SCHOOL NEEDED

This morning a warrant was issued for the arrest of two children down the river, in Dover Tp. The pair, a boy and a girl, are charged with breaking into the houses of Herbert MacIntyre and Mr. Bamier, on Saturday, while the owners were absent attending the Maple City market. The children are also accused of stealing. The people down the river blame the absence of a school in the section for the alleged crime of the children. They say the little ones are growing up wild.

TEACHERS' CHANCE

The exceedingly small number that have passed the Leaving Examination this year will greatly diminish the prospective teachers attendance at the Model school this coming term, was Principal Plesow, of the Central Model school, remarking this morning, and as a result there will not likely be any who secure certificates without a position.

"There was an overflow of teachers in the market a couple of years ago, but now it has steadied down and there is a good demand for them."

SENSATION AT THE INQUEST

Man Declares His Brother was the Murderer—Admitted Charge Was True.

Husband Bound, Chloroformed and Thrown Into River—His Wife Was Tired of Him.

Bennington, Vt., Aug. 16.—A startling story was brought out yesterday at the inquest into the death of Marcus Rogers, whose body was found in the Wallumscut river here, when Levi Perham, aged 19, confessed that the man had been murdered, and implicated himself and the wife of the dead man as the participants in the crime. Rogers, who separated from his wife several months ago, had his life insured for $500 for the woman's benefit. He left Hoosic Falls last Tuesday morning, and was not seen again until his body was found in the river Thursday morning. The inquest the Perham brothers, Levi and Boyd, were placed on the stand. Boyd, the elder, was first examined, and directly charged his brother and Mrs. Rogers with the crime of murder. He said that the deed had been under consideration for several weeks. He said Mrs. Rogers approached him several days ago and offered to give him the insurance on her husband's life, $500, if he would go to Hoosic Falls and do away with him. Failing to enlist him in her service, Boyd said that Mrs. Rogers approached his younger brother, Levi, and exerted such an influence over him that the latter consented to lure Rogers to Bennington where a trap had been set for him. Rogers, he said, was lured to Morgan's grove, where on Tuesday morning, Levi and his wife and Levi. The meeting was apparently a friendly one, and under the impression that his companions were showing him a trick with ropes. Rogers allowed them to bind him hand and foot. In his helpless condition they chloroformed him and threw him into the river. To create the impression that Rogers had committed suicide they wrote a note which was found pinned to his hat, purporting to have been written by him, in which he said he had suicided. The sensation was increased when Levi Perham confessed that all that had been revealed against himself was true.

LEON PERHAM THE MURDERER

Bennington, Vt., Aug. 16.—The details of the carefully planned murder of Marcus Rogers, which was brought out at the inquest yesterday, when Levi Perham confessed that the crime was committed by himself and Mrs. Rogers, the wife of the victim, have been fruitful topics for discussion here today. In the earlier reports there was a confusion of names, by which it was made to appear that Levi Perham was the accomplice of Mrs. Rogers. It was Leon Perham, however, who confessed the murder after his brother Levi had testified against him at the inquest yesterday, and Leon Perham, Mrs. Rogers and Stella Bates are now held without bail for the grand jury.

Leon Perham to-day supplemented his confession of yesterday with the statement that he and Mrs. Rogers were the only ones concerned in Marcus Rogers' death, but that Stella Bates had knowledge of all the facts in the case. Miss Bates also made a statement to-day to the effect that she did not purchase the chloroform in Hoosic, as was stated at the inquest, but that Leon Perham got it in this village. The officers discredit her story, however. Miss Bates has worked here as domestic in various families, and has been very intimate with Mrs. Rogers. Mrs. Rogers is but 27 years old, Leon Perham is 24 years and Miss Bates is about the same age.

FORMER FOES FRATERNIZE: BRITON WELCOMES BOER

Southampton, Aug. 16.—Generals Botha, De Wet and Delarey arrived here this morning, and met with a great reception both from government officials and the public. The Boer generals looked remarkably well, and evidently were much pleased at the heartiness of the welcome accorded them. Soon after landing they boarded the steamship Nigeria, where Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, Earl Roberts and General Lord Kitchener greeted them. They were also introduced to Mrs. Chamberlain and Lady Roberts, with whom they chatted for some time.

Official arrangements had been made to permit the generals to witness the naval review, but after a conference with Abraham Fischer, the former Boer delegate, who came from the Hague, it was announced that they intend to proceed direct to London, in order to reach Holland as speedily as possible. The generals will go to Holland to pay their last respects to the memory of General Lucas Meyer, who died of heart disease on August 3.

General De Wet, in conversation here, confirmed the statement that he and his company will visit the United States before returning to South Africa.

HEARTY RECEPTION IN LONDON.

London, August 16.—The Boer generals reached London in the course of the afternoon, and were loudly cheered in the streets. When asked why they had declined the government's invitation to witness the naval review they remarked that they were "too tired after the long war, and needed a rest."

The scene at the railroad station on the arrival of the Boers was remarkable. An enormous crowd of people gave them a welcome as hearty as given to Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener when they arrived here from South Africa. Shouts of "Good old De Wet!" "Our friends the enemy!" and "Brave soldiers all!" were frequently heard amid salvos of cheers. Gen. De Wet was fairly cornered by a mob and had to be rescued by the police, who by sheer force cleared a line of retreat for him.

VISIT THE KING.

London, Aug. 17.—Generals Botha, De Wet and Delarey, who reached here yesterday from South Africa, left London at 2:30 this morning for Dover, to see King Edward on board the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert. The hour of the generals' departure was kept secret. The streets were deserted when the three generals, accompanied by their secretaries, but by none of the ladies of their party, left. On arriving at Southampton they were welcomed on board the commander-in-chief's yacht Wildfire by Earl Roberts and General Lord Kitchener. Immediately afterward they visited King Edward on Board the Victoria and Albert, and were then taken for a trip around the fleet in the Wildfire. They returned to London this evening, accompanied by Earl Roberts and General Lord Kitchener, who took leave of them at Waterloo station.

In an interview with a representative of the Associated Press, General Botha's secretary described the visit to His Majesty. He said that when they boarded the royal yacht, King Edward came forward, and after they had been introduced, shook hands with each of them. After a brief and informal talk of a non-political character with King Edward, they were introduced to Queen Alexandra, and Princess Victoria. The generals were highly pleased with their reception.

KING PRAISED GENERALS.

The reception by His Majesty lasted a quarter of an hour. The king spoke of the gallant and brave manner in which the generals had fought through the long and arduous campaign, and of "the consideration and kindness" with which the generals had treated British wounded. His Majesty expressed his warm wishes for their futures. It was at the King's suggestion that the Boers took the trip around the fleet on board the Wildfire.

During the voyage from South Africa Gen. De Wet did not mix much with his fellow passengers. He was engaged most of the time in writing his book on the South African war. In common with his colleagues, snapshot photographs were constantly being taken of him and he was worried with requests for his autograph until he had to protest against the nuisance. Gen. Botha, on the contrary, was extremely genial and indulged in all the sports on shipboard. He was constantly in the smoking room, where he played cards. Gen. Delarey, besides playing draughts, took keen pleasure in discussions with the British army officers on board the steamer.

