He consented to run in the first case only on condition that all expenses were paid and was assured that this would be done. Sir Charles Tupper said he would put his hand in his pocket and help. In spite of this the county was not organized as Mr. Robillard desired, and the election in Russell being postponed he announced that sell being postponed he announced that face by retaining nominal sovereign rights, which, however, she is power-shows such a nice political intrigue to gather in the French vote by a promise of a seat in the Ontario Government says: "The news is so serious that it may compel England to take immediate lard's own words as published in the Journal last night: "I saw Mr. Mc-Lellan on Saturday night and asked him how much money they had for this campaign. Afterwards he telephoned to my house and asked me to wait until evening, as Mr. Whitney, the Ontario Conservative leader, was coming. met Mr. Whitney at the train, and we went to the Russell House, but he said nothing about Russell county. At the Russell House I met a number of others, and they told me that they were going to hold a caucus and would send for me as soon as they were ready. I waited about an hour, and I was called upstairs. I went into the room and Mr. Whitney talked about the nice weather and a number of other things, but not a word about business. In order to start him I asked how it stood in the province. He said that, without Beatty, Hardy had four majority. I told him that we could not count Mr. Beatty. Shortly after this Mr. Whitney began to gape and said it was his bedtime. He got up and went to his room. I waited for about fifteen minutes word in the meantime, and I declined

Just before the second nomination day Sir Charles Tupper came to me and said that all the money we wanted would be put up, and that he would get a written promise from Mr. Whitney that I would be taken into the cabinet if he got the government, if I would reconsider my resignation and accept the nomination. The Y. P. S. C. E. Of St. Paul's Church

Hold a Special Service to Mark Their Tenth Anniversary.

Able Addresses by Rev. Canon Dann, Rev. Robt. Johnston and Rev. Wm. Johnston, of Huntingford - Active Membership.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of St. Paul's celebrated its tenth anniversary last evening by a special service held in Cronyn Hall. Rev. Canon Dann and Rev. His Active Interests in Ontario William Johnston, of Huntingford, Robert Johnston, of this city, and Rev. president of the Ontario Christian En-Union, delivered addresses, and the Very Rev. Dean Innes took part in the devotional exercises. Mr. R. Kirkpatrick, in the absence of the president, Miss Baxter, occupied the chair, and in his opening address, said that since the society was organized in 1888 the movement had always been active, and the members were each year showing a strong desire to do more "The different spiritual organizations among us and how best we should act to draw them closer together in concord," was the theme of Rev. Canon Dann. While the society endeavored to preserve each member in his or her own particular faith, he said, it also strove to bring together the different church organizations into closer relationship. The speaker deplored the fact that there were so many church organizations working independently of each other. The one thing the Christian should aim at was to have the Christian bodies united in spirit and purpose. It was the mere formaliststhose who gave place to the spirit of persecution and narrow-mindednesswho prevented in a great measure the accomplishment of the desired unity. They should try to make every professing member a real member. The people who were attached to a certain church because of politics, or because the clergyman was very amusing, or because it was a matter of business, and those who belonged to every church-the floaters—those were the people who did more injury to the work of God than one could possibly imagine. Although they should be ready to stand up for their own church's principles, yet they should give the same liberty to others, and let all bitterness and wrath be put "Christian Endeavor and its relation to missions' was the subject of Rev. Robert Johnston's address. The speaker congratulated the Christian Endeavor Society of St. Paul's on having reached its tenth birthday. The Christian Endeavor was a great power, and would accomplish a great work. Its relation to the mission was the same as that of members to the church. So soon as they began to trust in everything else but God's love, his mercy and his power, so soon would all their efforts prove worthless. He urged them to be loyal to the pledge and gospel. Rev. William Johnston, of Huntingford, spoke on "The possibilities of childhood." Seventeen years ago there was one society, with 40 members; now there were 53,226 societies, with 3,130,500 members, connected with 40 denominamembers, connected with 40 denominations, scattered over the face of the earth. Of these 13,000 were junior societies. Of the 469 societies in Canada, 293 were in Ontario. The church's future depended upon the children, and the fact that 20,000,000 juniors were being taught in the schools on Sunday 2,000,000 Christians, meant that the church was recognizing the possibilities of childhood. Give Holloway's Corn Cure a trial. It removed ten corns from one pair of feet without any pain. What it has done once it will do again.

