POLITICAL INTEREST GENTRED ON BRUTAL RIOTS IN BELFAST

An Exciting Week in Britain-Many Protestant Workmen Are Assaulted by Orangemen—Outbreaks Injuring Unionist Cause Both at Home and in England.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser by T. P. O'Connor.]

London, Aug. 3.—This has been a great week, especially for home rule. The brutal outburst of Orange bigotry at Belfast, involving and maining nearly a hundred men and some women, and the reduction to starvation from want of work of two thousand, at last so excited opinion in England as well as Ireland, that Orangemen in the House of Commons began to perceive the Fortunately Bonar Law, who remains a narrow, Ulster Orangeman, through his Orange father, though born in Canada, made a speech Saturday of last week, which repeated previous incitements of civil war in Ulster, and Carson spoke even more violently. These harangues, coming in the midst of the ferocious outburst of bigotry in Belfast, fixed responsibility on the Unionist leaders for this bloodshed.

HAD TO LEAVE BELFAST.

The Orange difficulty was increased by the fact that the workmen assaulted were Protestants. Liberal opinions as well as Catholic were that many of these were Englishmen, and had to leave Belfast to seek work and safety in England; that English trades unions had to substitute many of their funds depleted by the recent labor unrest to keep these men alive.

UNIONISTS WERE SUBDUED.

Joseph Devlin found the situation splendidly prepared. When he rose on Wednesday to bring the Belfast horrors before the House of Commons, everybody shuddered as Devlin recited tale after tale of hideous brutality, including one attempt to burn a man alive. The most remarkable effect, however, was the subdued air of the Unionists, including those who incited such bloodshed, for everyone condemned the acts of the Orange rowdies, and even approved Birrell's flooding Belfast with soldiers and police to put down such atrocities by force. Thus the singular spectacle was presented of Orangemen one day inciting dupes to riot and the next day approving their being shot down if necessary by bullets of soldiers and police. A REMARKABLE INCIDENT.

Just as the debate was closing a remarkable incident took place. Redmond challenged Bonar Law to answer for his words the previous week. Bonar NEW APPOINTMENTS Law was foolish enough to rise to the hait, and he repeated his outrageous appeals for civil war of the previous week. This in turn provoked the Liberals to retort.

Asquith, who was absent from the House, was sent for hurriedly. He Many Changes Are Being Made entered leisurely after Law had spoken for several minutes, and then rising delivered an impromptu speech of such powerful invective that the Liberals and Irish cheered themselves hoarse. All the critics described the speech as the greatest in Asquith's life.

Ramsay MacDonald, speaking for the Labor party, expressed an equally severe condemnation of the Orange outrages, and brought out the facts as to the relief of expelled Englishmen by the English trades unions. GIVEN ITS QUIETUS.

The universal impression is that this premature butburst of Orange brutality gives a quietus to a long campaign of Orange orators designed to produce bloodshed in Ulster. The Unionists announce another campaign for September in Ulster in an attempt to revive the dying embers of religious bloodshed. Third-class excise officers—C. B.

The week wound up with an all-night sitting, forced by the Opposition to exhaust the Liberals, and with an attempt early vesterday morning to get another snap division and defeat the Government. Both attempts failed, and the week ends with the Liberals more full of fight than for weeks, and the Tories more discouraged.

ABANDON SUGAR POLICY.

Another remarkable incident is the abandonment by the Liberal ministry of the Unionist policy on sugar bounties, which had inflicted incalculable damage on all English trades associated with sugar. The Unionists demand the prolongation of the session with the object of discussing this tremendous and unexpected departure. The Liberals welcome the debate as affording opportunity of discussing the comparative merits of the tarif.

The Liberals probably will lose a Manchester seat, but it is usually Unionist, and it will not result seriously in the splendid strength of the Liberal Martin Stone, Victim of Robbery, Gives Description of One Assailant.

MAN IS WELL KNOWN IN CITY

Stone Was Going to Walkerton to Buy a Hotel, When He Was Drugged by Thugs.