It is said that Gen. Botha is greatly annoyed that his home at Vryheid has been annexed to Natal. The premier of Natal is reported to have offered Gen. Botha a place in the national ministry, which the general has declined. The refusal of Boer generals to witness the review of the fleet at Spithead and visiting King Edward caused great exultation in the press and undoubtedly upset the plans of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.

Mr. Chamberlain had appeared extremely anxious that the generals should see no newspaper representatives before their visit to King Edward, and he accordingly caused instructions to be issued that no report-

ROBBERY OR CONSPIRACY

An Express Agent Relieved of $28,000 Under Peculiar Circumstances.

Lead to the Arrest of the Agent and the Sender of the Cash—A Kentucky Affair.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16.—A special to the Times from Owensboro, Ky., says: The agent of the American Express Company at Fordsville was robbed of $28,000 last night under peculiar circumstances. J. W. Boatner, who shipped money to Fordsville, is under arrest at Irvington, and J. C. Schiltzbaum, the agent of the company, is being held at Falls of Rough. Several days ago a man giving his name as J. V. Boatner, of Memphis, Tenn., appeared at the office of the American Express Company at Beaufield, five miles from Fordsville, and wanted to deposit $28,000 to the latter point. Boatner took a receipt for it, and then the agent remembered that it was allowed to ship only $5,000 at one time, and made him take the cash back. Boatner kept the money until last night, when it was sent to Fordsville by express. It arrived late last night. The express agent, it is said, informed a number of people that the money had arrived. It was not put in the bank, for Mr. Boatner sent word that he would be there early this morning. This morning Schiltzbaum turned up at Falls of Rough, ten miles away. He said he was held up, robbed and kidnapped during the night. He first decided to stay at the depot all night, he said, but finally got nervous and started to the hotel, which is only one square away. Between the two places he was set upon and robbed of the money by three men. The express people and the officers believe that the whole affair was a conspiracy to defraud the American Express Co. out of $28,000. Boatner is now under arrest at Irvington, Ky.

CAN NAME ONE.

"Bystander," in the Weekly Sun, says the present political situation in the province is favorable to intrigue and corruption. The Sun writer is correct, and already it is said on pretty good authority that several Opposition members have been approached—in fact we are in a position to name at least one.—Ridgetown Dominion.

OUR SUMMER RESORTS.

Nova Scotia is beginning to be taken into account as a summer resort for Americans, the region which Longfellow made famous in Evangeline being the most famous portion of the peninsula. It is said that this year the travel, which is largely from Boston by way of water, has been very large in spite of the inclemency of the weather.—London Free Press.

Canadians of Ontario and the eastern provinces should awaken to the advantage of catering to the American tourist traffic, comments the Ottawa Citizen. The railways do their share in the way of fixing special rates and in advertising the scenic advantage of districts in Canada but the trouble lies in the lack of accommodation for tourists. Tourists cannot live on scenery, and poor hotels and bad cookery will not make up for the finest fresh water air and most sublime beauties of Nature in the world in the mind of the average tourist, his wife and daughters. And with some notable exceptions there are few of our tourist enterprises where the slightest enterprise is shown in furnishing accommodation which ranks over that of the limited ideas of "food for man and beast" which prevail at the most unprogressive cross-roads tavern. Not only does this state of affairs prevent the tide of summer tourist traffic setting into Canada but it actually drives Canadian tourists of the best paying class to the Maine coast watering places, the Blue Mountains and other resorts in the United States. This year the hotels on the coast of Maine are crowded with Canadians. It may be said that the sea bathing attracts them. No doubt it does but it is equally true that a large proportion of Canadians if they could get the same comfortable accommodation over here would not go to the States. Also that large numbers of Americans would come here.

To the south of us is a nation of seventy million people and every summer a considerable proportion of the wealthy population spend the summer months at summer resorts or abroad. In the Highlands of Scotland, where the scenery is not a whit more beautiful than can be found in a dozen sections of eastern Canada, the hotels are thronged all summer almost exclusively with American tourists. But there are hotels all over the Highlands and the hotels are comfortable and the cooking excellent, even if the buildings may not be in any sense palatial. The average tourist does not expect large and expensively equipped hotels, in fact he rather prefers it otherwise, but the hotels must be clean and comfortably furnished, the meals well cooked, even though plain, and they must be well served. That is not the case in a large proportion of our summer resorts. Canadians are very independent, especially the semi-rural Canadians. They have a standard of their own and if the people who swarm out of the cities in the summer months do not like it there is a disposition to let them do the other thing. But that is not business. Any city merchant who adopted such an attitude towards his customers would soon find himself in the bankruptcy court. The summer tourists and boarders have money, they are not unwilling to spend it, but while they are enjoying the scenery, the fresh air and the outing they want to be reasonably comfortable. It may be said that the accommodation afforded is as good as the prices charged call for, but that is not the point. The difficulty is that in many summer resort regions you cannot get comfortable accommodation at any price, and the people who provide accommodation show no disposition to study the wants of their patrons and cater for them in such a way as to make more money and attract a large number of the better paying class. In fact the majority who have to put up with existing conditions would gladly pay higher rates for better accommodation.

Canada, geographically, is the natural summer resort region for the wealthy nation to the south, most of whose well-to-do citizens have to seek a cooler climate in the summer. We have any amount of mountain and lake scenery, easily accessible by comfortable railway trains. If a large tourist business worth hundreds of thousands of dollars annually can be attracted to Canada it is obviously worth the while of those who furnish summer accommodation to show enterprise in encouraging it by catering to the requirements of visitors.

GOLDWIN SMITH ON THE SITUATION.

In this week's Sun Dr. Goldwin Smith again makes reference to the political situation in Ontario. Dr. Smith is decidedly of the opinion that it is the government's duty to call an early session of the legislature. He says:—

"There can be little hope of persuading a political party or government to forego an apparent advantage, and the party government of Ontario may deem that its advantage lies in fighting out the battle in the election courts and in such bye-elections as may ensue. But general policy seems to point the other way. Strong as confidence in the judiciary is, it will be severely strained when the judges virtually have to decide not only on the validity of the elections, but on the fate of the government. The strongest temptations will obviously be held out to intrigue and corruption, and after all, not the legitimate voice, but the long purse and legal technicalities may prevail. The best course surely, so far as general policy is concerned, and the most obvious, would be an immediate meeting of the legislature for the special purpose of taking a decisive vote, after which the House might be adjourned. Upon the vote the government would decide whether it should continue to hold office with the present support of the House, or resign and appeal again to the country. Another election without a meeting of the legislature can hardly be seriously proposed. It would be forbidden not only by policy, but by procedure. A parliament must be organized before it can be dissolved."

If we can get a second we would move that the poet laureate of the empire be asked to send in his resignation and that new tenders for the position be called for.—Ottawa Citizen.

Old Kruger evidently feels sore at the idea of seeing Botha, De Wet, Delarey and the rest of the patriots who "fit into the war" having a good time in England while he has to sit in exiled isolation on an alien shore and watch the empty champagne bottles floating down the channel with the tide.—Ottawa Citizen.

