A fire broke out on Wednesday last, shortly after noon, in a stable in rear of a house on Anglosee street, and entirely consumed it. The engine appeared on the scene in time to drown out the embers, and hinder any spread of the flames. The dwelling housed a narrow escape, and was only saved by the strenuous efforts of volunteers with pails of water. The premises belong to Mr. Lawson, and were occupied by James Crawford, an employee of Peter McEwen. Loss about $25; no insurance. The cause of the fire is not known.

H. H. Dickenson, of Detroit, nephew of W. Campbell, town clerk, passed through Goderich this week on his way to a Dickenson family reunion held this week in New England. His wife and children are the guests of Mr. Campbell, and a smaller family reunion awaits Mr. Dickenson on his return trip.

An immense number of the members and friends of the North street Methodist church Sunday school went to the Point Farm yesterday and held their annual picnic there. The Mayor has proclaimed Thursday, Aug. 23rd a civic holiday, and that day the Sons of Temperance of this town are going to hold an excursion on the G. T. R., to raise funds to enable them to reduce the indebtedness on the temperance hall. The object of the Sons is a good one, and their efforts should be well seconded by the residents of the town.

A SWEET THING.—On Thursday night, after last week's edition had been run off, George Cox, an veteran news folder, invited the entire staff of The Signal to his residence and regaled all hands with honey, cakes, coffee, etc. Everybody from the editor to the lamp, voted the honey pure, the cakes and coffee prime, and the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Cox heartily enjoyable.

"George P." the illustrious tramp printer is likely to terminate his desultory career in a strange haven of rest. Recently the police magistrate at London sent him down for three months on a charge of vagrancy, and on Saturday he came up before Judge Elliot on a charge of insanity, and a certificate was granted by the grand physicians. An order was issued for his removal to the hospital.

CHEAP DINNER-FANS.—The Stratford Herald says: "We hope there is no reason to fear the spread of cholera in Canada; still cleanliness is of vital importance to health during the hot season. It may be generally known that copra is a most certain and effectual disinfectant of all bad smells arising from drains, closets, etc. Five pounds can be had of any druggist for 20 cents. It can be used in bulk as it is, or dissolved in a pail of boiling water."

The Searforth lacrosse boys had a somewhat unpleasant and costly encounter when returning from Goderich. While their horses were tied at the hotel door in Holmesville they became frightened, broke loose and run away. They ran about a mile when the conveyances capsized into the ditch, and they could not proceed further. The carriage, which was a covered one, was considerably damaged and the horses more or less scratched and injured.

STANDARD ADDRESSES.—This is how the Toronto Herald views the question of standard addresses: "This business of presenting addresses to steamboat captains is a cheap way of advertising their lines, and is becoming an annoying nuisance. We know where the same stereotyped address has done duty on several occasions; the officers keep a supply on board for use at a moment's notice. We presume it is the duty of a captain and his crew to be polite if not courteous to their passengers. Then why all this gosh."

THE NINE LACROSSE MATCH.—The match of Goderich will play their fourth match this season on Wednesday next. Their opponents will be the Wauwhatchoumaylacrosse of Wingham. Having defeated the other clubs which have aspired to county championship honors this year, the home team expects to have a victory on Wednesday. The Wingham club will probably come with its strongest team, and will stretch forth every effort to snatch the championship from the Hurons. We hope our boys will put their best players on the field, and not let the game go through over-confidence.

LOCKNOW CALEDONIAN GAMES.—The northern games under the auspices of the Locknow Caledonian Society will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 12th. The celebrated Scottish champion athlete, Donald Dinne, who has held foremost place in the athletic arena for over thirty years, will be present at Locknow on his final professional tour. A number of other well-known athletes, dancers and pipers have been secured by the management of the games. Reduced railway rates will be given from all points, and everything has been done by the committee to ensure the success of the games and the comfort of the thousands who will be present on the occasion.

The Searforth Expositor says:—"We are sorry to learn that Frank Murray of this town, has been committed to Goderich jail by the Mayor of Clinton to stand his trial on a charge of taking two pigs from the farm of Mr. Christopher Dale, sr., of Hullett. Mr. Murray has hitherto borne the reputation of being thoroughly honest and honorable, but, unfortunately for himself and family, has become so addicted to the use of himself and has become a public nuisance. If he could be placed in some position where he would be compelled to reform a great service would be rendered. His family are left in destitute circumstances."

"There is enough lacrosse material here to fold those county town chaps up and lay them carefully past for the balance of the season." [Searforth Sun All right, Sunday.] Our boys are never happier than when they meet, with a club who are anxious to "fold them up" so to speak. But the "county town chaps" don't fold so very easily, and it will take just a few more lacrosse material than there is in Searforth to do the business. The Goderich boys don't take much stock in the "folding up" racket. They prefer to get the games "straight," and that's what they think they can do when they play the return match with Searforth. Make a note of it, Sunday.

SUMMER MEETING.—The Goderich races, which are billed to take place on the 15th and 16th inst., at Moulton Driving park, give promise of being a highly successful affair. One of the features of the races will be the match race between Beacom's Tontine and Fisher's Arabie (London). Each of the horses has a large string of backers, and empty wallets will be the order of the day in any event. At present writing "Bourbon" is the favorite, but as Johnny Beacom would say: "You can't always, most generally, sometimes tell what new order of development may arise anterior to the manifestation of dogness on the part of the rival equines," or words to that effect.

Mechanics Institute.—100 volumes have just been placed in the Mechanics Institute library, about one-half fiction; the rest mostly literary and scientific. Some excellent books on the points at issue in the orthodox religious and the evolution school of Darwin, Huxley, &c. are now on the shelves. Several volumes of the fiction are of a semi-religious character, for example those of E. P. Roe, and a few are of a humorous character. 150 additional volumes are expected within 10 or 12 days. Remember only 50c. for member's ticket for balance of year, and new members are admitted to all the privileges of the reading room, as well as to the reading of 1,000 volumes of books. The library books are given out every day from 2 to 6 and from 7 to 8.

