you can almost buy your way in by investing in a business in Canada. That is not really fair or just.

SUPPORT FOR FREE ENTERPRISE SYSTEM

Mr. Gordon Taylor (Bow River): Mr. Speaker, Andrei Sakharov, a brilliant physicist, was the key figure in Soviet development of the hydrogen bomb. For 20 years he was a pillar of the Soviet establishment. As the years went by he saw the folly of communism and called, first, for a halt to the testing of nuclear weapons in Russia, and later declared that the state monopoly "inevitably entails servitude and compulsory conformism . . . people become hypocrites, time servers, mediocre and stupidly self-deceiving." But because communism permits no one to speak against the state he was arrested, and today he is dying without medical treatment in Gorki. I join with the whole free world in asking that he be given medical treatment and his freedom.

The pioneers in Canada built this country on free enterprise, but the Liberal Government has been moving Canada more and more towards a socialist state. The PC Party, under our Leader (Mr. Brian Mulroney), the next Prime Minister, will return Canada to the basic principles of free enterprises which made this country great. We will encourage the entrepreneur, the farmer, and businessman to invest and hire Canadians and expand their businesses. Profit will not be a sin, and taxation will leave some of the money earned in the pockets of the earners and producers. Like Sakharov, we will recognize that economic freedom is the best pre-condition for freedom of thought, creativity and productivity, and Canada will reach the greatness envisioned by our founders. May that day come soon!

SOCIAL SERVICES

RESTRICTION INSTITUTED BY YUKON GOVERNMENT

Mrs. Margaret Mitchell (Vancouver East): Mr. Speaker, the Yukon Government has instituted a very restrictive requirement for people applying for social assistance. This should not be tolerated by the federal Government. In order to receive social assistance, a person must have lived in the Yukon for one year and worked for three months out of the last 12. Even long-time Yukoners must prove they have made a serious effort to obtain employment. This requirement is causing considerable hardship for people who have no other source of income and require basic help in acquiring food and shelter.

• (1130)

The Yukon is one of Canada's most depressed areas. The mining industry is virtually closed down. Bankruptcies have increased 100 per cent, and unemployment insurance claims are up by 86 per cent. Depleted unemployment insurance benefits are forcing workers to apply for social assistance, only to be faced with these onerous requirements.

The federal Government has a direct responsibility for social services in the Territories and must not condone these unjust requirements. However, the territorial Minister has stated that federal Canada Assistance Plan representatives, as well as federal auditors, did not object to this policy. I urge the Minister of National Health and Welfare (Miss Bégin) to put an end to this unjust and hurtful work requirement policy.

NATIONAL DEFENCE

NEED FOR MODERN EQUIPMENT

Mr. Harvie Andre (Calgary Centre): Mr. Speaker, we have recently heard the Secretary of State for External Affairs (Mr. MacEachen), the Minister of National Defence (Mr. Blais), and even the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau), make emphatic statements regarding Canada's commitment to the western alliance and to NATO. These statements are most welcome, representing as they do a major shift in attitude by the Prime Minister who, early in his mandate as Prime Minister, sought to withdraw Canada from NATO and, failing in that regard, did bring about a very large reduction in Canada's commitments to NATO and in our over-all defence effort.

In his recent speech concerning East-West relations the Prime Minister did acknowledge that most strategists recognize that strong conventional defences have the effect of raising the nuclear threshold or, in other words, making nuclear war less likely. Most strategists also recognize that strong defences make all wars less likely, and that must surely be Canada's highest priority.

If the Prime Minister and his Ministers are sincere, they will change Canada's defence policy so as to stop the deterioration in our defence capabilities as exemplified by the fact that we still have war ships with vacuum tube electronics, replacement parts for which are only manufactured behind the Iron Curtain, and as exemplified by the fact that Canadian forces in Europe were unable to participate in the full range of the annual autumn exercises this year because of budgetary constraints.

The House and the country look forward to the Government's actions backing up the recent affirmations of commitment to defence made by the Prime Minister and his Ministers.

ABORIGINAL RIGHTS

SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS IN NORTHERN AREAS

Mr. Jim Fulton (Skeena): Mr. Speaker, intertwined with the constitutional process in the Northwest Territories are unsettled comprehensive aboriginal rights negotiations. These involve the Dene of the West, the Innuvialuit of the Beaufort region, and the Inuit in the central and eastern Arctic. Federal Liberal Members, in a statement in May, 1983, tied the division of the N.W.T. to three preconditions; first, the settlement of land claims; second, the agreement of the placement of a boundary between East and West; and third, the development of the party system in the politics of the area. These preconditions, particularly the requirement for the party system, constitute a direct interference in the democratic rights of the citizens in this federal colony who are marching toward their own responsible Government.

Members of the NDP support a constitutional process for the establishment of new territories without federal interference in the form of preconditions. In concert with this would be the establishment of a new and more harmonious political arrangement between aboriginal and other Canadians in the North. We also support concentration on the development of the renewable resources of the North, including the use of small scale hydro and alternate energy programs, and we support development of the non-renewable resources of the North in the national interest but with northern control. We support a universal tax credit for all northerners, which would recognize the real differences of the cost of living in the North. We also hope that immediate measures will be taken in the North regarding the status of women in the Northwest Territories, and their particular needs.

MEDICAL CARE

REPORTED REFUSAL BY DOCTORS TO TREAT 10-YEAR-OLD VICTIM OF RAPE

Mr. Dave Nickerson (Western Arctic): Mr. Speaker, a few days ago in Alberta, a ten-year old girl was viciously raped. The very fact that this could and did take place leaves us appalled, but what leaves Canadians in an utter state of abhorrence and disbelief is the fact that the girl was subsequently denied medical treatment and examination, apparently because no doctor wanted to become involved in legal proceedings likely to follow.

Society has habitually held medical practitioners in high esteem and rewarded them accordingly. In return, society has every right to expect a high standard of ethical and moral behaviour. People expect doctors to uphold the oath they have taken. It is not something to be set aside lightly when they do not want to become involved.

The Alberta College of Physicians and Surgeons ought to investigate the incident thoroughly, and other provincial organizations ought to ensure that this could not happen in their areas.

Parliament extends, I am sure, its sympathies to the helpless victim of this crime, and reflects the feelings of all Canadians in condemning the subsequent abuse to which she was subjected.

Oral Questions

ORAL QUESTION PERIOD

[English]

LABOUR CONDITIONS

DECLINE IN EMPLOYMENT—REQUEST FOR NEW JOB-CREATION PROGRAMS

Hon. James A. McGrath (St. John's East): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Employment and Immigration, who was in his seat a few moments ago. The labour force data released today indicates that there were 25,000 fewer people working in October than there were in September, and 47,000 fewer Canadians working full time. Will the Minister be accelerating new job-creation programs, given the fact that unemployment traditionally worsens in the wintertime, and also given the fact that this is the first time since November, 1982, that there has been a decline in the rate of employment?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, I would have thought that the Hon. Member would also have wanted to recognize that the latest figures have shown that the unemployment rate in Canada has dropped once again, to 11.1 per cent. That means that since last July there has been a drop in the unemployment rate of almost one percentage point, something about which I think he should be pleased and would want to welcome.

It is true that there is this disappointing aspect of a fall in the actual number of jobs over the past month. This is the first time this has occurred since last November, and I think that we will see in months to come that the trend line which has already been established will continue. There are indications that the economy is recovering and that there will be, as has been the case continually since last November, an increase in jobs, seasonally adjusted, in the Canadian economy.

As to the proposals we will be making, the Hon. Member knows that we are very anxious to finish the business presently before the House so that we will be able to bring in proposals for the strengthening and re-profiling of existing programs, and perhaps for the addition of some new programs for job creation within the context of a Speech from the Throne.

Mr. McGrath: Mr. Speaker, the Minister can play that kind of a statistical shell game, but the fact remains that there were more people unemployed in October than there were in September. That is a fact.

TIMING OF INTRODUCTION OF NEW PROGRAMS

Hon. James A. McGrath (St. John's East): Mr. Speaker, given the fact that there were more people unemployed in October than there were in September, we have a right to ask the Minister if he intends to bring on the new programs about which he has been musing, at this time, given the likelihood that there will not be a Speech from the Throne until December or perhaps even January. These people cannot wait. Why can the Minister not bring on his programs now, rather than getting press coverage for himself by musing upon them every weekend?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, I am not the one who is playing a shell game with statistics. I did draw to the attention of the Hon. Member that, indeed, there was a decrease in the number of jobs created over the last month. It was the Hon. Member who was being selective in two ways; first, by not giving any indication that there has been a fall in the level of unemployment and, second, by giving no indication of the generally successful record of the creation of new jobs in the Canadian economy since last year.

As I have said repeatedly, it seems to me that the proper way for assessing programs which are presented in relation to job creation is within the over-all context of a Speech from the Throne. If his Party and the other opposition Party had been more expeditious in handling important business of the House, we would have been at that point already.

UNITED STATES EMPLOYMENT FIGURES

Hon. James A. McGrath (St. John's East): Mr. Speaker, the Minister and the Minister of Finance talk about recovery. Perhaps he can explain to the House how it is that in the United States there are a million more people working today than when the recession began, while we in Canada are still a quarter of a million jobs behind, and are now falling further behind at the rate of 25,000 jobs a month. Let him explain that, and let him also explain the fact that there were 17,000 fewer young Canadians working in October than in September. What will he do about that?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, I think the Hon. Member, in his excitement, addressed the question to the Minister of Finance. I assume he meant to address the question to me.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Friday mornings you're brilliant.

Mr. Roberts: I would be glad to accept the testimony of the Hon. Member to the effect that I am brilliant although, given the source, I would be skeptical of any such judgment.

I think the Hon. Member and all Members of the House know that one of the most important markets for the Canadian economy is the United States, and it is traditionally the case that when there is a recovery in the United States the full impact of that on Canadian exports and, therefore, on the Canadian economy, is found after a lag period. It is not surprising that the upswing of the American economy should take more time to have its full effects felt in the Canadian economy. That is neither extraordinary nor unusual. It is the normal pattern of events.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

FORMULA GOVERNING LEVEL OF WEEKLY INSURABLE EARNINGS

Mr. Jim Hawkes (Calgary West): Mr. Speaker, my question is also directed to the Minister of Employment and Immigration. I would like to explore with him another of his strange formulas. In this case it is the one which he uses to determine the weekly insurable earnings for unemployment insurance. The net effect of that formula will be to provide a raise of 10.4 per cent to the highest weekly income earners. At the same time it kicks out of the plan and denies any kind of assistance to people at the low end of the wage scale.

Could the Minister tell us how many people he will be kicking out of the plan on January 1? Could he also tell us whether he believes it is Liberal justice to give a big raise, in a year of six and five, to high income earners, and kick low income earners out of the plan?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, in all honesty I must say that I am not exactly sure what the Hon. Member is talking about. If he is talking about the insurable earnings for unemployment insurance, it is true, as I believe was indicated about a week ago, that there is no increase in premiums this year but, as a result of automatic application of the law, there is roughly a 10 per cent increase in the insurable earnings of people under unemployment insurance.

That addition to insurable earnings takes place each year on the basis of a formula of an average over a ten-year period, I believe, and leads to automatic increases in the degree of insurable earnings. Therefore, as the insurable earnings of an employee go up, so, to that degree, do the premiums which are paid to cover those insurable earnings. That is not something over which I have discretion. It is a question of the automatic exercise of the law.

It may be that I have not fully understood what the Hon. Member is referring to, but if I have understood, then that is the answer I should give.

Mr. Hawkes: It confirms my worst fears. The Minister administers laws that he really does not understand. It is an eight-year average, not ten. It will have increasing effects of the kind I described, in the years ahead.

PERMISSION FOR BENEFICIARIES TO ATTEND SCHOOL

Mr. Jim Hawkes (Calgary West): Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the business of the Parliament of Canada is to change bad laws. I suggest to the Minister that he is administering a bad law. He has not recognized that fact. It is obvious that he has no intention of changing that. I commend that course of action to him.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I would suggest that the Hon. Member ask a supplementary question.

Mr. Hawkes: The Minister does have the power under the law to allow unemployed people to use their UIC benefit period to go to school. Last month, for which figures are available—

Some Hon. Members: Question.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will the Hon. Member please ask a supplementary question?

Mr. Hawkes: Of that one million people, only 12,000 were allowed to go to school to get increased training. Will the Minister administer the law in a fashion that will allow an increasing number of Canadians on unemployment insurance to take training and go to school in order to use their benefit period to improve themselves? Will he do that with the law?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, I think the Hon. Member has essentially confirmed what I said. We are not dealing with a discretionary action on the part of the Minister but with the automatic application of the present law, which we are required to do. He does not happen to like that law. It would be interesting to know how many of his colleagues believe it should be changed or amended in a way which he describes.

Of course, I will continue to use the discretion that I have under the Act to do as he suggests, and certainly I will give very considerable reflection to his recommendations.

THE ECONOMY

DECLINE IN EMPLOYMENT—GOVERNMENT POSITION

Mr. Nelson A. Riis (Kamloops-Shuswap): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Right Hon. Prime Minister. The Minister of Employment and Immigratiaon just informed the House that we have seen a shrinking of the job market in Canada this month by 25,000 jobs. It is the first time in seven months that the job market has actually decreased. Will the Prime Minister not agree that this surely indicates that the domestic recovery has stalled and, if so, what is his Government prepared to do about it?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): No, Mr. Speaker, I would not agree.

LEVEL OF INTEREST RATES

Mr. Nelson A. Riis (Kamloops-Shuswap): Mr. Speaker, the Conference Board of Canada, the C.D. Howe Institute, and Statistics Canada have indicated that two areas are hindering the domestic recovery. They are high interest rates and an increased taxation that is about to occur for all Canadians. Is the Prime Minister prepared to listen to these organizations, accept their advice, and do something about the excessively high interest rates and the new taxation that Canadians are about to experience?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, we are always anxious to get advice from the various sources, and of course we listen to what they say. But, as the Hon. Member knows, many economists have conflicting views on the situation and its remedies. The Government is in a different position in that it must make choices, and it does make choices.

I was wondering this morning how the Opposition would manage to seek grief because unemployment had fallen for the seventh consecutive month and the figures are good and encouraging.

Mr. Riis: There are 25,000 fewer jobs.

Mr. Trudeau: I am interested in seeing that the Opposition can still put a sad face on good news.

TRADE

UNITED STATES DECISION ON CANADIAN POTATO EXPORTS

Hon. Sinclair Stevens (York-Peel): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Secretary of State for External Affairs. In the next 36 hours he faces two important deadlines. At midnight tonight the United States Commerce Department may confirm a ruling which would put a 17 per cent penalty on the export of certain Canadian products to the United States. In this case it is potatoes, but it is a precedent which could, if set, apply to trade generally between Canada and the United States. Can the Minister assure the House that the United States will not take this step, or are we to accept this as further evidence of the general breakdown in the rapport between the United States and Canada?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I think the Hon. Member is not quite right in his analysis of the situation affecting Canadian potatotes. A number of determinations have been made by the United States authorities, but the final determination as to injury has not yet been made. The U.S. authorities have until December 19 to make that determination. We believe we have a very good case against the finding that would lead to an injury determination.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

ENDING OF BAN ON AEROFLOT FLIGHTS TO CANADA

Hon. Sinclair Stevens (York-Peel): Mr. Speaker, the second deadline that the Minister faces is the 60-day ban on Aeroflot flights, which runs out this Sunday. It is now 58 days since the ban was put in place, a period in which the Government has had little but dynamic inaction on this matter. Would the Minister indicate if it is the Government's intention to extend the ban?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, when the Government acted to suspend Aeroflot flights, the Hon. Member will recall that it was the first Government which took action. The action that was taken by the Government of Canada has been longer and more intensive than any action by any other Government.

While the suspension of Aeroflot flights is still in existence as of today, it was waived many weeks ago with respect to most other countries. Therefore, there is no basis to describe Canadian action in the terms which the Hon. Member has used.

Mr. Stevens: Have you got compensation?

Mr. MacEachen: When we did make that suspension for 60 days it was made with a purpose, with a specific term, and it is not the intention of the Government to extend that—

Mr. Stevens: Shame.

Mr. MacEachen: —beyond the present period, which expires on November 6.

Mr. Stevens: What about the compensation?

FORESTRY

GOVERNMENT FUNDING OF OVERSEAS PROJECTS

Mr. Jim Fulton (Skeena): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Right Hon. Prime Minister. As the Prime Minister knows, over the past five years his Government has funded over 100 forestry projects outside Canada, internationally, at a cost of over $430 million. Would he tell the House and Canadians generally why he and his Government will not fund identical project proposals, particularly in British Columbia where unemployment in some areas now exceeds 50 per cent?

[Translation]

Mr. Jean-Guy Dubois (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, I am surprised that the question about special projects should be asked by a Member from British Columbia. If the Hon. Member's party would be willing to expedite the third reading stage of the Bill now before the House, we would be able to use the legislation on the Crow rate to create a number of jobs in the Vancouver area and elsewhere in the Province. I think this is a program that should create substantial employment.

TRADE

CANADA-UNITED STATES POTATO TRADE—REQUEST FOR TASK FORCE REVIEW

Mr. Fred McCain (Carleton-Charlotte): Mr. Speaker, I would like to direct my question to the Deputy Prime Minister and to draw the attention of the House to the fact that there is a decision in place which imposes a 17.9 per cent surcharge on every shipment, either by the posting of a bond, or by the placing of a cash deposit in the hands of United States authorities. The first decision has been reached in the potato trade structure.

Would the Deputy Prime Minister, as the Secretary of State for External Affairs interested in trade and agriculture, now put together a task force which could accumulate evidence to portray the history of trade between Canada and the United States, the massive imbalance of trade in favour of the United States, and the consequence of a final decision by ITC that, indeed, a surcharge should be imposed upon Canadian potato shipments to the United States? It will cover the whole field of trade between the two countries if they prevail and get a surcharge imposed. Would he do this in co-operation with the Canadian Horticultural Council and the Governments of Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, which are fighting the battle alone?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, the Governments are not fighting the battle alone. The Canadian Government is fighting the battle along with the Provinces and with the industry. Just recently, on the occasion of our meeting with Mr. Shultz in Halifax, the Minister of State for International Trade made a very spirited intervention in the consultations to indicate the Canadian view.

The Hon. Member suggested that we put together a task force. I know that ongoing consultations are taking place between the industry and the Government. I will look at the structure in place and, if it requires strengthening, I would be pleased to consider that, because I think we have a very good case and we ought to ensure that it is put together in the strongest possible way.

THE ENVIRONMENT

CANADA-UNITED STATES DISCUSSIONS ON ACID RAIN

Hon. John A. Fraser (Vancouver South): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Secretary of State for External Affairs. It concerns the meeting which he and his colleague, the Minister of the Environment, had with Secretary Shultz and EPA Administrator Ruckelshaus a few weeks ago. Was the Minister able to give to the Americans any commitment as to when Canada would proceed to a 50 per cent reduction of sulphur emissions, which of course is the target that was suggested to the Americans?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member knows that in order to achieve the proper reductions of sulphur emissions, it requires co-ordinated action between Canada and the United States. It is true, as the Minister of the Environment stated, that the Government of Canada and the Provinces of Canada have come together with a proposal which, if linked with similar decisions in the United States, would lead to a targeted reduction. As the Hon. Member knows, at that meeting the U.S. authorities were not in a position to indicate what would be their proposals. They are still under active consideration. Therefore, a joint plan or a joint agreement could not be reached. That is the situation at the present time. It is not any deficiency on the part of either the Government of Canada or the Provinces of Canada.

Mr. Fraser: The Minister's response is completely ridiculous when everyone knows that, sooner or later, this country has to reduce its emissions by 50 per cent; we may as well get started now rather than later.

GOVERNMENT POSITION

Hon. John A. Fraser (Vancouver South): Mr. Speaker, from the foolishness the Minister has given us this morning, are we to accept that the Government position is to do absolutely nothing until the Reagan Administration finally gets around to doing something? Is that the position of the Canadian Government?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Not at all, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Fraser: Then what is it?

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

USE OF IMPERIAL MEASUREMENT SYSTEM

Mr. Geoff Scott (Hamilton-Wentworth): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of Transport. Could he explain an official departmental work order dated September 28, 1983, which specifies the supply and delivery of 300 years of three-quarter inch road crusched gravel on Transport Canada site road approximately ten miles east of Whitecourt, Alberta, and two miles north on the Gas Co-op Road? Would the Minister not agree that this voluntary and welcome use of imperial measurement applies not only in Alberta but throughout Transport Canada all across Canada?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, I did not know that the Hon. Member took such an intense interest in the supplying and piling up of gravel. I will attempt to determine exactly the whereabouts of that location in Alberta, see how high the gravel is, and see to what degree it is measured in metric or imperial standard.

AIR SAFETY

PENALTIES IMPOSED ON AIR CANADA PILOTS FLYING METRIC MEASUREMENT AIRCRAFT

Mr. Geoff Scott (Hamilton-Wentworth): Mr. Speaker, I have a brief supplementary question. While the Minister is checking out the pile of gravel, would he also consider, given the uncaring attitude on the part of Transport Canada and Air Canada toward that courageous crew who landed an airliner at Gimli because of a metric mix-up, that this is utter hypocrisy on the part of Transport Canada, when it issues official orders in imperial, and penalizes and demotes pilots who accidentally got something mixed up because of a metric dipstick mix-up?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, I think the Hon. Member's supplementary question shows how Hon. Members on the other side are really the Chamber's experts on looking at piles of other kinds of substances. The fact of the matter is that, if the Hon. Member had been paying attention a few weeks back, he would have learned that we established a special inquiry into the Gimli incident. That inquiry is opening hearings in Winnipeg on November 15, at which time the various parties to the circumstance will have the opportunity to present the causes and effects of that problem. Rather than rushing to prejudge, as he and his other colleagues are so prone to do, he should leave it to an independent inquiry to determine the facts.

LABOUR CONDITIONS

UNEMPLOYMENT IN SASKATCHEWAN—ALLOCATION OF JOB-CREATION FUNDS

Mr. Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville): Mr. Speaker, in the absence of the Minister of Employment and Immigration my question is directed to the Minister of State for Economic Development. At the Minister knows, in the unemployment statistics this morning the only two Provinces where unemployment has risen in the last year are Alberta and my Province of Saskatchewan. In fact the number of people seeking work has risen by 75 per cent in the last year, and the number of people on welfare is up 14 per cent, all since the election of the Conservative Government in Saskatchewan. Could the Minister announce the immediate allocation of more funds for job creation in Saskatchewan, either in special projects or for small business, so that we can have more jobs back home?

Hon. Donald J. Johnston (Minister of State for Economic Development and Minister of State for Science and Technology): Mr. Speaker, I am sympathetic to at least part of the preamble to the Hon. Member's question. However, we have allocated substantial funds to Saskatchewan under Special Recovery Capital Projects. In fact, as the Hon. Member knows, we have, in Saskatchewan, the irrigation works rehabilitation in the Swift Current-Maple Creek area. We have the expansion of the West Agribition Centre in Regina, which is very significant. As Hon. Members know, the amount of $5,700,000 has been devoted to that particular program. We have a major program under way at the Regina airport, an expansion of that airport, as well as at the Prince Albert airport. There is $6 million going to the Regina airport, as the Hon. Member knows.

I had the pleasure myself of visiting Saskatchewan to announce the expansion of the prairie laboratory of the National Research Council, which is an additional $6 million investment in that area. All these investments have created, are creating, and will continue to create jobs as these projects are completed within the time frame set by the Special Recovery Capital Projects criteria, established by the Minister of Finance back in April. It was that they would be started within six months, which is what is being done, and that at least 60 per cent to 70 per cent of those projects would be completed within the next two years. I suggest that is the time frame about which we all must be concerned with respect to job creation. We are certainly doing our part.

• (1200)

I share the view of the Hon. Member that we must encourage the provincial Governments as well to do their part in bringing in complementary programs which will absorb that kind of unemployment to which the Hon. Member makes reference.

REGINA WATER FILTRATION PLANT PROJECT

Mr. Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville): Mr. Speaker, we still have had the highest increase in unemployment in the country in the last year. The Minister and his Government have been approached to put forward funding for a $15 million carbon filtration plant for the water system in Regina and Saskatoon. They are delaying that. Can the Minister assure us that the federal Government will pay half the cost of this important project, in order to put people back to work? Second, if he cannot assure us now, when will he be making an important announcement for the people of Saskatchewan?

Hon. Donald J. Johnston (Minister of State for Economic Development and Minister of State for Science and Technology): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member knows that the issue of the water problem in Regina is one that has preoccupied both levels of government for some time. There has been much discussion as to what the most sensible approach would be, whether it would take the form of a pipeline from Lake Diefenbaker, or whether there should be an irrigation canal. At the moment it looks like the carbon filtration plant, as suggested by the Hon. Member, is a sensible thing to do, certainly in the near term. Negotiations and discussions are ongoing with the Province of Saskatchewan. I expect to be meeting with the Province in the relatively near future with respect to the economic and regional development agreements. Undoubtedly that subject will also be pursued in the course of those discussions.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

INVASION OF GRENADA—CONSULTATION ON CONVENING OF STANDING COMMITTEE

Hon. Erik Nielsen (Yukon): Mr. Speaker, I have a question for the Hon. Member for Saint-Denis in his capacity as Chairman of the Standing Committee on External Affairs and National Defence. I do not have yesterday's Hansard, and I do not say that critically because I realize the extraordinary burden placed upon the printing facilities after yesterday's proceedings, but, if I recall correctly, in response to my question yesterday, the Government House Leader said that he would be consulting with the Chairman of the Standing Committee with a view to having referred to that Standing Committee the question of the mismanagement of arrangements by the Government to obtain the rescue of Canadian citizens caught in Grenada. Has the consultation taken place? Will that matter be referred? If so, when?

Mr. Marcel Prud'homme (Saint-Denis): Mr. Speaker, I take objection to the comment by the House Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition about the mismanagement of Government. I have to take exception, and I do take exception.

Second, the Hon. Member saw me in the House throughout the full Question Period yesterday. It was only at 3 o'clock, after Question Period was over, that I left to receive a telephone call. I had been expecting a question. When I came back, the Hon. Member was right in the middle of questions with regard to the Foreign Affairs Chairman and the Committee. I am still consulting. He saw that just a minute ago the critic for the Official Opposition, the Hon. Member for York-Peel, asked me what I intend to do. I will tell him what I intend to do.

As soon as the House comes back on November 14, or next Monday as the case may be, and I do not know what the House Leader will do, the Supplementary Estimates will be before the House of Commons. I want the Hon. Member to know that I do not receive marching orders either from the House Leader—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. The Hon. Member for Saint-Denis is giving a lengthy reply.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Nielsen: I have a very brief supplementary.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Yukon seems to be able to trigger very lengthy replies.

REQUEST THAT STEERING COMMITTEE MEET

Hon. Erik Nielsen (Yukon): Mr. Speaker, the last thing I would want to do would be to trigger the Hon. Member for Saint-Denis. Will he call a Steering Committee meeting today?

Mr. Marcel Prud'homme (Saint-Denis): Mr. Speaker, I shall call the Steering Committee in due time, when I finish my consultation.

CANADIAN SECURITY INTELLIGENCE SERVICE

SENATE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

Hon. Ray Hnatyshyn (Saskatoon West): Mr. Speaker, my question is addressed to the Solicitor General. It relates to the Senate Committee report on the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, Bill C-157. As the Minister will be aware, the report was virtually a clause by clause repudiation of the major provisions of that Bill. Does the Solicitor General accept the principal recommendations of the Senate Committee?

Hon. Bob Kaplan (Solicitor General of Canada): Mr. Speaker, I would have interpreted the principal recommendations of the Committee as urging Parliament to deal quickly with the creation of an agency to see to Canada's national security, based on the Security Service in the RCMP. I would have seen it as an endorsement of the principle of separation. In that sense, I welcome the report. I spent a considerable amount of time last night reading it. I have undertaken to consult with my colleagues about it. I hope to be in a position to respond to that report on behalf of the Government in early December.

PRESENTATION OF LEGISLATION

Hon. Ray Hnatyshyn (Saskatoon West): Mr. Speaker, my supplementary question is directed to the same Minister. After such a long wait to get the original Bill which was proposed by the Minister, and to find that that Bill consisted of a major assault on the civil liberties of Canadians, can we assume from the Minister's response that we are now going to have a brand new Bill presented to us, with very major surgery performed on it in accordance with some of the principal recommendations of the Senate Committee?

Hon. Bob Kaplan (Solicitor General of Canada): Mr. Speaker, I would say that the report has been very helpful to the Government and helpful to the country in increasing the understanding of national security issues. I have expressed my view and contradicted the interpretation that the Hon. Member gave to the Bill. What I think would be timely would be to have the views of the Opposition, both of the Conservative Party and of the New Democratic Party, which would be of considerable assistance to me in advising my colleagues as to the proposal to establish a security agency and to implement the other aspects of the Bill to which reference was made in the report.

PUBLIC WORKS

LEASING OF DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS BUILDING

Hon. Allan B. McKinnon (Victoria): Mr. Speaker, I had a question for the Minister of Veterans Affairs. In his absence, I will direct it to the Minister of Public Works. It is a question that might be answered by either Minister. Can the Minister indicate to the House the cost of leasing the DVA building from Rampart Enterprises during the term of the lease which is, I understand, for 35 years? Will the Minister consider tabling the leasing agreement in the House, or making a copy of it available to interested Members?

Hon. Roméo LeBlanc (Minister of Public Works): Mr. Speaker, I am sure the Hon. Member, with his long experience in the House, would not expect me to have at my fingertips that type of information. I will obviously look into it and write to him directly.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

INVASION OF GRENADA—SUGGESTED INVESTIGATION OF DEATHS ON ISLAND

Mr. Bob Ogle (Saskatoon East): Mr. Speaker, I wish to direct my question to the Secretary of State for External Affairs. I am sure he is aware of the fact that there are many Canadians of Grenadian origin, their families having come from Grenada. There has been great loss of human life on the island of Grenada. These people have no way of finding out who has been killed, what has happened to the bodies, and so forth. Why will the Minister not support an interparliamentary group representing all Parties to observe the situation and bring back information to Canada?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member has raised the question of loss of life in Grenada and the identity of persons who may have lost their lives, particularly those who have been engaged in combat. I have requested information be gathered on the numbers who may have been affected, and their identity, if possible. I think there are efficient ways of collecting that information without sending a parliamentary committee.

ADMISSION OF REFUGEES TO CANADA

Mr. Bob Ogle (Saskatoon East): Mr. Speaker, I had hoped to ask a question of the Minister of Employment and Immigration or of the Right Hon. Prime Minister. Since they have both left the Chamber, I will ask the Secretary of State for External Affairs. Returning CUSO volunteers indicated they heard that prisons had been opened and many criminals and murderers had been let out on the streets. They are also hearing that the army of occupation is attempting to search down former members of the New Jewel Movement. Is Canada going to open its doors to refugees, and how is it going to screen the refugees who do apply?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I understand that very early next week an interim Government will be put in place in Grenada. According to my reports prisoners did escape, if that is the correct word, including political prisoners and criminals. The criminal element has been brought back into the prisons. Mr. Speaker, if there is a requirement for a refugee program, although at the moment there may not be, the Government would consider it. It is premature to reach a conclusion until the interim Government is in place as indicated by the Governor General.

MEDICAL CARE

REPORTED REFUSAL BY DOCTORS TO TREAT 10-YEAR-OLD VICTIM OF RAPE

Hon. Jake Epp (Provencher): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister of National Health and Welfare. This week there was a ten-year old rape victim who was refused medical help for the reason that doctors who were asked to help "did not want to get involved in legal procedures". I recognize this is a complicated matter. Has the Minister had consultations with either the Minister of Justice or the Solicitor General on how information or evidence might be received and yet desperately needed medical help be given when there are legal implications? What advice does she have for the House or for her colleagues?

Hon. Monique Bégin (Minister of National Health and Welfare): Mr. Speaker, I expected the Hon. Member to ask when we were going to table the Medicare Act. He does not seem to be interested in that. He asked me a question which clearly should be directed to the Minister of Justice.

As to the responsibility which would fall in the field of health for the conduct of a doctor who refuses help and medical assistance to any patient, which I must advise him is provincial, this should be referred immediately to the Province in question. I have not been made aware by the Hon. Member of the incident and it has not been brought to my attention. Therefore I have to answer in a general theoretical way that that conduct should be reported immediately to the provincial medical association and to the provincial minister.

AGRICULTURE

CONVENING OF STANDING COMMITTEE

Mr. Charles Mayer (Portage-Marquette): Mr. Speaker, I have a question for the Hon. Member for Rimouski-Témiscouata in her capacity as Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture. The Committee has not met since September 12. There are many matters affecting agriculture. One of them was raised in the House today regarding agricultural trade and there is the whole area of farm finance. Would the Hon. Member be prepared to give us a commitment that she will approach her House Leader to see if, immediately upon our return on November 14, the very distinguished and hard-working Committee would again have a chance to meet and address some of the major concerns in the agricultural sector of the economy?

[Translation]

Mrs. Éva Côté (Rimouski-Témiscouata): Mr. Speaker, first I would like to congratulate the Member for Portage-Marquette on being appointed official critic for the Progressive Conservative Opposition, thus taking the place of the Member for Elgin. I also wish to thank the Hon. Member for Elgin who, during the three years I have been a Member of the Agriculture Committee, has worked very hard to make the Committee's proceedings a success.

There are a number of reasons why the Committee did not sit, but first I should say that from the outset, the Committee has been very successful in examining a number of Bills, including Canagrex. The Members of the Agriculture Committee have been travelling because they sat on the Transport Committee in connection with Bill C-155.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Could the Hon. Member perhaps answer the question?

Mrs. Côté: Certainly, Mr. Speaker. It is the first time the Member for Portage-Marquette asked me about the Agriculture Committee, and it seems to me that the most important piece of legislation was Bill C-155, which is before the House today and is of particular interest to farmers. When the House resumes sitting on November 14, I should be glad to get in touch with Committee Members to find out what can be done.

GRAIN

REQUEST FOR CASH ADVANCE PAYMENTS TO FARMERS

Mr. Gordon Taylor (Bow River): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister of Transport. The elevators in the Drumheller area are jammed, no grain has been moved for weeks, and many farmers are unable to deliver their quotas. The elevators in southern Saskatchewan are empty, and the Canadian Grain Commission indicated that in the last month they have delivered several million tonnes of grain less than they delivered last year. In view of these facts will the Minister investigate and arrange for an increase in the cash advance payments, to give the farmers some cash until the Canadian Wheat Board is able to get some cars into the area, or deal with the quota issue in southern Saskatchewan in order to start the grain moving again?

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, I will be examining the exact situation that the Hon. Member has drawn to my attention.

The broader question of advance payments is a matter that is now being very thoroughly examined by the Minister of State responsible for the Wheat Board. I hope that he will have some recommendations to bring forward to Cabinet very shortly. He has been waiting for the close of the 1983 crop year which is now virtually complete, and we expect to have some recommendations from him. Mr. Speaker, I think the Hon. Member's question demonstrates once again how important it is that we finally complete our discussion on the Crow so that we will have no problems in transportation in western Canada.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

STATISTICS CANADA

NUMBERS COUNTED IN LABOUR FORCE

Mr. Don Blenkarn (Mississauga South): Mr. Speaker, my question is supplementary to the question asked by the Hon. Member for St. John's, and is for the Minister responsible for Statistics Canada. We are quite pleased with the 11.1 per cent unemployment rate, but is it not a fact that the unemployment rate is down because he has reduced the number of people in the labour force by 52,000? What happened to those 52,000? Did they get the flu? Why were they taken out of the total labour force? What happened in Canada? Did we all of a sudden lose people? Is there a reduction in population? What is the problem?

[Translation]

Hon. Charles Lapointe (Minister of Supply and Services): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member should have some more information on the labour force survey, and I should be happy to give him a full briefing session, if he so desires. Why 52,000 people disappeared from the statistics? The reason is that the survey includes the following question: Did you seek employment during the last six months? If the answer is yes, the respondent is supposed to answer a sub-question: Did you seek employment during the last four weeks? As far as the people referred to by the Hon. Member are concerned, they answered no to the second question, to indicate that they had not sought employment during the last few weeks. That explains the difference, but I should be very happy, and I am sure the Chief Statistician of Canada would be as well, to provide a more comprehensive information session for the Hon. Member.

SHIPBUILDING

WAIVING OF CONTRACT PERFORMANCE REQUIREMENTS

Hon. Ron Huntington (Capilano): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister of Supply and Services. In light of the fact that bidding tenders on new ship construction were conditional on bid bonds and were priced on surety bond requirement, why did the Minister waive the contract performance requirements on contracts let on recent shipbuilding needs? Is the waiving of surety bonds a new Government policy?

[Translation]

Hon. Charles Lapointe (Minister of Supply and Services): Mr. Speaker, I wish the Hon. Member would give me a few examples before I try to answer his question.

[English]

GUIDELINES GOVERNING CONTRACTS

Hon. Ron Huntington (Capilano): Mr. Speaker, my supplementary question is for the same Minister. The Department of Supply and Services and Treasury Board both have guidelines on the letting of contracts. We remember the Bonaventure experience, and the fact that seven vessels built in 1982 are now either total write-offs or are in shipyards being repaired at prices beyond the original contract. Why are the Minister and the President of the Treasury Board not enforcing the guidelines at hand, to protect the public purse? A very serious situation exists in light of the contracts set, and it looks as though we are into a series of runaway price escalations.

● (1220)

[Translation]

Hon. Charles Lapointe (Minister of Supply and Services): Mr. Speaker, obviously, the question does not make sense, because I asked the Hon. Member to give me one or several examples of specific ships where we did not follow common practice, and he mentions the Bonaventure, which is something that happened many years ago. The letting of contracts was done as expeditiously as possible, Mr. Speaker, to create employment in Canadian shipyards, because that is what Canadian workers need at this time.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, if you seek the unanimous consent of the House that Orders of the Day be now read, I have good reason to believe that no one will object and that, therefore, the House would consent.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is there unanimous agreement that we now proceed to Orders of the Day?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

WESTERN GRAIN TRANSPORTATION ACT

MEASURE TO ESTABLISH

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport) moved that Bill C-155, an Act to facilitate the transportation, shipping and handling of western grain and to amend certain Acts in consequence thereof, be read the third time and do pass.

He said: Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased that the spirit with which we conducted business last night has carried over to today and will allow us, if I may draw an analogy from a movie I watched last night, to begin the "last waltz" on the Crow Bill.

I should like to say how enjoyable it has been to be a part of this interesting exercise over the past several months—perhaps we could even say years. It seems that after all this time, after the millions of words intered and the hundreds of pages of Hansard, a final round of speeches and declarations might be redundant. I believe it is useful, however, to recognize what an important and significant occasion this is. The House is engaged in final debate on a piece of legislation that will have important and beneficial significance for all Canadians for a long time to come.

This morning the Hon. Member for Crowfoot (Mr. Malone) said that in the last several weeks far too much attention has been paid by the media to the parliamentary games, the high jinks, the "Tory trot" where they bounced all over the dance floor, and the "NDP frug" where they stayed in one place and kept saying no, no, no. The concentration on those particular antics missed the point. As the Hon. Member for Crowfoot said, the media should be concentrating on the substance and depth of this Bill and the impact it will have. It has given a lot of occasion for commentary and an assessment of the machinations of the Parties as we zigzagged our way through the exercise, and certain columnists have had a chance to vent their ageing spleen on various people and personnel. The fact is, however, that the House has been engaged in a very important and significant initiative. It has been developing a basis for future growth and economic activity, not just in western Canada but in the entire country.

I think it is important that we recognize that all this took place only because of the extraordinary effort and initiative of a few key individuals. I am sure the history books will record better than I can in a short speech the names of those who played an important part in this legislation. I should like to take a moment, however, to pay tribute to certain individuals who were instrumental in bringing us to the point where we are about to decide on the importance of the Crow rate.

First and foremost I am sure Hon. Members would join me in paying tribute to my predecessor in this portfolio, the Minister of State for External Relations (Mr. Pepin), the former Minister of Transport. He was the author of the basic blueprint.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Axworthy: Through his perseverance, initiative and intelligence, he was able to devise a plan and work with a variety of groups to develop a proposal. Sometimes we tend to forget that the plan was based on the most extraordinarily extensive consultations ever undertaken with any piece of legislation. Hundreds of groups and thousands of individuals were brought in for in depth discussion and examination which culminated in the Gilson report. Members of major farm organizations, railroads and shippers were brought together in one place to hammer out the architecture for the reorganization of their programs. I think we all recognize the important contribution that the Minister of State for External Relations has made in this area.

Some very able Parliamentarians on this side of the House helped the Minister. I mention the Hon. Member for St. Boniface (Mr. Bockstael) and the Hon. Member for Parkdale-High Park (Mr. Flis) who, as his Parliamentary Secretary, sometimes escaped both the burden and the glory. Both were able to provide backup and support in the organization of the Bill.

I should also like to pay tribute to Members of the Transport Committee who spent many months at hearings in Ottawa and across the country. They listened to over 200 briefs and gave everyone who wanted it a chance to be heard. No one was turned down. Everyone who appeared had the right to give a presentation. Members from all sides of the House were party to that very important contribution. My only regret is that the chairman of the Committee, the Hon. Member for Northumberland-Miramichi (Mr. Dionne), is not in the House today to share in this moment. Unquestionably, of all those involved in the Committee, he was the leader. We on this side of the House would like to pay homage to his contribution to this very important piece of legislation.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Axworthy: I think it is important to recognize a number of other individuals who are not Members of the House but who also contributed. A number of very fine, highly qualified and dedicated public servants worked hundreds of thousands of hours not only in putting the Bill together, but in attending committee hearings, providing material and responding to the inquiries of Members of Parliament. Those men and women are very much part of this historical moment. A number of dedicated individuals in groups and organizations across Canada spent time on the Bill—not always in total harmony or agreement, we concede.

I think of many people from my Province who spent time in Ottawa with their organization in an effort to develop the best interests of their members and to represent the interests of the farming community and the various agrarian groups in Canada.

I want to mention all these people, Mr. Speaker, because regardless of what position was taken, no one can denigrate or downgrade the significance of what they are doing. I think it is important in this final round of debate that we clear away the sometimes intense interchange between Members of Parliament and come back to the basic consideration of what we are trying to do and what will be achieved by this legislation.

First and foremost, we are addressing the most critical factor, the most undeniable and essential ingredient in the prosperity of western agriculture, and that is the ability to move the product to market. The agrarian agricultural system of western Canada is almost unique in that it has to export virtually all its product. The geography of the west requires that the product be moved long distances by rail. Without that system of rail transportation, we could not sell. If we could not sell, we could not gain the kind of economic growth of which the entire country is the beneficiary.

One thing which has been clear for years, Mr. Speaker, is that freight rates have been a key to that development of western agriculture. However, we also have to recognize that something which has becme imbedded in history for well over 80 years must be re-examined in terms of its relevance today. What was becoming increasingly clear, not just to Hon. Members on this side of the House but to a wide variety of people, is that that system of freight rates was becoming counterproductive. It was preventing the development of a modern, up-to-date transportation system which would allow us to give certainty of market to our buyers, so that when they bought a bushel of grain from the Wheat Board or any other seller, they would be assured that the grain would be delivered on time and at a good price. We know from recent history that this is not the case right now. The reason it is not the case is that the Crow rates provide insufficient revenues to allow the railways to maintain a decent level of investment in the plant, rolling stock and maintenance of those railway lines to ensure that delivery. That is a simple, fundamental fact.

We are not going to get a good system of transportation if it cannot be paid for. If the money is not there to update it, to modernize it, to upgrade it, to make sure we have the hopper cars, the proper switching materials and the trackage, there will not be an efficient railway system which is so essential to western agriculture.

What was clear over the years is that the revenue base conditioned by the Crow was shrinking. There is an interesting article in today's The Globe and Mail which I would recommend to Hon. Members. It is the beginning of a continuing series about the CPR. It points out that when the Crow rate was first brought in, transportation represented 20 per cent of the farmers' costs. Today it represents 3 per cent or 4 per cent of those costs. Those are accurate figures and there is no one in this House who can deny it.

The fact of the matter is that over the years those rates have fluctuated up and down. However, what was becoming increasingly clear was a revenue shortfall. It does not take a great deal of wit about economics to realize that unless we can provide a system of payment to the railways to ensure a continuous, stable flow of revenue, it will be impossible for the railways to go to the capital market and generate the $15 billion or $16 billion worth of capital required in order to modernize the branch lines, the main track and the communication systems. There is no lender in North America or around the world who would lend the kind of capital the railways need unless they could demonstrate they have a revenue base to justify the repayment on that capital.

All the various schemes and formulae which we have heard bandied about over the last year and a half simply do not work because they defy logic and economics. A three-year freeze, a no-freeze, a one-sale-buy-out; none of these things will work. The time has come to end the capricious ad hoc financing of our railway system and to put in place a system which will ensure a continual, ever-growing expansion and modernization of the railway service in western Canada. That is what this Bill is all about, Mr. Speaker. That is why this Government has pursued this Bill against all opposition, because we believe it is the right thing to do.

