The Strictly Cash System

With all the accruing benefits both to customer and merchant has been before our minds for some time. We have longed to put this system into practice and yet stood as it were shivering on the brink afraid to take the plunge, although we felt it would be nice once we got safely in. Now when we are starting in our new store and practically starting a new business, one which we propose to keep to the front, and up-to-date in every particular, we propose also to inaugurate

A CASH SYSTEM.

This will mean a decided benefit, not only to ourselves but to our customers as well. To us it will mean an immense amount of labor saved in the keeping of accounts. To our customers it will mean closer prices, as the saving which we hope to effect will be turned to the benefit of our customers. By March first we hope to have this system in complete working order.

BURGLARS GOT LITTLE BOOTY.

But Shot and Killed a man While Effecting Their Escape—Were Captured.

ENTER, N. H., Feb. 10.—Two burglars blew open the safe in Luddy & Curran's shoe factory at Dover, N. H., early today and escaped by boarding an express train, and shooting and killing a frightened and unoffending Italian when an attempt to arrest them was made by the conductor of the train when they reached Rockingham Junction. They secured only $15 from the factory. The Italian started to leave the car at Rockingham Junction, where upon one of the robbers fired five shots at him, all of which took effect, killing him almost instantly. In the confusion which followed the two men jumped from the car and disappeared in the woods. After an extensive search both men were captured in an exhausted condition. One of the burglars is Joseph Golin, a French Canadian, but the name of his companion, who is believed to be the Italian, is not known. It is supposed the men counted on securing the money for the payroll of the factory, but in this they were disappointed, the money for this purpose being in the form of a check.

BOOM COMPANY IS CONSIDERED.

Commissioners Find That Boom Co. Charge too High Tolls.

ARE NOT DILIGENT.

Allow Much Lumber to go Adrift—Should own Ferguson's Point.

(Special to Advocate) Fredericton, N. B., Feb. 12.—In the Local Legislature this afternoon Mr. Osmond presented a petition of Aaron B. Cope, stating that road over his marsh, connecting with the great road near Harvey, Cope & Light Co., had been long closed and asking that this road be struck off the list of public roads and the land revert to the owner.

Hon. Mr. Tweedie presented the report of the Commissioners appointed to investigate the charges against the Hestegouche Boom Co. which he read. The charges were that the tolls were too high, that Ferguson's Point should be owned by the Boom Co. and that it is absolutely necessary to the Boom Co. in order that they may carry on the booming operations. They further find that the Co. is not charged with negligence for the loss of lumber, the reason of any lack of equipment at the boom, but that it is not satisfied that the Co. has been diligent in following escaped lumber.

The house adjourned at 1.30 p. m.

DEATH OF E. B. EDDY, OF HULL.

His Wife a New Brunswick Lady.

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—One of Canada's industrial lads died today in the person of E. B. Eddy, the well known Hull manufacturer. Few men have stamped their impress on the industrial life of this section of the country to a greater degree than the Eddy paper matches and woodenware which he manufactured for the market all over the world. The deceased was a native of Bristol, Vermont, was born in 1827 and located in Hull in 1856. Despite the cares of his great business enterprises, notwithstanding the enormous losses which he suffered from fire, necessitating renewed application and energy, Mr. Eddy realized fully his duty as a citizen. He was an ardent conservative and sat for one term in the Quebec legislature. He was mayor of Hull for several years and stood high in the Masonic fraternity. Mr. Eddy was twice married. His first wife who was a Miss Arnold died in 1896. His widow, formerly Miss Jennie Sheriff, of Chatham, N. B. His only grandson is at school at Rothesay. The remains are to be buried in Vermont.

NEW BRUNSWICK SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Ask for Increased Provincial Grants and a Minimum Salary.

The teachers' association of New Brunswick last week presented a petition to the government setting forth that the salaries paid teachers are so low in view of the training and expense required and the increased cost of living as a result of which there were a few districts last year with no teachers. The petition asks for an increase to the school law providing for compulsory education, based on the basis of as soon as possible of local and third class houses, increased grants from the provincial government to a minimum of $100 for first class and $150 for second class, and $100 and $150 for first and second class respectively, and the payment of a system of pensions to teachers.

A VERDICT OF GUILTY.

Coroner's Jury Fixes Harvey Murderer Kavanagh.

St. John's, N. B., Feb. 9.—It took the coroner's jury less than five minutes yesterday to render a verdict of guilty against George Stanley Kavanagh, of the well known murder of Herman Horvitz, at St. John's, between the hours of 8.30 p. m. on Friday night last and 1 o'clock on Saturday morning.

The Fishers, Land and James, the father and son, who had been arrested in connection with the crime, were discharged from custody, and Stanley was taken back to St. John's to await his trial.

OBITUARY.

MRS. W. J. PARK.

Mrs. Park, widow of the late Wm. Park, Esq., one of Newcastle's most respected citizens, died at her home last Wednesday morning. Mrs. Park had contracted a cold and had been ill only a few days when she passed away.

The deceased lady had always been active in church, missionary and temperance work. She was for years the leading worker in the W. C. T. U. in which she was deeply interested. A devout member of St. James' Presbyterian Church she will be missed from its meetings.

Three sons, William, Collector of Customs and Charles all at home, and one daughter Mrs. (Dr.) Bishop of Bathurst, survive.

The funeral Friday afternoon was largely attended, interment being in the family lot in St. James Cemetery.

MRS. MARY A. McORMICK.

Newcastle mourns the death of another aged and respected resident, Mrs. Mary A. McORMICK, who died at her home last Tuesday. The deceased lady was 85 years of age. Two sons, John and James and one daughter Miss Jane, all of Newcastle, survive.

The funeral Thursday afternoon was largely attended, interment being in St. James Cemetery. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. Mr. Snell assisted by Rev. Mr. Arnott.

POSTMASTER OF FREDERICTON.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—John A. Edwards is appointed postmaster of Fredericton.

The Return of Sherlock Holmes.

By A. Conan Doyle,

Author of "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," "The Hound of the Baskervilles," "The Sign of the Four," "A Study in Scarlet," Etc.
(Illustrated by F. D. Single.)

