COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Hold Annual Meeting and Elect Officers—Much Philanthropic Work Done—Preparations Made for the Reception of Delegates from Quinquennial.

Even though there was a steady downpour of rain the auditorium of the Y.M.C.A. was fairly well filled on Saturday afternoon and the annual meeting of the local council of women was a decided success.

Mrs. J. W. Smith, the president, occupied the chair, and delivered an excellent address. In her opening remarks she asked the ladies permission to go back to the early days of the Council, with her usual modesty remarking that the greater number of things had been accomplished under former presidents. The late Mrs. Herchmer, she said, was the first president, and during her term of office many benevolent projects had been carried out. Through the efforts of the council at that time the Victoria hospital had been started on a small scale, also the Aberdeen Society for the distribution of literature among the outlying districts to people who could not afford to supply themselves and here the president remarked how many letters of appreciation and gratitude the society had received from lonely homesteaders. To the local council, said the president, is also due the erection of a mortuary chapel in the cemetery, as for a considerable time previous to its erection the ladies had been quietly working, urging on the city council the necessity of such a building. Mrs. Smith next mentioned the passing of the Children's Aid Act as having originated with the local council of women. In concluding her remarks the president said that for the past two years the Council had contented themselves with giving assistance to the different societies, principally by assisting them with sewing. In retiring, Mrs. Smith thanked the Council for their uniform courtesy and hearty co-operation, bespeaking the same for her successor in office.

Reports were read from fifteen of the affiliated societies, and one could not help being surprised at the wonderful amount of philanthropic work that has been done during the past year in the city. Art and literature have not been overlooked. The excellent report from the Morning Musical Club as well as the very edifying one from the historical society, called the "Kanata" Club was worthy of the highest commendation. Mrs. Henry capably occupied the chair during the election of officers. All the officers were elected by acclamation excepting the second vice president, for which ballots were taken. The officers were:

Hon. President, Madame Forget.
President, Mrs. Rothwell.
First Vice Pres., Mrs. G. C. Hill.
Second Vice Pres., Mrs. J. K. R. Williams.
Cor. Sec., Mrs. J. C. Pope.
Rec. Sec., Mrs. Morell.
Treas., Mrs. Adam Ross.
Auditors, Mrs. E. B. Hetcherson, and Mrs. W. Gee.

After resuming the chair, Mrs. Smith called the attention of the meeting to the coming quinquennial and the correspondence received regarding the visits of the delegates to Regina on July 6th. She remarked the Dominion government had granted $1,000 towards their entertainment and Toronto and the Ontario government had contributed $700. A motion was then made that a committee wait upon the Saskatchewan government, as well as upon the Board of Trade in the city, asking for assistance. Regina is the only place that the delegates will call at between Winnipeg and Edmonton.

Before adjournment Mrs. Rothwell the new president, thanked the ladies for the honor conferred upon her, and announced a business meeting for Saturday, June 6th.

It was with the deepest regret that the local council accepted the decision of Mrs. Smith not to again undertake the office of president of the local Council. In a quiet unostentatious manner she had accomplished a great deal and the members—one and all fully appreciated her executive ability and the dignity with which she carried on business mm which she carried on the business of the council.

E. MORRIS ON TRIAL

For the Murder of his Brother—Difficulty in Securing a Jury—Skull of Murdered Man in Court—Doctors Testify that Man was Killed Before Fire.

The trial of Ernest Morris for the murder of his brother, Chas. J. Morris commenced on Monday morning before Chief Justice Wetmore and a jury. The prosecution was in the hands of Alex Ross, who was assisted by Mr. McDonald of the Attorney-General's department. C. E. D. Wood conducted the defence and was assisted by his partner, M. McCausland.

It was necessary to call the whole jury list before twelve men satisfactory to both sides were selected. The following are the jurors:

M. L. Green.
G. W. Wagner.
E. C. Corbeau.
Arthur McDonald.
W. McFarlan.
Frank Dymott.
A. J. Johnston.
Jas. Whitworth.
J. B. Campbell.
W. G. Dand.
Neil A. McCannell.

George Peacock.
The case of the crown was outlined to the jury by Mr. Ross; the crown witnesses being excluded.

Chas. J. Morris, the murdered man came from Bethany, Missouri, a few years ago and settled on a prairie farm near Milestone. There he built his shack and commenced farming operations. Later he was joined by his brother, Ernest Morris, the accused. On Monday, April 5, he went to Milestone on business, and leaving for home in the afternoon, was last seen alive, except by the accused, by a neighbor who lives about a mile and a half from the Morris shack.

The accused, however, is supposed to have been at the shack when Chas. J. Morris got home, but later left to visit neighbors. He rode on a horse which was shot on three feet. About one o'clock that night, neighbors noticed a bright light at the Morris place and next morning it was found that the shack had been burned down. Upon investigation the charred remains of a human being was found in the ruins, supposed to be the body of Chas. J. Morris.

The crown theory was that Ernest Morris had shot his brother through the head with a rifle or revolver and later hit him on the head with a shovel, and then placed the body on the bed which had been saturated with coal oil and gasoline, and then set fire to the shack. On the night in question accused had been wearing a pair of black overalls which since had been found and on which were marks of human blood. As a reason for the deed the crown theory, as outlined by Mr. Ross, is that Ernest had sold a team of horses belonging to his brother and had pocketed the money.

The first witness called was Chas. Henry of Missouri. He had sold a team of horses to Chas. J. Morris a couple of years ago, and last Friday saw the same horses near Milestone.

To Mr. Wood he stated that he didn't know whether Charles Morris was buying the horses for himself or not.

Dr. Cook was the next witness. He had performed an autopsy and stated that from the clots of blood found in the head, that injuries to the head had caused death. These appeared to have taken place before the burning. These injuries might have been caused by the building falling on him and crushing the head. Circulation of the blood may continue for as long as twelve minutes after death. The skull of the murdered man was produced in court and the witness pointed out where he found the clots of blood and where the blows had been struck.

Const. Morse of the R.N.W.M.P., told of going to the Morris shack and finding a body. He took the remains to Kinkade's. He told of the position of the body when he found it.

Dr. Charlton was the next witness. He conducted a post mortem on a body on Easter Monday. His opinion was that death had been caused by blows on the head. Death had come before the fire as there were no blisters on the skin. In the stomach he found pieces of undigested pineapple, and partly digested bread. He thought death had come about three quarters of an hour after eating.

Tribute to E. M. Napier.

Prior to his departure from Indian Head for Medicine Hat to which branch he has been transferred, R. M. Napier, was the recipient of a purse of gold and the address below. Mr. Napier, before being appointed manager of the branch at Indian Head was accountant in the Bank of Montreal, here.

The following is the wording of the address: "To Mr. R. M. Napier,—We, the undersigned, representing a large number of subscribers, beg to tender you this address and the accompanying purse of gold as a token of our esteem for you on the occasion of your leaving our town. It is a matter of genuine regret to our citizens that you are leaving us and we wish you God speed, feeling that our loss is a distinct gain to the citizens of Medicine Hat. (Signed) Thos. E. Donnelly, Mayor, Walter Govan, president of the board of trade.

Melbourne, Australia, May 27.—In the commonwealth house of representatives Hon. Andrew Fisher's government was defeated by thirty-nine to thirty votes. The free trade, protectionist and anti-socialists parties united under the leadership of the Hon. Alfred Deakin, formerly prime minister, to oust the labor government. The adverse motion was one regarding the Australian naval and military defence policy. The Labor party were returned to power in December 1906, the balance of parties being 26 Labor, 10 Conservatives, 16 Liberals, and 14 anti-Labor. Hon. Andrew Fisher became prime minister and treasurer, and succeeded in forming a cabinet. The government has worked fairly well until the present crisis.

The feature of this sale that makes it so very important is that every garment is up-to-date and the prices in many cases less than wholesale cost.