More than that, we also know that the Crow rate, over a period of time, has begun to develop as well a serious distortion in the range of agricultural diversification in western Canada. It provided disparities in the kind of costs related to one product as compared with another. As a westerner, I believe the future of agriculture and the future of the economy in the west is dependent upon that diversification, on a broadening of our economic base. It is dependent on allowing westerners not only to grow a wider variety of products, but to process those products in western Canada, to have value added manufacturing and development in western Canada. That is the future of western Canada. That is what westerners must build their future on. We must have that diversification, that ability to broaden the base of our economy and to eliminate those distortions in our country.

Mr. Huntington: That is absolute distortion of the truth.

Mr. Gustafson: Pay the producer, then.

Mr. Axworthy: I will get to the Hon. Member from British Columbia in just a moment. Just hold on.

Mr. Huntington: I am looking forward to it.

Mr. Axworthy: The third element of the Bill is that not only does it broaden in the long term a modern railway system and begin to eliminate the distortion—even in the present legislation, if the Hon. Member knew anything about it, which he does not—but it also unquestionably is the largest, single economic growth project in the history of Canada. We are talking about an investment of $16.5 billion of direct capital, never mind the secondary or tertiary benefits. We are talking about direct capital investment. We are talking about over 300,000 jobs. We are talking about benefits spread from one end of the country to the other.

I have to admit to being amazed at times at certain Hon. Members opposite who were standing on their feet with the utmost indignation and opposing a Bill which would have brought hundreds of thousands of jobs to their region.

Mr. McKnight: Name three.

Mr. Axworthy: I am going to name them right now. I will start with the Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Mulroney). I do not want to say too much because I know I will hurt his feelings. I know what a sensitive soul he has, so I do not want to say too much about it. However, what about the 800 workers who are working in the Trenton steel works plant today because of this Bill?

Mr. Hnatyshyn: That is not right and you know it.

Mr. Axworthy: Is he prepared to continue to oppose a Bill which is providing work for 800 of his constituents? What about the Hon. Members from British Columbia, both the Conservative and New Democratic Members, who by their continual delay have rejected the investment of over $3 billion in the economy of British Columbia—

Mr. Huntington: Name the Member from British Columbia.

Mr. Axworthy: —with 70,000 or 80,000 jobs going in there.

Mr. Huntington: That is absolutely not the truth, Lloyd, and you know it.

Mr. Axworthy: I want those Members to go back and tell their constituents—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please.

Mr. Gustafson: Mr. Speaker, this Party has never said that we were against development. We were against—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order. There is a ten-minute question and answer period following the speech of every Hon. Member, including the Minister. That is the opportunity for this type of crossfire.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I certainly would welcome it if Hon. Members, during the course of their remarks on their reading, explain their stand in opposing that major mass of job creation projects. How could one expect the Minister of Finance (Mr. Lalonde), the Minister of Employment and Immigration (Mr. Roberts) or anyone on this side to take the wild indignation of Hon. Members on that side seriously?

Mr. Gustafson: You always have the same answer.

Mr. Axworthy: We listened this morning to the Hon. Member for St. John's East (Mr. McGrath) standing up and asking "Where are your job creation projects?" And we have been sitting in this House for months with a piece of legislation which would create hundreds of thousands of jobs and—

Mr. Gustafson: Like the National Energy Policy.

Mr. Axworthy: —and that Party has been the opponent of it. How can those Hon. Members expect to be taken seriously by anyone as they stood in their places, waving their arms and flapping their wings with wild cries of horror and resentment, when in fact what they were doing was stopping the engine of growth which could fuel this economy and create hundreds of thousands of jobs?

Mr. Gustafson: Just like the National Energy Policy, in the same way?

Mr. Axworthy: That is something that they will have to answer for at some point—

Mr. Huntington: Let us go to the people.

Mr. Axworthy: —because their constituents know this. The reason they were receiving those letters and telegrams saying "Quit fooling around in Parliament" is because their constituents know what this Bill will mean to economic growth in this country. I believe, Mr. Speaker, that has been the purpose of the Bill and that is the reason this Government has considered it to be of the highest priority.

We also recognize there are issues which have to be faced. When I was asked to take over this Ministry and met with a number of farm leaders across this country, it was made clear to me that certain issues still had to be recognized. One was the question of the ability to pay the farmers. We all recognize the kind of squeeze affecting farmers under the present grain levels—

Mr. Gustafson: It is too late now, you have done it.

Mr. Axworthy: —but what we were able to do, Mr. Speaker, is introduce into this Bill, passed last night at report stage, a major insurance policy for the farmers through the safety net.

Mr. Gustafson: Ten per cent.

Mr. Axworthy: If the Hon. Member for Assiniboia (Mr. Gustafson) would go over the historical record of grain prices, he would recognize, as I have just said, that at the time the Crow rate originated the farmers were paying 20 per cent of cost, not 10 per cent. There is a continuing fluctuation. If they knew anything about the economics of grain, they would recognize that.

● (1240)

Beginning next year we are providing a 4 per cent safety net, then 5 per cent, 6 per cent, 8 per cent, 9 per cent and 10 per cent, to ensure farmers are protected against any drastic change in the cost/price ratio. We are aware of the problem and have tried to respond with the recommendations put forward by Hon. Members. We recognized their concern and the need to provide that degree of protection and assurance so that farmers recognize this Bill is not designed to provide for a major pull-out. But it does have a ceiling on costs related to the over-all price of grain. That is the safety net and that is why I am pleased we had that amendment passed last evening. I appreciate the co-operation of Members of the Opposition in allowing that amendment to be introduced and passed.

We have also recognized, Mr. Speaker, the very important divergence of opinion over method of payment. Let us clear up that issue. We recognize that the original proposition put forward by my predecessor included a 50/50 method of payment to producers and railroads. But it was the opposition of major agricultural groups in provinces represented by Members opposite which brought about that change. It was the pools of western Canada that demanded that the railways receive full payment. It was the organizations representing the majority of grain producers that spoke with a very clear voice to say the basis of their support is payment to the railways. On that issue we felt we had to make the change.

We also recognize that the issue is not closed. It still must be brought forward for examination. There will be a parliamentary review in 1985-86. To ensure that is simply not a re-creation of what we have had in the past several months, we have also established a special commission to bring together experts to examine the various methods of payment and determine what the impact will be so that Members of Parliament will be able to make a more learned, rational judgment about the proper method of payment to be implemented. We have given further assurances to the groups concerned that not only will the report be tabled in the House, but it will also be available for debate so there will be a clear window through which the views of the different Parties can be expressed.

These examples demonstrate we have tried to respond to the concerns and be sensitive to the issues raised. We have tried to be flexible in making changes. We have accepted many amendments, such as that put forward by the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) on export definitions. Over 80 amendments have been accepted, not only in committee but during report stage. We have negotiated with Members opposite in an attempt to get the best kind of Bill. We do not claim it is perfect but we are saying it is an important beginning.

I would like to conclude my remarks by saying that we now have to implement this legislation well and effectively. The major challenge now is how to bring into full, effective implementation the many important, major steps brought forward in this Bill: the establishment of the Grain Committee, development of the Review Commission, the organization of rates and the ability to provide a more efficient and effective transportation system. We have to bring together representatives of the grain companies, the railroads, the elevators, the ports and the truckers. They are the major players and they will be required to develop the dynamics of improving the system. They will do that simply by displaying what they are prepared to do.

There are in this Bill major safeguards concerning the performance of the railways, not only through examination and evaluation by the Canadian Transport Commission, but also through the sanctions and rewards the Minister of Transport can impose if the railways do not live up to the expectations and requirements we make of them. There are a number of critically essential initiatives which must be taken. This must be done in a spirit of co-operation. It certainly would be in my interests as the Minister of Transport, and in the interests of this Government, to begin working with the farm organizations, municipalities and others involved to make this Bill work for the interests of western agriculture and the interests of our country. That is our intention now. We can put the debate and controversy behind us. We have to get the Bill working.

I invite Members of the Opposition, Mr. Speaker, to join in this effort. We recognize there is opposition, but surely they recognize how important this Bill is to their constituents and the country. I hope they will be able to put their feelings aside and, when we vote on this Bill, turn their minds to helping us bring about legislation which is written not just on paper but will begin to take on life and meaning and become one of the most important and significant milestones in the future growth and development of the agricultural system of western Canada and the economic system of our country. Members of Parliament are truly engaged in a rare opportunity to do something of major importance for the country. I am pleased we are now at a stage where we can all join not only in the passage of the bill but its future development and implementation.

Mr. Huntington: Mr. Speaker, as is his pattern, the Minister has made an awful lot about $16 billion of benefits to the economic structure of western Canada. He will have to pardon some of us if we are a little skeptical about the arithmetic. We have been hearing about $4.5 billion for double tracking, $2.5 billion as early as 1971 at the transportation conference in Calgay, and we see these figures recycled and ballooned one on top of the other and rotated through the press for political purposes.

How fair and how sound does the Minister think that figure of $16 billion is in light of the fact that the Province of British Columbia turned the coal lands over to the CPR in a deal tied to the Crow when those lands in today's market are worth something like $450 billion? This bill does not return those lands to the Province, but rather grabs them from the Province and turns them over to PetroCan. What kind of fairness and equity and sense of well-being does he think that will develop between the people of British Columbia and the federal Government?

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I am fully aware of how the Hon. Member for Capilano (Mr. Huntington) is an entrenched skeptic, along with some other attributes that go with that. I will take the opportunity to give him the evidence he asks for. In British Columbia we are talking about direct expenditures by the railways of $5.4 billion, which will result in 87,000 person-years of work. That will mean $3.1 billion worth of labour income, which results in about $4.4 billion of gross domestic product, and about $8.5 billion in total industrial sales.

We are talking about a major project involving over 3,000 workers in the Roger's Pass tunnel. We are talking about several thousand workers in the Prince George area. We are talking about the Valemount to Prince Rupert rail line and 400 person-years of work. We are talking about expenditure of $900 million on the main line between Vancouver and Valemount.

Those are some examples of what is going to happen in his Province, Mr. Speaker. No thanks to him because he has been one of the most obdurate, unthinking and unresponsive Members of this House to that kind of investment. Those are the kinds of projects we are talking about in immediate terms, starting now.

When we come to the question of coal lands, if the Government of the Province of British Columbia had taken any interest in the issue, it might have made some representations to us. It has not done that yet.

Mr. Schellenberger: Mr. Speaker, I have a couple of questions for the Minister. Before I ask those questions though, in light of the importance of the matter now before the House of Commons I think Hon. Members should be given every opportunity within the constraint of time allocation that was passed by the House to debate this Bill, and therefore, pursuant to provisions of Standing Order 8(4)(a), I move, seconded by the Hon. Member for Assiniboia (Mr. Gustafson):

That the House continue to sit through the lunch hour today for the purpose of considering third reading stage of Bill C-155, an Act to facilitate the transportation, shipping and handling of western grain and to amend certain Acts in consequence thereof.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The House has heard the terms of the motion. All those in favour will please say yea.

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): All those opposed will please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): In my opinion the nays have it. According to the provisions of Standing Order 8(4)(a), if 25 Members rise in their places to object, the motion is declared defeated. Shall the motion carry?

And 25 Members having risen:

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): It has been confirmed by myself and by the Clerk that exactly 25 Members have risen to oppose the motion. Accordingly, the motion is defeated.

Are Hon. Members standing on points or order?

Some Hon. Members: Questions.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for Wetaskiwin (Mr. Schellenberger) has not yet completed his remarks.

Mr. Schellenberger: Mr. Speaker, I am deeply disappointed that the Government would not allow one additional hour for debate. We have been trying to debate the motions in the House for weeks now without that opportunity given to certain amendments that were moved at the beginning by Members of the NDP. One extra hour of debate would have helped a small bit by allowing us to put forward our positions.

In any event, I would like to ask the Minister a question. Given that the Government will not accept the burden to pay this subsidy to the producer, how will the Government deal with the injury to the livestock industry that will be created by this Bill for the next three years until the review is in place? Is it the Government's intention, now that it has not accepted any of the amendments that would assist in this area, to use the agricultural adjustment fund in the next three years in some way to assist the livestock producer in western Canada and the agri-business that the Minister has just spoken of in order to allow them to continue in some manner until this review has been undertaken?

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, first let me address myself to the opening remarks of the Hon. Member for Westaskiwin (Mr. Schellenberger). I think his remarks demonstrate the importance of what I mentioned in my closing remarks, and that is working in co-operation. If Members of the House had indicated in some way prior to the moving of the motion their interest in continuing the debate, we would have had a chance to consider the motion. However, springing that motion on us by surprise with no prior consultation with House Leaders according to their agreement demonstrates which side is really playing fair on this question.

I can give the Hon. Member the assurance that we would have responded if there had been any attempt, initiative or willingness on the part of the Hon. Member opposite to send a note indicating his intention. I think that that demonstrates that co-operation is working on both sides, Mr. Speaker, not just on one side alone. I believe, Mr. Speaker, that the sooner Hon. Members on the opposite side learn that, the better off we will be.

I shall now address myself to the questions asked by the Hon. Member. First, there is a relevance to the livestock distortion through the very fact that the rates themselves will be increasing. Of course, the costs will be increasing. That is part of the rate, but that does reduce the cost differential. I would remind the Hon. Member that if he would look at the projected scale rates, he would see that the Crow has maintained the status quo. If the amendment put forward by his Party had been accepted, that distortion would have grown larger. By not maintaining the status quo, that distortion would not have stayed the same but would have grown even larger. The real fact is that there would have been a higher distortion in those areas.

Dealing with the second part of the Hon. Member's question, Mr. Speaker, we have stated clearly that as part of the contingency related to the review in 1985-86, a $204 million adjustment fund has been set aside in reserve contingency for that period pending the outcome of that review.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please. Hon. Members will be aware that I am trying to facilitate the ability of both Opposition Parties to ask questions and I think it would be reasonable, in view of the interruption for the purpose of taking a vote, that we might agree to extend the period of questions and answers until one o'clock. May I ask Hon. Members to try to keep questions and answers very brief? There are quite a few Hon. Members who would like to put questions and comments to the Minister.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, I have three questions for the Minister. I will put them all at once and I will put them quickly. When the new Minister lost his virginity at the committee hearings on his very first appearance, he talked about how he wanted to co-operate. He could not do that just now.

Can the Minister name one farm organization on either side of the argument that supports this Bill the way it stands at the moment? Second, what is the Government's policy on the disposition of the Dominion coal lands? Will it return them to the Province of British Columbia, which is where they should be, or will it not? Third, in light of the telex received from the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool in which the Saskatchewan Pool indicated that unless four fundamental changes were made to the Bill, it should be scrapped, and in light of the fact that at least three of those four changes have not been accepted by the Government, does the Government still intend to leave the Bill as is? The word received from the Alberta and Manitoba Pools indicated that unless three changes were made, the Bill should be scrapped. What is the Minister's response to that?

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I find it a trifle ironic that the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) who has been the author of countless hundreds of hours of wasted parliamentary time through petitions and points of order of total irrelevance is now complaining about the loss of one hour's debating time. If he is seriously concerned about using full debating time, why then would his Party have taken up tens of hundreds of hours of parliamentary time when the debate could have gone forward? Why was it that his Party brought forward so many amendments at report stage that we were not able to get to many of the critical and essential amendments but were debating amendments that had been examined in committee for tens of hundreds of hours? He simply brought them back for repetition. Frankly, Mr. Speaker, that is a presumptuous statement by a very self-righteous Member of Parliament which he has no business making.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Axworthy: I would also remind the Hon. Member, Mr. Speaker, that the questions he asked were questions that have all been answered before in committee and just now. Dealing with the Dominion coal lands, the Province of British Columbia itself has not made the initiative on that question. What kind of discussion does the Hon. Member want to get into about that?

On the Hon. Member's second question which dealt with farm organizations, I would only refer him to the latest series of stories I have heard. One which I would like to relate to him deals with a distinguished farmer from my own Province of Manitoba. He said: "What good is a bushel of grain to me if I cannot give it to someone who wants to buy it?" He said he is prepared to go for it. I would suggest to him that there are thousands of farmers in the Prairies who recognize that the move we are making is essential to their future and they are supporting us.

• (1300)

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I really should not recognize another Hon. Member but I have had the courtesey of being advised of his intentions and I think the House can deal with the matter as it sees fit.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, before I begin, I wonder whether the Government might not reconsider and offer unanimous consent to sit through the lunch hour?

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I will put that question and then I will call it one o'clock, depending, of course, on the decison. Is there unanimous consent to sit during the lunch hour?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): There is not unanimous consent. I now call it one o'clock. At two o'clock the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) will take the floor.

At 1.02 p.m. the House took recess.

AFTER RECESS

The House resumed at 2 p.m.

Hon. Don Mazankowski (Vegreville): Mr. Speaker, at the outset let me indicate that it is very difficult to deal with a complex piece of legislation such as the one with which we are dealing today in one allocated day. A number of motions were presented and placed on the Order Paper. Probably between 60 and 70 of them have not been dealt with. This Bill is far from perfect; it has many defects and deficiencies. We are being asked to try to cover all its aspects in this final stage. However, I say very honestly that it is a task which cannot be achieved.

I am disappointed as well in the fact that the Government refused to allow unanimous consent on this final day of debate to provide Hon. Members on all sides with another hour in which to express their views and deal with some of the issues that have not yet been dealt with, particularly, as the Minister pointed out earlier, issues which go to the very core of the Bill. Those issues could not be debated at second reading, could not be considered at committee stage or at report stage. We are really being denied an opportunity to deal with major points, such as the method of payment, the safety net and the ability of farmers to pay.

Anyone inside or outside the Chamber who believes that with the passage of this Bill the controversy surrounding the Crow will go away is fooling himself or herself. I say that without equivocation. My belief is that the new Crow regime which will emerge from the Bill will be more contentious and far more controversial than the old Crow. Moreover, there is no doubt in my mind nor in the minds of Hon. Members of my Party that this measure will be most oppressive to western agriculture. Unless major changes are made, it will do irreparable harm to the western agricultural economy, which is still one of our basic industries, the one upon which we rely the most and upon which Canada as a nation relies to a great extent.

When the debate started back in the middle of May, our Party expressed some very grave reservations about a number of matters. I want to deal with the more important matters. Other Hon. Members will be dealing with them as well and with other issues which relate thereto. At the very outset we expressed serious reservations about the ability of farmers to pay more for the movement of grain, particularly at a time when they have had input cost increases of 300 per cent to 400 per cent over the last ten years. Also we indicated that commodity prices had fallen to a level equivalent to 1972-73, that fuel costs had doubled in 2.5 years and that the federal Government was ripping off individual farmers to the extent of $275 million annually just in taxes. We say prairie farm incomes decline by 29 per cent in 1982. We know what happened to interest rates, a 400 per cent to 500 per cent increase. Aslo we know that 10 per cent to 15 per cent of western canadian farmers are on the verge of bankruptcy.

We pointed out that at a time when other countries were increasing their support and subsidies for grain producers, we were going in the other direction; we were reducing ours. Based upon the last ten years, the average subsidy received by United States wheat farmers amounted to $11.41 per tonne, EEC wheat farmers were subsidized to the tune of $19.96 per tonne and Canadian wheat farmers received an average subsidy or support of $6.35 per tonne, which was primarily comprised of the transportation component, the Crowsnest Pass freight rate or the statutory freight rate. Canadian barley producers were faced with a similar situation. They received a subsidy on average over the last ten years of $6.32 per tonne, whereas United States producers received $7.57 per tonne and EEC producers received $32.80 per tonne. This study was conducted by a consulting firm commissioned by the Province of Manitoba.

When we look at Canada in relation to the United States, we find that in the 1982-83 crop year while Canadian wheat producers were supported by the federal treasury through the Crow rate by 37 cents per bushel, United States wheat producers received a subsidy of something in the order of $1.12 per bushel.

We could talk about the benefits or the breaks that Argentinian and Australian farmers receive in terms of freight rate subsidies, but I point out in passing that we are reducing our support to grain farmers while other countries are increasing their support. Whenever that happens, Canadian farmers lose because Canadian producers are price-takers not price-setters. Any increase in freight rate to producers will result in reduced income because they cannot pass the increase on to the customers.

The second area to which we took very strong exception was the ever-escalating freight rate structure and its openendedness with which farmers would be faced. This structure was being based upon so-called railway costs, a self-perpetuating cost-plus regime for which farmers would pay very dearly. In conjunction with that, the complexity of trying to figure out the freight rate was explained during the process of committee hearings. However, to establish such a freight rate a time frame of 2.5 years is required. Farmers will not know their freight rates for the current crop year until the freight rate cycle is completed 2.5 years hence.

The Minister has come up with a safety net. The general principle of a safety net would be supported by most people in the Chamber and indeed in the agricultural community. But when we look at the safety net which the Minister brought forth, we find on the basis of the calculations and the figures provided by the Department of Transport that for the year 1983-84 the freight rates would have to rise to $8 per tonne or grain prices would have to fall to a weighted average of $144 per tonne in order to activate the safety net. We know very well that on the basis of the figures for 1982-83, the weighted average was $192.88. That is pretty low. It is the 1972-73 level.

As we look at the period 1990-91, in order for the safety net to be triggered, prices would have to remain the same in 1990-91 as they are today. That is not much of a safety net. It is not much protection. It becomes obvious that the farmers will essentially have to be in dire straits before this will have any effect on them. That concern still remains intact.

Third, we took exception to the fact that this Bill locked in the method of payment to the railways. We said that what it really does is, in effect, provide them with a guaranteed annual income. My friends to the left in the NDP support that principle. While they condemn the railways on the one hand, they say the money should all go to the railways. We say that this will further perpetuate the distortions that this Bill was supposed to address. It will perpetuate the same inefficiencies that have been in existence heretofore. It will perpetuate the cost-plus system. This will be paid for by the farmers and taxpayers of Canada.

Quite frankly, this Bill is not going to address those problems which this Minister was supposed to address, namely the distortions. The Minister talked today about diversification and broadening the base of agriculture, encouragement to the livestock industry and the processing industry. I say they will be worse off than before; there is no question about that. That is why in the October 24 edition of Agriweek, there is an article entitled "Prairie Groups Withdraw Support for Fed's Crow Bill". I quote from the article:

> In Winnipeg, October 12, the Prairie Farm Commodity Coalition, the United Grain Growers, Manitoba Farm Bureau, the Western Feed Grains Council, Alberta and Saskatchewan Stock Growers said that there had to be major changes to the Crow Bill.

If not, they said kill the bill.

Those allies who were on the side of the Government when the former Minister started this process have now left the sinking ship. They are not in support of it either. I can also quote from an independent group, the Canada West Foundation, which has passed judgment on Bill C-155. It outlines the winners and losers, and I will have more to say about this. The winners are clearly the two national railways. I quote from page 8 of their brief:

> The losers . . . under the method of payment scheme laid out in Bill C-155, the long term interests of western Canada will not be served—major losers in the Crow debate are Prairie livestock interests as represented by feed grain producer and livestock associations. Bill C-155 clearly discriminates against these groups by encouraging farmers through its subsidy structure to produce grain for export markets . . . the biggest losers are western Canadian agribusiness. Paying the Crow benefit to the railways deals a near death-blow to the existing and future agricultural processing in western Canada.

The Minister talked about the great splash of processing and manufacturing activity that will take place. This statement comes from an independent body, the Canada West Foundation. It is an independent think thank which has passed judgment on this. One has only to look at the groups that have come out in opposition to this measure.

What is happening is that of the four or five principles which the former Minister wanted to achieve, only one principle will be achieved. Maybe we will get more capacity in the railways. The railways will certainly get paid. They will be the major beneficiaries because this is nothing more than a sweetheart deal for the railways.

This brings me to my next point. I am pleased to see the former Minister as well as the current Minister in the House. At the time this debate started, we took exception to the generosity of this package as far as the railways are concerned. As I said, it is a sweetheart deal. It constitutes a form of corporate welfare unprecedented in this country. One has only to look at the record to confirm that.

We were also less than impressed by the so-called notional schemes, the awards and sanctions that were being imposed that would guarantee performance, efficiency and investment. We tried in the committee to tighten that up. We also tried to tighten it up in report stage. My colleague, the Hon. Member for Kindersley-Lloydminster (Mr. McKnight) tried in Motion No. 58 to tighten up that provision. Unfortunately, the axe of closure fell and we were not able to deal with that motion. I just want to confirm what this means to the railroads. I am not picking on CPR because I think the other railway will be served in much the same way. I quote from the Wood Gundy report of July 12, 1983:

> The federal initiative will add an estimated $3.50 per share in earnings in the 1983-85 period.

I quote from a recent document dated September, 1983 put out by Wood Gundy commenting on the CPR:

> The Crow revision will be a primary engine of this growth which should propel the railway's net earnings to almost double their previous peak (1981) by 1985.

This will, in effect, double the railways' earnings over their best year ever, 1981, between now and 1985. It really is a sweetheart Bill.

We were told during the committee stage that there is at least $40 to $50 million worth of fat in this package. The two competing consultants who appeared before the committee took issue with that and documented it very accurately. These were some of the concerns that we expressed when we started debate on this issue in mid-May. We still have these concerns today. They are issues that have not been rectified. Since that time, during the course of the hearings and the six months that have elapsed, the Government has really not done anything to allay these concerns and fears. It has provided some window dressing and made a few gestures, but really nothing substantive.

During second reading debate and outside the House as well, the former Minister said that he would look at ways and means of reducing the burden on the producer. He said he would entertain the possibility of adjusting the 31.1 million tonne cap. It has been adjusted somewhat because there have been additional crops which have been brought in. He was going to look at the pros and cons of that. Also, he was again going to look seriously at the method of payment. It was really on that basis that this Bill passed second reading and went to committee. When it got to committee, we found that these matters could not be dealt with. They were found to be out of order, going beyond the Royal Proclamation or beyond the expressed intent of the Bill as it passed second reading.

What happened after that? The former Minister was dumped and a new Minister was named. He appeared before the committee, and I commend him for that, within a couple of days of his appointment. He was the epitome of conciliation and accommodation. He was going to listen to the committee. He challenged the committee to bring forth proposals with respect to the method of payment, a different freight rate structure and with respect to finding ways and means and reducing the burden on producers. He even came up with some suggestions on the agriculture adjustment fund; there was no mechanism to implement that. It was not in the terms of reference.

We have been working at this. My colleague from Wetaskiwin (Mr. Schellenberger) outlined his proposal for the utilization of the agriculture adjustment fund. I commend it to the Minister because, as he says, the $204 million is still in the envelope. He recognizes, and everyone who understands this Bill just a little bit knows, that the livestock hurt is still there and it is going to be worse as more grain moves more freely to export markets. That will simply exacerbate the problem. I ask the Minister to look at the proposal of my colleague the Hon. Member for Wetaskiwin.

The Minister appeared before the committee and said outside the committee that there was one thing that was not negotiable, and that was the method of payment. All this good will that was generated, all this conciliation and these acts of accommodation were nothing but fluff. He had not met his caucus. As well as committing himself to one review that was included in the Bill, the Minister also committed himself to set up a special commission of inquiry under the Inquiries Act, where we witnesses can be subpoenaed and evidence taken under oath, to study the method of payment.

They also found out they had some reservations about the sweetheart deal to the railroads with respect to the constant costs, so the Government set up another study to look at the appropriateness of constant costs, which is really nothing but a profit to the railroads. The railways are going to receive full cost recovery for the movement of grain. Included in that cost recovery is a component for return on investment of anywhere from 18 per cent to 20 per cent and depreciaiton. On top of that, they are going to get a 20 per cent mark-up. It is a 20 per cent cost-plus operation. Without the constant costs the railways are still going to receive more than $1 billion a year for moving grain between their payments from the farmers, the Government the railway rehabilitation and all the other programs.

They are saying now: "Pass the Bill and we will review the impact after the Bill is passed". One review which is enshrined in the Bill is to study the impact assessment, the farmers' ability to pay, the appropriateness of the freight rates imposed upon the farmers. We have been saying: "Let us study the impact on the increased freight rates on the farmer and whether there is a better way to distribute the method of payment before we burden the producers with these exorbitant freight rate increases".

The Government have the cart before the horse. They are doing everything backward. We had a golden opportunity because there was no consensus for Crow reform and there is no consensus now. The reason there is no consensus now is that, this Minister chose to do nothing different from the former Minister. He had a golden opportunity to bring forth a new approach which would have taken into consideration those concerns of western Canada. He could and should have defended the interests of western Canadian agriculture, but he turned out to be a pygmy. He was crushed by the overwhelming influence of his Quebec colleagues. It is disturbing to westerners that, while this issue has implications right across the country, it is a western issue which is being solved—

Mr. Dubois: It is a Canadian issue.

Mr. Mazankowski: Yes, it is a Canadian issue, but the real core of it is a western issue. The implications and the spin-off extends throughout the whole of the country but it is a western issue. The formula for Crow reform has been prescribed, not by westerners but by the politicians from Quebec and Ontario with a western Minister presiding. That is a shame and a failure. There is no question in my mind that it is going to cripple—

Some Hon. Members: Say that in Quebec.

Mr. Mazankowski: Yes, I will say it in Quebec. I will say it anywhere because it is the truth. I regret that very much. I am surprised that the Members opposite are not receptive to hearing what the views of people in other parts of Canada are.

An Hon. Member: What are the rules on that?

Mr. Mazankowski: Well, someone will cover that before the day is over.

Mr. Axworthy: Where are the pools?

Mr. Huntington: Are they the Government now, Mr. Minister? Are the pools the Government now? Give away the polling and go to the pools.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member for Vegreville has the floor.

Mr. Mazankowski: The Minister asks where are the pools. I do not see the pools joyously clapping their hands and supporting this Bill. They are not supporting this Bill at all. It only confirms that this Bill is going to cripple the livestock industry and could spell the demise of many farms and farm communities.

An Hon. Member: What did they tell you in western Canada?

Mr. Mazankowski: The Hon. Member opposite who is not sitting in his seat is asking, "What to they tell you in western Canada?" I will tell him what they told us in western Canada. I am quoting from a brief that was presented by the Research Action and Education Centre, Regina, Saskatchewan. They say that on the basis of their calculations this Bill will have the effect of removing some 30,000 to 35,000 farms from rural Saskatchewan during the next decade.

Mr. Gustafson: Right on.

Mr. Mazankowski: These people are worried about jobs. What about the poor farmers that are going to be driven out of business as a result of this legislation? This is not a farmers' brief. It is a brief that was put together by university academics who have an agricultural base and understand the social and economic fabric of Saskatchewan and western Canada.

I say that the Minister has been a failure. He has been overwhelmed and crushed by the influences within the Liberal caucus that have a lot more influence than he. I regret that very much because I know the Minister firmly believes that his method of payment solution is not satisfactory. I know that and I commend him for trying, but that is the way the Liberal Party operates.

Throughout the debate we have opposed those sections of the legislation which we believed to be wrong and we have proposed alternatives. We advanced a proposition that would lighten the burden of producers and give them a chance to adjust. This decision was taken after a great deal of care and deliberation. We went out and heard what the producers, communities and groups in western Canada had to say. They convinced us that the time was not ready for the dismantlement of the Crow and that this was not the time to impose an additional burden upon the backs of producers. Therefore, we have advanced the proposition for retaining the Crowsnest Pass freight rates until the end of the 1985-86 crop year. It would not cost the treasury any money. It would just mean that during that period the railways would not get their contribution to constant costs. That is their 20 per cent profit. We are talking about something under $200 million because it is now a two and one-half year freeze since the new rates will come into effect on January 1. Mr. Speaker, that would have given the Government some time to do its impact assessment and review analysis to see what the effect would be on the individual family farm, the farm communities and the western agricultural community as a whole. They could then look at the various scenarios with respect to the method of payment and determine what effect this method or that method of payment would have upon future processing and the livestock industry.

Speaking of future processing, the canola processors are worse off now than they were before the Bill was passed and their product is being included as a statutory grain. It is ridiculous for the Minister to stand in his place and say that all these new things are going to occur.

We made a very serious proposal. It was practical and was based on common sense. It would have given the producers some time to prepared for any potential increase and we think this was the right way to go about it. It would have been fair and equitable.

We advanced proposals with respect to the method of payment. In an attempt to break the deadlock we proposed freedom of choice, not a formula delivered from on high. We challenged the western agricultural groups to examine the freedom of choice method of payment. The Alberta Government and a number of Alberta farm groups came up with the double 80 proposal. The Manitoba Farm Bureau came up with a very good proposal which would have offered freedom of choice and allowed further diversification in spreading the Crow benefit among a larger group of producers. I am sure there are more proposals as well. The Minister looked at them but then he said: "It is not negotiable". Mr. Speaker, what is the point of pursuing it any further? The Minister chose, instead, and elaborate review process.

Even at this late date we are merely asking that the Minister include a permissive provision in the Bill which would allow another method of payment after the review process is completed. If the inquiry comes forward with a recommendation for another method of payment, there is nothing in the Bill to allow the change to be made. We are asking that the provision be inserted so that by Order in Council, subject to parliamentary approval, a modified method of payment may be incorporated after a review. We contend that this is a reasonable and realistic proposal.

We offered amendments to include the B.C. Railway. I am pleased that the Government saw fit to allow that and, with some degree of reluctance, the Minister included the B.C.

Railway as an eligible railway to receive subsidies under the program.

We proposed ways and means of cutting back on the generosity of the railroads by eliminating the constant cost until we could determine with some degree of accuracy what level was appropriate. The Government suggested that the railways need the money now. They are certainly going to be a lot better off than they were previously, Mr. Speaker. They are going to get full cost recovery including return on investment and provision for depreciation. We said that was fine but that 20 per cent profit was a bit much so we backed it off. I wonder how many farmers operate at a profit of 20 per cent over cost. No business in the world has that kind of sweetheart deal.

We made changes to the Senior Grain Transportation Committee and tried to strengthen the role of the Grain Transportation Agency Administrator. In committee we contributed to a better bill but we cannot support the burden the Government is proposing to impose on producers and the fact that the method of payment is totally wrong. I say to you, Mr. Speaker, that we maintained a responsible position. We worked hard in an attempt to seek out and prescribe a solution that would be fair and in the best interests of all.

Mr. Pepin: You were divided.

Mr. Mazankowski: The Minister is carrying on a conversation now. He knows that the agricultural community is divided in western Canada.

Mr. Pepin: So are you in your Party.

Mr. Mazankowski: At least we are prepared to listen to various points of view and to work toward a solution. The Party opposite says it has the answer and come hell or high water, that is the proposal; it will be rammed down our throats.

Mr. Pepin: Some day you must make a decision.

Mr. Mazankowski: All this leads to further disharmony and will strain regional tensions in the country. I regret having to say that, Mr. Speaker.

The concerns that existed last May exist today. In terms of the additional burden being placed on producers we say, let us see the review before we accept it. That is a logical, common sense, realistic proposal.

I find it strange that some people are surprised that we advanced the proposal for the two and a half year freeze. Anyone who followed the debate closely might have drawn that conclusion. Anyone who followed the committee proceedings would not have been surprised. I should like to read into the record what I said in debate on May 12, because I think it will put the whole thing into perspective. As reported at page 25382 of Hansard I said:

> This Bill will have a very dramatic impact on the economy and social lifestyle of western Canada. It is very, very difficult to gauge the degree of that impact. That is why this House and Canadians in general will have to move very slowly and deliberately on this legislation.

> To begin dismantling the historic and statutory rates enjoyed by producers in western Canada is in some respects to approach the land of the unknown. The social and economic base of western Canada has largely been founded upon the production, distribution, marketing and transportation of grain. Certain patterns evolved as a result of that. The Crowsnest Pass statutory freight rate was a major component of the development of those patterns. In essence, the Crowsnest Pass statutory freight rate served as a constitutional pillar of the western agricultural industry.

I went on to talk about the difficult times that farmers were facing. As reported at page 25384 I said:

> I think a strong case can be made, therefore, for no increase until such time as the price of the farmer's commodity increases or at least reaches a level which will bear some semblance to the price of input costs and, indeed, bear some relationship to the international marketplace.

I repeated that at page 25385. The Minister of Transport was not in the House during that debate so I bring it to his attention now. I said:

> This is certainly not the time to be imposing an additional burden upon the backs of the farmers of western Canada.

I repeated that and I do not know how many times I can say it. I then went on to outline my reasons. We expected change and accommodation when the new Minister took over but we did not get it. Today we are being asked to pass a Bill which the prairie community does not support and the Government is not prepared to listen to us.

I should like to close by saying a few things about the Bill to my urban friends. Those who live in urban areas in the country are probably sick and tired of hearing about the Crow, particularly those who live in urban areas outside the prairie basin. I am sure that they have some difficulty appreciating what the Crow is all about. They are not alone; we have had some difficulty as well. It is a complex issue, more complex than simply a matter of one half a cent per tonne per mile. I should like to remind them of what the grain industry means to Canada. It means in excess of $6 billion in exports. That is pretty important in terms of foreign exchange and economic spin-off. In direct employment, over 150,000 families are directly involved in the production of grain—families, not persons, Mr. Speaker. Employment in transportation and the railway system means at least another 25,000 to 30,000 people directly involved in the industry.

Rural communities, municipalities and cities exist as a result of this important industry. What does this mean in terms of spin-off? In 1981, farmers spent some $2 billion on farm machinery and parts. Most of that was spent in central Canada, in cities where people work in factories producing these important products. And farmers are very good spenders. In 1981, farmers spent $760 million on fuel and well over $200 million went directly into the federal coffers in the form of taxes. In 1981 some $642 million was spent on fertilizer and, again, a good portion of that in the form of taxes went directly into Government coffers. In terms of the multiplier effect, every dollar's worth of grain which is exported generates $4 worth of economic activity. Therefore, we are looking at something like $24 billion.

All of this translates into jobs. Of the tonnage which moves along the St. Lawrence Seaway, 52 per cent is grain. Two-thirds of that grain is Canadian grain. The Port of Vancouver owes its existence to the western farmer. Over 20 per cent of the tonnage which goes through the Port of Vancouver is grain. That translates into jobs. So when we are talking about jobs, let us not undermine that industry which produces jobs, which has jobs in place, because if the farmers are driven out of business those jobs are going to be destroyed. That is one of the points which this Government has failed to recognize.

This session opened with a Speech from the Throne delivered on April 14, 1980. At the conclusion, the Throne Speech has this to say:

> Like all of your colleagues in the House of Commons, you who represent the people of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have a responsibility to represent your constituents to the nation. You also have an extra responsibility in the present circumstances to represent the nation to your constituents. It is a task no one else can fulfil. My government is prepared to co-operate fully in helping you to achieve this.

We have a Bill before us, Mr. Speaker, which is being rammed through under double and triple closure by a Government which has no rural representation in western Canada, by a Government which has not achieved a consensus about which the Minister of Transport and the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) spoke, by a Government which does not have a mandate to tamper with the Crow because it did not mention the Crow during the last election campaign. We have a Government which is moving to invoke this Bill, which is not supported by western Canadian Members of Parliament, nor the western farmers, nor the western farm organizations, nor the western governments.

I can only draw this conclusion, Mr. Speaker, that this Government, this Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) and this Minister of Transport simply cannot be trusted, because if those words in the Speech from the Throne have any meaning, they would not be proceeding with this particular piece of legislation at this time. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like to amend the motion with which we are dealing as follows:

> That the motion be amended by deleting all the words after the word "that" and substituting the following therefor:
> "Bill C-155, the Western Grain Transportation Act, be not now read a third time but be referred back to the Standing Committee on Transport for the purposes of reconsidering Clauses 43, 55, 58 and 62."

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The House has heard the terms of the motion. Is it the pleasure of the House to adopt the motion?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Some Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Benjamin: Are we on debate, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Does the Hon. Member want to be recognized to speak to the amendment?

Mr. Benjamin: I want to speak on the Bill, thank you, on third reading and on the amendment.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Will those in favour of the motion please say yea?

Some Hon. Members: Yea.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: All those opposed please say nay.

Some Hon. Members: Nay.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In my opinion the nays have it.

And more than five Members having risen:

Mr. Deputy Speaker: In accordance with the Standing Orders of the House of Commons adopted, the vote stands deferred.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, perhaps you could clarify your ruling. We understand, first, that the motion has been defeated, so he is not speaking on the—

Some Hon. Members: Deferred!

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The motion has been deferred, according to our rules.

We will now revert to the usual ten-minute question and answer period. The Hon. Member had unlimited time and this caused some concern to the Chair. However, it is quite clear that it is in order for there to be a ten-minute question and answer period.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, I would like to take advantage of the ten-minute question and answer period. I listened with great interest to what the spokesman for the Official Opposition had to say. I listened for 31 days in committee, nine days on second reading and 15 days or whatever at report stage, and what I would like to ask the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) is, what is the Tory bottom line?

Mr. Epp: We gave it to you.

Mr. Flis: What is that Party's ultimate position? And does it have—

An Hon. Member: Are you asleep?

Mr. Forrestall: If you had some credibility, you have just blown it.

Mr. Flis: Listen! And does it—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Parliamentary Secretary has been recognized for the purpose of asking a question. He has the floor.

Mr. Flis: Does it have consensus on that position? Because the Hon. Member criticized the Government, saying that we do not have a consensus on this Bill. With all these amendments put by ourselves, the Conservative Party and the New Democratic Party making it the best Bill possible under the circumstances, what is the Tory position? What is its bottom line? And does it have a consensus for that position?

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, I will certainly abide by your admonition. This could give me an opportunity to make a ten-minute speech. However, I will not seize that opportunity. I will try to answer the question as briefly as I can. Our bottom line has been and will continue to be to get a fair deal for the producers. This Bill does not constitute a fair deal for the producer and everything we have done in the course of the last six months has been done in an attempt to strike a better deal for the producers of Canada.

When the Minister and his Government complete all their studies on the appropriateness of the freight rate regime, the ability of the producers to pay, the method of payment and the appropriateness of the 20 per cent constant cost, all of which is going to be reviewed and studied by review committees set up by this Minister, then we will be in a better position to determine whether the producers can afford this kind of freight rate regime. The bottom line is simply that if the Government had accepted the two proposals we advanced, the freeze and the enabling provision for a modified method of payment on completion of the review inquiry, this would have gone a long way toward improving the Bill and attracting more support from western Canada. Our position has always been to try and seek out a solution in the best interests of the producer, and if it is in the best interests of the producer, then it is in the best interests of agriculture as a whole.

Mr. Flis: If the Hon. Member is sincere in his desire to have a package worked out in the best interests of the producer, I am sure he is thinking of all producers in western Canada. He is thinking not only of the grain producers but of the livestock producers, hog and poultry producers, the specialty crop producers and so on. We heard from those producers that the Crow rate has caused a distortion over all these years. They feel they are discriminated against to the extent of 80 per cent because the grain producer pays only 20 per cent of the shipment of grain while the livestock producers have to pay 100 per cent of the cost of shipping their products. I heard this from the Hon. Member for Medicine Hat (Mr. Hargrave) and others. These producers are shipping the same product, grain, but in the form of hogs or beef cattle or whatever. It is still the same product, grain, being transported, but they have to pay 100 per cent of the cost.

Would the Hon. Member explain to this House how putting a three-year freeze in place is going to correct that distortion? Will it not prolong the distortion for another three years? The NDP position would prolong the distortion indefinitely, and the Tories would prolong it for another three years. Can the Hon. Member clarify that fact? He gave us his bottom line and yet again we see there is no bottom line because they are all over the map in this situation, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Mazankowski: Mr. Speaker, the Minister of Transport has been waving around a $204 million agricultural adjustment fund which could certainly be used to alleviate any injury to producers. If he wants to take that proposition seriously, I commend to him the document produced by the Hon. Member for Wetaskiwin which answers the question the Parliamentary Secretary has advanced. Quite frankly, there is a livestock injury; there was, there is and there will be under this legislation. At least the former Minister had $204 million in the kitty to resolve that. Why does this Minister not utilize that money to relieve the livestock injury to some extent? That is what we would be doing and that is why this proposition is here.

The Hon. Member suggests that things are going to be better as a result of the increased freight rates. This is what the prairie commodity groups say. The Bill removes all incentive for increased efficiency in handling, leaving in effect a cost-plus system which will encourage the railways to maximize their grain cost structure. This system will be disastrous for grain producers who will be paying an even larger share of the enormously costly, inefficient and inadequate system that no one can afford.

The Bill goes on to say that because more grain will be moving, it will create a further distortion for the livestock producer. If the Minister and his Government are as serious about incorporating a different method of payment as they say they are, then they should be very eager to incorporate an enabling provision in this legislation. That is what we are asking for. It is a two-pronged effect but let us do it after the proper analysis and study have been done. We have spent ten years studying the so-called losses of the railway campanies. I think we can stand at least a couple of years to study the impact this proposal will have on the producers, whether they can afford to pay more, and how the benefit would best be distributed.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Les Benjamin (Regina West): Mr. Speaker, one is undecided whether to try and take the high road, middle road or low road in a debate such as this. Once every 20, 30 or 50 years Parliament is faced with legislation of such consequence that it is incumbent upon people all over the country, but particularly on Opposition Parties, not only to oppose and propose, but also to try to prevent. This is one of those rare occasions.

