OTTAWA, May 13 .- At the opening of the house this afternoon, Col. John A. Currie, North Simcoe, called attention to the enormous increase in the cost of printing and distributing departmental publications, and the debates of parliament. The amount in a few years had risen from $330,627 to $1,807,390. He said this increase represented an utter waste of at least $50,000. He therefore moved the adoption of certain recommendations contained in the report of the joint committee on the printing of parliament and before the house on May 11. This report among other things recommended the distribution of all public documents from the government printing bureau, and the establishment Detroit Causes Consider-

M'GARRY "BLOWS" DECLARES MAYOR

Tells What Ontario Has Done and Then "Sponges" for Payment.

TIRED PAYING BURDENS

Says the Government is Bleeding Toronto for Everything.

Mayor Church Saturday morning replied to Hon. T. W. McGarry's remarks of Friday night and said: "This meeting was organized for Mr. McGarry on the sudden and some city of Sature acceptant."

Garry on the sudden and some city officials assisted it.

"Mr. McGarry might have been truthful," said the mayor. "I never said the Ontario Government could not make a direct taxation; nor did I oppose them doing their share for the war, as everybody expected they should de; nor did I oppose the grants they made. What I objected to was their method of assessing and sponging on the municipalities for the cost of them. "The Deminion Government and the city are financing their own war expenditures, and so should the province. Other provinces are doing it without direct taxation on the municipalities, and so could the Ontario Government if they spent less on railway subsidies and other frills. They could have capitalized it the same as the Dominion.

could have capitalized it the same as the Dominion.

Tired Paying Burdens.

"Toronto is tired of paying the Ontario Government's burdens for hospitals, educational and charitable institutions of all kinds, which are purely provincial in character, including technical schools, jail farms, provincial institutions, land titles office, registry office and the Hamilton highway There is a provincial tax on everything, including amusements. The taxpayers of Toronto are becoming tired of paying the Ontario Government's bills.

"I never saw Mr. Hannigan in the matter, and opposed in April, 1915, the provincial war tax when the estimates were up in the board of control, but was defeated. Mr. McGarry might have told the people about his antihydro McGarry bill of last session, and the anti-Beck campaign in Ontario. The representatives of four hundred municipalities objected to the McGarry bill and predicted that it would ruin the hydro in time. He should have told ward six Conservatives something of the attacks made on the municipalities and their property by the government, in seeking to make the hydro a department of the government, which will sooner or later make it a party institution.

"I did not object, but approve as many gifts, or all the gifts, Ontario can give, and do not oppose them. They should be capitalized and made debentures, the same as the Dominion Government are doing, and not sponge on the municipalities to pay for themposterity should pay its part.

"Most of the attack directed against, me by the McGarry-Lucas forces is on account of my loyalty to Sir Adam Beck and the hydro.

"The Ontario Government is bleeding Toronto for everything. They will allow us by legislation no new sources of revenue, but grab everything themselves. They tax amusements, racecourses and everything elso. Toronto people pay this direct tax, yet Toronto does not get a share of it. They refuse us legislation to supplement our own revenue in any manner.

revenue in any manner.

Will Soon Know.

"The people will know some of Mr.

McGarry's legislation when they start to pay his amusement tax in a day or two. Mr. McGarry's speech is full of two. Mr. McGarry's speech is full of errors and quotes me as saying things I never said. The district where he spoke last night is the approach to the Hamilton highway, which was a bungle and cost twice what it should, and the government held us up for $100,000 and told us that if we did not grant it they would pass legislation over our heads and over the heads of the municipalities and compel us to pay it. The taxpayer is becoming tired of these provincial burdens.

"The war tax will continue, in my opinion, in time of peace, as they claim the same power under the Assessment Act to assess the municipality at all times.

Act to assess the municipality at all times.

"Mr. McG*** May be a Napoleon of finance, but the one or two millions they gave away in gifts to the war could have been financed otherwise than in the manner they did. Why should myself and the city council have to send in bailiffs on the taxpayers' property for Mr. McGarry or anybody else? Why doesn't the Ontario Government collect its own war tax, the same as the Dominion Government, and the same as they do in Great Britain, New Zealand and Australia?

"What have they done for the soldiers? The Ontario Government has not given the local regiments a cent since the war started to pay their recruiting bills.

"We have a sample of the way they helped municipal rights last session at Ottawa, when they failed to come to the help of the municipalities and Sir Adam Beck as they should have done.

"Toronto owes them little or nothing, except the privileges, of pay-pay-pay all the time."

A Mother's Heart Once an angel came from Heaven,

When the world was new. And the one the Lord selected

For the work to do, Was the highest and the brightest

In the Heav'nly land, And he brought along as helpers,

Angels, bright and grand: And they gathered all the kindness,

Love and sympathy, That the Lord had made to scatter

Thru each century. When the task had been completed,

By the Heav'nly band. Then they mixed these saintly virtues

With an angel's hand, And when they had been compounded Thoroly in part,

Then the Lord commanded they should Make a Mother's heart.

Judge Mackenzie Moves an Amendment-Wants Ammunition Sale Investigated

ublications which it was expecting the Upon motion of Sir Robert Borden, the debate was adjourned until next Tuesday.

Upon motion to go into supply Judge Mackenzie (North Cape Breton and Victoria) moved in amendment a motion censuring the minister of militia tion censuring the minister of militia for selling 3,000,000 rounds of ammunition since the opening of the war to Col. J. Wesley Allison without the sanction of an order in council, and called upon the government to have the entire subject investigated by the Meredith-Duff commission.

Mr. Mackenzie said that the militia department had contracted to sell 5,000,000 rounds of cartridges, but only 3,000,000 had been delivered. The price was $20 per thousand, altho they had cost the country $34 per thousand. He read a letter from the department minister of militia to the quartermaster-general, written in the fall of master-general, written in the fall of 1914, advising against the sale of any master-general, written in the fall of 1914, advising against the sale of any ammunition during the war. Mr. Mackenzie personally doubted if any ammunition should have been sold in war time in view of the possibility of an invasion. At any rate no such sales should have been made except by order-in-council.

In the fall of 1915, according to letters read from the return table in the house, a correspondence begun between J. Wesley Allison and the inilitia department, which constituted the contract of sale. The first cartridges were shipped via the Corinthian to McViciters I louse, Proadway, London. Other shipments followed, until 3,000,000 were order-in-council.

In the fall of 1915, according to letters read from the return table in the house, a correspondence begun between J. Wesley Allison and the inlilita deers House, Broadway, London. Other shipments followed, until 3,000,000 wers delivered. Then the auditor-general asked for a copy of the order-in-council authorizing the sale. No such order apparently was ever made. An order-in-council had been prepared, but either it had never been presented to his royal highness, or, if it had, his royal highness had declined to sign it.

Up to Minister.

It was up to the minister of finance

It was up to the minister of finance in Mr. McKenzie's opinion to produce the order in council if it had ever been approved and if it had not been approved it was up to the prime minister to deal with the minister of militia and defence in acting illegally in makand defence in acting illegally in making the sale. No one knew where the cartridges had gone to, but it was reported that they had been resold at a profit to the imperial government by Col. J. Wesley Allison. The brittle thread of the government's existence thread of the government's existence and it was indeed brittle, seemed to be in the hands of J. Wesley Allison. Mr. McKenzie wanted the whole matter in-vestigated by the Meredith-Duff com-

The Sir Charles Davidson Commission, reminded him of the Indian's remark about Providence, which was to the effect that Providence did everything right, but sometimes was "dread-ful slow."

Continuing, the prime minister said that he was glad to see that the Liberals were now satisfied with the just, and in so far as the rights of erals wer enow satisfied with the unorganized men are not infringed Meredith-Duff commission. Personally he was satisfied with both commissions. But had referred this particular subject to Sir Charles Davidson because it was the duty of Sir Charles to investigate the expenditures of Canada while the Meredith-Duff commission was constituted to investigate certain expenditures made by the United Kingdom. There was no mystery involved in the transaction.

Should Have Ben Burned,
The ammunition had been condemned and under military regulations should have been burned or drowned in deep water. The McVRkers Company, Limited, however, had purchased the same for use in trying out their machine guns. The price $20 was a fancy price due to the war, The government had tried to sell the ammunition before the war for $12.50, but the best price obtainable was $10. best price obtainable was $10. The Mackenzie resolution, he said, seemed to be a double-barreled affair designed at once as a want of confidence motion in the government and in the Sir Charles Davidson commission. As to the order-in-council Sir Robert said that it had been drafted, but before it could be submitted for approval the minister of militia had sailed for England. By the time he returned the transaction had been assailed in the house and in the press of the country, an investigation having been authorized. The order-in-council was held by pending the result of the investigation. Sir Wilfrid said that the government could not evade its responsibility. If the transaction was all right they should go ahead and get the order-incouncil signed. If it was all wrong, they should disavow it, He said that the charge ought to go to the Mercdith-Durf commission instead of to Sir Charles Davidson. The only legal council assisting Sir Charles was Captain Thompson, who was a good lawyer, Thompson, who was a good lawyer, but who was after all an officer directly under the command of the minister of militia.

ed to see that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was able to be about. He would have thought in view of the political troubles he has been passing thru that he would have to be brought from his home to the parliament building in an ambulance. If he was really as strong as he looked he had better go down to Quebec and get some of his fellow-countrymen to enlist. Sir Wilfrid, he said, had been very eloquent in Quebec in 1896, when he told the French-Canadians to trust him because he was a Catholic and Tupper was a Protesttant and at the same time was telling the people of Ontario that he favored "Hands off Manitoba."

suitable to be counsel in the case be-for the Davidson commission. It would be a good thing, he thought, if some of the opposition members would get themselves into khaki.

As to the order in council, none was necessary. The officer commanding at Quebec would have been entirely justified in throwing all the condemned annunition in the St. Lawrence black. fied in throwing all the condemned annunition in the St. Lawrence River. However, it had been sold for $20, which was the cost price, and not $34.65. The ammunition had gone to the McVickers firm and to no one else. All the insinuations to the contrary, notwithstanding.

nachine guns had released a large machine guns had released a large quantity of good English ammunition for use at the front. No commission or any rake-off had been paid. Col. Allison was the agent of the Vickers' firm, but the purchase price was paid by the Vickers people into a London bank to the credit of the receivergeneral of Canada. The general then added significantly that no defective ammunition would ever be furnished ammunition would ever be furnishe Canadian soldiers as long as he was minister of militia, and was going to be the minister until he went out. In a clash which followed some remark by Mr. Carvell of Carleton, N.B., Sir Sam brought down the house by saying, "I do not personate people in New York or hire dirty blackguards to steal papers." The Lady Ross Chapter, I.O.D.E., held its monthly meeting in the Y.M. day afternoon, with the regent, Mrs. R. H. Cameron, in the chair. The most R. H. Cameron, in the chair. The most interesting feature of the meeting was Mrs. C. H. #### BREEN-FORD

St. Francis' Church was the scene of an extremely pretty wedding May 4, when Eleanor, daughter of the late James W. Ford and of Mrs. Ford, Montrose avenue, became the bride of Mr. Basil Breen, son of the late Simon Breen. Rev. Father McCann officiated and the bride was given away by David A. Carey. Her lovely gown was of softest white satin, veiled in chiffon and pearls and her tulle veil was arranged over a wreath of real crange blossoms. White roses and lilies formed her bouquet. Miss Olive Beer, who acted as bridesmaid, was in white lace with touches of pink and picturesque leghorn hat, adorned with pink and white flowers. Her bouquet was of pink roses. Mr. Vincent Mullin was best man. The beautiful wedding music included solos by Mrs. Nellie Corbett Malone and Miss Retta. Dowsley. Miss Angela Breen, sister of the groom, was organist. After the ceremony, Mrs. Ford, who was wearing a handsome gown of black silk and lace, held a reception before the newly-wedded pair left for a honeymon in New York and Buffalo. The bride's traveling dress was of Belgian blue with hat of cyclamen pink. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Breen will reside at 389 Montrose avenue.

public fancy wherever it is heard. Its sentiments are noble and fine and the thrilling lilt of it has caught many a hero in its thrall and induced him to take the decisive step in helping to "keep freedom's flag high waving," and many an audience has cheered itself hoarse at the words: "As our heroes sweep on to victory, What foe can their rush withstand, Stand up and sing God save the King, And give your flag a hand." The song is also scored for orchestra and band, and the Otto Higel Company, plano player manufacturers, are adding it to their catalogue for the month of June. "Give the Grand Old Flag a Hand" is one of the finest recruiting songs of these harrowing war times.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, 1873 Dundas street, when over 60 guests sat down to the wedding supper, after which the happy couple loft for a honeymoon to Muskoka. Being this first wedding in the new Dale Church, the bride was presented with a beautiful hymn book.

NEW BRITISH WAR SONG.

"Give the Grand Old Flag a Hand." the new British war song by Wm. Assummerville, Toronto, has caught the spirit of the times and is already being played and sung in all the theatres and other recruiting places in the city, as well as at many patriotic concerts. The introduction starts off with majestic chords and trumpet call which stir the blood and quicken the puise, and the patriotic words and the martial swing of the music cannot fail to catch the

ANNIVERSARY SOCIAL WAS HELD AT MIMICO

Silver Communion Set Presented to Presbyterian Church During Evening's Program.

The Mimico Presbyterian Church, Mimico, held their anniversary social last Monday evening, May 9. Rev. Mr. Mc-Kay, the pastor of the church, presided and spoke at length on the excellent pro-

Police Force, has invented a new method of carrying soldiers' kit and supplies, at the front. The idea follows closely that of the "tump line" with the strap going over the foreign head. A contrivance fastens down in front at the belt, and this relieves the necessity of holding the line from shifting, and leaves both hands free to use rife.

The carrying efficiency of a man has been increased two hundred per cent. Formerly it required two men to take 75 lbs. up to the trenches, but with the new invention one man can take 150 pounds with greater ease.

When Capt. Archibald explained the right to General Garnet Hughes, the general became quite enthusiastic about it. Capt. Archibald went to general became quite enthusiastic and now it is understood a large quantity has been ordered for the army.

The officer is well known in Canada as a sportsman, and competed in the Olympic games at White City. Photographs of a soldier carying a pack by means of the new invention appeared recently in The Daily Mirror, London.

Dublic fancy wherever it is heard. Its sentiments are noble and fine and the thrilling lilt of it has caught many as the presentation of a silver communion set, which was a gift to the church from Mr. Donald Henry and his family, who have been conscientious workers for many years past. An event worthy of mention was that of an unveiling of the honor roll of the boys of the church who are doing their bit in the trenches. Mrs. Johnston, who unveiled the list of names, has given two of her sons to the cause of the empire. The names listed were numerous, and were read by Mr. Gauld.

After the unveiling of the honor roll. Miss Pearl Horner of Willow Manse. # Built to Order Clothes

THERE is deep down in human nature, a respectful preference for built-to-order clothes. High class, custom tailored clothes, that fit, keep their shape and satisfy the man who orders them. It is because we deliver this kind of clothes at a popular price that this business has developed from one store to 28 stores, covering the principal cities and towns of Canada. By reason of our great quantity buying we are able to deal direct with the mills, and produce better values than would be possible on a smaller scale. We are able to command talent in designing which smaller Giller Miller concerns cannot afford.

Captain of Swedish Schooner Says Submarine Fired Ship, Then Sank it.

STOCKHOLM, via London, May 13,
—The captain of the Swedish schooner. Harald, gives in the "Dagens Nyheter" an account of the sinking of his ship by a German submarine in the North Sea on May 5. The ship was halted by the submarine, the commander of which gave the crew fifteen minutes in which to abandon the schooner. The captain of the Harald refused to obey the order and hoisted the Swedish flag. The Germans then boarded the schooner and poured pettroleum over the ship, which they lighted. They then attacked the captain with cutlasses, forcing him into a small boat. The blazing petroleum not destroying the Harald quick enough, the ship was sunk by gunfire from the submarine.

CLEVELAND, May 13.—Some time ago it was announced in Canada that a reciprocal arrangement had been made with Germany and Austria whereby the international committee of the Y.M.C.A., with headquarters at New York, would with headquarters at New York, would be permitted to work among the allied prison camps in these two countries on agreeing to perform similar services to the soldiers imprisoned in France, England, etc. This work could only be done by a neutral nation, and some account of this, among an estimated number of four million men, is contained in the report of the international committee, given at the Y.M.C.A. Convention for North America here today:

million men, is contained in the report of the international committee, given at the Y.M.C.A. Convention for North America here today:

"The camps contain all the way from a few thousands to as many as fifty thousand men. As a rule, these men are without occupation. They are serious and most responsive to our friendly Christian approach. In every country now at war, save Turkey, these prison camps are open to the efforts of the international committee. Our aim is to erect in each camp where necessary an inexpensive association building or hut, to organize an association or men's society, to enlist the men in educational classes, including Bible study, and to conduct a wise campaign of evangelization."

Campaign of Helpfulness.

Speaking of work among the training camps, the committee says:

"The British associations have from the beginning cultivated this field among their own men in a most remarkable manner. In over one thousand camps they have waged a campaign of great practical helpfulness and spiritual power, and have utilized the services of thousands of men and women. It has not been necessary for the American associations to contribute either men or money to this part of the work. The same can be said of the effort put forth by the Canadian associations on behalf of their young men in training in Canada and in England, and back of the fighting lines in France, of Austria, of Hungary, and among the soldlers of the British Empire in Egypt, in Mesopotamia and in India, as well as among the Indian troops in France, the American associations have found boundless outlet for all their gifts. The door now seems to be opening to inaugurate similar efforts among the millions of Russian soldiers."

So far, in these lines of work, the committee expended $300,000 the first seventeen months of the war, and plans to spend $400,000 during the present year. "The outbreak of the European war," they declare, "presented the greatest single opportunity which has possibly ever been brought before the international committee."

How to Save

Do your eyes give you trouble? Do you already wear eyegiasses or spectacles? Thousands of people wear these "windows" who might easily dispense with them. You may be one of these, and it is your duty to save your eyes before it is too late. The eyes are neglected more than any other organ of the entire body. After you finish your day's work you sit down and rest your muscles, but how about your eyes? Do you rest them? You know you do not. You read or do something else that keeps your eyes busy; you work your eyes until you go to bed. That is why so many have strained eyes and finally other eye troubles that threaten partial or total blindness. Eyeglasses are merely crutches; they never cure. This free prescription, which has benefited the eyes of so many, may work equal wonders for you. Use it a short time. Would you like your eye troubles to disappear as if by magic? Try this prescription: Go to T. Eaton Co., Ltd. G. Tamblyn, or the nearest wide-awake drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one tablet in ½-glass of water and allow it to thoroughly dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. Just note how quickly your eyes clear up and how soon the inflammation will disappear. Don't be afraid to use it; it is absolutely harmless. Many who are now blind might have saved their eyes had they started to care for them in time. This is a simple treatment, but marvelously effective in multitudes of cases. Now that you have been warned, don't delay a day, but do what you can to save your eyes, and you are likely to thank us as long as you live for publishing this prescription. The lower prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

Woman of Ninety Knitted Hundred and Sixty-Three Pairs of Sox.

SINCE WAR BROKE OUT

Mrs. Caroline Brooke, Mitchell, Ont., Does Her Bit for Canadian Boys.

Who can beat this? If any woman in Ontario who is 90 years of age can break the record of 163 pairs of sox done since the war broke out, we should like to hear from her. Meantime we have Mrs. Caroline Brooke of Mitchell, Ont., who has this number to her credit, and is still continuing the good work.

Mrs. Brooke is one of those patriotic women who is anxious to do her "bit," and is doing it in a very practical way. At four score and ten there are not many roads open to the ordinary man or woman. But it soes without saying that Mrs. Brooke is not ordinary. If she had been she would have thought as so many others think. Well the world owes me a rest. Let the younger folks take upon themselves the burden; I've done my share."

Instead she set herself to her task with cheriness and perseverance, and as day followed day the clink of the needles and the unwinding of the yarn went on, the count growing larger daily, until now this industrious and patriotic daughter of Canada has this fine record of sock-making, an example which will doubtless serve as an inspiration for others to "go and do likewise."

Mrs. Brooke lived the greater part of her life at York Mills, then called Hogg's Hollow. She also spent some time in Unionville before moving to her present home with her daughter, Mrs. Shilling-law. Tho her offspring are represented today by some of the iourth generation, Mrs. Brooke is still straight and alert in appearance, and, as someone remarked, "is scarcely a bit grey."

