"Abide in me. and I in You." THE SOUL'S ANSWER.

BY HARRIET BEECHER STOWE. That mystic word of Thine, O sovereign Lord ! Is all too pure, too high, too deep for me; Weary of striving, and with longing faint, I breathe it back again in prayer to Thee.

Abide in me, I pray, and I in Thee ; From this good hour, O leave me never more The lite-long bleeding of the soul be o'er.

Abide in me-o'ershadow by Thy love, of sin;

Quench ere it rise each selfish low desire,

Pervades it with a fragrance not its own-So, when Thou dwellest in a mortal soul, All heaven's own sweetness seems around it thrown.

The soul alone, like a neglected harp, Grows out of tune, and needs that Hand Di-

Dwell Thou within it, tune and touch the chords, Till every note and string shall answer Thine.

Abide in me : there have been moments pure, When I have seen Thy face, and felt Thy power :

Then evil lost its grasp, and passion, hush'd, Own'd the Divine enchantment of the hour

These were but seasons beautiful and rare; Abide in me, and they shall ever be : I pray Thee now fulfil my earnest prayer; Come and abide in me, and I in Thee.

The Christian Church in the Fifth Century.

Mountain Views. BY J. A. SAXTON.

Beautiful world ! how passing fair and good As on an oak-crowned mountain verge I stood, And to the fair and wide horizon bound Felt beauty, like a robe, embrace me round. Wy spirit leaped upon the buoyant air : 🖗 B-autiful world ! it said-how good, how fair For thou-wert fashioned by a hand Divine-Beauty's Creator - who has made it thine.

Voices of music floated where I stood, From myriad minstrels of the peopled wood; From bill, and plain, and grove, and bosky dell, The varied melodies in concert swell. Blended with voiceless music of the air, And woods, and earth, and sky commingle there.

From many a mountain nook swift streamlets leap,

In vales beneath in softer murmurs creep, And still advancing with a fuller flow, Beauty and verdure spreading as they go. Mingle in all the fullness of their pride, Wish ocean's deep, immeasurable tide.

Here sweep the vallies, in whose living green, Blends soft the blessed sunlight's golden sheen, With the deep, fathomless, o'erarching blue : And there the valles spring to broader view-Swell, climb aloft, by soft gradations rise, And leap, at length, in mountains to the skies.

Ye glorious mountains ! 'neath your craggy |

steeps The babe of freedom's daughter safely sleeps ; While the grave father, fearless for his child, Scales, with the fleet chamois, your icy wild, Homes of the eagle ! not that felon chief, That coward plunderer, and caitiff thief, Who steals the prey which honest birds have won.

But him whose daring eye confronts the sun, Who mounts the wind, and soars to upper air, And stands, sublime, self-poised and moveless there.

Pillars of earth, whose firm-set basis deep Her hoary chronicles within them keep, On whose majestic capitals of snows The unfathomable heavens serene repose ! Thoughts grand and high ye evermore inspire Nurses of freedom, of the poet's fire. Who there feels nature's spirit, on her thrown Communion solemn holding with his own.

A liberal teacher, glorious world ! thou art, By beauty, grandenr, speaking to the heart ; By hill and valley, wood and mountain, preach ing_ In all thy varied drapery ever teaching-Or wild, or fair, gray crag, or flowery mead, How full of emblems for my soul's deep need -O'd Deerfield, June, 1854.