This Parliament has sat for over three years in one session in which we have passed over 100 pieces of legislation. Some of that legislation the Opposition agreed with, some we opposed and voted against. But the Government was able to have its way. However, every once in a while, on rare occasions, a government may be embarked on a course which harms our nationhood and our Confederation. This is one of those rare occasions.

Mr. Speaker, I make no apologies for, in fact I am proud of, the role my Party and my colleagues have played from day one when we said we would do everything we could under the rules of Parliament to prevent his legislation from passing. I do not mean this unkindly, Sir, because I generally welcome the support of the Conservative Party in trying to prevent this Bill from passing. But it is not enough just to vote against the Bill, whether it is second reading, report stage amendments or third reading. That is easy. When we have that rare occasion when we must try to prevent this kind of harm to our nation and our Confederation and to an important region of Canada, it seems to me, while we welcome the conversion of my colleagues from the Conservative Party on their version of the Road to Damascus, that they could have stopped this Bill back in June. They had the numbers and the rules, and they could have stopped this Bill any time after it was first introduced. They could have but they did not. They opposed the Bill, Mr. Speaker. They are in favour of stopping and killing the Crow rate but they cannot have it both ways. They do not want to abolish the statutory grain rates now. They want to do it a year and a half or two years or two and a half years from now. They cannot be half pregnant, Mr. Speaker. There is no such thing. They are either in favour of keeping the statutory grain rate for the grain producers or they are not.

Working both sides of the street is not worthy of that very historic Party. It is not worthy of Conservative and Liberal Governments that, from 1881 on, saw to it that regions of the nation were not discriminated against because of geography or because of where the goods are produced.

In all regions of Canada, Mr. Speaker, there are programs implemented by the national Government, the costs of which are shared by all the people of Canada. When we go back to the original regional programs, that concept was called the beginnings of co-operative federalism. I will never forget the first Leader of the New Democratic Party, Mr. Tommy Douglas, who campaigned in 1962 and 1963 on a platform of co-operative federalism. It was pooh-poohed by Grits and Tories at that time. Now everybody uses the phrase, and well they should because it is a non-partisan phrase and deals with the unity of the country and how we live together and deal with one another decently and fairly.

In the last few days, we have welcomed one of the few things, or perhaps the only thing, the Government has done right and that is the freeze on the St. Lawrence Seaway tolls. The St. Lawrence Seaway is essential for all of Canada, and all Canadians share in paying for its cost and losses. I would like to tell the Government that western farmers and people from western Canada supported central Canada in its bid to freeze the St. Lawrence Seaway tolls for at least one more year.

There is an attempt in the House to perpetuate a philosophy that was put forward by a Member who is neither missed nor forgotten, although I wish I could forget him, and that is the philosophy of user-pay. Members of our Party, and perhaps Members of other Parties, had access to a Cabinet document in the fall of 1981. That Cabinet document referred not only to abolishing the statutory grain rates. It also referred to the feed freight assistance Act, the At and East rates, the Maritime freight assistance Act, the Atlantic Provinces assistance Act, the deficits on the St. Lawrence Seaway and the deficits on airports. It was a document that followed up on Mr. Lang's original proposals regarding user-pay in order to get the federal Treasury and the Government out from under all of these regional programs.

I warned my colleagues on the Government side, particularly those in the backbenches, and I warned my colleagues on the Conservative side that the statutory grain rates was just the beginning and that every other regional program was at stake. Hon. Members had best remember that warning because user-pay is indefensible when it comes to transportation since every mode of transportation is subsidized. Hundreds of commodities are subsidized. They must be subsidized in a country with our geography, our climate and our thinly and widely scattered population. There is no other alternative. We are not a nation with a large and dense population.

I do not want to say the following, but I must. It was strange how successful we were when we sought the freeze on the St. Lawrence Seaway tolls, an issue that meant so much to central Canada and to all of the ports from Thunder Bay to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. People rallied from central Canada and from western Canada to stop the increase in St. Lawrence Seaway tolls. However, Mr. Speaker, people have rallied from all across Canada to stop this legislation. It is strange that we did not get the same amount of time and attention on this issue from the Government in a year. It is only the last few weeks we have even had the time and attention of the Conservative Party.

I would like to tell you, Mr. Speaker, that there are at least 200,000 signatures appearing on petitions of all kinds submitted by Members of Parliament from both Opposition Parties and submitted by the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool through a Government Member. Even if 50,000 of those signatures appear on more than one petition. One hundred and fifty thousand people, most of them from western Canada, have asked that the Government not proceed with this legislation. People from coast to coast have asked the same thing. Most of those people are farmers.

The Minister spoke about rail upgrading. He proved this morning that he does not know one end of a boxcar from another. The deliberate attempt to make the grain producers and the statutory grain rate the villains of the piece is the worst kind of political chicanery that can be performed by someone who should kow better. If he knew anything about the problem, he would know better.

The Crowsnest Pass grain rates and then the statutory grain rates, have been in effect since 1897 and 1925. That, according to the Minister, was supposed to have prevented the modernizing and upgrading of the railways. Since 1897, under the staturory grain rates, there have been many improvements. During the time from 1900 to 1920, a spiral tunnel was constructed, the Connaught Tunnel was constructed and double-tracking was installed. The 1930s were kind of slow but there were a few improvements even then. The 1940s and 1950s saw the implementation of centralized traffic control from coast to coast and dieselization from coast to coast. Double tracks were installed right up until 1957 or 1958. Do you know what happened, then, Mr. Speaker? The Liberal Government followed by a Tory Government allowed the railways to lift up something like 600 miles of double track in western Canada.

So much for the Minister's nonsense and his political and economic blackmail that would have us believe that if we do not raise the grain rates, we will not have the rails upgraded. If there was not another bushel of grain shipped to Vancouver and Prince Rupert starting tomorrow, those tracks would still have to be upgraded. If we moved all of the grain to Thunder Bay and Churchill and forgot about the West coast, those tracks would still have to be upgraded.

Mr. Justice Emmett Hall has made that proposition plain in his report and on several occasions since, particularly in front of the committee. He has made it plain that for the purposes of moving coal from British Columbia, the track is now almost completely upgraded from the Alberta border to Prince Rupert. That upgrading had nothing to do with grain and nothing to do with the freight rate on grain.

The statutory grain rate is a part of the charter for western Canada. We in western Canada are no different from people from anywhere else in the country. We are honest people and we deal honestly. We have always tried to operate in such a manner that a deal is a deal.

● (1510)

I want to say to my friend, the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski), whom I thank for repeating much of what I said in my speech at second reading, that we must cease just handing the money over to the railroads. The taxpayers, like any other investor, are entitled to have an opportunity for a return on their investment. Surely that is nothing more than good, sound business management and good free enterprise economics.

We submitted our alternative plan to the public. We mailed it to the former Minister of Transport, we mailed it to the Conservative Party and we mailed it to all the farm organizations. But I must say that we have not had the courtesy of a reply or a point by point answer from either the Government or the Official Opposition. It is the "KISS" principle which we meant mainly for the Government but which perhaps might help the Opposition. That principle is, "Keep it simple, stupid". With respect to the Dominion coal lands, all of my colleagues welcomed the fact that a Conservative Member from Alberta or British Columbia got up and supported our number one point. Our point is that the B.C. Coal lands should be returned to the Province of British Columbia. We announced our alternative program two days after the Minister's press conference in Winnipeg on February 1.

The present Minister says that British Columbia has not asked for the land back. I cannot help it if that Conservative, Liberal, Social Credit Government in British Columbia is so stupid. That is not my problem and it is not the Minister's problem. What is just and within the Constitution is the principle that the natural resources belong to the Provinces. I am not talking about offshore resources. These are inland resources in the southeastern part of British Columbia. That Province gave up many thousands of acres of that land, for what? They did it for the Kettle Valley Railway line. But where is that line? It has been abandoned. I say that a deal is a deal and since the railroads got out of their part of the deal, surely the people of British Columbia are entitled to have their part of the deal returned. Nothing could be more simple or more just.

Our second position is the retention of the statutory grain rates for the shipping of grain from western Canada. My colleague for Vegreville spoke about the competition which exists. I do not need to go into that any further because he is exactly right. Our competitors in the United States, Argentina, Australia and the European Economic Community provide subsidies of anywhere from $10 to $25 a tonne. The Government is seeking to reduce the present costs of the statutory rate from $5 to $6 a tonne, to zero by 1990, even if we accepted the railways' figures. It is asking grain producers, which it has done time and time again since the turn of the century, to compete with the treasuries of the rest of the world.

What happened to co-operative federalism? According to the statutory rates, whatever the deficit or out of pocket costs, the nation as a whole shares that cost because that grain export and grain production benefits the whole nation from Halifax to Prince Rupert.

We have already lost 3,000 miles of branch lines in western Canada. Through this legislation, with its variable rates, the Government is quitting on its commitment for branch line rehabilitation and is, in fact, even transferring funds from the branch line rehabilitation account to the subsidizing of trucks, which means that many fewer miles of branch lines will be upgraded, with the loss of another 1,500 miles of branch lines.

I hope that by Monday afternoon on November 14, the Government will agree that it needs to continue to look not only at the statutory grain rates but at all the regional transportation programs. I hope it will study how they fit together in a national objective, no matter what political Party is in power. This has never been dealt with.

I want to continue my remarks, but before you cut me off, Mr. Speaker, I would like to move the following subamendment:

That the amendment be amended by inserting:

"for the purpose of reconsidering Clauses 55, 88, 89, 93, 116 and 157B".

That is seconded by the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse). These numbers refer to motions on the Order Paper. Because some of these require some additions to the Bill, that is why we moved this subamendment.

I want to say to my friends in the Conservative Party that this issue does not only concern wheat. I want to say to my colleagues on the Government side that it is not just wheat. The ramifications of this legislation will provide a hurt. I have yet to have anyone show me that the so-called livestock hurt is attribuable to the statutory grain rate. It is a myth for anyone to believe that abolishing the statutory rate will somehow enable western livestock producers to invade the U.S. market, whether California, the central States or eastern States and that the U.S. administration will hold still for that. If they believe that, they are dreaming in technicolour. In fact, the head of Burns Food said before the committee that he would like to know where those big markets are because he cannot find them. You can hardly call him a raving socialist. That is a piece of mythology peddled by those who want to blame somebody. Who do they blame? They blame the grain producers and the statutory rate.

I will never forget when a cattleman in the Peace River country in Alberta said that he did not want to make more money on his cattle on the backs of his neighbours from whom he buys grain.

[Translation]

Mr. Lachance: Mr. Speaker, perhaps the Chair might enlighten me, for I would like to know whether the sub-amendment has been moved and accepted by the Chair.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I should explain to the Hon. Member that the sub-amendment has not yet been accepted by the Chair but, right now, the Chair would like to urge the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) to conclude his remarks because his time has expired, and during the period allowed for questions, answers and comments, perhaps I will be able to reach a decision concerning the sub-amendment.

[English]

I have indicated to the Hon. Member who stood on a point of order that I have not yet decided on the acceptability of the subamendment, but perhaps during the period of questions and answers we can achieve that.

I must indicate to the Hon. Member for Regina west (Mr. Benjamin) that his time has expired.

Mr. Benjamin: I have a point of order.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): In that case, if the Hon. Member for Regina West wishes to raise a point of order, perhaps we could consider that his time for debate has expired and I will now recognize him on a point of order.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, if it will assist the Chair in regard to our subamendment, let me say that the numbers in it refer to motions that were on the Order Paper which, in turn, refer to the subject matter in the Bill, such as Canadian Wheat Board control, stop-off charges, variable rates, volume cap and producer share of costs, namely, the safety net. Because we only had a very few minutes in which to draft the subamendment hurriedly, and we did not have a copy of the one moved by the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski), which by the way we support, we had to use the motion numbers on the Order Paper. However, those motion numbers refer to the subject matters which are already in the Bill.

● (1520)

I hope the Chair will take that into consideration when it considers whether or not the motion is in order. If we had had ten minutes longer, perhaps we could have gone through the Bill and picked out the actual clause numbers. Time did not permit that. What we are aiming at is the subject matter now in the Bill at third reading. We only used the motion numbers on the Order Paper as a term of reference for the Chair and everyone else in the Chamber. I hope the Chair will be sympathetic in accepting our subamendment as well as the amendment of the Hon. Member for Vegreville.

[Translation]

Mr. Lachance: Would the Chair explain how it can accept a sub-amendment to an amendment on which the House has already divided?

[English]

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, that was the point I was rising on. As I sat in my office monitoring rather than being here because I had things to do there, what I saw transpire was that the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) moved an amendment which would have had a certain matter referred back to the committee for further study. I think inadvertently your colleague, the occupant of the chair at the time, stated that the motion was deferred, which I think was in error.

Mr. Benjamin: He said, "the vote".

Mr. Nielsen: What I heard was "motion".

Mr. Halliday: That is right.

Mr. Nielsen: What I heard was that the motion was deferred. As the Chair well knows, on an amendment such as the one put by the Hon. Member for Vegreville after the yeas and nays are called—and they were—the Standing Orders require the vote on that motion to be deferred until the next sitting day. It was at that point that the Chair then called for debate on the amendment and then proceeded directly into the ten-minute question period. I suggest to the Chair that the point in procedural time at which we should be now is on the debate on the amendment.

I will not offer any suggestions with respect to the putting of a subamendment. The Chair can sort that out for itself without any assistance from me. But the point in procedural time where we are now is on the debate on the amendment put by the Hon. Member for Vegreville.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I would like to help my hon. colleague, but how can we be debating an amendment on which the yeas and nays have been called?

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I will answer that question gladly. We went through the whole process on some 84 amendments where yeas and nays were called and the votes thereon deferred. That is exactly what happens on a Friday where a motion is put which comprises an amendment. The only course for the Chair to follow under the Standing Orders as they now exist, under the new experimental rules, is for the yeas and nays to be put, and there the process stops.

I see the Parliamentary Secretary shaking his head. That is the process. Otherwise, the only other alternative is for the bells to ring and a division to be taken, which is prohibited by the experimental Standing Orders. I suggest that the Chair is obliged, on a substantive motion such as the one moved by the Hon. Member for Vegreville, to call the yeas and nays. Thereafter, under the new Standing Orders it is obliged to say that the vote is deferred until the next sitting day, the same way the vote on third reading is deferred until Monday, November 14.

If the subamendment is accepted by the Chair, in my submission it is the obligation of the Chair to call for the yeas and nays on the subamendment and then, under the experimental Standing Orders, to defer the vote on the subamendment until November 14. The amendment by way of the motion of the Hon. Member for Vegreville has not been disposed of by the yeas and nays, not at all.

Mr. Evans: What do you think the yeas and nays are?

Mr. Nielsen: The yeas and nays—

Mr. Evans: It is a vote.

Mr. Nielsen: It is not a vote. The Parliamentary Secretary says, "It is a vote". It is not a recorded division.

Mr. Blais: It is not a recorded division but it is a vote; the question has been put.

Mr. Nielsen: The yeas and nays are taken and the vote is then deferred.

Mr. Blais: The recording of the vote is deferred.

Mr. Nielsen: There can be no question of that under our experimental Standing Orders. That is what happened all day yesterday, and we came to an agreement to shorten that voting process.

In my submission that amendment is still before the House. The vote was required to be deferred until the next sitting day. With respect to the NDP subamendment, it would seem that any subamendment—and they themselves call it a subamendment, quite properly—would have to relate to the clauses of the Bill itself. The way I heard the subamendment which was produced, it related to motions at report stage. It had no reference to the clauses of the Bill itself, as did the amendment moved by the Hon. Member for Vegreville. That is my submission with respect to the procedural time slot we are in, and I ask that you so find.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I am sorry, I should recognize another Hon. Member from a different Party. The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom).

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, I am sure you will understand if I say that I am a bit confused about what is happening here procedurally. I do not know whether or not the right decision was made on the amendment. However, I want to say one or two words on the subamendment. What we are referring in the subamendment is the subject matter referred to in the motions read by the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin).

I do not want to go into any lengthy argument whatsoever, but I would like to refer to page 155 of Beauchesne's Fifth Edition wherein Citation 438 and Citation 439 refer to the feasibility of subamendments. Citation 439 in part reads:

> To an amendment, when proposed from the Chair, an amendment may be moved; but only two amendments can be proposed at the same time to a question. Some limit is necessary; the usage has grown into law that an amendment to an amendment is allowable—

What we have done here—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I wonder if I might assist the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville. The problem facing the Chair is whether or not there can be a subamendment if there is not an amendment; that is the only issue. The Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) put the argument in a very precise way. Since the yeas and nays were taken on the amendment and the amendment was disposed of, if I may use that expression without in any sense affecting the argument, logically one has a difficulty with whether or not we can have a subamendment to a non-existing amendment. That is the only issue at which we are looking. Hon. Members of the House are obviously aware of that. I particularly refer to——the Hon. Member for Rosemont (Mr. Lachance) who raised the question immediately.

[Translation]

[English]

If we have disposed of an amendment, how do we have a subamendment? That is the issue. The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for Yukon.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, in my submissions to you—

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. You refused to recognize me—

Mr. Nielsen: I am sorry, I will defer to the President of the Privy Council (Mr. Pinard).

Mr. Pinard: —then you allowed an NDP Member to speak, and suddenly you stopped everyone and allowed the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) to speak.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Order, don't you have any respect for the Chair?

● (1530)

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The President of the Privy Council (Mr. Pinard) will remember that I recognized him, then the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen), back to the President of the Privy Council, back again to the Hon.

Member for Yukon. As is usually the case, and particularly since the issue involves a subamendment of the NDP, I then intervened and suggested that we ought to hear from the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom). What has happened now is that the Hon. Member has deferred by indicating to the Chair visually that he is willing to turn the matter over to the Hon. Member for Yukon. I will recognize either the President of the Privy Council or the Hon. Member for Yukon, whichever one rises.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I have no problem with the Government House Leader speaking now, but if he would like to hear me first, I will speak briefly. It is up to him.

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, I thank the Hon. Member very much for his courtesy. It makes more sense that I reply to what he has said. I have not participated in the debate on the point of order. I just asked a question of the Hon. Member for Yukon. I asked him how we could agree to a subamendment to an amendment that has been voted on by yeas and nays. He gave me an answer that I find unacceptable. I want to argue on this point first before he goes further.

The Hon. Member compared the situation with a vote on an amendment on yeas and nays at the report stage which was deferred. This is not the same case. At the report stage, when an amendment has not been disposed of completely but the yeas and nays are called, you cannot debate that amendment further. He said that here we could debate the amendment. I do not think we can. At report stage, once the yeas and nays have been called on an amendment, it is deferred. We then move to the following amendment. We do not debate the same amendment again. Therefore, I do not think his answer was adequate to the question I asked of him.

In this whole situation the problem is very simple. Nobody saw fit to debate the amendment moved by the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) before the yeas and nays were called. Theoretically, debate should have ended and the House adjourned until November 14 the minute the yeas and nays were called and the vote was deferred until the next sitting day. We cannot debate the main motion without knowing what will happen with the amendment of the Hon. Member for Vegreville. We will not know that before three o'clock on Monday the 14th. I am not saying that we might not consider giving the appropriate consent to allowing the debate to go on until five o'clock, but I would not like to have this interpreted as a precedent. I would not like this to prevent all questions being put without further debate on Monday the 14th at three o'clock. It would be mere courtesy on our part to allow debate to continue on the main motion, without agreeing to any subamendment because there cannot be a subamendment to an amendment that has not been voted on finally.

The situation is very simple and clear. Theoretically, according to the Standing Orders, we should not be debating the motion any further this afternoon. The amendment moved by the Hon. Member for Vegreville has been partially disposed of and cannot be voted on before Monday, November 14. Therefore, we cannot debate the main motion. We should adjourn. However, I am not asking that we adjourn. I am saying that we are willing to consider giving the appropriate consent to allow debate to go on until five o'clock without prejudice for the Standing Orders to apply fully for the vote to be taken at three o'clock on Monday the 14th without further debate.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I am attempting to provide courtesy on the part of the Chair. The issue is a subamendment standing in the name of the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville has once or twice deferred to the Hon. Member for Yukon. Again, I will take it in whatever order Members want it.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, in order to facilitate debate and not waste time on procedure, may I suggest to the House that we perhaps withdraw our subamendment and propose an amendment? If we had unanimous agreement for that, it might facilitate our procedure in the House.

Mr. Nielsen: There is a better solution.

Mr. Nystrom: The other solution is to have the Hon. Member for Vegreville resubmit his amendment with unanimous consent and we can do the same. There is not much time remaining. It would allow time for Members to participate.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, there might be a better and more acceptable solution. I have had quite a few years dealing with the Government House Leader. I find that his arguments today have been uniquely and unusually impeccable with respect to his analysis of the situation. What has happened here, and I am sure it will not be understood by a good many people watching, is that another one of those parliamentary black holes has occurred. It has swallowed up temporarily the amendment of the Hon. Member for Vegreville.

The solution which might find acceptance, since the Government has indicated consent and since we only have about one hour and fifteen minutes debating time left, is for the House to consent, regardless of its clinical acceptability or not, to the subamendment being put by the NDP which will "revive" the amendment of the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski). We can then enter back upon the debate. It would mean of course, three votes instead of two on Monday, November 14. If the House were disposed to consent to that, perhaps everyone might be happy. We could proceed with the debate without creating any precedent.

Mr. Pinard: Without creating any precedent. Mr. Speaker, I have had long years of negotiation with the Hon. Member for Yukon. I must admit that his proposal is unusually interesting. What we could agree to, in order to allow debate to go on, would be to consent not to consider the amendment moved by the Hon. Member for Vegreville as having been voted on, even partially. That would allow a subamendment to be put. What the Members would have debated until now would have been the amendment. Therefore, everything would be regularized. We are willing to give that consent without prejudice to our rights under the Standing Orders to have all votes without further debate at three o'clock on Monday, November 14.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, we find what the Hon. Member for Yukon and the Government House Leader have had to say is eminently acceptable to us. I appreciate that the Chair will have to rule on the admissibility of the subamendment.

In any event, before the Chair rules, now that we have had a few minutes, I would ask the Chair to accept a different set of numbers in our subamendment. We have now had time to go through the Bill. Instead of the Clause numbers we show in the subamendment the Clause numbers should read Clause 33, Clause 41, Clause 47, Clause 54 and Clause 59. That is an additional five clauses that are different from those proposed by the Hon. Member for Vegreville. We were correct on the subject matter, but we are now also correct on the clause numbers in the Bill.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): For the sake of clarification, the Hon. Member for Regina West at one point said additional clauses and at another point said replacement clause numbers. If I understand him correctly, what he would now like to do is to change his subamendment so that the numbers earlier referred to are entirely deleted.

• (1540)

The new clauses which he has just given to the Chair, that is, Clauses 33, 41, 47, 54 and 59, would be in fact those clauses of the Bill which he would like to see sent to the Standing Committee. I have that correct apparently.

Mr. Benjamin: Agreed.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): For the sake of formality, I want to indicate to the Hon. Member that he had already proposed a subamendment. In order to change it, he is suggesting that it be withdrawn and that his new subamendment be put in. That is the procedural way. I need the unanimous consent of the House, and I would gather that it is forthcoming, that the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) be permitted to withdraw his subamendment and replace it with the new one. Is that agreed by unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, having resolved the procedural gymnastics, I would like to raise a question concerning the subamendment put forward by the Hon. Member for Regina West. He passed over it very quickly, but I believe two or three of his amendments did have substantial financial connotations to them and therefore would require a royal recommendation. I believe the precedent set by the Chair previously is to rule those out of order because obviously such recommendations are neither available nor forthcoming.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order. I do not want to prejudge that issue. We are only dealing with a procedural issue as to the presentation of the subamendment. This is not a time to argue whether or not the spending power is involved. This is just a matter of whether or not the Hon. Member can withdraw his subamendment and replace it with different clauses. This is well in advance of the question of the Chair ruling on the admissibility of the proposed subamendment. We now seek unanimous consent of the House as to whether or not the Hon. Member is to be permitted to withdraw his subamendment and to produce the one that he has just read out. May I have that unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Thank you.

On the matter of the subamendment now proposed by the Hon. Member, the Chair will take it under consideration. I do not want to hear argument yet. We can go back to the suggestions of the Hon. Member for the Yukon and the President of the Privy Council that there may be a disposition in the House to accept, without doing violence to any precedent or to the provisional Standing Orders, that what is before the House now is the amendment proposed by the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski). May I have unanimous consent on that?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Again I thank Hon. Members. Therefore, debate is open on the amendment, and the subamendment is now possible. The Chair will take into consideration the subamendment in due course. Debate will continue for the moment.

[Translation]

Mr. Ostiguy: Mr. Speaker, my colleagues will understand that it is indeed an honour for me today to take part in this third reading debate on a Bill which, in my opinion, is the Bill of the century. It stands to reason that—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please. I apologize for interrupting the Hon. Member for Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot (Mr. Ostiguy), but the Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville (Mr. Nystrom) is seeking the floor on a point of order.

[English]

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

Mr. Mazankowski: You have wasted enough time.

Mr. Benjamin: You got your extra ten minutes.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for Yorkton-Melville on a point of order.

Mr. Nystrom: Mr. Speaker, I am sorry to interrupt. I assure you it is a legitimate point of order. The Hon. Member for Regina West had finished his 20 minutes but you did not give a chance to the House to ask any questions of him, which is normally the course.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member is quite correct. The Chair made an error in that regard. I should have gone first to questions, comments and answers and I will do so now. With respect to the debate of the Hon. Member for Regina West; questions, comments and answers.

Mr. Althouse: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member was part way through his explanation of how he was proposing to bring about improvements to the rail system. I wonder if he could finish those remarks, so we have a complete understanding of it.

Mr. Dick: What an abuse.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, I hear the word "abuse". I learned this from some of my colleagues in the Official Opposition the first couple of times this happened.

However, Mr. Speaker, I will be brief and I thank my colleague. I regret that I did not complete the four-point alternative plan that we had proposed back in February. I had covered the B.C. coal lands and the retention of the Crow rate. The other two points are that we pay directly to the railways a subsidy that only covers their proven out-of-pocket costs. On the subsidy portion they cannot make any profit.

The fourth point is that all the moneys, which will be something in the order of $550 million, that will go to the railroads for rebuilding and modernizing railway lines are a capital investment. What we propose, and have proposed for these many months, is that that portion that goes into capital improvement in CN automatically increases the Government's equity ownership in CN by whatever number of shares. We take common stock shares in return for the portion that goes to Canadian Pacific.

Mr. Speaker, that is the NDP position. If the Government and the Official Opposition are not prepared to accept that, I would even be willing to say that if we made it a loan and charged them the bank rate, or even a couple of percentage points less than the bank rate, at least there would be an opportunity for a return on that investment to the taxpayers just as there is in the case of private or corporate investor.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please.

Mr. Benjamin: That is the nub of—that is the condition for—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order, please.

Mr. Benjamin: —for providing the money to the railroads.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order. Some Hon. Members are distressed that one Member of the same Party as the speaker who had just spoken is able to use the ten-minute question period to exchange questions and answers between two Members of the same Party. That has been ruled on several times. There is no question that if other Hon. Members in the House do not choose to use that 10-minute question period to put questions or provide answers and comments to the Hon. Member who had the floor in debate, then a Member of his own Party may do so. That has happened from all Parties of the House.

Mr. Benjamin: That is right.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): That is settled. I want to be clear that I, as one of the occupants of the Chair, have quite often indicated that questions, answers, statements and comments are all to be guided by the amount of time given for statements made just prior to the question period. A minute and a half is what I regard as a good guideline. This is not an opportunity for a 30-second question and a nine and a half minute speech. A minute and a half is a guideline. I think the Hon. Member for Regina West has pretty well come to the conclusion of his remarks. I do not want to cut him off too abruptly. I see he indicates that I might go elsewhere.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, I was interested in listening to the statement of the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). He did make a rather interesting point with regard to a comparison between the Crow benefits and the subsidies that are paid by the taxpayers of Canada on the St. Lawrence Seaway. It seemed to me that there was a flaw in that comparison. Does making that comparison not revolve around who benefits and whether that benefit is available to all people who use the facility, or should it be available only to some people who use the facility? The benefit from the subsidy that is paid by the taxpayers of Canada is available to anyone who uses the St. Lawrence Seaway. Yet the benefit on the Crow, which effectively is supposed to build a better railway system in Canada, is available only to people who happen to grow a certain type of product, certain grains, and anyone else who ships on that rail line does not receive the subsidy. It seems to me that in order to be consistent, the Hon. Member should be saying either that the benefit should not be available for shipping grain or that it should be available to anyone using the railroad.

• (1550)

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, the subsidy on the St. Lawrence Seaway benefits all of Canada. The statutory grain rates benefit all of Canada. The Hon. Member wants to ask about other commodities. Mr. Speaker, other commodities have commercial or compensatory rates because they get a price for their product. If coal prices were on a level with grain prices, then there should be a statutory rate for coal. But coal prices have risen 600 per cent while their freight rate has risen 500 per cent. If a statutory rate for coal were needed because of low world coal prices, that would be perfectly logical. It would be just like the statutory grain rate, the subsidized St. Lawrence Seaway and freight assistance in all the rest of Canada.

Mr. Flis: Mr. Speaker, in debate, the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) stated that people from coast to coast are saying that we should not proceed with the Bill. He led the House to believe that everyone is saying that.

Mr. Benjamin: I did not say that.

Mr. Flis: I wonder if he would compare that statement to what Dennis McDermott, the President of the Canadian Labour Congress, said in his press release of October 14, when he urged all three Parties to get on with Bill C-155.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, the Parliamentary Secretary has chosen one paragraph of that release. If he would care to quote the rest of it he will see that it says that the statutory rate should be retained for grain producers, that the rehabilitation and modernization of the railroads should continue for all commodities, not just for grain, and that jobs should be provided not only for railway workers but for other kinds of workers. The Canadian Labour Congress has supported the alternative proposal of the New Democratic Party since it was brought out in the first week of February.

Mr. Flis: Not according to this press release.

Mr. Benjamin: Read all of it.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I gather that the Hon. Member for Capilano (Mr. Huntington) wishes to enter the debate. Does the Hon. Member for Spadina (Mr. Heap) wish to enter debate or ask a question?

Mr. Heap: I have a question, Mr. Speaker.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): In the short time remaining I will allow the Hon. Member for Spadina the briefest possible question.

Mr. Heap: Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) has touched on the question of trade. I should like to ask him to comment more generally on how maintaining the present Crow rate would affect foreign trade.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I extended a courtesy to the Hon. Member for Spadina but I did not extend an unlimited privilege to continue the ten-minute question period. I have already recognized the Hon. Member for Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot (Mr. Ostiguy).

[Translation]

Mr. Ostiguy: Mr. Speaker, one always says that in life—

Mr. Pinard: Mr. Speaker, as I know very well my colleague from Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot (Mr. Ostiguy), I apologize for interrupting him. I would like to say for the record that the representatives of the various parties have reached an agreement. This morning, I received a request from the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) and, this afternoon, from the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen), asking me that the votes on Bill C-155 not be taken at 3 p.m. but rather at 5.45 p.m., and that the bells be rung at 5.45 p.m. at the next sitting. It is therefore, by exception, an amendment if you will to Standing Order 12(3), so instead of ringing the bells for 15 minutes beginning at 3 p.m. the next sitting day—that will be Monday, November 14—we agree that the bells be rung beginning at 5.45, pursuant to Standing Order 12(3).

[English]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): This is a good opportunity to indicate to the Hon. Member for Regina West and to the House that the subamendment he proposed is found to be in order.

That means, therefore, that the votes held on Monday, November 14, will be on the main motion, the amendment and the subamendment.

The President of the Privy Council (Mr. Pinard) is seeking the unanimous consent that the vote be held not at three o'clock but at 5.45 p.m. Is that agreed?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Agreed and so ordered.

[Translation]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Hon. Member for Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot is having some trouble being recognized. I shall recognize the Hon. Member, for the third time.

Mr. Marcel Ostiguy (Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot): Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The old saying that a picture is worth more than a thousands words would be very appropriate in this case, since this is the third time I was before the television cameras without being able to say a word.

Mr. Speaker, the fact remains that today, the debate on the Western grain transportation rate, Bill C-155, a very important piece of legislation, affects every single person in this country. No one can afford to ignore this important Bill. No one, on our farms, in our cities, in our factories, in towns and in the country, no one can afford to ignore this issue. In my experience, in the riding I have the honour to represent in the House, the riding of Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot, where more than 3,000 farmers live off the fruits of the land, the fruits of their labors, and I am thinking of the farmers in Saint-Damas, Saint-Hughes, Saint-André d'Acton and elsewhere—I must say that all these people have been, and still are, following the developments in this debate very closely. Mr. Speaker, my colleague in the National Assembly, the separatist Member for Saint-Hyacinthe, is something of an expert on farming and agricultural matters, and I say so without rancor, because at last winter's meetings when the objectors met the first time in Saint-Hyacinthe, including people from the UPA, the Coopérative fédérée and the Association des meuniers, my separatist colleague said that the Bill had already been passed, while it had not even been tabled at that time. He even said, and I shall quote him here from a publicity folder: "By imposing the recommendations of the Gilson Report, Pepin, Ouellet and Co. and all the others, you were all breaking the economic back of the agro-food business, probably just so you can have your picture taken with us when you hand out our wheel chairs."

I may therefore point out to my provincial counterpart that at the time, the Bill had not been passed and that the main arguments put forward by the objectors concerned the principle that payments would be made to the railways instead of to producers.

Mr. Speaker, this Bill has, of course, gone through several stages. First of all, in February 1982, Professor Gilson was contracted to make a full study of transportation rates for Western grain. Subsequently, the Gilson Report was submitted to the Minister of Transport, followed by publication of a statement of policy, and then the Bill was tabled in the House.

Last summer, I was fortunate enough to sit on the Transport Committee that travelled across Canada to hear witnesses and intervenors on the subject of the Bill concerning what is referred to as the Crow. Mr. Speaker, out West, I carefully followed the proceedings of the Committee and realized there was no consensus among farmers and the various agricultural organizations. As I have said several times, we deplored this. Earlier, the Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) said that the people of Quebec had forced the Government to change its position on the Bill.

I can inform the Member for Vegreville that in Quebec we have only one association, namely, the Union des producteurs agricoles. All other organizations related to agriculture or the agro-food business supported that association, and they were merely asking to have payments made to the railways instead of to farmers, for reasons they explained in great detail.

The objective of the people who were opposed to the Bill at the time was, of course, to ensure that the policy the Government would adopt on revision of railway transportation rates for grain would not alter the competitive balance within the livestock industry in Canada. This objective was in line with the traditional claims of Quebec intervenors with respect to Canada's grain policy, which boils down to one word: equity. As far as we are concerned, the word equity in this context means different things to different people. First, as far as ranchers are concerned, equity requires that there be nothing to prevent the same basic price from applying to feed grain throughout the domestic market, in other words that there be in Canada just one domestic market. Second, equity also requires that ranchers enjoy some sort of balance in transportation costs for meat and grain. And thirdly, as far as grain producers are concerned, equity requires that they get equal treatment from the governments wherever they may be in Canada, and also that a new price allowing for adequate returns be established. At that time, and the brief was clear on that, they were asking for federal transport subsidies to be paid to railroad companies rather than to producers.

This was very important for that farm group. And at that point in time, Mr. Pierre Bornais had this to say in an editorial in the newspaper Le Courrier, and I quote:

> How is it that something which was to be nothing more than a transport policy could evolve into a farm policy, capable of triggering a chain reaction across the land and more especially in Eastern Canada? Simply because a choice was made concerning the means selected to implement that policy, a choice indeed that changes that transport policy into an agricultural policy.

And he went on to say:

> As was to be expected, all Members of Parliament from this area are in agreement, although they claim they are sharing grassroots concerns—

Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out to my friends opposite, concerning what they have been saying in their speeches since the start of this debate on freight rates for grain, that I only wish they had made those speeches in Quebec, in a rural constituency such as Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot. I only wish that their only Member, who one day had asked us to resign as Members of Parliament because we were not turning our attention to the Crow rate, the Hon. Member for Joliette (Mr. La Salle), although we have never seen him, at least I have not seen him, not even once in this House during the debate on the Crow rate . . . And of all of a sudden, Mr. Speaker, there came into that Party the great mind that would solve all farm problems and others in Canada. It was at that time that the now Leader of the Opposition wrote the following to my colleague and friend, the Hon. Member for Lévis (Mr. Gourde) on July 11, 1983: "As people are no doubt aware, the Hon. Don Mazankowski made a major speech in the House of Commons on May 12, in which he described in every detail our positions. It is my sincere hope that the Committee proceedings will lead to arrangements that will best meet the requirements of the various parts of the country in that respect."

As usual, Mr. Speaker, he did not commit himself, they did not commit themselves anymore than they had committed themselves at that point. The Tories, our friends opposite, proposed at one time to delay for another three years the passing of this legislation, in other words they requested a three-year hoist.

Mr. Speaker, this important bill has been before the House since August, 1982. I do not have the figures with me, but the Transport Committee held many hearings and we visited a great number of places. In any case, as I said earlier, I can tell the House that there was no consensus for or against change in Western Canada and British Columbia. Nearly all the witnesses asked that the bill be passed as quickly as possible and said that it could have very substantial economic spin-off benefits. As for the people in the province of Quebec, we have always maintained our position, and all those who expressed their views at the time are in agreement, and they too ask that this bill be passed as soon as possible.

Mr. Speaker, I would now like to give a overview of the economic benefits which could derive from this important piece of legislation. Naturally, if passed, Bill C-155 will result in capital expenditures by the railways, as was mentioned on many occasions, of $16.5 billion, which will create 375,000 person-years of work. CNR and CPR will spend respectively $10 billion and $6.5 billion each, and it is expected that investments made in 1983 alone could create 5,500 person-years of employment. Between 1983 and 1987, we can expect 23,700 person-years and at least 2,000 permanent jobs to be created.

Mr. Speaker, the major part of these expenditures depend on passage of the bill and on the Crow rate being changed. The railways have already undertaken their projects in anticipation of the bill being passed. They were encouraged by the decision of the Government early in 1983 to allow a depreciation allowance for railway investments. The Government has also offered the railways interim payments of approximately $300 million for the 1982-83 crop year to compensate for the losses incurred because of moving grain at the statutory price. With these payments, the railways will be able to increase their capital expenditures, namely by 40 per cent for CNR and 75 per cent for CPR. When passed the Bill C-155 will enable the railways to spend several billion dollars, and of course, to provide jobs and contribute to economic recovery in Canada.

Mr. Speaker, what will be the benefits for the provinces? In Western Canada, for instance? It has been recognized that the four Western provinces will be the major beneficiaries of the Crow rate reform. First, of course, the grain producers will benefit from a more effective and reliable railway network and rail transport system.

Everyone is aware, Mr. Speaker, that when travelling to Western Canada to hear the submissions made by residents of those provinces, all of them without exception told us that the present rail system was inefficient. I believe that this Bill will at least attempt to improve its efficiency. However, first of all, this will not prevent a reoccurrence of the congestion which occurred in 1977 and 1979 but will eliminate the need to rationalize the number of cars allotted to move each type of raw material, and second, it is in Western Canada that railway lines will be most improved. This will create jobs and provide new opportunities for local suppliers and industries. In addition, in order to assist these businesses, the Government has decided to provide $75 million worth of economic and industrial benefits as an incentive to industrial and economic development in Western Canada.

The province of British Columbia will benefit most from economic spin-offs. It is estimated that it will get 13 to more than a third of the $16 billion the railways will spend throughout the country. In Alberta, Mr. Speaker, the upgrading of the line will cost about $145 million. The CNR will spend 34 million dollars on concrete track ties manufactured in Alberta, and expand their freight stations in Japser, Edson, Edmonton and Wainwright.

● (1610)

In Saskatchewan, Mr. Speaker, the CNR will build a second track almost half as long as its mainline. The CNR maintenance facilities in Melville, Watrous, Saskatoon will be expanded. The CPR must expand its facilities in Regina and build, in 1983, a repair workshop for cars and diesel engines in Moose Jaw, if this Bill ever passes.

In Manitoba, Mr. Speaker, the CNR will expand their wheel maintenance shop in Transcona and modernize their marshalling yard in Symington. The CPR will spend $40 million to improve the regulation of railway traffic between Winnipeg and Thunder Bay, then they will expand again their wheel maintenance shop and build a new engine repair shop.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, in Quebec and Ontario, the railways intend to spend $300 million over the next four years in upgrading their equipment and facilities. The CNR and CPR should spend about 1.4 billion dollars on rail supplies and equipment over the next decade.

Mr. Speaker, the federal government will spend some $3 million to improve the Port of Montreal and up-date its facilities to handle truck-delivered grain. It is the well-known war between Silos No. 4 and 5, and the work is already under way. The federal will order 3,840 hopper cars, most of which will be built at the Sorel plant. I see that my colleague the Hon. member for Richelieu (Mr. Leduc) cannot help smiling, for he is thinking of all these railway cars which will be built in his plant. This will have spin-offs even in my riding of Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot, for the Griffin Steel Company there specializes in the making of railway wheels. Over 200 workers who are employed by this company have been closely following our proceedings on the Crow rate. I was very pleased to meet the president of the union in my riding office on a number of occasions. He was anxious to know when this bill would be adopted, for if it were, Marine Industries Limited in Sorel as well as other companies would receive orders for hopper cars, something which the workers in the Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot riding have been waiting for to get back to work. They had been unemployed for several months. I can tell you that as I am speaking, the building of these cars has already started and our unionized workers in the Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot riding are already back to work.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is important. It means billions of dollars in investments. It will give jobs to a great many Canadian men and women, so I cannot understand why our hon. friends opposite continue their filibuster. Earlier today, just before the lunch break, they asked for our consent to the House sitting during the lunch hour, and when we refused, they raised hell. I should like to ask them why they behaved as they did, allowing the bell to ring, when we were quite ready to work and defend this bill. The bell rang for hours and days and we were still on the same bill. Today, because we refused them one hour, we have been called traitors a moment ago in this House. I will not take seriously men who talk like that, and the citizens of this country will certainly see them for what they are when the time comes.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I would like to quote from an editorial published in the French newspaper La Presse on October 26, 1983, that is, quite recently. Frédéric Wagnière said that Bill C-155 was a railway Act as opposed to an agricultural Act. I quote very briefly from his editorial. He said:

—while previously there was nothing but a hodgepodge of antiquated customs—

He was referring to the railways. And he concluded by saying:

These excessively close ties between transportation and agricultural policies are abnormal and have been permitted far too long. Legislation must be implemented as soon as possible in order to allow railway invesments which are badly needed, even if it means for the Minister of Agriculture to take required action to iron out difficulties this new transportation policy could cause the farmers.

Mr. Speaker, I suggest this quotation is enlightening. We as members of this Canadian Parliament are asked to take action and to pass third reading of Bill C-155 as soon as possible.

Mr. Ian Waddell (Vancouver-Kingsway): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member referred to moneys or grants allocated in this Bill C-155 to upgrade ports. I suppose he was referring to Montreal and other places. However, I fail to find in this bill a single penny for the port of Vancouver.

[English]

Perhaps I can ask him a question about that because I could not put it to the Minister. The Minister talked about co-operation and then he stood up and lambasted the Hon. Member for Capilano (Mr. Huntington), but in the spirit of that co-operation would the Hon. Member be prepared to approach the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) and ask him whether he would give a commitment to tackle as a next step the terrible situation in the port of Vancouver, the transportation snags and so on? There is nothing in this Bill—

[Translation]

I note that there is not a penny for the port of Vancouver.

Mr. Ostiguy: Mr. Speaker, I never said there was, but some funds were previously voted, elsewhere to expand the facilities or services in the port of Vancouver. Obviously, there is nothing of the kind provided in this bill. But the benefits of the bill made it possible to undertake works now under way in the port of Montreal but of course they are not mentioned as such in the bill. It is not necessary to include everything in the bill. A lot can be done through the benefits flowing from the bill. Nevertheless, in the $16.6 billion provided for the entire amendment of the rates for grain, funds from other departments could be used to improve port facilities.

[English]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Chair has been apprised of the fact that there may be a desire to proceed in the following fashion. The Chair will recognize the Hon. Member for Capilano (Mr. Huntington), then probably the Hon. Member for Medicine Hat (Mr. Hargrave), followed, I think, by the Hon. Member for Humboldt-Lake Centre (Mr. Althouse), but with the intention that possibly a Government Member may wish to complete the debate. It is not possible to do all those things in the time ramaining and I think it is up to the House to decide which way it wants to go. I simply say that, as I recognize the Hon. Member for Capilano, it is possible he may want to reduce his time to about ten minutes and a question and answer period of four or five minutes. But there is no House order to that effect so I have to leave it to Hon. Members to do as they wish.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, as I understand it, you are indicating three Opposition Members in a row. I would think the normal parliamentary practice and custom would be for the Government to be equally represented, and I wonder if you would like to revise that list accordingly.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Perhaps there is a misunderstanding. As I said, there is no House order. The Chair has been approached with a request to find out if that is possible. I indicated I would mention it to the House and the House would decide as it sees fit. That is all. It is a common practice, when it is late in the day, that sometimes Hon. Members decide to reduce 20 minute speeches to ten in order to allow other Members to speak, that is all.