ENGLAND VS. IRELAND. The association match between Eng-

wet day at Beltast. England won, as it was, by 3 goals to 2, but, no doubt, in fast turf, the margin in their favor would have been distinctly larger. Be this as it may the great matter for regret is that the occasion did not, as had been hoped, furnish a favorable opportunity for the English authorities to form any real idea as to the manner in which the representatives of England would work together under ordinary conditions. After all, the match with Ireland, seeing that defeat has never yet been sustained from the sister isle, generally regarded in the light of trial game for the great contest with Scotland, and on Saturday the English selection committee were trying several experiments. While the D. H. Rattenbury; captain, C. C. Fairfactory that the Englishmen had the bigger share of the game, and that only some stout defense on the part of the Hisamen prevented a larger score. Moreover, without wishing to be ungenerous to the home side, there was some element of luck in one, if not both of their goals, Oakley falling at a critical moment in the play which led up to the first point, and Robinson leaving his goal just before the second was obtained. There may thus have been considerably more difference in the strength of the two elevens than the score would suggest. At the same time the Irish players may be congratulated, after so many years of disaster, in having fought such a stout game with their formidable antagonists. To have beaten Wales, and to have run England to a goal, constitute a capital record, and it is to be hoped that the Irish association may shortly be able to place in the field a team capable of holding its with the champions of England and Scotland. Of the previous fixtures England had won 15, the remaining game, in March, 1894, being left drawn. Under the circumstances, the Englishmen were regarded as certain victors. To everybody's surprise Ireland played up in a remarkable manner, though, on the whole, they were somewhat lucky in running England so close. Wonderful to relate, the teams took the field as originally selected. There were only two amateurs-G. O. Smith and W. J. Oakley-on the English side, the former once more being captain. From the side that defeated Wales, at Llandudno, a fortnight ago, Ireland made three alterations. Torrans replaced Cochrane at left back, and the latter went half-back instead of Little whilst McAllen on the outside left, played for McCashin.

EASEBALL. Port Huron Times: "As we are to be in an international league, it will naturally create an interest on the Canadian side of the river, and thus bring strangers to the city to attend each game played here. The more people we can get to come to our city the better it will be for our hotels and business houses. This is certainly the very best league that this city has ever had a chance to be represented in, and it will surely be successful should it receive the necessary financial aid on the start. Port Huron's mileage will be the shortest of any team in the league. Manager Murphy has a full team signed, and says there need be no apprehension as to his standing in the pennant race. Instead of a tail-end team he proposes to have a "top notcher."

CLEARED OVER $100,000. Owing to the fact that the Boston club cleared more than $100,000 last season the champions this year will travel in luxurious style. They will stop at the most expensive hotels and will not be compelled to sleep in "smokers" while on the road, as some managers compel their players to do .-FLYS. Leiter Norton, the pitcher with Toronto last season, has signed with the Minneapolis club of the Western League. He was anxious to go to Buffalo but no place was open to him. Norton lives at Conneaut, O., and is a college man. He puts in the winter as shipping clerk in one of the big drygoods stores in New York.

The Torontos open and wind up the season with Rochester. Catcher Andy Reid is confident that he can hold his end up with Toronto. Breitenstein, Peitz, Beckley, Hahn, Dammon, Smith, Millar and Steinfeldt are the players of German extraction who will make things lively "over the Rhine" in Cincinnati this Kirtley Baker, the Western League pitcher who has retired from the diamond, has two phenomenal feats to his credit-retiring a team in nine innings without a hit and striking out 22 men in one game.

Charley Elsey, of Cincinnati, has signed with the Montreals, and not with the Torontos, as previously reported. He will report at Pallison, N. Y., for practice on April 1. Will Clark, of last year's San Antonio and Louisville teams, will also play with the Montreals.

The St. Thomas people seem to have gone about the business in the right way, and where there is such a strong sentiment in favor of the same there should be a successful season. The new club will have the power to admit all its 100 shareholders free, if it so decides, but the club will, if that is done, have to pay every visiting team just as much for the free spectators as if they had paid.—Hamilton Times. Montreal claims to have Joe Knight

One Person Was Drowned-Rescue Party Had Difficulty in Saving Themselves.

Peterboro, March 25 .- A drowning accident is reported from Battle Creek Government Camp, in Cavendish township, and by the particulars which have been obtained it appears that a number of others narrowly escaped. Three young men by the name of Sweitzer were coming from Ketchum Lake to visit the Government Camp, when one of the brothers by the name of Henry, went through the ice at the mouth of Battle Creek. His brothers tried to save him, when another went through. The remaining brother shrieked for help, when some of the Government men who were out in the woods rushed for the lake with boards and ropes, but the treacherous ice gave way and in a moment four of the men were struggling in the icy waters, getting in and out three or four times, but failing to reach the poor fellows to whose aid they were going. One had disappeared before the

He heard the rap on the door about an hour later. His sister was the first to hear the noise. She asked twice who was there, but got no response. Then Pear shouted at the top of his voice several times, but the man at the door made no audible response. Scribner continued talking and kicking the door, and Pear thought he would kick the door in. Pear said he would put a bullet through him if he did not answer. He thought it was the work of a tramp, and, going down stairs, procured a rifle. Then ascending the stairs again he gave him a few more chances to make his identity known. The deceased not responding, Pear drew his rifle and shot through the door. ## In Spite of Bad Roads and

The Encouraging Conditions of Busipess Are Little Changed.

