For Her Sake;

The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Her father said "Hush!" when she appeared.

But Lady Cameron rather snappishly remarked:

"No, I see no need for silence. I think Diana ought to know what is said about her mad, foolish marriage." Then, pointing to an open letter which lay on the library table, she went on: "The Duchess is seriously displeased. She has heard of your engagement, and writes to say how much she disapproves of it, as she, with many others, saw the devoted attention Lord Clanronald paid to my daughter."

Diana did not condescend to make any reply.

"It is a very serious thing to offend the Duchess," remarked Mr. Cameron—"most serious."

"Diana laughed aloud, a scornful, bitter laugh that jarred terribly upon her father. "I should not care in the least if all the duchesses in England were offended with me," she said. "How can it possibly matter to her, I should like to know."

"It will be a serious thing for you if you provoke her ill will," said Mr. Cameron.

"My dear papa, it will not matter one jot. In a contest with the Duchess I should be quite sure to win. It is not even worth while to tell me what she thinks or what she says. I do not care in the least."

Peter Cameron knew that his daughter was in earnest, and wondered that she should differ so greatly from himself. To him there was nothing on earth so blissful or so precious as the friendship of a duke or duchess while to his daughter it was far more of a trouble than a pleasure.

Lady Cameron looked, as she felt, mortified. Diana was in very deed a thorn in her side.

There was another side to the picture. Congratulations poured in from all quarters. Lord Clanronald's friends and relatives professed to be in raptures; the whole country seemed delighted. Letters poured in; but not a line of congratulation came from the Duke or Duchess; and Peter Cameron asked himself anxiously more than once if Diana's marriage would undo the good effect of his own.

Sir Lisle had not been able to secure an interview with Diana, he had not been able to press once more upon her the love that he felt for her. He had made up his mind to leave Ferness; but he waited from day to day, hoping always to be able to see her, and perhaps to unravel the mystery that perplexed him. His opportunity came at last.

It was the last day in October, and the morning sun was shining brightly, while a gentle breeze rustled musically among the still leafy trees. Diana thought the whole of the party had gone for a drive to the ruins of an old abbey a few miles distant; she had declined to accompany them. Finding at the last moment that Diana was not going, Sir Lisle also resolved to remain at home. He was determined to speak to her that day, no matter what happened.

Lady Cameron understood Sir Lisle's anxiety to see Diana, and she placed no obstacle in his way. If he could persuade Diana to change her mind, she would be only too delighted. She was therefore not displeased when he said:

"I want to speak to Diana, Lady Cameron; I will take this opportunity, with your permission."

"You will find her in the rose-garden," said her ladyship; "I saw her go there a few minutes since."

Diana, believing they had all started, thankful to be alone, and relieved from Lord Clanronald's unwelcome attentions, had gone to her favorite spot. The roses were nearly all dead, but the sun shone brilliantly, and the spray of the fountains glittered in the sunlight. She felt secure from intruders here. She could sit down and give rein to her thoughts; she could bury her face in her hands and weep the bitter tears that were seeking an outlet. How long was it since she had sung of sunshine and roses, since she had rejoiced in the brightness of her life? The roses had but bloomed and died once since then; yet she was now bewailing the unhappiness of her lot in life; before the roses bloomed again she hoped she would be dead. Still her pride was stronger than her love. She could weep here with no one to laugh, to sneer, or to console. She was alone. And Diana did weep, with uncontrolled grief and passion, quite unconscious that any one was near her, until a hand was laid on her shoulder, and Sir Lisle said, in a grave, low voice:

"Diana!" She started at the sound of her name, and gazed upon the intruder with flashing eyes and flushed cheeks. "Do not be angry, Diana," he said. "I have watched and waited for days to see you. This may be our last interview, and I beg that you will listen to me in patience, for the sake of the love I bear you, and the thought of the love I believed you had for me."

"You had no right, Sir Lisle, to intrude upon my solitude," returned Diana, haughtily. "I came here to seek quiet; I wish to be alone."

"You will be alone in a few minutes," he said; "I shall be gone. If I were dying, Diana, would you refuse to speak to me?"

"No," she replied.

"So far as you and I are concerned, Diana, I am dying," he said—"for when this interview is over, life will cease for me. Not that I shall lay violent hands on myself, but I shall seek an honorable death. You would not refuse a few minutes to me if I were dying—do not refuse them now."

Her heart throbbed with an intense love. She longed to place her arms round his neck, to lay her fair head on his breast, and declare her love. But he was a Scarsdale; neither love nor liking should go from her to that hated race. She steeled herself against him, and tried to remember every insult, every wrong, that she had suffered at the hands of his relatives. She drew back as he approached.

"You need not fear, Diana," he said; "I will not touch your hands. The first kiss I gave you was the last; and I wish that I had died in that moment."

"So do I," echoed Diana, deep down in her heart.

"I will not touch you, dear. Listen to me for a few minutes, and then you shall see my face no more—no more until we stand together where all men shall be judged. You will answer then for the mercy you mete out to me now."

These were solemn words, and she shrank from them as his grave tones fell upon her ears.

"There are many ways of slaying a man," said Sir Lisle, "all more or less cruel; but I think the most cruel is when a beautiful woman wiles the heart from a man's breast, plays with it as a toy, and then crushes it and flings it away. That is what you have done with me, Diana. It is the most cruel of murders, because all good, all light, all hope is extinguished in a man's nature; naught but desolation remains. He has nothing left to live for; life is simply a burden. I swear that had I to live my life over again, I should prefer any death to this living torture. If your white hand, Diana, had plunged a dagger into my breast, it would have been far more merciful. It is my heart of hearts that you have destroyed; the life you have left is valueless to me. Diana, you are weeping!"

"Indeed I am not," she answered, sharply; "and you, Sir Lisle, are talking great nonsense to me!"

Sir Lisle was silent for a few moments; but his heart was full of the wrong done him, and he could not tear himself away until he had made another desperate effort to win her.

"It may sound like nonsense to you, Diana," he continued, "but it is a deadly truth to me. Think a little, dear, and you will realize it. When I met you, my heart had never known the love of woman. As I have told you, I had dreamed sweet and peaceful dreams of my ideal queen. They were realized when I met you. Your face, so fair to see you, Diana, went straight to my heart. I have since loved you with a true, faithful love that will die only with me. Do you believe me, Diana?"

"I believe you," she replied.

"I am glad of that. I set myself to work to win your love. My one aim, my one object has been to make you my beloved wife. You acknowledge that, Diana?"

She was conscious that his was a pure, an honest love; but no answer escaped her.

"When a man sets before himself an object in life, to destroy that object mercilessly is almost to destroy him. You have willfully wrecked my hopes and shattered my life; and that is my charge against you. I bring it now, Diana, and I shall bring it again, when I have to account for my lost and blighted existence."

"I do not see why you should thus charge me," said Diana, more startled than she cared to own by the terrible fervor of his words.

"Do you not? Then I will tell you. I loved you, and I showed my love for you in every possible way. You did not repulse me; you were kind to me. I can recall a thousand actions of yours that were all so many signs of love. You gave me hope. It is true that together with the signs of your love for me there were certain whims and caprices for which I could not so-

IN MISERY FOR YEARS

Mrs. Courtney Tells How She Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.—"For years I was simply in misery from a weakness and awful pains—and nothing seemed to do me any good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and got relief right away. I can certainly recommend this valuable medicine to other women who suffer, for it has done such good work for me and I know it will help others if they will give it a fair trial."

