FOUGHT LIKE HEROES BUT FORCED TO GIVE UP TO ARTILLERY FIRE

Member of Durham Light Infantry That Supported Boys of the Maple Leaf So Describes Terrific Bombardment of Ypres, in Letter To Brother in Camp Here.

Robert Lee, of the Millia Y. M. C. A. at Carling's Heights, has received the following letter from his brother, Color-Sergeant E. Lee, of the 8th Battalion, Durham Light Infantry, who was wounded in the thigh, and is now in the Havre Hospital, France.

"Well here I am fixed up in the hospital, with two wounds in my thigh. However, one must be thankful for being alive. Perhaps you would like to hear the story from the beginning. I will not give you names of places, else I will have the enemy on my track. We landed in France on the morning of April 20th, and were sent straight up to within a few miles of the firing line. Two days afterwards we were sent up at an hour's notice, right within the zone. We slept over night in a barn, and at 6 p.m. on the Saturday evening marched out to the trenches.

Relieved Canadians.

"The way they took us was 16 miles under shell fire all the time, and in a drenching rain. We arrived at daybreak to relieve the Canadians, and this particular trench was the most important part of the British line. It was right at the top of the 'V' in our line. The Canadians had lost 200 in six days, and I need not dwell upon the horrors of it, when we saw it in broad daylight. The strength of the force in the trench was of the Canadians — of ours were fewer back in the support trench. It did not long before we commenced to lose men, and then they commenced bombarding us with their heavy shell and shrapnel.

Reinforcements Wiped Out.

"I need not say how we held on. Our trench was so far advanced they could bombard us from the flanks. As the day progressed our position became critical. Reinforcements endeavored to come up, but they were all wiped out, and our artillery was absolutely out of it. Hour after hour we waited hoping against hope that our artillery would come into action. Toward 5 p.m., they got some more sides of us, and were enfilading our trenches with shells and maxims. I went into the open with a few men to try and prevent them setting the main line into a building, but was driven back, and managed to get into a dug-out for safety. The Canadians had fought like heroes, but it was no good against the terrific artillery fire.

Every Man Takes Chance.

"At 6:30 p.m. they were getting around all sides of us, so it was either surrender or retire. Capt. Harvey and the Canadian officer decided that every Authority on International Law Asserts War Must Follow Non-Intercourse Between Great Powers and 68 Big Liners Would Be Uncle Sam's.

[BY HARRY P. BURTON.]

New York, June 2.—If President Wilson declares a policy of non-intercourse between the United States and Germany, upon the receipt of the Kaiser's note this morning, regarding the torpedoing of the Lusitania, it really means eventual war between the two countries, followed by the immediate seizure by Uncle Sam of the $100,000,000 worth of German passenger vessels now lying in our harbors.

Frederic Coudert, the most famous authority on international law in America, discussing the legal phases of this subject now being fought out between the diplomatic forces of Washington and Berlin, cites cases, at least which seem largely to justify this conclusion.

"Non-intercourse, in the sense of terminating diplomatic relations is a usual, but not inevitable, prelude to war—but, as a matter of fact," declares Coudert, "between great countries, such a situation is usually followed by war."

"Now let us trace the probable progress of relations between the United States and Germany after the adoption of the policy of non-intercourse," declares Coudert, "between great countries, such a situation is usually followed by war."

"We have ourselves, you know, upon various occasions in our history, withdrawn diplomatic representatives, especially in matters arising between some of the South American republics, and such withdrawal of representatives was not followed by war."

"In the event of such a rupture between Germany and the United States—if it went no farther—there would not necessarily be any change in the status of Americans in Germany or of Germans in America. Our diplomatic representatives, before leaving the country, would turn over the protection of our citizens and the archives of our embassies and consulates to those of some other power."

"Matters might remain in this condition for a very considerable time, but, as I have pointed out, between great countries it has not been so, in point of fact, because between them greater difficulties and embarrassments are entailed than when smaller nations act on this principle."

"German ships which are now at anchor in this country would not be affected under merely a policy of non-intercourse, just as citizens would not be, but once let the almost inevitable war follow such a policy and the warships interned here, like the Eitel Friedrich and the Kronprinz Wilhelm, would be immediately taken over by our Government as belonging to the enemy."

"Now, as to the great German passenger boats moored here, it has been said that we would not have precedent for taking them over, but these would have under certain conditions. The status of these passenger ships would depend entirely upon their relation to the German Government, and the question as to whether or not they are convertible into belligerent cruisers, under the German law and administrative arrangements."

"This question has been covered by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of the Panama, 176 U. S. 525, in which our supreme court held that a Spanish passenger vessel which had in its hold a certain amount of arms, ment and which was designed, in case of war, to be used as a scout boat or cruiser, should not be accorded the 30 days given by our naval code to merchantmen to return home, but was properly captured at once as an enemy war vessel."

An officer of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, commenting on this, said that practically every German passenger boat here, under the German administration, would be used as a transport or cruiser in war time if she were available to the home Government. This means, then, that Uncle Sam's ships as well as the converted cruisers interned here, in case war should follow the breaking off of diplomatic relations, if such a rupture occurs after the receipt of the Kaiser's note here.

"If war should follow the breaking off of diplomatic relations," Coudert says, "then there is no precedent for the status the United States would receive in the peace congress that will follow the war. This is speculative, rather than a legal question, and since great countries have practically always come to blows after the severing of their legal relations, it is likely that the question will remain unanswered for some time."

There are 68 German and Austrian merchant steamers, aggregating 527,288 gross tons, laid up in United States ports. In addition there are interned in our waters the cruisers Prinz Eitel Friedrich and Kronprinz Wilhelm interned at Norfolk; a gunboat held at Honolulu and the merchant steamer Odenwald at San Juan, Porto Rico. Their value is estimated by experts at $100,000,000.

In the port of New York there are 29 vessels; Boston, 3; Baltimore, 3; San Francisco, 2; Philadelphia, 2; Norfolk, 2; Galveston, 2; Seattle, 1; New Orleans, 2; Savannah, 1; Honolulu, 1; Tampa, 1; Jacksonville, 1; Tampa, 1. Fifteen are owned by the North German Lloyd Line and 25 by the Hamburg-American Company. The giant Vaterland, rated at 54,282 tons gross, with accommodation for 2,000 persons, is the biggest, and they range all the way down to the Neptune at San Francisco, weighing 157 gross tons.

Fifty-four of the 68 merchant ships are German and the remainder Austrian. The full list of craft over 10,000 tons, with name of steamer, gross tonnage and owner, is as follows:

Vaterland, 54,282, Hamburg-American; George Washington, 25,570, North German Lloyd; Amerika, 22,622, Hamburg-American; Kronprinzessin Cecilie, 19,502, North German Lloyd; Kaiser Wilhelm II, 19,361, North German Lloyd; President Lincoln, 18,168, Hamburg-American; President Grant, 18,072, Hamburg-American; Cincinnati, 16,339, Hamburg-American; Pennsylvania, 13,383, Hamburg-American; Grosser Kurfurst, 12,102, North German Lloyd; Bulgaria, 11,440, Hamburg-American; Barbarossa, 10,984, North German Lloyd; Princess Irene, 10,839, North German Lloyd; Friedrich Der Grosse, 10,771, Hamburg-American; Rhein, 10,658, North German Lloyd.

