P. A.'s a double header!
 Jammed in a jimmy pipe Prince Albert is the best tobacco you or any other man ever did fire up!
 Rolled into a makin's cigarette Prince Albert will lick the tar out of any other tobacco—bar none—that ever sold across a counter!
 Your next move is to prove out this kind of language. Just slip into the next store and get a tidy red tin of

PRINCE ALBERT
the inter-national joy smoke

We staked three years and a fortune to perfect a patented process that produces in Prince Albert the most wonderful pipe and cigarette tobacco ever known!

Listen: That patented process has absolutely revolutionized the manufacture of smoking tobacco. P. A. can't bite your tongue and it can't parch your throat. All you got to do to get the question off your mind, quick-like, is to try it out and then compare it, puff for puff with any tobacco you ever smoked or heard about!

Prince Albert is the largest seller in the United States. It is now being imported into Newfoundland and is sold by all the leading dealers in one-eighth-pound tidy red tins.

"No!" came from trembling lips. Mr. Selby paused. He knew that he was going to reveal a story of sin and shame, but he could not help himself; his client's life was at stake, and the truth must be extracted from her.

"You were not rich enough to own a house: who took it for you?" She covered her face with her hands and drooped in the box as if weighed down with shame.

"Oh, I need not answer, I need not tell!" she moaned.

"You must answer," he said, rather sternly. "You lived in this house at St. John's Wood as the mistress; who was the—master?"

There was a profound silence, broken only by the breathing of the excited crowd.

"Come," said Mr. Selby, "tell us quickly. The sooner you answer the sooner you will be allowed to go. Wait! If their worship will permit you shall write the name of the gentleman who took the house for you."

The magistrates conferred a moment, then Lord Saintsbury said: "We think that will be sufficient."

The clerk took a piece of paper to the box and put a pen in the shaking hand, and Fanny, after a glance towards that end of the bench where Mr. Talbot Denby sat, wrote a name. The clerk took the paper from her and handed it to Mr. Selby.

He did not start as he read the name, did not look up for a moment, but his eyes glinted as they had done when Fanny mentioned "St. John's Wood," and his lips tightened. He stood for quite a minute, his eyes fixed on the paper, then he handed it up to the bench. The magistrates' heads drew together over the paper, they exchanged glances, and their eyes were directed, as if by one impulse, to Mr. Talbot Denby. Not a word was spoken for a moment or two, then Mr. Selby said in a grave voice: "You swear that this is the name of the gentleman?"

Fanny inclined her head.

"Why did you leave St. John's Wood?" asked Mr. Selby.

Her face worked and her voice was broken by sobs.

"We—we quarrelled. He—he told me he was tired of me, and—and I went. He offered me money, but I wouldn't take it. I had some, and I—took a room in the coffee house where they found me. Oh, I've told you all! Let me go, please, please let me go! Mr. Talbot knows it's the truth!"

The Earl's Son;

TWO HEARTS UNITED.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Presently Ralph came in with a couple of constables by his side. He was pale, but perfectly self-possessed, and he looked round the crowded place with composure until his eyes rested on the figure in the chair below the bench; then, for a moment, his calm broke up, a look of tenderness and pity shone in his eyes, and his lips quivered. It was for a moment only; the next, he was calm and self-possessed again, and he stood with folded arms and head erect with an air of patient attention.

"Yes! He's like the earl!" ran round the packed crowd. "He holds himself like his lordship; and look at his eyes and mouth, they're the very same exactly, and no one can deny it!"

Talbot, from his seat beside the earl, heard the various murmurs, and his sallow face grew still more sallow.

The usual formal evidence was produced, then Inspector Grey said: "I will now call the witness who saw the prisoner on the night of the murder. Fanny Mason!"

Talbot started slightly, but controlled his emotion, and forced his face into an expression of grave interest only.

"Fanny Mason!" echoed the usher. There was a stir in the Court, then an intense silence, as Fanny was conducted by a policeman to the witness-box.

CHAPTER XXX.

A murmur ran round the Court as Fanny, with bent head, stepped into the box. What happened to the girl? The crowd asked one another, mutely. She was not only pale—that was only to be expected—but was thin and worn and haggard, and she was shabbily dressed, she who had always been so neat and spruce! And why did she hang her head after the one shameful glance around?

In that glance her eyes had met Talbot Denby's, but though there had been a half-pleading, assuring expression in his, hers remained sullen and woe-begone. A spasm of apprehension ran through Talbot, but he told himself that he had nothing to fear: for her own sake she would keep silent as to her connection with him. And he would see her after the examination, give her money, bribe her to remain silent.

She answered the questions put to her by the prosecuting counsel in a low voice and with a piteous glance at Ralph's stern face, as if she wished him to know that she was giving her evidence reluctantly. She told the Court how she had seen him and the deceased together on the night of the murder and had heard them quarrelling, and turned to leave the box, when Mr. Selby rose and stopped her with a gesture.

"One moment," he said in quite a kindly manner. "I want to ask you a few questions. Take your time and answer carefully. You know that this gentleman—he inclined his head towards Ralph—is charged with wilful murder, that a coroner's inquest has found him guilty, that he may be committed for trial, and that—but no, I do not think he will be found guilty; but what I want you to realise is that your evidence is of the greatest moment, and that, therefore, you will speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

"I—I have spoken the truth," she said, almost inaudibly.

"I know you have," he said, quite quietly; "and I ask you, I charge you, to continue doing so. Now—pray be calm; I will not distress you more than I can help"—for Fanny trembled so much that everyone could see her shaking as she held the edge of the box—"now, the detective who was sent to find you found you staying at a coffee house. You were not in a situation?"

"No, sir."

Talbot, who had listened with an unmoved face, stirred in his seat to attract her attention and shot a warning glance at her.

"Why did you leave your situation—the one you went up from here to fill?"

"I—I was not happy; I did not like it," she answered in a low voice.

"Try to speak a little louder," said Mr. Selby, encouragingly. "You have nothing to fear—while you speak the truth, the whole truth, you know. Where was that situation?"

"In—in St. John's Wood," came the reply, still audibly.

Mr. Selby's eyes glinted, and he scanned her keenly.

"St. John's Wood," he said, very softly and soothingly. "What was the address and the name of your mistress?"

Fanny's lips twitched and she raised her eyes appealingly to the bench.

"Am I obliged—must I answer?" she asked, piteously. "I've told all I know, and sorry I am to have to tell it. I—I wouldn't do Mr. Ralph an injury, he knows I wouldn't! He was always kind to me—oh, I wish I'd never gone! Must I answer?"

"You must answer," said Lord Saintsbury, gravely.

"Yes; why should you be afraid?" said Mr. Selby, gently.

She gave him the name of the house, then faltered and paused.

"The name of the mistress?" asked Mr. Selby, gravely.

"There—there was none," she said at last. "I—I—it was my own house—it was not a situation."

There was a stir in the court, and the people looked from one to the other in surprise and dawning suspicion. Talbot glanced towards the magistrates' entrance as if the idea of escape had flashed across his mind, but he checked it and sat motionless, his sallow face set in an impassive calm.

"So you did not go to a situation. Did you tell your people that you were going to a house of your own?"

Volunteers for Service

At last night's meeting thirty volunteers including six nursing sisters, offered themselves for the Home Service. Sixteen of these signified their intention of volunteering to go abroad as well. A new division was formed, and the following officers were appointed:

Chairman—J. C. Morris.
Secretary—D. M. Baird.
Treasurer—Hugh Miller.
Inspector of Stores—John Robertson.