—Mrs. LIZZIE COURTNEY, 108 8th Ave., West, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Why will women drag along from day to day, year in and year out, suffering such misery as did Mrs. Courtney, when such letters as this are continually being published. Every woman who suffers from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, nervousness, or who is passing through the Change of Life should give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

count. I cannot account for them now; but I thought—knowing you to be so proud, Diana, proud as you are fair—that they were merely the petty rebellions of a young girl against submission—against being conquered, as it were; and I admired them. I cannot bring myself to believe that the same girl who fought against yielding her love to me could yield it to Lord Clanronald. I cannot believe it."

He looked so noble, so grave, so sorrowful, that her heart yearned to cry out that it was not true, that she had yielded her love to him, and him only. But she could make no such admission.

"That is why I bring this charge against you," he went on—"because you encouraged me, you accepted my love, you made me blindly, madly happy. You gave me your love most surely, if ever woman loved man, and you have taken it from me, just as surely. Can you deny that you loved me?"

"I must decline to answer such a question. I am the betrothed wife of another," she replied.

"Most falsely so," he said, bitterly. "If you are betrothed to any one, it is to me. I am sure there is a mystery, Diana; but I cannot fathom it. As surely as ever the sun, moon and stars shone in heaven, you loved me. You are so proud and dignified, you would never have allowed me that kiss had you not loved me, Diana. That kiss was sacred to me as a betrothal; and I know it was the same with you. I left you that night—ah, Heaven," he cried, passionately, "I pray that I may forget—I left your presence that night the happiest man in the world. I left you with love shining from your eyes, the clasp of your hand still warm in mine, your kiss sweet on my lips. I left you to dream of you, to long for the morrow, to count the moments that must pass before I should be again in the heaven of your presence. The morning came. Oh, Diana, how can I describe it? I left you all sunshine; I found you cold, frozen, dead to me. Neither your lips nor your eyes have smiled since. What have I done? Tell me—tell me—what have I done?"

Sir Lisle's earnest appeal touched the depths of Diana's heart, and she felt acutely the degradation of her position. She had encouraged him, and she loved him—yet she would marry another. The thought of revenge came to her in this moment of suspense, and she steeled herself against making any confession. The man she loved was a Scarsdale—her fate should never be linked with that name. She did not tell Sir Lisle this, but maintained a stolid indifference to his pleading.

MILLEY'S

Don't say Paper, say The Evening Telegram,

A Monument to a Great Book Lover.

"The splendid memorial which George Widener (now Mrs. Rice) has erected at Harvard to the memory of her son, Mr. Harry Elkins Widener, who, with his father, was among the victims of the Titanic tragedy, will for all time be a literary Mecca," says the Times' Literary Supplement.

"It is the most sumptuous monument to a bibliophile in the world, just as Harry Widener, had he lived, would have become one of the greatest book collectors. The cadre of the library is entirely in keeping with the choice books and M.S.S. which it contains. If the splendour of the place is a trifle awe-inspiring, that is perhaps because the spirit of the mighty dead, both authors and collectors, seems to be present in a more concentrated form than in a library which has been built up by many hands at various times and with divergent tastes.

A Rare Young Man.

"It is rare indeed that a young man, heir to great riches, develops into a keen and discriminating collector before he leaves college. The number of youthful bibliophiles who developed into eminent collectors is greater than might be supposed. But generally speaking the book collector is not born young; he is the product of middle-age, when success has been obtained in the struggle for existence. In its way Harry Widener's example is unique both in taste and achievement. He collected those things in literature which will live. Some have passed through the crucial test of time, and of others the ultimate fate is one of which we at least to-day have no fear or doubt. In these matters, besides his own natural instinct, Harry Widener had the benefit of the experience and judgment of his friend, Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, who has, in his way, also erected a monument to the memory of Harry Widener in the catalogue, just privately printed in four quarto volumes, in which he has described fully the contents—books and manuscripts—of the Harry Elkins Widener Library at Harvard.

"The Stevenson, the Cruikshank, and the Dickens collections are undoubtedly the three great features of the Harry Widener Library. But one book opens another; and obviously a collector whose enthusiasm ranged from Dickens to Shakespeare set himself no limitations. In going through the two volumes of the general Catalogue Harry Widener's wide literary sympathies are manifest on nearly every page. And here, again, nearly every look has passed through some famous English library, except, of course, the first editions of modern American authors, such as T. B. Aldrich, Longfellow, O. W. Holmes, Whitier, E. A. Poe, and others, nearly all of whom are represented by presentation copies.

"The Shakespeare entries comprise a fine set of the four folios, the first of which belonged to Locker-Lampson, and was in the Van Antwerp sale at Sotheby's in March, 1907. The copy of the 1640 'Poems' is in the old sheepskin binding, and one of the two early quartos came from George Steevens's library and has his autograph on the title-page. Both Byron and Shelley were evidently favourites, and of each there are many first editions, all 'correct' from a bibliographical point of view, and many with special association interest. Among the many items of the two Brownings is a presentation copy of the first edition of 'Pauline', 1833, given by Browning to Sarah Ficker Adams, author of 'Nearer, my God, to Thee', who, at least in part, inspired the poem, according to a MS. note on the inside of the front cover; nearly all the Browning books are inscribed presentation copies. Rareties of personal and other interest are to be found among the entries under George Eliot, Swinburne, Thackeray, Charles Lamb, Thomas Gray, Edward FitzGerald, and many other names, familiar and otherwise.

Some Fine Nuggets.

"Occasionally Mr. Widener purchased books as examples of early English typography, for there are specimens from the presses of Caxton and Wynkyn de Worde, as well as from the Kelmscott Press of William Morris. Books illustrated by Kate Greenway, John Leech, William Blake, and others form a few of the leading features. Whilst in another direction we have, to name only a few, such desirable books as Dr. Johnson's New Testament, Dean Swift's copy of Sir Thomas Herbert's 'Persian Monarchy', 1634, and Tennyson's 'Thucydides', extensively annotated by him. But only the Catalogue itself can do justice to this remarkable collection, in which nearly every entry is a rarity of the first water—a 'nugget,' as the late Henry Stevens would have expressed it."

When you can get fine, fresh oysters, try frying them in olive oil—just enough to grease the pan. They should, of course, first be dipped in beaten egg and cooked separately.

Edison Praises Roosevelt.

Inventor Issues an Appeal for Support of Memorial Fund.

Orange, N.J., Oct. 28.—This appeal has been issued by Thomas A. Edison for support of the Roosevelt Memorial Fund:

"Our country has never produced a greater American than Theodore Roosevelt. In every phase of his life, in all of his utterance and in his official acts he typified the very spirit of America. A virile manhood from first to last, courageous in his convictions and fearless in action, he stood as a sturdy representative of the essence of Americanism. His memory should and will be perpetuated to all time as a shining example to the people of the country he loved so well."