Baseball is being introduced to the old country with a vengeance by the Canadian soldiers. That it is "taking" is an assured fact.

A big poster received from the old land by The Advertiser today announces the fact, in glaring type, that at the Folkestone cricket ground, Cheriton road, on Saturday, May 15, there would be a grand baseball match between the 18th Battalion, Infantry, C. E. F., and the 2nd Divisional Supply Column, A. S. C., of the C. E. F.

A footnote at the bottom of the poster contains the information that half profits were to be given to charity. Advertiser on Trams.

The poster was sent over by Capt. E. Shuterwood, of the 18th. He did not announce the batteries or the line-up of the 18th team, nor even the score, for he wrote before the match. However, he says that the 18th team of the British by the Canadians. Looks fine to see their "bally trans" marked "To the Ball Game," and the people certainly will turn out. Our hand leads the procession. All well and comfortable.

FOUGHT TOGETHER, NOW NO DIFFICULTY TO RECRUIT AMBULANCE

British Artillery Veterans Meet Again As Members of Field Ambulance.

When Sapper W. Wainwright, of the Telegraph Section of the 7th Field Company, Canadian Engineers, took his discharge from that company to enlist for active service with the section of the No. 2 Field Ambulance Depot, he did not know that he was to serve under an old comrade-in-arms of the British Imperial Service. Sapper Wainwright is an old artilleryman, and fought through the South African campaigns with the Royal Garrison Artillery. When he reported to Sgt.-Major J. C. Leicester, of the Field Ambulance, the latter's face seemed familiar. He could not place him, however. The sergeant-major's South African ribbons told him that he was a veteran of the Boer war, and a minute's inquiry revealed the fact that both had served in the same corps in the old land and in Africa.

Sapper Wainwright, as a "rookie" of the British artillery, served under Sgt.-Major Leicester, who held the same rank he does now in the imperial artillery.

Since joining the Field Ambulance, the sapper has been acting as a non-commissioned officer, and when the stripes are given out this week he will likely receive his promotion to non-coms' rank.

GLAD TO GO UNDER STARS AND STRIPES TO HELP MOTHER BRITAIN

Writing to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Thom, of 120 Wellington road, Miss Elizabeth Thom, who is going to France with a party of nurses and doctors, provided for the British Government by Dr. J. B. Murphy, of Chicago, writes:

"I am not making you feel bad. I will not be home in July, as I expected; I am going to England. Yesterday I was accepted in the Chicago unit, which consists of 30 doctors and 75 nurses, which will be sent to the British Government by Dr. J. B. Murphy, of Chicago. At the end of six months they pay our transportation back to New York if we wish to return."

"They have promised me a position here when I come back. Dad, it is going to be a great experience, and I am glad to go under the Stars and Stripes. I will be helping my own country and be with the United States at the same time."

DOWNTOWN GUARDBOUSE

A special guardhouse for the military police of the 33rd, 34th and 7th C. M. R. has been fitted up in the barracks. This will be used for lodging all military prisoners taken in by the special military police in the downtown district.

It has been somewhat of a problem to take prisoners up to the Carling's Heights' camp grounds at night, and the special guardhouse has been fitted up downtown for that reason.

A FOOLISH ASSERTION.

IN AN interview yesterday at Berlin Herr Von Jagow, German foreign secretary, who drafted the reply to the American note, declared that Germany is "fighting for the freedom of the seas," and "to make Great Britain give up her hold." But let us have the game in full:

"Germany is fighting for the freedom of the seas. It is far from Germany's intention to interfere with neutral rights, or to become the autocrat of the oceans. Britain always claimed to be the dictator of the high seas. Until the war broke out, Germany's rule was never challenged. We are fighting for the freedom of the seas, to make Great Britain give up her hold on the seas, to make every country controls the oceans, they are not free. Every nation must have a right on the sea."

Great Britain, of course, never held the sway of the sea in the autocratic, arrogant way charged by Von Jagow. Britannia has ruled the waves in times of peace only in the sense that her immense mercantile marine has absorbed the greater portion of the world's shipping industry. If the other nations have failed to develop their merchant marine and fallen behind Great Britain, that is her misfortune, but so far as Great Britain is concerned the high seas are free to any who wish to compete with them. The freedom of the sea, we take it, means that the vessels of any nationality are at liberty to sail anywhere without interference from other nations. When has Britain ever assumed to dictate who shall sail the high seas? She has done business with all peoples in all parts of the globe and the result has been the growth of the mightiest mercantile marine the world has ever known, but it has not been at the expense of any other nation's liberty of action. What marine right or privilege has Great Britain ever held from others?

The truth is, what is bothering Von Jagow is the blockade that is slowly choking the German nation. Great Britain's navy has wiped out the Kaiser's overseas fleets, has seized or driven into neutral ports her merchant marines, and has bottled up her grand fleet. Because of this Germany cannot get abroad to sell or buy. And so Von Jagow makes a play for sympathy with the neutrals by calling Great Britain a dictator. What he means is that Great Britain by her blockade of Germany is preventing the rest of the world from doing business with the German people and that, therefore, the seas are not free except to Britain and her allies. But the blockade is a recognized method of warfare. There is nothing illegal about it as there is with the murderous submarine warfare of the Germans. Great Britain searches neutral ships for contraband and sends them to a prize court or liberates them, according to what the investigation discloses. This is a legitimate branch of naval warfare. On the other hand, Germany sends them to the bottom without any search. Which savors the most of the dictator?

PRZEMYSL OR PERMYSL?

THE Russians may have changed the spelling of Przemyśl to Permyśl, but for once we have not followed suit. We took up Petrograd with alacrity, not only to be loyal to our ally, but because it sounds better than St. Petersburg. We are beginning to agree with our little friends the Serbs that Serbia should be Serbia. But after nine months of concentration on the word Przemyśl, and fancying ourselves on getting our tongues around it at last, we don't like to let go of it any more than the Russians did the town. Perhaps, however, now that the Czar's men seem really to be there for good, we shall begin to consider Permyśl, and the new word may also need some study before we get it right.

THE HELPMET.

THIS is a national war, not only in that whole peoples and not merely military castes are mobilized, but in the participation of the women also. On both sides from the beginning of hostilities thousands of women have taken the places of men in all sorts of occupations, in city offices, on the farm, in transportation and in the shell factories. Some of the British munition makers express themselves as highly-pleased with the women workers, and want more of them. British women will come more and more into the country's work, and should demand the positions of men who shirk the duty of enlistment. The German women are doing all they can, and if the Allies are going to win a complete victory, their women also must match those of the enemy. We must fight with both hands, not with one tied behind our back. Not only the physical labor of women is more and more sought, but their highest and shrewdest brain force may be called into play. It has been the boast of English and French women that they are more advanced in education, social opportunity, independence and organizing power than the German women, who keep house. British suffragettes have been arguing that the nation which enfranchises its women doubles its strength for fight as for other things. We may see this tested. Already the "mad women" have done good work in furthering the nursing service. Some of those who organized the suffragette campaigns of the last few years might not be altogether unproductive of strategic ideas that would aid in pressing the war to a victorious end.

