when received." The foregoing was all the war office had issued up to midnight. Nothing, therefore, is known here regarding Monday's operations. FIGHTING ALL DAY SUNDAY. The Daily Mail has the following, dated Sunday night, from Spearman's Camp: "There has been hot fighting all day. At dawn our attack was resumed along the entire line, all the brigade taking part. We soon discovered that the Boers still occupied the range of hills in force, their posttion being very strong. The range is intersected by deep ravines and many approaches very difficult of access. Today the Boers who were driven from their trenches yesterday, took cover in dongas, and behind the rocks with which the hills are strewn.

British pluck told its tale, and the enemy fell back to another kopje.

WE SWARMED ON THEM, and occupied it, and then the attack recommenced with the utmost gallantry. The country simply abounds in hills favorable to guerrilla warfare, and our task is an arduous one. Nevertheless, it is being gradually accomplished. Whenever any of the enemy were observed taking up a fresh position our field batteries poured in showers of shrapnel, and the rapid movement of the guns, followed by accurate shooting, must have greatly distressed them. The Boer loss is unknown, but must have been heavy. Their killed and wounded are carried away to the rear immediately. Strong rumors are in circulation that the battle will be resumed tomorrow.'

WARREN'S ADVANCE. The Times publishes the following from Frere Camp, dated Monday afternoon: "On Friday, Gen. Warren began a long circuitous march from Trichard's Drift westward. This was abandoned, owing to the fact that the long ridge which runs west from Spion Kop was occupied by the enemy, commanding the route, rendering the communications for transports impossible. He then returned and encamped about two miles from Schrie-ber's Drift. On Saturday a frontal attack on the ridge was ordered." The correspondent then describes Saturday's fighting, already cabled, and adds that the men did gallantly under a heavy cross-fire in a burning sun for several hours. Our casualties were for the most part slight, the proportion of killed to wounded being extremely small.

NECESSARILY SLOW PROGRESS. The Daily Chronicle has received the following, dated Jan. 22, 4 p.m.,

"Gen. Warren continues pushing though he is necessarily making very slow progress, as the Boers are numerous and strongly entrenched. Our any other quarter, but it is known that infantry are working over parallel ridges with Lord Dundonald's cavalry lying well out on the left flank and awaiting developments. The Boers contest every inch of the ground."

PROBABLY FIGHTING NOW. London, Tuesday, Jan. 23-5 a.m.-Gen. Buller has reported nothing of fore midnight the war office issued and press intelligence leaves the British bivouacked Sunday night on the ground they had won after two days' nighting. The war office turned everylody out of the loobies at midnight. probably more severe than on the two preceding days. Gen. Buller would not be likely to give the Boers leisure to add to the elaborate entrenchments, to arrange their artillery and to con-centrate their forces. The special correspondents Sunday night were alto send the announcement that rived here, and Bulle official and popular anxiety is at a high tension. The British military experts all share the hopes of their leaders, and, as Mr. Spencer Wilkinson points out, they hesitate to say a word that might be interpreted as unfavorable. Mr. Wilkinson refers to the "cooler judgment of German and Austrian critics," which means that some of the best judges look upon Gen. Buller's enterprise as a forlorn hope, as merely a continual train of fighting, which may prove too much for the physical energy of the troops engaged. The Daily Chronicle's military expert says: "Even when a battle is won in a single day, as a rule, pursuit is only possible when fresh troops are available. But in this in-stance it is not a question of mere pursuit, but of renewing an attack upon entrenched positions after a day's hard fighting and a night of lying on the battlefield."

BEFORE THE BATTLE

A dispatch to the Daily News from Potgieter's Drift, dated Friday, Jan. 19, says: "The spirits of the troops greatly raised by the conviction that Gen. Buller now has a thorough grasp of the situation. As the force driving them out, and set to work with great heart during the morning.

Much firing took place, and gradually British pluck told its tale and the streams are now down to the force culties are being experienced. The rivers are often flooded, and what were a short time ago the trickling streams are now down. streams are now deep torrents. The scenes at the drifts cannot be easily forgotten. One sees a perfect pandemonium of ox wagons. Sometimes 30 oxen are yoked to a single wagon, and the drivers make a veritable babel of noise, shouting and swearing in English and Zulu. They brandish long whips, and occasionally an upset stops a whole train. At another point or time half a regiment will drag a cart and its mules up the river bank by main force. The traction engines looked promising at first, but since they left Chieveley, I have seen nothing of them." ACTIVITY OF THE BOERS. London, Jan. 23.—The Daily Telegraps publishes the following dispatch, delayed by the censor, from Rensburg, dated Sunday afternoon: "Last even-ing, about 9 o'clock, the Boers began firing furiously all along their main position. London, Jan. 23.-A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Kimberley, dated Friday, Jan. 19, says: "A 28-pounder gun, christened "Long Cecil," which was manufactured at the De Beers workshops, was tried today, and fired accurately at a range of 8,000 yards." London, Jan. 22.-Winston Churchill sends the following telegram: "Gen. Buller's headquarters, Spearman's farm, Jan. 21, 9 p.m.-On Sunday Gen. Hart and his brigade fought the Boers in Long Glen, between two lines of hills. They were at it all day, slowly driving the Boers from point to point. When dusk fell they were in a valley. They could not force the Boers off the last eminence before them, so the British retired to the last kopje they had taken to bivouack. Lord Dundonald's cavalry, it is now reported, holds a position at the extreme left, that commands the road to the Drakensburg range, Tintwa Pass, and other lines of travel to the Free State. Capt. Cayzer, expert signal officer, who had been in communication with Ladysmith from Weenen, has arcommunication with White by heliograph. The chief will not move from here until Warren's movement is complete. "Gen. Buller's Headquarters, Spearman's farm, Natal, Jan. 1, 7 a.m.—It was an eventful day for the British corps under Buller yesterday. Fighting began today with the English troops in the positions they had won. The main feature of yesterday's fighting was the artillery fire. A portion of Warren's division, under Gen. Clery, supported by a strong force of field artillery, at daybreak took further advanced positions toward Spion Kop. Only slight opposition was encountered. The Boers retiring to higher ridges northward, which they held in the face of a vigorous artillery bombardment, lasting until dark." "The naval guns and howitzer battery, in advance of Buller's main column, strongly bombarded the Boer trenches, which previously had been located by balloon. Part of Lyttle-ton's brigade advanced during the forenoon from kopjes extending on the right and left flanks, and taking close cover. The Boers replied with rifle fire. Later the remainder of the brigade, supported by the 61st Field Battery, also advanced, the latter opening a fire on the trenches on the right. There was a heavy rifle fire again from the Boers, and also an occasional shot from a Hotchkiss gun; otherwise, on both occasions, the Boers resolutely declined to respond to artillery. At dusk a heavy mist and thunderstorm interrupted the fighting, when the British apparently were close to the Boer trenches.