Toronto, March 25.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly statement of trade in Canada

The trade situation in Montreal is not materially changed since a week ago. Country letters, especially from off-rail points in this province, report some interference to business, and collections from the general break-up of country roads, and also in some cases from damaging freshets due to the late rapid thaw, but considering the season there is really little cause for complaint as regards general trade. City retail dry-goods trade is improving, and the wholesale trade report travelers' and mail orders as still coming in quite freely, though the bulk of spring goods are now forwarded. The boot and shoe factories are still well employed, some of them working overtime, and being obliged to decline further business. There has been a decline of half a cent in hides, and this has led to some slackening off in the demand for leather, but prices are very steadily held. The movement in groceries is a moderate one. Sugars and teas are both compartively quiet. The March sales of American raw furs in London show a general improvement upon the prices realized a year ago, and the advance of January last is well maintained. In pig iron and other lines of heavy metals there is no great activity, but country stocks of paints, oils, glass, etc., seem pretty well depleted, as the wholesale trade report numerous requests for the early dispatch of spring orders. Turpentine has receded a cent from the strong advance of last week. money market shows no special variation. The general rate for call funds is still 41/2 per cent, though one of the banks has been calling in some of its loans at this figure.

The wholesale trade at Toronto has undergone little or no change. The demands of retailers continue good, and the movement is active for the season of the year. In drygoods and hardware reports are most satisfactory, and the volume of business for the month will exceed that of the corresponding month of many years. All seasonable lines Mrs. Annie McLean, residing at 313 are in demand, and manufacturers find it difficult to keep up with orders. Imports of drygoods are heavy, while the export trade of the Dominion for the eight months of the fiscal year has never been exceeded. The large and

ATE HALF HIS DOOR MAT. Remarkable Appetite Developed by a Cincinnati Lunatic.

Cincinnati, O., March 25 .-- A strange case of insanity has developed at the county jail. Last Thursday night Michael Delaro, a brick and tile maker, about 40 years old, who lives at Sixth and Main streets, in Covington, was arrested for drunkenness and lodged in jail. Last night he succeeded in locking his cell door with a wire nail he found in his prison, in such a manner as to prevent anybody opening it for a considerable length of time. No sooner had he locked the door than he seemed to suddenly become insane. In many of the cells are shuck mats. One of these Delaro mistook for an amaling it. Some tenders for the yearly supplies and a lot of miscellaneous business, of South London and West London residents from the Thames at floodtime, engaged the attention of the board of works last night. The members present were Ald. Douglass (chairman), Dreaney, Greenlees, Cooper, Belton and Carrothers, Mayor Wilson, Engineer Graydon and Secretary Bell. Mr. Pritchard was in attendance early in the evening, to be ready for the sewer committee meeting when the board of work's business was dis-posed of. Dr. Cl. T. committee. The river had in the last few years washed away three lots on the south side of the street, and five lots on the north side. The engineer had some time ago provided temporary protection by putting a lot of old tin, etc., on the river bank, but this was now of no use, and the indications were that more lots would be washed away, and the water would come up to the center of the street. Several times the work was about to be done, and then deferred. It was a requisite, said Mr. Judd, and would not cost more than

Mr. Winnett, one of the petitioners, had a lot washed away, and got no redress, nor did any of the others whose property was damaged. Ald. Carrothers said the trouble had been started by a channel which Mr. Renwick had cut in that vicinity. Mrs. Ryan, one of the owners there, some years ago, got damages year after year from Mr. Renwick. On motion of Ald. Cooper, it was decided to visit the property, and consider what should be done. During the recent flood residents on Front street had to be taken out of their houses in boats. A petition to have Queen street, West London, graded between William street and the Wharncliffe road, was laid over. Mr. Leonard and others petitioned for a macadam pavement on York street, between Waterloo and Colborne. Ald. Carrothers had the matter in mind when getting out his estimates. A letter from an east end resident called the attention of the committee to the high board fence at the east side of the fair grounds, which he claimed was an "eye nuisance." He petitioned that a picket fence be put there, the same as on Dundas street. The same petitioner requested that there be no dog pound in Queen's Park. Ald. Dreaney suggested that the dog pound be removed to West London.

No action. The request regarding the fence was referred to the fair board. A petition from R. Foxley and others to have Ethel street opened from Frances to Florence streets, was read. The engineer and Ald. Dreaney will find out the probable cost.