THE LUMBER INTEREST.—R. P. Beacom, of Chesley, who owns an extensive lumber mill at Johnston's Harbour, has leased from the Government for a term of three years that portion of the dock on the breakwater, formerly occupied by S. C. & Cozens, and expects to handle a couple of million feet of lumber during the remainder of the season. Williams & Murray have again leased their old dock from the Government, and will continue to drive trade with their usual business push. Ferguson & Bro, the extensive London lumber dealers, are also looking toward Goderich for a distributing point; and we learn upon good authority that Geo. Cook, brother of H. H. Cook, Johnston's Harbour, of this town, contemplates establishing a branch of his trade at Goderich at an early date.

Wingham's Civic Excursion.—The people of Wingham party having a civic excursion to Goderich on Wednesday next, the 15th inst., and Lucknow and Byth will take part in the trip. We understand our Mayor and the members of the town council will meet the excursionists and welcome them to the town on behalf of the people. It has been suggested that those of our residents owning grounds and conservatories would do a graceful act in allowing the visitors the privilege of viewing the same. Many have already agreed to do so on suggestion, and if the day be fine a treat is in store for the visitors. The sports from the north will have an opportunity afforded them of attending the races which begin here on the 15th, and flowers of the national game will be added to the general excitement. We hope the thousands of Goderich and the Wauwhatchou, that is, if the Wingham club is as good a stayer as its name would warrant. The picnic at Binzhani's grove will attract with pleasure the remainder of the party.

TOWN'S INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.—The object of this exhibition, popularly known as "Canada's great Fair," appears in another column. It will take place this year from the 11th to the 22nd September. Prize lists will be sent to anyone requiring them by dropping a post card to Mr. Hill, the manager at Toronto. All entries must be made on or before the 25th of August. The prizes for live stock, agricultural and dairy products and ladies' and children's work are very liberal, and large prizes are offered for horse-back riding by ladies, and driving. The special attractions this year will be numerous and of a novel character. Full particulars of all the special features in connection with the great fair will be published in programme shortly. An electric railway, balloon ascensions by a lady aeronaut, and electric lights are among them. Others are being arranged for. Cheap rates and excursions will be granted on all the railways. This will be the best time to visit Toronto, and take in the exhibition at the same time.

A RECKLESS JUMP.

Terrible accident to Samuel Cox, of Goderich, at Toronto.

The Toronto World of yesterday says: Last (Wednesday) night just before 12 o'clock a man attempted to jump off a cattle train on the Grand Trunk railway near the freight sheds. The train hands seeing the man fall head first stopped the cars, and picked him up unscathed. Dr. Valentine was sent for but could not say whether the wounds would prove fatal or not. He is horribly smashed about the face and chest. His legs are also very much cut and bruised. The ambulance was sent for and the man was conveyed to the hospital. He was perfectly insensible and had shown no signs of returning consciousness up to the time of going to press. He had about $11 on his person and a pocket book from which it was ascertained that he was a cattle drover. There was also in the pocket-book a letter from E. J. Cox, of Goderich, addressed "Dar brother."

The name of the injured man is Samuel Cox, a nephew of Wm. McLean, drover, in whose employ he is. He left Goderich on Wednesday afternoon train with a carload of stock for the Montreal market, and was missed on the train after it left Toronto.

Cox is a young man of excellent moral character, but although warned not to jump when the train was in such rapid motion, recklessly attempted it, with the terrible result described above.

The Mail says his chances for recovery are very small.

LATER.
A telegram from Toronto, dated Thursday, 5 p.m., says:—"Cox, the injured Goderich man, is still unconscious."

School Board Meeting.
The School Board met on Monday. All the members present. Inspector's report for June was read and filed. Account of $800 for printing examination papers, $10,000 was ordered to be paid. Tenders for painting windows were received from L. Ellert $18.00, E. R. Watson $24.00 the first named being accepted. The resignation of D. Ferguson as trustee of St. Patrick's ward was received and accepted. A petition was presented recommending the teaching of temperance principles in the schools, and a number of books on the subject were mentioned for the information of the board. On motion the petition was received and laid over for further consideration. A tender from H. H. Hale for painting up all other work was left to the discretion of the contingent committee. The question of arranging the classes for the coming term was left to the school management committee and the Inspector and Principal. A number of necessary repairs were referred to the contingent committee with power to act. The board then adjourned to meet on the 27th inst.

FIRE AND SWORD:

A STORY OF THE MASSACRE OF GLENCOE.

CHAPTER XXX.

THE LOVERS REUNITED—CONCLUDING REMARKS.

The hut of old Dugald, the shepherd of the Glen-heid, was situated near the eastern extremity of Glencoe, beyond the terrific descent of the "Devil's Staircase," where the road opens on the spread of the moor, and the moss-converging on the Rannoch pases.

The Glen-heid shepherd, although a Macdonald and a tenant of M'Jan's, had escaped the general slaughter because of his out-lying position, and was only made aware of it on sight of the flying and wounded fugitives, with whose presence the higher reaches of the Glen were filled ere the dawn had yet lit the sky, and whose wail of sorrow filled the hollows of the awful hill engulfed passes like the moan of a swollen stream.

The flying fugitives had warned him of what was transpiring lower down the Glen, urging him to fly with his wife and family; but his wife was lying ill of a low fever, and his two sons being absent from home at the time, in the Appin district somewhere, the tough old hero resolved to stay by his suffering wife, and, claymore in hand, he fortunately shortly afterwards admitted young Ronald—staggering under the weight of his unconscious burden—to the covering shelter of his house.