The new division together with the other two will meet to-night at 8 o'clock. A class of ladies who have passed in First Aid will meet to-night at Government House for their first lecture in Home Nursing which will be delivered by Dr. Chater of H.M.S. Calypso, with a view to forming another division of the ladies' branch. The following is a copy of the pledge of service signed by those who undertake to serve as ambulance workers:

PROCLAMATION!

His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to direct that the following Order in Council of His Majesty the King in Council, with reference to the application to this Colony of the procedure respecting the treatment of neutral and enemy merchant ships in time of war, shall come into effect on the date hereof.

JOHN R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary,
Dept. of the Colonial Secretary, 4th August, 1914.

AT THE COURT OF BUCKINGHAM PALACE THE 4TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1914.

His Majesty being mindful, now that a state of war exists between this country and Germany, of the recognition accorded to the practice of granting "days of grace" to enemy merchant ships by the Convention relative to the Status of Enemy Merchant Ships at the Outbreak of Hostilities, signed at The Hague, on the 18th October, 1907, and being desirous of lessening, so far as may be practicable, the injury caused by war to peaceful and unsuspecting commerce, is pleased, and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows:—

1. From and after the publication of this Order no enemy merchant ship shall be allowed to depart, except in accordance with the provisions of this Order, from any British port or from any ports in any Native States in India, or in any of His Majesty's Protectorates, or in any State under His Majesty's protection or in Cyprus.

2. In the event of information reaching one of our Principal Secretaries of State not later than midnight on Friday, the Seventh day of August, that the treatment accorded to British merchant ships and their cargoes which at the date of the outbreak of hostilities were in the ports of the enemy, or which subsequently entered them, is, in his opinion, not less favourable than the treatment accorded to enemy Merchant Ships by Articles 3 to 7 of this Order, he shall notify the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury and the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty accordingly, and the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury shall forthwith give public notice thereof in the "Gazette" and Articles 3 to 8 of this Order shall thereupon come into full force and effect.

3. Subject to the provisions of this Order, enemy merchant ships which—
(i) At the date of the outbreak of hostilities were in any port in which this Order applies; or
(ii) Cleared from their last port before the declaration of war, and, after the outbreak of hostilities, enter a port to which this Order applies, with no knowledge of the war;

shall be allowed up till midnight (Greenwich mean time), on Friday, the 14th of August, for loading or unloading their cargoes, and for departing from such port:

PROVIDED that such vessels shall not be allowed to ship any contraband of war, and any contraband of war already shipped on such vessels must be discharged.

4. Enemy merchant ships which cleared from their last port before the declaration of war, and which with no knowledge of the war arrive at a port to which this Order applies after the expiry of the time allowed by Article 3 for loading or unloading cargo and for departing, and are permitted to enter, may be required to depart either immediately, or within such time as may be considered necessary by the Customs Officer of the port for the unloading of such cargo as they may be required or specially permitted to discharge.

PROVIDED that such vessels may, as a condition of being allowed to discharge cargo, be required to proceed to any other specified British port, and shall there be allowed such time for discharge as the Customs Officer of that port may consider necessary.

PROVIDED, also, that if any cargo on board such vessel is contraband of war or is requisitioned under Article 3 of this Order, she may be required before departure to discharge such cargo within such time as the Customs Officer of the port may consider to be necessary; or she may be required to proceed, if necessary, under escort, to any other of the ports specified in Article 1 of this Order, and shall there discharge the contraband under the like conditions.

5. His Majesty reserves the right recognized by the said Convention to requisition at any time subject to payment of compensation, enemy cargo on board any vessel to which Articles 3 and 4 of this Order apply.

6. The privileges accorded by Articles 2 and 3 are not to extend to cable ships or to sea-going ships designed to carry oil fuel, or to ships whose tonnage exceeds 3,000 tons gross, or whose speed is 14 knots or over, regarding which the entries in Lloyd's Register shall be conclusive for the purposes of this Article. Such vessels will remain liable on adjudication by the Prize Court to detention during the period of the war, or to confiscation, in accordance, in either case, with the Convention aforesaid. The said privileges will also not extend to merchant ships which show by their build, that they are fitted out for conversion into warships, as such vessels are outside the scope of the said Convention, and are liable on adjudication by the Prize Court to condemnation as prize.

7. Enemy merchant ships allowed to depart under Articles 3 and 4 will be provided with a pass indicating the port to which they are to proceed, and the route they are to follow.

8. A merchant ship which, after receipt of such a pass, does not follow the course indicated therein, will be liable to capture.

9. If no information reaches one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State by the day and hour aforesaid to the effect that the treatment accorded to British merchant ships and their cargoes which were in the ports of the enemy at the date of the outbreak of hostilities, or which subsequently entered them, is, in his opinion, not less favourable than that accorded to enemy merchant ships by Articles 3 to 8 of this Order, every enemy merchant ship which, on the outbreak of hostilities, was in any port to which this Order applies, and also every enemy merchant ship which cleared from its last port before the declaration of war, but which, with no knowledge of the war, enters a port to which this Order applies, shall, together with the cargo on board thereof, be liable to capture, and shall be brought before the Prize Court forthwith for adjudication.

10. In the event of information reaching one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State that British merchant ships which cleared from their last port before the declaration of war, but are met with by the enemy at sea after the outbreak of hostilities, are allowed to continue their voyage without interference with either the ship or the cargo, or after cargoes are released with or without proceedings for adjudication in the Prize Court (or are to be detained during the war, or requisitioned, in lieu of condemnation as prize), he shall notify the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty accordingly, and shall publish a notification thereof in the "Gazette," and in that event, but not otherwise, enemy merchant ships which cleared from their last port before the declaration of war, and are captured after the outbreak of hostilities and brought before the Prize Courts for adjudication, shall be released (or detained or requisitioned), in such cases and upon such terms as may be directed in the said notification in the "Gazette."

11. Neutral cargo, other than contraband of war, on board an enemy merchant ship which is not allowed to depart from a port to which this Order applies, shall be released.

12. In accordance with the provisions of Chapter III of the Convention relative to certain restrictions on the Exercise of the Right of Capture in Maritime War, signed at The Hague on the 18th October, 1907, an undertaking must, whether the merchant ship is allowed to depart or not, be given in writing by each of the officers and members of the crew of such vessel, who is of enemy nationality, that he will not, after the conclusion of the voyage for which the pass is issued, engage while hostilities last in any service connected with the operation of the war. If any such officer is of neutral nationality, an undertaking must be given in writing that he will not serve, after the conclusion of the voyage for which the pass is issued, on any enemy ship while hostilities last. No undertaking is to be required from members of the crew who are of neutral nationality.

Officers or members of the crew declining to give the undertakings required by this Article will be detained as prisoners of war.

And the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, and each of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and all Governors, Officers, and authorities whom it may concern are to give the necessary directions hereinafter to them may respectively appertain.

PROCLAMATION.
By His Excellency Sir Walter Edward Davidson, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief, in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its Dependencies.

AND WHEREAS, by and with the advice of my Council, I, the Governor, deem it expedient and necessary that I should exercise such power of prohibition in manner hereinafter appearing:

Now, therefore, I, by and with the advice aforesaid, do hereby order and direct that from and after the date hereof the following goods, being articles which I have judged capable of being converted into or made useful in increasing the quantity of military or naval stores, that is to say:—

At Argenteau a group of German staff officers accompanied by a small detachment of troops, were surprised to-day by a small force of Belgians who were literally cut in pieces.