"A simple case, and yet in some ways an instructive one," Holmes remarked as we traveled back to town. "It hinged from the outset upon the piece of paper. But for the fortunate chance of the dying man having seized this I am not sure that we could ever have reached our solution. It was clear to me, from the strength of the glasses, that the wearer must have been very blind and helpless when deprived of them. When you asked me to believe that she walked along a narrow strip of grass without once making a false step I remarked, as you may remember, that it was a noteworthy performance. In my mind I set it down as an impossible performance save in the unlikely case that she had a second pair of glasses. I was forced, therefore, to seriously consider the hypothesis that she had remained within the house. On perceiving the similarity of the two corridors it became clear that she might very easily have made such a mistake, and in that case it was evident that she must have entered the professor's room. I was keenly on the alert, therefore, for whatever would bear out this supposition, and I examined the room narrowly for anything in the shape of a hiding place. The carpet seemed continuous and firmly nailed, so I dismissed the idea of a trapdoor. There might well be a recess behind the books. As you are aware, such devices are common in old libraries. I observed that books were piled on the floor at all other points, but that one bookcase was left clear. This, then, might be the door. I could see no marks to guide me, but the carpet was of a dun color, which lends itself very well to examination. I therefore smoked a great number of those excellent cigarettes, and I dropped the ash all over the space in front of the suspected bookcase. It was a simple trick, but exceedingly effective. I then went downstairs, and I ascertained in your presence, Watson, without your perceiving the drift of my remarks, that Professor Coram's consumption of food had increased—as one would expect when he is supplying a second person. We then ascended to the room again when, by upsetting the cigarette box, I obtained a very excellent view of the floor and was able to see quite clearly from the traces upon the cigarette ash that the prisoner had in his absence come out from her retreat. Well, Hopkins, here we are at Charing Cross, and I congratulate you on having brought your case to a successful conclusion. You are going to headquarters, no doubt. I think, Watson, you and I will drive together to the Russian embassy."

WORKING WOMEN

Their Hard Struggle Made Easier—Interesting Statements by a Young Lady in Quebec and One in Beauport, Que.

All women work: some in their homes, some in church, and some in the whirl of society. And in stores, mills and shops tens of thousands are on the never-ceasing treadmill, earning their daily bread.

All are subject to the same physical laws; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbance, and the nature of their duties, in many cases, quickly drifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, ovarian troubles, leucorrhoea, falling and displacements of the womb, leucorrhoea, or perhaps irregularity or suppression of "monthly periods," causing backache, nervousness, irritability and lassitude.

Women who stand on their feet all day are more susceptible to these troubles than others.

They especially require an invigorating, sustaining medicine which will strengthen the female organism and enable them to bear easily the fatigues of the day, to sleep well at night, and to rise refreshed and cheerful.

How distressing to see a woman struggling to earn a livelihood or perform her household duties when her back and head are aching, she is so tired she can hardly drag about or stand up, and every movement causes pain, the origin of which is due to some derangement of the female organism.

Mlle. Alma Robitaille of 78 rue St. Francois, Quebec, Que., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"Overwork and long hours at the office, together with a neglected child, brought on a very serious female trouble until finally I was unable to go to work. I then thought of a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when her health was in the same condition that mine was, and straightway sent out for a bottle. I finished that and took two more before I really began to improve, but after that my recovery was very rapid, and I was soon well and able to go back to work again. I certainly think your medicine for sick women worthy of praise, and am indeed glad to endorse it."

Miss Clara Beaubien of Beauport, Quebec, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"For several years I have suffered with Leucorrhoea, which has been a serious drain on my vitality, sapping my strength and causing severe headaches, bearing down pains and a general weariness, until I really had no desire to live. I tried many medicines, but did not get permanent relief until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In two months I was very much better and stronger, and in four months I was well, no more disagreeable discharge, no more pain. So I have every reason to praise the Vegetable Compound, and I consider it without equal for the ills of women."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for all these troubles. It strengthens the proper muscles, and displacement with all its horrors will no more crush you.

Backache, dizziness, fainting, bearing down pains, disordered stomach, moodiness, dislike of friends and society—all symptoms of the one cause—will be quickly dispelled, and it will make you strong and well.

You can tell the story of your sufferings to a woman, and receive helpful advice free of cost. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

rival of an enormous young man, sixteen stone of solid bone and muscle, who spanned the doorway with his broad shoulders and looked from one of us to the other with a comely face which was haggard with anxiety.

"Mr. Sherlock Holmes?"

My companion bowed.

"I've been down to Scotland Yard, Mr. Holmes. I saw Inspector Stanley Hopkins. He advised me to come to you. He said the case, so far as he could see, was more in your line than in that of the regular police."

"Tray sit down and tell me what is the matter?"

"It's awful, Mr. Holmes. Simply awful! I wonder my hair isn't gray. Godfrey Staunton—you've heard of him, of course? He's simply the hinge that the whole team turns on. I'd rather spare two from the pack and have Godfrey for my three-quarter line. Whether it's passing or tackling or dribbling there's no one to touch him, and, then, he's got the head and can hold us all together. What am I to do? That's what I ask you, Mr. Holmes. There's Moorhouse, first reserve, but he's trained as a half, and he always edges right in on to the scrum instead of keeping out on the touch line. He's a fine place kick, it's true, but then he has no judgment, and he can't sprit for nuts. Why, Morton or Johnson, the Oxford fliers, could romp round him. Stevenson is fast enough, but he couldn't drop from the twenty-five line, and a three-quarter who can't either punt or drop isn't worth a place for pace alone. No, Mr. Holmes, we are done unless you can help me to find Godfrey Staunton."

"My friend had listened with amused surprise to this long speech, which was poured forth with extraordinary vigor and earnestness, every point being driven home by the slapping of a brawny hand upon the speaker's knee. When our visitor was silent Holmes stretched out his hand and took down letter 'S' of his commonplace book. For once he dug in vain into that mine of varied information.

"There is Arthur H. Staunton, the rising young fencer," said he, "and there was Henry Staunton, whom I helped to hang, but Godfrey Staunton is a new name to me."

"It was our visitor's turn to look surprised.

"Why, Mr. Holmes, I thought you knew things," said he. "I suppose, then, if you have never heard of Godfrey Staunton, you don't know Cyril Overton either?"

Holmes shook his head good humoredly.

"Great Scott!" cried the athlete. "Why, I was first reserve for England against Wales, and I've skinned the varsity all this year. But that's nothing! I didn't think there was a soul in England who didn't know Godfrey Staunton, the crack three-quarter, Cambridge, Blackheath, and five internationals. Good Lord, Mr. Holmes, where have you lived?"

Holmes laughed at the young giant's naive astonishment.

"You live in a different world from me, Mr. Overton—a sweeter and healthier one. My ramifications stretch out into many sections of society, but never into the happy life of a sportsman."

"I am happy to say, into amateur sport, which is the best and soundest thing in England. However, your unexpected visit this morning shows me that even in that world of fresh air and fair play there may be work for me to do. So now, my good sir, I beg you to sit down and tell me, slowly and quietly, exactly what it is that has occurred and how you desire that I should help you."

Young Overton's face assumed the bothered look of a man who is more accustomed to using his muscles than his wits, but by degrees, with many repetitions and obscurities which I may omit from his narrative, he laid his strange story before us.