HETTIE GREEN

The richest woman in the world says:—

"Buy when people want to sell" at a sacrifice. We admit that this is good advice, and take advantage of just such opportunities. We advise you to do likewise. Buy now—when prices are in your favor. Retailers, like individuals under present conditions, must be tempted to buy. We think, however, you cannot resist the temptation these values offer.

The Town of Regina Literally Captured!

The Great "Live Wire" Sale has simply aroused the town of Regina to an unbounded enthusiasm. The reason for it is very simple. Take for instance a man working by the day for $3 or $4, on which he is obliged to support a wife and children. Necessities of life are very high now, and are going higher every day. It is bound to set you thinking just how you will meet both ends without going in debt. Very few only are able to solve that problem. We will assist you to that end. Come today and supply your need at the "Live Wire" Sale as your money will double its purchasing power here.

Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats, Caps, Furnishings, Underwear, Gloves, etc., etc.

By virtue of this extraordinary purchase, with its well nigh matchless assortment, its unapproachable styles, you may expect to find the very best values any store could ever offer. Values that will echo and re-echo in your mind every time you make a purchase elsewhere for years to come. We cannot begin to itemize—come and you'll find what you want at a very low price, in fact, you never before seen. Extra salespeople to attend to your wants. Extra selling space. Amplified service in every particular included in the preparations for actively forwarding this marvellous sale, in trying to serve all promptly and satisfactorily, no matter how great the crowd will be.

THE RAPACIOUS EEL

Quite apart from the peculiar and mysterious characteristics of eels at their spawning season, there are few more interesting fish than the snake-like eels. A writer in the London Outlook describes how he has seen young eels—"elvers," they are called at this stage of their existence—coming from the sea to the rivers in countless multitudes.

At home the eel thrives rapidly. He soon puts on flesh. He is an omnivorous feeder, and nothing comes amiss that he can take into his gullet. He preys upon the young of every sort of fish.

It is wonderful, considering the size of an eel, what an enormous swallow it has. A fish of two or three pounds will easily make away with a bait of a quarter of a pound, and there are authentic particulars of an eel about two and a half pounds which was choked at King's Lynn attempting to swallow a full sized rat.

John attended Sunday school, and teacher was enquiring on the advantages of good health over riches. She explained: "Riches count for very little. You can't take money with you when you die. Good health, is the most important thing in life."

TWO MAGISTRATES TEST ZAM-BUK.

Mr. F. Rasmussen, of 211 Marquette Street, Montreal, who is a Justice of the Peace, and a man not inclined to give praise except where it is well due, says: "For many years I was troubled with a very serious eruption of the skin. This was not only unsightly, but very painful, and I tried various household remedies, but as these proved altogether useless, I took medical advice. Not one, but several doctors in turn were consulted, but was unable to get any permanent relief. Some time back I determined to give Zam-Buk a trial, and after a thoroughly fair test, I can say I am delighted with this conclusion; while everything I tried failed absolutely to relieve my trouble, three boxes of Zam-Buk have worked a complete cure. In my opinion this balsam should be given more widely than it is. I am, Sir, J.P. of Weston, King's Co., N. S., says: "I had a patch of eczema on my ankle, which had been there for over twenty years. Sometimes the disease would break out on my shoulders. I had taken solution of arsenic, had applied various ointments, and had used every sort of thing to obtain a cure, but in vain. Zam-Buk, on the contrary, proved highly satisfactory, and cured the ailment in a few days. I have also used Zam-Buk for itching piles, and it has cured them completely. I take comfort in helping my brother men, and if the publication of Zam-Buk will lead other sufferers to try it, I should be glad. For the relief of suffering caused by eczema, skin diseases, eruptions, ulcers, piles, blood-poisoning, various ulcers, children's sore heads, ringworm, salt rheum, eczema, scalds, burns, bruises and all skin injuries, Zam-Buk is a perfect cure. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c a box, or postage free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, per price. Three boxes for $1.25.

"People praise my work," said the artist, boastfully. "And they laugh at mine," rejoined the sad-faced party. "But I don't mind."

Hissed His Own Play. Baron de Frenilly, who figured prominently in France during the days of "the terror," must surely have been the only author who ever revised his own play. This was entitled, "Les Trois Tantes" and was produced at the Vaudeville theater, Paris.

Punished With Starvation. In the whole wide world there is not a class of people to be found who inflict severer punishment upon themselves than the Caribs of Central America. Their religion, which is one of the most peculiar kind, demands self-punishment for sins inentionally or unintentionally committed. The punishment is taken in the form of starvation and close confinement. If the sin be in the form of a lie no matter whether it is calculated to injure another, or not, the sinner goes without either food or drink for three days, at the end of which it is believed that the offender has paid the penalty for his or her sin. Blaspheming and using bad language are punishable by absolute starvation for two days. Assault, drunkenness and other serious sins are punished by three days' starvation for the third week and one day's starvation in the fourth week. All sins are punished with starvation. For that reason crime is very low among the Caribs, who are among the best behaved and most truthful people in the world.—Exchange.

Benevolent. Recently accepting the invitation of his old chum Potts, Briggs journeyed over to the little seaside town for a few days' rest. Whilst going out for a quiet walk one evening, Potts met his neighbor, Bland, sitting in his garden leisurely enjoying a cigar, and, of course, observed customary greetings and passed on.

PEARLS IN AUSTRALIA

FISHING FOR GEMS IS A GROWING INDUSTRY. Shells Rather Than Pearls Are the Source of the Big Fortunes Amassed by Men Who Gather the Jewels Off the Coast of Queensland—Malays and Japanese Do Most of the Diving.

Australasian pearl fishers make their fortunes more by the shells they gather than the pearls they find. The Australian pearl is not to be compared with the Oriental; it is too pale and lacks the beautiful sheen, which is a rule of the latter. The Australian shell, on the other hand, is leanpearl, while the Oriental shell is worthless, or practically so.

Thursday Island is the great centre of the pearling industry in Australia. This extends over well all round the coast of Queensland, and Dampier Land, on the desolate northwest coast of the continent, is also famous for its trade in this respect. Of course, it is because of the mother-of-pearl lining that the shells are valuable.

Happy and Honored "Guests" of the Inhabitants of Ghel. One of the most remarkable places in Europe, of which no tourist on pleasure or business ever takes notice, says a writer in a Berlin paper, is the "City of the Insane," by which name Ghel, near Antwerp, has been known for generations.

Speculations of Scientists as to How It Will Come About. The terrible catastrophe in Italy which caused the inhabitants of the ill-fated city of Messina to believe that the end of the world had come is only a foretaste on a small scale of what many eminent scientists believe will be the end of the world.

Live and Learn. Among the words given out for analysis recently by a district school teacher in Pennsylvania was "bank-note." The instructor's explanation may be imagined when one male pupil turned in the following unique paper:

Bank-note is a compound, primitive word, composed of "bank" and "note." "Bank" is a simple word, meaning the side of a stream; "note" is not a "Bank-note," set down by the side of a stream.—Lippincott's.

The Outlook.

Although the spring was somewhat late and the seeding was not completed as early as in some years yet the weather has been so favorable to growth since the seed went in that the crops are well advanced for this season. The rains of last week have done a great amount of good and with the sunshine following the growth from day to day is noticeable.

Western people, usually hopeful, are now jubilant over the prospects for a good crop this year. Last year's crop put a good many of the farmers who suffered from the previous year, on their feet again, and it only requires a good crop this year to give them a working capital.

Two Sides.

Evangelist Gale who assisted in conducting a campaign in Regina, put a mark of condemnation on the theatre. Gipsy Smith who is conducting an evangelistic campaign in Toronto, also condemns the theatre in the following terms:

"The theatre serves no good purpose, and is instrumental in leading young people away from Christian standards. It is growing worse in its tendencies, and it can only be reformed by removal from society. No true Christian may attend the theatre. Virtuous lives among stage people are the exception. Religious plays are but money making tricks. The acted drama serves no other purpose than to entertain."