Prince Pays Visit

TO ARCHBISHOP BRUCHESI JUST BEFORE LEAVING MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—One of the last acts of the Prince of Wales be-fore he departed from the city yes-terday, was an impromptu visit to His Grace Archbishop Bruchesi, at the Hotel Dieu Hospital, where, for the past two weeks, the Archbishop has been confined for treatment. The visit was an agreeable surprise to His Grace.

"You know, Prince," remarked the Archbishop, before the Prince left, "what name the people have given you?" and as the Prince seemed not to know, His Grace continued:

"Others will tell you what it is, but I wish to call you by another name — 'Conquering Prince.' You have passed through our country as a conqueror and your conquests are the finest that can be. You have conquered all hearts, and most es-pecially that of the Archbishop of Montreal."

Before leaving the Hotel Dieu, His Royal Highness signed the register next to the name of Cardinal Mercier and other eminent visitors, among whom are many Royal names.

A Large and Men's T Worth from Selling from Full

Saturday On Sweeping

Side T by Ruth C

WHAT SHALL THE

A letter friend who has read my talk on the house-work girl who does not want to work in a home where there are several children, wants to know what I think of the landlord who does not want to rent his house or apartment to a family with several children.

What she thinks is perfectly plain. She is the mother of five.

It is not at all difficult to answer her question. It's Hard on the Man With a Family. I think it is terribly hard on people who are having enough of a struggle to bring up a family of children, in these days of dollars that won't buy a half a dollar's worth, to have to be discriminated against because they are doing their duty by the race.

Also I think it is terribly hard on landlords who are having enough of a struggle to get any return from their property, in these days when a dollar's worth of repairs costs at least two dollars and when taxes are having an ascension race with the high cost of living, to have their rent automatically reduced by granting to a family with several undisciplined children who will double the repair cost.

All Children Are Not Undisciplined, But—

Doubtless someone is going to suggest that all children are not undisciplined. They are not, but many are, especially as regards matters which do not come back upon the convenience or pocket books of their own people.

It is inevitable that even the best of children should rush around more than grownups and thus take more out of a house. And when children are not the best,—well, you know the rest.

Of course, many will say that a landlord ought to discriminate and take careful, well brought-up chil- dren even if he refuses the other kind. But how is he going to tell

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT SHALL THE LANDLORD DO?
 A letter friend who has read my talk on the house-work girl who does not want to work in a home where there are several children, wants to know what I think of the landlord who does not want to rent his house or apartment to a family with several children. What she thinks is perfectly plain. She is the mother of five. It is not at all difficult to answer her question.

It's Hard on the Man With a Family.
 I think it is terribly hard on people who are having enough of a struggle to bring up a family of children, in these days of dollars that won't buy a half a dollar's worth, to have to be discriminated against because they are doing their duty by the race.

Also I think it is terribly hard on landlords who are having enough of a struggle to get any return from their property, in these days when a dollar's worth of repairs costs at least two dollars and when taxes are having an ascension race with the high cost of living, to have their rent automatically reduced by renting to a family with several undisciplined children who will double the repair cost.

All Children Are Not Undisciplined.
 Doubtless someone is going to suggest that all children are not undisciplined. They are not, but many are, especially as regards matters which do not come back upon the convenience or pocket books of their own people.

It is inevitable that even the best of children should rush around more than grownups and thus take more out of a house. And when children are not the best,—well, you know the rest.

Of course, many will say that a landlord ought to discriminate and take careful, well brought-up children even if he refuses the other kind. But how is he going to tell

NOVEMBER.

November skies are dreary, her winds as sharp as knives; and all the world seems weary, when this sad month arrives; the birds no longer tarry where tempests raise old Harry, the bees no longer carry the glucose to their hives. The cockleburrs I tended through golden summer days, the milkweeds tall and splendid, no longer meet the gaze; the frost is falling nightly, I see it gleaming whitely, when in the morn, politely, I cuss November's ways. The night wind, at the casement, now shrieks in fiendish glee; the furnace in the basement is calling, calling me; in spring I didn't need it, the summer weather freed it, but soon I'll have to feed it coal carloads two or three. No wonder if my sonnet should strike a plaintive note; my uncle has my bonnet, he also has my coat; the summer rags I'm wearing won't do when blasts are tearing, and creditors are swearing; my uncle has my goat. Alas, that bleak November, which leaves us cold and numb, is followed by December, the blumest of the bum! Then comes fierce January, to punish the unwary; but, hoots! let us be merry—the worst is yet to come!

Household Notes.

A little sage and onion are necessary in chicken dressing, if one wishes it savory.

Do not let the bread sponge set too long or it will sour and be unwholesome.

Wrap silver evening slippers in black tissue paper to keep them from tarnishing.

Oatmeal macaroons are made with sponge cake batter, thickened with rolled oats.

Always keep half a lemon handy in the soap-dish to use after washing your hands.

Coffee tapioca is as easy to make as any other kind, and is an agreeable change.

Thyme is one of the herbs indispensable to the cook who delights in savory dishes.

A few drops of camphor on the toothbrush is refreshing, and it will harden the gums.

Benefits Even.—"How is it, Sandy," asked a visitor of a Scotch coal merchant, "that you quote the lowest prices in town and make reductions to your friends and yet you can make money?"

"Well, it's this way," explained Sandy in a undertone. "Ye see, I knock off two shillings a ton because a customer is a freen o' mine, and then I knock off two hundred weight a ton because I'm a freen o' his."—"Boston Transcript."

A Legal Turn.—The following is told of a late railway magnate and a prominent Philadelphia lawyer. Said the magnate to the lawyer: "I want you to show that this law is unconstitutional. Do you think you can manage it?" "Easily," answered the lawyer. "Well, go ahead and get familiar with the case."

"I'm already at home in it. I know my ground perfectly. It's the same law you had me prove was constitutional two years ago."—"Lancaster News Journal."

Dr. Frederick G. La Forge of the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, has invented a process of making glue out of corn cobs. This can be made, he claims, for $8 a ton.

Just Folks

THE OLD CLOTHES GIVERS.
 He gave away a suit of clothes that he no longer cared to wear. And all that day it seemed to me his head was higher in the air. "Oh," his manner seemed to say, "behold in me a kindly man—To help the needy and the poor I always do the best I can."

Another gave a bit of gold that he could well afford to spare. And he too walked along the street as one who'd really done his share. And if you'd asked him he'd have said as proudly as a mortal can: "I am not steeped in selfishness, I always help my fellowman."

Now, pondering on the gifts we make, I wonder where such giving leads. Has he done everything he should who gives what he no longer needs? Has he the right to pride himself whose kindly works are told in this:

That he has merely given away the things which he will never miss? The world needs kindly men to-day, unselfish men who'll gladly give Some of the joys they crave them- selves that other men in peace may live.

A broader vision now we catch; no longer any man can say That he has done his duty when he gives but worn-out clothes away.

Changing the Subject.—"We are going to investigate the Geodetic survey. What do you know about it?" "Nothing, Senator. I don't even know what geodetic means." "Neither do I, and that will be awkward. We'll investigate something else."—"Louisville Courier-Journal."

Outside Doings.