Today's knitter of sox was among those who in their pioneer days had, willy or nilly, to take a good deal of the unwinding of the walk from Hogg's Hollow to market to do the time when the walk from Hogg's Hollow to market to do the ordinary shopping and business of the household was part of the work of common everyday life. The st of transporting the troops, hower, from western Ontario to Petawawa is so great that it costs more to me them there than would have pursed the camp site in Simcoe, and, addition, Petawawa Camp is not may the lines required for training tops for foreign service.

In taking this matter up this year military authorities were confrontwith the problem of continuing a des of small camps in various parts the leountry, or selecting one large mp for the mobilization of troops, see divisional training Here.

Let year in Ontario the system of the was that of the small camps, the result that it was found quite possible to give the troops, to any tent, the field training which it is solutely necessary they should have bring them to that state of efficiency required before they can take it place on the battlefield. and tactics. In England they receive this training from their own officers, with the advice and assistance of officers who have had practical experience at the front, so there is no teason why these troops should not be equally as well trained here in Casada as they are the England, if sufficient area for such training is provided, so that when they leave Canada they may be shipped direct to France and take their places in the firing line along with their comrades. This would save great expense to this country, and would ensure the money spent on their training and maintenance being kept in Canada.

Strategically Camp Borden is well situated as it is in a central position, distant only five or six hours' travel from any important centre in the province. From a military standpoint it is important that there should be some central position chosen as the depot for the arms and equipment required in the province. This position should have certain advantages. The depot should be capable of being fortified and made into an armed camp. A number of lines of railway should run to it, and it should be far snough away from the frontier to prevent it being raided on short notice by air raids or destroyed by shell

Petrograd comment has it that the Russian army from Persia will attempt to occupy Bagdad and to cut off the Turkish army, which is confronting the British column in the region of Kut-el-Amara. In order to meet the formidable Russian menace in the north, the Turks are swinging round their forces and concentrating them in the decisive theatre.

From Lower Mesopotamia, the only news received is to the effect that over 1000 sick and wounded soldiers have been evacuated from Kut-el-Amara and are now in the British lines, It now appears that the cause of the disaster at Kut was the breakdown of the mechanical transport system on the Tigris last autumn. It seems that the campaign was mismanaged by the Indian Government which underrated the difficulties of the task.

In East Africa General Smuts reports that the Germans, after retiring to the central railway, have received reinforcements and are returning to confront the British army. He says that he has enough men to cope with the situation. A Belgian force has made considerable headway in an invasion of German East Africa from the west.

Parallel of Waterloo

To go back to a parallel case, take the parallel of the battle of Verdung and the battle of Waterloo. In embarking on his campaign in Belgium, Napoleon had the alternatives of standing on the defensive in France and attacking the invaders. The peril of this policy was that if he waited too long the invaders of France would be able to collect an army of overwhelming numbers. So to anticipate such a contingency, Napoleon, who desired peace, so as to make his dynasty secure in France, decided to attack the allies in Belgium. It was a bold move and he hoped, if he won the victory, to make an advantageous peace with his enemies. He nearly succeeded in winning his victory, but the Duke of Wellington proved more than his match at Waterloo.

The Germans may be expected to do as Napoleon did because the whole of their system of waging a wildly offensive war is founded on a study of the tactics and strategy of Napoleon as seen thru the eyes of their classical military master and authority Von Clauswitz.

So to find the reason for any German

So to find the reason for any German strategic move it is best to ask what would Napoleon do in a similar predicament?

In relation to the west Kitchener In relation to the west Kitchener is slowly but surely, and steadily as fato, turning out new armies at the rate of about 20 divisions each six months. Conscription was about to be adopted in England and Scotland. Clearly, instead of diminishing, the strength of the allies was increasing on the western front. In addition, the Germans knew that the allies were about to move Russian troops to the west. They might also employ several army corps of Japanese troops. This last matter has given every once and a while the German general staff considerable worky.

The Land of the Maple

I listened to an old man's story,
As he graphically spoke to me,
Of glorious sights he had witnessed,
In far lands 'way over the sea.

An exile from early manhood,
He had wandered for many a mile,
From shores of the broad Atlantic,
To the banks of the lotus Nile.

He told me of dear old England, Of fair Erin's emerald isle, And he raved of bonnie Scotland, As entranced I stood the while.

Had hunted in many a country,
For the wildest of forest game,
Quaffed wine of the purest vintage,
In the vineyards of sunny Spain.

Ah! Since then I too have wandered,
But perhaps not so far as he,
Far enough to make me certain,
That "Canuck" sounds real good to me.

When I think of dear old "home land." Then such scenes seem so commonplace, And my home and friends of childhood, Each seem filled with a hallowed grace.

In spite of the old man's story, Still I am strong in my belief, That the sun shines far, far brightest, In the Land of the Maple Leaf.

Then let us be proud of "home land."
United and true everyone.
No matter what others may tell you,
She holds the "first place in the sun."

In their Caucasian-Mesopotamia campaign, the Russians have been making steady progress in the crushing of the Turks. In the north where their main armies are, they have cleared the Turks out of the mountain chains south of Mush and Bitlis, and are pushing forward upon Diarbekr and Nisbin to seize the Bagdad railway, and they now are only a few miles from their objective. They are also closing up upon Erzinian, where but that must have been in those gloomy days before the possibilities of miles from their objective. They are also closing up upon Erzinjan, where the Turks have been offering a stiff resistance, but have been compelled to give way under the steady pressure of Russian numbers. The first line of Turkish defence has been carried, and the Rusians are beating at the second line. Owing to the heavy pressure groomy days before the possibilities of our wonderful northwest were known, when the C. P. R. ran its passenger trains at night along the north shore of Lake Superior lest the traveler, alarmed at the gaunt and hungry look-ing land that unrolled itself before him, alight at the next station and betake line. Owing to the heavy pressure exerted against them, the Turks seek relief in counter-attacks, and are se-

Officer Recently Home From Front Given Responsible Appointment at Headquarters.

IN SECOND YPRES FIGHT

Served With First Canadian Division and Transferred to Canadian Army Corps.

Lieut, J. Stanton Chenay, who recently returned from the front, has received the appointment of deputy assistant adjutant-general at militia headquarters, Ottawa. This is a splendid promotion and a position of considerable responsibility.

Before the war broke out he had been in London. Ont., on the divisional staff of the permanent militia, and when war broke out he went with the first Canadian contingent that has gained a name for itself.

He served on the general staff of the first Canadian division and was transferred to the general staff of the Canadian army corps, comprising three Canadian army corps, comprising three

Lieutenant Chenay left France on April 4 last and reported at Ottaws where he secured a few days' leave to visit his wife and daughter in London and relatives at Windsor. He is a son of D. Chenay, 159 Hall avenue, who was formerly school inspector for North Essex. After graduating from the Windsor Collegiate he taught school for a time in Tecumseh and later joined the permanent militia as a warrant officer.

FOR USE IN WINTER

Garden Should Do More Than Just Supply the Table During Season.

The garden should do more than supply the table with fresh vegetables in season; it should produce vegetables to can for winter.

While you are transplanting tomato plants, do not forget the canner, says Farm and Ranch. Plant enough to pay you for getting a home-canning outfit if you do not have one.

There are many vegetables suitable for canning. Beans are often popular as a product to can. Corn can be saved in cans. It requires vigorous steaming and cooking to save sweet corn, but farmers do, and find it worth while.

Tomatoes are perhaps the most popular vegetable for home canning. It is served in many different ways and easily canned. Every home should have an abundance.

We have always produced a loaf of bread as good as the best materials could make it. That is tantamount to saying that we bake the best bread possible, perhaps; but as to that, we leave it to the good judgment of the public. One thing is positively unchallengeable, and that is, "We have always kept the price down as low as any baker could---and live." Vickers Firm Suggested Release of Good Material for Use at Front.

After Investigation Three Years Ago Large Quantity Was Disposed of.

OTTAWA, May 18.—The sale of 2,-896,000 rounds of Canadian ammuni-tion by the militia department thru Col. J. Wesley Allison to Vickers, Ltd., was inquired into by the Davidson Committee investigating war contracts at a sitting this morning.

After Captain John Thompson, K.C., had read correspondence indicating that General Hughes had approved the sale, the minister of militia himself gave evidence that in the early months of 1915 a member of Vickers, Ltd., had stated there was a great shortage of ammunition in England and suggested that the defective ammunition which that the defective ammunition which he had heard the militia department had in store might be used for ma-chine gun practice, thus releasing good ammunition for use at the front, Sir Sam Hughes had referred the official to Quartermatser-General McDonald, General Hughes told of an inquiry which was made in 1913 having declared ammunition made in Quebec arsenal up to that time was to a great extent bad, having condemned all that had been made prior to 1908, and having ordered 12,000,000 rounds destroyed, the balance made up to the time of the report being branded defective. After vain efforts to improve Quarter-master-General MacDonald had been Sold to Vickers.

As for Col. Allison's connection with the affair, General Hughes stated he had approached him with regard to buying some of it, and that the minister had sent him to Gen. MacDonald. He afterwards heard that some of the ammunition had been sold to Vickers, and when in England was informed that Vickers in turn had disposed of some of it to the admiralty, merely adding something for expenses but not commission. All responsibility for the transaction, said the minister, rested with Gen. MacDonald.

The latter witness was called and testified that he had been approached by Col. Allison, who applied for the first 236,000 rounds of the defective ammunition sold. He did not know whom Col. Allison represented, but

The abnormally low price of Dominion Steel in comparison with other Canadian steel stocks has recently forced an advance in the price to 55%, but this rise is regarded as insignificant and very much higher prices are thought to be warranted by the present position of the company. It is believed by many that concerted action has been in effect to hold the price down for some reasons not yet known and that when the pressure is relieved the advance will be rapid and material. The Dominion Steel Corporation is making all kinds of money and the statement which it is said will be issued next Saturday, the 20th, will reveal the results of the early portion of the prosperity which has come to this as well as the other steel companies. There appears to be some ground for the rumors of an amalgamation between the Nova Scotia Steel and the Dominion Steel Companies, but it is thought that the latter concern are not anxious to effect the merger.

FINDS ON M'INTYRF BEST EVER MADE

Remarkable Ore Body on Seven Hundred Foot Level-of Great Value.

TIMMINS, Ont. May 13.—The Northern Miner, in today's issue, has the following to say about the McIntyre strike: "The recent discoveries in the McIntyre at the 1000 and 700 foot levels appear to be the most important ever made on the property and undoubtedly enhance very greatly the value of the mine. The most remarkable of the two was at the 700 foot level of No. 5 shaft, where on the contact zone 62 feet of ore was passed thru, assaying over the entiredistance $1440. Upon this ore body drifts have been pushed west 25 feet and east 92 feet along the foot wall and both faces are still in good ore. No effort has been made yet to determine how far east and west the width seconds. faces are still in good ore. No effort has been made yet to determine how far east and west the width shown in the crosscut will continue. It would seem that this is an ore body which experience at the lower level of the Dome has made familiar to Porcupine mining, but which has not before appeared save in the neighborhood of the McIntyre and Acme, Of the extreme value of the limitation as a remarkable ore body there can be no question. In the same cross at the 700 foot level No. 5 vein has been cut, but at the present writing it has not been drifted upon. It is a remarkable fact that directly the crosscut at the 1000 foot level of the McIntyre Extension sheft had passed into McIntyre territory the values began to improve, Development has now so far progressed that a vein 25 feet wide of $15.30 has been cut and there is yet much promising territory to be crosscut before the No. 5 shaft is reached.

HON. GEORGE P. GRAHAM ON RAILWAY QUESTION

Concurs in Statement of W. F. Maclean, M.P. and Believes Lines Will Be Needed.

Hon. George P. Graham, who is in Toronto today, expressed concurrence with a great deal of what W. F. Mac-lean said in the Dominion House on the railway situation last night.

The present situation in which railway come to the country every year to make up for their deficiencies was attained by a said. Mr. Graham. The intolerable, said Mr. Graham. country might as well be paying the money into its own pockets. If any roads were taken over by the sovernment it should be but a step towards the nationalization of all the railways.

Need All Roads.

When conditions righted themselves after the war, all the roads would be needed, said Mr. Graham. There might be lines in various places where there was competition, which might be eliminated. The government owned 40 per cent. of the C. N. R., Mr. Gra-ham intimated that the government ham intimated that the government might as well go on and acquire the rest of the property.

The difficulties of railroading in Canada were great, "Canada," said Mr. Graham, "has a greater length of railway line in proportion to its population than any other country in the tion than any other country in the world." It was useless to try to compare Canada with France or Germany. There the population was dense and the hauls short. Here the contrary was the case. In Europe they could make their money on passenger traffic and short hauls. Here they must make it on long hauls. Conditions were reversed. Mr. Graham said he had gone into the question thoroly. He had all the statistics. Their volume was confusing. was confusing.

Mr. Graham let it be understood that

Mr. Granam let it be understood that he thought the nationalization of the railways in Canada would come in time, but, he said, the problem would be a great one to handle. It should have mature consideration,

NOT EVEN A POSTCARD.

The new postmaster was not having a very happy time, besieged as he was by a crowd of burly men all demanding their letters at the same time.

At last one strode in and shouted with a voice of thunder: "Have you got any letters for Mike Howe?"

"For who?" snapped the postmaster.

"Mike Howe, I said! Don't you know your job or can't you talk English? Have you any letter for Mike Howe?"

The postmaster took his glasses off.

"No, I have not," he snorted; "neither for your cow nor ""me else's cow!"

tainly significant that upon division Sir Wilfrid Laurier lost every follower in the west except Mr. Albert Champagne, a French Canadian who sits for Battleford. Hon. Frank Oliver, who swallowed the autonomy bill in who swallowed the autonomy bill in election time might exclaim:

"Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites and the dwellers in Mesopower, failed to follow his leader on the bilingual resolution, Mr. J. G. Tur-riff, who held office under the Laurier government, and has been always regarded as a party man, stood up with Sir Robert Borden when the roll was called. So did Cruise, the only Liberal present from Manitoba, so also did Dr. Clark of Red Deer, and Douglas of ark of Red Deer, and Douglas of trathcons. So also did the Liberal Stratkons. So also did the Liberal members from Saskatchewan, except Champagne.

The more chivalrous Ontario Liberals rode with smiling faces into the valley of death. When Mr. Ross of Middlesex arose to vote some friend on the other side of the chamber called out "Goodbye Duncan." It was not said derisvely or by way of badinage. Everybody likes Duncan, and they were sorry to see him pass out of public life. There was sympathy, too, for Fred Pardee, who has been in the house since 1905. Hon. George P. Graham played with the poison, called up ham played with the poison, called up-on his friends to witness that he died for his country, swallowed the draft at one gulp, blew out the sas, and then telephoned for the undertaker.

"It has been suggested to me many times during the past three weeks," said Mr. Graham, "that weeks," said Mr. Granam, "that were I to vote for any resolution touching upon this delicate subject I should be preparing material for a first-class funeral. If so, bless-ed are the dead."
Only Reuben E. Truax of South

Bruce among the Ontario Liberals fied for safety to the government trenches. He is said to have changed his mind many times during the day before the vote was taken. But he could not have felt more uneasy voting for the government than did a good many of the Sovernment supporters from Quebec, More than one of these laid down has political life for Sir Robert Box. den at sunrise Friday morning, just as did many Ontario Liberals for the sake of Sir Wilfred Laurier. Of course he who loses his life for a prime minister may find it again. From the sepulchre of popular disapproval he may ascend to the seats of the mighty. To him the party chief can cheerly call:

"Say not goodnight, but on some brighter shore, Bid me good morning."

The important thing seems to be that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had against him the solid west. Yet the defection may be more apparent than real, for western Liberals can now say to their constituents that Quebec will not dom-inate even the Sir Wilfred Laurier be

Will Sir Wilfrid, accustomed to command, lead an army which may at any time refuse to follow? Have we heard the greatest orator in Canada, one o the great ones in the world, for the last time in the Canadian parliament

Two notable speeches in the bilingu al debate were contributed by Hon. Frank Oliver and Mr. R. B. Bennett of Calsary. They served notice on the east that western Canada was going to run her own show in her own was Mr. Oliver said it made little difference what was in the Treaty of Paris, or the articles of capitulation, or the B.N.A. Act, or what Sir John Macdonald said in 1867, or Sir Wilfrid Laurier said in 1896. The west was tired of ritual and precedents. The people of Alberta, he said, had come to a new country in order to get away from the traditions of the past. They wanted their children to be educated, and there was no way to get an efficient school system except by having one language.
If Sir Wilfrid did not like it he could lump it, the west did not care a cop what either he or Sir Robert Borden thought about it. Thus spoke Hon. Frank Oliver in the house. More interestingly and more omphatically he spoke outside of the chamber in his own vernacular. The air was so blue that people thought a dense fog must have settled down over the city. No wonder Mr. Speaker Sevigny blushed when Mr. Oliver describing how quickly the Russian and Ruthenian children learned English from an English teacher observed:

"They speak the same English so you and I do Mr. Speaker."

Mr. Oliver put the case from the western standpoint in a striking man-ner. Half the people are of foreign birth. They constitute a small population scattered over a vast area. It is difficult for the settlers to get a school started, and they maintain it by real sacrifices. On account of the climate the children can only attend school six months out of the year. A man who selects a quarter section, as Mr. Oliver puts it, selects his land, but not his neighbors. He cannot tell who may locate on the next quarter section, or who may already be living in that locality. Therefore, a school district is ade up of people of one nation ality, but may include Germans, Austrians, Russians and Scandinavians. If every child had to be taught his own was the greatest speech from an orateacher for every child. Evidently the all into one room, and make them learn English. Teey learn it quickly, too, from our Ontario girls who go into

During the week the vote on the bilingual resolution has entirely changed the political situation. The Conservatives, a few days ago dejected and dispirited, are now walking on air, carolling as they go hoping above all things for an election. They say that to carry Ontario and the west on the language issue would be like taking money from a child.

Testimony connecting up Allison with the fuse contracts gives them no uneasiness; they say nothing will be talked of this side of the Ottawa River except the bilingual issue. It is certainly significant that upon division Sir Wilfrid Laurier lost every follower in the west except Mr. Albert Chempagne a French Canadian who is a greement which has recently been torn into shreds by the Government of Manitoba. That agreement permitted any ten families in a school district to have their own particular brand of lingual school. The politicians actually encouraged foreigners to demand their own schools, for if the ordinary foreigner is let alone he is only too glad to learn English. Conditions grow so appaling that around election time newspapers had to be started in forty or fifty different languages. Not that the foreigner had any difficulty in reading the English on a five dollar bill. By marvelous intuition he knew the value of money, but to complete his political conversion it was thought well to play up to his prejudices by reason of this house, to the men of the east, and especially to the men of Quebec, may I say to them * * * * * that nothing could be more dangerous for Quebec than to have it thought that this issue is thrust upon this house at this time, looking towards the coercion of aning towards the coercion of another province, for the advantage of a minority that comes from that where thirty thousand men have rushed to the colors, the taik that has already been engendered by reason of this legislation is something to be reckoned with. It makes for bad feeling, it makes for discontent, it makes for lack of discontent, it makes for lack of harmony, and in the end for the disturbance and destruction of the state. I should like to remind this house, and especially my friends from the province of Quebec who if they lived in the United States they would find that the in-fluence which they exercised upon the body politic would be limited as it is in the New England states. as compared with what it is here under the splendid constitution which guarantees them a fixed re-presentation in this parliament and the preservation of their rights, privileges and liberties, because the very debates which I hold in my hand contain a statement by Sir George Cartier in which he Sir George Cartier in which he pointed out that if once there be an interference by this parlia-ment with the free rights of the provinces to pass educational legislation, then, as he said, "The rights of my French compatriots in Quebec may one day be inter-fered with by a Protestant parliament." So that I do again appeal to them to reflect, to pause, to consider, before they place themselves upon record as being opposed to the doctrine which their fathers who laid the foundations of this confederation thought right, proper and just. . . . In the name of unity of purpose, of harmony, of the greatness of the Dominion that is to be, remember those great plains that that one day will say to my friends from Quebec: We have not forgotten your efforts, because they may renember. I would deprecate it, and so would others, but let this country realize, as my hon, friend from Edmonton said, that the shifting of population, already in shifting of population is already in progress. It wil not be in my day possibly; it will not be in the day possibly of any one in this house, but as certain as the but as certain as the sun shines, those great lands between the lakes and the mountains will have a population as great as that which inhabits the central west. It will have reached 50.000,000 within a ressonable time, and I am perfec y convinced that these 50,000,000, ving under the aegis of the Union Jack, as British subjects, emerging as we will emerge successfully from this war, and securing to them liberty and justice and free-dom; securing them from the tyranny of minorities which may be greater than the tyranny of majoritics—that must not be forgotten, it is a fact in history—se-curing them from that, we will, if ve are true to the trust that devolves upon us, leave to them' a country whose institutions make posible the development of that unity of purpose, that harmony of feeling, that intelligent co-ordina-tion of effort that brings about national efficiency under one language of communication and in-struction which, in this case, must because we are part and par-of the British Empire, the

It has been my privilege to hear many of the greatest orators on this continent, and I have often heard Sir Wilfrid Laurier in and out of parliament, but I have no hesitation in saying that the speech he delivered on the bilingual debate on Wednesday night torical standpoint, to which I have eve listened. Sir Wilfrid was in splendid form, and he spoke with deep feeling.
As he proceeded his years dropped reach the hearts and intelligence of the little children committed to them. The shirply repeating want to learn English, and so do their parents. Western Canada is simply repeating what has been accomplished in the United States.