THE GREATEST WAR.

DAILY the great conflict becomes more stupendous. Truly it is rapidly becoming a world-war. Ten European nations are already engaged, and a few weeks will likely see Bulgaria and Roumania, and possibly Greece, joining the battle line. Holland and Switzerland are ready for instant action, as the war swirling around them may sweep them into the fray at any moment. In the Far East, Japan keeps its flag at half a dozen points in Africa, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Spain and Portugal are the only nations not in the struggle, or not likely to be drawn in. In the new world, Canada is busy sending a steady stream of its best to fight for the Empire, and the United States can be kept out of the strife only by a miracle.

No war has seen so many powers involved as the present one. The campaigns of Frederick the Great and Napoleon never involved more than half a dozen powers, while the vast hostilities that followed Tamerlane, Genghis Khan and Attila were mere handiwork compared to the numbers engaged in the European struggle. This conflict is so huge that the mind is overpowered as it tries to grasp it comprehensively. Almost the entire globe has been caught by the storm, and in some way affected. Some day, when the perspective is no longer blurred, there will arise a genius who will give the world the story of the last and greatest of the wars of man, that will be one of the epics of the human race.

SPOTS IN THE FILM.

THE moving picture has great possibilities as an educator. Much will depend upon the class of men who produce for the big film companies and the men who select the pictures to be shown in local theatres. A great many men connected with the business know less about the design of some of the better plays than their ushers. All they ask is something that will "pull them." At present there seems to be too much playing up of stars who "pose" and who are thrust into any old story, and who are thrust into any old story, and who are thrust into any old story. The public is beginning to tire of many of those who have been overplayed, and the films with real interest are more in favor. There is just a danger of moving picture patrons losing their sense of values in the constant effort for novelty. To show a ship at sea and a raging storm on the coast is fine pictorially, but if it frame a cheap melodrama what is the result? What is needed is local managers who will winnow the meritorious plays from the mawkish sentimental and the morbidly sensational ones. There are too many of both kinds at present. Too much "mush" in the place of wholesome life and too much "high life" as shown in the cabaret, always of course a means of pointing a moral, but dangerously close to violating many delicacies. Furthermore it is about time that assault and battery in countless forms should be eliminated from the celluloid stage.

RUM HAS SUPPORTERS.

SOME blame Mr. Redmond, some the Beerage, some the spiritual peacocks for the partial failure of the Government to down the drink evil in Great Britain. King George and Kitchener did their best, sweating off for themselves and households for the war. But the Established Church would have nothing to do with prohibition. Both the houses of convocation of Canterbury and York, bishops and lower clergy, have taken a stand against any turning off the taps during the war. They expressed grave apprehensions of "a dangerous reaction the moment peace came to remove the prohibition." The Archbishop of York and the deans of Canterbury and Manchester flatly refused to follow their sovereign's example in a Lenten abstinence that will probably last much longer than forty days. One dean said that he had tried once doing altogether without his bottle and "his health had suffered in consequence"; he therefore refused to do this again, for any war, no indeed, his health is all important. But, by the way, a celebrated physician, Dr. C. W. Saleeby, expresses a different opinion from this reverend dean, on the relation of alcohol to health. He says, as quoted in the Strand Magazine: "In my judgment, the evidence, long adequate, has within the last decade become overwhelming, that for man, as for all other living creatures except the vinegar bacillus, alcohol should be used outside the body only."

THE TRAITOR

[By Svetozar Todoroff.]
 In the midst of a ring of great-coated officers, muffled to the ears against the storm as they sat at their steaming horses, stood a man in peasant garb, his hands bound behind his back. The group could not be seen thirty feet away for the heavy shower of snow which blotted it out in a grey blur.

The captain turned to the prisoner with an odd twist in his face which might have passed for a smile. He piled another—with floods of gutturals and nasals and sibilants in turn. The prisoner gazed at the speaker with dull, weary eyes which seemed veiled by a gathering mist.

Once more, as a last chance, the captain spoke in a language that sounded in liquid sounds—a soft, warm language that fell stumbingly from his harsh lips. The light of understanding dawned slowly in the stupid face.

"Ah, now I have it!" grunted the general, much relieved. "Tell him that he has the choice of guiding us over the mountain road to the north, or the mouth of the pass—or being shot!"

The captain repeated the ultimatum with speech. Once more the hapless fellow gazed at his inquisitor stolidly, and his head swung slowly from side to side as if it hung upon a pivot.

"One more chance," he said in that liquid speech. "Will you—?"

The prisoner blinked into the muzzles of the rifles before him. The tip of his tongue passed over his lips. If he were moistening them. He cleared his throat with a hoarse cough and spoke hurriedly, turning to the captain. "Eh?" queried the captain with an incredulous expression. "He asks for a cigarette, general."

"A cigarette?" The general's face wrinkled in an acid smile. "He shall have it, and time for three puffs—no more. Unless—"

A hand thrust a cigarette between the prisoner's lips. Another hand held the flicker of a match to the tip of the cigarette. The smoker puffed eagerly. "Well—"

My friend has now sent another communication the time from a hospital at Rouen, where he is slowly recovering from the poisoned fumes of the Germans.

Quotest Burns.
 Since sending out that first card he has had some months of experience that might well have shaken his belief in the doctrine of the brotherhood of man—though I believe he is still hopeful. There may have been occasions, however, when Burns' other lines have come into his mind:

Man's inhumanity to man
 Makes countless thousands mourn.

And yet in this letter describing something worse than inhumanity he seems to be content with alluding to the Germans as "Huns." There is no general condemnation here, there is a plain, simple account of his own experiences that is all the more realistic because of the informal and chatty style of the letter.

He begins by alluding to a box of biscuits he had sent—because he had given a pathetic account of the pavements consistency of biscuits served out. What we sent, half in fun, was accompanied by some remarks about "parrot" and other forms of food, including, I believe, haggis. But they seem to have arrived very opportunely, as he says:

"To give you an idea of how useful your biscuits came in, I might tell you that they were unable to send rations up to us one night owing to the fact that the tin was only one biscuit and it didn't take long to polish off the contents of that tin."

The tin, with only one biscuit and a half in it, had to be left when my friend and his comrades were driven off by the poison of the enemy, and he said that he was left with "just enough to irritate them and make them want more."

And now for the scene and the surroundings in which he had his first experience of this poison trick. What are known as our "trenches" were really fortifications, as they were built on the ground level. There was a furious bombardment, but it did little mischief, as the shells fell chiefly away to the right or to the left, and my friend says:

"I sat on a tin box with a blanket round my knees (it was pretty cold and windy), and a copy of 'Martin Chuzzlewit' open beside me. There was a rumour had been read in more distracting circumstances, and it is possible that my young friend noticed with some emotion an allusion in the book to the captain's biscuits as 'always a moist and jovial sort of viand.'"

The Poison Fumes.
 But though, as he says, the casualties were few, he had the "trying task" of burying two young comrades after darkness had fallen, crouching down, holding a little service bullet whizzed over them. And with a pen-knife he made a cross out of a box-lid, giving the names of the dead, and set it on the grave. It was nearly morning, when they were "standing to," keeping a careful watch, that "suddenly there was a shout of 'Look out!' I tell you, I was in a hurry, but instead of an advancing wave there was just a line of steam running right down between the trenches and about four feet from the ground. My thoughts immediately flew to Henry Irving's 'Dante' at Drury Lane, where the same apparatus was used, but even as we looked the steam changed, and the white steam tinged with yellow, and presently a yellow fog began to pour over us."