While the attention of all in Newfoundland has been focused during the past few weeks on the election campaign and its probable results, things in the outside world have not been at a standstill. Preparations are being hastened for the trial of those Austro-German officials who were guilty of the horrible atrocities that characterized the enemy's actions during the war period. While the clamour for the trial of the Kaiser and his co-partners in crime has subsided somewhat, there is still a large majority who favors the punishment of the now ex-ruler. Owing, however, to the many demands on the time of the Allies, and the different questions requiring immediate solution, it is difficult to say when the guilty ones will be arraigned before the bench of justice. The League of Nations' Covenant still continues to be a subject of much bitter controversy in the United States, although the Senate of that country is expected to ratify it in short, and the first meeting of the League of Nations has been decided to take place in Paris some time in the near future, the date of which is not definitely fixed.

The labor unrest still continues to be as acute as ever, and at present there is much discussion in the U. S. Senate over the proposed adoption of the eight hour day. According to public despatches, the subject is one that will take a long time to settle, but the result of the same will be keenly watched by all parties in all civilized countries especially in those countries where labor is organized and fighting for better conditions. The people of this country will unquestionably be interested in the outcome of this question. Among other things too, that strike us from the outside world, is the fact that the Germans, in spite of their treachery in the sinking of the ships at Scapa Flow, with the intention of defying the Allies, the Supreme Council has notified the Government of Germany that it must deliver up five cruisers and much other property as compensation for their treachery in breaking the terms of the armistice which they had previously signed. The indemnity to be paid to the Allies and especially to Britain, is of particular interest to us, as that indemnity is, according to Britain's ruling, to be partially spent in refunding the expenses of the war efforts of her colonies, of which Newfoundland claims thirty million dollars. These and many other questions affect us, and from now on will absorb more of our attention than during the exciting time now over.

More Later.

The Advocate is already telling imaginary doings of the election polling in order, as it says, to test the Telegram. We have no objection, neither have we any question whatever but that in the future we shall deal as effectively with the Advocate's effusions as in the past. There is no need Brudder Advocate to fall back on the imagination for fairy tales. If you have the goods "toot it out." There is an old maxim saying "Don't hit a man when he's down," apparently the Advocate editor has forgotten it if we judge from the headline in the Duckworth Street organ of yesterday. Stone was defeated, but we have no doubt whatever in saying that he would rather be a good loser than a bad winner. As to why the Coakerites got such a good vote there are but few reasons, neither of which is because of the competency or capability of some of those elected.

Police Court.

A thirteen-year-old boy charged with the theft of two lady's coats, valued at $37, and remanded a week ago, came up before the court again this morning. It came out that the boy, who was a messenger at Alex Scott's, had been given the coats to deliver at quarter to six in the afternoon and as it was dark and so late, he was afraid to turn up to work next day. The coats were subsequently stolen from the hiding place and when the police searched the place, as directed by the lad after his arrest, they were missing. The boy was ordered to pay for the coats or go to jail.

Smallpox at Leading Ticks.

The Board of Health authorities are in receipt of a message from Father Nolan, asking that a policeman, doctor be sent to Leading Ticks to enforce quarantine regulations, as it is feared there may be a serious outbreak of smallpox both in the east and west of that settlement if immediate precautions are not taken. The Board of Health has acted promptly and it is hoped, will have the outbreak nipped before it spreads.

Towing Disabled Ship.

The Deputy Minister of Customs has a message saying that the S. S. Ellenorah has the S. S. Anondale, with engine room and boiler in a very bad condition, in tow, and is endeavoring to make this port. The position of the ships is not given.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, Nov. 7.
Hands already troubling you? One doesn't wonder with these harsh, chilly, disagreeable winds—most people's hands do trouble them at this time of year. But some of them have taken the tip of using McMurdo's Peroxide Cream, and so quickly correct the trouble, by soothing the soreness and smoothing the roughness. The use of McMurdo's Peroxide Cream keeps the hands white too. Generous sized pot 40c.
Nyal's Creophos simply "can't be jammed" when it comes to keeping off attacks of cough, grip, flu, and bronchitis. The real tonic, cough and bronchitis remedy. Large bottles $1.

Double Bigamy Case.

In the double bigamy case heard yesterday before Judge Morris, it transpired that the man, a native of Bay Roberts, in 1913 married a girl from Bell Island. They lived together for about six months, after the marriage and then separated; the girl going back to her former home. It is alleged that the man married a Bay Roberts woman in 1918, and during the pre-arranged spring the Bell Island woman, thinking she was free, married a man from Old Perlican. They have been sent up for trial before the Supreme Court.

Wedding Bells.

IVANY—WELLS.
On Wednesday, October 29th, at 4 p.m., a very pretty wedding was solemnized at Britannia Meth. Church, when Miss Anna Ivany, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ivany, Britannia, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to ex-Sergt. Pearce Wells, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Wells, of Three Arms, N.D.B. The bride looked charming in a dress of cream satin and silk georgette crepe with white veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern. She entered the church leaning on the arm of her father and was supported by her sister Louise, and Miss Jessie Ivany, while the groom was supported by Mr. Richard Ivany, brother of the bride and Mr. Simon Ivany. After the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Theo. Pitcher, the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents where supper was served and a very enjoyable time was spent by all. Many and valuable presents were received by the bride, which testified to the esteem in which she was held. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome travelling companion, and to the bridesmaids birthstone rings. After spending a few days with her parents the happy couple will proceed to Three Arms where they will spend the winter months. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wells wish them a long and prosperous voyage over the sea of wedded life.

Dangerous to Shipping.

Last evening the Deputy Minister of Customs, received the following message from the steamer Etidrop:—"Passed an iceberg 200 feet high and 650 feet long in Lat. 44.20 N., Long. 48.50 W., at 4.30 p.m. on the 5th. Another was sighted in Lat. 45.10 N., Long. 46.43 W. and growlers were also reported on the 5th in Lat. 47.44 N., Long. 48.37 W."

Church Lads' Brigade.