"It's this way, Mr. Holmes. As I have said, I am the skipper of the Rugby team of Cambridge varsity, and Godfrey Staunton is my best man. Tomorrow we play Oxford. Yesterday we all came up, and we settled at Bentley's private hotel. At one o'clock I went round and saw that all the fellows had gone to roost, for I believe in strict training and plenty of sleep to keep a team fit. I had a word or two with Godfrey before he turned in. He seemed to me to be pale and bothered. I asked him what was the matter. He said he was all right—just a touch of headache. He bade him good night and left him. Half an hour later, the porter tells me, a rough looking man with a beard called with a note for Godfrey. He had not gone to bed, and the note was taken to his room. Godfrey read it and fell back in a chair as if he had been pole axed. The porter was so scared that he was going to fetch me, but Godfrey stopped him, had a drink of water and pulled himself together. Then he went downstairs, said a few words to the man who was waiting in the hall, and the two of them went off together. The last that the porter saw of them they were almost running down the street in the direction of the Strand. This morning Godfrey's room was empty, his bed had never been slept in, and his things were all just as I had seen them the night before. Here I had gone off at a moment's notice with this stranger, and no word has come from him since. I don't believe he will ever come back. He was a sportsman, was Godfrey, down to his marrow, and he wouldn't have stopped his training and let in his skipper if it were not for some cause that was too strong for him. No; I feel as if he were gone for good, and we should never see him again."

Sherlock Holmes listened with the deepest attention to this singular narrative.

"What did you do?" he asked.

"I wired to Cambridge to learn if anything had been heard of him there. I have had an answer. No one has seen him."

"Could he have got back to Cambridge?"

"Yes; there is a late train—quarter past 11."

"But, so far as you can ascertain, he has not taken it?"

"No; he has not been seen."

"What did you do next?"

"I wired to Lord Mount-James."

"Why to Lord Mount-James?"

"Godfrey is an orphan, and Lord Mount-James is his nearest relative—his uncle, I believe."

"Indeed, this throws new light upon the matter. Lord Mount-James is one of the richest men in England."

"So I've heard Godfrey say."

"And your friend was closely related?"

"Yes; he was his heir, and the old boy is nearly eighty—crank full of gout too. They say he could chalk his billiard cue with his knuckles. He never allowed Godfrey a shilling in his life, for he is an absolute miser, but it will all come to him right enough."

"Have you heard from Lord Mount-James?"

"No."

"What motive could your friend have in going to Lord Mount-James?"

"Well, something was worrying him the night before, and if it was to do with money it is possible that he would make for his nearest relative, who had so much of it, though from all I have heard he would not have much chance of getting it. Godfrey was not fond of the old man. He would not go if he could help it."

"Well, we can soon determine that. If your friend was going to his relative, Lord Mount-James, you have then to explain the visit of this rough looking fellow at so late an hour and the agitation that was caused by his coming."

Cyril Overton pressed his hands to his head. "I can make nothing of it," said he.

"Well, well, I have a clear day, and I shall be happy to look into the matter," said Holmes. "I should strongly recommend you to make your preparations for your match without reference to this young gentleman. It must, as you say, have been an overpowering necessity which tore him away in such a fashion, and the same necessity is likely to hold him away. Let us step round together to the hotel and see if the porter can throw any fresh light upon the matter."

Sherlock Holmes was a past master in the art of putting a humble witness at his ease, and very soon, in the privacy of Godfrey Staunton's abandoned room, he had extracted all that the porter had to tell. The visitor of the night before was not a gentleman, neither was he a workman. He was simply what the porter described as a "medium looking chap," a man of fifty, beard grizzled, pale face, quietly dressed. He seemed himself to be agitated. The porter had observed his hands trembling when he had held out the note. Godfrey Staunton had crammed the note into his pocket. Staunton had not shaken hands with the man in the hall. They had exchanged a few sentences, of which the porter had only distinguished the one word "time."

Then they had hurried off in the manner described. It was just half-past 10 by the hall clock.

"Let me see," said Holmes, seating himself on Staunton's bed. "You are the day porter, are you not?"

"Yes, sir. I go off duty at 11."

"The night porter saw nothing, I suppose?"

"No, sir. One theater party came in late; no one else."

"Were you on duty all day yesterday?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you take any messages to Mr. Staunton?"

"Yes, sir; one telegram."

"Ah, that's interesting. What o'clock was this?"

"About 6."

"Where was Mr. Staunton when he received it?"

"Here in his room."

"Were you present when he opened it?"

"Yes, sir; I waited to see if there was an answer."

"Well, was there?"

"Yes, sir; he wrote an answer."

"Did you take it?"

"No; he took it himself."

"But he wrote it in your presence?"

"Yes, sir. I was standing by the door and he wrote with his back turned at the table. When he had written it he said, 'All right, porter, I will take this myself.'"

"What did he write it with?"

"A pen, sir."

"Was the telegraphic form one of these on the table?"

"Yes, sir; it was the top one."

Holmes rose. Taking the forms, he carried them over to the window and carefully examined that which was uppermost.

"It is a pity he did not write in pencil," said he, throwing them down again, with a shrug of disappointment. "As you have no doubt frequently observed, Watson, the impression usually goes through a fact which has discovered a man a happy marriage. However, I can find no trace here. I rejoice, however, to perceive that he wrote with a broad pointed quill pen, and I can hardly doubt that we will find some impression upon this blotting pad. Ah, yes, surely this is the very thing!"

He tore off a strip of the blotting paper and turned toward us the following hieroglyphic:

English Trade with Canada

In a letter to the London Chronicle John Atkinson Hobson, who is almost as well-known here as he is in his own country addresses a humility to the British nation on the neglect of its opportunities for trade with Canada. It has doubtless been an inexplicable fact to British traders and the British people generally that the preferential tariff arrangement, into which Canada has entered with the mother country, has not produced the results that were hoped for and naturally expected. As an abstract proposition Canada would much prefer to get those articles that she must import, from England, and of course Englishmen would much prefer that she should, and there has been an attempt made to shape conditions to that end yet every year she buys more and more from the United States and of the steady increase in the volume of her purchases this country continues to get her full proportional share.

Mr. Hobson's explanation is quite simple and seems plausible.
Every artificial stimulus weakens the incentive to honest enterprise, he says. This is a direct slap at Chamberlainism of which preferential tariff are an inseparable part. Having what they suppose is a handicap in their favor, the English manufacturers neglect sound business methods. Their competitors in this country keep a constant stream of commercial travellers flowing through the towns of Canada; there are at least a hundred Americans on the road for every Englishman, and if the representative of an American concern does not succeed the first time he keeps on going, while the Englishman is so far from his base that he generally gives up on the first repulse.