Mme. Helena Modjeska, who was a great actress, died recently in California. A few years ago in answer to a question, as to what she attributed her success, she said:

"I have kept my ideals. I have not lost my faith in humanity. I haven't forgotten how to enjoy and be glad. I know it is out of fashion to be poetical, but there are still germs of poetry in my soul and I am a religious woman. There are certain characters that cannot be portrayed by a woman who does not believe in God—God is the first essential for success in anything."

It seems to us that the theatre is a great medium of influencing the public. We believe there are many plays with good tendencies just as there are some with evil tendencies. What the stage wants is reform, and this comes from the public. If only the good plays and players were patronized, the evils would soon disappear.

Absurd Restrictions.

Yesterday afternoon a gentleman occupying a position of trust and responsibility in the Victoria business community, was called to Seattle on business in connection with a matter of great importance, says the Victoria Colonist. When he went to buy his ticket he was asked by an officer of the United States Immigration department where he was born, and the reply was "In England." He was then asked how long he had been in Canada and he said "six months." He was then told that he could not go aboard the steamer. Of course, as a matter of fact, the immigration officer has no right to forbid anyone to board a steamer here for Seattle or any place else, but for the convenience of travellers the officer is allowed to exercise authority at this end of the voyage instead of at the other end. The gentleman offered to pay any head tax or do anything else that might be required of him, but the officer was obstinate, and he therefore had to forego his journey. Now we submit for the consideration of our South African contemporaries

If an agreement such as this is not exceedingly absurd. Let us strip it of all details and take the bad facts. Here is a well known, well dressed, prosperous business man, with plenty of money in his pocket, who finds himself called to go over to Seattle on an important business matter with some people there. He goes to the steamer to embark, but cannot go because he happened to be born in England. These are the simple facts of the case. This gentleman wanted to go to Seattle; his presence in Seattle was important to himself and to some Seattle people, but because he was born in England he could not go. Can anything more utterly ridiculous be supposed? Is it necessary for every man who was born in England to treat a trip to Seattle as an international affair and give notice to the government of that country that he contemplates making the journey? Has it come to such a pass that an Englishman resident in Victoria is not allowed to go to Seattle unless he knows he will have to go some hours before and go through a lot of red tape? Next week the exposition will open. Will it be necessary for every English born person in Victoria to take out a certificate of baptism, or some other thing, or pay money or do something or other of an equally nonsensical nature before he is permitted to take in the show? If this is the case the fact cannot be too soon made known. It will certainly make a difference in the attitude from this city. It may be said that we should not condemn a regulation simply because it bears hard on some particular case. Our answer to this is that it is a fool regulation which makes it impossible for a man born in England to go over to Seattle on business without going through a performance resembling the Inquisition. Any man could make a more sensible regulation in five minutes.

Editorial Notes.

The month of weddings has arrived again.

Since the feud between Dan McGillicuddy and Bob Edwards has subsided, Calgary has struck gas—underground.

The unfortunate incident in connection with the second race in Winnipeg between the Englishman, Fred Appleby, and the Indian, Paul Acoose, when tacks were found on the track which a couple of times were picked up by Acoose in his feet, and eventually put him out of the race, will have a disastrous effect upon racing in that city. Some investigation should take place.

Some of the eastern papers are advocating an increase of remuneration to the cabinet ministers. Some suggest an increase from $7,000 to $10,000 per annum, explaining that the ministers have no way of making money other than at their offices. This explanation could hardly hold good with respect to Clifford Sifton who, in the opinion of some Liberals, did wonders as head of his department, and at the same time made a fortune for himself while he was Minister of the Interior.

J. W. Smith returned to the city from the east recently with the assurance of Mr. Wainwright that the G.T.P. branch line between here and Yorkton, would be in operation this fall. We believe the survey has been made and when the money is raised, the work will no doubt be undertaken. We would draw the attention of the government which guarantees the bonds on this line to the fact that the people of Foxleigh district, who have been waiting for years for railway facilities are not provided for by this line as they should be. The survey shows the line to be about twelve miles east, whereas it might just as well tap this district. The settlers of the Foxleigh district as well as the settlers east where the line is surveyed have petitioned the government for a change. Notwithstanding any objections the railway company put forward, it is the duty of the government to see that the best interests of the settlers are served by the new lines, which are to be actually built in the province.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

Those who are interested in foreign missions will probably remember that a Regina branch of the Canadian Auxiliary of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission was formed by Miss McKinney at a drawing room meeting held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Smith, Victoria avenue, on Nov. 16 last. Representative ladies of the different churches were present and passed a resolution to support a bed, to be known as the Regina Bed, in the Canadian hospital at Nasik, India, otherwise known as the Dhanakorai Hospital. (The ladies of the Knox church missionary society had already promised to support a bed in the Kinnaird Memorial Hospital, Lucknow.)

At a second meeting held at Mrs. Smith's on Saturday, May 22, the ladies determined to make an appeal through the local papers, for contributions towards the support of the bed. This appeal is made, not on account of any difficulty the ladies have met with, but to give every woman and child of whatever denomination, an opportunity of contributing to the support of the bed, and if possible, a nurse. It will require $50.00 per year to support a bed, and $50.00 per year to support a nurse. When divided among the different denominations this leaves a very small sum for each church to be responsible for; but, knowing that the different missionary societies are already taxed to their utmost, the ladies resolved to ask those interested but not connected with a missionary society for support.

The Dhanakorai Hospital is a Canadian auxiliary kept up by the Canadian hospital. At present it is a small building (with 30 beds) which is in a bad state of repair, and has been pronounced unsanitary by the health authorities. The auxiliary is endeavoring to raise funds to build a new hospital ($10,000) with at least 50 beds and perfect sanitary conditions.

According to the financial statement from Dec. 1, 1907 to Dec. 1, 1908, the support received from the west was:

Victoria	$402.18
Winnipeg	413.34
Vancouver	246.90
Edmonton	242.50
Calgary	173.50
Concordia	133.50
Elkhorn	86.70
Regina	79.55
Lumsden	54.10

We trust that the financial report of 1909 will show a large increase in the Regina contribution.

"The Zenana Bible and Medical Mission is the oldest missionary society in the west."

city working specially for the women of India, having been established in 1852. Evangelical in its doctrines, spiritual in its methods, and inter-denominational in its character, it endeavors to co-operate with all who love the Lord Jesus Christ, in the effort to bring the knowledge of the gospel to the women and girls in our great Indian empire. It supplements the efforts of the general societies by doing the work which in India, men cannot do. The above will give those interested a general idea of the work carried on by this mission.

Kindly send all contributions toward the support of the bed to Mrs. R. Sinton, the Treasurer of the Regina branch; or during the Treasurer's absence in July and August, to Mrs. J. W. Smith, president of the Society.

GENERAL NEWS

The hotel and buildings occupied by the Massey-Harris Co. at Abernethy were destroyed by fire last Friday.

C. J. Mickie who has been leader of the Liberal opposition in the Manitoba assembly has been appointed a county court judge for the province.

Ottawa, May 26.—The cabinet had under consideration this afternoon the capital case of a homesteader named Tetrault, now under sentence to be hanged next month for the murder of a settler near Battleford last November. The victim died as the result of being stabbed in a drunken brawl. It was decided to recommend to his excellency that the sentence be commuted to life imprisonment as the evidence did not show that the crime had been in any premeditated.

G.T.P. BONDS SOLD.