CANADA'S GREAT SCHEMES.

Boston Herald.

Canada is showing a wonderful enterprise in self-development. One sign of it is the projected fast steamship lines across the Atlantic in connection with the Canadian Pacific railway. Another is the projected new transcontinental railway, paralleling the present one, but far northward of it, so that, as regards local business, at any rate, they will hardly be competitors. There is a great West of Canada which is rapidly filling up with settlers. Thousands have emigrated to it from the United States during the present year, and thousands more have come from Great Britain. The new railway line is designed to encourage this population. Starting from Port Simpson, on the Pacific, it will go through the Pine, or the Peace River pass, through the Peace river district in Athabaska, thence southward across the north-eastern corner of Saskatchewan, passing north of Lake Winnipeg, through the district of Keewatin and Northern Ontario to Moose factory, on James' Bay, through Northern Quebec to Chicoutimi, with extensions to Montreal and Quebec, and branches to Winnipeg and Toronto. Many of these names are strange to our people now, but they are likely to become familiar before the century gets old.

Advice to Mothers

If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Polson's Nerve-line. Don't be afraid to use Nerve-line freely—a whole bottle full wouldn't burn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub in until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water into which 30 drops of Nerve-line has previously been stirred. This is a sure, pleasant and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

Alas! how great the number of folks who have existed without having lived.

A Strong Man

Is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from indigestion or some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs of digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man doesn't feel just right, when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous and irritable, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength. Such a man needs to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, stimulates the liver, nourishes the nerves, and so gives health and strength to the whole body.

Mr. Thomas A. Swartz, of Station C, Columbus, Ohio, Box 22, writes: "I was taken very sick with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. The more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I had given up to die. Then one of my neighbors said, 'Take my advice and take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me and after I had taken eight bottles in about six weeks I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds, and I am as stout and healthy today, I think, as I ever was."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

Fraser, town, acted as best man, while the bride was supported by her sister. Among the guests were the following from Wallaceburg:—Mr. and Mrs. VanVleet, Mr. and Mrs. Norris McCoy, Mrs. A. J. Crowe and Miss Eva K. Steinhoff.—Wallaceburg Herald.

A singular accident which might have terminated fatally occurred a few miles east of Harrow, on the Lake Erie Railroad, Thursday morning.

Mrs. James Wright, wife of a well-known farmer, was driving into Harrow, and at the railway crossing failed to notice a freight train approaching at a rapid rate. The horse she was driving had just reached the crossing when the train whizzed by. The cylinder head struck the animal squarely on the neck and decapitated it as cleanly as though done with a knife. Mrs. Wright was uninjured.—Comber Herald.

WONDERFUL BROECK

THE ORIGINAL SPOTLESS TOWN IS IN NORTHERN HOLLAND.

A Neatness and a Brilliance That Are Absolutely Painful Pervade the Whole Place—Rules Which the Inhabitants Must Observe.

Far up in northern Holland among the dikes and canals of the little kingdom lies Broeck, the original Spotless Town. The palings of the fences of Broeck are sky blue. The streets are paved with shining bricks of many colors. The houses are rose colored, black, gray, purple, light blue or pale green. The doors are painted and gilded. For hours you may not see a soul in the streets or at the windows. The streets and houses, bridges, windows and barns show a neatness and a brilliancy that are absolutely painful. At every step a new effect is disclosed, a new scene is beheld, as if painted upon the drop curtain of a stage. Everything is minute, compact, painted, spotless and clean. In the houses of Broeck for cleaning purposes you will find big brooms, little brooms, toothbrushes, aqua fortis, whitening for the window panes, rouge for the cheeks and spoons, coal dust for the copper, emery for the iron utensils, brick powder for the floors and even small splinters of wood with which to pick out the tiny bits of straw in the cracks between the bricks. Here are some of the rules of this wonderful town:

Citizens must leave their shoes at the door when entering a house.

Before or after sunset no one is allowed to smoke excepting with a pipe having a cover, so that the ashes will not be scattered upon the street.

Any one crossing the village on horseback must get out of the saddle and lead the horse.

A cuspidor shall be kept by the front door of each house, where it may be accessible from the street.

It is forbidden to cross the village in a carriage or to drive animals through the streets.

In addition to these established rules it is the custom for every citizen who sees a leaf or a bit of straw blown before his house by the wind to pick it up and throw it into the canal.

The people go 500 paces out of the village to dust their shoes. Dozens of boys are paid to blow the dust from between the bricks in the streets four times an hour.

In certain houses the guests are carried over the threshold so as not to soil the pavements. At one time the mania for cleaning in Broeck reached such a point that the housewives of the village neglected even their religious duties for scrubbing and washing. The village pastor, after trying every sort of persuasion, preached a long sermon, in which he declared that every Dutchwoman who had faithfully fulfilled her duties toward God in this world would find in the next a house packed full of furniture and stored with the most various and precious articles of use and ornament, which, not being distracted by other occupations, she would be able to brush, wash and polish for all eternity.

The promise of this sublime recompense and the thought of this extreme happiness filled the women with such fervor and piety that for months thereafter the pastor had no cause for complaint.

Around every house in Broeck are buckets, benches, rakes, hoes and stakes, all colored red, blue, white or yellow. The brilliancy and variety of colors and the cleanness, brightness and miniature pomp of the place are wonderful. At the windows there are embroidered curtains, with rose colored ribbons. The blades, bands and nails of the gayly painted windmills shine like silver. The houses are brightly varnished and surrounded with red and white railings and fences. The panes of glass in the windows are bordered by many lines of different hues. The trunks of all the trees are painted gray from root to branch. Across the streams are many little wooden bridges, each painted as white as snow. The gutters are ornamented with a sort of wooden festoon, perforated like lace. The pointed facades are surmounted with a small weathercock, a little lance or something resembling a bunch of flowers. Nearly every house has two doors, one in front and one behind, the last for everyday entrance and exit and the former opened only on great occasions, such as births, deaths and marriages.

The gardens are as peculiar as the houses. The paths are hardly wide enough to walk in. One could put his arm around the flowerbeds. The dainty arbors would barely hold two persons sitting close together. The little myrtle hedges would scarcely reach to the knees of a four-year-old child. Between the arbors and the flower beds run little canals which seem made to float paper boats. They are crossed by miniature wooden bridges, with colored pillars and parapets. There are ponds the size of a bath, which are almost concealed by hillputian boats tied with red cords to blue stakes, tiny staircases and miniature kitchen gardens. Everything could be measured with the hand, crossed at a leap, demolished by a blow. Moreover, there are trees cut in the shape of fans, plumes and disks, with their trunks colored white and blue. At every step one discovers a new effect, a fresh combination of hues, a novel caprice, some new absurdity.

The rooms are very tiny and resemble so many bazaars. There are porcelain figures on the cupboard, Chinese cups and sugar bowls on and under the tables, plates fastened on the walls, clocks, ostrich eggs, shells, vases, plates, glasses, placed in every corner and concealed in every nook, cupboards full of hundreds of trifles and ornaments without name, a crowding disorder and utter confusion of colors.