Ald. Carrothers urged that the repairs at the police station be done, and the engineer was instructed to see the chief at once about the matter. Ald. The Paintings of Mme. Ronner

Arrived This Morning From Brussels -Interesting Sketch of the Celebrated Artist.

The Woman's Art Club this morning received the paintings by Madame Ronner, of Brussels, to await the arrival of which the annual exhibit was postponed for a few days, and on Tuesday next, for the first time in Canada, the works of the celebrated painter of cat life and cat character will be on part of which related to the protection together with a large collection of oil paintings and water colors by other European and Canadian artists. In a sketch of her life, M. H. Spielman says:

"Madame Ronner, the gentle lady whose admirable work has so recently been brought before the public of England, France and America with the prominence it deserves, was born so long ago as 1821. Not, indeed, until she had passed the allotted span of life would she so far yield to the advice of those who appreciated her genius and knew the true value of her work, as to emerge in some degree from her re-tirement and permit of the exhibitions which elicited the applause with which she has since been greeted. Almeeting of No. 2 committee, it is now though she had to wait a weary lifetime for this final and universal recognition -the fault in chief part of a sensitive, retiring disposition-her training long since fitted her for the position which she has since acquired. She was educated by her father, Herr Knip, himself an artist of no mean ability, but a disciplinarian of the martinet order. A good idea is to keep some Pearline in a sifter, ready to use for floor-washing, dish-washing, etc., etc. You sprinkle a little over the floor, for instance, and then just wash it over with a wet cloth. See how much more convenient to use than soap, to say nothing of the easier work! If you're buying and using Pearline simply for washing clothes, and not for all kinds of washing and cleaning, you're cheating yourself out of a great deal of comfort and economy. 547

They did tarily agreed that for a term of years, should be six mills lower than in the other five wards. On this agreement, South London cast its fortunes with the city, and we believe that neither party to the contract has regretted it. The only kicker that we hear of is our contemporary, the Free Press, which now sneers at the sixth ward, as if it paid less than its share of the public burdens. Yet our contemporary strongly advocated the union of South London to the city upon the terms at which it now cavils. If South London could have been prevailed upon to give a Conservative majority instead of a substantial majority for the Liberals, it would doubtless have long ere now been proclaimed by the Free Press "the banner ward" of the city. As he pulls so the Government of the republic expects to jump. Gen. Montgomery Moore was at Boston yesterday. Gen. Moore is commander-in-chief of her majesty's troops in North America, and has just arrived, accompanied by Mrs. Moore, Miss Moore and his aide-de-camp, Capt. Colburn, and will proceed to Washington to pay a visit to the British ambassador.

Gen. Moore says his visit may seem strange at this time, when the shadow of war seems to be over the United States, but it is only a coincidence, as he wishes to pay a visit to the British ambassador, to which there is no political significance to be attached.

When interviewed in Halifax, just previous to starting on his present trip, Gen. Moore refused to say whether he had a mission or not. But he admitted that the United States and Great Britain might act together under certain

The contingencies may be nearer than we suspect. Gen. Gascoigne, commander of the Canadian militia, is already in Washington. This may also be a coincidence; but it looks as if an important conference is to be held in Washington today or tomorrow. In the event of interference on the part of certain foreign nations in behalf of Cuba, a good understanding between the United States and Great Britain will be of great importance to America. The Programme That May Be Followed by Mr. McKinley.

Swift Preparations Being Made for War by the U. S. Government-Hostile Feeling Prevalent in Spain.

Washington, March 25.-The president received the report of the Maine board of inquiry from the hands of Secretary Long at 9:40 o'clock this morning. The secretary was accompanied by Lieut.-Commander Marix, judge-advocate of the court of inquiry. A special correspondent says: President McKinley's programme has been definitely decided upon. It is his purpose to treat the blowing up of the Maine as an accident. The report of the board, which will be read at the cabinet meeting to day, will be SENT TO CONGRESS ON MONDAY, with a very brief message relating to the events leading up to that point, and informing congress that the facts contained in the report have been cabled to Madrid, to be laid before the Spanish Government by Minister Woodford. No demand will be made upon Spain, but the laying of the facts before the Spanish Government will be equivalent to calling upon Spain for an explanation and such action as she may deem proper. It is the purpose of the house leaders to refer to the report and message to the committee on foreign affairs without debate, and to this programme it is believed the Democrats of the house have acquiesced, reserving the right to demand action if a report from the committee is too long delayed. Much will then depend upon Spain's response, but there are those close to the president who believe that from the time the report is sent to congress it will drop out as a factor in the sit-

Financiers are willing to invest liberally hog takes room up for a real singer in to prevent war, but apparently they are unable to devise a plan promising success. The best informed diplomats do not believe the Spanish Cabinet or dynasty dare to risk the wrath of populace, which would inevitably follow acquiescence with the demand of the United States for reparation for the loss of the Maine. The Spanish and Cuban firms and financial houses in London generally agree in expressing the opinion that there will be no war. Such an order would rarely be given in time of peace.