Another pleasurable surprise was the speech delivered by Mr. Lamarche of Nicolet. Mr. Lamarche was unknown to a majority of the house except as the fact that in the "eastern town-ships" where the French now predom-inate, but where there is still a considerable English population, no controversy has arisen on the language question. The Englishman diving in Quebec, he said, was the "star witness in his case." His concluding words were these: "I wish also to make an appeal to all generous English-speaking members of this house, whether on the Conservative side or on the Liberal side, representing any of the provinces of Canada, to show their broad-mindedness towards the French minority by supporting this resolution. I make a special appeal to those English-speaking members who owe their seats in this house to a generous French-Canadian majority.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The Washington Senators trounced Jennings' Tigers, 3-2, this afternoon, by getting to Pitcher Cunningham in the second, fifth and sixth innings, finally driving him to the showers.

Walter Johnson was unusually wild, passing six and hitting two, but was effective until the closing chapters. The speed king was nicked for three hits in the seventh, one run coming over. The ninth was the big thriller, for Detroit filled the bases, with nobody out. Vitt flied to Rondeau, shcoring Young, but Johnson then settled down and retired the next two hitters. Ty Cobb made the final out with a pop-fly.

Sensational catches by Cobb and Bush featured the game. No errors were charged to either team.

MADE A MISTAKE.

BOSTON, Mass. May 13.—With the bases filled and one man out in the tenth finnings, and the score tied at two each, Maniager Rowland sent Ssott, who had relieved Eddie Cleotte in the seventh, to the shower bath, and put Lefty Russell on the mound.

on the mound.

The men on the coaching lines of the Red Sox encouraged Gardner with the statement that Lefty was likely to be wild. He cut two balls very low, and in an effort to get it up gave Larry just what he wanted, and he straightened it out for a single to centre-field, scoring Hoblitzel, and the game was won by the champs, 3 to 2.

ROBINSON FIELD, St. Louis, May 13.

—The Cardinals rallied in the eighth today with two runs and nosed out the Superbas, 2 to 1. To the eighth, Dell pitched great ball, giving three hits. Hornsby opened with a double and scored on Snyder's single. On the throw home, Snyder took second and was relieved by Gonzales. Doak sacrificed. When Bescher missed the ball on the squeeze play he was caught in a run-up, but scored the winning run on Miller's wild throw. Bescher got three of the six hits off Dell. The Superbas scored their run in the fourth on Hornsby's three-base wild throw of Mowrey and Cutshaw's sacrifice fly.

SPEAKER HAS HOMER.

NEW YORK. May 13,—Lee Fohl's fast-traveling Cleveland Indians batted out a victory over the Yanks: in the last two innings today, 4 to 2. Stanley Coveleskie, brother of the Detroit southpaw, outpitched Ray Fisher. In the eighth, with Cleveland one run behind, Smith walked, after Speaker had been retired, and Gendil singled. Howard was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. Smith-scored on Wamby's eacrifice fly, and O'Neill's single sent Gandil home. Speaker drove out a home run in the ninth.

Lancashire kicked off, and at once assumed the aggressive, forcing a corner is the first minute, which, however, proved abortive. Dunlops worked down on the right, and Low was almost thru, but overrant the ball. From the goal kick Lancashire went right down, and Jack Knowles skinned the crossbar with a beauty. Not to be denied, they came again and forced a corner, which was well cleared by McLean. The Lancashire boys at this stage were putting up a far different display than they did the previous week. Young made a nice solo run up the right and finished with a perfect centre, which was, however, intercepted by Coombs. At the other end, Sharp had exceedingly hard lines with a nice shot, the ball just passing the outside of the upright. The Lancashire forwards were down, and Young centred, and Dobson sent in a nice shot, which son, following, put the leather into the net.

Stung by this reverse, Dunlops went Double Bill in T. & D. League Attracted Nice Crowd-The Details.

VARSITY STADIUM, Toronto, May 3.-Ulster and Street Rallway met at Varsity Stadium in a T. & D. League fixture, under ideal weather conditions before a good crowd of spectators. The teams lined up as follows:

Ulster: Williams, Burdett, Puddie, Adgey, Cardy, G. Davidson, W. Forsythe, J. Davidson, Campbell, G. Forsythe, Reid.

Street Railway: Cohen, Lowis, Tun-stall, Holland, Sheppard, Smillie, Ed-wards, Bryant, Wardle, Partridge, Cow-

Referee: J. Dobb. First Half.

Wardle kicked off for the Railway, Cowper traveling nicely down the wing, Bryant spoiling the opportunity by getting offside. Ulster took up the attack thru J. Davidson and Forsythe, Cohen conceding a corner, which he cleared in great style. Wardle lied his forwere none too steady under pressure. Burdett frequently kicked into touch for safety.

A ciever piece of work by W. Forsythe, when he cutely tricked Holland and Tunstall and centred finely, was spoiled by Campbell being offside. Good play by G. Forsythe and Reid almost brought success, Cohen saving finely. At the other end a perfect cross by Cowper was completely missed by Edwards, when a little steadiness would have brought success. G. Forsythe presented Campbell with a good opening, but he shot high over the bar. A great shot by G. Forsythe was cleverly saved by Cohen, who conceded a corner, which went past from a perfect cross by Cowper. Bryant missed the post by inches.

A fine piece of combination by the Ulster forwards ended in Reid shooting wildly over the bar. Reid brought Cohen to his knees to save a fast grounder. A minute later J. Davidson scored for Ulster, but the whistle had blown previously for offside. Ulster continued to press, but found the Railway defence impregnable.

Half-time—A draw; no scoring.

Second Half.

OTTAWA, May 13.—Clifford Spring, the crack home fielder of the champion New Westminster Lacrosse Club, is expected to arrive in Ottawa on Thursday of next week, and be in snape to line up against the crack Cornwall team in the opening N.L.U. game here next Saturday. This announcement was made by their own goal for a time, but could not store the land when he lifted a perfect centre from Barron over the bar from three yards out. Dunlops at this stage were having the better of the game, but could not score. A brilliant effort by Cossey deserved to score, but McMurray brought off a marvelous save. Sharp, who was playing with an injured knee, had to retire for repairs, but soon returned. Lowe worked down with some nice combination, Art Barron just grazing the bar fived, with Lancs leading. Score, 2 to 0.

Second Half.

On resuming, Dunlops forced a corner, which Cossey put behind. They continued to press, Sharp and Barron making desperate attempts to score. Lancashire broke away and were awarded another penalty, which Cosmbs saved splendidly. Champ had a glorious chance to reduce the lead when he lifted a perfect centre from Barron over the bar from three yards out. Model D45. 40-45 Horse Power Price $1,420, F.O.B. Oshawa

Remember this—Power is the thing which makes or mars motoring pleasure and satisfaction. Other things may have a stronger appeal to the inexperienced eye, but eventually all motorists discover that power is the great essential.

And remember this-You can't have sufficient power in your motor car unless the motor is of the Valve-in-Head type. Racing drivers, almost to a man, use cars with Valve-in-Head motors. They know from years of experience that you absolutely cannot get sufficient power from any except a Valve-in-Head motor.

Finally, remember this-"McLaughlin" motor cars always have had Valve-in-Head motors, and are developed to the highest point of efficiency yet attained in automoble engineering.

Power! Valve-in-Head! McLaughlin!

GIANTS' FAILURE

Breaks Against McGraw and Nothing Else-Has Great Individual Worth.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Michael J. Denlin, former swatsmith extraordinary, came in from Long Branch, N.J., the other day to see the Giants perform. Sie Michael will manage a team in Long Branch this summer for Sunday games. He has several melees booked with the Giants.

"It's a funny situation, isn't it?" mused Donlin. "It is a long time since McGraw has had so many really good ball players. Yet he can't win a game. If it isn't one thing it's the other. One day the pitching is poor and the club hits hard. The next day with good mound work they can't hit. The third day they throw a close one away, and so on.

"Fevery little mistake the Giants make mound work they can't hit. The third day they throw a close one away, and so on.

"Every little mistake the Giants make proves costly these days. The other teams make the same or worse misplays and they win.

"People laugh at you when you talk of the breaks of the game. They think that is a form of alibi to discount success of a rival and cover wour failings.

"I know something about baseball. I made a fair success of playing the game here in New York. When things get breaking wrong for a club or for a player, they just keep on going that way. Nothing turns out right. It is the same way if they get going good. Then everything they try goes thru.

"I saw the Giants in the opening game at Philadelphia. They looked very strong and I did not hesitate to say so. Look them over man for man. Kauff, Burns, Robertson, Doyle, Merkle, Fletcher, Rough, Rariden, Tesreau—what players in the National League would you trade for them?

"Mac hasn't got the strongest pitching in the world. But with the bunch of hitters, fleiders and base runners he has, he doesn't need a great staff if he gets a few of the breaks.

"Fate has handicapped the Giants terribly. However, I have confidence in the club and in McGraw. He cannot finish far from the top with the aggregation he has in those convict suits. It's not on the cards."

SCHOOLBOY PITCHER IS SIGNED BY GIANTS

Practiced at Polo Grounds and Showed Charlie Dooin Some

NEW YORK, May 13.—His name is Waite Hoyt. He pitches for Erasmus Hall High School. Last season he performed the remarkable feat of twirling six no-hit games. This year he went fifteen consecutive innings without allowing a hit.

Young Hoyt is sixteen years old. He has signed an agreement to join the Glants as soon as he leaves school. He is a protege of Charley Dooin's.

He came to the Polo Grounds last summer, a boy of fifteen, and asked to be allowed to practice with McGraw's men. He said he was a pitcher. Dooin took agn interest in the boy. At morning practice he would spend a little time each day catching his offerings.

The veteran backstop was surprised at the stuff the young schoolboy put on the ball. He spoke to John McGraw about him and McGraw looked him over. The result was the signing of the agreement, which now reposes in the archives of the New York National League Ball Club, giving the Glants first call on his services the moment he decides to turn professional.

Waite has the physical proportions of a pitcher. He is 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. As he is only sixteen, he will undoubtedly add several inches to his height and take on considerable weight before turning professional.

Since he signed his agreement with NEW YORK, May 13,-His name is siderable weight before turning professional.

Since he signed his agreement with the Giants several other big league clubs have been after him. Waite, however, is perfectly content to perform for the clan McGraw. He has always had the ambition to step out on the mound at the Polo Grounds, where for years he saw the great Matty perform. His ambition is practically certain to be realized.

CUBAN PLAYERS GIVE

Island Republic Taking to American Game in Great Style-Some Stars.

NEW YORK, May 13.—To those who have seen the Cuban young men and boys playing baseball upon their native diamonds it is not at all surprising that some of these players should migrate to the United States and earn places for themselves upon both major and minor league teams. The Cuban apparently takes to baseball almost as readily as the average boy in the United States and once he has graduated from the novice class, can field and run the bases with the same skill shown by the majority of those who play the game in this country. If he has one weakness it is inability to make long hits. This handicap is overcome to some extent by the speed with which the Cuban player goes down to first and from base to base.

More of these players are scattered thru the professional leagues of the country than is generally thought to be the case by followers of baseball. Few of them have reached the point of proficiency where they are assured permaent places in the big circuits, but a number are playing fast ball in the minor leagues and appear to be headed for the majors.

A Cuban enthusiast recently compiled leagues and appear to be headed for the majors.

A Cuban enthusiast recently compiled some statistics, which show that sixteen of his young countrymen are playing in the various leagues under organized baseball and twice that number with well-established and ingh-class semi-professional teams. There are also several other players famed for their skill with ball and bat in Cuba who are ready for a tryout in the United States, and he gives it as his opinion that the time is not far distan when the Cuban player will be a factor in the make-up of the big leagues.

ALBIONS ARE WEAK IN EARLY STAGES

Thistles Took Offensive and Pressed Hard—Only Nine Men Per Side.

SUNDERLAND GROUNDS, West Toronto, May 13.-Thistles and Sunderland Albions met here this afternoon in a division A., T. & D. soccer fixture. A fair number of spectators lined the field when the teams kicked off at 3.15 p.m. Both teams started the game with nine men each, the munition works preventing the other men from putting in an appearance.

Thistles took the offensive from the kick-off and soon were busy around the Sunderland goal. Robertson spoiled things by kicking past. The Sunderland forwards worked the ball down the field and Griffiths secured when placed, straight in front of the goal. He let straight in front of the goal. He let drive for the nets, but found Stevens pulling off a marvelous save. The home team continued this pressure, and it only looked to be a matter of time when they would score.

Sunderland Albions—Wenthall. Wilding, Brooks, Brown, Hunt, Younger, Griffiths, Gosling, Taylor.

Thistles—Stevens, Campbell, Buchan, Mallallen, Adams, Rankin, Robertson, Eddie, Gow.

Referee—Smaill.

Good defensive work on the part of Thistles—Stevens, lowever, kept them out and enabled their own forward ranks to get busy and do some forcing work on their own. Gow gave Wenthall a hard, low shot to clear, and this the goalkeeper did in good style. Robertson made several good efforts towards the S. A. goal, but received little assistance from his forwards. Finally he pulled the defence to one side and gave Rankin an open shot on goal. The latter took full advantage of it and had the ball in the net for Thistles first goal.

Robertson showed well for Thistles again when he beat Wilding and forced Wenthall to concede a corner from his shot. At the Thistle end Griffiths had the ball in the net, but it was disallowed owing to offside infringement. Nice combination work between Taylor and Griffiths for Sunderland terminated in the latter wading his way thru the Thistle defence and shooting from ten yards out. Stevens stopped the shot, but hadn't time to clear when Griffiths fime score: Thistles 1, Sunderland Albions 1.

time acore: Thistles 1, Sunderland Albions 1.

Second Half.

Robertson secured the ball for Thistles from the restart of play and made for the Sunderland goal. Taking advantage of slow work by the opposing backs, he went right in on the goalkeeper and shot the ball into the net. Thistles 2, Sunderland Albions 1.

Sunderland gingered up after this reverse and transferred play down-field. After several weak attempts, they were driven back to their own end. Gow and Robertson took up the attack for the Jags, only to be pulled up by the Albion defence. Griffiths was always trying for the S.A.'s, but his efforts were fruitless, owing to lack of support. Both teams played the one-back game thruout, with the result that the forwards were being drawn up for offside all the time. The Thistle goal had a narrow escape when three Sunderland forwards were clustered around it trying to score, but it was brought to a close by Gosling shooting past.

Stevens cleared Thistles goal in great won by default; 170th withdrew entries on account of decision in Picton( 180th) v. Simmons (170th) bout. Without arms marching competition:

past.

Stevens cleared Thistles goal in great style when he disposed of a shot from Taylor from 15 yards out. Griffiths evened things up for Sunderland Albions by a brilliant individual run from near the centre of the field. He went right thru the whole Thistle defence and collided with Stevens, but managed to kick the ball into the net.

Thistles made great efforts to take the lead again, but had failed to score when the final whistle was blown.

Final score: Thistles 2, Sunderland Albions 2.

DOES JACK BRITTON HOLD

All Interest Lost in This Division of Fight Game-Brooklyn at Last Wide Awake Gossip of Sport World. FOR SOME BOXERS

NEW YORK, May 13.—Word comes from Australia that Eddle McGoorty is going the pace. It is said that the health of the man from Oshkosh is poor and that his ring career is practically at an end. Lafe in Australia always has had a bad effect on American boxers. Billy Papke went there a champion and came back a dub. In the land of the kangaroo he grew fat and sluggish. The same thing happened to Tommy Burns, who never did anything worth while after he lost the title while in that country. Jeff Smith was better than the average middleweight until he visited the Antipodes, but he, too, left his form there. Jimmy Clabby is another who lost his pep after a visit to Australia. Ted Lewis, of England, has established himself firmly as welterweight champion of the world. Time was when the welters were the greatest sroup of fighting men that the ring ever saw. Joe Walcott, Tommy Ryan, Tommy West, Elbows McFadden, Honey Melody, Mysterious Billy Smith, and warriors of that stamp made their's a division to be shunned. Since their day, there has been but little interest in this articular class, for the simple Ted Lewis, of England, has establishin this articular class, for the simple reason that there has been no one to HENDRIE AND SEAGRAM about.

Ted Lewis, ably handled by astute Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden, came from England and announced that he would revive and claim the title. He didn't hold it long after defeating Willie Ritchie in a tenround bout. That fixed him in the minds of the critics as about the best. Then he agreed to box Jack Britton twenty rounds to a decision at New Orleans. Jack, using his left almost entirely, jabbed the Englishman unmercifully and was awarded the plum. Now that Jack has wen the title, whom can he fight save Lewis and Ritchie? There are few good boys in the class. It does seem as if Britton has wen an empty title after all reason that there has been no one to make the class a thing to be talked about.

Ted Lewis, ably handled by astute Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden, came from England and announced that he would revive and claim the title. He didn't hold it long after defeating Willie Ritchie in a tenround bout. That fixed him in the minds of the critics as about the best. Then he agreed to box Jack Britton twenty rounds to a certific to the simple reason that the simple reason that there has been no one to John McGraw is pulling out his iron-gray locks by the handful these days. The Little Napoleon is gnashing his teeth over the fact that Chief Meyers, the big Indian catcher whom he discarded, is playing the game of his life behind the bat for Brooklyn. Just why Mac ever let him go is a mystery. The Chief wound up last season in good style and standing, yet the "greatest leader of them all" sold him to the Dodgers.

leader of them all" sold him to the Dodgers.

There was a broad grin on the good Chief's face the other day at the Polo Grounds when he cleaned up with his bat and defeated his old teammates practically single-handed. He is hitting like a fury, and now poor McGraw is wondering whatever in all the world prompted him to let the Indian go.

The position of the Giants is a heartbreaker for the owners of the once great asgregation of pennant winners. When they suffered a string of eight or nine defeats in a row there was gloom.

McGraw is on pins and needles, too

He feels the disgrace of occupying the cellar more keenly than one could imagine. Mac likes to be out there some where in front. One hardly ever sees him on the coaching lines, and when that comes to pass, it is pretty evident that McGraw is sulking in his little tepee.
The men seem to be lifeless. The great blow came recently when the "old master." Matthewson, went down before the common enemy. Mac had depended on Matty to break up their streak of bad luck. So did everybody else, but it was the same old story. The other gang was hitting and the Giants swinging at the ozone. Oh, woe is the Little Napoleon!

HAS BEEN UNDER-PRAISED

Will Be Headliner for Last Ha of Week With a Comedy.