The sensational hold-up on the Hamilton road last night by which Mr. Martin Stone, of Chicago, was relieved of $86 and some checks by three unknown crooks, created quite a sensation today, and both the city and the ounty police are busily engaged in ollowing various clues. Stone has een able to give fair descriptions of the men implicated, and the name of a well-known character, a frequenter of "Whiskey Row," answering the description of one of the crooks is known to the police. Interesting developments

The crime is the first of the character reported to the city police since the hold-up and shooting on Colborne street and Queen's avenue last fall, and the detectives are particularly anxious to discover the offenders.

Stone was fully recovered from the effects of the affair this morning, and left Victoria Hospital at 10 o'clock, going to the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. D. McKenzie, 420 Rectory street. His mind was clear, and he explained the hold-up lucidly. Late last night

Two of the surface lines in all sections of the city strangers sat in front while Stone and strangers sat in front, while Stone and the big man of the trio sat in the rear seat.

Liquor Was Drugged. The rig called for the men at the City Hotel, and it drove to the rear. There the men jumped in and started on their journey. Going west on Dundas street they turned south on Thames. When opposite the mineral baths, Stone's companion pulled a bottle, and invited him to have a drink. "It is cold driving, and a little liquor will do you good," said Stone's companion.

Stone complied, taking a fairly good drink out of the bottle. In a moment or two he lost consciousness and from that time until he was brought to in the hospital his mind is a blank. Mr. Stone declared that he had a faint recollection of driving over some street railway tracks after taking the drink, but further than this can remember nothing.

Mr. Andrew McMillan, grocer, on he Hamilton road tast, saw him lying on the ground at night, and calling some neighbors found him bound and gagged. He was released and taken to Victoria Hospital. The police were at once notiled, and began to work on the case, with what meagre in-formation was supplied them at the time. Looke Like a Robbery, High Constable Hughes is confident that the man was deliberately held up and robbed by thugs, although some of the local police officers are not convinced that such was the case. No person, averred Hughes, could bind himself in such a manner, and, furthermore, he states ethat Stone's body was bruised. His neck and throat were also discolored.

THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

The Olympic games just concluded at Stockholm do not seem to have groused in this country anything like the interest manifested on the previous quadrennial occasions. In 1908 when the festival was held in London. public interest was at a maximum; this time, although Canada has done better than any other country except Sweden and South Africa, in proportion to population, there is small enthusiasm.

Perhaps it was the close and exciting struggle between Great Britain and the United States in 1908 that arrested attention. This year the mother country made rather a poor showing against the big republic, though the empire as a whole scored in the track and field events a total of 26 points, against United States' 85, and in all contests 108 against United States' 128, standing second on the list. The remoteness of Stockholm from our or-Swedes and Pinns with anpronounceable names, rising in swarms from the region around, tended to cloud the scene of action. And is it certain that

Over in England, where it has become fashionable to raise an alarm about almost everything, such being a drawback to sitting on top of the ladder, some of the sporting editors murmur that Britons are on the downgrade, a decadent people that needs bracing up. They exclaim that the Olympic games are coming to be generally taken as the great test of national virility. This is a doubtful supposition. Germany scored only 4 points in track and field events, 34 13, respectively. But not many Cana-

"Mr. Dooley" says somewhere that the old rough-and-tumble, unorganized, free-for-all football play of his boyhood days was rather better fun than the modern game confined to a few specialists. Perhaps a game of tag on the municipal playgrounds will do as much for the virility of nations as to sit and watch the fancy athletes the Carlton Club dinner. Then why perform their specialized tricks.

AN AMERICAN ELECTION ANOMALY.