McNabb, City Engineer of Chatham, and the other from C. A. Hammond, of Mount Vernon, N. Y. Neither of the present engineers, E. B. Wingate and E. G. SEA SERPENT

This Time it is Located at Mitchell's Bay by a Party of Chathamites.

"Charlie Williams is not the only man in the county who has seen a sea serpent," said "Doc" Russell to The Planet this morning. "Now, if I told you that I saw a sea serpent at Mitchell's Bay yesterday, you might be inclined to doubt it, but now you needn't laugh, I did see one there, and there were three others with me who also saw it."

"Doc" Lewis, Seignor, of the Lake Erie, Geo. Meynell, and Mr. Mitchell, it appears, were out at the bay yesterday for a time—a cool time. A few hours after dinner the party procured a boat, contemplating a few hours' sail on the lake. They it was that a sea serpent made its appearance.

"It jumped out of the water right near our boat," said "Doc," this morning, "and seemed to run on top of the water across the channel. When it got some distance away it seemed to hold itself up on the top of the water and remained there gliding in the sun. Then suddenly it disappeared under the water. It resembled a dog running across the water. The animal was six feet long, resembled a snake and had a very large head."

It is not known whether this is the same serpent seen by Chas. Williams or not. Doc says that every one in the party drank nothing but water and condensed milk all day.

TURPENTINE NEW CURE.

Vienna, Aug. 18.—Dr. Tobelitz, a lecturer on children's diseases at the university of Graz, reports that he has cured a hundred cases of scarlet fever by turpentine injected under the skin or given in milk. The remedy, so called, is not new. Russian and Spanish doctors tried it and failed twenty years ago.

HOUSE BURGLARIZED

Miss Carrie James reported to the police that the family residence, King street east, at present unoccupied, had been broken into and a number of articles taken, including a revolver and razor. These two articles were once the property of the late Mr. James and were highly prized by the family in consequence. Miss James told Chief Holmes that could she get the revolver, she would be willing to lose the other things, and she would like the return of the keepsake.

USED BAD LANGUAGE

The case against Agnes Harvey, charged with using insulting language, was disposed of this morning. Richard Chrysler testified that the language used by the defendant was bad and could be heard a block. Miss Harvey had spent the time since the last trial in jail and she was quite subdued in spirit this morning. She said she was sorry and hoped the judge would not deal very severely. She had suffered pretty good for what she had done. She was found guilty and assessed $1 and costs, $3.50 in all, which she paid.

LEWIS' PLEA REVIVED

"I have a serious complaint to register," said S. B. Arnold this morning. "Now first I want you to understand that I have nothing against Judge Houston personally, but I think that it is not at all fair that Judge Houston should act as counsel for the prosecution in a case that he tries. This is the duty of the Crown Attorney. There was a case in point this morning. It was laid under the criminal code. The Crown Attorney was not present, although he will get his fee for the case. Why, shouldn't he have been present? I don't think that Judge Houston should act as both judge and prosecutor. It isn't either fair or right, and I don't think the people will get justice so long as it is so."

THE FAST TRAINS TO CHICAGO.

New York Central's Express Service Added to.

George H. Daniels, General Passenger Agent of the New York Central Road, talking yesterday of the company's fast train service, said that, in addition to the new twenty-hour train, there are now four twenty-four-hour trains to Chicago, and two Empire State expresses daily. OUTING SUITS....

It is well to remember, the closer a man dresses to real gentility, the more strictly must he heed the prescribed and adapted requirements of dress. The better a man dresses the closer he is observed and criticised.

These summerish negligee "feather-weights" fill a necessity, but don't mislead. Like physics, they fit a purpose—and that's all. Double or single-breasted coat, either will be correct. Half-lined or skeleton. Hip-waisted trousers with four loops for belt. Made generously full with a permanent turn up of 2 inches.

Homespun, Crashes, Flannels and all those cool Zephyr Cloths in every conceit of weave. Shades from spotless white to black, stripes, plaids and plain monotone patterns.

RAILROAD MEN

Wigle, who has been transferred to Sarnia. W. Martin, formerly dispatcher at Ridgeway, has been appointed agent at Wheatley, a position until recently held by W. J. W. Martin, mentioned in the above article, was formerly day operator at the local G. T. R. station here and was succeeded by the present operator, Huxley Marshall. Mr. Martin is well known in Chatham.

THE CLUMSY MAN.

You Can Never Be Sure of What His Next Break Will Be.

The great virtue about the really clumsy man is that he never exhausts his capabilities. When you think that the bedrock is reached, there is still a lower depth. If a detrimental relative should exist, the clumsy man asks after his health with great particularity and will not be satisfied until he receives a full and detailed reply. Should there be any incident in your past which everybody has generously agreed to forget it is the clumsy man who seizes the one, the inevitable opportunity, when the club is at its fullest and says loudly: "Somebody was talking the other day about that unfortunate little affair of yours in '95. Now tell me!"

When on meeting him you say casually and with no desire for information, "How are you?" he insists on giving you complete data, and he is as full of small complaints as a refractory pauper. It is only fair to add that he will ask affectionately after the colds of yesterday, and his favorite locale for this is at the corner of a drafty street. He might be subsidized by influenza or he might get a commission on sore throats from his eagerness to plan you into the most dangerous position that can be discovered.

One desires an adequate amount of sympathy in distress, but our man always goes a little beyond this point. You are growing thin, and he says that you are wasting away to a shadow. You are growing stout, and he tells an unamusing anecdote about apoplexy. He can be more critical than a half-dresser if occasion gives the least excuse.

A UNIQUE DORMITORY.

One That is Owned by the University of the South.

Dean Hoffman was noted for crafty impulses, which his large income allowed him to indulge in. Some years ago the dean invested heavily in land in a small southern town which was then enjoying a "boom" period. Among the dean's other investments was a beautiful little hotel, exquisitely appointed and perfect in every detail. After awhile the "boom" fell through, and the little hotel became a losing investment.

At this time the chancellor of the University of the South, an old friend of Dean Hoffman, was on a hunting trip with him in the mountains of North Carolina.

"We are badly in need of a dormitory down at Suwanee," said the chancellor.

"Yes," said Hoffman and sat thinking for a moment. "Well, you can have the hotel building down at B—" naming the town. "You can take it to pieces and move it to Suwanee. It ought to make a pretty little dormitory."

The chancellor was greatly pleased and made all the arrangements to move the hotel, when, to his astonishment, the citizens of the town obtained an injunction against its removal on the grounds that the hotel in that way was public property and that to remove it would leave the town without any hotel accommodations. A legal fight followed

A GIRL OF THE PEOPLE

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

Roger gave a smile meant to be patient and pathetic. "That would sound very well," he said, "if you were the persecuted heroine in a melodrama and the villain of the piece. But as you are actually a human girl, who has made a great many mistakes, and been at last brought into a safe haven against your obstinate little will by a man who worships you and has worked only for your good, the sentiment is florid rather than theatrical. You were all alone in the world, darling, and your poor little boat was on the rocks; I waded out into the deep water, and risked a great deal to bring it safely off again. Now, here you are in your own house, which is mine as well, and here you will stay until your name is the same as one which once was dear to you."