It needed but a few words to explain matters. The unconscious maiden was put to bed, and as tenderly nursed by the kindly old shepherd as if she had been a daughter of his own, until the crisis of her nervous collapse was past and she had gradually recovered strength and consciousness. As for him who had thus so nobly struggled to save her—when fight would have been easy for himself—he sank on the floor immediately he had rendered up his fair burden, and died of exposure and exhaustion through loss of blood within an hour afterwards.

It was, therefore, all true, and not the fancied mirage of a deceitful dream, that Helen Cameron still lived, as the old Ballachulish boatman had told Malcolm, who had been mourning her as dead.

The unconscious state into which she had sunk when her lover stood over her prostrate body, as related in a former chapter, was more the result of a nervous shock on witnessing the murder of her dear old uncle, the crofter of the Craes, than the effect of the flesh wound she had received in trying to protect him from the bullets of Sergeant Barber's soldiers.

From the dread and bloody reality of the cruel scene she had there witnessed, she awoke at length as from a horrid nightmare of sleep.

And if Malcolm mourned for her as one already dead, she in turn wept over the sad thought, that he also was one of the perished victims, and that she was destined to see him no more.

Eight long days and nights had now dragged out their slow length, and the invalid girl was able to sit up and move about the shepherd's lowly hut, rewarding as well as she could the kindness of a simple-minded old Dugald by nursing in turn his ailing wife.

"Eh, my bonnie lassie," the old shepherd would exclaim, as he watched the valid maiden resting her sweet, sad eyes on his bedridden wife, "as she stood by her in the exercise of some kindly little touch of sympathy or attention, 'I'm thinkin' ye're just an angel sent down frae Heaven to woe my guid auld wife awa' back wi' ye, and that ye're no auld Sandy's bonnie niece ava'. But 'that's the lassie, lassie,' he would add with a pleasant smile, 'ye mauns be in a hurry, awa', for I'm wearin' o' neither o' ye.' And the maiden would smile faintly in acknowledgment of the kindly compliment, but the deep sigh which was never free from her breast, would escape her in spite of her efforts to look happy, and she was aware of a great void in her life which only one voice and one form could ever fill.

But the broken rainbow of her young life was about to be restored. Could she have known that on that same morning, while she yet spoke of and wept over her lover as lost to her sight forever, he was speeding towards her with the energy and speed which is born only of excitement or frenzied impulse, how would her sad heart have leapt and fluttered in her breast! Yet, as was much indeed to be expected, she was yet speaking of Malcolm's tender love and love, his foot was already on the threshold of the house, his knock at the door, and lo, a moment after, she stood revealed to her eyes—aggrieved and wild-like, but with all his sweet words and manly beauty still fresh upon him.

A cry of agonized joy, ringing sharp and clear, and she was rapt to his hearing breast.

For the space of an hour afterwards the world of reality was a blank to her, but in a sweet dream she once more wandered through the moonlit passes of the great Glen, the low murmur of the Corra mingling with the words of her lover which fell pleasantly on her ear. And when she once more recovered possession of her mind her soul was just one gush of inexpressible gladness and joy. The lovers had each come through a furnace of the fiercest affliction, and their affection had if possible only been sublimated into a diviner fervor and purer flame.

They had much to tell each other, much to sorrow over, and in the sweet possession of each other's love much to thank a beneficent heaven for.

Malcolm had previously determined on settling on the Lochiel territory, and now that he had Helen Cameron restored to him, and she had expressed a wish to be taken back to her native Fassfern, in the Lochiel district, the following week saw the loving pair on the road thither. They avoided, for obvious reasons, the path through the Glen, taking a more northerly route round by the eastern shoulder of Ben Nevis, and while they were shut winding their way thither we shall turn back a moment to say a leave-taking word about the subject and characters of our story and the after history of the clan.

That the Whig Government of King William in permitting the massacre of Glencoe had committed a very grave and impolitic crime, not to say a gross and irremediable one, was very soon apparent, and is now universally admitted.

News did not travel so fast in those old days as now. But an event of such appalling sadness and ferocity could not long remain hushed up. The remnant of the exiled Jacobite party got a hold of it, and, excited by a just horror and anger, spread the news of it all over Europe, in every Royal Court of which the account of it was received with surprise and execration.

While the main facts of the massacre could not be denied by the Government, the opposite party gloried in circulating the grossest exaggeration, both at home and abroad, of its barbarous details. Under these exciting circumstances the odium of the nation rose to such a height that the King's Ministry became justly alarmed for the safety of the Crown, and to pacify the people the perfidious Master of Stair was dismissed from the King's Councils, who afterwards appointed a Royal Commission of inquiry to investigate the affair, pretending that he had signed the order for the massacre among a mass of other papers, not knowing its full contents.

There may have been a grain of truth in the Royal apology for the revolting error which had been committed under the King's signature, but there is counter evidence to show that that supposed grain of truth must have been of quite infinitesimal smallness of size. The true apology is to be found in the fact that Breadalbane, according to Smollett, who was M'Jan's private enemy, devoted that Chief and his people to destruction. He persistently represented him at Court as an incorrigible rebel, a ruffian inclined to bloodshed and rapine, who would never remain obedient to the laws of the country, nor live peaceably under any Sovereign, an accusation which was admitted against Glencoe by Arthur, and pressed home by Secretary Stair, according to which the King signed what he understood to be an order of open war against the rebellious Chief and his clan—never having known the fact of his late admission—and that Glencoe's rivals and enemies, fearing the courage and prowess of his people, peevishly perverted the King's Order of War against the tribe into a secret decree of treachery, bloodshed and private revenge.

Public feeling ran high against the Earl, and while the Royal Commission of inquiry was still proceeding, it was plainly denoted before them that a few days after the slaughter Campbell of Breadalbane, Chamberlain to Breadalbane, discovered himself to John and Allister Macdonald—the late Chief's two sons, who were then in hiding in the wilds of Appin—and made a formal proposal to them, on the authority of the Earl, that if they would declare, under the hands of his Lordship had no concern in the slaughter they might rest assured that the Earl would move the King's clemency to procure their full remission and restitution.