SPENT $1,000,000 ON THURSDAY. A special to the Herald from Washington says: By direction of President McKinley, Secretary Long spent something more than a million dollars on Thursday in the purchase of twelve speedy yachts and sea-going tugs, which will be at once converted into torpedo boat destroyers and picket boats. In directing the purchase of the yachts and tugs, President McKinley was guided by the information show-ing that the Spanish torpedo boat flotilla has sailed from the Canary Island for Porto Rico. Before this information came to hand the authorities were not willing to pay the high prices asked by the owners of yachts and tugs, which had been inspected and recommended for purchase by the auxiliary cruiser board, but the necessity of improvising a torpedo fleet to offset that which Spain is sending to Parto Rico was so apparent that the president authorized that the negotiations be closed buggy of Miss Brown from the stable and that the vessels be purchased without further delay. Secretary Long at once telegraphed to Captain Rodgers, president of the board, and received a telegram announcing that the bargains line between Lobo and Caradoc, the had been closed, and that the vessels

The minister of fort to secure a removal of the Irish embargo. Dr. Montague asked if any efforts had been made last year to secure the removal of the embargo against Canadian cattle in Great Britain. Mr. Fisher replied that he had had no further correspondence on the subject, but he had conversed upon it with Lord Strathcona, the Canadian high commissioner. That gentleman had advised him that last summer was an unfavorable juncture to urge upon the imperial authorities any particular action in this matter. Mr. McEachran, the Dominion veterinary inspector, was in England last year on private business, and in the course of a conversa-tion with Mr. Walter Long, the chairman of the British board of agricul-ture, the latter had said: "It is quite ssible for us to hope for the removal of the embargo now." Mr. Fisher summed up the situation in these words: "I fear that at the present time there is not much prospect of our being able shortly to do away with this schedule." He pointed out the countervailing advantages that had accrued to the Canadian farmers in consequence of the removal of the United States quarantine on cattle.

Dr. Montague asked if during the visit of the prime minister to Great Britain the opportunity was taken of trying to secure the removal of this obnoxious legislation. The time, he added, was most opportune.

Columbia member. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said there was no intention to pass such a measure. Mr. Pope continued the discussion of the motion of Mr. Reid, advocating the payment of an export bounty of 1 cent a pound on all creamery butter produced in Canada. Mr. Fisher made an effective reply, reviewing the measures which the late government had not the courage to un-dertake, but which have been carried out by the present administration for the advancement of the farmers' interests generally, and the dairy industry particularly.

After a brief discussion, Mr. Sutherland moved the following amendment: "That this house views with satisfaction the great progress that has been the dairying industry, as shown in the great and regular increase of the export trade in butter and the high ceputation Canadian butter has made, especially during the last season, since the establishment of complete cold storage transportation, and believes that the course already pursued by government, if continued on the came line, would result in still greater benefits to the farmers of the Dominion.' This amendment was carried by a majority of 46 (80 to 34), after Charles Tupper had denounced it as a 'miserable subterfuge.'

A G. T. R. Expert on the Drummond County Railway Bargain.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, March 25 .- At the Drummond County Railway committee meeting today, Mr. Wainwright, of the Grand Trunk, was examined. He said that the Drummond County road was the best route for the Intercolonial going into Montreal. It was also the cheapest. He stated that Rufus Pope, M.P., came to him at one time as representing Hon. Mr. Haggart, then minister of railways, and wanted to see if the Grand Trunk would give running powers over the G. T. R. to the Intercolonial into Montreal. He had large experience in Quebec in building railways, and would say that the road was a cheap one at the price paid by the present government. P. S. Archibald, formerly chief engineer of the Intercolonial, who was dismissed by Mr. Blair, was called by Mr. Haggart. Mr. Archibald said that he never examined the Drummond County road, but came over on his way $4.75; straight roller, $4.25. Feed—On- to Montreal on a train. THE BOARD'S FINDING. Washington, March 25 .- The board of inquiry into the loss of the Maine finds that the explosion which destroyed the Maine was from the outside, and does not fix the responsibility for the disaster. The testimony goes to show that it was a powerful submarine mine, the exact character of which is not determined by the testimony, though the belief is expressed that it is what is known as a floating submarine mine. There were two explosions, the board finds. The first was from the outside, and that set off one in the smallmagazines.

This syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis. etc.