The 41st Battalion, C.L.B., including Field College Companies, paraded in full strength at 8.15 last evening at headquarters. At the Armoury Lt. Col. Goodridge with Adjutant Major Rendell, M.C., was in command. Rev. Capt. Clayton and the Battalion Chaplain, Rev. Jacob Brinton were also present for the opening ceremonies. We were all pleased to see Sergt. Ricketts, V.C., formerly of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, present in his official C.L.B. kit, helping by his example and influence to advance the interests of the lads. The Battalion was inspected by the Colonel commanding, and put through a series of physical exercises by Capt. J. A. Winter. On Sunday next at 8 a.m. the lads and officers will parade for Holy Communion service at the Cathedral. On Sunday afternoon the Battalion will parade at 2.15 to attend the 25th anniversary service of the C.L.B. in Newfoundland to be held at the Cathedral. On Tuesday evening the Brigade will parade at the Armoury at 7 o'clock sharp for a torchlight procession through the city and thence back to the Armoury where at 8 p.m. the Battalion will be given a tea by thirty lady friends of the Brigade who are providing a "standardize menu" tea. The Armoury will be open all Tuesday afternoon and night for these lady friends to arrange their tables. Honorary Colonels, Sir J. Outerbridge and R. G. Rendell, C.B.E., will be especially invited as guests of the evening, and Col. Rendell will address the boys on the past history of the Battalion. After tea a short concert will be given and a dance will be held in the gymnasium for any of those present who care to indulge. Tuesday, Nov. 11th is Armistice Night—the end of the Great War—and the date of the founding of the Church Lads' Brigade in London, England, and on account of these facts the Brigade Executive are anxious to have this year's celebration on a larger scale than in past years. On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock the Battalion Band will give a hand concert in aid of the brigade funds to which the public are invited. An admission fee of twenty cents will be charged on Thursday night. The Bugle Band, under Corporal Johnson, is in good strength. He has 14 buglers and twelve drummers and will give a good account of themselves next week. The additional name plates for the C.L.B. War Memorial have arrived from England and will be shortly placed in position by Bat-Sergt-Major Reid. Bay Roberts Co. is being re-organized under Rev. J. O. Britnell, Lieuts. J. W. Dawe, C. Butt, N. French and R. J. Mercer. These officers' commissions will shortly be here from headquarters. A new company will also be here likely be organized at New Harbor, by the Rev. Mr. Beacham, and we wish it every success. Lieut. Gover of J. Co. Wabana—a war veteran—visited the armoury last night and was heartily welcomed by the officers. Bell Island Company reports great progress and the Brigade authorities in recognition of Captain Lindsay's work have promoted him to the rank of Major, the first officer in any company outside of St. John's to reach this rank. Major Lindsay has done wonders for the lads of the Brigade at the Iron Isle and we congratulate him and wish him continued success.—Q.

If you are growing bulbs for winter blooming, remember that they must have five to eight weeks to get their roots well started.
When you rip an old garment, first cut a few stitches with the scissors; then pin the material to your knee and rip with a sharp knife.

Battle Record of the New Zealand.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand.—When the Germans in 1909 started Britain by a sudden expansion of their naval program, the New Zealand Government offered to add a capital ship to the British Navy as a gift from the Dominion. This ship, laid down in 1910 and completed in 1912, was the battle cruiser New Zealand, a 27-knot ship of 18,800 tons, having a main armament of eight 12-inch guns. The battle cruiser visited dominion waters in 1913, and is now back again with the honors, if not the scars, of war upon her.

The New Zealand took part in every action that occurred in the North Sea during the course of the war. She sank a German cruiser, the Kohn, at the Heligoland light, and another one, the armored cruiser Blucher, at the Dogger Bank engagement. She was in the line next to the Queen Mary and the Indefatigable at the Battle of Jutland when those battle cruisers were sunk by the fire of the German battleships, and she took the vacant position. She fired 430 shots from her heavy guns during the engagement and received one blow from a spent shell in return. Her marksmanship during that battle was conspicuously good, her gunners scoring repeated hits on the German ships.

If the Germans had been able to peer into the coming tides of the New Zealand during any of the engagements in which she took part, they would have been startled. They would have seen a British officer wearing over his workaday uniform an ample Maori mar, with an ancient greenstone "tiki" or Maori stone, hung round his neck. When the battle cruiser was here in 1913 the Maori chiefs, descendants of the fighting men and navigators who colonized the whole of the South Pacific long before the earliest white explorer reached these waters, presented the mat and the tiki to the captain and took his promise that if ever he went into action in that ship, he would go arrayed as a true New Zealand warrior.

The face of a grim Maori was emblazoned upon the forward fighting top of the New Zealand, and a traditional Maori war cry was carved upon the wheel. This war cry—"Ake Ake Ake, Kia Kahi" (For ever and for ever, be strong, get on)—was adopted by the crew of the battle cruiser, and it was chanted in steel turrets as once it had been chanted in native war canoes. So the Maori, whose own sons fought on Gallipoli and in France, are not at all surprised that the New Zealand should have achieved greatly in the war. They know that she carried with her the mana, the fighting impulse of famous Maori warriors.

No Coal Will be Given by United States to Foreign Owned Ships.

NO COAL FOR FOREIGN OWNED SHIPS.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. Still hopeful that court developments at Indianapolis Saturday night point the way to an early ending of the coal strike, government agencies nevertheless put forth renewed and more determined efforts to protect the public against distress almost certain to arise from a protracted suspension of mining operations. Realizing that the country is burning three times as much coal as the mines are turning out, the railroad administration, the great coal distribution agencies through its recently created central committee, took drastic action in ordering that the supplying of coal to foreign owned ships in American ports be stopped immediately.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO VICTORY LOAN.
ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 6. The Victory Loan total for New Brunswick so far tabulated is $3,787,900, the objective being $9,000,000. St. John and County have subscribed $1,401,700.

SHIPBUILDING PROGRAMME.
MONTREAL, Nov. 6. One of the papers to-day outlines a proposition believed to be under consideration, whereby important British interests behind the Canadian Steamships Co. and Vickers are trying to get 50,000 shares of Dominion Steel Company at a cost of $3,500,000. The intention of the British interests is to embark through the Dominion Steel Co. in a large shipbuilding programme.

WANTS MANUEL BACK.
MADRID, Nov. 6. Portuguese non-archival movement has been observed on the Portuguese frontiers and it is suspected preparations are being made for the renewal of agitation to return former King Manuel to the throne, says the Elliber. The newspaper adds that the Spanish authorities have taken steps to prevent any preparations for the coup being made in Spanish territory.

MORNING POST ON THE PRINCE.
LONDON, Nov. 6. The Morning Post speaks editorially of the extraordinary enthusiasm manifested towards His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales in Canada, as inspired not only by traditional loyalty to the Royal Family but by a singular affection towards the Prince himself. The Prince is learning the business of Kingship early, continues the Post. It is perhaps the most complex and difficult business in the world. We suggest that if there is any key to what is called the Irish problem it is in possession of the Prince of Wales. If, for instance, the Prince were to reside for a time in Ireland, the Irish people would behold not the Saxon oppressor of whom they had been told, but an English gentleman. The Irish people, whose frantic leaders call for an independent Ireland, would at least in making the acquaintance of the heir to the throne have some opportunity of perceiving what they would lose under an Irish republic.

KNIGHTED BY PRINCE.
OTTAWA, Nov. 6. Major General E. B. Morrison, K.C. M.G., was formally knighted by the Prince of Wales here to-day. Sir Edward has the distinction of being the first man the Prince has knighted and the last man on the final list of Canadian titles honors.

"HANDLEY PAGE" SEIZED.
NEW YORK, Nov. 6. All hindrances to the non-stop flight from Mineola to Chicago of Vice-Admiral Mark Kerr's Handley-Page bombing machine were to-day removed by Syron R. Newton, collector of the port here. Upon payment of customs duty on it, the big aircraft was to have started this morning, but customs officers seized it, stating that Admiral Kerr had violated customs rules by not "declaring" it when he "entered" the country in his flight down the coast from Parraboro.

OPPOSITION CONVENTION.
ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 6. Delegates from all parts of New Brunswick are here for the opening session of the Provincial Opposition Convention to-day. The Convention, which is the first to be held in many years, will deal with the matter relating to party policy and will also discuss the question of future leaders.