"As a result of yesterday's bombardment the Boers were seen carry-ing their dead from the trenches." TO CUT ENEMY IN TWO. London, Jan. 22.-A dispatch to the Times from Spearman's Camp, dated Jan. 21, 10:30 p.m., says: "Today at dawn the British occupied the evacuated Boer trenches. The Boers hold another semi-circular position on the main ridge. Our object is to cut the enemy in two by the advance of Gen. Hildyard's men. We kept under cover within half a mile from the enemy." ANXIOUS FOR NEWS.

London, Jan. 23-2:22 p.m.-Absence of news of yesterday's movements north of the Tugela River is occasioning some additional anxiety, but Gen. Buller is engaged in a big operation, which will take considerable time to work out. It is remarked that the Boers thus far have used little artillery, from which it is judged that their guns are already mounted on tactical positions, from which the British will have to dislodge the republicans before race, suffering, misery and privations due to my husband's drinking habits. Hearing of your marvelous remedy for the cure of drunkenness, which I could give my husband secretly. I decided to try it. I procured a package and mixed it in his food and coffee, and, as the remedy was odorless and tasteless, he did not know what it was that so quickly relieved his craving for liquor. He scon began to pick up flesh, his appetite for solid food returned, he stuck to his work regularly, and we now have a happy home. After he was completely cured I told him of the deception I had practised on him, when he acknowledged that it had been his saving, as he had not the resolution to break off of his own accord. I heartily advise all women afflicted as I was to give your remedy a trial."

HEAVY BOER LOSS. The Boers lost 14 men killed and 20 wounded. The British loss was probably insignificant.

The bombardment of the Boer positions from Swartz Kop was resumed yesterday, chiefly from a battery brought across the river. On the after-noon the cannonade became exceed-ingly brisk and under cover thereof the incantry advanced in three lines to a second row of little kopjes, which they occupied at nightfall, but later they retired to their old position. During the night a score of shells were fired by the British, and a balloon was sent up to say out the Boar positions. to spy out the Boer positions.

The naval guns resumed the bombardment this morning from a new position, but without results.

P. C. McDonald, sworn, said he was on duty on the day of the trouble at the corner of Dundas and Lyle streets. He said the defendant was in the crowd between 6 and 7 o'clock, and deliberately threw a missile through a car window. He heard the defendant say nothing, and could not get near enough to him to ask him his name that night. He learned it later on inquiry at the Globe casket works, where the de-fendant is employed. Cross-examined by Mr. Buchner, witness stated that Downie gave him his name freely when he asked for it. He (McDonald) did not report the case for several days after the occurrence.

P. C. Woolway, who also was on duty at the scene of the trouble, said he saw the defendant throw three missiles at the cars, which were being taken to the barns. Witness was only about fifteen feet from the defendant at the time the stones were thrown, and had not the slightest doubt that Downie was the man. The stone-throwing occurred between 6:30 and 7

James Johnston, the first witness for the defense, had to be carried into the court room on a stretcher, having been injured in a street railway accident at the corner of Central avenue and Adelaide street several months ago. He was in the crowd near the car barns. and saw the defendant Downie on the south side of Dundas street, near Lyle. Downie said to him: "It's a pity to see this stone-throwing. They might kill somebody." This was about eighteen minutes past 6, and the defendant did not leave him until shortly after 7 o'clock. He was positive that Downie threw no stones during that time.

Wesley McBride, foreman in the finishing department of the Globe casket works, saw Downie standing at the corner of Lyle and Dundas streets, talking to an elderly gentleman, whom he did not know. This was about 6:35. He saw the defendant throw no stones while he was there.

Leonard Harvey met the defendant at the corner of Elizabeth street on the night in question, at about 6:40. He stood and chatted with him until his (Harvey's) wife came up and said: "When are you coming home to sup-per? It is 7 o'clock." Witness then left for home with his wife, and the defendant accompanied them up Elizabeth street as far as Lorne avenue. He would swear positively that Downie threw no stones while in his company.

The defendant, Isaac Downie, sworn, said he worked on the afternoon of the riots until 6 o'clock. He left the casket works shortly after 6 o'clock, and went in an easterly direction. On arriving at the corner of Lyle and Dundas streets he met Mr. Johnston, and stopped talking to him about half an hour. He left Mr. Johnston to go over and talk to Mr. Harvey. Witness' story from that time corroborated the story told by

Norman McLeod, grocer, East Lon-don, testified to the good character of nessed by a couple of hundred persons. the defendant. He had known him for eight years. Robert Watson, manager of the Globe casket works, stated that during the eight years the defendant had been in the company's employ, he had always

Middlesex Notes.

The hustling village of Lucan now enjoys the luxury of electric lights, for which the enterprise of the councilors and Cook Bros., of Hensall, who installed the plant and worked up the business, can be thanked. Everything is running smoothly, the power being furnished from Hawkshaw & Wray's mill. It is the very thing that was wanted in the place. Cook Bros. have lately installed plants in St. Joseph and Zurich, where the lights are giving splendid satisfaction. In each case the lights run till midnight.

The annual meeting of the Strathroy Horticultural Society was held at the American Hotel there on Wednesday evening, a good attendance being present. The chair was occupied by Mr. W. J. #### DESPONDENT MEN Find new hope and fresh energy in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

The care and worry, the anxiety and activity of business life constitute a serious drain on the nervous system.