THE management of the Strand Theatre make the emphatic claim that the headliner which they are to feature for Thursday, Fri-Cay and Saturday next, is the strongest photo-drama that has ever been put on at the Strand. It is "Mortmain." a V-L-S-E. masterpiece, with Robert Edeson in the leading role. It has received tributes as remarkable as they are rare from the press everywhere. It is praised to the skies by everyone who seen it. The story is startling, unusual, powerful, emotional, weird, and at times even gruesome. But with all that, it is logical, coherent and convincing. It works up to a trement dous climax that makes the spectator hold his breath in awe. And then, in a second's time, comes a great big surprise, which compels a broad smile and His Majesty's on Monday, Tuesday and an exclamation something after this kind, "Well, what do you knoy about that?" What the surprise is, need not be here explained. It might spoil the pleasure that everyone will take in this fine picture. But, mention certainly must be made of one especially novel effect that is due to depict the sensations of undergoing an anesthetic. One sees the distorted visions of the patient. And this is an idea which it is believed has never been used in motion pictures before, and it is one which in this par-ticular, is handled so well, as to be readily and perfectly understandable. The patient sees the faces of the doctor, his assistant and the nurse, as well as the objects in the room, all out of proportion and rapidly changing interchanging as they pass thru his mind, and when he comes from out influence of the drug, they recede in the same manner. The settings are elaborate, and the ring true those depicting the doctor's country hospital being especially convincing. Of Robert Edeson himself, it is impossible to say too much, but this is his greatest screen effort and it is the Carlton Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, when Canada's popular picture star, Mary Pickwill be the stellar attraction. In The Speaking stage. He is the personification of the strong and virile type ford, will be the stellar attraction. ## William Collier Was Born Witty

And He Has Been in Training Ever Since He Was a Call Boy-Now in Movies.

WILLIAM COLLIER, the famous comedian of the speaking stage, who makes his bid for stage, who makes his bid for further honors as the star in "The No-Good Guy," the Triangle feature, has been connected with the stage in one way or another all his life. He first entered the theatre at the age of twelve years as a call boy. He found no time to read yellow backs or thrillers, his appetite in this respect being satisfied by the old style blood-and-thunder melodramas. He absorbed the atmosphere of the stage and at an early age knew all the tricks that went to make the finished actor. An opportunity presented itself and he secured a small part. This lead to others and he soon found himself playing juvenile comedy found himself playing juvenile comedy found himself playing juvenile comedy roles.

Collier was born with a ready wit and the ability to make the most of an unexpected situation. His long training on the stage aided him in this respect.

When he joined the Ince forces he read the 'script of his play carefully and then insisted on many rehearsals of the important scenes. Under the supervision of Producer Ince and with the aid of Director Walter Edwards, he developed the business that was written for the scenes, putting many additional touches of comedy.

He also was responsible for a number of the subtitles in the play, which, it is said, cause many laughs. One scene was being made in the alley leading to a basement where Collier Victor Moore, in "The Race" at the Madison. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. SAYS SARAH BERNHARDT

FOOTLIGHT FASHIONS

Where, if not on the stage, would Dame Fashion place her prettlest frocks, and who, better than the fair ladies of the footlights know how they should be worn? A glimpse into the daintily chosen wardrobe of Toronto's popular new leading lady, Miss Francis Nellson, reveals a host of wonderful frocks, and also sends one away absolutely assured that Miss Neilson has acquired that coveted art of knowing what to wear, and how to wear it, that her audiences may be pleased, and that her audiences may be pleased, and

Just the other day a Toronto woman, recognized as a "leader of fashion," was discussing the beauty of Miss Neilson's gowns and the taste displayed in their choosing. She was heard to remark, "Why, of course, she rents them. It would take a small fortune to maintain such a faultless wardrobe. Her things are exclusive, and that means expensive."

Perhaps it would interest readers to know that not an article of apparel—not a frock, not a hat, not a glove worn by Miss Neilson has come into her possession except by actual purchase.

chase.

This, of course, applies only to modern plays, for from time immortal the management has furnished the apparel for costume plays, or plays of a period in which modern dress could not be worn. Indeed, if it were not for these occasional weeks when the actress is relieved from any expense for clothes she would either go into bankruptcy, or the managers of an enterprise walld have to materially increase her salary.

A few shows will be found from time to time where, as a slavey or other humble personage, the clothes item will be minimized, but this will hardly the hospitality of Europe's famous establishments.

Then, too, little of an actress' effects can be worn a second time in the same city, as critical observers are sure to recognize and comment upon the play in which they were formerly used. The same thing applies to hats and, to a limited extent, to lingerie, gloves and other articles of feminine adornment.

Miss Neilson, who will display many lovely costumes during the season, has been pronounced one of the best dressed women on the American stage, not only in the great variety of gowns she wears, but in her artistic manner of wearing them, "Altho I do not believe good clothes will completely hide mediocre ability," said Miss Neilson the other day, "I always have been of the opinion that they cover a multitude of histrionic sins. Not only women, but men likewise, want to see women on the stage well dressed in the latest modes. Carelessness is an unpardonable sin in anything, and it becomes painfully apparent in the matter of one's appearance on the stage.

"So far my parts have not permitted the wearing of any of my prettier frocks, and even in "The Widow By Proxy." I am a humble personage at the besinning. But I wear a very attractive white satin evening gown in the last act, and then, later on, Toronto will see some of my better costumes chosen especially for my work in this delightful city."

CAN YOU CLIP HIS SILHOUETTE FROM PAPER TO WEAR ON YOUR CHEEK AS "BEAUTY SPOT"? John Miltern of "The Heart of Wetona" Cast Has Learned

Reina Caruthers, the Charming Ingenue of the Robins Players, Is an Enthusiastic Advocate of This Latest Fad, and Is Quite Expert at it, Too.

THE feminine fad causins a revival of the historical "beauty spot" means more than merely sticking on a round, star-shaped or square spot of black courtplaster to Reina Caruthers, the charming ingenue of the Robins Players, who will be seen in "Widow By Proxy" at the Alexandra Theatre, commencing Monday night. Miss Caruthers from the "beauty spot" has evolved a fad with a little real art in it. The use of this fad bids fair to become more or less general among talented women who can do what Miss Caruthers does—"and get away with it."

Here it is: Miss Caruthers cuts out in black silhouette the outline of a human face. This she wears on her face or breast as a "beauty patch." The effect, as may be fancied, is striking—and may mean more than a meer patch of black to bring out the color of fair skin. But it has other uses more practical. For example, Miss Caruthers is asked to dine with an admiring male friend. She has become so expert at the art of clipping out likanesses that after a good leak at her likanesses that a little more interesting and leap-year functions.

"Now let us continue the custom, only make it a little more interesting and intricate. After the face of each young woman and man is cut out of black paper (which can be secured at almost any stationer's) duplicate them in miniature silhouettes about a quarter-inch wide or deep. The young woman state her like more interesting and intricate. After the face of each young woman and man is cut out of black paper (which can be secured at almost any stationer's) duplicate them in miniature silhouettes about a qua miring male friend. She has become so expert at the art of clipping out likenesses that after a good look at her friend's face, she returns to her quarters and quickly nips out his face from an ordinary black courtplaster. This shadow-drawing remains on the actress' dressing table until she dresses for the dinner or dance. Then it is 'tuck on where it most becomes the gown or hair dressing—on the check, if the "he" is in slight favor, or in greater is the interest, it is placed down nearer the heart—a custom still in vogue in Latin lands. Now Miss Caruthers has applied it to the modernized "beauty patch."

Imiators need not think that there

Imiators need not think that there is little to learn in cutting out one of these silhouettes. It is difficult. For the man-friend must recognize himself when he sees the patch across the dinner table or during the movements of the one-step. Miss Caruthers is as pat at it as the street fakers who will cut one's silhouette for a dime as you lead. one's silhouette for a dime as you look on wonderingly—more clever in fact, for she cannot do the work when the subject is looking on. She carries the profile in her mind until she can put it down, or rather cut it out on paper. The finished cutting is from a quarter to a half-inch deep. It may be smaller. Miss Caruthers is quite as exact at this interesting work as were those centuries ago who invented the silhouette as a primitive form of registering exact likenesses. In those days one's silhouette for a dime as you look houette as a primitive form of registering exact likenesses. In those days the work was done in a mechanical manner. The subject would sit in a chair so that his or her profile was reflected on a sheet of still velum held in a frame. On the oposite side of the frame sat the artist, whose work was not as difficult as that of a modern house painter. The reflected profile was traced in carbon, and the face filled in in dead black. That was the way silhouettes were made ages ago. way silhouettes were made ages ago, much more easily than the modern way as championed by Miss Caruthers.

The fad has been the cause of much comic amusement as well. The "mere man" who is thus flattered by seeins man" who is thus flattered by seeins his face pasted on a fairer one is frequently quite astonished at viewing his facial skyline in such an extraordinary location. If the victim has tangled or untrained hair or wears those thick-rimmed glasses the cutting out is most difficult—but the result hits the mark to a T. The beauty-silhouette thus sometimes become silhouette thus sometimes become

Alexandra "Widow by Proxy"

THE Robins Players will enter Monday night upon their third week of unabated prosperity at Alexandra Theatre. For the past two weeks there has been no diminution in the box office takings. The theatre has been filled to its capacity ing, and with the farcical riot, "Widow By Proxy," announced as the third other record breaking week. It i easy to guess from the title that there s plenty of scope for humor in Widow By Proxy. The story conerns Gloria Grey, a daring and fasinating young woman, who has unently widowed. After many intricacies in trying to make both ends meet the friend—Dolores Pennington—is informed that if she will call on her late husband's relatives, there is a likelihood of a large legacy coming to her. But these relatives, typical down-east spinsters, whose cogitation is "pride of ancestry" refused to speak to her while her hubsand was alive, abusing her and professing her marriage her mesalliance. Under the circumstances she refuses to obey their wishes, even to relieve her distress. Then the delightful Gloria, against the wishes of her friend, endeavors to get the legacy for her, and visits Pennington Mannor, posing as the widow; her friend assuming Gloria's name and going with her. Here the fun commences. The supposed widow turns the tables on the aunts and is gladly welcomed, after informing them of her many titled relatives, who exist in her eles in trying to make both ends mee

"Talk, Talk, Talk"

THE NEW musical comedy entitled "Talk, Talk," which was presented once this season, and recommended by the press and public as teing the equal of many of the so-called New York successes, will be the offering at the Grand Opera House all this week, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. The piece is filled with tuneful melodies, clever lines and bright, wholesome comedy, and is handscmely costumed and artistically mounted. The company with few exceptions will be exactly the same as appeared in the production earlier in the season, and as a consequence the comedy should run as smoothly as if it had been playing continuously all the year. The story of the piece hinges upon the adventures tinuously all the year. The story of the piece hinges upon the adventures of a party of young women, winners of a newspaper's beauty contest, on their trip thru the west. A train wreck, hold-up by bandits, clever confidence schemes interpolated with bright musical numbers, rendered by a splendid chorus, snappy comedy and humorous situations make it a production that one can thoroly enjoy. Charles H. Downey, the master of tongue-twisting phrases, will be right at home in the role of the get-rich-quick American, while Marguerite Walsh in the role of the Cockney chaperon, is so well while Marguerite Walsh in the role of the Cockney chaperon, is so well known for her clever impersonation that a first class performance is assured. Those who heard the many pretty song hits on the first presentation of the comedy will want to hear on "The Dio Grande," and the "Hoot Owl," both being decided hits, and in themselves sufficient to make a reputation for the ordinary musical production. Several big military parties are being arranged during the week, and as all the principals and members of the company have hosts of friends here, capacity business is looked for at every performance, and especially at the matinees on Wednesday and Saturday, when the prices have been fixed at a popular scale, fifty and twenty-five cents, and can be reserved in advance.

A BIG all-star show of eight fea-ture acts will be presented on the program at Loew's Yonge Street Theatre the coming week. Every act on the bill has been carefully se-breezy little play from the south entitled "The Southern Porch Party," which makes its appearance at the Hippodrome next week as the headling act, and which individuality gives one a deeper insight into the life of the south. As the title would indicate, the south. As the title would indicate, the south. As the massive-pillared porch of an old colonial mansion in Virginia, and the scenic effect which it produces is wonderful. There are six girls in the act, dressed in crinolines, and the haunting melodics of the south which they sing and play are characteristic of the plantations, Dainty Norma Hopkins plays the violin beautifully, and the other girls whose charm as is to the decided success of breezy little play from the south en-this play are talented. That the production is one of R. Dwight Pepple's is in itself a guarantee.

In another respect the Hippodrome management has been fortunate, and that is in the announcement that a Red Feather play, "A Fortune of Youth," has been secured for the week. This fascinating drama introduces the popular Broadway stars, Carter De Haven and Flora Parker De Haven, in an up-to-the-minute college and society drama, abounding with love, thrills, detectives, and an intrigue for millions. It is a happy, sparkling drama of the screen, and one which iew lovers of the mayies can afford to miss. The work is by the well known producer, Otis Turner, and those who have seen the play declare that it is

The act is composed of two poople, a tall, remarkably graceful young man, and a little slip of a girl. They offer three dances, all sensations, finishing with a dance-originated oy themselves, in which the male member of the duo throws his little partner all tower the stage, apparently. The act sets its name from the color scheme of it the costumes, which is gray end old rose through It is bound to be a big hit at Loew's.

Smith and Kaufman, two clever comedians, will offer a laugh-provoking skit entitled "A Midnight Occurence." Songs and fun make up the body of the act. Arthur Rigby, the original blackface comedian, who is constantly changing his comedy and material to be up-to-date, will offer his latest monologue and talk on topics of the day. "Bits of Life" is a unique comedy and dancing offering, and Louis Stone, the well known "upsid down dancer," who has appeared in the production is a score of novel-drawing card.

The management has been obliged to open the Winter Garden in view of the great demand for seats. Every body wants to see the "Floorwalker."

License Exchange Has Passed-Victory Crowns O.M.L. Campaign!

LICENSE EXCHANGE HAS BEEN GRANTED

N Wednesday afternoon the cabinet approved the bill providing for free interchange in automobile licenses with the State of Michigan, Thursday morning it adopted a similar reciprocal agreement with the State of New York, which, by reason of the empire State's arrangements with the other States of the union, means that Ontario effects will be honored through the United States, conversely, of course, American licenses will be honored in

The agreement stipulates a limit of twenty-one consecutive days for American motorists touring in this province without taking out Ontario licenses. No time limit has been placed on the duration of Ontario motorists' sojourn in New York State. Ontario license markers will be honored there on the same basis as the New York State license plates.

License exchange is the most signal concession ever made to the motorists of this province. It is an asset the value of which can scarcely be overestimated. Much of the credit for the success of the license exchange issue is due to the relentless campaign conducted for years by the Ontario Motor League.

Tens of thousands of American motorists will invade Ontarioswelling by millions the already great revenue derived from tourists. In license exchange, the government has made an investment that will pay enormous dividends to the province.

License exchange will come into effect in the very near future. To suitably commemorate this new international arrangement—an arrangement that will eventually profoundly affect the social and economic relations subsisting between the two major nations of the west-ern hemisphere—the Ontario Motor League is arranging celebrations at the Falls for the day that license exchange will come into effect.

Prominent members of the Governments of Ontario and New York State have been invited to take part in the formal inauguration. Representatives of the many motor clubs and associations of state and province will be present.

What would you do?
There is, one answer for both these

Tou would go to jail.

Therefore, regardless of how careless the pedestrian is mostly at fault." trian may be, the damaging power is entirely on the oneside, and the police department has taken the position that the man with power in his hands is by the fact charged with responsibility to control it against doing damage.

"This is, I believe, a police department attitude that is now in the regulation of traffic in this country. It is a complete reversal of the 'Courtesy First' plan. Detroit motorists had plenty of opportunity to take advan-tage of that idea. It was a splendid proposal. Automobile clubs and police departments thruout the country took it up, and in some cities its success was instantaneous. Motorists here took "Immediate prosecution of any automobile driver that injures a pedestrian, the police department's charge before the court to be that the motorist is guilty of carelessness in the use of a power in his hands that the in-jured pedestrian had no control over or protection against other than what the courts give him."

One of the surprising factors of this new police department position is that the action is to be taken regardless of the speed at which the automobile may be moving that mixes with an ac-cident. Speed regulations, whether ob-served or violated, are to have little bearing on the prosecution, except to make the action more than ordinarily certain of results in the court, pos-sibly, when ordinance violations are confounded with the injuring of pedes-

"For instance," Commissioner Gillespie argued, "what difference does it make what speed a motorist may be using if he strikes down a child in the street? Children are likely at any minute to dart out from back of a tree or a vehicle parked at the curb, and they come into the path of an approaching automobile with a swiftness that to the motorist is almost lightning-like.

"Only a few weeks ago a driver struck a child playing in the street and he swore that, while he was looking straight ahead into the road, he had no inkling whatever of the victim of his wheels until he heard the child scream.

"Furthermore-and this is the nub of the whole thing as far as children are concerned-the police department does not number among its duties to the taxpayer the obligation of impressing children with responsibility. That is not a part of our work at all. Thereis not a part of our work at all, Therefore, in the eyes of the police department, the child is entirely and wholly without responsibility toward the driver of a motor car. The net result of this attitude is, consequently, that the driver must shoulder all the responsibility, and whether the is willing or not the police department with the contract the police department. or not the police department purposes hereafter to follow steps that will

They have a right to a free use of the streets and the motorist must hereafter watch out for them. He must watch out for them all the time, with the idea in his mind that so far as the police department is involved these people do not have to watch out for

Some Points Novice Should Consider in Selecting a Car

The Question of Cost-Initial and Maintenance-Should Be Measured by Means-Capacity, Power, Type Determined by Service Required.

Buying a car is usually a compromise between a man's pocketbook and his ideal. Nearly always the ideal is wrong and the pocketbook right for reasons which a little thought will render obvious. In other words, if a man makes a clean sweep of his bank roll in buying a car and has his eyes shut to the other factors in making a purchase, the chances are that he will make a mistake that will be more costly than the first payment.

There is a logical method to follow in selecting a car and one that will eliminate the chances of securing a vehicle which will either: First, cost too much in the first place; second, cost too much to run, or third, prove to be generally unsuitable for the purposes to which it is to be put.

The proper car for a man with an income of $2500 per annum and seven children is not the same as that for the single youth with a $10,000 allowance, with no one to support but a buildog.

must Collect Data.

Before ever venturing into the lair of the persuasive salesman your armament must be prepared. In the quiet of your own domicile sit down with a pencil and paper and collect your thoughts by concentrating on the following:

1. How much can I reasonably afford to spend for a car?

2. How much can I afford to spend for its maintenance?

These are the first two factors. After the germ of car-desire has bitten the prospective purchaser, he will not lack for reasons as to why he should have a car. The reasons that spring up, however, should be shelved until these two questions are answered definitely.

Growth

The tremendous growth enjoyed by the Saxon Motor Car Company in its two years of operation, is the most fitting tri-bute to the RIGHTNESS OF THE CAR. At no time has it been a question of passive acceptance on the part of the buying public. It has been a KEEN, VIGOROUS DEMAND—a demand which has required a continuous increase in the manufacturing facilities to their present capacity, which is still inadequate.

February 23, 1914, the FIRST Saxon was shipped from the factory. February 23, 1916, 127 were shipped and TODAY we are shipping approximately 170.

"Topsy," in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," when questioned regarding her origin and up-bringing confessed, "I just growed;" a statement undoubtedly sufficient to explain many organizations, but NOT the Saxon. It has a definite ideal towards which it is working—the ability to manufacture the BEST AUTOMO-BILE FOR THE LEAST MONEY—and since its inception every energy of the entire organization has been directed towards this ultimate end.

It has not been a haphazard growth. It has been careful construction, under the guiding hand of Mr. Harry Ford, on the original foundation laid by him in 1914. Are we accomplishing our ideal?

We believe we are approaching it.

Today we offer an automobile containing more standard, RECOGNIZED PARTS than any other car under $2000 parts that are admittedly of the finest material. The Saxon will operate as cheaply as any car made and will perform with the ease and simplicity which only the MASTER MOTOR can ac-

The United States Geological Survey estimates that in Colorado alone there is sufficient shale, in beds three feet or more thick, to yield 20,000,000,000 barrels of grasoline may be extracted by ordinary refining processes.

Little attention has been paid to this shale because the quantity of petroleum produced from wells in the United States has been sufficient to satisfy all demands, but for more than fifty years the oil shale industry of Scotland has been a very important one. In a recent year more than 8000 men were employed in the industry in that country, yet the average yield of oil per ton of shale was much less than that which appears possible from the shale of Colorado and Utah.

The area that has been studied by the Geological Survey comprises the Geological Survey comprises Northwestern Colorado, Northeastern Ltah, and Southwestern Wyoming. The shale found there contains materials which, when heated, may be converted into crude oil, gas, and ammonia. Sooner or later this great source of supply will be utilized to supplement the decreasing production from the regular oil fields.

CALIFORNIA RECORD

"Ted" Beaudet Betters Record in Run From Los Angeles to Bakersfield and Return in "Eight."

BY RALPH S. COLE.