"What do you mean?" I stammered, between fear and anger.

"I mean, until I have the right to call you wife, the world to speak of you as Lady Cope."

I sprang up from the sofa where I had resigned myself to sit questioning the enemy.

"That will be never!" I cried. "Roger, if you want me ever to forgive you, you won't speak of that again; and you will tell me the things you have so far carefully left untold." I pointed to the portraits that framed the curtained doorway—above and on either side.

"You are in the mystery of the heart-shaped scar!" I went on. "I believe now that you have always known. Perhaps, though that woman, Sintra Leigh, says you did not employ her, then, you really sent her to the theater on the night when my adopted mother died. You must tell me the truth."

Roger had risen when I rose, and we stood facing each other.

"Do you think," he asked, with aggravating slowness, "that you have taken the wisest way of dealing with me, Sheila? When a woman of fast desires something from a man, she doesn't demand it with blazing eyes as her right; she softly begs it as a favor, showing that she may be ready with rewards."

"You certainly deserve a reward," I retorted, "but not such a one as you mean. And the truth is my right. I do demand it. I came to this house because it was promised to me."

"Not without conditions. Listen, Sheila. There is a mystery. So much I am ready to admit; and I have known of its existence for many years. If I told you all that is in my mind, you would understand very much that must otherwise remain dark and puzzling to you through your life. You would even understand why Aunt Ermyntude left you on the night she died, and why she died—though with all that I swear to you I had nothing to do. I am ready to tell everything you wish to know—not to Sheila or Jenny Harland, but to my wife, Sheila Cope. Is it a bargain?"

"No, it is not," I said. "If you won't tell me, I must find out in some other way."

"You will not find out in any other way." His voice was suddenly fierce, and my eyes were forced to meet his and dwell upon his menacing pupils. We looked at each other in silence. Then I spoke out my thoughts, with sudden passionate impulse. "Oh, what a fool I was to come here!" I cried. "If I had only kept my wits about me, and remembered that my father's—I mean that Sir Vincent Cope's place, which I had never seen, was in this direction, I might have suspected that you were concerned in this. But I supposed the place was still let to strangers, as it has been, I know, for years."

"I had to have a nest ready for the bird when it should flutter home," Roger broke in, smiling. "I wonder if any man since the world began ever conquered more difficulties for the woman he loved."

"I should think none ever stooped to so many meaneesses," I flung at him. Other sharp words were ready, like swords, to pierce the armor of his self-complacency, but suddenly a voice seemed to whisper in my ear. "A strange nest for a bird," it said. "Roger had another use for the house. How about those sounds outside your door last night?"

CHAPTER XXII.

Which Tells How the House Was Explored.

I did not repeat to Roger what the imaginary voice had whispered, for I knew that not only would he be careful never to give me a true explanation of what I had heard, but would probably take steps to prevent my finding out for myself, as it now occurred to me that I might do.

Roger's own words about the "nest he had prepared for the bird" had put the thought into my head; for the whisperer I had fancied as an answer to this speech suggested another more subtle reason for his occupation of the house formerly let to strangers. Somebody was hidden here, perhaps, the name of Ermyntude; somebody who might tell me more than Roger chose to tell without a bribe.

I said no more, but was trying to learn the secret in "another way," though such an idea was taking form in my mind; and so deeply was I absorbed in my own thoughts that Roger talked on for a few moments unheard. I was only conscious that he spoke, until suddenly his raised voice, evidently repeating a question that had been asked before, brought me to myself.

"Sheila, why don't you answer me?" he was saying.

I turned my eyes slowly to his face. "I was thinking," I replied.

"Were you thinking over what I have just said to you? Do you understand what it means when I tell you that by to-morrow I expect to have the special license for which I have applied? The sooner we are married the better it will be for every reason; for, you see, it was a bold stroke, having you brought to this house. If I had not been so sure I was right, so sure that I could bring you round to my way of thinking, I wouldn't have done it. But there was no other course possible. Sheila, will you marry me to-morrow?"

"If I say no, neither to-morrow nor on any other morrow to come, what then?" I asked, rather with a desire for information as to Roger's intentions towards me than in open defiance.

"What then? I would rather not trust myself to tell you what then. You may ask Miss Leigh. She will explain."

"I am not sure that I care to see her again, after the way in which she tricked me," I said. "If I chose to leave this house, now, without—"

"That is the one thing I can't, for your own sake, allow you to do," Roger cut me short, "until I have at least your solemn promise that you will be my wife. Can't you see—young as you are, aren't you woman of the world, enough to see what marriage with me is the only thing left to you, Sheila? Blame me for what I have done, if you will, but it was all through love of you. And in any event it's too late to think of that now. You and I must be man and wife."

He caught my hands, but I wrenched them away from him. "I think I will talk to Miss Leigh, as you call her," I hastily said. "And I would like to see her now—this very moment—alone, without you."

Roger had offered to let me speak with "Miss Leigh," and though he did not appear well pleased at having been finally taken at his word, he did not attempt to repudiate it. "Miss Leigh shall come to you here," he said.

Crossing the room, he pulled an old-fashioned bell-rope. A far away jangling followed, and presently the grim-faced woman who had brought my breakfast knocked at the door. She was abruptly commanded to "send Miss Leigh," and it was not long before my traveling companion of last night appeared.

"I will leave you together," said Roger. "But before going, perhaps I had better make it clear that Sheila wishes you to explain why it has now become absolutely imperative that she should marry me." As he spoke he was at the door, and an instant later it had closed behind him.

"I should have thought that, to a young woman of your intelligence, such explanations were unnecessary," said the woman in black. "But I can give them in a few words. Already, it seems, you have afforded your friends and enemies great cause for gossip. Sir Roger Cope has offered you the chance of rehabilitating yourself. He was obliged to use rather strong measures to accomplish his purpose, and if you do not fall in with his way of thinking, instead of matters being improved, they will have been made far worse. You are at his house, everyone knows that it is his house; the servants and others know that you have been here since last evening—that you came willingly. What will become of you if, after all this, you refuse to marry him?"

"So this is what he preferred to have you explain!" I exclaimed. "I don't wonder that even Roger Cope hesitated to say it himself."

"It may not be pleasant to hear, but it is the truth. I gave you very good advice when I brought you to the door of this room an hour ago. I am sorry that you don't seem to have remembered it very well, but it is not too late yet. As I said then, you have everything to lose, or everything to gain. Money, two charming houses, the ability to help your relatives (who from accounts I have heard need all the help that can be given them), an enviable position in society, with past indiscretions forgotten. All this you have, on the one hand; on the other—but perhaps that picture is best left to your imagination."

For a moment I did not speak. Then I said, shortly: "Please call Sir Roger back again."

He was summoned, and presently appeared, the woman in black meanwhile asking no questions, though her gypsy face expressed curiosity as to my intentions.

"Has Miss Leigh's eloquence been more fortunate than mine, in persuading you that there's only one course open?" Roger asked.