The offer, tempting as it was, was rejected, and by the fatality that attaches it to the footsteps of crime, the Commission's terms came to discover that in his negotiations with the Jacobite Highlanders the deceitful Earl had acted in such a way as to lay himself open to a charge of high treason, in consequence of which he was thereafter formally committed prisoner to Edinburgh Castle; but with the craft in which he was an adept he soon succeeded in establishing to the King's satisfaction that he had only professed himself a Jacobite that he might gain the confidence of the recalcitrant Chiefs, and thereby the more readily and successfully execute the Royal scheme of pacification, with which he had been intrusted.

Regarding the Master of Stair, it was not till the year 1773—six years after the occurrence of the massacre—that he ventured to assume the place in Parliament to which his rank entitled him. But he never regained public confidence, and died in 1797, on the very day on which the "Treaty of Union" between England and Scotland was formally signed, not, it has been said, without suspicion of suicide.

Of the two direct agents in the massacre, Lieutenant-Colonel Hamilton abandoned, and afterwards joined King William's army in Flanders, where Glenlyon, with the officers and soldiers connected with the affair, were then serving; and although the principals were never recalled home for trial, they have been duly punished by the universal execration of posterity.

As the surviving portion of the Glencoe people had been reduced to great poverty and distress by the destruction of their property, and as they had conducted themselves with great moderation under their misfortune, the Commission solicited His Majesty to order reparation to be made to them for the losses they had sustained in their properties. To what extent the Royal "charity and compassion" were exercised has never been definitely made known; but it is certain, however that the Glencoe people were invited back to the possession of their just heritage, and that the lineal descendants of the murdered M'Jan successively ruled over them for many subsequent generations.

The superstitious belief, popular at that time, that punishments of the cruelty, oppression or misconduct of an individual descended as a curse on his children to the third and fourth generations, was not confined to the common people. All ranks were influenced by it, believing that if the curse did not fall upon the first or second generation it would inevitably descend upon the succeeding.

An extraordinary story illustrative of this is related by General Stewart of Garth in his "Military Details of the Highland Regiments," wherein we are told that the then late Colonel Campbell of Glenlyon firmly retained this belief through a course of thirty years intercourse with the world as an officer of the 42nd Regiment and of Marines. He was grandson of the Laird of Glenlyon who commanded the military at the massacre of Glencoe. Colonel Campbell held the rank of Captain in the 42nd Regiment in 1748, and afterwards entered the Marines, and in 1762 was made Major, with the brevet rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and commanded 800 of his corps at Havannah. In 1771 he was ordered to superintend the execution of the sentence of a Court-Martial on a soldier of Marines condemned to be shot. A reprieve was sent, but the whole ceremony of the execution was to proceed until the prisoner was upon his knees, with a cap drawn over his eyes, preparatory to receiving the death volley. It was then that he was to be informed of his pardon. No person was to be told previously, and Colonel Campbell was directed not to inform even the firing party, who were warned that the signal to fire would be the waving of a white handkerchief by the commanding officer. When all was prepared and the chaplain had left the prisoner on his knees in momentary expectation of his fate, and the firing party were looking with intense attention for the signal Colonel Campbell put his hand into his pocket for the reprieve, and, in pulling out the papers, the white handkerchief accompanied it, and, catching the eyes of the party, they fired, and the unfortunate prisoner was shot dead. The reprieve papers dropped through Colonel Campbell's fingers, and clapping his hands to his forehead he exclaimed—

"The curse of God and of Glencoe is here! I am an unfortunate, ruined man!" He desired the soldiers to be sent to the barracks, instantly quitted the parade, and soon afterwards finally retired from the service. His retirement was not the result of any reflection or repining on account of the unfortunate affair, which was known to be purely accidental. The impression left on his mind, however, was never completely removed, nor is the Glencoe massacre and the judgment which the people believe has fallen on the descendants of the principal actors in the tragedy effaced from the recollection of the common people, who successively note that, while the family succession of the uniformed Chief who suffered is still preserved, with the estate descending in direct male succession to his posterity, as much cannot truly be said of the family, posterity and estates of those who were the principals, promoters and actors in the black and unfortunate affair.

From the same source we quote another anecdote relating to the Glencoe episode which fully illustrates the force of principle when founded on the high sense of honor to which those rude Highlanders subscribed. When the army of Prince Charlie, in the ranks of which were Macdonald of Glencoe, the descendant of the murdered M'Jan, and all his followers, lay at Kirrihiston, in the year 1745, near the seat of the Earl of Stair, grandson of the Secretary Stair who took such an active part in the concoction of the plot massacre, the Prince, aware of the circumstances, and anxious to save the house and property of Lord Stair, against whom the vengeance of the Macdonalds was likely to be directed, proposed that the Glencoe men should be marched to a safe distance from his Lordship's house and parks.

The Prince in this instance, however, misinterpreted the true spirit and honor of his Glencoe followers, the principals of whom unanimously declared that if they were considered so dishonourable as to take revenge on an innocent man they were not fit to remain with honourable men, nor to march in support of an honourable cause; and it was not without a promise from the Prince that a protecting guard on Lord Stair's house should be solely chosen from the ranks of the Macdonalds that the high-spirited Chief was prevented from marching home his followers on the following morning. "The Royal Adventurer," says Walter Scott, "granted the spirited request, and the Macdonalds of Glencoe guarded from the slightest injury the house and lands of the cruel and crafty statesman who had devised and directed the massacre of their ancestors—a noble instance of a high and heroic preference of duty to the gratification of private revenge." Such, in brief, is the story of the descendants of M'Jan of Glencoe, the fate of the families connected with the infamous transaction, and the moral-speaking stories attaching themselves thereto.