Absolute mastery of his car under all conditions, more than mere power of motor, recently enabled "Ted" Beaudet to set a new Los Angeles-Bakersfield record and one which in the opinion of men familiar with road racing and road driving will stand long unbroken. Driving as Cadillac Eight, Baudet left Los Angeles at 5.30 a.m. and pulled up in Bakersfield just 2 hours and 49 minutes later, covering the 137 miles between the two cities in faster time than ever a motorcar had traveled that road before.

Not satisfied with "getting" the one way record, Beaudet swung his car around and headed back for Los Angeles, bringing his dust-covered machine to a halt at 11.10 a.m. in front of the Lankershim hotel, from which he had started on the run 5 hours and 50 minutes before. In hanging up the new mark, Beaudet smashed the record of a much higher powered car than the Cadillac, demonstrating beyond any doubt that the sturdy "eight" is the equal of any of them in speed and staying power.

Accompanied by John Clayton and Ralph S. Cole, automobile editor of The Morning Tribune and Evening Express as observers, and O. M. Connor. his mechanician, "Ted" was sent away from the Lankershim hotel in a dense fog, which rendered the pavement extremely slippery and dangerous. Beaudet was checked out on the start of his run by Harvey E. Westgate and T. R. Jackson, night clark of the Lankershim.

Two hours and 49 minutes had been consumed in the run to Bakersfield and the return trip was just two minutes longer, owing to slight delays caused by more congested conditions of traffic when nearing Los Angeles.

The record broken by Beaudet was "hung up" only a few days previous by Louis Nikrent who, at the wheel of a twelve-cylinder car, negotiated the run to Bakersfield in 5 hours and 14 minutes, and the round trip in a little over seven hours. Nikrent's performance caused widespread comment, and it was helieved that his record.

"The Car for Women," began the advertisement, adding:

"Why stay in the house when in this car you may glide quickly and comfortably out into the wenderful parks, the attractive boulevards, along country lanes, to old-fashioned homesteads for luncheon, to social gatherings and to places on errands of mercy?" BY GROVER F. SEXTON.

THE trouble with women—if the situation troubles anyone more than women themselves—is not, as the anti-votes-for-women brisade would have us think, that they get away from the home too much.

I have the authority of a physician of deep insight that the trouble with them is that they are home too much. This physician adds that there is no recorded time in history when so large a percentage of the women who come to maturity are beautiful in face and figure as at the present time. He soes further to say that never, also, has this beauty faded and required so much artificial stimulation as now.

That answers the eternal question, "Can a woman run a car?"

Because she can. She is a better driver than a man, excepting those who are hysterical and undependable in other matters—a small minority to be sure. And she ought. There is no reaso why, under the present installmen sales basis, every woman whose fam

Car Successfully Navigates Thirty Odd Miles of Flooded San Diego Valley Without a Hitch.

"Wherever the road leads the Saxon 'Six' will go," is the slogan of Howard B. Smith, Saxon dealer at San Diego, Cal. Smith adopted this after the floods in the San Diego valley.

While the inundation did not strike San Diego City, it swept over the back part of the country forming a lake many miles wide. In the Tijuana Valley a little brook was transformed into a torrent that swept over its banks, demolished everything along it and covered a big territory.

It washed out a new race track ored a big territory.

It washed out a new race track and many bridges. The little village of Tijuana, just across the Mexican line, was isolated by the flood and when the water receded there was a large plain of mud and quicksand. To bridge this temporary structures were erected.

Because of the hurry and scarcity of lumber the bridges were constructed in the form of two troughs, wheel width apart. The middle was open. Little attempt was made to level the bridges so that they were up and down like a roller coaster.

Smith took his Saxon 'Six' over these bridges and thru $1 miles of mud without a hitch. During the muddy run, the car was in the mire up to the hubs. And California mud is noted for its stickiness.

There wasn't a single delay, however, in the progress of the Saxon. Smith had no trouble in driving and he says that at no time was there even a question as to the Saxon's ability to buck the mud.

Canadian Sales Manager of the Studebaker Points Out How Good Roads Enhance Property Values.

place to place comfortably, safely and on time.

Good roads mean much more, however, than an opportunity to get out on tours from the health-giving and pleasure standpoints. Good roads are closely bound up with progress and prosperity. They promote the more widespread use of automobiles, and statistics prove that automobiles and prosperity always go together.

It is fair to say that good roads benefit everybody; the city people, those who live in towns, and those who live on farms. Of course, the fast-growing use of motor cars has been the biggest single influence in awakening this country to the fact that money expended in good roads extensions and improvements is money well spent.

We can all remember how only a few years ago city people paid little attention to good roads, and how farmers were even opposed to the expenditure of funds for the betterment of highways. That, of course, was before automobiles came into such widespread usage; in the days when motor cars were considered an extravagance and, in fact, were generally owned only by people of wealth.

Good roads and the automobile have taken people out into the country. They have banished forever the isolation and monotony of farm life. They have increased health and prolonged life.

Leadership

EADERSHIP, after all, gravitates to the fittest. And Service must ever be the measure of that fitness. When a man ceases to serve his community, his fellow-men, his value is lost. So it is with motor care.

In one of several automobile classes the Maxwell aims and always has aimed to give that full measure of service which shall proclaim it a leader. Every effort of our organization has been toward that end.

Economy, Efficiency, beauty and comfort-these are the qualities dignified by an inbuilt honor, to which Maxwell service is sequel. And these are the qualities that have set the Maxwell apart, and, in its class, marked it with the seal of distinction.

Maxwell Motor Cars are honest, worthy products. They are made by folks who have not attained absolute perfection, but who strive earnestly to maintain the eminence and good will they have earned.

ing the core to be demagnetized more rapidly and the current in the secondary circuit to be higher in pressure closely with this system for the following reasons: It takes an appreciable time for the high-tension current to build up in the coil and another very short interval of time for the charge to ignite the mixture thoroly. This hast length of time is called combustion lag. Now the charge should be exploded the instant the piston passes the dead centre, and the contact-maker must be set to break a triflubefore the corresponding point on the path of the cam to effect this. As the speed rises, time to effect the full ignition of the charge must be gained, and this is done by haying the break made still earlier, by advancing the time of break and swinging the casing back over the path of the cam. This is advancing the spark, while a movement in the reverse direction is retarding it.

Regulation of Points.

For battory ignition, the points or electrodes should be from 1|32 to 1|50 of an inch apart, while for magneto ignition the gap must not exceed 1|50 of an inch apart, while for magneto ignition the gap must not exceed 1|50 of an inch apart, while for magneto ignition the gap must not exceed 1|50 of an inch apart, while for magneto ignition the gap must not exceed 1|50 of an inch apart, while for magneto spark plug. When the points are too far apart they can be brought together by the careful use of the pliers; when too close together they can be separated by the blade of a pocket knire. A gauge for seting the plug points can be obtained from the makers of most magnetos and should be used. Rough measurement of the gap can be made with a thick business card in default of a scale, etc.

Cleaning Spark Plug.

In cleaning the points of a plug, use an old tooth-brush dipped in gasoline, rather than a file or emery cloth. Where cleansing is necessary, and the above is not at hand, use the striking ing the core to be demagnetized more rapidly and the current in the secondary circuit to be higher in pressure (voltage).

The same phenomenon mentioned in the paragraph on the coil will manifest itself if a horseshoe or other magnet is brought close to and then withdrawn from the core of the coil. The action is the same if the coil is revolved inside the ends or poles of a horse-shoe magnet, or between the field windings of a dynamo machine.

Ignition Systems Used.

Two systems are in use for igniting the charge in the cylinder: The battery and the magneto. In the battery system, dry cells are used as the source of current, two or three being employed in connection with a coil built up as in the preceding paragraphs. The break in the primary circuit is made mechanically by a make-and-break or contact-maker, driven from the motor, while the gap in the secondary circuit is represented by the points of a spark plug. In the magneto system, the coil is mounted on the rotating portion or armature and revolves between the poles of a horseshoe magnet. A contact-maker electrically connected to the primary circuit revolves with the armature, and the break is made by the end of a lever striking a cam on the stationary portion of the machine. A spark plug is used as in the battery system.

In both these systems, one side of the primary and secondary circuits is represented by the motor and the frame, so that the circuits are what are known as grounded circuits. Thus, the wire from one cell of the battery is grounded on the frame while the other leads to the coil. The other side of the coil primary circuit is also grounded on the motor or frame. One secondary lead goes from the coil to the spark plug and the other is grounded on the frame and motor are dry; cast iron and steel (the metals used) being excellent conductors of electricity.

Spark Positions.

The spark should occur at the propor time as explained in the preceding paragraphs, but if too far advanced, pre-ignition with over-heating or disabling of the motor may result. The knocking due to this condition is resular and continuous, and can be romedied by retarding the spark until the tapping noise ceases. With the spark too far retarded, overheating results. Advance the spark until the spork too far retarded, overheating results. Advance the spark until the knock ceases. needly; cast iron and steel (the metals used) being excellent conductors of electricity.

Dry Battery Construction.

The dry batery or cell is constructed as follows: A deep zinc cup is lined with several layers of plotting paper moistened with sal-ammoniac (chloride of ammonia). In the centre is a carbon rod, and the top of the cup is sealed with pitch to prevent leakage and evaporation. A binding post for holding the wire is attached to the outside of the zinc cup and to the projecting wedge end of the centre carbon rod. When ready for service, each cell should show 1.5 volts and 20 to 30 amperes A cardi oard casing is put over each cell to protect it. The cells employed on motorcycles are, as a rule, two inches in diameter and six inches long.

Contact Maker.

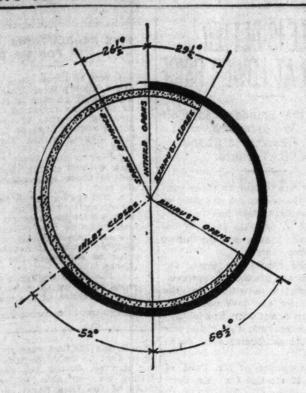

The make and break or contact-maker and the other usually consists of a flat spring The make and break or contact-maker usually consists of a flat spring blade with a lug on it and carrying a platinum point at one end. It is pivoted at the other and the lug is acted on by maker usually consists of a flat spring blade with a lug on it and carrying a platinum point at one end. It is pivoted at the other and the lug is acted on by a cam driven from the motor so as to lift the blade at the proper instant to break the primary expensive to the collector, which is connected to the spark plus by a cable brush or rod, the collector, which is connected to the spark plug by a cable. The end of the primary that goes to the contact-maker leads to an insulated piece thereon, and this piece carries a platinum point as in the case of the hattery contact-maker. The other platinum point is carried on the end of a rocker pivoted to a plate which revolves with the armature and whose other end is acted on by cam surfaces formed in a casing which surrounds the whole contact-making device. This casing is movable and is employed in timing the spark.

The principle on which a magneto operates is to convert mechanical energy into electrical energy. When the armature with its windings is in a horizontal position, with its heads closs to the poles, magnetism passes thru it Irreak the primary circuit to the coil. The casing, which caries the contact-maker, has a stationary platinum point and can be rotated by means of the spark connections from the grip. The instant of break must be adjusted very the armature with its windings is in a liorizontal position, with its heads close to the poles, magnetism passes thru it from the (X) to the (—) pole. The flow continues until the armature has rotated so that its heads are just passing out of the proximity of the poles, and the magnetic path is being broken. At this point magnetism is rapidly being discharged from the armature, and electrical pressure is suddenly generated in the windings. The current is at its maximum, and the platinum points are then separated mechanically. The result is a rush of high-tension current from the slip-ring to the collector and spark plug, the circuit being completed after the spark has imped the gap, over the motor and crank case back thru the body of the magneto. As long as the points are separated, the flow continues, decreasing in intensity as the armature nears the horizontal position again. The mechanical separation is effected by the cam-surfaces as it rotates with the armature. On a magneto for a single colleger motor, but one cam-surface is armature. On a magneto for a single cylinder motor, but one cam-surface is used; on me for a twin, two are used; while for a four-cylinder motor the cable from the collector goes to a discable from the collector goes to a distributing device driven by the magneto, which sends the current to the plugs in their proper order. On a single cylinder magneto, one brass contact-piece is fitted on the slip-ring and but one collector is used; on that for a twin, two pieces and collectors are need, and there are two cam surare used, and there are two cam surfaces on the contact-maker casing.

Timing Marks. If what has just been stated be remembered, a wrong connection of cables on a twir will be readily detected. Each make of magneto has special directions for setting or tining, and these should be followed when this operation is necessary. Most machines have the driving gears marked to perhave the driving gears marked to permit this to be done easily, but gears often get misplaced and the marks are then of no use. When only one cylinder of a twin fires, a turn of the armature thru 180 degs. will often remedy the trouble at once, when previously the apark for number 1 cylinder went to number 2 plus, etc.—The der went to number 2 plug, etc.—The Motorcycle Manual.

The Powerplus. A diagram of the valve timing on the 1916 Indian Powerplus is shown here, and a careful study will soon give the average rider an idea of the give the average rider an idea of the workings of this popular motor. A motor like a human being requires a little attention, and if the rider would spend a few minutes each day and look over his machine, he would be more than repaid for the trouble. The new Indian Powerplus made its first appearance in 1916, and the performance of this machine to date would indicate that the engineering staff of the Hendee Mnfg. Co. have spared no expense in perfecting this motor. Valvatiming is something all riders should timing is something all riders should understand, and a few minutes spent understand, and a few minutes spent on the diagram shown here will some day come useful. You will note the inlet valve opens on upper dead centre or just as the piston is about to decend. The piston decends and creates a vacuum (vacuum, space void of air). A mixture of gas and air fills this space. This is called the "induction" stroke; the piston begins to ascend

"When dealing with hish pressures and temperatures, such as prevail in engines with a large power-size ratio, nine-tenths of the trouble is due to heat. Now, the parts from which we want to remove heat with the greatest possible rapidity are the valves and the pistons. The success of the aluminium piston in racing is explained by the fact that its head keeps cooler than that of an iron or steel piston. The walls of the aluminium piston may be actually hotter, but the better conductivity enables the maximum temperature at any part of the engine to be kept within bounds. So with the aluminium cylinder, the temperature of the water should be the same as with iron castings, but the difference in temperature of the parts exposed to greatest heat, which are the valves and smaller liability for trouble.

We Cannot Describe the Beauty of the Chummy Clover Leaf Chandler Roadster

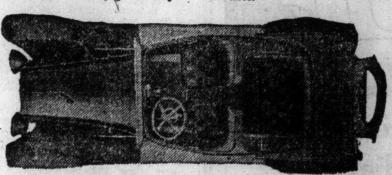

F you have seen the new Chandler Roadster you understand why we do not attempt to describe it. If you have not seen it come in today and get a new idea of motor car beauty.

This new roadster is the most beautiful car of the year. There can hardly be any argument as to that. Someone having reason to be biased might dispute this, but you are unprejudiced-you will look with open mind for grace of line and beauty of finish—and you will agree with what countless thousands at the automobile shows have said very positively.

They have said the Chandler is the most beautiful car of the year. So come in and see.

There is an air of smartness and distinction about this roadster that is rare. The graceful symmetrical lines remind one of a swift power boat. And that impression is heightened by the view of the body from the inside. The commodious seats, the unusual depth of the body, the softly moulded curves all suggest the trim, tidy speedcraft. We believe this will prove one of the most popular Chandler models.

Come see the Chandler. You will be delighted with the style of the car and you know now that you can depend on it mechanically-depend on it for all the power, speed, flexible control and day-in-and-day-out service that you could ask for in a car at any price.

For the Chandler chassis, distinguished by the Marvelous

Chandler Motor, has been proven right through three years of service in the hands of thousands of owners. It is free from any hint of experimentation, free from any hint of untried theory

In spite of higher prices of all materials entering into it, the Chandler is still noted for high quality construction throughou and the finest equipment. Seven-Passenger Touring Car ..... $1825

One enterprising firm in Toronto has mapped out a course up and down and around the mazes of Rosedale. Every around the mazes of Rosedale. Every test you could think of comes sooner or later, and at the right time you know the mechanical reason in plain everyday English why the car takes them so easily. You soon realize why Death and Watson, Limited like 1200 other dealers all over America, have pinned their faith to the aristocratic Grant Six. By the time you have reached the top of the long Avenue Road Hill climb on high gear you realize why the invitation, "Come for a Spin," is so cheerfully extended. For here is a Six that will do your bidding always, altho it costs only $1115 delivered in Toronto.

It would not pay to haul the produce from farms twelve or fifteen miles from market with horses, because two teams and two men would be needed, but one man with one motor truck could do all the hauling for a farm even further from market. Thus the truck will eventually bring great western areas of rich, virgin soil, under cultivation, and thereby increase the freight traffic of the railroads.

Nearly nine-tenths of all roads in the country are unimproved earth roads. If these are properly dragged in the spring and fall, as required by law in lowa, they will be fairly serviceable for light motor trucks during a large part of the year; and if they are properly drained and graveled, at a cost of $1000 to $1000 per mile, they will be good all the year pround, even for trucks of three to five tons capacity.

all the year ground, even for trucks of three to five tons capacity.

The main market roads carrying a large volume of traffic require stronger and more durable construction. Gravel and macadam quickly go to pieces under much motor traffic. The most suitable and economical surfacing for such roads is concrete, which can be laid at a cost of about one-half more than good macadam, and will last indefinitely under the heaviest traffic by teams and motor trucks.

MAKING A GALLON OF GASOLINE GO FARTHER; STRICTER EFFICIENCY

As gasoline goes up the amount of gasoline required per mile for an automobile goes down. Along with the search for a substitute fuel, which will be prosecuted with redoubled energy if the high price of gasoline continues, automobile engineers are working to get a greater mileage out of a gallon of gasoline. There are several approaches to this problem. One is to lighten the weight of the car. On this subject Herbert Chase, chief engineer of the Automobile Club of America, states:

"Decrease in weight with a view to decreasing operating cost has been given much attention. This has been accomplished by eliminating unnecessary parts, simplifying other parts, cutting out metals, wherever changes of design would admit by the use of lighter metals, notably aluminium alloys. This has made it possible to use smaller tires and less raw materials in other parts, and has not only contributed to the decrease in cost, but has otherwise contributed to the value of the car to the user, for the reason that the operating cost of a car is roughly proportional to its weight, which is simply another way of saying that the lighter car is the more economical to operate.

"The use of fewer parts has been mentioned above as one of the factors contributing to decreased cost. This simplification is not only evident in the casting of the cylinders, manifolds, and upper half of the crank case in one piece, but is seen also in a considerable reduction in the number of small parts, such, for example, as control connections, and bolts for fastening together parts now made all in one place."

"The Standard of Value and Quality"

When you see this familiar phrase, remember that it is much more than a mere advertising expedient. Paige cars are actually and literally standard of the moderate price field—and they have achieved this distinction through the basic value and quality of the product.

There is no secret about quality manufacturing. Good materials, good workmanship and good facilities are essential to the production of any good car. It is only necessary to remember that there can be no compromise so far as any of these elements are concerned.

A brief inspection of the Paige Fairfield "Six-46" will make this point clear. You, then, will also understand why this car has been so universally adopted by people of good taste and refinement.

STRANSKY FORCED TO CAPITULATE

Orchestral Forces Put to Flight

Studies Toronto Conservatory of Music by Squad of Squalling Babies.

Whenever Josef Stransky and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra enter a city, the inhabitants thereof immediately throw up their hands and capitulate unconditionally. At least this has been so all over Canada and the United States. But some way, lately, the war spirit seems to have penetrated into our very homes and into the very cradles of our babies. At any rate when Stransky and his forces attempted to take a town out west "somewhere," the babies manned the trenches and forced them to retreat. A Kansas reporter tells the temperamental conductor's harrowing story in these words:

Theodore Chaliapine, Russia's famous basso, has just celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his debut on the opera stage. It was in December, 1890, at the City of Ufa, that the chief basso refused to sing the role assigned him. The part was then offered to Chaliapine, He embraced the opportunity and ever since has been the leading operatic basso of all the Russias. The opera was "Halka."

Airy-Fairy Wedding Frocks Hail From Paris for the Military Bride

PICTURESQUE BRIDAL COSTUMES ENJOY DAME FASHION'S FAVOR ON BRIDE'S ACCESSORIES SMART FOR SUM

June Will Be a Record Month for Weddings, and all the Weddings Will Be Military, so the Bride and Her Attendants Will Be Dressed a la Militaire.

