DEATH OF WRILEY SMITH

"Uncle" Wriley Smith died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Stevens, Elgin street, on Friday last, in the 97th year of his age. His health of body and strength of mind were wonderfully preserved up to the very last, and he has always been able to enjoy the society of his friends and to move about without assistance. He was seriously ill only three days. Uncle Wriley possessed in an uncommon degree the esteem of young and old in the community in which he dwelt. His great age was properly venerated and his stories of pioneer life as he experienced it in this section were always heard with pleasure. He was a member of the Methodist church and up to a short time ago was invariably present at public worship.

Mr. Smith's grandfather, Reuben Smith, was a native of England, but left the home land for Germany, on account of the persecution of the Puritans to which he belonged. From Germany he came to America, first settling in Massachusetts, from whence he came to the Canadian wilderness and settled near where Elbe now stands. Otis a son of Reuben and Wriley's father, was then a boy of some fifteen years. The family belong to the Society of Friends, in which Otis was a minister. Wriley was born in 1810, near Athens, and has seen many changes since his early life, in people and conditions, and his reminiscences would make an interesting volume. He remembered when Athens consisted of one house, a log tavern, standing where C. L. Lemit's store now is, which was kept by John Dixon.

In 1833 Mr. Smith married Mary Ann Slack, daughter of Samuel Slack, and she passed away some 30 years ago. Their early home was at Charleston, and young Smith was known as an accurate marksman and bear, deer and all kinds of game fell victims to his unerring aim. For fifty-five years Mr. Smith has been a member of the Methodist church, and politically the views of the Liberal party more closely coincided with his own. He has living 6 children, 25 grand children, 50 great grand children, and one great great grand child.

His children are: J. B. Smith, Charleston; Mrs. T. G. Stevens, Mrs. Geo. Stevens, Mrs. J. Robinson, Athens; Mrs. (Rev.) J. E. Robinson, Guelph, and Mrs. Beers, Morton.

The funeral was held on Sunday morning, an impressive service being conducted in the Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. S. J. Hughes, who took for his text Job V, 26, and the lesson was I Thess. chp. 4. The sermon was most appropriate to the departure of this aged father in Israel. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. H. Jacob and James Patterson and his grandsons Messrs. Walter Smith of Athens, George of Brantford, James and Benson of Watertown.

VILLAGE COUNCIL

The regular monthly meeting of the village council was held on Monday at 2 p.m. A. W. Blanchard filed his declaration and qualification of office and took his seat. The reeve and all the councillors were present. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted. The clerk read the draft of the by-law for the appointment of village officers and on motion of Judson and Taylor the by-law was introduced read a first and second time and the blanks filled in as follows: B. Loverin, clerk, salary $65.00; J. P. Lamb, treasurer, salary $25.00; T. S. Kendrick and Irwin Wiltse, auditors, $5 each; Drs. Purvis and Moore and T. G. Stevens, local board of health; T. R. Beale, high school trustee; B. Loverin, janitor of hall and caretaker of fire engine, salary $50.00, with the privilege of charging parties occupying auditorium for more than two meetings a sum per meeting to be mutually agreed upon. The appointment of assessor and chief of police was laid over to a special meeting to be held on Friday, 8th inst., at 2 p.m., when the question of street lighting will also be considered.

B. LOVERIN, Village Clerk.

HOUSE OF INDUSTRY

Mr. Wm. Richardson, Inspector of the House of Industry, reports, in part, as follows, for the year 1906:— "The institution during the past year has been doing very successful work, having a larger number of inmates who as a rule are contented and happy, being kept very clean and fed on good and suitable food and very kindly treated by the manager and matron.

"The addition of the new verandahs, which the council of 1906 caused to be erected, will add very much to the comfort of the inmates and is a very great improvement to the appearance of the building.

"The farm in the past has been carefully and satisfactorily handled, and the result has been very satisfactory.

"The stock on the farm is always kept in a good manner, and every care appears to be taken with regard to them.

"The management and control of a large number of aged people and attending to their many wants, especially when many of these people have been without control and in want, destitution and filth for many years, is of a very trying nature, and I feel that these united counties may congratulate themselves upon the efficiency of the present management.

SCHOOL LAW AMENDMENT

When the new school law for Ontario was passed it early became apparent that the clauses dealing with the salaries of teachers were very unpopular in the rural sections. The farmers regarded these clauses as being a reflection on their intelligence and business ability. In this section they voiced their resentment in letters to the Reporter and in other parts of the province by resolutions of school boards, township and county councils, with the result that the coercion features in respect to both salary and equipment are to be largely modified.

The Premier's statement was as follows:—

"The situation as to rural schools is:— (1) We have found that there is not a sufficient number of properly qualified teachers to meet the demand under the present law, and that this condition of affairs is likely to continue, to a greater or less extent, until the new normal schools are established and begin their work.

"(2) It has become evident that considerable difficulty will arise in working out the provisions of the law as to increased salaries dependent upon the assessments, which vary very much.

"For these reasons we think it best to make certain changes in the law as follows:—

"(a) The minimum grant of $300 per annum by the township to each school section for salary will be retained.

"(b) An unconditional grant of $15.00 per annum will be made to each section.

"(c) A grant will be made for the purposes of equipment and accommodation, and

"(d) A grant of 40 per cent. will be made on the excess of all salaries above $300 and up to $600.

"This will work out as follows:— Appropriation for equipment and accommodation, $60,000; appropriation of $15 to each section, $30,000; appropriation of 40 per cent on salaries over $300, $24,000; a total of $380,000.

"The last annual grant to rural schools by the late Government was $118,000. We increased this last year by $60,000.

"To recapitulate, the total of proposed grants to rural schools this year is $380,000; the last grant by the late Government was $118,000; therefore the increase by the present Government is $262,000."

Local Option Recount

The recount and scrutiny of the ballots cast in the local option contest in Rear Leeds and Lansdowne took place at Lyndhurst on Friday last. The result was to leave the official count unchanged, viz: 216 against the by law and 320 for, leaving Local Option defeated by four, so far as the ballots counted were concerned, but there were twenty ballots put in, four or five of which were marked both for and against and about sixteen were blank ballots. As three-fifths of the electors voting are required to approve, it was argued that Local Option was really defeated by over sixteen. It was also argued that as three electors voted, who it was alleged were not qualified to vote, the election should be declared void.

Argument of counsel in respect to the matter is to be heard by Judge Reynolds in Brockville to-day.

HELLO GIRLS WALK OUT.

Service in Toronto Was Paralyzed for a Time.

Company Brought in Female Strike-Breakers Last Night.

Mackenzie King and Others Trying to Settle Trouble.