The American people are speculating on the possibility of the election of a President being thrown into Congress, as the result of the three-cornered con-

The President is not elected by papular vote. The American citizens will not vote directly for Taft, or Rooses velt, or Wilson, but for obscure persons, called electors, who wear Taft, Roosevelt or Wilson labels. These electors, forming what is called the electoral college, meet in each particular state in January after the election and

In the coming election there will be 531 of these electors, distributed among the states in proportion to population. It is quite possible that neither Taft, Roosevelt nor Wilson will have a clear majority of these electors. In that event the constitution directs that the House of Representatives shall vote on the three names, a majority also being needed to elect. Twice before this has happened-in 1801 and 1824. If the House of Representatives fails to give clear majority for any one candidate before March 4, then all three candidates are eliminated. Politically speaking, they are dead. The election is then thrown into the Senate, which must choose a President from among the three vice-presidential candidates. If any one of the three fails to get a clear majority over the other two, the one receiving the lowest number of votes drops out, and the remaining two go to another ballot, the one receiving the majority to be the President for four

It is probable that the new party, the Progressives, will demand the abolition of the electoral college, which would do away with all this obsolete and ridiculous procedure, and permit the President to be elected directly by the people. # WHO LEFT THE SICK

Toronto Women Had No Grievances at All.

[Canadian Press.] Ottawa, Aug. 3. — Miss Florence Leamy, head nurse of the Ottawa typhoid emergency hospital, made a typhoid emergency hospital, made a statement today in reply to criticisms by Miss Agatha Gamble and Miss Hurst, Toronto nurses, who came here to assist in the typhoid epidemic, but who have returned home and given interviews condemning the conditions urder which they were obliged to Miss Leamy ridiculed the idea that either Miss Gamble or Miss Hurst had any grievance real enough to force them to leave their work.

"Why," said Miss Leamy, mergencies such as this, nurses and loctors stopped to consider their own troubles and comfort nothing would be done. A real nurse always rises to an emergency cheerfully and readily-that is her test.

"In the first place if they had been real nurses or even women, they would have remembered that everything was being rushed. The other turses we have from Toronto have stayed, and are content to do so while they can help. The accommodations with regard to sanitation and disinfection were as good as could be expected on the first day. With regard to having to get their food in restaurants, if they had endured this awful misery for one day longer they would have found that we made arrangements for them to have food at the ospital. There is no doubt that had they been suited for their work they would have stayed and helped." Nearly 800 Cases.

Up to noon today 15 cases were added to last night's total of the typhoid fever, bringing it up to 799.

The new cases is now beginning to taper off, as is the case when a typhoid epidemic passes its worst stage. On Wedneday there were 80, Thursday 70 and Friday 46. The total number today is expected to be less than yesterday. Doctors say that the spell of cool weather the city has experienced for the last two weeks has been the salvation of many of the patients. Had the outbreak occurred a couple of weeks sooner, during the extreme heat wave, the loss of life would have been very great.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—A fight for a $2,-000,000 fortune accumulated in Alaska by Henry Curtis Eliott, is being waged in the courts here by his two widows.

Katherine M. Eliott, the first and Katherine M. divorced wife, holds a "contract will," in which Ellott bequeathed to her all n possessed or hoped to possess. He made her his sole executrix. A second document, making any will that might have been made before, is held by the second wife, Mrs. Grace Van Wormer Eliott. By this document everything is left the second Mrs. Eliott and a son, Henry Curtis Eliott, jun. According to the story Eliott, without funds in 1897, became stricken with the gold fever. His first wife had saved $500 by painting china, and "grub-staked" her husband, at the same time demanding half of his winnings in the Klondike regions. H promised her she could have it. He met two other men and became wealthy by locating and selling various claims, and in this way accumuated his fortune. On his return Chicago Eliott and his wife vorced and he went to New York, where he met and married Grace Van of London Wormer, Eliott returned to Alaska and morrow. in 1909 was buried beneath an aval-enche. In January, 1919, his last will was propated. Various legal entanglements appeared regarding the first will from time to time, and finally Ano. 7 was set as a date for argument in the pellate court as to the validity of "contract will."

The local playgrounds are somewhat differently managed from those in Toronto, as in this city an effort has been made to the municipal and school grounds. The attendance at the local ground has been fair, but has not been what it should be, owing to the cool weather. The daily attendances for the four different grounds has ranged from 490 to 750. The Chesley avenue and Park Flats ids have been more largely attended than Victoria and Simcoe, No new apparatus has been installed since the opening of the various play-

THE FIRST WORD - Everyone should take a vacation at least once a year.