"She has shown me that all others are difficult," I answered. "Still, if I were to decide at once, I should say: 'No, I cannot marry you.' That's my impulse now, but if you will give me your word of honor to go away from here—back to London or to Arrish Mell Court, whichever you choose—for two days, I will stop and think the matter carefully over. Miss Leigh can give me as much good advice as you wish, and I may change my mind."

Roger shrugged his shoulders. "The longer you stay here the less easy will it be for you to decide against me," he said; "so I suppose I shall be wiser to give you your own way. But we will compromise matters. I'll go and come back to-morrow—with the special license of which I told you."

"Very well, then, to-morrow," I assented. "But you must go now."

"If you look out of this window—or one in your own room—in fifteen minutes from now, you will see me driving away from the house."

"With one of the new carriages, and the new livery you have bought with Lady Cope's money," it was on the tip of my tongue to say. But I kept the words back.

For once, Roger was true to his word. Whether he meant to leave the neighborhood or not, I had no means of knowing; but at least he drove away from the house, with a small postman's-tau ostentatiously placed where I would be sure to see it.

I knew that he had only not attempted to put me upon parole as a prisoner because he was sure that I should not be able to evade the guard he had doubtless set upon my movements. But I was glad that he had not tried to exact a promise, because, as soon as I had made a desperate effort to discover the secret which I had begun to believe might be hidden in this house, I intended to make an equally desperate bid for freedom.

Perhaps if I had not been taken for my interview with Roger into the room with the three portraits, no inkling of the idea which now so keenly excited me might ever have come into my head. But there had been Sir Vincent Cope, with Sintra Leigh, and the man who so marvelously resembled her. All three pictures had apparently been painted at about the same time, for certain mannerisms suggested that they were the work of the same artist, and the frames with which they were set into the wall were identical in detail.

This suggested to me that Sintra Leigh and her double (a twin brother, my fancy already said) were closely connected with the Cope family either by ties of blood or peculiarly intimate friendship.

FALL PLANTING.

For Strawberries It Gives Good Results With Intensive Culture.

Although not to be generally recommended, the fall planting of strawberries can sometimes be used with good results, say the horticulturists of the Michigan station, but in order to succeed special pains must be taken both with the soil and plants. In the states farther south, where the seasons of growth will be considerably longer, this method of growing strawberries is preferred to planting in the spring. In seasons when the weather is moist during August and September very good results can be obtained in Michigan, but if drought prevails there is danger of a check to the plants, and this will result disastrously.

Upon soil that will not suffer seriously from drought or where water can be applied the fall setting will give good results. As the season of growth will be comparatively short at best, the soil should be thoroughly prepared and enriched. The plants should be of some strong growing variety that will furnish large crowns and that are adapted to hill culture.

Unless water for irrigation is at hand the planting should be delayed until the ground has been well moistened by rain, but if possible the planting should be done before the 1st of September. Good results, however, can be secured if the plants are set out by the middle of September.

The rows should be from two to two and a half feet apart and the plants ten inches in the rows. Even though the ground has been well enriched, it will be advisable to mulch the plants by spreading decomposed manure along the sides of the rows.

The ground should be occasionally worked during the fall and up to the time of freezing weather so that it will be entirely free from weeds. The ground should then be mulched, and in the spring receive a shallow cultivation. It will be desirable to replace the mulch before the blossoms have opened, and unless the winter mulch is sufficient to cover the ground so as to keep down the weeds and conserve the moisture an additional amount should be employed.

This method of strawberry culture is not recommended for the general planter, but for the amateur and for the home garden, especially where the starting of a new plantation was neglected in the spring.

Women of refinement do not have to strive to make the fact apparent.

The modern interpretation of the maxim, "know thyself," is "mind your own business."

CANADA-AUSTRALIA.

MR. BURRIS GAHAN DESCRIBES JOURNEY FROM FIRST TO LAST.

Magnificent Month of Continuous Traveling—Through Four Seasons of the Year in Thirty Days—A Vivid Contrast Between These Two Lands Born of the Same Imperial Mother.

The Canadian who starts from Toronto for Sydney has before him a magnificent month of continuous traveling. After the most pleasant and profitable week of the four will probably be the first one spent in crossing the great west of his own country. To pass through that land of beef and horse, and a supreme lesson in patriotism that should form part of the education of every Canadian. For the rest of the journey he sees nothing to remind him, save by contrast, of his national scenery. The western, the equatorial and sights tropical islands, where the pine-apple, banana and coconut-palm flourish. At last he comes to Australia—a land that has the kangaroo instead of the beaver, and the Southern Cross instead of the North Star—a land that has the moon when Canada has the sun, and sweaters under a temperature of 100 degrees in the shade, when young Johnny Canuck is playing hockey. Indeed, I left Toronto in the depths of winter, picked spring violets in the gardens of Vancouver, spent an ideal summer's day at Honolulu, and arrived at Sydney to find everyone thankful that autumn had come at last. Thus, in a single month, the traveler passed through the four seasons of the year.

The first stop on the ocean voyage is Honolulu, seven days out from Vancouver who have traveled pretty well over the world agree in pronouncing this one of its most charming corners. The town stretches itself along the sunny beach and struggles with the mountain side beyond. Winding roads and white roofs, half-hidden among the trees, make it a splendid sight from the sea. And the interest does not vanish when the harbor is entered and the people are seen. Honolulu, indeed, is a fascinating medley of Yankee progressiveness, native backwardness and Oriental picturesque. The streets and shops are crowded with pig-tailed Chinamen in their characteristic garb; dirty, loafing niggers, with no clothes beyond the two essential garments, and hustling American business men, dressed in immaculate duck suits. Big, fat, native women in the market place, jostle the slight American girls, whose stylish frocks indicate that they are probably visitors from New York or Chicago. But of all the persons to be met in the market place, the most engaging are the dainty little Japanese ladies, arrayed in their native costume, and looking for all the world as if they had just stepped out of some pagoda or Oriental tea-house. But, unfortunately, the traveler is allowed only a few hours ashore, and as he watches the island fade in the distance, he has a faint feeling of homesickness, as if he had lived in Honolulu all his life.

From Honolulu to Suva, the capital of the Fiji Islands, is a sail of nearly ten days. The Pacific in the tropics is as calm as a Canadian back-lake in August. Indeed, I never saw Lake Ontario or Erie or Huron so calm as the ocean was during these ten days. Often the water looked as if it were covered with oil, for not even a ripple disturbed its surface. At times the heat was oppressive, and there was no breeze to bring relief. From 10 in the morning till 3 in the afternoon exertion was practically impossible. Life was confined to sitting in a deck-chair, reading, dozing, chatting, or lazily watching the flying fish that played around the boat. Four o'clock, however, brought cricket, and evening had its own charm in the form of a gorgeous tropical sunset, and, perhaps, a cooling breath of air.