A Toronto despatch: Because the Bell Telephone Company asked them to work eight hours instead of five hours a day nearly four hundred girl operators went on strike yesterday, claiming that it would be impossible for them to stand the strain of eight continuous hours' work at the busy city switchboards, even if the wages were increased as promised by the company. It had been anticipated that the strike would take place to-day, but the event was precipitated, the girls claimed, by the action of the company's officials at the main office on Temperance street yesterday asking the girls to sign agreements to work eight hours or else sign their resignations. Precisely at 1 o'clock the great majority of the girls at the local switchboards walked out a body. At that very moment Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, Deputy Minister of Labor, and Mr. John Armstrong, Secretary of the Ontario Labor Bureau, were in consultation with Mr. Kenneth J. Dunstan, local manager of the company, with a view to averting the trouble which was expected. Last night about three hundred of the girl strikers held a mass meeting in the Labor Temple, where they heartily endorsed a proposition of Messrs. King and Armstrong to go back to work under the old schedule pending arbitration, supposing the company were agreeable. This morning another meeting of the girls will be held, when it is expected it will be known whether or not the company are willing to arbitrate the difficulties.

As a result of the strike the telephone service throughout the city yesterday afternoon was badly inconvenienced, although the wags of the hotels, newspaper offices and other places where telephones are used a great deal were attended to with almost the usual celerity. Last night the company had over 60 experienced girl operators, brought in from Montreal, Ottawa, London and other places, to keep the service up to as good a standard as possible.

Yesterday afternoon shortly after the inauguration of the strike the girls held a meeting, but they took no definite action beyond appointing a committee of nine to represent them in any business of the strike. Last night this committee was in consultation with Mr. King for two hours, and there were also present Mr. James Simpson and Mr. J. W. Curry, K. C., solicitor for the girls.

Mr. Curry, in addressing the meeting after the consultation, read letters from Messrs. King and Armstrong written to Manager Dunstan.

A portion of Mr. King's letter read as follows: "You will doubtless agree that it is very much in the public interest, as well as in the interest of your company and its employees, that the service should remain uninterrupted and your present employees be retained in their positions provided an amicable settlement can be reached on the questions in dispute, and that every fair and reasonable means of effecting such amicable settlement and averting a general strike should be adopted."

"It would appear that the first step towards effecting such a settlement would be to arrange a joint conference between the representatives of the company's employees, acting on their behalf, and yourself, with such other representatives of the company as you may name, acting on the company's behalf, and that pending such conference and such further negotiations between the parties as may be mutually agreed upon the operatives should continue in the company's service under the present schedule of rates and under the present company agreement to continue in force the present schedule."

Mr. Armstrong stated in a letter to Mr. Dunstan that he freely endorsed the arrangement.

During the meeting a speech was delivered by Mr. S. S. Lightbound, secretary of the Electrical Workers' Local Union. He stated that the strikers could affiliate with that organization if necessary and then there would be an organization of 400,000 men behind them. Finally the girls agreed to accept arbitration on the terms proposed by Mr. Mackenzie King, which brought the matter up to Mr. Dunstan.

At an early hour this morning Manager Dunstan said that any answer to Mr. King's letter would have to be made to Mr. King himself. He refused to give any opinion relative to the company's action on the arbitration proposed.

The Girls Walked Out.

Shortly after the girls had walked out of the central office at 1 o'clock the streets opposite the office. In a few moments a large crowd had gathered, all of those present apparently being in sympathy with the girls. No high did the feeling run that when anyone sought to gain admission to the building cries of "swab" came from hundreds of throats. For half an hour after the walkout no police were on the scene, and the hoodlum element was apparent. Those supposed to be in league with the company were hit with snowballs and subjected to different kinds of indignities. One lady in the employ of the company attempted to enter the building and three times she was dragged back by a mob around the door. She heavily protested, finally, when almost completely exhausted, gaining the office. Meantime the girl strikers were patrolling up and down, for it had been rumored that the company were bringing girls from other stations to fill the vacant places. Such proved to be the case, but many of these were enticed away from work by the excited strikers, who proved equal to all emergencies. Few girls entered the building for hours after the first signs of trouble. Finally a policeman strolled along. He had no sooner arrived before the door than he was hit with a snowball. Drawing his baton he cleared a large space in the street, scattering the mob in all directions. Meanwhile all the girls with the exception of those doing "picket duty" before the Central had gone to the Labor Temple to decide upon some action.

All the girls were unanimous in the opinion that five hours a day was quite sufficient for any girl to work at a central switchboard. Physical endurance could stand the work no longer than five hours a day. The opinion was freely expressed that any extra money promised was not nearly worth the extra hours and extra work.

When the Montreal express, due at 7.25, arrived at the Union Station just before 8 o'clock, a crowd of striking telephone girls crowded around the exits to see the expected strike-breakers from Montreal. They were disappointed. The Bell Telephone Company had arranged for the train to stop at the Don where a line of cabs were waiting the young ladies. They were banded into these some 44 girls, it is said, and hurried off to the Grand Union Hotel and then to the central exchange. These outside operators were accorded police protection. Five girls, accompanied by Mr. G. S. Cairns, inspector of the Bell Telephone Company, left Ottawa last night for Toronto.

"How many girls have you from outside places?" was the question put to the company's officials last night.

"We have nearer 100 than 60." "Where do they come from?" "From all over, east and west." About fifty girls who had taken no part in the strike signed their names last night along with the rest, thereby declaring they would not work eight hours a day. Of these some thirty odd were from the "north" exchange and some were from the Parkdale office. By this means it was expected that the other offices would be crippled to-day. The company's officials last night declared these girls were remaining loyal to them, because it was claimed the "central" girls had got themselves into bad odor by their action.

Business men yesterday complained of the poor service accorded and the delays and much inconvenience were caused. From private residences it was almost impossible to obtain another number. While the company stated that the switchboards were all "manned," it was obvious that there were many incompetent operators, who could not give the numbers required, and the answer "line busy" was frequently heard all afternoon. Last night the long distance operators who had remained on duty at the central office were escorted to cars, because they were afraid of interference from the part of sympathizers. A meal was provided for these in the office.

HE PREACHED.

But He Aalso Stole—Arrested and Confessed.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—A genuine "Raffles," in the person of Henry E. Rice, graduate of a Montreal, Canada, college, who delivered "Up-Life" lectures in west side churches, is under arrest for a series of burglaries.

Rice came to Chicago three months ago. He is 32 and was popular.

A. C. Liebeck's shoe store was entered twice in a fortnight, and the safe robbed. Fifty dollars in marked bills was put in the safe, and the police watched for four nights. Their vigilance was rewarded just before daylight.

Rice was caught, and the marked bills found on him. He had entered the store through a trapdoor from the basement.

"I'm here, and if prior to my arrest, I tried to better my fellow-men, does that make my crime any the more reprehensible?" demanded Rice, when seen in his cell. "I will only say that I did it. I am married, and my wife is in Canada."

SHOT HIMSELF.

BROTHER OF SWINDLER HIPPLE TAKES HIS OWN LIFE.

Philadelphia, Feb. 4.—Edward W. Hipple, a brother of the late Frank K. Hipple, who ended his life last summer after wrecking the Real Estate Trust Co. of this city, of which he was the president, committed suicide at his home here to-day with a revolver.

Mr. Hipple's family was at breakfast when he committed the deed. His wife heard an unusual noise and sending her sons upstairs to investigate they found the father in his bedroom with a bullet wound in his head. He was hurried to a hospital, but died on the way. Mr. Hipple was about 70 years old and had been in real estate business. The police believe that brooding over the tragic ending of his brother's life caused him to kill himself.