Of course propinquity gives us a commanding natural advantage and one of which no commercial agreements or restrictive arrangements can ever rob us. American business working for us in the houses, in places of business, at the end of the railroads is one of our advertising. On first glance more freely than the British in Canada they enjoy a preponderance of the best elements of advertisement, the periodical literature. The low-priced American magazines circulate extensively through the Dominion, and are obtainable at at almost the cost of postage on the British variety. Even the edition of The Strand, which is most read in Canada, is American, and its advertisements are of American goods. When the Canadian reader is strongly confronted by attractive proclamations of novelties and even of staples, which have their headquarters in Boston, New York, Chicago, Detroit or Toledo, he is not thinking of preferential tariffs, or of any debt of commercial loyalty to either Birmingham, Sheffield, or London.

In conclusion Mr. Hobson says:
The appointment of a responsible trade agent in Ottawa with a couple of clerks, and a carefully chosen correspondence in Halifax, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, and Vancouver, could do vastly more for British export trade with Canada than any present tariff terms which Canada is capable of giving.

THE CITY OF CROCODILES.

An Ancient Site Said to Have Been Built by Pharaohs.

The crocodile, one of the most sacred animals of the east, has given its name to several ancient sites. Of the various "cities of crocodiles," the names of which have been handed down to us by Herodotus, Ptolemy and Strabo, perhaps the most striking was the "Crocodilopo-lis" of the ancient Egyptian province of Fayum, which, according to tradition, was built by that pharaoh who "made the lives of the children of Israel terrible with hard service."

This province lies within an almost complete circle of hills—a little oasis in the midst of the desert, where roses and grapes mingle with figs and olives and luxuriant palm trees grow almost into forests.

Its capital is Medinet, and a little to the north of the city are a number of irregularly shaped mounds. Beneath these are the ruins of the pharaoh built "Crocodilopolis," the "City of Crocodiles," later called Arsinoe, and the shrine of the sacred crocodile of the neighboring Lake Moeris, which was then 450 miles in circumference.

This lake held the sacred crocodiles, and as each died in turn it was buried in one of the 1,500 underground sepulchers of the world famed "Labyrinth" at hand, side by side with the embalmed bodies of successive pharaohs.

THE NAME AMERICA.

When It Was First Proposed For the Newly Found Continent.

The name of America for the newly discovered continent was first proposed in the little volume put forth at St. Die, in the Vosges, in the year 1507 by Waldevmuller, better known by the Hellenized form of his name, Hylacomylus. Three or four editions of this treatise were published at St. Die before 1507, and a few years afterward an edition without date was printed at Lyons by Jean de la Place. All these editions are of extreme rarity, and probably that printed at Lyons is the rarest of all, though the library of the British museum possesses two copies of it. It has never been suggested that any maps were engraved to accompany either of the editions, but it has always been supposed that the earliest map with the word "America" marked on the new found world was the "Typus Orbis," engraved on wood for the "Enarrationes Joannis Cameris in C.
Julii Solini Periegesin," printed at Vienna in 1530 for Joannes Sincerenus.
The map in the title is represented as a long island, on which is the inscription: "ALLO d. 1497 hinc terram cum adventibus insulis inventa est per Columbum Januensem ex mandato regis Castelle. America provincia."

BRET HARTE AS A HUNTER.

The Reassuring Message He Received
After an Accident.

During the time he acted as United States consul in Glasgow Bret Harte occasionally indulged in a day's sport with the gun, and it was during one of his shooting excursions that the famous American author met with an accident which might have disfigured him for the remainder of his life, his face being badly cut through the recoil of an overloaded gun. Fortunately the doctor's skill prevented him from being permanently marked.

Writing about the occurrence to his friend, F. Edgar Penherton (who quotes the letter in his "Tribute to Bret Harte"), the novelist concludes his letter by telling of an amusing effort which was made to console him on account of the accident.
"When the surgeon was stitching me together," he wrote, "the son of the house, a boy of twelve, came timidly to the door of my room.
"Tell Mr. Bret Harte it's all right,"
he said. "He killed the hare!"

Preservative Peat.

Peat possesses wonderful antiseptic and preservative qualities owing to the presence of tannin, iron and other substances in it. Here is an instance: At the time of the covenanters, in 1655, three men were shot at a place called Crossgelloch on the moors above Old Cumnock, in Scotland. In 1825, when a monument was being erected to their memory, the workmen came upon the corpses rolled in their plaids. The bodies were in exactly the same state as when they were buried. The moss had preserved them as if they had been embalm.

Artificial Flowers.
It was in Italy that a demand for artificial flowers first arose. This was due primarily to a caprice of fashion which demanded that during festivals blossoms in and out of their seasons should be worn and also to the fact that their color and freshness were stable. Later on, in the middle ages, the artificial so far superseded the natural that both men and women decked their heads with imitation flowers of cambric, paper, glass and metal. The best artificial flowers are now made in Paris.

How to Succeed.
Believe in yourself, believe in humanity, believe in the success of your undertakings. Fear nothing and no one.
Love your work. Work, hope, trust.
Keep in touch with today. Teach yourself to be practical and up to date and sensible. You cannot fail.

All She Wanted.
"Do you think, young man, that you could give my daughter all she asks for?" questioned a parent grimly.
"I—oh—think so, sir," murmured the lover bashfully. "She says she wants only me."

A man must be both stupid and uncharitable who believes there is no virtue or truth but on his own side.—
Addison.

The Union Advocate,

ESTABLISHED 1867.

NEWCASTLE, FEBRUARY 14, 1906.

AN AMUSING VIEW OF OURSELVES.

John A. Hobson, the noted writer on economic questions, has been visiting Canada and sending letters to the London Chronicle. He draws the following accurate and amusing picture of Canadians:

In the St. James' Club, at Montreal or the Rideau at Ottawa, and still more prevalent in Toronto, you find a sort of Canadian who prides himself upon being conspicuously British, and is loud in his denunciation of the United States, her politics, her commercial methods, and her ways of life. This, indeed may be described as the distinctive attitude of the well-to-do Canadian, who seems everywhere to think himself more English than American. In point of fact the very club in which he thus descants is a typically American product. Its foods, cooking and modes of service are American; the antiprindal cocktail, the absence of alcohol from table, the literature in the reading-room, the talk of sport and stocks and industrial development, the very tone of voice, is not English, but American. No one familiar with the States can fail in all the details of life to detect the common character.

Great Britain is, of course, somewhat more in evidence here than in the Republic; the cocktail habit, for instance, is conjoined with that use of whiskey-and-soda which prevails throughout the Empire; English books and magazines compete in fairly equal terms with American; Punch, The Spectator, the chief illustrated weeklies, and occasionally the Times, are found in clubs and libraries, though the New York journals, and such periodicals as Munsey's and Everybody's Magazine are far more widely read. Some particular attention is given to English sporting matters. I found a great sweepstakes on the Cambridgeshire widely advertised in Vancouver, while in the chief book-stall of this far-distant city a pile of the Sporting Times was the most conspicuous representative of English literature.