The colony of Fiji consists of 255 islands, of which nearly 100 are inhabited. Between 20 and 30 of these can be seen on the way to Suva. The harbor of Suva itself is entered through a narrow opening in the coral reef. It was evening when I saw it, and the quarantine officer refused to allow anyone to land, as plague was reported at Honoluli. It was necessary, therefore, to view the town from afar off. The natives, however, kindly came alongside for closer inspection, and a magnificent lot of fellows they appeared to be. They wore no clothes except a white cloth wrapped round their waist and extended half way down to their knees. This costume gives full opportunity for admiring their powerful shoulders, broad chests, straight backs, strong arms and muscular legs. But more conspicuous than his well-knit body is the mop of red hair that crowns each grinning face. Every Fijian, with any personal pride or social pretension has red hair. He gets it much as his civilized sisters do, by bleaching it with lime. I had always thought that the chemical blonde was peculiar to Europe, but here, in this tropical island, our latter-day civilization, but apparently, there is nothing new under the sun. The bleaching of the hair is probably as old as the tattooing of the skin. In the case of the Suva Islanders, however, the copper skin, white teeth, black eyes, and red hair constitute a human color scheme that surely must be unique.

From Suva it is a five days' sail past New Caledonia to the Australian coast, at the mouth of the Brisbane River. Brisbane itself, the State capital of Queensland, a city of more than 100,000 inhabitants, is situated about 25 miles from the sea. Passengers are allowed a few hours here, and mails leave the steamer to go by rail to Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide. The trip to Sydney by boat takes the greater part of two days, skirting for 500 miles down the eastern coast of New South Wales. At last, a solid month after he left Toronto, the traveler enters the grandest harbor in the world, and lands in perhaps the finest city of the southern hemisphere. To sketch Sydney in a paragraph would be an impertinence—to attempt a description of the harbor would be nothing short of insolence. The one requires at the very least, a letter to itself; the other deserves a volume.

When I reached Sydney the city was in a mild state of alarm over a fresh outbreak of the bubonic plague. One theatre and several hotels and shops were closed on its account. The plague is still here, and two fresh cases were reported to-day, but the alarm has subsided a good deal. Many citizens, indeed, seem disposed to accept the plague as a permanent institution. The health authorities, however, are fighting it with great vigor and intelligence. Their measures are directed principally against rats, for they are deemed to be the chief source of infection. A dead rat is sure to cause quite a sensation where it is found. It is supposed that the disease is communicated to man by the bite of a flea, which has been poisoned previously by biting a plague-rat. There have been just 125 cases during the present outbreak, and the mortality has been slightly less than the usual one-third. A week or two ago the disease made its appearance at the Zoological Gardens, and several valuable animals died. If energetic measures are of any avail, however, the epidemic will be stamped out before long. The whole city has declared war against rats, and cleanliness has been made the battle-cry. Every citizen has been urged to set his house in order, and if he will not do it himself the Board of Health does it for him. All classes in Sydney have joined in the sanitary crusade, and formalin has become the fashionable perfume of the hour.—Burriss Gahan, in The Toronto Globe.

FINEST BRIDGE IN THE WORLD.

To Span the Strait of Canoe From Cape Breton to Nova Scotia.

The bridging of the Strait of Canoe between Cape Breton and the mainland of Nova Scotia is to be undertaken at once. The task is an immense one, involving great engineering difficulties and an outlay of about $5,000,000. J. A. L. Waddell of Kansas City has been engaged to oversee the work. He is a Canadian and a graduate of McGill, and has been knighted by the Emperor of Japan, where he was at one time professor of civil engineering in the University of Japan.

Mr. Waddell stated in a recent interview that the bridge would be a cantilever, with a span of 1,800 feet, the longest in the world, and have a height of 58 feet clear above high water. The bridge will span the strait between Port Hastings on the Cape Breton side, and Cape Porcupine on the Nova Scotian shore, a distance of 2,800 feet. Two immense piers will be sunk near either shore, in about 90 feet of water. The bridge is designed for double-tracking.

Mr. Waddell stated also that it would be the finest bridge in the world. A tunnel, he said, would be practically impossible. An agreement has been reached between Mr. Waddell and the incorporators, authorizing Mr. Waddell to proceed with the work. The construction of this bridge will remove all delays and inconveniences now experienced in crossing this strait.

It is said that the Canadian Pacific Railway is behind the project, which is preliminary to the establishment of a fast steamship line on the Atlantic.

An Amusing Error.
Readers of Barrie's story of newspaper life, "When a Man's Single," will remember the telegraph editor, who headed the dispatch beginning "The Zulus have taken Umbrage." The Zulus have taken Umbrage, with a line announcing that the Zulus had captured a post, and made the opening sentence read: "The Zulus have taken Umbrage." The incident is recalled by a dispatch in The Ottawa Evening Journal, dated "Dauphin, Man., June 18," and announcing the results of the voting in the Kistino district in the territorial elections. The dispatch states: "As a result of the vote, Messrs. Nott Shad, a negro, have been elected for the constituency." It should be, of course, "Messrs. and not Shad." In this case the wide-awake telegraph editor in The Ottawa Journal added: "Shad is the first full-blooded negro to be elected to a legislative body in Canada." And he headed it up: "First Negro to Sit in a Canadian Assembly." "Not Shad Has Been Elected" in the Territories." On the contrary, not only has Nott not been elected, but there is no Nott.

The New Quebec Minister.
Hon. A. T. Robitaille, the new Provincial Secretary of Quebec, is the third son of Dr. Olivier Robitaille of Quebec and was born in Quebec in 1853. He was educated in Quebec Seminary and Laval University, being called to the bar in July, 1877. He is senior member of the law firm of Robitaille & Roy, his partner being Mr. Rudolph Roy, M. P. P. for Kamouraska. For four years Mr. Robitaille was a civic alderman and entered the lists for provincial honors in 1897, when Hon. Mr. Marchand was returned to power. He was elected for Quebec Centre, defeating Mr. Victor Chatevert, a very strong candidate by a majority of 347.

Sowing Buckwheat.

Buckwheat likes a dry or well drained soil. Sow the seed at almost any time when convenient from July 1 to July 15, and we have seen good crops where it was sown both earlier and later, but the above is a time when it is generally sure to do well, and there should be from twenty to thirty bushels of grain to the acre. In sowing buckwheat to plow under we should sow earlier, in June at least, and plow under while in bloom or just before any seed ripened, then follow by sowing winter grain.—American Cultivator.

Beauty is born in the blood. Beauty is more than "skin deep," it is blood deep. When the blood is tainted by disease the flesh will feel it and the skin will show it. Sallow or muddy complexion, pimples, blotches, and eruptions are only the surface signs of impure blood. Face washes, lotions, complexion powders, may palliate the evils but they cannot cure the disease. The only cure is to cleanse the blood of the poisonous matter which is the cause of the outbreak in the flesh and skin. Impure blood can be absolutely purified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Its effect on flesh and skin is marked. Sores heal and disappear. The skin becomes smooth, and regains its natural color. The eyes brighten and sparkle, the whole body is radiant with the brightness and beauty of health. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant, and is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics. The use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assists the action of the "Discovery," by cleansing the system of clogging matter.

SLASHED BRIDE WITH STILETTO

Spurned by a Pretty Italian
Woman, Regunto Disfigured
Her for Life.

Josephine Morgono Accepted a Wealthy Man and Inspired a Deep Vengeance.