August is the month when most of the rusy girls, employed all the rest of the year, take their vacations. We of the stage, however, generally begin our season's work at that time. #### "INASMUCH"

The following short poem was written by Mrs. T. C. Duncan, of this city, and appeared in "Contemporary Literature" some little time ago. It was written by Mrs. Duncan after viewing the conditions in some of our larger cities, and is apropos of the present playground movement in London:

The children played upon the mossy grass,

I watched them as I idled there;

And thought of city alleys destitute of air—

Of odors foul, a swarming human mass,

Where men and women, babies, too, must day and night time pass:

And woman-like, my soul within me burned, Lest any little one be from this playground turned, Who sought its shade—not any lad or lass.

My vision saw them once again in stifling city heat,

And "Inasmuch" was written wide

Upon a banner, held beside
The form of one whose thorn-crowned brow
Was bent and marred—I see it now:

Here, many a girl, sick at heart, weary of the monoteny of life, has been wooed back to health and spirits by the combined influences of bracing lakes de air and the congenial companionship of her kind.

Opened 20 Years Ago. It is just twenty years since "Summerholme" was first thrown open, the establishing of the cottage heing largely due to the efforts of Mrs. Waugh, Miss Ware and Miss Priddis, all members of ware and Miss Priddis, an memors of the association board at that time. And during this period hundreds of girls have been accommodated, many of them returning season after season to enjoy their week or fortnight at the lake under the chaperonage, as it were, of the Y. W. C. A.

"Summerholme" is, in fact, a haven for the girl who earns her own living, for although frequent applications are received from young women who are not breadwinners, these are in no cases accepted. The rates charged are extremely moderate in order to give the working girl a chance, and it is thought that to accommodate independent girls would be scarcely fair. It is, of course, neces-sary that each girl spending her vacation at the cottage be a member of the Girls Good Housekeepers.

The management of "Summerholme is admirable. During the summer, the members of the board take turns in bemembers of the board take turns in being "hostesses," each staying for a ling "hostesses," each staying for a lagainst to much dissipation against to much dissipation against to much dissipation to be lead to advantage.

Those born today will be fortunate, the couple of weeks at the cottage and being the lagainst to much dissipation. couple of weeks at the cottage and being assisted by a permanent working housekeeper. The girls themselves are required to perform certain tasks of light housework—drying dishes, dusting, making beds, and so forth. But for many of them this only adds to the enterment of the online, and the work is joyment of the onling, and the work is entered into with a zest. A visit to the cottage reveals the fact that the girlbearders do not neglect their duties. It is kept spotlessly clean, from the front steps to the white ollcloth-covered

Some Restraints Necessary.

When it is remembered that the cottage accommodates about twenty-five girls at one time, and all of varying temperaments and habits, the necessity of regulating the life of the inmates by contain sules can readily be understood certain rules can readily be understood.

For instance, it is required that every girl be incoors by 10:30 each night, but not long ago a young lady, on being isked how she liked staying at "Summerholme" replied: "Oh, I like it fine, only one has to be in too early at nights!"
It is surely well for the girls themlet is surely well for the girls them-

Over on Orchard Beach, one of the prettiest sections of Port Stanley, with its wide-spreading shade the and excellent lake view, one finds "Summer-holme," the cottage of the Young Wonger's Christian Association of this city.

An atmosphere of good-feilowship and optimism exists at "Summerholme," and this probably accounts for its popularity. For on the whole, the girls who stay there have a fetrly join time. At nights there have a fairly jolly time. At nights the up-stair rooms are the scene of many a pillow 6-. But, dear me, I wasn't to tell that! Anyway, they have heaps of fun, and it is little wonder that each succeeding year brings many of them back again

Fat Is Not Strength

[By a Physician.]

Don't load the body down with fat Eat according to your needs; not according to your likes. Outside of 'leoks," which are sometimes in and sometimes out of fashion, obesity is a hindrance to the enjoyment and comfort of life.