KING GEORGE'S REBUKE TO FORMER EMPEROR.
LONDON, Nov. 6. King George gave a rebuke to the former German Emperor "during an audience with the Missionary from Armenia. When the Missionary told the story of his captivity of four years, ascribing his troubles to the German Emperor, the King replied, 'Well they are finished now. The Kaiser had to run away from his country. He is well punished for all he did.'"

REFUGES REFUND.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. The Mexican Government according to Mexico City papers has refused to refund William Jenkins, the American Consular Agent, $15,000 ransom money which his attorney was forced to pay in order to secure the former's release after being kidnapped last month.

ANOTHER IRISH PLAN DISCUSSED.
LONDON, Nov. 5. Sir Horace Plukett, discussing the report that the Cabinet Committee on Ireland had accepted proposals providing for the creation of two separate Irish Parliaments with some form of supreme authority representative of both, reiterated the ideas he had expressed in his speech at the National Liberal Club on October 29th, when he advocated an offer of the fullest measure of self-government to the Irish people.

NO OFFER RECEIVED.
THE HAGUE, Nov. 6. The Government to-day informed the Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, that no offer has been received from the United States for the purchase of the small Dutch Colonies in the West Indies.

REPORT FOUNDED.
LONDON, Nov. 6. A report that the army of Yudenitch had been surrounded was given out on Monday apparently emanated from the phrase of that manifesto by the Bolshevik Minister of War, Trotsky, addressed to the troops of Yudenitch in which he asked for their surrender on the ground that they were being surrounded.

RETURNING TO NORMAL.
NEW YORK, Nov. 6. New York's water front which has been tied up more than a month by a strike of the Longshoremen, seemed to-day to be slowly returning to normal. Shipping Board officials reported a larger number of men than heretofore reporting for duty at the piers.

STORM IN MARITIME PROVINCES.
HALIFAX, Nov. 6. The Maritime Provinces have been swept by the worst storm since the Saxby gale, during the past twenty-four hours. The wind at one time reached a velocity of eighty miles per hour. Chebucto Head bridge water was destroyed and the fog alarm put out of commission. Several small yachts were swept ashore and wrecked. Telegraph and telephone systems were crippled. One man was killed at Dartmouth, electrocuted by a trailing wire. A schooner was swept ashore at Liverpool. Reports of further marine disasters expected as soon as communications are re-established. The gale was accompanied by an unusually high tide and much damage occasioned along the water front.

DAMAGE IN NEW BRUNSWICK.
ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 6. With a rain fall of more than an inch and a cold wind rising to 46 miles an hour, this city was swept by a severe storm yesterday and last night. A lot of minor damage was done to buildings. The telegraphic services were badly crippled with the lines to the west down. Washouts on the railway are reported. This morning snow is falling.

DEMANDED HIS RESIGNATION.
PARIS, Nov. 6. Premier Clemenceau summoned this morning Albert Lebrun, Minister of Blockade, and demanded his resignation, appointing Andre Tardieu in his place. M. Lebrun is running for a constituency on the same ticket as Deputy Louis Marin, who opposed the peace treaty, and the Premier's action is based on the fact that he will not have as a member of the Cabinet a man on the list with a peace treaty opponent.

EFFECTIVE ON NOV. 28th.
PARIS, Nov. 6. The treaty of Versailles and the peace settlement with Germany will become effective, it is asserted in well informed circles in Paris, on November 28th. The signature of the protocol and the exchange of ratifications between Germany and such Allied Powers as have then ratified the treaty will take place on that date, it is reported.

PLANS FAILED.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. Plans to wind up the fight over the Peace Treaty amendments miscarried again to-day, the Senate adjourning after six hours of speech making with the proposed amendments confronting it, while there had only been two in the morning.

The Eskimo as Builder.
In a recent description of the experience of the Crocker Land Expedition, Mr. Donald B. MacMillan writes of the Eskimo as a builder:

It is a pleasure to see an Eskimo cut and handle snow. You cannot help admiring the skill and the dexterity with which he cuts into the surface, breaks out a block with his toes, lays it up on the wall, bevels the edges, and thumps it into place with his hand. I wonder if there are any other people in the world who attempt to build an arch or dome without support. Starting from the ground in a spiral from right to left, the blocks mount higher and higher, ever assuming a more horizontal position, until the last two or three appear to hang in the air. The last block locks the whole structure. When you go into a newly constructed igloo, it seems as if you were entering fairyland. The light filtering through the snow is a beautiful ethereal blue. Everything—the bed, the two side platforms, the wall is absolutely spotless.

Pink taffeta, with a gray-blue sash-ribbon, is a charming arrangement for a little girl's party frock.

Sabotage at the Coal Mines.

It has been disclosed that the astounding demand of the soft coal miners for a six-hour day and a five-day week is a deliberate act of sabotage copied after the British Socialist-Labor programme to cut down production to the point where the mines cannot operate under corporate control and the Government will be forced to take them over to sustain the life of the nation. Then so the British radical labor programme goes—labor would speed up again and begin producing.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Why Start Your Furnace Now?
 The Perfection Oil Heater provides plenty of cheery warmth for the cool Autumn evenings or the early morning chill.
 No need of starting a big furnace fire that keeps the house hot and stuffy during the day.
 The Perfection saves all the trouble, worry and work of tending a coal fire until it is absolutely necessary, and, of course, it cuts down your fuel bills. Runs ten hours on one gallon of Imperial Royale Coal Oil.
 There is nothing unpleasant about a Perfection Oil Heater. No smoke, no fumes, no soot or ash. It is simple to operate, and can be carried anywhere. Provides just the amount of heat you need—just when you need it.
 Strong, reliable and good-looking, with nickel trimmings, black japanned or blue enamel-drawn, and a brass burner—the Perfection lasts for years. Ask your dealer to show you one. Look for the triangle trade-mark.

Reforming the Movies.
 The producers of moving pictures have run amuck among our feelings. They have harrowed them forward and back and crosswise and kept us stirred up with the story of the villain, the innocent maiden trapped, the hero rescuer, and the other story of the social sin and its penalty, until we have begun to wonder if the predilections of the educational value of the cinema were never to be realized in its general use for the amusement of the public. If now there is to be a change and something more wholesome, more edifying, and what ought to be more interesting to the average person of intelligence, is to be given us, even experimentally, it could be welcomed.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Am I My Brother's Keeper?
 American soldiers were sent to France because the United States thought it was imperative that Germany be defeated. That was a necessary military undertaking and it was accomplished. American soldiers were sent to Archangel on an undertaking not understood and not accomplished. They were misdirected by foreign officers and suffered uselessly and long in Arctic fighting. American soldiers were sent to Siberia to be insulted by Japanese and mistreated, flogged in at least one instance by Cossacks. American marines were landed on the Dalmatian coast to oppose the Italians. Now are they to be sent to Silesia to supervise and conduct a plebiscite, to be custodians of an election determining the disposition of territory? If they are sent there, we might as well realize that we are on our way to Armenia also.—Chicago Tribune.

To Speak Five Days.
 Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, is slated for a five-day speech against the treaty. It is a long time for an audience to listen to one man talk, and few men in the country are capable of holding the interest of their hearers for as much as five days, but we venture to say when the great senator speaks, the galleries will be filled from beginning to end. Mr. La Follette has very probably carefully prepared his address and after he delivers it there will be nothing about the treaty and the league that will not be understood by those who hear him or will secure a copy of his speech in full and read it.—Charleston American.