New York, Aug. 16.—While leaving the church in which only half an hour before he had been married, Mrs. Josephine Bracco, 21 years old, an exceptionally pretty Italian woman, was yesterday attacked by a discarded admirer, knocked down on the side walk and slashed across the right cheek. She is now in the Flower hospital in a serious condition, with a stiletto wound extending from her mouth to her right ear that will leave a life disfigurement. Her assailant, said by the police to have been Pasquale Regunto, nineteen years old, of 332 East Sixty-third street, escaped with an angry crowd of a hundred or more at his heels.

Mrs. Bracco, formerly Josephine Morgono, came to this country several months ago. She is slight and pretty, and prior to coming to this country was the sweetheart of Pasquale Regunto. When she left Italy Regunto followed. But the young woman's affection grew cold, and yesterday she was married to Giuseppe Bracco, a wealthy fruit dealer, and Pasquale Regunto is a day laborer.

Regunto pleaded that the young woman marry him, but she put him off from time to time. She finally refused to go out with Regunto, and remained at the home of her uncle, Antonio Geronzi, 230 East Sixty-third street, and received the calls of Bracco. The fruit merchant had much money and gave the young woman many handsome presents. Regunto had nothing to offer but his affection. It was not long until the girl had to decide between the two suitors. She chose the merchant and cast off the laborer.

One evening Regunto met the girl and declared that if she did not marry him she would never marry anybody else.

Yesterday Bracco led his bride-to-be to the city hall where a civil marriage ceremony was performed. Following the couple was Regunto.

From the city hall the couple went to the Church of St. Catharine of Siena, in Sixty-ninth street, between First avenue and Avenue A. There a church ceremony was performed. Regunto followed the party in the church and stood in a shadowy corner while the marriage words were said.

When Bracco and his new wife left the church they walked home. No one saw Regunto. In front of 187 First avenue Bracco felt himself jostled to one side. He turned to see the offender, but heard instead a scream from his bride. He saw her lying on the sidewalk, stabbed.

Regunto dashed through the crowd and ran to Fifty-ninth street, where he jumped on a cross town car and escaped.

The bride's condition last night was said to be serious.

REPLY TO ROAST

Tarte's Organ Has Something to Say Concerning Attack on Laurier.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 16.—La Patrie feels itself called upon to rebuke its Parisian namesake for its article on Sir W. Laurier. "The insolent attack," says Mr. Tarte's paper, "which has just been made against our Prime Minister, is born of the irresponsible clique which for several years past has kept France in hot water and has on many occasions disturbed the amicable relation between France and England. M. Milleroye, who inspires these articles, is an Anglophobe and represents the very smallest part of public opinion in France."

Relations of the San Jose Scale.

To the current number of The Canadian Entomologist Prof. King of Lawrence, Mass., has contributed a summary of the scale insects, with their localities, known in British America. It comprises 59 determined species. One species has been found only in the Yukon district, forty-eight in Ontario, thirteen in the Maritime Provinces, nine in Quebec and ten in western Canada. As to localities, Ottawa takes the lead, doubtless because that Dr. Flett's pest hunting ground, while London comes next, probably owing to the industry of Prof. Dearness, after whom two of the new species are named.

The scale insects form an extensive order. They are generally minute, and to the unpracticed eye many of them so much resemble each other as to be mistaken for the same species. It may be noted that they are all parasitic insects, feeding upon the juices of living plants. Of the fifty or sixty Canadian species, native or introduced, only five or six have proved themselves seriously destructive to fruit trees. The best known of these are the notorious San Jose scale, the oyster form scale, the scurfy bark louse, the oyster shell bark louse, the plum scale, and to these may be added the woolly scale of the maple. The only useful species known is the cochineal insect, a scale that lives on the cactus in tropical America, and which yields the carmine dyes.

QUIET WEDDING

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Simpson, King St. East, was the scene of a pretty though quiet, wedding last Thursday evening, when Alice Blanche, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, was united in holy matrimony to Edward E. Lampman, of Gray's carriage works. The knot was tied by the Rev. Dr. Baileys, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, after which Mr. and Mrs. Lampman were driven to their home, where, in company with a few relatives, they sat down to a sumptuous repast, which was enjoyed by all. Having done with the delicacies of the wedding supper, the guests retired to the parlor, where music and games kept things lively until time to depart, when the happy young couple were congratulated and the event was one of the past.

FOUND GUILTY

Frank C. Andrews Convicted of Misapplying the Funds of a Detroit Bank.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 16.—Frank C. Andrews, late vice-president of the wrecked City Savings Bank, was found guilty to-day of having misapplied the funds of that institution, after a trial of four weeks, by a jury in Recorder Murphy's court.

Kirchner at once notified the court that an appeal would be taken to the Supreme Court, and a stay of proceedings for sixty days was granted. When the verdict was pronounced, Andrews' face whitened. It's a terror," he said, "and it is unjust. I never intended to cheat or defraud anyone. God knows it."

After the stay of proceedings had been granted, Judge Murphy committed Andrews to the custody of the sheriff, and he was taken to the county jail and locked in a cell. Attorney Beaumont announced that on Monday he would ask the judge to fix bail for his client pending an appeal of the case.

BRILLIANT SUCCESS AT "THE PINES"

The results of the recent Departmental Examinations demonstrate most fully the excellent character of the instruction given by the ladies of the Ursuline Academy, Chatham. These ladies conduct the following schools: the Ursuline Academy, Chatham; St. Joseph Separate School, Chatham; Beaumont Separate School and Tilbury Separate School. At the High School Entrance 7 wrote from the Academy and all were successful, 20 from St. Joseph, 19 successful; 4 from Beaumont, all successful; 2 from Tilbury, both successful, or a total of 32 successful out of 34, being 97 per cent.

At the Academy 12 wrote Part I. Junior Leaving or Part I. Junior Matriculation, and eleven succeeded. Eight wrote Part II. Junior Leaving and seven succeeded, one obtaining honors, or a total of 95 per cent. success.

In the examinations conducted by the Toronto Conservatory of Music the success of the ladies trained at the Academy could not have been more brilliant. Of the ten who tried the practical examination, "Piano," all passed, two receiving first class honors and eight honors. Of the seven taking the theoretical examination all were successful, four taking honors. The papers were set by the Toronto Conservatory of Music, of which the Academy is now a local centre; and the practical examinations were conducted by Prof. J. D. Trapp of the Conservatory.

These results speak most forcibly of the thorough and practical character of the education given by the Ursuline Academy. It is a honor to the city of Chatham to have within its bounds an institution so capably conducted.

Men's Working Clothes

Every working garment sold in the store is our own make. When you buy a smock here please remember that T. & D. are responsible for every thread of it, and give them credit for all the looks and wear and comfort that you find stitched in.

When we first set out to make these goods we started from the standpoint of the man who wears them—which is not the usual way with manufacturers. We planned each garment about as a man's wife would, supposing her to be an expert. Made them ample, comfortable, extra strong where extra strength is needed—did everything to postpone the day of the first patch. Results were so satisfactory that we have kept right on making them that way.

We are content with the maker's profit on these garments. You pay at our counters about what we should have to pay at wholesale if we bought them from another maker.