The business of this work-s-day world goes with such a rush that iron nerves

Men who want their brains bright and clear and all their energies alive should take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills on the first approach of a nerve break down. The reconstructive power of these pills on the nerve centres is simply marvellous. They induce sleep, restore vitality and vigor, and give new life to the mental and physical forces.

Middle aged men and men advanced in years are specially benefited by this remedy. Mr. H. Hancock, of Hancock & Sadler, of the popular Iroquois Hotel, Galt, Ont., made the following statement: "I heartily recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to anyone needing a tonic for the nerves or requiring a medicine to build up the system when it becomes weakened and run down by too close application to business. I found the pills were just the medicine for my trouble. In fact after taking three boxes I felt so much better that now I would not be without thera.

When I feel tired and worn out I take these valuable pills and find they recoup my nervous and physical strength. They seem to furnish just the elements required for reconstructing nerve tissue."

Robert Reid.

The death of Mr. Robert Reid, sen. removes one of London's best-known landmarks. He had lived so long in the city-his figure was so stalwart, his head so leonine, he was not one who would be passed by on the street unnoticed or unremembered. Then there was a certain contagious vivacity bout his mental constitution that mental activity in others. Until within a comparatively short time before his death, it might be truthfully said that his spirit kept ever young and strong; his mind remained ever interested in the large questions of the world. In this he was not unlike Gladstone, of whom he was an ring Midlothian days when the flery eloquence of the great Liberal chieftain stirred the political clans like the cry of a conquering slogan.

There are many not yet old who remember the well-known Reid bookstore on the north side of Dundas street, nearly opposite the Market Lane, with the bindery upstairs. One would seldom fail to see in the store a little knot of keen conversers, discussing the political questions of the day, or acting as improvised jurymen on the big books by big men then coming out.

Mr. Reid's commercial career was succeeded by his long tenure of the position of collector of customs at London, and it is not too much to say that few collectors in Canada have been more generally popular.

Mr. Reid, more particularly in his younger days, was capable of being exceedingly emphatic in controversy. Like the typical Scotchman, he could not bear to wear his heart on his sleeve; and if, on some appeal to his sympathies, or some reminiscence, he was ever detected with moistened eyes, no doubt, like other Scotchmen, he felt a little ashamed of the circumstance; but no one else did; one then saw that whatever was manifested occasionally of what seemed brusquerie, was more a seeming than a characteristic.

He was a born book-lover, and loved the strong books-books of philosophy and high politics. He read, marked, and inwardly digested. Well acquainted in the large poetry of the English tongue, yet it was naturally Scottish poetry that appealed to him with peculiar power; and of Scottish poets, Robert Burns was the object of un- as the lyddite shells. When one apstinted enthusiasm. Of many a stirring address at many a St. Andrew's | smith, the other day, it is reported by night demonstration of which he was the life, Burns and his poems furnished the text. Though Mr. Reid was for so many years so representative a son of the heather, so also was he a sound and should be), rejoicing both in the progress of the present and the hopes of the future.

Sound in body; strong in intellect; big in heart; an upright man-he was one of these who carry love of Scotland across all seas, to all quarters of the globe; one of those who, relinquishing no affection for the Old Land, bring much to the New.

The Death of Ruskin.

"The last great Englishman is low," wrote Tennyson, when the Duke of Wellington died. The eulogy might have been reserved for John Ruskin. He was certainly the last of the line of giants, including Carlyle, Tennyson, Browning and Gladstone, who have towered above their contemporaries in the latter half of this century. Their mantles have apparently fallen on no one in this generation. Ruskin was phenomenal in the versatility, no less than in the vigor of his genius. While he subordinated literary form to the message which it embodied, and in fact professed contempt of style for its own sake, he has written some of the richest and most melodious prose in the language. For that reason, if for no other, it may be predicted that his work will be imperishable. As an ant critic he first distinguished himself by a passionate onslaught on established canons. But he was more than an iconoclast-he overturned to build anew with his own conceptions, and these have influenced modern art to a degree almost revolutionary. Into the great social problem he likewise threw himself with all the noble strenuousness of his nature. He vehemently assailed the received doctrines of political economy, holding that they were false and futile because they eliminated the spiritual and moral element from the processes of society. "There is no wealth but life," was the basis of his social creed. Man, he held, was something higher than an instrument of production; he had a mind to be developed, and a soul to be awakened. Ruskin strove heroloally to realize his ideals, and lavished a fortune on experiments which seemed, in the light of present day conditions, to be utoplan; but his teachings, though 'at first derided, as those of a visionary, have disturbed the complacent dogmatism of the orthodox school, and are gathering momentum now as never before. Considered as a man, apart from his work, if it is possible to imagine such separation, Ruskin presented the grandest type. Born into great riches, be cared for them only as a means of bettering his fellow-men. His fearless devotion to the truth as he saw it, his intense industry, his hatred of shame and pretense, his unselfishness, pirit of self-sacrifice as shown in his renunciation of his wife-these are

which was even greater than his intel-

They Pay as They Go.

Lord Roberts' latest circular shows admirable judgment. British soldiers are forbidden to enter private houses or molest the inhabitants. In all cases where supplies are required these must be paid for on delivery, and if supplies are refused they must be taken by force only when absolutely necessary for the sustenance of the army; and even then they must be paid for in full. These orders are meant to protect the non-combatants, not only in Cape Colony, but in the Transvaal and Free State. The British general realizes that the Dutch in the two republics will be British subjects when the war is over; and he takes this opportunity of giving them a practical lesson in British justice and fair play. The Boer armies in British territory have looted and pillaged, but the British armies in Boer territory will pay their way, and bring no distress to peaceable inhabitants. Instead, the thrifty Dutch on the lines of march will profit by the presence of the enemy, as they usually admirer, especially during those stir- have to travel a long distance to marto them. The story that General Wauchope, the night before his death, wrote in denunciation of Methuen's tactics, proves to be another yellow yarn. Wauchope was too much a soldier and too gallant a man to quarrel with his orders. No doubt the Highlanders were the victims of somebody's bad judgment, but as was said on another historic occasion, "Theirs not the reason why, theirs but to do and die."

The appearance of the war balloon has terrified the Boers almost as much peared in the neighborhood of Ladya correspondent at the front, the burghers no sooner caught a glimpse of it than they were petrified with fear, and many immediately dropped on their knees to pray to be delivered from the uncanny thing. Would it have been exact justice if her neck had been saved and her associate sent to the gallows?