ISLANDS SHAKEN.

FEARFUL EARTHQUAKE REPORTED IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS.

San Francisco, Feb. 4.—The Solomon Islands in the South Seas were visited by a fearful earthquake several months ago in which the earth was upheaved and deep gorges created. The entire appearance of the islands was changed. The news was no loss of life. The news was brought here by Governor Moore, C. B. L., who arrived yesterday from Samoa. He stated that a trading schooner came in to Apia with the news shortly before he sailed.

SHOT BY HER HUSBAND.

Lady Dorothy Cuthbert Accidentally Killed During Pheasant Shoot.

London, Feb. 4.—Lady Dorothy Cuthbert met with a tragic death at the hands of her husband during a pheasant shoot at Blauport Castle, Northumberland, to-day. The victim was only two yards distant from her husband, Captain James Harold Cuthbert, when his gun went off by accident. The charge entered her head, and she fell dead on the spot. Lady Dorothy was a daughter of the present Earl of Suffolk.

$1,000,000 FIRE AT HARRISBURG.

Eight Buildings Either Destroyed or Damaged.

Fire Started With an Explosion in a Hat Store.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 5.—Eight buildings in the centre of the business district of Harrisburg were either destroyed or badly damaged by a fire early this morning, involving a loss estimated at $1,000,000. The Grand Opera house block at Third and Walnut streets, in which there were five stores, was destroyed and nothing is standing but the walls.

The fire started from an explosion in Pine's hat store, in the Opera House block, at 2 o'clock, and within an hour had destroyed the play house and the stores in the building, and had leaped across to the west side of Third street to the Columbus Hotel and College block. The opera house was owned by a Harrisburg syndicate. On the first floor were John Pyne's hat store, Wilson Hoff's drug store, the Grand Union Tea Company and W. F. Paul's shoe store.

While thick clouds of smoke were coming out of the windows of the opera house, the fireman saw a figure at one of the big windows high up in the building. Then came a crash, and what looked like a nude man crawled out on the sill. Standing on the window sill he called for a ladder. "Send a ladder up here. Hurry up, send a ladder up here." More smoke piled out of the windows and slowly a ladder was raised. Its top came within several feet of the window sill. A small ladder was hoisted by men on the big ladder. The man on the window sill stopped screaming. He swung his arm and the crowd thought he was going to jump.

"Don't jump, boy, hold on," cried the fireman. He was rescued by Edward Holbert, a fireman.

An hour after the fire started business at the post office had to be suspended.

The fire was under control at 4.30 o'clock.

DRAINAGE CANAL.

WATERWAYS COMMISSION OBJECTS TO CHICAGO PROPOSAL.

Washington, Feb. 4.—If the Calumet River is to be turned backward in its course from Lake Michigan to form a drainage canal into the Mississippi as planned by the sanitary board of Chicago, the International Waterway Commission insists that the cost of the project shall be increased by five million dollars. The Illinois engineers estimated that $12,000,000 would cover the cost of this great work, but the international board regards that project as insufficient to meet the needs of the future. The International Board is really much opposed to it, taking the grounds that there are better ways of successfully disposing of the sewage of the tract sought to be drained than by the adoption of a plan which is certain to considerably lower the level of Lake Michigan, and so injuriously affect the immense navigation in this or the whole chain of lakes.

JAPS IN SCHOOLS.

SAN FRANCISCO TROUBLE IN A FAIR WAY TO BE SETTLED.

Tokio, Feb. 4.—The report that a satisfactory solution of the San Francisco school controversy is in sight is welcomed on all sides, though it was believed from the outset that there was no cause for alarm. The reassuring news is fresh cause for profound satisfaction as proving the firmness of the friendship between Japan and the United States.

The efforts of President Roosevelt to find a solution of the question, are highly appreciated.

WHO SHE WAS

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused it to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Eetes, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 9th, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert and investigating mind, an earnest seeker after knowledge, and above all, possessed of a wonderfully sympathetic nature.

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham, a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home medicines from roots and herbs, nature's own remedies—calling in a physician only in specially urgent cases. By tradition and experience many of them gained a wonderful knowledge of the curative properties of the various roots and herbs.

Mrs. Pinkham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so bountifully provides in the harvest-fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds, so, if we but take the pains to find them, in the roots and herbs of the field there are remedies expressly designed to cure the various ills and weaknesses of the body, and it was her pleasure to search these out, and prepare simple and effective medicines for her own family and friends.

Chief of these was a rare combination of the choicest medicinal roots and herbs found best adapted for the cure of the ills and weaknesses peculiar to the female sex, and Lydia E. Pinkham's friends and neighbors learned that her compound relieved and cured and it became quite popular among them.

All this so far was done freely, without money and without price as a labor of love.

But in 1873 the financial crisis struck Lynn. Its length and severity were too much for the large real estate interests of the Pinkham family, as this class of business suffered most from fearful depression, so when the Centennial year dawned it found their property swept away. Some other source of income had to be found.

At this point Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made known to the world.

The three sons and the daughter, with their mother, combined forces to restore the family fortune. They argued that the medicine which was so good for their women friends and neighbors was equally good for the women of the whole world.

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a glass of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkham sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for every case that came to her attention, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and real success of the enterprise were assured, until to-day Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household names everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. She passed to her reward years ago, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work, and was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice—and there were thousands—received careful study and the details, including symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since, are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collaboration of information regarding the treatment of women's ills, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equaled in any library in the world.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her hard-won knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its originator passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing in the work shows when the first Lydia E. Pinkham dropped her pen, and the present Mrs. Pinkham, now the mother of a large family, took it up. With woman assistants, some as capable as herself, the present Mrs. Pinkham continues in this great work, and probably from the office of no other person have so many women been advised how to regain health. Sick women, this advice is "Yours for Health" freely given if you only wish to ask for it.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from simple roots and herbs; the one great medicine for women's ailments, and the fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.

FIVE YEARS FOR MANAGER M'GILL.

The Former Ontario Bank Official Pleaded Guilty.

To Signing False Returns to the Governemene.

Other Charges of Theft Hanging Over His Head.

A Toronto, Ont., special despatch says: Charles McGill, former manager of the wrecked Ontario Bank, this morning pleaded guilty to making and signing false returns to the Government in connection with the management of the bank, and was sentenced by Mr. Justice Clute to five years in the penitentiary. His case came up before the criminal assizes this forenoon. When judgment was pronounced he appeared unperturbed. The court was filled with citizens.

E. F. B. Johnston, K. C., who has acted for McGill, tried to show during his pleading that the making and signing of false returns to the Government was not an uncommon offence, and was not regarded seriously by the Government. He also endeavored to point out that the bank was in financial straits prior to the time McGill took hold of it, and that the general manager, through personal friends in Peterboro, had been successful in getting large deposits placed in the Ontario Bank, and had in that way built it up. During the last few years, however, Mr. Johnston said, McGill had experienced extremely bad luck, and the fact that he was willing to come before the court and acknowledge his losses was a sufficient plea for clemency.