● (1620)

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, since it is Friday and the only Members left in the House are the ones who are most congenial, I am sure there would not be any problem if the Chair did not see the clock until perhaps 15 or 20 minutes after five in order to complete the kind of round of speakers which I am sure all sides would like to hear.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): It cannot be done that way. We have already indicated that it is simply because I have been approached in the chair with a request for some facilitation of the program that I have mentioned it, but it is not up to the Chair to make those decisions. I cannot do that. If the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) would like to put a motion, he can do so.

Mr. Benjamin: Mr. Speaker, Speakers have been known not only to not see an Hon. Member but to not see the clock. That is all I was suggesting.

Hon. Ron Huntington (Capilano): Mr. Speaker, I am amazed that it is so difficult to rise and give a speech on third reading of a Bill of this magnitude and importance to the country. It is a Bill that is extremely important to the prairie basin and very important to my Province of British Columbia.

The Hon. Member for Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot (Mr. Ostiguy) said that all that the people in Quebec want out of this Bill is justice and equity, and he used those very marvellous words. That is all we in the West want as well, Sir. Let me assure the Hon. Member of that. I would also like to point out that I am reminded of Aleksander Solzhenitsyn's words in 1975 warning the western society of the legalistic society that is coming upon us and will be threatening our freedoms. We are certainly in the middle of that here today because, in the final hours of this debate, legalistic procedure has cut out one and a half to two speakers. During the last week we have lost a day that never existed and now we have lost the opportunity for two Members from the West to speak.

I would like to remind you, Mr. Speaker, that first comes the plough and then civilization. We are dealing right now with the plough of the West and the civilization of the West. The Crow rate of half a cent a ton mile made a lot of money for the railways in the beginning. It was not until the end of the 1950s and into the 1960s that inflation in the western world caught up with that statutory rate. For all those years, the Crow was a good thing for the railways and it gave the farmers of western Canada a statutory rate. They knew what that aspect of their cost would be. On the Prairies, grain prices today are the same as they were almost ten years ago. It is machinery, ingenuity, creativity and thrift that has allowed productivity in the prairie Provinces to adjust to the rising costs of energy and machinery. Now we shall see the rising costs of transportation with the removal of the protection of those costs.

As far as we are concerned, Mr. Speaker, the railways must have compensatory rates for their cost. We question if they need a 20 per cent profit on costs because who in this land can really understand the costing methods of the railways? The method of payment has been a very serious issue in the debate on this Bill. The entire payment will now go to the railway, reversing the stand taken by the previous Minister of Transport who more or less followed the Gilson line.

Throughout the debate, we have seen that the method of payment will be the heart and guts of where we will go in the future. If this Bill stands, Sir, and the subsidy goes to the railways, we have locked the West into an archaic transportation system. We have removed from the West and its farmers and industrialists the right to innovate, to put in better systems and to use other means of transportation. We have also eliminated the right of industrialists and farmers on the Prairies to have the freedom to choose what they will do with the wealth and the energy that comes from the prairie soil. That is the tragedy, Sir, and that is why some of us get so very, very emotional and upset about this legislation.

When the Minister opened the debate on third reading today, this one short day of debate on third reading of a Bill of this magnitude, he made some very disparaging remarks about the Province of British Columbia and said that if the Province had represented itself in Ottawa or had offered an opinion or statement on the coal lands, then perhaps the Government would have done something about it. I would simply like to tell Hon. Members how misleading the Minister's statement was, Mr. Speaker.

On May 20, 1983, ten days after the first reading of Bill C-155, the British Columbia Minister of Energy, Mines and Petroleum Resources sent the following message to the federal Minister of Transport:

> Your proposals to amend the grain rates established by the Crow's Nest Pass Act have received support from this Province. We continue to hope for an early resolution of this issue, although we have concerns with recent changes you have made to the subsidy arrangements. We believe it desirable to pay the subsidy to the farmers and not to the railways directly. We are troubled, moreover, by the language employed in Section 62 of Bill C-155. The Province of British Columbia has always maintained an ownership claim on the subject of coal lands. Moreover, it has regulatory requirements and land use priorities which must be met by all explorers and developers of coal. Accordingly, we trust that the federal government would never attempt to dispose of these coal lands unilaterally.
> I believe it is possible for our governments to take a co-operative approach—

A co-operative approach is something about which this Government knows nothing.

> —to resolving these outstanding issues in order to facilitate the orderly development of the coal resources for the benefit of British Columbia, and all of Canada.

That was the position taken by the British Columbia Government on May 20, 1983, ten days after first reading of Bill C-155. There was a limited response on June 22, 1983, to the British Columbia initiative. The government of British Columbia laid it on the line back then, Sir, and that is its position today.

When dealing with the method of payment, we keep getting it thrown back in our face that no one supports us on that issue. I would like to tell you, Mr. Speaker, that the Government of Manitoba supports payment to the railways, but that Government is a socialist Government. What we are dealing with in this Bill is corporatism both in a state and a corporate sense. The Government will destroy the small farmer, the person with a bank debt or a mortgage on a farm. The whole damned prairie basin, Sir, will go to the big guys, the people without debt, the people with capital and the people of the second and third generations. That is what this formula of payment will do.

The Governmment of Saskatchewan is opposed to this method of payment and advocates payment to the producers. The Government of Alberta is opposed to the method of payment and believes that producers should be given the choice of how payment is to be made. It proposes the double-eighty option. The government of British Columbia is opposed to the method of payment in this Bill and favours producer payments for reasons of efficiency. Producer groups and the pools in Manitoba support payment to the railways. The Saskatchewan Wheat Pool prefers the same method of payment as does the Manitoba Pool.

Why do the bureaucrats in the infrastructures that are locked into the railway system support payment to the railways? They are managers and elected directors and bureaucrats who manage a physical plant that is tied into the railway collection, distribution and delivery system. Of course they oppose payment to the producers because full payment or even partial payment to the producers allows some decision-making to be based at large among the population and interferes with the established infrastructure. It also interferes with the opportunity to install modern plants and find new ways of doing things with more efficiency for the delivery, production and handling costs of grain.

We find opposition all the way down the line. The United Grain Growers is opposed to the method of payment and proposes an alternate scheme similar to the freedom of choice option. Unifarm is opposed to railway payments and supports the double-eighty proposal. Cargill is opposed to railway payments and supports the double-eighty proposal.

It is easy, Mr. Speaker, for a Member from Quebec to stand up and say that there is no consensus on the Prairies. The overwhelming consensus on the Prairies is that if we do not move to partial or full payment to the producer, we are locking in the future of western Canada.

Perhaps I can explain further, Sir, by telling you about my personal experience in a business in which I was once intimately involved. I am in the business of production of goods. I have also made my living as an efficiency expert, a critical path expert, a work study expert and a designer of better systems for handling cattle and the production of produce in the field of agriculture. That was my background. I was privy to a study that was given to me with the purpose of putting in a big packing plant and feeding operation in Lethbridge. We selected Lethbridge for many reasons. We were going to have massive feeding systems which were very efficient so that we could get a uniformity of finish on the cattle coming in.

We fed the cattle before they went to slaughter. The entrails were removed according to health of animals regulations. Hides were taken according to those regulations. The cattle were hung for curing in order to get the optimum quality out of this production. All of the tallow and bone were stripped according to health of animals protection and supervision. The meat was cut and certain cuts were ordered by hotel systems, restaurant systems and large supermarkets. This was all handled so that the maximum dollar value with no waste came out of that animal. It was one of the finest designs and one of the best economic structures in meat handling, from hoof all the way through to store shelf and the plate on the restaurant table, that we had seen. I was part and parcel of this.

That operation was uneconomical in the Canadian Prairies because the subsidy moving the grain out to the large areas of consumption made it impossible to move the finished product. That is why I stand here to say that what the Government is doing is wrong. It is smothering and suffocating the West with its stubborness and adherence to this concept of payment to the railroad. It is all right to say that we will set up a study of the matter which will examine it and that perhaps two and one-half years from now, when the committee reports back, we will change the Bill. One of the amendments my colleague for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) was asking for was an amendment to the Bill so that recommendations from that study could be put into the Bill. Therefore, if we have to follow a modified Gilson formula or whatever the committee decided flowing from its studies, something could be done that would give some staying power to the future and the infrastructure of the region I come from.

You cannot question my love of the country but do not blame me for being raised and educated in the West. I understand and love this country. I understand and love the freedoms that it has given me and allowed me to pass on. But I have a western sense about me, the same as the people from Quebec have a Quebecois sense about them. I am saying that if you want to keep this country going, regions that have political power in this House must not impose that power arbitrarily on the rest of us. I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, that this week in Edmonton a new federal Party was formed. It is called "The Confederation of Regions' Party". That Party will address this regionalization of Canada if we in the House cannot.

Bill C-155 and the arrogance and manner with which it is being imposed upon us has produced an anger that will last and stay unless we fix it.

I do not have enough time to say the rest of what is in my heart. I really want that time but I am going to sit down after speaking for 15 minutes because I know that I have some colleagues who really want to express in the final minutes of this debate how they feel and how their regions feel about this Bill. But I tell those Members on the Government side that what they are ramming down our throats in the West with this Bill, on top of the National Energy Program, will not be forgotten. It will not heal the wounds of this country; it will aggravate them. With that, I will sit down and allow somebody else to speak in the few remaining minutes.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I want to remind the House that the subamendment proposed by the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin) was found to be in order. Accordingly, I will put it to the House. Moved by Mr. Benjamin, seconded by Mr. Althouse:

That the amendment be amended by adding Clauses 33, 41, 47, 54 and 59.

As I already indicated to the House, the amendment is in order. The Chair will now call for questions, comments and answers for ten minutes related to the speech of the Hon. Member for Capilano (Mr. Huntington). At that time I will look to my right for the next speaker. Debate will close at 4.45 p.m.

Mr. Robert Bockstael (St. Boniface): Mr. Speaker, the problem with the Crow rate has been before this House for years. I came here in 1979 and served on the Transport Committee. It was evident that the Government of the day, with the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) as Minister of Transport, had to look to the Crow rate. It had to be one of the priorities for resolution in the very near future. It was a problem that would not go away and had to be faced, not deferred.

The previous Minister of Transport, now the Minister of State for External Relations (Mr. Pepin), established the Gilson task force. That task force came as close as possible to reaching a consensus. During the interim, unfortunately, different associations which had been part of that consensus allowed it to disintegrate because they were trying to bargain for more. The Gilson report was then amended and submitted.

In the P.C. dominated Provinces, the Gilson report as amended was slow to be endorsed. Subsequently, when we made our tours across the country, people said that we should have adopted the Gilson report, but I must confess that we found no unity in the West on the resolution of the Crow. Many witnesses in Alberta told us that they would rather proceed with the present Bill with the expectation of amending it at a later date or making changes from the experience garnered rather than do nothing. When we went to British Columbia, the witnesses there told us emphatically to proceed and get on with the Bill because the country needs it. In Manitoba, many people said that they did not want any change at all but, on the other hand, they wanted increased benefits, improved capacity and to make sure the railway employees have work. But they did not want the Government to add any cost to the producers.

When we returned from the hearings which the Transport Committee held in the West we resumed our meetings in the Railway Committee room.

The Official Opposition launched its trial balloon saying that there should be freedom of choice. It was a nice catch phrase which can also apply when talking about abortion. The Conservatives advocated freedom of choice for the producers. They let that lapse and took the position that it is better to do nothing. Rather than make a decision they wanted to put a freeze on the rates and wait to see what happens. They suggested that we should gain three years of experience and proceed in the meantime with putting in the required infrastructure to improve the capacity of rail and product transportation to export.

There is no doubt in my mind that costs for producers have gone up. We recognize that grain producers are in a class by themselves. They do not have the option of passing on their production costs to the customer because of our system for marketing our cereal grains to export. Producers pay more for land, shelter, farm buildings, their equipment and supplies. That is not an exception to the rule. Show me a business that has not had increased costs. Everything has gone up, everything costs more. Show me a consumer whose costs of living have not gone up. Every business would like to have the guarantees given to grain producers. They have been guaranteed an adequate transportation and a safety net which will keep the percentage of the sale of their goods limited, so that they do not pay more than a fixed percentage to transport their grain. No one in the country, if invited, would want to pay more taxes. No one wanted to pay more for postage. No one wants to pay more for services.

What it boils down to is the fact that producers do not want to pay more for transportation. As was mentioned earlier today, their transportation costs represent 3 per cent to 4 per cent of the sale price of cereal grain. They do not want to pay more than that.

What does the federal Government propose to do to assist western transportation initiatives? Having established the datum of the Crow benefit at $650 million, Canadian taxpayers will continue to contribute in perpetuity at least $650 million toward the transportation of cereal grain. Last year producers paid $135 million for something that cost $785 million to handle. As increases are applied to the cost of transportation, producers will only have to pay twice as much in four crop years; they will be expected to pay twice as much for transportation in four crop years as they do today. There is a myth propagated that it will be five times Crow by 1991. There will be a review after four crop years. In anticipation of the review, we will look at the experience. The Opposition says that we should do nothing for three years and then look at what is possible. In that event we would defer ad nauseum what we will do for grain producers.

The Canadian Government is looking to spending $3.5 billion in the next 3.5 years, that is $1 billion per year. First there is the $650 million subsidy. Then there are the branch line rehabilitation fund, branch line subsidies and hopper car purchases and leases for which the Government of Canada pays. That runs close to $1 billion per year. We are doing a great deal to help grain producers.

Also the Government has taken initiatives in the area of helping to establish a superport at Prince Rupert, to improve the Port of Vancouver and to improve rail lines. These improvements will make it easier for grain producers and all suppliers of manufactured and processed goods and mineral resources across the country to receive goods, to transport them across the country and to export them. This is the catalyst which will cause the railways to spend $16 billion in the next eight years.

It has been mentioned by other speakers in the House how that $16 billion will be apportioned to the various regions of the country, how it will improve the economy and create jobs. Our intention is to create jobs, to provide employment and to enhance the economy. It is important that it be done on a broad spectrum to help everyone across the nation and to give the country the railway system and transportation it needs.

[Translation]

Mr. Speaker, I had an opportunity to travel in Saskatchewan where I met people who have been in wheat and grain production for years. The tradition was passed on from grandfather to father to son, and those people have told us: Ah, there is one thing which you should not do, and that is change the Crow rate.

[English]

For those people the Crow rate seemed to be a dogma of faith. We could not touch it. When we asked why, they really did not know. It was because they were told from generation to generation that they must never spend more on transportation. They had to spend more on everything else, but it was one thing on which they should not have to spend any more. That defies logic. It is necessary to realize that when everything else is costing more, people are prepared to meet what the Canadian Government wants to do.

THE LATE HON. WALTER BAKER

TRIBUTES TO FORMER MEMBER

Mr. Brian Mulroney (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, it is with true sadness and a deep sense of loss that I rise to pay tribute to our colleague, Walter Baker. With Walter's death yesterday, Canada has lost a gifted leader and a distinguished parliamentarian and all of us who knew him have lost a warm and a generous friend.

While new to this House, I am not insensitive to its traditions. During the short time that I have been here, I have seen that one of the noblest traditions seems to be the friendship that emerges from the forge of partisan battle. Such friendships, Mr. Speaker, tempered as they often are in the cauldron of debate, are both genuine and durable because, irrespective of Party, they are born in the deep respect that comes from true accomplishment on behalf of Canada.

During one of my first conversations with Walter after my election as Leader, he spoke movingly of his recent visits with the Hon. Member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Knowles). Walter told me of the Hon. Member's great contribution to Parliament and to Canada over three decades and how much he would be missed should he decide not to run again. I found it both poignant and elevating, Mr. Speaker, that Walter would speak with such obvious affection for someone of another political Party. I knew that a man capable of such discernment loved people, revered Parliament and ennobled it by his presence.

To earn the respect and the admiration of one's colleagues, including and perhaps particularly those who represent other Parties, is, in my judgment, the ultimate tribute to one's time here. Walter recognized and indeed enjoyed the partisan nature of the House. He understood its rules and he stood in respect of its customs. But Walter sensed as well a growing estrangement of ordinary Canadians from this place he loved so well and served so admirably. He knew that vitriol was no substitute for vigorous debate; that partisanship did not preclude decency; and that humour, true humour, was an instrument to disarm and not a club to embarrass. He was the antithesis of the "merchants of discourtesy" so scorned by Churchill for debasing exchange in another Parliament.

So along with many here he worked tirelessly in the cause of parliamentary reform. The committee of which he was vice-chairman produced ten reports, all unanimous, all arrived at by consensus and all designed to improve the parliamentary life of Canada. Time and time again he warned that our rules must be more responsive, our procedures less arcane and our conduct more becoming, failing which Canadians would progressively question both our relevance and our value.

We should ensure, Mr. Speaker, that his gentle but incisive words not go unheeded. We should learn from his thoughtful personal conduct. We should remember him as a man of distinction who asked only that we refurbish the reputation of this historic place by conducting ourselves with the same sense of courtesy and responsibility we would wish to have associated with our professional careers or our private lives.

[Translation]

Mr. Speaker, Walter Baker was a great parliamentarian, but above all, he was a gentleman. He had great affection for this place and affection and admiration for all who work here, without regard for political orientation. He was a loyal Member of his Party, but he was never blindly partisan. He saw the qualities of his political adversaries and respected them, and during the short time that I have been in this House, I have always observed that the feeling was mutual.

[English]

Above all, Mr. Speaker, Walter Baker loved Canada. He loved it as a country of opportunity and a land of tolerance. He worked tirelessly toward its unity and its enhancement.

In all of the years that I knew Walter, I suppose that most of all I was always struck by his sense of fairness and by his sense of humour. Problems were to be solved but always with concern for those affected by the decisions. Positions were to be held strongly but always with openness for those of different views.

[Translation]

Ideas were to be put forward, but never with the cool brashness of people who think they have a monopoly on the truth.

[English]

Choices were to be made but never with malice toward those of other persuasions.

So today, Mr. Speaker and colleagues, we salute Walter Baker and we say goodbye to a wonderful friend, a man with a unique love of Parliament, a delightful, happy individual of unfailing grace who loved Canada and enriched us all by his presence. On behalf of my Party and I am sure on behalf of all Members, I convey to Lois and the family our heartfelt sadness and our deepest condolences.

• (1110)

Hon. Yvon Pinard (President of the Privy Council): Mr. Speaker, it was with great dismay that we learned late yesterday of the untimely passing of our friend and fellow Member, the Hon. Member for Nepean-Carleton, the Hon. Walter Baker, my distinguished predecessor as President of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada.

While we were all aware of the insidious disease which he had been battling since last summer, it appeared from his good spirits and hearty demeanour that he was winning. Therefore, it was a double blow to learn so suddenly of his death.

Walter Baker loved this place. He loved it from the moment he first stepped into the visitors' gallery. From his earliest days as a Member, he demonstrated that he had spent most of his life preparing himself for it. He was a servant of the House, both as Leader of the Government and as Opposition House Leader. More recently he served as vice-chairman of the Special Committee on Standing Orders and Procedure and became one of the most constructive influences on the operations of that Committee by consensus rather than by confrontation.

He was totally committed to the improvement of the institutions of democracy in Canada and as such served as a major contributor to the access to information law.

The people of Nepean-Carleton will miss him greatly. Walter Baker was not just a great parliamentarian, he was a great constituency man. Regardless of political affiliation, there was probably no resident of his district who could find anything but praise for his service to them.

The loss is hardest, however, for his wife, his three young children and his two tiny grandchildren. Walter always spoke of his family with pride and affection. We offer them our most sincere condolences.

[Translation]

Although I often had occasion to consult with the Hon. Walter Baker at our meetings of parliamentary House leaders, it was especially during the historic debate on the Constitution that I learned to appreciate my distinguished predecessor in the position of President of the Privy Council. I found his attitude positive, constructive and respectful. A man of "unfailing grace", as the previous speaker said so well, Walter Baker was a typical example of the parliamentarian this institution needs if it is to renew itself and provide better safeguards for our rights and freedoms. This loss will be felt by each and every one of us, and on behalf of the Government, I wish to offer his wife and his entire family our sincere sympathy.

[English]

Mr. Ian Deans (Hamilton Mountain): Mr. Speaker, I was very sad this morning to hear of the passing of Walter Baker. I came to know Walter quite well in the short time I have been in the House of Commons. I came not only to know him when he was House Leader for the Government but also to know him outside Parliament. He was a man of very deep commitment, and he showed at all times a very genuine concern for his constituents on the one hand and for the institution of Parliament on the other. He was firm in his convictions, yet he was gentle in his approach. He was quick to challenge when he felt that you were wrong, but he was equally quick to come to your defence or to offer words of encouragement if you were under pressure or if you felt that you needed his support.

He clearly felt very deeply for the people of Nepean-Carleton. It has been said by many—and it has been said to me frequently—that we could always find Walter in the constituency. He was known by everyone. He attended every event, large or small. Every family felt touched by him and every family felt confident about Walter.

I remember an occasion when I was invited to speak in Walter's constituency and he noted an advertisement in the newspaper. He sent me a small clipping of the history of the constituency, providing me with some background, with a note just letting me know that he was happy I was going to be there. On another occasion, when my executive assistant was helping to organize a tenants' association, Walter phoned—although we were on different sides of the House—to offer his support and his encouragement, both of which he demonstrated frequently during the period of time when the organization was taking place.

He was committed to his wife and family. I recall going with Walter and his wife to Halifax where I saw a different side of Walter Baker. After the day's work was finished and the arguments had been put aside for the day, I saw the joyous side of Walter, dancing, singing, happy and sharing his happiness with the other people who were at that particular conference.

Walter will be remembered as a person of substance. He will be remembered fondly by his supporters and by his political adversaries alike. He will be remembered by those of us in the House of Commons for his work, as was said earlier, on the parliamentary reform committee. He believed that Parliament could be reformed to be a more meaningful place, and that came through at every meeting which we held when I was a member of that committee. He will be remembered by many for his work on freedom of information. There will be a lasting benefit to the people of Canada as a result of Walter's commitment to this cause.

Walter, of course, will be remembered by his family as a truly decent man. He was taken in the prime of his life but what he left behind will be remembered by everyone. His influence will be with us for years to come. I want to say on behalf of my good friend and colleague, the Hon. Member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Knowles)—who unfortunately could not be here today—on behalf of my Leader and on behalf of our caucus, how sad we are at his passing. We want to say to his family that they should be proud of the accomplishments of their father, son, grandfather, husband; proud of Walter Baker.

Right Hon. Joe Clark (Yellowhead): Mr. Speaker, I would like to contribute very briefly to the eloquent tributes paid to Walter Baker by my Leader and others who have spoken. For most of my time in this Parliament, Walter Baker was at my side as Acting Prime Minister and as House Leader in Government and in Opposition. I counted on him, not just for his industry and judgment, but because he was the most open and vital of men.

Walter loved his work, not just in Parliament, not just in his constituency, but wherever in the country that work carried him. He had the gift of making Government and Parliament personal. He leaves one kind of legacy in the debates and the rules of this Parliament and in the laws which he affected, but for those of us who were privileged to work with him, his larger legacy is the committed, generous, positive spirit which guided everything he did, even in the days when disease was pulling him down.

More than a colleague, even more than a friend, he was a constant example of the decency, generosity and love which are at the heart of the way we live. We miss him, we mourn him, and our hearts go out to Lois and to his family.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I wonder if I could be permitted at this point to join in the respect being paid to a man whom I have known for over 25 years and counted as a very good friend.

Walter was born in Cardinal, and practised law in Ottawa before coming to this place in association with the Hon. Dick Bell who was a Member for Carleton. Walter succeeded to that seat in 1972.

Members of the House have paid tribute to Walter as a parliamentarian and words cannot express his love for this place, his contribution and his work in the direction of parliamentary reform.

Words have also been said about his work as a constituency representative. Walter represented a constituency adjacent to my own. We had many occasions on which we acted jointly, always in a spirit of good friendship, with frank and free exchange of opinion where there were differences, but always with mutual respect and, I would like to think, affection.

• (1120)

Walter's family life was also a model. In days when people are sometimes disrespectful of those who hold public office, Walter Baker was a man no one could possibly criticize. His eminent virtue, his industry, his integrity and his warm human qualities made him very much endeared as a friend. I personally wish to express my sympathy to Lois and members of his family. This has been a difficult period for all of them. I hope it is some comfort to her and to them to know of the deep affection and admiration we held for Walter.

[Translation]

Mr. Thomas H. Lefebvre (Pontiac-Gatineau-Labelle): Mr. Speaker last night I was both astonished and saddened at the news of the death of our colleague, the Hon. Walter Baker. On behalf of all the Members of the Special Committee on Procedure and Organization, a committee I have been privileged to chair and on which I was also privileged to work together with Mr. Baker in his capacity as Vice-Chairman, I wish to offer our sincere sympathy to his wife Lois and all his children. It was a very rewarding experience to work with an experienced parliamentarian like Walter Baker. I am sure that his passing will be felt as a tremendous loss, not only by the members of his family but by his constituents and the Parliament of Canada.

[English]

There is no doubt that Walter Baker's work, his concern and his commitment had a great deal to do with the quality of the reports produced by the Special Committee on Standing Orders and Procedure. This Committee provided me with the unique opportunity of working with a great parliamentarian in the person of Walter Baker. Throughout his career Mr. Baker and I, when we sat on both Government and Opposition sides, occupied different positions in the House where we had to adopt and defend Party positions. Never once in all those times did the work we carried out on behalf of our Party policies ever interfere with his honour, integrity and the feeling of friendship that he had with myself and many other MPs. We shall miss him, and this institution will be the lesser for his regrettable passing away.

Hon. Alvin Hamilton (Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain): Mr. Speaker, as a constituent of Walter Baker and a long time friend, I would like to add my personal tribute to his family and himself at this time.

• (1125)

You mentioned that he was born in Cardinal, which is indicative of the fact that he came from the Valley. He also knew that I was married to a woman whose family goes back to the original settlers of the Valley, going back to the veterans of the Napoleonic wars. He constantly came to me to talk about the roots and the views of these people because he knew I had some knowledge of the history of the County of Carleton. It was his deep understanding of these people which carried him through many a decision. He had a deep appreciation of the background of these English, Scots and Irish who came here after the great wars in Europe to settle the land, break the ground and clear the bush.

Even though I lived on the outskirts of his riding in Manotick, almost every week he would ask me: "What are the bus drivers saying?" This was our way of learning through the school children what was going on in the homes.

I think that background should be put on the record because Walter in his public life was not only interested in the affairs of the nation, but he was interested in the views, feelings and hopes and aspirations of every person in the whole area he represented. As was said before, he was the kind of Member of Parliament that all of us would like to be. Along with others here, my sympathy goes to the family.

Mr. Roland de Corneille (Eglinton-Lawrence): Mr. Speaker, I have the temerity to rise at this time not to add to the excellent expressions of tribute which have been made, because my words could not do that, but to try to suggest that words can now be brought into action. Perhaps our concerns as we have expressed them concerning our affection and love for Walter Baker may in this case be put into action by a non-partisan approach to the subject of parliamentary reform, which was so dear to him. I hope this event will provide us with that added incentive to make a reality that which was such a part of his life's work.

The second way in which we might be able to express our feelings, those of us who are not given an opportunity to take part in this tribute, is to ask that before this period is brought to an end and we begin Orders of the Day, we might have an opportunity to stand for a moment of silence together.

Mr. Jesse P. Flis (Parkdale-High Park): Mr. Speaker, yesterday evening I was returning home by car from a Latvian function commemorating the sixty-fifth anniversary of the proclamation of the independence of Latvia. The Hon. Member for York-Peel (Mr. Stevens) knows which function I am speaking of because he was the keynote speaker. As I pulled into the driveway I heard the announcement over the radio and I stopped the car halfway up the driveway and my first words were, "Oh no, not Walter."

We did lose a great parliamentarian and I would like to take this opportunity to express sympathy to his wife and children on behalf of Canadians of Estonian, Lithuanian and Latvian descent. I think most of us sitting in this Chamber know that every year we have a function here called the Baltic Evening. Walter always co-chaired that evening with a Senator. I know Canadians of Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian descent would want me to express condolences to Walter's entire family.

Just last summer young Lithuanians from around the world were having a conference in Canada, with a one-day program here in Ottawa. They were looking for someone on the Government side and someone from the Official Opposition to co-chair this function. I called Walter and he immediately said: "Yes, Jesse, no problem." I could not make that function because of my commitment with Bill C-155, but Walter attended. Even though he was getting treatment for his cancer, he gave up the day to join these young Lithuanians from around the world to shake their hands and say hello. That was Walter. He always co-operated.

• (1130)

When we had our Standing Order 43s in the House, I knew that if I ever wanted unanimous consent on any issue dealing with human rights, all I had to do was go to Walter, especially when he was House Leader, and I knew it was granted. On behalf of Canadians from the Baltic States and all Canadians, I too wish to add my condolences to the entire Baker family.

Hon. James A. McGrath (St. John's East): Mr. Speaker, I will speak very briefly because words are difficult. I would like to join in paying tribute to our late colleague. Walter Baker was an outstanding Canadian, a great advocate of this city and a dedicated Member of the House.

His legacy is one of parliamentary reform. I know that he would want that to be ongoing because this institution, as it lives, must be involved in reform. Freedom of information is also an outstanding legacy.

This House has lost a dedicated, outstanding parliamentarian and I have lost a friend.

Mr. John Evans (Ottawa Centre): Mr. Speaker, it is hard to add more to what has already been said here today but I think I have to add the words that I have inside of me over the loss that we have experienced with Walter's passing. We all know that Walter was a very highly respected parliamentarian in the House. He was seen as that not only in his riding but in the City of Ottawa and across the country. He loved Canada.

He could always be counted on in the House to add to the debate and add a Canadian and national perspective which had meaning to all of us. He was loved and he loved the people of his constituency. That perspective was always brought to bear when Walter spoke here or when he spoke in his riding.

My constituency, as does yours, Mr. Speaker, borders on Walter's. Like you, when we had joint events which we attended—which was often—Walter could always be counted on to be concerned about the people who were there, what their problems were and how he and I jointly could help those people. He could always be counted on to do so in a totally non-partisan and co-operative fashion. He was a great constituency man and will be greatly missed in his constituency.

When I was first elected, even though Walter came from another Party, he was always at my assistance, counselling me on what it meant to be a Member of Parliament. I have learned a great deal from Walter about how I could deal with my constituency, better serve my constituents and how I should conduct myself in the House. Walter was a great model for us and a great example for all parliamentarians now and in the future. I hope he will be remembered as such. He was a role model for us. He will be deeply missed as a friend, colleague and national leader. I want to express my deep regrets and sympathy to Lois and the family and to let them know that Walter will be fondly remembered here as a model for all of us.

[Translation]

Mr. Jean-Robert Gauthier (Ottawa-Vanier): Mr. Speaker, very briefly, I wish to join the previous speakers in offering my sincere sympathy to Lois, David, Jeffrey and Nancy. Walter first became a Member of Parliament in 1972, the year I started in the House of Commons. Since then, we often worked together on issues concerning the National Capital Region, and in this connection, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say to the House, very briefly, that Walter was not only sensitive to the problems of the people of his riding but also profoundly aware of the more general problems encountered by minority groups. I would like to add that he was also very helpful in dealing with issues concerning federal public servants. He was constantly asking questions on the floor of the House. He made enquiries and was always well informed on the problems of Canada's public servants. That is why, because of his co-operation and his ceaseless endeavours in the past eleven, nearly twelve, years during which he served this country, Mr. Speaker, we have lost a great Canadian. I have lost a friend, and I offer Lois and her family my heartfelt sympathy.

[English]

Mr. Paul Dick (Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton): It is with a great amount of sadness that I rise today as a result of our long time colleague, Walter Baker, having passed away. When I returned to the Ottawa Valley after being absent for many years, it was with Walter Baker that I articled. Five years later we both came to this place at the same time.

I think people must reflect and consider that Walter was probably one of the most positive people and was never negative. If there was a way to bring people together, Walter would do so. I think everyone has considered today that he was a joyful influence and could perhaps even be referred to as a happy warrior. He enjoyed life, loved people and loved this Parliament. Along with others, I would like to express my regrets and sympathy to Lois and his family.

Mr. J. R. Ellis (Prince Edward-Hastings): Mr. Speaker, in my constituency there is a private school that is older than this country. That school counts among its alumni many famous and well known people, one of whom was Walter Baker. Being a member of its Board, I should say that I have heard of many of Walter's activities during his school years in addition to those things we have heard here. He was a normal teenager, full of spirit, pranks and other things. Since his graduation he has kept in his heart a place for Albert College. He was on the Board of Directors.

On behalf of the Chairman, the Headmaster and all of the students who paused this morning to pay tribute to him, I want to extend their condolences to the Baker family.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Would it be appropriate at this time to ask Members to rise for a minute's silence in tribute to a former colleague, Walter Baker?

[Whereupon the House stood in silence for one minute.]

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

PRIME MINISTER'S PEACE INITIATIVES

Hon. Bud Cullen (Sarnia-Lambton): Mr. Speaker, pursuant to Standing Order 21 I would like to call to the attention of the House that the Right Hon. Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) has just returned from a trip of immense importance to Canada and the world, a mission of peace to European capitals. The Prime Minister presented four points that are part of a strategy of peace, including a call for a five-power nuclear conference to negotiate nuclear arsenal limits, and the expansion of the non-proliferation treaty. It is encouraging to know that the Prime Minister has returned from Europe with a consensus among leaders there that these peace initiatives should be supported.

The Prime Minister has begun the task of moving the world back from the brink of nuclear holocaust and international tensions which increase the likelihood of war. I was moved by his statement yesterday and I draw this particularly to the attention of Canadians. He said:

> We can without effort abandon our fate to the mindless drift toward nuclear war. Or we can gather our strength . . . . to turn aside the forces bearing down on us.

Canadians have made great contributions to mankind. Canadians could make no greater contribution now and in the future than working for the preservation of mankind. I call upon all Members of this House and all Canadians to support actively the Prime Minister's peace initiatives and his efforts both here in Canada and abroad.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

CYPRUS—CANADIAN PEACE-KEEPING ROLE

Mr. Lee Clark (Brandon-Souris): Mr. Speaker, recent discussions about the possibility of Canada participating as a peace-keeper in Grenada brings to mind another peace-keeping role in which this country is involved. I am speaking of Cyprus, where Canada has sent peace-keeping troops for 19 years. Our mandate for maintaining a peace-keeping force in Cyprus comes up for renewal in December. Certainly one cannot and should not advocate a troop withdrawal simply because our peace-keeping role in Cyprus has not brought about a resolution to the country's peace talks. But the stalemate in negotiations is cause for concern.

One has to wonder whether Canadian peace-keeping troops in Cyprus are as much a part of the problem as a part of the solution in that our presence there makes it easier for the stalemate to continue. Some 500 Canadian soldiers are in Cyprus, and most soldiers do a six-month tour of duty. It is a tremendous strain on our manpower and resources, so perhaps the time has come to review carefully our role as peace-keepers in order to ensure that we are as effective as possible.

I therefore suggest a parliamentary review, a white paper on Canada's peace-keeping commitment, with particular emphasis on our role in NATO. Canada has every right to be proud of its reputation as a peace-keeper. However, if we are to maintain that reputation we must ensure that our peace-keeping role is practical and effective.

SHIPBUILDING

DAVIE SHIPBUILDING YARD IN QUEBEC—IMPORTANCE OF SETTLING SITUATION QUICKLY

Mr. Gaston Gourde (Lévis): Mr. Speaker, the situation at the Davie shipyards remains disastrous. In spite of the contribution of the Canadian government to the construction of the CN Marine ferry in the amount of $121 million and to the repairs of a few other ships, the workers will soon have to face the hard fact that as of mid-1984 there will be nothing on the order book. Nearly 1,000 employees who are already out of work will see their unemployment insurance benefits replaced by welfare payments before Christmas. This problem at the largest employer of the Quebec region must be solve quickly.

Recently, we have heard many comments and questions in this regard and I urge all parties involved to reply to them jointly. First, why have the Davie shipyards lost all the major contracts awarded recently by the Canadian Government, even though the average hourly rate at Davie is lower than at Marine Industries Limited of Sorel, for instance? Second, are the workers satisfied with their productivity? Is there something to prevent Davie from being the lowest bidder for these contracts? Third, does the Quebec Government, through the SGF give unfair support to one shipyard at the defense of another? All interested parties will have to jointly answer everyone of these questions in order to solve this urgent problem.

THE ADMINISTRATION

CALL FOR HOLDING OF GENERAL ELECTION

Mr. Ron Stewart (Simcoe South): Mr. Speaker, in August, 1969, the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) stated, "We would be on the road to financial disaster if nothing were done to bring spending under control."

Since that time government spending has increased 693 per cent, and it has cost every Canadian taxpayer over $10,000. The net national debt at the end of the last fiscal year was $119.2 billion, but the Auditor General believes that this has been understated by $14.5 billion. This year interest on the debt will cost each Canadian taxpayer more than $1,700.

The result of all this has been continuing high interest rates, slow economic growth, low productivity, and high unemployment rates. Unemployment Insurance Commission benefits in 1982 were equal to $8.5 billion, more than the combined government spending of the four Atlantic Provinces.

The magazine Euromoney ranks Canada's over-all economic growth since 1974 at sixty-second in the world, our inflation performance is rated twenty-fifth, and our balance of payments performance is rated twentieth. It is an economic record that only a Liberal Government could take pride in, a Liberal Government led by a Prime Minister who has stated unequivocally that he would choose Cuban or Chinese socialism as the national model for Canadian society. But the polls indicate that Canadians have not been fooled. The Prime Minister should call an election now and give them an opportunity to show that Canadians do not choose Cuban, Chinese, Liberal, or any other form of socialism.

YOUTH

PROPOSALS PRESENTED BY FEDERATION OF CANADIAN STUDENTS

Mr. Jean Lapierre (Shefford): Mr. Speaker, a group of about sixty young students from almost all Canadian provinces is in Ottawa today on behalf of the Canadian Federation of Students to make representations to their elected representatives and to express concern about the problems of youth unemployment, postsecondary education and access to educational institutions.

Mr. Speaker, I know that about one hundred Members of the House have welcomed the recommendations of the Canadian Federation of Students, and I hope that this sympathetic reception will be translated into a non-partisan and common will to act. The current critical situation of young Canadians is well known, and surely no one would want to see a generation disillusioned because of a lack of political leadership. In that respect, I am convinced that the representations made today by those sixty young students will have strong repercussions on the political programs of all parties in the House. Mr. Speaker, I hope that you and other Members who have yet to respond to that invitation will do so later today so as to become aware of the problems of the groups involved.

NUCLEAR ARMAMENTS

DEMAND THAT GOVERNMENT CHANGE POLICIES

Miss Pauline Jewett (New Westminster-Coquitlam): Mr. Speaker, while the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) has been visiting several European capitals as a self-appointed pilgrim of peace, the nuclear arms race, abetted by Canada, continues, and war close to home is imminent.

No matter how highly respected an individual might be in world councils, an individual's globe-trotting efforts are all for naught if his own Government's policies and actions support the nuclear arms race. It is not enough for a political leader to go on a peace-making mission if his Government's policies do not fulfil basic peace-making objectives.

While the Prime Minister talks nuclear age peace, Canada continues to prepare to test nuclear weapons delivery vehicles for the United States Air Force. And while the Prime Minister implores other Governments to abandon the nuclear arms race, Canada, thanks to federal financial subsidies, builds components for new nuclear weapons systems. Canada must, itself, practise nuclear arms restraint if the Prime Minister is to be a credible messenger of peace.

Finally, the Prime Minister rightly deplores the increasing use of violence in international affairs, yet says nothing about the imminence of war on our very doorstep in Central America. The escalating U.S. military presence in the region, and the mounting threat of a U.S. backed invasion of Nicaragua, demand a firm and immediate protest from Canada. We wait anxiously for changes in the Government's nuclear arms policies, and we wait anxiously for Canada's efforts to prevent a U.S. inspired war in our own hemisphere.

THE ECONOMY

PRINCIPAL OBSTACLE TO RECOVERY IN PROVINCE OF QUEBEC

Mr. Pierre Deniger (La Prairie): Mr. Speaker, the Premier of Quebec has taken a new tack by revealing in advance the contents of the mini-budget to be brought down tomorrow evening by the Quebec Minister of Finance, Mr. Jacques Parizeau.

Interestingly, the leader of the Quebec Government managed to announce a spectacular recovery plan while at the same time giving Quebecers the impression that the federal Government had not played a role in creating many jobs in this province.

Mr. Lévesque wants to speed economic recovery without, however, getting rid of the factors that inhibit investment. The House will recall that the Leader of the Quebec Government did not announce he was repealing the anti-scab law, that the sliding tax on gas would be removed, that he would be maintaining special tax measures to make Quebec more attractive than Ontario for business executives, or that municipalities would be allowed to accept grants from the federal Government.

Mr. Speaker, the principal obstacle to genuine economic recovery in Quebec remains, and that is the ongoing, neurotic concern for independence the Lévesque Government maintains today and will continue to maintain as the main element of its party program.

As was pointed out not long ago by our Minister of Finance (Mr. Lalonde), for every job we create, we lose three every time the Government of Quebec talks about independence.

Mr. Speaker, we can only hope the Premier of Quebec will give the question some thought and finally give Quebecers the Government they deserve.

ENVIRONMENTAL AFFAIRS

ACTION URGED TO CONTROL GASOLINE EMISSIONS

Mr. Stan Darling (Parry Sound-Muskoka): Mr. Speaker, automobile exhaust contains gases called nitrogen oxides. These turn into nitric acid in the air and contribute in a significant way to acid rain. It is disturbing to me and to many of my constituents in Parry Sound-Muskoka, as well as to other people throughout the country, that our gas emissions are three times higher than those permitted in the United States. Does this not make it easier for the Americans to point an accusing finger at us? Who are we to complain about them when we are unwilling to cut our gas emissions?

I urge the Government to initiate and approve legislation in this regard to bring our gas emissions into line with United States standards. I also urge that this action be considered for the 1985 automobile model year and that both Ministers responsible, Environment and Transport, present the seriousness of this to their cabinet colleagues.

TRANSPORT

QUEBECAIR FARES

Mr. André Maltais (Parliamentary Secretary to Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development): Mr. Speaker, I have just come back from a visit to the riding of Manicouagan. I went from Fort Chimo to Blanc-Sablon, and I was asked to bring to the attention of the House the problem of air fares at Quebecair. I would like to take this opportunity to stress the excellent work done by Quebecair employees, and I would also like to ask the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) to give Quebec another chance, to see if something can be done with Quebecair and Nordair or Air Canada or some other way, because right now, a return ticket Lourdes-Blanc-Sablon-Montreal costs $700. Needless to say, there is no first, second or third class—there is just one. Mr. Speaker, this issue is very important to the people I represent, on the Middle and Lower North Shore, the people in Port-Menier and the Magdalen Islands, Baie-Comeau and Schefferville—there still are people in Schefferville. The Leader of the Opposition will be interested to know that the day I stopped there, there was a power failure in Schefferville, Gagnon and Fermont. In French, the word "vol" is often used to mean flight, in aeronautical terms, but in our part of the country, Mr. Speaker, the rates for those flights are "du vol", meaning highway robbery. Since the federal Government is subsidizing air transportation on the Middle and Lower North Shore, I would ask the Minister of Transport to study very carefully the possibility of economic amalgamation, because that is what people on the North Shore want, not just political symbols.

ENVIRONMENTAL AFFAIRS

CHEMICAL POLLUTION OF GREAT LAKES

Mr. Joe Reid (St. Catharines): Mr. Speaker, in its report on Great Lakes water quality released a few weeks ago, the International Joint Commission reported that chemical pollution in the Great Lakes, after ten years of decline, was on the rise again, this at a time when 66 per cent of Canadians surveyed in a recent Gallup Poll, more than ever before, said that the water quality of the Great Lakes was of critical concern to them.

To compound the problem, and this is something those Canadians surveyed were kept in the dark about, there is the result of scientific testing of public beach waters in the Great Lakes. Reported over four years ago was a potentially deadly germ in those waters that could survive the ordinary municipal chlorine water process. This microscopic amoeba is harmless in drinking water, but could be fatal to swimmers by going up noses to their brains.

What can be done? A major step forward would be to toughen up the 1978 Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement. What is needed is a firm re-commitment by the Government to the goals of that agreement. Over 20 million people use and enjoy the Great Lakes. Their protection is not something that should be bargained with; and their lives should not be subject to timetable delays. Will the Minister reflect the will of the Government by initiating meetings to achieve that purpose?