Rev. Dr. J. K. Smith, of the First Presbyterian Church, Port Hope, formerly of Galt, has asked the presbyof Peterboro to apply on his behalf to the general assembly, meeting in Montreal in June, for leave to retire from the actual duties of the ministry. All persons afflicted with Dyspepsia, Diarrhoea, Colic, and all kinds of indigestions will find immediate relief and a sure cure by using ANGOSTURA BITTERS. The only genuine is manufactured by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons. It is believed that the two men who robbed the train near Goshen, Cal., secured not less than $50,000. The great lung healer is found in that excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membranes of the throat and air passages, and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness of the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

A Woman's Love §

"We must go home at once," I exclaimed, tossing the letter to Abby, who was reading Mrs. Blandford's effusion, and ringing the bell to ascertain when and how we could soonest reach London. How far away it seemed! In two hours we started.

Abby was as anxious as I was to lose no time. Feeble as she was, she declared she could not rest, and was not in the least tired. If we had not missed the express at Bale we should have made no break in our rapid flight. It was just about sunset when our cab drove down Churchwarden street.

The shutters of the bow window of the shop were up, and the blinds down in the rooms above. Abby broke into bitter wailing, and sat trembling and wringing her hands, whilst I sprang from the cab, and opening the door, set the bell a-tinkling. In a moment Felix appeared in the inner doorway. "Phebe!" he exclaimed.

"Your father?" I gasped. "He is better,' he answered in a low voice; "much better. He is downstairs even. Do not agitate, for he is very

"Go and tell Abby," I said. I threw my bonnet and cloak down on the counter, and entered the kitchen very quietly. The old man was sitting in a comfortable easy chair, with his emaciated hands resting on the arms. His delicate face was still paler and more sunken; but his dim blue eyes were as serene and smiling as ever. He tried to rise when he saw me; but I ran to him, and put my arm around his neck and kissed his pallid forehead. "This is what I wanted," he said in a happy voice; "this will do me more good than all their medicines; to have my beloved ones back again." We could hear Abby in a tearful mood, sobbing in the darkened shop. David Palmer lifted up his feeble voice: "Come to me, Miss 'A Bricot," he called. "I have missed you sorely."

She came in, and knelt down beside him, choking and speechless. He spoke to her in his gentlest tones. "This is too good of you," he said; "the old man will get well now; and who knows? perchance we shall never be parted again."

'Never, never again," responded But though we took every care of him, David Palmer made slow crogress towards recovery. The chilly fogs of autumn, and the thick atmosphere of the city on these windless days oppressed him greatly. The doctors agreed that there was little hope for him unless he could get away into purer air, which was his best chance of regaining his lost strength. Then for the first time I really rejoiced in my possessions. They had been to me a burden only; a barrier between myself and the life I had learned to love best. But now they could be turned to some use. There was the Priory in the purest of country air, with walls so thick as to shut out effectually any degree of wintry cold. We would take David Palmer down there, and nurse him back to his former health and strength. Mr. Manning earnestly entreated us to go to his house, but the autumn fogs brooded over Epping Forest; and Felix was decidedly in favor of the Priory, though it placed so great a distance between his father and him-

But for some days the old man resisted our purpose of uprooting him from his old familiar surroundings. He objected that it must separate him too much from his son; for Felix could only spend Sunday with us. It was Felix at last who prevailed upon him

The day before we left the house in Churchwarden street he managed with Abby's help and mine to mount the stairs to the attic, where his little printing press stood. There lay upon it a black frame containing two short verses in type. I passed the ink-pad over them, and he tried to press down the weight; but he was too weak, and I did it for him. He looked gravely and tranquilly on the printed lines, and passed them to me to read. The last verse was this:

"My half-day's work is done, And this is all my part-I give a patient God My patient heart."

"But I have not done half a day's work," he said regretfully. "I'm one of those who went into the vineyard at the ninth hour. I am the servant with cast expression; but his face kindled again with a look of happy triumph. "But Felix is the servant with five talents," he added, "in spite of all he lost one; but he has found it again."

CHAPTER XXIV. It was a peaceful and happy time to us all at the Priory; but to Abby it was the most blessed season of her life. I gave the Prior's chamber to David Palmer, and not the most saintly man among the monks of old could have made it more the consecrated home of praise and prayer. He delighted in the oriel window, looking south over a wide plain which stretched away to a distant line of mountains. The trees still wore their autumnal tints, rich yellows and reds, which contrasted with the dark evergreen of firs, and cedars, and olives. He would sit for hours in this window, gazing over the plain, and its broad over-arching sky; so different from the How a Young Couple Wedded in narrow streets and high walls his eyes had rested upon for more than eleven years. There was a pathetic enjoyment in his face, which often filled my eyes with tears.