Turning from the well-to-do habitues of clubs and hotels to the ordinary man in the street and woman in the home, he and she are American through and through, though with modifying circumstances, which I will indicate presently. Take the life of the street, the store signs, the dressing of the windows, the plate-glass publicity of the hotels, the palaces where one sits upon a gilded throne, coram populo, to have one's shoes blacked for ten cents, the omnipresent candy store and its sympathetic drug-store, the ill-made streets, with the prevalence of plank-paths, the promiscuous levee of the hotel-hall, the highly heated rooms and cars, the waiter, who openly peruses a newspaper you have just laid down the conductor and the brakeman, who sit down at your table in the dining car and treat your feeble attempts at conversation with the brusque superiority of their order—all this is distinctively American.

The differences are mostly of degree the superb self-confidence of the average American woman, as she walks abroad, the licensed obtrusiveness of children, the perpetual degeneracy of conversation into story-telling—these characteristics are less marked in Canada than in the States. In fact, Canada presents as yet a sub-American variety of civilisation, though in some ways rapidly assimilating to the States.—Quoted in February Canadian Magazine.

The Finnish murder of Freeman Harvie at Ellershouse, Hants County, N.S. has been fixed by the coroner's jury on Kavanagh, a recent English immigrant, who is also suspected of having burned St. Luke's Cathedral at Halifax. If the charge against the prisoner is proved, it may place the authorities on guard against the dumping of undesirable persons in this country as immigrants. Ex.

CIVIC MATTERS.

More and more in Canadian cities and towns is being felt the urgent need of having high minded and able men at the council boards. This fact is being impressed upon the electors of the Town of Newcastle by the fermentation amongst its people.

The Scott Act question is the all-absorbing topic of the day and other very important projects of vital interest to the town are being overshadowed. The coming year will be a busy one. The building of permanent sidewalks, the extension of the electric light system to the Northwest bridge, the establishing of a fire district and additions to the water system, the disposal of town debentures, and the suppression of the liquor traffic will be features of prominence before the new council. Indeed if the new board had nothing to contend with but the suppression of the sale of intoxicants it would not be idle, if the manner in which the present board dealt with it is a criterion by which to judge the difficulty of the undertaking.

The Town Council generally has received the blame for the lax manner in which the Scott Act has been enforced; and it is a notorious fact that intoxicating liquor is being sold openly in nearly a dozen places within the town limits. So public had it become that in June last one of the leading temperance societies petitioned the Council for the enforcement of the Act. A report was, accordingly, brought in (among other things) in support of the petition, and a resolution that the report be adopted was passed unanimously. Such was the part taken by the council as a whole.

Now after this resolution was adopted it fell to the part of the Police and Appointment to Office Committee, as part of its duties, to see that the Act was enforced. In this the committee has made a sad failure and has not discharged its duties, even though its chairman is an active temperance worker. It is said that the policeman refused to obey the orders of the Committee, but was governed by other members of the council. If this was the case why did not the Police and Appointment to Office Committee at once dismiss him and appoint another instead of allowing things to drag along until the latter part of October, and then by sidetracking have the action of the council postponed until the end of

All Run Down

THIS is a common expression we hear on every side. Unless there is some organic trouble, the condition can doubtless be remedied. Your doctor is the best adviser. Do not dose yourself with all kinds of advertised remedies—get his opinion. More than likely you need a concentrated fat food to enrich your blood and tone up the system.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is just such a food in its best form. It will build up the weakened and wasted body when all other foods fail to nourish. If you are run down or emaciated, give it a trial: it cannot hurt you. It is essentially the best possible nourishment for delicate children and pale, anaemic girls. We will send you a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

January? The above committee is certainly open to censure in not reporting matters to the Council which had given it instructions to enforce the Act, as it is in this manner that the Council is officially made known the work of the different committees.

The coming election is looked forward to with much interest and many changes at the board are anticipated. Many of the present members mean to resign, others may be forced to do so on election day. There is no doubt that the temperance party, and they are now in force, will throw their influence with men who will support their views. Those who oppose the Scott Act on the other hand, will no doubt put forward men who will prove friendly to their interests. The existing council has certainly been ideal in this respect. Here centres the fight. The temperance party will make every effort to secure the balance of power and thus be in a position to grapple with the evil so prominent in the past. Those who have most to lose by such a change and their many sympathizers will make an equally vigorous effort to frustrate their designs. It is essential, therefore, that the new council (for it must be almost new) should be composed of men who are capable by experience and character of looking at such matters from a purely practical and public as well as from a sound business and moral standpoint. It is for the electorate to do its part by returning such men to the council chamber.

The electors have it in their power to ensure that the town's business and the town laws shall be conducted and enforced on sound business and moral lines. To do this they must make sure that they do not lend their support to any candidate for municipal honors who does not enjoy the confidence and respect of the people and who is not qualified by experience to watch over the people's interests. They should not countenance the reelection of any alderman who has proved himself to be unworthy of the trust.

The town council of this town ought to be—and there is no reason why it should not be—a membership which is looked upon as an honor and not with distrust and disgust. The same spirit should prevail here which exists in England and Scotland where the councils are composed of the most capable and most trusted men in the town or city. There the spirit of service is common, and has its own reward. Here there is less leisure and less community of purpose and consequently less aspiration to public service for its own sake. Yet there is no place where this form of patriotism is more needed especially at the present time. The town wants men in its council chamber who are content to give up their time and thought to furthering the town's development, who will study its needs and do its best to meet them in the way that will best serve the inhabitants—men who are above thought of personal gain and whose ambition is to make Newcastle second to none among the towns of this province in administration and in other directions consonant with sound business management. Such men would find in the gratitude of their fellow-citizens a very ample and lasting reward for their services.

PROPOSAL TO ROB NORTHUMBERLAND OF THE COUNTY JUDGESHIP.

The people of Northumberland may not say much, if a resident of Restigouche be appointed to succeed Judge Wilkinson, but they will do a good deal of thinking. They expected, when they sent a representative to Ottawa to support the Government, to get more rather than lose part of what they had. The appointment of Dr. Quigley would be satisfactory, because he belongs here, and would return here to live, but no Restigouche resident will be cheerfully accepted. The greater part of the business of the court arises in this district, and think of the inconvenience and expense of having to go to Campbellton every time it is necessary to see the County Court Judge, especially if the Judicature Act gave him sole jurisdiction in the civil cases that are now tried by magistrates. Mr. Murray, Mr. Winslow, Mr. Aitken, or Dr. Quigley would be accepted by all the people, but nobody will be satisfied with the selection of a Restigouche man. A Bathurst appointment would not be so objectionable, as Bathurst is not so far away, but there is no reason, sense or justice in going to Campbellton for an appointee. Such an appointment can only be made as the result of a disgraceful political deal. It is eminently and entirely unfit.—World

SHOOTING AFFAIR NEAR ST. GEORGE.