ORAL QUESTION PERIOD

PRIME MINISTER'S CORRESPONDENCE WITH UNITED STATES PRESIDENT ON PEACE INITIATIVE

Mr. Brian Mulroney (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Acting Prime Minister. The House will, of course, welcome the Prime Minister's return to Canada following the first leg of his peace initiative, and wish him well on the second phase as he undertakes it. I quite understand why he is not with us today.

Can the Secretary of State for External Affairs inform the House whether a reply has been received from President Reagan with respect to the letter on certain peace initiatives sent by the Prime Minister to the President and, if so, what was the nature of the President's reply?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I do not have the details of that reply in my memory at the moment, but I know that the Prime Minister did correspond or was in touch with the President with respect to a conversation on a future meeting on the question of East-West relations. As I recollect, the President had made a suggestion that such a meeting would be arranged between the President and the Prime Minister some time following the President's return from his trips abroad.

NATURE OF CORRESPONDENCE

Mr. Brian Mulroney (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, may I ask the Secretary of State for External Affairs if one ought to conclude from his remarks that the communication from the Prime Minister to President Reagan was with regard to a possible future meeting and did not deal with the substance of any specific peace proposals?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, as the Leader of the Opposition knows, the Prime Minister had a number of discussions in the past week with European leaders, in particular with respect to East-West relations and the peace initiative. The same substance of the Prime Minister's concerns has been conveyed to the President. I do not have the correspondence with me, nor do I have access to it. However, the Prime Minister will be in the House tomorrow. I think he can provide further details as to the substance and content of these exchanges.

CORRESPONDENCE WITH RUSSIAN AND CHINESE LEADERS

Mr. Brian Mulroney (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, in light of the response of the Secretary of State for External Affairs that the Government would have no reluctance to table all communications in this regard in the House—and I look forward to the possibility of his doing so at his earliest convenience—can the Minister indicate the contents of the letter? I ask the question inasmuch as public reference has been made to it on some occasions by the Prime Minister, most lately in Montreal on Sunday. Can he indicate the content of the letters containing the peace proposals sent by the Prime Minister to the Soviet leader and to the Chinese Premier, and indicate as well whether he has received replies? If so, will he table such replies?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I will draw those requests to the attention of the Prime Minister, both with respect to the possible correspondence with the Chinese and Soviet leaders. He will determine tomorrow if he wishes to make them available to the House. It is not usual to table communications of this type. In fact, it would be quite unusual. However, that is a matter that can be discussed.

REPLIES FROM NUCLEAR POWERS

Mr. Brian Mulroney (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, I recognize the general validity of the comment made by the Secretary of State for External Affairs. I would not ask were it not for the fact that the Prime Minister made specific reference to it yesterday at a certain dinner in Montreal. In light of this, and pursuant to the same document, has the Government received replies from any of the Big Five powers relating to the Prime Minister's specific proposals, to which he made direct reference yesterday, for reducing world tensions and creating an atmosphere favourable to disarmament? If he has received replies from any of those Five, would he table any documentation in relation thereto for consideration by the House?

● (1420)

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, the Prime Minister has already had discussions with, for example, the President of France, and I would assume that the Leader of the Opposition has France in mind as one of the five nuclear powers. Obviously, that discussion dealt with a number of elements to which the Prime Minister referred yesterday, and obviously the Prime Minister will be able to tell the Leader of the Opposition, if he wishes and quite apart from the correspondence, the nature of the conversations he has had with European leaders and particularly with the President of France. My understanding is that the Prime Minister did receive a very positive response from the European leaders, and that the President of France in particular was greatly interested in and supportive of the thrust of the Prime Minister's proposals.

REQUEST THAT PRIME MINISTER MAKE STATEMENT IN HOUSE

Mr. Brian Mulroney (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, I would ask a final supplementary question for clarification purposes. Would the Secretary of State for External Affairs, inasmuch as we all wish the Prime Minister well as he undertakes the second leg, indicate whether we could expect a report that is as full and complete as is humanly possible to be given to the House of Commons prior to his departure, as opposed to having him make statements outside the House? I think all Members would welcome a full and complete statement made by the Prime Minister.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I think the Leader of the Opposition has raised a good point for the Prime Minister to consider. The Leader of the Opposition knows that the practice of giving statements in the House on foreign policy has fallen into disuse.

Mr. Crosbie: Why?

Mr. McDermid: Disarray.

Mr. MacEachen: The reason it has fallen into disuse is because what ought to be serious discussions on foreign policy usually become rather intense political brawls. Perhaps the Leader of the Opposition can change that practice and bring back a system that prevailed in the House for quite a long time, which was to have the Prime Minister and the Foreign Minister make statements in the House on foreign policy questions following their trips abroad, and then to have serious discussions in the House rather than the partisan, political attacks which we have seen in the House for quite a long time.

IMMIGRATION

POLAND—EXIT VISAS FOR FAMILIES OF LANDED IMMIGRANTS

Hon. Michael Wilson (Etobicoke Centre): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the same Minister. I presume that he would agree that it is better to make those statements here in the House of Commons than it is to make them at some partisan Liberal fund-raising brawl in Montreal.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Wilson: Mr. Speaker, my question relates to the ten landed immigrants from Poland who are currently conducting a hunger strike in front of the Polish consulate in Toronto in order to try to gain the exit visas that would allow their families to come to Canada. I am sure the Minister is aware that six of these exit visas have been granted. Could he tell the House today about the status of the four remaining applications and the efforts the Government is making to help these people in Toronto?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Yes, Mr. Speaker, we are pleased that six of these cases have been settled and that family reunification can proceed. There are still four cases remaining. Today I instructed the officials in our embassy to make further representations with respect to these four remaining cases. We will strive to achieve the same results with those four remaining cases as were achieved with the six earlier cases, and we are also drawing to the attention of the Polish authorities additional family reunification cases that are a matter of concern to the Government.

DEPARTMENT'S TREATMENT OF APPLICATIONS

Hon. Michael Wilson (Etobicoke Centre): Mr. Speaker, in the absence of the Minister of Immigration, my second question is directed to the same Minister. While he has been making these efforts in support of these exit visas for people from Poland, the Immigration Department has been thwarting the efforts of literally hundreds of Canadians of Polish origin in Canada who are attempting to have some members of their families come to Canada on vacation. Let me give the Minister one brief example.

I understand that officials in the Immigration Department have so far rejected the application of a family to invite their five year old nephew and his grandmother to come to Canada. The parents of that young lad will stay in Poland, so there is no question of him staying here permanently. Could the Acting Prime Minister explain this double standard?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): No, Mr. Speaker, I cannot explain anything about the case until I examine the details of it. Questions on the Orders of the Day usually do not provide a very good vehicle for a detailed discussion on immigration cases. I think it is a matter that should be raised by the Member directly with the Minister.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

INTERNATIONAL NUCLEAR FORCES TALKS BETWEEN UNITED STATES AND SOVIET UNION

Hon. Edward Broadbent (Oshawa): Mr. Speaker, in the absence of the Prime Minister, who clearly had time to speak to a Liberal fund-raising gathering about disarmament but not to appear in the House of Commons today, I would like to direct my questions to the Secretary of State for External Affairs.

In his speech in Montreal the Prime Minister did indicate that he had certain broad proposals concerning the future with which anyone concerned about disarmament and peace would agree. We all wish him well with those proposals. However, they are concerned with the long run and the distant future.

My question to the Secretary of State for External Affairs concerns certain matters which are very pressing now. As the Minister knows, the United States and Soviet Union INF talks, which are very important to the immediate future, have become bogged down. Could he tell us if the Prime Minister made any specific proposals concerning those talks and, if so, what they were and what response he got?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I disagree with the Hon. Member when he describes the Prime Minister's specific ideas as being far distant and in the future. The Prime Minister raised, for example, the question of the MBFR talks in Europe which have been stalled for quite some time, and the possibility of providing them with new political impetus. I cite that as one specific example of the Prime Minister's proposals being quite timely and centered on the present.

Specifically in reply to the Hon. Member's question, Mr. Speaker, I do not believe that the Prime Minister has made specific new proposals to be laid on the table at the Geneva INF talks. There does not seem to be any lack of proposals or ideas. As the Hon. Member knows, many proposals are being put forward, not only at the INF talks but elsewhere as well. What seems to be more urgently required is some improvement that would enable the INF talks and talks in other fora to proceed in a better political atmosphere. I do not think the Prime Minister had in mind making any specific proposals for discussion at the INF talks.

Mr. Broadbent: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to discount the Prime Minister's proposals because they are important for the long run, but I believe the Minister knows that the Prime Minister's proposals overwhelmingly emphasized the future and were not concerned with immediate and pressing problems that could lead either to regional wars of a non-nuclear kind or to a nuclear holocaust. These immediate problems do concern a great many people right now.

NICARAGUA—POSSIBILITY OF INVASION BY UNITED STATES FORCES

Hon. Edward Broadbent (Oshawa): Mr. Speaker, I would like to refer to another specific issue cited by the Prime Minister. He referred to the increasing tendency of states to resort to military solutions for problems that should be addressed by peaceful political means. Considering that for the past week there has been talk in Washington and Central America regarding the possibility of an invasion to be launched against Nicaragua, and considering that two senior American officials, one a security adviser to the President himself and the other an emissary of the President to Central America, have indicated as recently as the past 48 hours that the United States might support a military course of action against Nicaragua, what will be done? Will the Secretary of State for External Affairs put into action some of the nice words, by assuring the people of Canada that we will expressly convey our opposition to such military action by the United States or any other state in that region?

● (1430)

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, we have already stated quite clearly what we think about military action in Central America. We have stated that in our view, as the Hon. Member indicated, the situation does not lend itself to a military solution. We have repeatedly urged all those who are present in the area with arms or armaments, with armed personnel or advisers, to leave. That is our policy, and we can repeat it again to the United States. I have already made that clear to Mr. Shultz earlier this year. It can be made clear again that that is our policy with respect to Central America. That is why, the Hon. Member will know, we have supported the efforts of the Contadora Group. An essential component, probably the essence of that plan, is demilitarization of Central American states, and we support that.

Mr. Broadbent: As the Minister will know, we are not dealing with some abstract, hypothetical possibility that may not occur. We are discussing the possibility of an invasion, according to informed sources, which could take place within a matter of days, not in general in Central America but against a particular country.

REQUEST THAT GOVERNMENT MAKE REPRESENTATIONS TO UNITED STATES

Hon. Edward Broadbent (Oshawa): Mr. Speaker, considering that the Government of Canada expressed its opposition to military action in general in Central America, will the Government follow up specifically by indicating to the United States, one of the great powers of the world in the region, that the Government of Canada wants it to make a public commitment that it will not take military action against Nicaragua, nor will it support such action?

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member asks that we make our views known to United States authorities. I think that has been done and can be done again. Tomorrow I will be meeting with Mr. Dam, Mr. Burt and Mr. Madas, who will be in Ottawa to discuss a series of international questions. One which may come up will be the question of Central America; Grenada will also be on the list, as will East-West relations. It will provide an opportunity for Canada to make its views known on these issues as early as tomorrow.

EDUCATION

FEDERAL FUNDING FOR POST-SECONDARY EDUCATION

Mr. Walter McLean (Waterloo): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Government House Leader. He will recall that last May the Government brought forward Bill C-150 which would reduce federal support for post-secondary education funding in Canada. In light of increasing enrollments, up 7 per cent in 1982 and continuing to rise, the Government has received many representations against this action. Today representatives of the Canadian Federation of Students have been meeting with Members of Parliament. Will the Government be amending this legislation, or has it decided to abandon totally Bill C-150?

Hon. Yvon Pinard (President of the Privy Council): Mr. Speaker, Bill C-150 is on the Order Paper. I will have a House Leaders' meeting later this week. This Bill, as is the case with others, is always subject to negotiation. If the Hon. Member has representations to make as to the substance of the Bill, I would suggest that he talk with the Minister responsible for the legislation. Certainly in our parliamentary process any Bill dealt with is subject to amendments. We have accepted over 80 amendments to Bill C-155. I do not see why this Bill or any other bill could not be improved after reasonable debate. Without agreeing in advance to any change, I certainly invite my hon. colleague to talk to the Minister responsible for the legislation.

As far as dealing with the Bill itself in the House is concerned, it is on the list to be dealt with any time, with the consent of House Leaders. It is part of the process of dealing with different Bills. I will have my regular meeting, and if the Hon. Member has representations dealing with this Bill, we are openminded.

EMPLOYMENT

STUDENT SUMMER EMPLOYMENT PROGRAM

Mr. Walter McLean (Waterloo): Mr. Speaker, my supplementary question, which also relates to students, is directed to the Minister of Employment and Immigration. The Minister will be aware that unemployment has increased by four percentage points over last year among students between the ages of 20 and 24 who returned to post-secondary institutions this Fall. The students who are speaking to Members of Parliament today are concerned about their future and about making plans. In his Department's planning for the 1984 summer student program, have these details and this increase in student unemployment been taken into account? When will the details for the coming Summer be released by the Minister's Department? How do students go about applying?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, the answer is yes. Of course it is not simply a question of student unemployment but of unemployment among young people generally. We are extremely concerned. It is a major preoccupation of the Government to try to improve the delivery systems and the programs available in an attempt to ensure that young people have a better chance of getting into the job market than has been the case over the past few months, indeed during the past year. The details of the various programs we will want to present, the strengthening of existing programs, and perhaps a reprofiling of some of them, are subjects which I hope we will be able to discuss in the context of the next Speech from the Throne.

SPECIAL RECOVERY CAPITAL PROJECTS PROGRAM

NUMBER OF JOBS CREATED

Mr. Thomas Siddon (Richmond-South Delta): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of State for Economic Development. Since the Minister of Finance introduced his budget on April 19 there has been considerable speculation as to the number of direct and indirect jobs which will be created by the Special Recovery Capital Projects program. Will the Minister confirm reliable estimates which place the total number of jobs at something like 50,000 and that, in particular, in the present fiscal year there will only be 10,000 direct jobs or 10,000 personyears of employment produced, which will reduce the unemployment rate by less than .1 per cent?

Hon. Donald J. Johnston (Minister of State for Economic Development and Minister of State for Science and Technology): Mr. Speaker, it is not altogether clear to me where the Hon. Member is deriving his numbers from. At the time the specific program was introduced, there were 277 work sites across Canada in villages, hamlets and major centres. Many of these major projects, as Hon. Members know, have ongoing significance in terms of building economic infrastructure.

Frankly, the number of jobs in the long term is inestimable at this time. What contribution will the biotechnology centre in Montreal make to bringing industries into that sector or to creating economic stimulation in that sector? Similarly, what about the toxicology centre and the pulp and paper institute in Vancouver? The Hon. Member is aware that many of the projects are taking place in his own Province. At the same time shovels are in the ground, cement is being poured, and steel girders are being erected all across the country. Clearly direct construction jobs are being created. The national procurement program, covering the waterbombers in Canadair. defence electronic equipment purchases, frigate and Coast Guard vessel programs, and shipyards that are filled with work because of the program, is creating thousands and thousands of jobs.

Some Hon. Members: Order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I think the Hon. Minister has answered the question.

PROJECTED CREATION OF JOBS

Mr. Thomas Siddon (Richmond-South Delta): Mr. Speaker, the Minister knows that the Minister of Finance called this program an integral part of an action plan to generate more jobs. In fact the number of jobs to be created can be estimated at something like 10,000 for the present year and 50,000 over the full three-year to four-year duration of the program. Will the Minister confirm these figures and that in fact the cost to produce each job is approaching $50,000? Will he also confirm that his own officials pointed out that these jobs were capital intensive rather than labour intensive, and that this is why the Minister of Finance refused to divulge these figures?

Hon. Donald J. Johnston (Minister of State for Economic Development and Minister of State for Science and Technology): Mr. Speaker, quite the contrary. Although I do not know upon what the Hon. Member's numbers were based, I would say that they are very modest in terms of the number of jobs sites and the nature of the work being undertaken. Clearly many jobs are being created. When the Minister of Finance rose in the House to deliver the budget, he pointed out that this part of the program was to fill an investment vacuum, that the private sector was not responding in terms of investment and that this investment was necessary to create the much needed economic infrastructure which, in the long term, would provide a very sound basis for economic recovery. These projects are projects of recovery; that is specifically what they are.

• (1440)

The Hon. Member knows, for example, that in his own riding of Richmond-South Delta $7 million is being put into the airport to improve that facility. This is something which I understand the local residents, his electors, have wanted for some time. Is the Hon. Member suggesting that project is not a valuable one, that it will not create jobs and is not going to improve activities at the Vancouver terminal, and that it is not—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please. I believe the Minister has answered the question.

THE ECONOMY

EMPLOYMENT PRIORITY

Mr. Nelson A. Riis (Kamloops-Shuswap): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister of State for Economic Development as well. In spite of his recent reaction, he will know that the Minister of Finance last week stated there is nothing inevitable about a strong and continuing recovery. As a matter of fact the Minister will also know that groups such as the Economic Council, Statistics Canada, and the Conference Board all have pointed to specific government policies which have acted to hinder economic recovery, specifically, the real—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Would the Hon. Member please ask his question?

Mr. Riis: My question, Mr. Speaker, of the Minister of State for Economic Development is: would he not agree that it is now time for the Government to move its attention more away from the fighting of inflation, which has been the number one priority, and that, as the winter months approach, job creation and putting Canadians back to work should become the number one priority of the Government?

Hon. Donald J. Johnston (Minister of State for Economic Development and Minister of State for Science and Technology): Mr. Speaker, putting Canadians back to work and the creation of jobs have always been the number one priority of this Government.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Johnston: If the Hon. Member would go back to the issue of inflation, he would find that inflation was directly related to the problem of interest rates and the lack of investments which were going to create jobs. Interest rates have now been brought down and investment intentions are improving. Jobs are being created every day. The Hon. Member knows very well the number of jobs which have been created over the past year, and that trend is continuing. However, those purveyors of gloom and doom will always see the glass as half empty rather than half full.

Mr. Fraser: We are paying for a full glass.

Mr. Johnston: It seems to me that the economic recovery is well under way and that the expectation of Canadians—

Some Hon. Members: Order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order, please.

Mr. Riis: Mr. Speaker, the Minister of State for Economic Development will know that the number of jobs in Canada last month shrunk by 25,000. Those are statistics from his own Department.

EFFECT OF INTEREST RATES

Mr. Nelson A. Riis (Kamloops-Shuswap): Mr. Speaker, with more attention now being turned to consumers in terms of leading the recovery, will the Minister not agree that real interest rates have tripled since the beginning of this year, from 1.5 per cent to 4.5 per cent? Will the Minister not agree with that? And, if that is the case, why will the Government not take action to drop those interest rates in order to encourage a consumer led recovery?

Hon. Donald J. Johnston (Minister of State for Economic Development and Minister of State for Science and Technology): Mr. Speaker, we again have the same old song which is sung by the New Democratic Party, the control of interest rates. I presume the Hon. Member would be putting forward as well the imposition of foreign exchange controls—

Mr. Broadbent: Ask Herb Gray.

Mr. Johnston: —at a time when international capital flows are so important, when our relationships with our trading partners are so important. Is that what the Hon. Member is suggesting, that foreign exchange controls be imposed, because there is no other way, as Hon. Members have in the past admitted, and as his Leader, I believe, has admitted, that it could be accomplished without the imposition of foreign exchange controls?

With respect to interest rates, certainly real interest rates are too high. That has been a problem in the United States and in Canada. However, our real interest rates—at least the last numbers I looked at—indicate that our real interest rates are in fact lower than they are in the United States at this time.

Mr. Broadbent: Tell it to Herb.

Mr. Johnston: That is how successful the anti-inflation program has been.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

GOVERNMENT'S POLICY ON MIDDLE EAST

Mr. Jim Peterson (Willowdale): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs. The Minister recently travelled to five Middle East countries. A number of reports have suggested a shift in Canada's Middle East policies, and have—

Mr. Stevens: Order.

Mr. Peterson: —raised serious concerns at home and abroad.

Mr. Crosbie: Straighten it out, Allan.

Mr. Peterson: Will the Minister assure the House and many concerned Canadians, first, that recent events demonstrate that higher level contacts by Canada with the PLO are out of the question; second, that the simultaneous withdrawal from Lebanon of all foreign forces, including PLO and Syrian, and not just Israeli, is a precondition for peace in Lebanon, and third, that all countries in the Middle East must recognize Israel's right to exist as a sovereign and independent nation?

Mr. Crosbie: Give us the Syrian speech, Allan.

Mr. Nielsen: You never expected that question, did you? It is a very good question.

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen (Deputy Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member has asked a series of questions about Middle East policy.

Mr. Crosbie: We agree.

Mr. MacEachen: The first general response I would like to make is that, in the course of my very useful visit to five Middle East countries, I have stated Canadian policy, as it has been stated in the House of Commons, before the Senate Committee, and in various speeches I have made as long as I have been Foreign Minister. With respect to the first question raised by the Hon. Member, namely, the upgrading of contacts with the PLO, I would remind him that on February 17 I indicated that there was no intention on the part of the Government of Canada of recognizing the PLO. That policy still stands. I did say that Canadian Government officials had contacts from time to time with PLO representatives and that I was considering the possibility of upgrading those contacts—

Mr. Crosbie: So you went to Syria.

Mr. MacEachen: I repeated that statement in reply to a question from a journalist in Damascus.

Mr. Crosbie: Order.

Mr. MacEachen: I also added, Mr. Speaker—and this is very important—that any such upgrading would depend upon the circumstances and the requirements. It is rather self-evident, with the struggle which is currently going on within the PLO, that the time is not quite propitious to give implementation to that particular policy question.

Mr. Crosbie: Go to Tripoli, Allan.

EMPLOYMENT

SUDBURY-TIMMINS-ALGOMA MINERAL PROGRAM

Mr. John A. MacDougall (Timiskaming): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed the the Minister of Employment and Immigration. On September 19 the Hon. Member for Nickel Belt announced on the Minister's behalf the establishment of the STAMP Program, short for the Sudbury-Timmins-Algoma Mineral Program. The Program was announced in order to put some of the hundreds of labourers back to work in their career-related field. However, after speaking with officials within EMR and the Minister's Department, I have been told that the $1.4 million program has become a "bureaucratic nightmare" because it was announced prematurely by the Hon. Member for Nickel Belt.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Would the Hon. Member please ask his question?

Mr. MacDougall: Mr. Speaker, the STAMP Program, because it was announced too far in advance, has been forced to reorganize, and employees who were supposed to be hired for 29 weeks have had the time dropped to 26 weeks. This has happened because of political and bureaucratic ineptitude. Can the Minister tell the House today what he is going to do for those other three weeks in which those employees should be working?

Hon. Judy Erola (Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to say that the STAMP Program was not announced prematurely. There are people working today. I say with some regret that we lost one of our employees in the STAMP Program today due to a car accident. However, there are people working. The Program has been received enthusiastically by prospectors and by people involved in the mining industry. I am, quite frankly, shocked, Mr. Speaker, that this—

Mr. McDermid: You are shocked at every question asked you.

Mrs. Erola: —Hon. Member would find time to criticize a program which is taking place on his doorstep. It is finding jobs for people in his riding.

LENGTH OF EMPLOYMENT

Mr. John A. MacDougall (Timiskaming): Mr. Speaker, my question was directed to the Minister of Employment and Immigration. What is he going to do about the three weeks which those employees lost because he was playing politics—not the 29 weeks, the 26 weeks?

Hon. John Roberts (Minister of Employment and Immigration): Mr. Speaker, I do not believe there is anything I can usefully add to the answer just given. Quite clearly, the Hon. Member does not have anything useful to add to the question.

ENERGY

FUNDING OF PETROLEUM INCENTIVES PROGRAM

Miss Pat Carney (Vancouver Centre): Mr. Speaker, my question is addressed to the Minister of Energy, who has been in his seat but has disappeared behind the curtains.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Miss Carney: Mr. Speaker, the Government's April fiscal plan indicated the Minister would be asking Parliament for an additional $200 million to cover approved PIP grants this year. We now learn from the Supplementary Estimates that he wants $484 million, twice his earlier estimate, which will bring the total for this year to $1.6 billion. Can the Minister assure this House that there is some limit to the hand-outs he is prepared to give the oil and gas industry? Is he prepared to cap this Program which has become a financial running sore to Canadian taxpayers?

Hon. Jean Chrétien (Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources): Mr. Speaker, I think for the Hon. Member to complain that I am in the lobby when she has not been in the House for a couple of weeks is a bit exaggerated.

One problem we are having with this program is that it is working very well. The oil and gas industry is drilling in the north, the Newfoundland offshore, and the Nova Scotia offshore. There is a lot of activity in the Canada Lands and that is why it is costing the Government money. In fact we have a grant program because we wanted to give an opportunity to Canadian industry to participate and drill in the Canada Lands, not just the multinationals. We have replaced a tax incentive with a grant program which favours Canadians because we want to Canadianize the industry.

In terms of the Government's balance sheet, it is exactly the same, because if the drilling were done under the old rule of super depletion the cost to the Treasury would be exactly the same as the cost through grants. If the Program is successful we are on the way to attaining self-sufficiency in Canada, and I am very pleased to know that the Tory Party is opposed to being nice to the oil industry.

Miss Carney: Mr. Speaker, may I say that I was representing this Parliament at the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association meetings along with two of his colleagues.

POLICY OBJECTIVES

Miss Pat Carney (Vancouver Centre): Mr. Speaker, oil and gas companies in Canada tell us they are being squeezed by the Government's contradictory energy policies. On one hand, the Minister's Department is telling the industry to keep the lid on run-away frontier exploration costs, and on the other, it is telling the industry to utilize Canadian services which may be uncompetitive. How does the Minister propose to resolve these conflicting objectives so the industry can get on with the job of tapping new energy resources?

Hon. Jean Chrétien (Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources): Mr. Speaker, I think it is possible to achieve these two goals. We want the industry as much as possible to use Canadian goods and services. That is the policy of this Government. But at the same time the Canadian Source has to be competitive. We have to pass judgment there. Of course, when it is not competitive we have to have services or equipment come from abroad.

There are some Members of our own Party who always complain because, for example, some rigs are coming from abroad and they are not made in Canada. So we are passing judgment on this. When Canadians are not competitive, we will let the rigs come from abroad. In every case I put a cap on the amount which can be spent. When the Hon. Member says the cost is too high, it is the duty of the Minister to make sure the costs are as low as possible, but at the same time to attain in Canada the self-sufficiency and security of supply that the Canadian economy and Canada as a whole must achieve.

CUSTOMS AND EXCISE

AMWAY CORPORATION FRAUD—DROPPING OF CHARGES AGAINST EXECUTIVES

Mr. Svend J. Robinson (Burnaby): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister responsible for the customs service. When ordinary Canadians fail to declare goods at the border they often have the book thrown at them by customs officials, yet when the giant Amway Corporation systematically defrauds Canadian taxpayers of millions of dollars for 15 years, charges against the individual corporate executives are dropped in a glaring example of the double standard in the Canadian justice system.

Will the Minister indicate to the House his views on this travesty of justice, and will he assure the House that in the pending civil action by his Department there will be no deals whatsoever with these corporate crooks?

[Translation]

Hon. Pierre Bussières (Minister of National Revenue): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member knows perfectly well that the Department of National Revenue has filed a statement of claim against this company before the Federal Court. There are a number of technical problems to be settled with the Appeals Division of the Federal Court before we can go any further, but we have no intention of dropping the proceedings.

AMOUNTS OWED BY CORPORATION

Mr. Svend J. Robinson (Burnaby): Mr. Speaker, I learned this morning from a source within the Minister's Department that negotiations are now under way between his officials and Amway to make a cozy deal on the $150 million civil lawsuit. Given Amway's guilty plea in the criminal proceedings, will the Minister clearly assure the House his Department will seek full recovery of all amounts outstanding, with penalties and prejudgment interest, and that there will be no more cozy deals made with that great bastion of Conservative free enterprise, the Amway Corporation, which has shown such contempt for Canadian law?

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

[Translation]

Hon. Pierre Bussières (Minister of National Revenue): Mr. Speaker, I have previously indicated to the House the procedures provided under the Customs Act in similar situations. We have filed our statements of claim. The company in question may submit new evidence, and under the arbitration procedures provided under the Customs Act, this new evidence is taken into consideration but it certainly does not mean the company will be allowed to escape the normal application of the laws of our country.

TRUST COMPANIES

INVESTIGATION OF INTEREST RATE CHARGES

Mr. Bill Kempling (Burlington): Mr. Speaker, my question is for the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs. The Minister's Department has had an investigation under way for something like six months into the high interest rates charged by trust companies. I understand officials have interviewed over 1,000 people. The Minister said she was going to release the report. When will it be released?

Hon. Judy Erola (Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs): Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member is quite right. Our Department has been investigating reports of so-called misrepresentations made to people who have been buying mortgages. I would like to point out to the Hon. Member that this is a rather exhaustive study. We have to investigate each report, and it has taken some time. I would like to assure him, though, that we will not be able to release the entire report because this matter, of course, is confidential, but we will be producing the results of this investigation very soon.

DRUG-TAKING TESTS—GOVERNMENT POSITION

M. Irénée Pelletier (Sherbrooke): Mr. Speaker, my question is directed to the Minister responsible for Fitness and Amateur Sport who announced not long ago, in an exclusive interview, that she intended to make it compulsory for Canadian athletes taking part in the Olympic Games in Los Angeles to be given drug screens before they go back to Canada. Does the Minister intend to make the tests compulsory only for the games in Los Angeles or will the decision cover all international competitions where Canadian athletes will be participating?

Hon. Celine Hervieux-Payette (Minister of State (Fitness and Amateur Sport)): Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the hon. gentleman for his question. In fact, after recent events in which athletes taking part in international competitions abroad were arrested upon their return to this country on a charge involving prescription drugs—I am not referring to drugs like cocaine or otherwise—we now have an interdepartmental committee which, with the Minister of National Health and Welfare, the Canadian Olympic Association, the Medical Council of Canada and our national sports organizations has set up a task force which, by the end of this year, will be formulating measures to be taken by the Government in this respect.

In any case, Mr. Speaker, I can assure Hon. Members that tests will be compulsory for international competitions of Olympic caliber, including Sarajevo, Los Angeles, the Pan American Games and the Commonwealth Games.

As for other international competitions, as soon as we have the facilities, I can assure the hon. gentleman that consumption of this kind of drugs is absolutely prohibited by my Department.

RELEASE OF REPORT ON INTEREST RATES

Mr. Bill Kempling (Burlington): Mr. Speaker, my supplementary question is for the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs. When the Minister stated that she would not be releasing the full report on interest rates charged by trust companies, stories began to circulate that a considerable amount of pressure has been put on her Department by certain financial institutions to scratch this report. Would she comment on that please?

MR. McGRATH—QUESTION ON UNEMPLOYMENT ANSWERED BY MRS. EROLA

Hon. James A. McGrath (St. John's East): Mr. Speaker, a very brief point of order. If you will take the time to examine the record today you will note that you allowed the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs (Mrs. Erola) to answer a question dealing with an unemployment matter in northern Ontario, notwithstanding the fact that the Minister of Employment and Immigration (Mr. Roberts) was in the House. MISS JEWETT—POST-SECONDARY EDUCATION

Miss Pauline Jewett (New Westminster-Coquitlam): Mr. Speaker, to the honourable House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled, the petition of the undersigned residents of Canada, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that post-secondary education must be acessible to all, that adequate funding should be available to ensure quality education, that appropriate measures should be taken to reduce the high level of student unemployment.

Wherefore the undersigned, the representatives of the Canadian Federation of Students, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to request the Government of Canada to act immediately to ensure that post-secondary education is accessible to all, that adequate funding is available to ensure quality education, and that appropriate measures be taken to reduce the high level of student unemployment. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. HOVDEBO—RETENTION OF CROWSNEST PASS RATES

Mr. Stan J. Hovdebo (Prince Albert): Mr. Speaker, I have the honour and the duty to present to the House of Commons in Parliament assembled the petition of undersigned residents from almost every Province of Canada, more than 700 residents in all. This presentation is made up from 21 different petitions, all indicating their opposition to changing the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. These petitioners add their names to more than 75,000 Canadians who have already indicated their opposition to the Crow change by this Parliament. The undersigned humbly pray and call upon Parliament to maintain the Crow rate in perpetuity as presently guaranteed by statute. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. FLIS—HUNGER STRIKE OF POLISH CANADIANS

Mr. Jesse P. Flis (Parkdale-High Park): Mr. Speaker, I have the honour and duty to present the petition of approximately 800 undersigned residents of the constituency of Parkdale-High Park and other regions of Ontario who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that the undersigned citizens strongly support the hunger strike staged by ten Polish Canadians and urge the Canadian Government to help the spouses and children of the strikers to join them in Canada. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. ALTHOUSE—RETENTION OF CROWSNEST PASS RATES

Mr. Vic Althouse (Humboldt-Lake Centre): Mr. Speaker, I have a number of petitions on two or three different topics. The first petition has to do with the Crow rate issue.

To the honourable House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled the petition of the undersigned residents of the Province of Saskatchewan, who now avail themselves of their ancient anmd undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that your honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that the undersigned have carefully considered the alternative plan presented by the New Democratic Party, that the Crow rate must be maintained, and that therefore the railways of all of Canada must be upgraded and developed into a modern and efficient transportation system.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate but which will provide upgrading to the railways. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. ALTHOUSE—TESTING OF CRUISE MISSILE ON CANADIAN SOIL

Mr. Vic Althouse (Humboldt-Lake Centre): I have a number of petitions from various points in my constituency with basically the same message. I will read the first one. To the honourable House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled, the petition of the undersigned residents of the town of Allan—and there are some several dozen other towns mentioned as well—in the Province of Saskatchewan, who now exercise their right to present a grievance humbly sheweth that they are opposed to testing the Cruise missile on Canadian soil and call upon the Government to refuse to test the Cruise missile. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

RETENTION OF CROWSNEST PASS RATES

Mr. Vic Althouse (Humboldt-Lake Centre): The last petition is from the Province of Alberta. The petition of the undersigned residents of the Province of Alberta. The petition of the undersigned residents of the Province of Alberta, who now exercise their right to present a grievance, humbly sheweth that the Crow rate is an important benefit to western Canada and one of the earliest incentives granted to settlers; that the changes of the Crow rate will reduce farm incomes contributing to the breakup of communities on branch lines and increase trucking and road costs; that three royal commissions have recommended retention of the Crow rate.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to maintain the Crow rate in perpetuity as presently guaranteed by statute. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

Mr. Les Benjamin (Regina West): Mr. Speaker, for the benefit of the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) I have several groups of petitions. The first has 80-some signatures of citizens of Canada in Unity, Lashburn, Lloydminster, Maidstone, Swift Current, Mortlach, Mossbank and Moose Jaw. The undersigned have carefully considered the alternative plan presented by the New Democratic Party, that the Crow rate must be maintained, and that the railways of all Canada must be upgraded and developed into a modern and efficient transportation system.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the New Democratic Party alternative plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate.

Mr. Speaker, I have another petition signed by 17 people in places like Luseland, Scott, Rockglen, Humboldt, Wilkie and Kelliher, in which they humbly petition the House of Commons assembled to present their grievance that the changing of the Crow rate will reduce farm incomes, contributing to the breaking up of communities on branch lines and increased trucking and road costs, and that three royal commissions have recommended retention of the Crow rate.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to maintain the Crow rate in perpetuity as presently guaranteed by statute.

Mr. Speaker, I have a group of petitions with 237 names from Saltcoats, Stornoway, Roxton and Churchbridge. They humbly petition Parliament assembled that western farmers have paid $131 million to move export grain in the 1981-82 crop year, that this grain contributed $6.3 billion to the balance of trade, the undersigned believe this is the farmers' fair contribution to the Canadian economy and that western farmers will pay one times the Crow rate. Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to maintain the present statutory grain rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

● (1510)

Mr. Speaker, I have a group of petitions with 330 names of residents from Glentworth, McCord, Mankota, Swift Current, Waldeck and many other communities in Saskatchewan. The petition is addressed to the honourable House of Commons in Parliament assembled. The petitioners state that they too believe that the $131 million to move export grain is their fair contribution to the Canadian economy and that western farmers will pay one times Crow. Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to maintain the present statutory grain rate.

Mr. Speaker, I have a further group of petitions with more than 1,000 names, addressed to the honourable House of Commons in Parliament assembled. The petition of the undersigned residents of Canada, who now exercise their right to present a grievance, humbly sheweth that they have examined the New Democratic Party alternative plan. Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to maintain the present statutory grain rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. BENJAMIN—POST-SECONDARY EDUCATION

Mr. Les Benjamin (Regina West): Mr. Speaker, I have a petition signed by a number of citizens of Canada addressed to the honourable House of Commons in Parliament assembled. The petitioners humbly sheweth that whereas the federal Government has stated that it is committed to ensuring that post-secondary education is available to all Canadians, that the problem of our youth has now reached crisis proportions as thousands of qualified students have been refused entry to universities and colleges this year because of inadequate financing and a lack of space, wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament assembled that the federal Government live up to its commitment to the goal of accessibility by immediately establishing an emergency fund with the Provinces to deal with this crisis. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MR. KRISTIANSEN—RETENTION OF CROWSNEST PASS RATES

Mr. Lyle S. Kristiansen (Kootenay West): Mr. Speaker, I have a petition signed by a number of people in the agricultural community from Cut Knife, Saskatchewan addressed to the honourable House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled. The petition of the undersigned residents of the Province of Saskatchewan, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance common to your petitioners in the certain assurance that Your Honourable House will therefore provide a remedy, humbly sheweth that they have carefully considered the alternative plan presented by the NDP and that the Crow rate must be maintained, and that the railways of all of Canada must be upgraded and developed into a modern and efficient transport system.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to adopt the provisions of the NDP alternate plan which will not change the Crowsnest Pass freight rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

I also have a group of petitions signed by some 200 residents of Swift Current, Saskatchewan; Shamrock, Saskatchewan, Chaplin, Saskatchewan; Cut Knife, Saskatchewan; Hodgeville, Saskatchewan; Morse, Saskatchewan; Enfold, MacNutt, Rush Lake; Main Centre, Saskatchewan and some residents from both the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario. The petition of the undersigned residents of Canada, who now avail themselves of their ancient and undoubted right thus to present a grievance, humbly sheweth that western Canadian farmers paid $131 million to move export grain under the Crow freight rate in the 1981-82 crop year, that this grain, in turn, contributed $6.3 billion to the balance of trade, and the undersigned believe that this is the farmers' fair contribution to the Canadian economy and that western farmers will pay one times Crow.

Wherefore the undersigned, your petitioners, humbly pray and call upon Parliament to maintain the present statutory Crow rate. And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray. I hope someone over there is listening.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Motions. The Chair now has to ask for unanimous consent of Hon. Members to dispense with the reading of a rather lengthy series of motions.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, perhaps we might follow the past practice in this case as well. Rather than dispense with them, the Chair could simply ask if any Hon. Member wishes to call a motion standing in his name. He might stand to do so; otherwise we might pass on to the next order of Routine Proceedings.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I am afraid I just cannot agree to that today. We have had those motions standing on the Order Paper for some time now. I am reluctant to allow a precedent to be established. I mentioned the last time we sat that I felt we were establishing a precedent. Therefore, I would prefer that you deal with them in the normal fashion.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, perhaps the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans) might reconsider that, since it is quite a lengthy list and there is some very important fisheries legislation before us waiting to be discussed. Perhaps we could follow past practice without establishing any precedent, as the Chair so stated, so that without prejudice to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain taking the same stand he seems to be taking today at some other time, we could proceed in order to allow us to get on with the fisheries legislation. It is clear that it would not establish a precedent, particularly if we were reassured to that effect by the Chair.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I certainly appreciate the intervention of the Opposition House Leader. I have given some thought to what he has had to say since rising previously. However, I think we should follow the normal practice and read the motions in the way they are intended to be read.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I shall go through the list.

Motions stand.

QUESTIONS ON THE ORDER PAPER

(Questions answered orally are indicated by an asterisk.)

Mr. John Evans (Parliamentary Secretary to President of the Privy Council): Mr. Speaker, the following questions will be answered today: Nos. 4,913, 5,014, 5,136 to 5,232, inclusive, and 5,304.

[Text]

INCOME TAX—CANADA-GERMANY

Question No. 4,913—Mr. Deans:

1. How many residents of the Federal Republic of Germany derive income or capital which may presently be taxed in Canada and in the Federal Republic of Germany?

2. How many residents of Canada are at present required to pay tax in both Canada and the Federal Republic of Germany on profit, income or gains arising in the Federal Republic of Germany?

Hon. Pierre Bussières (Minister of National Revenue): The Department has no statistics on these two subjects. To obtain them, it would be necessary to re-examine all personal income tax returns since there is no other way of isolating only those relevant to this issue. Since there are 15,000,000 personal income tax returns in a year, the cost would be prohibitive.

CONVERSION OF CUSTOMS TARIFF TO METRIC MEASURE

Question No. 5,014—Mr. Herbert:

Is it intended to convert tourist exemption provisions of the Customs Tariff to metric measure and, if so, what will be the date of the change?

Hon. Pierre Bussières (Minister of National Revenue): Bill C-90, which was approved by Parliament on December 16, 1982, provides the Government with the authority to introduce the metric system into the Customs Tariff by Order in Council. Officials of the Department of Finance have begun drafting amendments to the Customs Tariff in consultation with interested parties, including officials in this Department. Imperial measures which appear in the personal exemption tariff items will be converted to metric within the next few months.

TERMINAL ATTACHMENT PROGRAM ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Question No. 5,304—Mr. Young:

1. Does the Department of Communications plan to encourage international standards on magnetic compatibility between telephones and hearing aids and, if so, in what manner?

2. Has TAPAC indicated its willingness to deal with questions of compatibility between hearing aids and the telephone?

3. Does TAPAC have any mechanism for consulting with hearing impaired consumers and, if so, what is it?

Hon. Francis Fox (Minister of Communications): In so far as the Department of Communications is concerned, the reply to the above question is as follows:

1. The Department of Communications (DOC) has supported and will continue to support the development of domestic and international standards or mechanisms which will ensure universal access to the telephone networks by hearing-impaired persons. Canadian industries and laboratories, with the assistance of DOC, also actively participate in various domestic, North American and international activities. As an example, participation in The International Electrotechnical Commission and the Electronic Industries Association is aimed at finding technical solutions to the problems encountered by hearing-aid users.

2. As encouraged by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) in its Telecom Decision 82-14 regarding the attachment of subscriber-provided terminal equipment to the networks of the federally regulated common carriers, the Terminal Attachment Program Advisory Committee (TAPAC) is monitoring domestic and international technical developments in order to assess additional means by which the access of hearing-impaired persons to telephone service can be improved. TAPAC is primarily involved in the development of technical standards for telecommunications equipment which is connected to the public switched telephone network; such standards must ensure adequate protection to the network against potential harm. To the extent that compatibility standards relate to network protection, TAPAc would be mandated to deal with this particular issue.

3. Hearing-impaired consumers or any other interested party may make representations to TAPAC or attend TAPAC meetings as a mechanism for consulting.

Mr. Evans: I ask, Mr. Speaker, that the remaining questions be allowed to stand.

[English]

Mr. McKinnon: Mr. Speaker, I would like to draw the attention of the Parliamentary Secretary to a question I asked on June 1, 1981. The question is No. 2,568. It is a very simple question. It reads:

What was the increase in real terms in the Department of National Defence's expenditures, including statutory costs and expressed in percentages, for each fiscal year 1970-71 to 1979-80?

In budget terms it means that question is three years old and I would have thought that in three years the Department would have been able to figure out how much it spent even in the most recent of these years. Would the Parliamentary Secretary be kind enough to chase that question up?

At the same time, to make his day, I would like to tell the Parliamentary Secretary that starred question No. 4,336 about which I have spoken to him several times and which has been on the Order Paper for a year and a half, has now been resolved outside of this jurisdiction. I would like that question withdrawn from the Order Paper.

Mr. Stevens: Mr. Speaker, I would also draw the attention of the Parliamentary Secretary to question No. 3,216 which I asked on October 23, 1981. It reads:

Did the Prime Minister travel to New York in March 1981 and, if so, what was the total cost of the trip and what percentage will be paid by the taxpayer?

Could the Parliamentary Secretary indicate now after three years whether there is any particular reason why his office could not have given this information?

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, first, if the question was asked October 23, 1981, I think it is two years and not three years.

Mr. Stevens: Just two years.

Mr. Evans: The former President of the Treasury Board should know that.

With regard to question No. 2,568, I will get on to that one immediately. I understand the Member's concern that it has not been answered in the period of time, given the nature of the question. I will see what I can do about it.

I am not sure what the procedure is concerning the request that question No. 4,336 be withdrawn from the Order Paper. I think we have to go through the Chair or the Table Officers for that.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: It needs the unanimous consent of the House.

Mr. Nielsen: No, it does not.

Mr. McGrath: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: It is related to this question?

Mr. McGrath: Yes, Mr. Speaker. Could the Parliamentary Secretary explain to the House why it would take a year and a half for the Government to answer a starred question which, by tradition in this place, is not only answered orally but on an urgent basis?