But his greatest pleasure was to saunter about the ruins, when the sun shone, leaning on my arm or Abby's. He possessed much antiquarian and archaeological knowledge; and he made me understand my ruins better and more fully than I had ever done before. As time passed on it was generally Abby who supported his bent frame; for I saw how much it was to her to be his companion. She never seemed so happy as when David Palmer's hand rested on her arm.
Felix came every Saturday night, and left before daybreak on Monday morning. The intervening Sunday was a season of intense happiness to his father and me. But there was something inexorable in his manner towards me, underlying all his cordial friendliness. The barrier that lay between us could never be taken away, because there was nothing on earth to remove it. His custody as a truant. past was irrevocable. As he had once said to me, his name was on the criminal records of his country, and he would never ask any woman to bear it. I understood his position perfectly and could not blame him for it. Yet, oh! the pity of it, both for him and me! But was David Palmer recovering health and strength? I doubted it, and saw that Felix doubted, though Abby was blindly hopeful, and asseverated her conviction that he was getting stronger day by day. She maintained that it was only the keen air of winter which made him give up his sauntering among the ruins, and confine himself within the thick walls of the Priory. Now he occupied his time cheerfully enough in the refectory; and took daily exercise in the long inclosed gallery over the cloisters, delighting with a simple, childlike delight in recalling the old monastic times, and peopling the quaint rooms with their old inmates. He declared that an atmosphere of sanctity, differing altogether from ordinary dwellings, lingered about the place. He was very happy, and felt himself perfectly at home. We had almost light-hearted conversations together, he and Abby and I, when he would predict the future-not his own, but his C. P. R. Train Derailed and a son's-and foretell the honored place and name he would win among those who spend their lives for others. The past would be forgotten, the disgrace effaced. David Palmer saw the dawn of that happy day. I would await the day for years to come. But would Felix ever recognize the dishonor was gone? "Will he ever know it?" I asked one day when Abby was not there.

"Sometimes I fear not," his father replied. "Felix has taken up his crime, and wears it as a crown of thorns. Sometimes I doubt if I was wise with him at first. He was so young and my dread was he might make light of it. But the iron entered into his soul, Phebe, and I believe no hour of the day passes by without his remembering his sin and his imprisonment." "But that is morbid, father!" I exclaimed. I had called him father ever since he had dwelt under my roof, and his dear face always kindled with pleasure when he heard it. "Phebe," he said, laying his thin hand on mine, "nothing but a woman's love can save him from it." "Haven't you guessed he has mine?" whispered. "Oh! I hoped for it," he cried, dared to hope. 'Now, Lord, lettest thou thy servant depart in peace." It was evident that the last cloud and the last misgiving had passed away from his mind. He could see no insuperable barrier between Felix and And now he set his feet and his face steadfastly towards the grave, and never was there a gentler passage along the dreaded and solitary way. He passed on serenely, in uncomplaining silence, not willing to sadden us before the hour came. Sometimes his mood brightened into a not unnatural gladness. But for Felix, and in a lesser degree for our sakes, he would have rejoiced to go. At last it became evident, even to

She experiences burning and dragging down sensations. She becomes weak, nervous and despondent. She neglects her home, and is petulant with her husband. If she and is petulant with her nusband. If she consults the average physician, there is not one chance in ten that he will hit upon the real cause of her trouble. He will attribute her bad feelings to stomach, liver, heart or nervous trouble. A woman in this condition should consult some aminant and shill nervous trouble. A woman in this condi-tion should consult some eminent and skill-ful specialist who has had a wide experi-ence. Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., has, with the assistance of a staff of able physicians, assembled for many thore able physicians, prescribed for many thou-sands of women. He has invented a wonderful medicine for ailing women, known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has stood the test for thirty years. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in wifehood and motherkood, making them strong and well. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones and builds up the nerves. It transforms weak, nervous women into healthy, happy wives and mothers.

He paused, with somewhat of a down- ! But are not the days of all of us numbered? Only his were growing so few that we could aimost count them, and each night feel that another was lost out of the small number that were left. Oh! the few weeks, the few days, the few hours, in which our beloved one could still share life with us! Felix came down to the Priory to stay. The great love that existed between the father and son seemed to grow greater as each day passed by, and Felix left him only when he slept.

Since the First of March 5,500 Have Arrived There. Material Reduction in the Charges for Carrying Goods. Victoria, B. C., March 25.—A resident of Skaguay, writing respecting the conditions prevailing there, says, according to the customs figures, 5,500 people have arrived there since the first of March.

It is estimated that the population of Skaguay is about 12,000, and the town is growing rapidly.