Jealous man Tries to kill Woman and Wounds Others.

ST. GEORGE, N. B., Feb. 13.—William Mason, of North Lubec, Me., in under arrest, charged with shooting Daniel Holland, and a young child belonging to a woman whom he wanted to marry. Four shots were fired, at the woman as she held the baby in her arms and two at Holland, but in the latter case Mason made a mistake, thinking it was Angus Cook he was firing at, and of whom it is thought he was jealous. Both the baby and Holland will probably recover. The shooting occurred at L'Etang, three and a half miles from here, Saturday night. According to Mason, who is about 26 years of age, Mary Holland, the woman, married James Garnett. According to report they separated after one week's life together. A child was born. Last December Angus Cook, of North Lubec, is reported to have married Mrs. Garnett, and subsequently, so it is claimed, the latter carried on correspondence with Mason, who was then living in North Lubec. Mason asserts he was led to believe that should a Calais lawyer make out papers which would divorce her from Garnett, all would be well between him and the woman. Mason also claims that all this time he was ignorant of the part Cook was playing.

On Saturday night last, Mason with the necessary papers, left Eastport for L'Etang to have the woman fill out the papers. Mason claims that when he reached her home he found her there; also the child and Angus Cook. The two latter ordered him to leave, he left but returned at a later hour, when none of them was around. Mason fired point blank but the ball took effect in the baby's arm. Once more Mason fired but the bullet went over the head of the intended victim. He ran out and was hurrying away when he met Holland, who was in the barn when the first shot was fired and started in pursuit. Mason fired at him and the bullet entered Holland's cheek and lodged behind his ear. He fell and Mason fired again, striking him on one of the cords of the neck. Mason then returned to the house to find the woman but she was hidden and she couldn't find her. By this time Melvin Holland, her brother, started for St. George for medical aid and to acquaint the authorities with what had occurred. Dr. Taylor, and town marshal McAdam with A. C. Grant, returned to the Holland home, where they found Mason. He was handcuffed and brought to St. George. He will be examined before Justice McGowan tomorrow. In connection with the escape of Holland and the child, it may be said, that the revolver used is what is known as a rim fire, and the ball was not discharged with so great a velocity as if it was centre fire.

A NARROW ESCAPE

RICHBORO, Feb. 9.—Cameron Murray, the ten-year-old son of Manager Thos. Murray, of the K. N. R., had a narrow escape from being instantly killed on Saturday last. He and his older brother Thomas were shooting at a target with a small bore rifle. The boys were standing in an upstairs room, with their father, and the target was placed outside some distance away, the shooting being done through an open window. After firing over fifty shots at the target, and exhausting their ammunition with the exception of one cartridge, the boys in Mr. Murray's absence, concluded to vary the program slightly with their last shot. They placed the egg cup of thick glass on the window sill and Cameron, from the distance of a few feet, fired into the mouth of the dish. The bullet, glancing from the rounded surface came almost directly back and struck the boy on the side of the head at the temple, passed under the skin and came out at the back of the head, inflicting a long ugly and painful gash, but fortunately doing no serious injury. A fraction of an inch to the right and he would have been killed instantly.

SALVATION ARMY IMMIGRANT SCHEME

For some time the eyes of many peoples and nations have been turned toward Canada with a view of settlements. As a result, the tide of immigration is flowing into our fair Dominion. Up to the present, however, its trend has been westward. Last year the Salvation Army alone placed 4,500 of these new comers (mostly in Ontario) with highly satisfactory results. This year they purpose to bring at least 10,000 Britishers, which number will be selected from more than 100,000 applications received at the head office in London, England.

Now if this is a good thing for Ontario and the West, why not for these provinces by the Sea, who are so sorely in need of farm labourers especially?

Already many applications for this kind of help, as well as for domestic, and other workers, have been received by the Canadian Headquarters of the Army from the Maritime Provinces; even the governments are looking to this organization to render assistance in this direction, and have offered material assistance. As a consequence, the Army has decided upon a vigorous Immigration Policy, and will endeavour to secure to the Maritime provinces a fair share of these worthy and desirable settlers.

Staff Captain D. Law Creighton, with head office at 253 Prince William Street, St. John, N. B., is appointed the Army's representative, and to him may be addressed any applications or inquiries concerning the same. Forms of application to be filled in by those engaging these people will be supplied on application, and all possible attention given to patrons.

While the Army is open to receive applications from all employers of labour, its chief object is to supply farm hands in accordance with following classifications:

(1) Single and married farm labourers.
(2) Employing a married man help for the home as well as for the farm may be secured, as the wives of many of these men are glad to take the place of a domestic in the family.

(3) Single domestics, of which there is a very limited number.

(4) Men with capital to take up farming; either buying, renting, or working farms on shares. It is late in the season, however, to do much in this direction, but the matter is being worked up, and will come to the front in due time.

The interests of the Salvation Army is largely humane. They are in touch with the working classes in Great Britain, having 1,500,000 corps scattered throughout that country, all reliable and active agencies, affording the necessary facilities for securing the right kind of immigrants; and their many like agencies in this country provides equal opportunities for placing them upon their arrival. It is expected that employers will be patient and kind to these people, as their new surroundings will offer many bewildering and perplexing problems, and a little consideration and kindness at the start will be doubly repaid. "Like begets like" the world over; "one ounce of kindness will draw more than many yokes of oxen."

Let us make a united effort to befriend these worthy, though needy, brethren build up our country thereby enriching ourselves while we do good to others.

The steamship "Kensington" has been chartered by the army to make three successive trips. The first two to Halifax about the middle of March and April respectively. The third to Quebec in May.

Time, therefore, is very short, and applications must reach the agent as soon as possible.

Correspondence from parties having farms or other properties to sell, rent, or work on shares as well as from those desirous of availing themselves of such openings, is solicited.
Address: Staff Captain Creighton, 253 Prince William Street, St. John, N. B.

LAMENT OF THE IRISH EMIGRANT.

By Lady Dufferin.

Lady Dufferin, poet, who was born in 1837 and died in 1907, was the author of many popular songs and ballads, of which the one given below is the best known. She was the granddaughter of the dramatist and orator, Richard Brinsley Sheridan, and daughter of the late diplomat, the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava.

I'm sitting on the stile, Mary,
Where we sat side by side
On a bright May morn'g long ago,
When first you were my bride.

The corn was springing fresh and green,
And the lark sang loud and high,
And the red sun was on your lip, Mary,
And the love-light in your eye.

The place is little changed, Mary,
The day is bright as then;
The lark's loud song is in my ear,
And the sun's green again.

But I miss the soft clasp of your hand,
And your face's warm on my cheek;
And I still keep waiting for the words
You nevermore will speak.

'Tis but a step down yonder lane,
And the little church stands near;
The church where we were wed, Mary,
I see the spire tower near.