THOEVER thought that the happy little girl of yester year would grow up and marry soldier? True, she witnessed the activities of her young ther and his friends when they beseiged strongholds in the neighboring back gardens, and was even permitted on rare occasions, to act the role of Red Cross nurse; but, did she ever once dream that on one sunshiney day in June she would pass smiling and happy beneath an arch of gleaming sword points at the side of a real soldier-husband? All hail the military weddings, and good luck to the groom in khaki! These are amazing times, and even haughty Dame Fashion acknowledges the overpowering influence of the military age. By various little courtesies does she show it, such as tying the bridesmaid's bouquet such as tying the bridesmaid's budgets with streamers of red, white and blue, or permitting the radiant bride to carry an officer's tail handled cane with her "going away" costume of navy silk.

Everything to do with the 1916 Juna brido is swagger and chic, from the wary topmost curl 'neath her wisp-like veil to the point of her satin-shod toe. There is something unusually swagger about the charming watteau train, and there is something astonishingly chic about the billowy, short white skirt.

"Who aver heard of an eight-inch-off-the-ground-skirt and a watteau train," cry a score of cynically inclined beings? "We did," promptly replied the French couturiers, and the dissenting voices cease. Curtain it is, that nothing has been spared to make that nothing has been spared to make the military wedding a success from every visw-point. "Picturesque" is the word which most adequately describes the bride's costumue.

A Typical Costume.

Representative of the very daintiest and most alluring designs for the wedding robe is the demure frock in wedding robe is the demure frock in the accompanying illustration. The happy little lady wears a typically military costume, ultra-fashionable as to short skirt, narrow, straight-edged train, and generous all-enveloping voil. The foundation of the frock in soft white satin, but who would know it? Embroidered from shoulder to hem now lightly and now heavily, in daintiest silver trimming, and combined with silver encrusted tulle, it is a fairy frock, indeed. The tulle makes a most attractive pannel and drop fairy frock, indeed. The tulle makes a most attractive pannel and drop petticoat, while rows, and rows, and rows of narrow silver metallic trimming secure the widest flare just on the line of the hips. The simple little lodice crosses in the becoming surplice outline, and because she is a June bride, the sleeves just cover the dimples in her elbow, and the neck is not high. The slender train hangs in pleats from between the shoulders, and is caught at the waist, looped up below the hip line, and allowed to fall and is caught at the waist, looped up below the hip line, and allowed to fall free again to the very end. Over all is arranged the exquisite point d' Angleterre veil which begins in a frilly, orange-blossom wreathed cap and onds in a lovely scallor that firts with the white satin train.

Unusual Trains.

Semetimes the Watteau or Brettany trains give way to the trains which are part of the skirts and extend into graceful lengths a little to one side of the gown or at the very centre back. A perfectly adorable little frock of this type also showed a strong love for the touch of silver. Made of tulle, the skirt was short—very short—in front, revealing seven inches of silver lace petticoat, and long—very, very long—at the back where it only consented to terminate in a slender pointed train, resting lightly on the floor. Broad bands of silver gauze decorated in a most effective way, and encouraged most effective way, and encouraged little bunches of orange blossoms to bloom in a conservative manner. White gauze was gathered into a foundation bodice and long slender sleeves, and a dainty little over blouse of lace had a tiny corsage of the blossoms nested into a bow of silver gauze. The veil into a bow of silver gauze. into a how of silver gauze. The veil with this lovely frock was most be-witching. Fashioned of lace, and at-tached to a clese little cap bound round with pearls, it rippied into a flouncy little nose-veil in front, ex-tended into a graceful shoulder cape at the sides, and transformed into a heaviful "negligible to the lock" beautiful "regulation" veil at the back, to float and billow to the very hem of the train. The little bride fortunate vely white and silver symphony will carry a quaint round bouquet of old-fashioned poises in white, lavender, and pale pink shades tied with bows of

For her, some wizzard of la mode has greated the superb gown pictured on reases the page. It is fashioned of softest charmeuse, and silver transmed Chantilly lace, and the veil of finest tulle with a hem of orange blossoms.

Brom the pompadour period.

From the pompadour period the present fashions of 1915-1918 largely derived their inspiration. There will also be shown the proper costumes for trained nurses, children's nurses and other servants, and the costume of the page. Another lovely bridesmaid wears a costume, charming and harmonious with her "hesitation" brimmed hat. Her frock is all of tulle except whore rows of flowers appear hanging from distended hips and slender waist. and weddings, and all such important things—and grooms too—without paying compliments to her ladyship, the bridesmaid. Undoubtedly the bride of this June will have to be very, very pretty, and very wonderfully frocked before she permits her bridesmaids to choose any of the lovely costume designed especially for her part in the procession. It is sometimes dangerous to have one's bridesmaids too perfectly attractive. The bridesmaids' frocks are one and all adorably quaint, and then they wear such fascinating chapeaux! Paris always glories in a dainty combination of pale blue and rose, especially if a scarf of tulle may be fastened to one shoulder and a wrist. Sometimes the bridesmaid is more lucky than the bride as to the flowers in her bouquet. One little lady showed her patriotism by carrying a nosegay or red camellias, white carnutions, and blue corn flowers, plenteously tied with red, white and blue streamers, fashioned in the form of a smart cockade. How very smart it looked! markably lovely.

Provided papa's bank account is sufficiently corpulent, the June bride of moderately good taste need not worry. Of course she must be pretty, too, but then all brides are pretty, or, at least, he thinks so. A check and a decicately perfumed note of explanation, addressed, Maison Worth, Paquin, Lanvin, or Martial et Armand, Paris, will suffice; and, ere the arrival of the wedding morn, a trousseau fit for a fairy princess, will be reposing in the precincts of the lucky little lady's dainty bouldoir. Critic, creator and just plain everyday lover of good clothes—the last meaning the unsophisticated public generally—will have a chance to recognize just what have been the inadequate, discarded influences and the adequate, retained influences brought to bear upon feminine attire up to date. Because of its boutfant properties, taffeta is invariably chosen as the foundation of this important garment. One exquisite little model designed by Martial et Armand, illustrates the wisdom of this favorism for taffeta and, incidentally, provides an extremely pretty foundation for a short, full frock. The taffeta portion extends to the knees and in that short distance acquires considerable width. The hip line is accentuated with a series of little side ruffles which stop each side of the front panel, but run all way round the back. A flounce of malines lace, poised over pleated chiffon, lengthens the petticoat to three

WORD RECEIVED REGARDING ARRANGEMENT OF THE VEIL

MODERN BRIDAL VEIL | Many Fashion Influences Expressed in the Adjustment of the Exquisite Drape of Lace or Tulle and the Spray of Traditional Orange Blossoms.

HER wedding veil! Just a cloud of misty lace, or filmy tulle and yet how levely it is! Few devotees realize how much depends upon the artistic and becoming arrangement of the bride's veil. Like the mode in which she dresses her hair, the veil must be thought of in the terms of a "picture frame," intended to bring out the best points without drawing attention away from the "subject." Period influence is strongly felt this season, and refers to veils as well as frocks.

The bride who is to wear her great grandmother's veil is lucky indeed, for she will be u.commonly fashionable, instead of just ordinarily fashionable. She will wear her hair most quaintly dressed in keeping with the modes of yesterday, which are now the modes of today, and her veil will rest de-A conception of the wedding veil acknowledging the Spanish influence.

Streat array. Altho white washable satin is shown in the majority of exclusive suits, many costumes, coats and separate skirts are made up in fancy stripes, checks or light one-toned satin weaves.

Apple green, salmon pink, all pastel flower tints and a few gaudy hues are quite correct, provided, of course, the satin is very soft and of excellent quality. A cheap satin sports suit is worse than none at all. If the devotee cannot afford the "real thing" properly on the luxuriant tresses. Perhaps a cluster of orange blossoms will rest against each tiny pink ear, and a frill of lace caress her smooth white forchead. Quite likely, too, there will be scores of pretty dark haired brides who will wisely and opportunely choose the "Spanish" lace veil. Then, of course, the coiff will be dressed high with little curls on each side of her head, there will be a Spanish comb, like the one in the picture, thrust in at a perilous height, and then cascading above all the long lace veil, with prettily scolloped edses. For the devotee wishing a very unusual veil there is any amount of choice. For what with Watteau veils, Harem veils, jockey cap styles, bonnet and Juliet inmovations, fashion has presented a maize of fascinating designs) from which to choose. The traditional bridal veil of tulle continues to have many loyal advocates who realize its various possibilities, especially when worn with the tulle and lace frock. satin is very soft and of excellent quality. A cheap satin sports suit is worse than none at all. If the devotee cannot afford the "real thing" properly done, she should choose a less expensive cotton material and have her costume in faultless design. The good lines and good trimming will make up for less expensive material.

When the satin suit is chosen, however, it is most effective. The skirts are wide, but not too wide, and the coats fairly conservative as to cut. A clever model in apple green satin had trimmings of white corded silk and an over-laid collar of apple green crepe. The skirt was pleated and the coat belted, and the sleeves were, strange to say, three-quarter length. A white slik hat, white shoes and hose added to the charm of this fresh-looking summer costume, and a lavender parasol was particularly effective.

many loyal advocates who realize its various possibilities, especially when worn with the tuile and lace frock. One very pretty veil for the maid of classical features is arranged in the form of a swathed turban before falling in graceful folds, and it is held in place by a band of pearls crossing low on the forehead. Another veil is gathered to a brilliant and pearl bandeau, and falls from the side and back. The coiffure is dressed high, and remains uncovered. Still another veil, this time of lace, is arranged in the shape of a fan at the back. A wreath of blossoms pass around the head, holding the folds prettily adjusted. It must be remembered that the veil not only enhances the features, and ornaments the coiffure, but it also effects the graceful appearance of the wedding dress when her back is turned.

WHY THE GOLDEN CIRCLET CHANGES IN SIZE AND SHAPE

BRIDESMAID'S HAT

This Year's Wedding Ring Differs From the One Worn by Grandmama, as Your Veil Resembles Hers.

T IS an amusing fact to those who notice such things that one can telt just about what year a woman was married by looking at the style of her wedding ring. The circle of gold changes slightly in width and weight each year.

It is a far cry from the cumbersome, heavy wedding ring of twenty-five years ago to this simple narrow circlet of gold which is the approved width of the present season. Comfortable and becoming, it is small enough to-look exceedingly well with the engagement rins, an adornment which no longer lays claim to severe simplicity. If a gold ring of more ornate character is preferred an engraved design of leaf motif in the dull finished metal is most attractive.

Since all stone rings are set in platinum it is often considered necessary to use the more precious metal for the wedding circlet also, by way of harmony of effect, A plain platinum polished ring serves this purpose. Embellished with engraving, the platinum ring has almost the brilliancy of small ring has almost the brilliancy of small diamonds.

Set with clusters of three tiny diamonds, placed at pleasing intervals, one style of wedding ring of platinum has a distinction quite its own. But if more brilliancy is sousht the band of close set diamonds with a beautifully pierced design of platinum at the sides will surely satisfy the heart's desire. A unique feature of the novelty is the flexible diamond and platinum ring, which, in effect, is simply an encircling band of gems, adjusting itself charmingly to the finger.

One of the latest fancies in relation to the wedding ring is to have it fashioned of the bride's birth atone. Thus, culibre sapphires for the September bride, diamonds for she who was born in April and emeralds for the one whose birthday falls in May, may be used to form a strip of color, instead of the usual metal for the wedding ring, bestowing to the hand of the wearer a marked individuality,

BY GEORGE SENIOR.

OUBTLESS there are many who would like to do their own seed sowing and plant raising out of doors; to such, the hardy annual with its various forms of growth, its diverse shapes and colorings of bloom, affords a wide field of endeavor. Annuals deserve better treatment than is usually meted out to them and are often con demned as fugacious and rubbishy, because instead of being given space to grow in, they are thrown into heaps or closely sown in lines, so that hundreds of plants are left to struggle for existence in a space scarcely sufficient for half a dozen.

This method of sowing produces, it is true, a rapid effect as regards the speedy production of flowers, but no sooner are they in bloom than—lanky and drawn and struggling, as it were, for breath—they are unable to with-stand even the slightest exhaustion, consequent upon the production of se who have surmounted them rapidly follow in the immediate proon of seed vessels and a speedy

As To Sowing.

As many of the hardy annuals ar mely impatient of root disturbance, it is better to sow them all where they are to grow, carefully inning them on the appearance of he young seedlings.

A careful study of the heights to which the various subjects grow and also their forms and colorings will indicate their proper positions in the flower-bed scheme; the dwarfs in front, the taller varieties behind. Taking the minimum distance be-tween the dwarfs as six inches, increase the space between plants in the taller growing sorts according to the tness of growth. By sowing several dissimilar varieties in each row too precise order will be avoided this method lending itself to the orderly disorder of nature, which is always nore pleasing and restful to the eye.

To obtain the best results a careful preparation of the soil is necessary and the ground should be firm before the manure, and the day before trans-seed is sown. If newly dug, tread and then just loosen the top with the rake. Instead of sowing in drills, measure out the ground and place a small stick or twig in the soil at each station, then drop two or three seeds at each, press into the ground and cover with a little very short, well-rotted manure, which will always indicate exactly where you may expect the seedlings to appear and will be very ful in enabling you to detect and keep down the weeds which come ahead of the germination of the flower seeds. The covering of manure will also conserve the moisture and prevent the caking of the soil after rain.

The general rule, as to the depth of covering seeds, is twice the diameter of the seed, but by using manure as a covering this depth may be doubled. companions. covering this depth may be doubled

THE essentials of strawberry growing may be summed up as follows: Love for the work; thoro preparation of the soil; plants of high fruiting power; intensive cultivation; intelligent pruning, picking, packing and marketing.

My idea of growing strawberries is

My idea of growing strawberries is to supply each acre with enough plant food in balanced proportions to make it possible for every square foot to contribute its full share toward the crop. Also, I believe it is better and more profitable to grow one acre of strewberries on the in one acre of strawberries on the in-tensive plan than to grow two acres with a shortage of any of the es-sential building materials.

No other crop with which I am acquainted will give the grower so many clear dollars from each square rod, and do it so quickly as straw-berries, when the combination I have named is present.

Any good soil will grow cabbage. A warm, sandy loam is most suitable for carly varieties, a northern exposure being best for the late cabbage. Start seed and handle the same as for cauliflower. Jersey Wakefield (early), Autumn King (late).

Celery may be blanched by standing boards, ten to twelve inches wide, on their edge at each side of the row close up to the plant. Variety: Paris Golden Yellow.

A warm, friable, rich soil should be chosen for corn. The seed is sown in hills three feet apart each way and four plants allowed to grow to the hill. Sow about the middle of May for both early and late varieties. Golden Bantam (early), Country Gentleman (late). Sow cucumbers in hills made in rows six feet apart and four feet apart in the row. This should be done in the beginning of June, Allow four plants to develop to each hill. Variety: White Spine.

Lettuce can be grown on any good garden soil. Sow in the open ground garden soil garden soil

Sow in rows on the level ground, 12 inches apart, as early in the spring as possible. Varieties: Mammoth Silver King and Yellow Globe Danvers.

There is another feature which makes it unprofitable to take plants from an old fruiting bed: The fruiting vigor of these plants has not only been weakened, but in practically every case such plants are more or less infested with such insect pests as crown berges or crown misones or set.

Cultivation should begin immediately after plants are set, and shallow cultivation should be continued repeatedly every week or ten days thruout the entire growing season, except when the soil is too wet to permit cultivation. After each rain the soil should be cultivated before a crust begins to form. Most soils will bake and become hard unless the surface is broken just as soon after a rain as conditions will permit. Controlling conditions will permit. Controlling weeds is just about the same as controlling insects. The best time to kill weeds is while the seeds are germin-

Intensive cultivation discourages weeds and all other obnoxious growths and creates a dust mulch which conserves moisture; it is moisture that dissolves plant food. When the start is made in the fall or late summer it is no doubt best to use mature fowls, purchasing a trio or pen of the chosen breed and raise the chicks from them in the natural way. After Jan. 1 it is not economical to purchase fowls, as breeders will have their pens mated for the season and will not take out good birds unless they can secure a high price for them. In the spring the start is best made with eggs or baby chicks. If eggs are the choice purchase one or more sittings and as many broody hens; the latter can be secured of farmers or poultry keepers, who are usually glad to get rid of them at a small advance over the price of market poultry. They need not be of pure blood, but should be of fair size so as to take good care of the eggs. Decide on the number of hens you will set and place an order for eggs with the understanding they are to be shipped as soon as you notify the seller your hens are ready.

arranged that sufficient water can be applied at one-time to last several days. Perhaps the most common reason for failure in making window box flowers thrive is the lack of moisture. In an average season it is necessary to apply water every day, when the box is of the ordinary type.

As the roots of plants growing in window boxes are closely confined, they must be well fed. When the boxes are filled with soil a considerable quantity of pulverized sheep managed from the seed store should be to operate them. These novers will care for 100 chicks or less, and can be subroked or the house the chicks are to be grown in.

For the novice on a town lot or a suburban acre I would suggest one of the American breeds as probably best suited to his needs, as in his case the color of the eggshell will make no material difference and the birds are of good size when he wishes to dispose or them. The surplus cockerels and old hen can be sold to the butcher, the neighbors, or eaten on the home table, der that so much money should be expended in that way.

It isn't necessary, the, that the home porch box be elaborate. On the contrary, simplicity is to be desired. The principal object is to produce an artistic effect and that means a careful consideration of color values. Red geraniums against a red brick house are far from attractive. White or blue or green are more suitable for such a backpround. Use these same red geraniums when the house is painted white and the resulting color scheme is charming.

A good size is 16 x 24 feet, which is sufficient for 100 hens. For a smaller flock partition may be built thru the house, making two pens, in one of which the chicks can be grown, feed kept, etc. Then, should it be desired to enlarge the plant, the building is ample. A house of this size can be built on most town lots, and while a small yard is desirable, it is not necessary, as hens may lots, and while a small yard is desirable, it is not necessary, as hens may be kept confined to the house continually. In this case it should have a large opening in front so as to give the birds outdoor conditions at all times.

Perpetual, was introduced. It was a poor affair, but became popular because it produced a second crop of flowers. No other very noteworthy roses were introduced from that date till about the fifties, when Jules Marsottin and General Jacqueminot appeared. These two roses became the parents of a large family, and firmly established a new class of roses called Hybrid Perpetuals, so called owing to the fact that they produced a small second crop of flowers. In Great British and Europe at least, where the season is longer, this second crop is generally produced, altho in parts of Canada many varieties produce only the one crop in June. As has been said, however, the second crop is often "but an echo of the first," while with still newer Hybrid Teas the second crop is often larger than the first.

Origin of the "Hybrid Teas."—The characters which distinguish the Hybrid Teas from the Hybrid Perpetuals are: With regard to the plant, an increased activity of growth (and this is the reason why they are slightly less hardy than the Hybrid Perpetuals) with regard to the flowers, extended flowering periods both in the spring and in the autumn, greater depth of petals, larger size of flowers, greater variety of colors, and often greater freedom of flowering.

La France (1867), a notable rose, was for some years classed as a Hyvariety of colors, and often greater freedom of flowering.

La France (1867), a notable rose, was for some years classed as a Hybrid Perpetual, and it was not until after the year 14/3 when Cheshunt Hybrid was introduced as the first rose of a new race by Messrs. Paul & Son, that it was moved into its present class. It may be said, therefore, that the new race of Hybrid Teas did not come into existence until the early seventies, and it was not until the early seventies, and it was not until the advent of Caroline Testout in 1996 that roses in this class began to make rival claims for public favor with the Hybrid Perpetuals. From that year on progress has been rapid and sure, and ioday the number of beautiful and reliable roses in the class is many times greater than similar roses in all the other classes combined. This progress may be indicated as follows: In 1896 the number of Hybrid Teas was only six; in 1892 it was twelve; in 1894, thirty-one, and by 1901 it had reached to sixty-five; while today there are several hundreds in the class.

It is generally supposed that Hybrid Tea roses and Hybrid Perpetuals come from parentages which in many cases are common to both classes, but that the former have inherited their free-blooming habit and peculiar fragrance from the China roses.