And now, in conclusion, let us take a parting glimpse of the hero and heroine of our tale.

On the Lochiel district, within the lovely locality of Fassfern, ring up the curtain, prompter, and discover the concluding scene of the stirring drama we have thus detailed; and lo! behold a small turf-thatched cot, fronted with a patch of arable ground, through the centre of which a young man guides the homely plough. A Highlander girl, wife to the ploughman, is spreading out a washing to the sun near a burn, running as clear as amber, and with the warm sunbeams lying in its bed like shivered lances of light.

A fine child, of one year's earthy experience, with blue eyes mirroring the light and innocence of all pure and beautiful things, and flaxen locks flashing back the shining sunlight of heaven, rolls and gambols on the soft, green, wa ground.

Presently the fond young mother picks up the child, and approaching the house door, cries out to the ploughman as if with his team—"Malcolm, dear, dinner waits you." and the man affixes a happy smile to his face, and the happy pair go inside their lowly home to share in the contentment, peace, and bliss born of pure lives and true love.

THE END.

Thousands bear witness to the positive curative powers of the GREAT GERMAN INVIGORATOR, the only remedy that has proved itself a specific for general debility, seminal weakness, impotency, etc., and all diseases that arise from self-abuse or overtaxed brain, finally ending in consumption, insanity and a premature grave. INVALIDS WHO TAKE Wheeler's Elixir of Phosphates and Celasaya remark how promptly and uniformly increased appetite and improved digestion follow its use. This is explained by the universal adaptability of the preparation to the most sensitive irritable conditions of the stomach, which secures its absorption and distribution to the nerve ganglia. Phosphates being, par excellence, the food of the nervous system, it is easily seen why this elegant compound has proved of such vast value in so wide a range of diseases depending on failure of nerve power and blood impoverishment.

Vital Questions!! Ask the most eminent physician of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves and curing all forms of nervous complaints, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep all ways? And they will tell you unhesitatingly "Some form of Hops."

CHAPTER I. Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians: "What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs; such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to Women?" And they will tell you explicitly and emphatically "Buchu."

Ask the same physicians: "What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia; constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malarial fever, ague, &c.," and they will tell you: "Mandrake! or Dandelion!" Hence, when these remedies are combined with others equally valuable and compounded into Hop Bitters, such as

HOW THE RUMPUS WAS RAISED.

A party of peccers went out one night. On duty, separating O's. They met a dog upon the road. And took him to be a stroller. O.

With me negroes, let go me. With me negroes, let go me. For I'm neither a thief or a robber, sir.

The above, from an old Irish ballad of the days of the "Cabbage Garden" riots would seem applicable to the doings up at Rat Portage during the past few weeks.

It is our painful duty to record the death of Mr. William McDonald, of Esau Wawanosh, who was a number of years ago a resident near St. Helens.

"OPEN SESAME."

The Canada Pacific R. R. Co. has at last obtained possession of the Toronto, Grey & Bruce Railway, and the transfer is now only awaiting ratification at the hands of the Syndicate.

It now turns out that "O'Brien the Slugger," as the Mail delights to call him, is not a bold, bad Grit after all.

Edward Danford purchased three acres, lots from Mrs. Jas. Forsyth, paying the sum of $600 for the same.

Our Fire Co. has accepted an invitation to attend the firemen's tournament at London on the 23rd and 24th of this month.

John Matheson had the misfortune to lose a valuable young mare last week. She was galloping over the summer fall, after night, and running against a plow, one of the handles penetrated her chest, and she died in a few days.

Harvesting operations are being busily prosecuted here. The crop of fall wheat is an average one in appearance, but it is said to be much more sensibly damaged with the rust than was generally supposed.

William Wall has arrived home from Minnesota. On last Sunday night some persons entered the store kept by Mrs. Egan, and took several articles and decamped with their booty.

A DASTARDLY DEED.—On the 3rd inst. some parties poisoned 3 pigs belonging to John Dolan, with Paris green. It appears as if there is some person around who are making a practice of such work as this.

The first fall wheat cut here in 1883, was bound by Ben. Allen, sixteen days later than last year's first cut.

That most tedious of would-be humorists, Joshua Juggles, of Port Albert, is still harping upon the old subject. His latest "amissible" sick comedy is meddled for, and very weak.

Half-breed politicians are a peculiar product of Manitoba. Louis Rielle, the Dominion and was bribed by Sir John to get out of the way.

Richer's Wimppegers have had no sale in circulation of less value than five cents, but the other day half a ton of copper cents was introduced, and are now going into the public hands.

On last Monday night the Stratford council met to discuss a very important business. The members had refused for many weeks to visit the mayor, but, as several appointments had to be made, salaries fixed, accounts to be paid, and grants to be made, the business would have to be done.

New York, Aug. 5.—The St. Paul cable says: In spite of the cabinet effort of her family and medical advisers, Queen Victoria declines to be released for her health, and insists on spending the autumn in Berlin.

John McDonald, of Aberfoyle, was visiting friends here last week.

The farmers are busy with their fall wheat, but, through the rust and winter killing that is hardly winking, it will yet be a valuable crop.

The young girl and boy of the period rise early, gather up all the tin dishes and pans and start towards the berry patches with great anticipations in their head, but return in the end of the evening with their expectations somewhat lowered.

It is our painful duty to record the death of Mr. William McDonald, of Esau Wawanosh, who was a number of years ago a resident near St. Helens.

Carey's Assassination.

The Times' cable says:—O'Donnell, who shot Carey, is not known to the Irish or London detectives. The police assert that Fenian haunts and livable lodges in Ireland are all broken up, and that the members have sailed for America. Their theory is that O'Donnell is an Irish American acting directly under the orders of the American lodges.