Two disguised German officers were arrested to-day at Ostend. They had in their possession extensive military notes and plans of great value. They will be shot.

The Bank of England to-day reduced discount rate to 6 per cent.

There are persistent reports that three German cruisers are lying off the New England Coast.

Neither Great Britain nor Austria has declared war on the other as yet, and the Austrian Ambassador has received no instructions to leave London.

England, it is said, is intent upon destroying the Kiel Canal, which is now protected. A further despatch says that several German steamers, anchored at Hull, England, were seized as prizes by the British authorities. Their crews of naval reservists are prisoners of war. Further news of a set-back to German naval activities is that a British warship has seized the German bark Perkeo, which sailed from New York on July 18th for Hamburg. She was towed into Dover.

The outcome of a naval battle between the German and British fleets off Hull is anxiously awaited here.

The Allan liner Victorian with 600 French reservists on board, was expected to leave for France last night, but is still in port to-day awaiting orders. It is understood she will only leave in about ten days time, when the Caroline of the General French transatlantic line leaves with a large detachment of French reservists. The Caroline will go to Montreal for a batch of French reservists, who are waiting transportation to fall into the ranks.—Daily News.

Shipping Disasters Foretold by Dreams.

Startling Omens and Coincidences.
"The dream haunted me all the day, and when it became known that they had actually sailed on the Empress the news quite unnerved me, as I felt certain that it was a message that the young actor and his wife had perished."

A few hours later Mr. A. B. Tapping, stage-manager of the Kingsway Theatre, London, learnt the awful truth that among the passengers who went down with the ill-fated Empress of Ireland were Mr. Laurence Irving and his wife.

The dream which foreshadowed the death of the popular actor was an extraordinary one. Mr. Tapping, who is touring the provinces with a company playing the drama, "The Great Adventure," was at Sheffield, when Mr. Laurence Irving appeared before him in a vision during the early hours of Friday morning, just about the time when the liner went down. Mr. Tapping thought that he saw a room—which he afterwards identified from a picture as the saloon of the Empress of Ireland—the late Sir Henry Irving and Mr. Laurence Irving, together with a number of other people. Sir Henry was dying, and suddenly disappeared as though death had claimed him. The people then began to leave the room, and Laurence Irving walked mournfully and quietly with them. "There was no farewell," says Mr. Tapping, "from Mr. Laurence Irving, whose call to go seemed to come suddenly and unexpectedly."

The dream made such an impression on Mr. Tapping's mind that he told it to various members of the company next day, and remarked to his wife, when he heard that the Empress of Ireland had gone down, that he hoped Laurence Irving and his wife were not on board. The hope, alas! was not fulfilled.

This incident provides but another illustration of these inexplicable premonitions which have from time to time been associated with terrible sea tragedies. Three weeks ago when the third boat of the burned steamer Columbian, which had drifted about for a fortnight with eleven men in her, the majority of whom died raving madmen through agonies of thirst and hunger, was picked up, Robert Tiers, the Columbian second officer, one of the survivors in the boat, told an extraordinary story. One of the men who died in the boat was named Prieto, and he had a dream before he left on the last voyage of the Columbian that the ship would burn and he would die after being fourteen days in a boat.

"He told this to us again and again while we were adrift," said Mr. Tiers, "and, doubt it if you will, he assured us that we would be rescued on the fourteenth day. That gave us a little encouragement, although when he died we felt there was no hope left. His dream came true, and it was on the fourteenth day that we saw the Seneca, the American revenue cutter, which rescued us from our terrible predicament."

It has sometimes happened that dreams have prevented people from sailing in ships which have been lost. There was the notable case of a passenger on the Waratah, the vessel which, on her second voyage, mysteriously disappeared in September, 1909, and has never been heard of since. This passenger said that he had a warning vision in which a man dressed in a very peculiar costume which he had never seen before, with a long sword in his right hand, appeared three times in rapid suc-

Dizzy Headaches Cured in One Night.

Quick Relief and Certain Cure Came From Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away, and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set me wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleaning remedy I would still be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. I was cured and made strong, ruddy, and healthy, and will always use and recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

"MRS. B. C. CURRAN,

Thousands who are in an ailing, low state of health need nothing else but Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or the Catarhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

and he was so much impressed with the vision that he left the vessel at Durban, from which point the ship continued on her ill-fated voyage.

Even more extraordinary, perhaps, was the confession made by the Hon. J. C. Middleton, Vice-President of the Akron-Canton Railway, Ohio, in connection with the sinking of the Titanic. Mr. Middleton actually booked a cabin in the Titanic on March 23rd, 1912.

"I felt," he said, "unaccountably depressed at the time, and on April 3rd dreamt that I saw the Titanic capsizing in mid-ocean and a lot of passengers struggling in the water. The following night I dreamt exactly the same dream."

Mr. Middleton told the dream to his friends ten days before the awful tragedy, a fact which is vouched for by several well-known people. So great an impression had the vision on Mr. Middleton's mind that he ultimately cancelled his passage.

Scores of other cases of dreams which have foretold shipping disasters might be cited, but the majority of these seem to lack authenticity. It is an extraordinary fact, however, that coincidences seem to surround disasters at sea. For instance, the latest disaster occurred at the same place at which another ship was previously run down by the sister ship of the Empress of Ireland, the Empress of Britain, and on the same day on which there was brought to Liverpool for inspection by the Finance Committee a model of the monument which is to be erected to the memory of the heroes of the engine-room on the Titanic.

Exactly at the time of the wreck of the Titanic in April, 1912, the horse White Star was the horse of the year and the favorite for the Two Thousand Guineas and the Derby. It was extraordinary also that Mr. W. T. Stead, who went down when the vessel struck the iceberg, had, twenty years before, written a novel describing a voyage across the Atlantic. An incident in this novel described how a passenger upon the vessel had a presentiment that a friend of his was wrecked and adrift on an iceberg. He induced the captain to alter the course and found that his presentiment was true.

The Loom of Time.

Man's life is laid in the loom of time
To a pattern he does not see,
While the weaver works and the shuttles fly!

Till the dawn of eternity,
Some shuttles are filled with silver thread,

And some with threads of gold;
While often but the darker hue
Is all that they may hold.

But the weaver watches with skillful eye
Each shuttle to and fro,
And sees the pattern so deftly wrought

As the loom moves sure and slow,
God surely planned the pattern—

Each thread, the dark and fair,
Is chosen by His master skill,
And placed in the web with care.
He only knows its beauty,

And guides the shuttles which hold
The threads so unattractive,
As well as the threads of gold,
Not till each loom is silent,
And the shuttles cease to fly,
Shall God unroll the pattern

And explain the reason why
The dark threads were as needful
In the weaver's skillful hand,
As the threads of gold and silver
For the pattern which he planned.

TWO GERMAN WARSHIPS CAPTURED.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, Aug. 6.
The third torpedo boat flotilla of the British fleet captured two German warships during the fighting which took place in the North Sea yesterday, when the mine-laying ship Koenigin was sunk. The wounded from this fight have already been landed at Harwich, which is on the east coast of the North Thames Estuary. Harwich has been turned into an armed camp. It is reported that a big naval engagement is anticipated in the North Sea shortly.

GERMAN MINE LAYER SUNK.

LONDON, Aug. 6.
The report that two German warships were sunk in the British Channel and one captured in an engagement in the North Sea by a British Squadron, has been followed by the official announcement that the British Cruiser Amphion sunk the Hamburg-American liner Koenigin Luise, equipped with mine laying apparatus. This ship is a small river boat and not the North German Lloyd Trans-Atlantic liner of that name.