London, May 27.—The million dollar issue of the Grand Trunk Pacific Branch Lines Company guaranteed by the governments of Saskatchewan and Alberta, was largely over-subscribed today. The Financial Times referring to the success of the G.T.P. issue, says evidently there is plenty of money available in this country, also plenty of faith in the future of Canada. On the other hand the underwriters of the New South Wales $1 per cent. loan have been saddled with 50 to 60 per cent. of its total.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 26.—Thos. Read, one of the few remaining veterans of the Mexican war, is dying at his home in this city. Read served through the Mexican war in the Fourth Infantry of which U. S. Grant was quartermaster and Robt. E. Lee was major, and he knew both men intimately. He was orderly for Major Lee for six months and became much attached to him. A painful wound received when Scott was advancing upon Mexico city prevented Read from enlisting in the civil war to serve under one former comrade and against another. The dying veteran has been very fond of music all his life and was a skillful violinist, even at the age of 84 years. His violin has been his life long companion and is itself more than eighty years old.

Ottawa, May 27.—A general reduction of the numbers of active militia who will go into camp this summer is announced in the military orders today as follows: Cavalry paymasters, regimental quartermaster, sergeants, orderly room sergeants, signalling corporals and hospital corporals will not train. Infantry—paymasters, stretcher bearer section, sergeant drummers and signalling corporals will not train. Engineers—No. 1, 2 and 4 companies are not to exceed 85 per cent of the full establishment for training, and No. 3 company 60 per cent of the officers, and non-commissioned officers being reduced proportionately. The result will be to reduce the muster at the annual camps to 20,826, made up of 1,774 officers, 4,235 non-com. officers and 14,927 men.

JOKE ON FROBISHER.

The inhabitants of the aspiring village of Frobisher "went in the air" recently over a report that Jim Hill, the railway magnate, was in Orxow for the purpose of viewing the location for the proposed extension of the Great Northern railway, a branch of which, it has long been rumored, will enter southern Saskatchewan from North Dakota. The only chewan that can be assigned for the report gaining credence, which almost caused Frobisher to send a delegation down to see what was doing, was a photographer's tent pitched on the south side of the track. A person of a jocular turn of mind, in reply to a question from another who was passing through on a train, asked what the tent was for, replied that it was Jim Hill's survey camp. Unlike the rolling stone that gathers no moss, the report gained credence, and when it reached Frobisher with the exaggerations that a rumor of this kind gathers, it appeared to be true enough, causing no small amount of palpitation of the heart and consternation among the promoters of the village's interests.—Orxow Herald.

by Archdeacon Lloyd, of Prince Albert, have been in the city for the past few days looking over the university site, and it is understood that a request has been made to the governors for a certain plot of land and at the same time adjoining land has been purchased which will give the Church of England a splendid location in close touch with the university. The land will be used for the erecting of a college, a preparatory institution of Anglican denomination. This is the first denomination to make application for land for university purposes from the governors, but it is expected a similar request will be received from the Lutheran church in a day or so, as both bodies intend to build their own theological institutions close to the provincial university.

MORMONS vs. GENTILES

Magrath Mormons Make it Interesting for a Gentle who was Married to One of Their Faith—Couldn't Have His Wife or Child Back.

Lethbridge, Alta., May 27.—A mob of thirty or forty Mormons yesterday mobbed, threatened to hang and severely handled two "gentile" men and a woman at Magrath, a Mormon settlement about twenty-two miles north east of here. The matter arose from the marriage a year or more ago of a Mormon girl to a gentile, as the Mormons call all non-members of their church, which bars all marriage of its children to gentiles.

James Barclay, one of the men who was mobbed, declares that this was the cause of the whole trouble. Barclay and his wife, the couple concerned, after their marriage lived happily together in Calgary. Mrs. Barclay, about five months ago returned to her mother's home at Magrath, and intended to return to her own home in the course of a week or two. Once back in Magrath, however, her parents and the church determined to keep her, and in spite of her husband's entreaties, she refused to return to him.

Yesterday Barclay accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Bolderson of this city, and Harrison, a friend of the Barclays, went down to Magrath to ask his wife again to come back to him. She refused. He finally declared that if she would not come back he would take his child which he did. If Mrs. Barclay wanted the child she could go with him, he declared. A mob got together and Barclay was snatched by a man who called himself "sheriff." He, his sister and Harrison were hauled before a Mormon magistrate, who gave orders that the child was to be returned to its mother and that the three gentiles quit the place on the first train. The three were taken handcuffed, to the depot by the "sheriff" in the regular American style. They had been waiting in the waiting room for some time when the mob appeared.

"Don't you come back here again," announced the leader, "or we will hang you."

"We will hang them now," called out some of the mob.

"Get a rope."

Ropes, however, were not brought, but the mob rushed the three "gentiles" knocked them down, kicked and beat them.

They "soaked" them with eggs and threw Harrison through a window, by which the top of his finger was severed. Mrs. Bolderson was also roughly used. After satisfying their hunger for brutality, the mob left, and the three boarded the passenger train which arrived shortly after, and came to this city. The sheriff stood by and made no effort to interfere until towards the last. No arrests have been made so far.

Rod and Gun for June.

The winter campaign against the wolves in Northern Ontario, suggestions for thinning out these pests in the Algonquin National Park and the need for some further action in that portion of the province bordering on Manitoba, are prominent features of the June number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont. Sportsmen everywhere are interested in this wolf campaign because it is felt that the future of our big game depends to a considerable extent upon keeping down the numbers of their relentless and ever vigorous foes. What has been done and what is proposed applies to a much wider field than Ontario and the lessons learned there do not doubt be put to use in several of the other provinces. Even where the wolf is not a pest and a trouble sportsmen will read with sympathetic interest of the good work done and of the proposals for renewing it with increased zest next winter. Fishing, including a fine illustrated paper showing how anglers may, with much pleasure and profit to themselves, mount the best of their specimens, occupies the next place, seven stories being given up to topics of which the fisherman is never weary. As a change one paper descriptive of fishing in the West Indies, will show Canadians that they have no need to envy their fellows elsewhere. A fine article by Mr. R. Clapham, "Dogs as Companions at Home and Afield," a paper on "Grouse in Alberta," a description of a new British Columbia canoe trip, a couple of big game hunting stories, fish and game protective topics, a summary of the report on the Canadian National Park, and a paper on Physical Culture, are representative of the wealth of other good things appearing in the number. Indeed sportsmen whatever they be the special line they favor, will find something in this issue appealing to them with particular force, while the whole of the contents will be found of general interest to all concerned in the sporting advantages of the Dominion.

JAXON BUTTS IN

Honore Jaxon Persuades Men Not to Go to Work at Bankhead—Some of His History—Disputing Parties Have Not Yet Agreed and Still Arbitrating.

Macleod, May 26.—When the board of conciliation which is endeavoring to settle the coal miners' strike reconvened today at the call of chairman Grant, the committee of the two sides appointed last week to formulate an agreement for putting into effect the recommendations of the board represented through their attorneys that they had failed to agree.

The board then formally opened a board of arbitration under the Lemieux act. Several conferences were held on the legality of the preamble in the mining contracts which is being debated.

Attorney L. P. Ekkstein of Fernie for the miners, testified that Ekkstein thinks that the settlement is as far away as ever.

Banff, May 26.—The strike situation is at a critical point at Bankhead. The men on Sunday or Monday met and decided to return to work today, and the management expected to open up this morning. Manager Wilson sent in to Banff for several of his miners who have been at work on government road gangs during the strike.

This morning Honore Jaxon, private secretary to Sherman, appeared on the scene and persuaded the men not to go to work and to call another meeting for tonight to rescind the action taken at the previous meeting. Jaxon is the man who acted as Louis Reil's private secretary in the rebellion of '95 and who was concerned in the noted tenters' strike in Chicago a few years ago.

Old timers give the following about Jaxon (that is if he is the same man), whose first appearance as a stirrer of strife in 1891 down in the Milk River country in Montana. That year the buffalo were getting very scarce and about 300 Canadian Indians and some half breeds followed a band of the buffalo across the border into Montana greatly to the disgust of the Montana Indians who viewed with alarm this incursion on their game. Sheriff Healy and his brother with Deputy Sheriff Tabert, in an endeavor to stop the hunting claimed customs duty on all teams and robes in the possession of the Canadian Indians and rode out to enforce the demands. The Indians gathered in the offices of the law, and without hurting them confined them in a log shack under guard.