Hybrid Perpetual roses are supposed to have originated largely from the hybrids of R. gallica crossed with China Hybrids, as will be seen by the chart, but one authority states that "he believes that a much larger proportion of the Hybrid Perpetuals have some of the larger of the first of origin of the New Race of Austrian Origin of the New Race of Austrian Hybrids,—Persian Yellow, a rose with a wonderful golden yellow color, is one of the parents of the new race of roses which are now deservedly attracting considerable attention. This rose was introduced by the late Sir H. Willcock in the year 1838. As a plant, this rose makes an attractive sight when in bloom. It blossooms however, but once in the year 1838. As a plant, this rose makes an attractive sight when in bloom. It blossosis, however, but once in early summer, and the flowers are small and not suitable for cutting—good reason for a limited popularity. For all these years since its introduction it has just existed, but after sixty—two years of life it justified its right to our regard and respect by becoming the parent "par excellence" of a new race. Why so? Well, the virtues of "Persian Yellow" are handed on to the offspring, but none of the faults. As Mr. Dickson says: "Did M. Pernet-Ducher, when he crossed Antoine Ducher and Persian Yellow, with all his skill and experience, anticipate anything so beautiful as the Lyons Rose, or Rayon d'Or, as possible consequences."

The blooms, orange, red, and yellow, are rather flat, and not of a very good shape, but still very charming. In those days, exhibition roses were much sought after, and not being suitable for this purpose, Soleil d'Or did not create a great sensation, but interested the few. y baby would only sleep well, I could put up with anything." could put up with anything."

This is the cry of young mothers all over the land. You have heard it, and you may have given it was an anything that girls were much better off lying; that girls were much lying; that gir expression yourself; and while you expression yourself; and while you walled you decided life wasn't worth living; that girls were much better off living; that girls were living and sleepless night. I know mothers who declare they have not known a perfect night's rest in ten or twelve years.

Id hate to look forward to years of that; and I would feel very sorry to that; and I would feel very sorry to have any of my readers wearing themselves out so uselessly. One of the most difficult things I have to do is to convince certain martyred mothers that a great many times, when baby is a poor sleeper, it is almost entirely the mother's own fault.

She has not begue warly enough to but still poor in quality.

Cold feet will often cause a baby to be restless. If the child has a rather poor circulation it is a good plan to let him wear woolen stockings in bed, and to put a hot-water bag into his crib when he goes to bed, refiling it when the mother goes to bed. Never put a baby into a cold bed; he has not enough animal heat both for his own use and to warm the bed besides. Neither should he be weighed down under layers of heavy clothing. Have baby's blankets of wool, as good a quality as you can buy, they will be warmer and lighter than several pairs of blankets that are chiefly cottom.

Children who persist in kicking off the bed covers may be put into a sleep-

The correct bed hour for the baby under two is 5.30; the child between two and six years should be in bed at 6 or 5.30 even in the summer. After a child is six, his mother may use her own judgment about his bed hour; but let it be a very definite time. The childish practice of begging for just a few minutes more should never be allowed to start; then there need be no disappointments and no scenes.

The Sleeping Habit.
To form regular sleeping habits, one must begin at the very start. The mother should have a clear understanding with her nurse or with the person who is to look after her during the slipes.

This person has it in her power to make life easy or unbearable for both mother and baby. From the very first day, baby must be taught to sleep in his own little basket or crib without rocking, walking, patting, or anything else. He should be left alone except at regular meal times, when he must be wakened, and kept awake long enough to finish his meal; then changed, made comfortable and put back again to sleep in his crib. His bathing time is so planned that it comes just before a meal time, so that comes just before a meal time, so that he is not disturbed twice when once will do for bath and food. In these days of nervous tension, even bables are affected, and plenty of sleep is the surest way to keep the healthy baby free from nervous troubles.

He often has a feeling of suffocation which will wake him out of a sound sleep, perhaps screaming. And the parents will tell each other "He has had a bad dream," when stopped-up breathins passages are the real cause of the trouble.

Sometimes the cutting of teeth will have the company. Causes of Sleeplessness. There is no such thing as a "harm-less soothing powder." NOTHING is gained by shutting our eyes to the many imperfections that our children manifest. Nor is anything gained by wearing blue or yellow spectacles with magnifying lenses attached. The happy-go-lucky disposition may overlook, perhaps, what should not be avoided, but those who look for trouble frequently find more than they know what to do with. Jenny, in Compton Mackenzie's Children who persist in kicking off the bed covers may be put into a sleeping bag. This may be made of a pair of old blankets shaped into a large bag and having a draw-string at the top which may be tied under the arms. In cold weather a flannel jacket or sweater coat may be worn to protect the arms and shoulders. Then the child can sleep in a room with windows wide open, and will not waken because of cold or keep his tired mother awake trying to keep him properly covered. Jenny, in Compton Mackenzie's story "Carnival," had the misfortune to come into the world with an un-usual sensitiveness for rhythm and music, and she had the misfortune to music, and she had the misfortune to be born to a mother with a long tradition of Puritan asceticism. So it happened that while she was still a very little girl her mother felt uneasy stirrings of conscience whenever Jenny manifested the stirrings of music. Jenny would dance about spontaneously without any apparent provocation; the sound of a grind organ would send her into ecstasies of delight, and she would give expressions to her feelings Constipation is a frequent cause of restless nights. Every child or infant should have at least one free movement from the bowels every day, and if at bedtime this has not taken place, the mother should give an enema or her into ecstasies of delight, and she would give expressions to her feelings thru joyous and rhythmic movements. Her mother could not understand all this; she was sure that these doings indicated an undue amount of originat sin. So when Jenny was old enough to go to school she had already learned that dancing is wicked, or at least im-

But the discouragements and disapproval of the mother and the aunts were apparently not enough to countered the native impulses. From time to time the latter got the better of ler good intentions, so that it did not take very long for the other little girls to discover Jenny's special abilities. And then she was frequently urged to dance for the entertainment of the others. One day, while passins the school, the mother caught a glimpse of Jenny's legs above a "semicircle of applauding children." The mother was shocked and alarmed. Something had to be done about Jenny's wilfulness—a scolding when she came home and a note to the teacher warning her of Jenny's "wild inclinations." The teacher remonstrated with her pupil, "Nice little girls," she asserted, "don't kick their legs up in the air."

The class was forbidden to encourage the dancer; a mountain was made of a molehill; Jenny was raised to the giddy pinnacle of heroism. She wore about her the blazing giories of a marty; she began to be conscious of possessing an exceptional personality, for selves as obvious to her Roland as giddy pinnacle of heroism. She wore about her the blazing glories of a martyr; she began to be conscious of possessing an exceptional personality, for there had never been such a fuss over any other sirl's misdemeanor. She began to feel more acutely the injustice of grown-up repression. She tried defiance and danced again in the playground, but learned that humanity's prime characteristic is cowardice; perceived, with Asistotle, that man is a political animal, a hunter in packs. She thought the school would support her justifiable rebellion; but alas, the school deserted her. Heroine she might be in corner conferences. Heroine she might be in linked promenades; but when her feelings were crystallized in action the other girls thought of themselves. They applauded her intentions, but shrank from the prominence of the visible result. Jenny abandoned society. The germ of cynicism was planted in her soul. She came to despise her fellows. In scarlet clock she travelled, solitary, to school and hated everybody.

The cumulative results of the unjust

The cumulative results of the unjust exaggeration of what was but innocent and unconsidered overflow of spirits are well indicated in the chain of martyrdom dragging over into cynicism. Another consequence appeared in the fact that Jenny's self-imposed isolation "heishtened her importance in the eyes of the boys." And her subsequent career was one of abandon and defiance.

Children will continue to be tempted to do foolish things. And parents will always be tempted to warn them and to stay their hands. And there are many ways of putting our more mature experience at the disposal of the youns people, while retaining their among the ways that we may choose the best is not the making of mountains out of molehilis.

A Floral Card Party.

A Floral Card Party.

A new idea for progressive card parties given for charity is to give prizes of potted plants and keep the score with flowers, either carnations, roses or some blossom that does not wilt quickly. Invitations are sent for a "floral progressive card party" on cards cut in the shape of a flower. Jonquils, tulips, marguerites and roses lend themselves admirably to the scheme. To the winners pass vases containing the score flowers. At the flaish everyone will posses at least one or more of the fragrant reminders of their good luck. The ica cream may be molded in floral shapes and the small cakes ornamented with candy roses and crystalized violets. and the small cakes ornamented with candy roses and crystalized violets and rose leaves may be mixed with the hon-hons. Each guest is supposed to contribute 25 or 50 cents, whichever sum is agreed upon, to the charity for which the party is given.

A Doll Birthday Party.

A little girl who dearly loved her doll conceived the happy idea of giving her a birthday party. No sooner thought of than the little girl and her mother put the thought into execution, with the result that seven girlies received invitations to bring their favorite doll to "Annabel's" birthday party. The hours were from "3 to 5," and it was indeed a pretty sight when the dolls and their mothers assembled around the daintily decorated table. Doll dishes were used and the small table was set entirely with minature articles and the gifts brought the birthday doll were most fascinating, for everything that grown people have is now made for dolls. There were wee cakes with tiny pink tapers, which were lit, and the little mothers were just as grown up as possible and looked after their respective children with true motherly solicitude. At a large table the real children had their repast, and I noticed that some of them ate the dolls' portion also. When your little 6 or 7-year-old daughter wants a party, try this.

Simple Way of Identifying Child's Stockings.

on the third, etc.

It is an easy matter to sort even a large pile of stockings; two M's with red crosses—a pair of Mary's stockings; two M's with green crosses, another pair; while two J's with blue crosses are a pair of stockings belonging to Jack. If two children have the same initial, use blue letters for one and red for the other.—Baltimore News.

"but I do not see any flowers as yet,"

"Oh, yes, mother, you can if you just know how," said the child.

"Here is your doll, my only bit of sunshine," said the mother, picking up the bit of wood and rag, and placing it in her daughter's arms, "take her and put her to sleop." "Yes, mother," answered the child, taking the bit of wood and folding it to her breast, "I think she is very tired; see, is she not a dear? Look at her big, brown eyes and long wavy hair; I love my child, mother." And as the mother went out smiling from the room I noticed that the piece of wood and rag gradually altered, and became in reality the most beautiful doll I had ever seen.

I looked round for my small companion, and was surprised to find him gone, but a brilliant butterfly, all gold, crimson and yellow, stood in his place. Then, as I rubbed my eyes to see more clearly, the butterfly danced away, but a whisper seemed to reach my ear as it passed: "The power of Thought; the power of Thought," said a voice, and the sound floated away on the breeze.

but why the same sun that will burn a skin brown will bleach linen white is a good deal of a puzzle.

Pure linen, in the chemical sense of the word, is the same as pure cellulose, but in the domestic sense, pure linen is a fine weave of the fibres of flax. The fibres of the flax plant, like all vegetable cellulose, contain a large amount of impurities, without which, indeed, the plant could not grow. These include substances like lignin and xylan. Ordinary wood fibre has as much as 35 per cent. of these encrusting materials, flax fibre a little less.

MAKING THE OLD FURNITURE LOOK AS GOOD AS NEW AGAIN

Some Extraordinary Effects Can Be Produced by Means of the Application of a Little Paint and Varnish.

T IS extraordinary what a little paint, varnish, polish, new cretonne and fresh scrim will do in the way of making even the dinglest surroundings livable and a handy woman cannot enly manufacture curtains, covers and hangings, but, with little extra trouble, renovate and make all simple repairs that are needed in the extra trouble, renovate and make all simple repairs that are needed in the furniture.

The most crying need with most tables and chairs is polish and a good rubbing, but sometimes there are small stains and abrasions that call for ireatment. The best method of cleaning most woods is with soap and water. Take a piece of soft cloth, a basin of warm water and a cake of good white naphtha soap, then go over the whole surface, a very little at a time, and rub dry before moving on to the next place. When the process is finished you will be surprised to see how clean and shiny the table, or what ever it is, looks; but very often the dirt has proved a cloak for many dints and scratches which now show up. The tiny dints and abrasions can be ramoved by laying a piece of wet blotting paper on top and then holding a very hot iron above, so that the steam will lift up the crushed fibres of the wood. The scratches yield to polish.

There are various furniture polishes on the market that are entrely satisfactory, but a very excellent homemade polish is produced by equal quantities of sweet oil, chloroform and alcohol, shaken well together, rubbed on quickly and polished vigorously until the surface glows. Sweet oil, vinegar and turpentine in equal quantities is another reliable recipe, but both require very energetic rubbing after they are applied.

When Badly Scratched.

When Badly Scratched.

When furniture is badly scratched french polishing is the only remedy, and if you can afford it, it is better to have it done by a professional, as the process is tedious and tiresome to a degree. However, it can be fone satisfactory, and the principal thing to remember about it is to apply only a little of the polish at a time and to rub evenly and steadily with a smooth circular motion until the surface is dry and highly polished. The polish itself is made of 10 parts of resin and 10 parts of palm oil, melted together over hot water. When quite melted and well mixed, take from the fire and add 50 parts of benzine, 1 part of essence o

If the whiting sticks in the molding or carving, wrap a piece of molding or carving, wrap a piece of soft cloth round a blunt skewer or sick, damp with alcohol, and clean out the crevices. To Remove Paint.

Should you wish to remove paint or varnish so as to get a different finish for your furniture, it can be done in either of two ways. The quickest and easiest is to mix one-half of a can of concentrated lye with a pint of boiled starch and while still hot paint all over the surface. Leave to dry and then wash off. In most cases one application will remove the varnish, but sometimes the process must be repeated. The great objection to this is that the lye will burn anything it touches, and consequently requires to be handled with very great care. The second method is safer but much slower and more troublesome.

Having first washed the surface; steep a cloth in turpentine and leave it sopping wet, then go over the entire surface, rubping and rubbing and then rubbing some more. Next continue the rubbing, with alcoho! this time, and then wash with a strong solution of soda and water. When the surface is dry, take a fairly coarse sandpaper and go all over the article, using a circular movement, and endeavoring to press evenly and smoothly; brush off with a cloth and, taking the very finest sandpaper, repeat the rubbing. Then, with a fresh supply of turpentine, remove the last traces of varnish, dry and finish the surface smoothly with the finest sandpaper. The furniture is then ready for restaining, painting or varnishing.

We all know that the easiest way of changing our furniture's complexion is with varnish stain or paint, bought ready made, but these are a bit expensive. We can mix them for ourselves much cheaper; and a good oil stain finished with a wax polish is more attractive than the shine of varnish.

Happily, human structures have accult the ages a living power to resist both its own ignorance and the outside disease. Tuberculosis, as an instance, is associated with a vicious bacillus that might have exterminated from doing so by a rush of native reserve at the signs of onslaught.

Usual Recipes.

Equal quantities of oil and turpentine, well mixed together, are the foundation of all oil stains, and the various colors are obtained by the addition of paint. The usual recipes are as follows:

Cherry—To one gallon of foundation add one ounce of Indian red, stir well and test, increasing the foundation if too deep, or the red if too light.

Mahogany—Four parts Indian red, three parts burnt sienna. Mix dry and then blend evenly with the turpentine and oil. Inflammation occurs after the walled off germs spread thru the lymph atreams into other parts of the anatomy. To prevent the disruption of the tubercle pests and to seal them up as firmly as the Egyptians are cemented in the subterranean vaults is the object to be attained in the treatment of this dread scourse.

Just as trees and flowers, grasses and clovers pale and turn yellow when the sun fails to reach them in proper strength, so the deep scarlet of human and animal blood pales and becomes debilitated in its absence.

themselves. Consequently the bump, to be described later, develops. The open thumb grip produces a shaking tension that develops the palsy, and the firm, rigid grip of the whole hand tires out the muscles and nerves, producing the same effects as any continued fatigue strain.

The case of W. M. Price of London, who has been strap-hanging for many years, is quoted. Price's sign manual is on the second finger of the right hand. In all his years of strap-hanging this finger, he says, is the one that castile soap in the morning, it will save your hair.

2. Apply three times a week to the scalp a little of the following: Glycerine, 4 drams; benzoin, 1 dram; distilled water, 1 ounce.

3. The lapse of time that should intervene between each washing of the hair depends entirely upon the circumstances surrounding the individual. People whose hair is exposed to the dirt and dust often are compelled to wash the hair every two weeks and sometimes even every week, while others wash the hair but once a month. half an inch high. It began to develop about four years ago.
Doctors told him it was the result of unusual strain, but the only unusual strain to which the finger has been subjected was of hanging on to straps twice a day. He was told it would have to be cut away, but he knew quite well that it would be a hopeless operation.

H. R., Toronto, Ont.: A.—If you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope repeating your query I will be glad to help you.

V. A. V.. Toronto, Ont.: Q.—Kindiy advise a remedy to remove dandruff from a dry scalp.

A.—The scaly disks of dandruff may be removed by Washing the scalp either with cocoanut oil or castile soap and water. Then the surface may be treated with the following lotion: Precipitate sulphur, ½ ounce to 4 ounces distilled water. Rub in gently, after a thoro shaking, with a little brush, and see that the bristles reach the scalp. On account of the odor of the sulphur it is advisable to use it at bedtime.

C. A. B., Toronto, Ont.: Q.—How may the condition bed-wetting be remedied?

A.—Faulty training of mothers before the child is a year old is responsible for this habit. Operations are inadvisable. Patience, persistence and close attention, with exercises to tone up the muscles and education of will power, will effect a cure in a length of time. The child should sleep on a cool, hard bed and have plenty of outdoor exercise. He should sleep in a cool, clean, linen night shirt.

H. P., Toronto, Ont.: Q.—Kindly advise a treatment for bronchitis. I have been troubled with it every winter for the past eight years, but suffered last winter worse than any previous time.

A.—Be outdoors in the fresh air and sunshine as much as possible. Take 3 drops of creosote in a capsule after meals. Inhale steam vapors or nitre and saltpetre smoke.

Grace, Toronto, Ont: Q.—Kindly advise a remedy for pyorrohea.

A.—Pyorrhoea is treated hypodermically with ½ grain of emetine; with staphylococcus and streptoccus vaccines; with increasing doses of iodide of potash in water after meals, beginning at 15 drops and increasing one drop at a time until 50 drops are being taken, and with the scraping of the teeth by a dentist. All of these must be done. Take 5 grains each of hexamethylenamine and citrate of soda every four hours in water.

Mrs. T., Toronto, Ont.: Q.—Kindly tell me if anything can be done for head noises. I am also hard of hearing.

Dr. Charles Morrison of London has just reported three other examples of it, and is convinced that there are hundreds of instances of it which have escaped a correct diagensis.

In thousands of ways nature illustrates this law of continuity. Mist rises from a body of water, ascends into the clouds, floats over the land by means of the wind, is chansed into rain, and falling on land and water is carried by stream and river back to the large body of water again. Trees grown old thru centuries, decay and crumble into the ground, and from the resulting loam, new trees draw their strength. Cretonne your home for the summer, says Mme. Maison. If you don't want to refurnish, grass rugs and bright slip-over furniture covers will change the whole house into a more attractive and cheerful place.

2. Please tell me what to do for painful joints.

A.—Head noises and hearing may be benefited by a small electric battery used in the ear. Apply a little of 6 grains of ammoniated mercury to half an ounce of white vaseline to the nostriis twice a day. An operation shelling out the tonsils and adenoids and compressing the turbinate bone of the nose is better.

Acid salicyclic ... ½ dram Sodii borat ... ¼ dram Water ... 1 pint.

B. N., Toronto, Ont.—Q.—Kindly advise how to remove pimples from the face.

2—Should the teeth be cleaned before breakfast or after and how often.

A.—Avoid all oily, hot, greasy, rich, starchy and highly seasoned foods, sweets, pastries, soups, gravies, and candles. Do not use soap or hot water on the skin, but wash with glycerine, 1 ounce; sulphur, 1 dram, and rose water, 8 ounces. Apply each night to the pimples, white precipitate ointment.

N. M., Toronto, Ont.—Q.—Kindly advise a remedy for bad digestion and gas on the stomach.

A.—Eat more apples, figs, cereals, prunes, prune juice, carrots, spinach and stewed pears. Drink three quarts of distilled water daily—two glassfuls half hour before meals. Take 7 grains of oxide of magnesia before meals and 6 charcoal tablets after meals. Sleep 10 hours in the 24, and be outdoors in the fresh air and sunlight as much as possible.

F. A. O., Toronto, Ont.: Q.—My little girl's hair is falling out. What do you advise to stop this?

Upholstered furniture takes on a present of cretonne or linen. It is astonishing how refreshing it seems to have these really simple changes made, especially if one is to remain at home during the hot months.