Fochs and Roberts.
 It is not generally known that Marshal Foch during his recent stay in England made a special journey out of London to visit the Countess Roberts—daughter of his old friend and fellow-soldier, of honored memory. In the course of his visit the marshal asked of his hostess permission to walk around the garden with the officer of his staff who accompanied him. He explained that he had a particular purpose for his request. "I want," he said, "to walk where before the war I walked with Field Marshal Lord Roberts, and I want to tell to this officer of mine just what Lord Roberts told me in those days of what he believed Germany intended and what has since taken place."—Montreal Herald.

Sir A. W. Brown's Opinion.

Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, lecturer at Toronto, said that dirigibles will be the most popular form of ship for air travel on account of the necessities of carrying much fuel. When the engine stops somewhere over mid-Atlantic it would doubtless be more comfortable to be in a dirigible than in an aeroplane with only the rubber ties on the wheels to keep it aloft.—Sydney Record.

ENGLISH.

More Frightfulness.
 The sonorous title of "Städtische elektrische Strassenbahnschienenreinigungstrau" has been conferred on the women municipal street cleaners of Cologne.—London Daily Express.

The Angling "Boom."

A revival in angling is taking place. On the river banks there are more patient fishermen than ever before, and at the seaside resorts the angler has to arrive early to find room to cast his line. At a moderate estimate 2,000 worms are drowned daily at Brighton. By all accounts the fish are showing proper gratitude for this increased interest in their diet, and reports of good "catches" abound. It is even said that some species absent from certain waters for years have returned to encourage their patrons.—London Daily Mail.

Trade With Germany.

It is certainly time that businessmen should begin to wake up to the possibilities of profitable trade with Central Europe before our friends the Americans, the French and the Dutch have planted themselves there to our exclusion. The war with Germany is now over. It would be folly to pursue a spirit of suicidal warfare now that peace has been made. In the interests of all Europe and ourselves in particular it is necessary that we should trade with Germany. The Government, we are glad to see, is waking up to the importance of this fact.—London Daily Chronicle.

A Young Pessimist.

Extreme longevity such as Dr. Voronoff promises us with the aid of monkeys' "innards," has its drawbacks. In 1888 Janos Meryessl, who was 84 years of age, jumped into the suspension bridge at Budapest into the Danube. He was rescued, and explained that he wished to end his life, as he was becoming too decrepit to support his father and mother. This extraordinary statement proved to be true, Meryessl's parents being aged 115 and 110 respectively. A public subscription was organized to set them all three above want.—Manchester Guardian.

Trading With Germany.

That Germany is about to trade with the outside world, and must do so in the interests of all, is clear enough. Then with whom? French and American agents are already pouring across her frontiers, and American credits are being put at her disposal. It is absurd to imagine that we can afford to stand aside and neglect the new conditions which peace has produced. Whilst individuals may restrict special intercourse as long as they feel inclined, whilst we must take obvious precautions against any permeation of our trade such as existed before the war, on the other hand it is absolutely opposed to our own and to all interests that Germany should remain an economic sore in Europe.—London Daily Chronicle.

for some time that a new poetry of the air is on the way. Several of our airmen have given rich promise of this, and in nothing did they show greater zest than in description of cloud effects. They confessed to being awed and inspired by the new vision, with its intense purity of color-scheme and its splendors of the piled bastions of vapor. Rukin's observations from earth, of the "Way of the Cloud-Flocks" must be transposed into another key. It is a little curious that the finest piece of cloud-description that has yet appeared from an airman's pen occurs as a digression from the main subject of a popular book. The passage was thrown into verse, not entirely to its gain, by another writer in an aircraft journal. The prose-poet of the air still holds the field, but the day is at hand when cloudscapes will be celebrated in noble verse.—Westminster Gazette.

A Bear in the Tower.

An unaccustomed sight, at present, at the Tower of London, which we hear so much about in history, is a baby brown bear. This little animal is the pet of one of the officers stationed there; and, as may be imagined, is much spoiled alike by officers and men. On fine afternoons, Master Bear may be seen ambling about the grounds at the length of his chain and having fine games all to himself. One favorite trick of his is to come up quietly behind some one who does not suspect it, and tap him smartly on the shoulder with his paw, for all the world as if he said "Hallo, old fellow, and how are you to-day?" Master Bear is extremely fond of his own way. It is related of him that, if he is not allowed everything he wants, he throws himself on his little back, growling and squealing, and bites his own little toes out of sheer rage!

Quite lately, Master Bear was taken out for a walk in the West End of London, where he created a big sensation. He finished his outing by having his lunch at one of the most exclusive of clubs, where it is said of him that he thoroughly enjoyed himself, and behaved as to the manner born.

REBELLION IN STOMACH

"Pape's Diapepsin" at once ends indigestion and Sour, Acid Stomach

Lumps of undigested food cause pain. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belched gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just take a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin to help neutralize acidity, and in five minutes you wonder what became of the pain, acidity, indigestion and distress.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless stomach antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs so little at drug stores.

He Scorns Youth.
"The oldest man in the world, 131-year-old Uncle John Shell, of Hyden, Ky.," says the Tampa Tribune, "is probably the first person in history to prefer old age to youth."
Uncle John is not at all interested in the claim of Dr. Serge Voronoff that old men can be restored to youth. He prefers to remain old and to keep on getting older. Is old age really sweeter and more enjoyable than the springtime of life, asks the Tribune, to which question it answers:
"Most of us believe not. That is why we make a big historical figure of Ponce de Leon, governor of Porto Rico, who sought the fountain of eternal youth."
"What is there about the body of Uncle John Shell that has kept him alive and chipper for 131 years?"
"If one man can live to this phenomenal age, why not the rest of us? Will health measures and right living ever make Uncle John's body the standard for all people?"
"Science and the pace of living unquestionably alter the span of life. Due to corrective medical science in the last thirty years, the death rate among people below forty years has been reduced. That the death rate after forty is increasing rapidly is probably due to the growing speed and nervous tension of modern life."
"In the United States flu and pneumonia have displaced tuberculosis as the leader of all life destroyers. Tuberculosis has gone to third place. Heart disease ranks second. Accidents and Bright's disease contend for fourth place. Apoplexy is fifth, cancer sixth."
"Geography has much to do with old age."
"The Bulgarian has 600 times the American's chance of living to be 100 or more."
"Vermont is a most deadly disease state. Manitoba has a slight lead over Washington as the safest."
"In the classification of the five states suffering most from each of the sixteen most fatal diseases, Ohio is absent except with cirrhosis of the liver, in which it ranks fifth."
"Famous Thomas Parr, Englishman, lived 152 years. He thrashed corn when he was 130. The great Dr. Harvey, discoverer of the circulation of the blood, performed an autopsy on Old Tom and found his body in a remarkable state of preservation."
"Tom Parr's son lived 109 years, his grandson 123, and his great-grandson 142, his great-great-grandson 124. It was a remarkable gift, old age, that Old Tom passed on to his descendants."
"Exceptionally old people usually come from families remarkable for longevity."
"It is not given to all of us to attain the advanced age of Old Tom Parr, or even Uncle John Shell, but we can all prolong our days of cleanliness, fresh air, exercise, recreation and training the mind to avoid worry."
"The real secret of old age for the can all prolong our days by cleanliness, like a fine machine, wears out quickly when neglected or abused, but lasts long under good care."
"Most people dislike the thought of growing old up to a certain age, when the consciousness of having so preserved the body by adherence to the above formula of cleanliness, exercise, etc., causes them to feel proud of having attained a ripe old age. Upon reaching this stage of life some men are as anxious to grow older as they might have been at an earlier one to be young again. To have reached three score and ten and then passed through the eighties and then on up to 131, like Uncle John Shell, is something to be proud of.—Charleston American.