When a person grows fat, each organ gets its portion. The consequence is often serious if these fatty deposits grow so large as to interfere with the normal action of the organs. Shortness of breath, palpitation, bronchitis and other unpleasant and unpecessary difficulties are occasion.

HOW BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS

On July 18 "Bunty" celebrated her with people according to their tembirthday at the Haymarket Theatre, peraments. No two people can be London, England. Over 450 performances have been given and people are still flocking to see her. Not only English and Scotch, but also Americans, Germans, French and Russians have succumbed to the charm of Mr. Graham Moffatt's wonderfully simple, true, and natural piece of Lowland-Scottish realism. It appears to stalls, pit, and gallery alike, and people the little theatre kitten, "Bunty," go to see it again and again.

But success, stupendous enough to life is Miss Kate Moffatt, the playwright's sister. She had never played in a theatre in her life until she took the part of "Bunty" at the Haymarket. Before that she had appeared on concert platforms only, when she and her brother performed little playlets of his own composing.

"All my life I have been lucky," sold "Bunty," "and I bring luck to others. People who come to stay with me always say that, something nice happens to them afterwards. A facht called 'Bunty' won the race at Kew, and a lot of people are now calling things 'Bunty' to bring them The Sunday Whistle.

But it is not luck alone that is responsible for Miss Moffatt's success. To speak to her is to realize that underneath that delightfully feminine exterior (she is, if anything, prettier off the stage than on) is hidden a strong personality and an indomitable will. It would be difficult to find a more natural, unassuming girl, with smile" about her. "English people often tell me that I am very proper for an actress, but I shouldn't like to be anything else. Why should busybodies feel forever called upon to preach at old bachelors and bachelor maids? It is nobody else's business if persons for reasons of their own choose to remain unmarried.

Marriage in any one case is a relation that concerns primarily only one man and one woman. To talk about its being the duty of men and women to get married solely for the sake of being married is to put what the state and the church treat as a sacred relation on the most sordid basis. It is curious that people professing good morals, if not commor sense, should advance such theories.

It is one thing for a woman to be driven into wrong-doing by hunger and cold, and want, or some deadly injury that has been practiced upon her. It is another thing for her to deliberately dally with sin, the finery her husband has given her on her back, within the shelter of her home, and with the tenderness and love of a good man protecting her.

Yet that is what a flirtatious married woman does, and it makes her it does not excuse in soher maternity. offence a particularly iniquitous one It is hard on a woman to be married to a man who filrts, but it is doubly Jockey Ambrose Was Suspended For Grabbing Moncrief's Bridle in the Stretch-The Results.

Fort Erie, Aug. 2.-With only one day more to close its 1912 season, the Niagara Racing Association had this afternoon its first rainy weather and bad track. The attendance was, nevertheless, up to the usual high mark. A feature was Helen Barbee's coup 1:13, though her race was run in a blinding rain. The Mackenzie mare was the even-money favorite. Another Canadian victory was the success of Hon. John S. Hendrie's Tankard in the opening two-year-old race. It was a selling affair, and J. C. Gallagher bid the colt up from $500 to $800. Trainer Ed. Whyte bid an additional five and kept him.

The one-to-four chance, Paris Queen, was carried off her feet by Lawsuit in the first part of the second race. Both stopped, and Parls Queen just managed to finish third to the outsiders.

Crumbling of Mack's Big Four Means Pennant in Boston

While Boston is on its second road trip, the Hub is preparing for the world's championship, which everyone there is sure will be between the teams of Stahl and McGraw. It is known to baseball men that Owner CONNIE MACK, FOX.

McAleer and Manager Stahl, of the Red Sox, are more in fear of Mr. Connie Mack, right now-despite Boston's lead of 120 points over the Athletics-than of Washington, which has hung onto Boston's heels steadfastly for weeks.

The reason for this fear is the resourcefulness of this same Connie Mack, the shrwedest man in baseball.