London, Aug. 6.—The murder of Carey continues to be the sole subject of conversation in Dublin. Carey himself chose to go to Natal. He would not go to Australia because he knew that many Fenians had taken refuge there. The Lord-Lieutenant is much annoyed by the murder of Carey and the prevention of Kavanagh, the other informant, from landing at Melbourne. There has been angry correspondence between the Lord-Lieutenant and prominent officials on the subject.

London, Aug. 4.—A Dublin dispatch states:—It is reported here that the Irish informers were prevented from landing at Melbourne, not on account of any disposition to thwart their plans or the desire to interfere with the wishes of the British Government, but because the police officials had discovered a plot to murder all three of the men, Kavanagh, Smith and Hanlon, and to have allowed them to be put ashore would have led certainly to riot, and probably to murder. The Irish informers here say, however, that none of the informers ever escaped, and that the action of the Australian officers will only delay, and in no way prevent, their being put to death.

The New York Times' cable letter says:—Not a spark of sympathy has been expressed by any kind of people in regard to Carey. There has been an affection of resentment in some quarters, and apprehension that the effect would be to embolden the Government in dealing with the annual crisis in Ireland, but the general feeling is that once he was out of jail the Government was powerless to protect him, and his fate was simply a question of time. His evidence was rewarded with two months more life than was allowed his victims.

An Impartial Opinion.

One of the significant things about the Rat Portage affair is that all the Conservative organs take the Manitoba and Quebec view of the case, namely, that Ontario has no claim to the territory, while all the Reform organs take the view that Ontario has a claim to it, and that the claim is perfectly valid. This proves as well as anything could that the dispute is a party one and that the organs which take the anti-Ontario view are a great deal more concerned for the interests of their party than they are for the interests of their province. If the journalists and the politicians of Ontario do not stand up for Ontario's rights it would be interesting to know who will. We may depend upon this, at any rate, that the journalists and politicians of Manitoba and Quebec will not. The Tory organs pretend that they are not playing the game of the French Blues, and that the same charges which are being made against Quebec might on like grounds be made against Nova Scotia or New Brunswick. This argument is knocked on the head by the speech of Mr. Mousseau, the Tory premier of Quebec, who declared that "it would be impossible for Quebec to remain in her present position if Ontario gained her case, and any improvement in Ontario's position must be followed by an equal improvement in Quebec's." Neither the premier of Nova Scotia nor New Brunswick has taken ground similar to this with regard to his province. Toronto Telegram (Ind.).

Ma. Roba has no Claim.

It cannot be too often repeated that Manitoba has no claim to the territory. It may not be Ontario, but it is certainly not Ma. Roba. Until the question is settled between Ontario and the Dominion the latter cannot dispose of it in any way. A legally constituted board of arbitrators, the only authority competent to settle it, decided that the territory belonged to Ontario. The Dominion Parliament, contrary to the universal custom in all such cases, claimed the right to repudiate the award, and through the jealousy of the Quebec Blues Parliament accordingly refused to ratify it. That refusal may render the award inoperative and of no effect, but in that case the whole question falls back into its old position and is still a matter of dispute between Ontario and the Dominion. The Dominion cannot hand it over to Manitoba any more than it can give a portion of Quebec to New Brunswick. It first has to establish its own right to the territory before it can dispose of it. But this is absolutely no question, in law and equity, that it belongs to Ontario. (Brandon Man. Sun.)

Heavy Hail Storm.

Greenwood, Aug. 6.—A terrible hail, rain, and wind storm visited this place on Thursday, 2nd instant, causing fearful destruction all along the course it took. It appeared to travel in an easterly direction, almost through the centre of the township of Pickering. It covered an area of about two miles in width, completely destroying the most valuable crops of all kinds, and left the fields in a deplorable-looking state, breaking nearly all the glass in the north side of all the residents along its course. It would be difficult to estimate the damage it has done, but many of our best farmers in this vicinity have turned their eyes into many fields of grain, believing it never would be worth sowing. The storm also destroyed all prospects of a good fruit crop, completely stripping the trees. It was more of an ice storm, the hail or ice being of a peculiar shape and very large.

He thinks that the Superb Raspberry is no more superb than some other kinds. Garfield is now being used to push forward second-rate, now fruits. The French word Beurro is applied to 270 names and synonyms of pears which would be quite as intelligible without it.

Dr. Sturtevant of the N. W. Exp. Station tried placing corn-cobs dipped in coal tar among the vines to keep away the striped bug or cucumber beetle. This "noxious substance," he says apparently drove away the greater part of the beetles. Thus, he found 28 beetles on 29 plants of squashes on which no preventive had been used, while on 42 plants about which cobs dipped in the coal tar had been placed, he found but 16 beetles.

Dr. Thurber calls attention to the fact that hogs are fond of Parslane (Parsley) that hens are fond of it and that it is not to be despised as a table vegetable. French gardeners cultivate three kinds, viz: the Green, Golden and the Large-leaved.

A member of the Elmira Farmers' Club, as reported in the Husbandman, says that he cut a field of oats when the grain was in the milk and it was estimated by the one who fed them as worth twice as much as good hay. Mr. Armstrong estimates oats cut green for cattle feeding as worth more for cows in milk than any other fodder. Cattle and horses eat the whole—the last bit of straw and it imparts color to butter the same as it takes from fresh pastures.

Vanderbilt's "Story." The following anecdote is told of the Commodore Vanderbilt:—At Saratoga, on one occasion, when sitting on the piazza of a hotel, a somewhat overdressed lady approached and claimed his acquaintance. The Commodore arose and "like a affably with her, while his wife and daughter smiled at the white scorn."

"Father," said the young lady, as the Commodore resumed his seat, "don't you remember that vulgar Mrs. B.—as the woman who used to sell poulton to me at home?" "Ce. ain't," responded the old gentleman promptly, "and I remember your mother when she used to sell root beer at three cents a glass over in Jersey, when I went up there from Staten Island peddling oysters out of my boat."

"With all your big heroes blocking up the doors and windows in your hut, to get out I don't know exactly w' show a man of my size would have."