Woman From the Klondike.
RELICS OF THE RUSH.
Mrs. Charlotte Cameron, F.R.G.S., the author and traveller, has returned to London with many vivid stories of present-day life in Alaska and North-West Canada, where she has been carrying out British propaganda work.
The "character" of Skagway, at the gate of the Klondike, is a Mrs. Pullen, an able woman who keeps the local hotel, a rambling old place full of the lore of the gold-rush days. Mrs. Pullen also keeps a farm, and the guests each morning find a bowl of milk on the table from which they skim their own cream.
Mrs. Pullen also has much of the saloon furniture used by the notorious "Soapy" Smith, including a faked card table with a secret niche for the old gambler to hide his ace. "Soapy" Smith was shot, and curio hunters have all but carried away his tombstone.
Mrs. Cameron found "Bob" Henderson, pensioned by the U.S. government for first finding the gold, still "mushing" along after fresh "strikes." In an old broken-down shanty with half a mirror and a few old rags for covering was "Kate," the Indian wife of "Jim" Cornack. Kate discovered the gold on the world-famed "Bonanza" claim while washing clothes in the creek.
Bodies of Gold Nuggets.
Kate never accustomed herself to the life of a millionaire, and when staying at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, afraid of losing her way, blazed a trail to her room by cutting notches on the stairway. In those days Kate had a bodice of pure gold nuggets.
Still farther north Mrs. Cameron came to the country where the Malamut dogs are "man's own brother." The dogs, used for drawing sleighs over enormous distances, detest the summer months, and are boarded out to Indians living on the banks of the Yukon River at 16s. a month. Here, very unhappy, they meet their enemy the mosquito, and to get a little peace they bury themselves up to the neck in the soft mud by the river until the sun goes down.
In the winter there is a dog-sleigh mail twice a week from Lewis to Nome (Alaska), a distance of 540 miles. The dogs cover about 40 to 50 miles a day, and many compete in the Nome "Derby" over a course of 400 miles.
Mrs. Cameron was struck by the activities of the American traders at Nome. They are rapidly building up a tremendous fur business with Siberia, the most valuable skins being brought across the Behring Sea in small schooners.
"They are just one big, happy family in Alaska," added Mrs. Cameron. "Why, even the hotel porter at Nome refused a tip. I found afterwards he owned two mines and two farms."

Accountant of Public Schools Now Indorses It
Results Were Gratifying From Taking Tanlac—Feels it Would be Selfish Not to Tell About it.
"I began taking Tanlac when it was first put on sale in Edmonton, and I have gotten such splendid results from it that I would feel selfish if I did not let others know about it," said A. C. Crookshank, who resides at 10154 One Hundred and Eighth Street, Edmonton, Alberta, while in the Owl Drug Store in Edmonton. Mr. Crookshank holds the position of accountant for the Edmonton Public Schools, and is willing and favorably known throughout a wide section. He has been a resident of Edmonton for fourteen years and is very popular. Continuing, Mr. Crookshank said:
"I had suffered for a number of years from indigestion and the other troubles it generally brings on. I had to always be very careful in selecting my food and even at that most every meal would cause severe indigestion and suffering. What I ate would just seem to lie heavily in my stomach, causing a dull, sick feeling, and the fermentation would cause gas to form. The pressure of this gas against my heart would cause palpitation, and I believed for a long time that I had heart trouble. This condition brought on extreme nervousness, and it was very seldom I could get a good night's sleep. After a time all this began to affect my general health, and I became so weak that the least little exertion would completely exhaust me—even walking a few blocks would tire me out."
"For years I tried to find something that would relieve my condition, but everything I tried failed to give me any relief. When Tanlac was first put on sale up here I didn't know anything about the merits of it, but saw that it was recommended highly by others who had been benefited by taking it, and I decided to try it. It gave me just the results I was looking for, and I am fully satisfied that they are permanent as it has been a long time since I have taken it. I have a good appetite and am bothered no more with indigestion. I enjoy eight or ten hours sound sleep every night and have regained my strength in general."

As Dr. W. T. Grenfell Sees Prohibition.
Ottawa, Ontario.—Dr. W. T. Grenfell, of the Labrador mission, speaking on prohibition at the time the referendum was taken on the liquor problem, said: "As I happen to be passing through Ontario when the question of prohibition is uppermost, I am venturing to say just a word, as I think that there are a great many who have not had the problem of prohibition put before them possibly in the way it strikes me."
"Ever since I have been in Labrador, some men with their millions have come down and lived among us to escape the temptation of alcoholic liquors. The loss and damage resulting from alcohol is by no means limited to the ignorant classes. As every one knows who will think about it for five minutes, it is a menace to the very existence of our race."
"It was a very significant fact to me some 10 years ago, when I lunched with some Labor leaders in London, that every single one of them was a teetotaler. In these days of industrial unrest it is not a menace to our very existence in England to have open saloons as the natural meeting place for the man in the street. Thank God that the grave crisis which England has just gone through in the railway strike was rendered indefinitely less dangerous by the fact that the war had forced public feeling to legislate against at least some of the worst features of the open saloon."
"Let us remember that those who make money by the sale of alcoholic liquors are not philanthropists. They are out for their own personal gain, and that gain is won not by patriotic results of their labor (though knighthoods and peerages have been showered upon dealers in liquor) but because it has been such a sure road to wealth."
"If we can see prohibition through one generation, we shall find that the next generation will not want alcohol. As for interfering with the liberty of our fellows, we are not 'wild asses living in the desert,' we are social beings who have to limit our liberty so-called for the benefit of higher issues than the pleasure of catering to our palates. What an immense advantage will have been gained if the British Empire can go forward to meet the new era without the handicap that England especially has had to carry through the centuries from the grip of the hydro-headed monster of intemperance. Write me down as a prohibitionist from the soles of my boots to the crown of my hat."

 GENTLEMEN.—We received your bill and the 59 Suits O.K. and let me congratulate you and the working people on the workmanship of the clothes.

I inspected the Suits and they were done to the "point." You can show this letter to your workmen as they deserve it. I just came from the States and I consider the style and fit wonderful, and we can assure you that as long as we receive work as good as these you can be assured of our trade.

Hoping you will do all of our work like this, and thanking you very much.

I am, respectfully yours,

We received the above testimonial from one of our most particular outport merchants. We value his opinion and pass it on to our many customers.

Testimonials like the above have helped us to overcome the many difficulties essential to the starting of a new industry.

WORKMANSHIP AND VALUE have been the main driving points in forcing us to the front after four months' operation as the