The fact that a Drury Lane scene seems to have come to his mind at such a moment may be accounted for by the fact that my friend has always taken a keen interest in the stage. Indeed, at one time he was an actor, and I remember sitting by the side of a member of the present Government seeing this young fellow performing at a London theatre.

THE RAINBOW ON THE WAR CLOUD.

(Gen. ix., 11-17. L. Thess. iv., 13-15.)
 The summer skies are overcast. And sounds from regions dim and vast are ominous and loud.

But those who look for help divine Find comfort in the ancient sign: His rainbow spans the cloud.

Canadian parents mourn today Because their sons are called away. And numbered with the slain. But while the tears of sorrow flow, They have the joy of those who know They did not die in vain.

Those who in faith their all could give Are called in higher realms to live. A life of larger scope. And those whom faithful heroes leave Need not for them in sorrow grieve. As those who have no hope.

The One who died mankind to save, Triumphant rose and caused the grave. And death to lose their sting. With those whose blood for Him is shed. And those who in His footsteps tread. He lives and reigns as King.

The darkest clouds since time began Have been made bright beneath the span. Of that great arch divine. And in heaven's darkest hour. Of blended light and love and power. He forms His rainbow sign. Ridgewood, Ont., 1915. —T. Watson.

[Cornell Widow.]
 Physics Instructor—Name the unit of power, Mr. Jones.
 Mr. Jones (waking up)—The what?
 Instructor—Correct. Any questions?
 All right. We have a few minutes before the end of the hour in which we will do this problem: A man on a bicycle approached a 4 per cent grade; how far has he come, and will he be able to get off and walk?

THE BLOW-IT-IN DAYS.
 [Denver Post.]
 Mrs. Newcomb (complainingly)—When we go anywhere now we have to take the old street car. Before our marriage we always called a taxi.

Newcomb—Yes; that's the reason we have to take a street car now.

THE PATRIOT'S DREAM.
 [Translated by Wallace Reid.]
 This sonnet by the late Edmondo de Amicis is learned by every Italian child. It expresses the fervor of Italian patriotism, now newly awakened:

Ever when thought of death takes fire In me,
 My burning eyes envision clear this dream:
 A mighty plain, with blossoming hills; supreme,
 Encircling these, the Piedmont range I see;

Therefore, to bring old strife's finality,
 Twinkling with steel, with banners bright that gleam,
 Along the winds, that angry mountain-stream
 My country's war-hot rolls, splendid and free.

There I, my brethren with me in the fray,
 Am battling on to free our Italy,
 And drive the ancient deadly shames away;
 And there I fall, as "Victory" comes a-sudden.

Shrill from our tired, ensanguined soldiery—
 Sunlit my brow, a bullet in my heart!

GETTING IT RIGHT.
 [Houston Post.]
 "He's broke."
 "And the girl he was engaged to has dropped him."
 "She dropped and broke him, eh?"
 "No; she broke him and then dropped him."

WHAT'S THE USE.
 [Exchange.]
 A darkey running a ferry across the Alabama River was accosted by a poor white stranger who wanted to cross, but hadn't the wherewithal.

"No," was the dejected reply.
 "But it don't cost you 'bout three cents to cross," insisted Pete.

"I know, but I ain't got three cents." After a final inward think, Pete remarked: "I done tell you what: A man what's not got three cents am jes' as well off on dis side ob de river as on de other."

CUPID'S JOKE.
 [Gift Alexander.]
 Said Pats to Cupid 't'other day, "Get busy, boy! It now is May! The scene is set, and pretty soon We'll see the blushing brides of June. Sing, young boy! Bring all your joy! Well care away—and then, King, versed in craft, wing every shaft With stings for made and men— Why, Cupid, if I were not for you I wouldn't have a thing to do."

And Cupid grinned. The merry quip Was true to their co-partiship. And, grinning, he remarked, "I am Now moved to make an epigram: Ye ladies and ladies stupid, Why, Cupid, if I were not for you I wouldn't have a thing to do."

And then the villains laughed again! What chance for them have maiden and men?

TWO VEGETABLES.
 [Exchange.]
 Dinner—Isn't there another vegetable that goes with beef besides potato?
 Waiter—Yes, sir; there's horse-radish.

He breathed more easily. He began to feel almost kindly toward this cowardly lump of clay who was guiding him under dire compulsion. "There was a grim note of rally in his voice when he spoke to his junior."

"After that, what is loyalty? There is no loyalty that will not succumb before the menace of death—provided the menace is sufficiently imminent!"

"Ames, say I. This wretched peasant might have botched our plan entirely if he had not placed a higher value on his skin than upon his country. Education makes some difference, though. If this clown had been an educated man, now—how knows?"

The general, with the caution of long habit, drew rein before a bridge—long iron bridge that spanned a yawning gash in the side of the mountain. The blast of a trumpet brought the line to an abrupt halt.

The general peered over the side of the low stone wall. He spoke to the orderly behind him, who galloped off. Soon a motor came whirling up, and the white blaze of a searchlight flared along the bridge.

"Seems all right; but look at that bottomless pit!"

The general peered over the side of the low stone wall. He spoke to the orderly behind him, who galloped off. Soon a motor came whirling up, and the white blaze of a searchlight flared along the bridge.

"I was but babbling to my brother," answered the prisoner. "It is well to speak softly to a wolf, lest he devour thee."

"No more babbling!" commanded the captain with a frown.

Fighting the Poison Fumes.

[Sub Rosa in the London News.]
 Some readers may remember that, soon after Christmas I acknowledged and then a number of Christmas cards and greetings, and one of them came from a young friend in the 48th Highlanders (Canadian contingent) sent from Salisbury Plain. He is a thorough Scot, was in the London Scottish before going to Canada two or three years ago, and he writes in the doctrine of the brotherhood of man—though I believe he is still hopeful. There may have been occasions, however, when Burns' other lines have come into his mind:

For a' that, and a' that,
 It's comin' yet for a' that.
 That which was meant o'er,
 Shall brothers be for a' that.

My friend has now sent another communication the time from a hospital at Rouen, where he is slowly recovering from the poisoned fumes of the Germans.

Then, after more attentions from our artillerymen, my friend was passed on to a first aid station—rested there a night, and so being sent on from one to another, at length reached Rouen, where he was when this letter was written, his latest report being:

"Shortness of breath is the only trouble now, and we'll hope that will soon be over. They are awfully good to us here and one gets a fine rest."

As I said at the start, it is a simple, but a moving, tale. And it is made the more so to me, as I know the young fellow, and know that he went out purely as a matter of duty. Soldiering has no great attraction for him—but he is one of those who will cheerfully do anything when duty calls. And I have not the least doubt that, in spite of all he has seen and endured, he still feels that the days are coming when men to man the world over shall brothers be for a' that.

Literature For Lonely Ones Is Work of Aberdeen Association

Quiet But Effective Work Along Patriotic and Educational Lines—Closing Meeting Held.