GOEBEN AND BRESLAU ESCAPE.

ROME, Aug. 6.
A newspaper here publishes the report that the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, which are reported to have been captured by the French, have arrived at San Salvatore, near Messina, Sicily. One of the German officers interviewed, said that while the Breslau was shelling the French naval station at Bona, Algeria, and sinking the ships in the harbour and destroying the castle and some houses, the Goeben bombarded Philippeville further along the coast. He added that the two cruisers were subsequently pursued by the British squadron.

GERMAN ARMY CORPS REPULSED.

LONDON, Aug. 6.
Reports from Brussels to-day, tell of yesterday's battle between the German and Belgian troops at Liege. The German losses were enormous, and an army corps was repulsed. The Germans left 17 machine guns in the field. The battle was renewed at day-break to-day, and was still in progress late this afternoon. The German forces are now said to number nearly 100,000 men, under the command of the Crown Prince in person, aided by several of the highest officers of the General Staff.

KITCHENER ASKS FOR 500,000 SOLDIERS MORE.

LONDON, Aug. 6.
Premier Asquith to-day asked the House of Commons to vote a war credit of $500,000,000 and informed the members that Field Marshal Earl Kitchener wanted power to increase the British Army by 500,000 men. On the new War Minister's behalf the Premier asked the Commons to consent to this. The House unanimously passed the new war credit for the increase in the British Army.

GERMAN APPEAL TO BELGIANS.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 6.
In endeavouring to coerce Belgium into allowing German troops an unimpeded passage through the country, General Von Emmich, commanding the German Army made the following proclamation to the Belgian people:—"To my regret German troops have been forced to cross frontier. Belgian neutrality having already been violated, by French officers who, disguised, have entered the country in automobiles. Our greatest desire is to avoid a conflict with people who have always been friends and once allies. Remember Waterloo, where German armies helped to found your country's inheritance. But Germany must have a free passage. Destruction of bridges or tunnels will be considered hostile acts. We hope that the German Army of the Meuse will not be called upon to fight you, and wish for an open road to attack those who have attacked us. We guarantee that the Belgian population that will have suffered in the hours of war from loss, and will pay for the provisions used, but soldiers will show themselves the best friends of the people, for whom we have the greatest esteem and deepest sympathy. Your prudence and patriotism will show you that it is your duty to prevent your country from being plunged into the horror of war."

GERMANS INVADE HOLLAND.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 6.
The Hollanders are desperately giving battle. The Germans have invaded Dutch soil at Tilburg Eljden. Sveaberg is said to be under bombardment to-day by German warships. It is known as the Gibraltar of the Baltic. Its fortifications are armed with 900 heavy cannons and are defended by about 12,000 men, spread over a chain of seven small islands, connected with bridges. These islands command the entrance to Bay of Helsingfors, the capital of Finland, from which there is railroad communication with St. Petersburg.

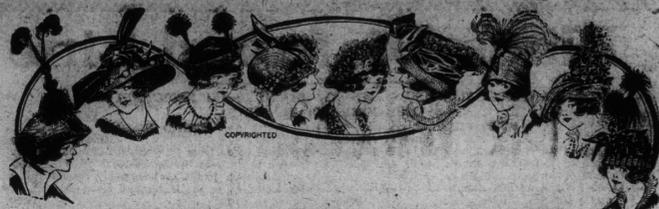

HERO OF FIRST BATTLE.

LONDON, To-day.
The British torpedo boat destroyer Lance was the hero of the first naval engagement in present war, sinking the steamer Koenigin Luise which had been fitted out as a mine layer. The Lance fired only 4 shots, the first destroyed the bridge of the steamer, the third and fourth tore away her stern and the Koenigin Luise sank in six minutes. The Lance rescued 28 Germans of the crew, several of them wounded. The Koenigin Luise was caught in the act of laying mines some 60 miles from Harwich.

GERMANY'S DISHONOURABLE OFFER REPUDIATED.

LONDON, To-day.
In the Commons yesterday afternoon Asquith defended England's course in going to war. In strong language he defended the intervention, denouncing Germany's attempt to bargain with England at the expense of France. It would have been infamous for England to violate treaty obligations. He declared amidst a storm of cheers: "We had pledged our honour and to have refrained from action would have been to say we were no longer capable of keeping our word." Previously the Commons received documents showing Germany had offered to agree not to seize any French territory if England would remain neutral. She was then asked whether the promise would also apply to French Colonies but German Councilors refused to give a favourable reply and Grey wrote: "It would be disgraceful for us to make this bargain at the expense of France, a disgrace from which our country would never recover."

A Patriotic Fund for the Fallen Brave

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—The thoughts of every man amongst us are wholly engaged to-day with the glorious, terrible news of a battle in the North Sea. We have already with one accord and with full hearts sung our Te Deum for the victory. It still remains for us to chant the Requiem for the brave who have fallen in our defence. It would shame us, I think, if while we acclaimed this new triumph of the British arms, we forgot for one moment the dreadful price at which it has been bought. Hundreds, perhaps thousands, have already laid down their lives on the altar of our common country, and we reverently accept the sacrifice. Thousands and thousands more must do the same before this war can cease. But we should ask of no man that he should do any more than give his life for his country. We cannot ask him to offer up wife, mother, children as well. These, the heirs and dependants of the honoured dead, must be the peculiar care of us who sit at home at ease. The National funds cannot avail to save these, the National wards, from the destitution into which the valour and self-sacrifice of husband, father and son have plunged them. They must be the objects, not of the charity, but of the gratitude of their fellow citizens. I have no doubt that His Excellency the Governor will not delay in inaugurating a fund to contribute to the support of the dependants of those of our sailors and soldiers who may lose their lives in this war. I therefore beg that you will accept the enclosed cheque and pay it into such a fund the moment it is established. Yours truly,
HANNO.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the office. An order is received at the office, its history is recorded at the office, and finally payment is received at the office. If the office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.—

Wedding Bells.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smyth, Sr., when their youngest daughter Josephine M. was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. Stuart A. Long, of the Nfld. Express Co. The bride looked charming in a dress of pale blue silk with hat to match and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and carnations. The bride was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Hilda Long, and the groom was ably supported by his brother, Walter, of the Reid Nfld. Co., North Sydney. Following the ceremony a reception was held, after which the happy couple left for Waterford Bridge where they were entrained for Doyles, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and useful presents.

The Nickel Shows.

HOME, SWEET HOME.
The Nickel Theatre has a big treat in store for patrons to-day, when a pathetic story will be presented entitled "Home, Sweet Home." It is a two-reel production, acted by the Lubin artists and is said to be one of their best plays. It is entirely different from any of the great domestic stories ever seen in St. John's before. It has an attraction all its own, and no one should fail to see it. Pillars of Society is a strong social drama which will give every satisfaction. "The Capture of a Wild Cat" is an interesting film, displaying wonderful photography. There are two very laughable comedies "Rule Thyself," and "Cohen's Outing." The weekly matinee with extra pictures takes place to-morrow.

Britannia Still Rules the Waves.