But the grave-rows lie between, Mary,
And my step might break your rest—
For I've laid you down to sleep,
With your body on your breast.

I'm very lonely now, Mary,
For the poor make no new friends;
But O, they have the better skill
The poor our father sent.

And you were all I had, Mary—
My heart's all yours, Mary—There's nothing left to care for now,
Since my poor Mary died.

Yours was the good, brave heart, Mary,
That still kept hoping on;
When the trust in God had left my soul,
And my arm's young strength was gone.

There was comfort on your young face,
And the kind look on your brow—
I bless you, Mary, for that same,
Though you cannot hear me now.

I thank you for the patient smile
When your heart was breaking—
And you had for my heart's sake,
I bless you for the meek word.

When your heart was sad and sore,
O, I'm thankful you are gone, Mary,
Where grief can't reach you more!

I'm lonely now, long far away,
My Mary—kind and true;
But I'll not forget you, Mary,
In the land I'm going to.

They say there's bread and work for all,
And the children shiver with cold;
But I'll not forget old Ireland,
Where I was born and bred.

And the springing corn and the bright May
When first you were my bride,
I'll sit and shut my eyes,
And my heart will travel back again.

To the place where Mary lies,
And I'll think of the little stile
Where we sat side by side,
And the springing corn and the bright May.

And I'll think of the little stile
Where we sat side by side,
And the springing corn and the bright May,
When first you were my bride.

Clerical Blunders Sometimes Occur

Few Good Laughs Supplied by Occupants of Pulpits.

The divine who is drawing the attention of his congregation to a special communion service on the following Sunday informed them that "the Lord is with us in the forenoon and the bishop in the evening" is chronicled with praying for the children of his parish in these words: "And now, O Lord, bless the lambs of this fold, and make them meet for the kingdom of heaven." While a Scotch minister innocently, perhaps, hit the mark by telling his people "Well, friends the kirk is urgently in need of silver and as we have failed to get money honestly, we will have to see what a bazaar can do for us."

There is a certain amount of excuse to be made for the young curate who, remarking that some people came to church for no better reason than to show off their best clothes, finished up as he glanced at his audience: "I am thankful to see, dear friends that none of you have come here for that reason."

An Irish clergyman is credited with having concluded a powerful oration in this fashion: "My brethren, let not this world rob you of a peace which it can neither give nor take away." Which is coupled with the remark of a fellow colleague who in reasoning with a woman who had lost her faith in Christianity told her: "Well you will go to hell, you know, and I shall be very sorry indeed, to see you there."

A SIGNBOARD.

I will paint you a sign rum-seller,
And hang it over your door.
A truer and better signboard
Than ever you had before.
I will paint with the skill of a master.

And many shall pause to see,
This wonderful piece of painting,
So like reality.
I will paint yourself rum-seller,
As you wait for that fair young boy
Just in the morning of manhood.
A mother's pride and joy.
He has no thought of stopping.
But you greet him with a smile.
An you seem so blithe and friendly
That he pauses to chat a while.

I will paint you again rum-seller,
I will paint you as you stand,
With a foaming glass of liquor.
Extended in your hand.
He wavers—but you urge him,
Drink, pledge me just this one.
He lifts the glass and drains it.
Then, the bellish work is done.

Next, I will paint a drunkard;
Only a year has flown,
When into that loathsome creature
The fair young boy has grown.
The work was quick and rapid.
I will paint him as he lies,
In a torpid, drunken slumber,
Under the wintry skies.

I will paint the form of a mother,
As she kneels by her darling's side
Her beautiful boy that was dearer Than all the world beside
I will paint the shape of a coffin.
Labelled with one word "lost."
I will paint the shape of a coffin,
And paint it free of cost.

Oh, the sin, and the shame and the sorrow,
The crime, the want and the woe,
That is borne on in your work-shop
No hand can paint you know.
But, I'll paint you a sign rum-seller,
And many shall pause to view
This wonderful swinging signboard.
So fearfully, awfully true.

When the bread or cake or pastry comes from the oven light, crisp and appetizing, you are wont to say you have had good luck with your baking.

The "good luck" idea is a relic of the time when housekeepers pined their competency against poor flour. To-day good baking isn't a matter of good luck in any home where is intelligently used. In the hands of competent housewives it never fails because it is the whitest, lightest, purest and best baking flour to be had.

Royal Household Flour

If the goodness of your baking is due to chance, your grocer is giving you the wrong kind of flour. Ask for Ogilvie's Royal Household.

TROUT Mezzowork

The undersigned have received from Mr. Nash of Maine the agency for New Brunswick for his famous trout mezzowork. A trout mezzowork is one half the fish mounted upon a convex elliptical panel as to stand the fish out in bold relief, giving the effect of an oil painting or while at your disposal. The process of preserving fish in this artistic way was discovered by Mr. Nash in 1900, and patented by him.

Whirl of the Town.

Today is St. Valentine's Day.

We are enjoying clear frosty winter weather now.

H. Price Webber is playing four nights at Chatham this week.

The express was an hour and a half late Saturday morning due to the heavy snow storm further north.

The Newcastle Firemen have received an invitation to participate in the Fireman's Sports at Fredericton during the coming summer.

A very enjoyable pound party was held at the Baptist Parsonage on Thursday evening last. A large number of friends were present and all spent a very pleasant evening.

Mr. C. A. Barberie, I. C. R. station at Campbellton, is quite ill. Mr. Barberie is one of the oldest I. C. R. officials, who is active at the present time and on the service. He is a native of Albert County. His many friends throughout the province will hope for his speedy recovery.

Recently some person or persons entered Mr. R. H. Greenley's livery stable through a small trap door, which was forced, and helped themselves to a quantity of pressed hay, three or four bundles being taken. Mr. Greenley is offering a reward of $25 for information which will lead to the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties.

A beautiful butterfly came to life on Monday, the fifth inst., and flitted about Dr. Cate's house and its mistle all day. We hear of such things in Florida and the West Indies at this time of the year but think we are now in getting up winter excursions from the tops to our mild climate.—Events.

The following appointments are gazetted: Wm. Fraser Napier, Restigouche, to be a member of the pilotage authority for district of Restigouche; Wm. Currie, Campbellton, to be a member of the pilotage authority for district of Restigouche; William H. McLeod, Richibucto, to be a member of the pilotage authority for the district of Richibucto.

Six large gas buoys arrived here yesterday to be placed in the harbor at the opening of navigation. This latest improvement to our harbor will make it the best lighted of any in New Brunswick outside of St. John. The buoys will be placed at the following points: Fairbairn's bar, Lightship, Little Bate, Cal. Point, lower end of traverse and upper end of traverse. The buoys will be lighted with acetylene gas and will make the navigation of the river a comparatively easy task, which will be a big advantage to the shipping of the port.—Events.