His Lordship, though, remarked upon the seriousness of the offence in an impressive way as had the noted counsel on its lightness.

McGill is also charged with stealing $125,000 and another sum of $1,500,000 from the bank. These charges were traversed.

Mr. Johnston reserved the right to make a motion to quash the indictment in these.

WAS IT MURDER?

CORONER THINKS DONOHUE DID NOT COMMIT SUICIDE.

New York, Feb. 4.—That William J. Donahue, Assemblyman, from the 14th district of King's County, did not commit suicide, but was murdered, was the opinion expressed by Coroner's Physician Charles Wuest, after performing an autopsy upon Mr. Donahue's body to-day. Donahue was found yesterday with a bullet wound in his head, lying in a side room of a saloon in Brooklyn, and died without recovering consciousness. It was said to-day that when he left his home a few hours before his death he had $200 in his pockets. The police found only $22 in his possession after his death.

Dr. Wuest said to-day: "If nothing else, the location of the bullet wound and the course taken by the missile refute the suggestion that Donahue took his own life. There were no powder marks nor discoloration by powder smoke."

The police to-day began an inquiry, in which they were aided by friends of the dead Assemblyman. It was ascertained that Donahue left his home yesterday morning to meet a man with whom he had an appointment at a street corner near the saloon where he was shot. This man, who was a Pole, had performed some service for Donahue, and the Assemblyman had promised to find employment for him. Donahue told several friends that he was on the way to meet this man.

RAILWAY BOARD.

FIRST REPORT IS SUBMITTED TO THE LEGISLATURE.

Changes Asked in Jurisdiction and Powers of the Board—Do Not Like to Act on Their Own Initiative—Table of Accidents.

Toronto despatch: Amendments to the Ontario Railway Act are recommended in the first report of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, of which Mr. James Leitch, K. C., is chairman, which was laid on the table of the Legislature yesterday afternoon. The report deals with the period from May 31, 1906, when the Board was created, to Dec. 31.

Among the notable changes advocated it is recommended that the Board be not required to act upon its own initiative in the matter of interference with local questions, though they had never shirked their duty when the gravity of the situation demanded. It is presumed that the Managers know the conditions in their respective cities and that the Board should be invoked when their services are deemed desirable. "The Board has very drastic powers delegated to it by the Act, and for that reason should act upon its own initiative with due caution," says the report. "It would readily be understood that if the Board were to respond to calls which anyone in any part of the Province was to make, it would soon find itself paralyzed through mere accumulation of cases and incapable of effective work." If this Board initiated proceedings it would place itself in the position of prosecutor, counsel and judge. Applications should therefore be backed by sworn responsibility and particularity as would put the opposite party on its defense.

MAN BLOWN UP.

GEO. M'FARLANE INSTANTLY KILLED AT LAMBTON MILLS.

Explosive Was Throwing on a Stove in a Shanty—Latter Completely Destroyed—Windows in a Neighboring Church Broken—An Inquest Opened.

Toronto despatch: By an explosion of dynamite that rattled the windows of most of the houses in Lambton Mills village, George McFarlane, a well-known man of that place, was instantly killed shortly before noon yesterday. The explosion occurred at the shale pit of the Ontario Paving Brick Company, on the bank of the Humber River, on Scarlett road, in the shanty where the company stores its tools and explosives for blasting.

McFarlane was foreman of the shale-pit gang and had just gone into the shanty to prepare some explosive for a blast, when the men who were working some fifty yards distant saw a flash issue from the chimney and then the building was lifted from its foundations and scattered into fragments. McFarlane was picked up dead, twenty-five feet from where the shanty stood, with his body terribly mutilated.

The force of the explosion broke the windows of a church two hundred yards away and shook the village. It is thought that McFarlane caused the explosion by forcing a fuse into the "wreck-a-rock," a powerful explosive used by the workmen, with too great violence. There was also some dynamite on the stove being thawed out.

TWO MEN KILLED.

CONDUCTOR PINNED FOR TEN HOURS BENEATH BOILER.

Missouli, Mont., Feb. 4.—Two engines upon which were riding a large number of men who had been engaged in breaking the snow blockade near Salter, Mont., plunged over an embankment two miles west of Bozonia yesterday, killing two men and injuring nearly a score, some of them seriously. The dead are: D. R. McDonald, conductor; Levi Burris, fireman. Conductor McDonald's death occurred last night, after he had lain for ten hours pinned beneath a boiler, with his body partly submerged in the icy waters of the river. His fellow-workmen, unable to help him, kept his head above the water until he died. He steadfastly refused to have his leg amputated.

UP TO CHIMNEYS IN SNOW.

Terrible Sufferings in Austria Through Lack of Fuel.

Vienna, Feb. 4.—There have been immense falls of snow throughout Austria. Many persons are suffering severe privations. There is a coal famine in some places owing to the railways being blocked. The meeting of the Galician Diet at Lemberg had to be postponed owing to the lack of fuel to heat the Diet building. In some districts in Galicia houses are smoked under to the chimneys.

WILL RECALL TRADE AGENTS.

British Government to Centralize Foreign Commercial Service.

London, Feb. 4.—It is stated that the Government has decided to recall its commercial agents from foreign countries, including Mr. B. H. from New York. They will hereafter be centered in London, whence they will be sent on special missions, when the occasions arise. It is understood that the Foreign Office found that the system of commercial representation abroad was unsatisfactory.

MADE A RECORD TRIP.

Empress Landed Her Passengers at I. C. R. Pier at Halifax.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 4.—The Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Britain arrived from Liverpool, having made a record trip to Halifax. The Empress had exceedingly favorable weather all the way across, and made the trip from Liverpool to Halifax in 5 days, 12 hours and 29 minutes. She landed her passengers at the I. C. R. dock, and proceeded on her way to St. John shortly after noon.

A state of siege has been declared at Valencia owing to the labor agitation on the opposite party on his defense.

Oh, we'd pray for God to come And bring deliverance.

Ye take the price of bread and shoes,
The blessings God has sent,
Nor were a blinder sacrifice
On Pagan altars spent,
Oh, strange indeed, tho, we revolt
From all such things as these
How it atones when it fulfils
Our own propensities.

Lyndhurst vs A. H. S

The hockey team representing the A. H. S. is making a very creditable record and added greatly to their laurels on Thursday last by defeating a team from Lyndhurst by a score of 2 to 1. In whatever branch of sport the Lyndhurst boys have engaged they have always won distinction, and the home team had good reason for doubting the issue of this match.

There was about an inch of snow on the rink here and this militated very much against good play. As the score indicates, the teams were evenly balanced and the large attendance promptly recognized and heartily applauded exhibitions of skill. A number from Lyndhurst and Brockville witnessed the match. It is expected that the return game will be played this week.