Jaxon, who was with the band, endeavored to get the white men shot but the Indians were too cute to go too far. Jaxon then left hot foot for the nearest trading post to get a supply of whisky with which to influence the passions of the Indians to a point where they would shoot the Healys and Tabert. A friendly half-breed told the prisoners of the move and for a substantial bribe took a message to Fort Assiniboine and brought the cavalry at whose approach the Indians retreated back across the border to Canadian soil. Healy afterwards took part in putting down the rebellion but always declared his sole reason for taking part was to get a shot at Jaxon.

Death of a Pioneer Missionary

Montreal, Que., May 31.—The pioneer lady missionary who for thirty years worked among the Sioux Indians near Prince Albert, died at the Royal-Victoria hospital last night in the person of Miss Lucy Baker, aged 73 years. Throughout the long period in which she entirely devoted herself to missionary work, Miss Baker's course of life was of a remarkable nature. When she first went out she was the only woman among the Indians of that section where she was originally associated in mission work with Rev. Dr. Ross, of Lancaster, Ont. Miss Baker was mainly responsible for bringing the Sioux Indians among whom she lived, to a state of advanced civilization in comparison with their course of life 35 years ago.

At the time of the Riel rebellion, Miss Baker's house near Prince Albert was turned into a hospital when Miss Baker did everything in her power for the troops. About a year ago Miss Baker retired from the field of her devotion.

The ninth annual convention of the Union of Canadian municipalities will be held on June 26 and 27 at Medicine Hat, and the final meeting will be held next day at Calgary. Visits will be also made to Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg and Regina. Among subjects proposed are: Uniform municipal accounting; provincial municipal boards, including public utility commissions; western municipal development; government; telegraph systems; methods of street widening and expropriation, and improvement plans, in advance of growth.

As regards this country, the eclipse will be best seen in the North-west Territories and Manitoba. For all

ECLIPSES IN JUNE

That of the Moon on June 3rd and that of the Sun on June 17th—To be Seen in Western Provinces if the Weather is Favorable.

There are to be four eclipses during the year 1906. Of these J. Millar Barr of St. Catharines writes to the Mail and Empire as follows:

Of the four eclipses in 1906, two will take place next month, viz.: a total eclipse of the moon on June 3, and a central eclipse of the Sun on June 17. As both events will be partly visible in Canada, the following notes concerning them may be of interest.

Although eclipses of the moon are less important, scientifically, than those of the sun, it is always very interesting to watch the gradual progress of our satellite through the earth's shadow, and to note the varied and often beautiful tints at different points of the lunar landscape.

The next opportunity of witnessing such an event will occur (weather permitting) on June 3. In this country the eclipse will be best seen in the Maritime provinces—especially in Nova Scotia. At Toronto the moon will rise almost totally eclipsed at 7h. 46 m. p.m., standard time. The middle of the eclipse occurs at 8h. 29 m., and the total obscuration ends at 9 o'clock. This latter phase may be well observed in Southern Ontario should the weather conditions prove favorable; though the moon will be low down near the southern horizon.

The sunlight will appear on the left-hand margin of the lunar disc. The moon leaves the shadow at 10h. 14m. and the last contact with the penumbra (or faint partial shadow) occurs at 11h. 21m. standard time.

The solar eclipse of June 17 will be visible, in its partial phases, over a large portion of North America, also in Asia and Northern Europe. The central or shadow track extends from a point in Asiatic Russia, crossing the Arctic ocean and Greenland, and terminating near Cape Farewell.

For points along this track the eclipse will be total, except near the beginning and end of the course, where it will be annular. Observers in northern Norway may witness a spectacle worth travelling a long way to see—an eclipse of the mid-night sun.

points in eastern and southern Canada the sun will set eclipsed. At Toronto the "first contact" occurs about an hour before sunset, viz., at 8h. 57m. p.m., standard time. A few minutes later a distinct notch will be seen (weather permitting) on the lower right hand quarter of the sun's disc. The greatest obscuration (magnitude 0.53) will occur shortly before sunset, the latter taking place at 8h. 1m. standard time.

MEAT CHILLING PLANTS

Edmonton, Alta., May 28.—E. G. Palmer of Edmonton, one of the committee appointed last July to interview Hon. Sydney Fisher, minister of agriculture, regarding the establishment of meat chilling and packing plants in the western provinces, returned to the city today. He says the government is favorable to the scheme and that two large meat chilling plants with five sub-plants will be established in the west at a cost of $1,750,000. Work on the main plants will start this summer. The first proposal laid before the minister was that plants to cost $8,000,000 and covering all the western provinces should be established. This was considered too big a proposition and a second proposal was made and approved, but the government will guarantee four per cent of the bonds. The producer of cattle and hogs will get half the net profits and the other half will go to the stock holders.

TO PAY FOR DOUKS.

It is learned on the best of authority that the Saskatchewan government has finally decided to foot the bill for the keep of the Doukhobors who spent several months at Yorkton and vicinity last summer under the chaperonage of the R.N.W.M.P. It will be well remembered how the Ontario government and the municipal authorities at Fort William, after conspiring together, loaded these wanderers into a couple of coaches last spring and shipped them to Yorkton, the great rumus that was raised at the time, and Yorkton's refusal to have anything to do with them. The Mounted Police finally being that the province and the Dominion would fight it out between them as to who would pay the shot. After feeding them on apples, peonuts etc., for several months in a coral near Oradisa the leaders were placed in asylums and jails and the rest of the party dispersed. Now the province is to foot the bill, which amounts to thousands of dollars.—Yorkton Enterprise.

ANTI-CONSUMPTION CONVENTION.

Hamilton, May 26.—The Canadian Association for the Prevention of Consumption closed this afternoon. It will meet in Montreal next year. The convention passed a resolution calling upon the provincial governments to aid in checking the white plague and advising the appointment of medical inspectors for schools. The members in the afternoon visited the Hamilton Health Association's sanitarium.

Prof. J. O. Adams, Montreal, was elected president; Hon. Senator Edwards, of Ottawa; H. H. Miller, M.P. of Hanover; William Southam of Hamilton; Jas. Manuel, of Ottawa; Sir J. A. Grant of Ottawa; J. G. Rutherford, of Ottawa; Hon. Senator Belique, of Montreal; Col. Jeffrey H. Burland, of Montreal; Dr. Gordon Bell of Winnipeg; Hon. W. B. Mowbray of Regina; Hon. W. H. Finlay of Edmonton and Dr. L. Laberge of Montreal, are vice presidents; Geo. Burn, of Ottawa, is treasurer and Rev. W. Moore, D.D., of Ottawa, is secretary.

CHAPTER XX.

CAPTAIN ERI knew that the hardest and most dangerous portion of his perilous trip was just at its beginning. If the dory got through the surf without capsizing it was an even bet that she would stay right side up for awhile longer at any rate, so he pulled out of the little cove and pointed the boat's bow toward the thundering smother of white.

The first wave tripped over the bar and whirled beneath him, sending the dory high into the air and splashing its occupant with spray. The captain held the boat station, waiting for the second to break, and then, half rising, put all his weight and strength on the oars. The stroke was perfect.

They used to say on board the Hannah M. that the skipper never got rattled. The same cool head and steady nerve that Josiah had admired when the dory was pitched overboard at the entrance of the bay now served the same purpose in this more tangled and infinitely more wicked maze. The dory climbed and ducked, rolled and slid, but gained inch by inch, foot by foot.

The advancing waves struck the dory blows at the bow, the wind did its best to swing her broadside on, but there were 130 pounds of clear grit and muscle tugging at the oars, and though the muscles were not as young as they had been, there were years of experience to make every pound count.

At last the preliminary round was over. The boat sprang clear of the breakers and crept out farther and farther, with six inches of water slopping in her bottom, but about as seaworthy.