Not for a century has any nation contested Great Britain's primacy on the seas. Trafalgar settled her supremacy there for the Nineteenth century, and the Twentieth Century sees her still supreme, not merely in tonnage, gun power and men, but in seamanship and fighting qualities which gave her fame from the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth down to those of our own good Sailor King. Germany twenty years ago commenced the mad race of enormous armaments at sea, and the old land has strained every nerve to equip her men with fighting platforms and guns which would give them a chance to uphold her on the sea, and keep free that element on which her freedom, independence and existence depends. Reluctantly she accepted the gauntlet thrown down to her by the War Lord of Europe, who was aiming to be the Lord of the Seas. Quietly, determinedly and dogged she entered on the contest which was to decide whether the world was to be forced to see eye to eye with the Kaiser. "If Germany will have it, she shall have it in good measure," said Sir Edward Grey, and Admiral Jellicoe and Admiral Callaghan with their gallant officers and brave seamen have given it to them in the fullest degree. We have obtained a complete and glorious victory at sea. The peril of food starvation at home is gone. The ocean is now free for our traffic. There is no need for paralyzing war freights. Our fish will have a free run for market, and we can rest content and safe. She has honourably carried out her obligation to France and France is now free to concentrate her attention to the land. The cost of Admiralty has been high. Our church bells will toll for the brave that are now no more and who gave their lives that their brethren might be free. Our hearts will send up a prayer of thankfulness to the Almighty who has vouchsafed to us a glorious victory, the greatest and most complete the world has known. Along the line the signal ran—"England expects that every man this day will do his duty," and they did it.

WEATHER—It is calm and fine

Display of Enthusiasm

AT NEWS OF GLORIOUS VICTORY.
When the news of the overwhelming British victory in the North Sea, was spread through the city last night, citizens congregated at every available news centre where intense excitement and deepest enthusiasm prevailed. At the Post Office an immense crowd gathered and gave expression to a general outburst of patriotism. About halfpast ten a large number marched through the streets in processional order, singing patriotic songs and cheering at intervals. They visited Government House, where His Excellency delivered a short but stirring address brimful of patriotism. They then visited the residence of the Premier who also addressed them, and continuing their march proceeded countrywards, and called on the French Consul Sutor. The Consul received them cordially and deeply regretted his inability to express to them his feelings in an adequate manner in the English language. Mr. Bert Tait, however, conveyed the Consul's sentiments to the large gathering, which was the occasion for an outburst of applause and vociferous cheering. Mr. Tait then led the "Marsellaise" and was joined by a chorus of one hundred voices, who though they did not all know the words of the song, were none the less enthusiastic and kept up the strain in an admirable manner. Returning to the city they called at the Daily News Office to learn if any further information had been received. They demanded a speech from Hon. J. A. Robinson, Editor of our esteemed contemporary, who complied with their request.

Incendiary Committed for Trial.

The man Dyke, who set fire to and destroyed Winsor's house and contents at Wesleyville about three months ago has been committed for trial to the Supreme Court. The preliminary hearing of the case was conducted at Greenspond. It will be remembered that following the arrest of the accused he became insane and was placed in the Lunatic Asylum where he remained for several weeks before being released. Dyke will be brought here next week to stand his trial.

DETECTIVE RETURNS.

Detective Tobin, who had been investigating the larceny of the cash box from the railway station at Cape Broyle returned to the city by the Southern Shore train to-day. Up to the present no arrest has been made.

The Old Home.

That is the cottage over there,
With roof of thatch, and growing,
And there's the little window where
I breathed the scent the musk was blowing—
The window where, a child, I dream'd
And life, perhaps, was what it seem'd.
There is the cottage, just the same,
Its ivy mantle clinging tighter,
With still the old familiar name,
Recalling days when life was brighter;
Yet all the charm of Home has fled,
For those I loved within are dead.
It hardly seems so long a span
Since last I saw our cottage home,
But boy has grown to youth and man
And fought his fight beyond the foam,
The while the Reaper claimed his own
And left me in my grief alone.
Now I am back and come to see
The cottage where we used to dwell;
But, as I look, it seems to me
The little nest has lost its spell,
The lattice porch—the dear old name
Unchanged perhaps—yet not the same.

Here and There.

LINTROSE PASSENGERS.—The Lintrose arrived at Port aux Basques at 8.25 a.m. to-day, with the following passengers in saloon: Charles H. and Mrs. Stevenson, Miss M. Gushue, Miss M. Young, H. and Mrs. Adams, A. Ormiston and A. T. Graham.
Miss Myra Tyrrell, of Phoenix, Arizona, eighty years old, died, leaving her beautiful home and her estate of $50,000 to be devoted to a home for stray cats, dogs and other animals. A paragraph of the will reads: "I leave nothing to any person or persons, and leave no debts."
Albert Lumberg, of Niagara Falls, New York found fourteen $100 bills in the pocket of a pair of trousers that had been sent to the dry cleaning establishment by which he is employed. Lumberg returned the money to the man to whom the trousers belonged.

Cool Food for Hot Days

Better health comes with less meat and greasy food during the warm weather.
By proper and pleasant food one can feel cooler than his over-fed neighbor.

Grape-Nuts

and Cream

—some fruit and a soft boiled egg, or two, is sufficient for the hot weather breakfast.

An ordinary portion of Grape-Nuts and cream contains nourishment to sustain one until the noonday meal; and being a partially pre-digested food, it does not overtax the stomach and heat the system as do heavy, greasy foods.

These suggestions, if followed, should show that one can have a cool body, active brain and energy—even in hot weather.

Exposure of the German Army System.

"A pendant to Lieut. Bilse's well-known book describing life in a small garrison town in Germany is published by Retired Captain Pommer, who served for twenty years as an infantry officer in Alsace," says the Daily News' Berlin correspondent.

"Captain Pommer says: 'To maintain discipline amongst German soldiers of the twentieth century methods are employed which may have been unsuitable for feudal armies, but in a modern army must be considered as a mockery of the elementary rights of human beings.'

"He asserts that suicide is frequently the end of barrack martyrdom, raw recruits suffering bullying and torments because they fear that if they protest through the ordinary channels a black mark will be set against their names.

"Captain Pommer describes the vandalism of the aristocratic officers of the cavalry regiments. 'At every farewell dinner of officers of the Cavalry Division at Elsenborn Camp I was witness of their crude love of destruction which wrecked not only all the crockery and glass on the tables, but also the stoves, statues, pictures, tables and chairs.'

"He declares that the moral delinquencies of the officers, which should be punished under the penal code, are hushed up. Officers guilty of grave offences are merely summarily dismissed from the service without being subjected to criminal jurisdiction, the whole object of the procedure being to maintain the halo of the 'officer's honour.' Many officers, Captain Pommer asserts, enjoy brilliant careers, though their superiors are perfectly well aware that they are overloaded with debt. Much of this is caused by excessive luxury and the practical impossibility of married officers living within their means without endangering their promotion.

"The Vossische Zeitung says the book will be discussed in the Reichstag when the next army estimates are presented."

War Correspondents.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Slivash."

A war correspondent is a man who shoulders his lead pencil and goes to war.

The correspondent does not kill large batches of the foe with his pencil. In fact he is not at all fatal. He merely recomposes the army.

This is pleasant, easy work between battles when the army has to drill and do chores while the correspondent sits under the shade of a tree and drinks cool stuff, bought at $1 a pint and charged to his newspaper. Being a war correspondent when the army is not shooting is a delightful job and readily sought after.

But when two armies try to occupy the same place at the same time and the air becomes infested with steel-jacketed bullets to such an extent that many a man whose nose has tickled has suddenly lost the wherewithal to sneeze, the war correspondent's lot is very unpleasant.

It is then the duty of the correspondent to roam about the battlefield, picking up items of news which will be of interest to the folks back home. Those who have tried to track a swarm of hornets, who are looking for the man who smashes their nest will realize to some extent the unpleasantness of strolling around a battlefield.

Many a war correspondent has gone out with light heart and an empty note book and has been brought back with a neat tunnel where his digestive organs once reposed.