Following were the players in Thursday's match:—

Kelly	Point	Danby
Parish	Cover Point	Landon
Davidson	Rover	Johnston
Wiltce	Centre	Brownbridge
Alguire	Right Wing	Harvey
Earl	Left Wing	Harvey
Stevens		Landon

TRY THIS FOR YOUR COUGH

To relieve a cough or break up a cold in twenty-four hours, the following simple formula, the ingredients of which can be obtained of any good prescription druggist at small cost, is all that will be required:— Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), one-half ounce; Glycerine, two ounces; good Whisky, a half pint. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours. The desired results can not be obtained unless the ingredients are pure. It is therefore better to purchase the ingredients separately and prepare the mixture yourself. Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased in the original half-ounce vial, which druggists buy for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case which protects the Oil from exposure to light. Around the wooden case is an engraved wrapper with the name— "Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure)"—plainly printed thereon. There are many imitations and cheap productions of Pine, but these only create nausea, and never effect the desired results.

Wet-Proof—Cold-Proof—Almost Wear-Proof

When you want a pair of rubbers that will last until you're tired of them—rubbers that will keep your feet bone-dry though you wade all day in slushy snow—rubbers that will wear like flint and fit like slippers—go to a live dealer's and buy a pair stamped "Duck Never Break" on the soles. Up in the lumber camps they swear by Duck Never Break Rubbers. Farmers and miners wear them, too. So do people who want rubbers that will stand pretty much any abuse. It simply isn't possible to make rubbers any better than we make Duck Never Breaks—in it's possible to make them any stronger, any stancher, or any more wear-proof. They're made for service and give service—great service. Get a pair and see how a pair of really good rubbers can last.

THIS IS THE GEORGIAN DUCK NEVER BREAK

The Georgian is lined with tough tan-colored cotton. Interlined with heavy canvas duck between the rubber upper and the tough cotton inside lining. Outer rolled sole and heel are double heavy pure gum, corrugated. Inside is an insole of solid leather, so you can have this shoe re-soled.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON VII.—FEB.

17, 1907. Lot's Choice.—Gen. xiii. 1-13. Commentary.—1. Abram returns to Canaan (vs. 1-4). 1. Up out of Egypt—

In the language of the Jew the direction to Jerusalem for every quarter was upwards; besides, Egypt was a low-lying country and the traveller would have to ascend on his way to the hilly country of Canaan.—Leale. "Egypt was not the place of God's presence; he lost more than he gained by going thither." Abram had no "hills" in Egypt.—The south—Not the south of Egypt, but the southern region of Palestine. A certain part of the country was called the south before the times of the patriarchs.

2. Very rich—Abram and Lot had both been greatly prospered and were very rich. The property of these two did not consist in flocks only, but also in silver and gold. "Abram was very rich, and yet very religious. As piety is a friend to outward prosperity (1 Tim. 4. 8), so outward prosperity, if well managed, is an ornament to piety, and opens a way of doing so much the more good." "The danger of riches appears prominently here, in the very first case in which riches, as such, are mentioned.—Lange.

3. On his journeys—Literally, "journey" means "to pull up." "An expression peculiar to the Hebrew life—expressing the pulling up of tent-poles, breaking up of camp and moving forward."—Terry. Even to Beth-el—Abram returns to the place of his altar in Bethel. In like manner Christian settlements cluster round their churches.—Lange. Nothing satisfies God, in reference to a wanderer or a backslider, but his being a entirely restored.—C. H. M. between Beth-el and Hai—Stanley well describes this point as a conspicuous hill, its topmost summit resting on the rocky slopes, and distinguished by its olive groves offering a natural base for the altar, and a fitting shade for the tent of the patriarch.—Jacobus. 4. Called on the Lord.—This implies more than an ordinary prayer; he again established public worship at the old altar. He returned to a closer walk with God.

5. With Abram—It seems plain that Lot was from the very beginning borne onward rather by Abram's influence and example than by his own faith in God.—C. H. M. And yet Lot was a good man for his righteous soul was vexed at the ungodly deeds of his neighbors (Gen. 11. 31). He was not able to bear—their flocks and herds were so numerous that there was not sufficient pasture or water. Then there were other tribes in the same territory, and to add to the difficulty the land had been impoverished by the recent great famine. Substance was necessary that their flocks should increase also, as from those flocks they derived their clothing, food and drink. Many also were offered in sacrifice to God.—Abram's altar.—Kind of altar.—Kind of prince, or sheik; for we learn that not long after this he had 318 home-born men of war (Gen. 14. 14), which implies at least 1,000 or 1,500 persons in his entourage. Each time he encamped, he built a town of black tents quickly rose.—Peabody. 7. A strife.—The occasion of their quarrel was their riches.—Henry. "Prosperity is often a severer test of faith and character than adversity. It is a steady, pervasive influence rather than a sudden attack which can be avoided. Led in this case to danger of family quarrel. Abram's faith triumphed, but Lot yielded to its power, and by it was brought under far more dangerous influences." The quarrel originated in their eagerness for the possession of pasture and for the wells or fountains of water, which in that rocky, arid region have a value unknown to the inhabitants of a country like ours. Dwelled then in the land—The Perizites are not mentioned in the table of nations (chap. 10). Their origin is obscure. The Canaanites were the original occupants of the soil.—Horn. Comm. These powerful tribes are mentioned, "1. To show why Abram and Lot had but little pasture. 2. To signalize the impropriety and danger of their quarrelling among themselves. 3. To show that Abram felt that he was in the case of idolaters were on him, and that any mistep on his part, as the representative of Jehovah, would be an occasion of stumbling to them."—Gosman.

8. Abram's generous offer (vs. 8, 9). Abram said—Abram speaks first. His offer is wise and generous. He first let Lot take his choice, and then he offered to choose for him. This was heavenly wisdom. This is what faith ever does; it allows God to fix its inheritance, and is always satisfied with the portion which God gives.—C. H. M. No strife.—There is a special danger of quarrelling in the family and among kindred, where there is active work, because there are so many conflicting interests among them. For we are brethren (R. V.).—We are of the same family, worship the same God in the same way, have the same promises, and look for the same end. Why then should there be strife?—Clarke. If we are brethren let us act and love like brethren. 9. The whole and the heavenly principle of forbearance evidently holds the supremacy in Abram's breast. He walks in the moral atmosphere of the Sermon on the Mount.—Murphy. Separate from me—His proposal to separate arises from love and peace, not from any selfish regard to his own interests.—Lange.

10. Lifting up his eyes—There is a crisis in every man's history at which it will assuredly be made manifest on what ground he is resting, by what motives he is actuated, and by what objects he is animated; thus it was with Lot.—C. H. M. Plain of Jordan—Lot chose the plain north of the Dead Sea near the city of Sodom. "It is said that he had nothing in view but his temporal convenience and advantage. He does not inquire into the character of the inhabitants, nor does he appear to express any reluctance in leaving Abram."—Van Norman. Well was it said—Very important in Eastern countries, before destroyed—After these cities were destroyed the face of the country was altered. Garden of the Lord.—The mention of the garden of the Lord shows how the traditions of Eden still linger in the thoughts of men, and Lot's recent sojourn in the valley of the Nile would

TRIAL FOR LIFE

"Did you—I beg you will forgive the question, Miss Elmer—did you notice anything remarkable about this lady?" inquired the baronet, with interest.