It was not until she was far into deep water that the captain turned her bow down the shore. When this was done it was on the instant, and, although a little more water came inboard, there was not enough to be dangerous.

The dory jumped from crest to crest like a hurdler. The sleek now beat directly into the captain's face and froze on his eyebrows and lashes, but he dared not draw in an oar to free a hand. The wind caught up the spindrift and poured it over him in icy baths, but he was too warm from the furious exercise to mind.

In the hills he turned his head and gazed over the sea, looking for the boat. Once he saw it, before the storm shut down again, and he groaned aloud to count but two black spots on its white surface. He pulled the oars over and grunted with every stroke while the perspiration poured down his forehead and froze when it reached the ice dams over his eyes.

At last it was in plain sight, and the two dots now clearly in the distance were still there. He pointed the bow straight at it and roved on. When he looked again there was but one, a figure sprawled along the keel, clinging to the centerboard.

The flying dory bore down upon the lifeboat and the captain risked what little breath he had in a rick. The clinging figure raised its head and Captain Eri felt an almost selfish sense of relief to see that it was Luther Davis. If it had to be but one, he would rather it was that one.

The bottom of the lifeboat rose like a dome from the sea that beat and roared over it. The dory was pitched and floated up and projected at the top, and it was about this that Captain Davis' arms were clasped. Captain Eri shot the dory alongside, pulled in one oar and the two boats fitted closely together. Then Eri reached out and seized his friend by the belt round his waist pulled him from his hold. Davis fell into the bottom of the dory, only half conscious and entirely helpless.

It was out of the question to attempt to get back to the cove. The landing must be made on the open beach, and although Captain Eri had more than once brought a dory safely through a high surf, he never had attempted it when his boat had nearly a foot of water in her and carried a helpless passenger.

Little by little, still rumbling before the wind, the captain edged in toward the shore. Luther moved his oars once or twice, but said nothing. His oar-blades were frozen stiff, and his beard was a lump of ice. Captain Eri began to fear that he might die from cold and exhaustion before the attempt at landing was made. The captain resolved to wait no longer, but to take the risk of running directly for the beach.

He was near enough now to see the leaping spray of the breakers, and their hollow sounded louder than the howl of the wind or the noises of the sea about him. He bent forward and shouted in the ear of the prostrate life saver.

"Luther!" he yelled. "Lute!" Captain Davis' head rolled back, his eyes opened and in a dazed way he looked at the figure swinging back and forth with the oars.

"Lute," shouted Captain Eri, "listen to me! I'm going to try to land. Do you hear me?" Davis' thoughts seemed to be gathering slowly. He was ordinarily a man of strong physique, courageous and a fighter every inch of him, but his strength had been beaten out by the waves and chilled by the captain's sight of the men with whom he had lived and worked for years drowning one by one had broken his nerve. He looked at his friend and then at the waves.

"What's the use?" he said feebly. "They're all gone. I might as well go too." Captain Eri's eyes snapped. "Lute Davis," he exclaimed, "I never thought I'd see you playin' baby. Brace up! What are you, anyway?" The half frozen man made a pucky effort.

"All right, Eri," he said. "I'm with you, but I ain't much good." "Can you stand?" "I'll try." "I don't know. I'll try." Little by little he raised himself to his knees.

"But as fur's I can go, Eri," he said between his teeth. "You look out for yourself. I'll do my darndest!" The dory was caught by the first of the great waves and on its crest went flying toward the beach. Captain Eri steered with the oars as well as he could. The wave broke and the half-filled boat paused, was caught up by the succeeding breaker and thrown forward again. The captain, still trying to steer with one oar, let go of the other and seizing his companion by the belt pulled him to his feet.

"Now, then," he shouted, "stand by!" The boat poised on the cresting wave, went down like a hammer, struck the sand and was buried in water. Just as it struck Captain Eri jumped as far shoreward as he could. Davis sprang with him, but it was really the captain's strength that carried them clear of the reef.

They kept their feet for an instant, but in that instant Captain Eri dragged his friend a yard or so up the shelving beach. Then they were knocked flat by the next wave. The captain's feet took into the sand and braced himself as the undertow sucked back. Once more he rose and they staggered on again, only to go down when the next rush of water came. Three times this performance was repeated, and they rose for the fourth time the captain and his companion were struck speechless, for he had scarcely a word left in his throat.

Another plunge, a splashing run and they were on the hard sand of the beach. Then they both tumbled on their faces and breathed in great gasps. But the captain realized that this could not do, for in their soaked condition freezing to death was a matter of but a short time. He seized Davis by the shoulder and shook him again and again.

"Come on, Lute! Come on!" he insisted. "Get up! You've got to get up!" And although the life saver did get up, after he could scarcely stand. Then, with the captain's arm around his waist, they started slowly up the beach toward the shore.

They had gone but a little way when they were met by Ralph Hazeltine and Captain Perez.

Mrs. Snow had been, for her, rather nervous all that forenoon. She performed her household duties as thoroughly as usual, but Elsie, to whom the storm had brought a holiday, noticed that she looked out of the window and at the clock frequently.

Dinner was on the table at 12 o'clock, but the captain was not there to help eat it, and they sat down without him. And here again Mrs. Snow departed from her regular habit, for she ate little and was very quiet. She was the first to hear an unusual sound outside, and, jumping up, ran to the window.

"Somebody's drivin' into the yard," she said. "Who on earth would be comin' here such a day as this?" Captain Jerry joined her at the window.

"It's Abner Mayo's horse," he said. "Maybe it's Perez comin' home." "It was not Captain Perez," but Mr. Mayo himself.

"Hello, Abner!" exclaimed Captain Jerry, the newcomer stopped to knock the snow from his boots before coming in. "What have you done to Perez? Go in to keep him for a steady boarder?"

But Mr. Mayo had important news to communicate, and he did not intend to lose the effect of his sensation by springing it without due preparation. He took off his hat and mittens and solemnly declined a proffered chair.

"Cap'n Burgess," he said, "I've somethin' to tell you—somethin' awful. The whole life savin' crew but one is drowned, and Cap'n Eri Hedge's—"

An exclamation from Mrs. Snow interrupted him. The housekeeper clasped her hands together tightly and rushed into a chair. She was very white, Elsie ran to her.

"What is it, Mrs. Snow?" she asked. "Nothin', nothin'! Go on, Mr. Mayo, go on!"

The bearer of ill tidings, gratified at the result of his first attempt, proceeded deliberately: "And Cap'n Hedge and Luther Davis are over at the station pretty nigh dead. If it w'n't for the cap'n, Luther'd have been dead. Eri took a dory and went off and picked him up. Perez come over to my house and told us about it, and Pasly's gone back with him to see her brother. I didn't go down to the shore this mornin' 'cause I was sick, but as soon as I heard I hurried up to come and tell you."

Then, in answer to the hurried questions of Captain Jerry and Elsie, Mr. Mayo told the whole story as far as he knew it. Mrs. Snow said nothing, but sat with her hands still clasped in her lap.

"Luther is ha't drowned and froze," concluded Abner, "and the cap'n got a bang with an oar when they jumped out of the dory that, Perez is afraid, he broke his arm. I'm goin' right back to get Dr. Palmer. They tried to telephone him, but the wire's down."

"Dear, dear, dear!" exclaimed Captain Jerry, completely demoralized by the news. "That's dreadful! I must go right down there, mustn't I? The poor fellows!"

Mrs. Snow rose to her feet quietly, but with a determined air. "Are you goin' right back soon's you've got the doctor, Mr. Mayo?" she asked.

"Why, no, I wa'n't. I ain't been to my store this mornin', and I'm 'fraid I ought to be there." "Then, Josiah, you'll have to harness Dan'l and take me down. I mustn't wait another minute."

"Why, Mrs. Snow," expostulated Captain Jerry, "you mustn't go down there. The doctor's gone, and I'll go and Pasly's there already." But the housekeeper merely waved him aside.