While in office, Mr. Foster, ex-Finance Minister was ready enough to condone wrong-doing when brought home to his associates. In Opposition he is making many professions of virtue, and anxiety to punish all who disagree with him as dishonest and crooked. He says he would not trust a man who did not always keep his word. Then Mr. Foster greatly mistrusts himself. Was he not convicted in Parliament of saying one thing and doing another? The fact that he tried to explain the "political crookedness," as he now calls such conduct, by saying it was done in a "moment of weakness," does not let him out.

Pte. Will West writes home as fol-

Dear Mother, As we are likely to stay here for a few days, and Dr. Barrie, the Y. M. C. A. man, is leaving this afternoon for Orange River, and is taking the mail with him, I thought I would write to you again. Since I I gave it away. If possible I will bring last wrote to you we have moved three one or two home. They would be worth times. From De Aar we went to about $10 in Canada. Some are beau-Orange River, about twenty miles Orange River, about twenty males north of De Aar. We traveled in open flat cars in the middle of the day, with the thermometer at 120°. The atmosphere is dry, and we do not feel the heat as much as you do in Canada. The water we had to drink at Orange The water we had to drink at Orange River was very muddy, about the color of the pools you would find along the side of the road after a shower. We stared there two days, and then left to have to rise at 3 o'clock a.m. and the left cars, and when we reached the total cars, and when we were put in the best of health, but look rather two weeks, and my hair is clipped the best of health, but look rather the best of health, bu leaving London. We stayed at the well all day and that night, and the next day (Sunday) we marched back to Belmont and had to stand all day in an African thunderstorm, until the Munster Fusiliers left for Modder River, camped on the ground they had vacated.

Sunday night we had a terrible The rain came down in sheets, storm. and the lightning beat anything I have ever seen in Canada. We are encamp-ed on a battlefield. I have some relics which I am saving to bring home. Dead Boers are lying near here just covered with sitones, and carrion birds are soaring around. Ostriches are very numerous here. The boys catch them and pull out some splendid feathers. I had one, but, having no place to carry it, ties, such as you never see in London.
As I write a cloud of locusts is coming, and the air is black with them. We are about 30 miles from Modder River, where the big fight occurred, and we expect our next move will be to that place. Yesterday we were busy throw-ing up trenches, and as we expect an

We have had no service rifles at our side. the war is going on-in fact, far less than you do, although we are so near to it. Chester and I were out on picket duty at Orange River one night, having to patrol the country for a mile or more from the camp, and had to return every little while and report. We have to go on again tonight to patrol the railway, and as the enemy is near we look for something exciting. Everybody we see we have orders to challenge, and if they cannot give the password they are taken prisoners. If they resist or try to run away, our orders are to shoot them. I do not think much of South Africa, so far as I have seen it. It is far too rocky for me. We expect to soon be home again, for the Boers are getting it pretty heavy. I am putting in the wings of a locust.

London Hockey Players Tackle Seaforths Tonight.

Bantam Boxers at the Grand Opera House Next Tuesday.

HOCKEY. SEAFORTH HERE TONIGHT. The management of the London

hockey team received a cablegram late yesterday afternoon announcing that the game between the crack Seaforth aggregation and the Londons would have to be played here tonight, as there was not sufficient ice at Seaforth The was not sufficient ice at Seaforth. The ice at the Princess is in good shape ice at the Princess is in good shape and a fast and hard-fought game can be looked for. The Seaforths have the reputation of being the hardest team that London will have to run up against. The winners of tonight's game will go in the semi-finals, with only two clubs between them and the championship cup. The visitors have defeated Listowel and Harriston, placing themselves in the third round with London. The London boys had a final practice at the Jubilee Rink last night London. The London boys had a final practice at the Jubilee Rink last night and every member showed up in good form. The Seaforth team will arrive in the city at 5:40, via the G. T. R.

Skating was advertised at the Princess last night, but owing to the receipt of the telegram announcing the game here, the ice was reserved.

FISTIC

ANOTHER GOOD BILL, The third boxing event of the season under the direction of the London Athletic club, will be given in the Grand Opera House, Jan. 30, when Denny Gallagher, of Cleveland, champion bantam-weight of the United States, and Andy Ward, of Sarnia, and Andy Ward, of Sarnia, who holds the same title for Canada, will meet in a 20-round "go." Arrangements for the contest have been completed, and there is every indication that it will be one of the finest exhibitions ever given in Western Ontario. Both are fast and willing workers. The men met in a sixround contest in Toronto, and Ward got the decision, and Gallagher is eager to turn the tables. The longer contest will give opportunity for them to show their power and shiftiness to better advantage. Gallagher will arrive in London Jan. 27 and complete his training here. Besides the big feature, there will be a ten-round go between Pat Kilty and Jimmy Alcott, of Toronto, both of whom are very fast and cle-ver. They met once before, and the contest ended in a draw, a result not very satisfactory to either. Tommy Barber, who made such a good impression with the public on both of the occasions that he has appeared under the London Athletic Club's management will again be on the programme. His contestant will be George Cooper, the south-paw twirler of the London baseball club, who has also a good record as a sparrer.

Amusements.

"A WONDERFUL WOMAN." Fanny Rice appeared in the new farce-comedy "A Wonderful Woman," at the Grand Opera House last night, before a large and appreciative audience. In her latest success the charming and vivacious comedienne is seen to admirable advantage. The plantage admirable advantage. bubbles with humorous situations, in which due prominence is given the fascinating favorite, whose performance was greeted with continuous ripples of laughter and enthusiastic applause. There was not a dull moment throughout the three acts of the play, nor in the delightful one-act comedietta, "A Double Lesson," which was put on as a curtain-raiser. Of the strong company supporting Miss Rice special praise is due Miss Elenore

"A TRIP TO COONTOWN." Abundantly rich in dressing and scenery is "A Trip to Coontown" (matinee and night, tomorrow), a confusing plethora of bright lights, dazzling surroundings and costly costumes, an insignificant share of bright lines; no plot, but a good assortment of clever people, comedians, singers, dancers, etc. Whatever else you miss, do not miss seeing Cole and Johnson. Sam Lucas is there, and Lloyd Gibbs, Wal-ter Dixon, Sam Cousins and Sam King; Miss Edna Alexander (soprano), Molly Dill, Alice Mackay Accooe, the Freeman sisters and a lot of able associates, with a chorus of 25 trained voices.