"I noticed her extreme pallor, which, perhaps, seemed so ghastly only in contrast to her jet-black hair and eyes, and her black dress. I noticed, also, a deep melancholy approaching despair, in the expression of her features, and a sort of restrained frenzy in her glances and motions. I saw her but an instant, but in that instant I will not deny that her appearance impressed me very deeply."

"Humph! humph!" muttered the baronet to himself, whether he approved or disapproved of the interest expressed by Miss Elmer in the person alluded to.

"Miss Elmer, your appearance and manner, no less than the high encomiums of my friend, Dr. Seymour, give me the greatest faith in your prudence and benevolence."

Laura bowed in silence. The baronet seemed embarrassed, and doubted how to proceed. At length he said:

"Her name is Mrs. Ravenscroft. For important reasons she lives in strict seclusion. Her home has hitherto been at Hurst Hill, our place in Yorkshire, but she has come up to town for a particular purpose. The secret of her seclusion, however, even in the country, is quite indispensable for her in London, but she requires recreation, air and gentle exercise, and she must take this in company of some proper companion, whose society and conversation will be her security. For she must be kept from all other pupils. This, Miss Elmer, is the confidence I had to repose in you. The favor I have to ask is, that you will be so kind as to take two hours daily, not from your own time, but from the schoolroom, and become the companion of this unhappy young woman in her drives."

The baronet ceased, and Laura Elmer prepared to reply. "The confidence" that he had reposed in her was but a half confidence at the best. Who was Mrs. Ravenscroft? What were her relations with Sir Vincent and his family? What was the nature of her unhappiness—guilt of misfortune? And what was the reason for her strict seclusion? These were mysteries which Laura Elmer felt should have been elucidated before she should have been requested to become the companion of Helen Ravenscroft.

"You are silent, Miss Elmer. I am well aware that the service I venture to ask of you is a very important one. If you feel any reluctance to undertake it, pray do not hesitate to say so," said the baronet, gently.

"I do not wish to reflect for a few moments whether I could, with propriety, accept the charge you would honor me with. I will at least drive out with the lady this afternoon, when I shall then be better able to judge."

"Thank you, Miss Elmer, you can imagine, Miss Elmer," said the baronet, and in the fever of his gratitude he would have raised the hand of Laura to his lips, but she coldly withdrew it, saying that she would go and prepare for her drive.

Sir Vincent held the door open for her to pass out. She paused one moment upon the threshold and said:

"I have been in the habit of driving out with the ladies; shall they join us in our drive this afternoon?"

"By no means," said the baronet, hastily, and with great emphasis; "by no means. They must forego the airing to-day, and after this, should you kindly continue to take charge of Helen in her hours of recreation, why, other arrangements must be made for them."

Laura Elmer, less satisfied than ever, bowed slightly and withdrew. She returned to her schoolroom, dismissed her pupils for the day, and then went to her own room to put on her bonnet and shawl for the drive. She had scarcely drawn on her gloves, when Lizzy, the little ladies' maid, came to her door with Sir Vincent's compliments and carriage was waiting.

was settling herself in the carriage, she observed a gentleman on horseback emerge from around the corner, glance inquisitively at the occupant of the carriage, and then, as though unwilling to be discovered, retreat behind the angle of the house.

She had twice before noticed this individual loitering near the entrance of Lester House. And now his appearance the third time, and seemingly with the same purpose of espionage, filled her mind with vague surmises, which were, however, unlinked with misgivings, for certainly there was nothing whatever sinister in the appearance of this man.

He seemed to be about twenty-eight or thirty years of age, with a tall and elegant figure, a fine head, covered with shining, light yellow hair, that fell in clustering curls around a forehead white, smooth, and round, as that of childhood, his features were delicate and regular, his eyebrows softly traced, his eyes blue, clear, and gentle in their gaze, his nose straight, lips and chin molded into the very ideal of sweetness and benevolence. Frankness, affection, and gay good-humor were blended in the habitual expression of this captivating countenance.

So Laura Elmer felt no misgiving at seeing this gentleman, for the third time, loitering near Lester House. His motives and purposes might be eccentric, but could not, with such a face as that, be evil.

The carriage drove on, and in due time turned into the park. It was, as usual, thronged with visitors in carriages, on horseback, and on foot.

The lady by Laura's side had not once raised her veil or spoken a word; and Laura herself was too much absorbed in her thoughts to break her companion's reverie until they had reached the park, when, thinking it well to engage the unhappy lady in conversation, she said:

"There is quite a numerous assemblage of visitors here to-day. Will you not throw aside your veil and look out?"

"No, no; but you may let down the windows, please; the air is stifling," replied the lady, in a low voice.

Laura opened the windows, and the carriage wound slowly around one of the most beautiful and secluded avenues of the park. They had left the gay throng of fashionable visitors behind, and had reached a quarter frequented by nursemaids and young children.

"See," said Laura, "we have reached a very quiet part now; will you not raise your veil and breathe some of this delicious air?"

The lady put aside her veil, revealing again that face of ghastly pallor, with its bloodless lips, wild black eyes, and shadowy black tresses.

"See," she observed, "these various groups of little children as they pass; how much marked individuality there is even in these little people; their very looks and manners tell their characters and histories. These, now, are the children of some wealthy citizen, with their pampered nurse-observers, the children, all and sashes, hats and feathers—and see the consequential air of their over-dressed attendant," said Laura, wishing to cheer her companion from her sorrowful thoughts.

The pale woman looked languidly forth, but neither the pomposity of the nurse nor the vanity of the babies could bring one smile to those sad lips.

"Let me look again," said Laura. "There is quite a different group; there is some poor young widow, who has left her occupation to bring her little boy and girl out for an hour's airing."

few yards distance, where he remained calmly upon the watch. Before Laura could form a conjecture upon the circumstance, she was startled by a shriek from her companion.

She turned quickly round, but Helen Ravenscroft had already darted to the open window, from which she leaped, with her wild eyes fixed, and her thin white arms and clasped hands extended toward the horseman, and her piercing voice, calling in an agony of supplication:

"Rayburne! Rayburne! Rayburne! Rayburne!" The thrilling anguish of those tones could never be described, and never be forgotten.

The horseman smiled and held out his arms. A wild cry of joy burst from the lips of Helen, as she tried to break open the carriage door. But Laura threw her arms around the form of the excited woman, and forced her back into her seat, where her resistance suddenly ceased, and she sank in a swoon.

Laura was greatly shocked. She stopped the carriage, and began to bathe the hands and face of the fainting woman with some Hungarian water that she happened to have at hand. She was anxiously engaged in trying to restore consciousness to her charge, she heard her own name softly called, and looking up saw Ferdinand Cassinove and young Percy Lester standing beside the carriage window.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Elmer, but my young friend Percy here recognized your carriage, and insisted on coming up. We were taking a walk through the park. Your companion seems to be ill. Can I be of any service?" said the tutor.