To clean linoleum properly, it should be first swept gently, then wiped up with a damp cloth. The surface should be treated every two or three months with some good floor wax, well rubbed in. A solution that may be used to preserve and renovate linoleum is the following: Dissolve two and one-half pounds paraffin in one gallon of oil of turpentine, using gentle heat; apply while warm with a piece of flannel; let remain on the linoleum about 24 hours, then polish with flannel.

New linoleum should be warmed before unrolling or bending, as it cracks very easily when cold. Furniture should not be rolled or skidded over linoleum, but lifted and carried. Small blocks of wood or scraps of linoleum placed under furniture casters prevent unsightly denting.

placed under furniture casters prevent unsightly denting.

The greatest amount of wear on linoleum comes, naturally, from walking over it. Plain linoleum shows such wear much less than figured, which often becomes unsightly from "paths" and worn patches. This is especially true of the cheaper printed linoleums. When properly laid and cared for, however, the very best inlaid linoleums are quite satisfactory, and are the cheapest in the long run.—C. E. Plants of ciematis and wistaria may be started from seeds, but the seeds sometimes lie dormant in the ground for a year or two. If sown when fresh and before the seeds have died out they will germinate in two or three weeks after sowins. The vines may also be started from cuttings or from grafts.

Stake up berry plants and vines if this has not already been attended to. Twine for garden use, it is said, will last longer if placed in a solution of alum for a few days.

What would happen in Germany if, under like circumstances, a body of resident Americans should undertake o send off vessels on false papers to the relief of their friends? What would the imperial government do to an American vessel which had found a refuge from its enemies in a German harbo and then turned itself into a factory for bombs? How would it regard an office bombs? How would it regard an office formerly occupied by a German diplonatic official, which is turned into a haunt of plots and disturbances? How would Germany treat Americans who should openly express sympathy with, let us say, the English, for destroying a peaceful American merchantman, with the loss of a hundred German

Three Countries Involved. There is the episode of von Igel, who has been caught with the goods in various plots against powers which the United States has deep friendship. In this case three coun-tries seem to be involved, the United States of America, which has arrested a man for a very serious offense; the German Empire, which, thru its ambassador, claims that man as its servant, and the independent state of von lgel, which sets up a special jurisdiction of its own on a certain floor of a

As a rule, the world is far more interested in the bulk of a man's bank balance than in that of his physical gravity; but since there is no law requiring the individual to engrave his assets upon his personal card, human nature has developed the habit of guessing at these, more or less accurately, by making financial exponents out of clothes. Nearly every day one must stand unconsciously on the scales of appearance while the appraising eye of the business world hurriedly takes one's weight. If a man's raiment radiates prosperity, ten to one he'll be given credit for it by everyone except his creditors; while, on the other hand, if his clothes seem to express an interested in the bulk of a man's bank balance than in that of his physical gravity; but since there is no law requiring the individual to engrave his assets upon his personal card, human nature has developed the habit of guessing at these, more or less accurately. if his clothes seem to express an "overworked" condition, even the he be able to buy a department store, his financial rating will frequently suffer.

financial rating will frequently suiter. Clothes, therefore, are either an asset or a liability. On the surface of all business relations they are the mercantile report of a man's success or failure. They can create confidence or rouse skepticism; inspire credit or suggest insolvency. Generally speaking, they are the outward barometer of a man's internal revenue.

a man's internal revenue. Men, however, do not cons is usually the ensemble effect that makes the impression. An inadvertent glimpse at the trade-mark in a man's does not essentially follow that the rest of his toggery bears any close relation to this in the matter of price standard. Silk socks are now so commonly worn and can be had at such low figures that the silk-clad ankle no longer spells extravagance in dress. It is so also with the silk shirt, for every one knows that these are frequently sold with the silk fabric limited to the cuffs and shirt bosom. Of course, the suit that has been fitted to your body ly an expensive tailor can easily be differentiated and by it you may estimate a man's income, but the altering departments in many of the outfitting stores are now so proficient that even a suit "off the pile" frequently has the appearance of a "tailor-made,"

So it is ordinarily a very difficult matter to estimate the average man's means by the clothes he wears. Yet we never realizing that we are fooled nine times out of ten.
Of course, there are tailors and men associated with the business of selling clothes who can appraise the probable cost of your dress as the they saw the rice card of each article tagged upon t. Some doctors and dentises acquire proficiency in judging a man's income by his outward covering, and there is often a corresponding discrimination in the figures on the bills they render their patients. A man who one their patients. A man who once ven-tured into a doctor's office with a dia-mond pin in his cravat was subse-quently presented with a bill that seemed rather stiff. He added "dia-mond stickpin" to the credit side of the bill, subtracted $10 from the amount and remitted check. The doctor cashed the check.

Another man who had been paying out yearly large sums of money for dental work finally discovered a way by which he claims to have cut down his "chewing expense" 20 per cent. Ordinarily he was what is considered a Ordinarily he was what is considered a smart dresser, but he resurrected an old suit of clothes, which he called his "dentist suit." This he always wore when doomed to dental torment.

Probably the real experts in rating a man financially by his clothes are waiters, chauffeurs and cab drivers. These individuals sometimes acquire a perception which is almost occuit in their ability to read the dollar sign in your "duds." To them a man's exterior is an unquestionable cash register to his pockethook.

Some men are waiking advertisements of the bargain sales. The

Everything is good in its place. The bile, which, under certain conditions, causes so much distress, is of the greatest value as an antiseptic and cathartic when it is properly handled by the liver.

The chief function of the liver seems to be the filtering of bile from the blood, where it acts as a poison, and pouring it into the intestines, where it hastens the course of the food mass through the alimentary canal, and by its antiseptic influence prevents fermentation of the food.

When you suffer from biliousness and indigestion and have a coated tongue, bitter taste in the mouth, headaches and loss of appetite, you will do well to look to the condition of the liver. Other symptoms are wind on the stomach, which causes belching, and the formation of gas, which gives rise to dizziness and pains about the heart.

Because the liver has failed, the food in the alimentary canal is fermenting instead of being digested, looseness and constipation of the bowels alternate, the whole digestive system is thrown out of order and the blood is poisoned.

By immediately awakening the action of the liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills affords relief for this condition most promptly. On this account they are generally recognized as the most effective cure for biliousness, liver complaint, indigestion, constipation, and the pains and aches which arise from poisons in the blood. The benefits are lasting because this medicine removes the cause of trouble.

The nursing profession is taking a step in advance when it is planning for a convention of the National Association of Trained Nurses, and the Superintendents of Training Schools Association. The organizations arodistinct, but the latter body is included in the membership of the first. This will be the initial joint meeting In the history of those who will take part, and the place of convening will be the beautiful Alexandra Hotel, Winnipeg. The superintendents will hold their meeting, June 13 and 14, and the two days following will be under the auspices of the National Association, and of interest to the entire profession. It had been arranged that the place of convention should have been Vancouver, but war conditions affected this as in other cases, and the central position of Winnipeg was a commendation. Another point in favor of the Prairie Province is that it is the first to provide for the registration of nurses, and in this respect is in advance of its contemporaries, so the honor rightly goes there. Representatives are expected from many Canadian centres. The delegates will be the guests of the Manitoba Association of Graduate Nurses, who are preparing many pleasant things for their visitors. Miss Gunn of the Toronto General Hospital is president of the National Association, and is expected to preside.

Many houses are burned, and only a dog limps up to us; poor fellow, left alone. Stars shine, and no sound is anywhere. We croep along a ruined wall. Then a shadow falls across the path. We drop behind a tree, and wait. All is silent save the thumping of my heart."

for fresh activity, and thought of the many people living in crowded city tenements who could find work and shome in these quiet places and she determined to bring them together. Tumble-down cottages were restored, rough huts rehabilitated. Even abandoned barns and outhouses were made clean and strong, and pressed into use. A bit of paint and chintz did the rest. Old furniture was rescued from sheds and attics and put into sood condition, and all the dilapidation of the village turned into order and beauty. The cottages are let for a few shillings a week and are never vacant.

taken into court and he was compelled not only to continue the allowance but to pay three months' arrears.

The ordinary average man does not like to be eclipsed by his wife; it hurts his pride to find out that she is his mental and business superior. Sometimes, for peace and quietness' sake, she chooses to remain in the background rather than alienate her husband's love altogether. Sometimes she asserts herself. The ideal marriage is one in which the husband is the mental superior and his success is her joy and pride. She must not try to emulate it or there will be ship-wreck.

Those who drive along country roads, seeing here and there neglected, abandoned farmhouses or empty cottages in remote little towns, will be interested to hear of the work of Miss Mary Campbell Smith who, several years ago, set about reclaiming a number of deserted English villages. She saw the need of the dozing hamlets for fresh activity, and thought of the many people living in crowded city VELVET FOOT RESTS.

Velvet foot rests for home use are new and unusual, being decorated with a new style of work. One which measures three-quarters of a yard long, 18 inches wide and 12 inches high, is covered with black velvet piped with flame color, and in the centre there is an applied yellow velvet basket. The basket is filled with apples and grapes made of velvet, and stuffed to half their natural size. This work also appears on other and differently shaped rests, in conventionalized flower and fruit designs.

Ontario Horses Are Again Wanted for War

It will be good news to the farming community generally thruout Ontario that Sir Adam Beck is once more buying horses for the military authorities. As director of remounts he prefers to deal direct with the breeder or farmer, without the intervention of middlemen. He will attend in Toronto on Tuesdays and Wednesdays at the Union Stock Yards for this purpose, and will be in western Ontario points on other days of the week. He is buying draught horses of all kinds, artillery horses, transport horses, any suitable for army purposes. There has been a fear among the farmers that Ontario was not being fairly dealt with in the matter of horse purchases, and several stories of horses bought in the United States having gone thru Ontario have been circulated. The lack of shipping appears to be the true reason of the temporary cessation in buying.

Two notable farewells to the stage, and an unanticipated honor to a notable member of Three Great Actors the profession, have brought the dramatic world into prominence recently. Sir in The Public Johnston Forbes-Robertson is one of the stately figures of dramatic history, and full worthy of a place beside his old chief, Sir Henry Irving, the first of his kind to receive a title. Where Irving led, Forbes-Robertson followed with art as noble, thought as lofty, heart as kind and true as his great predecessor. Sir Johnston has not outworn his welcome, and it is with regret, and yet not ungrudgingly, that playgoers accept his withdrawal from the mimic world which he made so real and so beautiful. We shall not think of him perhaps as borne away on the shield of Fortinbras, but rather as the stranger who made such gracious warmth among the dwellers in the sordid London boarding house, and passing left the light shining behind him. Another figure of pleasant associations passed from the stage in the retirement of Mr. E. H. Sothern, better known in recent years in America than in England, where his father is still an honored memory. Sir Frederick H. Benson receives a wellmerited honor at the hand of his sovereign, dubbed knight with the stage sword at the Stratford memorial performances on the occasion of the Shakspere Tercentenary. Sir Frederick has been more, perhaps, the occasion of great acting than any one on the English stage. His companies have been the training ground for generations of fine actorsand he is no mean performer himself. It is as a producer and a Shaksperian revivalist, however, that his fame chiefly flourishes, and for 26 years he has put on the Stratford annual performances.

Physique is No Measure of Heroism

Amid the many slurs that have been cast against certain classes of our citizens in connection with their enlistment or their inability to enlist on account of failure to come up to standards which are more severe than those of almost any army in the world, it should not be forgotten that these men and their fellows, differing from them perhaps, by a half-inch in stature or an inch in chest development or some such trivial matter, have proved themselves by their voluntary and ready enlistment, and by their courage and endurance on the field of battle to be the equal in sturdy heroism, in endurance, in the quiet bravery that plays its part unflinchingly and unassumingly—the equal of any troops in the world. This phenomenon must not be overlooked. It is a marvelous testimony to the essentially Divine quality and potentiality in men of every degree. Men of all breeds and of all met-tles are concerned in bringing the war to a successful issue, and in upholding the great principles of British civilization which have been established and maintained hitherto at such great cost. In these new lands it is especially necessary that all who throw in their lot with that of the new nation of the west should be willing to throw in their lives as well as their wealth, their honor as well as their prosperity. Those who have had better opportunities in life than others bear the greater responsibility to bring about the reforms which may be needed to give more equal opportunities to those who are deprived of privileges generally and justly valued. All classes of society are now engaged in a life-and-death struggle to preserve intact the life of the nation and the liberties and privileges which have been won by the British breed in the course of the centuries.

a few days last week in connection with the Zionist movement. Mr. Raskin's inspiring addresses stirred several gatherings of the children of Zion with pictures of what is being done in the sacred land of Palestine. His vision of Palestine is not the crude conception which some people entertain about what they regard as a fad but is as reasonable, as right, and as beautiful as the national dream of any people. The Hebrew race has been as ardent as the Germans, but their humanity has been of another order of life. Christians still believe that the meek shall inherit the earth. cannot deny to the inheritors of the meekness of Moses the land which was given to their fathers. It is an essay in nation-planning which the true Zionist has in view. The Jews have been torn from their natural habitat, like some sweet flower wrenched from its valley home, and dragged into a cellar to blench and straggle and creep with spindly stalks towards a ray of light. If the Jews were set down once more in normal conditions the Zionists believe that they would gradually minimize the defects acquired during long wanderings and many hardships, and develop the inherent qualities of their nationality. The majestic figures of Moses, of Elijah, of Isaiah, of Ezekiel, of David and Hezekiah arise in the mind and those who have read the apocryphal books can never forget the noble sons of the Maccabees. During the last twenty centuries the history of the Jews has not been made by them, but for them, as Mr. Raskin puts it. They have been furnished with a ready-made, hand-me-down history, so to speak. They have had to apologize for living, as tho the right to live were not inherent. Since the war broke out the "Actions Committee" which has charge of Zionist affairs, and which is composed of members of all the nations irrespective of their belligerency, has had three meetings, held, no doubt, at great personal risk to the members. The work of re-peopling Palestine goes forward steadily. The Turkish government has been very fair and decent, Mr. Raskin affirms. Forty years ago the land was a desert. Now there are 48 colonies with 10,000 agriculturists. The whole population of Palestine is 500,000 and there are 100,000 Banks have been established at Jerusalem, Jaffa, Hebron, Saffed and Haifa. Schools have been opened everwhere, and the pure Hebrew tongue of the Scriptures is spoken, not any Yiddish or other dialect, but the language of the Hebrew prayers. Mr. Raskin thinks that the new Palestine will translate the true Hebrew spirit and culture

CHRONICLES BY THE KHAN

The Garden of Imortelles.

I'm going far across the sea. Across the waters wide. I who once had hoped to be A proud and happy bride. Now, when the downy catkins wave

And soft spring days advance, I go afar to find a gravemewhere in France. Alone I go, no help I crave,

My mission doth entrance I'll know where they have hid my brave, I'll seek until I find his grave Somewhere in France!

Some violets I will bring with me From out his garden small; A little baby lilac tree, Sweet William-that is all. And their sweet blooms shall smile and wave. Their tender leaves shall dance. For I shall plant them on his grave omewhere in France. I'll seek his grave and on his tomb Shall grow his own home plants; I shall place them—they shall bloom And fill the air with sweet perfume Somewhere in France! They asked me where they buried him. His comrades have forgot.

On hillside or in tangles dim My soul shall find the spot! I'll tell my lover why I came With his wee little plants, And, oh! I'll call him by his name Somewhere in France! Somewhere o'er the ocean grand, O'er the wide expanse, Somewhere in an alien land, Somewhere on a foreign strand, Somewhere in France!

One Language Enough!

In view of the fact that bilingualism is disturbing many minds in this great country, the following report by one of our war correspondents who will never return will be read with interest:

The great Hall of Beelzebub was filled with the senate and parliamentarians of Hades to hear a special address by Sathanus, who came surrounded by his magnificent satellites. He said in part:

"It gives me the greatest happiness indeed to meet you once again in this delightful month of May. I notice before me a great number of new faces—faces of soldiers and statesmen, poets, merchant princes, novelists, preachers, and famous murderers, thieves (Loud and prolonged cheering).

"I note with unfeigned pleasure that there is a great falling off in drunks and bums. I am like the average saloonkeeper: I hate a drunken man; he is no good. Just as soon as they sober up they get respectable and don't wish to stay here, thus making all kinds of trouble. The average drunk was the makings of an angel had he taken care of himself, but after we have given one of them a Turkish bath, a shave and a clean shirt, I'm damned if he don't want to go to The Other (Profound sensation). I wish it distinctly understood that this establishment is no place to sleep off a drunk in. (Hear, hear). I intend to erect a half-way house, where drunks can sober up, and then, same as them what if they wish to come on here, very good, but if they Julien to the sea!"

HAIL, LITTLE MARY, BEST LOVED OF THEM ALL IN THE PICTURES

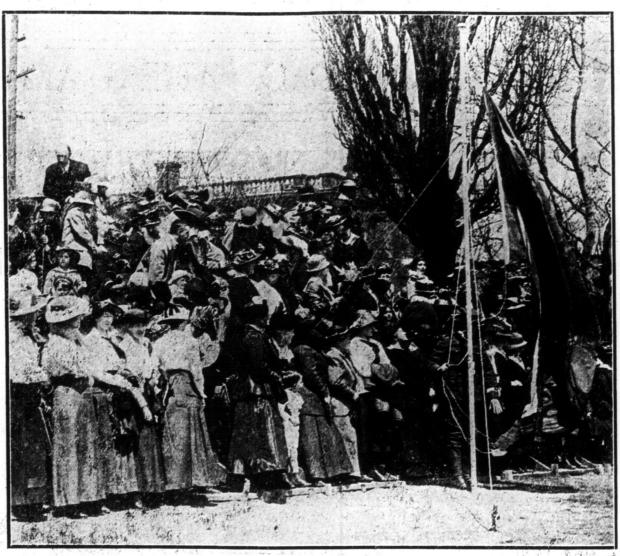

Mary Pickford! Her name stands out in the annals of motion pictures like an electric sign on a side street. We loved our Mary long before we had learned to love motion pictures as a whole. Miss Pickford is a Canadian and proud of it. She was born in Toronto, Canada, at 211 University avenue, on April 8th, 1893. She is, therefore, 23 years old. She has been in motion pictures ever since she was sixteen, having joined the old Biograph Company at that time. She was well known, however, long previous, as she went on the stage when but a little girl. Little Mary is five feet, one inch tall, has blue eyes and, golden hair. Far from being satiated with the admiring letters and gifts which deluge her, Miss Pickford says she gets the same thrills today as when, years ago, she drew her little old $25 a week. Nothing has given her more pleasure than the silver loving cup and album containing 13,651 autographs from Australian admirers. Now she has won The Toronto World's gold medal awarded to her by a majority vote of 778 World readers, who have recorded their names deciaration of the fact that she is the most popular motion picture actress in the estimation of Canadian theatregoers. Mary Pickford's salary is the highest ever payed to any female star of either stage or screen. Her contract for 1916 calls for $2000 per week, in addition to a fifty per cent. share in the profits of every picture in which she appears.

WOMEN WORK FOR THE COMMON CAUSE HERE AND IN ENGLAND

The winning car on Kitchener Day. Mrs. Oliver Hezzlewood and her aides, who collected $1161.52 to aid recruiting.

These young women, chaperoned by Mrs. W. J. Wilkinson, "covered" three important points in the east end. They had a novel devi ce, pincushions attached to staffs, to which their buttons were attached.

THE MOST IMPRESSIVE MILITARY SERVICE EVER HELD IN CANADA

Panorama looking north, showing the twenty massed bands, aggregating over 600 musicians, and the invited guests of the headquarters staff.

Second section, showing the main body of troops and the huge crowd that filled the park to watch the soldiers.

The pulpit, massed bands and invited guests, with the Highland Brigade in the background, complete the picture.

This panoramic photograph, taken specially for The Sunday World, was over nine feet long, and shows the entire concourse of soldiers and civilians that attended the divine service on April 30 in Queen's Park. The first section starts looking due north and swings around to the east.

SIXTY TONS OF BULLET METAL

To keep up with orders for manufacturing bullets for shrap nel shells. The Canada Metal Co. of Fraser avenue, Toronto, installed this immense melting pot. It is the largest of its kind in the British Empire. The pot has just been emptied and in the moulds there is sufficient metal to make sixty tons of bullets. This melting pot is also used in alloying tin, antimony, etc., for the manufacture of Babbitt Metals.