Mr. Nielsen: In 48 hours, it used to be.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, here we go around that mulberry bush again.

Mr. Nielsen: It is a Grit bush.

Mr. Evans: As we have indicated before and in looking through the precedents, there is no precedent that a starred question is treated any differently from another question other than the fact that when the answer is given it is read orally in the House. That is what Beauchesne says and that is the precedent that has been before this House.

Mr. Nielsen: Rubbish.

Mr. Evans: There is no precedent whatsoever that requires that a starred question be answered on any more urgent basis than any other question. The Government tries to give as urgent attention to these questions as possible in order to get answers back to Members. We have up to this point answered 85 per cent of all questions that have been asked. I think that is a very good record for the Government, Mr. Speaker. Certainly we will do our best to make sure that all these other questions are answered as soon as they possibly can.

Mr. McKinnon: Mr. Speaker, as we are talking about the question I asked which had to do with a lieutenant the Department of National Defence was refusing to readmit to the reserves, let me say that I took the matter up with two Ministers and two Parliamentary Secretaries and the problem was eventually resolved to my satisfaction.

I care little whether the question is withdrawn by a motion of mine, by unanimous consent or by waiting for this interminable session to end, because the question will disappear from the Order Paper one way or the other.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Is there unanimous consent for the Hon. Member for Victoria to withdraw from the Order Paper the question to which he has made reference?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Stevens: Mr. Speaker, my point of order is a follow-up to the original point I raised with the Parliamentary Secretary. The Prime Minister's trip was almost three years ago. I asked the question a little over two years ago. Is the Parliamentary Secretary aware that in our frustration we went to the access to information and privacy co-ordinator of the Privy Council office? His officials have now informed us that the Prime Minister's trip in 1981 cost $5,607.75. If he is aware of that, will he indicate to the House why they have chosen to withhold this information from the House? It is the co-ordinator under the access to information laws of this land that has made the information available.

• (1530)

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, if the Hon. Member has the answer to the question, I cannot see the urgency of standing up here today and asking when it will be answered. He has the answer.

Mr. Stevens: Mr. Speaker, this is a terrible reflection of the attitude of the Parliamentary Secretary and the Government toward this House with respect to the answering of questions. The thrust of my question is whether the information that we now have, the $5,607.75 cost given to us by the co-ordination for access to information and privacy, is correct, or is there some information to be added to his report? In short, why will the Government not level with this House concerning not only these questions but the cost of other trips by the Prime Minister? Do we have to go through the same co-ordinator to obtain information which, incidentally, we received within two months?

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, as I said, we will do everything possible to answer the Hon. Member's question. I will certainly check why the answer was not available in the House and tabled at an earlier date if in fact it was available through the information commissioner. I will check on the other questions and see if that information is available through the commissioner. If it is, it certainly should be tabled in the House.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I rise on the point of order which was addressed by the Parliamentary Secretary a moment ago with respect to the practice of answering starred questions. The Parliamentary Secretary, who seems to view this whole exercise of denying information to Parliament very gleefully, would not in my view know a precedent if he tripped over it, like he does with most things. If he would get his nose out of Beauschesne and out of the Standing Orders and go back over the debates of this House, he would learn that starred questions were, at one point, before the changes for the worse were brought about by the practices of the present Government, answered in 48 hours. At the very latest, they were answered in three days. That has been the practice in this place. He and I have had this exchange before. Madam Speaker has taken it under advisement. She was going to look at it and get back to us. You, Mr. Speaker, have been around here long enough to appreciate the significance of starred questions. They do have some significance. The significance that attaches to them is that any normal self-respecting Government would treat them as urgent and bring forward the answers on an urgent basis, not hide them for a year and a half, as in the case of the question of the Hon. Member for Victoria. Otherwise, there is no purpose for starred questions. They are there for a purpose, the purpose is urgency. Rather than changing the practice, we should abide with past practices and distinguish urgent questions from those which require in some cases volumes of statistical information which takes time to produce. A question as simple as the one the Hon. Member for Victoria starred certainly could have been answered within three days, but was not.

Mr. Forrestall: Mr. Speaker, I rise on somewhat the same point of order to ask the Parliamentary Secretary about Question No. 5,038 regarding the number of ships permitted into Canada under special authority to participate in offshore oil exploration.

The question was starred because it was anticipated that the Government would in fact add additional revenues to the PIPS Program. We noted today in the House the question by the Hon. Member for Vancouver Centre and the response by the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources. If we had had the answer that I sought on September 21, we would have been in a much better position to evaluate the Minister's response to the Hon. Member.

In the years that I have spent in this Chamber, the practice of starred questions was to identify those questions which Members felt were urgent, topical or pertained to business either before the House or shortly to come before the House. This practice has not been abused. From a random review of the last 10 or 15 years, we find that the practice of starred questions has not been abused. That procedure has not been abused. It is a procedure used by Members in an attempt to obtain information which they believe to be of importance and necessity concerning matters currently before the House. With regard to the Parliamentary Secretary's attempt to indicate to the Chamber that there is nothing in the Standing Orders, Beauchesne's or House rules to indicate urgency with respect to this, I join with the Hon. Member for Yukon. If the Parliamentary Secretary does not want to do it himself, he can have someone else look up the practice of this Chamber over the past 40 or 50 years. He would perhaps then have a different view and would appreciate that the procedure is not one that Members have traditionally abused.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, I would very much like to go back and look at the last 40 or 50 years of practice in this Chamber. In the last 10 to 15 years, it certainly has not been the case that they were considered to be a matter of urgency. They were read here in the House. The Hon. Member for Yukon certainly has a means, if he wishes, to change the procedure from the way it has been for the last ten years or so. He can raise this with the House Leaders. If that is a practice that the House wishes to undertake and the Chair agrees it is proper and the House Leaders can agree, I am sure it can become a procedure. That is not the way it is done now and it has not been done that way for some time.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, I want to speak to this point of order as well. I find offensive the attitude which the Parliamentary Secretary takes on behalf of the Government with respect to the responses he has given on behalf of the Government to written questions on the Order Paper. I find it offensive for two reasons. First, if one listens to what the Parliamentary Secretary is saying, one finds he is trying to find every device to avoid the responsibility to answer. He does not take an affirmative point of view with respect to disclosure of information. He says he has been searching precedents. That is for the purpose of finding why there should be no early or immediate response to questions on the Order Paper. There is a second and more serious problem. During the course of discussion on access to information legislation, the direction of the Government to all Government Departments was that, in terms of answering questions, the principles to access to information legislation were to be observed even before the Act was passed—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order. The Chair has listened attentively to the Hon. Member. The Chair has a concern at this point about the point of order. The point of order concerns delays in answering questions. The Parliamentary Secretary indicated that he would do his best to reply. The whole question of Government policy enunciated at other times, in other ways and in other places which the Hon. Member is raising, raises a difficulty with the Chair. The Chair has to proceed on the statement of the responsible officer to the House, in this case the Government spokesman, that an effort will be made to answer the questions. The Chair has difficulty entertaining a point of order beyond that point.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. My point is that asking questions on the Order Paper has become something of a joke in the House of Commons. In other words, when my colleague, the Hon. Member for York-Peel, points out that he has had a question on the Order Paper for over two years and then puts in a request under the freedom of information legislation and gets a response in something less than a few weeks, we must ask ourselves whether this demonstrates contempt on the part of the Government with respect to a very serious and integral part of our responsibilities here. We ask serious questions in order to disseminate publicly information with respect to Government activities.

I believe that the point of order I am raising, Mr. Speaker, is very germane and appropriate. More and more Members of Parliament are simply not using the opportunity afforded to them of asking questions on the Order Paper because of the derelict way in which the Parliamentary Secretary and his colleagues have dealt with these matters. Questions have been on the Order Paper year after year and I can cite those questions chapter and verse.

I ask the Parliamentary Secretary if his guidelines with respect to answering questions on the Order Paper from Members of Parliament are the same as those guidelines indicated in the freedom of information legislation. In other words, can we in the House of Commons expect attention that is at least as urgent and immediate as the attention that is paid to inquiries made under legislation that is available to all Canadians? When asking questions on the Order Paper, we do not have the power to have an information commissioner require the Parliamentary Secretary to comply with any requests for information here in the House of Commons. The only thing we can do is to point out to the Parliamentary that he is not fulfilling his function and that the Government is reluctant to give this information. We can only take a political approach on the floor of the House of Commons because there is no other way that we have—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Hon. Member has made his point. It is difficult for the Chair to oblige the Government to answer questions. The Hon. Member appears to have a grievance but it is difficult for the Chair to entertain it as a point of order. I think the Hon. Member has made his point on the Hansard record.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I would like to say briefly that it seems to me that if there is a point of order, it might well be taken under advisement. As you know, Mr. Speaker, today we are attempting to deal with a very important fisheries Bill.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deans: I would very much like to see the House deal with that Bill as quickly as possible.

Mr. Forrestall: Mr. Speaker, I rise on the same point of order. I wonder if the Parliamentary Secretary could not tell me when he intends to answer my starred question. Can he tell me whether it will be answered now or at some remote time in the future? If it is not answered shortly, I might follow the lead of my dear colleague, the Hon. Member for Victoria, by having the question withdrawn. Perhaps the Parliamentary Secretary might respond and tell me precisely when he will answer that question.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair had earlier recognized the Hon. Member for Dartmouth-Halifax East on precisely the same point of order.

Mr. Forrestall: No, but he did not answer my question.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair will not recognize the Hon. Member again on the same point of order.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, as I indicated earlier, I will look into the matter and I will try to have the question answered at the earliest possible moment. The Hon. Member for Saskatoon West indicated in his tirade that the Government did not take this issue seriously and that it was not putting forward answers. There are now, or have been in the past, 5,361 questions on the Order Paper. The Government has answered 85 per cent of those questions. Some questions are more difficult to answer than others; some questions take more time to answer than others. Perhaps administrative problems have occurred while answering other questions. However, the Government will do—

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Order.

Mr. Blenkarn: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The Chair asks Hon. Members to bear in mind that there seems to have been a lengthy debate on this matter. The Hon. Member for Mississauga South is seeking to be recognized. I ask him to be brief.

Mr. Blenkarn: Mr. Speaker, I would like to be brief. Three weeks ago, I raised the matter of Question No. 1,741 on the Order Paper, a question of November 20, 1980, with the Parliamentary Secretary. At that time, he said he would contact the CNR immediately with respect to the passes and gifts from Air Canada for its directors and what was paid for those passes. Three weeks have now gone by and I would have thought that the Parliamentary Secretary would now have that answer, particularly in view of the fact that the question has been outstanding for nearly three or four years.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, I have looked into that matter. I have put a tracer on that question in order to find out why it has not been answered. To this point, I have not heard back.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The questions enumerated by the Parliamentary Secretary have been answered. Shall the remaining questions stand?

Some Hon. Members: Stand.

ATLANTIC FISHERIES RESTRUCTURING ACT

MEASURE TO ESTABISH

Hon. Pierre De Bané (Minister of Fisheries and Oceans) moved that Bill C-170, An Act to authorize investment in and the provision of financial assistance to the Atlantic Fisheries for the purpose of restructuring certain fishery enterprises, be read the second time and referred to the Standing Committee on Fisheries and Forestry.

He said: Mr. Speaker, speaking on second reading of Bill C-170, I wish to seek the support of the House for this Bill. I would say it is not merely a Bill but a historic milestone, if we consider the impact the legislation will have on the future of our Atlantic fisheries. I would even go so far as to say that this Bill is as important as the Fisheries Act and the measures taken in 1977 to extend our jurisdiction over fisheries to the 200-mile zone.

This legislation must also be seen within the historical context of our Atlantic fisheries, part of which goes back several decades, while another part has materialized during the last six months. Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to dwell at length on past history. Nevertheless, I think we could usefully review some aspects of the history of our Atlantic fisheries over the last ten years, to illustrate the sequence of events that has brought us to the present situation, and to explain how the measures that are about to be taken by the Government of Canada, with, we hope, the support of all parties of this House, are a logical consequence thereof.

First, a quick look at our Atlantic fisheries at the beginning of the seventies. Hon. Members will recall that at the time, the fisheries were in a crisis situation as they are today. Foreign fishing fleets were devastating the fish stocks off our coasts. The abundant stocks of groundfish that had been the mainstay of the fishing industry for generations were threatened with depletion. The federal Government was called in and provided very substantial assistance in keeping the industry afloat, as it were.

We were aware that the fish stocks that formed a vital part of our economy in the Atlantic provinces were in very serious danger. We were also aware that this was due to uncontrolled fishing. On the basis of our experience of international controls, we knew that the only answer to these problems lay in establishing Canadian sovereignty over these resources.

Let us now look at the year 1977, when Canada proclaimed its authority over the 200-mile zone and we started on the long and difficult task of rebuilding the resource that forms the basis of this industry.

We find our next historic milestone in more recent years, namely, 1981, when our country had been exercising control over fish stocks within the 200-mile zone for five years. I think we may be proud of the manner in which we have discharged this responsibility. Our success both in safeguarding and re-establishing fish stocks is undisputed and worthy of mention. In fact, our achievements in this area have been cited the world over, and rightly so, as prime examples of excellent fisheries resource management. In 1981, however, we were once again facing a very serious situation in the Atlantic fisheries. Companies were on the verge of bankruptcy, fishermen and processing plant workers were laid off or about to be, shareholders were worried and businessmen reluctant to invest. However, there was no shortage of fish, there was no overfishing by foreign fleets and no operation of factory ships beyond our control.

There is a paradox here that is clear to even the most superficial observer. Here we have an industry that is fortunate in being able to draw on some of the richest fisheries resources of the whole world. It is located nearer the United States, one of the main markets for this product, than any of its competitors. We have people whose fishing and ocean-going traditions are as good if not better than anyone else's. We have a country that since 1978, in terms of volume, has become the biggest exporter of fish and fish products. Nevertheless, the industry was once again in dire straits and in danger of disappearing once and for all.

The obvious question is: How can an industry that has so much going for it manage to get itself into such serious trouble? More than once, my predecessor at the Department of Fisheries and Oceans reminded the industry that by extending our jurisdiction, we had acquired new borders but lost one excuse. We could no longer blame our problems on overfishing by foreign fleets, and so if our problems continued and would not go away, we would have to change our own procedures. In other words, we would have to look at the problem from within.

Mr. Speaker, it was clear that we now had an entirely different situation. Financial assistance would have been justified when there was overfishing by foreign fleets. However, in the 80s, this reason was no longer valid. The time had come to define our international problems and try to correct them. That is why the Government established the Atlantic Fisheries Task Force headed by Mr. Michael Kirby. As Hon. Members are aware, the terms of reference of the task force were not only to describe the symptoms but to establish the cause of the disease. Furthermore, this could not be done in a vacuum but required frequent consultation with industry, fishermen, and the provincial governments concerned.

[English]

The task force made its report early this year. Its findings were sobering and instructive, but they were also basically very positive, very upbeat. As other studies before it have indicated repeatedly, this one found that whatever Atlantic fisheries might lack, they were very rich in potential. This, the task force confirmed, is a Canadian asset of immense and renewable value. The task force also found—and observers within and outside the Government have agreed with the finding—that although external influences were involved, the industry's problems were structural. They stemmed from inherent defects and internal causes. The boat had not capsized just because of the storm; it capsized because it was not built to withstand heavy weather.

Since early this year, as Hon. Members know, the Government, along with the Governments of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, the large deep sea companies and financial institutions, has been attempting to come up with a plan to keep the industry afloat. In the Province of Quebec the large co-op, United Fishermen, which has for the last two years been promised financial assistance by the Quebec Government, at the end rightly despaired. So it came and struck a deal with my Department also.

The agreements we have reached with Newfoundland and Nova Scotia and with this large co-op in the Province of Quebec reflect to some extent the recommendations made by the task force. They envisage work on many fronts.

Mr. Crosbie: To what extent, Mr. Minister?

Mr. De Bané: If the Hon. Member would just give me the chance to finish my speech, I will gladly answer any questions he may have.

Mr. Crosbie: Aren't you going to answer that in your speech? It is very important.

Mr. De Bané: The partners in these consultations agree that the industry needs to change. It needs to improve its marketing arrangements. It needs to become leaner and more efficient ashore and afloat. However, more basically, it needs to be a different kind of industry. It is not enough to beach the existing vessel and patch it up for another voyage. The industry needs a new design, one with enough built-in strength and stability to stay afloat even when the economic barometer falls.

The Bill which I have the honour to bring before the House represents one major step in that process. In the course of long, sometimes difficult negotiations this year, I reached agreements with the Governments of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, with the industry and with financial institutions on a plan to reorganize or restructure, as the Bill puts it, the Atlantic fisheries.

The plan calls for, among other things, a substantial investment of Canadian taxpayers' money. The purpose of the Bill is to authorize the federal Government to play a major part in a co-operative effort to restructure the industry. Specifically, it would authorize the Government of Canada to invest in the industry and to make loan guarantees.

Before discussing the Bill itself, I want to tell Hon. Members why the legislation is necessary and desirable. Of course, the most basic reason is that without action the industry will go under. There is a funding vacuum. No private investors have come forward to fill it. Given the industry's present financial state, it is simply not able to take that kind of risk.

Let me begin my review of the situation with Newfoundland. All observers, Government and private, agree that without exception the deep sea processing companies in that Province are in a state of terminal financial distress. Several at this point are already in receivership. As Hon. Members know, the Governments of Newfoundland and Canada signed an agreement on measures to restructure the Newfoundland deep sea industry. The agreement was not easy to achieve, but we have it now. It was signed in an atmosphere of cordiality and united resolve. I understand that the Government of Newfoundland and labrador is at the moment discussing in the legislature of that Province a Bill, the object of which is to ratify the agreement which has been reached between our two Governments. I might add that it has been hailed by the Premier of that Province as the most important bilateral agreement reached between that Province and the central Government since its entry into Canada in 1949. I am happy to note that, like all other major achievements in Newfoundland, it was done under a Liberal Government in Ottawa.

● (1600)

What our Governments hoped to accomplish together is summed up very concisely in the preamble to that agreement. That document says, Mr. Speaker, that our objective is to find a just and lasting solution for the rebuilding of the deep sea fishery, one which recognizes the fundamental role which the fishing industry plays in Newfoundland and Labrador.

In the course of consultations which led to this agreement, practical measures were agreed upon by both Governments and by the financial institutions which will provide part of the funding. It was agreed specifically that the logical and effective course would be to combine the assets of John Penny and Sons, the Lake Group Limited, North Atlantic Fisheries, Fishery Products and some other companies. Certain assets of H. B. Nickerson and Sons in Nova Scotia would be merged with these Newfoundland elements to achieve a balanced mix of products.

In our opinion, and those of our partners in these consultations, this would produce the basic structure for an economically viable company—lean, efficient and able to compete with any fishing nation in the world. One component of the new structure would be an operating company. The other would be a holding company.

In Nova Scotia we have reached an agreement in principle with the provincial Government and with the Bank of Nova Scotia. In this case we are talking about consolidation of two main elements, National Sea Products and certain parts of the H. B. Nickerson and Sons operations, into a restructured National Sea Products Company. In this case, financing will be achieved by conversion of some debt to equity by the Bank of Nova Scotia and by the Province, and injection of new cash for equity by the Government of Canada.

A presentation was made to the board of directors of National Sea Products on October 17 on behalf of the federal and Nova Scotia Governments and the Bank of Nova Scotia, proposing a merging into National Sea Products of certain Nova Scotia fishing assets of H. B. Nickerson and Sons. This proposal includes provisions for an estimated $90 million of common share equity to restructure the balance sheet of National Sea Products. The equity is to be provided by a consortium composed of the two Governments and the bank through a company which will, as a result, probably own in excess of 75 per cent of the common shares of the restructured National Sea Products. The exact percentage will depend on the price at which the new common shares will be issued.

As Hon. Members will know, National Sea is a publicly-owned company with publicly-traded shares. The board of directors of that firm is considering the proposal submitted to it and will be seeking the approval of its shareholders for any recommended response. I should also add that discussions and negotiations have taken place which will result in the sale of the total H. B. Nickerson and Sons interests in fish processing operations in Atlantic Canada—including a controlling interest in National Sea Products—to a company owned by the two Governments and the Bank of Nova Scotia. The Nickerson assets located in Newfoundland, plus the Riverport, Nova Scotia facilities and 12 scallop vessels, will be transferred to a company to be incorporated in Newfoundland as per the agreement made between the Government of Canada and the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador on September 26, 1983.

I remain hopeful that we can secure full agreement of all parties involved in the Nova Scotia restructuring plant in the near future, and that implementation of the agreements can proceed.

With respect to Quebec, the situation is quite different. Indeed, Mr. Speaker, we have in the Province a huge co-operative—Pêcheurs-Unis—which represents close to 50 per cent of plant workers of Quebec's fishing industry and accounts for nearly 40 per cent of catches in terms of volume. As everyone knows, for two years now this leading co-operative which is affiliated to the Desjardins group has been promised by the provincial Government that it will solve those problems and provide assistance. The simple truth is that in the past two years the Canadian Government, represented by my predecessor the former Minister of Fisheries and Oceans (Mr. LeBlanc) and myself since last year, has made it possible to rescue Pêcheurs-Unis during the last two fishing seasons, those of 1982 and 1983, twice in a row. In my opinion, the Pêcheurs-Unis case is one of the most telling examples of Canadian federalism. Those fishermen and plant workers had been told by the provincial Government that it would help them and solve their problems, but they finally realized that if they really wanted action, if they really wanted a solution, they had to ask the Canadian Government. However, I must admit that certain aspects of the Pêcheurs-Unis case remain unclear to this day. Under extreme circumstances, one can understand why the Government of Quebec would refuse to shoulder its responsibilities, but what is impossible to understand is why that Government not only denied help to Pêcheurs-Unis but did everything it could to destroy, even to the extent of questioning the personal integrity of their leaders, even questioning the personal integrity of one of the senior Desjardins officials. The Government even made references to police investigations and threatened fishermen who sought the assistance of the Canadian Government with the loss of their rights—and these are Quebec taxpayers—which belong to all Quebec fishermen.

Why is that? Mr. Speaker, I confess that I do not understand, just as the fishermen and those who looked into the case of Pêcheurs-Unis do not understand either. In any event, the Canadian Government did rescue Pêcheurs-Unis during the last two fishing seasons. Should anyone ask me why, I would answer simply that it was our duty to intervene.

History will note that in the case of all those commercial undertakings which I mentioned—National Sea Products Ltd., Nickerson, Fishery Products, Penny & Sons, North Atlantic, Pêcheurs-Unis—hundreds and thousands of creditors agreed to wait and did not take any action because they knew that we were trying to find a solution. The one and only creditor who behaved like a common finance company and who seized the assets was the Quebec government. The one and only creditor! Of course, I could not let this opportunity pass by without thanking all the creditors, large and small, who have demonstrated considerable patience over the past two years, especially towards the Pêcheurs Unis, and I am sure I am speaking on behalf of all hon. members when I say that I cannot understand how the Quebec government, which is supposed to be closer to the taxpayers, could be, of all the creditors, the only one to seize the assets of the Pêcheurs Unis. And as everybody knows, it seized Madelipêche, a plant, most shares of which belonged to the Pêcheurs Unis.

I have examined the contract which the Quebec government had forced at the time upon the Pêcheurs Unis whereby, for all practical purposes, the Quebec government was buying the Madelipêche assets for a ridiculously low price. Mr. Speaker, you have there an example of the great social conscience of the Quebec government. It has done something which no financial company would have dared. In so doing, the Quebec government has attacked the personal integrity of the Pêcheurs Unis leaders as well as the Desjardins movement, and it has passed a legislation to take over the assets of the Pêcheurs Unis; it has even threatened the fishermen and the plant workers with retaliation if they accepted the offer of the Canadian government, and in spite of all the threats and intimidation tactics, I am happy to report that all those concerned, namely, the fishermen, the unions, the plant workers, the creditors and the leaders of the Desjardins movement, have accepted the offer of the Canadian Government. As evidence of this, I should like to read into the official report the letter which Mr. Pierre Lefebvre, my Assistance Deputy Minister in charge of the Pêcheurs Unis file, has just received from Mr. Jean-Paul Paradis, the fisherman who is the President of the Pêcheurs Unis of Quebec, and I quote:

Dear Assistant Deputy Minister;

I have acquainted myself with the results of the 2nd Information Meeting which was held with you in Newport last Tuesday evening, and I feel that these results are very satisfactory.

I emphasize the words "very satisfactory", Mr. Speaker.

Some 25 fishermen in attendance thus reasserted their agreement to the restructuring plan of the Canadian government, which means that they do not question the value of the first consultation in which they had taken part last October 19.

Up to now, the official and private consultations going on in Newport indicate and lead us to conclude that a major part of the local fleet still supports your restructuring proposal.

Indeed, we are speaking about a cooperative where each member has one vote.

In addition, the members of fisheries cooperatives throughout the northern Gaspé area still maintain their acceptance of your plan, while our organized workers continue to have a very favourable response.

However, some confusion seems to subsist as to the firm desire of your government to proceed with this plan, which confusion is encouraged by those who oppose it.

I therefore wish to reaffirm our full and complete acceptance of your offer as made last October 16 in Gaspé, and I sincerely hope that you will submit in the near future the contractual agreement sealing the transaction through which the assets of Pêcheurs-Unis will be transferred to a new corporation, still to be established and in which your government will probably have a majority of shares.

Sincerely yours,

Jean-Paul Paradis
Chairman
Pêcheurs-Unis du Québec

I would like to say to the chairman of Pêcheurs-Unis, as well as to all the fishermen, all the plant workers, the unions, the Desjardin movement, the small and the large creditors, all those who stood up to the threats, the blackmail, the overstatements—and I see that my hon. predecessor is coming in, he who has done so much in relation with Pêcheurs-Unis—I would like to tell all those people who stood up to all that and to these attacks on their reputation, that the Canadian government will not abandon them and that we shall do exactly as promised by my predecessor, the Hon. Minister of Public Works. We are going to act and to establish this corporation which will also make its marketing services available to all other Quebec businesses. When I think that this is being called an ideological conflict! Mr. Speaker, we only have to look at what was done in the case of Madelipêche. This company was not seized, taken over or appropriated to be given back to the people of the Magdalen Islands. The Quebec government appropriated the company for itself. This goes much deeper; we might as well recognize that it is an ideological conflict. The Quebec government is refusing to behave as a government which favours dialogue. As avidence, the Canadian Saltfish Corporation Act provides for one representative to be designated by the Quebec government to defend the Quebec viewpoint. That seat is still vacant, and this goes to prove to what extent the Quebec Government is ranking its ideology above the welfare of its fishermen.

The case at hand is a good example of how much federalism benefits Quebec fishermen more than 95 per cent of whom have supported the Canadian Government program that was sprinkled with no threats, arm-twisting or upmanship. When I think of the Quebec Minister of Fisheries and Minister of Agriculture going to Rivière-au-Tonnerre to offer them $800,-000, ten times more than he offered last year! This is what he offered them to try and get their support. Despite everything, I invite them for the last time to accept the Canadian Government's offer and become a shareholder as all other partners did, in that new organization which we are going to set up.

[English]

Some elements of restructuring the Atlantic fishery are specific to the Provinces involved but some are common to all, and I would like to touch on some of these principles now. This is not nationalization. This is not the beginning of nationalization. We are not creating Crown corporations. All of the Governments involved hope their participation is temporary. We are convinced that the interests of the industry and the communities which depend on them will be best served by returning the Atlantic fisheries to the private sector as soon as possible. This is our stated and explicit aim. Indeed, we would be ready to do so immediately except that at this low point in the fortunes of the industry no private investors are willing to take the risk alone.

In entering into this agreement, the Government is acutely aware of the need to consider the situation of smaller companies in the five Provinces and the way they will relate to these three new large entities. These three new companies will be among the largest fishing industry enterprises in the world, particularly those whose headquarters will be in Halifax and St. John's. They will be doing business in all four Atlantic Provinces and Quebec, which are home also to a number of much smaller independent companies. Some of these are watching developments with a certain degree of uneasiness. I understand their concern, Mr. Speaker. They want to know that this restructuring exercise, conducted after all in part with their tax dollars, will not work against their interests.

Our message to these independent companies is clear. From the start of negotiations we have kept their interests in mind. This Government believes that a vigorous and independent small business sector is indispensable to the long-term health of the Atlantic fisheries. We need a balanced mix here as much as we need it in, for instance, the airlines. The use of Government support and participation to create an unfair advantage over small and efficient companies will not be permitted. Certainly, great size will endow the new entities with new strengths, but we are taking steps to ensure that those advantages which are derived directly from size are made available to the smaller companies. One area in which size confers a strong advantage is in marketing capabilities. The three new companies would be required to make their marketing capability available on request and on mutually agreed terms to smaller independent companies.

The fact is, Mr. Speaker, that the action we are proposing offers the best hope we have of containing financial disaster before it spills over and engulfs the independants too. It is not hard to imagine the chaos, the shock of unemployment, economic slow-downs and the dumping of fish inventories at distressed prices which would follow a total collapse of the larger companies. This Government recognizes its responsibility to consider the social as well as the economic side of the equation. We also recognize that the new companies formed under this agreement must compete effectively in world markets. To do this they will have to plan and perform in conformity with business realities. Their decisions must make commercial sense. There is an implied division of roles and objectives here to which we give explicit recognition in this plan. If actions such as keeping a plant open that loses money are required for social reasons, then Government, not the company, will pay the cost of the action. Those companies will have to be run as efficient businesses.

We decided to follow the path I have outlined because the others, upon examination, led either nowhere or back to where we started. One such option was to make loans or guarantees to the companies in distress. This was impossible. The companies in question are incapable of carrying more debt. What is the use of more loan guarantees to those companies? They are already overburdened with debt. For obvious reasons, we rejected the use of public funds as grants to bail out shareholders and banks because there is no rationale to take taxpayers' money and give it to some companies without making the same favour to the 700 plants in eastern Canada. We cannot give grants to some when we are using taxpayers' money. As I was unable to extend that largesse to all companies, that band-aid could not be considered. It would not have gone to the root of the problem. It would have been another bail-out.

We rejected the option, if we can call it an option, of sitting passively by and watching the Atlantic fishing industry go down the drain. Such a course would be socially irresponsible and economically insane. If those companies had to go under and their huge inventories sold at distressed prices, as in any bankruptcy, it would have a domino effect of bankruptcies that would have touched and affected hundreds of other plants in eastern Canada.

The need of the hour is not only to rebuild a devastated industry but to rebuild sorely damaged confidence. The industry needs a reasonable degree of certainty about the seriousness of our commitment to restructure. The people in Atlantic fishery, fishermen, plant workers, managers, shareholders, investors, all need to know that the new structure rests on a solid base of public agreement. They need to know that the decisions made today are not subject to political shifts of the wind. We have made a strong start toward building that confidence in the agreements with Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and United Fishermen, that large important co-op in the Province of Quebec.

By coming to the House with a Bill which expresses clearly, specifically and openly what we plan to do, we build on that base. We certify that commitment with the seal of the Parliament of Canada.

[Translation]

It has sometimes been stated, Mr. Speaker, that periods of severe crisis were also periods of unequalled opportunity. As Arnold Toynbee suggested, a crisis is in a way a spur that stimulates healthy societies to new summits. The difficulties faced by the Atlantic fisheries already have prompted two positive responses. One is a commitment to study the underlying causes, the second is the willingness in various public and private sectors to work together to bring about changes and improvements that cannot be realized in isolation. To that extent, we can state that what appears to be a troubled period for the Canadian fishing industry can also be viewed as a period of unprecedented opportunity. This is how we are viewing the situation. We have the fish, the markets, the expertise, the willingness to work and the traditions. And now, for the first time, we also have the means to put all those assets to intelligent use.

Before I conclude, Mr. Speaker, I would have this to add. If we seem to be viewing this legislation with some sense of urgency, it is because it is indeed a matter of urgency. Much time already has been wasted. We would have preferred debating the question in this House six months or even three months earlier. The industry has been in a difficult situation for quite some time. Each day has added its burden of economic hardship and anxiety for those in the industry. But the fact is that only a few days ago could we reach with our partners and Pêcheurs-Unis in Quebec the agreement that was needed to act. As long as that agreement was not forthcoming we could not place the project before the House as long as we had no precise knowledge of what would be needed, or how much co-operation our efforts would be met with. We now have those answers, and we have a plan of action. Mr. Speaker, we know what must be done and how it must be done. I urge this House to deal with this Bill within the shortest possible timeframe.

[English]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Order please. I see at least two Members rising with the intention of asking questions. May I remind them that, following the speech of a Minister on a Bill, the Standing Orders do not provide for the usual ten minute question and answer period. Perhaps the Hon. Members might like to seek unanimous consent of the House.

Mr. McGrath: I wanted to ask if the Minister would permit a question on the speech.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): The Member from St. John's East (Mr. McGrath) seeks unanimous consent, and so does the Hon. Member for South West Nova (Miss Campbell), that some limited questions, in terms of time, be asked of the Minister. Is that agreed?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. McGrath: Mr. Speaker, at the conclusion of his speech the Minister spoke of urgency. Indeed, the Newfoundland legislature, which has before it a similar Bill, is treating it as a matter of considerable urgency. I understand the Minister of Fisheries for Newfoundland is coming to Ottawa with the expectation of appearing before a committee this week. Would the Minister tell the House why the Government is not proceeding with this Bill tomorrow? As the Minister knows, his colleague, the President of the Privy Council (Mr. Pinard), announced today that tomorrow would be a designated Opposition day.

• (1630)

Mr. De Bané: Mr. Speaker, I wish to confirm to the Hon. Member, who is one of my distinguished predecessors, that this Bill is indeed a very high priority. The reason is very simple. Until it is passed, I am unable to invest the substantial amounts of money needed to restructure those companies. Since that amount of money is fixed and cannot be increased, the longer we delay the longer we will have to pay interest rates to the financial institutions. Therefore, I urge the House to pass it very quickly.

With respect to the Hon. Member's question, I think I will have to relay it to my colleague, the President of the Privy Council. But I am sure that all Members will have ample occasion to prove their dedication to this Bill and have it passed this week if they want.

Miss Campbell: Mr. Speaker, I thank the House for the unanimous consent. My question deals strictly with the problem of the small, independent processors. I noticed that the Minister did mention them and I will be discussing this matter later when speaking to this Bill. However, in reference to page 3 of the agreement with the Province of Nova Scotia, why has the Minister not made any mention of the fact that there will be a multimillion dollar Nova Scotia fisheries developing program to assist the fishing industry in a major effort to assist the smaller sector of the fishing industry? I raise this because there are as many small companies hurting today as there are large companies. Although this Bill gives the Minister wide power to provide financial assistance to the large companies with restructuring, I do not see any provision in the Bill for the small companies.

Mr. De Bané: Mr. Speaker, I am very happy that my colleague, who is also Chairman of the parliamentary committee, has mentioned one particular clause of the agreement I signed with Nova Scotia. She is absolutely right. I could have told her of other very good agreements reached with the Government of Nova Scotia but the Speaker was pressing me to conclude.

The example given by the Hon. Member is one among others of things I am committed to do. The assistance I would like to give the small independent processors will go to all of them in all of Atlantic Canada. I see in the House my colleague, the Chairman of our subcommittee, the Minister of State for Economic Development (Mr. Johnston). We are committed to helping the independent sector in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Quebec.

This Bill will enable the Department to establish a general program that will apply to all of the industry in Atlantic Canada. As well, those companies will have to put their marketing capability at the service of the independents who request it. I am also committed to signing an agreement on development of the fisheries of Nova Scotia with the Government of Nova Scotia.

Therefore, those are some of the reasons I think it is imperative that Members, particularly of the Official Opposition, give speedy passage to this Bill.

Mr. Lloyd R. Crouse (South Shore): Mr. Speaker, I welcome the opportunity this afternoon to speak to Bill C-170, an Act to authorize investment in the Atlantic fisheries for the purpose of restructuring that industry. I do so more in sorrow than in anger, for the fishing industry over the years has been the hallmark of private enterprise. It was known as the one established industry which had been the hallmark of our private enterprise system and one that was established and survived because it was built upon what we in Atlantic Canada call wooden ships and iron men.

In my hometown of Lunenburg we are known as bluenosers. We carry that name with pride. We do so because it not only describes a breed of independent master mariners, it is also a name that was carried by the fastest sailing schooner in history, the Bluenose. It continues to sail on, on the back of Canada's ten-cent piece.

Our forebears worked hard to build up the fishing industry. They gave little quarter and asked for none. In the early days when codfish were caught, the fleet left port early in the New Year. The codfish were caught and brought back to port where they were dried in the sun. Later in the fall, these same codfish, now dried, were taken in the same ships that caught them out to the Caribbean where they were traded for molasses, salt, tropical fruits and sometimes even rum. Barter and trade was the order of the day. There was no thought of involving provincial or federal Governments in any of these operations, other than for the provisions of shipping and customs regulations.

All this has changed over the years. Many old mariners, or old salts as we like to call them, must be turning over in their graves today over the nationalization of Canada's fishing industry.

Despite what the Minister has stated, the Bill that is presently before the House calls for the total nationalization of the fisheries in Atlantic Canada, not just Nova Scotia or Newfoundland, but New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Quebec as well, as witnessed by the wording in the interpretation of that Act in Part II, page 2. If there are any doubts about this nationalization program, they are completely dispelled when we read of the immense powers that are being given to the Minister in paragraph 4 of page 3.

I know that the Minister does not like the nationalization term. However, the incontrovertible fact is that within one week $75 million was pledged for the fisheries in Newfoundland, and $70 million pledged for the fisheries in Nova Scotia by the federal Government alone. The provincial Governments added some $60 million and the Bank of Nova Scotia added an estimated $100 million under guarantees from the federal Government. It is no wonder that Mr. Kirby, who seems to carry more force and strength with the Government than the Minister, when commenting on what I call fisheries "mission impossible", is reported as saying, "Whatever happens now, what we have pulled off, namely restructuring the industry and at the same time creating a new federal fisheries policy, can never be undone". Is it any wonder that the private operators and Canadians generally, especially those in Atlantic Canada, are afraid?

Some people are asking when all this began. The Minister gave a good outline. According to the record on September 26, 1983, both the federal and provincial Governments in Newfoundland signed a restructuring agreement. They heralded it as the most significant agreement signed between the two Governments since Newfoundland joined Confederation in 1949. Time, Sir, alone will tell. Then on September 30, 1983, a federal-provincial agreement was announced in Port Hawkesbury indicating both Governments would co-operate in restructuring two major Nova Scotia deep sea fishing companies. When I read both agreements I could not help but be concerned for the people of Newfoundland, for the people of Labrador and for the people of Nova Scotia. I would remind the people of both Provinces that it was the Liberals who initiated a process that led to complete federal control over the salt fishing industry in Newfoudland, and that same process led to the destruction of two or more major salt fishing companies in the Province of Nova Scotia.

It seems to me that the present group of Liberals in office have now indicated a process that will ultimately lead to the complete takeover of the fresh and frozen industry in all of Atlantic Canada as well as Quebec. I am concerned because it is obvious that this Government cannot run the railroads. It cannot run the post office. It cannot even manage its own bureaucracy. I submit to you, Mr. Speaker, and to this House that this Government cannot run the fishing industry because, more than with all the other industries in Canada, it requires the expertise, the initiative and the hard work of each and every individual connected with it.

The Minister may not look like the great white shark in the movie version of Jaws, but his teeth must be rather sharp because in the last few months he has gobbled up more fishing companies, enough to make Jaws look like a piker—perhaps since we are talking about fish I should say, a pike.

Both restructuring agreements contain a clause to the effect that the Governments intend to return the fishing industry to the private sector as soon as economic viability is achieved. Let me repeat, "As soon as economic viability is achieved". I would caution provincial Governments and private shareholders that granting this federal Government a major voting position on their boards of directors may introduce such inefficiencies into their companies' operations that privatization will become an ever receding goal, a mirage, a goal more difficult to attain as time goes on. If you have any doubts about that statement, Mr. Speaker, just look at what has happened to Canadair, to de Havilland, to Consolidated Computer and to other private companies taken over by this federal Government.

Our Party certainly recognizes the serious need for a restructuring of the fishing industry because many years of Liberal mismanagement have finally overwhelmed that industry and has left it no alternative. The Government is now forced to pour hundreds of millions of Canadian tax dollars into the fishery because the Government has failed, and failed miserably, to provide a consistent policy environment that would allow private enterprise to flourish and provide meaningful jobs for Canadians.

To be factual, Canadian companies got into debt over their heads and provincial Governments licensed too many new fish plants. But I ask, who was behind it all encouraging this madcap expansion of the industry? None other than this federal Government. And if co-operative federalism had not been dead and if there had been greater consultation between federal Government and the Atlantic provincial Governments, this economic misery, heartbreak and heartache certainly could have been avoided.

With the fishery policy based more upon politics than upon sound resource management, the Liberal Government freely doled out fishing licences and it freely doled out DREE grants for plant construction and other largesse, can anyone really wonder that the Provinces, the fishermen and the companies took advantage of these handouts? So today our fishing industry is burdened with massive debts, constricted by government regulations and crippled by an inability to market all of its product.

One of the most important problems faced by Atlantic Canada's fishing industry today is, I submit, fear—fear of big government. In fact, the political influence on these new companies in Newfoundland and in Nova Scotia is today much greater than previous Government influence over the private companies. The Newfoundland super company, for example, is 85 per cent owned by Government. Eight of the 11 members of its board of directors are Government appointed. The chief executive officer is a joint appointment by both Governments. So-called significant corporate decisions are subject to the veto of the federal and provincial Governments.

Most critical of all was the fact that management must consult both Governments and the Governments consult with each other before the company's business plan may be submitted to the board of directors. Think about what I have just said, Mr. Speaker, and I am sure you will agree that this represents nothing more than confusion confounded.

The Minister told us of the companies he had bought out. But I ask him what did he pay the Lake group; what did he pay the Penny group; what did he pay the shareholders of Fisheries Products of Canada; what did he pay the Nickerson group for what was little more in many cases than co-operation for transferring their huge debts to the new company? Is it any wonder the secret methods that have been employed by this Government are causing independent companies and taxpayers some concern and many sleepless nights?

Throughout all of this confusion the Minister keeps saying, bragging in fact, that what he has established is not a new Crown corporation in Newfoundland or Nova Scotia. Of course, it is not. We understand that. Crown corporations have more independence than these new companies, including the ability to set up their own business plan. In a highly political industry, like the fishing industry, this Government is more likely to be concerned about jobs and about votes than about economic viability. This is what is worrying us. We in our Party do not believe that this Government exhausted every available possibility of securing equity capital, either from Canadians or from foreign interests, before nationalizing the Atlantic coast fishery. To follow this course would not fit in with this centrally minded Government that wants to control all Canadian industry. However, I am led to believe that private capital was available from Canadians—

Mr. Tobin: Where?

Mr. Crouse: —and from foreign countries, foreign interests, but little or no effort was made to tap these sources. The Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister calls out, where. I will take him aside some day and tell him something about the fishing industry.

Mr. Tobin: Tell the House.

Mr. Crouse: Through the work of its Foreign Investment Review Agency and its ideological hostility to private industry, both foreign and domestic, this Liberal Government has ironically left the Atlantic fishery with nowhere to turn for aid but to the federal Government that helped drive it to ruin in the first place. That, to answer my young friend, is why there was no foreign capital brought forward. Take the teeth out of the Foreign Investment Review Act and then see what happens to some foreign capital. In fact, I am confident that if a proper search had been made, it would be found that Canadian capital was available. After all, we are only talking here of a couple of hundred million dollars. That is peanuts in an industry the size of the one of which we are speaking, an industry that represents to foreign nations, to European countries and to the Americans, a massive resource that has not really been tapped.

In my opinion, it is only through a fundamental shift in Government policy that stability and certainty can be returned to the fishing industry, thereby creating an environment in which free enterprise can survive. Unless this is accomplished, Sir, and I say this in all seriousness, similar problems to those which this Bill seeks to address cannot be avoided. Moreover, without the creation of a more positive business environment, private investors, either Canadian or foreign, will not risk their capital in the Canadian fishing industry. Those who remain in the industry do not believe in this Government and they do not believe that the present Liberal Government is genuinely committed to the eventual privatization of the two new restructured companies. They believe that you are only making such statements to reduce opposition to your actions and to hide your real intentions which are, in effect, in time to nationalize the entire industry.

I will give this Government a way out. In the event that it is acting in good faith and wishes to allay the fears of smaller companies and wants to make the commitment to privatization meaningful, it must establish from the very beginning a clear schedule for divesting itself of ownership in the fishery. This schedule should either be written into this Bill or at least written into agreements with the Provinces. If the Government wished to take the strongest step along these lines, it could commit itself to holding only non-voting shares in these companies.

Once this step is taken, the smaller processors and fishermen would no longer have the same fears about unfair Government-controlled competition. This would also have the effect of making investment in the two companies more attractive to private investors, because the two companies would be seen as private enterprises run along sound business lines.

As private investors bought the Government's shares, they could be turned into voting shares. This would ensure that the buying out of Government shares was an attractive investment. It would also ensure that the people of Canada would recover their money. They have a stake in this too.