War correspondents get very big wages and are also allowed expense accounts. When a correspondent needs an aeroplane or a reconnaissance tug or a hotel in his business, he buys them and has the price charged to his newspaper. Correspondents lead uncertain lives, except when they are at the front with the army or are dodging cannon balls or are being shot by some peevish foreign general as a spy. They get twenty times as much pay as a private. Yet men rush madly into the army to serve as privates and do not envy the correspondents.

This is a great mystery until we reflect that when the soldier is shot at he gets a chance to shoot back.

Thanks to all about all the battles which are fought and also a good deal about great numbers of battles which aren't fought at all.

Aircraft Display.

Professional Flight Before the King.
H.M.S. NIGER, July 20.

The part played by the aircraft in to-day's procession past the King was as successful as it was beautiful to see. Their mother-ship, the torpedo-boat NIGER, Lieutenant-Commander A. T. Muir, from which I have again been privileged to view the proceedings, was anchored due west of the Warner lightship, so that the procession passed us and continued several miles farther before it came to the Royal Yacht.

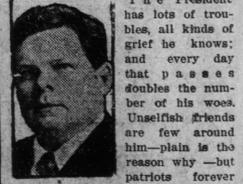

The first sign of activity in the air was the sight of the Maurice Farman, which at 10.25, signalled by wireless to Calshot the departure of the last ship from Spithead. The seaplanes were prompt to answer the call. Twenty minutes later came the first of them, two 160-h.p. Shorts, flying at 1,500ft. A whole string of machines followed, until by 11.15 one could count a dozen in the air over the ships. Sixteen altogether came by—three 160-h.p. Shorts, four 100-h.p. Shorts, four 120-h.p. Henry Farman, Three 100-h.p. Maurice Farman, one 100-h.p. Sopwith, and the 90 h.p. Sopwith "Batboat." The air was full of a hum as of distant threshing machines.

They sped past us to the presence of the King. On reaching the Royal Yacht some few over her, others, banking sharply, swung round to the westward in a wide circuit. Presently they began to return travelling home down wind at a speed of 80 miles an hour, while the gunboats forming the rear of the procession continued outwards at 11 knots to two seaplanes, and two only failed to accomplish their mission, involving as it did, a flight of some 50 miles. One of the leading Shorts alighted before reaching the Royal Yacht. Another came down near us on the way back. Torpedo-boats were quickly standing by, though there was not the least reason to be anxious for anyone's safety, and soon they were being towed home at a comfortable 10 knots. In the one case "comfortable 10 knots," the big bear of the present-day pilot, in the other a broken petrol pipe, had been the cause of the incident.

An Officer's Exploit.

Then came the turn of the naval aeroplanes. At 11.20 the same three machines whose station-keeping had delighted us on Saturday—an 80-h.p. Sopwith leading, with two B.E.'s behind in wedge-formation—came over from Hilsca at about 2,000 feet. On reaching the Royal Yacht, Wing Commander Samson, on one of the B.E.'s, fell back, while his companions went on, and descended in a steep spiral as you could wish to see, dropping meanwhile some kind of smoky projectile. Then, swerving aloft again, he joined the others, returning home beneath a second party who were just coming out. These were an 80-h.p. Bristol, a 50-h.p. Avro, and a 50-h.p. Short, and they were being various evolutions while the Royal Yacht was preparing to go out to sea. When one remembers that these were all ordinary land machines, flying miles out over the water, the sporting character of the proceedings will be obvious. In its perfect surroundings, bright sun, blue water, gentle breeze, and the glory of England's naval might beneath, it was the most enjoyable thing of its kind that can be imagined.

The President.

The President has lots of troubles, all kinds of grief he knows; and every day that passes doubles the number of his woes. Unselfish friends are few around him—plain is the reason why—but patriots forever hound him, and think of naught but pie. What'er he does kicks up a rumpus, and makes some statement mad. "If he," they say, "thinks he can bump us, his figuring is bad." And to the grindstone they go weav'n', to grind their scalping knives, and to the work of getting even devote their useless lives. And all the bores are ever watching for him, throughout the land, around his pathway wrestling, Gotching, to shake his weary hand. And all the freaks who think conditions are worse than e'er before, are ever standing with petitions before the White House door. And silly dames who want the ballot are camping on his trail; methinks he'd like to take a mallet and that weid boss assail. I'd rather be a humble carter and run the garbage van, than be the presidential martyr, the goat of every man. Not all the glory or the honor would tempt me to that game; 'twould wear me out, I'd be a gonner before the pay day came.

When We Work Best.

By RUTH CAMERON.

My small nephew came home the other morning from an errand on which his mother had sent him, limping painfully. His foot, he explained, was very sore, and the long walk had been too much for it. He lay down on the couch and graciously permitted his mother to see the sore spot which consisted of a small stone bruise. When he put on his stocking again it was with the grimace of one who is trying to bear up under unbearable pain.

That same afternoon I saw my small nephew with two older boys. This time he was not limping but affording proudly along carrying a pail. We stopped to parley. "Where have you been?" I asked. "To Berry Hill," he said, "to pick blueberries." See all we picked! We're going to sell them and go to the movies to-night. He had two quarts of berries. Berry Hill is at least a mile away and the "movies" are the same distance in another direction.

"But your foot," I said, "how could you walk so far? Doesn't it hurt you?" He looked a bit shamefaced for a minute, but recovered rapidly. "Oh, that's much better," he patronizingly explained. "I guess it's going to get well."

No, my small nephew is not a hypocrite and I'm not writing this to show him up.

On the contrary, I don't doubt in the least that his foot hurt him when he walked and didn't hurt him when

House of Hapsburg.

Sensational Volume in the Press.

A new book, dealing with the romantic and tragic episodes of the house of Hapsburg, is about to be issued.

According to this work, the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria, while she had to submit to the strict Austrian Court rules in the upbringing of her children, desired to reserve to herself the upbringing of one daughter, and by the consent of the Emperor Francis Joseph she placed this child in a private family, who became responsible for her rearing and whose house was at a sufficient distance from the Court but near enough for the Empress to visit the child regularly. It was the intention of the Empress on the occasion of the jubilee of the Emperor Francis Joseph to present this daughter to the Court as a member of the Royal Family. The project failed through the assassination of the Emperor.

The lady who claims to be this child is the Countess Zanardi Landi, and she tells the story of her upbringing in a volume which is to be issued by Messrs. Cassell and Co. (Limited) under the title of "The Secret of an Empress." She explains that she was the confidante of the Empress, and that to her were entrusted many of the confidences of the Court life and history. Among these may be counted the truth about the alleged suicide of King Ludwig II. of Bavaria and the true account of the tragedy of Meyerling, with a circumstantial account of all those events that led up to the murder of the Crown Prince Rudolf. These are but a few episodes of an intimate nature that may be mentioned, and the volume contains character sketches of the Emperor Francis Joseph, the murdered Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the new heir to the throne, Archduke Charles Francis, and other royal personages. It also gives a detailed account of the life of the Countess and what she describes as the machinations employed by interested officials to suppress her claims. The volume has already been suppressed in Italy and France. The Countess, desiring to place her case before the English public, has entrusted the publication of the volume to Messrs. Cassell, who will issue it very shortly.

Somebody Older.

How pleasant it is that always There's somebody older than you— Someone to help and caress you, Someone to scold you, too!

Someone to call you a baby, To laugh at you when you're wise, Someone to care when you're sorry, To kiss the tears from your eyes.