"I want you to stay here with Elsie," she said. "There's no tellin' how long I may be gone. Josiah'll drive me down, won't you, Josiah?" There was no lack of enthusiasm in the "able seaman's" answer. The boy was only too glad of the chance.

and wiped her eyes with her apron. "Oh, nothin'," she answered, "with an attempt at a smile. 'Em kind of fidgety this mornin', and the way that man started off to tell his yarn upset me, that's all. I mustn't be such a fool."

She set about getting ready with a vim and attention to detail that proved that her "fidgets" had not affected her common sense. She was pale, her hands trembled a little, but she took a covered basket and packed in it cloth for bandages, a hot water bottle, mustard, a bottle of liniment and numerous other things likely to be of use.

Ralph and Captain Perez were surprised men when the housekeeper, dripping, but cheerful, appeared on the scene.

Mrs. Snow took charge at once of the tired men, and the overtaxed Miss Patience was glad enough to have her do for her. Captain Perez was in bed, and Captain Eri, after an hour's sojourn in the same snug harbor, had utterly refused to stay there longer, and now, dressed in a suit belonging to the commandant, was stretched upon a sofa in the front room.

The captain was the most surprised of all when Mrs. Snow appeared. He fairly gasped when she first entered the room, and seemed to be struck speechless, for he had scarcely a word left in his throat.

Another plunge, a splashing run and they were on the hard sand of the beach. Then they both tumbled on their faces and breathed in great gasps. But the captain realized that this could not do, for in their soaked condition freezing to death was a matter of but a short time. He seized Davis by the shoulder and shook him again and again.

"Come on, Lute! Come on!" he insisted. "Get up! You've got to get up!" And although the life saver did get up, after he could scarcely stand. Then, with the captain's arm around his waist, they started slowly up the beach toward the shore.

They had gone but a little way when they were met by Ralph Hazeltine and Captain Perez.

Mrs. Snow had been, for her, rather nervous all that forenoon. She performed her household duties as thoroughly as usual, but Elsie, to whom the storm had brought a holiday, noticed that she looked out of the window and at the clock frequently.

Dinner was on the table at 12 o'clock, but the captain was not there to help eat it, and they sat down without him. And here again Mrs. Snow departed from her regular habit, for she ate little and was very quiet. She was the first to hear an unusual sound outside, and, jumping up, ran to the window.

"Somebody's drivin' into the yard," she said. "Who on earth would be comin' here such a day as this?" Captain Jerry joined her at the window.

"It's Abner Mayo's horse," he said. "Maybe it's Perez comin' home." "It was not Captain Perez," but Mr. Mayo himself.

"Hello, Abner!" exclaimed Captain Jerry, the newcomer stopped to knock the snow from his boots before coming in. "What have you done to Perez? Go in to keep him for a steady boarder?"

But Mr. Mayo had important news to communicate, and he did not intend to lose the effect of his sensation by springing it without due preparation. He took off his hat and mittens and solemnly declined a proffered chair.

"Cap'n Burgess," he said, "I've somethin' to tell you—somethin' awful. The whole life savin' crew but one is drowned, and Cap'n Eri Hedge's—"

For Women Who are Discouraged

Because of lingering weakness and nervous derangements there is new hope and cure. The letter quoted voices the experience of thousands of women who have found health and joy in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

The Christian Scientists are undoubtedly right. To some extent the mind does influence the body, both in health and disease and if you give up hope, leave off treatment and fall into discouragement and despondency, there is little reason to expect that good health will force itself upon you.

You must do your part if you are going to get strong and well. You select rational treatment. If your system is weak and run down, your blood is poor and your nervous system exhausted choose a treatment such as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which has never been equaled as a means of building up strength and vigor.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is particularly successful in the cure of ailments and derangements, and your chronic sufferer most at attested by such letters as the following from Mrs. D. D. Burger, Heather Brae, writes:

"Mrs. Armstrong had great weakness, heart trouble and indigestion. In fact she was run down in every way and had lost all hope of building her health up again. She had been in poor health for over four years after the birth of her first child. The persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has proven of marvellous benefit to her. She feels well now, is looking fine and fleshing up so that one could hardly believe her the same person."

The change of dietary that comes with spring and summer has the effect in weak stomachs of setting up inflammation, resulting in the pain of indigestion, morbus. The abnormal condition will continue if not attended to and will cause an exhaustive drain on the system. The best available medicine is Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. It clears the stomach and bowels of irritants, counteracts the inflammation and restores the organs to healthy action.

"You must learn to trust your fellow-men." "There's no use in talking that way to me," answered the worried-looking citizen. "I'm in the grocery business." — Washington Star.

I cured a horse of the Magee with MINARD'S LINIMENT. CHRISTOPHER SAUNDERS. Dalhousie.

Yes, a little. The schooner was from Maine, bound to New York. Besides her own crew she had some Italians aboard—coal handlers, they was, got'n over on a job for the owner. Cap'n Davis says he saw right away that the lifeboat would be overloaded, but he had to take 'em all; there wa'n't time for a second trip. He made the schooner's crew and the others lay down in the boat where they wouldn't hinder the men at the oars, but when they got to the tail of the shoal, where the sea was heaviest, them Italians took their heads and commenced to stand up and yell, and fast thing you know she swung broadside on and capsized. Pasly says Luther don't say much, but she judges from what he does say that some of the men hung on with him for awhile, but was washed off and drowned."

"That's right. There was four or five there when we saw her first. 'Twas Nursemaid—I'm going to leave, mum. Mistress—Why, what's the matter? Don't you like the baby? Nursemaid—Yes, but he is that afraid of a policeman that I can't get near one.—London Teller.

Minard's Liniment, Lumberman's Friend. Corkscrew Seed. There are some seeds which "literally" corkscrew themselves into the ground. The most remarkable instance is perhaps that of the Spina grass, a beautiful sort of European grass. The actual seed is small, with a sharp point and stiff short hairs pointing backward. The top end of the seed is produced into a fine, twisted, corkscrew-like rod, which is followed by a plain cylindrical portion, ending in a long, delicate feather, the whole being more than a foot in length. Owing to this feather the seed falls to the earth point downward and sticks just at the tail of the shoal, where the sea was heaviest, them Italians took their heads and commenced to stand up and yell, and fast thing you know she swung broadside on and capsized. Pasly says Luther don't say much, but she judges from what he does say that some of the men hung on with him for awhile, but was washed off and drowned."

"And you cared as much as that?" Lute's grip on the centerboard that saved him. It's an awful thing—awful! "Yes, and he would have gone, too, if it hadn't been for you. And you talk about my takin' risks!" "Well, Jerry hadn't ought to have let you come."

"Let me come! I should like to have seen him try to stop me. The ideal where would I be if 'twasn't helpin' you, after all you've done for me?" "I've done? I haven't done anything!" "You've made me happier 'I've been for years. You've been so kind that I can't say nothin' but thank you."

She stopped and looked out of the window. "It's you that's been kind," said the captain. "You've made a home for me, somethin' I ain't had afore since I was a boy."

Mrs. Snow went on as if he had not spoken. "And to think that you might have been drowned the same as the rest," she said. "I knew somethin' was happenin'." "Just felt it, somethin'." "But Elsie I was sure of it. I couldn't think of anything but you all the forenoon."

The captain sat up on the couch. (To Be Continued.) "Do you keep a second girl?" "Why, Mrs. Snow, I ain't strong enough to wait on more than one."

THE BACHELOR GIRL

Many Types of This Popular and Interesting Personage. In a discussion on the evolution of the bachelor girl Julia Ward Gibson says there are just four classes of women—matrons, spinsters, old maids and bachelor girls—and it is one of the practical jokes of fate that frequently the spinster has been joined to some man in the bonds of wedlock and the man's woman who would be happiest married has not realized her destiny for some reason.