Another approach would be to require by law that the Government annually sell, regardless of the price, 20 per cent of its shares to the public. This would ensure that at the end of five years the two companies would be fully privatized. At the outset, the Government would not recover its investment because the share prices would be low, but under that system there would be a requirement for them to make these companies economically viable and profitable. If they did that, by the end of a five-year term the increase in equity share value would give the Government back the money it is now putting in, which is what I call pump-priming money.

At the present time, our Party intends to support this Bill at the second reading stage. However, we want to make sure that there is a full hearing on the restructuring program in committee in light of the major changes that it threatens to impose upon the Atlantic fisheries, and in fact the entire Atlantic economy. In our opinion, the Bill raises more problems than it solves.

I thought there were only 500 independents. The Minister told us today that there were 700 independents in Atlantic Canada who do not as yet come under the socialist umbrella of this Liberal Government. They are very reticent about making public statements about the effects of this restructuring plan. They fear reprisals—imagine, reprisals from the federal Government.

I asked them what were their fears. They said that the Province grants them a licence, but the federal Government has the right to carry out dredging operations in their area. It has the right to set the fishing quotas. It has the right to determine, yes or no, whether it will repair a decrepit federal wharf which has not been repaired since 1962 when the Right Hon. John Diefenbaker was in power. They fear that if they make objection to what is being done, there will be reprisals against them in that regard. This fear demonstrates that Canadians have lost some of their basic freedoms.

At present most of these independents are relatively sound financially. They quite rightfully ask how they can compete with this monstrous tax-supported Government-financed conglomerate. The bail-outs buried in this Bill and the secret agreements are not fair and they are not above-board. The federal Government is not a minority shareholder. No matter what this Government calls its actions, in my view it is nationalization of the fishing industry. The big unanswered question is, what is the time frame for de-nationalization? Search as you will, you will not find the answer to that question in this Bill.

It is not my intention to pre-judge entirely the outcome of the restructuring that has taken place in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. I simply wish to remind the provincial Governments, the fishermen and the industry throughout Atlantic Canada and Quebec that negotiations have really just begun. There are many pitfalls ahead. For example, I cannot help but wonder how the Government proposes to develop a large cooked fish production line at Burin, Newfoundland, when the present plant in my home town of Lunenburg and the one at Lachine, Quebec, can supply the total Canadian demand for cooked fish products while operating at only 50 per cent capacity.

International tariffs on cooked fish are so high at present that these products cannot be exported. I remind the Minister that unless you increase the market for cooked fish products, any increase in employment in Newfoundland in this field will only be at the price of further unemployment in Nova Scotia and Quebec.

This, of course, cannot be considered progress in the industry. I cannot help but wonder as well what will happen to the fishermen and the industry which evolves around the large dragger fleet based just six miles from my home town in a small place called Riverport, Nova Scotia. The Minister stated today that a new company is being formed and these ships will be transferred. I wonder as well why that action is being taken. In light of what I have said, is it any wonder that the independents and the communities in which they are located are very much concerned? They have many sleepless nights over the many aspects of this Bill. The pressure on them is already taking its toll in different forms. They ask what will be the extent of their quotas and their licences and how they will replace their aging ships.

The banks have already given the independents a signal. They have cut back on loans to independents in the fishing industry. Instead of lending them 75 per cent of their working capital, they have been told to cut their loans to 50 per cent. This is literally putting some, not all, of the independents out of business.

I ask the Minister, what is in this Bill to protect the independents? I have read it from cover to cover and I see nothing. They are saying that if you are going to nationalize the fishing industry, take our business now while it is worth something. The independents are comparing the Liberal actions in this Bill to those they would expect in a police state. They are asking, who is going to pick up the losses for the restructured companies? What if these companies are not privatized? What if these companies are not run on a commercially viable basis? What is the Government's definition of economic viability?

The independents are asking, since those who have been inefficient are being bailed out, what are the rewards for those of us who have been viable? Is this to be a society where the incompetent are rewarded and the competent are penalized? I would like to hear the answer to that question. They ask, are you, for example, going to reform the tax legislation for independent processors and fishermen and give them a better opportunity to write off some of their valid expenses and their excessive fuel costs?

I wonder how many in this House realize that a trip from my home town of Lunenburg, to the St. Pierre area and return costs $6,000 for fuel oil. A trip from that same port to the Hamilton Bank off Labrador costs double, or $12,000 in fuel oil. There has been no change. That almost doubles the landed cost of the catch for that crew of 18 men on a 150-foot ship. When is the Government going to recognize that and give these fishermen an opportunity to write off valid expenses and their excessive costs which are driving up their costs for landing fish and lowering their net return? When some of these questions are answered either in the House or in committee, we will all have a better understanding of this Government's real plans for the future of the Atlantic fishing industry.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): As I indicated earlier, there is no allowance for a ten-minute question and answer period following lead speakers. However, as I also indicated, if Members wish to seek unanimous consent for an exchange of questions and answers, the Chair will put that to the House.

Is there a wish on the part of the Hon. Parliamentary Secretary that the Chair seek unanimous consent for questions to be put?

Mr. Tobin: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): Is there unanimous consent?

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Tobin: Mr. Speaker, I thank you and I thank Hon. Members of the House for allowing me this opportunity to ask a question. I ask this question bearing in mind the tremendous respect that I have gained for the Hon. Member opposite during the many hours we have shared on the fisheries committee. However, I have a great concern that the partisan nature of his speech would call into question an action which was deemed not only appropriate but absolutely necessary when introducing this Bill at this time.

I would remind the Hon. Member that, although he uses partisan phrases and describes this action as a form of nationalization or socialization, this Bill results from an agreement reached between the Government of Canada, the Government of Nova Scotia and the Government of Newfoundland. I think that that is all that needs to be said. However, if we must be partisan, Mr. Speaker, and I do not suggest we should not—

Mr. Crosbie: Where is the question?

Mr. Tobin: I have a question. I do not suggest we should be partisan. I would remind the Hon. Member that two of those Governments are Conservative Governments. I would then ask my question quite seriously. We come to this stage of this Bill because there are no other options.

Some Hon. Members: Question!

Mr. Tobin: I say to the Hon. Member opposite that if he believes there to be private capital out there, I can assure him we would gladly avail ourselves of it before taking this action. Can he now tell us categorically where that private capital is?

Mr. McCain: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order. I believe that these last remarks constitute an abuse of a privilege extended by the House. Those remarks were debate much more than they were a question. I would be very happy to give unanimous consent to a question.

Mr. Crouse: Mr. Speaker, I listened very carefully to the Hon. Member for Humber-Port au Port-St. Barbe (Mr. Tobin) and I waited as patiently as I could until he finally got around to asking his question. I regret that the Hon. Member for Humber-Port au Port-St. Barbe was obviously not listening to what I said. I know that there is Canadian investment capital available and there is Japanese investment capital available to invest in the fishing industry. There is American capital that is willing to invest in the fishing industry, and those countries are afraid to invest on account of the teeth in the—

An Hon. Member: Oh, the bogeyman.

Mr. Crouse: No, there is no bogey-man. The facts hurt those people opposite. They cannot stand the truth, and that is the trouble with them. I say through you, Sir, to the Members opposite that there is plenty of money available in Canada for investment in properly organized and taxed companies. However, there exists the heavy hand of the tax man who is so greedy for tax dollars that he must come down on the sharesmen from a fishing crew at the rate of 60 per cent in order to get a few dollars to keep this decrepit and ailing Government operating. That is the problem, Sir. Change the Government, put us in power, and we will cut the teeth out of the Foreign Investment Review Act and see that that foreign money is invested in the fishing industry. We will privatize the industry at that time.

Mr. Ted Miller (Nanaimo-Alberni): Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to rise and discuss what is certainly the most important fisheries legislation dealt with in this session of Parliament. The Bill has been placed before us at the end of this session and the House of Commons must deal with it with a certain amount of haste. It is a Bill of a mammoth nature that will affect Atlantic Canada and its fishing industry governed by the federal Government.

I believe that Hon. Members of all Parties understand the critical nature of a Bill that will provide $138 million to Atlantic Canada in terms of capital investment in Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and the other Atlantic Provinces. However, Mr. Speaker, this Bill gives an all-encompassing power to the federal Minister of Fisheries and Oceans (Mr. De Bané) when dealing with almost all aspects of federal involvement in the fishing industry and therefore gives him both direct and indirect involvement in capital funding and control over the fishing industry. This Bill really does require a great deal more attention than the Government seems to be prepared to give to it at this moment.

It is necessary to proceed with this Bill because the future of the next fishing season in Atlantic Canada relies on it. If this Bill is not passed, if there is not a restructuring of the industry and if a board of directors is not appointed to the new companies in Altantic Canada, there will be a great deal of uncertainty about markets and our ability to sell the product that is harvested over the next year. As well, the matter of negotiations between the fishermen's unions and the company for contracts in Atlantic Canada depends upon this Bill and suppliers must know whether the debts that are owed to them at the moment will be repaid. There are a great many other uncertainties in almost every community in Atlantic Canada and hundreds and hundreds of those communities are dependent upon the fishing industry.

The restructuring of the Atlantic fisheries industry through the Kirby task force was done in a great deal of secrecy. We are dealing with a Bill that arises out of a task force that was set up on January 8, 1982. It is now almost January, 1984, and we in the House of Commons are expected to deal with a Bill without a great deal of past involvement.

Hon. Members of Parliament who represent ridings in Atlantic Canada have gone through two years of uncertainty when dealing with the fishing industry. Plants have been shut down and whole communities have been out of work for over a year in some instances. We must now in the next few days deal with a restructuring Bill which requires a great deal of debate and a great deal of input from the people who are most directly involved. I would include in those concerns the concern that was expressed by the Hon. Member for South Shore (Mr. Crouse) for all of the smaller independent processing companies that do not have the same kind of economic debt as the major processing companies in Atlantic Canada.

The Hon. Member for South Shore indicated that the failure of the fishing industry is mainly the responsibility of the federal Government and the Liberal Party. I think there is a great deal of truth to that, but there are other failings in the industry in Atlantic Canada. I think it is worth while to look at those failings to see exactly where, if we must put blame, the blame must lie.

I believe that one of the things that led to over-capitalization in the industry was the tremendous expectations of the fishing industry when the 200-mile limit was declared. There were expectations of greater access to stock and therefore greater access to processing capabilities and markets. The economic recession in the 1980s certainly contributed significantly to a reduction in the amount of product that was sold and the prices that were paid to fishermen. Management decisions led to over-capitalization, and those included management decisions made by companies that were attempting to meet their expectations in terms of greater quantities of product and access to a great deal of federal and provincial money to expand the processing capabilities and the harvesting sector. Those expectations and offers of assistance were taken up by fishermen and processors, resulting in over-capacity both in the harvesting and the processing sectors.

I believe that at that time. both the federal and provincial Governments were attempting to create greater employment in the industry and generate greater wealth in Atlantic Canada. However, the expectations were far too high to meet the capacity of the stocks that could be produced. As much as anything else, I believe that the failure of the Atlantic fishing industry can be related to the high interest rate policies that were supported by the Liberal Government when it did not attempt to put any controls on the rate of interest that was to be paid.

Basically, the previous Government followed that policy—a rate of interest set by the Governor of the Bank of Canada which followed United States rates. Those rates themselves had a great deal of effect on how much product in terms of the groundfish resource could be sold to the United States. It soon became apparent that the expansion had gone too far. Companies may have doubled their catch but they also doubled and, in some cases, tripled their debt. Companies had paid little enough attention to increasing the quality of their catch or improving their marketing strategies. This led to a decline in the ability to sell fish and the ability to support the economics of the industry. Again I think the interest rate freeze affected expansion and was a major problem for Atlantic Canada. Companies found it necessary to switch from the goal of expansion to contraction and began to close plants. That has been going on since 1981.

Unfortunately, as always, in areas where one industry dominates, dozens of communities in Newfoundland in particular and in the Maritime Provinces were locked into the economic well-being of these large companies. They were completely reliant on the continued operation of plants and fishing operations for their own economic health. The closure of plants and fishing operations was tantamount to a death sentence for many of these communities.

The Government's response was to launch the Kirby task force, which culminated in this Bill. The process of negotiating the restructuring agreements leaves much to be desired. As I indicated earlier, there was really very little input by Members of Parliament in the restructuring. Everything was done in secrecy. This led to many suspicions between Provinces, between Provinces and the federal Government and, more important, suspicions within the communities, with plant workers and fishermen themselves. The relations among fishermen processors, plant workers, the Department of Fisheries and Oceans, the provincial and federal Governments, strained at the best of times, became more strained as a result of the way in which the negotiations were handled.

The Minister is quoted as saying that this was the hardest thing he had ever done in politics. Of course he was referring to the restructuring. I can well believe it, because as well as the incredibly serious and complex problems of the industry itself, the negotiations also had to contend with Governments that could not make up their minds on what they wanted, with one Department or Minister overruling another, with agreements signed then subsequently thrown out, with companies, especially Government-influenced companies like Fishery Products Ltd. controlled by CDC, doing everything they could to torpedo the negotiations.

Under these conditions, we are fortunate to have reached any kind of an agreement on Atlantic fisheries restructuring at this time. The fundamental difference of opinion was over the matter of priorities for the restructured companies. Some left that the number one priority should be the economic viability of the companies. Others felt that maximization of employment should take precedence. Unfortunately, I did not hear about any of the major parties taking a broad enough look at the role of the industry in the context of the economy of Atlantic Canada. They did not realize that these two objectives are not necessarily opposing forces, that depending upon one's parameters, both objectives can be achieved. It is only if one looks at the economic viability of the processing sector in isolation that it cannot include the concept of maximum employment. Unfortunately, if the company is in private hands or is intended to be returned to private hands, the only possible way it can be viewed is in isolation.

The joint agreement announced on September 26 by the Minister and Premier Peckford of Newfoundland and the subsequent agreement on September 30 with Premier Buchanan are far more responsible in this respect than the unilateral announcement of the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans on July 4.

The federal Government's insistence on making economic viability its primary concern is somewhat disturbing, in face of the need in Atlantic Canada for massive employment in the fishing industry. I am pleased to see the clause in the agreement regarding the future of those plants which may be deemed uneconomic, although knowing the federal Government's attitude toward these plants in the past, the security of their future and of their communities, the clause leaves a lot to be desired. The most disturbing element of the agreements is the stated objective of returning these companies to the private sector once they have become viable. If the success of these companies is to be measured in such terms that it would be seen as viable to the private sector, then I am afraid that over time we would see the complete dominance of the concept of economic viability over maximum employment. Under the terms of the agreements, the economic viability of the company could be maintained very easily by dumping off its uneconomic elements to one or another of the Governments involved. Other companies do not have this option, so it could be expected that the two new companies would certainly have a distinct advantage.

There is some question as to whether any of the other companies operating in the Maritimes or Newfoundland could stand up over time to the increasing economic and marketing dominance of these two super companies. Many of the smaller companies, as well as the Governments of Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, have expressed their concern over the matter. I believe they have legitimate grounds for concern. This is a question which the Minister should address. He should give some assurance to smaller companies that they will not be forced out of the fishing industry in Atlantic Canada, particularly companies that have shown restraint and good management in their operations and have developed markets to continue ongoing employment for the communities in which they operate.

If the Government attempted to sell off its economically viable companies, would it not be essentially selling off a monopoly position in the processing sector of such an important and essential industry? There is no guarantee that both companies could not be acquired by the same buyer, nor is there any guarantee that controlling interests could not be sold to non-Canadian buyers. We in our Party would not like to see the Atlantic Canada fishing industry sold to foreign buyers, even if they were available, as the Hon. Member for South Shore seemed to indicate.

I am concerned about the position the Bank of Nova Scotia holds in these two companies. In the first place, the bank is in the business of lending money, and as such its allegiance is to its shareholders. It has little or no experience in the management of the fishing industry. It has no stake in the success of the industry in terms of the well-being of communities, only in terms of the dollar return on its investment. Yet, it has a veto power the same as that of the federal or provincial Governments when it comes to divestiture of company assets. The union, whose members have more stake in the success of the company than any of the other partners, has no such power of veto.

The Minister seems to be fairly proud of the agreements he has reached with the Provinces of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. Under this Bill he will essentially become the czar of the Atlantic fishing industry. It is all encompassing and gives almost total control to the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans. The Bill will give the Minister authority to "acquire, hold or dispose of or otherwise deal with shares, debentures or other securities of, or any security interest in, any fishery enterprise". In other words, the Bill does not deal just with the restructuring of major groundfish trawler companies in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia—the agreements which have already been mentioned—but it applies to every fishing enterprise on the East Coast, from the super companies to individual fishermen and everything in between.

In addition to the $138 million specifically allocated and acquired for the restructuring agreements already announced and a further $100 million available for the provision of loan guarantees, Clause 5 of the Bill indicates that the Minister may, on such terms and conditions as he specifies, make a contribution or loan to a fishery enterprise with no specified limits. Thus it can be seen that with this Bill the Minister acquires almost unlimited powers to become involved in or finance virtually any fishing enterprise in eastern Canada, at his discretion and on his terms.

I have outlined many of the concerns of our Party with this Bill and with the restructuring agreements it is intended to finance. The problems I have mentioned are all potential problems. They are of concern because very few safeguards are built into either the Bill or the agreements. However, these problems do not have to arise. The key is what the Government and its partners do with the powers they have given themselves. I want to make it clear that neither the Bill nor the agreements on restructuring, nor the extensive investigations into the problems of the East Coast fishing industry, have in any way solved the problems of either the industry or the communities dependent thereon. All they have done is to keep the industry alive. The key is what happens from here.

Mention was made in the agreements of such things as the Burin Peninsula development fund, in order to find alternative sources of employment and income for the area, and the northern development fund in Newfoundland and Labrador. If such programs are not initiated quickly and managed in such a way as to produce concrete results for the people of the area—and that includes at least involving the local people in the development and operation of the program—then all of the restructuring work will have been done in vain.

The new company can provide an opportunity for community development, the involvement of the fishing industry and the plant workers. Serious attention has not been paid to marketing in Atlantic Canada to its greatest extent. The new fish company gives us that opportunity, and an opportunity to face and meet a critical factor in selling the product we produce in Atlantic Canada. More attention must be paid to fish stocks and their enhancement. This also includes protection of the habitat, both marine and freshwater, and limitation or restriction of development in areas of sensitivity to these stocks.

It is not only the processing sector which is in severe crisis. The fishermen as well are in desperate financial shape and are in need of immediate help. Such piddling programs as the $15 million Canada works program announced on November 4 by the Minister of Employment and Immigration (Mr. Roberts) will not even dent the surface of the problem. It is incumbent upon the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans to embark now on a program aimed at improving the financial position of the individual fisherman, giving him at least as much attention as was paid to the processing sector.

A long-term plan of action must be developed with respect to the divestiture of the assets of these two super companies if, indeed, the Government is committed to returning them to the private sector. I would suggest, Mr. Speaker, that once these companies have been formed, it is very unlikely that there will be the divestiture of these companies into private hands, as the Minister indicated this afternoon. I have already pointed out the danger of simply selling these companies off in a block to the highest bidder. To maintain the social benefits of public ownership, while still complying with the free enterprise objectives of the Liberal and Tory Governments and their partner, the Bank of Nova Scotia, plans should be developed for these companies to be turned over to the communities involved, in order to allow them locally and co-operatively to own and control the companies. That is the alternative to turning those companies back to the free enterprise companies which have, partly through their own mismanagement and partly through the mismanagement of Government, failed the East Coast fishing industry and many of those communities which are dependent upon them. Communities such as Burin and Grand Bank themselves have made some initiatives to attempt to get control of their fish companies and to operate them as a co-operative with input from fishermen and plant workers in the community itself.

Our Party, rather than seeing Government investment in the fishing industry, would prefer it be turned back into private industry hands if and when these corporations become profitable and investors are again interested in investing in the Atlantic fishery. We would be far more interested in seeing the possibility of co-operatives developed within Atlantic Canada which operate and control their own fishing industry and their own employment. This, of course, would require the development of local management expertise. However, given time, this could be done through our college and university networks with the development of marine colleges and by tapping the expertise already at hand in many of the communities in Atlantic Canada.

What I am advocating is a comprehensive approach to fisheries management which sees the industry not as an isolated enterprise, which must make it or break it on its own, but rather as an integral part of the social and economic way of life in Atlantic Canada. It can provide long-term economic security as well as satisfaction and social harmony.

We understand, Mr. Speaker, the nature of this Bill and the critical time frame under which we are operating with a Bill of this kind. It is really a Bill which will save many thousands of jobs in Atlantic Canada. We are disappointed that the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans has not been able to present us with the Bill sooner. He has not given us an opportunity to take the Bill through committee and deal with it in a way in which we could satisfy many of our constituents in Atlantic Canada who have some serious concerns about it. We also recognize, Mr. Speaker, that there are many people in Newfoundland, in particular, who are anxiously awaiting the passage of this Bill, and our Party will not do anything which would unduly delay the passage of Bill C-170. However, we do wish the Minister would be more forthcoming in the future with the House of Commons and the Fisheries and Forestry Committee in presenting us with the opportunity to deal with Atlantic Canada and western Canadian fisheries matters in more detail.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I am aware that the Hon. Member for Carleton-Charlotte (Mr. McCain) has some pressing time requirements. I had indicated that perhaps he or someone representing his Party might consent to an exchange of speakers. At the moment, the Chair will have to recognize an Hon. Member to my right.

Mr. McCain: The Chair appreciates my problem with respect to time and I would ask for unanimous consent to be given consideration at this moment in time, despite the fact that it would involve the reorganization of speakers in the debate.

Mr. Simmons: Mr. Speaker, I understand the Hon. Member for Carleton-Charlotte (Mr. McCain) will not be here on Thursday. I will yield my place in the order of speakers on the understanding that I will be the first speaker to be recognized on Thursday.

Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): That is agreed.

Mr. Fred McCain (Carleton-Charlotte): Mr. Speaker, I do want to extend my very sincere appreciation for the consideration which has been given to me. I shall remember it and respect the Hon. Member concerned.

I suppose there is no way, Mr. Speaker, that anyone who has a distinct difference in principle with the philosophy of this Bill, can speak without being accused of being partisan. If principle and basic philosophy make me partisan, then that is what I am, and I acknowledge that before I begin my remarks. I am not a socialist. I do not believe for a minute that a Crown corporation of this magnitude can be established and can operate and manage more effectively and more efficiently than those who have had difficulties with the market, those who have had, for instance, generations of experience in the fishing business and who have floundered in their management practices. I submit to you, Mr. Speaker, we will be hard-pressed as Hon. Members of the House of Commons, regardless of the side of the House on which we may sit, to find people with that kind of experience and knowledge of the market to make this a viable operation. From that point of view, I am partisan.

We are looking at more than 100 countries which represent possible marketing capabilities for us. We are looking at a multitude of different products, different trademarks, to which world trade has become accustomed. If we undertake a very major change in management under these circumstances, we may do more harm to our market structure than we may do good.

I look on this Bill, in reflection, as being one which might almost have come by design before this House, by choice of policy, because the policies of the Fisheries Department have not been conducive to the viability of the fishing industry at any level whatsoever. I come from a constituency in which fishing is one of the three major industries. It is not the only one, but it is one of the three major industries. I would like to give you an example of where I think the planning did not go as soundly as it should have. The Government of Canada encouraged everyone to have the highest possible expectations of the impact upon our economy of the 200-mile limit and the management thereof. The Government gave DREE grants to build two herring fillet plants in Carleton-Charlotte. These two plants required a minimum of 11-inch fish to be viably processed in their filleting operations. I guess that in the 11 years it has been my privilege to be here we may have had three or maybe four years in which the supply of herring of that size was adequate to maintain full operations of those two plants and the other plants already in existence. The history of the herring industry shows that the various schools of fish which develop in that ocean do not consistently give you the size of fish necessary to make those two plants viable in the long term. So the expectation was that, with the 200 mile limit, anything we do will be viable.

I come from a constituency in which there are communities whose only source of income is the fishery. Those communities have watched Minister after Minister impose regulation after regulation. They have watched those Ministers issue additional licences for the species fished by my island constituents, to the extent that we had to impose such catch limitation on the island fishery as to make it no longer viable. We now say we have too many fishermen after too few fish, when in fact it was not that bad 15 years ago. But with the extension of fishing privileges and the division of the species among other Provinces and fishermen, the herring fleet which pioneered the industry has now been constrained by regulation to the point where its viability is questioned, even with the 200-mile limit. These are the problems facing the fishing industry, and the area I represent is finding it very difficult to remain viable under those circumstances.

So these regulations have transferred from my constituency to other areas the fishing opportunities which historically belonged to those island communities. This is because in the Minister's office and among his personnel there is the belief that any regulation applicable to the Atlantic fishery is practical for all the Atlantic fishery, but that does not apply to the outports of Newfoundland, or the East and South Coasts of New Brunswick.

We have heard from the former Minister of Fisheries and Oceans that the expectations are such that the fishermen should buy a bigger boat, make a greater effort, put more capital into the plant because there are lots of fish and we are going to nourish and nurture all species. Therefore, there will be markets and you will be rich. But in the process of developing the 200-mile limit we issued international licences and extended to the international fleet the privilege of fishing in our waters, but we did not extract in return a single improvement for ourselves in any market in the world. There might be one possible exception, that of the over-the-side sale of herring. But when we did that, we also gave additional quotas to the Russian fleet in other species, which kept our people sitting on the shore, not working.

Mr. LeBlanc: Species we did not use.

Mr. McCain: You will have your chance, Mr. former Minister, and I have mine. These things have happened.

Mr. LeBlanc: Speak the facts.

Mr. McCain: I am speaking the facts. In your remarks, Mr. former Minister, through you, Mr. Speaker, indicate a single market which has been improved, as my colleague, the Hon. Member for South Shore (Mr. Crouse) mentioned. Name a single market which has been improved for fillets or for cod. These things have not been improved. What happened? I agree we got larger catches, we expanded our processing capability, but we did not expand our markets, and therein lies the weakness in the policy which has brought us to this point and this legislation.

I want to know, Mr. Speaker, why the hurry? The Government of Canada has put a gun to the head of the fishing industry of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia and said that this is the only way we will help resolve this problem. I submit that is not the way to solve anything, except, I suppose, in a very expensive fashion. The information I pick up is that the Provinces found themselves in such a desperate economic and social position that any proposition placed before them by the federal Government, after its mismanagement of policy, had to be accepted. I reiterate, Mr. Speaker, as my hon. friend from Nova Scotia has just said, I know there were people who would have invested private money to revitalize some, if not all, of the fishing industry had it not been regulated the way it is.

I must now come to the independents. Virtually all of the New Brunswick fishery is processed by independents except for one or two branch plants of the Nickerson family of companies which had plants in New Brunswick. These people are giving exactly the same reports as you have already heard, namely that the banks are scared of the fish processing industry, and they will only extend their credit line to the value of 50 per cent of the processors' inventory. That is a one third cut, and I want to ask the Minister of Fisheries (Mr. De Bané), what pressure the Government of Canada is going to put on the banks, or what substitute is it going to offer to the processors who have been treated in this fashion by the banks? The banks are scared. They may be a participant, but once burned, twice shy, and these independents need all the credit they can get to function competitively. I have suppliers to the industry who are asking me questions about whether they, as an independent oil dealer, refiner or whatever, would have an opportunity to get the business of this Crown corporation. Or will they finds themselves out in the cold without even an opportunity to compete with the Crown corporation? Call it whatever you like, but it is controlled by a Crown corporation and the five directors of the board are appointed by the Government. Will the Minister assure us that this corporation will put its business out for tender, that the little guy who has been servicing and repairing boats, or maybe the medium-sized guy, is in fact going to have the same opportunity to tender for work under this corporation? Will it be independent of Government in its allocation of benefits to the supplier to the fishing industry? That is what so many people want to know.

The Minister has said we would be able to compete with any nation in the world. I submit, Mr. Speaker, that the companies competing with other nations have run afoul of a great many competitors and run afoul of duties which we are still going to have to pay. As a matter of fact, there is strong reason to believe that we may have more difficulty in trading in some parts of the world with a Crown corporation than we would have had in the private world. The moneys which the Government may be pouring into this structure may make others look at us with a rather jaundiced eye, shall we say, because of the fact it is no longer an independent private industrial competitor but, rather, a government supported competitor.

These people have been the victim of another policy of Government, namely the interest policy. Few, if any, of the small industries in Canada have been able to cope. Those who required huge inventories, in a world oversupplied with product, could not afford the 20 per cent plus interest rates which they experienced, which started the decline and the unprofitable situation in which they find themselves. It was cost of capital as well as cost of operating capital that have, to a large degree, put them in this situation.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that we will not have a stream of independents coming before the fisheries committee of the House of Commons saying that they have been put out of business by this huge conglomorate which has been created by Government, as came to us from the western part of Canada in the case of the freshwater fisheries. In that instance, there was no opportunity for a private dealer and little opportunity for a fisherman who did not do business with the Crown corporation. Are we going to find ourselves with another corporation financed by the Government operating under comparable principles? My fishermen are concerned about their markets through their independents. My processors are concerned about the opportunity to do business. They are wondering what additional regulation they may be facing when this conglomorate begins to function.

Mr. Speaker, on this side of the House we are faced with an ultimatum. This is the only solution which the Government of Canada offers to put fishermen, processors, processing people, marketers and transporters back into business. This is the only way. This industry was not worthy of the same consideration as the Chrysler Corporation or Massey-Ferguson or even White or Maislin. I am very concerned that this industry was not given comparable treatment in view of the fact that it employs many times the number of people that were employed by Ferguson, White, Chrysler and Maislin all put together. We are going to nationalize this in virtually every situation and we are going to compete with the little guy. What the opportunity will be for the little guy has not been clarified.

Yes, Mr. Speaker, I am partisan because my philosophy tells me that this is not the route the Government should have followed. This is a palliative which is being applied to the fishing industry too late. This is a predictable situation which any businessman who had been in the fishing industry would have told you was going to happen. Yes, Mr. Speaker, we have to support it because we have so many people that would otherwise be totally out of work and without any opportunity. We are voting for a social reason, but if this company is operated as a social company for social purposes, then all the fears of all the independents are very, very real. The catastrophe with which we are dealing now is minimal as compared to the catastrophe that we will have to deal with if we operate this as a social operation. That would be very alarming.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Blaker): I indicated earlier to the House that an exchange of speakers had taken place. I would like to remind Hon. Members that on Thursday the Chair will recognize two Members to my right seriatim because of having accommodated earlier the Hon. Member for Carleton-Charlotte.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I declare the motion carried.

Motion agreed to and Bill read the third time and passed.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I have a serious point of order to raise with respect to what I conceive to be errors in Hansard—in recording votes at report stage which I think should be put on the record now so the Chair might examine my observations overnight and perhaps comment tomorrow. Before doing so, though, I noticed there was a second member of the animal kingdom who rose with the Hon. Member for Regina West (Mr. Benjamin). Both were stuffed and I was wondering which vote was counted.

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Nielsen: In the recording of the report stage votes in Hansard of Thursday, November 3, in group C the Speaker read "90A" but Hansard recorded it as "98". This is at page 28709 at the bottom right-hand corner. Thus Motion No. 90A is not recorded as having been mentioned. Motion No. 90A is the amendment of the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) to Clause 43 on the rate freeze.

Secondly, in group E the Speaker called out "160A" but Hansard reported it as "168", which is on page 28712. Motion No. 168 was already voted upon and read into the record in group A on page 28707, thus Motion No. 168 is recorded as having been read twice by the Speaker. Motion No. 160A is missing from Hansard, which motion is the Government amendment to Clause 59 establishing the inquiry into the method of payment. However, Sir, the actual recording of votes do indicate "90A" at page 28745 and "160A" on page 28768 as having been voted upon.

I leave that with the Chair and the Table for their observations tomorrow.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I appreciate the effort of the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) in bringing these matters, which are serious, to our attention and they will certainly be investigated.

It being 6.30 p.m. the House stands adjourned until tomorrow at eleven o'clock, pursuant to Standing Order 2(1).

At 6.30 p.m. the House adjourned, without question put, pursuant to Standing Order.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS

[English]

BUSINESS OF SUPPLY

ALLOTTED DAY, S.O. 62—NON-CONFIDENCE MOTION—GOVERNMENT MEASURES

Hon. Erik Nielsen (Yukon) moved:

That this House condemns the Government for having taken high-handed and anti-democratic actions in this session and for having proceeded, without a mandate and through the imposition of closure, to abolish the historic Crow Rate, to impose measures relating to taxes on petroleum and natural gas, to cap old age pensions, to create Canagrex, to limit increases in family allowance payments, to change income tax laws, and to increase public debt through additional borrowing and calls upon the Government to seek a mandate by calling a general election without delay.

He said: Mr. Speaker, this Government has put democracy in this country on trial. Canadians are terribly concerned about where this country is going. In a very few years they have seen Canada reduced from a first rate power to one on a par with newly emerging countries. They have seen a nation with an economy in balance, a nation with high employment, reduced to one with a deficit which is so high as to cause concern even in the IMF and cause wonderment about this country's ability to manage its own affairs. They have seen a country that was pulling its weight in NATO and highly regarded for doing so reduced to one which is no longer trusted in the NATO Council.

The recent episode in Grenada showed the whole world how the present Government is regarded. Canada was not trusted by the Caribbean nations because the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) and the Government of this country have gone out of their way to show softness on Marxism and an affinity for Communist governments which is neither appropriate nor safe in a democratic country like ours.

The Prime Minister went to St. Lucia in the Caribbean last February and stated that Marxist governments would continue to receive Canadian aid. I took him up on this in the House and he repeated the statement. That statement was one of the reasons given by the Prime Minister of St. Lucia as an explanation of why Canada was not consulted about the action taken in Grenada. This Government has admitted it was not consulted about the intervention in Grenada, although its likelihood was the subject of front page stories in the London Times and Observer, as well as The New York Times in its Sunday edition of October 23. Obviously Government Members do not even read the newspapers. Not only did the Government not know about the intervention, but it apparently was not invited to the consultations which took place following the gruesome murder of Maurice Bishop and several members of his cabinet, along with dozens of innocent civilians the previous Wednesday.

In spite of the fact that Canada has been a major supplier of aid to the Caribbean and that we have a long historical involvement in the area because of its Commonwealth membership, this Government neither took the trouble nor showed any interest in being informed as to what was happening.

We had a famous statement by a junior Minister of State for External Affairs a few days after the grizzly events of October 19 on Grenada when he said that after a "decent interval" Canada would likely recognize the gang which gained power by murdering the incumbents. This was a curious concept of Commonwealth parliamentary government on the part of a chief spokesman for the present Government. Is it any wonder, Sir, that the Government, this one, was not consulted? As a matter of fact, it was not Canada which was not consulted; it was this Government which was not consulted, because of its ideological bias which is only too well known.

We had another example of the same kind of bias in the recent pilgrimage of the Secretary of State for External Affairs (Mr. MacEachen) when he visited the Middle East and appeared totally oblivious to what had been going on there, what was going on there, and what that struggle is all about. Praising the Syrians for their involvement in Lebanon, an involvement based on maintaining a state of instability in the country with guns, tanks and rockets, while there were 7,000 Soviet troops in Syria and the Soviet has poured in billions of dollars in weaponry, was a new height in naiveté even for this Government. Or was it naiveté? There are a good many Canadians wondering about that question today.

These, Sir, are but a few examples, along with the highest and most persistent unemployment in history and the apparent inability of this Government to distinguish between our friends and allies and our enemies, which have given rise to a growing concern among Canadians as to the direction in which this country is being pushed by the present Government. The spectacle now of the Prime Minister, in a last minute bid for popularity, knocking at the doors of Europe and Asia, portraying himself as some sort of new messiah of world peace, rather than allaying the confusion in our own country, merely serves to increase this concern.

No one can be critical of any sincere and genuine effort toward achieving peace in the world. Such a purpose enjoys universal support. But when, with great fanfare, at a Liberal fund raising dinner, the Prime Minister unveils a master plan for peace, he invites cynicism. No wonder this place, this Parliament, is becoming totally irrelevant in the minds of Canadians. Liberal tactics, Liberal practices, mean announcements not to this House of Commons but announcements to Liberals only, an action described in this morning's written media at best as contemptuous and at worst as downright sleazy.

It is interesting to note, Sir, that of the five proposals—first, a big five summit conference; second, banning high altitude satellite weapon systems; third, expansion of the non-proliferation treaty; fourth, new initiatives in Geneva; and fifth, restricting non-verifiable IBMs—two of these are aimed directly at the capacity of the United States to mount a deterrent against nuclear attack. On the question of reducing conventional forces in eastern Europe, the Prime Minister has not revealed his solution to the 40,000 Soviet tanks stationed there.

These are hard, practical issues that must be resolved before peace proposals, however attractive on paper, can be taken seriously. While in an abstract way it is commendable for the Prime Minister to pursue solutions in finding peace for the world, there remain serious questions at home, among them the highest unemployment rate in our history for which many Canadians would prefer to see this Government produce some answers. The Government has failed dismally to do so and has instead gone on imposing long-distance solutions with little relation to the problems at hand.

That is another reason for the lack of confidence shown in the polls, a lack of confidence so serious that the only solution at the present time is for the Government to call an election. The Prime Minister of course does not want an election because not only is he worried about the support of the electorate, he cannot even count on the support of his own Party.

Many Liberals across the country are deeply concerned about the manner in which this Government has attempted radically to change the shape and direction of our traditional objectives in this country, our purposes and our institutions, changes in the House of Commons which do not go a yard beyond the knowledge of the Parliamentary Secretary to the Government House Leader. It is 581 days today that this session of Parliament has been sitting, and there have been 16 closure motions in one session—all records, all destructive of tradition.

There is one tradition though in this country, ever since Confederation, and that is an election once in every four years. But I dare say, having regard to the difficulties the Liberals perceive themselves to be in now—de facto are in now—they will cast that tradition aside as well.

By allowing interest rates to rise to unprecedented heights, this Government not only tolerated a record unemployment level, it created it. Because he did not dare lead this country into European style socialism by the front door, the Prime Minister has been doing it by the back door. He has created a bureaucracy in this country which an Auditor General has termed a parallel government, a government within a government. He has created a Frankenstein apparatus employing more people outside the Government than are employed within the Government of Canada. He has created an apparatus responsible directly to himself and his Cabinet with no responsibility to Parliament for day to day operations. He has intervened in every aspect of private and public life as no Government has done in the history of this country.

The National Energy Program puts the petroleum industry in a straitjacket, has creamed off profits and put them in the coffers of the Government. It has destroyed the confidence of investors, confiscated 25 per cent of the frontier lands, driven out over $4 billion in 18 months and cost Canada the Alaska highway natural gas pipeline and the tar sands project because outside investors were afraid to work with this Government. It has now entirely frozen development in my own riding of Yukon. Not content with this it set up CIDC and took over 1,400 service stations at a cost of $2 billion. Canadians are continuing to pay for this although all of the obligations have been met. This is the way this Government has been operating and is why Canadians are nervous and confused. Only an election can clean up the mess and clean out the mess.

• (1120)

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Nielsen: We have had evidence of former Liberal Ministers being granted favours. We have had friends of the Prime Minister appointed to high places. We have had mismanagement in Crown corporations and agencies to the point where Canadians are not receiving the services they pay for. We have had a series of unexplainable episodes in Air Canada indicating mismanagement or carelessness in an organization where pleasing the Government has become more important than doing a job. This is why Canadians are uneasy and want an election.

In this House we have had the traditional Crow rate, one of the guarantees of Saskatchewan's entry into Confederation, swept away because of the Government's decision to impose a paper solution on the West. This Government does not care about the West, nor does it care about the East. Its major concern in central Canada appears to be the big contributors to the Liberal Party. They are the ones who have been doing all right under this Government.

To show this Government's contempt for Parliament and the people Parliament represents, it has run this session on for 581 days without a Throne Speech and with no indication of its plans for the future. It introduced two abortive budgets and one it failed to follow through on. It has brought in imposed solutions to the problems it created and those solutions have added to the confusion and uncertainty in the country.

In each case its policies have been so obviously self-serving that it has only been able to put them through with closure. It went back on its promises to old age pensioners and retired public servants. It shoved the changes in the Crow rate down the throat of western grain producers. It went back on its undertakings to the Provinces to pay 50 per cent of hospital costs. At the same time it spent money like water to support a hoard of Crown agencies which it itself created and which have not yet been approved by Parliament.

It is significant that when the Government took over Canadair four years ago it could have met all of its obligations of $40 million, yet it is now in a deficit position to the tune of over $2 billion. This is directly due to mismanagement by this Government.

The result of this Government's action on the Crow rate is that the western grain producer is now called on to pay for railroad modernization which should have been undertaken years ago out of current revenues. This was not done. The Government will pay enormous subsidies to the railways and extract a proportionate amount from western grain producers in order to compensate for the payments being made to the railways. The Government decided in its usual half baked way to highball through. There is no doubt Canadians will be paying for total confusion in transportation until such time as a Conservative Government can take office and clean up the mess.

Mr. Speaker, the time has come to put an end to this Government and the endless misery that it has caused Canadians. Canadians from coast to coast want an election now. There is an unmistakable message. Canadians have had enough of back door socialism, enough of tinkering, enough of experimentation. They have had enough of lost jobs. They have had enough of bankruptcies. They have had enough of the flight of investment. They have had enough of the stagnation in industry. They want this Government out.

● (1125)

The present Government has reduced Canada to a level nationally and internationally reminiscent of the 1930s. It has done this in order to carry out the Prime Minister's ideological proclivities and to enable its members to keep their own jobs. Having heard the Minister of State for International Trade (Mr. Regan) trying to explain the Government's position on Grenada two weeks ago and also the speech of the Secretary of State for External Affairs on the Middle East, one would have taken them for members of Socialist International.

Canadians have shown in poll after poll that they are fed up. Not all of the Prime Minister's posturing and preening on the international stage, which he loves so well, can change the realities of a situation which has left Canada bereft of policy and leadership. Canadians want a chance to make a choice. They want to put Canada back to work. They want the Trudeau Government out.

They want a new Progressive Conservative Government in its place so that Canada can once again begin to realize its full potential so sadly neglected for too many years. If the NDP believe in what they say, they will be supporting us all the way on this motion.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Questions and comments? Debate.

Hon. Lloyd Axworthy (Minister of Transport): Mr. Speaker, it is always a great pleasure to have the opportunity to listen to the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen). He is one of those individuals who very rarely hides his particular point of view under the sheen or camouflage of what would be considered to be the niceties of parliamentary courtesy.

It is important and useful to have this debate today because we now find out what is at the core of the views of Members opposite. We no longer have the shining images in front of us. We are getting down to the basic goods which are the kind of bar room biases and right-wing rhetoric which they are trying to sell as an alternative to this Government.

We all came to the House this morning with a resolution in front of us dealing with a number of specific issues. What we have heard instead is a great catechism and litany of all the particular prejudices that the Hon. Member for Yukon could drag out from the very depths of his soul. But I think it is worth examining some of these presumptions simply to find out if an election would, in fact, solve the problem that the Hon. Member says it would.

Presumably, an election is meant to offer a choice, not simply to criticize the other side. Let us examine what the choices are. The Hon. Member first initiated a major attack on the position on Grenada taken by this Government. His point was that we were not consulted and that we were objecting to the actions taken. Well, the question we must ask is, what was the position of the Conservatives during this period? Where did they stand on the issue? I saw their spokesperson, the Member for York-Peel (Mr. Stevens), on television the other night when he was asked where he stood on this issue. He said: "It is a little bit this way and a little bit that way; we do not stand anywhere on this issue". What kind of choice has been offered regarding that particular problem?

The Hon. Member says that our position was based upon some deep attachment to Marxism. That must be the same motivation for Margaret Thatcher's government whom we also know must have a deep attachment to Marxism if she is to take the same position as this Government. Our position raises very serious questions about invading a sovereign country against the rule of law. Great Britain took the right stand when it raised that issue but Members of the Conservative Party did not have the guts to do that because they do not have the guts to take stands on any issue.

An election should offer a choice. What was the choice that the Conservatives offered us? They did not offer any choice. They said: "We are not sure we like what you are doing but we do not have anything to offer in return." That is the real question. But what are the alternatives?

• (1130)

The Hon. Member for Yukon goes on to say that our position in NATO is totally without credibility. If that is the case then I would ask Members of the House why it was, when the Prime Minister undertook his mission of the past week, that the major leaders of those countries not only invited him but welcomed him for that kind of discussion.

NATO itself is an organization not dedicated to war mongering or to sabre rattling, as the Hon. Member for Yukon would like to believe to be the case; it is an organization dedicated to maintaining peace in this world. Those countries recognize there has to be collective security but at the same time they recognize that initiatives have to be taken for arms control and disarmament. Again, I ask the question, where is the Conservative Party on the issue of arms control and disarmament? Where is that Party's proposals, ideas and initiatives?