"And then there was a silence, so deep you might have heard a cough drop, and the little man was troubled no more about the possibility of accidents."

Pat Yourself 'P' P. All hands had been telling the story of what they had done and done with the exception of one little man, who had listened attentively to the narratives, and took them all in without a word.

"Ever been in an accident?" asked the patriarch of the party, noticing the little man's silence.

"No," replied the little man quietly. "Then you have no idea of what you would do in the 'accas?" continued the patriarch.

"No; I don't," replied the man, sadly. "With all your big heroes blocking up the doors and windows in your hut, to get out I don't know exactly w' show a man of my size would have."

And then there was a silence, so deep you might have heard a cough drop, and the little man was troubled no more about the possibility of accidents."

FROM MR. MACKENZIE

His Opinion of Some Continental Cities. The Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, M.P., under date of June 17th, writes the following letter from Venice to Mr. Badgerow, M.P.P. at Toronto:

As you will see from the heading, I write from the old, old sea city of Venice, where I arrived last night from Rome and Florence, I often longed to see Rome and Italy and the Holy Land—the former I have now hurriedly seen, the latter it is unlikely I shall ever see. We travelled via Paris where we spent a week to Turin by the Mount Cania Tunnel. Thence by Genoa and Pisa to Rome, where we spent three days only (I wish we could have made it weeks); its gorgeous churches and palaces, the grand structures of the Coliseum and Pantheon (the latter now a church), though in ruins bear testimony to the grandeur of the architectural art of the ancients. Of comparatively modern architecture, of course, St. Peter's eclipses everything. The vast structure is wonderful in its perfect beauty as in its size. It is impossible to look at it, be you Protestant or Catholic, without a feeling of reverence filling the mind. The greatest of all Christian temples, it competes wonderfully with the finest of the old classic temples of heathen Rome and Greece. I would never tire looking at Roman architecture. I was only sorry I did not read Roman history once more before leaving home. The Tiber is a dirty puddle, full of slime and mud; the city itself full of evil smells which are sickening. In this respect Florence and Venice are cleanliness itself. Compared to Rome, Florence is beautifully situated on the Arno in a broad, beautiful valley, while the hillsides are covered with vineyards and fine villas, amidst which the finest possible roads are built. Every city, however, has good roads here. Toronto would compare with the meanest of them in roads and streets, only the yells of gondoliers as they meet and pass. It is a curious, though anticipated, change here to be met at the station by gondolas to convey us to the hotel. We sailed through narrow streets for a mile and landed on the footstep of our hotel as if landing on a wharf. No horse or donkey carts, no rattle of wheels or carriages is heard, only the yells of gondoliers as they meet and pass. From the windows of our bedroom we look down on a canal; another is on the other side. At one side there is a wide street eighteen feet; radiating from this are streets of seven, six, and even five feet wide. These narrow streets, many of them really very good. One Grand Square (all land) is two minutes' walk or sail from the hotel. Here stands the fine old cathedral built in the sixth century, the Doges' and King's Palaces, near which stands the old State Prison, and between the Doges' Palace and the well-known Bridge of Sighs. We will have an evening on Italy when I return. We leave for Milan to-morrow, and thence on Tuesday for Switzerland over the Alps. I hope to reach London by the 3rd of July, and Edinburgh by the 10th. I have not yet seen the papers at Interlachen on Saturday next, and hear what you are all doing.

The Greek Language. Charles Francis Adams' account of how easy he found it to forget the Greek language, and how little use he found it practicable after he got out of college—"I am obliged to say I have now forgotten the Greek alphabet; I cannot read it."

The Greek characters I open my Homer—reminds the speaker of a popular legend about his own college days, which was put up by the way of the "Terror Society in dialogue form, and ran something like this:—

Freshman, surprised—"You? Why I didn't think it very hard."

Freshman, admiringly—"Didn't you? Well, it seems very hard to me (sighs)."

Senior—"Oh! well, that was awful hard."

A Dish of Young Potatoes.

After removing the skin from young potatoes, wash them well and put them in a steamer; cover closely and boil over a kettle of boiling water to steam till done. Bring to a boil a sufficient quantity of cream or milk, whichever is preferred for gravy, stir in a pinch of flour, add the desired amount of salt, pepper and butter. Heat the dish they are to be served in by dipping it in hot water. Put the steamed potatoes in it, and turn the gravy over them. They are more sweet and mealy than when cooked in water. Old potatoes, also, are better steamed, than washed and seasoned; while I much prefer corn in the steamer. The steamed potatoes which has been boiled in water. There are a number of vegetables which preserve their flavor better when steamed; and it is frequently convenient in harvest time when kettles and stove-room are scarce, as steamed can be placed over kettles containing meat, or other vegetables.

What He Missed. "Boy," said an excursionist to a boot-black at the postoffice yesterday, "are there any sights worth seeing near here?"

"Not this afternoon, as I kin think on," was the reply, "but you missed an awful big thing this forenoon."

"What was that?" "Woman passed a bogus quarter on a man up here. Man passed a green watch on the woman. Both found it about the same time, and it was 'nuff to make your blood run cold. She called him a gentleman, and he called her a lady and she busted the green melon on the floor, and he flung the bogus quarter at a dog, and a horse ran away, and two boys had a fight, and the woman cried, and it was the awfulest time we ever saw. Next time you are coming on a 'cursion you'd better telegraph me and see if there's anything big going on."

Fun and Fancy.

An absent-minded editor wrote a love-letter and an editorial at the same time. The love letter he sent out to be set up in the type by the printer, and a long editorial on "Taxi" to his girl. There was fun at both ends of the route.

Judge Ritchie, of Frederick, Md., has sixteen beautiful and accomplished daughters only one of whom is married. This is what the French would call an embarrassment of Richies.