"TRIPLE ALLIANCE." On Friday and Saturday next, with popular Saturday matinee, the Grand Opera House has for its attraction an organization which appeared in this city during the early part of the season. It is known as the "World's Greatest Magicians," and introduces Noon Letter. By Wire to Roath Bros. and Co., Brokers.

Chicago, Jan. 23.-There was a rather heavy feeling to wheat at the opening this morning owing to the apa-thetic character of the foreign cables, and our market opened slightly lower than last night's close. Soon after the opening there was a general desire on the part of shorts to cover wheat on ac-count of the reported cold wave com-ing from the Northwest, and fear that with the unprotected condition of the Mant we may get a lot of crop damage and consequently a higher price. This was about the only support to the mar-ket, and after the shorts had run up the price to 67c for May, and bought all they wanted, a lull came, and the market sagged off fractionally from the high point. At this writing, it is fairly steady, but dull around 66%c.

Corn is dull and inclined to heavi-ness. We don't look for much action in corn for the present.

Oats were very heavy and sold down to 24% for May, the lowest price for a long time. There was fair buying at this price, and it appears that when the market gets down to business again, oats ought to show a nice scalp to buyers at current quotations. Provisions opened slightly lower, with scalpers and packers fair sellers of pork. Later they recovered, and are

FRESHMEN-VICTORIOUS. At the Medical School yesterday morning there were lectures and a "scrap," but the greater of these was the latter. It is a traditional yet unwritten law that the two front rows of seats in the lecure room belong only to the second year pupils, and it is an act of presumption punishable by dislodgment for any freshman to occupy these chairs. This year the first year men slightly exceed their immediate seniors in numbers, though not in weight. With an audacity born of the knowledge of this fact, a few freshmen dared to seat themselves in the places of dignity. The second year men noted the effrontery of their juniors, and forgot school etiquete and physiology in a determination to throw the freshies They tried and were conquered. They were thrown bodily out of the room, to the serious disarrangement of their wearing apparel. When in the corridor they again resolved to evince their superiority by putting their opponents out of the building. For some time confusion reigned, and the chagrin of discomfited lecturers was counterbalanced by the exultation of victori-

Pianos of the London Conservatory of Music.

The people of our city are rightly proud of the position in the world of music achieved by the London Conservatory of Music under the capable management of Mr. W. Caven Barron. All the appointments of the college are high-class. The best equipment is insisted upon by Mr. Barron, and this finds illustration in the case of the pianos in use. In a visit to the conservatory we found that there were ten pianos bearing the name of the old firm of Heintzman & Co.. Toronto, whose branch at 217 Dundas street, in this city, is a favorite resort of music-loving people. We tearned from Mr. Barron that so delighted has he been with these instruments that, additional to those in use in the college, he said he was just having shipped to him a Heintzman & Co. grand piano for his own personal use in his own home.

highness and his nobles took the stations of authority behind the table, and summoned the guards to had the prisoner up before them, which was done; while the rest of the company were fluttering down into pay the greatest attention. The cases in this midnight court seemed to be conducted in a decidedly original plan, and with an easy rapidity that would have electrified any other court, ancient or modern. Sir Norman took his stand, and eyed his judges with a look half contemptuous, half defiant; and the proceedings commenced by the dwarf's leaning forward and breaking into a roar of laughter right in his

"My little friend I warned you be-fore not to be so facetious," said Sir Norman, regarding him quietly; "a rush of mirth to the brain will certainly be the death of you one of these days."

"No levity, young man!" interposed the lord chancellor, rebukingly; "remember you are addressing His Royal Highness Prince Caliban, Spouse and Consort of Her Most Gracious Majesty, Miranda!"

"Indeed! Then all I have to say is that her majesty has very bad taste in the selection of a husband, unless, indeed her wish was to marry the ug-indeed her wish was to marry the ugliest man in the world, as she herself is the most beautiful of women!'

Her majesty took not the slightest notice of this compliment, not so much as a flutter of her drooping eyelashes, betrayed that she even heard it, but his highness laughed until he was perfectly hoarse.

"Silence!" shouted the duke, shocked and indignant at this glaring dised and indiginant at this giaring dis-respect, "and answer truthfully the questions put to you. Your name, you say, is Sir Norman Kingsley?"
"Yes. Has your grace any objections

His grace waved down the interruption with a dignified wave of the hand, and went on with severe judicial dig-

'With the greatest pleasure," said the duke, who had been scrawling on another ominous roll of vellum, and now passed it to the dwarf. "I never knew anyone it gave me more delight to condemn. Will your highness pass that to her majesty for signature, and pronounce his sentence."

His highness, with a grin of most exquisite delight, did as directed; and hir Norman looked steadfastly at the queen as she received it. One of the gauzy nymphs presented it to her, rneeling, and she took it with a look half-bored, half-impatient, and lightly awled her autograph. The long dark lashes did not lift; no change passed over the culm, cold face, as icily placid as a frozen lake in the moonlight dently the life or death of the stranger was less than nothing to her. To him, too, she was as nothing, or nearly so; but yet there was a sharp jarring pain at his heart, as he saw that fair hand, that had saved him once, so coolly sign his death warrant now. But there was little time left to watch her, for, as she pushed it impatiently away, and refapsed into her former proud listlessness, the dwarf got up with one of his death's-head grins, and began:

"Sir Norman Kingsley, you have been tried and convicted as a spy, and the paid hireling of the vindictive and narrow-minded Charles; and the sentence of this court, over which I have tence of this court, over which I have the honor to preside, is, that you be taken hence immediately to the place of execution and there lose your head by the axe."

"And a mighty small loss it will be," remarked the duke to himself, in a sort of parenthesis, as the dwarf concluded his pleasant observation by thrusting himself forward across the table, after his rather discomposing fathis, and breaking out into one of his

shion, and breaking out into one of his diabolical laughter-claps.