Now, the title "old maid" is often applied to those women who are unmarried. Some are called old maids who are really spinsters, for that is the word which expresses the unpleasant disposition the indolent, unmarried woman would apply to all unmarried women. Spinster is the title which should be applied to those women who are married, whose entire horizon is bounded by the limitations of self interest. What a miserable thing egotism is, that it destroys our ability to enjoy the pleasures and interests of life!

Now, an old maid is an entirely different creature. She is kind hearted, self sacrificing, gentle, lovable and usually kissable. You all know her type, my friends, and rare, indeed, is the family whose connection is not blessed by an old maid aunt usually as it is called by her family. "I was married in the man she preferred was courting her. However, her relatives couldn't do without her to sew, cook, mend and take care of them through attack of all the ills man is heir to," she said feebly. "The doctor finally puts away her dreams of natural happiness and achieves a certain kind of contentment in fussing over, caressing and taking care of the babies among the connection."

The bachelor girl is an entirely different creature. Nervous, ambitious, an idealist and a worker, she is a combination of the virtues and failings of the other three divisions of woman-kind.

Regret is suffering, but it is a sensation that all bachelor girls have experienced, even in the midst of success. But continued progress in one's work and a constantly broadening horizon are the motto of the bachelor girl. The folder illustrating the advantages of a route through the famous park, starting from the head of building, is courting her. However, her relatives couldn't do without her to sew, cook, mend and take care of them through attack of all the ills man is heir to," she said feebly. Why I Recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The Particulars of a Remarkable Cure Told by a Presbyterian Clergyman--The Sufferer Brought Back from Death's Door.

St. Andrew's Manse, Cardigan, P.E.I., Jan. 1908. Though I have never been sick myself, and have not had occasion to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I thought you ought to know of the remarkable cure they have wrought in Mr. Olding's case.

During a visit to my home in Merigomish, N.S., some years ago, I was grieved to find our next door neighbor, Mr. Michael Olding, very low. "He is not expected to live," my mother informed me. "And you must go over and see him as he is liable to pass away at any moment."

Mr. Olding had for years been afflicted with asthma and bronchitis, and was a complication of diseases was ravishing his system. He had been confined to his bed for months and was reduced to a mere skeleton. Though evidently glad to see me, he conversed with the greatest difficulty and seemed to realize that it was the beginning of the end. He said daily growing weaker; his feet were swollen to twice their natural size, and the cold hand of death was upon his brow.

"It's no use," he said feebly, "the doctor's medicine is not helping me, and I am going down rapidly." I prayed with him as for a man soon to pass into eternity, and when I took my hand in parting it was the last time I expected to see him in the flesh.

Three years later while on another visit to my mother's, Michael Olding was seemingly in better health than I had ever seen him, for, as I said, he had always been ailing. In sheer desperation he had asked his wife to get him Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They soon began to help him. His appetite and strength began to improve, and to the astonishment of his family and friends he rapidly regained his health. Now, though the burden of well nigh four score years is upon him, he is able to do a fair day's work and is in the enjoyment of good health, even the asthma has ceased to trouble him in his former years.

Mr. Olding himself, as well as his neighbors and the writer of this letter, confidently believe that his rescue from the very jaws of death—seemingly so miraculous—is due under the blessing of God to the timely and continuous use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. REV. EDWIN SMITH, M.A.

Mr. Olding himself writes—"I am glad Rev. Mr. Smith has written you so confidently believing that if it had not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I would have been dead long ago. It would be impossible to overstate the separate condition I was in when I began to use the Pills. No one thought I could get better. I scarcely dared hope myself that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills would bring me through, but they did and I have ever since enjoyed good health. Though I am seventy-nine years old people always remark on how young I look—and I feel young. I can do a fair day's work, and am better in every way than I had been for years. I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I take every opportunity I can to recommend them to friends who are ailing."

The Canadian Magazine for June contains a considerable amount of attractive material. The first article is entitled "A Fragment from a Tragedy," in which is shown the tragic place that narcotics had in the life of the poet Coleridge. The author, Mr. S. T. Wood, makes some interesting deductions, and letters of Coleridge's are reproduced, showing the ends to which the poet would go in his efforts to obtain the enslaving drug. The well known novelist, Mr.

Robert Knowles, contributes a humorous sketch entitled "An Interrupted Toast," in which peculiarities of Scotch and Irish temperament are clearly depicted. "Morality and the Modern Stage" is the title of an article by Mr. Robson Black, dramatic editor of the Toronto News, and there are articles as well by Frank Yeigh, F. Black Crofton, Mrs. J. W. F. Harrison, C. L. Armstrong, E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., and Maud Going, with short stories by Mable Burkholder, W. E. Elliott, Helen E. Williams, and Doll Wyllarde, and verse by Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, Katherine Hale, and Inglis Morse.

One of the most contemptible specimens of humanity found in the category is the fellow who can weep with one eye and wink with the other. He can take cocktails at the club or water at the love feast; he can sing the "Little Brown Jug" or "Nearer My God to Thee" apparently with equal gusto. Like a piano he can vibrate in celestial harmony to "Holy Angels" or vibrate to the touch of the "Devil's Trill." He runs with the sheep and is equally at home with the wolf pack. He subscribes handsomely to church funds and makes up the expenditure by gambling in wheat or giving short weights on shoddy goods. An India rubber conscience is a mighty handy thing for some people. It is like the school boy's scriptural definition of a lie—"an abomination unto the lord and a very present help in trouble." The astonishing fact in connection with these arrant humbugs is that some of them appear to persuade themselves that their lives are not "off the square."

A downright crook is a prince to these chameleons that alter their color or to suit their circumstances. Go and take a jimmy and make a living lifting other people's back windows, and you will be respectable compared with the oleaginous scoundrel who sniftles psalms and chistles his neighbor. Be one thing or the other, an honest man or a thug.

Changes in the rules of baseball have to be made every year, because some of the brainier of the players are constantly devising methods of taking advantage of them. Referring to old Mike Kelly in this connection, Will Irwin writes as follows in Collier's Weekly: "As for Kelly, the tricks which he learned and taught are going yet. Every year the legislators had to pass some new rule to fill a hole which Mike Kelly discovered in their accepted code. Once while he was acting captain, a temporary indisposition kept him on the bench. As the rules ran, the captain might, at any stage of the game substitute a player. In a critical period of the eighth inning, a pop foul came over the third baseman's reach. Kelly rose up. 'Hey!' he yelled to the left fielder, 'you're out of the game. I'm in your place!'—and Kelly reached up and caught the ball. It was an out under the rules. When he was playing for Boston, his team met Detroit for a decisive game. Kelly running bases was on first. The next man up hit to the shortstop, who felled it for a hair-line decision. The umpire ran to first that he might watch the play there. Quick as a flash Kelly scooted across the field, just behind the pitcher's box and made third before the umpire stopped looking at first. Every spectator saw it, but the umpire did not and Kelly kept his base. This led to the experiment with the double umpire system."

Judges for Horse Show. The committee in charge of the Winnipeg Horse Show has completed arrangements with a number of eminent authorities on horse flesh to act as judges for this year's show, June 24, 26 and 28.

The gentlemen who have consented to act are: Inspector Church, of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. R. H. Taber of Condie, Sask., a large owner and breeder, acknowledged to be one of the best judges of horseflesh in Canada.

Hon. Senator Berth, Bowmanville, Ont., a fancier and thoroughly capable judge of high class animals. Col. Pratt, of Little Rock, Ark., a judge whose horsemanship and experience are recognized throughout the union.

Capt. P. Kenman, Dublin, Ire., who was recommended by Vivian Gooch, a horseman of international fame. This list of judges is the most cosmopolitan ever chosen for the Winnipeg show, and exhibitors who have in the past always felt that the Winnipeg horse show was a success, will return this year with greater confidence than ever. With men of such high position, rank, wealth and reputations as judges, Winnipeg's horse show this year will be the grandest ever—Winnipeg Telegram.