The fans realize that Mack has had but one of his "big four" to rely upon this season. Eddie Plank is the only one of that wonderful quartette who has pitched to form. Coombs, the "iron man," has been winning on his nerve. Early this season he was injured, and still feels the effect of the hurt. Morgan has been released. Bender-well, it requires tact to handle the Bender case.

Has the great Chippewa taken to the has, but common talk also says he is repentant and has assured the ever-forgiving Mack that he will just about break his neck to pull the team into the lead.

strengthening his pitching staff in time, Connie would plead guilty. His alibi would be that with Coombs, Bender, Plank and Morgan, going as they were last fall, the need of new pitchers was not visible.

Connie picked up four youngsters, two of whom, Brown and Houck, are of the quality he admires—men with natural ability willing to learn.

There are about 55 games to be played before the American League flag falls, and there is plenty of time for Boston to drop back and the Athletics to come up, despite the hundred odd points between them. Club owners, managers, players, umpires and scouts say: "It looks like Boston for the flag." The team has a good lead and plays a consistent game. The men are loyal to Stahl and their playing proves it. The outfield is the greatest in baseball, and the infield is above the average.

Wood, the pitching star, would bring $25,000 on the block today. The other pitchers should win a majority of their games. And if the team win a majority of the remaining games it means a membant.

row and who can steal a lot of chickens in the next two months. The lead of other pitchers should win a majority of their games. And if the team win a majority of the remaining games it means a pennant.

Boston fans fear the team will not "stand up" on the road. Stahl's men have not been as good road-winners as the Athletics, and there is another trip west after the present one is completed.

Yes, it looks like Boston, but don't bet that way. Leaving out Washington —for, like Cleveland, the Senators disappoint when the most is expected—remember that not so very far behind is the always masterful genius of Cornelius McGillicuddy, the fox who has won two world's championships in a row and who can steal a lot of chickens in the next two months. The lead of To the charge that Mack erred, as have so many other managers, in not Boston can, under unusual circumstances, disappear in two week.

This time Madame Tissot was at home. His previous visit had no doubt been reported to her, as well as a careful description of himself, for no sooner had the walter caught sight of Emile than he signalled to follow him into the rear room.

he signalled to follow him into the rear room.

The cafe presented a very different appearance from that which it had worn during the visit of the afternoon. It was brightly lighted and well filled with patrons. A thin, half-starved looking musician was playing on a violin, accompanied by another who sat at a small upright piano. A flashily-dressed girl was singing a music hall ballad in a high nasal voice. There was much loud talking and laughter and the smell of cheap cigars and cigarettes. The occupants of the place all turned and looked at Emile curiously as he passed through the room.

Madame Tissot was sitting in a small pantry in the rear of the cafe, pouring out liquors and various other drinks as the walter hurried in with the empty glasses. She was a woman of nearly forty, handsome in a loud and somewhat coarse way, her hair quite evidently bleached, and her cheeks thickly covered with rouge. She looked up as Emile came in, and, stared at him with whet he thought was the coldest pair of eyes he

Emile waited until the waiter had left

Emile waited until the waiter had left the room, and then, leaning over, told her in a low voice his name, and explained that his uncle, the Count D'Este, wished to see her at once.

The young man could not help noticing that at the mention of his uncle's name the woman's cheeks paled perceptibly in spite of their heavy coating of rouge. She arose from her seat instantly, called from the front room a heavily-built man, with a round, pasty-looking face, whom She arose from her seat index of the from the front room a heavily-built man, with a round, pasty-looking face, whom she addressed as La Rue, and after a few moments of whispered consultation with him asked Emile to wait while she made herself ready to accompany him. She went out through the cafe, no doubt, Emile thought, to go to the upper floors of the house by means of the staircase which he had observed in the staircase which he had observed in the outer hall. He waited for her perhaps fifteen or twenty minutes, the man whom she had addressed as La Rue serving out the drinks in her absence. This person paid no attention to Emile beyond offering him a glass of cognac, which was promptly refused.

paid no attention to Emile beyond offering him a glass of cognac, which was promptly refused.