The Sixth Annual meeting of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Consumption and other Forms of Tuberculosis will be held in the Railway Committee room of the House of Commons on the 28th of March next. The Honorable Senator Edwards will preside in the afternoon. In the evening a public lecture will be delivered in the Lecture Hall of the Normal School by Dr. Arthur J. Richer of Montreal which will be illustrated with stereoscopic plates showing the stages of Consumption and some of the appliances now in use to check and cure the disease. The chair will be taken in the evening by His Excellency, Earl Grey.

The New Brunswick guides have hit upon a good scheme for acquainting the Surveyor-General—the Minister in charge of the game interests of the province—with actual condition of things in the woods. They have invited him to accompany members of the Association on a trip through the wilds of the province next season in order that he may see for himself what the province has to offer in the way of sport. It is to be hoped that the Surveyor-General will see his way clear to accept the offer, for the result can scarcely be other than beneficial both to himself and to the sporting interests of New Brunswick. Might not other Provinces accept the hint with profit to themselves? Rod and Gun.

The Thank Offering meeting, under the auspices of the W. F. M. S. held in St. James' church, on Wednesday the 7th was very much enjoyed by the large number present. The Pastor Rev. Mr. Arnott, presided and opened the meeting with devotional exercises. The choir rendered special music, Miss Davidson, presided at the organ. Very earnest and inspiring Missionary addresses, were delivered by Rev. Mr. Arnott and Rev. Mr. Mitchell of Redbank. Much enjoyed solos were sung by Mrs. H. H. Pallen and Mrs. J. W. Miller, and a duet was delightfully rendered by Rev. Mr. Arnott and Mrs. Miller. Mr. A. H. Shaw on behalf of the ladies of W. F. M. S. moved that a vote of thanks be given the speakers and all who had so kindly contributed to the programme, this was seconded by Mr. John Russell and unanimously carried. Misses Pinkie Ingram, Alice Rundle, Margaret Hubbard, and Rennie McQuarrie acted as ushers on the occasion. The offering amounted to $50.

Save your 1907 Calendar orders for us. We are getting our samples in order and our representative will call on all shortly. Drop us a card if you desire anything in this line.

Many friends in the North Shore learned with regret of the death of Mr. Timothy Harrington at the Hotel Dieu, Chatham, last Wednesday morning. A large number of sorrowing friends including the members of the C. M. B. A. and A. C. H. of which the deceased was an esteemed member, followed the remains to St. Michael's cemetery Friday morning, where they were interred. Service at the pro-cathedral was conducted by Rev. Father O'Keefe. Several floral offerings were placed on the casket. The pallbearers were Messrs. Wm. Maher, John McLaughlin, Thomas Murray, Jas. Hickey, Michl Morris, Thomas Fitzpatrick.

Mr. T. M. Burns, M. P. F., for Gloucester was a passenger to the city by the Gibson train last evening. He left his home in Bathurst on Monday last and travelled across the province by way of the Nepishqui and Tobique Rivers. The distance is about 140 miles and Mr. Burns made the journey partly by horse and sleigh, and partly on snowshoes, lodging at lumber camps while enroute. Mr. Burns was accompanied on the trip by Mr. Henry Bishop of Bathurst. In conversation with a representative of the Herald, Mr. Burns stated that the conditions for lumbering in the upper part of the province have been very favorable of late, and at present there is about two feet of snow along the Tobique and Nepishqui.—Herald.

UNPAID TAXES.

EDITOR ADVOCATE:—
SIR:—
How is it that we haven't a list of the tax defaulters published? This is done in many incorporated towns. It is rumored that there are some who have not paid any taxes since the town was incorporated. It is a fact that the unpaid taxes amount to about $1700. If so, it is time there was a little shaking up done.
Yours,

Clouston-Lyman Wedding.

At the home of the groom's brother, Warren M. Lyman, 268 Pine street, last evening Stuart F. Lyman and Miss Bertha Clouston, were married at 8 o'clock in the presence of about 30 friends, and relatives of the contracting parties. Rev. A. R. Pennell officiated, using the ring service. The house was tastefully decorated with evergreens, the couple standing under a chrysanthemum bell, suspended from an arch. The bride was gowned in white, carrying 21 white carnations. Warren M. Lyman and Pearl M. Lyman acted as ushers and little Alta Mae Lyman was the flower girl. A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Lyman will reside at 268 Pine Street for the present. Their presents were numerous and beautiful. The bride is the third daughter of Mrs. H. J. Clouston of Lower Derby.

Editor's Mail.

Newcastle, Feb. 10, '06.
To the Municipal Councillors:

Dear Sirs:—
I beg to say that by the turning down of Mr. Baileys, as boommaster, means the turning down of the Millstream boom. I certainly think you did not understand the situation when you made the change. I don't believe Mr. Donovan would have looked for the position if he knew the circumstances of the case. We have no right to Mr. Baileys's shore whatever, only so long as he is boommaster, neither have we the privilege of crossing his land. It would be quite impossible to run a boom there independent of him. There is only one way of getting to the boom (by land) and that is through Mr. Baileys's property. The upper end of the boom, according to Mr. Haie's line, is fastened to his shore. The lower end where the lumber comes out is fastened to Mr. Baileys's shore. Some six years ago I leased Mr. Haie's shore for the purpose of fastening the boom to it. But as for any lease or claim on Mr. Baileys's shore we have none, only as I said before, while he is boommaster. It is easy to see that he should be kept in his position. As far as I know there is no one that ever drove lumber into the Millstream boom that had any charges to bring against him. He was always there for he is in the right place. I would say also that I think there is no man in that vicinity more capable of looking after the boom than himself. I, as part owner in this boom, feel that I should take every precaution in having it secure, and I would ask the Councillors to consider this matter anew and appoint Mr. Wm. Baileys boommaster. He has been to considerable expense in building blocks, etc. and never neglected anything that would be a protection to the lumber. I am respectfully yours,
JOHN KINGSTON.

FORMER MONCTON MAN LEFT SEVEN WIDOWS.

Mariner Merrill Went to Salt Lake City Many Years Ago—Forty-seven Children and 140 Grandchildren Also Survive.

Salt Lake, Utah, Feb. 9.—Mariner Merrill an apostle of the Mormon church, died on Tuesday last aged seventy-four. He had been married seven times, and left seven wives, each of whom he maintained on a separate estate. He left forty-seven sons and daughters, 140 grandchildren, and several great grandchildren.

The deceased was a brother of Mrs. Alex Macquarie, of Highfield street, Moncton, and left Moncton about fifty years since with his wife, who was Miss Sarah Athol, son of Sackville. Mr. Merrill had amassed a large fortune in Richmond and Salt Lake City, Utah. He visited home three times since leaving this province: his last visit was fifteen years ago, when his daughter accompanied him.

The funeral took place in Salt Lake City, Moncton Transcript.