The price for taking stuff to the summit is 6 cents, and from the summit to Lake Bennett 4 cents per pound; 10 cents from Skaguay to Lake Bennett. Last fall the price was 65 cents and $1 per pound for the same journey. The wagon road will be completed in a few days. Mr. Brackett has made a really good job of it. They tried to collect toll on it the other day, but the boys tore down the gate and threw it into the river-rather hard luck on the people who had put their money into

it. Mr. T. M. North, a passenger from Skaguay on the Forelion, says the marshal has compelled the payment of tolls, and that now no trouble is experienced in collecting them.

The bride was beautifully attired in pale blue silk sublime, trimmed with pearls, the bridesmaids being both beautifully dressed in white. The ceremony was performed beneath an arch of roses, carnations and smilax. After the ceremony the company partook of the wedding breakfast. Toronto, London, Ingersoll, Brownsville, Sparta, Verschoyle, Union, Frome and St. Thomas were represented among the invited guests.

There are many inquiries in and around Chatham, as to what became of the skull and uniform of the late P. C. Rankin, who was murdered in that city by the Freeman brothers, who are now serving sentences in the Penitentiary for the terrible crime. On a big box in the store-room of the court house lie the blood-stained bludgeon, the axe, pantaloons, cap, mitts, overcoat, and the upper half of the skull, just in the same condition as produced at the trial. Another interesting relic in this room is the wooden model of the house in which the famous Donnelly murder, at Biddulph, was committed. This model cost $40 to produce.

Fine Concert.

Stevens, Williams and Ulley the Bright Particular Stars.

Large Audience Filled to the Brim With Enthusiasm.

Those who were at the Dundas Center Methodist Church last night enjoyed one of the best concerts of the season. We give the programme below, omitting special reference to various encores. There must have been a thousand people present, and we doubt if one person went away dissatisfied. The two choruses by the choir, under Mr. W. H. Hewlett's direction, went off with a swing, particularly Handel's ever-welcome "Hallelujah Chorus."
The three solo stars were Mr. Frederick H. Stevens, the English organist; our former London basso, Mr. J. Marshall Williams, now of Montreal; and Master Freddie Ulley, the boy soprano. Each soloist fulfilled every expectation. The splendid organ never had a finer exemplification of its powers at the hands of a master-from the dulcet whisper to the crashing and reverberating notes of the fugue and the grand march. 'Mr. Stevens' accompaniments were perfection. Our old townsman. Mr. Williams, received a warm welcome. He was a fine singer years ago, but his progressive studies have brought an immense advance in tone and method. His singing last night satisfied at once the artistic few and "the general." As for Master Ulley, with "Angels Ever Bright and Fair" is alone worth going 50 miles to hear. It was a great concert, representing the best composers, and promotive both of pleasure and culture. Musically, Dundas Street Center has scored again. The programme was as follows:

(b) Intermezzo Forget Me Not Macbeth Mr. F. H. Stevens.

GRAND PRESIDENT PARNELL. Complimentary Reference to a London er by the Sons of England Organ

The March issue of the Sons of England Record contains a capital portrait of Bro. E. Parnell, jun., of this city, senior grand president of the order. The Record has this to say of Mr. "Bro. E. Parnell, jun., whose portrait we present to our readers with the greatest possible pleasure, was elected supreme grand president by acclamation, unquestionable evidence of the confidence with which he had inspired his fellow-delegates. That this confidence is well bestowed we do not for one moment doubt. Those who have been accustomed to meet Bro. Parnell at grand lodge during the last year well know how much of sterling worth there is in the man they have chosen as leader. By no means a frequent speaker on the floor of grand lodge, but at all times a forceful and convincing one, an expression of opinion from him never failed to carry weight, and on more than one occasion has an opportune, precise presentation of an argument by Bro. Parnell brought to a satisfactory and harmonious close a discussion as prolonged as it had been

THREE-FOLD DEVELOPMENT.

Lecture by Rev. Richard Hobbs on "The Triangular Man."

"The Triangular Man" was the subject of an interesting lecture delivered at Askin Street Methodist Church last night by the pastor, Rev. Richard Hobbs. A three-fold life, said Mr. Hobbs, which goes to constitute the triangular man, consists of the physical, intellectual and spiritual. Some men live for the physical life alone, he said. With others, intellectual development begins early in life with a greed to gain knowledge, and finally loses sight of the other two necessaries—physical and spiritual development. There was something abominably with the cramming system of the present day, he said. Six hours' study out of the 24 was sufficient. As an illustration of the man who looked after his spiritual development to the detriment of the other factors, he pictured a farmer, who, in the midst of his harvest, left his work to attend a camp meeting, thinking that was all that was required of him, and at the same time allowed his grain to go uncared for. The three components had to be well looked after. A triangular man was the only proper character. The lecture was under the auspices of the mission circle. Mr. William Nettleship, president of the Epworth League, was in the chair. A vocal duet was given by Misses Mary and Jessie Boake, and Mrs. Shaw gave a piano selection.