Working quietly along various lines, yet never forgetting its primary object, that of sending reasonable literature to lonely people in Western Canada—little is realized of the worth of that organization of London women known as the Aberdeen Association. Founded quite a number of years ago by that gracious woman, whose name the association bears, the Countess of Aberdeen, scores of isolated homes have been cheered by the reading matter sent by the members here and in other cities. It was while on a tour through Western Canada that Lady Aberdeen realized the loneliness of the settler's home, and heard many a story of the absolute creature of a woman's life, especially during the winter months. With a view to relieving this condition, and bringing some brightness into isolated districts, Lady Aberdeen, upon her return east, at once interested a number of women to whom magazines and books were a daily occurrence, in a plan to forward reading matter to the lonely ones.

Now, the association is a Government incorporated society, and the parcels of books and magazines which go forward each month, excepting July and August, are sent free of charge. To the lonely prairie home, to the drear home of Northern Ontario, and to the lumber, and construction camps, literature is sent.

Patriotic and Educational. That it is appreciated is given high evidence of in the many letters which reach the members of the London branch. For the last year or so, the

WHAT TO DO WHEN HAIR GROWS THIN
Parisian Sage Makes the Hair Grow.

If your hair is getting thin and causing you anxiety, you ought to read about Parisian Sage, the hair grower, that surely does grow hair.
Parisian Sage is guaranteed by the manufacturers to stop your hair from falling out, to make the hair grow profusely if used regularly.
Hair falls out and stops growing because the hair root does not receive proper nourishment. If the nourishment entirely ceases, for any length of time, the hair root will die and become a dead weight. Parisian Sage, by its use, restores the hair root to its natural state, and the hair grows again.
Parisian Sage is sold in the form of a powder, and is used by rubbing it into the scalp. It is the most delicate and refreshing hair dressing ever put in a bottle, and should be used by every member of the family.
Parisian Sage is sold by leading druggists everywhere for only 50c a large bottle.
For aches, pains, rheumatism, etc., try Parisian Mustard Ointment. Its effect is wonderful. Use in place of mustard plasters, poultices or hot applications; 25c a tube.

LINEN IDEAL FOR MILITARY TAILLEURS

The summer girl will wear trig military suits of linen this year, and naturally the linen will be blue—soldier blue in shade. From Paris comes such a suit for young women, and it is so attractive, cool and practical for beach and casual wear that the model is being coupled in countless made-to-order tailors. There is, first, a flatty coat, perfectly straight in line and falling to the hips. This is bound at the edges, on the cuffs and down the front—which fastens across toward the left side, with narrow white braid. One white pearl button holds the front just below a tall, military collar, also edged with white braid. A wide, loose black patent leather belt edged with white kid and fastening with two white kid buttons, holds in the loose coat just below a natural waistline. The skirt is a gored, flare model, slashed up six inches in four places at the edge. Skirt and slashes are bound with the white braid, and the skirt is short enough to show military boots of patent leather and gunmetal gloves and a small military hat of blue straw draped with a white tulle mesh veil will add the finishing touch of crisp smartness to this knowing beach costume.

LADY BECK TO TELL OF HOSPITAL WORK IN ENGLAND

Men and Women Cordially Asked to Hear Address By Red Cross President—Need of Wheel Chairs.

All the workers at the Red Cross and C. W. C. A. rooms, Hyman Hall, were glad yesterday to welcome Lady Beck, president of the Red Cross, who but recently returned from England. On Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, everyone interested in the work, and men and women generally, are invited to be present at Hyman Hall when Lady Beck will give an account of her experiences in England. During her stay there she visited many of the military hospitals, and came in close touch with conditions existing in the Old Land at the present time.

Wheel Chairs Needed.

Both the Red Cross Society and the Canadian War Contingent Association are asking for assistance in the purchase of wheel chairs, to be sent to military hospitals in England, or for the donation of wheel chairs used, but in good condition. Two of the latter have already been presented to the Red Cross, one from Mrs. Charles Leonard, the other by the Askin Street Methodist Church, and yet a third has been promised. The C. W. C. A. has pledged itself for twelve chairs, and the Red Cross Society for twelve that number. Donations of money, large or small, would be gratefully received. It is estimated that individual chairs cost about $50 each, and those in charge believe that could a large sum be collected and several chairs purchased at once, a reduction in price might be effected.

The Red Cross treasurer acknowledges $50 from the Women's Auxiliary of the wives of Conductors and Trainmen; also $75 for sale of crocheted yoke.

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letter can be answered privately.]

Great Steamship Calamities.
Dear Miss Grey—Could you possibly obtain this information for me? When were these the loss of life—Empress of Ireland, Kickenmaru, Voltorno, Titanic and the Maine?
SANSONE.

Ans.—Fortunately I happened to have the figures at hand. The Maine was blown up in Havana harbor February 15, 1898, 264 lost; Titanic, collided with iceberg in Atlantic April 14, 1912, 1,490 lost; Kickenmaru, sunk off Japan September 28, 1911, 1,000 lost; Voltorno, afire in mid-ocean October 10, 1913, 136 lost; Empress of Ireland, rammed in St. Lawrence River May 29, 1914, 954 lost.

Hot Day Puddings.
Dear Miss Grey—Please give me a couple of nice pudding recipes; something to serve cold for summer.

ALLIE.

Ans.—Here are two you may like. The Delmonico pudding is rather large, and for the average family half quantities will answer, with two eggs:
Delmonico Pudding.—One quart of milk, three tablespoons of cornstarch mixed with a little cold milk, yolks of five eggs beaten with six tablespoons sugar, boil three minutes, pour in a pudding dish and bake half hour. Beat the whites of the eggs with six tablespoons of powdered sugar, spread over the top and return pudding to oven until a delicate brown.

Caramel Pudding.—Melt two-thirds of a cup of sugar in frying pan, stirring so sugar will not burn, heat one pint milk and blend with sugar, add three level tablespoons of cornstarch, one tablespoonful of butter, one egg beaten together; flavor with vanilla. Serve cold with cream.

Deeply In Love.
Dear Miss Grey—I am a young man, 24 years of age, and am deeply in love with a girl of 18. She tells me she loves me very much, but she persists in keeping company with other fellows, but if I go out with another girl she becomes deeply angry. Do you think she really loves me, and if so, how can I break her off this habit.

WYOMINGITE.

Ans.—As long as the young lady is not engaged to you, she is quite at liberty to accept attentions of other men; she should, however, be willing to accord you the same liberty. Personally, I don't think a girl of 18 is old enough to be really in love, or to grasp its meaning—the average girl, I mean. Seems to me you would find a more congenial comrade from girls nearer your own age. However, if Miss Eighteen-Year-Old is THIS one, should think a little neglect of her, and a bit of attention to one or two other lasses might be the best method of opening her eyes.

For "Boccagen."
Some time ago a reader, "Boccagen," sent us a poem that had been requested, and asked if it were possible to obtain a certain section of The Advertiser serial "Molly McDonald." I have this clipping on hand, and would be glad to receive "Boccagen's" address so that I might forward it to her.