When life has begun to be weary, And youth to melt like the dew, To know, like the little children, Somebody's older than you!

The path cannot be so lonely, For someone has tried it before; The golden gates are the nearer, That someone stands at the door.

I can think of nothing sadder Than to feel when days are few, There's nobody left to lean on, Nobody older than you!

The younger ones may be tender, To the feeble steps and slow; But they can't talk the old times over, Alas! How should they know?

'Tis a romance to them—a wonder, You were ever a child at play; But the dear ones waiting in Heaven, Knowing it is all as you say.

I know that the great All-Father Loves us and the little ones, too; Keep only child-like hearts— Heaven is older than you.

SHOT IN COLD BLOOD.

LONDON, Aug. 6. One Englishman, two Soudanese and three Hindus were hauled off a train, battered with rifle bullets, kicked and then shot in cold blood by fanatic German officials at Wessel near the Dutch frontier despite the fact that all had correct British passports. Until Grey's statement in the British Parliament, there were many demonstrations in Germany and "Johns" meaning "John Bull" were compelled to keep to hotels. The German press declared Britain would not fight for fear of losing India. On Sunday and Monday there were many riots in Berlin, which the Social Democrats were saboted. At Rosenthal, on the Dutch frontier, two Japanese were unmercifully handled because they refused to give up their cameras. Finally all the films were taken. The Japs were allowed to cross into Holland.

They were brought here early to-day, many dead and injured, badly burned by explosion of gasoline tank of motor car. Drury, his wife and three children aboard wrecked motor car. He was only slightly injured. He was quickly removed from the wreckage which covered him and began a search for his family which included a nine months' old baby. BRITAIN WINS A Greater Trafalgar

GREATEST SEA FIGHT IN HISTORY OF THE WORLD.

19 German Warships Sunk;
17 German Warships Captured!

BRITAIN LOST SIX SHIPS and HER ADMIRAL

The British Fleet met the Germans in the North Sea, sunk nine German Warships and captured six. The British lost one, the Admiral. Ship She must have sailed right in amongst the Germans. Admiral Jellicoe went down with the ship.

Later advices suggest that it may have been Admiral Callaghan who was lost, not Admiral Jellicoe.

It is not yet known whether the battle is still in progress.

Six British ships lost in North Sea engagement. The British Fleet sank 19 German Warships and captured 17 Vessels. The Admiralty advised the Tyneside Shipowners that the North Sea is swept clear of Germans, and they are chasing them towards the Dutch Coast.

GREAT NAVAL BATTLE FOUGHT ON DOGGER BANK.

GERMAN FLEET ANNIHILATED.

Special Evening Telegram.

HALIFAX, Aug. 7.

A sensational report was received here which is gaining credence that in a desperate battle in the North Sea the German fleet was practically annihilated, the British sinking 19 ships and capturing 17, while the British loss is comparatively small, losing about six ships. A despatch to the Daily News, Newcastle, timed 1 a.m., says a wireless message received at South Shields shortly before midnight states the British fleet engaged German High Seas fleet in battle off South Dogger Banks. After a general engagement along the battle line, which extended many miles and in which many ships on both sides took part, the German fleet was beaten back and moved in the direction of the coast of Holland. It is now believed the German fleet is completely hemmed in eastern side of North Sea.

Russian Family Murdered.

House Looted by Burglars After Shooting Seven People.

St. Petersburg, July 22.—M. Zake, a wealthy Russian magnate living at Kief, and his entire family, consisting of wife, daughter and three sons, have been murdered by a gang of eight burglars, who broke into the house during the night.

Hearing a noise M. Zake opened his bedroom door, and fell dead on the threshold with five bullets in his body. The bandits rushed into the room and killed Mme. Zake before she could make any resistance. They split up and entered the other bedrooms, killing the daughter and the servant, and finally shooting the three sons, the eldest of whom was eighteen. They then ransacked the house and escaped with the booty.

Two of the gang were arrested later, and the police are on the track of the other six.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hanson Fuesco

One Rich Young Man

Marian dropped into a bench facing Riverside Drive, and divided her attention between a book of short stories by Leonard Merrick, one of her newly discovered favorites among modern writers, and the procession of motor cars which slid silently by on the smooth pavement. It was a sunny, drowsy day, but her soul held a grey and restless mood. With envious eye she watched the finely-groomed children of the rich strolling here and there with their governesses. It would be an easy thing, she reflected moodily, to grow into a childless middle age. In troubled retrospection, she looked back upon the snarl of her own domestic circumstances which she had cut with the scissors of divorce.

"Ah, we meet again," said a pleasant voice.

Marian looked quickly up, to behold a tall, graceful, well-dressed figure. It was Jack Meadows, the youth she had met at Mrs. Walther's dinner. "How do you do? Won't you sit down?" she said, glad that her depressing reflections had been cut off by the other's arrival.

"If I may," responded Meadows, dropping to the bench. "Merrick?" he added, catching sight of her book. "We have a taste in common, then. I consume Leonard Merrick with avidity. Takes me back to the old Montmartre. He's a merry romancer, with a style like his wine."

"Then you know Paris?" murmured Marian with interest.

"The Latin Quarter, yes. My people sent me over to study art, but I reneged, and became enslaved to the pen. It was the most absurd thing I ever did in my life. With smattering of art, I might have done something worth a certain degree of credit. A writer without genius is a mess. Without originality, he is impossible. That's me. I want to do the thing. It's in my blood, heart, and mind, but I can't get it out. Oh, I put things over now and then, but it's always the sort of thing I'm ashamed to sign my name to. There are some magazines here that will buy anything provided it's absurd and impossible. You write, they tell me?" he asked.

"I wouldn't call it writing," smiled Marian frankly. "I can't even do the absurd, impossible things you speak of."

"Ah then you have genius," returned Meadows seriously.

"I haven't even enough genius to find a job," answered Marian, responding to that something in Meadows' personality which made her feel justified in discarding all pose, and being herself. One crosses the path of that sort of person sometimes. Accordingly, it is a delight to relax, to cease bluffing, to be naive and natural.

"If you are in need of work, I envy you," said the peculiar young fellow. "Believe me, I'm not joking. I don't believe a man or woman can do anything that is decidedly worth while, unless he has to. If I were in actual need of the creature comforts of life, I honestly believe that that absent something in my cosmos might materialize. I made the fatal mistake of being born comparatively rich," he continued drolly. "The infernal remittance that they send me from home with unfailing regularity has been my undoing."

"But why accept it?" inquired Marian with interest.

"The other shrugged with blasé, contented resignation. "Habit," he answered sadly. "It's a habit I haven't got the strength of purpose to abandon. Those paternal checks have made a sort of nifty out of me. I admit it with shame, but it's so."

Meadows talked on, and Marian listened with an intensity of interest which few persons had ever aroused in her. The blasé indifference of her companion, alternating with his rebellious outbursts against the easy pathway into which fate had thrust him, conspired to present a point of view which Marian had ever encountered in a man.

How to Grow Hair.

The French are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale. Letter from Nelson's Wife.

"Found in the cabin of the Victory, Nelson's unfinished message to his Emma is in the British Museum. Ten years ago we saw an ardent collector give £1,000 for the national hero's last complete letter to her who dominated his life like a second Cleopatra from the Nile to the end. Last week at Christie's, it was the wife's turn," says the Telegraph. "Unknown to the main to most of Nelson's biographers, came a number of letters written to Lady Nelson from the days of courtship, in 1785, to the melancholy finale, in 1800, when the two parted forever."