He had ordered the cabman to wait for him at the door, as he had no intention of undertaking to find his way back from this questionable locality on foot. Madame Tissot presently appeared in a large plumed hat and a long silk coat, and together they drave off in the direction of the Avenue Victor Hugo.

Throughout the drive the woman did not ask Emile for any information regarding the business on which the Count wished to see her, nor did he volunteer any. He felt quite unable to cope with a person of Madame Tissot's character; he felt gure that the matter could be much better handled by his uncle.

When they reached their destination, Emile, on learning that the Count was in the library, requested Madame Tissot to wait in the drawingroom, and at once joined him. D'Este was highly annoyed at his nephew's long absence. "Sacre! So you are here at last," he said angrily. "What have you been doing all this time?"

When Becker was in charge of the Strong Arm Squad, one received from him an impression of tremendous girongth, an iron determination. And seen today through the bars that generated him from his questioner the gamblers knew where the money and even when they were raided they were told that 'the next time it would be all right.'

Resenthal Was "Broke." Herman Rosenthal had $85 in his pecket at the time of his death. Aside from the furnishings of his house at 104 West Forty-fifth street this represented the total of his earthly posn-law. Joeph Immerman, a tailor in the Pulitzer Building.

Mr. Immerman added that Resenthal owed at least $100,000 at the time of his death, largely in gambling

Three years ago, Mr. Immerman says his brother-in-law had $150,000. Out of this Rosenthal lived well and paid his regular police protection monthly—the amount which went down as "ice" Mr. Immerman does not know. The house at 104 West Forty-fifth stret, in which Rosenthal lived and had his gambling establishment, cost him somewhere around $35,000 for its fitting up. When Rosenthal took the house on a three year and a half lease he went through it and remodelled it. New floors were put in, new plaster was put on the walls, and the whole place was refurnished. The presented by the electricians alone was $1,500.

The statement made immediately after the murder of Rosenthal that he was "broke" has been more than verified by Mr. Immerman's examination of his brother-in-law's affairs. He sald yesterday that he did not think Rosenthal had any money for a year or two before his death. The posting of a policeman in the house precluded the possibility of his recouping any of his losses. Graft Not Exaggerated.

Directing his attention to the police graft phase of the case, brought into prominence by the allegations of Jack Rose and "Bridgie" Webber that the annual levy of blackmail by the police on illegal resorts amounted to $2,400,-000, Assistant District Attorney Moss had brought before him a number of gamblers and other characters of the under-world, whom he closely questioned. The assistant prosecutor would not tell, however, what inforh he had gained.

"I do not think that the $2,400,000 graft figure named by Jack Rose is an exaggeration," said Mr. Moss toexaggeration," said Mr. Moss tonight, "but the only absolute knowlede of how much it really amounts

House is not today what it once was; the more sombre strain of seriousness, which is running through the whole whole life of England, extends to the House of Commons, where a Labor party has before, occupied in aristocratic eyes brought a new note of strenuousness the same position as Mr. Lloyd George and reality. The ballot for the Ladies' Gallery used to take place publicly; the deal of attention; and especially among names of the members were written by the stern Radicals, whose ranks Mr. Chamberlain had just left. the first that came out, got the seats.

The derenant least the parapet right opposite the table at The ceremony lasted for some quarter hour or twenty minutes; and during all that time, there was a constant roar of laughter, interjection, chaff; in short, it was the liveliest little scene of the day, and it took place every day with the same fresh and keen enjoyment. But that lighthearted quarter of an hour is a thing of the past; the names are now put in a box; the box is removed to one of the rooms of the House, and the successful members are informed of the fact by the receipt of a card; the glory and the merriment have alike vanished; it is a sign of the times.

On the other hand, the invasion the House of Commons by women has gone on increasing with almost every gone on increasing with almost every year. I remember the smile of in-eredulity with which I heard from the daughter of a member in the year 1880 daughter of a member in which you could venture to ask a lady to take a sandwich and a cup of tea. When she insisted, I went in search of this room, of the existence of which I had up to that conversation been ignorant; and, sure enough, there was such a room, but what a room. It was one of those dark, almost subterranean chambers, in which the House was then full; the furniture was scanty and squalid; and it revealed the attitude of the House at that time to the cause of women that this room was given up at the same time to the mes-sengers and attendants of the House. The ladies, like the musicians of an older epoch, were put in the servants'

Place Is Humanized.