Benefited By It.
Dear Miss Grey—I for one am pleased to learn that you are able again to give us our daily Mail Box. I have derived some benefit from it, and hope that some day I may be able to help someone else. I am sending the words of the song "Just Before the Battle, Mother," and trust that the one it is intended for may be able to read it. I would like the words (and music), if possible, of a song, some words of which run something like this:

As I was out roaming one fair day in May,
And seeking recreation as well, I might say,
Whom should I see near me but a young Indian lass,
Thanking you in advance, I remain,
Yours truly,
UNKNOWN.

Ans.—Thank you, friend, I hope we may be of some help to you in return, and that some reader may supplant the song you wish.

THE BACKYARD GARDEN

A Way To Get Early Tomatoes

GETTING TOMATOES EARLY.
[By Prof. Spade.]

If the gardener who desires to supply his family with tomatoes from the backyard lot does not get an early crop he is not taking advantage of the principal reason for his failure. It is to give him vegetables early in the season, when they are costly, instead of late in the year, when the market is glutted.

You need lots of tomatoes for your own use during the winter months, especially as the canning process is simple.

The main point to observe is the necessity of keeping the tomato growing without check of any kind.

Many growers of tomato plants sow seed in a hot-bed and let the plants grow without transplanting until the ground is warm enough to plant in the open.

This method simply produces long, thin-stemmed plants that cannot mature, and bear fruit in a stunted manner, quantity and quality considered, as a plant that has been transplanted from a hot-bed to a cold-frame, later to a pot and lastly to the field or garden.

If you want early tomatoes train your tomatoes to a stake and prune all side shoots. Just retain the central leader, and let it grow to the stake with raffia. If this method appeals to you it is possible to plant much closer than you can if the vine is permitted to grow at will.

Don't overlook the fact that the tomato does well in a properly cultivated clay soil. As it does not give good results in a limed soil.

Many gardeners supply heavy dressing of stable manure. The result is not necessarily simply encouraging production of vine.

What is needed is a properly-prepared soil that contains the available plant food required by the tomato, and after final planting employ proper methods of cultivation to keep down weeds.

But more important than anything is the maintaining of a dust mulch to conserve moisture. Cultivate!

OLD SONGS and POEMS

JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE, MOTHER.

[Sent Upon Request by "Unknown."] Just before the battle, mother, I am thinking most of you; While upon the field I'm watching, Comrades brave are round me lying, Filled with thoughts of home and God— For well they know that on the morrow Some must sleep beneath the sod.

Chorus. Farewell, mother, you may never Press me to your heart again; But, oh, you'll not forget me, mother, If I'm numbered with the slain.

O, I long to see you, mother, And the loving ones at home, But I'll never leave our banner "Till in honor I can come. Tell the traitors all around you That their cruel words we know In every battle kill our soldiers, By the help they give the foe.

Hark, I hear the bugle sounding, 'Tis the signal for the fight; Now may God protect us, mother, As he ever does the right. 'Tis the battle cry of freedom— How it swells upon the air, Oh, we'll rally 'neath the standard, Or we'll perish nobly there.

LONDON GOT REAL HEAVING WITH DILLINGER ON MOUND

New Southpaw Held Ottawa to Three Hits and One Run—Schaffer Scored London's Winning Counter by a Home Run in the Third Inning.

(Special to The Advertiser.)
OTTAWA, June 1.—When Frank Kubat, subbing in right field for Ottawa, let a line fly from Schaffer's bat get through him in the third inning with two men out today, the London third sacker completed the circuit and scored what proved to be the winning run of a closely contested battle which Reising's men took, 2 runs to 1.

The game was considerable of a pitcher's contest, with "Lefty" Dillinger, London's new southpaw, leading the champions by a string after the first inning. The tall Clevelander held Shag's men to three scattered singles, one of these being a scratch. He fanned eight and walked four. In the pinches, and he was seldom in any, he was tight as a clam. Technically, only 27 men faced him, and as the Senators had but five left on bases, his effective work can be pretty well judged.

Shocker Was Good, Too.
Herb Shocker pitched a good game, but was hit in every inning but the first and fourth. His bingles, however, were scattered and some fast fielding back of him made him look better than the score would indicate. Dillinger slipped a fast ball through that proved more and more of an enigma as the game progressed.

The game was quite slow for pitchers' argument, due to Dillinger's very slow delivery. It was exciting right through with the home crowd pulling hard for a rally in the last five innings. There was nothing doing, however, the nearest approach being in the fifth when Shocker walked and was sacrificed to second. That was as far as he got. Bullock opened the sixth with a single but was forced at second by Rooney who stole, but the next two were pie for Dillinger.

Reidy Makes Great Catch.
With two out in the last of the ninth, Smayl combined a line drive down the right field foul line which looked good for three bases, but "Cy" Reidy came in on the dead run and speared it off his lace with his gloved hand. Ottawa started after Dillinger in a single and went to third on Bullock's single. Rooney fanned, but Fuller counted on Power's fly to Reidy. Shag flew out the same way. After that the champions never came near scoring.

The second and winning run was scored on Schaffer's drive in the third which Kubat apparently had, but at last he went through him for a home run.

Dolan presented a very crippled lineup. Dolan is out with a spike wound sustained in Hamilton and Roe Carleton was missing from the batting order as a result of a twist sustained sliding into second on Monday.

Bullock was also injured the same day in the sixth, but was able to continue. The Senators pulled two fast double-plays that helped them considerably. Jack Schaffer corralled three bingles in three times up in addition to walking in the first inning.

Reising Was Chased.
Umpire Halligan had a warm day, having an argument with the pitcher in the third when the Ottawa pilot claimed Schaffer had muffed Bullock's attempted bunt. He was chased off the coaching line. In the ninth, with one out and Hoch on first, the London one down the first base line, Hoch going to third. Ottawa claimed Hoch out second, and Halligan agreed. This brought Reising to the front with a roar. A hot exchange resulted in "Doc" being put off the field. The weather was very warm and the heat seemed to relieve both teams of considerable pepper. Box score:

HAMS ONLY GOT TWO HITS BUT THEY PROVED TIMELY
Brantford's Only Error Enabled Cristall's Team To Score Winning Run.

BRANTFORD, June 1.—Taking advantage of Brantford's only error this afternoon, Hamilton, scored the winning run in the second inning when Green let an easy fly get past him, allowing Tiffany to score on Cristall's hit. Close tied the Hams down to two hits, but he batted two in the fifth when Cristall crossed over. Bunching their two hits in the beginning of the sixth, the Hams again tallied, but there-fore were held down. Scoring lone runs in the fourth and fifth, the Brantfords pulled the game out of the fire after having twice tied it, and the Hams evened up on the first two of the series. Brantford got to Dolan for eight hits, but they were scattered and practically fruitless.

ST. THOMAS FANS TRY TO MOB THE UMPIRE

ESCORTE FROM PARK
Several St. Thomas Players Banished From Game for Kicking.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
ST. THOMAS, June 1. Guelph turned the tables on the locals here today in a game in which the umpire was the chief attraction, and at the conclusion he had to be escorted off the field by a policeman, three of the club directors and the ball players of the visiting team. It all started in the first innings when Reilly walked Murphy after O'Brien and Isaacs had been retired. Hunt rolled an easy one to Bierbauer which went through his hands. Murphy in dashing from second to the plate missed the third bag by about six feet, but Umpire Walsh apparently was watching the play at first and allowed the run to score. Before the fracas was over he had put Or and Stewart out of the game and off the grounds. Griefs followed with a triple scoring Hunt.