"The following is that which Lady Nelson sent to him in July, 1801, after the battle of Copenhagen:—
 "My Dear Husband,—I cannot be silent in the general joy throughout the kingdom. I must express my thankfulness and happiness it hath pleased God to spare your life. All greet you with every testimony of gratitude and praise, this Victory is said to surpass Aboukir—what my feelings are your own good heart will tell you—let me beg, nay intreat you to believe no Wife ever felt greater affection for a Husband than I do—and to the best of my knowledge I have invariably done everything you desire, if I have omitted anything I am sorry for it. On receiving a letter from Our Father, written in a melancholy and distressing manner—I offered to go to him if I could in the least contribute to ease his mind, by return of Post he desired to see me immediately—but I was to stop a few days in Town to see for a House. I will do everything in my power to alleviate the heavy infirmities which bow him down. What can I do more to convince you that I am truly Your Affectionate Wife?"

Never sit on the edge of a sick person's bed and never place your chair so that he must strain his eyes or turn his head to look at you.

For Peace.

The following order has been given by His Grace the Archbishop. Until further notice the prayer "Deus a quo, etc." pro Pace shall be said in the Mass, rubrics permitting, after the "Oratio pro Papa."

Prices.

It is only too true that prices on food stuffs are advancing day by day, the market being put "in sympathy" with the markets away. However much this may be the usual custom of business ethics (?) in the present case some effort should be made to lessen a burden on our people who have to face bad times in addition to increased prices. All that is needed is a group, however small, of importers to say "we shall sell present stocks at old prices" and the rest will follow suit. The President of the Board of Trade has now his opportunity.

THEOBALD.

"Beautiful Lady."

By the Prima Dona, at the Crescent—Five Reels of Feature Movies.

The closing performance at the Crescent Picture Palace this week must be admitted to be one of the strongest bills seen in this city for some time; it is assuredly the best ever witnessed since the opening of the Palace. "The War of the Cattle Range" a two-reel Western drama with William Clifford and Phyllis Gordon, is followed by one of those ever pleasing society dramas, "The Awakening," by the famous Power players. "Grease Paint Indian," a humorous Eclair comedy is preceded by an interesting travelogue "Holy City of Japan." The Prima Dona Miss Alice Clark who has since her initial appearance on Monday last created such a favourable impression with the patrons of the House of Features will be heard to advantage in the well known operatic selection "Beautiful Lady," as sung in the Pink Lady and which ballad has gained the world wide fame.

To-morrow afternoon the usual big Saturday Matinee will be held.

News From Labrador.

According to reports brought by the S. S. Kyle from the Labrador Coast the fishery will be a failure and that 600 craft are held by ice at Ice Ticks, Indian Harbor, Rattler's Bight, Fish Cove, Blowhead Cove, New Harbor, Tub Harbor and Cuff Harbor. Since the previous trip of the steamer 20 vessels got north but six of them were driven ashore and became a total loss. Three of the shipwrecked crews came along on the Kyle to their homes. On Friday last the ice loosened at Griffin's Harbor, some traps were set and good fares were secured.

FRIDAY, AUG. 7th, 1914.
 We do not do much shouting about our Camphor and Hartshorn Liniment but that is not because we have not the fullest confidence in it or in what it can accomplish. Those who have used it are practically unanimous in its favor, and say it is about the best of its class. At any rate people are buying it, and if you need a good liniment for general purposes—and a bottle of something of the kind should be in every house, we can thoroughly recommend this liniment. Price 15c. a bottle.

YESTERDAY'S BASEBALL.—The city team again defeated the visitors in the second game of the inter-town baseball series for the Reid Cup, the score being 22 to 13. In four innings the visitors notched up 13 runs, batting Brett rather freely. In the fifth round Rossiter pitched for the city team, and to him is largely due the victory of the city team.

O Willie, Willie Alligam

(By Kate Louise Brown in the 'Poetry Journal', Boston.)

Oh, pleasant was the sunshine
And blithe the windy ways.
A poet-lad went strolling
Through all the changeful days.
One knew just where to find him,
He left a trail of song
By hedgerow and by cottage,
The Irish ways along.
O Willie, Willie Alligam,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
And many-a lovin' Irish heart
Is mournin' for you yet.

Some sing of blood and battle,
And some of want and woe;
'Tis sure you'll have to get them
Wherever you may go;
But Willie sings of flowers,
Of brook-voice and of birds,
And all his songs have sunshine
And pleasant, coxain' words.
O Willie, Willie Alligam,
'Tis you, for you, we fret!
The lovin' mischief of your ways
Is lingerin' with us yet.

They say you went to London,
And there found prosperous ways;
Found friends and favor, shinin' gold,
And plenty much o' praise;
Why, everything you wanted
Came runnin' at your call!
Dear lad, you're not forgotten
Back here in Donegal!
O Willie, Willie Alligam,
'Tis you, for you, we fret!
The music of your happy songs
Is singin' to us yet.

O singer of the sunshine,
Where are you Willie, now?
They say the earth is lyin'
All cold upon your brow;
The feet that loved to wander,
Alas! are restin' still!
No more they pace the hedgerows
Or climb the windy hill.
O Willie, Willie Alligam,
Our eyes with tears are wet,
For you the breeze is sobbin'
Is sobbin' for you yet!

Leaders Have Aged.

There is no activity in which a man ages more quickly than in politics. Quite young men in the British House of Commons look prematurely old. At times even Mr. Churchill, over whose head only 40 summers have passed, has the look of a man of 50, and the tell-tale marks of age under the eyes have registered themselves. His colleague, Mr. Lloyd George, some 11 years older, has the walk and the alert figure of a well-preserved man of 50, but his hair, worn thickly at the back, is quite grey. When the Chancellor is vexed the lines on his face show out very strongly. Only when he smiles he looks his real age. Mr. Asquith's hair, or what there is left of it, is quite white. He gives you the impression that he has lived every one of his 62 years, and that time has dealt not too kindly with him. He is young-looking, however, compared to Mr. Birrell, two years his senior, whose deathly pallor is accentuated by the mass of white hair that always seems awry. For a philosopher with an agreeable turn of humour, the Irish Secretary has illustrated the advance of years. One imagines his career likely to end with the dissolution of the present Government. Thirteen years older than his leader, Lord Morley has aged perceptibly these last few years. His step is slow and measured; his voice that once rang through the House like a clarion, is low and difficult to hear; the fine ascetic-looking face is the face of a very old man. One sees the difference in time's treatment of others when one notices the tall, upright, steady figure of Lord St. Aldwyn, better known as Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, striding proudly through the Lords. On him the years have fallen very gracefully. He might be only sixty from that firm gait of his, and yet he is 77. With his daily floral buttonhole and his well-fitting clothes, Mr. Redmond encourages the belief that he is young, but regarding him in one of those off-moments, when his features assume a settled expression, one cannot help being struck by the time-worn picture he presents. His hair is now quite white. Lord Lansdowne makes a brave struggle to resist looking unduly old, and, remembering that he is 65 one must admit he has done much better than most contemporary statesmen in Parliament. His carriage is remarkably upright, and he shows wonderful vitality, due to the careful way in which he has husbanded his energies. Mr. Balfour, three years younger, has remarkably improved in health and appearance since he relinquished the reins to Mr. Bonar Law. He looks ten years to the good as compared to the days when the "Balfour must go" cry was the leading note in English politics. As for Mr. Bonar Law, he wears very well, and one has some difficulty in believing he is really 66. It would seem, therefore, that on the Liberal side age comes more quickly than on the Unionist. To be in office may be tempting, but it has its penalties.