The queen, who had been sitting passive, and looking as if she were in a spirit a thousand miles away, now started up with sharp suddenness, and favored his highness with one of her fieriest fiery glances.

"Will your highness just permit somebody else to have a voice in that matter? How many more trials are to come on tonight?"
"Only one," said the duke, glancing over a little roll which he held; "Lady Castlemaine's, for poisoning the Duchess of Sutherland." "And what is my Lady Castlemaine's fate to be?" "The same as our friend's here, in all probability," nodding easily, not to say playfully, at Sir Norman.

"And how long will her trial last?"
"Half an hour, or thereabouts. There are some secrets in the matter that have to be investigated, and which will require some time."

"Then let all the trials be over first, and all the beheadings take place together. We don't choose to take the trouble of traveling to the Black Chamber just to see his head chopped off, and then have the same journey to undergo half an hour after, for a similar purpose. Call Lady Castlemaine, and let this prisoner be taken to one of the dungeons, and there remain until the time for execution. Guards, do you hear? Take him away!" hear? Take him away!"

The dwarf's face grew black as a thunder-cloud, and he jumped to his feet, and confronted the queen with a look so intensely ugly that no other earthly face could have assumed it. But that lady merely met it with one of cold disdain and aversion, and keenof cold disdain and aversion, and, keep-ing her dark bright eyes fixed chillingly upon him, waved her white hand, in her imperious way, to the guards. Those warlike gentlemen knew better than to disobey her most gracious majesty when she happened to be, like Mrs. Joe Gargary, on the "rempage," which, if her flashing eye and a certain expres-sion about her handsome mouth, spoke the truth, must have been twenty hours out of the twenty-four. As the soldiers approached to lead him away, Sir Norman tried to catch her eye; but in vain, for she kept those brilliant optics most unwinkingly fixed on the dwarf's

"Call Lady Castlemaine," commanded the duke, as Sir Norman with his guards passed through the doorway leading to the Black Chamber. "Your highness, I presume, is ready to attend to her case.'

"Before I attend to hers or anyone else's case," said the dwarf, hopping over the table like an overgrown toad, "I will first see that this guest of ours is properly taken care of, and does not leave us without the ceremony of say-

THE MASONS OF MICHIGAN

Had a Record-Breaking Year-Ontario Grand Lodge Officers Will Attend the M. G. L. Meeting in Detroit.

Detroit, Jan. 23 .- The annual meeting of the Michigan grand lodge, F. and A. M., which begins today, will be unusually interesting on account of three things. The first is the recovery of Grand Master Frank T. Lodge from what threatened to be a fatal illness. The second point worthy of notice will be a visit from the grand lodge officers of Ontario. In July, 1898, the Michigan grand lodge officers attend-ed the meeting of the Ontario grand lodge at Toronto and presented the Ontario grand master with a gavel made from the wood of the battleship Maine. The Canadians now come here on a return visit. They will be re-ceived with suitable honors, and their stay made as pleasant as possible.

Another notable feature is the fact that last year was the banner year for Free Masonry in the state, the total gain in membership, 1,530, breaking all previous records. Michigan now has 386 lodges, and stands fifth on the continent, being only exceeded by New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio.

SUNNY WOMEN.

Who has not known the woman whose disposition is described by that one word sunny?" There's always a laugh lurking on her lips. Her cheeks are ever ready to dimple in smiles. Her household influence is as brightening and stimulating as the sunshine. Nothing can be crueler than to have this sunshine blotted out by disease. But this is a common erucity. The young wife who was the sunshine of the home becomes its shadow. Every young wife should know the value of Dr. Pierce's Pavorite Prescription in the protection and preservation of the health. It promotes regularity, dries the drains which enfective ble body and mind, and cures inflammation, discretions and female weakness. It nourishes the property system and gives to the body the balance and buoyancy of perfect health. It is a strictly temperance medicine.

Hon, J. J. Tarte's Brilliant and Patriotic Address.

French Canadians Destined to Live Under the British Flag.

The Triumph of Great Britain To Be Desired-Plea for Concord.

Among Canadians. Hon. J. I. Tarte made an eloquent and patriotic speech at Sherbrooke, Que., on the occasion of the nominations for the bye-elections. Among other things he said: "We have heard today a good many things about loyalty. During the last few months the loyalty of the French-Canadians has been assailed to a degree that I thought we would never know in this country of ours. I thought that the French-Canadian minority in Canada had given in the past sufficient evidence of its devetion past sufficient evidence of its devetion to the British crown. (Hear, hear.) Sir, permit me to say that when in 1775 my French fellow-countrymen took up arms in defense of the British flag in this country, they had not much, after all, to thank England for France had been defeated; the French minority was not treated then as it is now; but all the same they took up arms in defense of the flag. (Applause.) I may add, and I am sup-ported by English historians, that if the French minority had not behaved the French minority had not behaved as it did, the British flag would not be floating today over this country. (Hear, hear.) In 1812 the same thing was repeated. French-Canadians was repeated. French-Canadians fought, bled and died for the crown. Permit me to say, with all the energy I can put into my words, and I know what I am talking about, for I am the son of a French-Canadian farm-er, that the French-Canadians have no desire, no wish, to change their allegiance. (Cheers.) But, sir, I know why that cry has been raised, and I appeal here to my English friends of both political parties, I am speaking on the soil of the eastern townships, that is to say, before a mixed population. My English friends are here to stay; I hope they will stay and increase in numbers. My French friends are also here to say. We cannot get rid of each other, and there is no reason for us to get rid of each other. We belong to the same great Christian family, although our blood may be differthe country we love is the same. (Cheers.) So we have to live in peace, amity and harmony. A DANGEROUS CRY. In 1896 the majority of the electors of Canada intrusted the reins of office to a party which has chosen as its leader a French-Canadian. I once more take the opportunity of thanking the great Liberal party of Canada for the generosity and liberality they gave evidence of then. (Cheers.) They took great risks, because in times of crisis, when the public mind is not just as calm and solber as it should always be, it is easy to raise in any part of the country the cry of 'A French-Canadian prime minister.' The cry has been raised, I am sorry to say, but it has not succeeded. (Hear, hear.) Four elections by acclamation today prove that TO IMPROVE

ent; the God we adore is the same, and "I have been assailed in certain parts of the country and certain newspapers. They say I am a disloyal man. I am not disloyal; I am loyal to the British Empire, I am loyal to the core. I say it before you, but I say also I am loyal to this country of ours. (Cheers.) I echo the national sentiment uttered by my friend, Mr. McIntosh, 'Canada for the Canadians.' I am loyal to my country, and without fear I say I am loyal to my race and my blood. (Hear, hear.) My position has been assailed, and will be assailed before parliament, I hope, and though I have no time today, I challenge my friends on the other side to invite discussion on the position I have taken.