The his noise was in the second when Walsh got Reilly in a hole by calling what looked like strikes, balls, "Flip" protested mildly and was ordered to the bench. Chief Nevitt tried to tell the umpire something and he was also banished. This was too much for the fans and they made a wild rush for Mr. Walsh. Policeman McCully was powerless and inside of a fraction of a minute several hundred fans surrounded him threatening violence. Finally Director, Aid. Horton with the assistance of the policeman induced the umpire to retreat. Reilly and Reilly and the time things were peaceful. However, the storm broke out with fresh violence when in the last innings, with a couple on and none out, Walsh called Bierbauer out on a third strike which looked a foot over his head. When the side had been retired, Walsh foolishly raced for the visitors' bench. In the crowd of quickly going to the umpire's dressing room. The infuriated crowd rescued him from his perilous position. He was rushed to an automobile brought up for the purpose and pushed in while the fans were entreated to be calm. It is stated tonight that the St. Thomas management will protest to the score. Wilkinson relieved Reilly in the fifth.

Dorbec twirled a splendid game for Knott's men, holding the Saints down until the ninth when singles by Gadsby, Hadley and Inker netted one run. The British welterweight in a 12-round bout tonight. Wells had the advantage in only two rounds.

Saskatchewan Premier Tells Delegation That Signers Withdraw Names.

CLERGYMEN ON THE LIST
But Imposing Array of Figures Nullified by Information Received.

[Canadian Press.]
Regina, Sask., June 2.—The executive of the Saskatchewan Licensed Victuallers' Association yesterday waited on the Government armed with a petition containing some 53,000 names, praying that the Government would submit its temperance proposals to the people. Practically all the members of the House were present, and the delegation was received by Premier Scott and Hon. George Bell.

Secretary Scott of the association pointed out that the association believed that the general public in the province was not in favor of the drastic temperance reform now contemplated. Included among the signatures were the names of 41 clergymen.

The Premier, in replying, admitted that under ordinary circumstances the presentation of a petition of such magnitude would be a serious thing. He had, however, received a great deal of correspondence from people who had signed the petition asking that their names might be considered cancelled. They alleged in some cases that there had been misrepresentation. Others stated that they had signed in order to get rid of the canvassers. Moreover, in certain districts in which the licensed victuallers had worked, the temperance forces had followed with another petition supporting the Government in their policy, and 25 per cent of the signatures appearing on the liquorers' petition also appeared on the other.

Government is Firm.
In view of all the arguments which had been made against the measure, which the signatures to the petition of the licensed victuallers had been procured, and in view also of the hearty approval which had come from all parts of the province from all classes of men and women, the Government was convinced that the petition presented by the executive had been obtained fairly and truly indicated the feeling throughout the province, then there would be nothing for the present Government to do but to step down and allow someone else to carry out the policy which the liquor men desired.

[Canadian Press.]
Rome, June 2.—The following statement was issued today at the headquarters of the general staff of the Italian army:

"A series of engagements fought on May 30 in Carniola, west of Montenegro, ended in the defeat of the enemy, who left 30 dead and numerous wounded in front of our lines.

"During the 31st there were small actions all along the frontier as the result of a new disposition of our advanced troops. The bad weather, which continues to create serious difficulties, was not in favor of the drastic temperance reform now contemplated. Included among the signatures were the names of 41 clergymen.

"Ancona authorities state that the damage to the railroad bridge over the Marosca, near Rimini, on May 24, was not caused by enemy warships, but by an Austrian dirigible, which was flying the Italian flag.

BOMBED MOLFFETTA, TOO.

JAPS TO ENLARGE ARMY

TOKIO, June 1.—The Government's policy of military development was approved by the House today, in an exciting session. By a vote of 222 to 181 the House adopted the provision for increase in the standing army of two divisions, or about 24,000 men.

It then approved the entire budget including the naval program, which provides for construction of three submarines and eight torpedo-boat destroyers.

"A COMRADE IN WHITE IS SEEN BENDING OVER WOUNDED AMID BATTLE"

Mystical Tale From Trenches Appears in Scottish Magazine
—The Story Told by George Casey of "Another
Who Was Wounded."

This mystical tale from the trenches is taken from Life and Work, the Church of Scotland magazine. No writer's name is given.

"The Friend of the Wounded."
"Strange tales reached us in the trenches. Rumors raced up and down that 300-mile line from Switzerland to the North Sea. We knew neither the source of them nor the truth of them. They came quickly, and they went quickly. Yet somehow I remember the very hour when George Casey turned to me with a queer look in his blue eyes, and asked if I had seen the Friend of the Wounded."

"And then he told me all he knew. After many a hot engagement a man in white had been seen bending over a wounded man. Snipers sniped at him. Shells fell all around. Nothing had power to touch him. He was either heroic beyond all heroes, or he was something greater still. This mysterious one, whom the French called the Comrade in White, seemed to be everywhere at once. At Nancy, in the Argonne, at Soissons and Ypres, everywhere men were talking of him with hushed voices.

"But some laughed and said the trenches were telling on men's nerves. I, who was often reckless enough in my talk, exclaimed that for me seeing him was believing, and that I didn't expect any help but a German knife if I was found lying out there wounded."

"I Was Shot."
"It was the next day that things got lively on this bit of the front. Our big guns roared from sunrise to sunset, and began again in the morning. At noon the word was taken to the trenches in front of us. They were 200 yards away. And we weren't well started till we knew that the big guns had fallen silent. It was a word of preparation, a word of warning, a word of death. And while he swiftly moved every trace of blood and mire I felt as if my whole nature were being washed, as if all the dirt of the world were being gone, and as if I were once more a little child."

"He, Too, Had Been Wounded."
"I suppose I slept, for when I awoke this feeling was gone. I was a man, and I wanted to know what I could do for my friend to help him or to serve him. He was looking towards the stream, and his hands were clasped in prayer."

"I Must Have Fainted."
"I must have fainted again, for I woke to consciousness in little camp, by a stream, and the Comrade in White was washing my wounds and binding them up. It seems foolish to say it, for I was in terrible pain, but I was happier at that moment than ever I had been before. I have been in all my life before. I can't explain it, but it seemed as if all my days of pain and suffering were over, and that I was at last at home. I was washing my wounds and binding them up. It seems foolish to say it, for I was in terrible pain, but I was happier at that moment than ever I had been before. I have been in all my life before. I can't explain it, but it seemed as if all my days of pain and suffering were over, and that I was at last at home."

"All the roads beyond the German front are commanded by the Belgians, the making it very difficult for the enemy to bring up fresh supplies. The first line of Belgian troops, by a continuous fire, prevented German troops from advancing."

Varsity Conference

Representatives Attend From All Over Dominion—Plea for Co-Operation.

TORONTO, June 1.—A conference of representatives of Canadian universities was held today in the library of Toronto University, the following universities being represented: Toronto, Alberta, British Columbia, Dalhousie, McGill, Manitoba, McMaster, Mount Allison, McGill, New Brunswick, Queen's, Ottawa, Saskatchewan, St. Francis Xavier and Western.