"Are you any relation to my sister?" He blushed and stammered until the young lady, taking pity on him, solved the matter by saying: "No, but he'd like to be. Wouldn't you, Al?"

A Rockville, Conn., young lady who was examining some hats in one of the millinery shops there lately, innocently inquired: "Do the crushed-strawberry hats have the odour of the fruit?"

There is a girl up in Vallejo who has two fellows who come to see her night after night, and she calls them her pair of slays.

"Yes," said the father, "I like to have my daughter have a beau on the score of economy. If she didn't some of the family would occupy the parlor and burn the gas."

A Western fable-fabricator tells how an old sheep escaped from a drove that was passing through the city the other day, and strayed in to a dry goods store. He walked straight up to a big printed card, "All Wool," examined carefully the fabrics against which it hung, and turning away with a countenance expressive of profound sorrow and intense disgust, walked down to the Mississippi River and drowned himself.

"Dear me!" exclaimed a city girl who visited a dairy for the first time, "what queer looking stuff it is. Is looks just like yellow paint. What is it?" "Why, that's cream on top of the milk, sis," said the dairymaid. "Is that so?" she asked in astonishment. "Why, the cream I use always comes in boxes and has a label, so we can tell what it is." The farmer sat right down on the stone floor and fanned himself with a milk pan.

Quite a plain expression of opinion appears in the following anecdote: A lady once requested Rowland Hill to examine her son as a candidate for the ministry, remarking: "I am sure he has a talent but it is hid in a napkin." At the close of the interview with the young man Mr. Hill remarked: "Well, madam, I have shaken the napkin, but I cannot find the talent."

Words of Wisdom.

Great things are not accomplished by idle dreams, but by years of patient study.

They that do nothing are in the readiest way to do that which is worse than nothing.

Be happy if you can, but do not deny those who are otherwise, for you know not their troubles.

Every person has two educations—one which he receives from others and one more important which he gives himself.

It many times falls out that we desert ourselves much deceived by others because we first deceived ourselves.

He who is false to present duty breaks a thread in the loom, and will find the flaw when he may have forgotten its cause.

If you are going to do a good thing, do it now; if you are going to do a mean thing, wait till to-morrow.

A settlement Wanted.

The boundary dispute has been productive of an immense amount of talk and fuss and unseemly squabbling. The people, not Ontario alone, but of the whole Dominion, are becoming heartily sick of all this sort of thing.

It is now nearly five years since the award was made; and from that time to the present the politicians have been kicking the boundary question about like a football, without advancing one step towards its settlement, until Mr. Mowat the other day boldly took possession.

In taking this course we are convinced that he has the overwhelming support of the right-thinking people of Ontario, notwithstanding the senseless—not to say unpatriotic—vamping of a few reckless partizan affects, fitly generalised by the Mail.

Their efforts to inflame the public by exaggerated and untruthful accounts of the Post Office disturbances, by describing the Ontario constables as Mowat's ruffians and Mowat's lambs, and by representing Mr. Mowat as the patron and associate of low whisky sellers, rowdies, bummers, and hard characters generally, will have no other effect than to make themselves look childish and ridiculous.

Does any sensible man—do any of these writers themselves—for a moment seriously believe these accusations? If true, they would be sufficient to drive Mr. Mowat in disgrace of political life, but out of decent society. To say that Mr. Mowat's only motive is to influence voters in the coming Algoma election is just what one party is always saying of any public act of the other, and may be taken for what it is worth.

He Looked It Up.

Smith had been ill with a fever. Two of his townsmen meeting in the street, said one:

"How is Smith? Is he going to get well?"

"I hear that he is convalescing," replied the other.

"The deuce he is?" exclaimed the first one; "poor fellow! then I suppose he is all up with him."

Then he rushed home to search his dictionary to see what convalescing was. When he found out he shut the book with a bang, scowled, and called somebody or other all sorts of fools.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

A Young Man Shot Through The Heart in Toronto.

The Murderer Attempts to Shoot a Policeman who Arrests Him.

About half-past eleven on Tuesday night a tragedy was enacted on York street, which resulted in the death of James Maroney, a bus driver.

JAMES MARONEY, THE MURDERED MAN, resided with his widowed mother, of whom he was the sole support, at 59 Pearl street.

An explosion followed. Maroney let go his hold of Andrews and started to stagger across the street faintly calling out, "I'm shot, he has done me sure."

The following communication was received from A. McD. Allan, and explains itself: Goderich, July 30, 1883.

THE MURDERER'S HAND, and the strong arms of Policeman Cuddy held him like a vice.

WHO THE MURDERER IS. TORONTO, Aug. 8.—The murderer, Chas. Andrews, alias Morgan, was brought up in the Police court this morning.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM LYNCHING. The inquest on the murdered man Maroney was held to-night at the Wilson Hotel, near where the murder was committed.

THE INQUEST. The companions of deceased Maroney showed that the quarrel arose from the refusal of the murdered man and his two friends to take a drink with Andrews.

Councillor Murray drew the attention of the council to a complaint made by Geo. Graham that his cellar had been flooded, owing to changes recently made in corporation drains in that vicinity.

Harrison a Temperance President.

A Pennsylvania lady tells that when General Harrison was running for president he stopped at the old Washington House in Chester for dinner.

Again he was urged to join in a glass of wine. This was too much. He rose from the table, his tall form erect, and in the most dignified manner replied:—

"Gentlemen, I have refused twice to partake of the wine cup. That should have been sufficient. Though you press the cups to my lips, not a drop shall pass the portals. I made a resolve when I started in life that I would avoid strong drink, and I have never broken it. I am one of a class of seventeen young men who graduated, and the other sixteen filled drunkards' graves—all through the pernicious habit of wine drinking. I owe all my health, happiness and prosperity to that resolution. Will you urge me now?"

Probably few knew what a temperance president we had during the few days in which General Harrison filled the chair of State.—American Exchange.