RYERYBODY knows how different all this is today. Successive commissioners of public works who, among their other duties, have to look after the inner economy of House of Commons—have humanized motor trip through the country. Just the place. Mr. Herbert Gladstone has now they are staying at the Methothe credit of introducing bathrooms and dressing-rooms. Today members now and then use the bathrooms; and there is a story of Mr. Patrick O'Brien, one of the Irish whips and an indenow and then use the bathrooms; and one of the Irish whips and an indefatigable voter in divisions, being caught by the division bells just as he was finishing his bath, and of rushing apstalrs in a bath gown, and passing shame-faced, but resolute, through the lobby and recording his vote. Mr. Harcourt, however, was the boldest re-former. It was he who created the great dining-room, known to all time s the Harcourt Room, This is a spaclous apartment as big as the restaurant in a moderately-sized hotel; and adies and gentlemen, as well dressed, as bejewelled, and as gay and noisy as I they were at the Carlton or the dinner parties take place; and, indeed, when one hears the popping of champagne corks, the almost deafening buzz Miss A. Hazelwood, of conversation, and sees the rich dresses of the ladies, one might well forget that the House of Commons, on the next story, was engaged in debating, perhaps, the most important national affairs, and think for a moment that this whole scene was taking place in Monte Carlo or some other pleasure resort of the world.

The Great Social Function. f the House is Tea on the Terrace. The Terrace, as everybody acquainted with the House of Commons know is one of the most beautiful in the Parliament building. It things in the Parliament along the rive which laps mejodiously its low parapet. The stiling is very beautiful; there is nearly always a fresh breeze, even on the hottest day in summer. Labby and His Daughter. THE other day just at the same spot there sat beside me a levee of members anxious to renew acquaintance with Labby's daugh-I never knew a story of a nature transformed so completely by paternal love as was that of Labby by the advent of Dora. ### Coming in Very Satisfactorily.

Montreal reports to Bradstreet's say trade there is steady in character and conditions have shown little change dur-ing the past week. Wholesale ordering for seasonable lines is quiet, but fall business is coming in very satisfactorily.

There continues an excellent business in hardware and builders' supplies and a large amount of work is going forward. Factories are also busy, and labor generally is well employed. The trans-Atlantic shipping trade has been affected, to some extent, by the strike at London, but shipments have so far been large. Country trade has held up well, and business at summer re-sorts is reported to be brisk. Crop reports are generally reassuring, and from all parts of Canada come reports of excellent prespects for the fall and winter trade. Receipts of produce here continue fairly large. Prices show no marked changes. Collections are inclined to be

Home of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

The above illustration shows the magnitude of The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co.'s plant, at Waterloo, N. Y. and the executive offices of the concern at Rochester, N. Y. This manufacturing plant is the largest and most complete of its kind in the land, occupying over 15 acres. It is equipped with every up-to-date device, known to the art. There are immense duplicate warehouses a great distance apart, so in case of fire in one warehouse, the trade can be supplied and the high quality and excellence

How it is Made—What it Does

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is manufactured from specially selected and cleaned grain, the best that can be bought. Only the purest epring water is used at any stage. Every step in the process of malting and manufacture is watched most carefully by men of broad experience, under the supervision of a chief chemist. Great care is exercised to have every kernel thoroughly malted, producing a liquid food, tonic and stimulant, requiring no digestion, in the form of a medicinal whiskey, which has been for over 50 years and is to-day, the world's greatest medicine.

Taken as directed, it brings into action all the vital forces; it makes digestion perfect and enables you to get from the food you eat all the nourishment it contains, thus building up the nerve tissues, toning up the heart, giving power to the brain, strength and elasticity to the muscles and richness to the blood. It is a promoter of good health and longevity; makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous.