A committee consisting of President Lory (Alberta University), President McKenzie (Dalhousie), J. A. Nicholson (McGill), and Dr. Pakenham, was appointed to examine into the existing systems of junior matriculation. A committee was also appointed to report on the question of reducing the length of the session in Canadian universities. A committee consisting of the presidents of Toronto, Manitoba, McGill, and Alberta Universities, was appointed to draft a constitution and nominate officers for the next conference.

Regarding the recognition of courses of instruction in medicine and recognition by universities in the east, and agreed that the universities should name their representatives with Dean Clarke, of the Toronto University, as chairman of the former, and Dean Adams, of McGill, of the latter.

That the Made-in-Canada idea applied to higher education within the Dominion was the dominant note struck in the speeches that were delivered tonight at the complimentary dinner tendered by the Ontario Government to the presidents and representatives of the Canadian universities.

"A new country has been made already by the war," said President Falconer. "L'langemarche has made a new country. We shall never be the same again and educationally we shall be different."

He spoke in terms of high praise of the educational work that is being done in the west and raised the vital issue of the educational problem in Canada by pointing out that unless the east established universities of the east held a hand in scholarships to the rapidly advancing western students, there was grave danger of Canada splitting in two at the head of the great lakes.

President Mackenzie of Dalhousie University said: "It has become necessary for us to work together."

President Murray, of Saskatchewan, said that to most of the western students, eastern Canada was but a name. This should not be, Canada should provide post-graduate facilities.

WINDSOR MAN FOUND WITH HEAD BROKEN; MURDER SUSPECTED
Felix Meine, Aged 45, Apparently Victim of Foul Play.

[Canadian Press.]
WINDSOR, June 1.—Circumstances in connection with the death of Felix Meine, 45 years old, who was found this morning between the Drouillard road, north of Ford City, point strongly to murder. His skull was fractured at both front and back as though with some heavy weapon, and a large gash on the top of the head, which might have been caused with some sharp instrument, had laid bare a portion of the skull.

When found the body was in a half precluded the possibility of his having about a hundred yards north of the Essex terminal. The police are of the opinion that he was placed there while in a dying condition or after precluded the possibility of his having walked any distance after receiving the wound.

Provincial officers Nash and Smith are co-operating with the local police in an endeavor to clear up the mystery.

BAKERY BURNS, MAN MISSING.
MONTREAL, June 1.—Fire which destroyed the bakery of Mr. James Strachan's bakery, City Hall avenue, near St. Catherine street, this afternoon, caused a loss estimated at about $100,000. It is supposed to have resulted in the death of Hypocrite Bernard, 46 Wolfe street, and an employee at the bakery. The fire was discovered at 8:15, and made such rapid progress that fifty or sixty bakers had to get out without waiting to grab their clothing. Ninety horses were taken out of the burning building.

Mrs. M. O'Connell, of 404 Adelaide street, wishes to thank her friends, also King Solomon Lodge and Company, 7th Regiment, for the many kindnesses during her sad bereavement.

SHOOTING TRIAL

IN SHOOT MURDER
Taken From Woodstock Jail to Simcoe During Last Night.

TWO OFFICERS WITH HIM
Suspect Already Under Sentence of Two Years for Serious Offence.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
WOODSTOCK, June 1.—Emory Shelly, who was sentenced on May 14 by Judge Wallace to two years in Kingston penitentiary for committing a serious offence against a young girl near Woodstock, who was held in jail here on suspicion of being the possible slayer of Christopher Shoup, the North of Walsingham farmer and miller, who was shot and killed near his home in Norfolk county on May 11, was taken to Simcoe today in charge of Deputy Sheriff Sprout, of this city, and a Simcoe constable, where, tomorrow morning he will stand preliminary trial on a charge of murder.

It will be recalled that following his sentence to central prison, Shelly was cross-examined by Provincial Inspector John Miller, aided by Chief of Police Killings, of this city. It was stated at that time that the police had a chain of evidence which appeared to connect him with the murder.

Among the list of things causing suspicion against him, it was reported, was that Shelly, while drinking at the local restaurant, who also keeps roomers, to give out that he had come to a hotel near Woodstock, when he had reached Woodstock, Wednesday morning from the neighborhood in which the murder occurred, which he about forty miles from here. The lady reported this to the police.

RENEW RIOTS AGAINST GERMANS IN LONDON
Zeppelin Raid Sets Up Feeling Again—Firms Lose Favors.

LONDON, June 1.—The Zeppelin raid on the metropolitan area last night brought a recrudescence of the anti-German demonstrations of the mob. The feeling against Germans is acute. Crowds have attacked German shops, and special constables have had to be called out to deal with the rioters.

The rioters have pulled down the barricades from shops which had been boarded up since the previous disorders, and used the furniture and goods remained has been looted.

Coincident with the anti-German feeling among the lower classes, which has been kindled in riots and the wholesale internment of alien enemy countries, tonight's London Gazette announces that the lord chamberlain has revoked the royal warrants granted to three German firms trading in London. Royal warrants are highly prized by business firms, because they confer on the holders the privilege of displaying the royal arms over their shops and on their stationery, and advertising themselves as "purveyors by appointment" to the royal household.

One of the firms is a Berlin photographic company and fine arts publisher.

FEELING HIGH IN SPAIN.
MADRID (Via Paris), June 1.—5 p.m.—Feeling between the anti-German and pro-Germans in Spain runs high. Two editors, Senor Blanco, whose tendencies are favorable to the Allies, and Senor Barras, who is pro-German, fought a duel today with sabres. Both were wounded.

HON. DR. MONTAGUE ADMITS HE BLUNDERED
Let Contract for $103,000 Too Much, Not Reading Papers.

WINNIPEG, June 1.—Chief Justice Mathers informed today that the Royal Commission may take a trip to Rochester to interrogate Mr. Horwood, late Rochester architect, who is ill at his home. His wife's wish is that he should remain in the city.

His evidence is very important, and the one man who would know every detail about the "Parliament Buildings," he told to the Royal Commission today that when he let the contract to Kelly for the new north wing of the Parliament Buildings for $250,000, he was over the mark by $103,140. After an hour's examination he said he had probably made a serious mistake in ignorance.

He stated that he had not read the contract he signed, which drew letters from the crowded court and added that the building was increased and appealed to Chief Justice Mathers to have "partial" demonstrations stopped. He declared he was telling the truth and he did not propose to be a butt for the levity of the "loafers." The audience included prominent clergymen, physicians and businessmen.

WOULD HAVE 'LIMITED' STOP ON SUNDAYS
Dorchester Township Council Will Petition Grand Trunk.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
DORCHESTER, June 1.—Students of Dorchester are indignant at G. T. R. officials for taking off the 6:00 p.m. train on Sundays. Dozens of people come to the village on Saturdays to spend the week-end, and with the removal of the train, which was the only westward bound to stop, it leaves them without means of transportation to the city in time for Monday's work. Station agents J. W. Young has written headquarters to this effect. Failing to get a favorable reply, the township will send a petition asking that the International Limited be stopped on Sunday only.