EXPLAINS HIS ATTITUDE. "I repeat that I believe that any country, and especially this country, before engaging in any new policy should consult parliament and the nation. If I have committed a crime in wishing that parliament be called, I am guilty of that crime. I am a firm be-liever in the people. We have fought and bled to maintain and win our principles, and I say without hesitation that I would have liked to see the example of the English nation followed m this matter. Still, I do not object to this country helping England; I quite understand that the destiny of the French-Canadians is to remain under the British flag. (Cheers.) You are not for annexation, I am not for annexation. I am in favor of the present state of affairs; there is no reason to change; but my desire was that par-liament be called. My views have not prevailed, that is all, and I stand here today taking my full responsibil-ity for everything done by the govern-ment, which I believe was the best thing that could be done. I wish that peace may be soon established in South Africa, as it is here. We have not yet passed the moment when we cause to shake each other by the hand and exchange wishes for peace and prosper-it. I wish that peace be established; I wish that the flag of England be carried triumphantly to the goal which is being aimed at." (Cheers.)

The Weak, The Diseased, Made Strong and Healthy Through

Dr. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

Every drop of the Sarsaparillian Resolvent communicates through the blood, aweat, urine and other fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life; for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material. Scrofula, consumption, syphilis, uncured and badly-treated venereal in its many forms (send 10 cents for illustrated book, "Radway en Venereal") glandular diseases, ulcers in the throat, mouth, tumors, nodes in the glands and other parts of the system, sore eyes, strumous discharges from the ears, and the worst forms of skin diseases, eruptions, fever sores, scald head, ring worm, salt rheum, erysipelas, aone, black spots in the flesh, tumors, cancerous growths, female complaints, and all weaknesses and painful discharges, nightsweats, nocturnal lesses and all wastes of the life principle are within the curative range of this Wondet of Modern Chemistry and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent power to cure them. If the patient daily becoming reduced by wastes and decompositions that are continually progressing succeeds in arresting these wastes, and repairs the same with new material made from healthy blood, and this the Sarsaparillian will and does secure, a cure is certain for when once this remedy commences its work of purifleation and succeeds in diminishing the loss of wastes its repairs will be rapid, and every day the patient will feel himself growing better and stronger, the food digesting better, appetite improving and flesh and weight increasing.

SCROFULA FROM BIRTH.

Dr. Radway,—Dear Sir: It is with pleasure I take my pen in hand to inform you of the great cure effected by your medicine called Sarsaparillian Resolvent. I have a girl 3 yearsold last September, who has suffered from scrofula ever since she was 2 years old. In fact, the doctor told us she was born with it. We had our best local doctors with her, and it seemed like all hope was gone, for they told us if the disease settled on her lungs she could not be cured. This frightful disease scated or seized upon her lungs severely. I began to think that our little girl could not live very long, our physician's medicines doing no good. In the meantime I received a copy of your medical publication, called "False and True," which you sent me. After seeing the accounts of so many cures effected by your treatments. I at once resorted to them, and by the time she had used one bottle she was most well. The ulcers that were making their appearance on her body are entirely gone, her lungs almost healed, or, at least, she has quit coughing. She has begun on the second bottle, and I believe that by the time she uses all of it she will be well. She had a very bad cough. I am yours, with respect. SAMUELS. BARKER.

LIFE A BURDEN.

Dr. Radway,—Dear Sir: For a long time past 1 have been suffering in the most distressing manner from a long train of symptoms which have baffled the skill of all the medical men down here, and which, I feared, if not arrested in their progress, would tenuinate in the total prostration of my etrength. Loss of appetite and desire of stimulating and artificial means of sustenance at irregular times, want of healthy sleep and consequent depression on arising in the morning rendered life quite a burden to me, until a friend induced me to try your medicine. So I got a bottle of Radway's Sarsaparillian and a box of Radway's Pills and took them according to directions. I soon found relief. I got three boxes and three bottles more, and I am better in health than ever before. I remain your humble servant, ARTHUR D. WRIGHT, Unionville, Mich. LIFE A BURDEN.

I Tarte told your correspondent today that he would ask next session for a sum in the estimates to improve the navigation of French River from its mouth at Georgian Bay to North Bay on Lake Nipissing, so that steamers of the Great Lakes could bring wheat from Fort William to North Bay on the Canadian Pacific. The Canadian Pacific will place a fleet of steamers on the route to carry grain, and in this way divert it from Buffalo, where it now finds an outlet. He reiterated his claim that the Live Stock Breeders' Association, and not the government, was entitled to the credit for securing cheap freight rates on live stock. Mr. Elliot said he regretted that the seat which the late Mr. Hodgens so honorably and honestly won should be endangered by the professional and paid ballot thief. He belittled Sir Oliver Mowat, Mr. Hardy and Mr. Ross. Today it was Mr. Ross who was the wonderful man, he said. but as soon as the public "got on to the fake," someone else would be trotted out, with the some high credentials. Mr. Elliot ridiculed the idea of a doctor being a member of parliament. Men went there to make laws, not pills, he said. The speaker also spoke ironically of the surplus. #### HOSPITAL MATTERS

Alterations and Improvements in the Old Building To Be Completed by Feb. 21.