What do we hear from them as to what kind of solutions the Conservatives would bring to perhaps the most serious, significant issue that faces mankind? Have we heard the new Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Mulroney) give us his plan for peace? Have we heard what kind of proposals he would raise to reduce world tensions and reduce the enormous agglomeration of arms buildup? Not a word have we heard, Mr. Speaker. Not a peep. Not a single sentence has been uttered in terms of the proposals which the Progressive Conservative Party would offer Canadians in searching out ways of dealing with the matter that affects every Canadian deep inside of how we reduce world tension. At least we are trying to do the right thing. We are not hiding behind a barrage of right-wing rhetoric; we are trying to take initiatives that will help people secure some feeling that somebody is doing something. We are not simply allowing a willy-nilly escalation of the arms race; we are trying to use the position of credibility and confidence which this Prime Minister has built up over the last decade and we are trying to develop that position around the world. We are being received and accepted in doing so.

Surely if the question were asked by Canadians as to who has the kind of right and reason to pursue arms control, either the Hon. Member for Yukon or the Prime Minister, we know what the answer would be. At least people recognize that the Prime Minister has won that confidence by his initiatives overseas, not by the kinds of fits of silliness that we have seen displayed by the Hon. Member for the Yukon this morning.

We have also heard about the failure of this Government to deal with unemployment. We recognize and have recognized over the past several years what a serious and tragic consequence that has been. We have also recognized that it is a problem that has faced every single country in the world. We have not been immune to the economic recession that has taken place worldwide. The real issue is that we try to do something about it.

All the Hon. Member for Yukon would have to do is to open his ears from time to time during Question Period and listen to the kinds of initiatives that have been taken by this Government. In the last budget we had $2.4 billion in new capital recovery projects which affect every region of this country regardless of who represents the region. The Hon. Member might be prepared to listen to the initiatives taken under direct employment. It was the government of which he was a Member that abolished direct employment programs. What would have happened to this country if the program of the so-called Conservative Party which abolished direct employment programs had been allowed to be maintained during that period of recession? Who would have helped the hundreds of thousands of people who were given work, support and useful activity through the Canada Works programs, the community development programs and the work sharing programs? What about the billions of dollars that were spent to give people that kind of support when they were out of work?

This group across from us would not have helped. They say they do not believe in that. They are the great free enterprisers. They were going to let the market take care of the problem. We saw how the market took care of it. It simply abandoned those people. This Government is not prepared to abandon those who are unemployed. We did not abolish direct employment programs; we brought them back into place. Thank God we did so that the hundreds of thousands of Canadians who were faced with unemployment in that market system were given some support by this Government.

The Hon. Member for Yukon mentioned this "terrible travesty" of the National Energy Program. We saw the statements by his leader of this last week that he would get rid of it. He would abolish it. Does that mean he would go back to world prices, that he would ask Canadians to pay the full world price?

Mr. Epp: Read the speech.

Mr. Axworthy: Is that what the Conservative Party is going to offer people in an election, that they will pay even higher energy prices? Is that what the Leader of the Opposition was stating last week in Calgary? We are not too sure because the Leader of the Opposition said one thing in Calgary but seemed to change his mind when he got to Edmonton. By the time he got to Edmonton he said: "No, I am not going to abolish it". Then one of his backbenchers here in Ottawa had a different story, which simply means the Conservatives are like a vaudeville team. You hit a new town, you play a new act. It has a different tune and a different song, depending upon the crowd you are playing to.

We would have liked to hear from the Hon. Member for Yukon this morning, in his diatribe against this Party and this Government's energy policy, what his Party stands for. What is his energy policy? Is it to get rid of the National Energy Program and have world prices?

Mr. Nielsen: It is to get rid of you.

Mr. Axworthy: Is it the sell out to the multinationals? Is it to do away with the Canadianization program?

Mr. Forrestall: Let the people decide.

Mr. Axworthy: Is that what his Party is standing for? If that is the case, Mr. Speaker, why do the Conservatives not say so? Why do they not have the guts to get up and say so?

Mr. Nielsen: Have the guts to call an election.

Mr. Axworthy: Why does the Leader of the Opposition keep changing his tune every time he hits a different town and why does he not stand up and say what he believes in?

Mr. Nielsen: Call an election.

Mr. Axworthy: He says call an election.

An Hon. Member: What are you waiting for?

Mr. Axworthy: I thought this resolution couched in the words of the Hon. Member for Yukon is meant to say that we have forgotten Parliament. Has the Leader of the Opposition forgotten Parliament that he has to go to Calgary and Edmonton to give his particular panegyric on the energy program? Is he afraid to come into the House of Commons and tell us where he stands? Is that the problem with him? Is it that the Conservatives do not want to use Parliament as their forum for discussion and ideas? Here is the Hon. Member for Yukon saying that the Prime Minister has avoided Parliament.

Mr. Nielsen: Yes.

Mr. Axworthy: Now we are finding out that the Leader of the Opposition also avoids Parliament. The Conservatives cannot have it both ways. I suppose it is only natural that leaders of parties are going to go across the country and make policy statements. I am not being critical of the Leader of the Opposition; goodness knows, I would not want to. I know how sensitive he is to criticism and how closely he takes it to heart. I would not want to comment on that. Of course, the Leader of the Opposition has the right to make statements in Calgary and change his mind in Edmonton. The fact of the matter is he is showing the same disregard for Parliament, if we use the logic of the Hon. Member for Yukon, as he is castigating the Prime Minister for so doing. What is this debate all about?

Mr. Nielsen: It is the Government that is accountable.

Mr. Axworthy: What is this kind of criticism being levelled at? Is it that political leaders are not supposed to go across the country and talk to groups of people and make their own statements?

Mr. Nielsen: Governments are accountable.

Mr. Axworthy: If that is the case, we would like to see the Leader of the Opposition in Parliament more often telling us where his "Government" stands.

Mr. Nielsen: It is the Government that is accountable.

Mr. Axworthy: Let us go on to some other issues. The Member for Yukon has raised the spectre of the Crow. He said this Government has brought in this piece of legislation without any consultation in the West, that it is going to destroy western Canada with total disregard for Parliament. That is pretty interesting, Mr. Speaker. It was three years ago that two major farm organizations, the Prairie Farm Commodity Coalition and the Western Agricultural Conference, asked that the Crow be changed and said that the real issue in western Canada was the failure to provide for a proper capacity to move grain to market. The kind of threat that we were looking at was the inability of this country's export market to be able to ensure its customers delivery on time at a decent price, and a government must take action to make that come about.

We could have followed the advice of the Conservative Party, which was to take no action at all, to freeze the program. This would have meant that by 1985-1986 we would have had a railway system that could not carry those goods to market. We would not have been able to sell those goods to the customers we have. We had a policy from the Conservative Party of "do nothing", of freeze. That was the word the Conservatives used. Do you know what a freeze is, Mr. Speaker? It is being frozen in position, afraid to make a decision.

Mr. Nielsen: Like Munro has done to the Yukon.

Mr. Axworthy: That is what we had from Hon. Members of the Conservative Party. They were scared of making a decision because they knew there was no unanimity in their ranks as to what the position should be. Their only recourse was to oppose and be obstructive. That was their only recourse. It was not that they had a position; it was not what they were prepared to do to deal with the looming crisis in the railway system. They were going to say: "Let us continue a few ad hoc items; we will buy some more hopper cars here and give a few more subsidies there". What they were afraid of doing was attacking the fundamental, central problem, which is that every bushel of grain that was moved was losing money for the mover of that grain.

• (1140)

That group which says it believes in the market economy should at least have a minimal understanding of economics. One does not invest money in something one loses money at doing; if one makes an investment, one at least has to receive a proper return.

Mr. Nielsen: What about Canadair, de Havilland and Maislin?

Mr. Axworthy: The Hon. Member for Yukon, that great parliamentary advocate, was also the author of some of the most extensive series of obstructions Parliament has ever seen.

Mr. Nielsen: Who, me?

Mr. Axworthy: The Hon. Member indicated that the Government could not bring in a Throne Speech. Which Party was responsible, along with their friends in the corner, for delaying Parliament and holding up parliamentary debate day after day after day? Which Party was responsible for not letting Parliament get to the proper business of the House? We were not even allowed to debate the Bill because we were engaged in the gymnastics of parliamentary obstruction, the major product of the particular evil genius of the Hon. Member opposite.

Mr. Nielsen: Oh, come on.

Mr. Axworthy: Of course there is a certain cant in all he says. We heard the Hon. Member for Yukon say today that Parliament was being abused, that we were using closure when we should not. All we were doing was what a responsible government should do—make decisions, run the affairs of the country and attempt to overcome the obstructions of Hon. Members opposite.

I would like to quote the words of a self-acknowledged parliamentary expert who, in writing to another self-acknowledged parliamentary expert, said: "Having said that, our understanding of a parliamentary democracy does not allow us to agree with you that a majority government, however bad, does not have the right to govern in accordance with established tradition and precedents". Guess who that parliamentary expert was?

Mr. Nielsen: "Established tradition and precedents"; that is the key.

Mr. Axworthy: I will give the House one guess. Who was it? It was the Hon. Member for Yukon who indicated that the Government had the right to decide and should not be obstructed by the minority. That is the question. If we allowed the House to be so convoluted and overturned by the sort of parliamentary terrorism we faced in the Chamber day after day, we could not continue with the business of the nation and the affairs of the House.

I cite, for the basis of my argument, the very words of the Hon. Member for Yukon when he indicated that the Government must decide. That is what we were doing. We were trying to make a decision in the House which would not only bring about a major expansion of the railways but also address the very issue the Hon. Member said we were not addressing—the question of unemployment. We recognize full well that the way to get the engine of the economy going is by providing some stimulus, some investment and some incentive for the private market to begin to work.

We have not heard lately from the Leader of the Opposition on the subject, but when he first came here he said that his objective was jobs, jobs, jobs. One can understand, when it came time to debate the Crow legislation which talked about over $16 billion of direct railway investment and over 300,000 new jobs and also about the development of new products and markets from British Columbia to Nova Scotia, that we were surprised the Leader of the Opposition and his colleagues did not rise and say: "Let us get the Bill passed as quickly as possible". We were particularly surprised because the Leader of the Opposition had just returned from the byelection in his Nova Scotia riding where 800 workers are working today because of payments to the railways under the Crow legislation to build new hopper cars, which is part and parcel of our railway program. Also I was surprised by the lack of gratitude of the new Leader of the Opposition. We were putting people in his riding back to work with our legislation. He allowed the debate to continue on and on without any resolution, until we were required by the dictates to bring the debate to a head with time allocation and reach a decision. If we had not been allowed to do that, what would have happened to the 800 workers in Trenton, Nova Scotia? They would not have had future contracts for work.

The same is true of the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). His workers in the steel industry are looking forward to massive production of steel rail for railway expansion. They were faced with the possibility of that work being frustrated.

Mr. Deans: That is not true.

Mr. Axworthy: Similarly, Members of Parliament from British Columbia, when we were looking at new capital investments in that Province alone of $4.5 billion and at providing over 100,000 jobs, rose and read petitions from people in Saskatchewan. Their own people wanted work which we were prepared to provide, but they read petitions from another Province. I admire their sense of national dimension, but I suspect that perhaps some of their constituents have serious questions about how well they were being served during the debate on the Crow rate and whether they were getting full value from their Members of Parliament.

We were not misusing Parliament. We were using Parliament as it should be used. First we were using it as a forum for debate and ultimately as a place where a decision must be taken. It is my belief that Canadians want decisions to be taken. That is why the motion before us today is frivolous, irrelevant and makes no sense.

Mr. Nielsen: Let the people decide.

Mr. Axworthy: We suggest to Members of the Opposition that the Government at least has the willingness and courage to make decisions, not hide behind the kind of rhetoric we heard from the Hon. Member for Yukon this morning.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I have a question for the Minister. Would he mind explaining whether he has in fact spoken to either or both the steel companies in Hamilton, the Steel Company of Canada and Dominion Steel Foundries, with regard to obtaining orders over and above what they presently have as a result of the changes to the Crowsnest Pass freight rates? If he has, would he then admit what both steel companies have said publicly that they do not anticipate obtaining any additional orders for steel directly as a result of the changes passed in the House?

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to answer that question. First, let us look at what is happening now. As the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain would know, there are several hundred hopper cars now being made in the City of Hamilton as a result of the railway legislation. We are talking about an investment program in the next eight years in Ontario alone, particularly in the metal fabrication area—

Mr. Deans: Hamilton, Hamilton.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I am coming to the point. If the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain has the slightest ounce of patience, I will come to the answer. We are talking about an investment of several billions of dollars in his Province alone which will provide in the range of hundreds of thousands of jobs. However, the point is that they must bid for the work. They must show they can make the product. They have to come forward with the sourcing. The Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain, as a good Member of Parliament and as a good constituency man, should go back and talk to the same steel companies.

I remind him of one of the important amendments which was made to the Bill in committee as a result of the efforts of the Hon. Member for St. Boniface (Mr. Bockstael). That amendment requires the railways to source their purchases in Canada as a primary judgment of their performance. If they do not follow that sourcing responsibility, it will go against their performance obligations and allow the Government and the Minister of Transport to withhold payment. At the same time we will not compel companies to bid or to make proposals. We are giving them the opportunity; it is up to the companies themselves to take advantage of that opportunity and to show they can make the product. It is up to the companies to make bids for massive amounts of new rail, locomotives, cars and rolling stock which will be required during this major period of expansion.

Mr. Deans: I think the Minister indicated that in fact I am correct, that the steel companies will not receive benefit directly as a result of the changes to the Crowsnest Pass freight rates. That is their statement. They themselves have done the analysis; they themselves know that they will not obtain additional orders.

• (1150)

The point the Minister makes, Mr. Speaker, is that National Steel Car is building hopper cars. Is the Minister aware that yearly, for as far back as I can remember, National Steel Car has been receiving orders for hopper cars; that in fact, in the current year, the orders are fewer in number than they have been in any previous year; and that in fact they are getting less work and not more?

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, the fact that we are trying to point out to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain is that the work is there and it is being shared with Hamilton, with the Transcona shops in Winnipeg, which I am sure would interest his colleague, the Hon. Member for Winnipeg-Birds Hill (Mr. Blaikie), with Trenton in the constituency of the Leader of the Official Opposition, and with the City of Sorel. There were major orders, not only for hopper cars but for coal cars as well to help move those products. Surely the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain, who has participated in this Crow debate for many weeks, would understand that there would be no further orders, no expansion and no development unless that legislation had passed in order to provide for continuity and certainty for the railways.

The time had come to end the ad hoc, capricious, year by year financing. We were reaching a stage where the issue was not simply a matter of having more hopper cars but a matter of not having enough steel rail to move those hopper cars on. We had to expand that capacity to make sure that there would be a continued development of new product and new rolling stock which would benefit the companies in his city.

I would invite Members of the NDP to begin to look at the possibilities for sourcing rather than giving up and surrendering before the legislation is passed. I make the offer in this Chamber, Mr. Speaker, that we are quite prepared to meet with them to show them what their opportunities are.

Mr. McKinnon: Mr. Speaker, perhaps I could ask a question of the Minister. In his rather loud speech, the Minister said they were going to expend some $4.5 billion in British Columbia because of the passing of the Crow Bill and that that money would create 100,000 jobs. As this work will go on for several years, can we take it from that that there will be several hundred thousand man-years of work created in British Columbia because of the passing of the Crow Bill? Will that $4.5 billion be provided by the railways or by the Government? When will the hiring start and when will it end? How many jobs can we expect to be created in British Columbia through this Bill in the next 12 months? Will the 100,000 jobs be filled this year, next year or the year after? What is the time frame?

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, it is unfortunate that the Hon. Member was not more involved in the debate during the course of the examination of the legislation because many of those questions were answered and the answers are on the record. However, perhaps I may be allowed to give him a quick summary.

First, the work is dependent in large part on the starting dates and we are looking at jobs beginning in the construction area. With the passage of the Bill this fall, the CPR, for example, is prepared to initiate work on the Beaver tunnel, which I think will create close to 1,000 new jobs. We hope that that construction will begin as soon as possible. The CPR has been awaiting the passage of the legislation because it could not proceed until that Bill was passed and it was certain of its financing. There are also a number of double-tracking initiatives that will be going through.

The second area is product sourcing, and as I pointed out to the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain, one of the obligations of the railways under this Bill is to source in the country. The opportunities exist both in basic supply of traditional construction materials as well as in a number of areas that have not yet been explored. Let me give as an example the area of electronics. The railways estimate that some $700 million worth of new electronic signalling transmission equipment will be required. The Government of Canada is now working with the railways and with a consortium of companies in Vancouver, Calgary, Saskatoon and Winnipeg to see how they could bid on that new electronic equipment, because up to this point in time all of that equipment has been sourced offshore.

Again, it comes back to the same thesis. Much of the work itself will depend on how effective it is for the manufacturer and the business community to respond to those initiatives. The person-years that we are talking about are spread over four or five years of construction, but I suggest that they would be weighed more heavily in the front end—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order.

Mr. McKinnon: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister a supplementary question. I believe he was just about to answer my question, which was how many of these 100,000 jobs we would see in the next 12 months. He has located 1,000 of those jobs. That still leaves 99,000 jobs.

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I think I have already said that the project itself will be spread over a period of eight years. Perhaps the Hon. Member who represents a constituency in British Columbia is not interested in having those people working over a period of eight years. Of course, the jobs will not all be created in the first 12 months. That will happen over the life of the project.

The fact of the matter is that those construction jobs will, in large part, begin over the next 18 months. Unfortunately, major construction starts were delayed this fall because of a delay in the passing of the legislation.

Mr. Friesen: Mr. Speaker, I listened very carefully to the Minister and I heard him refer to hundreds of millions of jobs. I take it that was a slip of the tongue and that he meant hundreds of thousands of jobs. However, I would assume from that statement that the Crow legislation itself could, according to the Government's estimates, lower the rate of unemployment by 25 per cent. Since there are two million people unemployed, the creation of hundreds of thousands of jobs would lower the unemployment rate by 25 per cent. I wonder if the Minister would table in the House the precise areas where those jobs will be created and in which Provinces, for what kind of industries and the precise numbers of jobs that will be created. What is the exact estimate of the number of jobs that will be created as a result of the passage of the Crow legislation? Would the Minister table that information in the House?

Mr. Axworthy: Mr. Speaker, I think it is quite refreshing to see that, all of a sudden, Members of Parliament on the Conservative side from British Columbia are beginning to take an interest in the Crow legislation. All of a sudden, after all of the long months of debate, they are coming awake to the fact that it will be of major benefit to their Provinces. I would simply say, Mr. Speaker, that it is a little late. Where were they during the debate when we needed them to help get this Bill through?

The information that the Hon. Member requests is already available on the records of the House—

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order.

Mr. Friesen: Mr. Speaker, I rise on a point of order.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): The Hon. Member for Surrey-White Rock-North Delta (Mr. Friesen) rises on a point of order, but I should advise the House at this time that the period allowed for questions and answers is over.

Mr. Friesen: Mr. Speaker, if the Minister was in the House during the debate on his own legislation, he would know that I spoke on the Crow legislation several times.

Mr. Ian Deans (Hamilton Mountain): Mr. Speaker, I would like first of all to make it clear to the House that we substantially agree with the criticisms contained in the motion put forward by the Hon. House Leader for the Official Opposition and we will, of course, support the main thrust of the motion. I say that so that there will be no doubt in the mind of any Hon. Member about where we stand.

I would like, however, to say that I must confess to having some difficulty in taking the criticism of the Conservative Party seriously. I have looked back over the course of the last two years. I am firmly convinced that the Government has failed to act reasonably in almost every single area of concern to the majority of Canadians and I am prepared to level criticism at the Government for the hamhanded way in which it has dealt with the economy, its neglect of people who are unemployed, its inability or unwillingness to come to grips with high interest rates and its general attitude toward the concerns of the Provinces.

However, I find it very difficult to accept at face value the criticisms being levelled by Hon. Members of the Conservative Party. They have come forward on every side of every issue raised in the House since 1980. They have attempted to be all things to all people on every single area of policy since the House was called into session after the election in the winter of 1980.

It is hard to accept that Members of the Conservative Party are serious about doing anything to try to improve the disaster that has been created as a result of Liberal mismanagement. If you sit as an observer and watch the Tories in action, you cannot help but wonder just what they stand for. They have a spokesman not only for every issue, but a spokesman for each side of every issue. If, for example, you want to see high energy prices, if you are part of the lobby group that is looking for high energy prices, you go to the Hon. Member for Calgary Centre (Mr. Andre). He will gladly speak for you. However, if you are a consumer concerned about high energy prices, eager to keep the price down so that you can pay for it with your meagre wages, speak to the Hon. Member for Hamilton-Wentworth (Mr. Scott). He will gladly get up and speak on your behalf.

If you are in favour of testing the Cruise missile in Canada, the Hon. Member for Yukon (Mr. Nielsen) is your man. He will get up at any time and explain how we must have this continued escalation of nuclear warfare weapons. If, however, you are one of the groups in one part of Canada or another that is opposed to the testing of the Cruise and you do not want to see it go ahead, just get yourself on the mailing list of the Hon. Member for Waterloo (Mr. McLean). He will be glad to speak for you.

If you think there is some need to cut Government expenditures, contact the Hon. Member for York-Peel (Mr. Stevens), the slasher. He will be happy to tell you of all the wonderful cutting that the Tory Party is going to do. If, however, you think that the Government should be spending more in some areas, you can contact the Leader of the Opposition, the Hon. Member for Central Nova (Mr. Mulroney). He will point out that there are many areas in which he is in agreement with the Government as to spending more.

If you are for six and five, the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead (Mr. Clark) is your man. If you are opposed to it, the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead is your man. If you would like to see the Public Service slashed because you think there are far too many in the Public Service and some of these people just have to get out of there, the Member for Prince Rupert—

Some Hon. Members: Oh, oh!

Mr. Deans: I am sorry. I will settle for Prince Rupert, but I meant to say the Hon. Member for Prince George-Peace River (Mr. Oberle). The day he takes office, he is going to cut 60,000, the Hon. Member for Capilano (Mr. Huntington) supporting him all the way.

If you think that maybe we ought not to take that approach, that it is too harsh, that maybe we should recognize the worth of the Public Service, if you were to chat with the Member for Rosedale (Mr. Crombie) I am quite sure he would be glad to point out the value of the Public Service and the good work it does. You do not have to worry too much. If you are on that side of the issue, there is a prominent or sometimes not so prominent Tory who will gladly speak on your behalf.

If you think that high interest rates are just the thing, that that is what we really need, see the Hon. Member for Etobicoke Centre (Mr. Wilson). He knows about these sorts of things. He said that the high interest rate policy of the Government is the only way to go. He said that we have to follow the high interest rate policy if we want to come to grips with inflation. However, if you think that high interest rates are driving people out of their homes, causing people to lose their nest egg and suffering has befallen the people of the land, the Member for St. John's East (Mr. McGrath) will be pleased to rise and rant on your behalf.

Let me go on, because this is what worries me about the Tory motion. If you are a moderate in foreign affairs and you think there should be a particularly Canadian approach, that we should establish our own policy, go through the process of dialogue and find a common ground, the Hon. Member for Kingston and the Islands (Miss MacDonald) will be glad to rise and speak on your behalf with passion.

However, if on the other hand if you think jacked up diplomacy is the way, march on and trample them underfoot, cut off all dialogue and isolate ourselves from the rest of the world, again there is the Member for York-Peel. He is your man. He will be glad to speak for you.

I could go on. I suspect I could take a whole day and go through the Conservative caucus one by one. You would find on every single issue, no matter what position you take, no matter what side of the issue you are for, no matter how adamantly you are opposed, a Conservative happily standing up to speak for you.

Some people may say that is democracy, that that is the democracy of the Conservative Party, that it shows they really do understand the nation. However, what would be their policy if in office? When you come right down to it, who would win the tug of war? Which of the various Members speaking for the Conservative Party actually enunciates the policy they would pursue? That is the key question that must surely be in the minds of the majority of Canadians.

Canadians are sick up to the back of their throats with this Liberal Government, and quite rightly so. Canadians have seen this Liberal Government for what it is; hard hearted, incompetent, incapable, posturing at all times. However, sick as they are with that bunch, how could any clear minded individual possibly go out and support this rag-tag bunch from the Conservative Party? How could anyone do that?

I have said this before, I think it is true, it was true when I said it the first time and I would not say it again if it were not still true: the Conservative Party have more positions than Masters and Johnson. They do not know what they stand for. All they stand for is getting into government. All they stand for is getting rid of the Grits. I want to get rid of the Grits as well, but I want to put in place a policy that makes sense for Canada. I want to give Canadians a clear and unequivocal choice. I want to afford Canadians the opportunity to vote for something and not simply against something. That is the choice that Canadians will ultimately be forced to make. Are they going to vote simply against a very bad Government as exemplified by the Liberal Government of the last two years? Will they vote against it by voting for a pig in the poke, some kind of take a chance and let us hope that things work out all right?

The Conservatives will not tell us what they are going to do. They ask Canadians to give them a chance and maybe they will be surprised. My God, maybe they will be surprised. I do not believe it is unreasonable to think that the Tory attitude is not at all unlike the attitude of their Conservative friend in British Columbia, Bill Bennett. If the Conservatives were ever to form a Government, and heaven forbid it should ever happen, I would expect to see them follow the exact same line of that heartfelt Premier of British Columbia, that man of compassion who does not respect order, tradition and people's rights, who tramples all over them at every turn and does not give a damn about the impact of his policies. That is their Conservative friend in British Columbia. That is what the public of Canada will risk getting if it elects a Conservative government.

● (1210)

There are positive things which should be done in this country. What we must do for starters is come to grips with the interest rates being charged by the financial institutions. We must bring that interest rate spread down to a level which will ensure that the people of Canada will be able to purchase the goods they need for themselves and their families. We must bring that interest rate spread down to a point at which small businesses will be able to continue to provide the services which they have historically provided. We must decide now that that is a priority. But neither the Liberals nor the Conservative are prepared to take that measure.

We must begin now to build homes in this country to meet the needs of the people at prices they can afford to pay and, in the process, put people back to work. We must begin now to establish a new transportation policy in order that we not only can build for the future, but can assure that the port facilities inland and on the coast are modernized and capable of meeting the requirements of the next generation. We must start now to make sure that the agricultural implements industry in Canada is refurbished and regenerated so that the farmers of Canada will be able to stay in the forefront of competition.

Let me say now, Mr. Speaker, in order that I do not miss the opportunity, that I intend to move the following amendment just to show the kind of positive things one should expect to see from a new government in office. I move, seconded by the Hon. Member for Vancouver East (Mrs. Mitchell):

That the motion be amended by deleting the period after the word "delay" and substituting the following therefor:

"in order that a new government receive a mandate to implement the following program for job creation and economic development; the establishment of lower interest rates and the restoration of traditional interest rate spreads between loans and savings, the introduction of a major housing construction program, the implementation of the Auto Task Force Report, the revitalization of the farm implements manufacturing sector, the upgrading of all vital transportation systems including inland and coastal ports and a new commitment to reforestation and forestry sector development; and the full restoration of public sector and collective bargaining rights.

That is the kind of thing which the Canadian public have a right to expect to hear from those who vie for office, from those who want to govern the country.

There are other things which must be contained in a program for the revitalization of Canada. There are other direct policies which must be supported, not by one or two Hon. Members but by all Hon. Members of whatever party forms the government. We must develop a mining equipment manufacturing industry in this country because it makes no sense that we should be so rich in resources and so poor in the manufacturing of mining equipment. We must utilize in our own interests western Canadian coal and the creation of electrical power in Provinces which are now purchasing it from outside the country. We must develop in Canada a forestry machinery industry because, again, it makes no sense for a country so rich in forestry resources not to have available the most technologically advanced forest machinery industry.

We must complete the East-West pipeline in order that Canadians can be self-sufficient in energy and we can create in Canada a self-sufficiency which will allow us to develop industrially over the course of the next 10, 15 or 20 years. We must work at developing an import substitution policy for Canada so that Canadian manufacturers large and small can be given a direction in which to look to replace those manufactured products which have been brought into this country from offshore which we ourselves could be manufacturing.

There are in this country people who are dedicated to putting those kinds of policies in place. There are people who would like to see full employment in Canada, who would like to see the youth of this land given an opportunity to go to work rather than leaving school only to find there is no work for them in any part of the land.

I suggest to you, Mr. Speaker, that the public of Canada are not going to receive those kinds of policies from either the Liberals—no matter what they do in terms of their leadership—or from the Conservatives, because the Conservatives are not dedicated as a team to developing a single set of policies which would make sense for the future of the country. The time will come, Mr. Speaker, when the Conservatives will be asked to stand up and be counted on these issues. There will be a time when the public will say to the Conservative Party: "You cannot be on every side. You cannot speak with a forked tongue forever. You simply must say what it is you truly want to see happen."

I suggest that the only Party in Canada which is prepared to make those kinds of categorical statements, and to back them up with action, is the New Democratic Party. I would welcome an election. I would welcome the opportunity to take on this bunch of two-faced, double-talking individuals who refuse to offer constructive opposition and intelligent alternatives to this washed-out Liberal bunch.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order, please. The Chair has received the text of the motion put forth by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). The Chair, however, would like to take the text of the motion under advisement and should be in a position to make a ruling on it before one o'clock, I am sure. Are there questions or comments?

Mr. Friesen: Mr. Speaker, I must say that was an entertaining speech. It reminded me of the 1980 election campaign, which I remember with some pleasure. The Leader of the New Democratic Party was going around the country at the time when the Soviets were moving into Afghanistan. He was saying that Canada had to strengthen its role in NATO. The Hon. Member for New Westminster-Coquitlam (Miss Jewett) was saying that the Leader of the New Democratic Party did not understand the New Democratic Party policy on the matter of NATO, that we needed to withdraw from NATO. I would like to ask the Hon. Member whether that Party has ever solved that policy issue within the Party and actually decided who the real leader is.

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, unlike the Conservative Party, we have no difficulty in deciding who the leader is. The one thing we do not have any problem with is the leadership of our Party. It is interesting to watch how the Conservatives squirm when the word "leadership" is raised. Those Hon. Members, including the Member who just asked the question, devoted two years to undermining the Right Hon. Member for Yellowhead. They worked very hard to undermine the credibility of their own leader. You would never find that happening in this Party.

I want to say to the Hon. Member that if he does not understand the difference between long and short-term policy, then that probably is quite clearly the reason why he asked such a foolish question.

Mr. Evans: Mr. Speaker, I was also intrigued by the passion in the speech given by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). However, I did notice that one of his key platform planks would be a major reduction in interest rates, especially the spreads between the rate on savings and the rate to borrowers. Does he not understand, Mr. Speaker, that in this country and the United States one of the main problems in bringing down those spreads—especially as it affects the United States—is the huge size of the federal deficit? That is the problem.

Mr. Nielsen: Who is responsible for that?

Mr. Evans: We are not going to have lower real interest rates so long as the United States is going to borrow $200 billion or $300 billion a year to finance a deficit, for example, for defence expenditures.

• (1220)

That is on the one hand. On the other hand, the Hon. Member went on to say that not only would interest rates be brought down under NDP policy, but there would be an expansion of spending for housing and subsidies for new machinery and equipment for the agriculture and forest industries. In all these areas there have to be subsidies of some kind to encourage that kind of production. In the automobile industry, the task force report would be implemented which would mean the cost of foreign cars to Canadian consumers would go up. There would be less consumption because those subsidies have to be paid for from somewhere. If consumers cannot finance those expenditures, then the Government is going to increase the deficit further and does that not fly in the face of the notion that interest rates have to be brought down?

Mr. Deans: That certainly is a convoluted question, I must confess.

Mr. Evans: It is a convoluted position.

Mr. Deans: No, the position is clear. The traditional interest rate spread has been about a third of what it now is. The reason is the wrong-headed policies of the Liberal Government and the Bank of Canada. If the Government wanted to assume responsibility for interest policy in Canada, it has the ability to do so.

As far as the other matters are concerned, would you prefer to pay out $1 billion a month for Unemployment Insurance payments or would you prefer to put the money into creating jobs? It is $1 billion a month now, and with the policies you are following now there are few new jobs being created and we have reached a point where in the last StatsCan reports the numbers of new jobs have gone down substantially compared to the last five years. If you continue you are going to have the overwhelming majority of young people unemployed, those who are supposed to be coming into the labour force. You are going to end up having to raise Unemployment Insurance levels, the cost of unemployment will continue to rise at a dramatic pace as it has over the course of the last 18 months. All of that to keep people unemployed. Surely it makes more sense, if you take into account the cost of keeping people on unemployment or welfare, all of whom would like to work, that the money be redirected and people given jobs instead. If you are telling me that you cannot do that, then I suspect that is one of the good reasons why you ought not to be in Government.

Mr. McKinnon: Mr. Speaker, I listened with a great deal of interest to that rather circuitous route the Hon. Member's speech took, touching every station on the loop. I followed with interest the smorgasbord amendment he submitted to the Chair. In the event it is not found acceptable, I am curious whether the Member and his Party, reunited again since the Constitution debate, are prepared to vote in favour of this motion before the House or are they going to vote again with their friends across the way?

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I want to give the Member the benefit of the doubt. I assume he was not here at the beginning of my speech. Either that or he suffers from a serious deficiency. I said at the very beginning of my remarks that we would support the motion and that the motion was substantially correct.

Mr. McKinnon: I did not hear you say that.

Mr. Deans: The fact you did not hear it is neither here nor there. It is quite clear that the thrust of the motion is supportable and we will support it. We find it deficient in certain ways and we have attempted to improve upon it, but there is no doubt in my mind that that bad bunch over there ought to be gone. I am just afraid this bad bunch over here is no better.

[Translation]

Mr. Cousineau: Mr. Speaker, I have a question. Is there still time?

[English]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order. The Hon. Member for Gatineau (Mr. Cousineau) rose at just about the same time and there are a few minutes left.

[Translation]

Mr. Cousineau: Mr. Speaker, in his speech the Hon. Member did not mention bilingualism. I wonder what he thinks about the position taken by some Members of the Progressive Conservative Party, especially the Member for Simcoe-North (Mr. Lewis), the Member for Winnipeg-Assiniboine (Mr. McKenzie) and their leader, the Member for Central Nova (Mr. Mulroney).

[English]

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order. To me that question is hardly acceptable because the Hon. Member, by his own admission, refers to a topic which was not raised by the previous speaker. The provisional orders provide that questions and comments must be related to an Hon. Member's speech. The Chair finds it difficult to accept that question but in any case I will give the Hon. Member the benefit of the doubt.

[Translation]

Mr. Deans: Mr. Speaker, I do not understand the situation in the Progressive Conservative Party. It is all very confusing.

[English]

The problem with the Conservatives, as in all things, is that they would like to be on both sides. Unfortunately it will require many people to explain what it is like when you are on both sides of every issue.

Hon. Jake Epp (Provencher): Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise and speak in support of this motion. I feel very comfortable about participating because things which have been seen to be normal in the country over the last 15 years have again been brought together this morning in the House. The Liberal/NDP coalition is again complete.

Mr. Hnatyshyn: Alive and well.

Mr. Nielsen: Alive and ill.

Mr. Epp: I have not heard a better defence of this Liberal Government's record than that given by the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain (Mr. Deans). In fact, if the Liberals have any sense left, they should hire him as their speech writer or, possibly even better, as their campaign manager. It was so interesting to watch the Hon. Member for Hamilton Mountain talking about this bunch and that bunch, because he did not know in which direction to point any more. Whenever Canadians want a change of Government, and the polls show this now month after month, year after year, the NDP would take a Liberal Government every time rather than a Conservative Government.

The NDP say the Government is a bad bunch and I agree. But it was their motion which brought the Liberals back. The NDP have tried to be the people with a 14 per cent solution, the people who represent the West. They tried that in Mission-Port Moody. What happened there? Oh, they are quiet! Why are they quiet? The NDP went literally on their knees to Mr. Barrett, the former leader in British Columbia, and asked him to run. But he had been defeated so many times he also knew not to do it. So today we have the Hon. Member for Mission-Port Moody (Mr. St. Germain) here. Why? Because he represented the people of Mission-Port Moody. That is why the NDP does not have that seat. Even the NDP, no matter what kind of convoluted mathematics they want to use, know that 14 per cent is not a government. Oh, those Liberals, Mr. Speaker!

Mr. Nielsen: Jake, they are consulting now.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

• (1230)

Mr. Epp: Mr. Speaker, I want to allow them whatever joy and pleasure they might want between now and the election because they are at 5 per cent in Mission-Port Moody. Even the Rhinoceros Party could do better, but maybe they have got more qualifications. The point is that when the Minister of Transport (Mr. Axworthy) gets up and tries to speak as a western Canadian and calls it prejudice, he is saying that the majority of Canadians, who in poll after poll have said a change of government is needed and necessary, are prejudiced. He is saying they do not know what is good for them and that they should rethink their position.

The point is that the democratic process in Canada today needs a change of government. What are some of the words we have heard over the last years? I refer to an article that appeared in The Winnipeg Sun last Sunday written by Peter Warren. He writes:

> What this country needs along with a good 5 cent cigar—

I might have some question about that.

> —and chicken in every pot is a federal Government that erases a number of words from its dictionary. Words like "mandatory, obligatory, prohibited, no choice". Probably and hopefully history will recall the most distasteful underlying belief of the Trudeau Liberals was the general thought over 15 years: "We know best what is right for the people".

That is the underlying philosophy of this Government. The Minister of Transport through the Crow debate said time after time: "This is good for you in western Canada. You farmers are wrong to be opposed to the changes to the Crow rate. You Chambers of Commerce are wrong to be opposed to the Crow rate. You commodity groups are wrong to be opposed to the Crow rate changes." Mr. Speaker, in the last Throne Speech 581 parliamentary days ago the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) said that because the Government did not have sufficient representation from the West, western Canadian Members had an obligation to represent the views of the West and the Government would listen. If that is an example of the Minister of Transport listening, we do not need that type of listening from the West and from this Government.

The Government went even further and said that it would not change the Crow until there was sufficient and adequate consensus in the West for change. Mr. Speaker, the Crow rate changes are not only economic or only extra capacity of rail. It was part of the fabric of the social milieu of western and prairie Canada. They said they would have consensus. Mr.

Speaker, today the Minister mentioned two groups who were in favour. If he checks the record he will find that even those two groups left that consensus.

Why are we to believe this Government, Mr. Speaker? It is interesting to look at what the mandate of this Government is. I went back and looked at the election promises of 1980 because that is a mandate. That is what the Government said they would do and what they were in favour of. Let us take a look at their record and see whether or not they have fulfilled what they themselves said they would do. First they said that energy prices would never rise as high as the Conservative Government's. They said they would never have an 18-cent per gallon tax—

Mr. Evans: We said excise tax. Be honest.

Mr. Epp: Let us ask Canadians what has happened to the price of energy since 1980.

Mr. Evans: Excise tax versus price. Be honest.

Mr. Epp: What has happened to the price of energy? The Member for Ottawa Centre (Mr. Evans) is now saying they did not say the price of energy was going to be lower only that the tax was going to be lower. Is that what he is saying? Only the excise tax was going to be lower. Mr. Speaker, I want to correct the record. They say only the excise tax would be lower. Everything else would be higher. I understand that.

Mr. Speaker, they said that energy would be lower. Every Canadian knows it is higher. They said that interest rates were too high and they would bring them down.

Mr. Nielsen: Or resign.

Mr. Epp: The President of the Treasury Board (Mr. Gray) said he would resign. He is a principled man. I accept that. What did they do? We have the highest interest rates in the history of Canada. How high were they? Oh, no answers. Twenty per cent plus. That is what they said was their mandate. They said they would lower unemployment which was unconscionably high.

Mr. Speaker, I give the Minister of Transport the record of the highest unemployment rate in the history of this country. The Government said unemployment would go down. They said lower inflation. Inflation has come down and I will give the Government the amount of credit they deserve in bringing down the inflation rate. It is very interesting to look at the inflation rate.

Mr. Evans: How much credit is that, Jake, according to you?

Mr. Epp: You can define that for yourself.

Mr. Nielsen: About that much.

Mr. Epp: I will tell you how much that is Mr. Speaker. They said six and five. I accept that.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Corbin): Order, please. The Chair finds that there are more interruptions than usual. I think we ought to listen attentively to the Hon. Member for Provencher (Mr. Epp).

Mr. Nielsen: It is hurting them.

Mr. Epp: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, even though I accept those interjections. When somebody gets stuck generally they squeal.

If the Government were sincere on the matter of six and five, and let us give them the benefit of the doubt that they were, why are they then asking Canadians to pay for rates of increase in excess of 12 per cent of Government spending? Why does the Government not realize that if it is really in favour of six and five, it must also live within the restrictions it has placed on other Canadians? We accept those restrictions but why do they not restrict themselves?

Mr. Evans: You are in trouble with that one.

Mr. Epp: Mr. Speaker, they were going to control spending. They were going to control the spending of Government. They said they would keep it within the nominal growth rate of the GNP. The record speaks for itself. It obviously has been again a promise not kept.

I have no doubt that Canadians want a change of Government. They want a change of Government because of the kind of representation they have been getting from the Minister of Transport. Some very interesting things are happening in that Minister's riding. We have more Members in that riding today and we are getting more money in that riding today because they are girding for the battle. The Minister of Transport holds a seat which Manitobans are going to do everything possible to turn into a Conservative seat and allow the Minister of Transport to go back to the things he does best.

Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Epp: It is very interesting to be at meetings in Winnipeg South or Winnipeg-Fort Garry and see people who never before were involved in the political process saying they want to get involved. This Minister is not representing western Canadian viewpoints to the Cabinet and in the House of Commons. In fact, it would seem that the voice he is raising is more to get delegate votes for a possible leadership run than to represent the views of western Canada.

Mr. Nielsen: Gimaïel would get more.

Mr. Epp: Mr. Speaker, earlier I used the words "mandatory" and "no choice". Members opposite must know that the added increases on the cost of the Crow are going to have serious effects on many farmers in western Canada. How can the Member for Winnipeg-Fort Garry, as a so-called self-ordained westerner, say that this is good for western Canada when in fact the Government had a mandate and a responsibility to put in the extra capacity without needing to change the Crow rate? In fact, this was happening beforehand. The Hon.

Member talks about hopper cars, but when were many of those hopper cars brought in? When the Hon. Member for Vegreville (Mr. Mazankowski) was the Minister of Transport the very large increase in hopper cars took place. This was not accomplished by changing the Crow but by sitting down with the railways and the prairie Governments. As a representative of the federal Government he asked them how to solve this capacity problem. Great steps were taken in that respect.

I want to deal with some other issues raised in this motion. Another reason people in this country feel a change is needed is the economic mismanagement of the Government. Today, as a result of the Government's economic mismanagement, roughly 25 cents of every tax dollar collected now goes to service the debt. I found the remarks of the Hon. Member for Ottawa Centre rather interesting and I agreed with his views in the way he formed his question. However, the fact remains that the Government has a very serious debt problem. It is not only very serious because of its size and the drain it is causing on the general accounts of Canada, but in my view it is jeopardizing the very social programs which Canadians want to keep in place. That is very serious.

We can be very partisan in the House—and I have been—but I want to say to the Government that we look forward to seeing the Canada Health Act. We want to know what programs the Government will propose. In light of the economic reality we face in Canada, we want to know how the programs which are now in place—which we want to preserve and strengthen but also take cognizance of the realities that we as Canadians must face in terms of the demography of the country—will be able to meet those two objectives in view of the economic mismanagement that we have seen during the last 15 years and which is now seriously jeopardizing many of those safety nets.

While we can talk about many issues which have a public profile, such as user fees, extra billing and opting out, the real issue we must face is the ability to maintain and enhance programs in light of this Government's economic mismanagement over the last 15 years. That is the point. I welcome the proposals from the Minister of National Health and Welfare (Miss Bégin) for meeting those two realities.

If Canadian business people or Canadians generally were paying 25 cents out of every dollar just to pay interest on a debt, I know what their bankers would be doing. Their bankers would be calling them in and would want to look at their financial statements. That is what Canadians must be worried about today with respect to the Government.

I want to say to the Government in all seriousness that the greatest negative legacy it is leaving behind is that its economic mismanagement is jeopardizing that which Canadians believe to be right and properly part of their collective protection or safety net in our society. The Government cannot dispute that because those are hard facts. A report on pensions is to be tabled approximately in the middle of December. Pensions are a very serious issue without doubt and we have had a task force on pensions and have had a green paper. In my experience and I am sure in the experience of every Member of the House, one of the most critical problems in this respect concerns widows, especially those between the ages of 55 and 65 who do not have a safety net to fall back on. How do we address this question of pensions while keeping in mind again the economic reality that we face as Canadians as a result of the economic mismanagement of the Government?

We can also talk about the maintenance of health care. The Minister has said that the federal Government has not withdrawn its share of funding in any way. However, when we look at the demography of Canada and the demands in that system, the Provinces which have primary responsibility in that area recognize the need for alternate care, preventive health care, home care and community based care. Where are the Minister's plans? How will we address those questions in view of the economic mismanagement of the Government? Those are the legacies being left behind.