"Oh, Mr. Cassinove, I am so glad that you are here! Yet I do not know how you can assist me, either," said Laura, suddenly recollecting Sir Vincent's orders that Mrs. Ravenscroft was to be seen by no one; yet greatly perplexed to know how she should get home with her strange charge, should the latter upon her recovery, again become unmanageable.

"The lady has fainted! Let me assist you," eagerly pleaded Cassinove, attempting to open the carriage door.

"No, no; she is recovering now, and you must leave us if you please, Mr. Cassinove; but first tell me how much of this strange scene you have witnessed?"

"The whole of it. Percy and myself were walking in the park, as I said. I recognized your carriage, and we were coming toward it, when I happened to see my landlady with her two children; I saw the little girl start forward, with an exclamation that drew every one's attention, mine among the rest, toward a certain horseman, a light-haired gentleman, in whom those children had painful cause to be interested, and I saw the frantic gestures and heard the wild cries of your friend before she fainted. And now, as you will not permit me to assist you in any way, shall I go in search of that mysterious light-haired Adonis, with whom also I have an account to settle on behalf of the widow and her orphan. So I shall see before night, whether, despite my very prepossession appearance and fascinating manner, I cannot bring him to the intimate acquaintance of the magistrate?" said young Cassinove, bowing and retiring.

And lifting his hat, he bowed deeply and walked rapidly away.

Laura Elmer then gave her exclusive attention to her patient, who had now recovered sufficiently to enable her to sit up and breathe freely.

Helen Ravenscroft looked around with a bewildered gaze, and a memory seemed to return to her, sigh after sigh burst from her bosom.

Laura gave orders to the coachman to drive home.

"I hope you feel better," she said, in a gentle voice, turning to her strange companion.

one's attention was called to him by the exclamation of the little girl. "Little Emily Russell?"

"It is most singular. You do not recognize his name?"

"No." "Nor suspect who he may be?" "No."

"It is perfectly unaccountable. The unhappy lady in your carriage who swooned at the sight of this strange man, called him Rayburne, I think?"

"Yes," replied Laura, hearing again in imagination those piercing cries of anguish—"Rayburne! Rayburne! Rayburne!"

"And—pray forgive my inquisitiveness, I have an excellent reason for it, which I will soon explain—the lady gave you no explanation of her own painful interest in this man?"

"None whatever. I know no more than yourself."

"Possibly not so much, Miss Elmer. And now I will give you my reasons for taking so deep an interest in the discovery of this man. The little woman in black, with misgivings, but was ultimately forced to remain in bed, suffering untold agony with every movement. Finally the doctors told me the trouble was incurable. One day I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to do so. Presently the pains were not so severe, and I began to feel myself gaining. Shortly after I was able to go about, and in less than three months I was perfectly well. For this condition my thanks are gratefully due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured Mrs. Morrill by driving the rheumatic poison out of her blood. They actually renewed her blood. They don't act on the bowels. They don't bother with mere symptoms. SWETTENHAM-DAVIS. LOTS OF MATTER FOR A FIRST CLASS OPERA BOUFFE. (Toronto Saturday Night.)

Three American war vessels steamed into the British harbor of ruined Kingston offering to help if help were needed. Ships of any other navy in the world in the port of a first-class power would have placed themselves at the disposal of the authorities, and been content with that. Rear-Admiral Davis expressed his intention of firing a salute in honor of the British Governor. Very sensibly the Governor requested that this formality be dispensed with, as it would needlessly alarm people for miles around who had passed through enough disquiet already. The salute, however, was fired, and people for miles around were necessarily alarmed. "My dear Governor," wrote Rear-Admiral Davis that evening, "I beg of you to accept my apology for the mistake of the salute this afternoon. My order was misunderstood, and the disregard of your wishes was due to a mistake in the transmission of my order. I trust the apparent disregard of your wishes will be overlooked." Certainly, if it was not a deliberate act of disrespect, but merely a piece of bad management in the visiting navy, let it be overlooked. Send messages in all directions to tell the alarmed natives that these following noises do not portend the end of the world—which they momentarily feared—but was a visiting navy shooting off cannon by mistake.

But the "apparent disregard" of the Governor's wishes did not end here. After having informed immediately on his arrival that the British authorities in Kingston were in need of no outside assistance, Rear-Admiral Davis reports that "I landed working parties from both ships to-day," and "I purpose landing parties to-morrow unless you expressly do not desire it. . . . This party recovered a safe that was being stolen from a jewelry store. . . . from this time on, the police surveillance of the city is inadequate for the protection of private property." The British Governor had already assured him that the police protection was adequate. His word could not be accepted—Davis was looking into these matters for himself. "I shall," he continues in this, perhaps the most remarkable letter ever received by a British Governor since the Romans invaded England, "direct the medical officers of my squadron to make all efforts to all cases of distress which perhaps do not come under the observation of your medical officers." In fact, he isn't satisfied with the look of things, and is going to take hold of affairs, Governor or no Governor.

To take a line on Rear-Admiral Davis' turn to his despatch to Admiral Evans sent off just before he got the letter from Governor Swettenham that jolted him off his high horse. He cables his superior officer that he finds Sir Alexander Swettenham a man of great power, strong, and two natures, and that he is capable of controlling the situation. He has West Indian Regiment, 1,000 strong, and two companies of artillery, besides insular constabulary. Plenty of troops. The frightened natives were inclined to remain on their knees praying except when disturbed by cannons fired by mistake. However, Davis shows that he considers himself on active service, for he concludes his despatch to Admiral Davis: "I consider it my duty to remain for the present, at least. Situation is too confusing, and conflicting stories, reports, complaints, and rumors too contradictory to enable me at present to form a clear judgment of actual situation."

All the assurances of Governor Swettenham were not going to influence his mind. He was going to look into this

RHEUMATIC AGONY

Nothing Reached the Root of the Trouble Until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Were Used.

"I suffered almost untold agony from rheumatism. For several years I was confined to bed. I had the best of medical treatment, but nothing seemed to reach the root of the disease until I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These have completely restored my health. This strong emphatic statement is made by Mrs. Edna Morrill, of Woodstock, N. S., a lady who had practically been given up as incurable by the doctors. She further says: 'I suffered for over two years and rheumatism seemed to be firmly implanted in my system. At the outset I was able to attend to my household duties, but at night I suffered the greatest pain. I at once began to take medicine but my condition actually grew worse. I was attended by a skillful doctor, but was ultimately forced to remain in bed, suffering untold agony with every movement. Finally the doctors told me the trouble was incurable. One day I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to do so. Presently the pains were not so severe, and I began to feel myself gaining. Shortly after I was able to go about, and in less than three months I was perfectly well. For this condition my thanks are gratefully due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.'"

SWETTENHAM-DAVIS.

LOTS OF MATTER FOR A FIRST CLASS OPERA BOUFFE. (Toronto Saturday Night.)

But the "apparent disregard" of the Governor's wishes did not end here. After having informed immediately on his arrival that the British authorities in Kingston were in need of no outside assistance, Rear-Admiral Davis reports that "I landed working parties from both ships to-day," and "I purpose landing parties to-morrow unless you expressly do not desire it. . . . This party recovered a safe that was being stolen from a jewelry store. . . . from this time on, the police surveillance of the city is inadequate for the protection of private property." In fact, he isn't satisfied with the look of things, and is going to take hold of affairs, Governor or no Governor.