A special meeting of the hospital building committee was held last night to open and consider tenders for alterations to be made to the old buildings at Victoria Hospital, particularly the part formerly used for the private patients' ward. The tenders did not exceed the estimate of $1,000, and the following contracts were awarded: Carpentering, W. S. Davidson, $160; painting, Pace & Fitzgerald, $335; plastering, George Slade, $248; plumbing, Smith Bros., $43; hot water heating, Joseph W. Chambers, $68. The tender accepted for painting was $20 higher than the lowest tender. Dr. Stevenson first ask-ed for the names of the tenderers, but chairman did not furnish them. Ald. Malloch, seconded by Ald. Steven-son, moved that the tender for $335 be accepted for the painting, and this was carried. E. Winder's tender was $349, Pace & Fitzgerald's was $335, and Isaac Quick's was $315. Murray Bros. wanted $274 to do the plastering. There was only one tender each for plumbing and heating. The contractors will be held under a penalty of $5 per day to have the work completed by Feb. 21. The sum of $300 was ordered to be paid to Architect McBride on account. The members present were Ald. Jolly (chairman), Barned, Brener, Stevenson, Malloch and Mayor Rumball, Architect McBride, Clerk Dodd and Secretary

London's Venerable Collector of Customs

Passed Away at an Early Hour This Morning.

His Health Impaired by an Accident Last October.

The Close of a Career of Great Activity -Mr. Reid Was Prominently Identified With the Forest City for Half a Century-A Sketch of His

Mr. Robert Reid, collector of customs, died at 3:30 o'clock this morning.

In the early part of last summer, Mr. Reid was in such poor health that ment candidate, Dr. McWilliam, will he was granted leave of absence from til Jan. 1 would enable him to recuperate sufficiently to resume his duties. He did not seem to be gaining strength, however. On Tuesday, Oct. 17, Mr. Reid fell before a street car on Dundas street, and his foot was crushed so badly that it was necessary to amputate a portion, at the instep. It was considered little less than marvelous at that time that he should survive so serious an accident. However, his natural robustness of constitution and, perhaps his strength of will, enabled him to tide over that ordeal. He recovered rapidly, and for some weeks seemed to have regained such health as he had previous to his misfortune. Lately he weakened considerably, and it became apparent that he would not be able to live very long. Last Sunday it was believed he would not live until the noon of that day. He rallied slightly, but remained in a greatly weakened condition until his death this morning.

Robert Reid was born in Paisley, Scotland, on Jan. 1, 1822. His father, James Reid, was in humble circumstances, but possessed a true and generous heart, a broad mind and the honorable and God-fearing characteristic which afterwards distinguished his son. James Reid, like his father before him, took an active part in the struggle for civil and religious liberty which prevailed throughout Scotland toward the close of the eighteenth century, and in the early years of the nineteenth.

As might be judged from his natural qualities of mind and from his sympathies with the great reforms of his time, his political tendencies were strongly Liberal.

Robert was the youngest of seven children, and, situated as he was, it was only by the most strenuous efforts and unflagging industry that he man-aged to obtain even an elementary education. At 6 years of age, when other children were beginning their school days, Robert Reld had to earn his living in one of Paisley's numerous weaving mills. At this period his only education was gained from the family Bible and the Shorter Catechism. When he had reached his 12th year he began attending night school, despite the fact that he was engaged in arduous work at the looms from 6 o'clock in the morning until 7 or 8 o'clock at night. The acquisition of a knowledge of the simplest branches of learning under such difficulties only whetted his desire to still further enrich his mind. About this time his father joined the Encyclopaedia Club of Paisley, which had purchased a "Britannica," and allowed each member to use one or more volumes for three months at a time. In studying the subjects treated there, young Robert gained much solid, ac-curate knowledge, and the taste for literature which became conspicuous in his later life.

In 1842 he left his native land, and in November of that year arrived in New York. Thence he traveled by the Erie Canal to Buffalo, and subsequently, in 1845, came to Canada. He settled in Toronto, where he worked in the paper mills, owned by John Eastwood. In 1848 he established a London branch of the business, and eighteen months afterwards purchased it, and successfully conducted its affairs until 1878, in which year he received his appointment to the office of collector of customs in this city.

While engaged in his duties at Toronto, Mr. Reid devoted himself to a close study of political questions, making himself thoroughly conversant with the events of the day, and during his lifetime he had always a judicious grasp of public matters. While in Toronto he became personally and politically attached to the Hon. George Brown, and continued an unswerving and active supporter of the party to which, at that time, he attached himself. The first recognition of the public services he had rendered was in the form of a commission as a militia officer, signed by the Earl of Elgin, in 1851.

Robert Reid was one of the founders of the St. Andrew's Society and the first curling club in the city. was an honorary president of the former, and also was an honorary member of Clan Fraser. For eighteen years he was a member of the London board of education, and represented that body on the old public library board until it was absorbed by the present board in 1893. It was owing, in large measure, to his endeavors that the present library building was erected. Some years ago he was appointed justice of the peace by the Ontario Government, but he never qualified for All his life Robert Reid was identified with the Presbyterian denomination, and for 46 years was connected with the First Presbyterian Church, being for a lengthy period chairman of the management committee. He was also president of the Dominion Savings and Investment Society. Mr. Reid was married in 1851 to Miss Ann J. McElroy. They had seven sons and one daughter. The latter died in early life. One son, Arthur W., died in 1885, when in his 25th year. The sons now living are: Robert, George M., and Edward E., this city; James and Thomas, of Toronto, and Charles, of Chicago.

Mr. Reid was a man of wonderful vitality, and even since meeting with his unfortunate accident last October, had maintained a keen interest in the affairs of the day, his attention being particularly devoted to literary mat-

His was a striking individuality. He had overflowing enthusiasm in all that pertained to Scotland, its history and literature, its games and its sons. All that would freshen the memory of the old land found a warm spot in the heart of the man, whose most prom-inent characteristic, perhaps, was the whole-souled fervor of his attachments. His great capacity for true friendship and genial good fellowship, his strong literary instincts and his devout, yet liberal spirit, were per-haps the most distinctive traits of his personality. He was a typical Scotchman of a generation that is fast pass-

Toronto, Jan. 23.—Physicians in the western part of the province continue to discuss the kind of disease in Essex county that went under the name of smallpox. Dr. Bryce says it has been shown that adults practically escape chickenpox. In Tilbury unvaccinated adults took the disease with the same readiness as children and suffered more severely. People with good vaccination marks of years ago did not take the disease, while those with marks about worn out had the disease very lightly.