To take a line on Rear-Admiral Davis' turn to his despatch to Admiral Evans sent off just before he got the letter from Governor Swettenham that jolted him off his high horse. He cables his superior officer that he finds Sir Alexander Swettenham a man of great power, strong, and two natures, and that he is capable of controlling the situation. He has West Indian Regiment, 1,000 strong, and two companies of artillery, besides insular constabulary. Plenty of troops. Situation is too confusing, and conflicting stories, reports, complaints, and rumors too contradictory to enable me at present to form a clear judgment of actual situation."

All the assurances of Governor Swettenham were not going to influence his mind. He was going to look into this business. He heard from other sources a different story from that told him by the Governor. He heard complaints, rumors, conflicting stories, and so, notwithstanding this gruff old Governor, he landed wrecking parties, and, not having been invited to work in conjunction with the authorities, began a rival work to theirs, cleaning wreckage out of stores piling bricks, doing spongy-go, setting up a competing hospital with the stars and stripes flying over it. A pretty fresh Read-Admiral, without much respect for confidence in any authority but that of his own country—he would show these people how a man determined to make the most of the present opportunity, a man of more energy than judgment. Only one thing could stop him—a formal order to embark, and who would have the nerve to issue that? Swettenham had the nerve. He was Governor and he governed.

Which should be recalled by the Government responsible for him? Rear-Admiral Buttinski? or Governor Griffith? However, everybody knows which of the two will have the blame piled on his shoulders. But if Swettenham be recalled, he should try to make a detour through Canada on his way home, as there are people in this country who would like to have a good look at the last of his kind.

FROST-BITES.

A cure is always at hand as far as nips on the face are concerned; it is generally only necessary to lay the bare hand upon the ear or nose to restore circulation. There is no pain in getting frozen, but a good deal in getting thawed, if this is accomplished in a warm place. To avoid too rapid a return of the circulation, an application of snow is a good thing. Melting snow is a powerful freezer, as every maker of ice cream knows, and that is its one merit in case of frost-bite. It keeps the heat from returning too fast. It can, however, be carried much too far. We have known cases where frozen limbs were further frozen by putting them into snow in the house, resulting in amputation. It is pure madness to use snow out-doors. It is singular what a widespread misapprehension there is on this point. Ninety-nine people out of a hundred will apply snow to the frozen face in the coldest weather. The face or hand melting the snow produces freezing conditions. What is still more insane, ninety-eight in a hundred will rub the frozen part with the snow as hard as they can, and if soft snow cannot be had, then with hard. The skin when frozen is very much more easily injured than under natural conditions, and unfortunate effects have often been produced in this way. Rubbing, of course, increases the warmth and promotes circulation. It can best be done with the hand, which is warm. A woollen glove gives friction, but at the expense of applying cold to cold. A very slight covering usually protects the ears, whether applied at the upper or lower extremity. A lady's hair is often enough.

There is a prevalent opinion that fur caps or other heavy winter wear produce colds in the head, as the head may get overheated when these are worn and when taken off a chilliness results. This accounts for the common sight of a man wearing a fur coat and a Derby hat at the same time, leaving the ears unprotected, the part of the head most susceptible to frost bites. However, if the feet are kept warm, the other parts of the human system will be better able to resist the effects of the frost.

A MOTHER'S PRIDE.

A mother's greatest pleasure is in seeing her little ones bright, playful and healthy. The well child is a blessing to the home, but the sick child is a regular little tyrant. A few doses of Baby's Own Tablets will make the sickly child well, or an occasional dose will prevent sickness. There is nothing to equal these Tablets as a cure for stomach and bowel troubles. They make teething easy, break up colds, expel worms and cure simple fevers. Baby's Own Tablets are sold under the guarantee of a Government analyst not to contain one particle of opiate—they never do harm—always good. Mrs. G. W. Kemp, Carleton Place, Ont., says: "I have given Baby's Own Tablets to my little one since he was a week old, and have found them a splendid medicine. At eleven months he weighed over twenty-six pounds." The Tablets are sold by drug stores or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Most Obliging Host.

The Duke of Connaught once paid a visit to the late Sir Edwin Arnold at Tokio, and just before he was leaving his royal highness told the poet that he had been a most untrifling host.

"But," he added, laughingly, "there is one thing you have not shown me which this country is noted for."

"What is that?" inquired Sir Edwin. "An earthquake," the duke replied. "At that moment there was a violent shock which shook the building and brought some of its tumbrels down. The duchess came running in, greatly frightened."

"Oh, what is it?" she gasped. "An earthquake?" "Only a little magic," said the duke, soothingly. He turned to Sir Edwin with twinkling eyes. "I thought I was not asking too much of you," he said.—Black and White.

Moving in a New Sphere.

(Rossville, Kan., Reporter.) F. Linotype Carr, who has been in the employ of the Reporter in the capacity of compositor for a year past, has ceased from his labors and is now at rest. No more will his high-low jig-saw laughter be heard within alabaster walls of the composing room or rudely alarm and make afraid the citizens of Main street. During F. Linotype's service in this office he has absorbed so much knowledge as to induce palpitation of the pancreas and an abnormal bulging of the brow. Acting on the advice of friends, he will join the Eighteenth infantry of the U. S. A., where it is hoped the navy blue vocabulary of his associates and a steady diet of cold beers will reduce the sassy eccentricities and thus preserve a life so full of promise and self-esteem.

Following Common Practice.

(Yonkers, N.Y., Statesman.) Church—it seems to be the custom now for an audience to hum something they have heard on the stage when leaving the theatre. Finbush—Yes, I believe it has become quite common. The other night we had "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the opera house and the bloodhounds did some great growling.

"Indeed."

"Yes, and when the audience went out nearly everyone was growling."

How do you know you do not need Bu-Ju

If there is pain in the back and through the hips, you need Bu-Ju. If the hands and ankles are swollen, you need Bu-Ju. If there are headaches or neuralgia, you need Bu-Ju. If you are nervous and do not sleep well at night, you need Bu-Ju. If there is a constant desire to urinate, you need Bu-Ju. If the urine is reddish, cloudy, milky, hot and scalding, you need Bu-Ju. Especially if you are tortured with inflammation of Muscular Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, you certainly do need Bu-Ju. If you have any of the above symptoms, don't hesitate; don't delay. Take Bu-Ju, and cure yourself.

I am anxious that you should know the relief and benefit I have derived from taking Bu-Ju. The effect has been marvelous. I had suffered severely for years with pain in the back, especially on rising in the morning, and I am pleased to say that the pain has completely disappeared. Before using Bu-Ju, I had tried every remedy I suffer from Kidney Trouble, without even relief. I would strongly advise anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble to take Bu-Ju without delay. CHAS. R. RUDD, JR., 3 Taylor St., Toronto.

It costs only 3c. a day to take Bu-Ju, and your money refunded if they fail to cure. See a large box. At druggists, or sent on receipt of price.
